DROP NINTH IN POLICE SCANDAL

Charges Preferred Against Another Patrolman and Suspension Is Near.

Atlanta's police scandal was revived Saturday by the preferring of charges against another member of the police force. His suspension by Chief of Police James L. Beavers is expected to follow within a few hours.

The subject of the accusations is the ninth policeman involved in the scandal. Chief Beavers would not make public the man's name until formal order of suspension was made.

The charges against the majority of the policemen are that they frequented the notorious negro resort in the rear of 127 Auburn Avenue and that certain of the men were in the habit of drinking there. The place has no license and one of the officers, against whom there was no evidence of drinking, was charged simply with permitting the place to run without reporting it.

With the preferring of the ninth set of charges came the information that R. A. Wood, the policeman who tendered his resignation as soon as the story of his alleged visits to the resort was made public, had sold all his household belongings and moved from the city.

Officers who went to serve notice of the trial before the Police Commission next Tuesday night were met with the information that he had moved with his family to Texas.

Griffin Gasps as Folk Get Glimpse Of Slashed Skirt

GRIFFIN, July 5.—Griffin got its first view of the famous slashed skirt here yesterday when Miss Eleanor McHarris, of Macon, appeared at the Spalding County Fair Grounds during the Fourth of July festivities. She came near breaking up the celebration. Everybody left the barbecued meats, interest was lost in the horse races and nobody cared whether a game of ball was played or not. Miss McHarris made a brave effort to overcome the gaze of the crowd, but failed.

The skirt was not of the ultra-fashionable cut, but it was more than Griffin was accustomed to So Griffin took a good look.

Receiver Reports In Buggy Case

In the suit of the Valentine Company against the Columbus Buggy Company, Daniel McLaren, ancillary receiver for the Columbus Buggy Company, Saturday submitted his report to Judge Newman in the United States District Court.

Judge Newman ordered that F. J. Long, James D. Palmer and Benedict Kobak, who were appointed as appraisers to make inventory and appraisements of the assets of the Columbus Buggy Company, should be paid $25 each for services rendered.

It was ordered that Ancillary Receiver McLaren be discharged and that the sureties on his official bond be released.

CRACKSMAN SHOT IN GUN BATTLE

Kirkwood Residents Capture Postoffice Robber, Who Blows Safe but Gets No Money.

With late developments indicating that Walter Turpin, the yeggman who cracked the safe of the Kirkwood postoffice Friday night, is a "modern Fagin," who takes young boys under his wing and schools them in the ways of crime, the authorities of DeKalb County and Atlanta are scouring the country to capture two boys said to have served as lookouts while Turpin fired the charges of nitroglycerine.

When the posse of citizens and officers, hastily formed after the first explosion in the postoffice, reached the scene, two boys, both wearing knee trousers, leaped from the shadows of the building and ran down the street. The officers yelled at them to halt, but the boys paid no attention and the posse opened fire. Both escaped, apparently without injury.

Turpin, in statements made to the authorities Saturday morning, denied that the boys were with him. He was alone in the attempt to rob the postoffice, he said. Sheriff McCurdy and Chief of Detectives Lanford, however, are of the opinion that Turpin, like the famous Dickens character, conducted a regular school of crime in Atlanta, and that the two boys were children who had come under his influence and whom he was using in his operations.

Turpin Tells Story.

Turpin Saturday morning told the complete story of the attempt to rob the safe and of the events that led up to it.

"I was released from the Federal penitentiary, where I had been sent from Richmond, Va., for counterfeiting, February 22," he said. "I have been working at the Shoe Renury on Auburn Avenue, and before that I worked at several places as a tailor. I planned the robbery of the Kirkwood postoffice about a week ago when I went out and looked over the ground and made my plans.

"Last night I left Atlanta about 11 o'clock and got out to Kirkwood about 11:30. Earlier in the afternoon I got some whisky on Courtland Street near Decatur, and was very drunk when I got to Kirkwood. I entered the building through a window, and in moving around, trying to get my bearings, I fell down the elevator shaft, a distance of about 10 feet. I wrenched my back, and it was five minutes before I could move. Then I managed to get hold of the cables of the elevator and drew it down into the basement, and then rode up to the first floor.

Injury Prevented Escape.

"I found the safe, all right, and prepared to blow it. I had four ounces of nitro-glycerine, which I had made by soaking two sticks of dynamite in water and then squeezing them. I made my soap cup and fired the nitro-glycerine. The first shot raised the handle and combination of the safe. Twenty minutes later I fired the second shot, and it raised—other things. Then people began shooting at me, and I was so busy I hardly know what happened. I had hurt my back so badly in falling down the elevator shaft, however, that I could not have gotten away even had I not been shot."

Turpin says his real name is Walter Turpin, and that he is 36 years old. His home, he says, is in Chester, Pa.

The twisted front door of hte safe and the mass of splinters littering the little grocery store at Kirkwood gives an idea of the dramatic scene.

"I was sleeping on my front porch," said L. J. Cassells, owner of the store and one of the attacking party, "when I was awakened shortly after mid-

Cobb, Out of Game, Fears Injury Will End Baseball Career

CLEVELAND, OHIO, July 5.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the greatest ball player of this or any other age, is a bench warmer for the Detroit Tigers. Injury has laid him low.

Just how long Ty will be out of the game neither he nor anyone else knows. The Georgia peach is wearing a careworn expression for he fears his injury may be permanent.

Ty's hurt is a bad spike wound on the right knee. His knee is swollen to twice its normal size and he can hardly walk. In the Detroit-Chicago series recently Ty was spiked by Weaver. He stuck in the line-up day after day until the Fourth, simply on his nerve alone.

Cobb went home to Detroit last night when the team left for St. Louis. He will have an X-ray picture taken to find out if the top of the kneecap is cracked.

Breezes Unable to Overcome Mounting Mercury; 90 Again

Despite heavy clouds that obscured the sun and westerly winds that tempered the heat, Saturday afternoon was warm and sultry. The thermometer climbed above 90 and for some time evinced no disposition to descend.

The morning and even the early afternoon gave promise of a whole day with a maximum temperature below 85, which would have been about the coolest Saturday of the summer in Atlanta. The mercury mark was only 82 at noon and just 84 at 1 o'clock. But in less than half an hour a heat wave struck the city, shoving the mercury up to 87. It continued to rise and by 2 o'clock had reached 91, having made a gain of 7 degrees in an hour.

At 5 and 6 o'clock Saturday morning the temperature was 71. It was 72 at 7 o'clock, 74 at 8 o'clock and 76 at 9 and 10 o'clock, when the 2-degree an hour gain started again. It was 78 at 11 o'clock, 82 at noon, 84 at 1 o'clock and 91 at 2 o'clock.

"Fair Saturday night and Sunday" is the official forecast.

Charley Gates, With $40,000,000 Wad, Will Burn Up Broadway

NEW YORK, July 5.—"Say, kid, take it from me, there is nothing in that story about my father-in-law having beaten me up for buying wine in Minneapolis," said Charley G. Gates, son of the late John W. Gates, when he arrived in town on a special train from the West.

"Can that chatter about my black eye, too, I'm over 21 and if you know of any one who can whip me, trot him out."

According to reports which had preceded Mr. Gates, he is not on good terms with members of his wife's family and has come to town with a roll of about $40,000,000 to burn up Broadway.

Gates said he gave away $1,000,000 in tips last year, and is out to set a new high record in 1912.

LOCALS TAKE LAST FROM PELICANS

Price Relieves Musser on Mound and Holds Frank's Men in Final Innings.

PONCE DE LEON BALL PARK, July 5.—The Crackers triumphed over the Pelicans 7 to 6 in the final game of their series here this afternoon. The contest was called in the eighth inning to allow the visitors to catch a train for New Orleans.

Musser started on the slab for Smith's men, but was routed early in the fray. He was relieved by Price, who held Frank's crew safe in the final innings. Brenton, on the mound for the losers, was easy picking for the home boys.

Tennis Title Won by E. V. Carter, Atlanta

AUGUSTA, July 5.—After two of the snappiest tennis sets ever played in this city, Edward V. Carter, Jr., of Atlanta, Saturday morning defeated Carl M. Ramspeck, also of Atlanta, 6-4, 6-1, thereby winning the men's championship for singles of the South Atlantic States.

The match was begun Friday afternoon. Ramspeck won the first set, 6-4. Carter took the second set, 6-1. The third set, 5-5, was called on account of darkness. It was played off this morning.

MRS. BALLUE SOBS FORTH ACCIDENT STORY

Severe Questioning Draws Out Explanation Which Lanford Believes—Couple Out on Bond.

Chief of Detectives Lanford said last Sturday that Harry Latham, court deputy, and L. C. Raoul, secretary of the Owls Club, would be summoned in court at the trial of Mrs. Lucy Ballue and Captain A. C. Thompson next Tuesday afternoon to tell of the apparent endeavor to spirit the Ballue woman away from the club and suppress the facts of the case after the mysterious shooting in the club on Friday night.

Chief Lanford said that he was convinced that an effort had been made to prevent the officers from getting a knowledge of the circumstances of the shooting and that he intended to probe the matter to the bottom.

Row Is Reported.

That the mysterious shooting of Captain A. C. Thompson, County Warden, by Mrs. Lucy Ballue, his companion in the Owls' Club Friday night, was not accidental, but followed a quarrel between the two is the sensational testimony which it is understood will be given by one or more witnesses who have been supenaed to appear at the trial of Captain Thompson and Mrs. Ballue on the charge of disorderly conduct.

This is in direct contradiction of Mrs. Ballue's story which she sobbingly related to Chief of Detectives Lanford Saturday, and in which she repeatedly declared that the shooting was accidental. She asserted that she and Captain Thompson were drinking together in the reception room of the Owls' Club Friday night and that Captain Thompson's revolver was discharged while she was examining it.

Two Said To Have Quarreled.

One witness, however, is said to have overheard the conversation between Captain Thompson and Mrs. Ballue which preceded the shooting. He will testify, it is understood, that the two were quarreling over some matter and that the woman snatched the weapon from its holster in Captain Thompson's hip pocket and that the shot followed.

Mrs. Ballue's confession came after an examination that lasted virtually all morning. When she was first taken into the detectives' office and questioned, she stuck to her original story that she knew nothing of the shooting.

She was taken back to her cell, and half an hour later returned to Chief Lanford's office. After an hour's questioning she admitted her part in the affair.

Tells How It Happened.

"Captain Thompson called me up by telephone yesterday," she said, "and made an appointment for 4 o'clock. I met him at Whitehall and Hunter streets, and after we had stood on the corner and talked for a few moments we went up to the Owls Club. We had two or three drinks there, and then went out for a stroll, and came back after an hour or so.

"When we came into the club again we went into the reception room and had another drink. I drank a glass of wine. After we drank, I was playing the piano and we were talking, when Captain Thompson remarked that it was hot, and took off his coat. He came over and laid the coat and his belt containing his pistol on top of the piano. I was still thumping the piano and he went and sat down on my left. I kept on playing and suddenly I glanced up and saw the revolver.

"I don't know what made me do it, but I was seized with a desire to look at the weapon. So I drew it out of the holster, and began turning it over and over in my hand.

"Suddenly, I don't know how, the revolver exploded with a loud report, and I heard Captain Thompson cry that he was shot. I was frightened almost to death and know what to do. I dropped the gun on the floor and covered my face with my hands. I was so scared I didn't know what to do, and I don't remember how I got out of the room."

Lanford Believes Her Story.

Chief Lanford announced he believes the woman's story, and his opinion is concurred in by detectives who have been investigating the case. They declare the nature of the wound is such that it could not have been made save by a weapon that was pointing downward.

After Mrs. Ballue's confession Chief Lanford reduced her bond from $1,000 to $100 and changed the charge to disorderly conduct. It was signed by her brother-in-law, W. H. Holbrook, with whom she resides at 18 Lynch Street.

After the woman's release Captain Thompson was brought to headquarters from Grady Hospital in a cab, and a charge of disorderly conduct was docketed against him. His bond was fixed at $100. It also was signed by Holbrook. After he was released Mrs. Ballue entered the cab and drove away with Captain Thompson.

Members of Mrs. Ballue's family said Saturday morning that Captain Thompson has been paying her attentions for about a year. She is the wife of John Ballue, a structural iron worker, from whom she has been separated for three years. She has no children. For the past year she has been employed at Nunnally's Overall Factory at Marietta and Alexander Streets.

Arrested on Street.

Detectives Doyal and Waggoner, attached to headquarters, arrested Mrs. Ballue at Garnett and Pryor Streets after what they asserted was an attempt to spirit her away by L. C. Raoul, secretary of the Owls' Club. The detectives, unable to find either the girl or Mr. Raoul at the clubrooms, started a search. They learned the girl and the secretary had slipped quietly down the back stairs half an hour after the shooting of Captain Thompson. They hurried down Pryor Street, hoping to intercept them before the girl was taken away.

As they neared Pryor and Garnett Streets the detectives saw a man and a woman lurking in the shadows of the building. Not knowing whether they were Mrs. Ballue and Mr. Raoul or strangers, Doyal and Waggoner secreted themselves across the street and awaited developments. In a few minutes a cab drove rapidly up to the curbing and the door was flung open. A voice from within the cab commanded the man and woman to enter, and to "hurry up."

As Raoul and Mrs. Ballue rushed across the sidewalk and started to enter the cab the detectives recognized them and hurried across the street. They accosted the two.

Woman Denies Shooting.

According to stories told to Night Chief Jett by Detective Waggoner, both Raoul and the woman were nervous when confronted by the officers. Raoul did not speak, they said, after they grasped his arm, but the woman twisted away from the detective who held her and faced them. She demanded:

"What do you want me for? I didn't shoot him!"

The woman then tried to break away and enter the waiting cab, but the officers ordered her to go to headquarters with them. Raoul, too, went along.

The detectives claim the utterance of the woman when they placed her under arrest was significant. Waggoner, whom she asked why she was wanted, and whom she told she had not shot Captain Thompson, declared that he had not mentioned the shooting or told her why she was wanted. He and his partner, Doyal, had simply told them to wait a moment, catching them just as they started to hurry into the cab.

At headquarters Friday night the woman answered the questions put to her by Chief Jett readily and composedly, and emphatically denied that she had shot Captain Thompson. Her version of the affair, as told to Chief Jett, is as follows:

Other Women in Room.

She has known Captain Thompson for some time, she declared, and last night had gone with him to the club. They entered the reception parlors of the club and took a seat at one of the tables. She claims she had drank but one glass of wine before the shooting. Her escort, it is said, was drinking highballs and rickeys, but was not intoxicated. Two other men, seated at a table near the doorway, were the only other occupants of the room.

After they had sat at the table for perhaps an hour, the woman says, Captain Thompson asked her to play the piano. She played popular music for some moments, she said, and did not hear a shot which, she said, came as she was playing ragtime in a particularly loud key. She said she supposed the sound of the piano drowned the shot. As she softened the tones of the piano she heard the sound of a fall, and turned around on the piano stool.

Then she heard Captain Thompson cry that he was shot and saw him fall to the floor. His revolver lay on the floor beside him. The two women near the door were standing by their table, and gazing in horror at the figure of the captain on the floor.

Mrs. Ballue declared she was dazed by the sight and covered her face with her hands, and when she looked up again the women were gone. A number of men, she declared, were standing over Captain Thompson, and he was telling them he had accidentally shot himself.

Thompson had been accidentally shot and had been taken to his home in a cab. The groans of the wounded man as he lay on a table in a nearby room gave them away, however, and it was discovered that he was still in the club. He was then taken to Grady Hospital for medical attention. Prior to his removal to the hospital, Captain Thompson was questioned by Detectives Vickery and Hamby, who answered the first call to the club, but he refused to talk, and would give no explanation of the shooting.

The officers accompanied the ambulance to the hospital, and continued their quizzing of the wounded man. They claim he remained sullen and defiant, but after being placed on the operating table admitted he had been shot by the girl during a quarrel. Hamby and Vickery visited the hospital again about midnight and again questioned Captain Thompson. This time, they assert, he declared the shooting was an accident, and that Mrs. Ballue had nothing to do with it.

The report that when they entered the club Captain Thompson registered himself and his companion as "Mr. and Mrs. Thompson," is denied by Secretary Raoul. Mrs. Ballue declared her escort did the registering and she did not know what names he wrote. She said she supposed, however, that he had written her real name.

Harry Latham, a court deputy, told the police that when he met Thompson and Mrs. Ballue in the club rooms, Thompson had introduced her to him as Mrs. Thompson, at which Mrs. Ballue became angry and exclaimed that she was not his wife—that she wasn't anyone's wife.

Captain Thompson has been in charge of one of the convict camps of Fulton County for several years. He is 30 years old and unmarried, and lives on the Howell Mill Road.

BANK HEAD GETS 6 1-2-YEAR TERM

Judge Brand Sentences J. W. Griffin at Athens—Motion Entered for New Trial.

ATHENS, July 5.—Judge C. H. Brand to-day sentenced J. W. Griffin to 6 1-2 years in the penitentiary for "wrecking" the defunct Athens Trust and Banking Company.

Griffin was found guilty at midnight Thursday, after a long drawn out trial. Some months ago he pleaded guilty, without a trial, and was then sentenced to five years, but a new trial was secured and his new sentence carries eighteen months more imprisonment.

Immediately following the sentence, a motion was made by the defense for a new trial on the grounds that Judge Brand illegally interferred and communicated with the jury before the verdict was given out. This was overruled by Judge Brand and will be decided by the higher court.

250,000 KAFFIRS REBEL IN AFRICA

Reign of Terror Grips Johannesburg — Many Striking Gold Miners Slain by Police.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA, July 5.—Many striking gold miners in the Rand district were shot down to-day by British soldiers in the worst fighting which has occurred in the great gold tie-up of South Africa.

This city is held at the mercy of turbulent mobs, armed with rifles and dynamite. One thousand strikers, including many Kaffirs, paraded through the streets shooting up the city and causing a reign of terror.

In one clash with the police 65 men were shot. Half that number were killed. A state of anarchy exists in many districts. A mob of 1,000 rushed the railway station at Braamfontein Park and burned it.

Fighting was in progress here all night and it was estimated that at least $50,000 damage was done. Efforts of the police to control the situation was futile.

A state of revolution has been brought about by the action of the blacks in joining the strikers. At least 250,000 Kaffirs are taking part in the deeds of violence.

The unions are trying to induce members of other trades to join the walk-out, thus completely tying up all the industrial interests in South Africa.

SAFE ROBBER IS CAUGHT AFTER GUN FIGHT

night by an explosion I thought was a big firecracker. I rolled over to sleep again.

"It must have been about 30 minutes later when I was awakened by a loud explosion that must have been heard for miles around. My wife and I jumped out of bed and she turned on the light. I turned it off and took my stand to watch at the window, which is only a hundred feet or more from the store.

Robber Seen at Work.

"Pretty soon I saw a faint light in the store and almost immediately I jerked on my trousers and ran to get Mr. Fleming next door. My wife telephoned Marshal Phillips, who joined us, with City Clerk Ray about the time we left the Fleming front gate.

"Stealthily we circled around the little store, finally grouping ourselves at the elevator door, which we found open. A moment later we were inside, and about this time the yeggman saw us. Brandishing his pistol, he dodged behind a barrel.

"From there he retreated only after Marshal Phillips dislodged him with a pistol ball which missed its mark. Turpin then dodged us and made for the elevator room, only to find this blocked by City Clerk Ray.

"It was then that Turpin made his last desperate stand while almost in the center of the little store. There he blazed away with his pistol at every flash of the searchlight which Marshall Phillips flashed to search out his man in the darkness.

Turpin Return Shot for Shot.

"The searching rays of the little light were swallowed up soon in the brilliant flashes of fire which belched from our four guns. Turpin returning every shot, in dodging this way and that. Finally, making a charge forward, Phillips grabbed Turpin's gun and bore Turpin to the floor.

Even then, however, Turpin fought like a madman and finally was subdued only by the combined efforts of all four men forming the attacking party. As he sank to the floor, apparently desperately wounded, he murmured his name, Johnson.

"It is a wonder we were not all killed, for the fusillade of shots was terrific. It took all of us to handle the yeggman," said one of the posse.

Turpin's Roommate Held.

A peculiar angle to the Turpin case developed Saturday morning when detectives took in custody 14-year-old Thomas Eberhart, a newsboy, whose home is in Dunwoody, Ga., and who has been Turpin's roommate for the past three weeks. Since last Tuesday Turpin and the boy have been rooming at the home of Stephen Marine, 226 1-2 Marietta Street. Prior to that time they had occupied a room together at the Union Rescue Mission at 230 Marietta Street.

The theory of the police is that Turpin was trying to gain control of the boy so he could use him in his criminal operations. The boy insists that he never has accompanied Turpin out at night.

"Last night I came in about 8 o'clock," the boy told the police. "Turpin was drunk, and lying down on the bed. In about half an hour Turpin got up and said he was going out and didn't know when he would be back. He left his keys and everything he had in his pockets on the dresser.

Had Burglar's Kit.

"Turpin was always nice to me and said some day he would show me how to make some easy money. Ofter he has asked me if I didn't want to make a whole lot of money, but he didn't tell me how. He went out a great deal at night, and always kept a lot of hammers and things in the drawers of his dresser. He esaid he was a shoemaker and that they were his tools."

"Turpin came to the Mission after he was released from the Federal prison four months ago," said R. E. Boutwell, connected with the Rescue Mission, "and was given a room. Three weeks ago we put the boy in with him. Last Monday Turpin left and said he was going to live at 226 1-2 Marietta Street."

Mrs. Carrie A. Moffatt Dies at Age of Eighty

Mrs. Carrie A. Moffatt, one of the oldest and best-loved residents of Atlanta, died Friday morning at 3 o'clock at the residence of her granddaughter, Mrs. Mark J. McCord.

Mrs. Moffatt was born at Columbus, Ga., 80 years ago. She was educated at Mobile, Ala., and after her marriage to the late Frederick Moffatt moved to Atlanta. She was a devout Christian woman, and was one of the first members of the old Wesley Chapel, now the First Methodist Church of Atlanta.

Mrs. Moffatt is survived by two grand-daughters, Mrs. Henry Inman, and Mrs. Mark McCord, and a grandson, Ben Lee Crew.

Funeral announcements will be made later.

APPLICATION FOR LEE'S RELEASE DELAYED

Watchman's Lawyer Says He Will Await Return of Dorsey Before Filing Habeas Corpus.

On account of the absence from the city of Prosecuting Attorney Hugh M. Dorsey, Bernard L. Chappell, attorney for Newt Lee, announced Saturday that he would not file a writ of habeas corpus until Monday. He claims in the petition for the release of the negro that Lee is being held unlawfully and without any charge against him.

Solicitor Dorsey left for his country place at Valdosta, Ga., Saturday morning. He will return Monday.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey will ask the courts to hold the negro as a material witness for the State, or may charge him with being an accessory. He was determined Friday to take no chances on so important a witness getting out of his control, as he feared the negro might get beyond the jurisdiction of the courts if given his liberty.

Attorney Chappell and Solicitor Dorsey had agreed, when the negro was committed to jail, to keep him there until the trial. Chappell notified Dorsey Wednesday that he wished to withdraw from the agreement and get his client freed.

Chief Discounts Conley Rumor.

The announcement Friday that the defense had secured an important and damaging affidavit that connected the State's star witness, Jim Conley, more directly with the crime created a sensation in the ranks of the prosecution.

Chief of Detectives Newport A. Lanford announced that every movement of the negro on the day of the crime had been "checked up," and that it was a matter of impossibility to find anything more damaging against him than his admission that he helped dispose of the body at the request of Frank.

In commenting on the affidavit secured at the office of Joseph H. Leavitt Thursday the attorney said that it would be almost impossible for the prosecution to break down any statement that was made in the affidavit when the witness was placed on the stand.

Calls Evidence Vital.

He said the witness was a citizen of high standing and would be one of the most important for the defense of Frank.

Attorney Leavitt said that this particular affidavit was one of more than 50 that had been recently secured that dealt almost exclusively with the movements of the negro on the day of the murder. While he would not comment at any length, he intimated that the defense had been able to establish conclusively the exact time Conley entered and left the factory.

He also intimated that affidavits had been secured that would show what time Monteen Stover entered and left the factory and be able to prove she left before Mary Phagan's car reached the vicinity of the pencil factory.

U. S. SETS SMOKE AND DRINK RECORD

Consumes 64,500,000 Barrels of Beer, 143,300,000 Gallons of Liquor, 7,707,000,000 Cigars.

WASHINGTON, July 5. — The American people drank more whisky and beer, smoked more cigars and cigarettes, and chewed more tobacco during the fiscal year 1913 than in any other yearly period of the nation's history, according to estimates based to-day upon the record-breaking internal revenue receipts of the Federal Government for twelve months ended June 30.

The drinkers consumed 143,300,000 gallons of whisky and brandy and 64,500,000 barrels of beer.

Smokers puffed 7,707,000,000 cigars and 14,012,000,000 cigarettes. Patrons of the pipe smoked 405,200,000 pounds of tobacco and chewers of snuff disposed of 33,2000,000 pounds.

Despite the high record, the number of saloons of the country decreased by 18,000 during the year, the retail liquor dealers numbering about 450,000.

Assessments on drinking and smoking luxuries, on corporations and on oleomargarine and other articles taxed by the Federal Government brought into the United States treasury $344,426,884, the greatest amount in history, exceeding the previous high record of 1911 by $21,900,000.

COL. PAXON AIDS AND PRAISES MILK FUND

Colonel Frederic J. Paxon, chief of staff for Governor Slaton and one of Atlanta's foremost business men, Saturday morning forwarded his personal check for $25 to the Atlanta Mothers' Congress, through The Georgian, to aid in the campaign to supply the poor babies of the city with milk during the hot months.

In a letter which accompanied his check, Colonel Paxon congratulated the members of the congress on their zeal and hard work in behalf of the poor babies, and characterized the movement as an advanced step along the line of civic development. His letter, in full, follows:

"The Atlanta Georgian, City:

"Gentlemen—I congratulate you, and that most heartily, on your efforts to furnish pure milk to the babies of Atlanta whose mothers can not afford to buy same. A movement such as this must necessarily be recognized as an advanced step along the line of future good citizenship and civic development; for how can we have forceful men and women unless the foundation is laid in earliest childhood?

"Inclosed find my check for $25 toward this worthy cause. I am, Yours,

BULGARS CHARGE GREEK GUNS; 5,000 LOSS

Terrific Fight Raging Near Salonika—Another of Ferdinand's Armies Routed.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ATHENS, July 5.—Nearly a quarter of a million soldiers are engaged in a terrific battle which is being fought between Greece and Bulgarian armies north of Salonika.

The battle line extends for 100 miles, and from dispatches received to-day from the Greek military headquarters in Salonika it is estimated that more than 5,000 men had been killed or wounded.

There were 80,000 men in the Greek army, which is opposing a force over 100,000 strong. The Greeks have the advantage in location, occupying a lofty plateau. The Bulgarians charged repeatedly up the shell-swept slopes, exhibiting the utmost gallantry in their efforts to capture the Greek artillery.

Bulgars Charge Up Slope.

More than 150 heavy guns were ranged along the eminence and the most desperate fighting centered around these batteries. With brilliant courage the Bulgarians swept up the sides of the plateau, which was soon covered with dead and wounded troops.

Dispatches from the front said that the result would be decisive. King Constantine directed the operations of the Greek army from headquarters in Salonika, and it was believed here that he would take the field in person if he saw the day were going against his army.

A second Bulgarian army of 80,000 men is reported to be moving to join the troops engaged in battle. The second Bulgar army was at a point south of Tachynos Lake to-day, advancing on a forced march for the battlefield.

Greek Victory Reported.

A Greek victory is reported from Kilkis, where the Bulgarians were crushed by the heavy ordnance of the Hellenes. The Bulgars were unable to bring their artillery into action, owing to the fact that the infantry had outdistanced the artillery in the march upon the Greek forces.

The Bulgarian soldiers were dispersed, leaving behind sixty heavy guns, which the Greeks captured.

Servians Rout Bulgars After Five-Day Battle.

BELGRADE, July 5.—After a battle lasting five days, the Bulgarian army, which has been engaged with a Servian force near Uskub, began a retreat to-day, leaving 1,000 prisoners of war and 300 heavy guns in the hands of the Serbs.

Official announcement of a Servian victory following receipt of dispatches from the front caused intense rejoicing here.

Albanians Resist Advance of Serbs.

DURAZZA, ALBANIA, July 5.—The flame of war is sweeping Albania. Servians and Albanians are engaged in hostilities near Matia, and heavy losses have been inflicted on both sides.

The Servians are massing an army near here, evidently intending to reoccupy the port.

Bulgars Claim Big Victory Over Servians.

SOFIA, July 5.—The Bulgarian Government claims a decisive victory over the Servian first division east of Uskub. Announcement was made today by Premier Gueschoff that the Servians had been driven back with enormous losses.

According to dispatches from Bulgarian army headquarters, the Servians are retreating, following a long battle in the Vardar Valley.

Divorce and Death Sequel to Tag Day

SILVER LAKE, WIS., July 5.—An effort was being made to-day to determine whether the drowning of Leroy D. James in Silver Lake was an accident or a suicide. James obtained a divorce recently after he found his wife and G. Frank Greene, of New York, in a hotel room together. Mrs. James had met Greene when she was helping with a "tag day" campaign for charity.

The James divorce case was the cause of the city authorities abolishing tag days.

Crazed by Heat, Man Kills Wife and Self

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., July 5.—Crazed by the intense heat, Ben Strong, a well-to-do planter of Meridianville, near this place, emptied the contents of a double-barreled shotgun into his wife's breast, killing her instantly, and calmly reloading the weapon literally blew his head from his body.

Neighbors were attracted to the scene by the screams of the two small children of the couple.

SALVATION ARMY MAID'S 'PUNCH' DOES FOR ROWDY WHO GRABS HER

She delights crowd by struggle with man.

Seized as she leaves saloon, severely pummels loafer.

Miss Pearl McKay Is Heroine of Attack While Selling "War Cry" in Saloon.

One might not believe pretty Miss Pearl McKay, a sixteen-year-old Salvation Army lassie, has punch enough in her right arm to put out a big, strong man, but there is one man in Atlanta who knows that she has. Generally Miss McKay's uniform entitles her to every protection, but, to quote her own words, "sometimes a rowdy who doesn't know any better tries to get fresh."

Miss McKay sells the "War Cry" in offices, stores, on the streets, and also in near-beer saloons, and only one time during her six months' experience in Atlanta has she had an unpleasant experience.

On this occasion Miss McKay was selling the "War Cry" in a near-beer saloon. Starting out the door she was seized from behind by a intoxicated man. Quickly turning, Miss McKay struck the man in the face. This angered him, and instead of loosening his hold, he tightened it.

With a desperate effort she tore from his grasp and struck her assailant with all her might. He staggered back, but the little Salvation Army lassie's ire was up, and she went after the man, raining blow after blow on his face and head.

The onlookers applauded the plucky little maid as she continued her punishment.

Evidently realizing that there was to be no let-up in the sturdy blows of the angered girl, the man turned and fled, followed by the delighted jeers of the spectators.

Atlanta-Carolina Highway Proposed

ELLIJAY, July 5.—A monster barbecue and good roads meeting was held at Ellijay yesterday in the interest of an automobile highway from Atlanta to Murphy, N. C. Enthusiastic speeches were made by Dr. E. W. Watkins, of Ellijay; C. J. Haden, of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Professor Harwood, of the Chamber of Commerce of Murphy, and others.

A practical working scheme suggested is for Gilmer, Pickens and Fannin Counties to pool their convicts and go to work on the road at an early date, raising money by popular subscription for machinery.

Saneness of Fourth Delights Atlantans

Atlanta advocates of a sane Fourth of July are rejoicing Saturday over the saneness of the celebration here. But four accidents were reported, and none of them are regarded as serious. Despite the crowds the ambulance drivers had a quiet day, and throughout it was the most sane Fourth which Atlanta has ever experienced.

Chief of Police Beavers, to prevent disorder, doubled the force throughout the daylight hours. The officers, however, found everything serene.

Senate Is Likely to Ignore Insult to Flag

WASHINGTON, July 5.—No official notice will be taken by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee of the trampling unedr foot of the American flag in Winnipeg, Manitoba, yesterday, if Senator Bacon, chairman of the committee, has his way. He said to-day:

"I regard this incident as the ebullition of an excited crowd. I am sure no national recognition of the act will be made."

"It seems to have been a very foolish affair," said Representative Broussard, of Louisiana, member of the Foregin Affairs Committee of the House.

FULTON CONVICT CHIEF DEFIES JACKSON

Donaldson Ready to Invoke Law in Fight Against Long Religious Services in Camps.

Declaring Marion Jackson and his associates on the prison reform commission know absolutely nothing of convicts and religion, and that he would resort to law before he would submit to their conducting long services at the convict camps in Fulton County, Superintendent T. J. Donaldson declined to compromise Saturday morning at a meeting of the Public Works Committee of the County Board.

Jackson said he had the people of the county behind him in his fight to obtain the proper kind of religious services for the convicts, and that while he would rather get what he was after without a fight, he would conduct a campaign against the limit of one-hour services each Sunday if necessary. The Public Works committee agreed to hold a meeting later and definitely settle the matter.

When Marion Jackson asked the County Board to place the religious services at the convict camps under the direction of Philip Weltner, of the prison reform board, and let him designate lecturers and preachers for a morning and afternoon service, Captain Donaldson for the first time voiced a protest.

Disputing Jackson's assertion that the convicts welcomed the Sunday services, Captain Donaldson said they had voiced their protest at giving up the entire day of rest to services conducted from early Sunday morning until late Sunday afternoon.

He said he had no objection to the men attending one service each Sunday, which should not last more than one hour, provided he should have the selection of the ministers and the number to go to each camp.

The rather heated meeting terminated when Captain Donaldson announced he would consult the law before he would go into any agreement on the subject.

Lower Alabama Rate Denied.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today reversed its former findings, when it ruled that barrel stave companies of Decatur, Ala., should be granted a rate of 4 cents lower a hundred pounds than manufacturers in Memphis, Tenn., on shipments to Western markets.

PRESIDENT HIDES AT SUMMER CAPITAL

Wilson Forgets All State Business, Ordering Secret Service Men to Bar Reporters.

WINDSOR, VT., July 5.—President Wilson arrived here at 10:50 a. m. today to spend the summer. He was met by Mrs. Wilson and two of his daughters, and the party motored to the Summer White House at Cornish, N. H., three miles away.

Upon arrival at the Summer White House the President gave orders that no newspaper correspondents or photographers were to be admitted on any pretext. The President said he was in Cornish to take a rest, and that he would transact no official business nor even consider matters which would tend to disturb his brief vacation.

If anything of public moment occurs, the President said he would return to Washington, but he would not discuss it here. The squad of six secret service men is on hand to see that the President's orders are carried out to the letter.

According to present plans, the President will remain until Tuesday afternoon, but he may stay longer if developments in Washington are not of such a nature as to necessitate his presence.

Negro's Head Turns Shot; Woman Injured

KANSAS CITY, MO., July 5.—A bullet fired by a negro at George Wren, another negro, struck the latter on the forehead, glanced from his skull and wounded Mrs. Edward T. Smith, 60, who was passing in a street car.

Wren was slightly injured. The shoter escaped.

ARMY OF PAST IN RETREAT FROM GETTYSBURG

Thousands of Blue and Gray Clad Veterans Leave Great Bivouac of Peace.

GETTYSBURG, PA., July 5.—Gettysburg again resounds to the tread of marching men. Thousands of blue and gray clad veterans, the great army of the past that has encamped for six days on the hilltops around the town, are passing through it on their way to railroad stations and homeward. By to-night the great battlefield will be as deserted as it was 50 years ago and the jubilee celebration a thing of the past.

Beginning early this morning, special trains outward bound—north, east, south and west—pulled out of Gettysburg at quarter-hour intervals. It is estimated that 20,000 veterans abandoned camp during the forenoon. The remaining 10,000 will leave during the afternoon. About 25,000 of the old soldiers started for home yesterday.

The 50,000 tents making up the city of canvas will not be removed before next week. On Monday Major Normoyle will set his regulars at work striking the tents and getting them ready for shipment.

Governor Tener and other notables left during the morning, but General Liggett, commander of the encampment, will not leave with his staff until Thursday.

The second special train, which left at 6:30 o'clock this morning, carried Confederate veterans to Maryland, Virginia, the Carolinas and points southward.

Atlantans' Brother Seeks Big U. S. Job

RICHMOND, July 5.—Colonel William H. Chapman, revenue agent in charge of the Virginia District, is being strongly urged for the position of chief revenue agent, with headquarters in Washington. This place is now held by G. W. Trowbridge, a Republican.

Colonel Chapman is a close friend of Colonel William H. Osborn, of Greensboro, N. C., the new Commissioner of Internal Revenue. He is a brother of Miss Kate Chapman and Edmund G. Chapman, of 62 Fraser Street, Atlanta.

Two Drowned Near Savannah on Fourth

SAVANNAH, July 5.—The Fourth took a toll of two deaths near Savannah yesterday. George Egan, 17 years old, of Barrigan, was drowned in a creek near Herb River, Thunderbolt, when he got over his depth while in bathing. But for the timely arrival of a boatman, Dewey Holmes would also have been drowned.

James O. Knight, aged 22, fell from a boat on the Ogeechee River and was drowned before other people in the boat could go to his rescue. He was attending a Sunday school class picnic.

Giant Fish Wounds Boy, 16, in Swimming

MARSHFIELD, WIS., July 5.—The following fish story is vouched for by Dr. Harold Jensen, of Park Falls, Wis., who dressed the wounds of the boy.

A giant muskallonge attacked Frank Haasl, Jr., 16 years old, when he was in bathing and tried to drag him beneath the surface. When the boy was rescued he was covered with scratches and bites, and it was necessary for his swimming companions to carry him in an automobile to the nearest physician.

Effective Home Remedy For Lung Trouble

It is a serious matter when the lungs are affected. A trip away or to a sanatorium is not only expensive, but it involves separation from home and friends. Some are benefited, but few can safely return. Eckman's Alterative is effective for home treatment. For example:

231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J.

"Gentlemen: In the fall of 1905 I contracted a very severe cold, which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise sputum, and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alterative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed by regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected, and I cannot praise Eckman's Alterative too highly. I have recommended it with excellent results."

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' drugs stores, and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

Operatic 'Hear Ye!' by A Schumann-Heink

NEW YORK, July 5.—Henry Schumann-Heink, son of Madame Schumann-Heink, the prima donna, received word yesterday at his home in Paterson N. J., that he is first on the list for the position of court crier in the Passaic County Common Pleas Court.

Many quips were heard about regarding his suitability for the position, as he has inherited a fine voice. Friends of the young man declared that, instead of the dry monotone of the ordinary court criers' the "Hear ye, hear ye!" will hereafter be given in clear, operatic notes.

The New Bazar

edited for the woman who must keep au courant with the smart world

THE best from each field of art, all the resources of brush, pen and camera, beautiful paper, perfect typography, render it a magazine individual in its expression and absorbing in its interest to the woman of fashion. In its new form, Harper's Bazar is the edition de luxe of women's magazines.

Sparkling with the news of both Europe and America, the Bazar makes instant appeal to the woman of the smart world.

If she would read of social functions, races or sports here or abroad, she finds in it the most noteworthy. If she would discover the latest creations from the ateliers of Paris, she sees here their most recent expression.

The skill of the couturière, of the artist, of the decorator is displayed in its myriad possibilities. Vexatious questions as to the maintenance of her establishment and any like phases which come within the realm of the woman whose time is much in demand, are discussed by those well versed in these matters.

In the July number, Elsie de Wolfe gives a description and views of her own home; Mrs. August Belmont has an illustrated article concerning the artistic development of the child; the lovely Countess of Warwick reveals the secret of the retention of personal charm.

There are photographs of the newer landscape effects secured in the Rockefeller gardens, and reproductions of the most famous paintings of Mrs. Astor, Mrs. George Gould and other renowned beauties of our times.

What is more, there are the costumes which are most à la mode from the stage, models from Lady Duff Gordon, sketches by Tighe, showing the newest cunning of the French houses and an important message from Henri Bendel as to Fall hats.

For diversion, a new set of Elinor Glyn's piquant letters and another powerful story from the pen of Robert W. Chambers with illustrations by Charles Dana Gibson.

COUNCIL ORDERS W. PEACHTREE MATERIAL

Retaining Walls Will Be Put in Soon, Ready for Grading to Begin September 15.

Council's Streets Committee did not celebrate the Glorious Fourth as a holiday, but spent the afternoon considering plans of improvement.

A resolution by Councilman Jesse Wood was adopted, authorizing Chief of Construction R. M. Clayton to purchase material for the retaining walls on West Peachtree Street. Chairman Shelby Smith, of the County Commission, had sent a communication to the committee announcing the county would be ready to begin the regrading of West Peachtree Street by September 15.

An effort was made to put the county convicts to work at once on the Whitehall Street regrading project, but the committee decided it would be impossible to begin this work before October 15, the date originally agreed upon.

When the Atlanta Gas Light Company made a proposal to sell to the city its tar road binder, Agasco, for six cents a gallon, members of the committee declared they considered it a good idea to use the binder on all chert roads. Councilman Claude L. Ashley said he would endeavor to have it used on Forrest Avenue.

On the request of the Georgia Railway and Power Company the committee decided to recommend to Council that permission to change the river car line be granted so as to relieve congestion at Marietta and Broad Streets, the present terminus of the river line.

The plan is to have the river cars come in Walton street and around into Marietta Street by a loop through Forsyth Street, passengers being taken on at Grady Monument.

OBITUARY.

The body of Dr. I. C. Smullian, who died in Salt Lake City Wednesday, will arrive in Atlanta Sunday afternoon. The funeral will be held at 4 o'clock from the residence of his father, A. Smullian, at 133 Capitol Avenue. Interment in Oakland.

The Body of Elizabeth Smith, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Smith, of Oxford, Ga., was taken to that place Saturday morning for funeral and interment. The child died Thursday afternoon at 14 Baltimore Place, where the family was visiting.

William M. Dooley, 26 years old, died at a local sanitarium Friday night. Mr. Dooley formerly lived at Chattahoochee, Ga., and is survived by one brother, F. J. Dooley, of that place. The body was removed to Patterson's chapel. Funeral announcements later.

The Funeral of Wallace Rickett, 21 years old, who died at a local sanitarium Friday afternoon, will be held from the chapel of O. A. and Roy Donehoo Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mr. Rickett is survived by a sister, Mrs. J. C. Fleming. Interment at Westview.

Mrs. Cora Brown, 35 years old, died at a local hospital at 9:30 o'clock Friday night. Mrs. Brown formerly lived at 15 Fulton Street, and is survived by one daughter, Mrs. David Fowler. The body was taken to the chapel of Harry G. Poole. Funeral arrangements later.

Evelyn G. Curtis, the 21-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Curtis, 17 Addie Street, died at a local sanitarium at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. The funeral services will be held from the chapel of Greenberg and Bond at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Interment at Hollywood.

The Funeral of Mrs. Ellen Cleckler, who died at the residence, 26 Langhorn Street, at 9 o'clock Friday night, will be held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the residence. Mrs. Cleckler was 52 years old, and is survived by her husband, W. J. Cleckler; one daughter, Miss Pearl Cleckler, and two sons, H. R. and F. D. Cleckler. Interment at Westview.

ENJOYED FOURTH WITH PONIES IN GRANT PARK

Extra Inducements in Race for Votes End at Midnight—Candidates Hustling.

A rush is on in the contest department of The Georgian and American. This is the last day of the pony contest bonus offer for clubs of five subscriptions, and the contestants are filing in by the score, turning in hundreds of dollars for subscriptions and taking advantage of the opportunity to win extra votes for every group of five into which their lists of subscribers may be divided.

Until midnight Saturday the office will be open to receive subscriptions, but after the tick of midnight the club of five offer will not count.

When the special offer closes the work of tabulation will begin. There is no hope, however, that the contest department will be able to compile all bonuses and award them properly before a week has elapsed. Probably the announcement will be made in The Sunday American a week hence.

Almost every candidate has hustled his best to take full advantage of the offer, and hundreds of dollars for subscriptions have been turned in. Through a misapprehension, many thought Friday the last day on which these clubs could be voted. This was a mistake, but it did no harm. Those who were misguided simply were told they had another day in which to work.

By far the greater number, however, enjoyed the outing at Grant Park. Nine of the pony outfits, some harnessed to buggies and some saddled, left the Alabama Street offices of the contest department at 1 o'clock. Arriving at the park, there was a frolic. Every contestant had a chance to ride or drive a pony, and there was lemonade for all.

BASS VIOLIN MASTER BLINDED, RESTS BOW

'Dolph Wurm, the South's greatest master of the bass violin, has had to rest his bow. Cataract has grown over his eyes. As his light gradually has been shut out the darkness has drawn him more and more into seclusion.

Atlanta musicians are telling his story as their most interesting bit of "shop talk."

Many, especially old-time, Atlantans, remember him as the slender, serious-looking little man who stood on the left end of the orchestra, wearing a black silk skull-cap and leaning on his big fiddle until he became a natural part of the scenery.

He was the Thor who hurled the theatrical thunder. He was the master who marked the syncopated time of the first "rags" at the society balls, silence before the motives of his music had had time to create the real turkey trot.

Fiddle 123 Years Old.

There is no more interesting figure in Atlanta to-day than the old man in his quiet home down on Pine Street with his old comrade, the fiddle, close beside him as he dreams of other and eventful days.

The fiddle, which Mr. Wurm himself said once could vibrate so strongly that it rattled the window panes, now has a plaintive note on account of its cracks. It was made in Germany in 1790 and was brought to this country by the owner's father in 1848.

Mr. Wurm was for 40 years one of the principal members of the Wurm Orchestra. They furnished the music at all the society events at the old Kimball House, when the Kimball House was the social center of Georgia. For 18 years they formed the orchestra at DeGive's Opera House, now the Bijou Theater. All the members, especially 'Dolph, on account of his big fiddle, grew to be among the best known men in Atlanta.

He Loves the Instrument.

Mr. Wurm took out his fiddle when a Georgian reported called to see him. Tenderly he stroked its strings.

"A bass fiddle is not usually regarded as a very affectionate member of the orchestra," he said. "The other members try to make of it an object of humor. They used to joke me about not being able to sit down when I played.

"Somehow the instrument impressed me differently. When my father began to teach us to play on the different instruments I naturally took to the bass violin. And I have stuck to it ever since, always playing the same fiddle.

"In this day most of the musicians in Atlanta have something else to do which they call their regular vocation. They play for extra money. But I never did anything but play the bass violin. Mind you, I never married, and lived economically.

Once Chess Champion.

"During my leisure I played chess. That program seemed to me the best way to enjoy life."

Mr. Wurm explained that he had not played for a year. He said he also had to give up his beloved chess, of which he was once the champion of Georgia. But in his calm philosophy he remarked:

"My doctor tells me as soon as this cataract is ripe he can operate and restore my sight. Then in a few months I will be playing again, both the fiddle and the game of chess.

"Of course, the old fiddle is cracked. You know it doesn't matter how much you may think of a bass fiddle it is awkward to handle. But the tone of my old violin is still deep and sweet, though not so loud as it once was."

ARREST NEAR OF AUTOIST WHO HIT CHILD

Citizens Join Hunt for Speeder. Declare They Can Identify Guilty Driver.

The police dragnet set for the automobile driver who ran down and seriously injured little Eva Kilpatrick last Wednesday has resulted in the finding of a clew which, it is believed, will result in the arrest of the guilty party within twenty-four hours.

Special Officer J. B. Dorsett, who had been detailed on the case, reported to Captain Poole Saturday morning that he had found several persons who reside in the vicinity of the Kilpatrick home who say they will be able to identify the driver of the car.

Although none of these persons witnessed the accident, they did see the car both before and after the accident, it is said, and furthermore have seen the same car pass down Mills Street on other occasions.

In the meantime the war on speed has been waged so vigorously that Recorder Broyles had not a single case before him Monday morning. He declared, however, that breakers of the law would promptly be sent to the stockade upon conviction.

AUTOISTS!

Take a spin to Crystalake Country Club Sunday (Bennett's Mill) via Jonesboro and Fayetteville. Hour's ride over fine roads. Beautiful grove around 100-acre lake. Good bathing in clean water. Pick you out a nice lot and join the club being formed. Fine fishing. Delightful place to camp and spend summer. Ask for Mr. Carroll, on the grounds.

Boys! Fans! All Lovers of BASEBALL!

Do You Know---

How, why and when this play by "Ty" Cobb should be made?

How and why a catcher "shapes the ball?"

Why the straight overhand swing is more valuable in obtaining control of the ball than either the side arm or the "rise" ball?

The proper way to make a double play at second?

How a player should hold the bat when laying down a bunt?

Why a catcher should use the snap throw to get a man stealing a base?

The proper way to field a ground ball?

How to make the ball "carry" on a throw?

The proper position for covering second to get a man out stealing?

Why the batter should "choke the bat" to get the best results?

All these questions and many more are answered in

"How to Play Baseball"

By JOHN J. McGRAW

The greatest book on baseball ever written will tell you fully, clearly, entertainingly, how, why and when all these and a thousand and one other things should be done in baseball. It's a book of 192 pages, with thirty-two superb half-tone illustrations of Big League stars in actual play, and bound in either rich, red cloth or heavy, durable paper covers of similar richness and color. In paper printing and binding, it is the equal of any $1.00 and $1.50 novel, but by special arrangement with Manager McGraw, and for a limited period only,

FORECLOSURE OF A., B. & A. ROAD ORDERED

Sale Under Mortgage of Alabama and Georgia Terminal Companies Also Decreed.

Judge Pardee, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, sitting as district judge, has directed entries of decrees of foreclosure and sale under the mortgages of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad Company, the Georgia Terminal Company and the Alabama Terminal Railroad Company. Victor L. Smith has been appointed special master to make the sales.

The amounts for which the foreclosures are to be had in the different cases are: Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, $17,873,715.07; Georgia Terminal Company, $3,948,750; Alabama Terminal Railroad Company, $3,218,231. Dates for the sale have not been set.

A provision is made, directing the apportionment between the different properties of the liens of the receiver's certificates and the decree provides for the payment of these certificates out of the proceeds of the sale.

Samuel H. Pillsbury, of Boston, and Messrs. Slaton & Phillips, trusteess under the mortgages and complainant in the suits, appeared for the Old Colony Trust Company, and Messrs. Rosser & Brandon represented the defendant corporations.

Taste for Melons Seems on the Wane

Dealers in watermelons are up in arms over the apparent lost appetite of Atlantans for the luscious fruit or vegetable, as you choose to call it. Despite the fact that a large supply of the juicy fruit was in Atlanta yesterday the demand was small.

"What has become of the old watermelon cutting parties?" queried one dealer. "The sale of watermelons in restaurants is greatly on the increase, but the home consumption is falling off rapidly.

Blalock Collector; Jackson Holds Tight

While A. O. Blalock, of Fayette, has been appointed Collector of Internal Revenue with headquarters in the Federal Building, he still is "on the outside looking in."

Mr. Blalock has visited Henry S. Jackson, whose term as collector expired June 30, several times, Mr. Jackson said, and asked him when he would vacate the office.

Mr. Jackson said he would turn the office over to Mr. Blalock when he produced papers ratifying his appointment.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

Two Headline Features.

Next week at the Forsyth there will be two headline features. Cecil Lean and company will present "The Motion Picture Man," and Eva Taylor and company will offer "After the Wedding." These acts are recognized headline features in all the Keith theaters and are being brought to Atlanta as features of the summer season. In addition there will be other clever acts, making up a bill that will unquestionably attract attention.

Talking Pictures Please.

The Edison talking pictures at the Grand have become so thoroughly well established that crowds are flocking to see this innovation in motion pictures. In addition to the talking pictures excellent first-run black and white pictures are given. The Grand is delightfully comfortable.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Thundershowers will continue in the Lake region and will extend into New England and the Middle Atlantic States to-night and Sunday, but will be followed by generally fair weather Sunday in the greater portion of the Lake region. In the Ohio Valley and the South the weather will be generally fair to-night and Sunday with continued high temperatures. It will be cooler in the Lake region.

The Forecast.

Forecast until 7 p. m. Sunday:

Georgia—Generally fair to-night and Sunday.

Virginia—Showers late to-night or on Sunday; continued warm.

North and South Carolina—Generally fair in the interior; showers near the coast to-night or Sunday.

Alabama, Florida and Mississippi—Generally fair to-night and Sunday.

Tennessee—Fair to-night and Sunday; continued warm.

Louisiana and Texas—Fair to-night and Sunday.

ANTE-BELLUM ATLANTAN DEAD.

RICHMOND, July 5.—Albert Clopton Pulliam, aged 84, who was in the hotel business in Atlanta before the war between the States, is dead at his home in South Richmond.

Snubbed by Senate, Suffragists to Ask House for Chamber

Undaunted by the refusal of the Senate to allow them to use the Senate chamber for meeting places, Atlanta suffragists will attempt to obtain the House of Representatives hall. When the House convenes Monday it will find a large delegation of women waiting to make this request.

Floor Leader Blackburn and Representative R. Y. Smith, the suffragists claim, will bring the matter before the House. So far no objection, they say, has been offered to their using the House chamber.

Mrs. Mary McLendon is quite certain the House will grant them the courtesy, which she declared had been accorded them before.

"The spectacle of the women of Georgia having to beg the men for courtesy is truly a pitiful sight," said Mrs. McLendon.

HOUSE PAGE PREDICTS HE WILL BE PRESIDENT

Two D. F. McClatcheys who hold important positions in the Georgia House.

Boy thinks Speaker and Reading Clerk should be one.

Reading Clerk McClatchey's 8-Year-Old Son Has Determined on Career of Public Service.

Eight years of age with three years' experience as a page in the House of Representatives is the luck of D. F. McClatchey, Jr., who is also quite fond of sitting on the knee of his father, who has been Reading Clerk of the House for sixteen years.

Young D. F. bids fair to prove as popular as his father, who manages to inject enough life in the reading of House bills to make it pleasant for the Legislature. Acoustics of the House are not the best in the world, and the powerful voice of D. F. McClatchey is about the only one which has ever overcome this difficulty.

The ambition of young D. F., though, is to combine the positions of Reading Clerk and Speaker. He like his father's job, but he also has a great longing to handle the gavel.

He is sure of a place as page in the House until he is old enough to vote, when he expects to become a full-fledged member of the House. He will then take a turn in the Senate, put in a couple of terms as Governor, try out Congress for a few terms and then make himself President. And there's not a member of the House who does not believe this prediction is more than apt to come true. The youngster can shake hands with you as heartily as any politician who ever lived, or curl up in his father's lap as cute and loving as a youngster should be.

"Keep your eye on that young McClatchey," is the way his father likes to refer to him.

Turn Verein Holds Its Annual Picnic

Members of the Atlanta Turn Verein enjoyed their annual picnic at Germania Park yesterday. An unusually large crowd attended it, and from 10 o'clock in the morning until late last night there wasn't a dull moment.

Dancing was indulged in, while nearly everyone donned a bathing suit and spent hours in the lake.

SEARCHING SIDELIGHTS ON POLITICS IN GEORGIA

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

The political hosts in Georgia may not realize it quite, but when William Michael Bairman, of The Macon Telegraph, passed away on Thursday last the best informed man on things political in Georgia ceased to be.

Not only was he the best informed man in Georgia on State politics, but he was one of the sweetest and gentlest characters that ever lived within the Commonwealth.

Mr. Bairman was modest to an extraordinary degree, and one rarely saw his name in print—this writer never saw it figure in the head lines, at least, until those head lines announced Mr. Bairman's untimely death.

He it was who kept for years that remarkable "scrap book" of The Telegraph, so often invoked by his chief, Colonel Pendleton, to the chagrin, humiliation and undoing of an antagonist!

If ever you, Mr. Politician, did anything in Georgia that got into a newspaper somewhere, you may rest assured it was in this fearful and wonderful "scrap book!"

And yet Mr. Bairman did not keep that book for the purpose of humiliating or undoing antagonists so much as he kept it for the honorable and worthy purpose of perpetuating genuine history and keeping the records absolutely right. Far from desiring to hurt unnecessarily the feelings of any person, Bairman would not have hurt the feelings of God's humblest creature if it might be avoided!

Like the other men of his kind one occasionally meets as one passes down the way of life, Mr. Bairman was exceedingly generous to his fellow men, both in judgment upon them and in ministering to their material wants. He rarely if ever spoke an unkind word of any man, and if he ever turned down an appeal for charity few people sem to have known anything about it.

For many years he has been Editor Pendleton's right-hand man—and it is certain that that splendid editor will miss him sorely. But the greatest loss is sustained by the readers of The Telegraph. He has been, often unknown to them, their surest source of information and fact.

Postmaster J. Park Bowie, by the womanly grace of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, will take charge of the Rome office on Tuesday next. When boys and girls together, Mr. Bowie and Mrs. Wilson used to make "mud pies."

Mr. Bowie lost an even $100, and was delayed in going into office two weeks because of a stupid and clumsy mistake made in his commission when it was first issued.

When his first commission arrived it was discovered that it had Rome down as being in "Rome" County instead of in "Floyd" County, and it had to go back for correction. So exacting are the red-tape methods in the Postoffice Department that it was two good weeks before the commission got back, shaped up as it should be.

Postmaster Barclay, the efficient outgoing official, could not see where he stood to shed unnecessary tears over the situation, however, as it rounded up an even $100 for him that he wasn't expecting to get!

Senator E. H. Elkins, of the Fifteenth District, already has grown to be one of the best-known men in the General Assembly.

He is democratic in his ways and the dignity of a Senator, while duly appreciated by him, does not sit too heavily upon him. He is a good mixer and makes friends easily.

Mr. Elkins is a fine business man, and is looked upon generally as safe and sane in judgment, and as a man whose word always is as good as his bond. He evidently is destined to take a high stand in the present Legislature.

Mr. Park, of Liberty, objects to Latin phrases in proposed bills and resolutions.

When Mr. Wright, of Floyd, sent a resolution to the clerk's desk the other day, proposing that certain days to be taken as vacation be declared "dies non," Mr. Park promptly objected. He said he didn't know what "dies non" meant, and he didn't propose to vote for something he didn't know anything whatever about!

Amid the chorus of "noes" entered against Mr. Wright's proposal, Mr. Park's was easily the most vociferous.

The present Legislature, by the way, doesn't seem inclined to do anything calculated to run the legislative session over its natural fifty days' limit.

Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick, of the Tenth District, is in Atlanta for a few days.

Mr. Hardwick has announced his intention not to be a candidate to succeed himself. He desires to enter actively into the practice of law, and feels that he can not well spare further time to Congressional service.

The Congressman from the Tenth has had ten years' experience and in that time has risen to be one of the real influential men in the House. He is attentive to his duties, and has a particularly keen insight into things. He is now a member of the House Committee on Rules, which is the highest evidence of his standing among his colleagues.

Hardwick still is a young man, and has many years of usefulness ahead of him. It is a matter of genuine regret to thousands of Georgians that he has elected to retire at the end of his present term.

Next week will see the beginning of real legislative activity.

All the committees of the Senate and House have been organized and are ready for business. There is not a committee of importance, moreover, that hasn't already on hand a more or less jam of business. Between Monday and Saturday there should be reported back to the House a large number of bills with recommendations.

Representative Crawford Wheatley intends working his big Committee on Appropriations to a frazzle, if necessary, in order to get the general appropriations bill on its way to the Senate. But before starting them to work Mr. Wheatley proposes putting them in a perfectly good humor with himself and the world in general by dining them sumptuously.

He will give the committee an elaborate dinner Tuesday evening at the Capital City Club.

MULHALL LOBBY PROBE BEGUN BY HOUSE

Committee to Investigate Charges That Factories Wielded Influence Over Legislation.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The machinery of the House to-day was set in motion for an investigation of the Mulhall charges when the Rules Committee decided to report a resolution providing for the naming of a committee of seven by the Speaker. This committee will inquire into all the Mulhall charges affecting members of Congress and also determine if in the present Congress or previous Congresses lobbyists of the National Association of Manufacturers "did in fact reach or influence" any officer or employee of the House.

The committee also is to look into the efforts of the National Association of Manufacturers to defeat any candidates for the House.

Another object of the committee is to inquire whether improper influence has been exerted by the National Association of Manufacturers or any other bodies in the selection of committees, and find out if the association now maintains a lobby in Washington and how effective it is.

The special committee is empowered to employ all necessary legal and clerical assistance. Expenses are to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House.

Representative Levy declared he was opposed to further inquiries. The Money Trust and steel investigation, he said, had caused only financial unrest.

The resolution was amended so that the investigating committee will be called upon to determine not only what part the National Association of Manufacturers played in defeating members, but also to inquire into the activities of all other organizations and persons along this line.

This makes it possible for the committee to investigate the Anti-Saloon League, the National Woman Suffrage organization, the American Medical Association and all other organizations promoting legislation here.

Smithsonian Given Star-Spangled Flag

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The Smithsonian Institution announces that the original Star-Spangled Banner was in the possession of the Smithsonian and had been placed on exhibition. This flag floated over Fort McHenry on September 13 and 14, 1814, when the British fleet attacked Baltimore. It is 27 feet 6 inches wide by 32 feet 10 inches long and has fifteen stripes and fifteen stars.

The flag that was the inspiration for the famous patriotic song was kept by Colonel George Armistead, who was in command at Fort McHenry, and handed down to his grandson, Even Appleton, of New York.

Militants Burn Two Churches; Rob Safe

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

CARDIFF, WALES, July 5.—Fifty thousand dollars' damage was done by militants to-day at Pullheli in Carnarvonshire, where members of the arson squad burned the Welsh Methodist Church.

The women also burned the Tabernacle Baptist Church. They broke into the parsonage, robbed the safe, destroyed the contents of the place and escaped. One of the incendiaries was said to be about fifteen years old.

BOLTON, ENGLAND, July 5.—Suffragettes attempted to destroy Spinner's Hall, a $150,000 building, with fire to-day and succeeded in causing $25,000 damage.

Railway Must Repay $35,000 Overcharge

WASHINGTON, July 5.—After two years' consideration, the Interstate Commerce Commission to-day awarded approximately $35,000 reparation to the Marian Coal Company, of Taylor, Pa., from the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad for unreasonable rates on anthracite.

It was during the investigation of the case that the charges against Judge Robert W. Archbald, of the United States Commerce Court, impeached by Congress, were made by Boland.

Double Jewels on Ankles at Newport

NEWPORT, R. I., July 5.—Mrs. Charles H. Welsh, of Philadelphia, appeared on Thames Street wearing two jeweled ornaments on her ankles. Mrs. Welsh astonished Newport a week ago when she wore a single jeweled ankle ornament, but the two are said to be far more ornate than the one exhibited last week.

Helena Store Burns.

HELENA.—The store house belonging to Sam Wood and the stock of good of W. H. Howard were destroyed by fire to-day. The loss is partially covered by insurance. The fire is supposed to have been started by rats.

The Social World

Dr. Montague Boyd will entertain at dinner at the Piedmont Driving Club Saturday evening for Dr. and Mrs. William Shallenberger. Mrs. Shallenberger was Miss Laura Boyd, of Savannah. She was married to Dr. Shallenberger in June. The Dean Guild of the Universalist Church will hold its regular monthly meeting Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. J. C. Sanford, 142 Peeples Street.

* * *

Hyperion Club Dance.

The Hyperion Club gave a Fourth of July dance Friday evening at their new club at Lee and Gordon Streets. Red, white and blue bunting was draped from the walls and the national flags were crossed over the doorways.

Punch was served from two booths, one with the figures "1776" hung above it, the other in rustic style, with part of an oak tree outside the booth holding in its branches a flag with the date "1913" inscribed on it.

A feature of the evening was the "moonlight" dance. Forty couples attended.

Miss Atkisson Hostess.

Miss Helen Atkisson will entertain at a dancing party next Friday evening in honor of Miss Dodo White's house party guests, Misses Helen Dunn, of Lake Providence, La.; Elizabeth Stubbs, of Shreveport; Cleta Slagle, of Clarkes; Alice Jones, of Birmingham, and for Mrs. J. P. B. Allan's guest, Miss Dorothy Robbins, of Birmingham, who will arrive July 8.

Psychological Society.

There will be a meeting of the Psychological Society at the Cleveland-Manning Piano Company Building, 80½ North Pryor Street, at 3:30 p. m. Rev. J. B. Speers, of Richmond, Va., will speak and the following program will be rendered:

"Grey Days," Johnson—Miss Hazel Mason.

"The Wren," Lehman—Mrs. Don Farnsworth.

Duet, Qui est Homo, Rossini—Mrs. Don Farnsworth and Miss Mason.

Mr. Albert Gerard, pianist.

For Mrs. Stephens.

Mrs. Eugene Mitchell will entertain the Woman's Pioneer Society at her residence, 1149 Peachtree Street, next Wednesday at 4 p. m. in honor of her mother, Mrs. John Stephens.

Independence Day Celebration.

Despite the heat, many members of the Daughters of the American Revolution attended the joint service in commemoration of Independence Day at St. Philip's Cathedral. Bishop Cleveland K. Nelson, in a forceful sermon, called the Declaration of Independence a religious document, and also declared patriotism is founded upon religion.

As a special compliment there was music by a vested choir, and organ music by Charles Sheldon. The service was attended by 26 members of the Atlanta chapter, with a representation from all other local chapters.

Assisting at Festival.

Members of the Young Peoples' Missionary Society No. 2, of the First Methodist Church, of which Miss Annie Winship Bates is president, will give an ice cream festival on the church lawn Monday evening. Owens, Hugh Lokey, Lott Warren, Joseph McCord, Wharton Wilson, Graham Williams and S. F. Boykin.

A fancy work table will be a feature.

East Lake Dance.

The East Lake clubhouse was artistically decorated with the red, white and blue flags Friday evening when the club gave a dance in honor of Independence Day. Preceding the dance, dinner was served on the broad veranda.

Among those present were Misses Nellie Kiser Stewart, Priscilla Patton, Clifford West, Lyda Nash, Mary Hines, Annie Akers, Martha Ryder, May O'Brien, Frances Connally, Jennie Lou Lindsay, Mary Blalock and her guest, Ruth Matta, of Baton Rouge; Mary Hawkins, Lula Dean Jones, Helen Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. Valdemar Gude, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Eby, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shelton, Mr. and Mrs. Veay Rainwater, Dr. and Mrs. Tigner, Messrs. Wimberly Peters, Brockover Toy, Stokes Connor, Hughes Roberts, Prince Webster, Dr. Charles Hodge, Walter DuBard, Rogers Toy, Ned Hitt, Dr. Walpole Brewer, Henry Hull, W. A. Bennett, Frank Montgomery, Gillespie Adams and Palmer Johnson.

* * *

Mrs. Hilton Hostess.

Mrs. Harold Hilton entertained at a bridge party Saturday morning at her home on North Jackson Street for her guest, Miss Leila Daley, of Texarkana, Texas.

Pink and white sweetpeas decorated the porch where the game was played. The prizes were a boudoir cap and a piece of handmade lingerie.

Mrs. Hilton wore a blue crepe de chine, and Miss Daley was gowned in white embroidered crepe.

Vesper Club Dance.

One of the most interesting social events of the past week was a dance given by the Vesper Club Friday evening. The hall was decorated in the club colors of black and gold and the national colors. The guests of honor were Miss Eulula Bright Cannon, Miss Minnie Little, of Montgomery, and Miss Ethel Cantrell, of Rome.

Among those present were Misses Maude Lewis, Harriet Thumler, Evelyn Green, Rosa Belle Chapman, Ruth Atkinson, Lilouise Reed, Adelaide Callaway, Lula Black, Lucy Hinman, Elberta Williams, Annie K. Miss Mamie Branch Powers, who was the guest during the past week of Miss Mamie O'Keefe Kirkpatrick, at her home on Peachtree, has returned to her home in Decatur.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Axman sailed from New York for Europe on the Cedric on July 3. They will spend the summer touring Germany, England, Scotland, Italy and Switzerland, before returning to their home in New York.

Mr. W. I. Johnstone and family left last week to make their home in Lincolnton, N. C. Miss Miriam Johnstone remained in Atlanta to visit her cousin, Miss Elizabeth May Johnstone, who will accompany her home on July 7.

Mr. Axman is a former newspaper man of Atlanta, having had local connection here and represented the Insurance Field. For several years he has been one of the editors of Musical America, one of the foremost musical journals in New York.

A picnic party was given by G. H. Payne this week, the guests being Misses Olenza Corley, Julia Bryant, Mary Louise Walker, Dorothy Davis, Messrs. John Murray, Harry Stone, Will Ed Corley, Gary Payne. Mrs. W. W. Corley and Mrs. K. J. Hooks were chaperons.

Misses Bessie, Dorothy and Hattie Bayley, of Clearwater, Fla., are guests of Mrs. B. M. Woolley at 311 West Peachtree Street for the summer.

Miss Marion Woolley will leave Monday to visit Mrs. W. W. Banks at Tifton, where a series of parties will be given for her.

Starnes to Render Free Organ Recital

Dr. Percy J. Starnes, city organist, will appear Sunday afternoon as usual in the free concert at the Auditorium-Armory under Music Festival Association auspices.

The concert will begin promptly at 4 o'clock. The program will include Mendelssohn's "Spring Song," music from Gounod's "Queen of Sheba," and an improvisation by Dr. Starnes on "Believe Me if all Those Endearing Young Charms."

The free concerts will continue throughout the summer as regularly as possible.

Dr. Robert Bridges To Be Poet Laureate

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, July 5.—Pall Mall Gazette states that Asquith has offered the poet laureateship to Dr. Robert Bridges, who will probably accept it.

Bridges is 69 years old. He was formerly a medical practitioner and is a distinguished scholar, highly esteemed by brother poets. His works include eight poetic plays.

Revenge Is Sweet

"BELINDA," said the brother of that good woman, looking up from his magazine, "if you sigh like that again I shall leave home. What do you find in those price lists to distress you so painfully?"

"I was trying to select enough plants and shrubs to embellish a three-acre lot and provide a succession of blooms during the summer," she replied. "I must choose only varieties that need very little cultivation and scarcely any watering and will be somewhat out of the ordinary and will cost not more than $10. After working on the problem all morning I'm convinced that it's impossible."

"What is it, a prize contest for some horticultural society?"

"No, of course not; I'm acting as a committee of one appointed by the Village Improvement Society to 'landscape garden' the public square."

"Indeed! And with the munificent sum of $10? Why is the Village Improvement Society so reckless with its funds?"

"You know very well, Ben, that in such a little village there isn't much money to spend, and the society is quite generous.

Her Scheme.

"I was invited to attend the meeting yesterday," she explained, "and offer suggestions about the planting of the square. When I finished speaking it was unanimously voted that $5 be expended on the work."

"I thought you said $10 a minute ago."

"Well, I didn't like to dampen their enthusiasm by explaining that $5 was hardly a drop in the bucket, so I told them that you and I would be glad if they would let us add another five."

"How thoughtful of you! Thank you for my share in it. I suppose they agreed?"

"Yes, and I naturally wish to do the best I can. But the society is so particular that it makes things rather difficult. Mrs. Hart says the odor of peonies makes her husband ill, and as his feed store opens upon the square that settles the peonies. Mrs. Bell can't endure flowering almond because she associates it with lonely days on her old farm. As she is the president of the society, that's reason enough for not having flowering almond. Gladys Smith thinks we should make a feature of the most expensive hydrangeas grown. She saw them while she was away at school. Miss Hitty Watkins considers lilacs dreadfully common, and they don't bloom for several years. 'Immediate results!' is the cry of the whole society.

"However, I persuaded them to buy some annuals for this year's flowers, for it's too late now to plant seeds, and to spend most of the appropriation on permanent shrubbery. It's my business to make that $10 cover my plans. Ben, will you please see if my addition is correct while I search for a better bargain in hydrangeas and weigelas? I want to get the order off on the afternoon mail."

While one was engrossed with the catalogues and the other with the auditing a shiftless figure slouched across the lawn and leaned against the porch railing. He made his presence known by an apologetic clearing of the throat.

"Hello, Mike," said Ben. "Going fishing?"

"No; I came out here on business for the improvement society. I got a bill for Miss Belinda."

"For me?" exclaimed she, astonished.

"Why, yes. You see, I ain't never been paid for the work I done last summer on the square. Them women hired me to keep it in order and I kep' the paper and trash picked up and cut the grass real often and I pulled up them house plants they sat out there that died, and I ain't never been paid. I heard that you was in charge of the square now, so I come over to get my money."

"But," protested Miss Belinda, with some warmth, "I had nothing at all to do with last year's affairs."

"No, I know that, but I went to see Mrs. Bell and she and Hitty Watkins put their O. K. on my bill, so I come on over here to get my pay, just as they said."

Miss Belinda looked appealingly at her brother. He took the none too clean slip of paper in his hand.

"I think there's nothing for it but to pay," he said, laughing. "It's only $7."

"Seven dollars!" echoed Miss Belinda. "I don't see how you can laugh, Ben. It isn't funny—it's tragic."

Funny.

When Mike, with the money in his pocket, turned his back on the brother and sister, Ben said: "It is funny, Belinda. It is positively side-splittin'." Miss Belinda had to laugh.

"And now what about your plans?" her brother asked.

"I shall buy as many hydrangeas as I can with the miserable $3 and take peonies, flowering almond and lilacs out of my own garden to make up the deficit."

"Revenge is sweet. I wonder what would have happened to Mike's bill if you hadn't added our $5 to the society's appropriation?"

All Beach.

Wilfrid was sitting on his father's knee, watching his mother arrange her hair.

"Papa hasn't any waves like that," said the father, laughing.

Wilfrid, looking up at his father's bald pate, replied:

"No; no waves; it's all beach."

The Ghost Breaker

By C. W. Goddard and Paul Dickey

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

The scene of the story is laid in the Vanderlip Hotel, New York City. The Princess Maria Theresa of Segura, a beautiful Spanish woman, is suddenly awakened in her suite by the sound of pistol shots. She hears a man running down the hall. He crashes against her door, breaking the lock, and enters. She sees he is a tall, good-looking young man, dressed in evening clothes. He is carrying a revolver in his right hand, and blood is dripping from a wound in his left. He begs the Princess to hide him. She, moved by some indescribable impulse, decides that she will. She directs him to an inner room, and a few minutes later, when the hotel detective knocks on the door, she tells him she is all right and sends him away. The young man, who is Warren Jarvis, of Kentucky, comes out of his hiding place, and the Princess, for the first time, notices his wound. She is moved to sympathy and showers him with questions as to what has occurred. Jarvis tells her about a Kentucky feud between his family and another named Markham. He says he left Kentucky to avoid the feudists, but encountered one of them in the hotel, which explains the shots.

Now go on with the story.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"It's all right," said Jarvis, with a little sigh of relief. "But how am I going to get out of here?"

His liege lady smiled a little sarcastic smile.

"Resourceful man! I thought of a plan long ago—the trunk." And she indicated a capacious traveling van at the foot of the bed.

"The trunk?" he echoed, blankly. "What about it?"

"Well, you are stupid," decided the Princess. "I am sending it on the steamer at 6 o'clock."

A light of understanding but distinctly not of joy leaped to Jarvis' eyes.

"You mean to get in it?"—Good Lord!—Is it big enough?"

He walked—stood over it dubiously a moment and threw back the lid.

The Plan.

"I think so," said the princess. "And no one could possibly suspect. Take out those trays."

"Sure it's big enough," conceded Warren doubtfully, as they leaned over the interior, "but what about these?"

Something fell and tinkled on the brass work.

"Oh!" exclaimed Dona Maria. He picked it up and held it out to her, examining it curiously.

"It's nothing," she assured him hastily, regaining possession. "I mean—it's all right—it's just a locket."

"Did I break it?"

"Oh, no—I broke it myself—on purpose—yesterday," she explained, somewhat confusedly. Then, when she had concealed it once more in the fold of her gown, she went on gravely. "It means a great deal to me—and, perhaps, to you. I crossed the ocean for that locket. Some day you may know the reason why."

Before he could make any comment she returned briskly to the matter in hand.

"We had better send these," she suggested, indicating the trays.

"Hold on—I've got it!" he exclaimed suddenly, then stopped. "No—you better phone. Ask the operator to give you the Hotel Belwood, across the street—my room is 417. Rusty, my servant, is there now, waiting for word from me." The Princess frowned and shook her head. "He can be trusted," he assured her. "Tell him to come here at once; and just say 'Warren'—that'll fetch him."

The Princess hesitated a moment as if still in doubt, but his confidence reassured her and she went to the telephone and got the connection.

"Ask if it's Rusty, and be sure to say 'Warren,'" he cautioned her in a hoarse whisper. The Princess nodded.

"Hello—Is this—Mr. Rusty?" Jarvis grinned in the background at the title. "Well, listen carefully—you are to come right over to the Vanderlip Hotel, across the street from where you are. A bell-boy will be waiting for you at the desk and he is to bring you right up to Room 1121——"

"And keep his mouth shut," interrupted Jarvis.

"And—and don't talk to anyone," translated the Princess. "What's that——? There was a pause and she put her lips close to the mouthpiece. "Warren," she said, waited a moment, and hung up the receiver.

Jarvis chuckled exultantly. "Now, get the desk and tell them to look out for Rusty, and also tell them to send up some wrapping paper and twine."

When Dona Marie had communicated her instructions to the desk she returned to find her cavalier, coat and overcoat thrown aside, inside the trunk cutting at the tough leather with a pocketknife.

"Got to breathe," he explained between pants. Swearing a little under his breath he threw his weight onto the knife, and the blade snapped, gashing his finger.

"Oh, what did you do?" she exclaimed with solicitation that was extremely gratifying to the knight.

"Snapped the blade," he growled, eying the bleeding cut with disgust.

"But you hurt your hand—your injured hand!"

He tried to belittle it and looked hopelessly around for another engineering tool; but Dona Maria insisted on examining the wound and bathing with alcohol and wrapping it up.

"Now, how am I going to cut a hole in that trunk? he wondered while these ministrations were in progress. Dona Maria looked about the room also.

"My shears," she suggested, suddenly.

"If they're not too light. Let's see."

"Come back here," she ordered, holding onto his hand. "It's not tied yet."

He laughed and looked down at her mischievously. "Do you know—I'm beginning to like this job already?"

The hand was instantly released and the work of making an air-hole resumed.

"What time does the boat sail?" he inquired after certain grunts of satisfaction announced success.

"Nine o'clock."

"Good!" he grunted, stabbing savagely with the shears. "That will give Rusty time to get on board with these trays and my baggage."

He toiled a few minutes more in silence, Dona Maria watching him and throwing occasional anxious glances at the clock.

"We've ten minutes before they call for the trunk," she said, at last. Jarvis raised his head to reply, when there came a knock at the door. Swiftly and silently he got out of the trunk and slipped behind the portieres that cut off the alcove, as the Princess opened the door and received Rusty and his brass-buttoned escort, who also delivered the wrapping paper and twine, and withdrew.

Rusty stood in stolid silence until the boy had disappeared, and Dona Maria invited him in and bolted the door behind him.

He was a gray-haired darky of heavy and important mien, whose architecture followed in a general way the liberal cylindrical design of New York's new courthouse. His system of locomotion was full of strange and unexpected eccentrics, and his efforts to reach a given point, however near, were always accompanied by truly distressing wheezing and groaning which deceived every one but his master. His besetting sin was an earnest devotion to the principle of repose, and his crown of glory a blind, unwavering, idolatrous loyalty to his master.

"Rusty's heart is all right," Jarvis used to say, "but it is so heavily surrounded by fat that it has some difficulty in expressing itself."

The bellboy had walked him somewhat hurriedly down the hall, and this unwonted activity, combined with real uneasiness over the possible predicament of his master, caused alarming sounds to arise from the cavernous depths of his heaving chest. Before he could spare a few cubic inches of breath for inquiry Jarvis stepped back into the room.

The Escape.

"Lor' bless you, Marse Warren!" he gasped, holding up his arms and rolling his eyes in token of thanksgiving. "I sert'nly thought you all——"

"Never mind what you thought," interrupted Jarvis in brisk tones, "Take these," and he pointed to the trays, "with our baggage to the steamship Lusitania, of the Cunard line—buy accommodations. Mind, you won't see me till after we get out to sea. Keep in your stateroom and sit tight until you hear from me. Understand?"

As promptly as if it were an everyday occurrence, Rusty had fallen to work on the trays, and, by a change in his manner of puffing, indicated that he was following the rest of the instructions.

"I'll give you the money," went on Jarvis, "and the clerk at our hotel will attend to everything and get the tickets. Then you pay the bill. No; get hold of this."

Rusty took the wallet his master held out without a word and went busily back to the trays again.

"Let me help," offered Dona Maria.

"No, we can manage it, I guess," said Jarvis easily, smiling at the uproar that emanated from his servant who was forced to stop over the work. "This is Rusty. Rusty, this is the Princess of Aragon."

Rusty eagerly straightened and turned with a profound bow.

"Yas, sah,' he grinned. "How do, Mrs. Princess Ah—ah-go-on."

Jarvis pressed his lips togther to suppress a giggle.

"I said Aragon," he corrected gravely.

"Yas, sah," was the aggrieved reply. "That's what I said—Ah-go-on."

"I guess you'll have to let it go at that," smiled Jarvis. "There—that's all right, Rusty. Now, you understand everything, do you?"

"Yas, sah," Rusty assured him, picking up the bundles. "I take eve'ything to th' steamboat—git acom—acom——"

"Accommodations."

The Last Moments.

The darkey nodded brightly. "I knows what you means—fer us an' Mrs. Princess ah——"

"No, no," snapped Jarvis, impatiently. "Not for the Princess—just for us two."

"Oh, yas, sah. I unnastin' puffectly."

"All right." Jarvis pushed him toward the door. "Now, get a move on you and don't miss the boat. Remember the name of the line?"

Rusty put his head on one side and thought for an instant, and then showed a yard of teeth.

"Yas, sah, the—the Coon-ard Line."

The instant the door was locked behind him Jarvis returned to his work at the trunk. He had just succeeded in making a small hole when the time was up.

"Make another," urged Dona Maria.

He shook his head decidedly. "Haven't time. I'll widen this one a little." He rested both hands on the side and looked up at her soberly. "Remember this trunk must not go into the hold of the ship. Have it marked 'Wanted on Voyage,' and 'This End Up.' I'll lie with my head in this direction."

"I'll remember," she promised earnestly; "now let me get you a pillow."

Heavy folds of her clothing padded the bottom and he arranged the pillow for his head. Then he sat in the trunk and looked very serious.

"Before I get into this coffin," he said, "there are one or two things I should like to know. How do you know that you can trust me?"

"I don't," she replied instantly; "I'll have to take that chance."

He winced a little.

"But you must have a pretty good reason," he insisted.

"I have," was the cool response.

"Well—what about the ghosts?"

"Pardon me, Mr. Warren, but so far your credentials do not warrant further confidence."

Repulsed in the direct attack, the young man was silent a few moments. So was the young woman. Then he essayed a flank movement.

"You are Spanish—yet you speak with no accent," he charged.

"I was educated in England."

Another pause and another attempt.

"Are you really—a sure-enough princess?"

A certain wintriness apeared in the soft, dark eyes that looked down into his.

"Why do you say that?"

"Oh—I—don't know," he stammered, uncertainly. "I—somehow—you aren't quite like what I thought a princess would be."

"I'm sorry," she remarked, coldly.

"Oh, I didn't mean it that way," he hastened to protest, feeling that he was making next to no headway. "I mean that you're different from the popular idea of a princess. You have more—more—understanding," he floundered, but the wintriness did not vanish, "more—more—sympathy—more heart——"

"In that respect," cut in Dona Maria, swiftly, "you will find me quite a conventional princess."

The House Detective.

The knight immediately began a painfully careful examination of the hole through which he must breathe for several hours and thus he did not notice that the Princess colored slightly and the winter in her eyes gave way momentarily to spring. He was grateful that he had the hole in the leather to examine during the painful silence.

"I wonder"—he cleared his throat, and began again—"I wonder if this opening will let in enough air."

"I hope so," said the Princess, and he had to look up at her face to make sure that she was not as indifferent as the tone of her voice indicated. What he saw evidently reassured him, for his embarrassment vanished.

"I'll put the shears in here," he remarked cheerily, "and if it gets too stuffy I can cut another hole from the inside."

There was a knock at the door. Both started, and Jarvis noiselessly coiled himself into his cage.

"It must be the man for the trunk, she whispered. Then she called. "Just a minute, please."

He let the lid down a little way and she bent over him.

"Remember," he whispered earnestly, "this must not go into the hold of the ship. You must have it marked 'Wanted,' and 'This Side Up.' You might add 'With Care' if you've a mind to," he added with a wry smile, and he cautiously let the lid down.

"Are you all right?" she whispered, her hand on the lock.

"If they don't lose the trunk," came in a muffled voice from within.

To Be Continued Monday.

"How am I going to get out of here?" said Jarvis.

JARVIS GETS READY TO FLEE

.:. "Too Nintimate" .:.

By WINIFRED BLACK.

THEY'VE quarreled, the two "nintimate friends.

No, I don't mean "intimate," I No, I don't mean "intimate, " I mean "nintimate"—that's what they call each other. One's ten and one's nine, and they've been playing dolls together for weeks.

I told Ten-year-old that she had better play with someone else for a while.

"You and Nine-year-old will quarrel as sure as fate," said Ir, oh, so wisely.

"Quarrel, my 'nintimate' friend and I?" cried Ten-year-old in horror. Oh, how could we ever do such a thing? Why, she's the sweetest girl in the world. I wish my hair was the color of hers and my eyes, too, so we could wear the same colored ribbons, and oh, can't we both have linen hats, the same shade anyhow?"

So they had linen hats the same shade, and the new kind of heelless shoes the same shape, and Brown Eyes tied on a pink ribbon and so Blue Eyes had to tie on a pink ribbon, too.

But now they've quarreled, quarreled badly. It began over the dolls. Nine-year-old wanted the dolls to go to school and say their seven times, and Ten-year-old wanted to send them to the mountains or to the seashore or somewhere.

"Isn't it bad enough to say our own old ten times and eight times over and over," said Ten-year-old, "without making per-f-e-c-t slaves of the poor, darling dolls?"

"I'm not a slave," said Nine-year-old, "and I'd thank you not to call me one."

"Why," said Ten-year-old, "I didn't. I said"——

"I know what you said," said Nine-year-old, "I can hear all right"—— only she said "hyear."

"Well, then," cried Ten-year-old, "why don't you talk all right." F-t-t-t—the trouble began right then—dolls went home—ribbons came off—hats were thrown in the closet—out of the hated sight. "I'll never play with her again," sobbed Ten-year-old.

"I hate the sight of her," quavered Nine-year-old, and so the day was clouded.

What mattered how gayly the sun shone, what mattered how sweetly the flowering bush at the back gate beckoned—who cared what the robin tried to say. Gone—to smithereens—one long, happy, happy day. Gone never to come back again—alas, alas, what a sinful waste, and all because the "nintimate friends" were just a shade too "nintimate," that's all.

The young couple next door—how dead in love they are; she walks to the corner every night to meet him, and he turns around three or four times to wave her good-bye in the mornings. And the other night, when one of his old friends dropped in for a pleasant evening, she pouted; I could see it by the very turn of her shoulders.

She didn't want a soul around but him. And Sunday, when her sister came over after church, he went upstairs and sulked. I could see his shadow on the blind.

They won't admit now that there is any gulf at all, oh, no. They're one, you know; didn't they say so before the parson and all the church full of smiling friends. One—which one I wonder?

Will she give up her individuality—the one thing that called him to her—or will he be just an echo of her.

One! Which one? I always wonder.

How much better it is when you get to understand that two human beings mean two every time and not one at all; the man is a man, not a copy of a woman, and the woman is a woman, not an echo of the man; each must live his and her own separate life, and the sooner they begin to do it the sooner they'll be happy.

"And then where did you go?" says the young wife when Husband is a few minutes late to dinner.

Young Husband's brow clouds. After all, must he be watched like a criminal. "Oh, then I came home," he says, and doesn't tell the young wife that he stopped to chat with old Billie from Yale a minute or so, and the next day the young wife meets old Billie from Yale and he says: "Had a fine talk with Jimmie yesterday,"—and there's trouble in store for husband when he gets home that night.

"Too nintimate," that's all, "too nintimate," that's actually all that's the matter!

Your husband's heart is yours, not his brain and his soul, too. Your wife is faithful, loving, devoted, that's enough fou you to know, young man. Don't be too "nintimate" either of you—or you "won't speak" before six months is gone. Oh, yes, it's a pretty fiction, "two hearts that beat as one, two souls with but a single thought," etc.—a pretty fiction—thank goodness, it isn't a bit true. What a bore it would be to live with a twin, wouldn't it?

Do You Know That—

James Morris, who has been chauffeur to Cardinal Bourne since the latter was presented with a motor car some years ago, and who had previously been coachman to Cardinal Vaughan, has retired. It is Morris' boast that he has safely driven nine princes of the church in the motor car, which he has piloted 18,000 miles "without ever getting the Cardinal into trouble with the police for exceeding the speed limit." Cardinal Bourne has presented him with an autographed portrait of himself.

The languages and dialects into which the Bible is translated now number 450. The British and Foreign Bible Society's issues of copies of the Scriptures now reach the huge total of 7,899,562, made up of 936,346 Bibles, 1,269,919 New Testaments and 5,696,297 smaller portions. In China last year, for every two English books the society sold it disposed of three in Chinese—the bulk of these being single gospels.

Haste Quite Unnecessary.

The evening was damp and cold and foggy, and the Rev. Candy Macgregor, while walking absent-mindedly along the street, fell heavily into a deep hole which had been made by order of the local sanitary authorities.

For a long while the Rev. Sandy struggled to escape. Then despairingly he began to shout for help. A passing laborer heard his cries, and, looking down into the hole, asked who was there.

The minister informed him, but in return received only meager comfort.

"Weel, weel," said the laborer, "ye needa kick up sic' a noise. You'll no' be needed afore the Sawbath, and this is only Wednesday nicht!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Deep Breathing Lessons from Miss Zoe Barnett

Miss Zoe Barnett.

By LILIAN LAUFERTY.

"HAVE you ever watched a fish breathe?" asked dark-eyed Zoe Barnett, of Lew Field's "All Aboard" company. "No, I'm not bringing the role of comedienne into this interview; I am about to tell you the greatest beauty secret I know. A fish breathes visibly—you can see its little sides expand and contract as it breathes deeply and all over its body. But most women breathe either in the top of their lungs or expand their diaphragms as much as their stiff corsets will let them. Now, I wear corsets of 'Grecian tricot'—or webbing—and those corsets breathe with me."

We were sitting in Miss Barnett's own cool-shadowed room, and the grateful breeze that fluttered the curtains had not seemed a possible thing down on the sidewalks below. My hostess was wearing a fascinating pink kimono—just the pink to bring a flush to the clear olive of her cheeks; pink "mules" peeped daintily out, and her head was bound in a scarf of soft pink silk with a big pink bow drooping in graceful lines just at the base of a left ear that fitted in with the color scheme of sea-shell pink. A very witching negligee for a midsummer day. Try it with the finishing touch of surah silk sash and see, little sisters.

"Now, I will give you a little exhibition of proper breathing, and then you would probably like a little sermon on just what it does for you," went on Miss Barnett, making the interviewer's lot an easy one, indeed.

An Exhibition.

"Please put your hands here on my ribs and feel them press out and out till they are fully expanded by my full lungs and till my chest is pushed way up by those same lungs, and all the hollows in throat and neck are padded out and filled by the splendid clean air I am drawing up from my diaphragm. That is deep breathing.

"Deep breathing helps you have a figure that is slender yet round. It banishes hollows and unupholstered bones, and it helps the skin throw off impurities and keep white and fine of texture. It lets you have a clear voice, with plenty of reserve power and strength back of it. Try it at an open window twenty times each morning—increase your twenty to thirty—to fifty—breathe deeply whenever you are outdoors—and finally grow into the habit of breathing deeply all the time.

"Do you know, when I feel a little headache starting or find an attack of indigestion imminent, I rush to the open window and breathe deeper and deeper until that internal application of fresh air clears my system and wards off the threatened attack."

"Do you aid and abet your deep-breathing measure by some sensible dietary laws?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, the food supply is first aid to the air supply," said the girl who adds so much wholesome sanity to the more scintillant charm of her delightful personality. "I eat only two meals a day. I find that I can sing over a sore throat—even an ulcerated one—but my voice will not make music over an overworked and protesting stomach. Overeating seems to be a more general complaint than starvation in our land of too plenty."

Choosing Costumes.

"And to your theory of unlimited fresh aid and limited food supply you add a bit of originality in choosing costumes, don't you?"

"A good bit," was the answer. "I loathe putting myself into clothes that some one else has designed for me. I don't feel quite free to be myself unless everything about me is me and expresses me. I like my clothes to be one form of my self-expression, and I think it is worth while bringing earnest study to the understanding of your own type. But if a woman lacks that great essential taste, she can do one great thing toward being well dressed—she can attend to the details of her costume. Never wear a bedraggled petticoat or go about in run-down heels, for if every little detail is neat and in good taste, even the simplest costume looks attractive and dainty."

And in the fine glow of an independent spirit that dares preach because it practices, Miss Barnett concluded: "Work hard at deep breathing and at deep feeling and thinking and trying, and then you'll be a success at being a woman and a worker, and a beauty, too, maybe!"

COMPLICATION OF WOMAN'S ILLS

Yields to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Athens, Texas.—"I had a complication of diseases, some of them of long standing. I wrote to you for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and some other things that you suggested. I must confess that I am much better in every way and have been relieved of some of the worst troubles. My neighbors say I look younger now than I did fifteen years ago."—Mrs. Sarah R. Whatley, Athens, Texas, R. F. D. No. 3, Box 92.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many of them state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

If you want special advice, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The Case of Alfred

THE middle-aged woman with the youthful hat sank into the car seat with a sigh of relief. "My, but I got tired waiting on that corner!" she said to her companion. "I hate this standing around waiting for street cars when there might just as well have been an automobile in the family! As I was saying to my husband this morning, it does beat all that after you slave and plan all your life for your children things never turn out as you want them to!"

"That's so," agreed the woman in the shade too bright heliotrope suit. "They just do as they please!"

"Not that Lizzie is not a good daughter," went on the middle-aged woman, "It's just that you can't tell about men. They can be the blindest, most exasperating, contrary creatures! As I was saying to my husband when he took Alfred Quam for a partner, who on earth would have dreamed that such a boyish, pleasant fellow could have such a will of his own and be so absolutely deaf to the call of what are really his own interests?

"He has money, you know, and as his folks did not live here I made up my mind that it was my duty to be kind of motherly to him," explained the middle-aged woman. "I think there is nothing so pathetic as a nice young man away from home and a prey to every designing creature who sets her eyes on him, especially when he is a good-looking young man like Alfred."

"I thought," said the other woman, "that he and Lizzie——"

"I don't believe in trying to make matches," said the middle-aged woman, firmly. "I wouldn't dream of interfering with fate! Lizzie may be 26, but she doesn't look it, and anyone with taste would realize how good-looking she is—in a quiet way, of course. I don't think it is refined to have the sort of looks that attract attention, Mrs. Garver, indeed I don't!

"The first night that I had Alfred Quam to a good home-cooked dinner I let Lizzie stir up the French dressing and stuff the baked potatoes, and if I happened to mention that she got the dinner I can't see that there was any necessity of my explaining just what part of it she got. Alfred always was glad to get an invitation to dinner. Afterward I had Lizzie show him her book of photographs. There's nothing like letting young people get acquainted.

"Anyhow, Alfred Quam might have considered himself in luck to get a nice girl like my Lizzie—not but that she could have her pick of far better than he! There's no telling what a man will like—and to think that he should lose his head over that silly, giggling Georgie MacPrang, who grew so fond of Lizzie all of a sudden on the evenings she found that Alfred was coming! Lizzie is so unsuspicious that she seemed glad to have Georgie come and make eyes at Alfred till I put a stop to it. I guess I wasn't going to have Lizzie beaten on hero wn ground.

"When he got his runabout I mentioned that Lizzie was perfectly crazy over autos and that the fresh air was so good for health. He took her out several times when I invited him to come early for dinner, so they could get a ride afterward, but it wasn't a month before that Georgie MacPrang was driving the runabout with her own hands and smiling condescendingly when she passed our house!

"You don't know what I suffered at the hands of that Georgie MacPrang, Mrs. Garver! I'd ask Alfred out for a nice little family game of cards and he'd have an engagement and the next day Georgie would drop in and tell what a fine time she and Alfred had at the theater the night before.

"He was perfectly nice to Lizzie and if she dropped into the coal office near closing time, as it was perfectly natural for her to do, since it was her father's office, Alfred would usually bring her home. 'Don't push yourself,' I told Lizzie. 'Only don't be backward about showing him that he's popular with you! That flatters a man—having him think you like him and are too modest to show it!'

"Just as I had arranged to have Alfred take his summer vacation at the same time we did and be our guest at the cottage we were going to rent, in comes that Georgie MacPrang with a solitaire as big as a paving stone, all smiles and applied blushes and throws herself on Lizzie's neck and says she must tell her first because it was through her that she and Alfred found each other.

"Isn't that enough to make a woman give up in despair, Mrs. Garver? Not that I'd have dreamed of trying to force Alfred or Lizzie in each other's direction—not me—but being a junior partner and, of course, what's her father's will be Lizzie's some day, and then Alfred would have had it all—and his nice automobile and he is so good looking—and to think that that silly Georgie's MacPrang——"

"Maybe something will happen," said her friend, comfortably. "Lizzie may yet be glad she didn't get him——"

"My goodness!" said the middle-aged woman emphatically. "Why, my Lizzie wouldn't have had Alfred Quam, not if he'd begged her on his knees."

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

THE continued demand made upon the time of Mrs. Lysander John Appleton and her daughter, Daysey Mayme, to reform the world has proved a blessing to Lysander John, leaving him uninterrupted opportunity for research work.

"I feel," he said calling the two fat pillow cushions to order, "as if my hands were being uplifted and strengthened by unseen forces; as though I, too, a mere man, have a hand in the progress of the world."

He paused. The two fat pillow cushions looked at him with such blank expressions he realized that they had reached the highest degree of culture. It meant so much to be understood, and they understood him!

"As a result of a week's deep study, and untiring poring over old manuscripts, I have found that the following problems of life remain unanswered. I open my hand, as it were, and fling them broadcast to my sex for solution. Let them come nobly forward and take this share of the world's work on their shoulders!

"Let them, I say, relieve our poor struggling mothers, wives, daughters and sisters of some of the burden of exploration of the unseen that now rests with them.

"First, I would ask: Which is preferable to sleep with—A baby, or one of those insects the commonplace call a bedbug, but which we, who are more temperamental, know as a crimson rambler?

"A woman will leave guests at the table, or her husband on his deathbed, to run to the window to see the fire engine go by, but would she run if in the midst of a marriage proposal?

"Does a wooden-legged man take his wooden leg to bed with him?

"Is there more reason for a man to be grateful to his wife for cooking a steak well than there is for her to be grateful because he bought it?

"If it is true that the spirits of our ancestors are constantly flying around us, are our women ancestors up in the air all the time because of indignation over the scraps wasted that would make quilts and rag carpets?

"Who is the more wasteful: The boy who cuts up pumpkins for Jack lanterns or the woman who makes them into very poor pies?"

He paused to give his next question impression and weight. It was a problem older than the world itself, and no one has ever solved it.

"On whose head," he asked—then he paused to scratch his head after the manner of those who are deep thinkers—"On whose head did a certain pair of insects travel on that famous journey in the ark?"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

BY YOUR ACTIONS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19 and in love with a man one year my senior. He loves me also. He has two sisters who are jealous of me and they are always telling him falsehoods about me, some of which he believes. What shall I do to prove that these things are not true? BILLIE G.

If you will conduct yourself in a way with which the most carping critic could find no fault, his sisters' charges will fall flat to the ground. Always remember that time has never weakened the force of that saying, "Actions speak louder than words."

If his love is worth the keeping he will have no doubt of your worth.

YOU DON'T LOVE HER.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 25 and dearly in love with a girl one year my junior who says she loves me. While at a party late one evening she fell asleep and started to walk in her sleep. I have heard since that she walks in her sleep quite often. Do you think we could live happily together, or should I give this girl up? WORRIED.

If you loved her, such a trivial failing would appeal to your sense of protection. Not for a moment would you consider giving her up.

Are you quite sure, young man, that you have no failings more undesirable than sleep walking? If this is the only fault she has she deserves a particularly worthy man.

Household Suggestions

A bright, glossy head of hair, easily kept in curl, may be obtained by dissolving in a pint of boiling water a small square of camphor and a tablespoonful of powdered borax. Into this liquid the brush must be dipped several times whenever the hair is brushed.

A soft piece of linen dipped in milk and bound round a rheumatic joint will often cure a most obstinate case of rheumatism. The linen should be covered with a piece of oiled silk and dipped again in the milk when dry.

The marks of matches struck on walls may be cleaned by applying the cut side of a lemon. Then rub the place with whiting, and lastly scrub with soapy water.

To prevent flies settling on pictures or windows, pour boiling water over an onion. When the water is cold use it for washing over the glass.

An invaluable cure for sore eyes is a little boracic powder dissolved in warm water. When cold bathe the eyes two or three times a day.

Soft hair bristles can be made stiff and firm by dipping them in a pennyworth of alum dissolved in sufficient hot water for washing the brush.

When frying fish, dip it in milk instead of egg before rolling in breadcrumbs. This is more economical and tastes better.

Tie a piece of lemon on a corn every night for five nights and it will generally cause it to drop out.

The Mistakes of Jennie

By HAL COFFMAN

Being a Series of Chapters in the Life of a Southern Girl in the Big City

"He is Mine!"

Chapter 15.

WHEN Jennie saw her former girl friend at the office next morning the girl scowled at her, and when she got a chance hissed in Jennie's ear: "I'll get even with you if it's the last thing in the world I ever do."

Poor little Jennie wanted to tell her that it was not her fault that the girl's fellow acted so the night before and wanted Jennie instead of the girl. But she would not listen to Jennie, only to swear at her and call her a little trouble maker.

Jennie could do nothing but think about it all day, and received a severe "call down" from the boss in which he said he had noticed for several days past that her mind had not been on her work, and that she would have to pay stricter attention or he would have to get some one that would.

Jennie noticed several times during the day that the tears were streaming down the girl's cheeks as she bent over her work. So after work Jennie waited outside and wanted to explain to the girl that it was not her fault the way the fellow acted.

The girl backed away from her and said: "You little fool, don't you know he is all I have in the world, and if I lose him I will have to 'walk the streets' for I can't and won't TRY to live on the money I get in the office. I was a fool in the first place to let him see you—for he is MINE! MINE! I tell you, and you—you little fool, let him alone!" Jennie tried to explain, but the girl flounced away cursing her.

How Strict Are You with Your Daughter?

—answer it, parents. Are you too strict, or aren't you strict enough? Either course is liable to be disastrous. Your daughter's welfare means as much to you as anything else in the world, yet do you know what to watch in bringing her up.

There are few men who know the problem as Judge Freschi does. For years a magistrate in the City of New York, his work has brought him into personal contact with thousands of girls and their stories. He has had an opportunity to analyze the causes of their failure. His name has become known throughout the country as their benefactor.

The angle from which he discusses the diverse elements that enter into the upbringing of the girl is a new one that you probably have never thought of. As a thoughtful mother or father you ought to read what he says in his article, "How Strict Are You with Your Daughter?" It appears in the

RAW DEAL FOR FANS AT PONCY PARK ON 4TH

It's Up to the Local Association to Honor Rain Checks for the Second Game.

By W. S. Farnsworth.

WE have been bunked so many times on fake fights that it doesn't sting when we are forced to separate ourselves from a perfectly good two-dollar bill nowadays to see a pair of alleged boxers stall through ten rounds.

But we had always considered that the good game of baseball would net us a full value return for our money. Yesterday, however, we were "held up" and our pocketbook picked with the skill of an expert light-fingered gent.

It came first in the morning at Poncy Park. The Crackers and Pelicans were scheduled to play to a finish. Instead the game was called at the end of the tenth inning with the score two-all. It was then five minutes after 1 o'clock.

Should Have Played It Out.

All the rest of the afternoon was open and the game should have been played out. But, of course, a tie game is always played off. Thereby the local association will net great profits with a double-header on the next trip of the Pelicans here.

We stood for that bit of "highway" without squealing.

But what a yell we did let out about 6 o'clock last evening.

The Crackers and Pelicans met again in the afternoon. They had battled four innings when it started raining.

Seven thousand fans waited the usual 30 minutes.

The umpires didn't come out on the field and declare themselves one way or the other.

Five thousand fans took it for granted that everything was off for the day. The elements had cheated them out of an opportunity to witness what would have probably proved a mighty interesting battle.

But they were consoled by the fact that tucked away in their coat pockets were rain checks. They would yet be given a run for their money.

Brooms Swept Off Water.

Exactly one hour and five minutes after the game had been called the umpires, players and ground keepers appeared on the field. Brooms swept the tons of water off the base lines and play was resumed.

The management didn't want to honor those rain checks. If one more inning could be played they were in hundreds of dollars. The Pels held a 3 to 1 lead. They never figured the Crackers would tie up the count in the fifth. But they did. Then the game went on for two more innings, and again it was called on account of darkness, and still a tie.

The fans were "stung."

And we would suggest that President Kavanaugh, for the good of the game, investigate.

Likewise, the local association, if they take our suggestion, will still honor those rain checks.

Obstinate Acne Quickly Yields

Fine Remedy That Clears Skin of Pimples on Cheeks, Temples, Sides of Nose and Chin.

Acne attacks the glandular structure of the skin, more particularly those tiny glands that secrete fat.

And it is here that S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, is most active in its influence.

There is one ingredient in S. S. S., the purpose of which it is to stimulate the cells in the tissues that thus select from the blood the nutriment that makes new skin and thus eliminates all irritants, acids and parasites that inflame the glands. There is a natural tendency of the fine network of blood vessels in the skin to throw off impurities, but where a persistent inflammatory process has invaded the skin, the natural repair work of the blood is interfered with. It requires the stimulating activity of S. S. S. to overcome such morbid conditions. If you have been troubled with acne, do not despair of a cure.

You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it. The great Swift Laboratory in Atlanta, Ga., prepares this famous blood purifier, and you should take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if your blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist freely, address the Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Company, 181 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

Rummy Tries to Trip Up Another Witness

Ritchie Makes Rivers Quit in Title Battle

When Mexican 'Dogged' Champion Turned Tide

By W. W. Naughton.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Willie Ritchie, the slim, serious-faced lightweight champion, defeated chubby, olive-skinned Joe Rivers, of the Southland, in eleven rounds, and by doing so retained the title coveted. The whole story in a nutshell is that it was the difference between a game lad and one who was not so game.

Before the bout started, Referee Graney and Timekeeper Harting had an earnest discussion as to which of the officials named should do the counting.

By agreement, the duty devolved upon Harting, but when the crucial moment arrived, Rivers relieved both of the responsibility. The Los Angelan actually counted himself out. He has earned the distinction of originating a new ring fashion, even if he missed in his attempt to bear the championship homeward.

This needs a little explanation, and it will be best to narrate the happenings in consequence and approach the terrible crisis gradually.

Just as long as Rivers held the upper hand he fought like a Turk. When brave Ritchie first stemmed the tide, and then turned it, the Los Angelan grew visibly discouraged.

Rivers Great at First.

It was all Rivers in the second, third and fourth rounds. Then Ritchie began to assert himself, and as the fight wore on Rivers boxed with little spirit.

Soon after the eleventh spasm of milling began, Rivers backed toward the ropes. Ritchie, who had been persistently the aggressor for several rounds, strode flat-footed after his man. A light left took Rivers above the belt line, and an equally light right brushed his lower face. Not that the blows lacked steam but the fact that Rivers was retreating and was not quite within range took the edge off the assaults.

As the clip of Ritchie's dexter glove grazed his chin, Rivers stood an instant with his back against the ring boundary. His eyes did not begin to dull like those of a man who is stung, but he lurched forward and fell to the floor. He did not fall in the inert manner of a man who has received a genuine knockdown smash.

Rivers Wanted No More.

When nine seconds had ticked away Rivers rose. Then the champion stepped close and banged his right against the Southerner's jaw. Even that punch did not appear to strike deep enough to produce full results, but Rivers was in the mood to take advantage of anything that would mean an end to the hostilities.

He dived slowly to the carpet, the palms of his hands and his knees supporting him for an instant. Then he flattened down on his stomach, with his head just raised sufficiently to keep his forehead and eyes in view.

In his eyes there was the look of a fellow who was not particularly jarred, but who had made up his mind that things had gone far enough. He assumed a look of distress which did not appeal to the writer as genuine. He began to gather his legs under him, and while doing so watched the timekeeper alertly. As each numeral denoting the passing of a second was shouted, Joe worked a little nearer to an upright position.

By the time the word "seven" came from Harting's lips, Joe was resting on one knee and the finger tips of one hand, and he was palpably checking the gong-minder's count. When at the last the sounds "eight, nine, out" rose above the turmoil at the ringside, Rivers straightened up with a look of relief. The ordeal was passed.

An Interesting Fight.

Even while Rivers performed like a craven at the finish, the bout was an extremely interesting one. It was replete with vicious spells of smashing, in which the men held each other even, and there were a sufficient number of changes of aspect to keep the crowd guessing as to what the ultimate result would be.

Even after Rivers slowed up and showed his heart was not in his work, the chance that the Southerner would land a heavy swing remained. He had kept Ritchie's head rocking in the earlier rounds, and many a Ritchie well-wisher twitched involuntarily as he noticed how dangerously close Rivers' whizzing blows went to reaching their mark later in the contest.

"DOYLE HITTING, GIANTS UNBEATABLE"—STALLINGS

NEW YORK, July 5.—"Larry Doyle has recovered his old form and that is why the Giants are now leading the National League," said George Stallings, manager of the Boston Braves, to-day. "Until recently Doyle was unable to hit with his usual vigor and the Giants were losing games. But they braced the moment Larry's bat began to meet the ball successfully. He is the king pin of the New York team, and now that he is himself McGraw's men can not be headed off.

WILLIAMS TO CLAIM TITLE; M'CAREY WARNS COULON

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July 5.—Promoter McCarey has wired Johnny Coulon that if he does not come through to-day with an agreement to defend his title Kid Williams will be declared the champion of the world and will become the possessor of the McCarey belt, emblematic of the title.

McCarey wants to see an active champion at the head of the bantam division, and if he puts Williams to the front as champion it is safe to state that the Baltimore boy will be busy from now on.

GAINESVILLE TEAM WINS.

GAINESVILLE, GA., July 5.—Gainesville won from Georgia Railway and Electric Company, of Atlanta, yesterday, 11 to 5. The feature of the game was the hard hitting of the Gainesville team.

Sports and Such

"TO SETTLE AN ARGUMENT" an earnest party wants to know if the educated or college ball player is more useful on the diamond than the boy who picked up his baseball around the sand lots.

This query may be deftly sidestepped by taking the position that it doesn't make any difference where a ball player learns to play baseball so long as he learns. But such dodges are unworthy. What the correspondent wants to know is whether education is likely to give a man the bulge on the uneducated player, and the answer is: Not so that you can notice it.

Education in any direction is useful only in the exact ratio of its application. Thus, it is easy to see that a profound knowledge of the effect of the political clubs on the life of the Athenian republic is not going to help a man decide in a tenth of a second where to throw the ball when he has nailed a line drive and three men are running in three different directions.

* * *

GIVEN A CERTAIN FAIR PROportion of intelligence and adeptness in baseball is a matter of practice. Men who think quickly on the ball field have been used to thinking quickly from infancy as a rule, and in sudden crises their minds from long habit work automatically and correctly. The time is usually too short for conscious thought.

* * *

IN THE MECHANICAL science of the game the same is true. The college professors began explaining the spit-ball a long time after Chesbro and his followers had stood the American League on its head. Chesbro didn't know any more about the physics of the spitball than he knew about the influence of the Medici on the Renaissance, but no college professor could tell him anything about throwing one. Radbourne was curving a baseball at a time when some scientists were holding that the feat was impossible.

John Ward, a real college man and a great ball player, invented the trick of left-handed batting to shorten the run to first base, and his trained mind probably had something to do with that, for it was constructive thought. On the other hand, Buck Ewing, ignorant as dirt, was even a greater baseball man than Ward and infinitely his superior as an executive.

Much of the "inside" baseball of to-day was fathered by "Ten-Thousand-Dollar" Kelly, who is considered one of the swiftest thinkers that ever played the game, yet Kelly had to have help with the menu card when he broke into the league.

Harry Dunlap, the "king of second basemen," was almost entirely without education, but his skill in working out the trapped ball trick is the chief reason that we now have the infield fly rule.

Dunlap was so ignorant that he had to make a mark to his contract in lieu of a signature, but so shrewd was his business mind that he got a $5,000 figure into the same contract, more than 95 per cent of the ball players to-day are drawing. And we know a man of rare mental attainments who once stole second with the bases full.

So there you are.

* * *

BUT COLLEGE MEN ARE made more welcome in the big leagues to-day than formerly. Not because of their thinking ability—go and watch two college teams play sometime and you will be purged of that superstition—but simply because they are turning out good ball players in scattered instances. And the college man has lost his propensity to play to the grandstand and sits humbly at the feet of a man who has no alma mater and takes his post-graduate course in the great game.

McGraw once had a college first baseman on trial. A foul was hit a mile over the grandstand, but the collegian tore after, cap gone and hair flying.

"Ah, well," said McGraw wearily, as the youth came back to his bag, "he gave it the old college try."

FORTUNE IS A JOCULAR dame. Loose-handed Garry Herrmann's team in Cincinnati played a whole game with one ball the other day, while Charlie Murphy's Cubs use up a couple of dozen a day.

Britton Now After Go for the Lightweight Title

Defeats Charley White in Handy Fashion

NEW ORLEANS, LA., July 5.—Jack Britton, the speedy Chicago lightweight, proved in his bout here yesterday with Charlie White, also of the Windy City, that he is a serious contender for Willie Ritchie's title. The clever Chicagoan defeated White in the eighteenth round of a scheduled twenty-round bout, when Referee Burke, acting on the orders of Sheriff Marero, stopped the go to save White from taking more punishment.

Although there were no knockdowns during the entire mill, Britton proved himself superior to his lighter foe. White was thoroughly beaten when Burke stopped the bout and held up Britton's glove. Sheriff Marero declared the bout ceased to be a boxing exhibition.

After the go Nate Lewis, manager of Charlie White, stated that his protege had injured his left hand during the third round and was forced to rely on his right member during the rest of the route. However, this should not take any of the glory that goes with victory from Britton.

Britton a Marvel.

He proved beyond a doubt that he is one of the greatest 133-pounders in the game to-day. His judge of distance is wonderful and he is also some puncher. In defeating White he did what very few other fighters have succeeded in accomplishing. Outside of five rounds Britton had a good shade in the other three-minute sessions. He was fighting fast at the finish and appeared fresh enough to go a number of more rounds.

Jack May Meet Ritchie.

Most of the fans who attended the mill yesterday are of the opinion that Britton would stand a great chance of defeating Ritchie if the pair ever meet. Promoter Tortorich stated that he would get in touch with the champion at once and try to close the mill.

White asked for another chance at Britton, but it is doubtful whether he will get the opportunity to get a return match with his conqueror for some time. Charlie is still a little too light to meet a boy of Britton's ability and hope to win. He weighed yesterday but 129 pounds, while Britton tipped the beam at 136.

FODDER FOR FANS

In the National League the Giants took two games from the Dodgers, the Phillies twice trounced the Braves yesterday, Cincinnati and Chicago broke even in a double-header, and St. Louis took one game from the Pirates, the other ending in a tie.

* * *

In the American League the Naps captured a brace of combats from the Tigers, the Athletics and Red Sox broke even, as did the Yankees and Senators and the Browns and White Sox.

* * *

Larry Doyle, the slugging second sacker of the Giants, seems to have permanently recovered fro mhis batting slump earlier in the season. He amassed a .400 batting average in two games yesterday.

* * *

The Phillies' two victories yesterday fractured their losing streak which had reached eight straight games.

* * *

"Game called to give players and spectators time to eat," was the unusual announcement made yesterday morning at the Red Sox-Athletics game and also at the Pirates-Cardinals combat. The latter contest had gone to eleven innings, the score standing 3 to 3 when the ruling was made, but at Boston it was in the seventh inning when the score stood 13 to 6 in favor of the Red Sox.

* * *

Tris Speaker, the Red Sox outfielder, in the second game yesterday got a perfect batting average, making four hits out of four tries.

* * *

Mordecai Brown, the three-fingered twirler who was cast off by the Cubs, pitched against his old teammates yesterday morning and added a shut-out to his list of victories.

* * *

Lajoie, the Naps' second sacker, waded deep in the second game yesterday, getting three doubles and a base on balls in four times at the bat.

* * *

Jackson, the leading batsman of the American League, further boosted his average yesterday by cracking out four hits in seven times up.

CRACKERS TAKE A FINAL JAB AT PELICANS TODAY

Games Friday Both Ties—Atlanta Team Playing Improved Ball, Even if They Don't Win.

By Percy H. Whiting.

THE concluding act of the amusing skit entitled "Pulverizing the Pelicans" will be staged this afternoon by Bill Smith's famous company of players at the Ponce DeLeon amphitheater. The curtain goes up at 3 p. m., and goes down again when the festivities are over, if they end promptly, for the Pelican team will beat it homeward to-night to play the usual Sunday game.

Of course the "pulverizing" part didn't happen to stick yesterday. In the morning game the Crackers had no luck at all with it and were fortunate to get a tie. In the afternoon the performance was duplicated. The Pelicans got away for a lead, but the Crackers managed to overtake them in time to get an even break.

Rain messed up the afternoon game. It came down in a fine deluge about the time the fifth inning was due to begin, and if the half-hour rule had been adhered to the affair would have been no game. But Frank and Smith waived the rule, the players hung around until the rain let up and the game was completed. The Crackers came from behind in the fifth, scored a brace of tallies, tied the score and kept it tied until darkness butted in.

* * *

WITHOUT wasting time trying to figure out how it happened, it's a fact anyhow that the Crackers are an improved ball club. Brenner had something on them in the morning, but they pulled some grand batting rallies. In the afternoon, when it appeared sure they were beaten, they came from the rear with a rush that gave them a satisfying tie. Of course, they were playing only the tail-enders, but these said tail-enders played plucky, determined, useful ball yesterday.

The local club is fielding and showing lots of "pep." Also, the pitchers are looking more like the real thing. Elliott Dent hurled a very presentable game in the morning. He flickered a couple of times, but made an impressive showing. And it was surely a hot morning for work. Brady held the Pels to six hits in the afternoon.

* * *

WHITEY ALPERMAN is still playing wonderful ball. "King" Brady said of him this spring that he was off on the best season of his career and it looks like a bullseye prediction. It appeared during spring practice that Alperman wasn't going to be quite fast enough on his feet to be a corking good second baseman this year. But somehow he's found his speed. And his fielding is phenomenal. He is the best pinch hitter of the team and possibly of the league. His work since he returned home from the last trip has been particularly spectacular.

CHICAGO CLUB WINNER OF JUNIOR A. A. UNION MEET

CHICAGO, July 5.—Chicago Athletic Association athletes ran away with point honors in the National Junior A. A. U. meet at Grant Park yesterday. The team captured first place in seven of the eighteen events, taking 42 points. Captain A. W. Kohler, of Michigan, was individual star, taking all the eleven points his school got. Lund, of the Irish-American Athletic Club, New York, broke the only record of the day, throwing the javelin 148 feet 8 inches, a new junior mark.

A feature of the day was the victory of James Ray, of the Illinois Athletic Club, over Strobine, an Olympic point winner in the five-mile run. Ray lay back until nearly the last lap, when he shot ahead and finished 30 yards in front of Strobine, who set the pace practically all the way. The time was 26:39.

HEINRICH SCHMIDT LOSES TO EX-FRENCH CHAMPION

LA BOULIE, FRANCE, July 5.—W. Heinrich Schmidt, of Worcester, Mass., was defeated yesterday in the third round of the tournament of the amateur golf championship of France by Peters Gannon, of Argentina. Gannon was amateur champion of France in 1910.

In the same round C. W. Inslee, of the Oneida Community Club, New York, beat Blandford, of England, by 5 up and 4 to play.

H. W. Stucklen, former champion of Massachusetts, was beaten by E. A. Lassen, the British amateur champion of 1909, by 4 up and 2 to play.

BOYD AND BRUGGERMAN WIN 200-MILE CONTEST

DENVER, July 5.—G. R. Boyd and Bert Bruggerman won in the professional class to-day in a 200-mile motorcycle race.

The time was 3:25:54 3-5. The best previous record for the distance was 4:05:54 2-5. In the amateur class C. Odcorn and Al Edenberg finished first in 3:32:00.

CARTER SEEMS SURE TO WIN S. A. TOURNEY

AUGUSTA, GA., July 5.—E. V. Carter, Jr., of Atlanta, seems sure to be the man who will face Nat Thornton, of Atlanta, in the challenge round of the South Atlantic tennis tournament. Friday afternoon Carter and Ramspeck managed to play two sets and ten games of the third, when darkness made a postponement necessary. The score stood one-all in sets and 5-5 in games, but Carter seemed to be having all the better of it. "Best three out of five sets" must be played to decide the winner.

The best tennis playing of the tournament was on tap when the crack Atlanta pair clashed. Ramspeck, warmed up by playing in the doubles with Orr against Waring and Waring, won the first four games and it looked as if he would win the championship. However, his form was not so good after that. Carter, who hadn't warmed up thoroughly when the first set ended, got better and better.

The playing was witnessed by the largest gallery that has been present during the tournament and each player was given the glad hand for his uncanny work with the racquet.

The first set was won by Ramspeck, 6-4; the second by Carter, 6-1.

Ramspeck and Orr were eliminated from the contest for the doubles championship when they were defeated by Waring and Waring, of South Carolina, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Garrett and Gary, of Augusta, who defeated the Erwin brothers 6-3 and 8-6, enter the finals with the Warings on Saturday afternoon.

Capers defeated Crocheron 6-1 and 6-4 in the consolation men's singles and will meet the winner of the White-Roseman match Saturday afternoon for the championship.

In the mixed doubles Miss Adger and Erwin defeated Mrs. Milam and Reynolds 7-5, 6-0.

Nat Thornton, champion last year of the S. A. L. tournament, is to meet the winner of the Ramspeck-Carter match probably Saturday afternoon.

ALBANY-SYLVESTER RACE IS WON BY E. HANCOCK

ALBANY, GA., July 5.—Elsie Hancock, of Worth County, won the Albany-Sylvester Marathon yesterday, covering the 20 miles in 2 hours 25 minutes and 22 seconds.

Joe Garrett, winer of last year's race, was second, 4 minutes behind Hancock. J. P. Fulghum, of Sylvester, was third, and H. A. Redding, of Albany, fourth.

DANNY GOODMAN STOPPED IN EIGHTH BY MURPHY

TERRE HAUTE, IND., July 5.—Jimmy Murphy knocked out Danny Goodman in the eighth round here last night.

Jimmy Travers, of Chicago, knocked out Willie Mitchell, of Philadelphia, in the fourth round.

WILDCAT FERNS WINNER IN FIGHT WITH DENNY

NEW ORLEANS, July 5.—Wildcat Ferns, of Kansas City, was awarded the decision over Young Denny, of this city, after a scheduled ten-round bout at Pelican Park.

PIRATES' GOOD HURLERS FAIL TO LIFT TEAM

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—For the first time in thirteen years, the Pittsburg club is in the second division as late as June 26. During Fred Clarke's regime in the camp of the Corsairs, the club never has finished worse than fourth. The low-water mark was reached in 1904. He has won four pennants and finished second or third on all other occasions. Consequently the Smoketown fans are unable to reconcile themselves to the present lowly position of the team, which in advance of the season was said to possess just one more pennant kick.

Second division clubs are as unusual in Pittsburg as first division entries are in St. Louis. The Pirate fans get just as excited over their team being in fifth place as local shouters would if either the Cards or Browns burrowed their way into the exclusive quartet at the top of the heap. For that reason there is trouble in the Pittsburg camp.

Just a Few Reasons.

Asked for a reason for the Pirates' fall-down, one of the players placed the blame on Jinx which has pursued the club with a deal of perseverance. Here are a few pertinent facts:

Wagner was on the shelf from April 10 until late in May.

Gibson broke his ankle at Robison Field on April 20 and hasn't played since.

Simon and Kelly stubbed their fingers and are unable to work.

A pick-up catcher, Coleman, from Davenport, Iowa, is doing all the work.

Butler sprained his ankle and missed 11 games.

Bobby Byrne had a long batting slump in May.

Wagner again is laid up with a lame ankle.

Artie Hofman deteriorated into a minor leaguer and was released.

"So there you are," said the analyst. "We have had good pitching," he continued. "O'Toole has developed into star. Adams has been going great. So have Camnitz and, at times, Hendrix. We have made our share of hits, as our batting average will prove, but we lacked that punch which is necessary to win. We recently lost six successive games by a margin of one run. We were losing, and couldn't get a break. One error a day would be injected at the wrong time, costing us defeat. It was pretty tough going."

JOHNNY DUNDEE EASY VICTOR IN DIXON BOUT

ALBUQUERQUE, N. MEX., July 5.—Johnny Dundee, of New York, got the decision over Tommy Dixon, of Kansas City, at the end of a ten-round fight here. Three knockdowns were scored by Dundee.

FRANK WHITNEY VICTOR IN GO WITH JOE THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS, July 5.—Frank Whitney, the "Fighting Carpenter," won by a big margin over Joe Thomas here in ten rounds.

JEANNETTE BEATS DEWEY.

SAVANNAH, GA., July 5.—Joe Jeannette, the negro heavyweight, was given the decision over Nat Dewey, of Cheyenne, Wyo., at the end of the ten-round bout here.

CHAVEZ STOPS DELL.

TRINIDAD, COLO., July 5.—Benny Chavez, of this city, knocked out Harry Dell, of San Francisco, in the eleventh round of their scheduled 20-round bout yesterday.

Cross Earns Right to Fight Ritchie for Title

Anderson Was Never in Running With Gothamite

By Paul Armstrong.

Author of the "Escape," "Deep Purple," "Alias Jimmy Valentine" and Other Celebrated Plays.

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—Leach Cross is the only contender for the lightweight championship.

Yesterday he took the rugged Anderson, strong as a bull, teeming with confidence. From the first stab at the body which opened the fray to the last sizzling right hook that flattened him for ten minutes—never mind the ten seconds—Anderson was second. In the first clinch he was blocked with his right chop at the short ribs. Perhaps the loss of his ace so early in the game took some of his confidence. It is a red, white and blue certainty that two body blows which Cross tore into Anderson in the seventh round took about all his steam. From that on he was kosher.

When they came stripped to the fray, there was little difference in their size—not near as much when seen in clothes. Anderson was coarser, bigger boned and looked more rugged, but Cross looked the class. He carried nothing that he could not use in the ring. He was fit, his flesh like velvet and his eyes bright as a hungry snake's.

He got lucky immediately. Anderson had copped the corner with his back to the sun. A coin was tossed. He moved and sat in the other corner, looking at the sun like an eagle. Leach went about things like a business man. He personally inspected Bud's bandages, ordered his clerks about like slaves and got the store ready for the slaughter. In the meantime Anderson smiled and let the others do their will.

Anderson Was Confident.

Cross looked pretty soft to him, evidently, for the smile of pity was still lurking on his lips when the New York boy came feinting in. He got the distance and went to the body with a left jab. He worked in again and drew a lead. They were tangled in a clinch the next second. Anderson let go a chop with the right to the body and found an elbow between him and the mark. He tried for the head and then dropped it for the short ribs. Nothing doing—years and years ago Cross learned how to block that one.

They sparred a moment. Anderson let go a left hook for the head and reached. Cross still kept working in with his straight left for the body. He was stalling for a chance to use the right. Anderson knew it—everybody knew it. Suddenly it came—short? Bud pulled out of reach with a smile. But there was a lot more Anderson had not figured on. Leach shifted as he let go the right and came winging with a left swing. Down went Anderson. He was up instantly, seemingly unhurt.

Knockdown No Accident.

Murmuring boobs who bet 10 to 7, yea, even as good as 2 to 1 on what should have been the short end at 6 to 5, laughed it away—an accident.

It was not. Not a bit like it.

It was planned and executed with deliberation.

When Hugh Jennings reads the war news and learns that there is a Retibouvki in existence he will mourn over the fact that the draft doesn't work in the Balkans.

Moreover, how does it happen that Mr. Jennings has allowed Mr. Booe to escape from the majors?

Joe Jeannette fought a draw with an unknown pugilist the other eve. Joe is laying the nucleus of another meal ticket. Joe probably does not know what a nucleus means, but he knows the whys and whereabouts of a meal ticket.

ANTHEMING FOR THE FOURTH.

Oh, say can you see, by the afternoon light,
Why so loudly we root while the blood still is streaming,
As we cash in our bets at the end of the fight,
With the losers still sore and the winner's still screaming.
The promoters are there with a flock of hot air,
And a man can't get by till he hands them the fare.
And the Star Spangled Banner in sorrow shall shrug
O'er the land of the pug and the home of the thug.

Lee Tannehill is now a member of Joe Cantillon's team. We thought Lee was pretty old, but not that old.

We understand that George Stovall will be retained as manager of the Browns. But we do not understand whether it will be as a reward or a punishment.

Following Mr. Borton's work with the Yanks, one is led to suspect that one J. Callahan had a hunch to get out from under.

If we had a horse and wanted to make a trade we'd be gol darned if we'd trade it to this same J. Callahan.

Arlie Latham has been released as an umpire, but some of Slik O'Loughlin's decisions are more comical than any of Arlie's comedian stunts.

Frank Chance protested in Philadelphia when a batted ball hit an umpire. Frank possibly figured that the ump should have been hit by the bat.

Reports from various ball yards indicate that his monicker has been hammered into "Alexander the Small."

Sam Felton of Harvard has declined to sign a contract to play with Cincinnati. And then there are persons who say that college graduates have no sense.

Not that baseball plutes are classed among the saints, but when a wrestling match is held in a baseball park it looks like desecration.

Speaking of twice-told tales, Hans Wagner, Larry Lajoie and Sarah Bernhardt are all in again.

CONTESTS AT MOTORDROME PUT OFF UNTIL TUESDAY

The races scheduled for the Motordrome last night were postponed on account of the slippery condition of the track, which resulted from the heavy rain of the afternoon. The events will be run off Tuesday night.

TWO PROSTRATED AT ANNISTON

ANNISTON, ALA., July 5.—Two heat prostrations occurred at the baseball game between the Anniston and Talladega teams here yesterday afternoon. Howard Beavers, of Talladega, and C. J. Houser, president of the City Bank and Trust Company, were the victims. Both were removed from the field by physicians and soon recovered.

VELIE CAR LEADS IN NEW MEXICO CONTEST

ALBUQUERQUE, N. MEX., July 5. Five out of nine cars finished at Santa Fe yesterday in the first half of the first automobile endurance race to be run in New Mexico.

Four cars were put out of commission at Albuquerque and Domingo, 36 miles away, because of engine trouble and injury to cars. A Velie car, driven by Jack Weighman, made the best time, doing the 62 miles in 2:02:09.

BURMAN DRIVES MILE IN 0:32 OVER ROAD COURSE

TACOMA, WASH., July 5.—Bob Burman, in a 200-horsepower car, was declared to-day to have driven a mile in a race on the Tacoma Speedway in 32 seconds. The race management announced that although Burman's time was not official, it was the fastest mile ever made on a road course.

VERBECK, IN FIAT, WINS PANAMA-PACIFIC EVENT

SACRAMENTO, CAL., July 5.—Verbeck, driving a Fiat, won the Panama-Pacific automobile race from Los Angeles to Sacramento yesterday. His time was 11 hours and 1 minute.

Verbeck left Los Angeles at 12:17 a. m. and covered the 443.6 miles without mishap.

JESSE WILLARD KNOCKS OUT WILLIAMS IN EIGHTH

RENO, NEV., July 5.—Jesse Willard, of Kansas City, knocked out Al Williams in the eighth round of a scheduled ten-round fight here last night.

LEANDER CREW WINNER.

HENLEY ON THAMES, ENGLAND, July 5.—The Leander Rowing Club eight to-day won the final heat in the race for the grand challenge cup, one of the feature events of the Henley regatta.

SMALL FIELD QUALIFIES IN CLUB TOURNEY

OWING to the heavy rain of Friday afternoon only 42 players qualified for the President's cup in the tournament that started July 4 over the course of the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Twenty players, virtually all those who started their qualifying round in the afternoon, were disqualified by the application of the fool "taking-shelter" rule.

This rule, designed for the drizzly English and Scotch climate and for professional play, is ludicrous when applied to amateur tournaments in the South, where storms of cyclonic violence are likely to sweep over the course any afternoon, making play impossible.

If the local club insists on enforcing that rule, players who can not start their qualifying play in the morning will do well to stay out, rather than to contribute to the prizes of those who are able to qualify in the mornings, when thunderstorms are not to be looked for.

The pairings for match play in the President's cup follows:

First Flight.

R. J. Jones v. James T. Smith, J. A. Ellen v. H. M. Ashe, R. G. Blanton v. James L. Dickey, R. T. Jones, Jr., v. Dr. Jackson, H. P. D. Cowee v. V. V. Tilson, T. B. Fay v. J. G. Darling, J. S. Faine v. J. O. Smith, W. H. Glenn v. J. C. Harris.

Second Flight.

D. B. Osborne v. Frank Meador, C. V. Rainwater v. G. N. Spring, Lowry Arnold v. J. K. McDonald, H. Block v. Milt Saul, J. D. Eby v. H. Davis, W. R. Tichenor v. R. E. Trippe, W. P. Hazlewood v. C. Donaldson, C. E. Rose v. T. L. Cooper.

Third Flight.

G. A. Nicholson v. George W. Walker, B. M. Blount v. winner Walker-Nicholson match; J. P. Webster v. T. L. Ingram, William Markham v. C. G. Lippold, J. D. Lightner v. J. V. Dunlap, R. I. Gresham v. winner Lightner-Dunlap match.

O'TOOLE OUT FOR YEAR; APPENDICITIS OPERATION

PITTSBURG, July 5.—Marty O'Toole, the Pirates' $22,500 pitcher, was operated on for appendicitis yesterday. He will be out of the game for the balance of the season.

MACK SIGNS BRICKLEY.

BOSTON, July 5.—Connie Mack has signed up Infielder George Brickley, a brother of Charlie Brickley, the star football player of Harvard. Mack has had his eye on Brickley for some time.

LARSON DIDN'T FIGHT.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., July 5.—Chuck Larson did not go on with Jimmy Anderson here and there was no fight in the city worth mentioning.

HARRY KNIGHT MEETS DEATH IN AUTO RACE

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 5.—"Well, just this once more and I'm done," said Harry Knight as he slipped under his steering wheel of his racing car yesterday and prepared to line up for the 200-mile race.

On the 110th lap Knight was thrown from his car as the result of a blown tire and was run over and killed by the car driven by Johnny Jenkins, his best friend. Milton Michaelis, his mechanician, was so seriously injured that he died soon after. Both men claimed Atlanta as their home, though both came originally from Indianapolis.

The death of Knight resulted from an accident similar to the one that gave him the title of "The Hero of the Indianapolis Track." On this occasion Knight drove his car into the concrete wall surrounding the track to avoid running over a man who had fallen from a car.

Knight had been officially declared out of the race, owing to time lost as a result of engine trouble, but despite the fact that he had no chance for the prizes he insisted on continuing the race. Almost in front of the grandstand a tire blew, the car swerved, went over, righted—throwing both men to the ground. Jenkins, who was chasing Knight, went over his body. Knight was terribly mangled and died instantly.

Ralph Mulford won the race, breaking the world's record for 200 miles on a dirt track. He won the distance in 3 hours 21 minutes and 48 seconds. The previous best time was made on the Columbus track by Spencer Wishart in 3 hours 28 minutes and 41-2 seconds.

Harry Endicott was second, with the time of 3 hours 45 minutes and 34 55-100 seconds. Ernest Reeder was third, with the time of 3 hours 47 minutes 53 65-100 seconds. Ralph DePalma finished fourth and just within the prize money, with the time of 4 hours 42 61-100 seconds. Prizes aggregated $5,000.

BROWN EARNS DECISION OVER JIMMY HOWARD

BUTTE, MONT., July 5.—George ("Knockout") Brown, of Chicago, was given the decision over Jimmy Howard, of the same place, after twelve rounds of fierce fighting.

THEFT NO WORSE THAN DODGING YOUR DEBTS

Line Between 'Mine' and 'Thine' Too Badly Blurred at Present, Says Forbes.

By B. C. FORBES.

There is a difference between "Mine" and "Thine." Many individuals, not a few companies and a few States and municipalities need to be reminded of this simple fact. Lax notions are prevalent on the subject.

* * *

A debt is a debt. All debts are debts of honor and should be honored. In these days of unthinking extravagance too many debts are light-heartedly incurred and not paid. The habit of getting into debt, like most bad habits, is alluring at first, but, also, like most bad habits undo their victims in the end.

* * *

The phrase falling "into debt" is apt. The descent is easy enough, but the climb back is usuallypainful.

* * *

This dissertation is inspired by the frequency of late with which corporations have failed to pay off obligations falling due. Instead of walking up to the counter and handing over one hundred cents on the dollar in hard cash, as was stipulated when the debt was incurred, borrowers have too frequently resorted to makeshifts, to temporizing, to compromising, such as offering, in lieu of cash, a new obligation for the old, with an intimation that if this be not accepted the lender will fare much worse.

* * *

The most brazen instance of such questionable conduct is afforded by Atchison, Kans. An issue of some $267,000 bonds of this city fell due Tuesday. Did the lenders promptly receive their money as they were entitled to? Oh, no. In Atchison, Kan., a debt is not a debt of honor, something that must be discharged. Just read what the Mayor has the effrontery to tell the holders, who, of course, have counted upon receiving their money—money which could be used at a high rate of interest to-day:

* * *

Atchison will have $266,950 4 per cent thirty-year bonds issued in 1883, due July 1. In the past, it seems to have been their judgment that a sinking fund was not necessary.

I have inherited a debt—I would not repudiate it, but will defer it by offering a renewal fully as good as the one you hold.

I realize the opportunity of money at present, but as a representative of the taxpayers I can not increase their obligation on account of a temporary stringency in the money market.

As new bond for the old one, with the same rate that has satisfied for thirty years, ought to be acceptable under the adverse circumstances.

I regret that it is the best I have to offer.

* * *

"Regrets" don't pay bill. The holders of Atchison's bonds care nothing about the Mayor's sympathies; they want and are absolutely entitled to receive their money, every penny of it, the moment it fell due.

Poultry, Pet and Live Stock

Raise Some Poultry In Your Back Yard. It Will Surely Pay

Eggs Alone Will More Than Pay for the Feed and Trouble.

Edited by JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL.

We need more poultry keepers in this country. Not necessarily the great poultry plants. They are all right in their places, but it is the keepers of from 10 to 100 hens that we have reference to now. The man in the city with a back lot, the villager who has a larger lot, and the average farmer. These are the ones who should be maintaining what hens their premises will hold without crowding, producing eggs of the finest quality, supplying first their family's demands, selling any extras at good prices. How many places are void of chickens in this country, both in town and country? There are many farmers who do not keep hens enough to supply their own tables, but run to town and buy salt pork instead. Some keep no chickens at all, claiming that poultry does not pay or that they have not the time to bother with it. We need the interest in poultry keeping awakened. A good part of the year eggs are beyond reach of the average person who wants to supply his family. Poultry meat is the same way. Why

Medium-Sized Acreage Tracts

ALL of us know the profit that is usually made from acreage.

It is almost a conceded fact that if a person owns good acreage, he has a sure profit in it sooner or later. When we think of acreage propositions, we think of lots of land, and naturally lots of money, because the usual acreage transaction involves a great deal of money. The demand for good, close-in acreage for subdivision purposes is increasing every day. A trip to the outskirts of the city in any direction you choose to take will convince you of this fact. We are going to offer a tract of about 100 acres, between Decatur and East Lake, which we have cut up into five, ten and fifteen acre tracts. The price and terms on these tracts make it possible for almost anybody to handle them.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Two New Residences Will Total $40,000

Pegram and Kirk Plan Announced. Mr. Little Confirms Report. Small Sales in West End.

John D. Little confirmed Saturday the report that he would build a fine residence on Pace's Ferry Road opposite the property of John W. Grant, who will also build soon.

Mr. Little's plans are not definite, but for some time he has had landscape architects working on his eighteen acres, and W. T. Downing, the well-known architect, has been planning with them to determine the character of house that should be erected.

The town house of Mr. Little at the southwest corner of Peachtree and Eighth Streets will not be sold. It is one of the handsomest houses of colonial type in the city. The new house, said Mr. Little, will not be a duplicate of the other.

There are other signs of activity in this section of North Fulton. Sam Pegram has plans for a $15,000 brick veneer dwelling of two stories at the southeast corner of Muscogee Avenue and Rivers Drive. He will build at once.

E. R. Kirk is building a $25,000 residence on Andrews Avenue, 400 feet north of Peachtree. This is two stories and of brick veneer and stone construction.

Satisfactory progress is being made on the residences of Hunt Chipley, on Wesley Avenue, and Robert Zanner and Clark McMichael, on Peachtree Road, near Wesley Avenue.

West End Park Sales.

The West End Park Company has announced the sale, through Collins Mrothers &Davies, of a two-story residence on Stokes Avenue, near Ontario Avenue, West End Park, to a client of the above agency, for $5,500, and to H. S. Norris from the park company direct of the one-story dwelling at the southwest corner of the same thoroughfares, for $3,500.

Loan Rate Reduction.

Borrowers of money on real estate report a reduction in the last few weeks on loan rates. While money was held at 8 per cent recently, a good deal of it can now be had at 7 per cent. In fact, a local real estate agency is advertising $10,000 at 7 per cent on improved property, and much larger amounts than this can be obtained. Bankers foresaw a temporary stringency and prepared for it, and now they are in a position to extend accommodations in judicious measure.

For Early Whitehall Regrade.

Whitehall regrading will be considered again at the next meeting of Council. Councilman George H. Boynton introduced a resolution providing that work start as soon as Comptroller Goldsmith certifies that the property owners have paid in their share of expense, but objection on the part of Councilman Claude L. Ashley and others caused postponement. It has already been agreed to start the job October 15.

The pith of the objection was that other work more important would suffer if Whitehall were regraded now. The Butler Street sewer work was given as an illustration.

It is estimated that the first installment will be $11,287.97, and property owners have agreed to pay the city the difference between the appropriation of $3,500 and the estimated cost.

To Sell 24 Residence Lots.

J. T. Kimbrough & Co. have placed on private sale 24 building lots on the East Lake, South Decatur, South Kirkwood, Soldiers' Home and Stone Mountain car lines, all the lots within a block of city schools, on terms of $25 down and $10 a month at 7 per cent. The price of the lots is $750. Improvements consist of tile sidewalks, sewgrage and water.

Interest in Car Line Change.

The proposal to change the route of the river car line, as presented to Council, has created a great deal of interest on the part of people residing on the west side of the city. General Manager Glenn wants to open the street at Marietta and Forsyth Streets and let incoming river cars run up Walton Street from the Marietta Street intersection. Cars will turn to the right at Forsyth and to the right again at Marietta. Passengers will enter at Marietta and Forsyth Streets, rather than at Broad. The Streets Committee of Council approved the plan.

Start Soon on West Peachtree.

The West Peachtree Improvement Club announced Saturday that all will be in readiness soon for work on West Peachtree retaining walls, the same having been authorized by the Streets Committee of the City Council. The wall work will be started as soon as contracts can be let for materials, the city to do the construction. When the walls are completed the county will do the regrading, and this will be not later than September 15, according to Shelby Smith, of the County Commission.

Prominent in the West Peachtree movement have been Judge Spencer R. Atkinson, Judge E. W. Born, Frank P. Rice, Dr. William Owens, James T. Wright and others.

Frank West in Winnipeg.

H. Frank West, of the A. J. & H. F. West real estate agency, has reached Winnipeg, Manitoba, on an extensive Western trip, and writes back that elaborate preparations are being made to entertain the sixth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges this month. Mr. West states that special attention will be given the Atlanta delegation.

A Queer Idea of Senatorial Courtesy--Particularly as Applied to Women.

Senator W. W. Stark, who represents, after a fashion, the Thirty-third District in the Senate of Georgia, has a queer idea of senatorial courtesy—particularly as applied to women.

He protested, and successfully, we are sorry to say, against permitting an hour or two's use of the Senate chamber of Georgia to a handful of earnest, sincere women of Georgia, because he—the Senator—does not "believe in" woman's suffrage!

These women did not propose to interfere with the proceedings of the Senate, and Senator Stark did not base his objections to their meeting upon that ground. He objected because he does not "believe in" woman's suffrage.

The Senator, no doubt, would have agreed, fast enough, for the Farmers' Union, or the State Democratic Executive Committee, or some other male organization, to meet in the Senate chamber, but he could not bring his weighty statesmanship to the point of permitting a few of the WOMEN of Georgia to tread within the sacred precincts of that hallowed spot set aside for Starks!

Senator Stark has much to learn. He will find that he can not slap the women of Georgia in the face—even a few of them—and "get away with it!"

The cause of woman's suffrage will stand or fall NOT by the standards set up by the Starks.

It will stand or fall in Georgia, according to the COMMON SENSE AND FAIRMINDEDNESS OF THE PEOPLE!

The Georgian understands that the women turned down by the Senate will apply to the House for permission to hold their two-nights' meetings there.

We believe they will be granted the small and perfectly legitimate favor they ask. The House will hardly repeat the remarkable and silly performance of the Senate, engineered by Senator Stark, and carried through, we really believe, before the Senate had opportunity to think of what a foolish and unwarranted thing it was being made a party to.

Teach Atlanta Mothers How to Bring Up Babies

Members of the Atlanta Mothers' Congress, who have undertaken to provide the poor babies of the city with milk during the hot summer months, have inaugurated a campaign of instruction.

Much of the milk is delivered by the members of the congress in person, and instruction on the care of babies can easily and readily be given.

The following rules for the care of the child have been indorsed by leading physicians throughout the country, and should be told and emphasized to every mother to whom deliveries of milk are made:

If you are worried about your baby, have a doctor see it, A GOOD DOCTOR. If you can not get a good doctor, go to the Department of Health, get the advice of a doctor at a free dispensary.

Don't wean the baby when the weather is very hot, if you can possibly help it, or when it is ill. The change in food upsets the digestion and may be fatal at a critical moment.

Feed your baby regularly.

Sacrifice everything to this important point. The child's stomach gets used to food at certain times, and digests it easily at those times, if the food is regular.

Every two hours in the daytime, and every four hours at night will do for feeding for a healthy child.

Don't dress your baby warmly, HAVE NOTHING TIGHT AROUND ITS NECK OR STOMACH, KEEP EVERYTHING LOOSE AND AIRY EVERYWHERE.

Have your windows open day and night. Keep the baby off the dirty floor, where it gets germs on its little hands and puts them in its mouth.

Remember that in the really hot weather the thinnest possible clothing is all that a child needs. One little, thin, cotton shirt, low-necked and without sleeves, will do while the baby is indoors.

Avoid strong draughts. But better a draught than not enough air.

Above all, give your baby enough to drink. If the baby cries in hot weather, give it two or three spoonfuls of water, cool, BUT NOT ICED.

Boil the water that you give your baby. And keep the boiled water tightly corked in a clean bottle so that germs won't get into it.

Feed it with a spoon dipped in hot water, A CLEAN SPOON.

Dangerous signs of disease that carry off children suddenly are vomiting and diarrhea. Notify your doctor, or the Health Department, AT ONCE.

Let your baby REST. KEEP THE FLIES AWAY FROM IT. THEY BRING DISEASE.

A young baby, washed clean in the morning, with cool but not cold water, put on its back almost naked on a bed with a mosquito netting thrown over the top of the bed (but not touching the child)—such a baby, fed regularly, with water to drink when it wants it, will be happy in hot weather.

Don't let the children tease the baby. Don't let grownup people play with it and tire it. Remember that it is GROWING UP AND DOING NOTHING ELSE. Don't try to awaken its intelligence or make it laugh.

If you stir up the little brain you disturb the little stomach.

Remember, WHENEVER A BABY CRIES SOMETHING IS WRONG.

Don't get cross; FIND OUT WHAT'S THE MATTER; that's your business. It may be a tight string, a bandage drawn too closely around the legs, need of a change of linen, or it may be thirst.

Don't feed the baby every time it cries. Give it water. Remember that.

It's Tough on Poor Father

"Gee, It's Salt."

MEANING AND SCOPE OF THE NEW CURRENCY BILL

Editor The Georgian:

I wish to thank you for the explanation which you have made regarding the meaning and scope of the new currency bill which is before the Congress for action. I have read your several editorials on the subject and desire to say that I not only concur in your opinion regarding the measure, but feel sure the lucid explanation which you have made will serve to give your readers a better and more comprehensive understanding of the bill than it has been possible to gather from the brief references made to it in the general press. I think it an excellent idea to put the facts about proposed important legislation within reach of your readers that they may have an opportunity of weighing them and ascertaining whether or not this legislation is what they want.

Cost of Neglecting Our Merchant Marine

More Than $1,000,000 Is Paid Each Day to Foreigners Building and Operating Foreign Ships to Carry the Trade of Our Country, He Says.

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES

IT is estimated that for the fiscal year ending June 30 the exports of the United States will reach the enormous figure of $2,400,000,000, and that the balance of trade in our favor will approximate $675,000,000—a sum never before equaled upon the balance sheet of nations.

These figures are a tribute to our national greatness and prosperity. They carry also a serious reflection upon our national enterprise and a distinct humiliation to our national pride.

For of all this mighty commerce overseas less than 8 per cent was transported under the American flag. This magnificent balance of our trade is almost cut in two by the enormous sums we pay to foreign ships to carry our own products to the markets of the world.

More than $750,000,000 of foreign capital is to-day invested in foreign yards building ships to transport the commerce we furnish.

MORE THAN $1,000,000 IS PAID EACH DAY TO FOREIGNERS BUILDING AND OPERATING FOREIGN SHIPS TO CARRY THE TRADE OF OUR COUNTRY. OF THIS $1,000,000 DAILY PAID 90 PER CENT GOES TO FOREIGN LABOR.

This $1,000,000 each day should be given to the American laborer and kept at home to do American business instead of going abroad to feed foreign labor and to enrich our commercial rivals.

No Delivery Wagons.

This is but a single phase of the injury we suffer from having no ships of our own. Our stupendous foreign trade is made in the face of the greatest obstacles. It would easily double within the next five years if we had our own ships—our own delivery wagons—to carry our trade to our customers.

The rate paid by every passenger and by every pound of freight going from any port of this country to any foreign port is fixed in advance by agreement among foreign steamship combines and conferences. If an American shipper desires to send a bushel of wheat or a bale of cotton or of any other product to Europe, he must pay the rate fixed in advance by the trust in Hamburg, Germany. If an American merchant wishes to send a barrel of flour or of cement or a piece of machinery or any freight to South America, he must wait until the foreign steamship combine in this country can ascertain from Europe what price must be charged for carrying it.

Not an American vessel runs from this country directly to South America beyond the Equator.

EVERY AMERICAN CITIZEN THAT CROSSES THE ATLANTIC OR GOES TO SOUTH AMERICA MUST PAY THE RATE THAT THE FOREIGN STEAMSHIP COMBINE FIXES IN ADVANCE IN JENA, GERMANY. OF COURSE, THESE RATES ARE ALWAYS THE HIGHEST THAT THE TRADE WILL BEAR.

Six per cent net is considered a reasonable profit upon investment of great sums of capital in this country. Yet the Hamburg-American Steamship Company admits a net profit of more than 10 per cent upon a capitalization of approximately $100,000,000. In fact the real net earning of the Hamburg company is said to be nearer to 20 per cent annually. This tremendous profit is chiefly levied upon American commerce.

Opposition to America.

Not only are all freight and passenger rates from this country to foreign ports fixed by agreement by these foreign combines, but these conferences constantly discriminate against American commerce in all competitive markets.

Take South America for illustration. The American shipper pays exactly the same rate from this country to South America on slow and antiquated ships running at irregular intervals that his European rival pays on fast modern vessels running on regular schedule. Now and then the European shipper by secret arrangement secures an advantage. Not only this, but the European shipper is given an immense advantage in promptness of delivery.

Under no circumstances will these foreign steamship combines permit an American shipper to enjoy advantage to the American shipper.

To illustrate: Brazil prefers our flour. She gave us an advantage of 30 per cent over the other nations of the world in flour. Immediately these foreign shipping pools increased the freight rate on flour to just that extent. Again we were given an advantage of 20 per cent on cement. Immediately the freight rates between this country and South America on cement were increased over Europe until the European manufacturer controlled the market.

Deadly Tactics.

These are the deadly tactics followed by these foreign steamship lines in respect to every competitive article in which our country's products might have an equal chance with foreign products. And all the while we go on pouring our millions of servile tribute into the laps of the foreigners that rob us.

Every fact stated above as to the attitude of these foreign steamship combines has been testified to under oath by the agents and representatives of these combines in the recent Congressional investigation.

These combines state boldly that they monopolize our trade, that they fix our freight and passenger rates by agreement and that these rates are made in Europe. They further acknowledge that they are violating our anti-trust laws and that they intend to continue to violate them!

Yet because they are foreign companies we submit to this extortion and defiance of our laws with an indifference and complacency that is cowardly and shameful.

In the pending tariff bill an attempt was made to at least express our right to favor our own ships. It is simply inconceivable that an American Congress should have been deterred by any sort of influence from doing this and doing more!

The French in Mexico

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

IT was just 50 years ago—June 10, 1863—that the soldiers of Napoleon the Third, under the command of General Forey, with drums a-beating and bunting a-fluttering, marched into Mexico, to establish upon these Western shores a great Latin kingdom.

Almost immediately after the entry of the French, and doubtless by pre-arranged program, there was a meeting of the "Assembly of Notables," at which it was decided, with all due solemnity, that there should be established a monarchy with the City of Mexico as its capital and with Maximilian, Archduke of Austria, as Emperor.

On June 12, 1864, Maximilian and his wife entered the city of the Aztecs as Emperor and Empress, and three years later, June 19, 1867, the farce ended with the crack of the rifles which sent Maximilian to his death and his consort, broken-hearted, back to Europe.

The "Assembly of Notables" did not amount to as much as its members thought it did; and the Old World was given its first practical demonstration of the power of the "Monroe Doctrine;" a doctrine which, it would seem, Napoleon the Third had not looked upon with becoming seriousness.

To this day the Maximilian episode remains a puzzle to the student of history.

Some say that the idea of a great imperial Latin State side by side with the great English-speaking communities furnished the fascination upon Napoleon's mind which was responsible for the business; while others hold that the pursuit of the bubble was a necessity imposed upon the Emperor by the exigencies of his situation.

ROW PRECEDED SHOOTING

MRS. BALLUE SOBS FORTH STORY

Severe Questioning Draws Out Explanation Which Lanford Believes—Couple Out on Bond.

That the mysterious shooting of Captain A. C. Thompson, County Warden, by Mrs. Lucy Ballue, his companion in the Owls' Club Friday night, was not accidental, but followed a quarrel between the two is the sensational testimony which it is understood will be given by one or more witnesses who have been supenaed to appear at the trial of Captain Thompson and Mrs. Ballue on the charge of disorderly conduct.

This is in direct contradiction of Mrs. Ballue's story which she sobbingly related to Chief of Detectives Lanford Saturday, and in which she repeatedly declared that the shooting was accidental. She asserted that she and Captain Thompson were drinking together in the reception room of the Owls' Club Friday night and that Captain Thompson's revolver was discharged while she was examining it.

Two Said To Have Quarreled.

One witness, however, is said to have overheard the conversation between Captain Thompson and Mrs. Ballue which preceded the shooting. He will testify, it is understood, that the two were quarreling over some matter and that the woman snatched the weapon from its holster in Captain Thompson's hip pocket and that the shot followed.

Mrs. Ballue's confession came after an examination that lasted virtually all morning. When she was first taken into the detectives' office and questioned, she stuck to her original story that she knew nothing of the shooting.

She was taken back to her cell, and half an hour later returned to Chief Lanford's office. After an hour's questioning she admitted her part in the affair.

Tells How It Happened.

"Captain Thompson called me up by telephone yesterday," she said, "and made an appointment for 4 o'clock. I met him at Whitehall and Hunter streets, and after we had stood on the corner and talked for a few moments we went up to the Owls Club. We had two or three drinks there, and then went out for a stroll, and came back after an hour or so.

"When we came into the club again we went into the reception room and had another drink. I drank a glass of wine. After we drank, I was playing the piano and we were talking, when Captain Thompson remarked that it was hot, and took off his coat. He came over and laid the coat and his belt containing his pistol on top of the piano. I was still thumping the piano and he went and sat down on my left. I kept on playing and suddenly I glanced up and saw the revolver.

"I don't know what made me do it, but I was seized with a desire to look at the weapon. So I drew it out of the holster, and began turning it over and over in my hand.

"Suddenly, I don't know how, the revolver exploded with a loud report, and I heard Captain Thompson cry that he was shot. I was frightened almost to death, and I didn't know what to do. I dropped the gun on the floor and covered my face with my hands. I was so scared I didn't know what to do, and I don't remember how I got out of the room."

Lanford Believes Her Story.

Chief Lanford announced he believes the woman's story, and his opinion is concurred in by detectives who have been investigating the case. They declare the nature of the wound is such that it could not have been made save by a weapon that was pointing downward.

After Mrs. Ballue's confession Chief

Griffin Gasps as Folk Get Glimpse Of Slashed Skirt

GRIFFIN, July 5.—Griffin got its first view of the famous slashed skirt here yesterday when Miss Eleanor McHarris, of Macon, appeared at the Spalding County Fair Grounds during the Fourth of July festivities. She came near breaking up the celebration. Everybody left the barbecued meats, interest was lost in the horse races and nobody cared whether a game of ball was played or not. Miss McHarris made a brave effort to overcome the gaze of the crowd, but failed.

The skirt was not of the ultra-fashionable cut, but it was more than Griffin was accustomed to. So Griffin took a good look.

Frisco's End Is Seen In New Receivership

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—That a receiver had been appointed for the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico division of the Frisco System was learned here to-day.

Frank Andrews, of Houston, Texas, was appointed, according to a telegram received to-day by W. F. Evans, Frisco general counsel. The line involved is from Houston to Brownsville, Texas.

Railway officials see in this move the beginning of the disintegration of the Frisco System.

CRACKSMAN SHOT IN GUN BATTLE

Kirkwood Residents Capture Postoffice Robber, Who Blows Safe but Gets No Money.

With late developments indicating that Walter Turpin, the yeggman who cracked the safe of the Kirkwood postoffice Friday night, is a "modern Fagin," who takes young boys under his wing and schools them in the ways of crime, the authorities of DeKalb County and Atlanta are scouring the country to capture two boys said to have served as lookouts while Turpin fired the charges of nitroglycerine.

When the posse of citizens and officers, hastily formed after the first explosion in the postoffice, reached the scene, two boys, both wearing knee trousers, leaped from the shadows of the building and ran down the street. The officers yelled at them to halt, but the boys paid no attention and the posse opened fire. Both escaped, apparently without injury.

Turpin, in statements made to the authorities Saturday morning, denied that the boys were with him. He was alone in the attempt to rob the postoffice, he said. Sheriff McCurdy and Chief of Detectives Lanford, however, are of the opinion that Turpin, like the famous Dickens character, conducted a regular school of crime in Atlanta, and that the two boys were children who had come under his influence and whom he was using in his operations.

Turpin Tells Story.

Turpin Saturday morning told the complete story of the attempt to rob the safe and of the events that led up to it.

"I was released from the Federal penitentiary, where I had been sent from Richmond, Va., for counterfeiting, February 22," he said. "I have been working at the Shoe Renury on Auburn Avenue, and before that I worked at several places as a tailor. I planned the robbery of the Kirkwood postoffice about a week ago when I went out and looked over the ground and made my plans.

"Last night I left Atlanta about 11 o'clock and got out to Kirkwood about 11:30. Earlier in the afternoon I got some whisky on Courtland Street near Decatur, and was very drunk when I got to Kirkwood. I entered the building through a window, and in moving around, trying to get my bearings, I fell down the elevator shaft, a distance of about 10 feet. I wrenched my back, and it was five minutes before I could move. Then I managed to get hold of the cables of the elevator and drew it down into the basement, and then rode up to the first floor.

Injury Prevented Escape.

"I found the safe, all right, and prepared to blow it. I had four ounces of nitro-glycerine, which I had made by soaking two sticks of dynamite in water and then squeezing them. I made my soap cup and fired the nitro-glycerine. The first shot raised the handle and combination of the safe. Twenty minutes later I fired the second shot, and it raised—other things. Then people began shooting at me, and I was so busy I hardly know what happened. I had hurt my back so badly in falling down the elevator shaft, however, that I could not have gotten away even had I not been shot."

Turpin says his real name is Walter Turpin, and that he is 36 years old. His home, he says, is in Chester, Pa.

The twisted front door of hte safe and the mass of splinters littering the little grocery store at Kirkwood gives an idea of the dramatic scene.

"I was sleeping on my front porch," said L. J. Cassells, owner of the store and one of the attacking party, "when I was awakened shortly after mid-

COBB FEARS PERMANENT INJURY

Baseball's Greatest Star Was Badly Spiked Several Days Ago.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, July 5.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the greatest ball player of this or any other age, is a bench warmer for the Detroit Tigers. Injury has laid him low.

Just how long Ty will be out of the game neither he nor anyone else knows. The Georgia peach is wearing a careworn expression for he fears his injury may be permanent.

Ty's hurt is a bad spike wound on the right knee. His knee is swollen to twice its normal size and he can hardly walk. In the Detroit-Chicago series recently Ty was spiked by Weaver. He stuck in the line-up day after day until the Fourth, simply on his nerve alone.

Cobb went home to Detroit last night when the team left for St. Louis. He will have an X-ray picture taken to find out if the top of the kneecap is cracked.

Profit Made in Fake Consumption 'Cures' $10,000,000 a Year

NEW YORK, July 5.—Within the last five years, no less than 500 fraudulent "cures" for consumption have been tried on thousands of victims in the United States. Exploiters of these nostrums have reaped a clear profit of not less than $50,000,000. This is an estimate made by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The association estimates that not less than $20,000,000 is invested in the business of manufacturing and exploiting fake cures for tuberculosis, and that the annual income is $15,000,000. About one-third of this amount is spent for advertising, leavig a profit of $10,000,00 a year, which the association says is "blood money" taken from ignorant consumptives.

The association declares no specific cure for tuberculosis has been discovered, except the well-tried hygienic-dietetic method of fresh air, rest and good food.

Receiver Reports In Buggy Case

In the suit of the Valentine Company against the Columbus Buggy Company, Daniel McLaren, ancillary receiver for the Columbus Buggy Company, Saturday submitted his report to Judge Newman in the United States District Court.

Judge Newman ordered that F. J. Long, James D. Palmer and Benedict Kobak, who were appointed as appraisers to make inventory and appraisements of the assets of the Columbus Buggy Company, should be paid $25 each for services rendered.

It was ordered that Ancillary Receiver McLaren be discharged and that the sureties on his official bond be released.

Balloons Still Are Racing to Northeast

KANSAS CITY, July 5.—Reports from balloons in elimination race for the Gordon Bennett cup are reaching here today. The balloon Kansas City Post this morning passed over Joliet, Ill. One passed over Madison, Wiss., another was reported at Valparaiso, Ind., one at Benton Harbor, Mich., and one at Galena, Ill.

No accidents have been reported.

Breezes Unable to Overcome Mounting Mercury; 90 Again

Despite heavy clouds that obscured the sun and westerly winds that tempered the heat, Saturday afternoon was warm and sultry. The thermometer climbed above 90 and for some time evinced no disposition to descend.

The morning and even the early afternoon gave promise of a whole day with a maximum temperature below 85, which would have been about the coolest Saturday of the summer in Atlanta. The mercury mark was only 82 at noon and just 84 at 1 o'clock. But in less than half an hour a heat wave struck the city, shoving the mercury up to 87. It continued to rise and by 2 o'clock had reached 91, having made a gain of 7 degrees in an hour.

At 5 and 6 o'clock Saturday morning the temperature was 71. It was 72 at 7 o'clock, 74 at 8 o'clock and 76 at 9 and 10 o'clock, when the 2-degree an hour gain started again. It was 78 at 11 o'clock, 82 at noon, 84 at 1 o'clock and 91 at 2 o'clock.

"Fair Saturday night and Sunday" is the official forecast.

Charley Gates, With $40,000,000 Wad, Will Burn Up Broadway

NEW YORK, July 5.—"Say, kid, take it from me, there is nothing in that story about my father-in-law having beaten me up for buying wine in Minneapolis," said Charley G. Gates, son of the late John W. Gates, when he arrived in town on a special train from the West.

"Can that chatter about my black eye, too, I'm over 21 and if you know of any one who can whip me, trot him out."

According to reports which had preceded Mr. Gates, he is not on good terms with members of his wife's family and has come to town with a roll of about $40,000,000 to burn up Broadway.

Gates said he gave away $1,000,000 in tips last year, and is out to set a new high record in 1913.

R. F. D. Men Urge State Road Body

At the annual meeting of the Rural Mail Carriers' Association of Georgia a resolution was adopted urging the creation of a state highway commission and that all rural routes be made public roads. The carriers, who are among the most active advocates of better roads, were unanimous.

They were given an address of welcome by Mayor Woodward. Fred L. White, of the letter carriers, responded. Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick delivered an address and a number of other talks were made.

At the second session of the meeting Saturday Governor John M. Slaton and W. D. Brown, editor of The R. F. D. News, of Washington, made talks. The meeting was prepared to adjourn after the election of officers.

Tennis Title Won by E. V. Carter, Atlanta

AUGUSTA, July 5.—After two of the snappiest tennis sets ever played in this city, Edward V. Carter, Jr., of Atlanta, Saturday morning defeated Carl M. Ramspeck, also of Atlanta, 6-4, 6-1, thereby winning the men's championship for singles of the South Atlantic States.

The match was begun Friday afternoon. Ramspeck won the first set, 6-4. Carter took the second set, 6-1. The third set, 5-5, was called on account of darkness. It was played off this morning.

Strike Vote on 54 Roads Is Rumored

NEW YORK, July 5.—The vote of the trainmen on 54 Eastern railroads on the strike question is almost unanimous in favor of a walk-out, according to a report persistent to-day at the offices of the Order of Railway Conductors and Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. Owing to delay in canvassing the ballots, the vote was not made public as expected.

The men demanded a wage increase and the question has been hanging fire for a year.

PELS KNOCK MUSSER OFF HILL

Atlanta and New Orleans Clash in Final Battle of Series at Poncy Park.

PONCE DE LEON BALL PARK, July 5.—The Crackers and Pels clashed this afternoon in the final game of their series. Frank's men pounded out two runs in the opening inning, but the locals came back with five in their half.

The Pels also scored in the second and routed Musser in the third session. Price relieved Paul on the slab.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

Kyle singled to center. McDowell walked, forcing Kyle to second. Hendryx out, Alperman to Agler. Both runners advanced. Bagby fanned. Spencer was safe when Agler fumbled his grounder. Kyle scored on the error. Williams singled to center and McDowell scored. Williams tried to reach second on the hit and was out, Welchonce to Bisland. TWO HITS, TWO RUNS.

GIRL CONFESSES SHOOTING AT OWLS CLUB

Declares Wounding of County Warden Was Accident—Both Drinking, She Says.

Lanford reduced her bond from $1,000 to $100 and changed the charge to disorderly conduct. It was signed by her brother-in-law, W. H. Holbrook, with whom she resides at 18 Lynch Street.

After the woman's release Captain Thompson was brought to headquarters from Grady Hospital in a cab, and a charge of disorderly conduct was docketed against him. His bond was fixed at $100. It also was signed by Holbrook. After he was released Mrs. Ballue entered the cab and drove away with Captain Thompson.

Members of Mrs. Ballue's family said Saturday morning that Captain Thompson has been paying her attentions for about a year. She is the wife of John Ballue, a structural iron worker, from whom she has been separated for three years. She has no children. For the past year she has been employed at Nunnally's Overall Factory at Marietta and Alexander Streets.

Arrested on Street.

Detectives Doyal and Waggoner, attached to headquarters, arrested Mrs. Ballue at Garnett and Pryor Streets after what they asserted was an attempt to spirit her away by L. C. Raoul, secretary of the Owls' Club. The detectives, unable to find either the girl or Mr. Raoul at the clubrooms, started a search. They learned the girl and the secretary had slipped quietly down the back stairs half an hour after the shooting of Captain Thompson. They hurried down Pryor Street, hoping to intercept them before the girl was taken away.

As they neared Pryor and Garnett Streets the detectives saw a man and a woman lurking in the shadows of the building. Not knowing whether they were Mrs. Ballue and Mr. Raoul or strangers, Doyal and Waggoner secreted themselves across the street and awaited developments. In a few minutes a cab drove rapidly up to the curbing and the door was flung open. A voice from within the cab commanded the man and woman to enter, and to "hurry up."

As Raoul and Mrs. Ballue rushed across the sidewalk and started to enter the cab the detectives recognized them and hurried across the street. They accosted the two.

Woman Denies Shooting.

According to stories told to Night Chief Jett by Detective Waggoner, both Raoul and the woman were nervous when confronted by the officers. Raoul did not speak, they said, after they grasped his arm, but the woman twisted away from the detective who held her and faced them. She demanded:

"What do you want me for? I didn't shoot him!"

The woman then tried to break away and enter the waiting cab, but the officers ordered her to go to headquarters with them. Raoul, too, went along.

The detectives claim the utterance of the woman when they placed her under arrest was significant. Waggoner, whom she asked why she was wanted, and whom she told she had not shot Captain Thompson, declared that he had not mentioned the shooting or told her why she was wanted. He and his partner, Doyal, had simply told them to wait a moment, catching them just as they started to hurry into the cab.

At headquarters Friday night the woman answered the questions put to her by Chief Jett readily and composedly, and emphatically denied that she had shot Captain Thompson. Her version of the affair, as told to Chief Jett, is as follows:

Other Women in Room.

She has known Captain Thompson for some time, she declared, and last night had gone with him to the club. They entered the reception parlors of the club and took a seat at one of the tables. She claims she had drank but one glass of wine before the shooting. Her escort, it is said, was drinking highballs and rickeys, but was not intoxicated. Two other men, seated at a table near the doorway, were the only other occupants of the room.

After they had sat at the table for perhaps an hour, the woman says, Captain Thompson asked her to play the piano. She played popular music for some moments, she said, and did not hear a shot which, she said, came as she was playing ragtime in a particularly loud key. She said she supposed the sound of the piano drowned the shot. As she softened the tones of the piano she heard the sound of a fall, and turned around on the piano stool.

Then she heard Captain Thompson cry that he was shot and saw him fall to the floor. His revolver lay on the floor beside him. The two women near the door were standing by their table, and gazing in horror at the figure of the captain on the floor.

Mrs. Ballus declared she was dazed by the sight and covered her face with her hands, and when she looked up again the women were gone. A number of men, she declared, were standing over Captain Thompson, and he was telling them he had accidentally shot himself.

Thompson had been accidentally shot and had been taken to his home in a cab. The groans of the wounded man as he lay on a table in a nearby room gave them away, however, and it was discovered that he was still in the club. He was then taken to Grady Hospital for medical attention. Prior to his removal to the hospital, Captain Thompson was questioned by Detectives Vickery and Hamby, who answered the first call to the club, but he refused to talk, and would give no explanation of the shooting.

The officers accompanied the ambulance to the hospital, and continued their quizzing of the wounded man. They claim he remained sullen and defiant, but after being placed on the operating table admitted he had been shot by the girl during a quarrel. Hamby and Vickery visited the hospital again about midnight and again questioned Captain Thompson. This time, they assert, he declared the shooting was an accident, and that Mrs. Ballue had nothing to do with it.

The report that when they entered the club Captain Thompson registered himself and his companion as "Mr. and Mrs. Thompson," is denied by Secretary Raoul. Mrs. Ballue declared her escort did the registering and she did not know what names he wrote. She said she supposed, however, that he had written her real name.

Harry Latham, a court deputy, told the police that when he met Thompson and Mrs. Ballue in the club rooms, Thompson had introduced her to him as Mrs. Thompson, at which Mrs. Ballue became angry and exclaimed that she was not his wife—that she wasn't anyone's wife.

Captain Thompson has been in charge of one of the convict camps of Fulton County for several years. He is 30 years old and unmarried, and lives on the Howell Mill Road.

U. S. SETS SMOKE AND DRINK RECORD

Consumes 64,500,000 Barrels of Beer, 143,300,000 Gallons of Liquor, 7,707,000,000 Cigars.

WASHINGTON, July 5. — The American people drank more whisky and beer, smoked more cigars and cigarettes, and chewed more tobacco during the fiscal year 1913 than in any other yearly period of the nation's history, according to estimates based to-day upon the record-breaking internal revenue receipts of the Federal Government for twelve months ended June 30.

The drinkers consumed 143,300,000 gallons of whisky and brandy and 64,500,000 barrels of beer.

Smokers puffed 7,707,000,000 cigars and 14,012,000,000 cigarettes. Patrons of the pipe smoked 403,200,000 pounds of tobacco and chewers of snuff disposed of 33,2000,000 pounds.

Despite the high record, the number of saloons of the country decreased by 18,000 during the year, the retail liquor dealers numbering about 450,000.

Assessments on drinking and smoking luxuries, on corporations and on oleomargarine and other articles taxed by the Federal Government brought into the United States treasury $344,426,884, the greatest amount in history, exceeding the previous high record of 1911 by $21,900,000.

250,000 KAFFIRS REBEL IN AFRICA

Reign of Terror Grips Johannesburg — Many Striking Gold Miners Slain by Police.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA, July 5.—Many striking gold miners in the Rand district were shot down to-day by British soldiers in the worst fighting which has occurred in the great gold tie-up of South Africa.

This city is held at the mercy of turbulent mobs, armed with rifles and dynamite. One thousand strikers, including many Kaffirs, paraded through the streets shooting up the city and causing a reign of terror.

In one clash with the police 65 men were shot. Half that number were killed. A state of anarchy exists in many districts. A mob of 1,000 rushed the railway station at Braamfontein Park and burned it.

Fighting was in progress here all night and it was estimated that at least $50,000 damage was done. Efforts of the police to control the situation was futile.

A state of revolution has been brought about by the action of the blacks in joining the strikers. At least 250,000 Kaffirs are taking part in the deeds of violence.

The unions are trying to induce members of other trades to join the walk-out, thus completely tying up all the industrial interests in South Africa.

SAFE ROBBER IS CAUGHT AFTER GUN FIGHT

Reformed Burglar Wounded in Battle With Kirkwood Citizens. Wrecked Postoffice Vault.

night by an explosion I thought was a big firecracker. I rolled over to sleep again.

"It must have been about 30 minutes later when I was awakened by a loud explosion that must have been heard for miles around. My wife and I jumped out of bed and she turned on the light. I turned it off and took my stand to watch at the window, which is only a hundred feet or more from the store.

Robber Seen at Work.

"Pretty soon I saw a faint light in the store and almost immediately I jerked on my trousers and ran to get Mr. Fleming next door. My wife telephoned Marshal Phillips, who joined us, with City Clerk Ray about the time we left the Fleming front gate.

"Stealthily we circled around the little store, finally grouping ourselves at the elevator door, which we found open. A moment later we were inside, and about this time the yeggman saw us. Brandishing his pistol, he dodged behind a barrel.

"From there he retreated only after Marshal Phillips dislodged him with a pistol ball which missed its mark. Turpin then dodged us and made for the elevator room, only to find this blocked by City Clerk Ray.

"It was then that Turpin made his last desperate stand while almost in the center of the little store. There he blazed away with his pistol at every flash of the searchlight which Marshall Phillips flashed to search out his man in the darkness.

Turpin Return Shot for Shot.

"The searching rays of the little light were swallowed up soon in the brilliant flashes of fire which belched from our four guns. Turpin returning every shot, in dodging this way and that. Finally, making a charge forward, Phillips grabbed Turpin's gun and bore Turpin to the floor.

Even then, however, Turpin fought like a madman and finally was subdued only by the combined efforts of all four men forming the attacking party. As he sank to the floor, apparently desperately wounded, he murmured his name, Johnson.

"It is a wonder we were not all killed, for the fusillade of shots was terrific. It took all of us to handle the yeggman," said one of the posse.

Turpin's Roommate Held.

A peculiar angle to the Turpin case developed Saturday morning when detectives took in custody 14-year-old Thomas Eberhart, a newsboy, whose home is in Dunwoody, Ga., and who has been Turpin's roommate for the past three weeks. Since last Tuesday Turpin and the boy have been rooming at the home of Stephen Marine, 226 1-2 Marietta Street. Prior to that time they had occupied a room together at the Union Rescue Mission at 230 Marietta Street.

The theory of the police is that Turpin was trying to gain control of the boy so he could use him in his criminal operations. The boy insists that he never has accompanied Turpin out at night.

"Last night I came in about 8 o'clock," the boy told the police. "Turpin was drunk, and lying down on the bed. In about half an hour Turpin got up and said he was going out and didn't know when he would be back. He left his keys and everything he had in his pockets on the dresser.

Had Burglar's Kit.

"Turpin was always nice to me and said some day he would show me how to make some easy money. Ofter he has asked me if I didn't want to make a whole lot of money, but he didn't tell me how. He went out a great deal at night, and always kept a lot of hammers and things in the drawers of his dresser. He esaid he was a shoemaker and that they were his tools."

"Turpin came to the Mission after he was released from the Federal prison four months ago," said R. E. Boutwell, connected with the Rescue Mission, "and was given a room. Three weeks ago we put the boy in with him. Last Monday Turpin left and said he was going to live at 226 1-2 Marietta Street."

Mrs. Carrie A. Moffatt Dies at Age of Eighty

Mrs. Carrie A. Moffatt, one of the oldest and best-loved residents of Atlanta, died Friday morning at 3 o'clock at the residence of her granddaughter, Mrs. Mark J. McCord.

Mrs. Moffatt was born at Columbus, Ga., 80 years ago. She was educated at Mobile, Ala., and after her marriage to the late Frederick Moffatt moved to Atlanta. She was a devout Christian woman, and was one of the first members of the old Wesley Chapel, now the First Methodist Church of Atlanta.

Mrs. Moffatt is survived by two grand-daughters, Mrs. Henry Inman, and Mrs. Mark McCord, and a grandson, Ben Lee Crew.

Funeral announcements will be made later.

APPLICATION FOR LEE'S RELEASE DELAYED

Watchman's Lawyer Says He Will Await Return of Dorsey Before Filing Habeas Corpus.

On account of the absence from the city of Prosecuting Attorney Hugh M. Dorsey, Bernard L. Chappell, attorney for Newt Lee, announced Saturday that he would not file a writ of habeas corpus until Monday. He claims in the petition for the release of the negro that Lee is being held unlawfully and without any charge against him.

Solicitor Dorsey left for his country place at Valdosta, Ga., Saturday morning. He will return Monday.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey will ask the courts to hold the negro as a material witness for the State, or may charge him with being an accessory. He was determined Friday to take no chances on so important a witness getting out of his control, as he feared the negro might get beyond the jurisdiction of the courts if given his liberty.

Attorney Chappell and Solicitor Dorsey had agreed, when the negro was committed to jail, to keep him there until the trial. Chappell notified Dorsey Wednesday that he wished to withdraw from the agreement and get his client freed.

Chief Discounts Conley Rumor.

The announcement Friday that the defense had secured an important and damaging affidavit that connected the State's star witness, Jim Conley, more directly with the crime created a sensation in the ranks of the prosecution.

Chief of Detectives Newport A. Lanford announced that every movement of the negro on the day of the crime had been "checked up," and that it was a matter of impossibility to find anything more damaging against him than his admission that he helped dispose of the body at the request of Frank.

In commenting on the affidavit secured at the office of Joseph H. Leavitt Thursday the attorney said that it would be almost impossible for the prosecution to break down any statement that was made in the affidavit when the witness was placed on the stand.

Calls Evidence Vital.

He said the witness was a citizen of high standing and would be one of the most important for the defense of Frank.

Attorney Leavitt said that this particular affidavit was one of more than 50 that had been recently secured that dealt almost exclusively with the movements of the negro on the day of the murder. While he would not comment at any length, he intimated that the defense had been able to establish conclusively the exact time Conley entered and left the factory.

He also intimated that affidavits had been secured that would show what time Monteen Stover entered and left the factory and be able to prove she left before Mary Phagan's car reached the vicinity of the pencil factory.

BANK HEAD GETS 6 1-2-YEAR TERM

Judge Brand Sentences J. W. Griffin at Athens—Motion Entered for New Trial.

ATHENS, July 5.—Judge C. H. Brand to-day sentenced J. W. Griffin to 6 1-2 years in the penitentiary for "wrecking" the defunct Athens Trust and Banking Company.

Griffin was found guilty at midnight Thursday, after a long drawn out trial. Some months ago he pleaded guilty, without a trial, and was then sentenced to five years, but a new trial was secured and his new sentence carries eighteen months more imprisonment.

Immediately following the sentence, a motion was made by the defense for a new trial on the grounds that Judge Brand illegally interferred and communicated with the jury before the verdict was given out. This was overruled by Judge Brand and will be decided by the higher court.

Jane Addams Not in Chicago Mayor Race

NEW YORK, July 5.—"It would be unwise for women of Illinois to accept or seek public office until they have had a few years' experience as voters. At this time I think I should refuse to be a candidate for any public office," said Jane Addams, of Chicago, who returned yesterday from Europe and was told her friends were booming her for Mayor of her home town.

Writ Out for Arrest Of Sylvia Pankhurst

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, July 5.—A warrant was issued to-day for the arrest of Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, daughter of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, president of the Women's Social and Political Union. Miss Pankhurst has been a leader of the militant suffragettes since she was 17 years old. She has served several terms in jail. She vowed she would never marry until women got the vote.

The warrant charges Miss Pankhurst with inciting others to riot.

Bishop Says Prayer Book Holds Nonsense

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, July 5.—In the Upper House of Convocation for the Province of Canterbury, the Bishop of Ely to-day moved for the appointment of a committee to revise the Prayer Book and Psalter. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

The Bishop of Ely said that all were aware that the Prayer Book and Psalter contained "passages which, to speak truth, are not far removed from being nonsense."

COL. PAXON AIDS AND PRAISES MILK FUND

Colonel Frederic J. Paxon, chief of staff for Governor Slaton and one of Atlanta's foremost business men, Saturday morning forwarded his personal check for $25 to the Atlanta Mothers' Congress, through The Georgian, to aid in the campaign to supply the poor babies of the city with milk during the hot months.

In a letter which accompanied his check, Colonel Paxon congratulated the members of the congress on their zeal and hard work in behalf of the poor babies, and characterized the movement as an advanced step along the line of civic development. His letter, in full, follows:

"The Atlanta Georgian, City:

"Gentlemen—I congratulate you and that most heartily, on your efforts to furnish pure milk to the babies of Atlanta whose mothers can not afford to buy same. A movement such as this must necessarily be recognized as an advanced step along the line of future good citizenship and civic development; for how can we have forceful men and women unless the foundation is laid in earliest childhood?

"Inclosed find my check for $25 toward this worthy cause. I am, Yours,

"FREDERIC J. PAXON."

BULGARS CHARGE GREEK GUNS; 5,000 LOSS

Terrific Fight Raging Near Salonika—Another of Ferdinand's Armies Routed.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ATHENS, July 5.—Nearly a quarter of a million soldiers are engaged in a terrific battle which is being fought between Greece and Bulgarian armies north of Salonika.

The battle line extends for 100 miles, and from dispatches received to-day from the Greek military headquarters in Salonika it is estimated that more than 5,000 men had been killed or wounded.

There were 80,000 men in the Greek army, which is opposing a force over 100,000 strong. The Greeks have the advantage in location, occupying a lofty plateau. The Bulgarians charged repeatedly up the shell-swept slopes, exhibiting the utmost gallantry in their efforts to capture the Greek artillery.

Bulgars Charge Up Slope.

More than 150 heavy guns were ranged along the eminence and the most desperate fighting centered around these batteries. With brilliant courage the Bulgarians swept up the sides of the plateau, which was soon covered with dead and wounded troops.

Dispatches from the front said that the result would be decisive. King Constantine directed the operations of the Greek army from headquarters in Salonika, and it was believed here that he would take the field in person if he saw the day were going against his army.

A second Bulgarian army of 80,000 men is reported to be moving to join the troops engaged in battle. The second Bulgar army was at a point south of Tachynos Lake to-day, advancing on a forced march for the battlefield.

Greek Victory Reported.

A Greek victory is reported from Kilkis, where the Bulgarians were crushed by the heavy ordnance of the Hellenes. The Bulgars were unable to bring their artillery into action, owing to the fact that the infantry had outdistanced the artillery in the march upon the Greek forces.

The Bulgarian soldiers were dispersed, leaving behind sixty heavy guns, which the Greeks captured.

Servians Rout Bulgars After Five-Day Battle.

BELGRADE, July 5.—After a battle lasting five days, the Bulgarian army, which has been engaged with a Servian force near Uskub, began a retreat to-day, leaving 1,000 prisoners of war and 300 heavy guns in the hands of the Serbs.

Official announcement of a Servian victory following receipt of dispatches from the front caused intense rejoicing here.

Albanians Resist Advance of Serbs.

DURAZZA, ALBANIA, July 5.—The flame of war is sweeping Albania. Servians and Albanians are engaged in hostilities near Matia, and heavy losses have been inflicted on both sides.

The Servians are massing an army near here, evidently intending to reoccupy the port.

Bulgars Claim Big Victory Over Servians.

SOFIA, July 5.—The Bulgarian Government claims a decisive victory over the Servian first division east of Uskub. Announcement was made to-day by Premies Gueschoff that the Servians had been driven back with enormous losses.

According to dispatches from Bulgarian army headquarters, the Servians are retreating, following a long battle in the Vardar Valley.

Divorce and Death Sequel to Tag Day

SILVER LAKE, WIS., July 5.—An effort was being made to-day to determine whether the drowning of Leroy D. James in Silver Lake was an accident or a suicide. James obtained a divorce recently after he found his wife and G. Frank Greene, of New York, in a hotel room together. Mrs. James had met Greene when she was helping with a "tag day" campaign for charity.

The James divorce case was the cause of the city authorities abolishing tag days.

Crazed by Heat, Man Kills Wife and Self

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., July 5.—Crazed by the intense heat, Ben Strong, a well-to-do planter of Meridianville, near this place, emptied the contents of a double-barreled shotgun into his wife's breast, killing her instantly, and calmly reloading the weapon literally blew his head from his body.

Neighbors were attracted to the scene by the screams of the two small children of the couple.

SALVATION ARMY MAID'S 'PUNCH' DOES FOR ROWDY WHO GRABS HER

She delights crowd by struggle with man.

Seized as she leaves saloon, severely pummels loafer.

Miss Pearl McKay Is Heroine of Attack While Selling "War Cry" in Saloon.

One might not believe pretty Miss Pearl McKay, a sixteen-year-old Salvation Army lassie, has punch enough in her right arm to put out a big, strong man, but there is one man in Atlanta who knows that she has. Generally Miss McKay's uniform entitles her to every protection, but, to quote her own words, "sometimes a rowdy who doesn't know any better tries to get fresh."

Miss McKay sells the "War Cry" in offices, stores, on the streets, and also in near-beer saloons, and only one time during her six months' experience in Atlanta has she had an unpleasant experience.

On this occasion Miss McKay was selling the "War Cry" in a near-beer saloon. Starting out the door she was seized from behind by a intoxicated man. Quickly turning, Miss McKay struck the man in the face. This angered him, and instead of loosening his hold, he tightened it.

With a desperate effort she tore from his grasp and struck her assailant with all her might. He staggered back, but the little Salvation Army lassie's ire was up, and she went after the man, raining blow after blow on his face and head.

The onlookers applauded the plucky little maid as she continued her punishment.

Evidently realizing that there was to be no let-up in the sturdy blows of the angered girl, the man turned and fled, followed by the delighted jeers of the spectators.

Atlanta-Carolina Highway Proposed

ELLIJAY, July 5.—A monster barbecue and good roads meeting was held at Ellijay yesterday in the interest of an automobile highway from Atlanta to Murphy, N. C. Enthusiastic speeches were made by Dr. E. W. Watkins, of Ellijay; C. J. Haden, of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Professor Harwood, of the Chamber of Commerce of Murphy, and others.

A practical working scheme suggested is for Gilmer, Pickens and Fannin Counties to pool their convicts and go to work on the road at an early date, raising money by popular subscription for machinery.

Saneness of Fourth Delights Atlantans

Atlanta advocates of a sane Fourth of July are rejoicing Saturday over the saneness of the celebration here. But four accidents were reported, and none of them are regarded as serious. Despite the crowds the ambulance drivers had a quiet day, and throughout it was the most sane Fourth which Atlanta has ever experienced.

Chief of Police Beavers, to prevent disorder, doubled the force throughout the daylight hours. The officers, however, found everything serene.

Senate Is Likely to Ignore Insult to Flag

WASHINGTON, July 5.—No official notice will be taken by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee of the trampling unedr foot of the American flag in Winnipeg, Manitoba, yesterday, if Senator Bacon, chairman of the committee, has his way. He said to-day:

"I regard this incident as the ebullition of an excited crowd. I am sure no national recognition of the act will be made."

"It seems to have been a very foolish affair," said Representative Broussard, of Louisiana, member of the Foregin Affairs Committee of the House.

FULTON CONVICT CHIEF DEFIES JACKSON

Donaldson Ready to Invoke Law in Fight Against Long Religious Services in Camps.

Declaring Marion Jackson and his associates on the prison reform commission know absolutely nothing of convicts and religion, and that he would resort to law before he would submit to their conducting long services at the convict camps in Fulton County, Superintendent T. J. Donaldson declined to compromise Saturday morning at a meeting of the Public Works Committee of the County Board.

Jackson said he had the people of the county behind him in his fight to obtain the proper kind of religious services for the convicts, and that while he would rather get what he was after without a fight, he would conduct a campaign against the limit of one-hour services each Sunday if necessary. The Public Works committee agreed to hold a meeting later and definitely settle the matter.

When Marion Jackson asked the County Board to place the religious services at the convict camps under the direction of Philip Weltner, of the prison reform board, and let him designate lecturers and preachers for a morning and afternoon service, Captain Donaldson for the first time voiced a protest.

Disputing Jackson's assertion that the convicts welcomed the Sunday services, Captain Donaldson said they had voiced their protest at giving up the entire day of rest to services conducted from early Sunday morning until late Sunday afternoon.

He said he had no objection to the men attending one service each Sunday, which should not last more than one hour, provided he should have the selection of the ministers and the number to go to each camp.

The rather heated meeting terminated when Captain Donaldson announced he would consult the law before he would go into any agreement on the subject.

PRESIDENT HIDES AT SUMMER CAPITAL

Wilson Forgets All State Business, Ordering Secret Service Men to Bar Reporters.

WINDSOR, VT., July 5.—President Wilson arrived here at 10:50 a. m. today to spend the summer. He was met by Mrs. Wilson and two of his daughters, and the party motored to the Summer White House at Cornish, N. H., three miles away.

Upon arrival at the Summer White House the President gave orders that no newspaper correspondents or photographers were to be admitted on any pretext. The President said he was in Cornish to take a rest, and that he would transact no official business nor even consider matters which would tend to disturb his brief vacation.

If anything of public moment occurs, the President said he would return to Washington, but he would not discuss it here. The squad of six secret service men is on hand to see that the President's orders are carried out to the letter.

According to present plans, the President will remain until Tuesday afternoon, but he may stay longer if developments in Washington are not of such a nature as to necessitate his presence.

Negro's Head Turns Shot; Woman Injured

KANSAS CITY, MO., July 5.—A bullet fired by a negro at George Wren, another negro, struck the latter on the forehead, glanced from his skull and wounded Mrs. Edward T. Smith, 60, who was passing in a street car.

Wren was slightly injured. The shoter escaped.

ARMY OF PAST IN RETREAT FROM GETTYSBURG

Thousands of Blue and Gray Clad Veterans Leave Great Bivouac of Peace.

GETTYSBURG, PA., July 5.—Gettysburg again resounds to the tread of marching men. Thousands of blue and gray clad veterans, the great army of the past that has encamped for six days on the hilltops around the town, are passing through it on their way to railroad stations and homeward. By to-night the great battlefield will be as deserted as it was 50 years ago and the jubilee celebration a thing of the past.

Beginning early this morning, special trains outward bound—north, east, south and west—pulled out of Gettysburg at quarter-hour intervals. It is estimated that 20,000 veterans abandoned camp during the forenoon. The remaining 10,000 will leave during the afternoon. About 25,000 of the old soldiers started for home yesterday.

The 50,000 tents making up the city of canvas will not be removed before next week. On Monday Major Normoyle will set his regulars at work striking the tents and getting them ready for shipment.

Governor Tener and other notables left during the morning, but General Liggett, commander of the encampment, will not leave with his staff until Thursday.

The second special train, which left at 6:30 o'clock this morning, carried Confederate veterans to Maryland, Virginia, the Carolinas and points southward.

Atlantans' Brother Seeks Big U. S. Job

RICHMOND, July 5.—Colonel William H. Chapman, revenue agent in charge of the Virginia District, is being strongly urged for the position of chief revenue agent, with headquarters in Washington. This place is now held by G. W. Trowbridge, a Republican.

Colonel Chapman is a close friend of Colonel William H. Osborn, of Greensboro, N. C., the new Commissioner of Internal Revenue. He is a brother of Miss Kate Chapman and Edmund G. Chapman, of 62 Fraser Street, Atlanta.

Two Drowned Near Savannah on Fourth

SAVANNAH, July 5.—The Fourth took a toll of two deaths near Savannah yesterday. George Egan, 17 years old, of Barrigan, was drowned in a creek near Herb River, Thunderbolt, when he got over his depth while in bathing. But for the timely arrival of a boatman, Dewey Holmes would also have been drowned.

James O. Knight, aged 22, fell from a boat on the Ogeechee River and was drowned before other people in the boat could go to his rescue. He was attending a Sunday school class picnic.

Giant Fish Wounds Boy, 16, in Swimming

MARSHFIELD, WIS., July 5.—The following fish story is vouched for by Dr. Harold Jensen, of Park Falls, Wis., who dressed the wounds of the boy.

A giant muskallonge attacked Frank Haasl, Jr., 16 years old, when he was in bathing and tried to drag him beneath the surface. When the boy was rescued he was covered with scratches and bites, and it was necessary for his swimming companions to carry him in an automobile to the nearest physician.

Effective Home Remedy For Lung Trouble

It is a serious matter when the lungs are affected. A trip away or to a sanatorium is not only expensive, but it involves separation from home and friends. Some are benefited, but few can safely return. Eckman's Alterative is effective for home treatment. For example:

231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J.

"Gentlemen: In the fall of 1905 I contracted a very severe cold, which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise sputum, and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alterative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed by regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected, and I cannot praise Eckman's Alterative too highly. I have recommended it with excellent results."

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' drugs stores, and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

The New Bazar

edited for the woman who must keep au courant with the smart world

THE best from each field of art, all the resources of brush, pen and camera, beautiful paper, perfect typography, render it a magazine individual in its expression and absorbing in its interest to the woman of fashion. In its new form, Harper's Bazar is the edition de luxe of women's magazines.

Sparkling with the news of both Europe and America, the Bazar makes instant appeal to the woman of the smart world.

If she would read of social functions, races or sports here or abroad, she finds in it the most noteworthy. If she would discover the latest creations from the ateliers of Paris, she sees here their most recent expression.

The skill of the couturière, of the artist, of the decorator is displayed in its myriad possibilities. Vexatious questions as to the maintenance of her establishment and any like phases which come within the realm of the woman whose time is much in demand, are discussed by those well versed in these matters.

In the July number, Elsie de Wolfe gives a description and views of her own home; Mrs. August Belmont has an illustrated article concerning the artistic development of the child; the lovely Countess of Warwick reveals the secret of the retention of personal charm.

There are photographs of the newer landscape effects secured in the Rockefeller gardens, and reproductions of the most famous paintings of Mrs. Astor, Mrs. George Gould and other renowned beauties of our times.

What is more, there are the costumes which are most à la mode from the stage, models from Lady Duff Gordon, sketches by Tighe, showing the newest cunning of the French houses and an important message from Henri Bendel as to Fall hats.

For diversion, a new set of Elinor Glyn's piquant letters and another powerful story from the pen of Robert W. Chambers with illustrations by Charles Dana Gibson.

COUNCIL ORDERS W. PEACHTREE MATERIAL

Retaining Walls Will Be Put in Soon, Ready for Grading to Begin September 15.

Council's Streets Committee did not celebrate the Glorious Fourth as a holiday, but spent the afternoon considering plans of improvement.

A resolution by Councilman Jesse Wood was adopted, authorizing Chief of Construction R. M. Clayton to purchase material for the retaining walls on West Peachtree Street. Chairman Shelby Smith, of the County Commission, had sent a communication to the committee announcing the county would be ready to begin the regrading of West Peachtree Street by September 15.

An effort was made to put the county convicts to work at once on the Whitehall Street regrading project, but the committee decided it would be impossible to begin this work before October 15, the date originally agreed upon.

When the Atlanta Gas Light Company made a proposal to sell to the city its tar road binder, Agasco, for six cents a gallon, members of the committee declared they considered it a good idea to use the binder on all chert roads. Councilman Claude L. Ashley said he would endeavor to have it used on Forrest Avenue.

On the request of the Georgia Railway and Power Company the committee decided to recommend to Council that permission to change the river car line be granted so as to relieve congestion at Marietta and Broad Streets, the present terminus of the river line.

The plan is to have the river cars come in Walton street and around into Marietta Street by a loop through Forsyth Street, passengers being taken on at Grady Monument.

OBITUARY.

The body of Dr. I. C. Smullian, who died in Salt Lake City Wednesday, will arrive in Atlanta Sunday afternoon. The funeral will be held at 4 o'clock from the residence of his father, A. Smullian, at 133 Capitol Avenue. Interment in Oakland.

Dislocates Leg as She Dances Tango

PITTSBURG, PA., July 5.—Miss Elizabeth Arbuthnot, society girl and member of one of the leading families of Pittsburg, dislocated a bone in her left leg while dancing tango at a fashionable party in the East End. Bonesetter Reese, of Youngstown, was here, attending the International Elstedfodd.

His services were called into requisition to untango the tangoed limb. Miss Arbuthnot is much improved.

ENJOYED FOURTH WITH PONIES IN GRANT PARK

Extra Inducements in Race for Votes End at Midnight—Candidates Hustling.

A rush is on in the contest department of The Georgian and American. This is the last day of the pony contest bonus offer for clubs of five subscriptions, and the contestants are filing in by the score, turning in hundreds of dollars for subscriptions and taking advantage of the opportunity to win extra votes for every group of five into which their lists of subscribers may be divided.

Until midnight Saturday the office will be open to receive subscriptions, but after the tick of midnight the club of five offer will not count.

When the special offer closes the work of tabulation will begin. There is no hope, however, that the contest department will be able to compile all bonuses and award them properly before a week has elapsed. Probably the announcement will be made in The Sunday American a week hence.

Almost every candidate has hustled his best to take full advantage of the offer, and hundreds of dollars for subscriptions have been turned in. Through a misapprehension, many thought Friday the last day on which these clubs could be voted. This was a mistake, but it did no harm. Those who were misguided simply were told they had another day in which to work.

By far the greater number, however, enjoyed the outing at Grant Park. Nine of the pony outfits, some harnessed to buggies and some saddled, left the Alabama Street offices of the contest department at 1 o'clock. Arriving at the park, there was a frolic. Every contestant had a chance to ride or drive a pony, and there was lemonade for all.

BASS VIOLIN MASTER BLINDED, RESTS BOW

'Dolph Wurm, the South's greatest master of the bass violin, has had to rest his bow. Cataract has grown over his eyes. As his light gradually has been shut out the darkness has drawn him more and more into seclusion.

Atlanta musicians are telling his story as their most interesting bit of "shop talk."

Many, especially old-time, Atlantans, remember him as the slender, serious-looking little man who stood on the left end of the orchestra, wearing a black silk skull-cap and leaning on his big fiddle until he became a natural part of the scenery.

He was the Thor who hurled the theatrical thunder. He was the master who marked the syncopated time of the first "rags" at the society balls, silence before the motives of his music had had time to create the real turkey trot.

Fiddle 123 Years Old.

There is no more interesting figure in Atlanta to-day than the old man in his quiet home down on Pine Street with his old comrade, the fiddle, close beside him as he dreams of other and eventful days.

The fiddle, which Mr. Wurm himself said once could vibrate so strongly that it rattled the window panes, now has a plaintive note on account of its cracks. It was made in Germany in 1790 and was brought to this country by the owner's father in 1848.

Mr. Wurm was for 40 years one of the principal members of the Wurm Orchestra. They furnished the music at all the society events at the old Kimball House, when the Kimball House was the social center of Georgia. For 18 years they formed the orchestra at DeGive's Opera House, now the Bijou Theater. All the members, especially 'Dolph, on account of his big fiddle, grew to be among the best known men in Atlanta.

He Loves the Instrument.

Mr. Wurm took out his fiddle when a Georgian reported called to see him. Tenderly he stroked its strings.

"A bass fiddle is not usually regarded as a very affectionate member of the orchestra," he said. "The other members try to make of it an object of humor. They used to joke me about not being able to sit down when I played.

"Somehow the instrument impressed me differently. When my father began to teach us to play on the different instruments I naturally took to the bass violin. And I have stuck to it ever since, always playing the same fiddle.

"In this day most of the musicians in Atlanta have something else to do which they call their regular vocation. They play for extra money. But I never did anything but play the bass violin. Mind you, I never married, and lived economically.

Once Chess Champion.

"During my leisure I played chess. That program seemed to me the best way to enjoy life."

Mr. Wurm explained that he had not played for a year. He said he also had to give up his beloved chess, of which he was once the champion of Georgia. But in his calm philosophy he remarked:

"My doctor tells me as soon as this cataract is ripe he can operate and restore my sight. Then in a few months I will be playing again, both the fiddle and the game of chess.

"Of course, the old fiddle is cracked. You know it doesn't matter how much you may think of a bass fiddle it is awkward to handle. But the tone of my old violin is still deep and sweet, though not so loud as it once was."

ARREST NEAR OF AUTOIST WHO HIT CHILD

Citizens Join Hunt for Speeder. Declare They Can Identify Guilty Driver.

The police dragnet set for the automobile driver who ran down and seriously injured little Eva Kilpatrick last Wednesday has resulted in the finding of a clew which, it is believed, will result in the arrest of the guilty party within twenty-four hours.

Special Officer J. B. Dorsett, who had been detailed on the case, reported to Captain Poole Saturday morning that he had found several persons who reside in the vicinity of the Kilpatrick home who say they will be able to identify the driver of the car.

Although none of these persons witnessed the accident, they did see the car both before and after the accident, it is said, and furthermore have seen the same car pass down Mills Street on other occasions.

In the meantime the war on speed has been waged so vigorously that Recorder Broyles had not a single case before him Monday morning. He declared, however, that breakers of the law would promptly be sent to the stockade upon conviction.

AUTOISTS!

Take a spin to Crystalake Country Club Sunday (Bennett's Mill) via Jonesboro and Fayetteville. Hour's ride over fine roads. Beautiful grove around 100-acre lake. Good bathing in clean water. Pick you out a nice lot and join the club being formed. Fine fishing. Delightful place to camp and spend summer. Ask for Mr. Carroll, on the grounds.

Boys! Fans! All Lovers of BASEBALL!

Do You Know---

How, why and when this play by "Ty" Cobb should be made?

How and why a catcher "shapes the ball?"

Why the straight overhand swing is more valuable in obtaining control of the ball than either the side arm or the "rise" ball?

The proper way to make a double play at second?

How a player should hold the bat when laying down a bunt?

Why a catcher should use the snap throw to get a man stealing a base?

The proper way to field a ground ball?

How to make the ball "carry" on a throw?

The proper position for covering second to get a man out stealing?

Why the batter should "choke the bat" to get the best results?

All these questions and many more are answered in

FORECLOSURE OF A., B. & A. ROAD ORDERED

Sale Under Mortgage of Alabama and Georgia Terminal Companies Also Decreed.

Judge Pardee, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, sitting as district judge, has directed entries of decrees of foreclosure and sale under the mortgages of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad Company, the Georgia Terminal Company and the Alabama Terminal Railroad Company. Victor L. Smith has been appointed special master to make the sales.

The amounts for which the foreclosures are to be had in the different cases are: Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, $17,873,715.07; Georgia Terminal Company, $3,948,750; Alabama Terminal Railroad Company, $3,218,231. Dates for the sale have not been set.

A provision is made, directing the apportionment between the different properties of the liens of the receiver's certificates and the decree provides for the payment of these certificates out of the proceeds of the sale.

Samuel H. Pillsbury, of Boston, and Messrs. Slaton & Phillips, trusteess under the mortgages and complainant in the suits, appeared for the Old Colony Trust Company, and Messrs. Rosser & Brandon represented the defendant corporations.

Taste for Melons Seems on the Wane

Dealers in watermelons are up in arms over the apparent lost appetite of Atlantans for the luscious fruit or vegetable, as you choose to call it. Despite the fact that a large supply of the juicy fruit was in Atlanta yesterday the demand was small.

"What has become of the old watermelon cutting parties?" queried one dealer. "The sale of watermelons in restaurants is greatly on the increase, but the home consumption is falling off rapidly.

Blalock Collector; Jackson Holds Tight

While A. O. Blalock, of Fayette, has been appointed Collector of Internal Revenue with headquarters in the Federal Building, he still is "on the outside looking in."

Mr. Blalock has visited Henry S. Jackson, whose term as collector expired June 30, several times, Mr. Jackson said, and asked him when he would vacate the office.

Mr. Jackson said he would turn the office over to Mr. Blalock when he produced papers ratifying his appointment.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

Two Headline Features.

Next week at the Forsyth there will be two headline features. Cecil Lean and company will present "The Motion Picture Man," and Eva Taylor and company will offer "After the Wedding." These acts are recognized headline features in all the Keith theaters and are being brought to Atlanta as features of the summer season. In addition there will be other clever acts, making up a bill that will unquestionably attract attention.

Talking Pictures Please.

The Edison talking pictures at the Grand have become so thoroughly well established that crowds are flocking to see this innovation in motion pictures. In addition to the talking pictures excellent first-run black and white pictures are given. The Grand is delightfully comfortable.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Thundershowers will continue in the Lake region and will extend into New England and the Middle Atlantic States to-night and Sunday, but will be followed by generally fair weather Sunday in the greater portion of the Lake region. In the Ohio Valley and the South the weather will be generally fair to-night and Sunday with continued high temperatures. It will be cooler in the Lake region.

The Forecast.

Forecast until 7 p. m. Sunday:

Georgia—Generally fair to-night and Sunday.

Virginia—Showers late to-night or on Sunday; continued warm.

North and South Carolina—Generally fair in the interior; showers near the coast to-night or Sunday.

Alabama, Florida and Mississippi—Generally fair to-night and Sunday.

Tennessee—Fair to-night and Sunday; continued warm.

Louisiana and Texas—Fair to-night and Sunday.

Snubbed by Senate, Suffragists to Ask House for Chamber

Undaunted by the refusal of the Senate to allow them to use the Senate chamber for meeting places, Atlanta suffragists will attempt to obtain the House of Representatives hall. When the House convenes Monday it will find a large delegation of women waiting to make this request.

Floor Leader Blackburn and Representative R. Y. Smith, the suffragists claim, will bring the matter before the House. So far no objection, they say, has been offered to their using the House chamber.

Mrs. Mary McLendon is quite certain the House will grant them the courtesy, which she declared had been accorded them before.

"The spectacle of the women of Georgia having to beg the men for courtesy is truly a pitiful sight," said Mrs. McLendon.

HOUSE PAGE PREDICTS HE WILL BE PRESIDENT

Two D. F. McClatcheys who hold important positions in the Georgia House.

Boy thinks Speaker and Reading Clerk should be one.

Reading Clerk McClatchey's 8-Year-Old Son Has Determined on Career of Public Service.

Eight years of age with three years' experience as a page in the House of Representatives is the luck of D. F. McClatchey, Jr., who is also quite fond of sitting on the knee of his father, who has been Reading Clerk of the House for sixteen years.

Young D. F. bids fair to prove as popular as his father, who manages to inject enough life in the reading of House bills to make it pleasant for the Legislature. Acoustics of the House are not the best in the world, and the powerful voice of D. F. McClatchey is about the only one which has ever overcome this difficulty.

The ambition of young D. F., though, is to combine the positions of Reading Clerk and Speaker. He like his father's job, but he also has a great longing to handle the gavel.

He is sure of a place as page in the House until he is old enough to vote, when he expects to become a full-fledged member of the House. He will then take a turn in the Senate, put in a couple of terms as Governor, try out Congress for a few terms and then make himself President. And there's not a member of the House who does not believe this prediction is more than apt to come true. The youngster can shake hands with you as heartily as any politician who ever lived, or curl up in his father's lap as cute and loving as a youngster should be.

"Keep your eye on that young McClatchey," is the way his father likes to refer to him.

Turn Verein Holds Its Annual Picnic

Members of the Atlanta Turn Verein enjoyed their annual picnic at Germania Park yesterday. An unusually large crowd attended it, and from 10 o'clock in the morning until late last night there wasn't a dull moment.

Dancing was indulged in, while nearly everyone donned a bathing suit and spent hours in the lake.

SEARCHING SIDELIGHTS ON POLITICS IN GEORGIA

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

The political hosts in Georgia may not realize it quite, but when William Michael Bairman, of The Macon Telegraph, passed away on Thursday last the best informed man on things political in Georgia ceased to be.

Not only was he the best informed man in Georgia on State politics, but he was one of the sweetest and gentlest characters that ever lived within the Commonwealth.

Mr. Bairman was modest to an extraordinary degree, and one rarely saw his name in print—this writer never saw it figure in the head lines, at least, until those head lines announced Mr. Bairman's untimely death.

He it was who kept for years that remarkable "scrap book" of The Telegraph, so often invoked by his chief, Colonel Pendleton, to the chagrin, humiliation and undoing of an antagonist!

If ever you, Mr. Politician, did anything in Georgia that got into a newspaper somewhere, you may rest assured it was in this fearful and wonderful "scrap book!"

And yet Mr. Bairman did not keep that book for the purpose of humiliating or undoing antagonists so much as he kept it for the honorable and worthy purpose of perpetuating genuine history and keeping the records absolutely right. Far from desiring to hurt unnecessarily the feelings of any person, Bairman would not have hurt the feelings of God's humblest creature if it might be avoided!

Like the other men of his kind one occasionally meets as one passes down the way of life, Mr. Bairman was exceedingly generous to his fellow men, both in judgment upon them and in ministering to their material wants. He rarely if ever spoke an unkind word of any man, and if he ever turned down an appeal for charity few people sem to have known anything about it.

For many years he has been Editor Pendleton's right-hand man—and it is certain that that splendid editor will miss him sorely. But the greatest loss is sustained by the readers of The Telegraph. He has been, often unknown to them, their surest source of information and fact.

Postmaster J. Park Bowie, by the womanly grace of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, will take charge of the Rome office on Tuesday next. When boys and girls together, Mr. Bowie and Mrs. Wilson used to make "mud pies."

Mr. Bowie lost an even $100, and was delayed in going into office two weeks because of a stupid and clumsy mistake made in his commission when it was first issued.

When his first commission arrived it was discovered that it had Rome down as being in "Rome" County instead of in "Floyd" County, and it had to go back for correction. So exacting are the red-tape methods in the Postoffice Department that it was two good weeks before the commission got back, shaped up as it should be.

Postmaster Barclay, the efficient outgoing official, could not see where he stood to shed unnecessary tears over the situation, however, as it rounded up an even $100 for him that he wasn't expecting to get!

Senator E. H. Elkins, of the Fifteenth District, already has grown to be one of the best-known men in the General Assembly.

He is democratic in his ways and the dignity of a Senator, while duly appreciated by him, does not sit too heavily upon him. He is a good mixer and makes friends easily.

Mr. Elkins is a fine business man, and is looked upon generally as safe and sane in judgment, and as a man whose word always is as good as his bond. He evidently is destined to take a high stand in the present Legislature.

Mr. Park, of Liberty, objects to Latin phrases in proposed bills and resolutions.

When Mr. Wright, of Floyd, sent a resolution to the clerk's desk the other day, proposing that certain days to be taken as vacation be declared "dies non," Mr. Park promptly objected. He said he didn't know what "dies non" meant, and he didn't propose to vote for something he didn't know anything whatever about!

Amid the chorus of "noes" entered against Mr. Wright's proposal, Mr. Park's was easily the most vociferous.

The present Legislature, by the way, doesn't seem inclined to do anything calculated to run the legislative session over its natural fifty days' limit.

Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick, of the Tenth District, is in Atlanta for a few days.

Mr. Hardwick has announced his intention not to be a candidate to succeed himself. He desires to enter actively into the practice of law, and feels that he can not well spare further time to Congressional service.

The Congressman from the Tenth has had ten years' experience and in that time has risen to be one of the real influential men in the House. He is attentive to his duties, and has a particularly keen insight into things. He is now a member of the House Committee on Rules, which is the highest evidence of his standing among his colleagues.

Hardwick still is a young man, and has many years of usefulness ahead of him. It is a matter of genuine regret to thousands of Georgians that he has elected to retire at the end of his present term.

Next week will see the beginning of real legislative activity.

All the committees of the Senate and House have been organized and are ready for business. There is not a committee of importance, moreover, that hasn't already on hand a more or less jam of business. Between Monday and Saturday there should be reported back to the House a large number of bills with recommendations.

Representative Crawford Wheatley intends working his big Committee on Appropriations to a frazzle, if necessary, in order to get the general appropriations bill on its way to the Senate. But before starting them to work Mr. Wheatley proposes putting them in a perfectly good humor with himself and the world in general by dining them sumptuously.

He will give the committee an elaborate dinner Tuesday evening at the Capital City Club.

MULHALL LOBBY PROBE BEGUN BY HOUSE

Committee to Investigate Charges That Factories Wielded Influence Over Legislation.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The machinery of the House to-day was set in motion for an investigation of the Mulhall charges when the Rules Committee decided to report a resolution providing for the naming of a committee of seven by the Speaker. This committee will inquire into all the Mulhall charges affecting members of Congress and also determine if in the present Congress or previous Congresses lobbyists of the National Association of Manufacturers "did in fact reach or influence" any officer or employee of the House.

The committee also is to look into the efforts of the National Association of Manufacturers to defeat any candidates for the House.

Another object of the committee is to inquire whether improper influence has been exerted by the National Association of Manufacturers or any other bodies in the selection of committees, and find out if the association now maintains a lobby in Washington and how effective it is.

The special committee is empowered to employ all necessary legal and clerical assistance. Expenses are to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House.

Representative Levy declared he was opposed to further inquiries. The Money Trust and steel investigation, he said, had caused only financial unrest.

The resolution was amended so that the investigating committee will be called upon to determine not only what part the National Association of Manufacturers played in defeating members, but also to inquire into the activities of all other organizations and persons along this line.

This makes it possible for the committee to investigate the Anti-Saloon League, the National Woman Suffrage organization, the American Medical Association and all other organizations promoting legislation here.

Smithsonian Given Star-Spangled Flag

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The Smithsonian Institution announces that the original Star-Spangled Banner was in the possession of the Smithsonian and had been placed on exhibition. This flag floated over Fort McHenry on September 13 and 14, 1814, when the British fleet attacked Baltimore. It is 27 feet 6 inches wide by 32 feet 10 inches long and has fifteen stripes and fifteen stars.

The flag that was the inspiration for the famous patriotic song was kept by Colonel George Armistead, who was in command at Fort McHenry, and handed down to his grandson, Even Appleton, of New York.

Militants Burn Two Churches; Rob Safe

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

CARDIFF, WALES, July 5.—Fifty thousand dollars' damage was done by militants to-day at Pullheli in Carnarvonshire, where members of the arson squad burned the Welsh Methodist Church.

The women also burned the Tabernacle Baptist Church. They broke into the parsonage, robbed the safe, destroyed the contents of the place and escaped. One of the incendiaries was said to be about fifteen years old.

BOLTON, ENGLAND, July 5.—Suffragettes attempted to destroy Spinner's Hall, a $150,000 building, with fire to-day and succeeded in causing $25,000 damage.

Railway Must Repay $35,000 Overcharge

WASHINGTON, July 5.—After two years' consideration, the Interstate Commerce Commission to-day awarded approximately $35,000 reparation to the Marian Coal Company, of Taylor, Pa., from the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad for unreasonable rates on anthracite.

It was during the investigation of the case that the charges against Judge Robert W. Archbald, of the United States Commerce Court, impeached by Congress, were made by Boland.

Double Jewels on Ankles at Newport

NEWPORT, R. I., July 5.—Mrs. Charles H. Welsh, of Philadelphia, appeared on Thames Street wearing two jeweled ornaments on her ankles. Mrs. Welsh astonished Newport a week ago when she wore a single jeweled ankle ornament, but the two are said to be far more ornate than the one exhibited last week.

Helena Store Burns.

HELENA.—The store house belonging to Sam Wood and the stock of good of W. H. Howard were destroyed by fire to-day. The loss is partially covered by insurance. The fire is supposed to have been started by rats.

The SOCIAL WORLD

Owens, Hugh Lokey, Lott Warren, Joseph McCord, Wharton Wilson, Graham Williams and S. F. Boykin.

A fancy work table will be a feature.

East Lake Dance.

The East Lake clubhouse was artistically decorated with the red, white and blue flags Friday evening when the club gave a dance in honor of Independence Day. Preceding the dance, dinner was served on the broad veranda.

Among those present were Misses Nellie Kiser Stewart, Priscilla Patton, Clifford West, Lyda Nash, Mary Hines, Annie Akers, Martha Ryder, May O'Brien, Frances Connally, Jennie Lou Lindsay, Mary Blalock and her guest, Ruth Matta, of Baton Rouge; Mary Hawkins, Lula Dean Jones, Helen Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. Valdemar Gude, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Eby, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shelton, Mr. and Mrs. Veay Rainwater, Dr. and Mrs. Tigner, Messrs. Wimberly Peters, Brockover Toy, Stokes Connor, Hughes Roberts, Prince Webster, Dr. Charles Hodge, Walter DuBard, Rogers Toy, Ned Hitt, Dr. Waipole Brewer, Henry Hull, W. A. Bennett, Frank Montgomery, Gillespie Adams and Palmer Johnson.

* * *

Mrs. Hilton Hostess.

Mrs. Harold Hilton entertained at a bridge party Saturday morning at her home on North Jackson Street for her guest, Miss Leila Daley, of Texarkana, Texas.

Pink and white sweetpeas decorated the porch where the game was played. The prizes were a boudoir cap and a piece of handmade lingerie.

Mrs. Hilton wore a blue crepe de chine, and Miss Daley was gowned in white embroidered crepe.

Vesper Club Dance.

One of the most interesting social events of the past week was a dance given by the Vesper Club Friday evening. The hall was decorated in the club colors of black and gold and the national colors. The guests of honor were Miss Eulula Bright Cannon, Miss Minnie Little, of Montgomery, and Miss Ethel Cantrell, of Rome.

Among those present were Misses Maude Lewis, Harriet Thumler, Evelyn Green, Rosa Belle Chapman, Ruth Atkinson, Lilouise Reed, Adelaide Callaway, Lula Black, Lucy Hinman, Elberta Williams, Annie K. Revenge Is Sweet

"BELINDA," said the brother of that good woman, looking up from his magazine, "if you sigh like that again I shall leave home. What do you find in those price lists to distress you so painfully?"

"I was trying to select enough plants and shrubs to embellish a three-acre lot and provide a succession of blooms during the summer," she replied. "I must choose only varieties that need very little cultivation and scarcely any watering and will be somewhat out of the ordinary and will cost not more than $10. After working on the problem all morning I'm convinced that it's impossible."

"What is it, a prize contest for some horticultural society?"

"No, of course not; I'm acting as a committee of one appointed by the Village Improvement Society to 'landscape garden' the public square."

"Indeed! And with the munificent sum of $10? Why is the Village Improvement Society so reckless with its funds?"

"You know very well, Ben, that in such a little village there isn't much money to spend, and the society is quite generous."

Her Scheme.

"I was invited to attend the meeting yesterday," she explained, "and offer suggestions about the planting of the square. When I finished speaking it was unanimously voted that $5 be expended on the work."

"I thought you said $10 a minute ago."

"Well, I didn't like to dampen their enthusiasm by explaining that $5 was hardly a drop in the bucket, so I told them that you and I would be glad if they would let us add another five."

"How thoughtful of you! Thank you for my share in it. I suppose they agreed?"

"Yes, and I naturally wish to do the best I can. But the society is so particular that it makes things rather difficult. Mrs. Hart says the odor of peonies makes her husband ill, and as his feed store opens upon the square that settles the peonies. Mrs. Bell can't endure flowering almond because she associates it with lonely days on her old farm. As she is the president of the society, that's reason enough for not having flowering almond. Gladys Smith thinks we should make a feature of the most expensive hydrangeas grown. She saw them while she was away at school. Miss Hitty Watkins considers lilacs dreadfully common, and they don't bloom for several years. 'Immediate results!' is the cry of the whole society.

"However, I persuaded them to buy some annuals for this year's flowers, for it's too late now to plant seeds, and to spend most of the appropriation on permanent shrubbery. It's my business to make that $10 cover my plans. Ben, will you please see if my addition is correct while I search for a better bargain in hydrangeas and weigelas? I want to get the order off on the afternoon mail."

While one was engrossed with the catalogues and the other with the auditing a shiftless figure slouched across the lawn and leaned against the porch railing. He made his presence known by an apologetic clearing of the throat.

"Hello, Mike," said Ben. "Going fishing?"

"No; I came out here on business for the improvement society. I got a bill for Miss Belinda."

"For me?" exclaimed she, astonished.

"Why, yes. You see, I ain't never been paid for the work I done last summer on the square. Them women hired me to keep it in order and I kep' the paper and trash picked in and cut the grass real often and I pulled up them house plants they sat out there that died, and I ain't never been paid. I heard that you was in charge of the square now, so I come over to get my money."

"But," protested Miss Belinda, with some warmth, "I had nothing at all to do with last year's affairs."

"No, I know that, but I went to see Mrs. Bell and she and Hitty Watkins put their O. K. on my bill, so I come on over here to get my pay, just as they said."

Miss Belinda looked appealingly at her brother. He took the none too clean slip of paper in his hand.

"I think there's nothing for it but to pay," he said, laughing. "It's only $7."

"Seven dollars!" echoed Miss Belinda. "I don't see how you can laugh, Ben. It isn't funny—it's tragic."

Funny.

When Mike, with the money in his pocket, turned his back on the brother and sister, Ben said: "It is funny, Belinda. It is positively side-splittin'." Miss Belinda had to laugh.

"And now what about your plans?" her brother asked.

"I shall buy as many hydrangeas as I can with the miserable $3 and take peonies, flowering almond and lilacs out of my own garden to make up the deficit."

"Revenge is sweet. I wonder what would have happened to Mike's bill if you hadn't added our $5 to the society's appropriation?"

All Beach.

Wilfrid was sitting on his father's knee, watching his mother arrange her hair.

"Papa hasn't any waves like that," said the father, laughing.

Wilfrid, looking up at his father's bald pate, replied:

"No; no waves; it's all beach."

The GHOST BREAKER

By C. W. GODDARD and PAUL DICKEY

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

The scene of the story is laid in the Vanderlip Hotel, New York City. The Princess Maria Theresa of Segura, a beautiful Spanish woman, is suddenly awakened in her suite by the sound of pistol shots. She hears a man running down the hall. He crashes against her door, breaking the lock, and enters. She sees he is a tall, good-looking young man, dressed in evening clothes. He is carrying a revolver in his right hand, and blood is dripping from a wound in his left. He begs the Princess to hide him. She, moved by some indescribable impulse, decides that she will. She directs him to an inner room, and a few minutes later, when the hotel detective knocks on the door, she tells him she is all right and sends him away. The young man, who is Warren Jarvis, of Kentucky, comes out of his hiding place, and the Princess, for the first time, notices his wound. She is moved to sympathy and showers him with questions as to what has occurred. Jarvis tells her about a Kentucky feud between his family and another named Markham. He says he left Kentucky to avoid the feudists, but encountered one of them in the hotel, which explains the shots.

Now go on with the story.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"It's all right," said Jarvis, with a little sigh of relief. "But how am I going to get out of here?"

His liege lady smiled a little sarcastic smile.

"Resourceful man! I thought of a plan long ago—the trunk." And she indicated a capacious traveling van at the foot of the bed.

"The trunk?" he echoed, blankly. "What about it?"

"Well, you are stupid," decided the Princess. "I am sending it on the steamer at 6 o'clock."

A light of understanding but distinctly not of joy leaped to Jarvis' eyes.

"You mean to get in it?"—Good Lord!—Is it big enough?"

He walked—stood over it dubiously a moment and threw back the lid.

The Plan.

"I think so," said the princess. "And no one could possibly suspect. Take out those trays."

"Sure it's big enough," conceded Warren doubtfully, as they leaned over the interior, "but what about these?"

Something fell and tinkled on the brass work.

"Oh!" exclaimed Dona Maria. He picked it up and held it out to her, examining it curiously.

"It's nothing,' she assured him hastily, regaining possession. "I mean—it's all right—it's just a locket."

"Did I break it?"

"Oh, no—I broke it myself—on purpose—yesterday," she explained, somewhat confusedly. Then, when she had concealed it once more in the fold of her gown, she went on gravely. "It means a great deal to me—and, perhaps, to you. I crossed the ocean for that locket. Some day you may know the reason why."

Before he could make any comment she returned briskly to the matter in hand.

"We had better send these," she suggested, indicating the trays.

"Hold on—I've got it!" he exclaimed suddenly, then stopped. "No—you better phone. Ask the operator to give you the Hotel Belwood, across the street—my room is 417. Rusty, my servant, is there now, waiting for word from me." The Princess frowned and shook her head. "He can be trusted," he assured her. "Tell him to come here at once; and just say 'Warren'—that'll fetch him."

The Princess hesitated a moment as if still in doubt, but his confidence reassured her and she went to the telephone and got the connection.

"Ask if it's Rusty, and be sure to say 'Warren,'" he cautioned her in a hoarse whisper. The Princess nodded.

"Hello—is this—Mr. Rusty?" Jarvis grinned in the background at the title. "Well, listen carefully—you are to come right over to the Vanderlip Hotel, across the street from where you are. A bell-boy will be waiting for you at the desk and he is to bring you right up to Room 1121——"

"And keep his mouth shut," interrupted Jarvis.

"And—and don't talk to anyone," translated the Princess. "What's that——? There was a pause and she put her lips close to the mouthpiece. "Warren," she said, waited a moment, and hung up the receiver.

Jarvis chuckled exultantly. "Now, get the desk and tell them to look out for Rusty, and also tell them to send up some wrapping paper and twine."

When Dona Marie had communicated her instructions to the desk she returned to find her cavalier, coat and overcoat thrown aside, inside the trunk cutting at the tough leather with a pocketknife.

"Got to breathe," he explained between pants. Swearing a little under his breath he threw his weight onto the knife, and the blade snapped, gashing his finger.

"Oh, what did you do?" she exclaimed with solicitation that was extremely gratifying to the knight.

"Snapped the blade," he growled, eying the bleeding cut with disgust.

"But you hurt your hand—your injured hand!"

He tried to belittle it and looked hopelessly around for another engineering tool; but Dona Maria insisted on examining the wound and bathing with alcohol and wrapping it up.

"Now, how am I going to cut a hole in that trunk?" he wondered while these ministrations were in progress. Dona Maria looked about the room also.

"My shears," she suggested, suddenly.

"If they're not too light. Let's see."

"Come back here," she ordered, holding onto his hand. "It's not tied yet."

He laughed and looked down at her mischievously. "Do you know—I'm beginning to like this job already?"

The hand was instantly released and the work of making an air-hole resumed.

"What time does the boat sail?" he inquired after certain grunts of satisfaction announced success.

"Nine o'clock."

"Good!" he grunted, stabbing savagely with the shears. "That will give Rusty time to get on board with these trays and my baggage."

He toiled a few minutes more in silence, Dona Maria watching him and throwing occasional anxious glances at the clock.

"We've ten minutes before they call for the trunk," she said, at last. Jarvis raised his head to reply, when there came a knock at the door. Swiftly and silently he got out of the trunk and slipped behind the portieres that cut off the alcove, as the Princess opened the door and received Rusty and his brass-buttoned escort, who also delivered the wrapping paper and twine, and withdrew.

Rusty stood in stolid silence until the boy had disappeared, and Dona Maria invited him in and bolted the door behind him.

He was a gray-haired darky of heavy and important mien, whose architecture followed in a general way the liberal cylindrical design of New York's new courthouse. His system of locomotion was full of strange and unexpected eccentrics, and his efforts to reach a given point, however near, were always accompanied by truly distressing wheezing and groaning which deceived every one but his master. His besetting sin was an earnest devotion to the principle of repose, and his crown of glory a blind, unwavering, idolatrous loyalty to his master.

"Rusty's heart is all right," Jarvis used to say, "but it is so heavily surrounded by fat that it has some difficulty in expressing itself."

The bellboy had walked him somewhat hurriedly down the hall, and this unwonted activity, combined with real uneasiness over the possible predicament of his master, caused alarming sounds to arise from the cavernous depths of his heaving chest. Before he could spare a few cubic inches of breath for inquiry Jarvis stepped back into the room.

The Escape.

"Lor' bless you, Marse Warren!" he gasped, holding up his arms and rolling his eyes in token of thanksgiving. "I sert'nly thought you all——"

"Never mind what you thought," interrupted Jarvis in brisk tones. "Take these," and he pointed to the trays, "with our baggage to the steamship Lusitania, of the Cunard line—buy accommodations. Mind, you won't see me till after we get out to sea. Keep in your stateroom and sit tight until you hear from me. Understand?"

As promptly as if it were an everyday occurrence, Rusty had fallen to work on the trays, and, by a change in his manner of puffing, indicated that he was following the rest of the instructions.

"I'll give you the money," went on Jarvis, "and the clerk at our hotel will attend to everything and get the tickets. Then you pay the bill. No; get hold of this."

Rusty took the wallet his master held out without a word and went busily back to the trays again.

"Let me help," offered Dona Maria.

"No, we can manage it, I guess," said Jarvis easily, smiling at the uproar that emanated from his servant who was forced to stop over the work. "This is Rusty. Rusty, this is the Princess of Aragon."

Rusty eagerly straightened and turned with a profound bow.

"Yas, sah,' he grinned. "How do, Mrs. Princess. Ah—ah-go-on."

Jarvis pressed his lips togther to suppress a giggle.

"I said Aragon," he corrected gravely.

"Yas, sah," was the aggrieved reply. "That's what I said—Ah-go-on."

"I guess you'll have to let it go at that," smiled Jarvis. "There—that's all right, Rusty. Now, you understand everything, do you?"

"Yas, sah," Rusty assured him, picking up the bundles. "I take eve'ything to th' steamboat—git acom—acom——"

"Accommodations."

The Last Moments.

The darkey nodded brightly. "I knows what you means—fer us an' Mrs. Princess ah——"

"No, no," snapped Jarvis, impatiently. "Not for the Princess—just for us two."

"Oh, yas, sah. I unnastin' puffectly."

"All right." Jarvis pushed him toward the door. "Now, get a move on you and don't miss the boat. Remember the name of the line?"

Rusty put his head on one side and thought for an instant, and then showed a yard of teeth.

"Yas, sah, the—the Coon-ard Line."

The instant the door was locked behind him Jarvis returned to his work at the trunk. He had just succeeded in making a small hole when the time was up.

"Make another," urged Dona Maria.

He shook his head decidedly. "Haven't time. I'll widen this one a little." He rested both hands on the side and looked up at her soberly. "Remember this trunk must not go into the hold of the ship. Have it marked 'Wanted on Voyage,' and 'This End Up.' I'll lie with my head in this direction."

"I'll remember," she promised earnestly; "now let me get you a pillow."

Heavy folds of her clothing padded the bottom and he arranged the pillow for his head. Then he sat in the trunk and looked very serious.

"Before I get into this coffin," he said, "there are one or two things I should like to know. How do you know that you can trust me?"

"I don't," she replied instantly; "I'll have to take that chance."

He winced a little.

"But you must have a pretty good reason," he insisted.

"I have," was the cool response.

"Well—what about the ghosts?"

"Pardon me, Mr. Warren, but so far your credentials do not warrant further confidence."

Repulsed in the direct attack, the young man was silent a few moments. So was the young woman. Then he essayed a flank movement.

"You are Spanish—yet you speak with no accent," he charged.

"I was educated in England."

Another pause and another attempt.

"Are you really—a sure-enough princess?"

A certain wintriness apeared in the soft, dark eyes that looked down into his.

"Why do you say that?"

"Oh—I—don't know," he stammered, uncertainly. "I—somehow—you aren't quite like what I thought a princess would be."

"I'm sorry," she remarked, coldly.

"Oh, I didn't mean it that way," he hastened to protest, feeling that he was making next to no headway. "I mean that you're different from the popular idea of a princess. You have more—more—understanding," he floundered, but the wintriness did not vanish, "more—more—sympathy—more heart——"

"In that respect," cut in Dona Maria, swiftly, "you will find me quite a conventional princess."

The House Detective.

The knight immediately began a painfully careful examination of the hole through which he must breathe for several hours and thus he did not notice that the Princess colored slightly and the winter in her eyes gave way momentarily to spring. He was grateful that he had the hole in the leather to examine during the painful silence.

"I wonder"—he cleared his throat, and began again—"I wonder if this opening will let in enough air."

"I hope so," said the Princess, and he had to look up at her face to make sure that she was not as indifferent as the tone of her voice indicated. What he saw evidently reassured him, for his embarrassment vanished.

"I'll put the shears in here," he remarked cheerily, "and if it gets too stuffy I can cut another hole from the inside."

There was a knock at the door. Both started, and Jarvis noiselessly coiled himself into his cage.

"It must be the man for the trunk, she whispered. Then she called. "Just a minute, please."

He let the lid down a little way and she bent over him.

"Remember," he whispered earnestly, "this must not go into the hold of the ship. You must have it marked 'Wanted,' and 'This Side Up.' You might add 'With Care' if you've a mind to," he added with a wry smile, and he cautiously let the lid down.

"Are you all right?" she whispered, her hand on the lock.

"If they don't lose the trunk," came in a muffled voice from within.

To Be Continued Monday.

"How am I going to get out of here?" said Jarvis.

JARVIS GETS READY TO FLEE

.:. "Too Nintimate" .:.

By WINIFRED BLACK.

THEY'VE quarreled, the two "nintimate friends.

No, I don't mean "intimate," I No, I don't mean "intimate, " I mean "nintimate"—that's what they call each other. One's ten and one's nine, and they've been playing dolls together for weeks.

I told Ten-year-old that she had better play with someone else for a while.

"You and Nine-year-old will quarrel as sure as fate," said Ir, oh, so wisely.

"Quarrel, my 'nintimate' friend and I?" cried Ten-year-old in horror. Oh, how could we ever do such a thing? Why, she's the sweetest girl in the world. I wish my hair was the color of hers and my eyes, too, so we could wear the same colored ribbons, and oh, can't we both have linen hats, the same shade anyhow?"

So they had linen hats the same shade, and the new kind of heelless shoes the same shape, and Brown Eyes tied on a pink ribbon and so Blue Eyes had to tie on a pink ribbon,.too.

But now they've quarreled, quarreled badly. It began over the dolls. Nine-year-old wanted the dolls to go to school and say their seven times, and Ten-year-old wanted to send them to the mountains or to the seashore or somewhere.

"Isn't it bad enough to say our own old ten times and eight times over and over," said Ten-year-old, "without making per-f-e-c-t slaves of the poor, darling dolls?"

"I'm not a slave," said Nine-year-old, "and I'd thank you not to call me one."

"Why," said Ten-year-old, "I didn't. I said"——

"I know what you said," said Nine-year-old, "I can hear all right"—— only she said "hyear."

"Well, then," cried Ten-year-old, "why don't you talk all right." F-t-t-t—the trouble began right then—dolls went home—ribbons came off—hats were thrown in the closet—out of the hated sight. "I'll never play with her again," sobbed Ten-year-old.

"I hate the sight of her," quavered Nine-year-old, and so the day was clouded.

What mattered how gayly the sun shone, what mattered how sweetly the flowering bush at the back gate beckoned—who cared what the robin tried to say. Gone—to smithereens—one long, happy, happy day. Gone never to come back again—alas, alas, what a sinful waste, and all because the "nintimate friends" were just a shade too "nintimate," that's all.

The young couple next door—how dead in love they are; she walks to the corner every night to meet him, and he turns around three or four times to wave her good-bye in the mornings. And the other night, when one of his old friends dropped in for a pleasant evening, she pouted; I could see it by the very turn of her shoulders.

She didn't want a soul around but him. And Sunday, when her sister came over after church, he went upstairs and sulked. I could see his shadow on the blind.

They won't admit now that there is any gulf at all, oh, no. They're one, you know; didn't they say so before the parson and all the church full of smiling friends. One—which one I wonder?

Will she give up her individuality—the one thing that called him to her—or will he be just an echo of her.

One! Which one? I always wonder.

How much better it is when you get to understand that two human beings mean two every time and not one at all; the man is a man, not a copy of a woman, and the woman is a woman, not an echo of the man; each must live his and her own separate life, and the sooner they begin to do it the sooner they'll be happy.

"And then where did you go?" says the young wife when Husband is a few minutes late to dinner.

Young Husband's brow clouds. After all, must he be watched like a criminal. "Oh, then I came home," he says, and doesn't tell the young wife that he stopped to chat with old Billie from Yale a minute or so, and the next day the young wife meets old Billie from Yale and he says: "Had a fine talk with Jimmie yesterday,"—and there's trouble in store for husband when he gets home that night.

"Too nintimate," that's all, "too nintimate," that's actually all that's the matter!

Your husband's heart is yours, not his brain and his soul, too. Your wife is faithful, loving, devoted, that's enough fou you to know, young man. Don't be too "nintimate" either of you—or you "won't speak" before six months is gone. Oh, yes, it's a pretty fiction, "two hearts that beat as one, two souls with but a single thought," etc.—a pretty fiction—thank goodness, it isn't a bit true. What a bore it would be to live with a twin, wouldn't it?

Do You Know That—

James Morris, who has been chauffeur to Cardinal Bourne since the latter was presented with a motor car some years ago, and who had previously been coachman to Cardinal Vaughan, has retired. It is Morris' boast that he has safely driven nine princes of the church in the motor car, which he has piloted 18,000 miles "without ever getting the Cardinal into trouble with the police for exceeding the speed limit." Cardinal Bourne has presented him with an autographed portrait of himself.

The languages and dialects into which the Bible is translated now number 450. The British and Foreign Bible Society's issues of copies of the Scriptures now reach the huge total of 7,899,562, made up of 936,346 Bibles, 1,269,919 New Testaments and 5,696,297 smaller portions. In China last year, for every two English books the society sold it disposed of three in Chinese—the bulk of these being single gospels.

Haste Quite Unnecessary.

The evening was damp and cold and foggy, and the Rev. Candy Macgregor, while walking absent-mindedly along the street, fell heavily into a deep hole which had been made by order of the local sanitary authorities.

For a long while the Rev. Sandy struggled to escape. Then despairingly he began to shout for help. A passing laborer heard his cries, and, looking down into the hole, asked who was there.

The minister informed him, but in return received only meager comfort.

"Weel, weel," said the laborer, "ye needa kick up sic' a noise. You'll no' be needed afore the Sawbath, and this is only Wednesday nicht!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Deep Breathing Lessons from Miss Zoe Barnett

Miss Zoe Barnett.

By LILIAN LAUFERTY.

"HAVE you ever watched a fish breathe?" asked dark-eyed Zoe Barnett, of Lew Field's "All Aboard" company. "No, I'm not bringing the role of comedienne into this interview; I am about to tell you the greatest beauty secret I know. A fish breathes visibly—you can see its little sides expand and contract as it breathes deeply and all over its body. But most women breathe either in the top of their lungs or expand their diaphragms as much as their stiff corsets will let them. Now, I wear corsets of 'Grecian tricot'—or webbing—and those corsets breathe with me."

We were sitting in Miss Barnett's own cool-shadowed room, and the grateful breeze that fluttered the curtains had not seemed a possible thing down on the sidewalks below. My hostess was wearing a fascinating pink kimono—just the pink to bring a flush to the clear olive of her cheeks; pink "mules" peeped daintily out, and her head was bound in a scarf of soft pink silk with a big pink bow drooping in graceful lines just at the base of a left ear that fitted in with the color scheme of sea-shell pink. A very witching negligee for a midsummer day. Try it with the finishing touch of surah silk sash and see, little sisters.

"Now, I will give you a little exhibition of proper breathing, and then you would probably like a little sermon on just what it does for you," went on Miss Barnett, making the interviewer's lot an easy one, indeed.

An Exhibition.

"Please put your hands here on my ribs and feel them press out and out till they are fully expanded by my full lungs and till my chest is pushed way up by those same lungs, and all the hollows in throat and neck are padded out and filled by the splendid clean air I am drawing up from my diaphragm. That is deep breathing.

"Deep breathing helps you have a figure that is slender yet round. It banishes hollows and unupholstered bones, and it helps the skin throw off impurities and keep white and fine of texture. It lets you have a clear voice, with plenty of reserve power and strength back of it. Try it at an open window twenty times each morning—increase your twenty to thirty—to fifty—breathe deeply whenever you are outdoors—and finally grow into the habit of breathing deeply all the time.

"Do you know, when I feel a little headache starting or find an attack of indigestion imminent, I rush to the open window and breathe deeper and deeper until that internal application of fresh air clears my system and wards off the threatened attack."

"Do you aid and abet your deep-breathing measure by some sensible dietary laws?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, the food supply is first aid to the air supply," said the girl who adds so much wholesome sanity to the more scintillant charm of her delightful personality. "I eat only two meals a day. I find that I can sing over a sore throat—even an ulcerated one—but my voice will not make music over an overworked and protesting stomach. Overeating seems to be a more general complaint than starvation in our land of too plenty."

Choosing Costumes.

"And to your theory of unlimited fresh aid and limited food supply you add a bit of originality in choosing costumes, don't you?"

"A good bit," was the answer. "I loathe putting myself into clothes that some one else has designed for me. I don't feel quite free to be myself unless everything about me is me and expresses me. I like my clothes to be one form of my self-expression, and I think it is worth while bringing earnest study to the understanding of your own type. But if a woman lacks that great essential taste, she can do one great thing toward being well dressed—she can attend to the details of her costume. Never wear a bedraggled petticoat or go about in run-down heels, for if every little detail is neat and in good taste, even the simplest costume looks attractive and dainty."

And in the fine glow of an independent spirit that dares preach because it practices, Miss Barnett concluded: "Work hard at deep breathing and at deep feeling and thinking and trying, and then you'll be a success at being a woman and a worker, and a beauty, too, maybe!"

COMPLICATION OF WOMAN'S ILLS

Yields to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Athens, Texas.—"I had a complication of diseases, some of them of long standing. I wrote to you for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and some other things that you suggested. I must confess that I am much better in every way and have been relieved of some of the worst troubles. My neighbors say I look younger now than I did fifteen years ago."—Mrs. Sarah R. Whatley, Athens, Texas, R. F. D. No. 3, Box 92.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many of them state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

If you want special advice, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The Case of Alfred

THE middle-aged woman with the youthful hat sank into the car seat with a sigh of relief. "My, but I got tired waiting on that corner!" she said to her companion. "I hate this standing around waiting for street cars when there might just as well have been an automobile in the family! As I was saying to my husband this morning, it does beat all that after you slave and plan all your life for your children things never turn out as you want them to!"

"That's so," agreed the woman in the shade too bright heliotrope suit. "They just do as they please!"

"Not that Lizzie is not a good daughter," went on the middle-aged woman. "It's just that you can't tell about men. They can be the blindest, most exasperating, contrary creatures! As I was saying to my husband when he took Alfred Quam for a partner, who on earth would have dreamed that such a boyish, pleasant fellow could have such a will of his own and be so absolutely deaf to the call of what are really his own interests?

"He has money, you know, and as his folks did not live here I made up my mind that it was my duty to be kind of motherly to him," explained the middle-aged woman. "I think there is nothing so pathetic as a nice young man away from home and a prey to every designing creature who sets her eyes on him, especially when he is a good-looking young man like Alfred."

"I thought," said the other woman, "that he and Lizzie——"

"I don't believe in trying to make matches," said the middle-aged woman, firmly. "I wouldn't dream of interfering with fate! Lizzie may be 26, but she doesn't look it, and anyone with taste would realize how good-looking she is—in a quiet way, of course. I don't think it is refined to have the sort of looks that attract attention, Mrs. Garver, indeed I don't!

"The first night that I had Alfred Quam to a good home-cooked dinner I let Lizzie stir up the French dressing and stuff the baked potatoes, and if I happened to mention that she got the dinner I can't see that there was any necessity of my explaining just what part of it she got. Alfred always was glad to get an invitation to dinner. Afterward I had Lizzie show him her book of photographs. There's nothing like letting young people get acquainted.

"Anyhow, Alfred Quam might have considered himself in luck to get a nice girl like my Lizzie—not but that she could have her pick of far better than he! There's no telling what a man will like—and to think that he should lose his head over that silly, giggling Georgie MacPrang, who grew so fond of Lizzie all of a sudden on the evenings she found that Alfred was coming! Lizzie is so unsuspicious that she seemed glad to have Georgie come and make eyes at Alfred till I put a stop to it. I guess I wasn't going to have Lizzie beaten on hero wn ground.

"When he got his runabout I mentioned that Lizzie was perfectly crazy over autos and that the fresh air was so good for health. He took her out several times when I invited him to come early for dinner, so they could get a ride afterward, but it wasn't a month before that Georgie MacPrang was driving the runabout with her own hands and smiling condescendingly when she passed our house!

"You don't know what I suffered at the hands of that Georgie MacPrang, Mrs. Garver! I'd ask Alfred out for a nice little family game of cards and he'd have an engagement and the next day Georgie would drop in and tell what a fine time she and Alfred had at the theater the night before.

"He was perfectly nice to Lizzie and if she dropped into the coal office near closing time, as it was perfectly natural for her to do, since it was her father's office, Alfred would usually bring her home. 'Don't push yourself,' I told Lizzie. 'Only don't be backward about showing him that he's popular with you! That flatters a man—having him think you like him and are too modest to show it!'

"Just as I had arranged to have Alfred take his summer vacation at the same time we did and be our guest at the cottage we were going to rent, in comes that Georgie MacPrang with a solitaire as big as a paving stone, all smiles and applied blushes and throws herself on Lizzie's neck and says she must tell her first because it was through her that she and Alfred found each other.

"Isn't that enough to make a woman give up in despair, Mrs. Garver? Not that I'd have dreamed of trying to force Alfred or Lizzie in each other's direction—not me—but being a junior partner and, of course, what's her father's will be Lizzie's some day, and then Alfred would have had it all—and his nice automobile and he is so good looking—and to think that that silly Georgie's MacPrang——"

"Maybe something will happen," said her friend, comfortably. "Lizzie may yet be glad she didn't get him——"

"My goodness!" said the middle-aged woman emphatically. "Why, my Lizzie wouldn't have had Alfred Quam, not if he'd begged her on his knees."

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

THE continued demand made upon the time of Mrs. Lysander John Appleton and her daughter, Daysey Mayme, to reform the world has proved a blessing to Lysander John, leaving him uninterrupted opportunity for research work.

"I feel," he said calling the two fat pillow cushions to order, "as if my hands were being uplifted and strengthened by unseen forces; as though I, too, a mere man, have a hand in the progress of the world."

He paused. The two fat pillow cushions looked at him with such blank expressions he realized that they had reached the highest degree of culture. It meant so much to be understood, and they understood him!

"As a result of a week's deep study, and untiring poring over old manuscripts, I have found that the following problems of life remain unanswered. I open my hand, as it were, and fling them broadcast to my sex for solution. Let them come nobly forward and take this share of the world's work on their shoulders!

"Let them, I say, relieve our poor struggling mothers, wives, daughters and sisters of some of the burden of exploration of the unseen that now rests with them.

"First, I would ask: Which is preferable to sleep with—A baby, or one of those insects the commonplace call a bedbug, but which we, who are more temperamental, know as a crimson rambler?

"A woman will leave guests at the table, or her husband on his deathbed, to run to the window to see the fire engine go by, but would she run if in the midst of a marriage proposal?

"Does a wooden-legged man take his wooden leg to bed with him?

"Is there more reason for a man to be grateful to his wife for cooking a steak well than there is for her to be grateful because he bought it?

"If it is true that the spirits of our ancestors are constantly flying around us, are our women ancestors up in the air all the time because of indignation over the scraps wasted that would make quilts and rag carpets?

"Who is the more wasteful: The boy who cuts up pumpkins for Jack lanterns or the woman who makes them into very poor pies?"

He paused to give his next question impression and weight. It was a problem older than the world itself, and no one has ever solved it.

"On whose head," he asked—then he paused to scratch his head after the manner of those who are deep thinkers—"On whose head did a certain pair of insects travel on that famous journey in the ark?"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

BY YOUR ACTIONS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19 and in love with a man one year my senior. He loves me also. He has two sisters who are jealous of me and they are always telling him falsehoods about me, some of which he believes. What shall I do to prove that these things are not true? BILLIE G.

If you will conduct yourself in a way with which the most carping critic could find no fault, his sisters' charges will fall flat to the ground. Always remember that time has never weakened the force of that saying, "Actions speak louder than words."

If his love is worth the keeping he will have no doubt of your worth.

YOU DON'T LOVE HER.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 25 and dearly in love with a girl one year my junior who says she loves me. While at a party late one evening she fell asleep and started to walk in her sleep. I have heard since that she walks in her sleep quite often. Do you think we could live happily together, or should I give this girl up? WORRIED.

If you loved her, such a trivial failing would appeal to your sense of protection. Not for a moment would you consider giving her up.

Are you quite sure, young man, that you have no failings more undesirable than sleep walking? If this is the only fault she has she deserves a particularly worthy man.

Household Suggestions

A bright, glossy head of hair, easily kept in curl, may be obtained by dissolving in a pint of boiling water a small square of camphor and a tablespoonful of powdered borax. Into this liquid the brush must be dipped several times whenever the hair is brushed.

A soft piece of linen dipped in milk and bound round a rheumatic joint will often cure a most obstinate case of rheumatism. The linen should be covered with a piece of oiled silk and dipped again in the milk when dry.

The marks of matches struck on walls may be cleaned by applying the cut side of a lemon. Then rub the place with whiting, and lastly scrub with soapy water.

To prevent flies settling on pictures or windows, pour boiling water over an onion. When the water is cold use it for washing over the glass.

An invaluable cure for sore eyes is a little boracic powder dissolved in warm water. When cold bathe the eyes two or three times a day.

Soft hair bristles can be made stiff and firm by dipping them in a pennyworth of alum dissolved in sufficient hot water for washing the brush.

When frying fish, dip it in milk instead of egg before rolling in breadcrumbs. This is more economical and tastes better.

Tie a piece of lemon on a corn every night for five nights and it will generally cause it to drop out.

The Mistakes of Jennie

By HAL COFFMAN

Being a Series of Chapters in the Life of a Southern Girl in the Big City

"He is Mine!"

Chapter 15.

WHEN Jennie saw her former girl friend at the office next morning the girl scowled at her, and when she got a chance hissed in Jennie's ear: "I'll get even with you if it's the last thing in the world I ever do."

Poor little Jennie wanted to tell her that it was not her fault that the girl's fellow acted so the night before and wanted Jennie instead of the girl. But she would not listen to Jennie, only to swear at her and call her a little trouble maker.

Jennie could do nothing but think about it all day, and received a severe "call down" from the boss in which he said he had noticed for several days past that her mind had not been on her work, and that she would have to pay stricter attention or he would have to get some one that would.

Jennie noticed several times during the day that the tears were streaming down the girl's cheeks as she bent over her work. So after work Jennie waited outside and wanted to explain to the girl that it was not her fault the way the fellow acted.

The girl backed away from her and said: "You little fool, don't you know he is all I have in the world, and if I lose him I will have to 'walk the streets' for I can't and won't TRY to live on the money I get in the office. I was a fool in the first place to let him see you—for he is MINE! MINE! I tell you, and you—you little fool, let him alone!" Jennie tried to explain, but the girl flounced away cursing her.

How Strict Are You with Your Daughter?

—answer it, parents. Are you too strict, or aren't you strict enough? Either course is liable to be disastrous. Your daughter's welfare means as much to you as anything else in the world, yet do you know what to watch in bringing her up.

There are few men who know the problem as Judge Freschi does. For years a magistrate in the City of New York, his work has brought him into personal contact with thousands of girls and their stories. He has had an opportunity to analyze the causes of their failure. His name has become known throughout the country as their benefactor.

The angle from which he discusses the diverse elements that enter into the upbringing of the girl is a new one that you probably have never thought of. As a thoughtful mother or father you ought to read what he says in his article, "How Strict Are You with Your Daughter?" It appears in the

It's Up to the Local Association to Honor Rain Checks for the Second Game.

By W. S. Farnsworth.

WE have been bunked so many times on fake fights that it doesn't sting when we are forced to separate ourselves from a perfectly good two-dollar bill nowadays to see a pair of alleged boxers stall through ten rounds.

But we had always considered that the good game of baseball would net us a full value return for our money. Yesterday, however, we were "held up" and our pocketbook picked with the skill of an expert light-fingered gent.

It came first in the morning at Poncy Park. The Crackers and Pelicans were scheduled to play to a finish. Instead the game was called at the end of the tenth inning with the score two-all. It was then five minutes after 1 o'clock.

Should Have Played It Out.

All the rest of the afternoon was open and the game should have been played out. But, of course, a tie game is always played off. Thereby the local association will net great profits with a double-header on the next trip of the Pelicans here.

We stood for that bit of "highway" without squealing.

But what a yell we did let out about 6 o'clock last evening.

The Crackers and Pelicans met again in the afternoon. They had battled four innings when it started raining.

Seven thousand fans waited the usual 30 minutes.

The umpires didn't come out on the field and declare themselves one way or the other.

Five thousand fans took it for granted that everything was off for the day. The elements had cheated them out of an opportunity to witness what would have probably proved a mighty interesting battle.

But they were consoled by the fact that tucked away in their coat pockets were rain checks. They would yet be given a run for their money.

Brooms Swept Off Water.

Exactly one hour and five minutes after the game had been called the umpires, players and ground keepers appeared on the field. Brooms swept the tons of water off the base lines and play was resumed.

The management didn't want to honor those rain checks. If one more inning could be played they were in hundreds of dollars. The Pels held a 3 to 1 lead. They never figured the Crackers would tie up the count in the fifth. But they did. Then the game went on for two more innings, and again it was called on account of darkness, and still a tie.

The fans were "stung."

And we would suggest that President Kavanaugh, for the good of the game, investigate.

Likewise, the local association, if they take our suggestion, will still honor those rain checks.

Obstinate Acne Quickly Yields

Fine Remedy That Clears Skin of Pimples on Cheeks, Temples, Sides of Nose and Chin.

Acne attacks the glandular structure of the skin, more particularly those tiny glands that secrete fat.

And it is here that S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, is most active in its influence.

There is one ingredient in S. S. S., the purpose of which it is to stimulate the cells in the tissues that thus select from the blood the nutriment that makes new skin and thus eliminates all irritants, acids and parasites that inflame the glands. There is a natural tendency of the fine network of blood vessels in the skin to throw off impurities, but where a persistent inflammatory process has invaded the skin, the natural repair work of the blood is interfered with. It requires the stimulating activity of S. S. S. to overcome such morbid conditions. If you have been troubled with acne, do not despair of a cure.

You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it. The great Swift Laboratory in Atlanta, Ga., prepares this famous blood purifier, and you should take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if your blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist freely, address the Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Company, 181 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

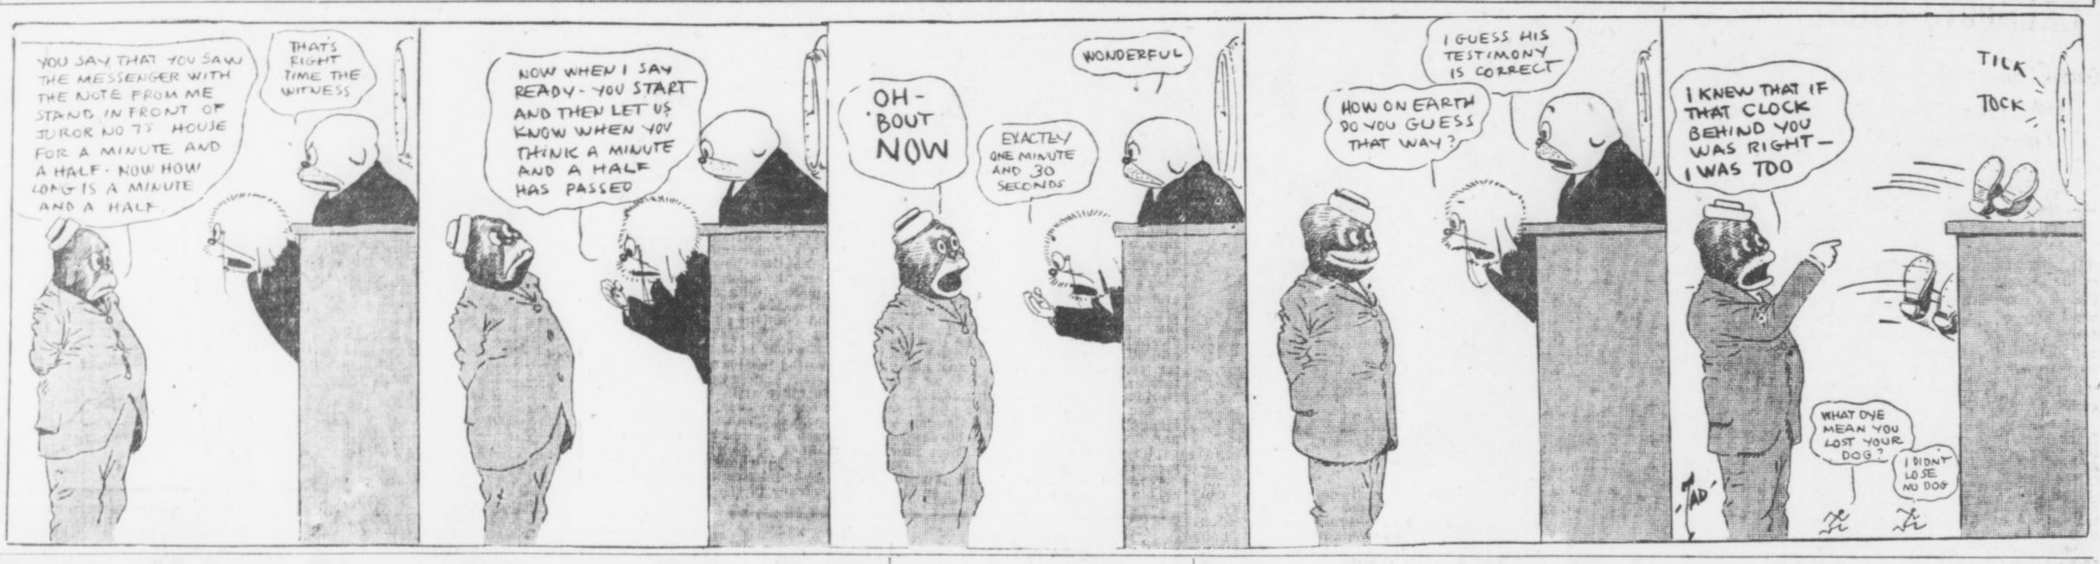
Rummy Tries to Trip Up Another Witness



Ritchie Makes Rivers Quit in Title Battle

When Mexican 'Dogged' Champion Turned Tide

By W. W. Naughton.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Willie Ritchie, the slim, serious-faced lightweight champion, defeated chubby, olive-skinned Joe Rivers, of the Southland, in eleven rounds, and by doing so retained the title coveted. The whole story in a nutshell is that it was the difference between a game lad and one who was not so game.

Before the bout started, Referee Graney and Timekeeper Harting had an earnest discussion as to which of the officials named should do the counting.

By agreement, the duty devolved upon Harting, but when the crucial moment arrived, Rivers relieved both of the responsibility. The Los Angelan actually counted himself out. He has earned the distinction of originating a new ring fashion, even if he missed in his attempt to bear the championship homeward.

This needs a little explanation, and it will be best to narrate the happenings in consequence and approach the terrific crisis gradually.

Just as long as Rivers held the upper hand he fought like a Turk. When brave Ritchie first stemmed the tide, and then turned it, the Los Angelan grew visibly discouraged.

Rivers Great at First.

It was all Rivers in the second, third and fourth rounds. Then Ritchie began to assert himself, and as the fight wore on Rivers boxed with little spirit.

Soon after the eleventh spasm of milling began, Rivers backed toward the ropes. Ritchie, who had been persistently the aggressor for several rounds, strode flat-footed after his man. A light left took Rivers above the belt line, and an equally light right brushed his lower face. Not that the blows lacked steam but the fact that Rivers was retreating and was not quite within range took the edge off the assaults.

As the clip of Ritchie's dexter glove grazed his chin, Rivers stood an instant with his back against the ring boundary. His eyes did not begin to dull like those of a man who is stung, but he lurched forward and fell to the floor. He did not fall in the inert manner of a man who has received a genuine knockdown smash.

Rivers Wanted No More.

When nine seconds had ticked away Rivers rose. Then the champion stepped close and banged his right against the Southerner's jaw. Even that punch did not appear to strike deep enough to produce full results, but Rivers was in the mood to take advantage of anything that would mean an end to the hostilities.

He dived slowly to the carpet, the palms of his hands and his knees supporting him for an instant. Then he flattened down on his stomach, with his head just raised sufficiently to keep his forehead and eyes in view.

In his eyes there was the look of a fellow who was not particularly jarred, but who had made up his mind that things had gone far enough. He assumed a look of distress which did not appeal to the writer as genuine. He began to gather his legs under him, and while doing so watched the timekeeper alertly. As each numeral denoting the passing of a second was shouted, Joe worked a little nearer to an upright position.

By the time the word "seven" came from Harting's lips, Joe was resting on one knee and the finger tips of one hand, and he was palpably checking the gong-minder's count. When at the last the sounds "eight, nine, out" rose above the turmoil at the ringside, Rivers straightened up with a look of relief. The ordeal was passed.

An Interesting Fight.

Even while Rivers performed like a craven at the finish, the bout was an extremely interesting one. It was replete with vicious spells of smashing, in which the men held each other even, and there were a sufficient number of changes of aspect to keep the crowd guessing as to what the ultimate result would be.

Even after Rivers slowed up and showed his heart was not in his work, the chance that the Southerner would land a heavy swing remained. He had kept Ritchie's head rocking in the earlier rounds, and many a Ritchie well-wisher twitched involuntarily as he noticed how dangerously close Rivers' whizzing blows went to reaching their mark later in the contest.

"DOYLE HITTING, GIANTS UNBEATABLE"—STALLINGS

NEW YORK, July 5.—"Larry Doyle has recovered his old form and that is why the Giants are now leading the National League," said George Stallings, manager of the Boston Braves, to-day. "Until recently Doyle was unable to hit with his usual vigor and the Giants were losing games. But they braced the moment Larry's bat began to meet the ball successfully. He is the king pin of the New York team, and now that he is himself McGraw's men can not be headed off."

WILLIAMS TO CLAIM TITLE; M'CAREY WARNS COULON

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July 5.—Promoter McCarey has wired Johnny Coulon that if he does not come through to-day with an agreement to defend his title Kid Williams will be declared the champion of the world and will become the possessor of the McCarey belt, emblematic of the title.

McCarey wants to see an active champion at the head of the bantam division, and if he puts Williams to the front as champion it is safe to state that the Baltimore boy will be busy from now on.

GAINESVILLE TEAM WINS.

GAINESVILLE, GA., July 5.—Gainesville won from Georgia Railway and Electric Company, of Atlanta, yesterday, 11 to 5. The feature of the game was the hard hitting of the Gainesville team.

Sports and Such

"TO SETTLE AN ARGUMENT" an earnest party wants to know if the educated or college ball player is more useful on the diamond than the boy who picked up his baseball around the sand lots.

This query may be deftly sidestepped by taking the position that it doesn't make any difference where a ball player learns to play baseball so long as he learns. But such dodges are unworthy. What the correspondent wants to know is whether education is likely to give a man the bulge on the uneducated player, and the answer is: Not so that you can notice it.

Education in any direction is useful only in the exact ratio of its application. Thus, it is easy to see that a profound knowledge of the effect of the political clubs on the life of the Athenian republic is not going to help a man decide in a tenth of a second where to throw the ball when he has nailed a line drive and three men are running in three different directions.

* * *

GIVEN A CERTAIN FAIR PROportion of intelligence and adeptness in baseball is a matter of practice. Men who think quickly on the ball field have been used to thinking quickly from infancy as a rule, and in sudden crises their minds from long habit work automatically and correctly. The time is usually too short for conscious thought.

* * *

IN THE MECHANICAL science of the game the same is true. The college professors began explaining the spit-ball a long time after Chesbro and his followers had stood the American League on its head. Chesbro didn't know any more about the physics of the spitball than he knew about the influence of the Medici on the Renaissance, but no college professor could tell him anything about throwing one. Radbourne was curving a baseball at a time when some scientists were holding that the feat was impossible.

John Ward, a real college man and a great ball player, invented the trick of left-handed batting to shorten the run to first base, and his trained mind probably had something to do with that, for it was constructive thought. On the other hand, Buck Ewing, ignorant as dirt, was even a greater baseball man than Ward and infinitely his superior as an executive.

Much of the "inside" baseball of to-day was fathered by "Ten-Thousand-Dollar" Kelly, who is considered one of the swiftest thinkers that ever played the game, yet Kelly had to have help with the menu card when he broke into the league.

Harry Dunlap, the "king of second basemen," was almost entirely without education, but his skill in working out the trapped ball trick is the chief reason that we now have the infield fly rule.

Dunlap was so ignorant that he had to make a mark to his contract in lieu of a signature, but so shrewd was his business mind that he got a $5,000 figure into the same contract, more than 95 per cent of the ball players to-day are drawing. And we know a man of rare mental attainments who once stole second with the bases full.

So there you are.

* * *

BUT COLLEGE MEN ARE made more welcome in the big leagues to-day than formerly. Not because of their thinking ability—go and watch two college teams play sometime and you will be purged of that superstition—but simply because they are turning out good ball players in scattered instances. And the college man has lost his propensity to play to the grandstand and sits humbly at the feet of a man who has no alma mater and takes his post-graduate course in the great game.

McGraw once had a college first baseman on trial. A foul was hit a mile over the grandstand, but the collegian tore after, cap gone and hair flying.

"Ah, well," said McGraw wearily, as the youth came back to his bag, "he gave it the old college try."

FORTUNE IS A JOCULAR dame. Loose-handed Garry Herrmann's team in Cincinnati played a whole game with one ball the other day, while Charlie Murphy's Cubs use up a couple of dozen a day.

Britton Now After Go for the Lightweight Title

Defeats Charley White in Handy Fashion

NEW ORLEANS, LA., July 5.—Jack Britton, the speedy Chicago lightweight, proved in his bout here yesterday with Charlie White, also of the Windy City, that he is a serious contender for Willie Ritchie's title. The clever Chicagoan defeated White in the eighteenth round of a scheduled twenty-round bout, when Referee Burke, acting on the orders of Sheriff Marero, stopped the go to save White from taking more punishment.

Although there were no knockdowns during the entire mill, Britton proved himself superior to his lighter foe. White was thoroughly beaten when Burke stopped the bout and held up Britton's glove. Sheriff Marero declared the bout ceased to be a boxing exhibition.

After the go Nate Lewis, manager of Charlie White, stated that his protege had injured his left hand during the third round and was forced to rely on his right member during the rest of the route. However, this should not take any of the glory that goes with victory from Britton.

Britton a Marvel.

He proved beyond a doubt that he is one of the greatest 133-pounders in the game to-day. His judge of distance is wonderful and he is also some puncher. In defeating White he did what very few other fighters have succeeded in accomplishing. Outside of five rounds Britton had a good shade in the other three-minute sessions. He was fighting fast at the finish and appeared fresh enough to go a number of more rounds.

Jack May Meet Ritchie.

Most of the fans who attended the mill yesterday are of the opinion that Britton would stand a great chance of defeating Ritchie if the pair ever meet. Promoter Tortorich stated that he would get in touch with the champion at once and try to close the mill.

White asked for another chance at Britton, but it is doubtful whether he will get the opportunity to get a return match with his conqueror for some time. Charlie is still a little too light to meet a boy of Britton's ability and hope to win. He weighed yesterday but 129 pounds, while Britton tipped the beam at 136.

FODDER FOR FANS

In the National League the Giants took two games from the Dodgers, the Phillies twice trounced the Braves yesterday, Cincinnati and Chicago broke even in a double-header, and St. Louis took one game from the Pirates, the other ending in a tie.

* * *

In the American League the Naps captured a brace of combats from the Tigers, the Athletics and Red Sox broke even, as did the Yankees and Senators and the Browns and White Sox.

* * *

Larry Doyle, the slugging second sacker of the Giants, seems to have permanently recovered fro mhis batting slump earlier in the season. He amassed a .400 batting average in two games yesterday.

* * *

The Phillies' two victories yesterday fractured their losing streak which had reached eight straight games.

* * *

"Game called to give players and spectators time to eat," was the unusual announcement made yesterday morning at the Red Sox-Athletics game and also at the Pirates-Cardinals combat. The latter contest had gone to eleven innings, the score standing 3 to 3 when the ruling was made, but at Boston it was in the seventh inning when the score stood 13 to 6 in favor of the Red Sox.

* * *

Tris Speaker, the Red Sox outfielder, in the second game yesterday got a perfect batting average, making four hits out of four tries.

* * *

Mordecai Brown, the three-fingered twirler who was cast off by the Cubs, pitched against his old teammates yesterday morning and added a shut-out to his list of victories.

* * *

Lajoie, the Naps' second sacker, waded deep in the second game yesterday, getting three doubles and a base on balls in four times at the bat.

* * *

Jackson, the leading batsman of the American League, further boosted his average yesterday by cracking out four hits in seven times up.

CRACKERS TAKE A FINAL JAB AT PELICANS TODAY

Games Friday Both Ties—Atlanta Team Playing Improved Ball, Even if They Don't Win.

By Percy H. Whiting.

THE concluding act of the amusing skit entitled "Pulverizing the Pelicans" will be staged this afternoon by Bill Smith's famous company of players at the Ponce DeLeon amphitheater. The curtain goes up at 3 p. m., and goes down again when the festivities are over, if they end promptly, for the Pelican team will beat it homeward to-night to play the usual Sunday game.

Of course the "pulverizing" part didn't happen to stick yesterday. In the morning game the Crackers had no luck at all with it and were fortunate to get a tie. In the afternoon the performance was duplicated. The Pelicans got away for a lead, but the Crackers managed to overtake them in time to get an even break.

Rain messed up the afternoon game. It came down in a fine deluge about the time the fifth inning was due to begin, and if the half-hour rule had been adhered to the affair would have been no game. But Frank and Smith waived the rule, the players hung around until the rain let up and the game was completed. The Crackers came from behind in the fifth, scored a brace of tallies, tied the score and kept it tied until darkness butted in.

* * *

WITHOUT wasting time trying to figure out how it happened, it's a fact anyhow that the Crackers are an improved ball club. Brenner had something on them in the morning, but they pulled some grand batting rallies. In the afternoon, when it appeared sure they were beaten, they came from the rear with a rush that gave them a satisfying tie. Of course, they were playing only the tail-enders, but these said tail-enders played plucky, determined, useful ball yesterday.

The local club is fielding and showing lots of "pep." Also, the pitchers are looking more like the real thing. Elliott Dent hurled a very presentable game in the morning. He flickered a couple of times, but made an impressive showing. And it was surely a hot morning for work. Brady held the Pels to six hits in the afternoon.

* * *

WHITEY ALPERMAN is still playing wonderful ball. "King" Brady said of him this spring that he was off on the best season of his career and it looks like a bullseye prediction. It appeared during spring practice that Alperman wasn't going to be quite fast enough on his feet to be a corking good second baseman this year. But somehow he's found his speed. And his fielding is phenomenal. He is the best pinch hitter of the team and possibly of the league. His work since he returned home from the last trip has been particularly spectacular.

CHICAGO CLUB WINNER OF JUNIOR A. A. UNION MEET

CHICAGO, July 5.—Chicago Athletic Association athletes ran away with point honors in the National Junior A. A. U. meet at Grant Park yesterday. The team captured first place in seven of the eighteen events, taking 42 points. Captain A. W. Kohler, of Michigan, was individual star, taking all the eleven points his school got. Lund, of the Irish-American Athletic Club, New York, broke the only record of the day, throwing the javelin 148 feet 8 inches, a new junior mark.

A feature of the day was the victory of James Ray, of the Illinois Athletic Club, over Strobine, an Olympic point winner in the five-mile run. Ray lay back until nearly the last lap, when he shot ahead and finished 30 yards in front of Strobine, who set the pace practically all the way. The time was 26:39.

HEINRICH SCHMIDT LOSES TO EX-FRENCH CHAMPION

LA BOULIE, FRANCE, July 5.—W. Heinrich Schmidt, of Worcester, Mass., was defeated yesterday in the third round of the tournament of the amateur golf championship of France by Peters Gannon, of Argentina. Gannon was amateur champion of France in 1910.

In the same round C. W. Inslee, of the Oneida Community Club, New York, beat Blandford, of England, by 5 up and 4 to play.

H. W. Stucklen, former champion of Massachusetts, was beaten by E. A. Lassen, the British amateur champion of 1909, by 4 up and 2 to play.

BOYD AND BRUGGERMAN WIN 200-MILE CONTEST

DENVER, July 5.—G. R. Boyd and Bert Bruggerman won in the professional class to-day in a 200-mile motorcycle race.

The time was 3:25:54 3-5. The best previous record for the distance was 4:05:54 2-5. In the amateur class C. Odcorn and Al Edenberg finished first in 3:32:00.

CARTER SEEMS SURE TO WIN S. A. TOURNEY

AUGUSTA, GA., July 5.—E. V. Carter, Jr., of Atlanta, seems sure to be the man who will face Nat Thornton, of Atlanta, in the challenge round of the South Atlantic tennis tournament. Friday afternoon Carter and Ramspeck managed to play two sets and ten games of the third, when darkness made a postponement necessary. The score stood one-all in sets and 5-5 in games, but Carter seemed to be having all the better of it. "Best three out of five sets" must be played to decide the winner.

The best tennis playing of the tournament was on tap when the crack Atlanta pair clashed. Ramspeck, warmed up by playing in the doubles with Orr against Waring and Waring, won the first four games and it looked as if he would win the championship. However, his form was not so good after that. Carter, who hadn't warmed up thoroughly when the first set ended, got better and better.

The playing was witnessed by the largest gallery that has been present during the tournament and each player was given the glad hand for his uncanny work with the racquet.

The first set was won by Ramspeck, 6-4; the second by Carter, 6-1.

Ramspeck and Orr were eliminated from the contest for the doubles championship when they were defeated by Waring and Waring, of South Carolina, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Garrett and Gary, of Augusta, who defeated the Erwin brothers 6-3 and 8-6, enter the finals with the Warings on Saturday afternoon.

Capers defeated Crocheron 6-1 and 6-4 in the consolation men's singles and will meet the winner of the White-Roseman match Saturday afternoon for the championship.

In the mixed doubles Miss Adger and Erwin defeated Mrs. Milam and Reynolds 7-5, 6-0.

Nat Thornton, champion last year of the S. A. L. tournament, is to meet the winner of the Ramspeck-Carter match probably Saturday afternoon.

ALBANY-SYLVESTER RACE IS WON BY E. HANCOCK

ALBANY, GA., July 5.—Elsie Hancock, of Worth County, won the Albany-Sylvester Marathon yesterday, covering the 20 miles in 2 hours 25 minutes and 22 seconds.

Joe Garrett, winer of last year's race, was second, 4 minutes behind Hancock. J. P. Fulghum, of Sylvester, was third, and H. A. Redding, of Albany, fourth.

DANNY GOODMAN STOPPED IN EIGHTH BY MURPHY

TERRE HAUTE, IND., July 5.—Jimmy Murphy knocked out Danny Goodman in the eighth round here last night.

Jimmy Travers, of Chicago, knocked out Willie Mitchell, of Philadelphia, in the fourth round.

WILDCAT FERNS WINNER IN FIGHT WITH DENNY

NEW ORLEANS, July 5.—Wildcat Ferns, of Kansas City, was awarded the decision over Young Denny, of this city, after a scheduled ten-round bout at Pelican Park.

PIRATES' GOOD HURLERS FAIL TO LIFT TEAM

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—For the first time in thirteen years, the Pittsburg club is in the second division as late as June 26. During Fred Clarke's regime in the camp of the Corsairs, the club never has finished worse than fourth. The low-water mark was reached in 1904. He has won four pennants and finished second or third on all other occasions. Consequently the Smoketown fans are unable to reconcile themselves to the present lowly position of the team, which in advance of the season was said to possess just one more pennant kick.

Second division clubs are as unusual in Pittsburg as first division entries are in St. Louis. The Pirate fans get just as excited over their team being in fifth place as local shouters would if either the Cards or Browns burrowed their way into the exclusive quartet at the top of the heap. For that reason there is trouble in the Pittsburg camp.

Just a Few Reasons.

Asked for a reason for the Pirates' fall-down, one of the players placed the blame on Jinx which has pursued the club with a deal of perseverance. Here are a few pertinent facts:

Wagner was on the shelf from April 10 until late in May.

Gibson broke his ankle at Robison Field on April 20 and hasn't played since.

Simon and Kelly stubbed their fingers and are unable to work.

A pick-up catcher, Coleman, from Davenport, Iowa, is doing all the work.

Butler sprained his ankle and missed 11 games.

Bobby Byrne had a long batting slump in May.

Wagner again is laid up with a lame ankle.

Artie Hofman deteriorated into a minor leaguer and was released.

"So there you are," said the analyst. "We have had good pitching," he continued. "O'Toole has developed into star. Adams has been going great. So have Camnitz and, at times, Hendrix. We have made our share of hits, as our batting average will prove, but we lacked that punch which is necessary to win. We recently lost six successive games by a margin of one run. We were losing, and couldn't get a break. One error a day would be injected at the wrong time, costing us defeat. It was pretty tough going."

JOHNNY DUNDEE EASY VICTOR IN DIXON BOUT

ALBUQUERQUE, N. MEX., July 5.—Johnny Dundee, of New York, got the decision over Tommy Dixon, of Kansas City, at the end of a ten-round fight here. Three knockdowns were scored by Dundee.

Cross Earns Right to Fight Ritchie for Title

Anderson Was Never in Running With Gothamite

By Paul Armstrong.

Author of the "Escape," "Deep Purple," "Alias Jimmy Valentine" and Other Celebrated Plays.

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—Leach Cross is the only contender for the lightweight championship.

Yesterday he took the rugged Anderson, strong as a bull, teeming with confidence. From the first stab at the body which opened the fray to the last sizzling right hook that flattened him for ten minutes—never mind the ten seconds—Anderson was second. In the first clinch he was blocked with his right chop at the short ribs. Perhaps the loss of his ace so early in the game too some of his confidence. It is a red, white and blue certainty that two body blows which Cross tore into Anderson in the seventh round took about all his steam. From that on he was kosher.

When they came stripped to the fray, there was little difference in their size—not near as much when seen in clothes. Anderson was coarser, bigger boned and looked more rugged, but Cross looked the class. He carried nothing that he could not use in the ring. He was fit, his flesh like velvet and his eyes bright as a hungry snake's.

He got lucky immediately. Anderson had copped the corner with his back to the sun. A coin was tossed. He moved and sat in the other corner, looking at the sun like an eagle. Leach went about things like a business man. He personally inspected Bud's bandages, ordered his clerks about like slaves and got the store ready for the slaughter. In the meantime Anderson smiled and let the others do their will.

Anderson Was Confident.

Cross looked pretty soft to him, evidently, for the smile of pity was still lurking on his lips when the New York boy came feinting in. He got the distance and went to the body with a left jab. He worked in again and drew a lead. They were tangled in a clinch the next second. Anderson let go a chop with the right to the body and found an elbow between him and the mark. He tried for the head and then dropped it for the short ribs. Nothing doing—years and years ago Cross learned how to block that one.

They sparred a moment. Anderson let go a left hook for the head and reached. Cross still kept working in with his straight left for the body. He was stalling for a chance to use the right. Anderson knew it—everybody knew it. Suddenly it came—short? Bud pulled out of reach with a smile. But there was a lot more Anderson had not figured on. Leach shifted as he let go the right and came winging with a left swing. Down went Anderson. He was up instantly, seemingly unhurt.

Knockdown No Accident.

Murmuring boobs who bet 10 to 7, yea, even as good as 2 to 1 on what should have been the short end at 6 to 5, laughed it away—an accident.

It was not. Not a bit like it.

It was planned and executed with deliberation.

"I used to think a pitcher could not hit,"
Said John McGraw.
"It was before a pitcher swung his mitt
Upon my jaw."

If Merkle instead of McGraw had been kicked in the head we could have solved the mystery in a fraction of a moment. The athlete who kicked him would now be wearing a crutch.

Moreover, how does it happen that Mr. Jennings has allowed Mr. Booe to escape from the majors?

ANTHEMING FOR THE FOURTH.

Oh, say can you see, by the afternoon light,
Why so loudly we root while the blood still is streaming,
As we cash in our bets at the end of the fight,
With the losers still sore and the winners still screaming.
The promoters are there with a flock of hot air,
And a man can't get by till he hands them the fare.
And the Star Spangled Banner in sorrow shall shrug
O'er the land of the pug and the home of the thug.

CONTESTS AT MOTORDROME PUT OFF UNTIL TUESDAY

The races scheduled for the Motordrome last night were postponed on account of the slippery condition of the track, which resulted from the heavy rain of the afternoon. The events will be run off Tuesday night.

TWO PROSTRATED AT ANNISTON

ANNISTON, ALA., July 5.—Two heat prostrations occurred at the baseball game between the Anniston and Talladega teams here yesterday afternoon. Howard Beavers, of Talladega, and C. J. Houser, president of the City Bank and Trust Company, were the victims. Both were removed from the field by physicians and soon recovered.

VELIE CAR LEADS IN NEW MEXICO CONTEST

ALBUQUERQUE, N. MEX., July 5. Five out of nine cars finished at Santa Fe yesterday in the first half of the first automobile endurance race to be run in New Mexico.

Four cars were put out of commission at Albuquerque and Domingo, 36 miles away, because of engine trouble and injury to cars. A Velie car, driven by Jack Weighman, made the best time, doing the 62 miles in 2:02:09.

BURMAN DRIVES MILE IN 0:32 OVER ROAD COURSE

TACOMA, WASH., July 5.—Bob Burman, in a 200-horsepower car, was declared to-day to have driven a mile in a race on the Tacoma Speedway in 32 seconds. The race management announced that although Burman's time was not official, it was the fastest mile ever made on a road course.

VERBECK, IN FIAT, WINS PANAMA-PACIFIC EVENT

SACRAMENTO, CAL., July 5.—Verbeck, driving a Fiat, won the Panama-Pacific automobile race from Los Angeles to Sacramento yesterday. His time was 11 hours and 1 minute.

Verbeck left Los Angeles at 12:17 a. m. and covered the 443.6 miles without mishap.

SMALL FIELD QUALIFIES IN CLUB TOURNEY

OWING to the heavy rain of Friday afternoon only 42 players qualified for the President's cup in the tournament that started July 4 over the course of the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Twenty players, virtually all those who started their qualifying round in the afternoon, were disqualified by the application of the fool "taking-shelter" rule.

This rule, designed for the drizzly English and Scotch climate and for professional play, is ludicrous when applied to amateur tournaments in the South, where storms of cyclonic violence are likely to sweep over the course any afternoon, making play impossible.

If the local club insists on enforcing that rule, players who can not start their qualifying play in the morning will do well to stay out, rather than to contribute to the prizes of those who are able to qualify in the mornings, when thunderstorms are not to be looked for.

The pairings for match play in the President's cup follows:

First Flight.

R. J. Jones v. James T. Smith, J. A. Ellen v. H. M. Ashe, R. G. Blanton v. James L. Dickey, R. T. Jones, Jr., v. Dr. Jackson, H. P. D. Cowee v. V. V. Tilson, T. B. Fay v. J. G. Darling, J. S. Faine v. J. O. Smith, W. H. Glenn v. J. C. Harris.

Second Flight.

D. B. Osborne v. Frank Meador, C. V. Rainwater v. G. N. Spring, Lowry Arnold v. J. K. McDonald, H. Block v. Milt Saul, J. D. Eby v. H. Davis, W. R. Tichenor v. R. E. Trippe, W. P. Hazlewood v. C. Donaldson, C. E. Rose v. T. L. Cooper.

Third Flight.

G. A. Nicholson v. George W. Walker, B. M. Blount v. winner Walker-Nicholson match; J. P. Webster v. T. L. Ingram, William Markham v. C. G. Lippold, J. D. Lightner v. J. V. Dunlap, R. I. Gresham v. winner Lightner-Dunlap match.

O'TOOLE OUT FOR YEAR; APPENDICITIS OPERATION

PITTSBURG, July 5.—Marty O'Toole, the Pirates' $22,500 pitcher, was operated on for appendicitis yesterday. He will be out of the game for the balance of the season.

MACK SIGNS BRICKLEY.

BOSTON, July 5.—Connie Mack has signed up Infielder George Brickley, a brother of Charlie Brickley, the star football player of Harvard. Mack has had his eye on Brickley for some time.

LARSON DIDN'T FIGHT.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., July 5.—Chuck Larson did not go on with Jimmy Anderson here and there was no fight in the city worth mentioning.

HARRY KNIGHT MEETS DEATH IN AUTO RACE

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 5.—"Well, just this once more and I'm done," said Harry Knight as he slipped under his steering wheel of his racing car yesterday and prepared to line up for the 200-mile race.

On the 110th lap Knight was thrown from his car as the result of a blown tire and was run over and killed by the car driven by Johnny Jenkins, his best friend. Milton Michaelis, his mechanician, was so seriously injured that he died soon after. Both men claimed Atlanta as their home, though both came originally from Indianapolis.

The death of Knight resulted from an accident similar to the one that gave him the title of "The Hero of the Indianapolis Track." On this occasion Knight drove his car into the concrete wall surrounding the track to avoid running over a man who had fallen from a car.

Knight had been officially declared out of the race, owing to time lost as a result of engine trouble, but despite the fact that he had no chance for the prizes he insisted on continuing the race. Almost in front of the grandstand a tire blew, the car swerved, went over, righted—throwing both men to the ground. Jenkins, who was chasing Knight, went over his body. Knight was terribly mangled and died instantly.

Ralph Mulford won the race, breaking the world's record for 200 miles on a dirt track. He won the distance in 3 hours 21 minutes and 48 seconds. The previous best time was made on the Columbus track by Spencer Wishart in 3 hours 28 minutes and 4 1-2 seconds.

Harry Endicott was second, with the time of 3 hours 45 minutes and 34 55-100 seconds. Ernest Reeder was third, with the time of 3 hours 47 minutes 53 65-100 seconds. Ralph DePalma finished fourth and just within the prize money, with the time of 4 hours 42 61-100 seconds. Prizes aggregated $5,000.

THEFT NO WORSE THAN DODGING YOUR DEBTS

Line Between 'Mine' and 'Thine' Too Badly Blurred at Present, Says Forbes.

By B. C. FORBES.

There is a difference between "Mine" and "Thine." Many individuals, not a few companies and a few States and municipalities need to be reminded of this simple fact. Lax notions are prevalent on the subject.

* * *

A debt is a debt. All debts are debts of honor and should be honored. In these days of unthinking extravagance too many debts are light-heartedly incurred and not paid. The habit of getting into debt, like most bad habits, is alluring at first, but, also, like most bad habits undo their victims in the end.

* * *

The phrase falling "into debt" is apt. The descent is easy enough, but the climb back is usuallypainful.

* * *

This dissertation is inspired by the frequency of late with which corporations have failed to pay off obligations falling due. Instead of walking up to the counter and handing over one hundred cents on the dollar in hard cash, as was stipulated when the debt was incurred, borrowers have too frequently resorted to makeshifts, to temporizing, to compromising, such as offering, in lieu of cash, a new obligation for the old, with an intimation that if this be not accepted the lender will fare much worse.

* * *

The most brazen instance of such questionable conduct is afforded by Atchison, Kans. An issue of some $267,000 bonds of this city fell due Tuesday. Did the lenders promptly receive their money as they were entitled to? Oh, no. In Atchison, Kan., a debt is not a debt of honor, something that must be discharged. Just read what the Mayor has the effrontery to tell the holders, who, of course, have counted upon receiving their money—money which could be used at a high rate of interest to-day:

* * *

Atchison will have $266,950 4 per cent thirty-year bonds, issued in 1883, due July 1. In the past, it seems to have been their judgment that a sinking fund was not necessary.

I have inherited a debt—I would not repudiate it, but will defer it by offering a renewal fully as good as the one you hold.

I realize the opportunity of money at present, but as a representative of the taxpayers I can not increase their obligation on account of a temporary stringency in the money market.

A new bond for the old one, with the same rate that has satisfied for thirty years, ought to be acceptable under the adverse circumstances.

I regret that it is the best I have to offer.

* * *

"Regrets" don't pay bill. The holders of Atchison's bonds care nothing about the Mayor's sympathies; they want and are absolutely entitled to receive their money, every penny of it, the moment it fell due.

Medium-Sized Acreage Tracts

ALL of us know the profit that is usually made from acreage.

It is almost a conceded fact that if a person owns good acreage, he has a sure profit in it sooner or later. When we think of acreage propositions, we think of lots of land, and naturally lots of money, because the usual acreage transaction involves a great deal of money. The demand for good, close-in acreage for subdivision purposes is increasing every day. A trip to the outskirts of the city in any direction you choose to take will convince you of this fact. We are going to offer a tract of about 100 acres, between Decatur and East Lake, which we have cut up into five, ten and fifteen acre tracts. The price and terms on these tracts make it possible for almost anybody to handle them.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Two New Residences Will Total $40,000

Pegram and Kirk Plan Announced. Mr. Little Confirms Report. Small Sales in West End.

John D. Little confirmed Saturday the report that he would build a fine residence on Pace's Ferry Road opposite the property of John W. Grant, who will also build soon.

Mr. Little's plans are not definite, but for some time he has had landscape architects working on his eighteen acres, and W. T. Downing, the well-known architect, has been planning with them to determine the character of house that should be erected.

The town house of Mr. Little at the southwest corner of Peachtree and Eighth Streets will not be sold. It is one of the handsomest houses of colonial type in the city. The new house, said Mr. Little, will not be a duplicate of the other.

There are other signs of activity in this section of North Fulton. Sam Pegram has plans for a $15,000 brick veneer dwelling of two stories at the southeast corner of Muscogee Avenue and Rivers Drive. He will build at once.

E. R. Kirk is building a $25,000 residence on Andrews Avenue, 400 feet north of Peachtree. This is two stories and of brick veneer and stone construction.

Satisfactory progress is being made on the residences of Hunt Chipley, on Wesley Avenue, and Robert Zanner and Clark McMichael, on Peachtree Road, near Wesley Avenue.

West End Park Sales.

The West End Park Company has announced the sale, through Collins Mrothers &Davies, of a two-story residence on Stokes Avenue, near Ontario Avenue, West End Park, to a client of the above agency, for $5,500, and to H. S. Norris from the park company direct of the one-story dwelling at the southwest corner of the same thoroughfares, for $3,500.

Loan Rate Reduction.

Borrowers of money on real estate report a reduction in the last few weeks on loan rates. While money was held at 8 per cent recently, a good deal of it can now be had at 7 per cent. In fact, a local real estate agency is advertising $10,000 at 7 per cent on improved property, and much larger amounts than this can be obtained. Bankers foresaw a temporary stringency and prepared for it, and now they are in a position to extend accommodations in judicious measure.

For Early Whitehall Regrade.

Whitehall regrading will be considered again at the next meeting of Council. Councilman George H. Boynton introduced a resolution providing that work start as soon as Comptroller Goldsmith certifies that the property owners have paid in their share of expense, but objection on the part of Councilman Claude L. Ashley and others caused postponement. It has already been agreed to start the job October 15.

The pith of the objection was that other work more important would suffer if Whitehall were regraded now. The Butler Street sewer work was given as an illustration.

It is estimated that the first installment will be $11,287.97, and property owners have agreed to pay the city the difference between the appropriation of $3,500 and the estimated cost.

To Sell 24 Residence Lots.

J. T. Kimbrough & Co. have placed on private sale 24 building lots on the East Lake, South Decatur, South Kirkwood, Soldiers' Home and Stone Mountain car lines, all the lots within a block of city schools, on terms of $25 down and $10 a month at 7 per cent. The price of the lots is $750. Improvements consist of tile sidewalks, sewerage and water.

Interest in Car Line Change.

The proposal to change the route of the river car line, as presented to Council, has created a great deal of interest on the part of people residing on the west side of the city. General Manager Glenn wants to open the street at Marietta and Forsyth Streets and let incoming river cars run up Walton Street from the Marietta Street intersection. Cars will turn to the right at Forsyth and to the right again at Marietta. Passengers will enter at Marietta and Forsyth Streets, rather than at Broad. The Streets Committee of Council approved the plan.

Start Soon on West Peachtree.

The West Peachtree Improvement Club announced Saturday that all will be in readiness soon for work on West Peachtree retaining walls, the same having been authorized by the Streets Committee of the City Council. The wall work will be started as soon as contracts can be let for materials, the city to do the construction. When the walls are completed the county will do the regrading, and this will be not later than September 15, according to Shelby Smith, of the County Commission.

Prominent in the West Peachtree movement have been Judge Spencer R. Atkinson, Judge E. W. Born, Frank P. Rice, Dr. William Owens, James T. Wright and others.

Frank West in Winnipeg.

H. Frank West, of the A. J. & H. F. West real estate agency, has reached Winnipeg, Manitoba, on an extensive Western trip, and writes back that elaborate preparations are being made to entertain the sixth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges this month. Mr. West states that special attention will be given the Atlanta delegation.

BUILDING PERMITS.

$2,500—Ben J. Early, 38 Lawshe Street, one-story frame dwelling. Day work.

$600—J. H. Welch, 156 Venable Street, make repairs. Embrey Construction Company.

$500—Mrs. Julia Freeman, 760 Elliott Street, repair fire damage. Day work.

A Queer Idea of Senatorial Courtesy--Particularly as Applied to Women.

Senator W. W. Stark, who represents, after a fashion, the Thirty-third District in the Senate of Georgia, has a queer idea of senatorial courtesy—particularly as applied to women.

He protested, and successfully, we are sorry to say, against permitting an hour or two's use of the Senate chamber of Georgia to a handful of earnest, sincere women of Georgia, because he—the Senator—does not "believe in" woman's suffrage!

These women did not propose to interfere with the proceedings of the Senate, and Senator Stark did not base his objections to their meeting upon that ground. He objected because he does not "believe in" woman's suffrage.

The Senator, no doubt, would have agreed, fast enough, for the Farmers' Union, or the State Democratic Executive Committee, or some other male organization, to meet in the Senate chamber, but he could not bring his weighty statesmanship to the point of permitting a few of the WOMEN of Georgia to tread within the sacred precincts of that hallowed spot set aside for Starks!

Senator Stark has much to learn. He will find that he can not slap the women of Georgia in the face—even a few of them—and "get away with it!"

The cause of woman's suffrage will stand or fall NOT by the standards set up by the Starks.

It will stand or fall in Georgia, according to the COMMON SENSE AND FAIRMINDEDNESS OF THE PEOPLE!

The Georgian understands that the women turned down by the Senate will apply to the House for permission to hold their two-nights' meetings there.

We believe they will be granted the small and perfectly legitimate favor they ask. The House will hardly repeat the remarkable and silly performance of the Senate, engineered by Senator Stark, and carried through, we really believe, before the Senate had opportunity to think of what a foolish and unwarranted thing it was being made a party to.

Teach Atlanta Mothers How to Bring Up Babies

Members of the Atlanta Mothers' Congress, who have undertaken to provide the poor babies of the city with milk during the hot summer months, have inaugurated a campaign of instruction.

Much of the milk is delivered by the members of the congress in person, and instruction on the care of babies can easily and readily be given.

The following rules for the care of the child have been indorsed by leading physicians throughout the country, and should be told and emphasized to every mother to whom deliveries of milk are made:

If you are worried about your baby, have a doctor see it, A GOOD DOCTOR. If you can not get a good doctor, go to the Department of Health, get the advice of a doctor at a free dispensary.

Don't wean the baby when the weather is very hot, if you can possibly help it, or when it is ill. The change in food upsets the digestion and may be fatal at a critical moment.

Feed your baby regularly.

Sacrifice everything to this important point. The child's stomach gets used to food at certain times, and digests it easily at those times, if the food is regular.

Every two hours in the daytime, and every four hours at night will do for feeding for a healthy child.

Don't dress your baby warmly, HAVE NOTHING TIGHT AROUND ITS NECK OR STOMACH, KEEP EVERYTHING LOOSE AND AIRY EVERYWHERE.

Have your windows open day and night. Keep the baby off the dirty floor, where it gets germs on its little hands and puts them in its mouth.

Remember that in the really hot weather the thinnest possible clothing is all that a child needs. One little, thin, cotton shirt, low-necked and without sleeves, will do while the baby is indoors.

Avoid strong draughts. But better a draught than not enough air.

Above all, give your baby enough to drink. If the baby cries in hot weather, give it two or three spoonfuls of water, cool, BUT NOT ICED.

Boil the water that you give your baby. And keep the boiled water tightly corked in a clean bottle so that germs won't get into it.

Feed it with a spoon dipped in hot water, A CLEAN SPOON.

Dangerous signs of disease that carry off children suddenly are vomiting and diarrhea. Notify your doctor, or the Health Department, AT ONCE.

Let your baby REST. KEEP THE FLIES AWAY FROM IT. THEY BRING DISEASE.

A young baby, washed clean in the morning, with cool but not cold water, put on its back almost naked on a bed with a mosquito netting thrown over the top of the bed (but not touching the child)—such a baby, fed regularly, with water to drink when it wants it, will be happy in hot weather.

Don't let the children tease the baby. Don't let grownup people play with it and tire it. Remember that it is GROWING UP AND DOING NOTHING ELSE. Don't try to awaken its intelligence or make it laugh.

If you stir up the little brain you disturb the little stomach. Remember, WHENEVER A BABY CRIES SOMETHING IS WRONG.

Don't get cross; FIND OUT WHAT'S THE MATTER; that's your business. It may be a tight string, a bandage drawn too closely around the legs, need of a change of linen, or it may be thirst.

Don't feed the baby every time it cries. Give it water. Remember that.

It's Tough on Poor Father

"Gee, It's Salt."

MEANING AND SCOPE OF THE NEW CURRENCY BILL

Editor The Georgian:

I wish to thank you for the explanation which you have made regarding the meaning and scope of the new currency bill which is before the Congress for action.

I have read your several editorials on the subject and desire to say that I not only concur in your opinion regarding the measure, but feel sure the lucid explanation which you have made will serve to give your readers a better and more comprehensive understanding of the bill than it has been possible to gather from the brief references made to it in the general press. I think it an excellent idea to put the facts about proposed important legislation within reach of your readers that they may have an opportunity of weighing them and ascertaining whether or not this legislation is what they want.

Cost of Neglecting Our Merchant Marine

More Than $1,000,000 Is Paid Each Day to Foreigners Building and Operating Foreign Ships to Carry the Trade of Our Country, He Says.

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES

IT is estimated that for the fiscal year ending June 30 the exports of the United States will reach the enormous figure of $2,400,000,000, and that the balance of trade in our favor will approximate $675,000,000—a sum never before equaled upon the balance sheet of nations.

These figures are a tribute to our national greatness and prosperity. They carry also a serious reflection upon our national enterprise and a distinct humiliation to our national pride.

For of all this mighty commerce overseas less than 8 per cent was transported under the American flag. This magnificent balance of our trade is almost cut in two by the enormous sums we pay to foreign ships to carry our own products to the markets of the world.

More than $750,000,000 of foreign capital is to-day invested in foreign yards building ships to transport the commerce we furnish.

MORE THAN $1,000,000 IS PAID EACH DAY TO FOREIGNERS BUILDING AND OPERATING FOREIGN SHIPS TO CARRY THE TRADE OF OUR COUNTRY. OF THIS $1,000,000 DAILY PAID 20 PER CENT GOES TO FOREIGN LABOR.

This $1,000,000 each day should be given to the American laborer and kept at home to do American business instead of going abroad to feed foreign labor and to enrich our commercial rivals.

No Delivery Wagons.

This is but a single phase of the injury we suffer from having no ships of our own. Our stupendous foreign trade is made in the face of the greatest obstacles. It would easily double within the next five years if we had our own ships—our own delivery wagons—to carry our trade to our customers.

The rate paid by every passenger and by every pound of freight going from any port of this country to any foreign port is fixed in advance by agreement among foreign steamship combines and conferences. If an American shipper desires to send a bushel of wheat or a bale of cotton or of any other product to Europe, he must pay the rate fixed in advance by the trust in Hamburg, Germany. If an American merchant wishes to send a barrel of flour or of cement or a piece of machinery or any freight to South America, he must wait until the foreign steamship combine in this country can ascertain from Europe what price must be charged for carrying it.

Not an American vessel runs from this country directly to South America beyond the Equator.

EVERY AMERICAN CITIZEN THAT CROSSES THE ATLANTIC OR GOES TO SOUTH AMERICA MUST PAY THE RATE THAT THE FOREIGN STEAMSHIP COMBINE FIXES IN ADVANCE IN JENA, GERMANY. OF COURSE, THESE RATES ARE ALWAYS THE HIGHEST THAT THE TRADE WILL BEAR.

Six per cent net is considered a reasonable profit upon investment of great sums of capital in this country. Yet the Hamburg-American Steamship Company admits a net profit of more than 10 per cent upon a capitalization of approximately $100,000,000. In fact the real net earning of the Hamburg company is said to be nearer to 20 per cent annually. This tremendous profit is chiefly levied upon American commerce.

Opposition to America.

Not only are all freight and passenger rates from this country to foreign ports fixed by agreement by these foreign combines, but these conferences constantly discriminate against American commerce in all competitive markets.

Take South America for illustration. The American shipper pays exactly the same rate from this country to South America on slow and antiquated ships running at irregular intervals that his European rival pays on fast modern vessels running on regular schedule. Now and then the European shipper by secret arrangement secures an advantage. Not only this, but the European shipper is given an immense advantage in promptness of delivery.

Under no circumstances will these foreign steamship combines permit an advantage to the American shipper.

To illustrate: Brazil prefers our flour. She gave us an advantage of 30 per cent over the other nations of the world in flour. Immediately these foreign shipping pools increased the freight rate on flour to just that extent. Again we were given an advantage of 20 per cent on cement. Immediately the freight rates between this country and South America on cement were increased over Europe until the European manufacturer controlled the market.

Deadly Tactics.

These are the deadly tactics followed by these foreign steamship lines in respect to every competitive article in which our country's products might have an equal chance with foreign products. And all the while we go on pouring our millions of servile tribute into the laps of the foreigners that rob us.

Every fact stated above as to the attitude of these foreign steamship combines has been testified to under oath by the agents and representatives of these combines in the recent Congressional investigation.

These combines state boldly that they monopolize our trade, that they fix our freight and passenger rates by agreement and that these rates are made in Europe. They further acknowledge that they are violating our anti-trust laws and that they intend to continue to violate them!

Yet because they are foreign companies we submit to this extortion and defiance of our laws with an indifference and complacency that is cowardly and shameful.

In the pending tariff bill an attempt was made to at least express our right to favor our own ships. It is simply inconceivable that an American Congress should have been deterred by any sort of influence from doing this and doing more!

The French in Mexico

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

IT was just 50 years ago—June 10, 1863—that the soldiers of Napoleon the Third, under the command of General Forey, with drums a-beating and bunting a-fluttering, marched into Mexico, to establish upon these Western shores a great Latin kingdom.

Almost immediately after the entry of the French, and doubtless by pre-arranged program, there was a meeting of the "Assembly of Notables," at which it was decided, with all due solemnity, that there should be established a monarchy with the City of Mexico as its capital and with Maximilian, Archduke of Austria, as Emperor.

On June 12, 1864, Maximilian and his wife entered the city of the Aztecs as Emperor and Empress, and three years later, June 19, 1867, the farce ended with the crack of the rifles which sent Maximilian to his death and his consort, broken-hearted, back to Europe.

The "Assembly of Notables" did not amount to as much as its members thought it did; and the Old World was given its first practical demonstration of the power of the "Monroe Doctrine;" a doctrine which, it would seem, Napoleon the Third had not looked upon with becoming seriousness.

To this day the Maximilian episode remains a puzzle to the student of history.

Some say that the idea of a great imperial Latin State side by side with the great English-speaking communities furnished the fascination upon Napoleon's mind which was responsible for the business; while others hold that the pursuit of the bubble was a necessity imposed upon the Emperor by the exigencies of his situation.

SHOOTING FOLLOWED ROW, WITNESS SAYS

COBB FEARS INJURY IS PERMANENT

CRACKSMAN SHOT IN GUN BATTLE

Kirkwood Residents Capture Postoffice Robber, Who Blows Safe but Gets No Money.

With late developments indicating that Walter Turpin, the yeggman who cracked the safe of the Kirkwood postoffice Friday night, is a "modern Fagin," who takes young boys under his wing and schools them in the ways of crime, the authorities of DeKalb County and Atlanta are scouring the country to capture two boys said to have served as lookouts while Turpin fired the charges of nitroglycerine.

When the posse of citizens and officers, hastily formed after the first explosion in the postoffice, reached the scene, two boys, both wearing knee trousers, leaped from the shadows of the building and ran down the street. The officers yelled at them to halt, but the boys paid no attention and the posse opened fire. Both escaped, apparently without injury.

Turpin, in statements made to the authorities Saturday morning, denied that the boys were with him. He was alone in the attempt to rob the postoffice, he said. Sheriff McCurdy and Chief of Detectives Lanford, however, are of the opinion that Turpin, like the famous Dickens character, conducted a regular school of crime in Atlanta, and that the two boys were children who had come under his influence and whom he was using in his operations.

Turpin Tells Story.

Turpin Saturday morning told the complete story of the attempt to rob the safe and of the events that led up to it.

"I was released from the Federal penitentiary, where I had been sent from Richmond, Va., for counterfeiting, February 22," he said. "I have been working at the Shoe Renury on Auburn Avenue, and before that I worked at several places as a tailor. I planned the robbery of the Kirkwood postoffice about a week ago when I went out and looked over the ground and made my plans.

"Last night I left Atlanta about 11 o'clock and got out to Kirkwood about 11:30. Earlier in the afternoon I got some whisky on Courtland Street near Decatur, and was very drunk when I got to Kirkwood. I entered the building through a window, and in moving around, trying to get my bearings, I fell down the elevator shaft, a distance of about 10 feet. I wrenched my back, and it was five minutes before I could move. Then I managed to get hold of the cables of the elevator and drew it down into the basement, and then rode up to the first floor.

Injury Prevented Escape.

"I found the safe, all right, and prepared to blow it. I had four ounces of nitro-glycerine, which I had made by soaking two sticks of dynamite in water and then squeezing them. I made my soap cup and fired the nitro-glycerine. The first shot raised the handle and combination of the safe. Twenty minutes later I fired the second shot, and it raised—other things. Then people began shooting at me, and I was so busy I hardly know what happened. I had hurt my back so badly in falling down the elevator shaft, however, that I could not have gotten away even had I not been shot."

Turpin says his real name is Walter Turpin, and that he is 36 years old. His home, he says, is in Chester, Pa.

The twisted front door of hte safe and the mass of splinters littering the little grocery store at Kirkwood gives an idea of the dramatic scene.

"I was sleeping on my front porch," said L. J. Cassells, owner of the store and one of the attacking party, "when I was awakened shortly after midnight by an explosion I thought was a big firecracker. I rolled over to sleep again.

"It must have been about 30 minutes later when I was awakened by a loud explosion that must have been heard for miles around. My wife and I jumped out of bed and she turned on the light. I turned it off and took my stand to watch at the window,

'Hello Girls' Throw Open Summer Camp With Informal Dance

Camp Wyanoke presented a beautiful scene at its opening last night when 100 young ladies of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company entertained a number of friends at an informal dance. The pavilion, just completed, was gayly decorated.

The camp, an innovation in the way of entertainment for the "Hello Girls," has been established under the auspices of officials of the company and is in charge of competent chaperons. The young women employed by the company will spend their vacation there.

Mrs. Mattie Kirkpatrick, of Decatur, is in charge of the camp. She will remain there for three months. Miss Kathryn C. Tatum and the chief operators, Mrs. Belle Mitchell, Miss Ada Melor, Miss Alice Means and Miss Estelle Rutledge, form the committee in charge.

Griffin Gasps as Folk Get Glimpse Of Slashed Skirt

GRIFFIN, July 5.—Griffin got its first view of the famous slashed skirt here yesterday when Miss Eleanor McHarris, of Macon, appeared at the Spalding County Fair Grounds during the Fourth of July festivities. She came near breaking up the celebration. Everybody left the barbecued meats, interest was lost in the horse races and nobody cared whether a game of ball was played or not. Miss McHarris made a brave effort to overcome the gaze of the crowd, but failed.

The skirt was not of the ultra-fashionable cut, but it was more than Griffin was accustomed to. So Griffin took a good look.

GEORGIAN'S KNEE IS HURT

Baseball's Greatest Star Was Badly Spiked Several Days Ago.

CLEVELAND, OHIO, July 5.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the greatest ball player of this or any other age, is a bench warmer for the Detroit Tigers. Injury has laid him low.

Just how long Ty will be out of the game neither he nor anyone else knows. The Georgia peach is wearing a careworn expression for he fears his injury may be permanent.

Ty's hurt is a bad spike wound on the right knee. His knee is swollen to twice its normal size and he can hardly walk. In the Detroit-Chicago series recently Ty was spiked by Weaver. He stuck in the line-up day after day until the Fourth, simply on his nerve alone.

Cobb went home to Detroit last night when the team left for St. Louis. He will have an X-ray picture taken to find out if the top of the kneecap is cracked.

Profit Made in Fake Consumption 'Cures' $10,000,000 a Year

NEW YORK, July 5.—Within the last five years, no less than 500 fraudulent "cures" for consumption have been tried on thousands of victims in the United States. Exploiters of these nostrums have reaped a clear profit of not less than $50,000,000. This is an estimate made by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The association estimates that not less than $20,000,000 is invested in the business of manufacturing and exploiting fake cures for tuberculosis, and that the annual income is $15,000,000. About one-third of this amount is spent for advertising, leavig a profit of $10,000,00 a year, which the association says is "blood money" taken from ignorant consumptives.

The association declares no specific cure for tuberculosis has been discovered, except the well-tried hygienic-dietetic method of fresh air, rest and good food.

Breezes Unable to Overcome Mounting Mercury; 90 Again

Despite heavy clouds that obscured the sun and westerly winds that tempered the heat, Saturday afternoon was warm and sultry. The thermometer climbed above 90 and for some time evinced no disposition to descend.

The morning and even the early afternoon gave promise of a whole day with a maximum temperature below 85, which would have been about the coolest Saturday of the summer in Atlanta. The mercury mark was only 82 at noon and just 84 at 1 o'clock. But in less than half an hour a heat wave struck the city, shoving the mercury up to 87. It continued to rise and by 2 o'clock had reached 91, having made a gain of 7 degrees in an hour.

At 5 and 6 o'clock Saturday morning the temperature was 71. It was 72 at 7 o'clock, 74 at 8 o'clock and 76 at 9 and 10 o'clock, when the 2-degree an hour gain started again. It was 78 at 11 o'clock, 82 at noon, 84 at 1 o'clock and 91 at 2 o'clock.

"Fair Saturday night and Sunday" is the official forecast.

Charlie Gates, With $40,000,000 Wad, Will Burn Up Broadway

NEW YORK, July 5.—"Say, kid, take it from me, there is nothing in that story about my father-in-law having beaten me up for buying wine in Minneapolis," said Charley G. Gates, son of the late John W. Gates, when he arrived in town on a special train from the West.

"Can that chatter about my black eye, too. I'm over 21 and if you know of any one who can whip me, trot him out."

According to reports which had preceded Mr. Gates, he is not on good terms with members of his wife's family and has come to town with a roll of about $40,000,000 to burn up Broadway.

Gates said he gave away $1,000,000 in tips last year, and is out to set a new high record in 1913.

Receiver Reports In Buggy Case

In the suit of the Valentine Company against the Columbus Buggy Company, Daniel McLaren, ancillary receiver for the Columbus Buggy Company, Saturday submitted his report to Judge Newman in the United States District Court.

Judge Newman ordered that F. J. Long, James D. Palmer and Benedict Kobak, who were appointed as appraisers to make inventory and appraisements of the assets of the Columbus Buggy Company, should be paid $25 each for services rendered.

It was ordered that Ancillary Receiver McLaren be discharged and that the sureties on his official bond be released.

Strike Vote on 54 Roads Is Rumored

NEW YORK, July 5.—The vote of the trainmen on 54 Eastern railroads on the strike question is almost unanimous in favor of a walk-out, according to a report persistent to-day at the offices of the Order of Railway Conductors and Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. Owing to delay in canvassing the ballots, the vote was not made public as expected.

The men demanded a wage increase and the question has been hanging fire for a year.

Frisco's End Is Seen In New Receivership

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—That a receiver had been appointed for the St. Louis, Brownsville and Mexico division of the Frisco System was learned here to-day.

Frank Andrews, of Houston, Texas, was appointed, according to a telegram received to-day by W. F. Evans, Frisco general counsel. The line involved is from Houston to Brownsville, Texas.

Railway officials see in this move the beginning of the disintegration of the Frisco System.

Balloons Still Are Racing to Northeast

KANSAS CITY, July 5.—Reports from balloons in elimination race for the Gordon Bennett cup are reaching here today. The balloon Kansas City Post this morning passed over Joliet, Ill. One passed over Madison, Wiss., another was reported at Valparaiso, Ind., one at Benton Harbor, Mich., and one at Galena, Ill.

No accidents have been reported.

PELS KNOCK MUSSER OFF HILL

Atlanta and New Orleans Clash in Final Battle of Series at Poncy Park.

Score by innings.

New Orleans	212
Atlanta	502

PONCE DE LEON BALL PARK, July 5.—The Crackers and Pels clashed this afternoon in the final game of their series. Frank's men pounded out two runs in the opening inning, but the locals came back with five in their half. The Pels also scored in the second and routed Musser in the third session. Price relieved Paul on the slab.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

Kyle singled to center. McDowell walked, forcing Kyle to second. Hendryx out, Alperman to Agler. Both runners advanced. Bagby fanned. Spencer was safe when Agler fumbled his grounder. Kyle scored on the error. Williams singled to center and McDowell scored. Williams tried to reach second on the hit and was out, Welchonce to Bisland. TWO HITS, TWO RUNS.

Long singled to center. Welchonce singled through the pitchers' box and Long took second. Alperman singled to center and Long scored. Welchonce took third on the hit. Bailey fanned. Smith smashed a single through Clancy and Welchonce tallied. Alperman went to third on the hit. Bisland grounded to Williams and Alperman was out in a chase, Williams to Adams to Williams to Brenton to Clancy to Adams to Bagby. Smith reached third and Bisland second on the out. Agler singled to left and Smith and Bailey scored. When Spencer let the ball get through him Agler took second. Agler stole third. Chapman slammed a single to center and Agler registered. Musser filed to Spencer. SIX HITS, FIVE RUNS.

SECOND INNING.

Clancy tripled to deep center. On a wild pitch Clancy scored. Adams out, Alperman to Agler. Spencer fanned. Kyle struck out. ONE HIT, ONE RUN.

Long fouled to Adams. Welchonce popped to McDowell. Alperman out, Clancy to Bagby. NO HITS, NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

McDowell filed to Bailey. Hendryx tripled to the right field fence. Bagby singled to right, scoring Hendryx. Spencer singled to left and Bagby took third. Price replaced Musser on the mound for Atlanta. Williams lined to Welchonce. Bagby and Spencer tried a double steal. Alperman dropped Chapman's throw and Bagby scored. Clancy fouled to Agler. THREE HITS, TWO RUNS.

Bailey walked. Smith also got four bad ones. Bisland sacrificed, Adams to Bagby, and both runners advanced. Agler walked, filling the bases. Chapman doubled to center, scoring Bailey and Smith. Agler took third on the hit. Price fanned. Long out, Williams to Bagby. ONE HIT, TWO RUNS.

Crowd in Marietta Street Forms Ring For Men to Fight

A spirited fight between W. F. Wesley, real estate dealer, with offices in the Empire Building, and Y. A. Gresham, a mining operator of 40 West North Avenue, attracted a big crowd in front of the Empire Building in Marietta Street Friday morning.

Spectators cheered lustily as first one, then the other, put in a telling punch.

It is said the fight was brought on by a real estate deal. The battle was going nip and tuck between the two men, with blood flowing freely from mouths and noses, when a patrolman separated the combatants.

The scrappers were ordered to appear in police court Monday morning

Waiter Had Roll Of $1,700; All Tips

BALTIMORE, July 5.—Removing several new crisp banknotes from a large wad of money, Robert Bell casually paid a fine of $100 and costs in the police station.

When arrested, he had $1,720 in notes. He first refused to tell where he got the money, but later told the police he was a waiter at the Baltimore Club and the money represented savings from "tips."

MULHALL LOBBY PROBE BEGUN BY HOUSE

Committee to Investigate Charges That Factories Wielded Influence Over Legislation.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The machinery of the House to-day was set in motion for an investigation of the Mulhall charges when the Rules Committee decided to report a resolution providing for the naming of a committee of seven by the Speaker. This committee will inquire into all the Mulhall charges affecting members of Congress and also determine if in the present Congress or previous Congresses lobbyists of the National Association of Manufacturers "did in fact reach or influence" any officer or employee of the House.

The committee also is to look into the efforts of the National Association of Manufacturers to defeat any candidates for the House.

Another object of the committee is to inquire whether improper influence has been exerted by the National Association of Manufacturers or any other bodies in the selection of committees, and find out if the association now maintains a lobby in Washington and how effective it is.

The special committee is empowered to employ all necessary legal and clerical assistance. Expenses are to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House.

Representative Levy declared he was opposed to further inquiries. The Money Trust and steel investigation, he said, had caused only financial unrest.

The resolution was amended so that the investigating committee will be called upon to determine not only what part the National Association of Manufacturers played in defeating members, but also to inquire into the activities of all other organizations and persons along this line.

This makes it possible for the committee to investigate the Anti-Saloon League, the National Woman Suffrage organization, the American Medical Association and all other organizations promoting legislation here.

Blalock Collector; Jackson Holds Tight

While A. O. Blalock, of Fayette, has been appointed Collector of Internal Revenue with headquarters in the Federal Building, he still is "on the outside looking in."

Mr. Blalock has visited Henry S. Jackson, whose term as collector expired June 30, several times, Mr. Jackson said, and asked him when he would vacate the office.

Mr. Jackson said he would turn the office over to Mr. Blalock when he produced papers ratifying his appointment.

FORECLOSURE OF A., B. & A. ROAD ORDERED

Sale Under Mortgage of Alabama and Georgia Terminal Companies Also Decreed.

Judge Pardee, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, sitting as district judge, has directed entries of decrees of foreclosure and sale under the mortgages of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad Company, the Georgia Terminal Company and the Alabama Terminal Railroad Company. Victor L. Smith has been appointed special master to make the sales.

The amounts for which the foreclosures are to be had in the different cases are: Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, $17,873,715.07; Georgia Terminal Company, $3,948,750; Alabama Terminal Railroad Company, $3,218,231. Dates for the sale have not been set.

A provision is made, directing the apportionment between the different properties of the liens of the receiver's certificates and the decree provides for the payment of these certificates out of the proceeds of the sale.

Samuel H. Pillsbury, of Boston, and Messrs. Slaton & Phillips, trusteess under the mortgages and complainant in the suits, appeared for the Old Colony Trust Company, and Messrs. Rosser & Brandon represented the defendant corporations.

Boy Held as Robber Blames Near Beer

A. L. Jones, a prepossessing young man of a good Carrollton, Ga., family, was bound over Saturday under $500 bond by Recorder Broyles for attempted burglary.

Sergeant W. P. Reed early Saturday morning saw a man at the window of Jacobs' drug store, Mitchell and Whitehall Streets, removing the stripping from the window for the apparent purpose of pulling out the pane and gaining entrance to the store.

Jones explained in Recorder's Court that it must have been the near-beer that made him do it. He said that he had no recollection of trying to get in Jacobs' store.

Double Jewels on Ankles at Newport

NEWPORT, R. I., July 5.—Mrs. Charles H. Welsh, of Philadelphia, appeared on Thames Street wearing two jeweled ornaments on her ankles. Mrs. Welsh astonished Newport a week ago when she wore a single jeweled ankle ornament, but the two are said to be far more ornate than the one exhibited last week.

MRS. BALLUE SOBS FORTH ACCIDENT STORY

Severe Questioning Draws Out Explanation Which Lanford Believes—Couple Out on Bond.

That the mysterious shooting of Captain A. C. Thompson, County Warden, by Mrs. Lucy Ballue, his companion in the Owls' Club Friday night, was not accidental, but followed a quarrel between the two is the sensational testimony which it is understood will be given by one or more witnesses who have been supenaed to appear at the trial of Captain Thompson and Mrs. Ballue on the charge of disorderly conduct.

This is in direct contradiction of Mrs. Ballue's story which she sobbingly related to Chief of Detectives Lanford Saturday, and in which she repeatedly declared that the shooting was accidental. She asserted that she and Captain Thompson were drinking together in the reception room of the Owls' Club Friday night and that Captain Thompson's revolver was discharged while she was examining it.

Two Said To Have Quarreled.

One witness, however, is said to have overheard the conversation between Captain Thompson and Mrs. Ballue which preceded the shooting. He will testify, it is understood, that the two were quarreling over some matter and that the woman snatched the weapon from its holster in Captain Thompson's hip pocket and that the shot followed.

Mrs. Ballue's confession came after an examination that lasted virtually all morning. When she was first taken into the detectives' office and questioned, she stuck to her original story that she knew nothing of the shooting.

She was taken back to her cell, and half an hour later returned to Chief Lanford's office. After an hour's questioning she admitted her part in the affair.

Tells How It Happened.

"Captain Thompson called me up by telephone yesterday," she said, "and made an appointment for 4 o'clock. I met him at Whitehall and Hunter streets, and after we had stood on the corner and talked for a few moments we went up to the Owls Club. We had two or three drinks there, and then went out for a stroll, and came back after an hour or so.

"When we came into the club again we went into the reception room and had another drink. I drank a glass of wine. After we drank, I was playing the piano and we were talking, when Captain Thompson remarked that it was hot, and took off his coat. He came over and laid the coat and his belt containing his pistol on top of the piano. I was still thumping the piano and he went and sat down on my left. I kept on playing and suddenly I glanced up and saw the revolver.

"I don't know what made me do it, but I was seized with a desire to look at the weapon. So I drew it out of the holster, and began turning it over and over in my hand.

"Suddenly, I don't know how, the revolver exploded with a loud report, and I heard Captain Thompson cry that he was shot. I was frightened almost to death, and I didn't know what to do. I dropped the gun on the floor and covered my face with my hands. I was so scared I didn't know what to do, and I don't remember how I got out of the room."

Lanford Believes Her Story.

Chief Lanford announced he believes the woman's story, and his opinion is concurred in by detectives who have been investigating the case. They declare the nature of the wound is such that it could not have been made save by a weapon that was pointing downward.

After Mrs. Ballue's confession Chief Lanford reduced her bond from $1,000 to $100 and changed the charge to disorderly conduct. It was signed by her brother-in-law, W. H. Holbrook, with whom she resides at 18 Lynch Street.

After the woman's release Captain Thompson was brought to headquarters from Grady Hospital in a cab, and a charge of disorderly conduct was docketed against him. His bond was fixed at $100. It also was signed by Holbrook. After he was released Mrs. Ballue entered the cab and drove away with Captain Thompson.

Members of Mrs. Ballue's family said Saturday morning that Captain Thompson has been paying her attentions for about a year. She is the wife of John Ballue, a structural iron worker, from whom she has been separated for three years. She has no children. For the past year she has been employed at Nunnally's Overall Factory at Marietta and Alexander Streets.

Arrested on Street.

Detectives Doyal and Waggoner, attached to headquarters, arrested Mrs. Ballue at Garnett and Pryor Streets after what they asserted was an attempt to spirit her away by L. C. Raoul, secretary of the Owls' Club. The detectives, unable to find either the girl or Mr. Raoul at the clubrooms, started a search. They learned the girl and the secretary had slipped quietly down the back stairs half an hour after the shooting of Captain Thompson. They hurried down Pryor Street, hoping to intercept them before the girl was taken away.

As they neared Pryor and Garnett Streets the detectives saw a man and a woman lurking in the shadows of the building. Not knowing whether they were Mrs. Ballue and Mr. Raoul or strangers, Doyal and Waggoner secreted themselves across the street and awaited developments. In a few minutes a cab drove rapidly up to the curbing and the door was flung open. A voice from within the cab commanded the man and woman to enter, and to "hurry up."

As Raoul and Mrs. Ballue rushed across the sidewalk and started to enter the cab the detectives recognized them and hurried across the street. They accosted the two.

Woman Denies Shooting.

According to stories told to Night Chief Jett by Detective Waggoner, both Raoul and the woman were nervous when confronted by the officers. Raoul did not speak, they said, after they grasped his arm, but the woman twisted away from the detective who held her and faced them. She demanded:

"What do you want me for? I didn't shoot him!"

The woman then tried to break away and enter the waiting cab, but the officers ordered her to go to headquarters with them. Raoul, too, went along.

The detectives claim the utterance of the woman when they placed her under arrest was significant. Waggoner, whom she asked why she was wanted, and whom she told she had not shot Captain Thompson, declared that he had not mentioned the shooting or told her why she was wanted. He and his partner, Doyal, had simply told them to wait a moment, catching them just as they started to hurry into the cab.

At headquarters Friday night the woman answered the questions put to her by Chief Jett readily and composedly, and emphatically denied that she had shot Captain Thompson. Her version of the affair, as told to Chief Jett, is as follows:

Other Women in Room.

She has known Captain Thompson for some time, she declared, and last night had gone with him to the club. They entered the reception parlors of the club and took a seat at one of the tables. She claims she had drank but one glass of wine before the shooting. Her escort, it is said, was drinking highballs and rickeys, but was not intoxicated. Two other men, seated at a table near the doorway, were the only other occupants of the room.

After they had sat at the table for perhaps an hour, the woman says, Captain Thompson asked her to play the piano. She played popular music for some moments, she said, and did not hear a shot which, she said, came as she was playing ragtime in a particularly loud key. She said she supposed the sound of the piano drowned the shot. As she softened the tones of the piano she heard the sound of a fall, and turned around on the piano stool.

Then she heard Captain Thompson cry that he was shot and saw him fall to the floor. His revolver lay on the floor beside him. The two women near the door were standing by their table, and gazing in horror at the figure of the captain on the floor.

Mrs. Ballue declared she was dazed by the sight and covered her face with her hands, and when she looked up again the women were gone. A number of men, she declared, were standing over Captain Thompson, and he was telling them he had accidentally shot himself.

Thompson had been accidentally shot and had been taken to his home in a cab. The groans of the wounded man as he lay on a table in a nearby room gave them away, however, and it was discovered that he was still in the club. He was then taken to Grady Hospital for medical attention. Prior to his removal to the hospital, Captain Thompson was questioned by Detectives Vickery and Hamby, who answered the first call to the club, but he refused to talk, and would give no explanation of the shooting.

The officers accompanied the ambulance to the hospital, and continued their quizzing of the wounded man. They claim he remained sullen and defiant, but after being placed on the operating table admitted he had been shot by the girl during a quarrel. Hamby and Vickery visited the hospital again about midnight and again questioned Captain Thompson. This time, they assert, he declared the shooting was an accident, and that Mrs. Ballue had nothing to do with it.

The report that when they entered the club Captain Thompson registered himself and his companion as "Mr. and Mrs. Thompson," is denied by Secretary Raoul. Mrs. Ballue declared her escort did the registering and she did not know what names he wrote. She said she supposed, however, that he had written her real name.

Harry Latham, a court deputy, told the police that when he met Thompson and Mrs. Ballue in the club rooms, Thompson had introduced her to him as Mrs. Thompson, at which Mrs. Ballue became angry and exclaimed that she was not his wife—that she wasn't anyone's wife.

Captain Thompson has been in charge of one of the convict camps of Fulton County for several years. He is 30 years old and unmarried, and lives on the Howell Mill Road.

U. S. SETS SMOKE AND DRINK RECORD

Consumes 64,500,000 Barrels of Beer, 143,300,000 Gallons of Liquor, 7,707,000,000 Cigars.

WASHINGTON, July 5. — The American people drank more whisky and beer, smoked more cigars and cigarettes, and chewed more tobacco during the fiscal year 1913 than in any other yearly period of the nation's history, according to estimates based to-day upon the record-breaking internal revenue receipts of the Federal Government for twelve months ended June 30.

The drinkers consumed 142,300,000 gallons of whisky and brandy and 64,,500,000 barrels of beer.

Smokers puffed 7,707,000,000 cigars and 14,012,000,000 cigarettes. Patrons of the pipe smoked 403,200,000 pounds of tobacco and chewers of snuff disposed of 33,2000,000 pounds.

Despite the high record, the number of saloons of the country decreased by 18,000 during the year, the retail liquor dealers numbering about 450,000.

Assessments on drinking and smoking luxuries, on corporations and on oleomargarine and other articles taxed by the Federal Government brought into the United States treasury $344,426,884, the greatest amount in history, exceeding the previous high record of 1911 by $21,900,000.

250,000 KAFFIRS REBEL IN AFRICA

Reign of Terror Grips Johannesburg — Many Striking Gold Miners Slain by Police.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA, July 5.—Many striking gold miners in the Rand district were shot down to-day by British soldiers in the worst fighting which has occurred in the great gold tie-up of South Africa.

This city is held at the mercy of turbulent mobs, armed with rifles and dynamite. One thousand strikers, including many Kaffirs, paraded through the streets shooting up the city and causing a reign of terror.

In one clash with the police 65 men were shot. Half that number were killed. A state of anarchy exists in many districts. A mob of 1,000 rushed the railway station at Braamfontein Park and burned it.

Fighting was in progress here all night and it was estimated that at least $50,000 damage was done. Efforts of the police to control the situation was futile.

A state of revolution has been brought about by the action of the blacks in joining the strikers. At least 250,000 Kaffirs are taking part in the deeds of violence.

The unions are trying to induce members of other trades to join the walk-out, thus completely tying up all the industrial interests in South Africa.

Mrs. Carrie A. Moffatt Dies at Age of Eighty

Mrs. Carrie A. Moffatt, one of the oldest and best-loved residents of Atlanta, died Friday morning at 3 o'clock at the residence of her granddaughter, Mrs. Mark J. McCord.

Mrs. Moffatt was born at Columbus, Ga., 80 years ago. She was educated at Mobile, Ala., and after her marriage to the late Frederick Moffatt moved to Atlanta. She was a devout Christian woman, and was one of the first members of the old Wesley Chapel, now the First Methodist Church of Atlanta.

Mrs. Moffatt is survived by two grand-daughters, Mrs. Henry Inman, and Mrs. Mark McCord, and a grandson, Ben Lee Crew.

Funeral announcements will be made later.

Plan to Rid Kansas of Coyotes by Freezing

SAFE ROBBER IS CAUGHT AFTER GUN FIGHT

Reformed Burglar Wounded in Battle With Kirkwood Citizens. Wrecked Postoffice Vault.

which is only a hundred feet or more from the store.

Robber Seen at Work.

"Pretty soon I saw a faint light in the store and almost immediately I jerked on my trousers and ran to get Mr. Fleming next door. My wife telephoned Marshal Phillips, who joined us, with City Clerk Ray about the time we left the Fleming front gate.

"Stealthily we circled around the little store, finally grouping ourselves at the elevator door, which we found open. A moment later we were inside, and about this time the yeggman saw us. Brandishing his pistol, he dodged behind a barrel.

"From there he retreated only after Marshal Phillips dislodged him with a pistol ball which missed its mark. Turpin then dodged us and made for the elevator room, only to find this blocked by City Clerk Ray.

"It was then that Turpin made his last desperate stand while almost in the center of the little store. There he blazed away with his pistol at every flash of the searchlight which Marshall Phillips flashed to search out his man in the darkness.

Turpin Return Shot for Shot.

"The searching rays of the little light were swallowed up soon in the brilliant flashes of fire which belched from our four guns, Turpin returning every shot, in dodging this way and that. Finally, making a charge forward, Phillips grabbed Turpin's gun and bore Turpin to the floor.

Even then, however, Turpin fought like a madman and finally was subdued only by the combined efforts of all four men forming the attacking party. As he sank to the floor, apparently desperately wounded, he murmured his name, Johnson.

"It is a wonder we were not all killed, for the fusillade of shots was terrific. It took all of us to handle the yeggman," said one of the posse.

Turpin's Roommate Held.

A peculiar angle to the Turpin case developed Saturday morning when detectives took in custody 14-year-old Thomas Eberhart, a newsboy, whose home is in Dunwoody, Ga., and who has been Turpin's roommate for the past three weeks. Since last Tuesday Turpin and the boy have been rooming at the home of Stephen Marine, 226 1-2 Marietta Street. Prior to that time they had occupied a room together at the Union Rescue Mission at 230 Marietta Street.

The theory of the police is that Turpin was trying to gain control of the boy so he could use him in his criminal operations. The boy insists that he never has accompanied Turpin out at night.

"Last night I came in about 8 o'clock," the boy told the police. "Turpin was drunk, and lying down on the bed. In about half an hour Turpin got up and said he was going out and didn't know when he would be back. He left his keys and everything he had in his pockets on the dresser.

Had Burglar's Kit.

"Turpin was always nice to me and said some day he would show me how to make some easy money. Ofter he has asked me if I didn't want to make a whole lot of money, but he didn't tell me how. He went out a great deal at night, and always kept a lot of hammers and things in the drawers of his dresser. He esaid he was a shoemaker and that they were his tools."

"Turpin came to the Mission after he was released from the Federal prison four months ago," said R. E. Boutwell, connected with the Rescue Mission, "and was given a room. Three weeks ago we put the boy in with him. Last Monday Turpin left and said he was going to live at 226 1-2 Marietta Street."

APPLICATION FOR LEE'S RELEASE DELAYED

Watchman's Lawyer Says He Will Await Return of Dorsey Before Filing Habeas Corpus.

On account of the absence from the city of Prosecuting Attorney Hugh M. Dorsey, Bernard L. Chappell, attorney for Newt Lee, announced Saturday that he would not file a writ of habeas corpus until Monday. He claims in the petition for the release of the negro that Lee is being held unlawfully and without any charge against him.

Solicitor Dorsey left for his country place at Valdosta, Ga., Saturday morning. He will return Monday.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey will ask the courts to hold the negro as a material witness for the State, or may charge him with being an accessory. He was determined Friday to take no chances on so important a witness getting out of his control, as he feared the negro might get beyond the jurisdiction of the courts if given his liberty.

Attorney Chappell and Solicitor Dorsey had agreed, when the negro was committed to jail, to keep him there until the trial. Chappell notified Dorsey Wednesday that he wished to withdraw from the agreement and get his client freed.

Chief Discounts Conley Rumor.

The announcement Friday that the defense had secured an important and damaging affidavit that connected the State's star witness, Jim Conley, more directly with the crime created a sensation in the ranks of the prosecution.

Chief of Detectives Newport A. Lanford announced that every movement of the negro on the day of the crime had been "checked up," and that it was a matter of impossibility to find anything more damaging against him than his admission that he helped dispose of the body at the request of Frank.

In commenting on the affidavit secured at the office of Joseph H. Leavitt Thursday the attorney said that it would be almost impossible for the prosecution to break down any statement that was made in the affidavit when the witness was placed on the stand.

Calls Evidence Vital.

He said the witness was a citizen of high standing and would be one of the most important for the defense of Frank.

Attorney Leavitt said that this particular affidavit was one of more than 50 that had been recently secured that dealt almost exclusively with the movements of the negro on the day of the murder. While he would not comment at any length, he intimated that the defense had been able to establish conclusively the exact time Conley entered and left the factory.

He also intimated that affidavits had been secured that would show what time Monteen Stover entered and left the factory and be able to prove she left before Mary Phagan's car reached the vicinity of the pencil factory.

BANK HEAD GETS 6 1-2-YEAR TERM

Judge Brand Sentences J. W. Griffin at Athens—Motion Entered for New Trial.

ATHENS, July 5.—Judge C. H. Brand to-day sentenced J. W. Griffin to 6 1-2 years in the penitentiary for "wrecking" the defunct Athens Trust and Banking Company.

Griffin was found guilty at midnight Thursday, after a long drawn out trial. Some months ago he pleaded guilty, without a trial, and was then sentenced to five years, but a new trial was secured and his new sentence carries eighteen months more imprisonment.

Immediately following the sentence, a motion was made by the defense for a new trial on the grounds that Judge Brand illegally interferred and communicated with the jury before the verdict was given out. This was overruled by Judge Brand and will be decided by the higher court.

LONDON, July 5.—A warrant was issued to-day for the arrest of Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, daughter of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, president of the Women's Social and Political Union. Miss Pankhurst has been a leader of the militant suffragettes since she was 17 years old. She has served several terms in jail. She vowed she would never marry until women got the vote.

The warrant charges Miss Pankhurst with inciting others to riot.

Bishop Says Prayer Book Holds Nonsense

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, July 5.—In the Upper House of Convocation for the Province of Canterbury, the Bishop of Ely to-day moved for the appointment of a committee to revise the Prayer Book and Psalter. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

The Bishop of Ely said that all were aware that the Prayer Book and Psalter contained "passages which, to speak truth, are not far removed from being nonsense."

Many persons have good tenants moving into their property to-day merely because yesterday they had an ad in The Georgian's For Rent Columns. Phone Main 8000 or Atlanta 8000.

COL. PAXON AIDS AND PRAISES MILK FUND

Colonel Frederic J. Paxon, chief of staff for Governor Slaton and one of Atlanta's foremost business men, Saturday morning forwarded his personal check for $25 to the Atlanta Mothers' Congress, through The Georgian, to aid in the campaign to supply the poor babies of the city with milk during the hot months.

In a letter which accompanied his check, Colonel Paxon congratulated the members of the congress on their zeal and hard work in behalf of the poor babies, and characterized the movement as an advanced step along the line of civic development. His letter, in full, follows:

"The Atlanta Georgian, City:

"Gentlemen—I congratulate you, and that most heartily, on your efforts to furnish pure milk to the babies of Atlanta whose mothers can not afford to buy same. A movement such as this must necessarily be recognized as an advanced step along the line of future good citizenship and civic development; for how can we have forceful men and women unless the foundation is laid in earliest childhood?

"Inclosed find my check for $25 toward this worthy cause. I am, Yours,

"FREDERIC J. PAXON."

BULGARS CHARGE GREEK GUNS; 5,000 LOSS

Terrific Fight Raging Near Salonika—Another of Ferdinand's Armies Routed.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ATHENS, July 5.—Nearly a quarter of a million soldiers are engaged in a terrific battle which is being fought between Greece and Bulgarian armies north of Salonika.

The battle line extends for 100 miles, and from dispatches received to-day from the Greek military headquarters in Salonika it is estimated that more than 5,000 men had been killed or wounded.

There were 80,000 men in the Greek army, which is opposing a force over 100,000 strong. The Greeks have the advantage in location, occupying a lofty plateau. The Bulgarians charged repeatedly up the shell-swept slopes, exhibiting the utmost gallantry in their efforts to capture the Greek artillery.

Bulgars Charge Up Slope.

More than 150 heavy guns were ranged along the eminence and the most desperate fighting centered around these batteries. With brilliant courage the Bulgarians swept up the sides of the plateau, which was soon covered with dead and wounded troops.

Dispatches from the front said that the result would be decisive. King Constantine directed the operations of the Greek army from headquarters in Salonika, and it was believed here that he would take the field in person if he saw the day were going against his army.

A second Bulgarian army of 30,000 men is reported to be moving to join the troops engaged in battle. The second Bulgar army was at a point south of Tachynos Lake to-day, advancing on a forced march for the battlefield.

Greek Victory Reported.

A Greek victory is reported from Kilkis, where the Bulgarians were crushed by the heavy ordnance of the Hellenes. The Bulgars were unable to bring their artillery into action, owing to the fact that the infantry had outdistanced the artillery in the march upon the Greek forces.

The Bulgarian soldiers were dispersed, leaving behind sixty heavy guns, which the Greeks captured.

Servians Rout Bulgars After Five-Day Battle.

BELGRADE, July 5.—After a battle lasting five days, the Bulgarian army, which has been engaged with a Servian force near Uskub, began a retreat to-day, leaving 1,000 prisoners of war and 300 heavy guns in the hands of the Serbs.

Official announcement of a Servian victory following receipt of dispatches from the front caused intense rejoicing here.

Albanians Resist Advance of Serbs.

DURAZZA, ALBANIA, July 5.—The flame of war is sweeping Albania. Servians and Albanians are engaged in hostilities near Matia, and heavy losses have been inflicted on both sides.

The Servians are massing an army near here, evidently intending to reoccupy the port.

Bulgars Claim Big Victory Over Servians.

SOFIA, July 5.—The Bulgarian Government claims a decisive victory over the Servian first division east of Uskub. Announcement was made today by Premies Gueschoff that the Servians had been driven back with enormous losses.

According to dispatches from Bulgarian army headquarters, the Servians are retreating, following a long battle in the Vardar Valley.

Divorce and Death Sequel to Tag Day

SILVER LAKE, WIS., July 5.—An effort was being made to-day to determine whether the drowning of Leroy D. James in Silver Lake was an accident or a suicide. James obtained a divorce recently after he found his wife and G. Frank Greene, of New York, in a hotel room together. Mrs. James had met Greene when she was helping with a "tag day" campaign for charity.

The James divorce case was the cause of the city authorities abolishing tag days.

Crazed by Heat, Man Kills Wife and Self

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., July 5.—Crazed by the intense heat, Ben Strong, a well-to-do planter of Meridianville, near this place, emptied the contents of a double-barreled shotgun into his wife's breast, killing her instantly, and calmly reloading the weapon literally blew his head from his body.

Neighbors were attracted to the scene by the screams of the two small children of the couple.

SALVATION ARMY MAID'S 'PUNCH' DOES FOR ROWDY WHO GRABS HER

She delights crowd by struggle with man.

Seized as she leaves saloon, severely pummels loafer.

Miss Pearl McKay Is Heroine of Attack While Selling "War Cry" in Saloon.

One might not believe pretty Miss Pearl McKay, a sixteen-year-old Salvation Army lassie, has punch enough in her right arm to put out a big, strong man, but there is one man in Atlanta who knows that she has. Generally Miss McKay's uniform entitles her to every protection, but, to quote her own words, "sometimes a rowdy who doesn't know any better tries to get fresh."

Miss McKay sells the "War Cry" in offices, stores, on the streets, and also in near-bear saloons, and only one time during her six months' experience in Atlanta has she had an unpleasant experience.

On this occasion Miss McKay was selling the "War Cry" in a near-beer saloon. Starting out the door, she was seized from behind by a intoxicated man. Quickly turning, Miss McKay struck the man in the face. This angered him, and instead of loosening his hold, he tightened it.

With a desperate effort she tore from his grasp and struck her assailant with all her might. He staggered back, but the little Salvation Army lassie's ire was up, and she went after the man, raining blow after blow on his face and head.

The onlookers applauded the plucky little maid as she continued her punishment.

Evidently realizing that there was to be no let-up in the sturdy blows of the angered girl, the man turned and fled, followed by the delighted jeers of the spectators.

Atlanta-Carolina Highway Proposed

ELLIJAY, July 5.—A monster barbecue and good roads meeting was held at Ellijay yesterday in the interest of an automobile highway from Atlanta to Murphy, N. C. Enthusiastic speeches were made by Dr. E. W. Watkins, of Ellijay; C. J. Haden, of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, Professor Harwood, of the Chamber of Commerce of Murphy, and others.

A practical working scheme suggested is for Gilmer, Pickens and Fannin Counties to pool their convicts and go to work on the road at an early date, raising money by popular subscription for machinery.

Saneness of Fourth Delights Atlantans

Atlanta advocates of a sane Fourth of July are rejoicing Saturday over the saneness of the celebration here. But four accidents were reported, and none of them are regarded as serious. Despite the crowds the ambulance drivers had a quiet day, and throughout it was the most sane Fourth which Atlanta has ever experienced.

Chief of Police Beavers, to prevent disorder, doubled the force throughout the daylight hours. The officers, however, found everything serene.

Senate Is Likely to Ignore Insult to Flag

WASHINGTON, July 5.—No official notice will be taken by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee of the trampling unedr foot of the American flag in Winnipeg, Manitoba, yesterday, if Senator Bacon, chairman of the committee, has his way. He said to-day:

"I regard this incident as the ebullition of an excited crowd. I am sure no national recognition of the act will be made."

"It seems to have been a very foolish affair," said Representative Broussard, of Louisiana, member of the Foregin Affairs Committee of the House.

FULTON CONVICT CHIEF DEFIES JACKSON

Donaldson Ready to Invoke Law in Fight Against Long Religious Services in Camps.

Declaring Marion Jackson and his associates on the prison reform commission know absolutely nothing of convicts and religion, and that he would resort to law before he would submit to their conducting long services at the convict camps in Fulton County, Superintendent T. J. Donaldson declined to compromise Saturday morning at a meeting of the Public Works Committee of the County Board.

Jackson said he had the people of the county behind him in his fight to obtain the proper kind of religious services for the convicts, and that while he would rather get what he was after without a fight, he would conduct a campaign against the limit of one-hour services each Sunday if necessary. The Public Works committee agreed to hold a meeting later and definitely settle the matter.

When Marion Jackson asked the County Board to place the religious services at the convict camps under the direction of Philip Weltner, of the prison reform board, and let him designate lecturers and preachers for a morning and afternoon service, Captain Donaldson for the first time voiced a protest.

Disputing Jackson's assertion that the convicts welcomed the Sunday services, Captain Donaldson said they had voiced their protest at giving up the entire day of rest to services conducted from early Sunday morning until late Sunday afternoon.

He said he had no objection to the men attending one service each Sunday, which should not last more than one hour, provided he should have the selection of the ministers and the number to go to each camp.

The rather heated meeting terminated when Captain Donaldson announced he would consult the law before he would go into any agreement on the subject.

PRESIDENT HIDES AT SUMMER CAPITAL

Wilson Forgets All State Business, Ordering Secret Service Men to Bar Reporters.

WINDSOR, VT., July 5.—President Wilson arrived here at 10:50 a. m. today to spend the summer. He was met by Mrs. Wilson and two of his daughters, and the party motored to the Summer White House at Cornish, N. H., three miles away.

Upon arrival at the Summer White House the President gave orders that no newspaper correspondents or photographers were to be admitted on any pretext. The President said he was in Cornish to take a rest, and that he would transact no official business nor even consider matters which would tend to disturb his brief vacation.

If anything of public moment occurs, the President said he would return to Washington, but he would not discuss it here. The squad of six secret service men is on hand to see that the President's orders are carried out to the letter.

According to present plans, the President will remain until Tuesday afternoon, but he may stay longer if developments in Washington are not of such a nature as to necessitate his presence.

Negro's Head Turns Shot; Woman Injured

KANSAS CITY, MO., July 5.—A bullet fired by a negro at George Wren, another negro, struck the latter on the forehead, glanced from his skull and wounded Mrs. Edward T. Smith, 60, who was passing in a street car.

Wren was slightly injured. The shoter escaped.

ARMY OF PAST IN RETREAT FROM GETTYSBURG

Thousands of Blue and Gray Clad Veterans Leave Great Bivouac of Peace.

GETTYSBURG, PA., July 5.—Gettysburg again resounds to the tread of marching men. Thousands of blue and gray clad veterans, the great army of the past that has encamped for six days on the hilltops around the town, are passing through it on their way to railroad stations and homeward. By to-night the great battlefield will be as deserted as it was 50 years ago and the jubilee celebration a thing of the past.

Beginning early this morning, special trains outward bound—north, east, south and west—pulled out of Gettysburg at quarter-hour intervals. It is estimated that 20,000 veterans abandoned camp during the forenoon. The remaining 10,000 will leave during the afternoon. About 25,000 of the old soldiers started for home yesterday.

The 50,000 tents making up the city of canvas will not be removed before next week. On Monday Major Normoyle will set his regulars at work striking the tents and getting them ready for shipment.

Governor Tener and other notables left during the morning, but General Liggett, commander of the encampment, will not leave with his staff until Thursday.

The second special train, which left at 6:30 o'clock this morning, carried Confederate veterans to Maryland, Virginia, the Carolinas and points southward.

Atlantans' Brother Seeks Big U. S. Job

RICHMOND, July 5.—Colonel William H. Chapman, revenue agent in charge of the Virginia District, is being strongly urged for the position of chief revenue agent, with headquarters in Washington. This place is now held by G. W. Trowbridge, a Republican.

Colonel Chapman is a close friend of Colonel William H. Osborn, of Greensboro, N. C., the new Commissioner of Internal Revenue. He is a brother of Miss Kate Chapman and Edmund G. Chapman, of 62 Fraser Street, Atlanta.

Two Drowned Near Savannah on Fourth

SAVANNAH, July 5.—The Fourth took a toll of two deaths near Savannah yesterday. George Egan, 17 years old, of Barrigan, was drowned in a creek near Herb River, Thunderbolt, when he got over his depth while in bathing. But for the timely arrival of a boatman, Dewey Holmes would also have been drowned.

James O. Knight, aged 22, fell from a boat on the Ogeechee River and was drowned before other people in the boat could go to his rescue. He was attending a Sunday school class picnic.

Giant Fish Wounds Boy, 16, in Swimming

MARSHFIELD, WIS., July 5.—The following fish story is vouched for by Dr. Harold Jensen, of Park Falls, Wis., who dressed the wounds of the boy.

A giant muskallonge attacked Frank Haasl, Jr., 16 years old, when he was in bathing and tried to drag him beneath the surface. When the boy was rescued he was covered with scratches and bites, and it was necessary for his swimming companions to carry him in an automobile to the nearest physician.

Effective Home Remedy For Lung Trouble

It is a serious matter when the lungs are affected. A trip away or to a sanatorium is not only expensive, but it involves separation from home and friends. Some are benefited, but few can safely return. Eckman's Alterative is effective for home treatment. For example:

231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J.

"Gentlemen: In the fall of 1905 I contracted a very severe cold, which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise sputum, and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alterative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed by regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected, and I cannot praise Eckman's Alterative too highly. I have recommended it with excellent results."

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' drugs stores, and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

Operatic 'Hear Ye!' by A Schumann-Heink

NEW YORK, July 5.—Henry Schumann-Heink, son of Madame Schumann-Heink, the prima donna, received word yesterday at his home in Paterson N. J., that he is first on the list for the position of court crier in the Passaic County Common Pleas Court.

Many quips were heard about regarding his suitability for the position, as he has inherited a fine voice. Friends of the young man declared that, instead of the dry monotone of the ordinary court criers' the "Hear ye, hear ye!" will hereafter be given in clear, operatic notes.

The New Bazar

edited for the woman who must keep au courant with the smart world

THE best from each field of art, all the resources of brush, pen and camera, beautiful paper, perfect typography, render it a magazine individual in its expression and absorbing in its interest to the woman of fashion. In its new form, Harper's Bazar is the edition de luxe of women's magazines.

Sparkling with the news of both Europe and America, the Bazar makes instant appeal to the woman of the smart world.

If she would read of social functions, races or sports here or abroad, she finds in it the most noteworthy. If she would discover the latest creations from the ateliers of Paris, she sees here their most recent expression.

The skill of the couturière, of the artist, of the decorator is displayed in its myriad possibilities. Vexatious questions as to the maintenance of her establishment and any like phases which come within the realm of the woman whose time is much in demand, are discussed by those well versed in these matters.

In the July number, Elsie de Wolfe gives a description and views of her own home; Mrs. August Belmont has an illustrated article concerning the artistic development of the child; the lovely Countess of Warwick reveals the secret of the retention of personal charm.

There are photographs of the newer landscape effects secured in the Rockefeller gardens, and reproductions of the most famous paintings of Mrs. Astor, Mrs. George Gould and other renowned beauties of our times.

What is more, there are the costumes which are most à la mode from the stage, models from Lady Duff Gordon, sketches by Tighe, showing the newest cunning of the French houses and an important message from Henri Bendel as to Fall hats.

For diversion, a new set of Elinor Glyn's piquant letters and another powerful story from the pen of Robert W. Chambers with illustrations by Charles Dana Gibson.

COUNCIL ORDERS W. PEACHTREE MATERIAL

Retaining Walls Will Be Put in Soon, Ready for Grading to Begin September 15.

Council's Streets Committee did not celebrate the Glorious Fourth as a holiday, but spent the afternoon considering plans of improvement.

A resolution by Councilman Jesse Wood was adopted, authorizing Chief of Construction R. M. Clayton to purchase material for the retaining walls on West Peachtree Street. Chairman Shelby Smith, of the County Commission, had sent a communication to the committee announcing the county would be ready to begin the regrading of West Peachtree Street by September 15.

An effort was made to put the county convicts to work at once on the Whitehall Street regrading project, but the committee decided it would be impossible to begin this work before October 15, the date originally agreed upon.

When the Atlanta Gas Light Company made a proposal to sell to the city its tar road binder, Agasco, for six cents a gallon, members of the committee declared they considered it a good idea to use the binder on all chert roads. Councilman Claude L. Ashley said he would endeavor to have it used on Forrest Avenue.

On the request of the Georgia Railway and Power Company the committee decided to recommend to Council that permission to change the river car line be granted so as to relieve congestion at Marietta and Broad Streets, the present terminus of the river line.

The plan is to have the river cars come in Walton street and around into Marietta Street by a loop through Forsyth Street, passengers being taken on at Grady Monument.

OBITUARY.

The body of Dr. I. C. Smullian, who died in Salt Lake City Wednesday, will arrive in Atlanta Sunday afternoon. The funeral will be held at 4 o'clock from the residence of his father, A. Smullian, at 133 Capitol Avenue. Interment in Oakland.

The Body of Elizabeth Smith, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Smith, of Oxford, Ga., was taken to that place Saturday morning for funeral and interment. The child died Thursday afternoon at 14 Baltimore Place, where the family was visiting.

William M. Dooley, 26 years old, died at a local sanitarium Friday night. Mr. Dooley formerly lived at Chattahoochee, Ga., and is survived by one brother, F. J. Dooley, of that place. The body was removed to Patterson's chapel. Funeral announcements later.

The Funeral of Wallace Rickett, 21 years old, who died at a local sanitarium Friday afternoon, will be held from the chapel of O. A. and Roy Donehoo Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mr. Rickett is survived by a sister, Mrs. J. C. Fleming. Interment at Westview.

Mrs. Cora Brown, 35 years old, died at a local hospital at 9:30 o'clock Friday night. Mrs. Brown formerly lived at 15 Fulton Street, and is survived by one daughter, Mrs. David Fowler. The body was taken to the chapel of Harry G. Poole. Funeral arrangements later.

Evelyn G. Curtis, the 21-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Curtis, 17 Addie Street, died at a local sanitarium at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. The funeral services will be held from the chapel of Greenberg and Bond at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Interment at Hollywood.

The Funeral of Mrs. Ellen Cleckler, who died at the residence, 26 Langhorn Street, at 9 o'clock Friday night, will be held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the residence. Mrs. Cleckler was 52 years old, and is survived by her husband, W. J. Cleckler; one daughter, Miss Pearl Cleckler, and two sons, H. R. and F. D. Cleckler. Interment at Westview.

Extra Inducements in Race for Votes End at Midnight—Candidates Hustling.

A rush is on in the contest department of The Georgian and American. This is the last day of the pony contest bonus offer for clubs of five subscriptions, and the contestants are filing in by the score, turning in hundreds of dollars for subscriptions and taking advantage of the opportunity to win extra votes for every group of five into which their lists of subscribers may be divided.

Until midnight Saturday the office will be open to receive subscriptions, but after the tick of midnight the club of five offer will not count.

When the special offer closes the work of tabulation will begin. There is no hope, however, that the contest department will be able to compile all bonuses and award them properly before a week has elapsed. Probably the announcement will be made in The Sunday American a week hence.

Almost every candidate has hustled his best to take full advantage of the offer, and hundreds of dollars for subscriptions have been turned in. Through a misapprehension, many thought Friday the last day on which these clubs could be voted. This was a mistake, but it did no harm. Those who were misguided simply were told they had another day in which to work.

By far the greater number, however, enjoyed the outing at Grant Park. Nine of the pony outfits, some harnessed to buggies and some saddled, left the Alabama Street offices of the contest department at 1 o'clock. Arriving at the park, there was a frolic. Every contestant had a chance to ride or drive a pony, and there was lemonade for all.

BASS VIOLIN MASTER BLINDED, RESTS BOW

'Dolph Wurm, the South's greatest master of the bass violin, has had to rest his bow. Cataract has grown over his eyes. As his light gradually has been shut out the darkness has drawn him more and more into seclusion.

Atlanta musicians are telling his story as their most interesting bit of "shop talk."

Many, especially old-time, Atlantans, remember him as the slender, serious-looking little man who stood on the left end of the orchestra, wearing a black silk skull-cap and leaning on his big fiddle until he became a natural part of the scenery.

He was the Thor who hurled the theatrical thunder. He was the master who marked the syncopated time of the first "rags" at the society balls, silence before the motives of his music had had time to create the real turkey trot.

Fiddle 123 Years Old.

There is no more interesting figure in Atlanta to-day than the old man in his quiet home down on Pine Street with his old comrade, the fiddle, close beside him as he dreams of other and eventful days.

The fiddle, which Mr. Wurm himself said once could vibrate so strongly that it rattled the window panes, now has a plaintive note on account of its cracks. It was made in Germany in 1790 and was brought to this country by the owner's father in 1848.

Mr. Wurm was for 40 years one of the principal members of the Wurm Orchestra. They furnished the music at all the society events at the old Kimball House, when the Kimball House was the social center of Georgia. For 18 years they formed the orchestra at DeGive's Opera House, now the Bijou Theater. All the members, especially 'Dolph, on account of his big fiddle, grew to be among the best known men in Atlanta.

He Loves the Instrument.

Mr. Wurm took out his fiddle when a Georgian reported called to see him. Tenderly he stroked its strings.

"A bass fiddle is not usually regarded as a very affectionate member of the orchestra," he said. "The other members try to make of it an object of humor. They used to joke me about not being able to sit down when I played.

"Somehow the instrument impressed me differently. When my father began to teach us to play on the different instruments I naturally took to the bass violin. And I have stuck to it ever since, always playing the same fiddle.

"In this day most of the musicians in Atlanta have something else to do which they call their regular vocation. They play for extra money. But I never did anything but play the bass violin. Mind you, I never married, and lived economically.

Once Chess Champion.

"During my leisure I played chess. That program seemed to me the best way to enjoy life."

Mr. Wurm explained that he had not played for a year. He said he also had to give up his beloved chess, of which he was once the champion of Georgia. But in his calm philosophy he remarked:

"My doctor tells me as soon as this cataract is ripe he can operate and restore my sight. Then in a few months I will be playing again, both the fiddle and the game of chess.

"Of course, the old fiddle is cracked. You know it doesn't matter how much you may think of a bass fiddle it is awkward to handle. But the tone of my old violin is still deep and sweet, though not so loud as it once was."

ARREST NEAR OF AUTOIST WHO HIT CHILD

Citizens Join Hunt for Speeder. Declare They Can Identify Guilty Driver.

The police dragnet set for the automobile driver who ran down and seriously injured little Eva Kilpatrick last Wednesday has resulted in the finding of a clew which, it is believed, will result in the arrest of the guilty party within twenty-four hours.

Special Officer J. B. Dorsett, who had been detailed on the case, reported to Captain Poole Saturday morning that he had found several persons who reside in the vicinity of the Kilpatrick home who say they will be able to identify the driver of the car.

Although none of these persons witnessed the accident, they did see the car both before and after the accident, it is said, and furthermore have seen the same car pass down Mills Street on other occasions.

In the meantime the war on speed has been waged so vigorously that Recorder Broyles had not a single case before him Monday morning. He declared, however, that breakers of the law would promptly be sent to the stockade upon conviction.

AUTOISTS!

Take a spin to Crystalake Country Club Sunday (Bennett's Mill) via Jonesboro and Fayetteville. Hour's ride over fine roads. Beautiful grove around 100-acre lake. Good bathing in clean water. Pick you out a nice lot and join the club being formed. Fine fishing. Delightful place to camp and spend summer. Ask for Mr. Carroll, on the grounds.

Boys! Fans! All Lovers of BASEBALL!

Do You Know---

How, why and when this play by "Ty" Cobb should be made?

How and why a catcher "shapes the ball?"

Why the straight overhand swing is more valuable in obtaining control of the ball than either the side arm or the "rise" ball?

The proper way to make a double play at second?

How a player should hold the bat when laying down a bunt?

Why a catcher should use the snap throw to get a man stealing a base?

The proper way to field a ground ball?

How to make the ball "carry" on a throw?

The proper position for covering second to get a man out stealing?

Why the batter should "choke the bat" to get the best results?

All these questions and many more are answered in

FINDS FARMERS SERFS UNDER U. S. LAWS

John Sprunt Hill, of American Commission Abroad, Recounts Needed Credit Reforms.

By JOHN SPRUNT HILL.
(North Carolina Member American Farm Credits Commission.)

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, July 5.—The banking system of America has until now been conducted too much on city lines. It has neglected the farmer.

Investors will not furnish money to the farmer at the same rates of interest as to railroads and corporations:

Firstly, because of antiquated laws in a majority of the States taxing mortgages at from 2 to 3 per cent, while railroad bonds, payable to bearer, and therefore easily concealed, practically remain untaxed;

Secondly, because of the lack of machinery for placing land mortgages before the investor.

U. S. Banking Restrictions.

We have one banking institution for about 4,000 people in the United States, but national banks are prohibited by law from lending money on real estate and a great majority of the State banks, savings banks and trust companies, for some reason which they are unable satisfactorily to define, share this prejudice.

Though along this line in the United States is moulded almost entirely by city bankers who do not come in close contact with the farmer and small land owner. City bankers are apt to assume that principles governing the conduct of business in cities should be applied to the financial affairs of farmers. The result is that the merchants and manufacturers and business men in cities have virtually all the machinery for obtaining cheap credit in their hands while the average farmer is thrown back on such forms of high-priced credit as he can obtain from local merchants.

Financial Serfdom.

The small farmer is, therefore, restricted in the choice of places for buying his supplies, forced to pay at least 33 1-3 percent higher for supplies than other persons paying cash, is also frequently restricted as to the place for selling his products, denied the benefits of competitive prices, and in many cases reduced to a state of financial serfdom.

There is no such discrimination in Europe. Generally speaking, Continental Europe furnishes sound, elastic credit to the farmer on as good or even more favorable basis than to any other class. We need a campaign of education along this line in the United States that will promote a better understanding between our bankers and farmers.

We need a system in the United States by which land mortgages can be quickly and economically mobilized so that collateral trust bonds issued on these aggregated mortgages can be made readily negotiable and marketable.

What is the plain story of Europe should be the story of the United States, namely, that farm lands on a basis of real value, earning power and stability are the best asset in the country. Some day doubtless President Wilson and Bryan and Taft will give more attention to the farmers and less to cities.

In the United States we need co-operation to still the raging winds of discontent and give relief in the sunshine of equal opportunity of organized democratic manhood and brotherly love.

Need of Co-Operation.

Co-operation is necessary to check socialism, which tends always to drag things down to one level. Co-operation is essentially American. Socialism is not American. In many parts of Europe co-operation flourishes, and land is considered a safer and more favorable basis of credit than stocks of corporations and other securities.

The foolish laws and more foolish prejudices against extending credit on land as security should be abolished, and as in Europe, money advanced 5 per cent or less, should be brought within the reach of the small farmer. Our antiquated laws should be reformed, and our farmers should know some of that "new freedom" of whom President Wilson speaks and hopes so much.

Taste for Melons Seems on the Wane

Dealers in watermelons are up in arms over the apparent lost appetite of Atlantans for the luscious fruit or vegetable, as you choose to call it. Despite the fact that a large supply of the juicy fruit was in Atlanta yesterday the demand was small.

"What has become of the old watermelon cutting parties?" queried one dealer. "The sale of watermelons in restaurants is greatly on the increase, but the home consumption is falling off rapidly.

Snubbed by Senate, Suffragists to Ask House for Chamber

Undaunted by the refusal of the Senate to allow them to use the Senate chamber for meeting places, Atlanta suffragists will attempt to obtain the House of Representatives hall. When the House convenes Monday it will find a large delegation of women waiting to make this request.

Floor Leader Blackburn and Representative R. Y. Smith, the suffragists claim, will bring the matter before the House. So far go objection, they say, has been offered to their using the House chamber.

Mrs. Mary McLendon is quite certain the House will grant them the courtesy, which she declared had been accorded them before.

"The spectacle of the women of Georgia having to beg the men for courtesy is truly a pitiful sight," said Mrs. McLendon.

HOUSE PAGE PREDICTS HE WILL BE PRESIDENT

Two D. F. McClatcheys who hold important positions in the Georgia House.

Boy thinks Speaker and Reading Clerk should be one.

Reading Clerk McClatchey's 8-Year-Old Son Has Determined on Career of Public Service.

Eight years of age with three years' experience as a page in the House of Representatives is the luck of D. F. McClatchey, Jr., who is also quite fond of sitting on the knee of his father, who has been Reading Clerk of the House for sixteen years.

Young D. F. bids fair to prove as popular as his father, who manages to inject enough life in the reading of House bills to make it pleasant for the Legislature. Acoustics of the House are not the best in the world, and the powerful voice of D. F. McClatchey is about the only one which has ever overcome this difficulty.

The ambition of young D. F., though, is to combine the positions of Reading Clerk and Speaker. He like his father's job, but he also has a great longing to handle the gavel.

He is sure of a place as page in the House until he is old enough to vote, when he expects to become a full-fledged member of the House. He will then take a turn in the Senate, put in a couple of terms as Governor, try out Congress for a few terms and then make himself President. And there's not a member of the House who does not believe this prediction is more than apt to come true. The youngster can shake hands with you as heartily as any politician who ever lived, or curl up in his father's lap as cute and loving as a youngster should be.

"Keep your eye on that young McClatchey," is the way his father likes to refer to him.

Turn Verein Holds Its Annual Picnic

Members of the Atlanta Turn Verein enjoyed their annual picnic at Germania Park yesterday. An unusually large crowd attended it, and from 10 o'clock in the morning until late last night there wasn't a dull moment.

Dancing was indulged in, while nearly everyone donned a bathing suit and spent hours in the lake.

SEARCHING SIDELIGHTS ON POLITICS IN GEORGIA

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

The political hosts in Georgia may not realize it quite, but when William Michael Bairman, of The Macon Telegraph, passed away on Thursday last the best informed man on things political in Georgia ceased to be.

Not only was he the best informed man in Georgia on State politics, but he was one of the sweetest and gentlest characters that ever lived within the Commonwealth.

Mr. Bairman was modest to an extraordinary degree, and one rarely saw his name in print—this writer never saw it figure in the head lines, at least, until those head lines announced Mr. Bairman's untimely death.

He it was who kept for years that remarkable "scrap book" of The Telegraph, so often invoked by his chief, Colonel Pendleton, to the chagrin, humiliation and undoing of an antagonist!

If ever you, Mr. Politician, did anything in Georgia that got into a newspaper somewhere, you may rest assured it was in this fearful and wonderful "scrap book!"

And yet Mr. Bairman did not keep that book for the purpose of humiliating or undoing antagonists so much as he kept it for the honorable and worthy purpose of perpetuating genuine history and keeping the records absolutely right. Far from desiring to hurt unnecessarily the feelings of any person, Bairman would not have hurt the feelings of God's humblest creature if it might be avoided!

Like the other men of his kind one occasionally meets as one passes down the way of life, Mr. Bairman was exceedingly generous to his fellow men, both in judgment upon them and in ministering to their material wants. He rarely if ever spoke an unkind word of any man, and if he ever turned down an appeal for charity few people seem to have known anything about it.

For many years he has been Editor Pendleton's right-hand man—and it is certain that that splendid editor will miss him sorely. But the greatest loss is sustained by the readers of The Telegraph. He has been, often unknown to them, their surest source of information and fact.

Postmaster J. Park Bowie, by the womanly grace of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, will take charge of the Rome office on Tuesday next. When boys and girls together, Mr. Bowie and Mrs. Wilson used to make "mud pies."

Mr. Bowie lost an even $100, and was delayed in going into office two weeks because of a stupid and clumsy mistake made in his commission when it was first issued.

When his first commission arrived it was discovered that it had Rome down as being in "Rome" County instead of in "Floyd" County, and it had to go back for correction. So exacting are the red-tape methods in the Postoffice Department that it was two good weeks before the commission got back, shaped up as it should be.

Postmaster Barclay, the efficient outgoing official, could not see where he stood to shed unnecessary tears over the situation, however, as it rounded up an even $100 for him that he wasn't expecting to get!

Senator E. H. Elkins, of the Fifteenth District, already has grown to be one of the best-known men in the General Assembly.

He is democratic in his ways and the dignity of a Senator, while duly appreciated by him, does not sit too heavily upon him. He is a good mixer and makes friends easily.

Mr. Elkins is a fine business man, and is looked upon generally as safe and sane in judgment, and as a man whose word always is as good as his bond. He evidently is destined to take a high stand in the present Legislature.

Mr. Park, of Liberty, objects to Latin phrases in proposed bills and resolutions.

When Mr. Wright, of Floyd, sent a resolution to the clerk's desk the other day, proposing that certain days to be taken as vacation be declared "dies non," Mr. Park promptly objected. He said he didn't know what "dies non" meant, and he didn't propose to vote for something he didn't know anything whatever about!

Amid the chorus of "noes" entered against Mr. Wright's proposal, Mr. Park's was easily the most vociferous.

The present Legislature, by the way, doesn't seem inclined to do anything calculated to run the legislative session over its natural fifty days' limit.

Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick, of the Tenth District, is in Atlanta for a few days.

Mr. Hardwick has announced his intention not to be a candidate to succeed himself. He desires to enter actively into the practice of law, and feels that he can not well spare further time to Congressional service.

The Congressman from the Tenth has had ten years' experience and in that time has risen to be one of the real influential men in the House. He is attentive to his duties, and has a particularly keen insight into things. He is now a member of the House Committee on Rules, which is the highest evidence of his standing among his colleagues.

Hardwick still is a young man, and has many years of usefulness ahead of him. It is a matter of genuine regret to thousands of Georgians that he has elected to retire at the end of his present term.

Next week will see the beginning of real legislative activity.

All the committees of the Senate and House have been organized and are ready for business. There is not a committee of importance, moreover, that hasn't already on hand a more or less jam of business. Between Monday and Saturday there should be reported back to the House a large number of bills with recommendations.

Representative Crawford Wheatley intends working his big Committee on Appropriations to a frazzle, if necessary, in order to get the general appropriations bill on its way to the Senate. But before starting them to work Mr. Wheatley proposes putting them in a perfectly good humor with himself and the world in general by dining them sumptuously.

He will give the committee an elaborate dinner Tuesday evening at the Capital City Club.

FLANDERS CASE ENDED; RUMOR CONFIRMED

Evidence Is Insufficient to Show Woman Had Guilty Knowledge of Slaying, Prosecutor Says.

SWAINSBORO, GA., July 5.—The reports which have been published from time to time that Mrs. Mattie Flanders will never be tried for murder of her husband to-day are formally confirmed by a statement made by A. S. Bradley, of counsel engaged by the Flanders family to prosecute the woman.

"The State does not expect to try the case against Mrs. Flanders, and I will ask the court to enter a nolle prosequi," Mr. Bradley said.

"This in fact seems to be the only honorable course to pursue, frankly, so far as the attorneys representing the prosecution are concerned. We have been convinced of the fact ever since the trial of Dr. McNaughton, and before the jury rendered a verdict the matter was discussed among us. We decided that while the evidence showed beyond a doubt the guilt of Dr. McNaughton it was legally insufficient to connect Mrs. Flanders with the crime.

"There is great distinction between the cases against the two defendants, and this has been especially marked by the line of reasoning the Supreme Court adopted in arriving at a judgment sustaining their verdict against Dr. McNaughton.

"The State is not in possession of sufficient evidence to even lead to a conclusion that Mrs. Flanders was aware that drugs administered to her husband were poisonous.

"We have continued the trial so far for the sole reason that we felt that it might be possible more evidence would be obtained. It has not been obtained and there seems to be no reasonable possibility that any stronger case can be made out at this time. If more evidence can be brought to light in the future it still would be possible to indict the defendant and try her.

"Frankly I always have felt that I did not care to go before a jury and ask it to render a verdict of conviction in a case in which I have absolutely no confidence in the legal sufficiency of the evidence."

Smithsonian Given Star-Spangled Flag

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The Smithsonian Institution announces that the original Star-Spangled Banner was in the possession of the Smithsonian and had been placed on exhibition. This flag floated over Fort McHenry on September 13 and 14, 1814, when the British fleet attacked Baltimore. It is 27 feet 6 inches wide by 32 feet 10 inches long and has fifteen stripes and fifteen stars.

The flag that was the inspiration for the famous patriotic song was kept by Colonel George Armistead, who was in command at Fort McHenry, and handed down to his grandson, Even Appleton, of New York.

TURTLE EATS CHICKENS.

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—A snapping turtle 26 inches in diameter and weighing 47 pounds, crawled out of the lake in Lansdowne Park, East St. Louis, and ate two fine Plymouth Rock pullets belonging to Norton Bryan, who lives in Forest Place, two blocks from the lake.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK.

Two Headline Features.

Next week at the Forsyth there will be two headline features. Cecil Lean and company will present "The Motion Picture Man," and Eva Taylor and company will offer "After the Wedding." These acts are recognized headline features in all the Keith theaters and are being brought to Atlanta as features of the summer season. In addition there will be other clever acts, making up a bill that will unquestionably attract attention.

Talking Pictures Please.

The Edison talking pictures at the Grand have become so thoroughly well established that crowds are flocking to see this innovation in motion pictures. In addition to the talking pictures excellent first-run black and white pictures are given. The Grand is delightfully comfortable.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Thundershowers will continue in the Lake region and will extend into New England and the Middle Atlantic States to-night and Sunday, but will be followed by generally fair weather Sunday in the greater portion of the Lake region. In the Ohio Valley and the South the weather will be generally fair to-night and Sunday with continued high temperatures. It will be cooler in the Lake region.

The Forecast.

Forecast until 7 p. m. Sunday:

Georgia—Generally fair to-night and Sunday.

Virginia—Showers late to-night or on Sunday; continued warm.

North and South Carolina—Generally fair in the interior; showers near the coast to-night or Sunday.

Alabama, Florida and Mississippi—Generally fair to-night and Sunday.

Tennessee—Fair to-night and Sunday; continued warm.

Louisiana and Texas—Fair to-night and Sunday.

Mr. Albert Gerard, pianist.

For Mrs. Stephens.

Mrs. Eugene Mitchell will entertain the Woman's Pioneer Society at her residence, 1149 Peachtree Street, next Wednesday at 4 p. m. in honor of her mother, Mrs. John Stephens.

Independence Day Celebration.

Despite the heat, many members of the Daughters of the American Revolution attended the joint service in commemoration of Independence Day at St. Philip's Cathedral. Bishop Cleveland K. Nelson, in a forceful sermon, called the Declaration of Independence a religious document, and also declared patriotism is founded upon religion.

As a special compliment there was music by a vested choir, and organ music by Charles Sheldon. The service was attended by 26 members of the Atlanta chapter, with a representation from all other local chapters.

Assisting at Festival.

Members of the Young Peoples' Missionary Society No. 2, of the First Methodist Church, of which Miss Annie Winship Bates is president, will give an ice cream festival on the church lawn Monday evening. Besides the members of this society, the following will assist in entertaining: Mesdames George Muse, W. O. Winn, Arthur Montgomery, C. C. McGehee, James W. Austin, A. N. Hughlett, L. L. Shivers, Elizabeth Winship Bates, George Eubanks, W. O. Foote, J. W. Goldsmith, W. C. Humphries, Quinn Slaughter, John S. Owens, Hugh Lokey, Lott Warren, Joseph McCord, Wharton Wilson, Graham Williams and S. F. Boykin.

A fancy work table will be a feature.

East Lake Dance.

The East Lake clubhouse was artistically decorated with the red, white and blue flags Friday evening when the club gave a dance in honor of Independence Day. Preceding the dance, dinner was served on the broad veranda.

Among those present were Misses Nellie Kiser Stewart, Priscilla Patton, Clifford West, Lyda Nash, Mary Hines, Annie Akers, Martha Ryder, May O'Brien, Frances Connally, Jennie Lou Lindsay, Mary Blalock and her guest, Ruth Matta, of Baton Rouge; Mary Hawkins, Lula Dean Jones, Helen Hawkins, Mr. and Mrs. Valdemar Gude, Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Eby, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Shelton, Mr. and Mrs. Veay Rainwater, Dr. and Mrs. Tigner, Messrs. Wimberly Peters, Brockover Toy, Stokes Connor, Hughes Roberts, Prince Webster, Dr. Charles Hodge, Walter DuBard, Rogers Toy, Ned Hitt, Dr. Walpole Brewer, Henry Hull, W. A. Bennett, Frank Montgomery, Gillespie Adams and Palmer Johnson.

* * *

Mrs. Hilton Hostess.

Mrs. Harold Hilton entertained at a bridge party Saturday morning at her home on North Jackson Street for her guest, Miss Lella Daley, of Texarkana, Texas.

Pink and white sweetpeas decorated the porch where the game was played. The prizes were a boudoir cap and a piece of handmade lingerie.

Mrs. Hilton wore a blue crepe de chine, and Miss Daley was gowned in white embroidered crepe.

Vesper Club Dance.

One of the most interesting social events of the past week was a dance given by the Vesper Club Friday evening. The hall was decorated in the club colors of black and gold and the national colors. The guests of honor were Miss Eulula Bright Cannon, Miss Minnie Little, of Montgomery, and Miss Ethel Cantrell, of Rome.

Among those present were Misses Maude Lewis, Harriet Thumler, Evelyn Green, Rosa Belle Chapman, Ruth Atkinson, Llioulse Reed, Adelaide Calaway, Lula Black, Lucy Hinman, Elberta Williams, Annie K. Revenge Is Sweet

"BELINDA," said the brother of that good woman, looking up from his magazine, "if you sigh like that again I shall leave home. What do you find in those price lists to distress you so painfully?"

"I was trying to select enough plants and shrubs to embellish a three-acre lot and provide a succession of blooms during the summer," she replied. "I must choose only varieties that need very little cultivation and scarcely any watering and will be somewhat out of the ordinary and will cost not more than $10. After working on the problem all morning I'm convinced that it's impossible."

"What is it, a prize contest for some horticultural society?"

"No, of course not; I'm acting as a committee of one appointed by the Village Improvement Society to 'landscape garden' the public square."

"Indeed! And with the munificent sum of $10? Why is the Village Improvement Society so reckless with its funds?"

"You know very well, Ben, that in such a little village there isn't much money to spend, and the society is quite generous.

Her Scheme.

"I was invited to attend the meeting yesterday," she explained, "and offer suggestions about the planting of the square. When I finished speaking it was unanimously voted that $5 be expended on the work."

"I thought you said $10 a minute ago."

"Well, I didn't like to dampen their enthusiasm by explaining that $5 was hardly a drop in the bucket, so I told them that you and I would be glad if they would let us add another five."

"How thoughtful of you! Thank you for my share in it. I suppose they agreed?"

"Yes, and I naturally wish to do the best I can. But the society is so particular that it makes things rather difficult. Mrs. Hart says the odor of peonies makes her husband ill, and as his feed store opens upon the square that settles the peonies. Mrs. Bell can't endure flowering almond because she associates it with lonely days on her old farm. As she is the president of the society, that's reason enough for not having flowering almond. Gladys Smith thinks we should make a feature of the most expensive hydrangeas grown. She saw them while she was away at school. Miss Hitty Watkins considers lilacs dreadfully common, and they don't bloom for several years. 'Immediate results!' is the cry of the whole society.

"However, I persuaded them to buy some annuals for this year's flowers, for it's too late now to plant seeds, and to spend most of the appropriation on permanent shrubbery. It's my business to make that $10 cover my plans. Ben, will you please see if my addition is correct while I search for a better bargain in hydrangeas and weigelas? I want to get the order off on the afternoon mail."

While one was engrossed with the catalogues and the other with the auditing a shiftless figure slouched across the lawn and leaned against the porch railing. He made his presence known by an apologetic clearing of the throat.

"Hello, Mike," said Ben. "Going fishing?"

"No; I came out here on business for the improvement society. I got a bill for Miss Belinda."

"For me?" exclaimed she, astonished.

"Why, yes. You see, I ain't never been paid for the work I done last summer on the square. Them women hired me to keep it in order and I kep' the paper and trash picked up and cut the grass real often and I pulled up them house plants they sat out there that died, and I ain't never been paid. I heard that you was in charge of the square now, so I come over to get my money."

"But," protested Miss Belinda, with some warmth, "I had nothing at all to do with last year's affairs."

"No, I know that, but I went to see Mrs. Bell and she and Hitty Watkins put their O. K. on my bill, so I come on over here to get my pay, just as they said."

Miss Belinda looked appealingly at her brother. He took the none too clean slip of paper in his hand.

"I think there's nothing for it but to pay," he said, laughing. "It's only $7."

"Seven dollars!" echoed Miss Belinda. "I don't see how you can laugh, Ben. It isn't funny—it's tragic."

Funny.

When Mike, with the money in his pocket, turned his back on the brother and sister, Ben said: "It is funny, Belinda. It is positively side-splittin." Miss Belinda had to laugh.

"And now what about your plans?" her brother asked.

"I shall buy as many hydrangeas as I can with the miserable $3 and take peonies, flowering almond and lilacs out of my own garden to make up the deficit."

"Revenge is sweet. I wonder what would have happened to Mike's bill if you hadn't added our $5 to the society's appropriation?"

All Beach.

Wilfrid was sitting on his father's knee, watching his mother arrange her hair.

"Papa hasn't any waves like that," said the father, laughing.

Wilfrid, looking up at his father's bald pate, replied:

"No; no waves; it's all beach."

The Ghost Breaker

By C. W. Goddard and Paul Dickey

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

The scene of the story is laid in the Vanderlip Hotel, New York City. The Princess Maria Theresa of Segura, a beautiful Spanish woman, is suddenly awakened in her suite by the sound of pistol shots. She hears a man running down the hall. He crashes against her door, breaking the lock, and enters. She sees he is a tall, good-looking young man, dressed in evening clothes. He is carrying a revolver in his right hand, and blood is dripping from a wound in his left. He begs the Princess to hide him. She, moved by some indescribable impulse, decides that she will. She directs him to an inner room, and a few minutes later, when the hotel detective knocks on the door, she tells him she is all right and sends him away. The young man, who is Warren Jarvis, of Kentucky, comes out of his hiding place, and the Princess, for the first time, notices his wound. She is moved to sympathy and showers him with questions as to what has occurred. Jarvis tells her about a Kentucky feud between his family and another named Markham. He says he left Kentucky to avoid the feudists, but encountered one of them in the hotel, which explains the shots.

Now go on with the story.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"It's all right," said Jarvis, with a little sigh of relief. "But how am I going to get out of here?"

His liege lady smiled a little sarcastic smile.

"Resourceful man! I thought of a plan long ago—the trunk." And she indicated a capacious traveling van at the foot of the bed.

"The trunk?" he echoed, blankly. "What about it?"

"Well, you are stupid," decided the Princess. "I am sending it on the steamer at 6 o'clock."

A light of understanding but distinctly not of joy leaped to Jarvis' eyes.

"You mean to get in it?"—Good Lord!—Is it big enough?"

He walked—stood over it dubiously a moment and threw back the lid.

The Plan.

"I think so," said the princess. "And no one could possibly suspect. Take out those trays."

"Sure it's big enough," conceded Warren doubtfully, as they leaned over the interior, "but what about these?"

Something fell and tinkled on the brass work.

"Oh!" exclaimed Dona Maria. He picked it up and held it out to her, examining it curiously.

"It's nothing,' she assured him hastily, regaining possession. "I mean—it's all right—it's just a locket."

"Did I break it?"

"Oh, no—I broke it myself—on purpose—yesterday," she explained, somewhat confusedly. Then, when she had concealed it once more in the fold of her gown, she went on gravely. "It means a great deal to me—and, perhaps, to you. I crossed the ocean for that locket. Some day you may know the reason why."

Before he could make any comment she returned briskly to the matter in hand.

"We had better send these," she suggested, indicating the trays.

"Hold on—I've got it!" he exclaimed suddenly, then stopped. "No—you better phone. Ask the operator to give you the Hotel Belwood, across the street—my room is 417. Rusty, my servant, is there now, waiting for word from me." The Princess frowned and shook her head. "He can be trusted," he assured her. "Tell him to come here at once; and just say 'Warren'—that'll fetch him."

The Princess hesitated a moment as if still in doubt, but his confidence reassured her and she went to the telephone and got the connection.

"Ask if it's Rusty, and be sure to say 'Warren,'" he cautioned her in a hoarse whisper. The Princess nodded.

"Hello—is this—Mr. Rusty?" Jarvis grinned in the background at the title. "Well, listen carefully—you are to come right over to the Vanderlip Hotel, across the street from where you are. A bellboy will be waiting for you at the desk and he is to bring you right up to Room 1121——"

"And keep his mouth shut," interrupted Jarvis.

"And—and don't talk to anyone," translated the Princess. "What's that——? There was a pause and she put her lips close to the mouthpiece. "Warren," she said, waited a moment, and hung up the receiver.

Jarvis chuckled exultantly. "Now, get the desk and tell them to look out for Rusty, and also tell them to send up some wrapping paper and twine."

When Dona Marie had communicated her instructions to the desk she returned to find her cavalier, coat and overcoat thrown aside, inside the trunk cutting at the tough leather with a pocketknife.

"Got to breathe," he explained between pants. Swearing a little under his breath he threw his weight onto the knife, and the blade snapped, gashing his finger.

"Oh, what did you do?" she exclaimed with solicitation that was extremely gratifying to the knight.

"Snapped the blade," he growled, eying the bleeding cut with disgust.

"But you hurt your hand—your injured hand!"

He tried to belittle it and looked hopelessly around for another engineering tool; but Dona Maria insisted on examining the wound and bathing with alcohol and wrapping it up.

"Now, how am I going to cut a hole in that trunk? he wondered while these ministrations were in progress. Dona Maria looked about the room also.

"My shears," she suggested, suddenly.

"If they're not too light. Let's see."

"Come back here," she ordered, holding onto his hand. "It's not tied yet."

He laughed and looked down at her mischievously. "Do you know—I'm beginning to like this job already?"

The hand was instantly released and the work of making an air-hole resumed.

"What time does the boat sail?" he inquired after certain grunts of satisfaction announced success.

"Nine o'clock."

"Good!" he grunted, stabbing savagely with the shears. "That will give Rusty time to get on board with these trays and my baggage."

He toiled a few minutes more in silence, Dona Maria watching him and throwing occasional anxious glances at the clock.

"We've ten minutes before they call for the trunk," she said, at last. Jarvis raised his head to reply, when there came a knock at the door. Swiftly and silently he got out of the trunk and slipped behind the portieres that cut off the alcove, as the Princess opened the door and received Rusty and his brass-buttoned escort, who also delivered the wrapping paper and twine, and withdrew.

Rusty stood in stolid silence until the boy had disappeared, and Dona Maria invited him in and bolted the door behind him.

He was a gray-haired darky of heavy and important mien, whose architecture followed in a general way the liberal cylindrical design of New York's new courthouse. His system of locomotion was full of strange and unexpected eccentrics, and his efforts to reach a given point, however near, were always accompanied by truly distressing wheezing and groaning which deceived every one but his master. His besetting sin was an earnest devotion to the principle of repose, and his crown of glory a blind, unwavering, idolatrous loyalty to his master.

"Rusty's heart is all right," Jarvis used to say, "but it is so heavily surrounded by fat that it has some difficulty in expressing itself."

The bellboy had walked him somewhat hurriedly down the hall, and this unwonted activity, combined with real uneasiness over the possible predicament of his master, caused alarming sounds to arise from the cavernous depths of his heaving chest. Before he could spare a few cubic inches of breath for inquiry Jarvis stepped back into the room.

The Escape.

"Lor' bless you, Marse Warren!" he gasped, holding up his arms and rolling his eyes in token of thanksgiving, "I sert'nly thought you all——"

"Never mind what you thought," interrupted Jarvis in brisk tones, "Take these," and he pointed to the trays, "with our baggage to the steamship Lusitania, of the Cunard line—buy accommodations. Mind, you won't see me till after we get out to sea. Keep in your stateroom and sit tight until you hear from me. Understand?"

As promptly as if it were an everyday occurrence, Rusty had fallen to work on the trays, and, by a change in his manner of puffing, indicated that he was following the rest of the instructions.

"I'll give you the money," went on Jarvis, "and the clerk at our hotel will attend to everything and get the tickets. Then you pay the bill. No; get hold of this."

Rusty took the wallet his master held out without a word and went busily back to the trays again.

"Let me help," offered Dona Maria.

"No, we can manage it, I guess," said Jarvis easily, smiling at the uproar that emanated from his servant who was forced to stop over the work. "This is Rusty. Rusty, this is the Princess of Aragon."

Rusty eagerly straightened and turned with a profound bow.

"Yas, sah," he grinned. "How do, Mrs. Princess Ah—ah-go-on."

Jarvis pressed his lips togther to suppress a giggle.

"I said Aragon," he corrected gravely.

"Yas, sah," was the aggrieved reply. "That's what I said—Ah-go-on."

"I guess you'll have to let it go at that," smiled Jarvis. "There—that's all right, Rusty. Now, you understand everything, do you?"

"Yas, sah," Rusty assured him, picking up the bundles. "I take eve'ything to th' steambcat—git acom—acom——"

"Accommodations."

The Last Moments.

The darkey nodded brightly. "I knows what you means—fer us an' Mrs. Princess ah——"

"No, no," snapped Jarvis, impatiently. "Not for the Princess—just for us two."

"Oh, yas, sah. I unnastin' puffectly."

"All right." Jarvis pushed him toward the door. "Now, get 'a move on you and don't miss the boat. Remember the name of the line?"

Rusty put his head on one side and thought for an instant, and then showed a yard of teeth.

"Yas, sah, the—the Coon-ard Line."

The instant the door was locked behind him Jarvis returned to his work at the trunk. He had just succeeded in making a small hole when the time was up.

"Make another," urged Dona Maria.

He shook his head decidedly. "Haven't time. I'll widen this one a little." He rested both hands on the side and looked up at her soberly. "Remember this trunk must not go into the hold of the ship. Have it marked 'Wanted on Voyage,' and 'This End Up.' I'll lie with my head in this direction."

"I'll remember," she promised earnestly; "now let me get you a pillow."

Heavy folds of her clothing padded the bottom and he arranged the pillow for his head. Then he sat in the trunk and looked very serious.

"Before I get into this coffin," he said, "there are one or two things I should like to know. How do you know that you can trust me?"

"I don't," she replied instantly; "I'll have to take that chance."

He winced a little.

"But you must have a pretty good reason," he insisted.

"I have," was the cool response.

"Well—what about the ghosts?"

"Pardon me, Mr. Warren, but so far your credentials do not warrant further confidence."

Repulsed in the direct attack, the young man was silent a few moments. So was the young woman. Then he essayed a flank movement.

"You are Spanish—yet you speak with no accent," he charged.

"I was educated in England."

Another pause and another attempt.

"Are you really—a sure-enough princess?"

A certain wintriness apeared in the soft, dark eyes that looked down into his.

"Why do you say that?"

"Oh—I—don't know," he stammered, uncertainly. "I—somehow—you aren't quite like what I thought a princess would be."

"I'm sorry," she remarked, coldly.

"Oh, I didn't mean it that way," he hastened to protest, feeling that he was making next to no headway. "I mean that you're different from the popular idea of a princess. You have more—more—understanding," he floundered, but the wintriness did not vanish. "more—more—sympathy—more heart——"

"In that respect," cut in Dona Maria, swiftly, "you will find me quite a conventional princess."

The House Detective.

The knight immediately began a painfully careful examination of the hole through which he must breathe for several hours and thus he did not notice that the Princess colored slightly and the winter in her eyes gave way momentarily to spring. He was grateful that he had the hole in the leather to examine during the painful silence.

"I wonder"—he cleared his throat, and began again—"I wonder if this opening will let in enough air."

"I hope so," said the Princess, and he had to look up at her face to make sure that she was not as indifferent as the tone of her voice indicated. What he saw evidently reassured him, for his embarrassment vanished.

"I'll put the shears in here," he remarked cheerily, "and if it gets too stuffy I can cut another hole from the inside."

There was a knock at the door. Both started, and Jarvis noiselessly coiled himself into his cage.

"It must be the man for the trunk, she whispered. Then she called. "Just a minute, please."

He let the lid down a little way and she bent over him.

"Remember," he whispered earnestly, "this must not go into the hold of the ship. You must have it marked 'Wanted,' and 'This Side Up.' You might add 'With Care' if you've a mind to," he added with a wry smile, and he cautiously let the lid down.

"Are you all right?" she whispered, her hand on the lock.

"If they don't lose the trunk," came in a muffled voice from within.

To Be Continued Monday.

"How am I going to get out of here?" said Jarvis.

"Too Nintimate"

By WINIFRED BLACK.

THEY'VE quarreled, the two "nintimate friends.

No, I don't mean "intimate," I No, I don't mean "intimate, " I mean "nintimate"—that's what they call each other. One's ten and one's nine, and they've been playing dolls together for weeks.

I told Ten-year-old that she had better play with someone else for a while.

"You and Nine-year-old will quarrel as sure as fate," said Ir, oh, so wisely.

"Quarrel, my 'nintimate' friend and I?" cried Ten-year-old in horror. Oh, how could we ever do such a thing? Why, she's the sweetest girl in the world. I wish my hair was the color of hers and my eyes, too, so we could wear the same colored ribbons, and oh, can't we both have linen hats, the same shade anyhow?"

So they had linen hats the same shade, and the new kind of heelless shoes the same shape, and Brown Eyes tied on a pink ribbon and so Blue Eyes had to tie on a pink ribbon, too.

But now they've quarreled, quarreled badly. It began over the dolls. Nine-year-old wanted the dolls to go to school and say their seven times, and Ten-year-old wanted to send them to the mountains or to the seashore or somewhere.

"Isn't it bad enough to say our own old ten times and eight times over and over," said Ten-year-old, "without making per-f-e-c-t slaves of the poor, darling dolls?"

"I'm not a slave," said Nine-year-old, "and I'd thank you not to call me one."

"Why," said Ten-year-old, "I didn't. I said"——

"I know what you said," said Nine-year-old, "I can hear all right"—— only she said "hyear."

"Well, then," cried Ten-year-old, "why don't you talk all right." F-t-t-t—the trouble began right then—dolls went home—ribbons came off—hats were thrown in the closet—out of the hated sight. "I'll never play with her again," sobbed Ten-year-old.

"I hate the sight of her," quavered Nine-year-old, and so the day was clouded.

What mattered how gayly the sun shone, what mattered how sweetly the flowering bush at the back gate beckoned—who cared what the robin tried to say. Gone—to smithereens—one long, happy, happy day. Gone never to come back again—alas, alas, what a sinful waste, and all because the "nintimate friends" were just a shade too "nintimate," that's all.

The young couple next door—how dead in love they are; she walks to the corner every night to meet him, and he turns around three or four times to wave her good-bye in the mornings. And the other night, when one of his old friends dropped in for a pleasant evening, she pouted; I could see it by the very turn of her shoulders.

She didn't want a soul around but him. And Sunday, when her sister came over after church, he went upstairs and sulked. I could see his shadow on the blind.

They won't admit now that there is any gulf at all, oh, no. They're one, you know; didn't they say so before the parson and all the church full of smiling friends. One—which one I wonder? Will she give up her individuality—the one thing that called him to her—or will he be just an echo of her.

One! Which one? I always wonder. How much better it is when you get to understand that two human beings mean two every time and not one at all; the man is a man, not a copy of a woman, and the woman is a woman, not an echo of the man; each must live his and her own separate life, and the sooner they begin to do it the sooner they'll be happy.

"And then where did you go?" says the young wife when Husband is a few minutes late to dinner.

Young Husband's brow clouds. After all, must he be watched like a criminal. "Oh, then I came home," he says, and doesn't tell the young wife that he stopped to chat with old Billie from Yale a minute or so, and the next day the young wife meets old Billie from Yale and he says: "Had a fine talk with Jimmie yesterday,"—and there's trouble in store for husband when he gets home that night.

"Too nintimate," that's all, "too nintimate," that's actually all that's the matter!

Your husband's heart is yours, not his brain and his soul, too. Your wife is faithful, loving, devoted, that's enough fou you to know, young man. Don't be too "nintimate" either of you—or you "won't speak" before six months is gone. Oh, yes, it's a pretty fiction, "two hearts that beat as one, two souls with but a single thought," etc.—a pretty fiction—thank goodness, it isn't a bit true. What a bore it would be to live with a twin, wouldn't it?

Do You Know That—

James Morris, who has been chauffeur to Cardinal Bourne since the latter was presented with a motor car some years ago, and who had previously been coachman to Cardinal Vaughan, has retired. It is Morris' boast that he has safely driven nine princes of the church in the motor car, which he has piloted 18,000 miles without ever getting the Cardinal into trouble with the police for exceeding the speed limit." Cardinal Bourne has presented him with an autographed portrait of himself.

The languages and dialects into which the Bible is translated now number 450. The British and Foreign Bible Society's issues of copies of the Scriptures now reach the huge total of 7,899,562, made up of 936,346 Bibles, 1,269,919 New Testaments and 5,696,297 smaller portions. In China last year, for every two English books the society sold it disposed of three in Chinese—the bulk of these being single gospels.

Haste Quite Unnecessary.

The evening was damp and cold and foggy, and the Rev. Candy Macgregor, while walking absent-mindedly along the street, fell heavily into a deep hole which had been made by order of the local sanitary authorities.

For a long while the Rev. Sandy struggled to escape. Then despairingly he began to shout for help. 'A passing laborer heard his cries, and, looking down into the hole, asked who was there.

The minister informed him, but in return received only meager comfort.

"Weel, weel," said the laborer, "ye needa kick up sic' a noise. You'll no' be needed afore the Sawbath, and this is only Wednesday nicht!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Deep Breathing Lessons from Miss Zoe Barnett

Miss Zoe Barnett.

By LILIAN LAUFERTY.

"HAVE you ever watched a fish breathe?" asked dark-eyed Zoe Barnett, of Lew Field's "All Aboard" company. "No, I'm not bringing the role of comedienne into this interview; I am about to tell you the greatest beauty secret I know. A fish breathes visibly—you can see its little sides expand and contract as it breathes deeply and all over its body. But most women breathe either in the top of their lungs or expand their diaphragms as much as their stiff corsets will let them. Now, I wear corsets of 'Grecian tricot'—or webbing—and those corsets breathe with me."

We were sitting in Miss Barnett's own cool-shadowed room, and the grateful breeze that fluttered the curtains had not seemed a possible thing down on the sidewalks below. My hostess was wearing a fascinating pink kimono—just the pink to bring a flush to the clear olive of her cheeks; pink "mules" peeped daintily out, and her head was bound in a scarf of soft pink silk with a big pink bow drooping in graceful lines just at the base of a left ear that fitted in with the color scheme of sea-shell pink. A very witching negligee for a midsummer day. Try it with the finishing touch of surah silk sash and see, little sisters.

"Now, I will give you a little exhibition of proper breathing, and then you would probably like a little sermon on just what it does for you," went on Miss Barnett, making the interviewer's lot an easy one, indeed.

An Exhibition.

"Please put your hands here on my ribs and feel them press out and out till they are fully expanded by my full lungs and till my chest is pushed way up by those same lungs, and all the hollows in throat and neck are padded out and filled by the splendid clean air I am drawing up from my diaphragm. That is deep breathing.

"Deep breathing helps you have a figure that is slender yet round. It banishes hollows and unupholstered bones, and it helps the skin throw off impurities and keep white and fine of texture. It lets you have a clear voice, with plenty of reserve power and strength back of it. Try it at an open window twenty times each morning—increase your twenty to thirty—to fifty—breathe deeply whenever you are outdoors—and finally grow into the habit of breathing deeply all the time.

"Do you know, when I feel a little headache starting or find an attack of indigestion imminent, I rush to the open window and breathe deeper and deeper until that internal application of fresh air clears my system and wards off the threatened attack."

"Do you aid and abet your deep-breathing measure by some sensible dietary laws?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, the food supply is first aid to the air supply," said the girl who adds so much wholesome sanity to the more scintillant charm of her delightful personality. "I eat only two meals a day. I find that I can sing over a sore throat—even an ulcerated one—but my voice will not make music over an overworked and protesting stomach. Overeating seems to be a more general complaint than starvation in our land of too plenty."

Choosing Costumes.

"And to your theory of unlimited fresh aid and limited food supply you add a bit of originality in choosing costumes, don't you?"

"A good bit," was the answer. "I loathe putting myself into clothes that some one else has designed for me. I don't feel quite free to be myself unless everything about me is me and expresses me. I like my clothes to be one form of my self-expression, and I think it is worth while bringing earnest study to the understanding of your own type. But if a woman lacks that great essential taste, she can do one great thing toward being well dressed—she can attend to the details of her costume. Never wear a bedraggled petticoat or go about in run-down heels, for if every little detail is neat and in good taste, even the simplest costume looks attractive and dainty."

And in the fine glow of an independent spirit that dares preach because it practices, Miss Barnett concluded: "Work hard at deep breathing and at deep feeling and thinking and trying, and then you'll be a success at being a woman and a worker, and a beauty, too, maybe!"

COMPLICATION OF WOMAN'S ILLS

Yields to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Athens, Texas.—"I had a complication of diseases, some of them of long standing. I wrote to you for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and some other things that you suggested. I must confess that I am much better in every way and have been relieved of some of the worst troubles. My neighbors say I look younger now than I did fifteen years ago."—Mrs. Sarah R. Whatley, Athens, Texas, R. F. D. No. 3, Box 92.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many of them state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

If you want special advice, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

The Case of Alfred

THE middle-aged woman with the youthful hat sank into the car seat with a sigh of relief. "My, but I got tired waiting on that corner!" she said to her companion. "I hate this standing around waiting for street cars when there might just as well have been an automobile in the family! As I was saying to my husband this morning, it does beat all that after you slave and plan all your life for your children things never turn out as you want them to!"

"That's so," agreed the woman in the shade too bright heliotrope suit. "They just do as they please!"

"Not that Lizzie is not a good daughter," went on the middle-aged woman. "It's just that you can't tell about men. They can be the blindest, most exasperating, contrary creatures! As I was sdying to my husband when he took Alfred Quam for a partner, who on earth would have dreamed that such a boyish, pleasant fellow could have such a will of his own and be so absolutely deaf to the call of what are really his own interests?

"He has money, you know, and as his folks did not live here I made up my mind that it was my duty to be kind of motherly to him," explained the middle-aged woman. "I think there is nothing so pathetic as a nice young man away from home and a prey to every designing creature who sets her eyes on him, especially when he is a good-looking young man like Alfred."

"I thought," said the other woman, "that he and Lizzie——"

"I don't believe in trying to make matches," said the middle-aged woman, firmly. "I wouldn't dream of interfering with fate! Lizzie may be 26, but she doesn't look it, and anyone with taste would realize how good-looking she is—in a quiet way, of course. I don't think it is refined to have the sort of looks that attract attention, Mrs. Garver, indeed I don't!

"The first night that I had Alfred Quam to a good home-cooked dinner I let Lizzie stir up the French dressing and stuff the baked potatoes, and if I happened to mention that she got the dinner I can't see that there was any necessity of my explaining just what part of it she got. Alfred always was glad to get an invitation to dinner. Afterward I had Lizzie show him her book of photographs. There's nothing like letting young people get acquainted.

"Anyhow, Alfred Quam might have considered himself in luck to get a nice girl like my Lizzie—not but that she could have her pick of far better than he! There's no telling what a man will like—and to think that he should toss his head over that silly, giggling Georgie MacPrang, who grew so fond of Lizzie all of a sudden on the evenings she found that Alfred was coming! Lizzie is so unsuspicious that she seemed glad to have Georgie come and make eyes at Alfred till I put a stop to it. I guess I wasn't going to have Lizzie beaten on hero wn ground.

"When he got his runabout I mentioned that Lizzie was perfectly crazy over autos and that the fresh air was so good for health. He took her out several times when I invited him to come early for dinner, so they could get a ride afterward, but it wasn't a month before that Georgie MacPrang was driving the runabout with her own hands and smiling condescendingly when she passed our house!

"You don't know what I suffered at the hands of that Georgie MacPrang, Mrs. Garver! I'd ask Alfred out for a nice little family game of cards and he'd have an engagement and the next day Georgie would drop in and tell what a fine time she and Alfred had at the theater the night before.

"He was perfectly nice to Lizzie and if she dropped into the coal office near closing time, as it was perfectly natural for her to do, since it was her father's office, Alfred would usually bring her home. 'Don't push yourself,' I told Lizzie. 'Only don't be backward about showing him that he's popular with you! That flatters a man—having him think you like him and are too modest to show it!'

"Just as I had arranged to have Alfred take his summer vacation at the same time we did and be our guest at the cottage we were going to rent, in comes that Georgie MacPrang with a solitaire as big as a paving stone, all smiles and applied blushes and throws herself on Lizzie's neck and says she must tell her first because it was through her that she and Alfred found each other.

"Isn't that enough to make a woman give up in despair, Mrs. Garver? Not that I'd have dreamed of trying to force Alfred or Lizzie in each other's direction—not me—but being a junior partner and, of course, what's her father's will be Lizzie's some day, and then Alfred would have had it all—and his nice automobile and he is so good looking—and to think that that silly Georgie's MacPrang——"

"Maybe something will happen," said her friend, comfortably. "Lizzie may yet be glad she didn't get him——"

"My goodness!" said the middle-aged woman emphatically. "Why, my Lizzie wouldn't have had Alfred Quam, not if he'd begged her on his knees."

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

THE continued demand made upon the time of Mrs. Lysander John Appleton and her daughter, Daysey Mayme, to reform the world has proved a blessing to Lysander John, leaving him uninterrupted opportunity for research work.

"I feel," he said calling the two fat pillow cushions to order, "as if my hands were being uplifted and strengthened by unseen forces; as though I, too, a mere man, have a hand in the progress of the world."

He paused. The two fat pillow cushions looked at him with such blank expressions he realized that they had reached the highest degree of culture. It meant so much to be understood, and they understood him!

"As a result of a week's deep study, and untiring poring over old manuscripts, I have found that the following problems of life remain unanswered. I open my hand, as it were, and fling them broadcast to my sex for solution. Let them come nobly forward and take this share of the world's work on their shoulders!

"Let them, I say, relieve our poor struggling mothers, wives, daughters and sisters of some of the burden of exploration of the unseen that now rests with them.

"First, I would ask: Which is preferable to sleep with—A baby, or one of those insects the commonplace call a bedbug, but which we, who are more temperamental, know as a crimson rambler?

"A woman will leave guests at the table, or her husband on his deathbed, to run to the window to see the fire engine go by, but would she run if in the midst of a marriage proposal?

"Does a wooden-legged man take his wooden leg to bed with him?

"Is there more reason for a man to be grateful to his wife for cooking a steak well than there is for her to be grateful because he bought it?

"If it is true that the spirits of our ancestors are constantly flying around us, are our women ancestors up in the air all the time because of indignation over the scraps wasted that would make quilts and rag carpets?

"Who is the more wasteful: The boy who cuts up pumpkins for Jack lanterns or the woman who makes them into very poor pies?"

He paused to give his next question impression and weight. It was a problem older than the world itself, and no one has ever solved it.

"On whose head," he asked—then he paused to scratch his head after the manner of those who are deep thinkers—"On whose head did a certain pair of insects travel on that famous journey in the ark?"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

BY YOUR ACTIONS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19 and in love with a man one year my senior. He loves me also. He has two sisters who are jealous of me and they are always telling him falsehoods about me, some of which he believes. What shall I do to prove that these things are not true? BILLIE G.

If you will conduct yourself in a way with which the most carping critic could find no fault, his sisters' charges will fall flat to the ground. Always remember that time has never weakened the force of that saying, "Actions speak louder than words."

If his love is worth the keeping he will have no doubt of your worth.

YOU DON'T LOVE HER.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 25 and dearly in love with a girl one year my junior who says she loves me. While at a party late one evening she fell asleep and started to walk in her sleep. I have heard since that she walks in her sleep quite often. Do you think we could live happily together, or should I give this girl up? WORRIED.

If you loved her, such a trivial failing would appeal to your sense of protection. Not for a moment would you consider giving her up.

Are you quite sure, young man, that you have no failings more undesirable than sleep walking? If this is the only fault she has she deserves a particularly worthy man.

Household Suggestions

A bright, glossy head of hair, easily kept in curl, may be obtained by dissolving in a pint of boiling water a small square of camphor and a tablespoonful of powdered borax. Into this liquid the brush must be dipped several times whenever the hair is brushed.

A soft piece of linen dipped in milk and bound round a rheumatic joint will often cure a most obstinate case of rheumatism. The linen should be covered with a piece of oiled silk and dipped again in the milk when dry.

The marks of matches struck on walls may be cleaned by applying the cut side of a lemon. Then rub the place with whiting, and lastly scrub with soapy water.

To prevent flies settling on pictures or windows, pour boiling water over an onion. When the water is cold use it for washing over the glass.

An invaluable cure for sore eyes is a little boracic powder dissolved in warm water. When cold bathe the eyes two or three times a day.

Soft hair bristles can be made stiff and firm by dipping them in a pennyworth of alum dissolved in sufficient hot water for washing the brush.

When frying fish, dip it in milk instead of egg before rolling in breadcrumbs. This is more economical and tastes better.

Tie a piece of lemon on a corn every night for five nights and it will generally cause it to drop out.

The Mistakes of Jennie

By HAL COFFMAN

Being a Series of Chapters in the Life of a Southern Girl in the Big City

"He is Mine!"

Chapter 15.

WHEN Jennie saw her former girl friend at the office next morning the girl scowled at her, and when she got a chance hissed in Jennie's ear: "I'll get even with you if it's the last thing in the world I ever do."

Poor little Jennie wanted to tell her that it was not her fault that the girl's fellow acted so the night before and wanted Jennie instead of the girl. But she would not listen to Jennie, only to swear at her and call her a little trouble maker.

Jennie could do nothing but think about it all day, and received a severe "call down" from the boss in which he said he had noticed for several days past that her mind had not been on her work, and that she would have to pay stricter attention or he would have to get some one that would.

Jennie noticed several times during the day that the tears were streaming down the girl's cheeks as she bent over her work. So after work Jennie waited outside and wanted to explain to the girl that it was not her fault the way the fellow acted.

The girl backed away from her and said: "You little fool, don't you know he is all I have in the world, and if I lose him I will have to 'walk the streets' for I can't and won't TRY to live on the money I get in the office. I was a fool in the first place to let him see you—for he is MINE! MINE! I tell you, and you—you little fool, let him alone!" Jennie tried to explain, but the girl flounced away cursing her.

How Strict Are You with Your Daughter?

—answer it, parents. Are you too strict, or aren't you strict enough? Either course is liable to be disastrous. Your daughter's welfare means as much to you as anything else in the world, yet do you know what to watch in bringing her up.

There are few men who know the problem as Judge Freschi does. For years a magistrate in the City of New York, his work has brought him into personal contact with thousands of girls and their stories. He has had an opportunity to analyze the causes of their failure. His name has become known throughout the country as their benefactor.

The angle from which he discusses the diverse elements that enter into the upbringing of the girl is a new one that you probably have never thought of. As a thoughtful mother or father you ought to read what he says in his article, "How Strict Are You with Your Daughter?" It appears in the

It's Up to the Local Association to Honor Rain Checks for the Second Game.

By W. S. Farnsworth.

WE have been bunked so many times on fake fights that it doesn't sting when we are forced to separate ourselves from a perfectly good two-dollar bill nowadays to see a pair of alleged boxers stall through ten rounds.

But we had always considered that the good game of baseball would net us a full value return for our money. Yesterday, however, we were "held up" and our pocketbook picked with the skill of an expert light-fingered gent.

It came first in the morning at Poncy Park. The Crackers and Pelicans were scheduled to play to a finish. Instead the game was called at the end of the tenth inning with the score two-all. It was then five minutes after 1 o'clock.

Should Have Played It Out.

All the rest of the afternoon was open and the game should have been played out. But, of course, a tie game is always played off. Thereby the local association will net great profits with a double-header on the next trip of the Pelicans here.

We stood for that bit of "highway" without squealing.

But what a yell we did let out about 6 o'clock last evening.

The Crackers and Pelicans met again in the afternoon. They had battled four innings when it started raining.

Seven thousand fans waited the usual 30 minutes.

The umpires didn't come out on the field and declare themselves one way or the other.

Five thousand fans took it for granted that everything was off for the day. The elements had cheated them out of an opportunity to witness what would have probably proved a mighty interesting battle.

But they were consoled by the fact that tucked away in their coat pockets were rain checks. They would yet be given a run for their money.

Brooms Swept Off Water.

Exactly one hour and five minutes after the game had been called the umpires, players and ground keepers appeared on the field. Brooms swept the tons of water off the base lines and play was resumed.

The management didn't want to honor those rain checks. If one more inning could be played they were in hundreds of dollars. The Pels held a 3 to 1 lead. They never figured the Crackers would tie up the count in the fifth. But they did. Then the game went on for two more innings, and again it was called on account of darkness, and still a tie.

The fans were "stung."

And we would suggest that President Kavanaugh, for the good of the game, investigate.

Likewise, the local association, if they take our suggestion, will still honor those rain checks.

Obstinate Acne Quickly Yields

Fine Remedy That Clears Skin of Pimples on Cheeks, Temples, Sides of Nose and Chin.

Acne attacks the glandular structure of the skin, more particularly those tiny glands that secrete fat.

And it is here that S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, is most active in its influence.

There is one ingredient in S. S. S., the purpose of which it is to stimulate the cells in the tissues that thus select from the blood the nutriment that makes new skin and thus eliminates all irritants, acids and parasites that inflame the glands. There is a natural tendency of the fine network of blood vessels in the skin to throw off impurities, but where a persistent inflammatory process has invaded the skin, the natural repair work of the blood is interfered with. It requires the stimulating activity of S. S. S. to overcome such morbid conditions. If you have been troubled with acne, do not despair of a cure.

You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it. The great Swift Laboratory in Atlanta, Ga., prepares this famous blood purifier, and you should take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if your blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist freely, address the Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Company, 181 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

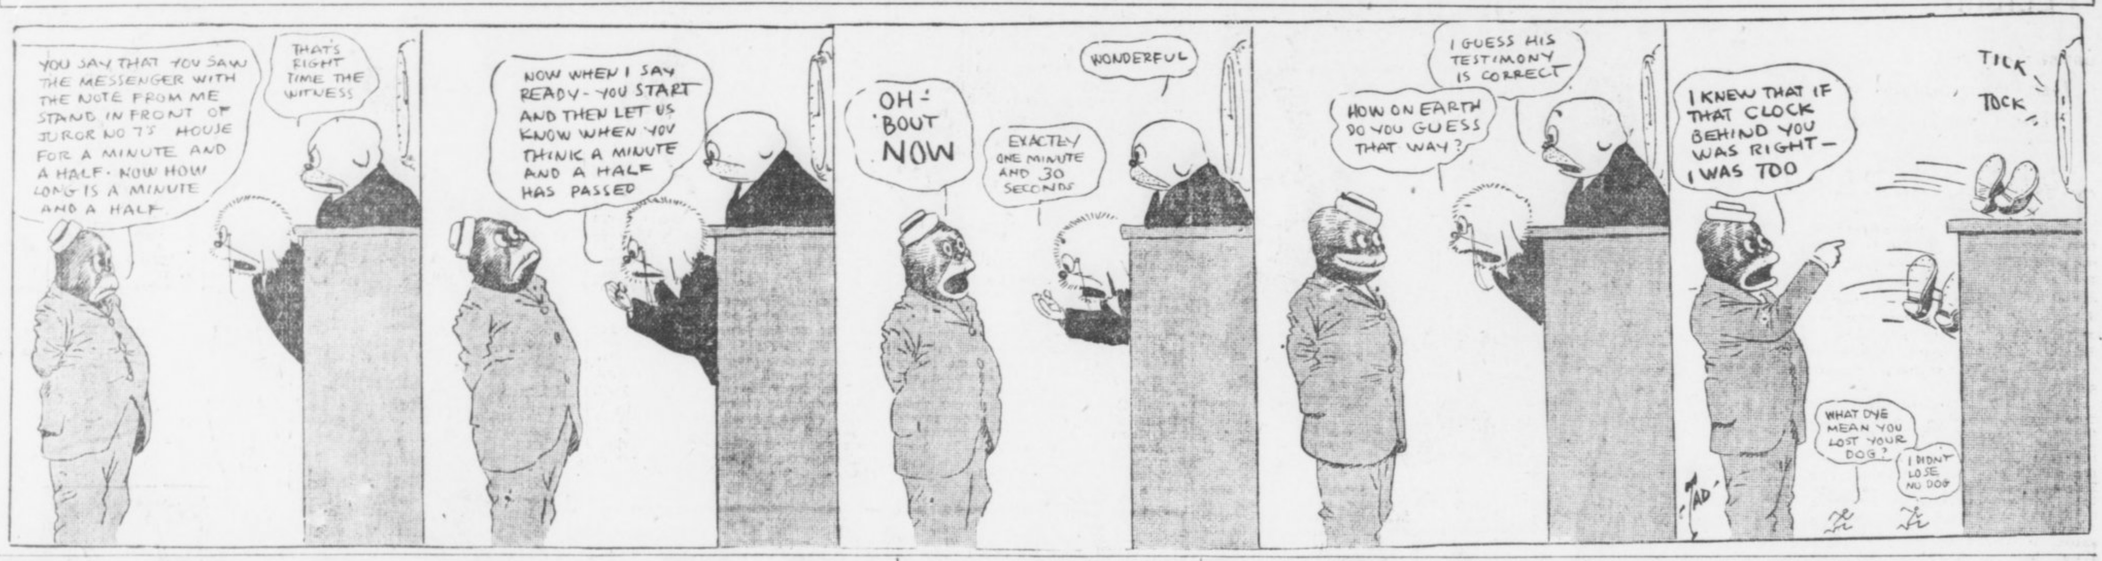
Rummy Tries to Trip Up Another Witness



Ritchie Makes Rivers Quit in Title Battle

When Mexican 'Dogged' Champion Turned Tide

By W. W. Naughton.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Willie Ritchie, the slim, serious-faced lightweight champion, defeated chubby, olive-skinned Joe Rivers, of the Southland, in eleven rounds, and by doing so retained the title coveted. The whole story in a nutshell is that it was the difference between a game lad and one who was not so game.

Before the bout started, Referee Graney and Timekeeper Harting had an earnest discussion as to which of the officials named should do the counting.

By agreement, the duty devolved upon Harting, but when the crucial moment arrived, Rivers relieved both of the responsibility. The Los Angelan actually counted himself out. He has earned the distinction of originating a new ring fashion, even if he missed in his attempt to bear the championship homeward.

This needs a little explanation, and it will be best to narrate the happenings in consequence and approach the terrible crisis gradually.

Just as long as Rivers held the upper hand he fought like a Turk. When brave Ritchie first stemmed the tide, and then turned it, the Los Angelan grew visibly discouraged.

Rivers Great at First.

It was all Rivers in the second, third and fourth rounds. Then Ritchie began to assert himself, and as the fight wore on Rivers boxed with little spirit.

Soon after the eleventh spasm of milling began, Rivers backed toward the ropes. Ritchie, who had been persistently the aggressor for several rounds, strode flat-footed after his man. A light left took Rivers above the belt line, and an equally light right brushed his lower face. Not that the blows lacked steam but the fact that Rivers was retreating and was not quite within range took the edge off the assaults.

As the clip of Ritchie's dexter glove grazed his chin, Rivers stood an instant with his back against the ring boundary. His eyes did not begin to dull like those of a man who is stung, but he lurched forward and fell to the floor. He did not fall in the inert manner of a man who has received a genuine knockdown smash.

Rivers Wanted No More.

When nine seconds had ticked away Rivers rose. Then the champion stepped close and banged his right against the Southerner's jaw. Even that punch did not appear to strike deep enough to produce full results, but Rivers was in the mood to take advantage of anything that would mean an end to the hostilities.

He dived slowly to the carpet, the palms of his hands and his knees supporting him for an instant. Then he flattened down on his stomach, with his head just raised sufficiently to keep his forehead and eyes in view.

In his eyes there was the look of a fellow who was not particularly jarred, but who had made up his mind that things had gone far enough. He assumed a look of distress which did not appeal to the writer as genuine. He began to gather his legs under him, and while doing so watched the timekeeper alertly. As each numeral denoting the passing of a second was shouted, Joe worked a little nearer to an upright position.

By the time the word "seven" came from Harting's lips, Joe was resting on one knee and the finger tips of one hand, and he was palpably checking the gong-minder's count. When at the last the sounds "eight, nine, out" rose above the turmoil at the ringside, Rivers straightened up with a look of relief. The ordeal was passed.

An Interesting Fight.

Even while Rivers performed like a craven at the finish, the bout was an extremely interesting one. It was replete with vicious spells of smashing, in which the men held each other even, and there were a sufficient number of changes of aspect to keep the crowd guessing as to what the ultimate result would be.

Even after Rivers slowed up and showed his heart was not in his work, the chance that the Southerner would land a heavy swing remained. He had kept Ritchie's head rocking in the earlier rounds, and many a Ritchie well-wisher twitched involuntarily as he noticed how dangerously close Rivers' whizzing blows went to reaching their mark later in the contest.

"DOYLE HITTING, GIANTS UNBEATABLE"—STALLINGS

NEW YORK, July 5.—"Larry Doyle has recovered his old form and that is why the Giants are now leading the National League," said George Stallings, manager of the Boston Braves, to-day. "Until recently Doyle was unable to hit with his usual vigor and the Giants were losing games. But they braced the moment Larry's bat began to meet the ball successfully. He is the king pin of the New York team, and now that he is himself McGraw's men can not be headed off.

WILLIAMS TO CLAIM TITLE; M'CAREY WARNS COULON

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July 5.—Promoter McCarey has wired Johnny Coulon that if he does not come through to-day with an agreement to defend his title Kid Williams will be declared the champion of the world and will become the possessor of the McCarey belt, emblematic of the title.

McCarey wants to see an active champion at the head of the bantam division, and if he puts Williams to the front as champion it is safe to state that the Baltimore boy will be busy from now on.

GAINESVILLE TEAM WINS.

GAINESVILLE, GA., July 5.—Gainesville won from Georgia Railway and Electric Company, of Atlanta, yesterday, 11 to 5. The feature of the game was the hard hitting of the Gainesville team.

Sports and Such

"TO SETTLE AN ARGUMENT" an earnest party wants to know if the educated or college ball player is more useful on the diamond than the boy who picked up his baseball around the sand lots.

This query may be deftly sidestepped by taking the position that it doesn't make any difference where a ball player learns to play baseball so long as he learns. But such dodges are unworthy. What the correspondent wants to know is whether education is likely to give a man the bulge on the uneducated player, and the answer is: Not so that you can notice it.

Education in any direction is useful only in the exact ratio of its application. Thus, it is easy to see that a profound knowledge of the effect of the political clubs on the life of the Athenian republic is not going to help a man decide in a tenth of a second where to throw the ball when he has nailed a line drive and three men are running in three different directions.

* * *

GIVEN A CERTAIN FAIR PROportion of intelligence and adeptness in baseball is a matter of practice. Men who think quickly on the ball field have been used to thinking quickly from infancy as a rule, and in sudden crises their minds from long habit work automatically and correctly. The time is usually too short for conscious thought.

* * *

IN THE MECHANICAL science of the game the same is true. The college professors began explaining the spit-ball a long time after Chesbro and his followers had stood the American League on its head. Chesbro didn't know any more about the physics of the spitball than he knew about the influence of the Medici on the Renaissance, but no college professor could tell him anything about throwing one. Radbourne was curving a baseball at a time when some scientists were holding that the feat was impossible.

John Ward, a real college man and a great ball player, invented the trick of left-handed batting to shorten the run to first base, and his trained mind probably had something to do with that, for it was constructive thought. On the other hand, Buck Ewing, ignorant as dirt, was even a greater baseball man than Ward and infinitely his superior as an executive.

Much of the "inside" baseball of to-day was fathered by "Ten-Thousand-Dollar" Kelly, who is considered one of the swiftest thinkers that ever played the game, yet Kelly had to have help with the menu card when he broke into the league.

Harry Dunlap, the "king of second basemen," was almost entirely without education, but his skill in working out the trapped ball trick is the chief reason that we now have the infield fly rule.

Dunlap was so ignorant that he had to make a mark to his contract in lieu of a signature, but so shrewd was his business mind that he got a $5,000 figure into the same contract, more than 95 per cent of the ball players to-day are drawing. And we know a man of rare mental attainments who once stole second with the bases full.

So there you are.

* * *

BUT COLLEGE MEN ARE made more welcome in the big leagues to-day than formerly. Not because of their thinking ability—go and watch two college teams play sometime and you will be purged of that superstition—but simply because they are turning out good ball players in scattered instances. And the college man has lost his propensity to play to the grandstand and sits humbly at the feet of a man who has no alma mater and takes his post-graduate course in the great game.

McGraw once had a college first baseman on trial. A foul was hit a mile over the grandstand, but the collegian tore after, cap gone and hair flying.

"Ah, well," said McGraw wearily, as the youth came back to his bag, "he gave it the old college try."

FORTUNE IS A JOCULAR dame. Loose-handed Garry Herrmann's team in Cincinnati played a whole game with one ball the other day, while Charlie Murphy's Cubs use up a couple of dozen a day.

Britton Now After Go for the Lightweight Title

Defeats Charley White in Handy Fashion

NEW ORLEANS, LA., July 5.—Jack Britton, the speedy Chicago lightweight, proved in his bout here yesterday with Charlie White, also of the Windy City, that he is a serious contender for Willie Ritchie's title. The clever Chicagoan defeated White in the eighteenth round of a scheduled twenty-round bout, when Referee Burke, acting on the orders of Sheriff Marero, stopped the go to save White from taking more punishment.

Although there were no knockdowns during the entire mill, Britton proved himself superior to his lighter foe. White was thoroughly beaten when Burke stopped the bout and held up Britton's glove. Sheriff Marero declared the bout ceased to be a boxing exhibition.

After the go Nate Lewis, manager of Charlie White, stated that his protege had injured his left hand during the third round and was forced to rely on his right member during the rest of the route. However, this should not take any of the glory that goes with victory from Britton.

Britton a Marvel.

He proved beyond a doubt that he is one of the greatest 133-pounders in the game to-day. His judge of distance is wonderful and he is also some puncher. In defeating White he did what very few other fighters have succeeded in accomplishing. Outside of five rounds Britton had a good shade in the other three-minute sessions. He was fighting fast at the finish and appeared fresh enough to go a number of more rounds.

Jack May Meet Ritchie.

Most of the fans who attended the mill yesterday are of the opinion that Britton would stand a great chance of defeating Ritchie if the pair ever meet. Promoter Tortorich stated that he would get in touch with the champion at once and try to close the mill.

White asked for another chance at Britton, but it is doubtful whether he will get the opportunity to get a return match with his conqueror for some time. Charlie is still a little too light to meet a boy of Britton's ability and hope to win. He weighed yesterday but 129 pounds, while Britton tipped the beam at 136.

FODDER FOR FANS

In the National League the Giants took two games from the Dodgers, the Phillies twice trounced the Braves yesterday, Cincinnati and Chicago broke even in a double-header, and St. Louis took one game from the Pirates, the other ending in a tie.

* * *

In the American League the Naps captured a brace of combats from the Tigers, the Athletics and Red Sox broke even, as did the Yankees and Senators and the Browns and White Sox.

* * *

Larry Doyle, the slugging second sacker of the Giants, seems to have permanently recovered fro mhis batting slump earlier in the season. He amassed a .400 batting average in two games yesterday.

* * *

The Phillies' two victories yesterday fractured their losing streak which had reached eight straight games.

* * *

"Game called to give players and spectators time to eat," was the unusual announcement made yesterday morning at the Red Sox-Athletics game and also at the Pirates-Cardinals combat. The latter contest had gone to eleven innings, the score standing 3 to 3 when the ruling was made, but at Boston it was in the seventh inning when the score stood 13 to 6 in favor of the Red Sox.

* * *

Tris Speaker, the Red Sox outfielder, in the second game yesterday got a perfect batting average, making four hits out of four tries.

* * *

Mordecai Brown, the three-fingered twirler who was cast off by the Cubs, pitched against his old teammates yesterday morning and added a shut-out to his list of victories.

* * *

Lajoie, the Naps' second sacker, waded deep in the second game yesterday, getting three doubles and a base on balls in four times at the bat.

* * *

Jackson, the leading batsman of the American League, further boosted his average yesterday by cracking out four hits in seven times up.

CRACKERS TAKE A FINAL JAB AT PELICANS TODAY

Games Friday Both Ties—Atlanta Team Playing Improved Ball, Even if They Don't Win.

By Percy H. Whiting.

THE concluding act of the amusing skit entitled "Pulverizing the Pelicans" will be staged this afternoon by Bill Smith's famous company of players at the Ponce DeLeon amphitheater. The curtain goes up at 3 p. m., and goes down again when the festivities are over, if they end promptly, for the Pelican team will beat it homeward to-night to play the usual Sunday game.

Of course the "pulverizing" part didn't happen to stick yesterday. In the morning game the Crackers had no luck at all with it and were fortunate to get a tie. In the afternoon the performance was duplicated. The Pelicans got away for a lead, but the Crackers, managed to overtake them in time to get an even break.

Rain messed up the afternoon game. It came down in a fine deluge about the time the fifth inning was due to begin, and if the half-hour rule had been adhered to the affair would have been no game. But Frank and Smith waived the rule, the players hung around until the rain let up and the game was completed. The Crackers came from behind in the fifth, scored a brace of tallies, tied the score and kept it tied until darkness butted in.

* * *

WITHOUT wasting time trying to figure out how it happened, it's a fact anyhow that the Crackers are an improved ball club. Brenner had something on them in the morning, but they pulled some grand batting rallies. In the afternoon, when it appeared sure they were beaten, they came from the rear with a rush that gave them a satisfying tie. Of course, they were playing only the tail-enders, but these said tail-enders played plucky, determined, useful ball yesterday.

The local club is fielding and showing lots of "pep." Also, the pitchers are looking more like the real thing. Elliott Dent hurled a very presentable game in the morning. He flickered a couple of times, but made an impressive showing. And it was surely a hot morning for work. Brady held the Pels to six hits in the afternoon.

* * *

WHITEY ALPERMAN is still playing wonderful ball. "King" Brady said of him this spring that he was off on the best season of his career and it looks like a bullseye prediction. It appeared during spring practice that Alperman wasn't going to be quite fast enough on his feet to be a corking good second baseman this year. But somehow he's found his speed. And his fielding is phenomenal. He is the best pinch hitter of the team and possibly of the league. His work since he returned home from the last trip has been particularly spectacular.

CHICAGO CLUB WINNER OF JUNIOR A. A. UNION MEET

CHICAGO, July 5.—Chicago Athletic Association athletes ran away with point honors in the National Junior A. A. U. meet at Grant Park yesterday. The team captured first place in seven of the eighteen events, taking 42 points. Captain A. W. Kohler, of Michigan, was individual star, taking all the eleven points his school got. Lund, of the Irish-American Athletic Club, New York, broke the only record of the day, throwing the javelin 148 feet 8 inches, a new junior mark.

A feature of the day was the victory of James Ray, of the Illinois Athletic Club, over Strobine, an Olympic point winner in the five-mile run. Ray lay back until nearly the last lap, when he shot ahead and finished 30 yards in front of Strobine, who set the pace practically all the way. The time was 26:39.

HEINRICH SCHMIDT LOSES TO EX-FRENCH CHAMPION

LA BOULIE, FRANCE, July 5.—W. Heinrich Schmidt, of Worcester, Mass., was defeated yesterday in the third round of the tournament of the amateur golf championship of France by Peters Gannon, of Argentina. Gannon was amateur champion of France in 1910.

In the same round C. W. Inslee, of the Oneida Community Club, New York, beat Blandford, of England, by 5 up and 4 to play.

H. W. Stucklen, former champion of Massachusetts, was beaten by E. A. Lassen, the British amateur champion of 1908, by 4 up and 2 to play.

BOYD AND BRUGGERMAN WIN 200-MILE CONTEST

DENVER, July 5.—G. R. Boyd and Bert Bruggerman won in the professional class to-day in a 200-mile motorcycle race.

The time was 3:25:54 3-5. The best previous record for the distance was 4:02:54 2-5. In the amateur class C. Oicorn and Al Edenberg finished first in 3:32:00.

CARTER SEEMS SURE TO WIN S. A. TOURNEY

AUGUSTA, GA., July 5.—E. V. Carter, Jr., of Atlanta, seems sure to be the man who will face Nat Thornton, of Atlanta, in the challenge round of the South Atlantic tennis tournament. Friday afternoon Carter and Ramspeck managed to play two sets and ten games of the third, when darkness made a postponement necessary. The score stood one-all in sets and 5-5 in games, but Carter seemed to be having all the better of it. "Best three out of five sets" must be played to decide the winner.

The best tennis playing of the tournament was on tap when the crack Atlanta pair clashed. Ramspeck, warmed up by playing in the doubles with Orr against Waring and Waring, won the first four games and it looked as if he would win the championship. However, his form was not so good after that. Carter, who hadn't warmed up thoroughly when the first set ended, got better and better.

The playing was witnessed by the largest gallery that has been present during the tournament and each player was given the glad hand for his uncanny work with the racquet.

The first set was won by Ramspeck, 6-4; the second by Carter, 6-1.

Ramspeck and Orr were eliminated from the contest for the doubles championship when they were defeated by Waring and Waring, of South Carolina, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Garrett and Gary, of Augusta, who defeated the Erwin brothers 6-3 and 8-6, enter the finals with the Warings on Saturday afternoon.

Capers defeated Crocheron 6-1 and 6-4 in the consolation men's singles and will meet the winner of the White-Roseman match Saturday afternoon for the championship.

In the mixed doubles Miss Adger and Erwin defeated Mrs. Milam and Reynolds 7-5, 6-0.

Nat Thornton, champion last year of the S. A. L. tournament, is to meet the winner of the Ramspeck-Carter match probably Saturday afternoon.

ALBANY-SYLVESTER RACE IS WON BY E. HANCOCK

ALBANY, GA., July 5.—Elsie Hancock, of Worth County, won the Albany-Sylvester Marathon yesterday, covering the 20 miles in 2 hours 25 minutes and 22 seconds.

Joe Garrett, winer of last year's race, was second, 4 minutes behind Hancock. J. P. Fulghum, of Sylvester, was third, and H. A. Redding, of Albany, fourth.

DANNY GOODMAN STOPPED IN EIGHTH BY MURPHY

TERRE HAUTE, IND., July 5.—Jimmy Murphy knocked out Danny Goodman in the eighth round here last night.

Jimmy Travers, of Chicago, knocked out Willie Mitchell, of Philadelphia, in the fourth round.

WILDCAT FERNS WINNER IN FIGHT WITH DENNY

NEW ORLEANS, July 5.—Wildcat Ferns, of Kansas City, was awarded the decision over Young Denny, of this city, after a scheduled ten-round bout at Pelican Park.

PIRATES' GOOD HURLERS FAIL TO LIFT TEAM

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—For the first time in thirteen years, the Pittsburg club is in the second division as late as June 26. During Fred Clarke's regime in the camp of the Corsairs, the club never has finished worse than fourth. The low-water mark was reached in 1904. He has won four pennants and finished second or third on all other occasions. Consequently the Smoketown fans are unable to reconcile themselves to the present lowly position of the team, which in advance of the season was said to possess just one more pennant kick.

Second division clubs are as unusual in Pittsburg as first division entries are in St. Louis. The Pirate fans get just as excited over their team being in fifth place as local shouters would if either the Cards or Browns burrowed their way into the exclusive quartet at the top of the heap. For that reason there is trouble in the Pittsburg camp.

Just a Few Reasons.

Asked for a reason for the Pirates' fall-down, one of the players placed the blame on Jinx which has pursued the club with a deal of perseverance. Here are a few pertinent facts:

Wagner was on the shelf from April 10 until late in May.

Gibson broke his ankle at Robison Field on April 20 and hasn't played since.

Simon and Kelly stubbed their fingers and are unable to work.

A pick-up catcher, Coleman, from Davenport, Iowa, is doing all the work.

Butler sprained his ankle and missed 11 games.

Bobby Byrne had a long batting slump in May.

Wagner again is laid up with a lame ankle.

Artie Hofman deteriorated into a minor leaguer and was released.

"So there you are," said the analyist. "We have had good pitching," he continued. "O'Toole has developed into star. Adams has been going great. So have Camnitz and, at times, Hendrix. We have made our share of hits, as our batting average will prove, but we lacked that punch which is necessary to win. We recently lost six successive games by a margin of one run. We were losing, and couldn't get a break. One error a day would be injected at the wrong time, costing us defeat. It was pretty tough going."

JOHNNY DUNDEE EASY VICTOR IN DIXON BOUT

ALBUQUERQUE, N. MEX., July 5.—Johnny Dundee, of New York, got the decision over Tommy Dixon, of Kansas City, at the end of a ten-round fight here. Three knockdowns were scored by Dundee.

FRANK WHITNEY VICTOR IN GO WITH JOE THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS, July 5.—Frank Whitney, the "Fighting Carpenter," won by a big margin over Joe Thomas here in ten rounds.

JEANNETTE BEATS DEWEY.

SAVANNAH, GA., July 5.—Joe Jeannette, the negro heavyweight, was given the decision over Nat Dewey, of Cheyenne, Wyo., at the end of the ten-round bout here.

CHAVEZ STOPS DELL.

TRINIDAD, COLO., July 5.—Benny Chavez, of this city, knocked out Harry Dell, of San Francisco, in the eleventh round of their scheduled 20-round bout yesterday.

Cross Earns Right to Fight Ritchie for Title

Anderson Was Never in Running With Gothamite

By Paul Armstrong.

Author of the "Escape," "Deep Purple," "Alias Jimmy Valentine" and Other Celebrated Plays.

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—Leach Cross is the only contender for the lightweight championship.

Yesterday he took the rugged Anderson, strong as a bull, teeming with confidence. From the first stab at the body which opened the fray to the last sizzling right hook that flattened him for ten minutes—never mind the ten seconds—Anderson was second. In the first clinch he was blocked with his right chop at the short ribs. Perhaps the loss of his ace so early in the game too some of his confidence. It is a red, white and blue certainty that two body blows which Cross tore into Anderson in the seventh round took about all his steam. From that on he was kosher.

When they came stripped to the fray, there was little difference in their size—not near as much when seen in clothes. Anderson was coarser, bigger boned and looked more rugged, but Cross looked the class. He carried nothing that he could not use in the ring. He was fit, his flesh like velvet and his eyes bright as a hungry snake's.

He got lucky immediately. Anderson had copped the corner with his back to the sun. A coin was tossed. He moved and sat in the other corner, looking at the sun like an eagle. Leach went about things like a business man. He personally inspected Bud's bandages, ordered his clerks about like slaves and got the store ready for the slaughter. In the meantime Anderson smiled and let the others do their will.

Anderson Was Confident.

Cross looked pretty soft to him, evidently, for the smile of pity was still lurking on his lips when the New York boy came feinting in. He got the distance and went to the body with a left jab. He worked in again and drew a lead. They were tangled in a clinch the next second. Anderson let go a chop with the right to the body and found an elbow between him and the mark. He tried for the head and then dropped it for the short ribs. Nothing doing—years and years ago Cross learned how to block that one.

They sparred a moment. Anderson let go a left hook for the head and reached. Cross still kept working in with his straight left for the body. He was stalling for a chance to use the right. Anderson knew it—everybody knew it. Suddenly it came—short? Bud pulled out of reach with a smile. But there was a lot more Anderson had not figured on. Leach shifted as he let go the right and came winging with a left swing. Down went Anderson. He was up instantly, seemingly unhurt.

Knockdown No Accident.

Murmuring boobs who bet 10 to 7, yea, even as good as 2 to 1 on what should have been the short end at 6 to 5, laughed it away—an accident.

It was not. Not a bit like it.

It was planned and executed with deliberation.

MR. M'GRAW DISCOVERS.

"I used to think a pitcher could not hit,"
Said John McGraw.
"It was before a pitcher swung his mitt
Upon my jaw."

If Merkle instead of McGraw had been kicked in the head we could have solved the mystery in a fraction of a moment. The athlete who kicked him would now be wearing a crutch.

Frank Klaus has encompassed the downfall of Jimmy Gardner, thereby demonstrating that a live dub is better than a dead champion.

When Hugh Jennings reads the war news and learns that there is a Retibouvki in existence he will mourn over the fact that the draft doesn't work in the Balkans.

Moreover, how does it happen that Mr. Jennings has allowed Mr. Booe to escape from the majors?

Joe Jeannette fought a draw with an unknown pugilist the other eve. Joe is laying the nucleus of another meal ticket. Joe probably does not know what a nucleus means, but he knows the whys and whereabouts of a meal ticket.

ANTHEMING FOR THE FOURTH.

Oh, say can you see, by the afternoon light,
Why so loudly we root while the blood still is streaming,
As we cash in our bets at the end of the fight,
With the losers still sore and the winners still screaming.
The promoters are there with a flock of hot air,
And a man can't get by till he hands them the fare.
And the Star Spangled Banner in sorrow shall shrug
O'er the land of the pug and the home of the thug.

Lee Tannehill is now a member of Joe Cantillon's team. We thought Lee was pretty old, but not that old.

We understand that George Stovall will be retained as manager of the Browns. But we do not understand whether it will be as a reward or a punishment.

Following Mr. Borton's work with the Yanks, one is led to suspect that one J. Callahan had a hunch to get out from under.

If we had a horse and wanted to make a trade we'd be gol darned if we'd trade it to this same J. Callahan.

Arlie Latham has been released as an umpire, but some of Silk O'Loughlin's decisions are more comical than any of Arlie's comedian stunts.

Frank Chance protested in Philadelphia when a batted ball hit an umpire. Frank possibly figured that the ump should have been hit by the bat.

Reports from various ball yards indicate that his monicker has been hammered into "Alexander the Small."

Sam Felton of Harvard has declined to sign a contract to play with Cincinnati. And then there are persons who say that college graduates have no sense.

Not that baseball plutes are classed among the saints, but when a wrestling match is held in a baseball park it looks like desecration.

CONTESTS AT MOTORDROME PUT OFF UNTIL TUESDAY

The races scheduled for the Motordrome last night were postponed on account of the slippery condition of the track, which resulted from the heavy rain of the afternoon. The events will be run off Tuesday night.

TWO PROSTRATED AT ANNISTON

ANNISTON, ALA., July 5.—Two heat prostrations occurred at the baseball game between the Anniston and Talladega teams here yesterday afternoon. Howard Beavers, of Talladega, and C. J. Houser, president of the City Bank and Trust Company, were the victims. Both were removed from the field by physicians and soon recovered.

VELIE CAR LEADS IN NEW MEXICO CONTEST

ALBUQUERQUE, N. MEX., July 5. Five out of nine cars finished at Santa Fe yesterday in the first half of the first automobile endurance race to be run in New Mexico.

Four cars were put out of commission at Albuquerque and Domingo, 36 miles away, because of engine trouble and injury to cars. A Velie car, driven by Jack Weighman, made the best time, doing the 62 miles in 2:02:09.

BURMAN DRIVES MILE IN 0:32 OVER ROAD COURSE

TACOMA, WASH., July 5.—Bob Burman, in a 200-horsepower car, was declared to-day to have driven a mile in a race on the Tacoma Speedway in 32 seconds. The race management announced that although Burman's time was not official, it was the fastest mile ever made on a road course.

VERBECK, IN FIAT, WINS PANAMA-PACIFIC EVENT

SACRAMENTO, CAL., July 5.—Verbeck, driving a Fiat, won the Panama-Pacific automobile race from Los Angeles to Sacramento yesterday. His time was 11 hours and 1 minute.

Verbeck left Los Angeles at 12:17 a. m. and covered the 443.6 miles without mishap.

JESSE WILLARD KNOCKS OUT WILLIAMS IN EIGHTH

RENO, NEV., July 5.—Jesse Willard, of Kansas City, knocked out Al Williams in the eighth round of a scheduled ten-round fight here last night.

LEANDER CREW WINNER.

HENLEY ON THAMES, ENGLAND, July 5.—The Leander Rowing Club eight to-day won the final heat in the race for the grand challenge cup, one of the feature events of the Henley regatta.

SMALL FIELD QUALIFIES IN CLUB TOURNEY

OWING to the heavy rain of Friday afternoon only 42 players qualified for the President's cup in the tournament that started July 4 over the course of the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Twenty players, virtually all those who started their qualifying round in the afternoon, were disqualified by the application of the fool "taking-shelter" rule.

This rule, designed for the drizzly English and Scotch climate and for professional play, is ludicrous when applied to amateur tournaments in the South, where storms of cyclonic violence are likely to sweep over the course any afternoon, making play impossible.

If the local club insists on enforcing that rule, players who can not start their qualifying play in the morning will do well to stay out, rather than to contribute to the prizes of those who are able to qualify in the mornings, when thunderstorms are not to be looked for.

The pairings for match play in the President's cup follows:

First Flight.

R. J. Jones v. James T. Smith, J. A. Ellen v. H. M. Ashe, R. G. Blanton v. James L. Dickey, R. T. Jones, Jr., v. Dr. Jackson, H. P. D. Cowee v. V. V. Tilson, T. B. Fay v. J. G. Darling, J. S. Faine v. J. O. Smith, W. H. Glenn v. J. C. Harris.

Second Flight.

D. B. Osborne v. Frank Meador, C. V. Rainwater v. G. N. Spring, Lowry Arnold v. J. K. McDonald, H. Block v. Milt Saul, J. D. Eby v. H. Davis, W. R. Tichenor v. R. E. Trippe, W. P. Hazlewood v. C. Donaldson, C. E. Rose v. T. L. Cooper.

Third Flight.

G. A. Nicholson v. George W. Walker, B. M. Blount v. winner Walker-Nicholson match; J. P. Webster v. T. L. Ingram, William Markham v. C. G. Lippold, J. D. Lightner v. J. V. Dunlap, R. I. Gresham v. winner Lightner-Dunlap match.

O'TOOLE OUT FOR YEAR; APPENDICITIS OPERATION

PITTSBURG, July 5.—Marty O'Toole, the Pirates' $22,500 pitcher, was operated on for appendicitis yesterday. He will be out of the game for the balance of the season.

MACK SIGNS BRICKLEY.

BOSTON, July 5.—Connie Mack has signed up Infielder George Brickley, a brother of Charlie Brickley, the star football player of Harvard. Mack has had his eye on Brickley for some time.

LARSON DIDN'T FIGHT.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., July 5.—Chuck Larson did not go on with Jimmy Anderson here and there was no fight in the city worth mentioning.

HARRY KNIGHT MEETS DEATH IN AUTO RACE

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 5.—"Well, just this once more and I'm done," said Harry Knight as he slipped under his steering wheel of his racing car yesterday and prepared to line up for the 200-mile race.

On the 110th lap Knight was thrown from his car as the result of a blown tire and was run over and killed by the car driven by Johnny Jenkins, his best friend. Milton Michaelis, his mechanician, was so seriously injured that he died soon after. Both men claimed Atlanta as their home, though both came originally from Indianapolis.

The death of Knight resulted from an accident similar to the one that gave him the title of "The Hero of the Indianapolis Track." On this occasion Knight drove his car into the concrete wall surrounding the track to avoid running over a man who had fallen from a car.

Knight had been officially declared out of the race, owing to time lost as a result of engine trouble, but despite the fact that he had no chance for the prizes he insisted on continuing the race. Almost in front of the grandstand a tire blew, the car swerved, went over, righted—throwing both men to the ground. Jenkins, who was chasing Knight, went over his body. Knight was terribly mangled and died instantly.

Ralph Mulford won the race, breaking the world's record for 200 miles on a dirt track. He won the distance in 3 hours 21 minutes and 48 seconds. The previous best time was made on the Columbus track by Spencer Wishart in 3 hours 28 minutes and 4 1-2 seconds.

Harry Endicott was second, with the time of 3 hours 45 minutes and 34 55-100 seconds. Ernest Reeder was third, with the time of 3 hours 47 minutes 53 65-100 seconds. Ralph DePalma finished fourth and just within the prize money, with the time of 4 hours 42 61-100 seconds. Prizes aggregated $5,000.

BROWN EARNS DECISION OVER JIMMY HOWARD

BUTTE, MONT., July 5.—George ("Knockout") Brown, of Chicago, was given the decision over Jimmy Howard, of the same place, after twelve rounds of fierce fighting.

THEFT NO WORSE THAN DODGING YOUR DEBTS

Line Between 'Mine' and 'Thine' Too Badly Blurred at Present, Says Forbes.

By B. C. FORBES.

There is a difference between "Mine" and "Thine." Many individuals, not a few companies and a few States and municipalities need to be reminded of this simple fact. Lax notions are prevalent on the subject.

* * *

A debt is a debt. All debts are debts of honor and should be honored. In these days of unthinking extravagance too many debts are light-heartedly incurred and not paid. The habit of getting into debt, like most bad habits, is alluring at first, but, also, like most bad habits undo their victims in the end.

* * *

The phrase falling "into debt" is apt. The descent is easy enough, but the climb back is usuallypainful.

* * *

This dissertation is inspired by the frequency of late with which corporations have failed to pay off obligations falling due. Instead of walking up to the counter and handing over one hundred cents on the dollar in hard cash, as was stipulated when the debt was incurred, borrowers have too frequently resorted to makeshifts, to temporizing, to compromising, such as offering, in lieu of cash, a new obligation for the old, with an intimation that if this be not accepted the lender will fare much worse.

* * *

The most brazen instance of such questionable conduct is afforded by Atchison, Kans. An issue of some $267,000 bonds of this city fell due Tuesday. Did the lenders promptly receive their money as they were entitled to? Oh, no. In Atchison, Kan., a debt is not a debt of honor, something that must be discharged. Just read what the Mayor has the effrontery to tell the holders, who, of course, have counted upon receiving their money—money which could be used at a high rate of interest to-day:

* * *

Atchison will have $266,950 4 per cent thirty-year bonds issued in 1883, due July 1. In the past, it seems to have been their judgment that a sinking fund was not necessary.

I have inherited a debt—I would not repudiate it, but will defer it by offering a renewal fully as good as the one you hold.

I realize the opportunity of money at present, but as a representative of the taxpayers I can not increase their obligation on account of a temporary stringency in the money market.

A new bond for the old one, with the same rate that has satisfied for thirty years, ought to be acceptable under the adverse circumstances.

I regret that it is the best I have to offer.

* * *

"Regrets" don't pay bill. The holders of Atchison's bonds care nothing about the Mayor's sympathies; they want and are absolutely entitled to receive their money, every penny of it, the moment it fell due.

Raise Some Poultry In Your Back Yard. It Will Surely Pay

Eggs Alone Will More Than Pay for the Feed and Trouble.

Edited by JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL.

We need more poultry keepers in this country. Not necessarily the great poultry plants. They are all right in their places, but it is the keepers of from 10 to 100 hens that we have reference to now. The man in the city with a back lot, the villager who has a larger lot, and the average farmer. These are the ones who should be maintaining what hens their premises will hold without crowding, producing eggs of the finest quality, supplying first their family's demands, selling any extras at good prices. How many places are void of chickens in this country, both in town and country? There are many farmers who do not keep hens enough to supply their own tables, but run to town and buy salt pork instead. Some keep no chickens at all, claiming that poultry does not pay or that they have not the time to bother with it. We need the interest in poultry keeping awakened. A good part of the year eggs are beyond reach of the average person who wants to supply his family. Poultry meat is the same way. Why not be independent and fix

Medium-Sized Acreage Tracts

ALL of us know the profit that is usually made from acreage. It is almost a conceded fact that if a person owns good acreage, he has a sure profit in it sooner or later. When we think of acreage propositions, we think of lots of land, and naturally lots of money, because the usual acreage transaction involves a great deal of money. The demand for good, close-in acreage for subdivision purposes is increasing every day. A trip to the outskirts of the city in any direction you choose to take will convince you of this fact. We are going to offer a tract of about 100 acres, between Decatur and East Lake, which we have cut up into five, ten and fifteen acre tracts. The price and terms on these tracts make it possible for almost anybody to handle them.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Two New Residences Will Total $40,000

Pegram and Kirk Plan Announced. Mr. Little Confirms Report. Small Sales in West End.

John D. Little confirmed Saturday the report that he would build a fine residence on Pace's Ferry Road opposite the property of John W. Grant, who will also build soon.

Mr. Little's plans are not definite, but for some time he has had landscape architects working on his eighteen acres, and W. T. Downing, the well-known architect, has been planning with them to determine the character of house that should be erected.

The town house of Mr. Little at the southwest corner of Peachtree and Eighth Streets will not be sold. It is one of the handsomest houses of colonial type in the city. The new house, said Mr. Little, will not be a duplicate of the other.

There are other signs of activity in this section of North Fulton. Sam Pegram has plans for a $15,000 brick veneer dwelling of two stories at the southeast corner of Muscogee Avenue and Rivers Drive. He will build at once.

E. R. Kirk is building a $25,000 residence on Andrews Avenue, 400 feet north of Peachtree. This is two stories and of brick veneer and stone construction.

Satisfactory progress is being made on the residences of Hunt Chipley, on Wesley Avenue, and Robert Zanner and Clark McMichael, on Peachtree Road, near Wesley Avenue.

West End Park Sales.

The West End Park Company has announced the sale, through Collins Mrothers &Davies, of a two-story residence on Stokes Avenue, near Ontario Avenue, West End Park, to a client of the above agency, for $5,500, and to H. S. Norris from the park company direct of the one-story dwelling at the southwest corner of the same thoroughfares, for $3,500.

Loan Rate Reduction.

Borrowers of money on real estate report a reduction in the last few weeks on loan rates. While money was held at 8 per cent recently, a good deal of it can now be had at 7 per cent. In fact, a local real estate agency is advertising $10,000 at 7 per cent on improved property, and much larger amounts than this can be obtained. Bankers foresaw a temporary stringency and prepared for it, and now they are in a position to extend accommodations in judicious measure.

For Early Whitehall Regrade.

Whitehall regrading will be considered again at the next meeting of Council. Councilman George H. Boynton introduced a resolution providing that work start as soon as Comptroller Goldsmith certifies that the property owners have paid in their share of expense, but objection on the part of Councilman Claude L. Ashley and others caused postponement. It has already been agreed to start the job October 15.

The pith of the objection was that other work more important would suffer if Whitehall were regraded now. The Butler Street sewer work was given as an illustration.

It is estimated that the first installment will be $11,287.97, and property owners have agreed to pay the city the difference between the appropriation of $3,500 and the estimated cost.

To Sell 24 Residence Lots.

J. T. Kimbrough & Co. have placed on private sale 24 building lots on the East Lake, South Decatur, South Kirkwood, Soldiers' Home and Stone Mountain car lines, all the lots within a block of city schools, on terms of $25 down and $10 a month at 7 per cent. The price of the lots is $750. Improvements consist of tile sidewalks, sewerage and water.

Interest in Car Line Change.

The proposal to change the route of the river car line, as presented to Council, has created a great deal of interest on the part of people residing on the west side of the city. General Manager Glenn wants to open the street at Marietta and Forsyth Streets and let incoming river cars run up Walton Street from the Marietta Street intersection. Cars will turn to the right at Forsyth and to the right again at Marietta. Passengers will enter at Marietta and Forsyth Streets, rather than at Broad. The Streets Committee of Council approved the plan.

Start Soon on West Peachtree.

The West Peachtree Improvement Club announced Saturday that all will be in readiness soon for work on West Peachtree retaining walls, the same having been authorized by the Streets Committee of the City Council. The wall work will be started as soon as contracts can be let for materials, the city to do the construction. When the walls are completed the county will do the regrading, and this will be not later than September 15, according to Shelby Smith, of the County Commission.

Prominent in the West Peachtree movement have been Judge Spencer R. Atkinson, Judge E. W. Born, Frank P. Rice, Dr. William Owens, James T. Wright and others.

Frank West in Winnipeg.

H. Frank West, of the A. J. & H. F. West real estate agency, has reached Winnipeg, Manitoba, on an extensive Western trip, and writes back that elaborate preparations are being made to entertain the sixth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges this month. Mr. West states that special attention will be given the Atlanta delegation.

A Queer Idea of Senatorial Courtesy--Particularly as Applied to Women.

Senator W. W. Stark, who represents, after a fashion, the Thirty-third District in the Senate of Georgia, has a queer idea of senatorial courtesy—particularly as applied to women.

He protested, and successfully, we are sorry to say, against permitting an hour or two's use of the Senate chamber of Georgia to a handful of earnest, sincere women of Georgia, because he—the Senator—does not "believe in" woman's suffrage!

These women did not propose to interfere with the proceedings of the Senate, and Senator Stark did not base his objections to their meeting upon that ground. He objected because he does not "believe in" woman's suffrage.

The Senator, no doubt, would have agreed, fast enough, for the Farmers' Union, or the State Democratic Executive Committee, or some other male organization, to meet in the Senate chamber, but he could not bring his weighty statesmanship to the point of permitting a few of the WOMEN of Georgia to tread within the sacred precincts of that hallowed spot set aside for Starks!

Senator Stark has much to learn. He will find that he can not slap the women of Georgia in the face—even a few of them—and "get away with it!"

The cause of woman's suffrage will stand or fall NOT by the standards set up by the Starks.

It will stand or fall in Georgia, according to the COMMON SENSE AND FAIRMINDEDNESS OF THE PEOPLE!

The Georgian understands that the women turned down by the Senate will apply to the House for permission to hold their two-nights' meetings there.

We believe they will be granted the small and perfectly legitimate favor they ask. The House will hardly repeat the remarkable and silly performance of the Senate, engineered by Senator Stark, and carried through, we really believe, before the Senate had opportunity to think of what a foolish and unwarranted thing it was being made a party to.

Teach Atlanta Mothers How to Bring Up Babies

Members of the Atlanta Mothers' Congress, who have undertaken to provide the poor babies of the city with milk during the hot summer months, have inaugurated a campaign of instruction.

Much of the milk is delivered by the members of the congress in person, and instruction on the care of babies can easily and readily be given.

The following rules for the care of the child have been indorsed by leading physicians throughout the country, and should be told and emphasized to every mother to whom deliveries of milk are made:

If you are worried about your baby, have a doctor see it, A GOOD DOCTOR. If you can not get a good doctor, go to the Department of Health, get the advice of a doctor at a free dispensary.

Don't wean the baby when the weather is very hot, if you can possibly help it, or when it is ill. The change in food upsets the digestion and may be fatal at a critical moment.

Feed your baby regularly.

Sacrifice everything to this important point. The child's stomach gets used to food at certain times, and digests it easily at those times, if the food is regular.

Every two hours in the daytime, and every four hours at night will do for feeding for a healthy child.

Don't dress your baby warmly, HAVE NOTHING TIGHT AROUND ITS NECK OR STOMACH, KEEP EVERYTHING LOOSE AND AIRY EVERYWHERE.

Have your windows open day and night. Keep the baby off the dirty floor, where it gets germs on its little hands and puts them in its mouth.

Remember that in the really hot weather the thinnest possible clothing is all that a child needs. One little, thin, cotton shirt, low-necked and without sleeves, will do while the baby is indoors.

Avoid strong draughts. But better a draught than not enough air.

Above all, give your baby enough to drink. If the baby cries in hot weather, give it two or three spoonfuls of water, cool, BUT NOT ICED.

Boil the water that you give your baby. And keep the boiled water tightly corked in a clean bottle so that germs won't get into it.

Feed it with a spoon dipped in hot water, A CLEAN SPOON.

Dangerous signs of disease that carry off children suddenly are vomiting and diarrhea. Notify your doctor, or the Health Department, AT ONCE.

Let your baby REST. KEEP THE FLIES AWAY FROM IT. THEY BRING DISEASE.

A young baby, washed clean in the morning, with cool but not cold water, put on its back almost naked on a bed with a mosquito netting thrown over the top of the bed (but not touching the child)—such a baby, fed regularly, with water to drink when it wants it, will be happy in hot weather.

Don't let the children tease the baby. Don't let grownup people play with it and tire it. Remember that it is GROWING UP AND DOING NOTHING ELSE. Don't try to awaken its intelligence or make it laugh.

If you stir up the little brain you disturb the little stomach.

Remember, WHENEVER A BABY CRIES SOMETHING IS WRONG.

Don't get cross; FIND OUT WHAT'S THE MATTER; that's your business. It may be a tight string, a bandage drawn too closely around the legs, need of a change of linen, or it may be thirst.

Don't feed the baby every time it cries. Give it water. Remember that.

It's Tough on Poor Father

"Gee, It's Salt."

MEANING AND SCOPE OF THE NEW CURRENCY BILL

Editor The Georgian:

I wish to thank you for the explanation which you have made regarding the meaning and scope of the new currency bill which is before the Congress for action.

I have read your several editorials on the subject and desire to say that I not only concur in your opinion regarding the measure, but feel sure the lucid explanation which you have made will serve to give your readers a better and more comprehensive understanding of the bill than it has been possible to gather from the brief references made to it in the general press. I think it an excellent idea to put the facts about proposed important legislation within reach of your readers that they may have an opportunity of weighing them and ascertaining whether or not this legislation is what they want.

Cost of Neglecting Our Merchant Marine

More Than $1,000,000 Is Paid Each Day to Foreigners Building and Operating Foreign Ships to Carry the Trade of Our Country, He Says.

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES

IT is estimated that for the fiscal year ending June 30 the exports of the United States will reach the enormous figure of $2,400,000,000, and that the balance of trade in our favor will approximate $675,000,000—a sum never before equaled upon the balance sheet of nations.

These figures are a tribute to our national greatness and prosperity. They carry also a serious reflection upon our national enterprise and a distinct humiliation to our national pride.

For of all this mighty commerce overseas less than 8 per cent was transported under the American flag. This magnificent balance of our trade is almost cut in two by the enormous sums we pay to foreign ships to carry our own products to the markets of the world.

More than $750,000,000 of foreign capital is to-day invested in foreign yards building ships to transport the commerce we furnish.

MORE THAN $1,000,000 IS PAID EACH DAY TO FOREIGNERS BUILDING AND OPERATING FOREIGN SHIPS TO CARRY THE TRADE OF OUR COUNTRY. OF THIS $1,000,000 DAILY PAID 90 PER CENT GOES TO FOREIGN LABOR.

This $1,000,000 each day should be given to the American laborer and kept at home to do American business instead of going abroad to feed foreign labor and to enrich our commercial rivals.

No Delivery Wagons.

This is but a single phase of the injury we suffer from having no ships of our own. Our stupendous foreign trade is made in the face of the greatest obstacles. It would easily double within the next five years if we had our own ships—our own delivery wagons—to carry our trade to our customers.

The rate paid by every passenger and by every pound of freight going from any port of this country to any foreign port is fixed in advance by agreement among foreign steamship combines and conferences. If an American shipper desires to send a bushel of wheat or a bale of cotton or of any other product to Europe, he must pay the rate fixed in advance by the trust in Hamburg, Germany. If an American merchant wishes to send a barrel of flour or of cement or a piece of machinery or any freight to South America, he must wait until the foreign steamship combine in this country can ascertain from Europe what price must be charged for carrying it,

Not an American vessel runs from this country directly to South America beyond the Equator.

EVERY AMERICAN CITIZEN THAT CROSSES THE ATLANTIC OR GOES TO SOUTH AMERICA MUST PAY THE RATE THAT THE FOREIGN STEAMSHIP COMBINE FIXES IN ADVANCE IN JENA, GERMANY. OF COURSE, THESE RATES ARE ALWAYS THE HIGHEST THAT THE TRADE WILL BEAR.

Six per cent net is considered a reasonable profit upon investment of great sums of capital in this country. Yet the Hamburg-American Steamship Company admits a net profit of more than 10 per cent upon a capitalization of approximately $100,000,000. In fact the real net earning of the Hamburg company is said to be nearer to 20 per cent annually. This tremendous profit is chiefly levied upon American commerce.

Opposition to America.

Not only are all freight and passenger rates from this country to foreign ports fixed by agreement by these foreign combines, but these conferences constantly discriminate against American commerce in all competitive markets.

Take South America for illustration. The American shipper pays exactly the same rate from this country to South America on slow and antiquated ships running at irregular intervals that his European rival pays on fast modern vessels running on regular schedule. Now and then the European shipper by secret arrangement secures an advantage. Not only this, but the European shipper is given an immense advantage in promptness of delivery.

Under no circumstances will these foreign steamship combines permit an advantage to the American shipper.

To illustrate: Brazil prefers our flour. She gave us an advantage of 30 per cent over the other nations of the world in flour. Immediately these foreign shipping pools increased the freight rate on flour to just that extent. Again we were given an advantage of 20 per cent on cement. Immediately the freight rates between this country and South America on cement were increased over Europe until the European manufacturer controlled the market.

Deadly Tactics.

These are the deadly tactics followed by these foreign steamship lines in respect to every competitive article in which our country's products might have an equal chance with foreign products. And all the while we go on pouring our millions of servile tribute into the laps of the foreigners that rob us.

Every fact stated above as to the attitude of these foreign steamship combines has been testified to under oath by the agents and representatives of these combines in the recent Congressional investigation.

These combines state boldly that they monopolize our trade, that they fix our freight and passenger rates by agreement and that these rates are made in Europe. They further acknowledge that they are violating our anti-trust laws and that they intend to continue to violate them!

Yet because they are foreign companies we submit to this extortion and defiance of our laws with an indifference and complacency that is cowardly and shameful.

In the pending tariff bill an attempt was made to at least express our right to favor our own ships. It is simply inconceivable that an American Congress should have been deterred by any sort of influence from doing this and doing more!

The French in Mexico

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

IT was just 50 years ago—June 10, 1863—that the soldiers of Napoleon the Third, under the command of General Forey, with drums a-beating and bunting a-fluttering, marched into Mexico, to establish upon these Western shores a great Latin kingdom.

Almost immediately after the entry of the French, and doubtless by pre-arranged program, there was a meeting of the "Assembly of Notables," at which it was decided, with all due solemnity, that there should be established a monarchy with the City of Mexico as its capital and with Maximilian, Archduke of Austria, as Emperor.

On June 12, 1864, Maximilian and his wife entered the city of the Aztecs as Emperor and Empress, and three years later, June 19, 1867, the farce ended with the crack of the rifles which sent Maximilian to his death and his consort, broken-hearted, back to Europe.

The "Assembly of Notables" did not amount to as much as its members thought it did; and the Old World was given its first practical demonstration of the power of the "Monroe Doctrine;" a doctrine which, it would seem, Napoleon the Third had not looked upon with becoming seriousness.

To this day the Maximilian episode remains a puzzle to the student of history.

Some say that the idea of a great imperial Latin State side by side with the great English-speaking communities furnished the fascination upon Napoleon's mind which was responsible for the business; while others hold that the pursuit of the bubble was a necessity imposed upon the Emperor by the exigencies of his situation.

'I SHOT THOMPSON,' GIRL CONFESSES

HOUSE STARTS LOBBY PROBE

BOYS AIDED IN BLOWING SAFE

CRACKSMAN SHOT IN GUN BATTLE

Kirkwood Residents Capture Postoffice Robber, Who Blows Safe but Gets No Money.

With late developments indicating that Walter Turpin, the yeggman who cracked the safe of the Kirkwood postoffice Friday night, is a "modern Fagin," who takes young boys under his wing and schools them in the ways of crime, the authorities of DeKalb County and Atlanta are scouring the country to capture two boys said to have served as lookouts while Turpin fired the charges of nitroglycerine.

When the posse of citizens and officers, hastily formed after the first explosion in the postoffice, reached the scene, two boys, both wearing knee trousers, leaped from the shadows of the building and ran down the street. The officers yelled at them to halt, but the boys paid no attention and the posse opened fire. Both escaped, apparently without injury.

Turpin, in statements made to the authorities Saturday morning, denied that the boys were with him. He was alone in the attempt to rob the postoffice, he said. Sheriff McCurdy and Chief of Detectives Lanford, however, are of the opinion that Turpin, like the famous Dickens character, conducted a regular school of crime in Atlanta, and that the two boys were children who had come under his influence and whom he was using in his operations.

Turpin Tells Story.

Turpin Saturday morning told the complete story of the attempt to rob the safe and of the events that led up to it.

"I was released from the Federal penitentiary, where I had been sent from Richmond, Va., for counterfeiting, February 22," he said. "I have been working at the Shoe Renury on Auburn Avenue, and before that I worked at several places as a tailor. I planned the robbery of the Kirkwood postoffice about a week ago when I went out and looked over the ground and made my plans.

"Last night I left Atlanta about 11 o'clock and got out to Kirkwood about 11:30. Earlier in the afternoon I got some whisky on Courtland Street near Decatur, and was very drunk when I got to Kirkwood. I entered the building through a window, and in moving around, trying to get my bearings, I fell down the elevator shaft, a distance of about 10 feet. I wrenched my back, and it was five minutes before I could move. Then I managed to get hold of the cables of the elevator and drew it down into the basement, and then rode up to the first floor.

Injury Prevented Escape.

"I found the safe, all right, and prepared to blow it. I had four ounces of nitro-glycerine, which I had made by soaking two sticks of dynamite in water and then squeezing them. I made my soap cup and fired the nitro-glycerine. The first shot raised the handle and combination of the safe. Twenty minutes later I fired the second shot, and it raised—other things. Then people began shooting at me, and I was so busy I hardly know what happened. I had hurt my back so badly in falling down the elevator shaft, however, that I could not have gotten away even had I not been shot."

Turpin says his real name is Walter Turpin, and that he is 36 years old. His home, he says, is in Chester, Pa.

The twisted front door of hte safe and the mass of splinters littering the little grocery store at Kirkwood gives an idea of the dramatic scene.

"I was sleeping on my front porch," said L. J. Cassells, owner of the store and one of the attacking party, "when I was awakened shortly after midnight by an explosion I thought was

WILSON NOW RESTING IN CORNISH

Secret Service Men Bar Reporters From Summer White House. President Shakes All Work.

WINDSOR, VT., July 5.—President Wilson arrived here at 10:50 a. m. today to spend the summer. He was met by Mrs. Wilson and two of his daughters, and the party motored to the Summer White House at Cornish, N. H., three miles away.

Upon arrival at the Summer White House the President gave orders that no newspaper correspondents or photographers were to be admitted on any pretext. The President said he was in Cornish to take a rest, and that he would transact no official business nor even consider matters which would tend to disturb his brief vacation.

If anything of public moment occurs, the President said he would return to Washington, but he would not discuss it here. The squad of six secret service men is on hand to see that the President's orders are carried out to the letter.

According to present plans, the President will remain until Tuesday afternoon, but he may stay longer if developments in Washington are not of such a nature as to necessitate his presence.

Writ Out for Arrest Of Sylvia Pankhurst

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, July 5.—A warrant was issued to-day for the arrest of Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, daughter of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, president of the Women's Social and Political Union. Miss Pankhurst has been a leader of the militant suffragettes since she was 17 years old. She has served several terms in jail. She vowed she would never marry until women got the vote.

The warrant charges Miss Pankhurst with inciting others to riot.

Cobb, Out of Game, Fears Injury Will End Baseball Career

CLEVELAND, OHIO, July 5.—Tyrus Raymond Cobb, the greatest ball player of this or any other age, is a bench warmer for the Detroit Tigers. Injury has laid him low.

Just how long Ty will be out of the game neither he nor anyone else knows. The Georgia peach is wearing a careworn expression for he fears his injury may be permanent.

Ty's hurt is a bad spike wound on the right knee. His knee is swollen to twice its normal size and he can hardly walk. In the Detroit-Chicago series recently Ty was spiked by Weaver. He stuck in the line-up day after day until the Fourth, simply on his nerve alone.

Cobb went home to Detroit last night when the team left for St. Louis. He will have an X-ray picture taken to find out if the top of the kneecap is cracked.

Sunday To Be Fair; Mercury Retreats To Cooler Depths

"Fair Saturday night and Sunday" is the official weather forecast.

Ten degrees' drop in temperature and rapid decrease of humidity in the morning hours made Saturday in Atlanta decidedly more enjoyable than July 4. At 1 o'clock Saturday the mercury in the Government thermometer registered only 84 degrees, 10 degrees less than it showed 24 hours before.

Westerly winds cooled the morning hours, and as they diminished almost to a calm the humidity counteracted the threatened torridity by sinking from 91 to 70.

Temperatures Saturday were: 5 o'clock, 71; 6 o'clock, 72; 7 o'clock, 72; 8 o'clock, 74; 9 o'clock, 76; 10 o'clock, 76; 11 o'clock, 78; noon, 92; 1 o'clock, 84.

Bishop Says Prayer Book Holds Nonsense

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, July 5.—In the Upper House of Convocation for the Province of Canterbury, the Bishop of Ely to-day moved for the appointment of a committee to revise the Prayer Book and Psalter. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

The Bishop of Ely said that all were aware that the Prayer Book and Psalter contained "passages which, to speak truth, are not far removed from being nonsense."

MULHALL'S CHARGES IN BALANCE

Committee to Investigate Charges That Factories Wielded Influence Over Legislation.

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The machinery of the House to-day was set in motion for an investigation of the Mulhall charges when the Rules Committee decided to report a resolution providing for the naming of a committee of seven by the Speaker. This committee will inquire into all the Mulhall charges affecting members of Congress and also determine if in the present Congress or previous Congresses lobbyists of the National Association of Manufacturers "did in fact reach or influence" any officer or employee of the House.

The committee also is to look into the efforts of the National Association of Manufacturers to defeat any candidates for the House.

Another object of the committee is to inquire whether improper influence has been exerted by the National Association of Manufacturers or any other bodies in the selection of committees, and find out if the association now maintains a lobby in Washington and how effective it is.

The special committee is empowered to employ all necessary legal and clerical assistance. Expenses are to be paid out of the contingent fund of the House.

Representative Levy declared he was opposed to further inquiries. The Money Trust and steel investigation, he said, had caused only financial unrest.

Receiver Reports In Buggy Case

In the suit of the Valentine Company against the Columbus Buggy Company, Daniel McLaren, ancillary receiver for the Columbus Buggy Company, Saturday submitted his report to Judge Newman in the United States District Court.

Judge Newman ordered that F. J. Long, James D. Palmer and Benedict Kobak, who were appointed as appraisers to make inventory and appraisements of the assets of the Columbus Buggy Company, should be paid $25 each for services rendered.

It was ordered that Ancillary Receiver McLaren be discharged and that the sureties on his official bond be released.

Strike Vote on 54 Roads Is Rumored

NEW YORK, July 5.—The vote of the trainmen on 54 Eastern railroads on the strike question is almost unanimous in favor of a walk-out, according to a report persistent to-day at the offices of the Order of Railway Conductors and Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen. Owing to delay in canvassing the ballots, the vote was not made public as expected.

The men demanded a wage increase and the question has been hanging fire for a year.

Railway Must Repay $35,000 Overcharge

WASHINGTON, July 5.—After two years' consideration, the Interstate Commerce Commission to-day awarded approximately $35,000 reparation to the Marian Coal Company, of Taylor, Pa., from the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad for unreasonable rates on anthracite.

It was during the investigation of the case that the charges against Judge Robert W. Archbald, of the United States Commerce Court, impeached by Congress, were made by Boland.

FULTON CONVICT CHIEF DEFIES JACKSON

Donaldson Ready to Invoke Law in Fight Against Long Religious Services in Camps.

Declaring Marion Jackson and his associates on the prison reform commission know absolutely nothing of convicts and religion, and that he would resort to law before he would submit to their conducting long services at the convict camps in Fulton County, Superintendent T. J. Donaldson declined to compromise Saturday morning at a meeting of the Public Works Committee of the County Board.

Jackson said he had the people of the county behind him in his fight to obtain the proper kind of religious services for the convicts, and that while he would rather get what he was after without a fight, he would conduct a campaign against the limit of one-hour services each Sunday if necessary. The Public Works committee agreed to hold a meeting later and definitely settle the matter.

When Marion Jackson asked the County Board to place the religious services at the convict camps under the direction of Philip Weltner, of the prison reform board, and let him designate lecturers and preachers for a morning and afternoon service, Captain Donaldson for the first time voiced a protest.

Disputing Jackson's assertion that the convicts welcomed the Sunday services, Captain Donaldson said they had voiced their protest at giving up the entire day of rest to services conducted from early Sunday morning until late Sunday afternoon.

He said he had no objection to the men attending one service each Sunday, which should not last more than one hour, provided he should have the selection of the ministers and the number to go to each camp.

The rather heated meeting terminated when Captain Donaldson announced he would consult the law before he would go into any agreement on the subject.

Profit Made in Fake Consumption 'Cures' $10,000,000 a Year

NEW YORK, July 5.—Within the last five years, no less than 500 fraudulent "cures" for consumption have been tried on thousands of victims in the United States. Exploiters of these nostrums have reaped a clear profit of not less than $50,000,000. This is an estimate made by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The association estimates that not less than $20,000,000 is invested in the business of manufacturing and exploiting fake cures for tuberculosis, and that the annual income is $15,000,000. About one-third of this amount is spent for advertising, leavig a profit of $10,000,00 a year, which the association says is "blood money" taken from ignorant consumptives.

The association declares no specific cure for tuberculosis has been discovered, except the well-tried hygienic-dietetic method of fresh air, rest and good food.

Griffin Gasps as Folk Get Glimpse Of Slashed Skirt

GRIFFIN, July 5.—Griffin got its first view of the famous slashed skirt here yesterday when Miss Eleanor McHarris, of Macon, appeared at the Spalding County Fair Grounds during the Fourth of July festivities. She came near breaking up the celebration. Everybody left the barbecued meats, interest was lost in the horse races and nobody cared whether a game of ball was played or not. Miss McHarris made a brave effort to overcome the gaze of the crowd, but failed.

The skirt was not of the ultra-fashionable cut, but it was more than Griffin was accustomed to So Griffin took a good look.

Double Jewels on Ankles at Newport

NEWPORT, R. I., July 5.—Mrs. Charles H. Welsh, of Philadelphia, appeared on Thames Street wearing two jeweled ornaments on her ankles. Mrs. Welsh astonished Newport a week ago when she wore a single jeweled ankle ornament, but the two are said to be far more ornate than the one exhibited last week.

FORECLOSURE OF A., B. & A. ROAD ORDERED

Sale Under Mortgage of Alabama and Georgia Terminal Companies Also Decreed.

Judge Pardee, of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals, sitting as district judge, has directed entries of decrees of foreclosure and sale under the mortgages of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad Company, the Georgia Terminal Company and the Alabama Terminal Railroad Company. Victor L. Smith has been appointed special master to make the sales.

The amounts for which the foreclosures are to be had in the different cases are: Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic, $17,873,715,07; Georgia Terminal Company, $3,948,750; Alabama Terminal Railroad Company, $3,218,231. Dates for the sale have not been set.

A provision is made, directing the apportionment between the different properties of the liens of the receiver's certificates and the decree provides for the payment of these certificates out of the proceeds of the sale.

Samuel H. Pillsbury, of Boston, and Messrs. Slaton & Phillips, trusteess under the mortgages and complainant in the suits, appeared for the Old Colony Trust Company, and Messrs. Rosser & Brandon represented the defendant corporations.

Boy Held as Robber Blames Near Beer

A. L. Jones, a prepossessing young man of a good Carrollton, Ga., family, was bound over Saturday under $500 bond by Recorder Broyles for attempted burglary.

Sergeant W. P. Reed early Saturday morning saw a man at the window of Jacobs' drug store, Mitchell and Whitehall Streets, removing the stripping from the window for the apparent purpose of pulling out the pane and gaining entrance to the store.

Jones explained in Recorder's Court that it must have been the near-beer that made him do it. He said that he had no recollection of trying to get in Jacobs' store.

MRS. BALLUE SOBS FORTH ACCIDENT STORY

Severe Questioning Draws Out Explanation Which Lanford Believes—Couple Out on Bond.

Mrs. Lucy Ballue, of 18 Lynch Street, confessed to Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford Saturday morning that she shot Captain A. C. Thompson, County Warden, while they were drinking together in the reception room of the Owls Club at Pryor and Mitchell streets Friday night. She declares the shooting was accidental, and that Captain Thompson's revolver was discharged while she was examining it.

Mrs. Ballue's confession came after an examination that lasted virtually all morning. When she was first taken into the detectives' office and questioned, she stuck to her original story that she knew nothing of the shooting.

She was taken back to her cell, and half an hour later returned to Chief Lanford's office. After an hour's questioning she admitted her part in the affair.

Tells How It Happened.

"Captain Thompson called me up by telephone yesterday," she said, "and made an appointment for 4 o'clock. I met him at Whitehall and Hunter streets, and after we had stood on the corner and talked for a few moments we went up to the Owls Club. We had two or three drinks there, and then went out for a stroll, and came back after an hour or so.

"When we came into the club again we went into the reception room and had another drink. I drank a glass of wine. After we drank, I was playing the piano and we were talking, when Captain Thompson remarked that it was hot, and took off his coat. He came over and laid the coat and his belt containing his pistol on top of the piano. I was still thumping the piano and he went and sat down on my left. I kept on playing and suddenly I glanced up and saw the revolver.

"I don't know what made me do it, but I was seized with a desire to look at the weapon. So I drew it out of the holster, and began turning it over and over in my hand.

"Suddenly, I don't know how, the revolver exploded with a loud report, and I heard Captain Thompson cry that he was shot. I was frightened almost to death, and I didn't know what to do. I dropped the gun on the floor and covered my face with my hands. I was so scared I didn't know what to do, and I don't remember how I got out of the room."

Lanford Believes Her Story.

Chief Lanford announced he believes the woman's story, and his opinion is concurred in by detectives who have been investigating the case. They declare the nature of the wound is such that it could not have been made save by a weapon that was pointing downward.

After Mrs. Ballue's confession Chief Lanford reduced her bond from $1,000 to $100 and changed the charge to disorderly conduct. It was signed by her brother-in-law, W. H. Holbrook, with whom she resides at 18 Lynch Street.

After the woman's release Captain Thompson was brought to headquarters from Grady Hospital in a cab, and a charge of disorderly conduct was docketed against him. His bond was fixed at $100. It also was signed by Holbrook. After he was released Mrs. Ballue entered the cab and drove away with Captain Thompson.

Members of Mrs. Ballue's family said Saturday morning that Captain Thompson has been paying her attentions for about a year. She is the wife of John Ballue, a structural iron worker, from whom she has been separated for three years. She has no children. For the past year she has been employed at Nunnally's Overall Factory at Marietta and Alexander Streets.

Arrested on Street.

Detectives Doyal and Waggoner, attached to headquarters, arrested Mrs. Ballue at Garnett and Pryor Streets after what they asserted was an attempt to spirit her away by L. C. Raoul, secretary of the Owls' Club.

GIRL CONFESSES SHOOTING AT OWLS CLUB

Declares Wounding of County Warden Was Accident—Both Drinking, She Says.

The detectives, unable to find either the girl or Mr. Raoul at the clubrooms, started a search. They learned the girl and the secretary had slipped quietly down the back stairs half an hour after the shooting of Captain Thompson. They hurried down Pryor Street, hoping to intercept them before the girl was taken away.

As they neared Pryor and Garnett Streets the detectives saw a man and a woman lurking in the shadows of the building. Not knowing whether they were Mrs. Ballue and Mr. Raoul or strangers, Doyal and Waggoner secreted themselves across the street and awaited developments. In a few minutes a cab drove rapidly up to the curbing and the door was flung open. A voice from within the cab commanded the man and woman to enter, and to "hurry up."

As Raoul and Mrs. Ballue rushed across the sidewalk and started to enter the cab the detectives recognized them and hurried across the street. They accosted the two.

Woman Denies Shooting.

According to stories told to Night Chief Jett by Detective Waggoner, both Raoul and the woman were nervous when confronted by the officers. Raoul did not speak, they said, after they grasped his arm, but the woman twisted away from the detective who held her and faced them. She demanded:

"What do you want me for? I didn't shoot him!"

The woman then tried to break away and enter the waiting cab, but the officers ordered her to go to headquarters with them. Raoul, too, went along.

The detectives claim the utterance of the woman when they placed her under arrest was significant. Waggoner, whom she asked why she was wanted, and whom she told she had not shot Captain Thompson, declared that he had not mentioned the shooting or told her why she was wanted. He and his partner, Doyal, had simply told them to wait a moment, catching them just as they started to hurry into the cab.

At headquarters Friday night the woman answered the questions put to her by Chief Jett readily and composedly, and emphatically denied that she had shot Captain Thompson. Her version of the affair, as told to Chief Jett, is as follows:

Other Women in Room.

She has known Captain Thompson for some time, she declared, and last night had gone with him to the club. They entered the reception parlors of the club and took a seat at one of the tables. She claims she had drank but one glass of wine before the shooting. Her escort, it is said, was drinking highballs and rickeys, but was not intoxicated. Two other men, seated at a table near the doorway, were the only other occupants of the room.

After they had sat at the table for perhaps an hour, the woman says, Captain Thompson asked her to play the piano. She played popular music for some moments, she said, and did not hear a shot which, she said, came as she was playing ragtime in a particularly loud key. She said she supposed the sound of the piano drowned the shot. As she softened the tones of the piano she heard the sound of a fall, and turned around on the piano stool.

Then she heard Captain Thompson cry that he was shot and saw him fall to the floor. His revolver lay on the floor beside him. The two women near the door were standing by their table, and gazing in horror at the figure of the captain on the floor.

Mrs. Ballus declared she was dazed by the sight and covered her face with her hands, and when she looked up again the women were gone. A number of men, she declared, were standing over Captain Thompson, and he was telling them he had accidentally shot himself.

Thompson had been accidentally shot and had been taken to his home in a cab. The groans of the wounded man as he lay on a table in a nearby room gave them away, however, and it was discovered that he was still in the club. He was then taken to Grady Hospital for medical attention. Prior to his removal to the hospital, Captain Thompson was questioned by Detectives Vickery and Hamby, who answered the first call to the club, but he refused to talk, and would give no explanation of the shooting.

The officers accompanied the ambulance to the hospital, and continued their quizzing of the wounded man. They claim he remained sullen and defiant, but after being placed on the operating table admitted he had been shot by the girl during a quarrel. Hamby and Vickery visited the hospital again about midnight and again questioned Captain Thompson. This time, they assert, he declared the shooting was an accident, and that Mrs. Ballue had nothing to do with it.

Woman Young and Pretty.

The report that when they entered the club Captain Thompson registered himself and his companion as "Mr. and Mrs. Thompson," is denied by Secretary Raoul. Mrs. Ballue declared her escort did the registering and she did not know what names he wrote. She said she supposed, however, that he had written her real name.

Harry Latham, a court deputy, told the police that when he met Thompson and Mrs. Ballue in the club rooms, Thompson had introduced her to him as Mrs. Thompson, at which Mrs. Ballue became angry and exclaimed that she was not his wife—that she wasn't anyone's wife.

Captain Thompson has been in charge of one of the convict camps of Fulton County for several years. He is 30 years old and unmarried, and lives on the Howell Mill Road.

U. S. SETS SMOKE AND DRINK RECORD

Consumes 64,500,000 Barrels of Beer, 143,300,000 Gallons of Liquor, 7,707,000,000 Cigars.

WASHINGTON, July 5. — The American people drank more whisky and beer, smoked more cigars and cigarettes, and chewed more tobacco during the fiscal year 1913 than in any other yearly period of the nation's history, according to estimates based to-day upon the record-breaking internal revenue receipts of the Federal Government for twelve months ended June 30.

The drinkers consumed 143,300,000 gallons of whisky and brandy and 64,,500,000 barrels of beer.

Smokers puffed 7,707,000,000 cigars and 14,012,000,000 cigarettes. Patrons of the pipe smoked 403,200,000 pounds of tobacco and chewers of snuff disposed of 33,2000,000 pounds.

Despite the high record, the number of saloons of the country decreased by 18,000 during the year, the retail liquor dealers numbering about 450,000.

Assessments on drinking and smoking luxuries, on corporations and on oleomargarine and other articles taxed by the Federal Government brought into the United States treasury $344,426,884, the greatest amount in history, exceeding the previous high record of 1911 by $21,900,000.

Crowd in Marietta Street Forms Ring For Men to Fight

A spirited fight between W. F. Wesley, real estate dealer, with offices in the Empire Building, and Y. A. Gresham, a mining operator of 40 West North Avenue, attracted a big crowd in front of the Empire Building in Marietta Street Friday morning.

Spectators cheered lustily as first one, then the other, put in a telling punch.

It is said the fight was brought on by a real estate deal. The battle was going nip and tuck between the two men, with blood flowing freely from mouths and noses, when a patrolman separated the combatants.

The scrappers were ordered to appear in police court Monday morning.

250,000 KAFFIRS REBEL IN AFRICA

Reign of Terror Grips Johannesburg — Many Striking Gold Miners Slain by Police.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA, July 5.—Many striking gold miners in the Rand district were shot down to-day by British soldiers in the worst fighting which has occurred in the great gold tie-up of South Africa.

This city is held at the mercy of turbulent mobs, armed with rifles and dynamite. One thousand strikers, including many Kaffirs, paraded through the streets shooting up the city and causing a reign of terror.

In one clash with the police 65 men were shot. Half that number were killed. A state of anarchy exists in many districts. A mob of 1,000 rushed the railway station at Braamfontein Park and burned it.

Fighting was in progress here all night and it was estimated that at least $50,000 damage was done. Efforts of the police to control the situation was futile.

A state of revolution has been brought about by the action of the blacks in joining the strikers. At least 250,000 Kaffirs are taking part in the deeds of violence.

The unions are trying to induce members of other trades to join the walk-out, thus completely tying up all the industrial interests in South Africa.

51 Die From Heat in Cleveland in 2 Days

CLEVELAND, OHIO, July 5.—Health records to-day showed ten babies dead from heat and a total of 51 deaths since Thursday night, a record for Cleveland.

The heat wave has gripped the city more than a week. Little relief is in sight. The temperature was 95 at 10 a. m.

SAFE ROBBER IS CAUGHT AFTER GUN FIGHT

Reformed Burglar Wounded in Battle With Kirkwood Citizens. Wrecked Postoffice Vault.

a big firecracker. I rolled over to sleep again.

"It must have been about 30 minutes later when I was awakened by a loud explosion that must have been heard for miles around. My wife and I jumped out of bed and she turned on the light. I turned it off and took my stand to watch at the window, which is only a hundred feet or more from the store.

Robber Seen at Work.

"Pretty soon I saw a faint light in the store and almost immediately I jerked on my trousers and ran to get Mr. Fleming next door. My wife telephoned Marshal Phillips, who joined us, with City Clerk Ray about the time we left the Fleming front gate.

"Stealthily we circled around the little store, finally grouping ourselves at the elevator door, which we found open. A moment later we were inside, and about this time the yeggman saw us. Brandishing his pistol, he dodged behind a barrel.

"From there he retreated only after Marshal Phillips dislodged him with a pistol ball which missed its mark. Turpin then dodged us and made for the elevator room, only to find this blocked by City Clerk Ray.

"It was then that Turpin made his last desperate stand while almost in the center of the little store. There he blazed away with his pistol at every flash of the searchlight which Marshall Phillips flashed to search out his man in the darkness.

Turpin Return Shot for Shot.

"The searching rays of the little light were swallowed up soon in the brilliant flashes of fire which belched from our four guns, Turpin returning every shot, in dodging this way and that. Finally, making a charge forward, Phillips grabbed Turpin's gun and bore Turpin to the floor.

Even then, however, Turpin fought like a madman and finally was subdued only by the combined efforts of all four men forming the attacking party. As he sank to the floor, apparently desperately wounded, he murmured his name, Johnson.

"It is a wonder we were not all killed, for the fusillade of shots was terrific. It took all of us to handle the yeggman," said one of the posse.

Turpin's Roommate Held.

A peculiar angle to the Turpin case developed Saturday morning when detectives took in custody 14-year-old Thomas Eberhart, a newsboy, whose home is in Dunwoody, Ga., and who has been Turpin's roommate for the past three weeks. Since last Tuesday Turpin and the boy have been rooming at the home of Stephen Marine, 226 1-2 Marietta Street. Prior to that time they had occupied a room together at the Union Rescue Mission at 230 Marietta Street.

The theory of the police is that Turpin was trying to gain control of the boy so he could use him in his criminal operations. The boy insists that he never has accompanied Turpin out at night.

"Last night I came in about 8 o'clock," the boy told the police. "Turpin was drunk, and lying down on the bed. In about half an hour Turpin got up and said he was going out and didn't know when he would be back. He left his keys and everything he had in his pockets on the dresser.

Had Burglar's Kit.

"Turpin was always nice to me and said some day he would show me how to make some easy money. Ofter he has asked me if I didn't want to make a whole lot of money, but he didn't tell me how. He went out a great deal at night, and always kept a lot of hammers and things in the drawers of his dresser. He said he was a shoemaker and that they were his tools."

"Turpin came to the Mission after he was released from the Federal prison four months ago," said R. E. Boutwell, connected with the Rescue Mission, "and was given a room. Three weeks ago we put the boy in with him. Last Monday Turpin left and said he was going to live at 226 1-2 Marietta Street."

Mrs. Carrie A. Moffatt Dies at Age of Eighty

Mrs. Carrie A. Moffatt, one of the oldest and best-loved residents of Atlanta, died Friday morning at 3 o'clock at the residence of her granddaughter, Mrs. Mark J. McCord.

Mrs. Moffatt was born at Columbus, Ga., 80 years ago. She was educated at Mobile, Ala., and after her marriage to the late Frederick Moffatt moved to Atlanta. She was a devout Christian woman, and was one of the first members of the old Wesley Chapel, now the First Methodist Church of Atlanta.

Mrs. Moffatt is survived by two grand-daughters, Mrs. Henry Inman, and Mrs. Mark McCord, and a grandson, Ben Lee Crew.

Funeral announcements will be made later.

Plan to Rid Kansas of Coyotes by Freezing

TRIBUNE, KANS., July 5.—Farmers near here are circulating a petition asking the State veterinary authorities to inoculate Western Kansas coyotes with mange of dogs to free the State of the pests. The method is said to have been tried in Montana with good results.

The mange takes all the hair off the animals and they freeze to death during the cold weather.

APPLICATION FOR LEE'S RELEASE DELAYED

Watchman's Lawyer Says He Will Await Return of Dorsey Before Filing Habeas Corpus.

On account of the absence from the city of Prosecuting Attorney Hugh M. Dorsey, Bernard L. Chappell, attorney for Newt Lee, announced Saturday that he would not file a writ of habeas corpus until Monday. He claims in the petition for the release of the negro that Lee is being held unlawfully and without any charge against him.

Solicitor Dorsey left for his country place at Valdosta, Ga., Saturday morning. He will return Monday.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey will ask the courts to hold the negro as a material witness for the State, or may charge him with being an accessory. He was determined Friday to take no chances on so important a witness getting out of his control, as he feared the negro might get beyond the jurisdiction of the courts if given his liberty.

Attorney Chappell and Solicitor Dorsey had agreed, when the negro was committed to jail, to keep him there until the trial. Chappell notified Dorsey Wednesday that he wished to withdraw from the agreement and get his client freed.

Chief Discounts Conley Rumor.

The announcement Friday that the defense had secured an important and damaging affidavit that connected the State's star witness, Jim Conley, more directly with the crime created a sensation in the ranks of the prosecution.

Chief of Detectives Newport A. Lanford announced that every movement of the negro on the day of the crime had been "checked up," and that it was a matter of impossibility to find anything more damaging against him than his admission that he helped dispose of the body at the request of Frank.

In commenting on the affidavit secured at the office of Joseph H. Leavitt Thursday the attorney said that it would be almost impossible for the prosecution to break down any statement that was made in the affidavit when the witness was placed on the stand.

Calls Evidence Vital.

He said the witness was a citizen of high standing and would be one of the most important for the defense of Frank.

Attorney Leavitt said that this particular affidavit was one of more than 50 that had been recently secured that dealt almost exclusively with the movements of the negro on the day of the murder. While he would not comment at any length, he intimated that the defense had been able to establish conclusively the exact time Conley entered and left the factory.

He also intimated that affidavits had been secured that would show what time Monteen Stover entered and left the factory and be able to prove she left before Mary Phagan's car reached the vicinity of the pencil factory.

'Hello Girls' Throw Open Summer Camp With Informal Dance

Camp Wyanoke presented a beautiful scene at its opening last night when 100 young ladies of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company entertained a number of friends at an informal dance. The pavilion, just completed, was gayly decorated.

The camp, an innovation in the way of entertainment for the "Hello Girls," has been established under the auspices of officials of the company and is in charge of competent chaperons. The young women employed by the company will spend their vacation there.

Mrs. Mattie Kirkpatrick, of Decatur, is in charge of the camp. She will remain there for three months. Miss Kathryn C. Tatum and the chief operators, Mrs. Belle Mitchell, Miss Ada Melor, Miss Alice Means and Miss Estelle Rutledge, form the committee in charge.

BANK HEAD GETS 61-2-YEAR TERM

Judge Brand Sentences J. W. Griffin at Athens—Motion Entered for New Trial.

ATHENS, July 5.—Judge C. H. Brand to-day sentenced J. W. Griffin to 6 1-2 years in the penitentiary for "wrecking" the defunct Athens Trust and Banking Company.

Griffin was found guilty at midnight Thursday, after a long drawn out trial. Some months ago he pleaded guilty, without a trial, and was then sentenced to five years, but a new trial was secured and his new sentence carries eighteen months more imprisonment.

Immediately following the sentence, a motion was made by the defense for a new trial on the grounds that Judge Brand illegally interferred and communicated with the jury before the verdict was given out. This was overruled by Judge Brand and will be decided by the higher court.

COL. PAXON AIDS AND PRAISES MILK FUND

Colonel Frederic J. Paxon, chief of staff for Governor Slaton and one of Atlanta's foremost business men, Saturday morning forwarded his personal check for $25 to the Atlanta Mothers' Congress, through The Georgian, to aid in the campaign to supply the poor babies of the city with milk during the hot months.

In a letter which accompanied his check, Colonel Paxon congratulated the members of the congress on their zeal and hard work in behalf of the poor babies, and characterized the movement as an advanced step along the line of civic development. His letter, in full, follows:

"The Atlanta Georgian, City:

"Gentlemen—I congratulate you, and that most heartily, on your efforts to furnish pure milk to the babies of Atlanta whose mothers can not afford to buy same. A movement such as this must necessarily be recognized as an advanced step along the line of future good citizenship and civic development; for how can we have forceful men and women unless the foundation is laid in earliest childhood?

"Inclosed find my check for $25 toward this worthy cause. I am, Yours,

"FREDERIC J. PAXON."

BULGARS CHARGE GREEK GUNS; 5,000 LOSS

Terrific Fight Raging Near Salonika—Another of Ferdinand's Armies Routed.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ATHENS, July 5.—Nearly a quarter of a million soldiers are engaged in a terrific battle which is being fought between Greece and Bulgarian armies north of Salonika.

The battle line extends for 100 miles, and from dispatches received to-day from the Greek military headquarters in Salonika it is estimated that more than 5,000 men had been killed or wounded.

There were 80,000 men in the Greek army, which is opposing a force over 100,000 strong. The Greeks have the advantage in location, occupying a lofty plateau. The Bulgarians charged repeatedly up the shell-swept slopes, exhibiting the utmost gallantry in their efforts to capture the Greek artillery.

Bulgars Charge Up Slope.

More than 150 heavy guns were ranged along the eminence and the most desperate fighting centered around these batteries. With brilliant courage the Bulgarians swept up the sides of the plateau, which was soon covered with dead and wounded troops.

Dispatches from the front said that the result would be decisive. King Constantine directed the operations of the Greek army from headquarters in Salonika, and it was believed here that he would take the field in person if he saw the day were going against his army.

A second Bulgarian army of 30,000 men is reported to be moving to join the troops engaged in battle. The second Bulgar army was at a point south of Tachynos Lake to-day, advancing on a forced march for the battlefield.

Greek Victory Reported.

A Greek victory is reported from Kilkis, where the Bulgarians were crushed by the heavy ordnance of the Hellenes. The Bulgars were unable to bring their artillery into action, owing to the fact that the infantry had outdistanced the artillery in the march upon the Greek forces.

The Bulgarian soldiers were dispersed, leaving behind sixty heavy guns, which the Greeks captured.

Servians Rout Bulgars After Five-Day Battle.

BELGRADE, July 5.—After a battle lasting five days, the Bulgarian army, which has been engaged with a Servian force near Uskub, began a retreat to-day, leaving 1,000 prisoners of war and 300 heavy guns in the hands of the Serbs.

Official announcement of a Servian victory following receipt of dispatches from the front caused intense rejoicing here.

Albanians Resist Advance of Serbs.

DURAZZA, ALBANIA, July 5.—The flame of war is sweeping Albania. Servians and Albanians are engaged in hostilities near Matia, and heavy losses have been inflicted on both sides.

The Servians are massing an army near here, evidently intending to reoccupy the port.

Bulgars Claim Big Victory Over Servians.

SOFIA, July 5.—The Bulgarian Government claims a decisive victory over the Servian first division east of Uskub. Announcement was made today by Premier Gueschoff that the Servians had been driven back with enormous losses.

According to dispatches from Bulgarian army headquarters, the Servians are retreating, following a long battle in the Vardar Valley.

Divorce and Death Sequel to Tag Day

SILVER LAKE, WIS., July 5.—An effort was being made to-day to determine whether the drowning of Leroy D. James in Silver Lake was an accident or a suicide. James obtained a divorce recently after he found his wife and G. Frank Greene, of New York, in a hotel room together. Mrs. James had met Greene when she was helping with a "tag day" campaign for charity.

The James divorce case was the cause of the city authorities abolishing tag days.

Crazed by Heat, Man Kills Wife and Self

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., July 5.—Crazed by the intense heat, Ben Strong, a well-to-do planter of Meridianville, near this place, emptied the contents of a double-barreled shotgun into his wife's breast, killing her instantly, and calmly reloading the weapon literally blew his head from his body.

Neighbors were attracted to the scene by the screams of the two small children of the couple.

SALVATION ARMY MAID'S 'PUNCH' DOES FOR ROWDY WHO GRABS HER

She delights crowd by struggle with man.

Seized as she leaves saloon, severely pummels loafer.

Miss Pearl McKay Is Heroine of Attack While Selling "War Cry" in Saloon.

One might not believe pretty Miss Pearl McKay, a sixteen-year-old Salvation Army lassie, has punch enough in her right arm to put out a big, strong man, but there is one man in Atlanta who knows that she has. Generally Miss McKay's uniform entitles her to every protection, but, to quote her own words, "sometimes a rowdy who doesn't know any better tries to get fresh."

Miss McKay sells the "War Cry" in offices, stores, on the streets, and also in near-beer saloons, and only one time during her six months' experience in Atlanta has she had an unpleasant experience.

On this occasion Miss McKay was selling the "War Cry" in a near-beer saloon. Starting out the door she was seized from behind by a intoxicated man. Quickly turning, Miss McKay struck the man in the face. This angered him, and instead of loosening his hold, he tightened it.

With a desperate effort she tore from his grasp and struck her assailant with all her might. He staggered back, but the little Salvation Army lassie's ire was up, and she went after the man, raining blow after blow on his face and head.

The onlookers applauded the plucky little maid as she continued her punishment.

Evidently realizing that there was to be no let-up in the sturdy blows of the angered girl, the man turned and fled, followed by the delighted jeers of the spectators.

Atlanta-Carolina Highway Proposed

ELLIJAY, July 5.—A monster barbecue and good roads meeting was held at Ellijay yesterday in the interest of an automobile highway from Atlanta to Murphy, N. C. Enthusiastic speeches were made by Dr. E. W. Watkins, of Ellijay; C. J. Haden, of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; Professor Harwood, of the Chamber of Commerce of Murphy, and others.

A practical working scheme suggested is for Gilmer, Pickens and Fannin Counties to pool their convicts and go to work on the road at an early date, raising money by popular subscription for machinery.

Saneness of Fourth Delights Atlantans

Atlanta advocates of a sane Fourth of July are rejoicing Saturday over the saneness of the celebration here. But four accidents were reported, and none of them are regarded as serious. Despite the crowds the ambulance drivers had a quiet day, and throughout it was the most sane Fourth which Atlanta has ever experienced.

Chief of Police Beavers, to prevent disorder, doubled the force throughout the daylight hours. The officers, however, found everything serene.

Senate Is Likely to Ignore Insult to Flag

WASHINGTON, July 5.—No official notice will be taken by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee of the trampling unedr foot of the American flag in Winnipeg, Manitoba, yesterday, if Senator Bacon, chairman of the committee, has his way. He said to-day:

"I regard this incident as the ebullition of an excited crowd. I am sure no national recognition of the act will be made."

"It seems to have been a very foolish affair," said Representative Broussard, of Louisiana, member of the Foregin Affairs Committee of the House.

NECK BROKEN IN WRECK OF AUTO

One Dead, Two Probably Fatally Injured and Two Seriously Hurt in Gadsden.

GADSDEN, July 5.—One man was killed and four others injured, two probably fatally, when an automobile in which they were taking a joy ride over mountain roads near here, plunged over a 20-foot embankment and turned turtle.

Will Perkins, 25 years old, was caught under a step of the overturned machine and his neck was broken. Charles Galloway, owner and driver of the car, suffered a broken arm, several fractured ribs and internal injuries. Mrs. Cobb was internally injured. Tom Howide's hip was sprained and he received serious internal injuries.

Perkins and Howide had been fishing and were walking home when they met the automobile party and were induced to ride—they had been in the machine only three minutes when the accident took place. Galloway was running fast to frighten the two new passengers and they were begging him to slow down when the machine took its fatal plunge and turned over three times before striking the bottom of the chasm.

Perkins was a married man, having a wife and four children.

R. F. D. Men Urge State Road Body

At the annual meeting of the Rural Mail Carriers' Association of Georgia a resolution was adopted urging the creation of a state highway commission and that all rural routes be made public roads. The carriers, who are among the most active advocates of better roads, were unanimous.

They were given an address of welcome by Mayor Woodward. Fred L. White, of the letter carriers, responded. Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick delivered an address and a number of other talks were made.

At the second session of the meeting Saturday Governor John M. Slaton and W. D. Brown, editor of The R. F. D. News, of Washington, made talks. The meeting was prepared to adjourn after the election of officers.

FIGHTS MAD DOG, SAVING CHILDREN

Youth Holds Animal by Neck 30 Minutes — Police Come and Slay It—Hailed as Hero.

Displaying great courage and judgment, J. A. LaHatte, 17 years old, of 125 Washington Street, held a mad bulldog by the throat 30 minutes Friday afternoon, saving his own life and that of several small children.

LaHatte noticed the dog following and snapping at children playing on Washington Street. He warned them of their danger. The animal turned into the yard of 295 Washington Street and entered the home of Mrs. Mary L. Belcher, trailing after the frightened children to an upstairs bedroom

LaHatte went to their rescue. In the upstairs apartment the dog leaped at him. He caught the animal in the air and held his jaws apart till an opportunity to clutch its neck presented itself, when he shifted his grip.

Policemen Shumate and Palmer arrived in answer to summons. While LaHatte held the dog, they tied a rope about his neck, lowered it to the ground, tied it to a tree and shot it to death with their revolvers.

Policemen and all the men and women in the neighborhood gave LaHatte an informal levee, complimenting him on his bravery.

Negro's Head Turns Shot; Woman Injured

KANSAS CITY, MO., July 5.—A bullet fired by a negro at George Wren, another negro, struck the latter on the forehead, glanced from his skull and wounded Mrs. Edward T. Smith, 60, who was passing in a street car.

Wren was slightly injured. The shoter escaped.

ARMY OF PAST IN RETREAT FROM GETTYSBURG

Thousands of Blue and Gray Clad Veterans Leave Great Bivouac of Peace.

GETTYSBURG, PA., July 5.—Gettysburg again resounds to the tread of marching men. Thousands of blue and gray clad veterans, the great army of the past that has encamped for six days on the hilltops around the town, are passing through it on their way to railroad stations and homeward. By to-night the great battlefield will be as deserted as it was 50 years ago and the jubilee celebration a thing of the past.

Beginning early this morning, special trains outward bound—north, east, south and west—pulled out of Gettysburg at quarter-hour intervals. It is estimated that 20,000 veterans abandoned camp during the forenoon. The remaining 10,000 will leave during the afternoon. About 25,000 of the old soldiers started for home yesterday.

The 50,000 tents making up the city of canvas will not be removed before next week. On Monday Major Normoyle will set his regulars at work striking the tents and getting them ready for shipment.

Governor Tener and other notables left during the morning, but General Liggett, commander of the encampment, will not leave with his staff until Thursday.

The second special train, which left at 6:30 o'clock this morning, carried Confederate veterans to Maryland, Virginia, the Carolinas and points southward.

Atlantans' Brother Seeks Big U. S. Job

RICHMOND, July 5.—Colonel William H. Chapman, revenue agent in charge of the Virginia District, is being strongly urged for the position of chief revenue agent, wi th headquarters in Washington. This place is now held by G. W. Trowbridge, a Republican.

Colonel Chapman is a close friend of Colonel William H. Osborn, of Greensboro, N. C., the new Commissioner of Internal Revenue. He is a brother of Miss Kate Chapman and Edmund G. Chapman, of 62 Fraser Street, Atlanta.

Two Drowned Near Savannah on Fourth

SAVANNAH, July 5.—The Fourth took a toll of two deaths near Savannah yesterday. George Egan, 17 years old, of Barrigan, was drowned in a creek near Herb River. Thunderbolt, when he got over his depth while in bathing. But for the timely arrival of a boatman, Dewey Holmes would also have been drowned.

James O. Knight, aged 22, fell from a boat on the Ogeechee River and was drowned before other people in the boat could go to his rescue. He was attending a Sunday school class picnic.

Giant Fish Wounds Boy, 16, in Swimming

MARSHFIELD, WIS., July 5.—The following fish story is vouched for by Dr. Harold Jensen, of Park Falls, Wis., who dressed the wounds of the boy.

A giant muskallonge attacked Frank Haasl, Jr., 16 years old, when he was in bathing and tried to drag him beneath the surface. When the boy was rescued he was covered with scratches and bites, and it was necessary for his swimming companions to carry him in an automobile to the nearest physician.

Effective Home Remedy For Lung Trouble

It is a serious matter when the lungs are affected. A trip away or to a sanatorium is not only expensive, but it involves separation from home and friends. Some are benefited, but few can safely return. Eckman's Alterative is effective for home treatment. For example:

231 S. Atlantic Ave., Haddonfield, N. J.

"Gentlemen: In the fall of 1906 I contracted a very severe cold, which settled on my lungs. At last I began to raise sputum, and my physician then told me I must go to California immediately. At this time I was advised to take Eckman's Alterative. I stayed at home and commenced taking it the last week in October. I began to improve, and the first week in January, 1906, I resumed by regular occupation, having gained 25 pounds, fully restored to health. It is now seven years since my recovery has been effected, and I cannot praise Eckman's Alterative too highly. I have recommended it with excellent results."

(Signed) W. M. TATEM.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in upbuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, poisons or habit-forming drugs. For sale by all Jacobs' drugs stores, and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.

Operatic 'Hear Ye!' by A Schumann-Heink

NEW YORK, July 5.—Henry Schumann-Heink, son of Madame Schumann-Heink, the prima donna, received word yesterday at his home in Paterson, N. J., that he is first on the list for the position of court crier in the Passaic County Common Pleas Court.

Many quips were heard about regarding his suitability for the position, as he has inherited a fine voice. Friends of the young man declared that, instead of the dry monotone of the ordinary court criers' the "Hear ye, hear ye!" will hereafter be given in clear, operatic notes.

RESINOL CLEARS BAD COMPLEXIONS

Quickly, Easily, and at Little Expense.

Pimples and blackheads disappear, unsightly complexions become clean, clear and velvety, and hair health and beauty are promoted by the regular use of Resinol Soap and an occasional application of Resinol Ointment. These soothing, healing preparations do their work easily, quickly and at little cost, when even the most expensive cosmetics and complicated "beauty treatments" fail.

And the best of it is you need never hesitate to use Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment. There is nothing in them to injure the tenderest surface. Resinol is a doctor's prescription which for eighteen years has been used by careful physicians for all kinds of skin affections. They prescribe Resinol freely, confident that its soothing, healing action is brought about by medication so bland and gentle as to be suited to the most delicate or irritated skin. Resinol Soap and Ointment are sold by practically every druggist in the United States. Trial free. Dept. 3-P, Resinol, Baltimore, Md.

The New Bazar

edited for the woman who must keep au courant with the smart world

THE best from each field of art, all the resources of brush, pen and camera, beautiful paper, perfect typography, render it a magazine individual in its expression and absorbing in its interest to the woman of fashion. In its new form, Harper's Bazar is the edition de luxe of women's magazines.

Sparkling with the news of both Europe and America, the Bazar makes instant appeal to the woman of the smart world.

If she would read of social functions, races or sports here or abroad, she finds in it the most noteworthy. If she would discover the latest creations from the ateliers of Paris, she sees here their most recent expression.

The skill of the couturière, of the artist, of the decorator is displayed in its myriad possibilities. Vexatious questions as to the maintenance of her establishment and any like phases which come within the realm of the woman whose time is much in demand, are discussed by those well versed in these matters.

In the July number, Elsie de Wolfe gives a description and views of her own home; Mrs. August Belmont has an illustrated article concerning the artistic development of the child; the lovely Countess of Warwick reveals the secret of the retention of personal charm.

There are photographs of the newer landscape effects secured in the Rockefeller gardens, and reproductions of the most famous paintings of Mrs. Astor, Mrs. George Gould and other renowned beauties of our times.

What is more, there are the costumes which are most à la mode from the stage, models from Lady Duff Gordon, sketches by Tighe, showing the newest cunning of the French houses and an important message from Henri Bendel as to Fall hats.

For diversion, a new set of Elinor Glyn's piquant letters and another powerful story from the pen of Robert W. Chambers with illustrations by Charles Dana Gibson.

COUNCIL ORDERS W. PEACHTREE MATERIAL

Retaining Walls Will Be Put in Soon, Ready for Grading to Begin September 15.

Council's Streets Committee did not celebrate the Glorious Fourth as a holiday, but spent the afternoon considering plans of improvement.

A resolution by Councilman Jesse Wood was adopted, authorizing Chief of Construction R. M. Clayton to purchase material for the retaining walls on West Peachtree Street. Chairman Shelby Smith, of the County Commission, had sent a communication to the committee announcing the county would be ready to begin the regrading of West Peachtree Street by September 15.

An effort was made to put the county convicts to work at once on the Whitehall Street regrading project, but the committee decided it would be impossible to begin this work before October 15, the date originally agreed upon.

When the Atlanta Gas Light Company made a proposal to sell to the city its tar road binder, Agasco, for six cents a gallon, members of the committee declared they considered it a good idea to use the binder on all chert roads. Councilman Claude L. Ashley said he would endeavor to have it used on Forrest Avenue.

On the request of the Georgia Railway and Power Company the committee decided to recommend to Council that permission to change the river car line be granted so as to relieve congestion at Marietta and Broad Streets, the present terminus of the river line.

The plan is to have the river cars come in Walton street and around into Marietta Street by a loop through Forsyth Street, passengers being taken on at Grady Monument.

OBITUARY.

The body of Dr. I. C. Smullian, who died in Salt Lake City Wednesday, will arrive in Atlanta Sunday afternoon. The funeral will be held at 4 o'clock from the residence of his father, A. Smullian, at 133 Capitol Avenue. Interment in Oakland.

The Body of Elizabeth Smith, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Smith, of Oxford, Ga., was taken to that place Saturday morning for funeral and interment. The child died Thursday afternoon at 14 Baltimore Place, where the family was visiting.

William M. Dooley, 26 years old, died at a local sanitarium Friday night. Mr. Dooley formerly lived at Chattahoochee, Ga., and is survived by one brother, F. J. Dooley, of that place. The body was removed to Patterson's chapel. Funeral announcements later.

The Funeral of Wallace Rickett, 21 years old, who died at a local sanitarium Friday afternoon, will be held from the chapel of O. A. and Roy Donehoo Saturday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Mr. Rickett is survived by a sister, Mrs. J. C. Fleming. Interment at Westview.

Mrs. Cora Brown, 35 years old, died at a local hospital at 9:20 o'clock Friday night. Mrs. Brown formerly lived at 15 Fulton Street, and is survived by one daughter, Mrs. David Fowler. The body was taken to the chapel of Harry G. Poole. Funeral arrangements later.

Evelyn G. Curtis, the 21-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. G. Curtis, 17 Addie Street, died at a local sanitarium at 3 o'clock Friday afternoon. The funeral services will be held from the chapel of Greenberg and Bond at 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon. Interment at Hollywood.

The Funeral of Mrs. Ellen Cleckler, who died at the residence, 26 Langhorn Street, at 9 o'clock Friday night, will be held at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the residence. Mrs. Cleckler was 52 years old, and is survived by her husband, W. J. Cleckler; one daughter, Miss Pearl Cleckler, and two sons, H. R. and F. D. Cleckler. Interment at Westview.

Extra Inducements in Race for Votes End at Midnight—Candidates Hustling.

A rush is on in the contest department of The Georgian and American. This is the last day of the pony contest bonus offer for clubs of five subscriptions, and the contestants are filing in by the score, turning in hundreds of dollars for subscriptions and taking advantage of the opportunity to win extra votes for every group of five into which their lists of subscribers may be divided.

Until midnight Saturday the office will be open to receive subscriptions, but after the tick of midnight the club of five offer will not count.

When the special offer closes the work of tabulation will begin. There is no hope, however, that the contest department will be able to compile all bonuses and award them properly before a week has elapsed. Probably the announcement will be made in The Sunday American a week hence.

Almost every candidate has hustled his best to take full advantage of the offer, and hundreds of dollars for subscriptions have been turned in. Through a misapprehension, many thought Friday the last day on which these clubs could be voted. This was a mistake, but it did no harm. Those who were misguided simply were told they had another day in which to work.

By far the greater number, however, enjoyed the outing at Grant Park. Nine of the pony outfits, some harnessed to buggies and some saddled, left the Alabama Street offices of the contest department at 1 o'clock. Arriving at the park, there was a frolic. Every contestant had a chance to ride or drive a pony, and there was lemonade for all.

BASS VIOLIN MASTER BLINDED, RESTS BOW

'Dolph Wurm, the South's greatest master of the bass violin, has had to rest his bow. Cataract has grown over his eyes. As his light gradually has been shut out the darkness has drawn him more and more into seclusion.

Atlanta musicians are telling his story as their most interesting bit of "shop talk."

Many, especially old-time, Atlantans, remember him as the slender, serious-looking little man who stood on the left end of the orchestra, wearing a black silk skull-cap and leaning on his big fiddle until he became a natural part of the scenery.

He was the Thor who hurled the theatrical thunder. He was the master who marked the syncopated time of the first "rags" at the society balls, silence before the motives of his music had had time to create the real turkey trot.

Fiddle 123 Years Old.

There is no more interesting figure in Atlanta to-day than the old man in his quiet home down on Pine Street with his old comrade, the fiddle, close beside him as he dreams of other and eventful days.

The fiddle, which Mr. Wurm himself said once could vibrate so strongly that it rattled the window panes, now has a plaintive note on account of its cracks. It was made in Germany in 1790 and was brought to this country by the owner's father in 1848.

Mr. Wurm was for 40 years one of the principal members of the Wurm Orchestra. They furnished the music at all the society events at the old Kimball House, when the Kimball House was the social center of Georgia. For 18 years they formed the orchestra at DeGive's Opera House, now the Bijou Theater. All the members, especially 'Dolph, on account of his big fiddle, grew to be among the best known men in Atlanta.

He Loves the Instrument.

Mr. Wurm took out his fiddle when a Georgian reported called to see him. Tenderly he stroked its strings.

"A bass fiddle is not usually regarded as a very affectionate member of the orchestra," he said. "The other members try to make of it an object of humor. They used to joke me about not being able to sit down when I played.

"Somehow the instrument impressed me differently. When my father began to teach us to play on the different instruments I naturally took to the bass violin. And I have stuck to it ever since, always playing the same fiddle.

"In this day most of the musicians in Atlanta have something else to do which they call their regular vocation. They play for extra money. But I never did anything but play the bass violin. Mind you, I never married, and lived economically.

Once Chess Champion.

"During my leisure I played chess. That program seemed to me the best way to enjoy life."

Mr. Wurm explained that he had not played for a year. He said he also had to give up his beloved chess, of which he was once the champion of Georgia. But in his calm philosophy he remarked:

"My doctor tells me as soon as this cataract is ripe he can operate and restore my sight. Then in a few months I will be playing again, both the fiddle and the game of chess.

"Of course, the old fiddle is cracked. You know it doesn't matter how much you may think of a bass fiddle it is awkward to handle. But the tone of my old violin is still deep and sweet, though not so loud as it once was."

ARREST NEAR OF AUTOIST WHO HIT CHILD

Citizens Join Hunt for Speeder. Declare They Can Identify Guilty Driver.

The police dragnet set for the automobile driver who ran down and seriously injured little Eva Kilpatrick last Wednesday has resulted in the finding of a clew which, it is believed, will result in the arrest of the guilty party within twenty-four hours.

Special Officer J. B. Dorsett, who had been detailed on the case, reported to Captain Poole Saturday morning that he had found several persons who reside in the vicinity of the Kilpatrick home who say they will be able to identify the driver of the car.

Although none of these persons witnessed the accident, they did see the car both before and after the accident, it is said, and furthermore have seen the same car pass down Mills Street on other occasions.

In the meantime the war on speed has been waged so vigorously that Recorder Broyles had not a single case before him Monday morning. He declared, however, that breakers of the law would promptly be sent to the stockade upon conviction.

AUTOISTS!

Take a spin to Crystalake Country Club Sunday (Bennett's Mill) via Jonesboro and Fayetteville. Hour's ride over fine roads. Beautiful grove around 100-acre lake. Good bathing in clean water. Pick you out a nice lot and join the club being formed. Fine fishing. Delightful place to camp and spend summer. Ask for Mr. Carroll, on the grounds.

Boys! Fans! All Lovers of BASEBALL!

Do You Know---

How, why and when this play by "Ty" Cobb should be made?

How and why a catcher "shapes the ball?"

Why the straight overhand swing is more valuable in obtaining control of the ball than either the side arm or the "rise" ball?

The proper way to make a double play at second?

How a player should hold the bat when laying down a bunt?

Why a catcher should use the snap throw to get a man stealing a base?

The proper way to field a ground ball?

How to make the ball "carry" on a throw?

The proper position for covering second to get a man out stealing?

Why the batter should "choke the bat" to get the best results?

All these questions and many more are answered in

FINDS FARMERS SERFS UNDER U. S. LAWS

John Sprunt Hill, of American Commission Abroad, Recounts Needed Credit Reforms.

By JOHN SPRUNT HILL.
(North Carolina Member American Farm Credits Commission.)

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, July 5.—The banking system of America has until now been conducted too much on city lines. It has neglected the farmer.

Investors will not furnish money to the farmer at the same rates of interest as to railroads and corporations:

Firstly, because of antiquated laws in a majority of the States taxing mortgages at from 2 to 3 per cent, while railroad bonds, payable to bearer, and therefore easily concealed, practically remain untaxed;

Secondly, because of the lack of machinery for placing land mortgages before the investor.

U. S. Banking Restrictions.

We have one banking institution for about 4,000 people in the United States, but national banks are prohibited by law from lending money on real estate and a great majority of the State banks, savings banks and trust companies, for some reason which they are unable satisfactorily to define, share this prejudice.

Though along this line in the United States is moulded almost entirely by city bankers who do not come in close contact with the farmer and small land owner. City bankers are apt to assume that principles governing the conduct of business in cities should be applied to the financial affairs of farmers. The result is that the merchants and manufacturers and business men in cities have virtually all the machinery for obtaining cheap credit in their hands while the average farmer is thrown back on such forms of high-priced credit as he can obtain from local merchants.

Financial Serfdom.

The small farmer is, therefore, restricted in the choice of places for buying his supplies, forced to pay at least 33 1-3 percent higher for supplies than other persons paying cash, is also frequently restricted as to the place for selling his products, denied the benefits of competitive prices, and in many cases reduced to a state of financial serfdom.

There is no such discrimination in Europe. Generally speaking, Continental Europe furnishes sound, elastic credit to the farmer on as good or even more favorable basis than to any other class. We need a campaign of education along this line in the United States that will promote a better understanding between our bankers and farmers.

We need a system in the United States by which land mortgages can be quickly and economically mobilized so that collateral trust bonds issued on these aggregated mortgages can be made readily negotiable and marketable.

What is the plain story of Europe should be the story of the United States, namely, that farm lands on a basis of real value, earning power and stability are the best asset in the country. Some day doubtless President Wilson and Bryan and Taft will give more attention to the farmers and less to cities.

In the United States we need co-operation to still the raging winds of discontent and give relief in the sunshine of equal opportunity of organized democratic manhood and brotherly love.

Need of Co-Operation.

Co-operation is necessary to check socialism, which tends always to drag things down to one level. Co-operation is essentially American. Socialism is not American. In many parts of Europe co-operation flourishes, and land is considered a safer and more favorable basis of credit than stocks of corporations and other securities.

The foolish laws and more foolish prejudices against extending credit on land as security should be abolished, and as in Europe, money advanced 5 per cent or less, should be brought within the reach of the small farmer. Our antiquated laws should be reformed, and our farmers should know some of that "new freedom" of whom President Wilson speaks and hopes so much.

Taste for Melons Seems on the Wane

Dealers in watermelons are up in arms over the apparent lost appetite of Atlantans for the luscious fruit or vegetable, as you choose to call it. Despite the fact that a large supply of the juicy fruit was in Atlanta yesterday the demand was small.

"What has become of the old watermelon cutting parties?" queried one dealer. "The sale of watermelons in restaurants is greatly on the increase, but the home consumption is falling off rapidly.

ANTE-BELLUM ATLANTAN DEAD.

RICHMOND, July 5.—Albert Clopton Pulliam, aged 84, who was in the hotel business in Atlanta before the war between the States, is dead at his home in South Richmond.

Snubbed by Senate, Suffragists to Ask House for Chamber

Undaunted by the refusal of the Senate to allow them to use the Senate chamber for meeting places, Atlanta suffragists will attempt to obtain the House of Representatives hall. When the House convenes Monday it will find a large delegation of women waiting to make this request.

Floor Leader Blackburn and Representative R. Y. Smith, the suffragists claim, will bring the matter before the House. So far no objection, they say, has been offered to their using the House chamber.

Mrs. Mary McLendon is quite certain the House will grant them the courtesy, which she declared had been accorded them before.

"The spectacle of the women of Georgia having to beg the men for courtesy is truly a pitiful sight," said Mrs. McLendon.

HOUSE PAGE PREDICTS HE WILL BE PRESIDENT

Two D. F. McClatcheys who hold important positions in the Georgia House.

Boy thinks Speaker and Reading Clerk should be one.

Reading Clerk McClatchey's 8-Year-Old Son Has Determined on Career of Public Service.

Eight years of age with three years' experience as a page in the House of Representatives is the luck of D. F. McClatchey, Jr., who is also quite fond of sitting on the knee of his father, who has been Reading Clerk of the House for sixteen years.

Young D. F. bids fair to prove as popular as his father, who manages to inject enough life in the reading of House bills to make it pleasant for the Legislature. Acoustics of the House are not the best in the world, and the powerful voice of D. F. McClatchey is about the only one which has ever overcome this difficulty.

The ambition of young D. F., though, is to combine the positions of Reading Clerk and Speaker. He like his father's job, but he also has a great longing to handle the gavel.

He is sure of a place as page in the House until he is old enough to vote, when he expects to become a full-fledged member of the House. He will then take a turn in the Senate, put in a couple of terms as Governor, try out Congress for a few terms and then make himself President. And there's not a member of the House who does not believe this prediction is more than apt to come true. The youngster can shake hands with you as heartily as any politician who ever lived, or curl up in his father's lap as cute and loving as a youngster should be.

"Keep your eye on that young McClatchey," is the way his father likes to refer to him.

Turn Verein Holds Its Annual Picnic

Members of the Atlanta Turn Verein enjoyed their annual picnic at Germania Park yesterday. An unusually large crowd attended it, and from 10 o'clock in the morning until late last night there wasn't a dull moment.

Dancing was indulged in, while nearly everyone donned a bathing suit and spent hours in the lake.

SEARCHING SIDELIGHTS ON POLITICS IN GEORGIA

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

The political hosts in Georgia may not realize it quite, but when William Michael Bairman, of The Macon Telegraph, passed away on Thursday last the best informed man on things political in Georgia ceased to be.

Not only was he the best informed man in Georgia on State politics, but he was one of the sweetest and gentlest characters that ever lived within the Commonwealth.

Mr. Bairman was modest to an extraordinary degree, and one rarely saw his name in print—this writer never saw it figure in the head lines, at least, until those head lines announced Mr. Bairman's untimely death.

He it was who kept for years that remarkable "scrap book" of The Telegraph, so often invoked by his chief, Colonel Pendleton, to the chagrin, humiliation and undoing of an antagonist!

If ever you, Mr. Politician, did anything in Georgia that got into a newspaper somewhere, you may rest assured it was in this fearful and wonderful "scrap book!"

And yet Mr. Bairman did not keep that book for the purpose of humiliating or undoing antagonists so much as he kept it for the honorable and worthy purpose of perpetuating genuine history and keeping the records absolutely right. Far from desiring to hurt unnecessarily the feelings of any person, Bairman would not have hurt the feelings of God's humblest creature if it might be avoided!

Like the other men of his kind one occasionally meets as one passes down the way of life, Mr. Bairman was exceedingly generous to his fellow men, both in judgment upon them and in ministering to their material wants. He rarely if ever spoke an unkind word of any man, and if he ever turned down an appeal for charity few people sem to have known anything about it.

For many years he has been Editor Pendleton's right-hand man—and it is certain that that splendid editor will miss him sorely. But the greatest loss is sustained by the readers of The Telegraph. He has been, often unknown to them, their surest source of information and fact.

Postmaster J. Park Bowie, by the womanly grace of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, will take charge of the Rome office on Tuesday next. When boys and girls together, Mr. Bowie and Mrs. Wilson used to make "mud pies."

Mr. Bowie lost an even $100, and was delayed in going into office two weeks because of a stupid and clumsy mistake made in his commission when it was first issued.

When his first commission arrived it was discovered that it had Rome down as being in "Rome" County instead of in "Floyd" County, and it had to go back for correction. So exacting are the red-tape methods in the Postoffice Department that it was two good weeks before the commission got back, shaped up as it should be.

Postmaster Barclay, the efficient outgoing official, could not see where he stood to shed unnecessary tears over the situation, however, as it rounded up an even $100 for him that he wasn't expecting to get!

Senator E. H. Elkins, of the Fifteenth District, already has grown to be one of the best-known men in the General Assembly.

He is democratic in his ways and the dignity of a Senator, while duly appreciated by him, does not sit too heavily upon him. He is a good mixer and makes friends easily.

Mr. Elkins is a fine business man, and is looked upon generally as safe and sane in judgment, and as a man whose word always is as good as his bond. He evidently is destined to take a high stand in the present Legislature.

Mr. Park, of Liberty, objects to Latin phrases in proposed bills and resolutions.

When Mr. Wright, of Floyd, sent a resolution to the clerk's desk the other day, proposing that certain days to be taken as vacation be declared "dies non," Mr. Park promptly objected. He said he didn't know what "dies non" meant, and he didn't propose to vote for something he didn't know anything whatever about!

Amid the chorus of "noes" entered against Mr. Wright's proposal, Mr. Park's was easily the most vociferous.

The present Legislature, by the way, doesn't seem inclined to do anything calculated to run the legislative session over its natural fifty days' limit.

Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick, of the Tenth District, is in Atlanta for a few days.

Mr. Hardwick has announced his intention not to be a candidate to succeed himself. He desires to enter actively into the practice of law, and feels that he can not well spare further time to Congressional service.

The Congressman from the Tenth has had ten years' experience, and in that time has risen to be one of the real influential men in the House. He is attentive to his duties, and has a particularly keen insight into things. He is now a member of the House Committee on Rules, which is the highest evidence of his standing among his colleagues.

Hardwick still is a young man, and has many years of usefulness ahead of him. It is a matter of genuine regret to thousands of Georgians that he has elected to retire at the end of his present term.

Next week will see the beginning of real legislative activity.

All the committees of the Senate and House have been organized and are ready for business. There is not a committee of importance, moreover, that hasn't already on hand a more or less jam of business. Between Monday and Saturday there should be reported back to the House a large number of bills with recommendations.

Representative Crawford Wheatley intends working his big Committee on Appropriations to a frazzle, if necessary, in order to get the general appropriations bill on its way to the Senate. But before starting them to work Mr. Wheatley proposes putting them in a perfectly good humor with himself and the world in general by dining them sumptuously.

He will give the committee an elaborate dinner Tuesday evening at the Capital City Club.

FLANDERS CASE ENDED; RUMOR CONFIRMED

Evidence Is Insufficient to Show Woman Had Guilty Knowledge of Slaying, Prosecutor Says.

SWAINSBORO, GA., July 5.—The reports which have been published from time to time that Mrs. Mattie Flanders will never be tried for murder of her husband to-day are formally confirmed by a statement made by A. S. Bradley, of counsel engaged by the Flanders family to prosecute the woman.

"The State does not expect to try the case against Mrs. Flanders, and I will ask the court to enter a nolle prosequi," Mr. Bradley said.

"This in fact seems to be the only honorable course to pursue, frankly, so far as the attorneys representing the prosecution are concerned. We have been convinced of the fact ever since the trial of Dr. McNaughton, and before the jury rendered a verdict the matter was discussed among us. We decided that while the evidence showed beyond a doubt the guilt of Dr. McNaughton it was legally insufficient to connect Mrs. Flanders with the crime.

"There is great distinction between the cases against the two defendants, and this has been especially marked by the line of reasoning the Supreme Court adopted in arriving at a judgment sustaining their verdict against Dr. McNaughton.

"The State is not in possession of sufficient evidence to even lead to a conclusion that Mrs. Flanders was aware that drugs administered to her husband were poisonous.

"We have continued the trial so far for the sole reason that we felt that it might be possible more evidence would be obtained. It has not been obtained and there seems to be no reasonable possibility that any stronger case can be made out at this time. If more evidence can be brought to light in the future it still would be possible to indict the defendant and try her.

"Frankly I always have felt that I did not care to go before a jury and ask it to render a verdict of conviction in a case in which I have absolutely no confidence in the legal sufficiency of the evidence."

Smithsonian Given Star-Spangled Flag

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The Smithsonian Institution announces that the original Star-Spangled Banner was in the possession of the Smithsonian and had been placed on exhibition. This flag floated over Fort McHenry on September 13 and 14, 1814, when the British fleet attacked Baltimore. It is 27 feet 6 inches wide by 32 feet 10 inches long and has fifteen stripes and fifteen stars.

The flag that was the inspiration for the famous patriotic song was kept by Colonel George Armistead, who was in command at Fort McHenry, and handed down to his grandson, Even Appleton, of New York.

TURTLE EATS CHICKENS.

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—A snapping turtle 26 inches in diameter and weighing 47 pounds, crawled out of the lake in Lansdowne Park, East St. Louis, and ate two fine Plymouth Rock pullets belonging to Norton Bryan, who lives in Forest Place, two blocks from the lake.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

Two Headline Features.

Next week at the Forsyth there will be two headline features. Cecil Lean and company will present "The Motion Picture Man," and Eva Taylor and company will offer "After the Wedding." These acts are recognized headline features in all the Keith theaters and are being brought to Atlanta as features of the summer season. In addition there will be other clever acts, making up a bill that will unquestionably attract attention.

Talking Pictures Please.

The Edison talking pictures at the Grand have become so thoroughly well established that crowds are flocking to see this innovation in motion pictures. In addition to the talking pictures excellent first-run black and white pictures are given. The Grand is delightfully comfortable.

THE WEATHER.

WASHINGTON, June 5.—Thundershowers will continue in the Lake region and will extend into New England and the Middle Atlantic States to-night and Sunday, but will be followed by generally fair weather Sunday in the greater portion of the Lake region. In the Ohio Valley and the South the weather will be generally fair to-night and Sunday with continued high temperatures. It will be cooler in the Lake region.

The Forecast.

Forecast until 7 p. m. Sunday:
Georgia—Generally fair to-night and Sunday.
Virginia—Showers late to-night or on Sunday; continued warm.
North and South Carolina—Generally fair in the interior; showers near the coast to-night or Sunday.
Alabama, Florida and Mississippi—Generally fair to-night and Sunday.
Tennessee—Fair to-night and Sunday; continued warm.
Louisiana and Texas—Fair to-night and Sunday.

Bennett, Frank Montgomery, Gillespie Adams and Palmer Johnson.

* * *

Mrs. Hilton Hostess.

Mrs. Harold Hilton entertained at a bridge party Saturday morning at her home on North Jackson Street for her guest, Miss Leila Daley, of Texarkana, Texas.

Pink and white sweetpeas decorated the porch where the game was played. The prizes were a boudoir cap and a piece of handmade lingerie.

Mrs. Hilton wore a blue crepe de chine, and Miss Daley was gowned in white embroidered crepe.

Vesper Club Dance.

One of the most interesting social events of the past week was a dance given by the Vesper Club Friday evening. The hall was decorated in the club colors of black and gold and the national colors. The guests of honor were Miss Eulula Bright Cannon, Miss Minnie Little, of Montgomery, and Miss Ethel Cantrell, of Rome.

Among those present were Misses Maude Lewis, Harriet Thumler, Evelyn Green, Rosa Belle Chapman, Ruth Atkinson, Lilouise Reed, Adelaide Callaway, Lula Black, Lucy Hinman, Elberta Williams, Annie K. THE GEORGIAN'S MAGAZINE PAGE

Revenge Is Sweet

"BELINDA," said the brother of that good woman, looking up from his magazine, "if you sigh like that again I shall leave home. What do you find in those price lists to distress you so painfully?"

"I was trying to select enough plants and shrubs to embellish a three-acre lot and provide a succession of blooms during the summer," she replied. "I must choose only varieties that need very little cultivation and scarcely any watering and will be somewhat out of the ordinary and will cost not more than $10. After working on the problem all morning I'm convinced that it's impossible."

"What is it, a prize contest for some horticultural society?"

"No, of course not; I'm acting as a committee of one appointed by the Village Improvement Society to 'landscape garden' the public square."

"Indeed! And with the munificent sum of $10? Why is the Village Improvement Society so reckless with its funds?"

"You know very well, Ben, that in such a little village there isn't much money to spend, and the society is quite generous.

Her Scheme.

"I was invited to attend the meeting yesterday," she explained, "and offer suggestions about the planting of the square. When I finished speaking it was unanimously voted that $5 be expended on the work."

"I thought you said $10 a minute ago."

"Well, I didn't like to dampen their enthusiasm by explaining that $5 was hardly a drop in the bucket, so I told them that you and I would be glad if they would let us add another five."

"How thoughtful of you! Thank you for my share in it. I suppose they agreed?"

"Yes, and I naturally wish to do the best I can. But the society is so particular that it makes things rather difficult. Mrs. Hart says the odor of peonies makes her husband ill, and as his feed store opens upon the square that settles the peonies. Mrs. Bell can't endure flowering almond because she associates it with lonely days on her old farm. As she is the president of the society, that's reason enough for not having flowering almond. Gladys Smith thinks we should make a feature of the most expensive hydrangeas grown. She saw them while she was away at school. Miss Hitty Watkins considers lilacs dreadfully common, and they don't bloom for several years. 'Immediate results!' is the cry of the whole society.

"However, I persuaded them to buy some annuals for this year's flowers, for it's too late now to plant seeds, and to spend most of the appropriation on permanent shrubbery. It's my business to make that $10 cover my plans. Ben, will you please see if my addition is correct while I search for a better bargain in hydrangeas and weigelas? I want to get the order off on the afternoon mail."

While one was engrossed with the catalogues and the other with the auditing a shiftless figure slouched across the lawn and leaned against the porch railing. He made his presence known by an apologetic clearing of the throat.

"Hello, Mike," said Ben. "Going fishing?"

"No; I came out here on business for the improvement society. I got a bill for Miss Belinda."

"For me?" exclaimed she, astonished.

"Why, yes. You see, I ain't never been paid for the work I done last summer on the square. Them women hired me to keep it in order and I kep' the paper and trash picked up and cut the grass real often and I pulled up them house plants they sat out there that died, and I ain't never been paid. I heard that you was in charge of the square now, so I come over to get my money."

"But," protested Miss Belinda, with some warmth, "I had nothing at all to do with last year's affairs."

"No, I know that, but I went to see Mrs. Bell and she and Hitty Watkins put their O. K. on my bill, so I come on over here to get my pay, just as they said."

Miss Belinda looked appealingly at her brother. He took the none too clean slip of paper in his hand.

"I think there's nothing for it but to pay," he said, laughing. "It's only $7."

"Seven dollars!" echoed Miss Belinda. "I don't see how you can laugh, Ben. It isn't funny—it's tragic."

Funny.

When Mike, with the money in his pocket, turned his back on the brother and sister, Ben said: "It is funny, Belinda. It is positively side-splittin'." Miss Belinda had to laugh.

"And now what about your plans?" her brother asked.

"I shall buy as many hydrangeas as I can with the miserable $3 and take peonies, flowering almond and lilacs out of my own garden to make up the deficit."

"Revenge is sweet. I wonder what would have happened to Mike's bill if you hadn't added our $5 to the society's appropriation?"

All Beach.

Wilfrid was sitting on his father's knee, watching his mother arrange her hair.

"Papa hasn't any waves like that," said the father, laughing.

Wilfrid, looking up at his father's bald pate, replied:

"No; no waves; it's all beach."

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

The scene of the story is laid in the Vanderlip Hotel, New York City. The Princess Maria Theresa of Segura, a beautiful Spanish woman, is suddenly awakened in her suite by the sound of pistol shots. She hears a man running down the hall. He crashes against her door, breaking the lock, and enters. She sees he is a tall, good-looking young man, dressed in evening clothes. He is carrying a revolver in his right hand, and blood is dripping from a wound in his left. He begs the Princess to hide him. She, moved by some indescribable impulse, decides that she will. She directs him to an inner room, and a few minutes later, when the hotel detective knocks on the door, she tells him she is all right and sends him away. The young man, who is Warren Jarvis, of Kentucky, comes out of his hiding place, and the Princess, for the first time, notices his wound. She is moved to sympathy and showers him with questions as to what has occurred. Jarvis tells her about a Kentucky feud between his family and another named Markham. He says he left Kentucky to avoid the feudists, but encountered one of them in the hotel, which explains the shots.

Now go on with the story.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"It's all right," said Jarvis, with a little sigh of relief. "But how am I going to get out of here?"

His liege lady smiled a little sarcastic smile.

"Resourceful man! I thought of a plan long ago—the trunk." And she indicated a capacious traveling van at the foot of the bed.

"The trunk?" he echoed, blankly. "What about it?"

"Well, you are stupid," decided the Princess. "I am sending it on the steamer at 6 o'clock."

A light of understanding but distinctly not of joy leaped to Jarvis' eyes.

"You mean to get in it?"—Good Lord!—Is it big enough?"

He walked—stood over it dubiously a moment and threw back the lid.

The Plan.

"I think so," said the princess. "And no one could possibly suspect. Take out those trays."

"Sure it's big enough," conceded Warren doubtfully, as they leaned over the interior, "but what about these?"

Something fell and tinkled on the brass work.

"Oh!" exclaimed Dona Maria. He picked it up and held it out to her, examining it curiously.

"It's nothing," she assured him hastily, regaining possession. "I mean—it's all right—it's just a locket."

"Did I break it?"

"Oh, no—I broke it myself—on purpose—yesterday," she explained, somewhat confusedly. Then, when she had concealed it once more in the fold of her gown, she went on gravely. "It means a great deal to me—and, perhaps, to you. I crossed the ocean for that locket. Some day you may know the reason why."

Before he could make any comment she returned briskly to the matter in hand.

"We had better send these," she suggested, indicating the trays.

"Hold on—I've got it!" he exclaimed suddenly, then stopped. "No—you better phone. Ask the operator to give you the Hotel Belwood, across the street—my room is 417. Rusty, my servant, is there now, waiting for word from me." The Princess frowned and shook her head. "He can be trusted," he assured her. "Tell him to come here at once; and just say 'Warren'—that'll fetch him."

The Princess hesitated a moment as if still in doubt, but his confidence reassured her and she went to the telephone and got the connection.

"Ask if it's Rusty, and be sure to say 'Warren,'" he cautioned her in a hoarse whisper. The Princess nodded.

"Hello—is this—Mr. Rusty?" Jarvis grinned in the background at the title. "Well, listen carefully—you are to come right over to the Vanderlip Hotel, across the street from where you are. A bell-boy will be waiting for you at the desk and he is to bring you right up to Room 1121——"

"And keep his mouth shut," interrupted Jarvis.

"And—and don't talk to anyone," translated the Princess. "What's that——? There was a pause and she put her lips close to the mouthpiece. "Warren," she said, waited a moment, and hung up the receiver.

"He's coming right over."

Jarvis chuckled exultantly. "Now, get the desk and tell them to look out for Rusty, and also tell them to send up some wrapping paper and twine."

When Dona Marie had communicated her instructions to the desk she returned to find her cavalier, coat and overcoat thrown aside, inside the trunk cutting at the tough leather with a pocketknife.

"Got to breathe," he explained between pants. Swearing a little under his breath he threw his weight onto the knife, and the blade snapped, gashing his finger.

"Oh, what did you do?" she exclaimed with solicitation that was extremely gratifying to the knight.

"Snapped the blade," he growled, eying the bleeding cut with disgust.

"But you hurt your hand—your injured hand!"

He tried to belittle it and looked hopelessly around for another engineering tool; but Dona Maria insisted on examining the wound and bathing with alcohol and wrapping it up.

"Now, how am I going to cut a hole in that trunk? he wondered while these ministrations were in progress. Dona Maria looked about the room also.

"My shears," she suggested, suddenly.

"If they're not too light. Let's see."

"Come back here," she ordered, holding onto his hand. "It's not tied yet."

He laughed and looked down at her mischievously. "Do you know—I'm beginning to like this job already?"

The hand was instantly released and the work of making an air-hole resumed.

"What time does the boat sail?" he inquired after certain grunts of satisfaction announced success.

"Nine o'clock."

"Good!" he grunted, stabbing savagely with the shears. "That will give Rusty time to get on board with these trays and my baggage."

He toiled a few minutes more in silence, Dona Maria watching him and throwing occasional anxious glances at the clock.

"We've ten minutes before they call for the trunk," she said, at last. Jarvis raised his head to reply, when there came a knock at the door. Swiftly and silently he got out of the trunk and slipped behind the portieres that cut off the alcove, as the Princess opened the door and received Rusty and his brass-buttoned escort, who also delivered the wrapping paper and twine, and withdrew.

Rusty stood in stolid silence until the boy had disappeared, and Dona Maria invited him in and bolted the door behind him.

He was a gray-haired darky of heavy and important mien, whose architecture followed in a general way the liberal cylindrical design of New York's new courthouse. His system of locomotion was full of strange and unexpected eccentrics, and his efforts to reach a given point, however near, were always accompanied by truly distressing wheezing and groaning which deceived every one but his master. His besetting sin was an earnest devotion to the principle of repose, and his crown of glory a blind, unwavering, idolatrous loyalty to his master.

"Rusty's heart is all right," Jarvis used to say, "but it is so heavily surrounded by fat that it has some difficulty in expressing itself."

The bellboy had walked him somewhat hurriedly down the hall, and this unwonted activity, combined with real uneasiness over the possible predicament of his master, caused alarming sounds to arise from the cavernous depths of his heaving chest. Before he could spare a few cubic inches of breath for inquiry Jarvis stepped back into the room.

The Escape.

"Lor' bless you, Marse Warren!" he gasped, holding up his arms and rolling his eyes in token of thanksgiving, "I sert'nly thought you all——"

"Never mind what you thought," interrupted Jarvis in brisk tones. "Take these," and he pointed to the trays, "with our baggage to the steamship Lusitania, of the Cunard line—buy accommodations. Mind, you won't see me till after we get out to sea. Keep in your stateroom and sit tight until you hear from me. Understand?"

As promptly as if it were an everyday occurrence, Rusty had fallen to work on the trays, and, by a change in his manner of puffing, indicated that he was following the rest of the instructions.

"I'll give you the money," went on Jarvis, "and the clerk at our hotel will attend to everything and get the tickets. Then you pay the bill. No; get hold of this."

Rusty took the wallet his master held out without a word and went busily back to the trays again.

"Let me help," offered Dona Maria.

"No, we can manage it, I guess," said Jarvis easily, smiling at the uproar that emanated from his servant who was forced to stop over the work. "This is n't time. I'll widen this one a little." He rested both hands on the side and looked up at her soberly. "Remember this trunk must not go into the hold of the ship. Have it marked 'Wanted on Voyage,' and 'This End Up.' I'll lie with my head in this direction."

"I'll remember," she promised earnestly; "now let me get you a pillow."

Heavy folds of her clothing padded the bottom and he arranged the pillow for his head. Then he sat in the trunk and looked very serious.

"Before I get into this coffin," he said, "there are one or two things I should like to know. How do you know that you can trust me?"

"I don't," she replied instantly; "I'll have to take that chance."

He winced a little.

"But you must have a pretty good reason," he insisted.

"I have," was the cool response.

"Well—what about the ghosts?"

"Pardon me, Mr. Warren, but so far your credentials do not warrant further confidence."

Repulsed in the direct attack, the young man was silent a few moments. So was the young woman. Then he essayed a flank movement.

"You are Spanish—yet you speak with no accent," he charged.

"I was educated in England."

Another pause and another attempt.

"Are you really—a sure-enough princess?"

A certain wintriness apeared in the soft, dark eyes that looked down into his.

"Why do you say that?"

"Oh—I—don't know," he stammered, uncertainly. "I—somehow—you aren't quite like what I thought a princess would be."

"I'm sorry," she remarked, coldly.

"Oh, I didn't mean it that way," he hastened to protest, feeling that he was making next to no headway. "I mean that you're different from the popular idea of a princess. You have more—more—understanding," he floundered, but the wintriness did not vanish, "more—more—sympathy—more heart——"

"In that respect," cut in Dona Maria, swiftly, "you will find me quite a conventional princess."

The House Detective.

The knight immediately began a painfully careful examination of the hole through which he must breathe for several hours and thus he did not notice that the Princess colored slightly and the winter in her eyes gave way momentarily to spring. He was grateful that he had the hole in the leather to examine during the painful silence.

"I wonder"—he cleared his throat, and began again—"I wonder if this opening will let in enough air."

"I hope so," said the Princess, and he had to look up at her face to make sure that she was not as indifferent as the tone of her voice indicated. What he saw evidently reassured him, for his embarrassment vanished.

"I'll put the shears in here," he remarked cheerily, "and if it gets too stuffy I can cut another hole from the inside."

There was a knock at the door. Both started, and Jarvis noiselessly coiled himself into his cage.

"It must be the man for the trunk, she whispered. Then she called. "Just a minute, please."

He let the lid down a little way and she bent over him.

"Remember," he whispered earnestly, "this must not go into the hold of the ship. You must have it marked 'Wanted,' and 'This Side Up.' You might add 'With Care' if you've a mind to," he added with a wry smile, and he cautiously let the lid down.

"Are you all right?" she whispered, her hand on the lock.

"If they don't lose the trunk," came in a muffled voice from within.

To Be Continued Monday.

JARVIS GETS READY TO FLEE

"How am I going to get out of here?" said Jarvis.

The Last Moments.

The darkey nodded brightly. "I knows what you means—fer us an' Mrs. Princess ah——"

"No, no," snapped Jarvis, impatiently. "Not for the Princess—just for us two."

"Oh, yas, sah. I unnastin' puffectly."

"All right." Jarvis pushed him toward the door. "Now, get a move on you and don't miss the boat. Remember the name of the line?"

Rusty put his head on one side and thought for an instant, and then showed a yard of teeth.

"Yas, sah, the—the Coon-ard Line."

The instant the door was locked behind him Jarvis returned to his work at the trunk. He had just succeeded in making a small hole when the time was up.

"Make another," urged Dona Maria.

He shook his head decidedly. "Have-

"Too Nintimate"

By WINIFRED BLACK.

THEY'VE quarreled, the two "nintimate friends.

No, I don't mean "intimate," I No, I don't mean "intimate," I mean "nintimate"—that's what they call each other. One's ten and one's nine, and they've been playing dolls together for weeks.

I told Ten-year-old that she had better play with someone else for a while.

"You and Nine-year-old will quarrel as sure as fate," said Ir, oh, so wisely.

"Quarrel, my 'nintimate' friend and I?" cried Ten-year-old in horror. Oh, how could we ever do such a thing? Why, she's the sweetest girl in the world. I wish my hair was the color of hers and my eyes, too, so we could wear the same colored ribbons, and oh, can't we both have linen hats, the same shade anyhow?"

So they had linen hats the same shade, and the new kind of heelless shoes the same shape, and Brown Eyes tied on a pink ribbon and so Blue Eyes had to tie on a pink ribbon, too.

But now they've quarreled, quarreled badly. It began over the dolls. Nine-year-old wanted the dolls to go to school and say their seven times, and Ten-year-old wanted to send them to the mountains or to the seashore or somewhere.

"Isn't it bad enough to say our own old ten times and eight times over and over," said Ten-year-old, "without making per-f-e-c-t slaves of the poor, darling dolls?"

"I'm not a slave," said Nine-year-old, "and I'd thank you not to call me one."

"Why," said Ten-year-old, "I didn't. I said"——

"I know what you said," said Nine-year-old, "I can hear all right"—— only she said "hyear."

"Well, then," cried Ten-year-old, "why don't you talk all right." F-t-t-t—the trouble began right then—dolls went home—ribbons came off—hats were thrown in the closet—out of the hated sight. "I'll never play with her again," sobbed Ten-year-old.

"I hate the sight of her," quavered Nine-year-old, and so the day was clouded.

What mattered how gayly the sun shone, what mattered how sweetly the flowering bush at the back gate beckoned—who cared what the robin tried to say. Gone—to smithereens—one long, happy, happy day. Gone never to come back again—alas, alas, what a sinful waste, and all because the "nintimate friends" were just a shade too "nintimate," that's all.

The young couple next door—how dead in love they are; she walks to the corner every night to meet him, and he turns around three or four times to wave her good-bye in the mornings. And the other night, when one of his old friends dropped in for a pleasant evening, she pouted; I could see it by the very turn of her shoulders.

She didn't want a soul around but him. And Sunday, when her sister came over after church, he went upstairs and sulked. I could see his shadow on the blind.

They won't admit now that there is any gulf at all, oh, no. They're one, you know; didn't they say so before the parson and all the church full of smiling friends. One—which one I wonder?

Will she give up her individuality—the one thing that called him to her—or will he be just an echo of her.

One! Which one? I always wonder.

How much better it is when you get to understand that two human beings mean two every time and not one at all; the man is a man, not a copy of a woman, and the woman is a woman, not an echo of the man; each must live his and her own separate life, and the sooner they begin to do it the sooner they'll be happy.

"And then where did you go?" says the young wife when Husband is a few minutes late to dinner.

Young Husband's brow clouds. After all, must he be watched like a criminal. "Oh, then I came home," he says, and doesn't tell the young wife that he stopped to chat with old Billie from Yale a minute or so, and the next day the young wife meets old Billie from Yale and he says: "Had a fine talk with Jimmie yesterday,"—and there's trouble in store for husband when he gets home that night.

"Too nintimate," that's all, "too nintimate," that's actually all that's the matter!

Your husband's heart is yours, not his brain and his soul, too. Your wife is faithful, loving, devoted, that's enough fou you to know, young man. Don't be too "nintimate" either of you—or you "won't speak" before six months is gone. Oh, yes, it's a pretty fiction, "two hearts that beat as one, two souls with but a single thought," etc.—a pretty fiction—thank goodness, it isn't a bit true. What a bore it would be to live with a twin, wouldn't it?

Do You Know That—

James Morris, who has been chauffeur to Cardinal Bourne since the latter was presented with a motor car some years ago, and who had previously been coachman to Cardinal Vaughan, has retired. It is Morris' boast that he has safely driven nine princes of the church in the motor car, which he has piloted 18,000 miles "without ever getting the Cardinal into trouble with the police for exceeding the speed limit." Cardinal Bourne has presented him with an autographed portrait of himself.

The languages and dialects into which the Bible is translated now number 450. The British and Foreign Bible Society's issues of copies of the Scriptures now reach the huge total of 7,899,562, made up of 936,346 Bibles, 1,269,919 New Testaments and 5,696,297 smaller portions. In China last year, for every two English books the society sold it disposed of three in Chinese—the bulk of these being single gospels.

Haste Quite Unnecessary.

The evening was damp and cold and foggy, and the Rev. Candy Macgregor, while walking absent-mindedly along the street, fell heavily into a deep hole which had been made by order of the local sanitary authorities.

For a long while the Rev. Sandy struggled to escape. Then despairingly he began to shout for help. A passing laborer heard his cries, and, looking down into the hole, asked who was there.

The minister informed him, but in return received only meager comfort.

"Weel, weel," said the laborer, "ye needa kick up sic' a noise. You'll no' be needed afore the Sawbath, and this is only Wednesday nicht!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Deep Breathing Lessons from Miss Zoe Barnett

Miss Zoe Barnett.

By LILIAN LAUFERTY.

"HAVE you ever watched a fish breathe?" asked dark-eyed Zoe Barnett, of Lew Field's "All Aboard" company. "No, I'm not bringing the role of comedienne into this interview; I am about to tell you the greatest beauty secret I know. A fish breathes visibly—you can see its little sides expand and contract as it breathes deeply and all over its body. But most women breathe either in the top of their lungs or expand their diaphragms as much as their stiff corsets will let them. Now, I wear corsets of 'Grecian tricot'—or webbing—and those corsets breathe with me."

We were sitting in Miss Barnett's own cool-shadowed room, and the grateful breeze that fluttered the curtains had not seemed a possible thing down on the sidewalks below. My hostess was wearing a fascinating pink kimono—just the pink to bring a flush to the clear olive of her cheeks; pink "mules" peeped daintily out, and her head was bound in a scarf of soft pink silk with a big pink bow drooping in graceful lines just at the base of a left ear that fitted in with the color scheme of sea-shell pink. A very witching negligee for a midsummer day. Try it with the finishing touch of surah silk sash and see, little sisters.

"Now, I will give you a little exhibition of proper breathing, and then you would probably like a little sermon on just what it does for you," went on Miss Barnett, making the interviewer's lot an easy one, indeed.

An Exhibition.

"Please put your hands here on my ribs and feel them press out and out till they are fully expanded by my full lungs and till my chest is pushed way up by those same lungs, and all the hollows in throat and neck are padded out and filled by the splendid clean air I am drawing up from my diaphragm. That is deep breathing.

"Deep breathing helps you have a figure that is slender yet round. It banishes hollows and unupholstered bones, and it helps the skin throw off impurities and keep white and fine of texture. It lets you have a clear voice, with plenty of reserve power and strength back of it. Try it at an open window twenty times each morning—increase your twenty to thirty—to fifty—breathe deeply whenever you are outdoors—and finally grow into the habit of breathing deeply all the time.

"Do you know, when I feel a little headache starting or find an attack of indigestion imminent, I rush to the open window and breathe deeper and deeper until that internal application of fresh air clears my system and wards off the threatened attack."

"Do you aid and abet your deep-breathing measure by some sensible dietary laws?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, the food supply is first aid to the air supply," said the girl who adds so much wholesome sanity to the more scintillant charm of her delightful personality. "I eat only two meals a day. I find that I can sing over a sore throat—even an ulcerated one—but my voice will not make music over an overworked and protesting stomach. Overeating seems to be a more general complaint than starvation in our land of too plenty."

Choosing Costumes.

"And to your theory of unlimited fresh aid and limited food supply you add a bit of originality in choosing costumes, don't you?"

"A good bit," was the answer. "I loathe putting myself into clothes that some one else has designed for me. I don't feel quite free to be myself unless everything about me is me and expresses me. I like my clothes to be one form of my self-expression, and I think it is worth while bringing earnest study to the understanding of your own type. But if a woman lacks that great essential taste, she can do one great thing toward being well dressed—she can attend to the details of her costume. Never wear a bedraggled petticoat or go about in run-down heels, for if every little detail is neat and in good taste, even the simplest costume looks attractive and dainty."

And in the fine glow of an independent spirit that dares preach because it practices, Miss Barnett concluded: "Work hard at deep breathing and at deep feeling and thinking and trying, and then you'll be a success at being a woman and a worker, and a beauty, too, maybe!"

COMPLICATION OF WOMAN'S ILLS

Yields to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Athens, Texas.—"I had a complication of diseases, some of them of long standing. I wrote to you for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and some other things that you suggested. I must confess that I am much better in every way and have been relieved of some of the worst troubles. My neighbors say I look younger now than I did fifteen years ago."—Mrs. Sarah R. Whatley, Athens, Texas, R. F. D. No. 3, Box 92.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many of them state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

If you want special advice, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

THE continued demand made upon the time of Mrs. Lysander John Appleton and her daughter, Daysey Mayme, to reform the world has proved a blessing to Lysander John, leaving him uninterrupted opportunity for research work.

"I feel," he said calling the two fat pillow cushions to order, "as if my hands were being uplifted and strengthened by unseen forces; as though I, too, a mere man, have a hand in the progress of the world."

He paused. The two fat pillow cushions looked at him with such blank expressions he realized that they had reached the highest degree of culture. It meant so much to be understood, and they understood him!

"As a result of a week's deep study, and untiring poring over old manuscripts, I have found that the following problems of life remain unanswered. I open my hand, as it were, and fling them broadcast to my sex for solution. Let them come nobly forward and take this share of the world's work on their shoulders!

"Let them, I say, relieve our poor struggling mothers, wives, daughters and sisters of some of the burden of exploration of the unseen that now rests with them.

"First, I would ask: Which is preferable to sleep with—A baby, or one of those insects the commonplace call a bedbug, but which we, who are more temperamental, know as a crimson rambler?

"A woman will leave guests at the table, or her husband on his deathbed, to run to the window to see the fire engine go by, but would she run if in the midst of a marriage proposal?

"Does a wooden-legged man take his wooden leg to bed with him?

"Is there more reason for a man to be grateful to his wife for cooking a steak well than there is for her to be grateful because he bought it?

"If it is true that the spirits of our ancestors are constantly flying around us, are our women ancestors up in the air all the time because of indignation over the scraps wasted that would make quilts and rag carpets?

"Who is the more wasteful: The boy who cuts up pumpkins for Jack lanterns or the woman who makes them into very poor pies?"

He paused to give his next question impression and weight. It was a problem older than the world itself, and no one has ever solved it.

"On whose head," he asked—then he paused to scratch his head after the manner of those who are deep thinkers—"On whose head did a certain pair of insects travel on that famous journey in the ark?"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

BY YOUR ACTIONS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19 and in love with a man one year my senior. He loves me also. He has two sisters who are jealous of me and they are always telling him falsehoods about me, some of which he believes. What shall I do to prove that these things are not true? BILLIE G.

If you will conduct yourself in a way with which the most carping critic could find no fault, his sisters' charges will fall flat to the ground. Always remember that time has never weakened the force of that saying, "Actions speak louder than words."

If his love is worth the keeping he will have no doubt of your worth.

YOU DON'T LOVE HER.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 25 and dearly in love with a girl one year my junior who says she loves me. While at a party late one evening she fell asleep and started to walk in her sleep. I have heard since that she walks in her sleep quite often. Do you think we could live happily together, or should I give this girl up? WORRIED.

If you loved her, such a trivial failing would appeal to your sense of protection. Not for a moment would you consider giving her up.

Are you quite sure, young man, that you have no failings more undesirable than sleep walking? If this is the only fault she has she deserves a particularly worthy man.

Household Suggestions

A bright, glossy head of hair, easily kept in curl, may be obtained by dissolving in a pint of boiling water a small square of camphor and a tablespoonful of powdered borax. Into this liquid the brush must be dipped several times whenever the hair is brushed.

A soft piece of linen dipped in milk and bound round a rheumatic joint will often cure a most obstinate case of rheumatism. The linen should be covered with a piece of oiled silk and dipped again in the milk when dry.

The marks of matches struck on walls may be cleaned by applying the cut side of a lemon. Then rub the place with whiting, and lastly scrub with soapy water.

To prevent flies settling on pictures or windows, pour boiling water over an onion. When the water is cold use it for washing over the glass.

An invaluable cure for sore eyes is a little boracic powder dissolved in warm water. When cold bathe the eyes two or three times a day.

Soft hair bristles can be made stiff and firm by dipping them in a pennyworth of alum dissolved in sufficient hot water for washing the brush.

When frying fish, dip it in milk instead of egg before rolling in breadcrumbs. This is more economical and tastes better.

Tie a piece of lemon on a corn every night for five nights and it will generally cause it to drop out.

The Case of Alfred

THE middle-aged woman with the youthful hat sank into the car seat with a sigh of relief. "My, but I got tired waiting on that corner!" she said to her companion. "I hate this standing around waiting for street cars when there might just as well have been an automobile in the family! As I was saying to my husband this morning, it does beat all that after you slave and plan all your life for your children things never turn out as you want them to!"

"That's so," agreed the woman in the shade too bright heliotrope suit. "They just do as they please!"

"Not that Lizzie is not a good daughter," went on the middle-aged woman. "It's just that you can't tell about men. They can be the blindest, most exasperating, contrary creatures! As I was saying to my husband when he took Alfred Quam for a partner, who on earth would have dreamed that such a boyish, pleasant fellow could have such a will of his own and be so absolutely deaf to the call of what are really his own interests?

"He has money, you know, and as his folks did not live here I made up my mind that it was my duty to be kind of motherly to him," explained the middle-aged woman. "I think there is nothing so pathetic as a nice young man away from home and a prey to every designing creature who sets her eyes on him, especially when he is a good-looking young man like Alfred."

"I thought," said the other woman, "that he and Lizzie——"

"I don't believe in trying to make matches," said the middle-aged woman, firmly. "I wouldn't dream of interfering with fate! Lizzie may be 26, but she doesn't look it, and anyone with taste would realize how good-looking she is—in a quiet way, of course. I don't think it is refined to have the sort of looks that attract attention, Mrs. Garver, indeed I don't!

"The first night that I had Alfred Quam to a good home-cooked dinner I let Lizzie stir up the French dressing and stuff the baked potatoes, and if I happened to mention that she got the dinner I can't see that there was any necessity of my explaining just what part of it she got. Alfred always was glad to get an invitation to dinner. Afterward I had Lizzie show him her book of photographs. There's nothing like letting young people get acquainted.

"Anyhow, Alfred Quam might have considered himself in luck to get a nice girl like my Lizzie—not but that she could have her pick of far better than he! There's no telling what a man will like—and to think that he should loes his head over that silly, giggling Georgie MacPrang, who grew so fond of Lizzie all of a sudden on the evenings she found that Alfred was coming! Lizzie is so unsuspicious that she seemed glad to have Georgie come and make eyes at Alfred till I put a stop to it. I guess I wasn't going to have Lizzie beaten on hero wn ground.

"When he got his runabout I mentioned that Lizzie was perfectly crazy over autos and that the fresh air was so good for health. He took her out several times when I invited him to come early for dinner, so they could get a ride afterward, but it wasn't a month before that Georgie MacPrang was driving the runabout with her own hands and smiling condescendingly when she passed our house!

"You don't know what I suffered at the hands of that Georgie MacPrang, Mrs. Garver! I'd ask Alfred out for a nice little family game of cards and he'd have an engagement and the next day Georgie would drop in and tell what a fine time she and Alfred had at the theater the night before.

"He was perfectly nice to Lizzie and if she dropped into the coal office near closing time, as it was perfectly natural for her to do, since it was her father's office, Alfred would usually bring her home. 'Don't push yourself,' I told Lizzie. 'Only don't be backward about showing him that he's popular with you! That flatters a man—having him think you like him and are too modest to show it!'

"Just as I had arranged to have Alfred take his summer vacation at the same time we did and be our guest at the cottage we were going to rent, in comes that Georgie MacPrang with a solitaire as big as a paving stone, all smiles and applied blushes and throws herself on Lizzie's neck and says she must tell her first because it was through her that she and Alfred found each other.

"Isn't that enough to make a woman give up in despair, Mrs. Garver? Not that I'd have dreamed of trying to force Alfred or Lizzie in each other's direction—not me—but being a junior partner and, of course, what's her father's will be Lizzie's some day, and then Alfred would have had it all—and his nice automobile and he is so good looking—and to think that that silly Georgie's MacPrang——"

"Maybe something will happen," said her friend, comfortably. "Lizzie may yet be glad she didn't get him——"

"My goodness!" said the middle-aged woman emphatically. "Why, my Lizzie wouldn't have had Alfred Quam, not if he'd begged her on his knees."

The Mistakes of Jennie

By HAL COFFMAN

Being a Series of Chapters in the Life of a Southern Girl in the Big City

"He is Mine!"

Chapter 15.

WHEN Jennie saw her former girl friend at the office next morning the girl scowled at her, and when she got a chance hissed in Jennie's ear: "I'll get even with you if it's the last thing in the world I ever do."

Poor little Jennie wanted to tell her that it was not her fault that the girl's fellow acted so the night before and wanted Jennie instead of the girl. But she would not listen to Jennie, only to swear at her and call her a little trouble maker.

Jennie could do nothing but think about it all day, and received a severe "call down" from the boss in which he said he had noticed for several days past that her mind had not been on her work, and that she would have to pay stricter attention or he would have to get some one that would.

Jennie noticed several times during the day that the tears were streaming down the girl's cheeks as she bent over her work. So after work Jennie waited outside and wanted to explain to the girl that it was not her fault the way the fellow acted.

The girl backed away from her and said: "You little fool, don't you know he is all I have in the world, and if I lose him I will have to 'walk the streets' for I can't and won't TRY to live on the money I get in the office. I was a fool in the first place to let him see you—for he is MINE! MINE! I tell you, and you—you little fool, let him alone!" Jennie tried to explain, but the girl flounced away cursing her.

How Strict Are You with Your Daughter?

—answer it, parents. Are you too strict, or aren't you strict enough? Either course is liable to be disastrous. Your daughter's welfare means as much to you as anything else in the world, yet do you know what to watch in bringing her up.

There are few men who know the problem as Judge Freschi does. For years a magistrate in the City of New York, his work has brought him into personal contact with thousands of girls and their stories. He has had an opportunity to analyze the causes of their failure. His name has become known throughout the country as their benefactor.

The angle from which he discusses the diverse elements that enter into the upbringing of the girl is a new one that you probably have never thought of. As a thoughtful mother or father you ought to read what he says in his article, "How Strict Are You with Your Daughter?" It appears in the

RAW DEAL FOR FANS AT PONCY PARK ON 4TH

It's Up to the Local Association to Honor Rain Checks for the Second Game.

By W. S. Farnsworth.

WE have been bunked so many times on fake fights that it doesn't sting when we are forced to separate ourselves from a perfectly good two-dollar bill nowadays to see a pair of alleged boxers stall through ten rounds.

But we had always considered that the good game of baseball would net us a full value return for our money. Yesterday, however, we were "held up" and our pocketbook picked with the skill of an expert light-fingered gent.

It came first in the morning at Poncy Park. The Crackers and Pelicans were scheduled to play to a finish. Instead the game was called at the end of the tenth inning with the score two-all. It was then five minutes after 1 o'clock.

Should Have Played It Out.

All the rest of the afternoon was open and the game should have been played out. But, of course, a tie game is always played off. Thereby the local association will net great profits with a double-header on the next trip of the Pelicans here.

We stood for that bit of "highway" without squealing.

But what a yell we did let out about 6 o'clock last evening.

The Crackers and Pelicans met again in the afternoon. They had battled four innings when it started raining.

Seven thousand fans waited the usual 30 minutes.

The umpires didn't come out on the field and declare themselves one way or the other.

Five thousand fans took it for granted that everything was off for the day. The elements had cheated them out of an opportunity to witness what would have probably proved a mighty interesting battle.

But they were consoled by the fact that tucked away in their coat pockets were rain checks. They would yet be given a run for their money.

Brooms Swept Off Water.

Exactly one hour and five minutes after the game had been called the umpires, players and ground keepers appeared on the field. Brooms swept the tons of water off the base lines and play was resumed.

The management didn't want to honor those rain checks. If one more inning could be played they were in hundreds of dollars. The Pels held a 3 to 1 lead. They never figured the Crackers would tie up the count in the fifth. But they did. Then the game went on for two more innings, and again it was called on account of darkness, and still a tie.

The fans were "stung."

And we would suggest that President Kavanaugh, for the good of the game, investigate.

Likewise, the local association, if they take our suggestion, will still honor those rain checks.

Obstinate Acne Quickly Yields

Fine Remedy That Clears Skin of Pimples on Cheeks, Temples, Sides of Nose and Chin.

Acne attacks the glandular structure of the skin, more particularly those tiny glands that secrete fat.

And it is here that S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, is most active in its influence.

There is one ingredient in S. S. S., the purpose of which it is to stimulate the cells in the tissues that thus select from the blood the nutriment that makes new skin and thus eliminates all irritants, acids and parasites that inflame the glands. There is a natural tendency of the fine network of blood vessels in the skin to throw off impurities, but where a persistent inflammatory process has invaded the skin, the natural repair work of the blood is interfered with. It requires the stimulating activity of S. S. S. to overcome such morbid conditions. If you have been troubled with acne, do not despair of a cure.

You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it. The great Swift Laboratorys in Atlanta, Ga., prepares this famous blood purifier, and you should take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if your blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist freely, address the Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Company, 181 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

Ritchie Makes Rivers Quit in Title Battle

When Mexican 'Dogged' Champion Turned Tide

By W. W. Naughton.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Willie Ritchie, the slim, serious-faced lightweight champion, defeated chubby, olive-skinned Joe Rivers, of the Southland, in eleven rounds, and by doing so retained the title coveted. The whole story in a nutshell is that it was the difference between a game lad and one who was not so game.

Before the bout started, Referee Graney and Timekeeper Harting had an earnest discussion as to which of the officials named should do the counting.

By agreement, the duty devolved upon Harting, but when the crucial moment arrived, Rivers relieved both of the responsibility. The Los Angelan actually counted himself out. He has earned the distinction of originating a new ring fashion, even if he missed in his attempt to bear the championship homeward.

This needs a little explanation, and it will be best to narrate the happenings in consequence and approach the terrible crisis gradually.

Just as long as Rivers held the upper hand he fought like a Turk. When brave Ritchie first stemmed the tide, and then turned it, the Los Angelan grew visibly discouraged.

Rivers Great at First.

It was all Rivers in the second, third and fourth rounds. Then Ritchie began to assert himself, and as the fight wore on Rivers boxed with little spirit.

Soon after the eleventh spasm of milling began, Rivers backed toward the ropes. Ritchie, who had been persistently the aggressor for several rounds, strode flat-footed after his man. A light left took Rivers above the belt line, and an equally light right brushed his lower face. Not that the blows lacked steam but the fact that Rivers was retreating and was not quite within range took the edge off the assaults.

As the clip of Ritchie's dexter glove grazed his chin, Rivers stood an instant with his back against the ring boundary. His eyes did not begin to dull like those of a man who is stung, but he lurched forward and fell to the floor. He did not fall in the inert manner of a man who has received a genuine knockdown smash.

Rivers Wanted No More.

When nine seconds had ticked away Rivers rose. Then the champion stepped close and banged his right against the Southerner's jaw. Even that punch did not appear to strike deep enough to produce full results, but Rivers was in the mood to take advantage of anything that would mean an end to the hostilities.

He dived slowly to the carpet, the palms of his hands and his knees supporting him for an instant. Then he flattened down on his stomach, with his head just raised sufficiently to keep his forehead and eyes in view.

In his eyes there was the look of a fellow who was not particularly jarred, but who had made up his mind that things had gone far enough. He assumed a look of distress which did not appeal to the writer as genuine. He began to gather his legs under him, and while doing so watched the timekeeper alertly. As each numeral denoting the passing of a second was shouted, Joe worked a little nearer to an upright position.

By the time the word "seven" came from Harting's lips, Joe was resting on one knee and the finger tips of one hand, and he was palpably checking the gong-minder's count. When at the last the sounds "eight, nine, out" rose above the turmoil at the ringside, Rivers straightened up with a look of relief. The ordeal was passed.

An Interesting Fight.

Even while Rivers performed like a craven at the finish, the bout was an extremely interesting one. It was replete with vicious spells of smashing, in which the men held each other even, and there were a sufficient number of changes of aspect to keep the crowd guessing as to what the ultimate result would be.

Even after Rivers slowed up and showed his heart was not in his work, the chance that the Southerner would land a heavy swing remained. He had kept Ritchie's head rocking in the earlier rounds, and many a Ritchie well-wisher twitched involuntarily as he noticed how dangerously close Rivers' whizzing blows went to reaching their mark later in the contest.

"DOYLE HITTING, GIANTS UNBEATABLE"—STALLINGS

NEW YORK, July 5.—"Larry Doyle has recovered his old form and that is why the Giants are now leading the National League," said George Stallings, manager of the Boston Braves, to-day. "Until recently Doyle was unable to hit with his usual vigor and the Giants were losing games. But they braced the moment Larry's bat began to meet the ball successfully. He is the king pin of the New York team, and now that he is himself McGraw's men can not be headed off.

WILLIAMS TO CLAIM TITLE; M'CAREY WARNS COULON

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July 6.—Promoter McCarey has wired Johnny Coulon that if he does not come through to-day with an agreement to defend his title Kid Williams will be declared the champion of the world and will become the possessor of the McCarey belt, emblematic of the title.

McCarey wants to see an active champion at the head of the bantam division, and if he puts Williams to the front as champion it is safe to state that the Baltimore boy will be busy from now on.

GAINESVILLE TEAM WINS.

GAINESVILLE, GA., July 5.—Gainesville won from Georgia Railway and Electric Company, of Atlanta, yesterday, 11 to 5. The feature of the game was the hard hitting of the Gainesville team.

Sports and Such

"TO SETTLE AN ARGUMENT" an earnest party wants to know if the educated or college ball player is more useful on the diamond than the boy who picked up his baseball around the sand lots.

This query may be deftly sidestepped by taking the position that it doesn't make any difference where a ball player learns to play baseball so long as he learns. But such dodges are unworthy. What the correspondent wants to know is whether education is likely to give a man the bulge on the uneducated player, and the answer is: Not so that you can notice it.

Education in any direction is useful only in the exact ratio of its application. Thus, it is easy to see that a profound knowledge of the effect of the political clubs on the life of the Athenian republic is not going to help a man decide in a tenth of a second where to throw the ball when he has nailed a line drive and three men are running in three different directions.

* * *

GIVEN A CERTAIN FAIR PROportion of intelligence and adeptness in baseball is a matter of practice. Men who think quickly on the ball field have been used to thinking quickly from infancy as a rule, and in sudden crises their minds from long habit work automatically and correctly. The time is usually too short for conscious thought.

* * *

IN THE MECHANICAL science of the game the same is true. The college professors began explaining the spit-ball a long time after Chesbro and his followers had stood the American League on its head. Chesbro didn't know any more about the physics of the spitball than he knew about the influence of the Medici on the Renaissance, but no college professor could tell him anything about throwing one. Radbourne was curving a baseball at a time when some scientists were holding that the feat was impossible.

John Ward, a real college man and a great ball player, invented the trick of left-handed batting to shorten the run to first base, and his trained mind probably had something to do with that, for it was constructive thought. On the other hand, Buck Ewing, ignorant as dirt, was even a greater baseball man than Ward and infinitely his superior as an executive.

Much of the "inside" baseball of to-day was fathered by "Ten-Thousand-Dollar" Kelly, who is considered one of the swiftest thinkers that ever played the game, yet Kelly had to have help with the menu card when he broke into the league.

Harry Dunlap, the "king of second basemen," was almost entirely without education, but his skill in working out the trapped ball trick is the chief reason that we now have the infield fly rule.

Dunlap was so ignorant that he had to make a mark to his contract in lieu of a signature, but so shrewd was his business mind that he got a $5,000 figure into the same contract, more than 95 per cent of the ball players to-day are drawing. And we know a man of rare mental attainments who once stole second with the bases full.

So there you are.

* * *

BUT COLLEGE MEN ARE made more welcome in the big leagues to-day than formerly. Not because of their thinking ability—go and watch two college teams play sometime and you will be purged of that superstition—but simply because they are turning out good ball players in scattered instances. And the college man has lost his propensity to play to the grandstand and sits humbly at the feet of a man who has no alma mater and takes his post-graduate course in the great game.

McGraw once had a college first baseman on trial. A foul was hit a mile over the grandstand, but the collegian tore after, cap gone and hair flying.

"Ah, well," said McGraw wearily, as the youth came back to his bag, "he gave it the old college try."

* * *

FORTUNE IS A JOCULAR dame. Loose-handed Garry Herrmann's team in Cincinnati played a whole game with one ball the other day, while Charlie Murphy's Cubs use up a couple of dozen a day.

Britton Now After Go for the Lightweight Title

Defeats Charley White in Handy Fashion

NEW ORLEANS, LA., July 5.—Jack Britton, the speedy Chicago lightweight, proved in his bout here yesterday with Charlie White, also of the Windy City, that he is a serious contender for Willie Ritchie's title. The clever Chicagoan defeated White in the eighteenth round of a scheduled twenty-round bout, when Referee Burke, acting on the orders of Sheriff Marero, stopped the go to save White from taking more punishment.

Although there were no knockdowns during the entire mill, Britton proved himself superior to his lighter foe. White was thoroughly beaten when Burke stopped the bout and held up Britton's glove. Sheriff Marero declared the bout ceased to be a boxing exhibition.

After the go Nate Lewis, manager of Charlie White, stated that his protege had injured his left hand during the third round and was forced to rely on his right member during the rest of the route. However, this should not take any of the glory that goes with victory from Britton.

Britton a Marvel.

He proved beyond a doubt that he is one of the greatest 133-pounders in the game to-day. His judge of distance is wonderful and he is also some puncher. In defeating White he did what very few other fighters have succeeded in accomplishing. Outside of five rounds Britton had a good shade in the other three-minute sessions. He was fighting fast at the finish and appeared fresh enough to go a number of more rounds.

Jack May Meet Ritchie.

Most of the fans who attended the mill yesterday are of the opinion that Britton would stand a great chance of defeating Ritchie if the pair ever meet. Promoter Tortorich stated that he would get in touch with the champion at once and try to close the mill.

White asked for another chance at Britton, but it is doubtful whether he will get the opportunity to get a return match with his conqueror for some time. Charlie is still a little too light to meet a boy of Britton's ability and hope to win. He weighed yesterday but 129 pounds, while Britton tipped the beam at 136.

FODDER FOR FANS

In the National League the Giants took two games from the Dodgers, the Phillies twice trounced the Braves yesterday, Cincinnati and Chicago broke even in a double-header, and St. Louis took one game from the Pirates, the other ending in a tie.

* * *

In the American League the Naps captured a brace of combats from the Tigers, the Athletics and Red Sox broke even, as did the Yankees and Senators and the Browns and White Sox.

* * *

Larry Doyle, the slugging second sacker of the Giants, seems to have permanently recovered fro mhis batting slump earlier in the season. He amassed a .400 batting average in two games yesterday.

* * *

The Phillies' two victories yesterday fractured their losing streak which had reached eight straight games.

* * *

"Game called to give players and spectators time to eat," was the unusual announcement made yesterday morning at the Red Sox-Athletics game and also at the Pirates-Cardinals combat. The latter contest had gone to eleven innings, the score standing 3 to 3 when the ruling was made, but at Boston it was in the seventh inning when the score stood 13 to 6 in favor of the Red Sox.

* * *

Tris Speaker, the Red Sox outfielder, in the second game yesterday got a perfect batting average, making four hits out of four tries.

* * *

Mordecai Brown, the three-fingered twirler who was cast off by the Cubs, pitched against his old teammates yesterday morning and added a shut-out to his list of victories.

* * *

Lajoie, the Naps' second sacker, waded deep in the second game yesterday, getting three doubles and a base on balls in four times at the bat.

* * *

Jackson, the leading batsman of the American League, further boosted his average yesterday by cracking out four hits in seven times up.

CRACKERS TAKE A FINAL JAB AT PELICANS TODAY

Games Friday Both Ties—Atlanta Team Playing Improved Ball, Even if They Don't Win.

By Percy H. Whiting.

THE concluding act of the amusing skit entitled "Pulverizing the Pelicans" will be staged this afternoon by Bill Smith's famous company of players at the Ponce DeLeon amphitheater. The curtain goes up at 3 p. m., and goes down again when the festivities are over, if they end promptly, for the Pelican team will beat it homeward to-night to play the usual Sunday game.

Of course the "pulverizing" part didn't happen to stick yesterday. In the morning game the Crackers had no luck at all with it and were fortunate to get a tie. In the afternoon the performance was duplicated. The Pelicans got away for a lead, but the Crackers managed to overtake them in time to get an even break.

Rain messed up the afternoon game. It came down in a fine deluge about the time the fifth inning was due to begin, and if the half-hour rule had been adhered to the affair would have been no game. But Frank and Smith waived the rule, the players hung around until the rain let up and the game was completed. The Crackers came from behind in the fifth, scored a brace of tallies, tied the score and kept it tied until darkness butted in.

* * *

WITHOUT wasting time trying to figure out how it happened, it's a fact anyhow that the Crackers are an improved ball club. Brenner had something on them in the morning, but they pulled some grand batting rallies. In the afternoon, when it appeared sure they were beaten, they came from the rear with a rush that gave them a satisfying tie. Of course, they were playing only the tail-enders, but these said tail-enders played plucky, determined, useful ball yesterday.

The local club is fielding and showing lots of "pep." Also, the pitchers are looking more like the real thing. Elliott Dent hurled a very presentable game in the morning. He flickered a couple of times, but made an impressive showing. And it was surely a hot morning for work. Brady held the Pels to six hits in the afternoon.

* * *

WHITEY ALPERMAN is still playing wonderful ball. "King" Brady said of him this spring that he was off on the best season of his career and it looks like a bullseye prediction. It appeared during spring practice that Alperman wasn't going to be quite fast enough on his feet to be a corking good second baseman this year. But somehow he's found his speed. And his fielding is phenomenal. He is the best pinch hitter of the team and possibly of the league. His work since he returned home from the last trip has been particularly spectacular.

CHICAGO CLUB WINNER OF JUNIOR A. A. UNION MEET

CHICAGO, July 5.—Chicago Athletic Association athletes ran away with point honors in the National Junior A. A. U. meet at Grant Park yesterday. The team captured first place in seven of the eighteen events, taking 42 points. Captain A. W. Kohler, of Michigan, was individual star, taking all the eleven points his school got. Lund, of the Irish-American Athletic Club, New York, broke the only record of the day, throwing the javelin 148 feet 8 inches, a new junior mark.

A feature of the day was the victory of James Ray, of the Illinois Athletic Club, over Strobine, an Olympic point winner in the five-mile run. Ray lay back until nearly the last lap, when he shot ahead and finished 30 yards in front of Strobine, who set the pace practically all the way. The time was 26:39.

HEINRICH SCHMIDT LOSES TO EX-FRENCH CHAMPION

LA BOULIE, FRANCE, July 5.—W. Heinrich Schmidt, of Worcester, Mass., was defeated yesterday in the third round of the tournament of the amateur golf championship of France by Peters Gannon, of Argentina. Gannon was amateur champion of France in 1910.

In the same round C. W. Inslee, of the Oneida Community Club, New York, beat Blandford, of England, by 3 up and 4 to play.

H. W. Stucklen, former champion of Massachusetts, was beaten by E. A. Lassen, the British amateur champion of 1909, by 4 up and 2 to play.

BOYD AND BRUGGERMAN WIN 200-MILE CONTEST

DENVER, July 5.—G. R. Boyd and Bert Bruggerman won in the professional class to-day in a 200-mile motorcycle race.

The time was 3:25:54 3-5. The best previous record for the distance was 4:05:54 2-5. In the amateur class C. O'Connorn and Al Edenberg finished first in 3:32:00.

CARTER SEEMS SURE TO WIN S. A. TOURNEY

AUGUSTA, GA., July 5.—E. V. Carter, Jr., of Atlanta, seems sure to be the man who will face Nat Thornton, of Atlanta, in the challenge round of the South Atlantic tennis tournament. Friday afternoon Carter and Ramspeck managed to play two sets and ten games of the third, when darkness made a postponement necessary. The score stood one-all in sets and 5-5 in games, but Carter seemed to be having all the better of it. "Best three out of five sets" must be played to decide the winner.

The best tennis playing of the tournament was on tap when the crack Atlanta pair clashed. Ramspeck, warmed up by playing in the doubles with Orr against Waring and Waring, won the first four games and it looked as if he would win the championship. However, his form was not so good after that. Carter, who hadn't warmed up thoroughly when the first set ended, got better and better.

The playing was witnessed by the largest gallery that has been present during the tournament and each player was given the glad hand for his uncanny work with the racquet.

The first set was won by Ramspeck, 6-4; the second by Carter, 6-1.

Ramspeck and Orr were eliminated from the contest for the doubles championship when they were defeated by Waring and Waring, of South Carolina, 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Garrett and Gary, of Augusta, who defeated the Erwin brothers 6-3 and 8-6, enter the finals with the Warings on Saturday afternoon.

Capers defeated Crocheron 6-1 and 6-4 in the consolation men's singles and will meet the winner of the White-Roseman match Saturday afternoon for the championship.

In the mixed doubles Miss Adger and Erwin defeated Mrs. Milam and Reynolds 7-5, 6-0.

Nat Thornton, champion last year of the S. A. L. tournament, is to meet the winner of the Ramspeck-Carter match probably Saturday afternoon.

ALBANY-SYLVESTER RACE IS WON BY E. HANCOCK

ALBANY, GA., July 5.—Elsie Hancock, of Worth County, won the Albany-Sylvester Marathon yesterday, covering the 20 miles in 2 hours 25 minutes and 22 seconds.

Joe Garrett, winer of last year's race, was second, 4 minutes behind Hancock. J. P. Fulghum, of Sylvester, was third, and H. A. Redding, of Albany, fourth.

DANNY GOODMAN STOPPED IN EIGHTH BY MURPHY

TERRE HAUTE, IND., July 5.—Jimmy Murphy knocked out Danny Goodman in the eighth round here last night.

Jimmy Travers, of Chicago, knocked out Willie Mitchell, of Philadelphia, in the fourth round.

WILDCAT FERNS WINNER IN FIGHT WITH DENNY

NEW ORLEANS, July 5.—Wildcat Ferns, of Kansas City, was awarded the decision over Young Denny, of this city, after a scheduled ten-round bout at Pelican Park.

PIRATES' GOOD HURLERS FAIL TO LIFT TEAM

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—For the first time in thirteen years, the Pittsburg club is in the second division as late as June 26. During Fred Clarke's regime in the camp of the Corsairs, the club never has finished worse than fourth. The low-water mark was reached in 1904. He has won four pennants and finished second or third on all other occasions. Consequently the Smoketown fans are unable to reconcile themselves to the present lowly position of the team, which in advance of the season was said to possess just one more pennant kick.

Second division clubs are as unusual in Pittsburg as first division entries are in St. Louis. The Pirate fans get just as excited over their team being in fifth place as local shouters would if either the Cards or Browns burrowed their way into the exclusive quartet at the top of the heap. For that reason there is trouble in the Pittsburg camp.

Just a Few Reasons.

Asked for a reason for the Pirates' fall-down, one of the players placed the blame on Jinx which has pursued the club with a deal of perseverance. Here are a few pertinent facts:

Wagner was on the shelf from April 10 until late in May.

Gibson broke his ankle at Robison Field on April 20 and hasn't played since.

Simon and Kelly stubbed their fingers and are unable to work.

A pick-up catcher, Coleman, from Davenport, Iowa, is doing all the work.

Butler sprained his ankle and missed 11 games.

Bobby Byrne had a long batting slump in May.

Wagner again is laid up with a lame ankle.

Artie Hofman deteriorated into a minor leaguer and was released.

"So there you are," said the analyist. "We have had good pitching," he continued. "O'Toole has developed into star. Adams has been going great. So have Camnitz and, at times, Hendrix. We have made our share of hits, as our batting average will prove, but we lacked that punch which is necessary to win. We recently lost six successive games by a margin of one run. We were losing, and couldn't get a break. One error a day would be injected at the wrong time, costing us defeat. It was pretty tough going."

JOHNNY DUNDEE EASY VICTOR IN DIXON BOUT

ALBUQUERQUE, N. MEX., July 5.—Johnny Dundee, of New York, got the decision over Tommy Dixon, of Kansas City, at the end of a ten-round fight here. Three knockdowns were scored by Dundee.

FRANK WHITNEY VICTOR IN GO WITH JOE THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS, July 5.—Frank Whitney, the "Fighting Carpenter," won by a big margin over Joe Thomas here in ten rounds.

JEANNETTE BEATS DEWEY.

SAVANNAH, GA., July 5.—Joe Jeannette, the negro heavyweight, was given the decision over Nat Dewey, of Cheyenne, Wyo., at the end of the ten-round bout here.

CHAVEZ STOPS DELL.

TRINIDAD, COLO., July 5.—Benny Chavez, of this city, knocked out Harry Dell, of San Francisco, in the eleventh round of their scheduled 20-round bout yesterday.

Cross Earns Right to Fight Ritchie for Title

Anderson Was Never in Running With Gothamite

By Paul Armstrong.

Author of the "Escape," "Deep Purple," "Alias Jimmy Valentine" and Other Celebrated Plays.

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—Leach Cross is the only contender for the lightweight championship.

Yesterday he took the rugged Anderson, strong as a bull, teeming with confidence. From the first stab at the body which opened the fray to the last sizzling right hook that flattened him for ten minutes—never mind the ten seconds—Anderson was second. In the first clinch he was blocked with his right chop at the short ribs. Perhaps the loss of his ace so early in the game too some of his confidence. It is a red, white and blue certainty that two body blows which Cross tore into Anderson in the seventh round took about all his steam. From that on he was kosher.

When they came stripped to the fray, there was little difference in their size—not near as much when seen in clothes. Anderson was coarser, bigger boned and looked more rugged, but Cross looked the class. He carried nothing that he could not use in the ring. He was fit, his flesh like velvet and his eyes bright as a hungry snake's.

He got lucky immediately. Anderson had copped the corner with his back to the sun. A coin was tossed. He moved and sat in the other corner, looking at the sun like an eagle. Leach went about things like a business man. He personally inspected Bud's bandages, ordered his clerks about like slaves and got the store ready for the slaughter. In the meantime Anderson smiled and let the others do their will.

Anderson Was Confident.

Cross looked pretty soft to him, evidently, for the smile of pity was still lurking on his lips when the New York boy came feinting in. He got the distance and went to the body with a left jab. He worked in again and drew a lead. They were tangled in a clinch the next second. Anderson let go a chop with the right to the body and found an elbow between him and the mark. He tried for the head and then dropped it for the short ribs. Nothing doing—years and years ago Cross learned how to block that one.

They sparred a moment. Anderson let go a left hook for the head and reached. Cross still kept working in with his straight left for the body. He was stalling for a chance to use the right. Anderson knew it—everybody knew it. Suddenly it came—short? Bud pulled out of reach with a smile. But there was a lot more Anderson had not figured on. Leach shifted as he let go the right and came winging with a left swing. Down went Anderson. He was up instantly, seemingly unhurt.

Knockdown No Accident.

Murmuring boobs who bet 10 to 7, yea, even as good as 2 to 1 on what should have been the short end at 6 to 5, laughed it away—an accident.

It was not. Not a bit like it.

It was planned and executed with deliberation.

Oh, say can you see, by the afternoon light,
Why so loudly we root while the blood still is streaming,
As we cash in our bets at the end of the fight,
With the losers still sore and the winners still screaming.
The promoters are there with a flock of hot air,
And a man can't get by till he hands them the fare.
And the Star Spangled Banner in sorrow shall shrug

SMALL FIELD QUALIFIES IN CLUB TOURNEY

OWING to the heavy rain of Friday afternoon only 42 players qualified for the President's cup in the tournament that started July 4 over the course of the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Twenty players, virtually all those who started their qualifying round in the afternoon, were disqualified by the application of the fool "taking-shelter" rule.

This rule, designed for the drizzly English and Scotch climate and for professional play, is ludicrous when applied to amateur tournaments in the South, where storms of cyclonic violence are likely to sweep over the course any afternoon, making play impossible.

If the local club insists on enforcing that rule, players who can not start their qualifying play in the morning will do well to stay out, rather than to contribute to the prizes of those who are able to qualify in the mornings, when thunderstorms are not to be looked for.

The pairings for match play in the President's cup follows:

First Flight.

HARRY KNIGHT MEETS DEATH IN AUTO RACE

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 5.—"Well, just this once more and I'm done," said Harry Knight as he slipped under his steering wheel of his racing car yesterday and prepared to line up for the 200-mile race.

On the 110th lap Knight was thrown from his car as the result of a blown tire and was run over and killed by the car driven by Johnny Jenkins, his best friend. Milton Michaelis, his mechanician, was so seriously injured that he died soon after. Both men claimed Atlanta as their home, though both came originally from Indianapolis.

The death of Knight resulted from an accident similar to the one that gave him the title of "The Hero of the Indianapolis Track." On this occasion Knight drove his car into the concrete wall surrounding the track to avoid running over a man who had fallen from a car.

Knight had been officially declared out of the race, owing to time lost as a result of engine trouble, but despite the fact that he had no chance for the prizes he insisted on continuing the race. Almost in front of the grandstand a tire blew, the car swerved, went over, righted—throwing both men to the ground. Jenkins, who was chasing Knight, went over his body. Knight was terribly mangled and died instantly.

Ralph Mulford won the race, breaking the world's record for 200 miles on a dirt track. He won the distance in 3 hours 21 minutes and 48 seconds. The previous best time was made on the Columbus track by Spencer Wishart in 3 hours 28 minutes and 41-2 seconds.

Harry Endicott was second, with the time of 3 hours 45 minutes and 34 55-100 seconds. Ernest Reeder was third, with the time of 3 hours 47 minutes 53 65-100 seconds. Ralph DePalma finished fourth and just within the prize money, with the time of 4 hours 42 61-100 seconds. Prizes aggregated $5,000.

BROWN EARNS DECISION OVER JIMMY HOWARD

BUTTE, MONT., July 5.—George ("Knockout") Brown, of Chicago, was given the decision over Jimmy Howard, of the same place, after twelve rounds of fierce fighting.

Maddening skin diseases can't exist if Tetterine is used because Tetterine is scientifically prepared to remove the CAUSE as well as the EFFECT.

TETTERINE CURES SKIN DISEASES

Jesse W. Scott, Milledgeville, Ga., writes: I suffered with an eruption two years and one box of Tetterine cured me and two of my friends. It is worth its weight in gold. Tetterine cures eczema, tetter, ground itch, erysipelas, itching piles and other ailments. Get it to-day—Tetterine.

THEFT NO WORSE THAN DODGING YOUR DEBTS

Line Between 'Mine' and 'Thine' Too Badly Blurred at Present, Says Forbes.

By B. C. FORBES.

There is a difference between "Mine" and "Thine." Many individuals, not a few companies and a few States and municipalities need to be reminded of this simple fact. Lax notions are prevalent on the subject.

* * *

A debt is a debt. All debts are debts of honor and should be honored. In these days of unthinking extravagance too many debts are light-heartedly incurred and not paid. The habit of getting into debt, like most bad habits, is alluring at first, but, also, like most bad habits undo their victims in the end.

* * *

The phrase falling "into debt" is apt. The descent is easy enough, but the climb back is usuallypainful.

* * *

This dissertation is inspired by the frequency of late with which corporations have failed to pay off obligations falling due. Instead of walking up to the counter and handing over one hundred cents on the dollar in hard cash, as was stipulated when the debt was incurred, borrowers have too frequently resorted to makeshifts, to temporizing, to compromising, such as offering, in lieu of cash, a new obligation for the old, with an intimation that if this be not accepted the lender will fare much worse.

* * *

The most brazen instance of such questionable conduct is afforded by Atchison, Kans. An issue of some $267,000 bonds of this city fell due Tuesday. Did the lenders promptly receive their money as they were entitled to? Oh, no. In Atchison, Kan., a debt is not a debt of honor, something that must be discharged. Just read what the Mayor has the effrontery to tell the holders, who, of course, have counted upon receiving their money—money which could be used at a high rate of interest to-day:

* * *

Atchison will have $266,950 4 per cent thirty-year bonds issued in 1883, due July 1. In the past, it seems to have been their judgment that a sinking fund was not necessary.

I have inherited a debt—I would not repudiate it, but will defer it by offering a renewal fully as good as the one you hold.

I realize the opportunity of money at present, but as a representative of the taxpayers I can not increase their obligation on account of a temporary stringency in the money market.

A new bond for the old one with the same rate that has satisfied for thirty years, ought to be acceptable under the adverse circumstances.

I regret that it is the best I have to offer.

* * *

"Regrets" don't pay bill. The holders of Atchison's bonds care nothing about the Mayor's sympathies; they want and are absolutely entitled to receive their money, every penny of it, the moment it fell due.

Poultry, Pet and Live Stock

Raise Some Poultry In Your Back Yard. It Will Surely Pay

Eggs Alone Will More Than Pay for the Feed and Trouble.

Edited by JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL.

We need more poultry keepers in this country. Not necessarily the great poultry plants. They are all right in their places, but it is the keepers of from 10 to 100 hens that we have reference to now. The man in the city with a back lot, the villager who has a larger lot, and the average farmer. These are the ones who should be maintaining what hens their premises will hold without crowding, producing eggs of the finest quality, supplying first their family's demands, selling any extras at good prices. How many places are void of chickens in this country, both in town and country? There are many farmers who do not keep hens enough to supply their own tables, but run to town and buy salt pork instead. Some keep no chickens at all, claiming that poultry does not pay, or that they have not the time to bother with it. We need the interest in poultry keeping awakened. A good part of the year eggs are beyond reach of the average person who wants to supply his family. Poultry meat is the same way. Why not be independent and fix your

Medium-Sized Acreage Tracts

ALL of us know the profit that is usually made from acreage.

It is almost a conceded fact that if a person owns good acreage, he has a sure profit in it sooner or later. When we think of acreage propositions, we think of lots of land, and naturally lots of money, because the usual acreage transaction involves a great deal of money. The demand for good, close-in acreage for subdivision purposes is increasing every day. A trip to the outskirts of the city in any direction you choose to take will convince you of this fact. We are going to offer a tract of about 100 acres, between Decatur and East Lake, which we have cut up into five, ten and fifteen acre tracts. The price and terms on these tracts make it possible for almost anybody to handle them.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Two New Residences Will Total $40,000

Pegram and Kirk Plan Announced. Mr. Little Confirms Report. Small Sales in West End.

John D. Little confirmed Saturday the report that he would build a fine residence on Pace's Ferry Road opposite the property of John W. Grant, who will also build soon.

Mr. Little's plans are not definite, but for some time he has had landscape architects working on his eighteen acres, and W. T. Downing, the well-known architect, has been planning with them to determine the character of house that should be erected.

The town house of Mr. Little at the southwest corner of Peachtree and Eighth Streets will not be sold. It is one of the handsomest houses of colonial type in the city. The new house, said Mr. Little, will not be a duplicate of the other.

There are other signs of activity in this section of North Fulton. Sam Pegram has plans for a $15,000 brick veneer dwelling of two stories at the southeast corner of Muscogee Avenue and Rivers Drive. He will build at once.

E. R. Kirk is building a $25,000 residence on Andrews Avenue, 400 feet north of Peachtree. This is two stories and of brick veneer and stone construction.

Satisfactory progress is being made on the residences of Hunt Chipley, on Wesley Avenue, and Robert Zanner and Clark McMichael, on Peachtree Road, near Wesley Avenue.

West End Park Sales.

The West End Park Company has announced the sale, through Collins Mrothers & Davies, of a two-story residence on Stokes Avenue, near Ontario Avenue, West End Park, to a client of the above agency, for $5,500, and to H. S. Norris from the park company direct of the one-story dwelling at the southwest corner of the same thoroughfares, for $3,500.

Loan Rate Reduction.

Borrowers of money on real estate report a reduction in the last few weeks on loan rates. While money was held at 8 per cent recently, a good deal of it can now be had at 7 per cent. In fact, a local real estate agency is advertising $10,000 at 7 per cent on improved property, and much larger amounts than this can be obtained. Bankers foresaw a temporary stringency and prepared for it, and now they are in a position to extend accommodations in judicious measure.

For Early Whitehall Regrade.

Whitehall regrading will be considered again at the next meeting of Council. Councilman George H. Boynton introduced a resolution providing that work start as soon as Comptroller Goldsmith certifies that the property owners have paid in their share of expense, but objection on the part of Councilman Claude L. Ashley and others caused postponement. It has already been agreed to start the job October 15.

The pith of the objection was that other work more important would suffer if Whitehall were regraded now. The Butler Street sewer work was given as an illustration.

It is estimated that the first installment will be $11,287.97, and property owners have agreed to pay the city the difference between the appropriation of $3,500 and the estimated cost.

To Sell 24 Residence Lots.

J. T. Kimbrough & Co. have placed on private sale 24 building lots on the East Lake, South Decatur, South Kirkwood, Soldiers' Home and Stone Mountain car lines, all the lots within a block of city schools, on terms of $25 down and $10 a month at 7 per cent. The price of the lots is $750. Improvements consist of tile sidewalks, sewerage and water.

Interest in Car Line Change.

The proposal to change the route of the river car line, as presented to Council, has created a great deal of interest on the part of people residing on the west side of the city. General Manager Glenn wants to open the street at Marietta and Forsyth Streets and let incoming river cars run up Walton Street from the Marietta Street intersection. Cars will turn to the right at Forsyth and to the right again at Marietta. Passengers will enter at Marietta and Forsyth Streets, rather than at Broad. The Streets Committee of Council approved the plan.

Start Soon on West Peachtree.

The West Peachtree Improvement Club announced Saturday that all will be in readiness soon for work on West Peachtree retaining walls, the same having been authorized by the Streets Committee of the City Council. The wall work will be started as soon as contracts can be let for materials, the city to do the construction. When the walls are completed the county will do the regrading, and this will be not later than September 15, according to Shelby Smith, of the County Commission.

Prominent in the West Peachtree movement have been Judge Spencer R. Atkinson, Judge E. W. Born, Frank P. Rice, Dr. William Owens, James T. Wright and others.

Frank West in Winnipeg.

H. Frank West, of the A. J. & H. F. West real estate agency, has reached Winnipeg, Manitoba, on an extensive Western trip, and writes back that elaborate preparations are being made to entertain the sixth annual convention of the National Association of Real Estate Exchanges this month. Mr. West states that special attention will be given the Atlanta delegation.

A Queer Idea of Senatorial Courtesy--Particularly as Applied to Women.

Senator W. W. Stark, who represents, after a fashion, the Thirty-third District in the Senate of Georgia, has a queer idea of senatorial courtesy—particularly as applied to women.

He protested, and successfully, we are sorry to say, against permitting an hour or two's use of the Senate chamber of Georgia to a handful of earnest, sincere women of Georgia, because he—the Senator—does not "believe in" woman's suffrage!

These women did not propose to interfere with the proceedings of the Senate, and Senator Stark did not base his objections to their meeting upon that ground. He objected because he does not "believe in" woman's suffrage.

The Senator, no doubt, would have agreed, fast enough, for the Farmers' Union, or the State Democratic Executive Committee, or some other male organization, to meet in the Senate chamber, but he could not bring his weighty statesmanship to the point of permitting a few of the WOMEN of Georgia to tread within the sacred precincts of that hallowed spot set aside for Starks!

Senator Stark has much to learn. He will find that he can not slap the women of Georgia in the face—even a few of them—and "get away with it!"

The cause of woman's suffrage will stand or fall NOT by the standards set up by the Starks.

It will stand or fall in Georgia, according to the COMMON SENSE AND FAIRMINDEDNESS OF THE PEOPLE!

The Georgian understands that the women turned down by the Senate will apply to the House for permission to hold their two-nights' meetings there.

We believe they will be granted the small and perfectly legitimate favor they ask. The House will hardly repeat the remarkable and silly performance of the Senate, engineered by Senator Stark, and carried through, we really believe, before the Senate had opportunity to think of what a foolish and unwarranted thing it was being made a party to.

Teach Atlanta Mothers How to Bring Up Babies

Members of the Atlanta Mothers' Congress, who have undertaken to provide the poor babies of the city with milk during the hot summer months, have inaugurated a campaign of instruction.

Much of the milk is delivered by the members of the congress in person, and instruction on the care of babies can easily and readily be given.

The following rules for the care of the child have been indorsed by leading physicians throughout the country, and should be told and emphasized to every mother to whom deliveries of milk are made:

If you are worried about your baby, have a doctor see it, A GOOD DOCTOR. If you can not get a good doctor, go to the Department of Health, get the advice of a doctor at a free dispensary.

Don't wean the baby when the weather is very hot, if you can possibly help it, or when it is ill. The change in food upsets the digestion and may be fatal at a critical moment.

Feed your baby regularly.

Sacrifice everything to this important point. The child's stomach gets used to food at certain times, and digests it easily at those times, if the food is regular.

Every two hours in the daytime, and every four hours at night will do for feeding for a healthy child.

Don't dress your baby warmly, HAVE NOTHING TIGHT AROUND ITS NECK OR STOMACH, KEEP EVERYTHING LOOSE AND AIRY EVERYWHERE.

Have your windows open day and night. Keep the baby off the dirty floor, where it gets germs on its little hands and puts them in its mouth.

Remember that in the really hot weather the thinnest possible clothing is all that a child needs. One little, thin, cotton shirt, low-necked and without sleeves, will do while the baby is indoors.

Avoid strong draughts. But better a draught than not enough air.

Above all, give your baby enough to drink. If the baby cries in hot weather, give it two or three spoonfuls of water, cool, BUT NOT ICED.

Boil the water that you give your baby. And keep the boiled water tightly corked in a clean bottle so that germs won't get into it.

Feed it with a spoon dipped in hot water, A CLEAN SPOON.

Dangerous signs of disease that carry off children suddenly are vomiting and diarrhea. Notify your doctor, or the Health Department, AT ONCE.

Let your baby REST. KEEP THE FLIES AWAY FROM IT. THEY BRING DISEASE.

A young baby, washed clean in the morning, with cool but not cold water, put on its back almost naked on a bed with a mosquito netting thrown over the top of the bed (but not touching the child)—such a baby, fed regularly, with water to drink when it wants it, will be happy in hot weather.

Don't let the children tease the baby. Don't let grownup people play with it and tire it. Remember that it is GROWING UP AND DOING NOTHING ELSE. Don't try to awaken its intelligence or make it laugh.

If you stir up the little brain you disturb the little stomach.

Remember, WHENEVER A BABY CRIES SOMETHING IS WRONG.

Don't get cross; FIND OUT WHAT'S THE MATTER; that's your business. It may be a tight string, a bandage drawn too closely around the legs, need of a change of linen, or it may be thirst.

Don't feed the baby every time it cries. Give it water. Remember that.

It's Tough on Poor Father

"Gee, It's Salt."

MEANING AND SCOPE OF THE NEW CURRENCY BILL

Editor The Georgian:

I wish to thank you for the explanation which you have made regarding the meaning and scope of the new currency bill which is before the Congress for action. I have read your several editorials on the subject and desire to say that I not only concur in your opinion regarding the measure, but feel sure the lucid explanation which you have made will serve to give your readers a better and more comprehensive understanding of the bill than it has been possible to gather from the brief references made to it in the general press. I think it an excellent idea to put the facts about proposed important legislation within reach of your readers that they may have an opportunity of weighing them and ascertaining whether or not this legislation is what they want.

More Than $1,000,000 Is Paid Each Day to Foreigners Building and Operating Foreign Ships to Carry the Trade of Our Country, He Says.

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES

IT is estimated that for the fiscal year ending June 30 the exports of the United States will reach the enormous figure of $2,400,000,000, and that the balance of trade in our favor will approximate $675,000,000—a sum never before equaled upon the balance sheet of nations.

These figures are a tribute to our national greatness and prosperity. They carry also a serious reflection upon our national enterprise and a distinct humiliation to our national pride.

For of all this mighty commerce overseas less than 8 per cent was transported under the American flag. This magnificent balance of our trade is almost cut in two by the enormous sums we pay to foreign ships to carry our own products to the markets of the world.

More than $750,000,000 of foreign capital is to-day invested in foreign yards building ships to transport the commerce we furnish.

MORE THAN $1,000,000 IS PAI[D] EACH DAY TO FOREIGNERS BUILDING AND OPERATING FOREIGN SHIPS TO CARRY THE TRADE OF OUR COUNTRY. OF THIS $1,000,000 DAILY PAID 90 PER CENT GOES TO FOREIGN LABOR.

This $1,000,000 each day should be given to the American laborer and kept at home to do American business instead of going abroad to feed foreign labor and to enrich our commercial rivals.

No Delivery Wagons.

This is but a single phase of the injury we suffer from having no ships of our own. Our stupendous foreign trade is made in the face of the greatest obstacles. It would easily double within the next five years if we had our own ships—our own delivery wagons—to carry our trade to our customers.

The rate paid by every passenger and by every pound of freight going from any port of this country to any foreign port is fixed in advance by agreement among foreign steamship combines and conferences. If an American shipper desires to send a bushel of wheat or a bale of cotton or of any other product to Europe, he must pay the rate fixed in advance by the trust in Hamburg, Germany. If an American merchant wishes to send a barrel of flour or of cement or a piece of machinery or any freight to South America, he must wait until the foreign steamship combine in this country can ascertain from Europe what price must be charged for carrying it.

Not an American vessel runs from this country directly to South America beyond the Equator.

EVERY AMERICAN CITIZEN THAT CROSSES THE ATLANTIC OR GOES TO SOUTH AMERICA MUST PAY THE RATE THAT THE FOREIGN STEAMSHIP COMBINE FIXES IN ADVANCE IN JENA, GERMANY. OF COURSE, THESE RATES ARE ALWAYS THE HIGHEST THAT THE TRADE WILL BEAR.

Six per cent net is considered a reasonable profit upon investment of great sums of capital in this country. Yet the Hamburg-American Steamship Company admits a net profit of more than 10 per cent upon a capitalization of approximately $100,000,000. In fact the real net earning of the Hamburg company is said to be nearer to 20 per cent annually. This tremendous profit is chiefly levied upon American commerce.

Opposition to America.

Not only are all freight and passenger rates from this country to foreign ports fixed by agreement by these foreign combines, but these conferences constantly discriminate against American commerce in all competitive markets.

Take South America for illustration. The American shipper pays exactly the same rate from this country to South America on slow and antiquated ships running at irregular intervals that his European rival pays on fast modern vessels running on regular schedule. Now and then the European shipper by secret arrangement secures an advantage. Not only this, but the European shipper is given an immense advantage in promptness of delivery.

Under no circumstances will these foreign steamship combines permit an advantage to the American shipper.

To illustrate: Brazil prefers our flour. She gave us an advantage of 30 per cent over the other nations of the world in flour. Immediately these foreign shipping pools increased the freight rate on flour to just that extent. Again we were given an advantage of 20 per cent on cement. Immediately the freight rates between this country and South America on cement were increased over Europe until the European manufacturer controlled the market.

Deadly Tactics.

These are the deadly tactics followed by these foreign steamship lines in respect to every competitive article in which our country's products might have an equal chance with foreign products. And all the while we go on pouring our millions of servile tribute into the laps of the foreigners that rob us.

Every fact stated above as to the attitude of these foreign steamship combines has been testified to under oath by the agents and representatives of these combines in the recent Congressional investigation.

These combines state boldly that they monopolize our trade, that they fix our freight and passenger rates by agreement and that these rates are made in Europe. They further acknowledge that they are violating our anti-trust laws and that they intend to continue to violate them!

Yet because they are foreign companies we submit to this extortion and defiance of our laws with an indifference and complacency that is cowardly and shameful.

In the pending tariff bill an attempt was made to at least express our right to favor our own ships. It is simply inconceivable that an American Congress should have been deterred by any sort of influence from doing this and doing more!

The French in Mexico

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

IT was just 50 years ago—June 10, 1863—that the soldiers of Napoleon the Third, under the command of General Forey, with drums a-beating and bunting a-fluttering, marched into Mexico, to establish upon these Western shores a great Latin kingdom.

Almost immediately after the entry of the French, and doubtless by pre-arranged program, there was a meeting of the "Assembly of Notables," at which it was decided, with all due solemnity, that there should be established a monarchy with the City of Mexico as its capital and with Maximilian, Archduke of Austria, as Emperor.

On June 12, 1864, Maximilian and his wife entered the city of the Aztecs as Emperor and Empress, and three years later, June 19, 1867, the farce ended with the crack of the rifles which sent Maximilian to his death and his consort, broken-hearted, back to Europe.

The "Assembly of Notables" did not amount to as much as its members thought it did; and the Old World was given its first practical demonstration of the power of the "Monroe Doctrine;" a doctrine which, it would seem, Napoleon the Third had not looked upon with becoming seriousness.

To this day the Maximilian episode remains a puzzle to the student of history.

Some say that the idea of a great imperial Latin State side by side with the great English-speaking communities furnished the fascination upon Napoleon's mind which was responsible for the business; while others hold that the pursuit of the bubble was a necessity imposed upon the Emperor by the exigencies of his situation.

THOUSANDS CHEER PRESIDENT AT GETTYSBURG

RURAL CARRIERS HAVE WARM TILT OVER MEMBERSHIP DUES

L. D. King, of Covigton, president of the State Rural Carriers' Association.

He apparently is not greatly worried by the hot fight over payment of dues.

Controversy Precipitated in State Convention by Ruling on Payments in Advance.

A warm controversy was precipitated into the tenth annual convention of the Rural Letter Carriers' Association of Georgia, in session at the Kimball House, when the question of membership termination came up.

Virtually every carrier paid his dues Friday morning, a long recess having been taken for the purpose. Receipts given out covered the year ending with the present convention, but a large and determined number of carriers insisted they should cover a year from July 4, the date of payment. It is generally understood the constitution and by-laws committee will submit a ruling that dues paid are to be considered as in advance, instead of for the preceding year, as at present. The submission of this report was made Friday afternoon.

"There is going to be one more hot fight about it, and no one knows how it will end," said President L. D. King.

P. C. Coker, the first rural route man in Fulton County, and an ex-president of the District and State Associations, will attempt the organization of a ladies' auxiliary, which he says will be the first in America.

Mayor Woodward made the welcoming address Friday morning. He told the carriers if they were taken before Judge Broyles to be sure to do something bad enough to warrant a sentence of more than 29 days, so he could pardon them. Attorney Paul L. Lindsay, of Atlanta, formerly a rural route man and president of the National Association, made a felicitous talk. Addresses also were made by Clark Howell and Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick.

The convention will be in session through Saturday.

FOURTH QUIETLY CELEBRATED IN ATLANTA

Picnics and Athletic Contests Feature Day — Thousands Enjoy Piedmont Lake Bathing.

Four little children, all under 14 years of age, lie in the hospitals of the city, the first victims here in the annual toll of death and injury taken by the celebration of Independence Day.

The injured are:

Walter Pete, 13, 85 Pratt Street.

Charles Garrison, 12, 193 Davis Street.

John Garrison, 9, 193 Davis Street.

O. B. Biggers, 12, 348 Glenn Street.

Walter Pete's hand was painfully lacerated when a toy pistol with which he was playing accidentally exploded.

Charles and John Garrison were seriously injured by the explosion of a toy cannon early in the morning. Eager to celebrate the day, they went out of doors soon after dawn. A few minutes later their mother was startled by their cries of pain. Charles was burned about the face and there is danger that he has lost his sight. Johnny was standing up when the cannon exploded and was hurt about the legs.

Police Guard Doubled.

The first of the accidents occurred last night, when 12-year-old O. B. Biggers was painfully wounded by the discharge of a blank shell held by his playmate, Henry Kaincannon.

Atlanta police will work double turn to-day in an effort to prevent accidents. The night men who quit at 8 a. m. will work until noon. The evening men who come on at 4 p. m. will come on to-day at noon. The day patrolmen who quit at 4 p. m. will remain on duty until 8 p. m.

Chief Beavers states that this is purely to doubly enforce the law, and that any kind of firecrackers or fireworks in the streets will not be tolerated. Pistols are absolutely forbidden and anyone caught with a firearm, even if it is loaded with blanks, will be arrested for carrying a weapon.

Outings Feature Day.

The Fourth of July is being appropriately celebrated in Atlanta to-day. Many downtown buildings and homes in the residence sections are flying American flags in honor of the nation's birthday anniversary, and thousands of Atlantans are enjoying the day in the parks, at barbecues, athletic contests and other places of amusement.

Most of the stores will be closed for the greater part of the day, that the clerks and employees may do their part in making the day a real holiday.

McLaughlin Loses Tennis Title; Badly Beaten by Wilding

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, July 4.—A. F. Wilding to-day won the lawn tennis championship of the world, beating Maurice McLaughlin, of San Francisco, in straight sets.

Although the championship played off to-day is for the premiership of England, it is regarded in sporting circles as the championship of the world.

Before play started Wilding was nervous and predicted that he would be defeated by McLaughlin.

Wilding won the third set by the score of 10-8.

Watchman, 65, Near Death From a Fall

J. T. Harwell, 65 years old, of 362 Flat Shoals Avenue, is at Grady Hospital in a serious condition this morning, as a result of a fall Thursday night at the Ward-Truitt Building, Decatur and Pratt Streets, where he is employed as night watchman.

His right leg and right shoulder blade were broken.

Urges Track Survey Of Railroads; Would Swell City's Income

Councilman Orville Hall has evolved a plan for increasing the tax assessments of railroads within Atlanta $50,000. At the meeting of Council Monday he will introduce a resolution appropriating $500 to make a survey of the tracks within the city, thereby proving that the railroads should pay more taxes.

Councilman Hall declares that no survey of the railroad tracks within Atlanta has been made in twenty years, and that a new survey will cause the Comptroller to increase his assessments.

The elections of Tax Assessors J. L. Harrison and C. D. Meador come up at the meeting of Council Monday. It is said that both will be elected without opposition.

Auto Pilot Killed in California Road Race

LOS ANGELES, July 4.—Harris Hanshue, in an Apperson car, was killed near Fresno when his car overturned in the Los Angeles-Sacramento auto road race to-day.

HEAT BROKEN BY CLOUDS; RAIN PREDICTED

Prospect of Record Climb of Mercury Shattered by Overcast Sky and Breezes.

"Probably showers Friday afternoon and night," is the weather forecast.

Cool breezes and gathering clouds, pregnant with moisture and indicating rain, caused perceptible lowering of the temperature at 2 o'clock Friday afternoon and shattered prospects for a record-breaking temperature.

At noon the thermometer registered 92 degrees, and the Weather Bureau announced it probably would rise above 93, and go possibly to 94. At 2 o'clock, however, the wind and clouds, which obscured the sunlight, caused a drop of about 5 degrees.

Atlanta received the full force of the heat wave which swept over the country Friday, in marked contrast to the last three weeks, when the maximum heat marks in the city were from 2 to 10 degrees lower than elsewhere. Had it not been for the clouds which gathered at 2 o'clock the day would have been unusually oppressive, in view of the high humidity, and many prostrations might have resulted.

'Eleanor Mint' To Be Tango Party Drink

All the new-fangled terpsichorean diversions will have their innings at the Ansley Hotel Friday night when a "tango party" will be given under the auspices of the Joseph Habersham Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution.

Besides the dancing of the tango one of the features will be the serving of the "Eleanor mint," a new temperance drink that has been named after President Wilson's daughter.

The proceeds of the affair will be devoted to charity.

Still Is Raided, but Owners Are Absent

George Mathieson and John Oliver, of the county police, assisted by Revenue Officer Brown, raided an illicit distillery in the "Ben Hill" District Friday morning, taking the still back to the courthouse. They found three barrels of "beer," but the operatives had been tipped off in advance and were nowhere to be found.

The county police are scouring the adjacent territory for the wildcatters.

Bandits Escape With $25,000

MISSISSIPPI EXPRESS IS LOOTED

Masked Robbers Hold Up Illinois Central Passenger at Lonely Spot South of Memphis.

MEMPHIS, TENN., July 4.—Illinois Central train No. 1, bound from Chicago to New Orleans, was held up by four masked men early to-day one and one-half miles south of Batesville, Miss.

It was believed the men obtained $25,000, although the local officials of the American Express Company say the amount was not that large.

Official news of the hold-up reached Memphis offices of the Illinois Central just before noon. The message said the bandits flagged the train at the Tallahatchie River bridge, near Batesville, Miss., and compelled Engineer A. E. Norton to abandon his cab.

The negro fireman was kept in the engine cab, guarded by a bandit who kept him covered with a revolver, while the others went back and uncoupled the passenger coaches from the mail, baggage and express cars.

Deny Heavy Loss.

The negro fireman ran the cars through Batesville to a point one mile south of the town and stopped in a dense river bottom forest.

Officials of the American Express Company said the bandits did not obtain more than $5,000. Five charges of dynamite was exploded before the safe was opened. Every registered mail pouch was rifled, but postal authorities in Memphis said that money shipments were small because of the holiday.

Following the robbery the bandits ran the engine ten miles south when the fire under the boilers went out. Believing the negro fireman had allowed the fire to die in order to trick them, the bandits threw him out of the cab while the engine was moving rapidly. He was slightly injured. The men abandoned the engine one mile north of Enid, Miss., and entered the forest.

A special train arrived from Jackson, Miss, bringing officers and bloodhounds. A party of Deputy United States Marshals from Memphis, left to take up the chase for the bandits.

Car Nearly Wrecked.

Sheriff W. Lemaster, of Batesville, was the first man to reach the express car after the bandits left it. He found the car nearly wrecked.

"By peering into a crack in the safe, which was not completely demolished," said Sheriff Lemaster, "I could see two packages. One was marked '$20,000' and the other '$10,000.' Just inside the outer door of the safe I picked up nearly $500 in loose bills and silver."

Officials of the road say they believe the hold-up men were the same ones who have held up several trains in the last few months in the South. Express Messenger R. E. Hooks, of Cairo, Ill., wired the authorities in Memphis a good description of one of the bandits.

He said as he jumped from the train at the command of the hold-up men he tripped and in falling caught at one of the bandits. His fingers caught the man's mask and jerked it off. The robber cursed him and jabbed him in the ribs with a revolver.

Hold-Up in Wild Region.

Batesville, Miss., is 50 miles from Memphis, Tenn., and is the center of a hilly, thickly-wooded country.

Within the past year there have been numerous train robberies in the South.

The first was in Mississippi, on the Queen and Crescent, near Meridian, when robbers stopped a train and rifled the express car. The express company never made an official statement of the amount stolen, but it was estimated at $18,000. The robbers escaped on horseback through canebrakes into the river bottom. Presumably they waded their horses some distance up the shallow stream, for hounds lost the scent at the river bank.

Many persons have good tenants moving into their property to-day merely because yesterday they had an ad in The Georgian's For Rent Columns. Phone Main 8000 or Atlanta 8000.

FEARS LIBEL AFTERMATH IN SCANDAL

Mrs. Jenkins Hires Lawyer to Fight Expected Suits of Macon Church Folk.

MACON, July 4.—The elders of the First Christian Church have framed a report to be submitted to the congregation on Sunday morning in regard to the charge that Mrs. Effie L. Lester, the secretary of the Ladies' Aid Society, has been too friendly with Professor Frank M. Charlton, the choir leader. This charge is made by Mrs. J. W. Jenkins and Mrs. Alma Armstrong, and is supported by testimony of Mr. Jenkins and his grown son, Rufus.

It is regarded as certain that the elder's report will exonerate Mrs. Lester and Professor Charlton of any wrongdbing and urge that the congregation continue confidence in them and thereby further establish the vindication.

That this will be followed by action in the courts by both Professor Charlton and Mr. Lester there is hardly any doubt. In anticipation of being sued for libel or prosecuted for slander, Mrs. Jenkins has engaged Attorney Julian Urquhart to represent her. He states that not only will Mrs. Jenkins contend that she heard Professor Charlton make an appointment over the telephone to be at Mrs. Lester's home on the night of June 5, while her husband was away, at 9 o'clock, and that Professor Charlton was chased out of the premises, but that her son, Rufus, pursued him five blocks, and in Tattnall Square Park had a hand-to-hand encounter with the music instructor.

3 Fatalities Due to Heat in Chattanooga

CHATTANOOGA, July 4.—The total death list here as the result of the intense heat has been increased to three.

John W. Stanton, a student of the University of the South, Sewanee, died last night following a cerebral hemorrhage contracted while playing tennis in the sun. Walter Snyder, of Dalton, dropped dead on the street last night from the direct effects of the heat. One other death occurred last week.

Bryan President Of U. S.–For a Day

WASHINGTON, July 4.—With President Wilson, Vice President Marshall and every other member of the White House staff away today, Secretary Bryan held alone the reins of government and was acting President. His succession to this temporary dignity is statutory.

Every branch of the public service in Washington was at a standstill, with the exception of such work as had to be carried on.

Vote Plea Hurled At King's Head by Frenzied Militant

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

BRISTOL, ENGLAND, July 4.—Intense excitement was caused here today when a militant suffragette hurled a petition for "votes for women" at the head of King George while he and Queen Mary were driving through the streets to the Royal Agricultural Show.

It was first believed an attempt had been made to assassinate the King, and the crowd, which had been held back by police and soldiers, broke through the lines and crowded into the streets, shouting "Lynch the assassin."

After a struggle the crowds were driven back and the woman was arrested.

Misses First 'Fourth' Salute in 127 Years

SAVANNAH, July 4.—For the first time in 127 years, a Fourth of July salute was not fired by the Chatham Artillery in the Park Extension at sunrise to-day because ammunition, for which requisition had been made, failed to arrive.

Salutes were fired by the cruiser Tacoma and at Fort Screven. Business houses and public buildings are closed, while the people are celebrating the day at resorts, motor cycle races, boat races, baseball games and rifle matches.

WILSON PAYS VETERANS TRIBUTE

President, in Masterly Speech, Stirs the Great Throngs on Historic Battlefield.

GETTYSBURG, PA., July 5.—President Wilson sounded the final note of the battle of peace at the golden anniversary of the battle of Gettysburg in an address before several thousand of the veterans, both blue and gray, in the great reunion tent to-day.

Although practically every President since the great war, including Lincoln, has visited the battlefield here, Wilson is the first, except Lincoln, who came to address the old veterans, and for whom the national salute of 21 guns was fired. He is the first since Lincoln to come in an official capacity.

As the President alighted from the train down in Gettysburg a battery of field artillery from Fort Myer, Va., stationed at the Pennsylvania College on Seminary Ridge, fired the national salute of 21 guns. He was met by Colonel Schoonmaker, president of the Gettysburg celebration commission, who escorted him in an automobile to the tent two miles away.

Out on old historic, battleswept Emmittsburg Road they went, covering in five minutes in a swift motor the path taken by Lincoln, who took half an hour in an old carriage.

Thousands Greet President.

The greatest number to see the President doubtless were the great mass of visitors stopping in the city and the thousands who came from the countryside. The entire tent had been reserved for the veterans and there was much vacant space.

This was due to the fact that many veterans had a misunderstanding as to whether the President was actually coming, a rumor having spread broadcast throughout the camp last night that he had again canceled his engagement. Others felt the President was indifferent and still others had gone home.

The President was received by Assistant Secretary of War Breckinridge, as representing the War Department in charge of the camp, and he was introduced to the audience by Governor Tener, representing the State of Pennsylvania as host to the veterans.

Immediately upon concluding his address the President was escorted from the rear of the tent to his car, which had been switched around through the camp, and he passed out through Long Lane, the central thoroughfare of the great camp.

He did not attempt to make an inspection, but was carried through to the main line of the road and started at once for Cornish, N. H.

Nearly 10,000 veterans left this morning and an equal number will get awey this afternoon, if the trains can handle them.

About 6,000 had left previously up to this morning. The greater part of the army of the veterans will leave to-morrow, although the War Department is prepared to keep them Saturday night and feed them Sunday morning.

The President's Address.

President Wilson, in addressing the veterans, said:

"Friends and Fellow Citizens: I need not tell you what the battle of Gettysburg meant. These gallant men in blue and gray sit all about us here. Many of them met here upon this ground in grim and deadly struggle. Upon these famous fields and hillsides their comrades died about them. In their presence it were an impertinence to discourse on how the battle went, how it ended, what it signified. But 50 years have gone by since then, and I crave the privilege of speaking to you for a few minutes of what those 50 years have meant.

"What have they meant? They have meant peace and union and vigor and the maturity and might of a great nation. How wholesome and healing the past has been. We have found one another again as brothers and comrades in arms, enemies no longer, generous friends rather, our battle song past, the quarrel forgotten—except that we shall not forget the splendid valor, the manly devotion of the men then arrayed against one another, now grasping hands and smiling into each other's eyes. How complete union has become and how dear to all of us and how unquestioned, how majestic, as State after State has been added to this, our great family of free men.

"Heirs to Mighty Heritage."

"How handsome the vigor, the maturity, the might of the great nation we love with undivided hearts; how full of large and confident praise that life will be wrought out that will crown a strength with greater justice and with a happy welfare that will touch all alike with deep contentment. We are debtors to those 50 crowded years; they have made us heirs to a mighty heritage.

"But do we deem the nation complete and finished? These venerable men, crowding here to this famous field, have set us a great example of devotion and other sacrifices. They were willing to die that the people might live.

"But their task is done. Their day is turned into evening. They look to us to perfect what they established. Their work is handed on to us to be done in another way, but not in another spirit. Our day is not over; it is upon us in full tide.

"Have affairs paused? Does the nation stand still? Is what the 50 years have wrought since those days of battle finished, rounded out and completed?

Calls Nation Secure.

"Here is a great people—great with every force that has ever beaten in the life blood of mankind. And it is secure. There is no one within its borders, there is no power among the nations of the earth to make it afraid. But has it squared itself with its own great standards set up at its birth, when it made its first noble, naive appeal to the moral judgment of mankind to take notice that a government had now been established which was to serve men, not masters?

"It is secure in everything except satisfaction that its life is right, adjusted to the uttermost to the standards of righeousness and humanity. The days of sacrifice and cleansing are not closed. We have harder things to do than were done in these heroic days of war, because harder to see clearly, requiring more vision, more balance of judgment, a more candid searching of the very springs of right.

"Look around you upon the fields of Gettysburg. Picture the array, the fierce heats and agony of battle, column hurled against column, batteries bellowing to batteries. Valor? Yes, greater no man shall see in war; and self-sacrifice and loss to the uttermost; the high recklessness of exalted devotion which does not count the cost.

The Cost of a Great Nation.

"We are made by these tragic, epic things to know what it costs to make a nation—the blood and sacrifice of multitudes of unknown men, lifted to a greater stature in the view of all generations by knowing no limit to their manly willingness to serve.

"In armies thus marshaled from the ranks of free men you will see, as it were, a nation embattled, the leaders and the led, and may know, if you will, how little except in form its actions differ in days of peace from its actions in days of war.

"May we break camp now and be at ease? Are the forces that fight for the nation dispersed, disbanded, gone to their homes forgetful of the common cause? Are our forces disorganized, without constituted leaders and the might of men consciously united because we contend not with armies, but with principalities and powers and wickedness in high places?

"Are we content to lie still? Does our union mean sympathy, our peace contentment, our maturity self-comprehension and a clear confidence in choosing what we shall do? War fitted us for action, and action never ceases.

Refers to Another Host.

"I have been chosen the leader of the nation. I can not justify the choice by any qualities of my own, but so it has come about, and here I stand. Whom do I command? The ghostly hosts who fought upon these battlefields long ago and are gone? These gallant gentlemen, stricken in years, whose fighting days are over, their glory won? What are the orders for them, and who rallies them?

"I have in mind another host, whom these set free of civil strife in order that they might work out, in days of peace and settled order, the life of a great nation. That host is the people themselves, the great and small, without class, or difference, or kind, or race, or origin, and undivided in interests if we have but the vision to guide and direct them and order their lives aright in what we do.

"Our Constitutions are their articles of enlistment. Their orders of to-day are the laws upon our statute books. What we strive for is their freedom, their rights to lift themselves from day to day and behold the things they have hoped for, and so make way for still better days for those whom they love who are to come after them.

"The recruits are the little children crowding in. The quartermasters' stores are in the mines and forests and fields, in the shops and factories. Every day something must be done to push the campaign forward, and it must be done by plan and with an eye to some great destiny.

"Builded by God's Hands."

"How shall we hold such thought in our hearts and not be moved? I would not have you live even to-day wholly in the past, but would wish to stand with you in the light that streams upon us now out of that great day gone by. Here is a nation that God has builded by our hands. What shall we do with it?

"Who stands ready to act again and always in the spirit of this day of reunion and hope and patriotic fervor? The day of our country's life has but broadened into morning. Do not put uniforms by. Put the harness of the present on. Lift your arms to the great tracks of life yet to be conquered in the interest of righteous peace, of that prosperity which lies in a people's hearts and outlasts all wars and errors of men.

"Come, let us be comrades and soldiers, yet to serve our fellowmen in quiet counsel where the blare of trumpets is neither heard nor heeded and where the things are done which make blessed the nations of the world in peace and righteousness and love."

Two Secret Service Men Guard President.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—President Wilson left Washington at 7 a. m. to-day for Gettysburg. His private secretary, Joseph Tumulty; Representative Mitchell Palmer, of Pennsylvania; two secret service men, two White House clerks and a corps of newspaper men accompanied him.

A special car attached to a Pennsylvania Railroad train conveyed the party.

HOUSE READY TO PROBE LOBBY CHARGES

Rules Committee Virtually Decides to Order Inquiry—Graft Accusations First.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—The House Rules Committee to-day, after hearing statements by Minority Leader Mann and Progressive Leader Murdock, practically decided to order an investigation by the House of the Mulhall lobby charges, to see if members of Congress actually have been corrupted through the lobby activities of the National Association of Manufacturers. A special committee of seven, consisting of four Democrats, two Republicans and one Progressive, will be appointed.

Representative Mann urged the committee to investigate the charges reflecting on the integrity of former members of Congress, particularly former Speaker Cannon.

"Any statement that Uncle Joe Cannon manipulated committees is false," said Mann.

Leader Murdock declared his belief that committees had been manipulated, but said he believed the greatest field for the investigation would be into the activities of the National Association of Manufacturers.

Murdock insisted that the investigation also cover the charge that members of Congress were used to break up strikes.

President Guilty in Athens Bank Failure

ATHENS, July 4.—J. W. Griffin, who was president of the defunct Athens Bank and Trust Company and who was indicted for feloniously "wrecking" the bank, was found guilty by the jury at midnight after being out eight hours, and recommended to the mercy of the court. He will be sentenced by Judge Brand to-morrow. Immediately upon the verdict notice of a motion for a new trial was served.

R. H. McCrary, cashier of the bank, pleaded guilty before Griffin's trial and was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary.

SERBS DRAFTING TURKS IN WAR ON BULGARS

Czar Ferdinand to Head His Army in Field—Bulgarians Win Big Battle.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

BELGRADE, July 4.—Servia is drafting Turkish prisoners of war to fight against the Bulgarians. General Petroff, Bulgarian chief of staff, has taken the field in eastern Macedonia.

It was reported from Sofia that Czar Ferdinand probably will head his Bulgarian army if the fighting continues.

Bulgarians Defeat Servians at Uskub.

SOFIA, July 4.—Bulgarian troops have inflicted a crushing defeat on the Servian army east of Uskub.

According to dispatches received to-day from General Savoff, Bulgarian commander-in-chief, in the field, heavy casualties were inflicted upon the Servians.

The Bulgarian cabinet resigned to-day. Dr. Daneff has been commissioned to form another. General Savoff, the commander-in-chief, will be next Minister of War.

Dine Minus Coats In Philly Hotels

PHILADELPHIA, July 4.—(Tip to Atlanta hotel proprietors from Georgian correspondent):

In the men's grillroom of the Bellevue-Stratford fifteen tables were occupied by parties of lawyers, business men, politicians, etc. Every man had his coat off.

As soon as a guest entered, a waiter stepped forward and said:

"Coat, sir?"

The waiter took it, hung it on a hook near the guest, and served luncheon. And there is no tip for coat-hanging.

"Quite the regular thing, sir," said head waiters in all the big hotels. "Gentlemen dining alone always take their coats off. Don't they do it in Atlanta, sir?"

McMichael Charges Fertilizer 'Trust'

One of the problems which Commissioner of Agriculture Price faces is the providing of fertilizer inspectors for South Georgia for a longer term than four months, much complaint having been made by the people of that section on account of inspectors being no nearer than Barnesville.

Commercial fertilizers will come in for much attention on the part of the Legislature. Representative E. H. McMichael, of Marion County, charges that several big corporations controlling the supply of materials from which the fertilizer is manufactured practically form a trust.

"Pluck Out Tonsil," Doctor's New Method

CHICAGO, July 4.—Instead of cutting out a tonsil, Dr. Harold Foster, of New York, announced to-day that he could pluck and has plucked, out a diseased tonsil "as a man would pluck a cherry."

Only long fingers and a firm grip are needed, he says.

This remarkable declaration was made at the meeting of the American Homeopathic Society.

UNBIASED IN THE FLANDERS CASE, SAYS SLATON

New Governor Declares He Will Take Action After Hearing All Sides.

Governor Slaton has formed no opinion in the famous McNaughton-Mattie Flanders murder case, and says he will make no decision until he has heard all sides. The new Governor says he has not talked to the former Governor about the case. He will hear, he said, all arguments without prejudice.

It is known that the hopes of McNaughton's friends for commutation of sentence, if not pardon, have been greatly strengthened now that Governor Slaton is in the executive office.

The statement, made time and again, to the effect that Mrs. Mattie Flanders, alleged co-conspirator with Dr. W. J. McNaughton, never will be tried, has been renewed now that Governor Brown, who stood so long between Dr. McNaughton and the gallows, has been succeeded.

It was said months ago to be the purpose of those urging that the law be permitted to take its course against Dr. McNaughton to kick the case along from one court to another until a change in administrations had been effected in Atlanta. Governor Brown let it be known all along that he would not permit Dr. McNaughton to hang so long as the case against Mrs. Flanders remained undisposed of.

Waiting Game Played.

The case against Mrs. Flanders was passed along from one court to another until last March Governor Brown respited the doctor to September 5, which sets the date of his execution well into Governor Slaton's term. Had the case against Mrs. Flanders been nol-prossed in Governor Brown's term of office there is little, if any, doubt that Dr. McNaughton's sentence of death would have been promptly commuted to life imprisonment, or less, even if he was not pardoned outright. Governor Brown is known to have viewed the evident disinclination of the State to push the case against Mrs. Flanders as a circumstance in Dr. McNaughton's favor, but whether Governor Slaton will take that view of it is problematical.

It will be contended that the State dare not try the case against Mrs. Flanders for fear o fthereby acquitting her alleged accomplice, Dr. McNaughton. It is freely admitted that all hope of convicting Mrs. Flanders in Emanuel County has been abandoned. Partisans of Dr. McNaughton contend that if she is not guilty, the doctor can not possibly be guilty. They hold that Mrs. Flanders' cooperation in the killing of Fred Flanders, her husband, was necessarily essential to the conviction of Dr. McNaughton.

State Charged Conspiracy.

The State's original theory of the killing of Fred Flanders was that his murder was effected through criminal conspiracy between Dr. McNaughton and Flanders' wife, the motive being to secure the life insurance of Flanders, and to promote an alleged too ardent intimacy between Mrs. Flanders and McNaughton.

McNaughton's attorneys hold that if Mrs. Flanders is not guilty fo her part of the original allegations, Dr. McNaughton can not be, and this is the point of view that will be urged upon the new Executive.

Those who have studied this case are generally firm in the belief that McNaughton never will hang, if the case against Mrs. Flanders is dropped.

Public With McNaughton.

Public opinion, which originally was very strong against Dr. McNaughton, is said to have swung around very much in his favor of late, and his attorneys now contend that he would be freed of all charges, if he might be tried again in Emanuel County. They say that opinion is heavily favorable to him now.

He has been in prison more than two years, awaiting the disposition of the case against his alleged coconspirator, and has been respited half a dozen times pending her trial.

2-Cent Passenger Rates for Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, July 4.—The two-cent passenger rate went into effect in Arkansas to-day following an agreement reached between counsel for the Railroad Commission and the railroads and based largely on the recent decision of the United States Supreme Court, which upheld the right of States to fix rates.

This ends a long legal battle by the railroads to annul the two-cent rate law enacted seven years ago.

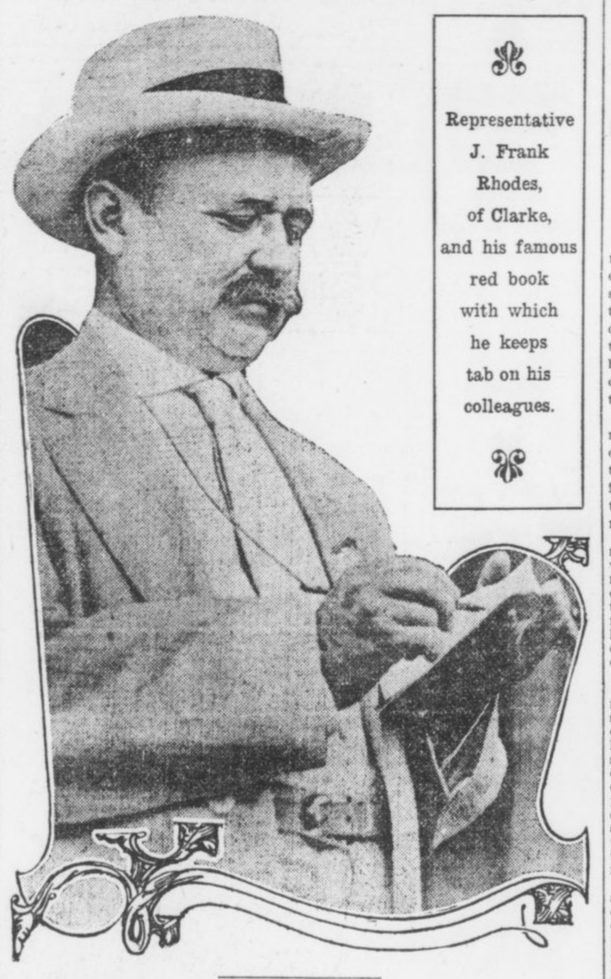
KEEPS TAB ON EVERY LAWMAKER IN HOUSE



Representative J. Frank Rhodes, of Clarke, and his famous red book with which he keeps tab on his colleagues.

Representative From Athens Writes Down in Little Red Book All He Finds Out.

Representative Frank Rhodes of Clarke County, once Mayor of Athens, is the blue-ribbon figurer and notemaker of the House.

Mr. Rhodes knows the name, habits, affiliations, religion, race, color, and previous conditions of servitude of each and every member of the House and he keeps his records of them handy at all times.

Rhodes has a fearful and wonderful little red leather book, in which everything about everybody in the Legislature is carefully and accurately set down.

The gentleman from Clarke has no sinister purpose in thus keeping tab on his fellow members. He is a wholesouled person, with malice toward none and charity for all. But he is of an inquisitive turn of mind and likes to have a thorough knowledge of anything and everything in which he is concerned. Wherefore, the frank and candid red leather book, in which he makes his daily jottings!

In Athens they yet talk about what a good Mayor Mr. Rhodes made. He had another little red book on that job, too, and long before election day it was packed and jammed with information, minute and searching, about every individual voter in town. Rhodes knew all about 'em before a ballot was cast, and he figured himself a winner, all right! He won, moreover, hands down.

The gentleman from Clarke is a business man, and a successful business man at that. He is happily married and has six children, every one of whom he is training up to the little red book habit.

If ever one of that Rhodes outfit should run for Governor, there will not be a voter in Georgia whose pedigree and history will not be set down accurately and precisely in one of the Rhodes' little red books.

SON WOULD PROBE DEATH OF FATHER

Coroner Orders Another Autopsy Before Funeral of Tampa Veteran With Girl-Wife.

TAMPA, July 4.—Samuel R. Payne's funeral was held here over a body from which the stomach had been taken an hour before the preacher called the services to order.

Payne died suddenly Tuesday at noon. He left a wife 23 years old. He was 75.

Almon Payne, of Pensacola, son of the dead man, consulted with Coroner Jackson and the latter ordered an autopsy. The doctors have not finished the examination of the stomach.

Payne, who was a Union veteran, left a small lestate. He had drawn a pension of $30 a month.

'Enough of Lamar,' Says Senator Walsh

WASHINGTON, July 4.—Senator Walsh, a member of the Senate lobby inquiry committee, does not expect J. P. Morgan, of New York, to be called as a witness as a result of allegations of David Lamar.

"Lamar has not shown that he succeeded in getting any one to pay any attention to his claims of influence with members of Congress," said Senator Walsh to-day, "and he has disclaimed that he had any such influence. I think we've had about enough of David Lamar."

Harrison to Run for Alderman in Third

It was announced Friday by friends of J. C. Harrison, ex-Councilman from the Third Ward, that Mr. Harrison would be in the race for Alderman from that ward.

Alderman James E. Warren, also Mayor Pro Tem, will seek re-election from the ward. A spirited fight for the place seems certain.

ATLANTA BABIES NEED YOUR MITE

Mothers' Congress to Put Bottles in Stores for Contributions to Milk Fund.

Every Atlantan willing to spare a few cents to save a baby life will be given an opportunity Monday to contribute to the "Milk for Poor Babies" fund started by the Atlanta Mothers' Congress, under the direction of Mrs. John Rowlett, of 186 East Pine Street.

Mrs. Rowlett said Friday morning that Monday morning milk bottles would be placed in every downtown store for the receipt of contributions. The bottles will be in conspicuous places in the store.

You may drop into the bottles a nickel or a dime or a quarter; or any amount you feel like giving. A subscription of any size will be welcome and will be appreciated by the good women who are trying to give the poor babies of Atlanta a chance to live through the summer. Every nickel donated will help in the fight for the babies.

The Mothers' Congress has decided to put the bottles in stores because responses to their appeal for a quart of milk a day have not been generous enough to take care of all the babies that require milk. The demand almost doubles the supply.

Already 38 children have been placed on the lists.

Besides the twenty quarts a day subscribed by William Randolph Hearst, there have been but nine people in Atlanta who have shown enough interest. Seven of these subscriptions provide for a quart of milk each a day and two for pints.

Many persons have good tenants moving into their property to-day merely because yesterday they had an ad in The Georgian's For Rent Columns. Phone Main 8000 or Atlanta 8000.

NEW TESTIMONY LAYS CRIME TO CONLEY

Frank Defense Locates Witness Who Points to the Negro Sweeper as Slayer.

A new witness, said to have the most damaging evidence yet produced against Jim Conley, the negro sweeper in the National Pencil factory, entered the Phagan case Thursday and made an affidavit, the contents fo which are carefully guarded by attorneys for Leo M. Frank, charged with causing the death of the factory girl.

The identity of the witness is as much a secret as the exact nature of his testimony. It was learned, though, that the affidavit was made in the law office of Joseph Leavitt in the Grant Building and was witnessed by Mr. Leavitt's stenographer.

It is said the testimony of this man connects Conley more directly with the crime than any other statement or affidavit yet procured by the defense. The witness is understood to have seen Conley on the afternoon of the crime and to have heard him make remarks in his drunken condition which were extremely incriminating.

Conley Faces Arrest.

The new affidavit is interpreted to mean that a warrant soon will be sworn out through a magistrate's court for the arrest of Conley. William M. Smith, attorney for Conley, said several days ago that if his client was made a defendant in the case he would retaliate upon the lawyers for Frank by issuing subpenas duces tecum, commanding them to appear in court with all the important statements and affidavits which they have obtained from witnesses for their side of the case.

Such a move would be giving the attorneys for Frank a little of their own medicine, as Attorney Rosser created a sensation a week ago by issuing subpenas duces tecum for Solicitor Dorsey, Chief Beavers, Chief Lanford, Pinkerton Detective Harry Scott and all the city detectives who had worked on the Phagan mystery.

They were commanded to bring into court all affidavits and statements of Jim Conley, Newt Lee, W. M. Matthews, Monteen Stover and other vital witnesses for the State.

Branded as "Trick."

Solicitor Dorsey and Attorney Frank A. Hooper, who is associated with Mr. Dorsey in the prosecution, at once branded the move as a thin trick for the purpose of discrediting the State's witnesses. The sworn statements would be used, they said, to compare with the testimony of the State's witnesses when on the stand.

If there were the slightest deviation through a natural lapse of memory or through trifling inaccuracy, the prosecution asserted, the defense would seek to take advantage of this to impeach the witnesses' testimony.

Sheriff Blamed for Americus Lynching

AMERICUS, July 4.—No indictments were found by the Sumter County Grand Jury, which for the past four days had been investigating the lynching of Will Reddill, a negro, in the streets of Americus.

None of the 150 witnesses summoned would tell the names of those who composed the mob, according to the Grand Jury report.

Vigorous criticism was given Sheriff Fuller, however, as the Grand Jury declared he had been very lax in allowing the prisoner to be taken from the jail.

THOUSANDS FLEE FROM HEAT TO COOL PARKS

Lake at Piedmont Gives Relief to Sweltering Throngs—Grant Is Crowded.

Thousands of pleasure seekers Friday splashed about in the waters of Piedmont Lake or sought refuge from the hottest Fourth of July sun in years in the shady drives of the various parks.

Piedmont Park probably drew the greatest crowds of people. They came in droves. Families brought their lunch baskets with them and made a day of it. It was too hot for the strenuous exertion of an old-time celebration, but in spite of the torridity all apeared to enjoy the day of rest and to find some relief in the fact that the celebration was not as noisy as in some years.

Many of the children found their greatest enjoyment at Grant Park about the Zoo, where they stod for hours watching tahe tigers, lions and monkeys.

In all the parks there were scores of picnic parties. The occasional sputter of the small firecracker was heard, and every now and then some one would set off a deafening giant cracker, but most of this was confined to the downtown districts where the "newsies" occupied their spare time in shattering the nerves of the pedestrians.

The golf courses, tennis courts and lakes of the Capital City and East Lake Country Clubs were crowded all days, especially in the afternoon.

Cobb Suspect Jailed Here to Escape Mob

Fearing an attempt at lynching, Cobb County authorities brought Cato Wilson, a 25-year-old negro, to Atlanta Friday morning. He was put in the Fulton County jail.

The negro is accused of attacking the daughter of a Cobb County farmer.

ATLANTA-MADE GOODS EXHIBIT IS CERTAIN

Manufacturers in Meeting Decide to Organize and Set Up Permanent Display.

Atlanta manufacturers will establish in a downtown building an elaborate permanent display of articles made at home.

Four sites are offered, no one of them more than five minutes' walk from Five Points.

Twenty-three of the 100 manufacturers who gathered for a banquet at Hotel Ansley Thursday night pledged themselves to take space in the exhibit hall.

Within four days an Atlanta manufacturers' association will be organized, to handle the exhibit and to wrestle with problems of interest to factory men. Within ten days, one of the four offers of a building will be accepted. Whether the building will be leased, bought or leased with privilege of purchase, is to be worked out.

It was Mr. Morgan who laid the plan before the gathering, after a year's study and preparation. Necessary to the success of the plan is a pledged revenue of $22,500 a year for five years, he said.

Factories Make Realty Values.

"Atlanta should have four times the payroll it now has," he asserted. "The maintenance of real estate values and the future growth of Atlanta absolutely depend upon the growth of manufacturing. We have 600 manufacturing plants in the city now. I doubt if we need more. My idea is that we should build those we have into giant industrial establishments. Some people deny this, but I want to say that Atlanta-made goods can be sold right in Atlanta. It only is necessary to let the people know what we have here."

Bolling H. Jones told the other manufacturers that Evansville, Ind., established such a display, and found that goods could be sold through it at a selling cost of 3 per cent.

"This convinced me," said Mr. Jones. "Did any one here ever sell goods at a cost of 3 per cent?"

C. S. Dobbs made a forceful talk on the advertising value of the exhibit. "The man who makes good products and doesn't tell about it," he said, "is like the man who winks at a girl in the dark—he knows all about it, but she doesn't. Besides, it doesn't get him anywhere."

Adair Is Emphatic.

Forrest Adair was emphatic in his approval.

"I may not be orthodox," he said, "but there is one subject on which I am rabid. That is the talk about the smoke nuisance. I wish to goodness some one would turn 500 more smokestacks loose on us. We need factories.

"But the public does not know about those we have. I met a bank director to-day who did not know that most of the railroad cars rolling out of here roll on wheels made in Atlanta—and another who thought that Mr. Orr had his shoes made in Boston, and simply jobbed them here. The public must have things rubbed in before it remember."

J. K. Orr, J. P. Stevens and others voiced their approval.

On the call for pledges to take space in the exhbiit hall, the following manufacturers "signed up:"

J. P. Stevens Manufacturing Company, J. K. Orr Shoe Company, F. E. Block Company, Atlanta Stove Works, Foote & Davies Company, L. & L. Manufacturing Company, Byrd Printing Company, Nunnally & McCrea Manufacturing Company, A. M. Robinson Company, Southern Engraving Company, Atlanta Paper Company, Burnett, Bell & Klapper Furniture Company, Van Winkle Motor Truck Company, Norris, Inc., White Provision Company, Empire Cotton Oil Company, Mitchell Manufacturing Company, Atlanta Gas Light Company, All-Star Manufacturing Company, Southern Spring Bed Company and the Southern Saw and Machine Works.

World Gold Supply Affected by Strike

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

JOHANNESBURG, AFRICA, July 4.—The world's gold supply is being seriously affected by the strike in the Rand. A large percentage of the world's supply of gold comes from this district and leaders of the various unions are trying to shut it off completely.

Serious rioting occurred to-day. Fifty soldiers and three times that number of strikers were hurt in the clashes.

Government Bonds Sell Under Par

NEW YORK, July 4.—A very unusual situation has developed in the market for United States bonds. Within the last few days, for the first time since the 2 per cent bonds which become payable in 1930 have been issued, they have sold on the Stock Exchange at less than par.

This condition is a direct result of the proposal in the currency bill that the bonds of the United States be deprived of their use by national banks to secure circulation.

Gulf Stream Speeds Up; Hurries Steamer

BOSTON, July 4.—Carried along at great speed by an unusually swift current in the Golf Stream, the steamer Sosua, from Costa Rica, reached here a day ahead of time.

Captain Bjonnes said that the waters of the Stream were strangely active, and the steamer began moving so rapidly that the engines were slowed down to half speed. Even after that the Sosua logged off the miles at an amazing rate.

Accused Slayer Kills Himself in His Cell

ANNISTON, July 4—G. H. Bailey, a prominent merchant, charged with the murder of C. W. Saunders here about two weeks ago, committed suicide in the county jail by cutting his throat. It is thought that he used a safety razor blade, as other prisoners in the jail had such blades.

A relative says that Bailey was despondent after his preliminary trial, when he was refused bail. His body was turned over to Coroner Murphy to be prepared for burial. He leaves a wife and several children.

BABY, 7 MONTHS OLD, HAPPY PLAYING FIDDLE

Child's unusual love of music discovered entirely through accident.

June Howard Stollard, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Stollard, "The Fiddlin' Baby."

Neighborhood attraction is not content unless musical instrument is within easy reach.

Hail the fiddling baby!

Seven months old, and never happy unless he is picking at a violin.

Feed him milk and mush and he is apt to be as cross as a bear; stick a violin between his fat feet and fingers and he will immediately begin picking at the strings, a smile of cherubic joy will wrinkle his plump face—and he is in the seventh heaven of delight.

Atlanta's latest prodigy is June Howard Stollard, the only son of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Stollard, of 44 East Main Street, and he bids fair to develop into another Mischa Elman.

But it was not until he was five months old and crawling over everything in the house that the love of music that possessed the little soul became known, and then only through accident. One morning the baby crawled into a closet, and, discovering an old violin that had belonged to Mrs. Stoddard's father, calmly took possession of it and began giving an impromptu concert. He had the violin cuddled up between his toes and fingers and was picking at the strings with both feet and hands. And out of the medley of sounds emitted by the protesting violin came now and then notes of surprising clearness.

Since then open season has been declared on violins in the Stollard household. The fiddling baby has become a neighborhood attraction. Like all geniuses, the child is content to sit and fiddle all day long, whether he has an audience or not. He has gained confidence with experience, and now he picks and pecks at the violin strings for dear life. The child puts his whole heart into his fiddling and spurns tempting offers of milk while he is playing. He quits only when he is tired, and sometimes he does not get tired for hours at a time. His mother and father are even now planning his musical education.

'Phone Girls Will Open Summer Camp With Out-door Dance

With an informal reception and a dance in an open-air pavilion the girls of the Southern Bell Telephone Company, 500 in number, will dedicate their summer playground, "Camp Wyanoke," at 8 o'clock Friday night. The camp covers seven acres of wooded hillside on the plantation of B. D. Jackson, and is equipped with electric lights, sewer facilities and running hot and cold water.

The camp was planned by Miss Cathryn C. Tatum, chief of the stenographic bureau of the telephone company, assisted by the head operators. The telephone company donated the equipment, costing over $1,000. Practically every one of the 500 girls who work as operators, stenographers and bookkeepers will spend their vacation there, the cost being only 50 cents a day. The camp will be open till late in September or early October.

SLATON DOUBTS RIGHT TO PAY TEACHERS

Governor Asks Opinion on Amendment Purporting to Add Power in Expenditures.

Governor Slaton has grave doubts whether the recently ratified constitutional amendment purporting to increase the Executive's borrowing power has not really put a limitation upon his powers rather than extended them.

So serious are these doubts in the Governor's mind that he has referred the matter to the Attorney General for an opinion, and will not undertake to do anything in relieving the present situation with respect to paying the common-schoolteachers until his mind has been cleared up by that official.

If the amendment has fully authorized the Governor to proceed to the relief of the teachers, unquestionably he will give the matter that direction, but the peculiar wording of the amendment, coupled with the statutes involved, has given rise to perplexing doubts in the Executive mind as to just exactly what the law does contemplate, and he hesitates to attempt a loan for any purpose whatever until he knows exactly what terms and conditions a loan under the amendment would impose, not only upon the State, but upon the source of the loan.

Anxious to Pay Teachers.

Governor Slaton is anxious to see the school teachers paid. Of that there is no doubt. But the uncertainty in his mind as to the law in the case, as well as the marked stringency of the money market at this time, has prompted him to make haste slowly.

If it might be so arranged the Governor prefers that such loan or loans as he may contract be made with Georgia bankers and financiers. If the matter can not take this direction, however, the Governor will be forced to go East for such funds as he needs, and he has reason to suspect that it will be rather expensive borrowing at this time.

Naturally, the Governor does not wish to involve the State in a transaction calling for an abnormal expense item by way of interest.

The Governor wishes to relieve the present pressing necessities of the common-school teachers, and in addition to that he hopes to secure from the present General Assembly early legislation of a character calculated to avoid delaying the payment of the teachers in the future.

Legislature to Co-operate.

There is a marked disposition in the Legislature, moreover, to co-operate cordially with the Governor in this matter.

During the present three-day recess of the House and the Senate the Governor will address his attention almost exclusively to the problem of financing the teachers in their present necessities and planning for their permanent relief.

When the Legislature meets again Monday it is likely that the Governor will put himself immediately in touch with that body, to the end that the present troublesome status of affairs may be worked out legally, equitably and speedily.

POSSE IN BATTLE WITH BANDITS

One of Solomon Brothers Killed and Another Probably Fatally Wounded.

DOUGLAS, July 4.—Andrew Solomon is dead and Randall Solomon, his brother, to-day is in a hospital here probably fatally wounded, as the result of a battle between the Solomon train bandits and a posse headed by Sheriff Gillis at the Roundabout Swamp, near Kirkland.

The Solomon gang had been hunted by officers of Coffee and Ware Counties and detectives of the Atlantic Coast Line for two weeks for a series of daring freight train and other robberies in this section. They were trailed to the Roundabout Swamp, where they took refuge in the fastnesses where men and dogs could not trail them. There they remained until Thursday afternoon.

When Sheriff Gillis and his posse surrounded the bandits, a pitched battle ensued in which Andrew and Randall Solomon were shot. None of the Sheriff's posse was wounded. A relief party went from here to Kirkland to bring in the dead and wounded.

Postal Employees Have Half-Holiday

Atlanta postal employees had a half-holiday Friday. All the offices closed at 1 o'clock and the deliveries of mail were curtailed. One delivery was made to the residential section and two in the business section in the morning. There were no deliveries in the afternoon.

The general delivery and the stamp windows closed promptly at noon.

FLOOD OF SPEED FIEND CHARGES STIRS CHIEF

Beavers Posts Plain Clothes Men to Nab Drivers Who Endanger Children's Lives.

Following the excitement caused by the accident on Mills Street Wednesday afternoon when little Eva Kilpatrick was run down by a speeding automobile and left to her fate, Chief Beavers is receiving complaints of speeding autoists from all parts of the city.

The strongest complaints have come from merchants and residents along Ponce DeLeon Avenue and Marietta Street. Autoists have turned Marietta Street into a speedway, the Chief is told, and run their cars at a terrific rate of speed at all hours of the day and night. Several accidents narrowly have been averted, and pedestrians who are forced to cross Marietta Street are in constant danger.

Out on Ponce DeLeon Avenue conditions, according to complaints, are as bad as they are on Marietta Street. At night, residents of the street claim, the automobilists who use the street throw their mufflers wide open and sleep is impossible.

Children Kept From Street.

Little children living on Ponce DeLeon Avenue have been forbidden by their parents to cross the street unless their elders are with them, so dangerous and reckless have the automobile drivers become.

One complaint made to the chief declared that an 8-year-old girl narrowly escaped with her life only a few days ago. The driver made no attempt to turn his machine or avoid running over the child, and the complaint declares that as he flew past he cursed the little girl for getting in the road.

Chief Beavers, following the receipt of the complaints, started a vigorous campaign that it is hoped will end in the arrest and punishment of the speeding autoists. Every policeman on the force has been instructed to watch carefully for speeders, and also ordered to enforce all the automobile regulations strictly.

Police Put on Watch.

Plainclothes men will be sent to the various portions of the city that have become known as haunts of the speed maniac, and nothing will be left undone to break up the practice that has made the streets of Atlanta a source of danger to all who venture upon them.

Chief Beavers also has started a thorough inquiry into the accident which nearly cost Eva Kilpatrick her life, and if the autoist who ran down the little girl and then fled is captured, an example will be made of him. The investigation has been placed in the hands of Captain Poole, and a squad of men have been detailed to act under his orders. Every person in the neighborhood of the accident who could have seen the car will be questioned.

Columbus Draws Law To Curb Autoists.

COLUMBUS, July 4.—An ordinance window of Luden & Bates' piano store the Columbus City Council to force all automobile drivers to bring their cars to a standstill when approaching a street car which has stopped. The ordinance also provides that no one who operates a motorcycle shall allow anyone else to ride on the machine with them, nor can they carry packages that would tend to obstruct their view.

Anniston Wars on Speeders.

GADSDEN, ALA., July 4.—Following an order issued by Mayor Holcomb yesterday, the police last night arrested two automobile drivers, charging them with exceeding the speed limit. They will be given a hearing in Police Court Monday. The Mayor told the police to arrest everyone driving fast, regardless of his station in life.

Georgia, Virginia, North and South Carolina, Florida, Alabama, Tennessee and Mississippi—Generally fair to-night and Saturday.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Ximenia A. Garraux, aged 42, died at a private sanitarium Friday morning at 5 o'clock. She is survived by her husband, Ernest Garraux; a son, E. V. Garraux, and a brother, W. M. Giles. The body will be taken to Charlotte, N. C., at 8:45 o'clock Friday night for interment.

The body of Mrs. Fannie E. Jarvis, 76 Cherokee Avenue, who died on Thursday morning at a local sanitarium, was taken at 7:30 o'clock Friday morning to Canton, Ga., for funeral and interment. Mrs. Jarvis is survived by three sons and one daughter.

Grace Fuller, the 3-month-old child of Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Fuller, died at a private sanitarium Friday morning. The body was taken to the P. J. Bloomfield chapel and from there will be shipped Friday night to Clayton, Ga., for funeral services and interment.

DROPSY TREATED. Quick relief, swelling, short breath soon removed, often entire relief in 15 to 25 days. Trial treatment sent FREE. Write Dr. H. H. Greens Sons, Box O, Atlanta, Ga.

Trolley Strike Spoils Chicago Picnic Plans

CHICAGO, July 4.—When every car in the County Traction Company's system was deserted to-day by conductors and motormen, the company closed its power house and made no effort to remove the thousands who attempted to leave the city by traction to spend their holiday in the country.

Three hundred men were out today.

City Health Men Are Re-elected by Board

The City Board of Health met at noon Friday and re-elected Dr. J. P. Kennedy city health doctor, Dr. Claude A. Smith bacteriologist, and John Jentzen sanitary chief.

The action was unanimous.

CHILDREN ENJOY THE FOURTH AT GRANT PARK WITH PRIZE PONIES

Parade through downtown district precedes frolic with little Shelands at Grant Park.

The boys on the ponies, from left to right, are Ross Greer, Abe Morrison and Emory Ward.

Dairyman Prohibited From Delivering Milk

CORDELE, July 4.—A. E. Hall, a Cordele dairyman, has been prohibited from delivering milk to residents of the city because an epidemic of disease has become prevalent among his cows and five of them have died and as many more are sick.

Dr. J. S. McKenzie, city physician, has requested the State Veterinarian at Atlanta to come here and make an investigation.

All Bibb Election Charges Dismissed

MACON, July 4.—All of the indictments growing out of the irregularities in the Bibb County primary election of August, 1912, have now been dismissed.

T. E. Artope, manager of the polls where the errors occurred, was acquitted by the jury and the indictments against John E. Harrison, George Dolvin and R. A. Umpback have now been nol-prossed.

In the case of Jesse C. Harris, who was indicted for perjury in this connection, a verdict of not guilty was directed.

Held as a Forger.

GRIFFIN.—B. F. Kersy is in jail here with two charges of forgery against him. Kersy, claiming to be from Stockbridge, presented a $14 check at the City National Bank drawn on the Bank of Stockbridge in favor of J. C. Duncan, signed S. C. McWilliams, and with Joe A. Rice as indorser. It was learned that Kersy is wanted in Oglethorpe on a charge of forgery.

Contestants Drive and Ride Pretty Shetland Prizes in Parade as Guests of Hearst Papers.

Boys and girls in The Georgian and American pony contests, their parents, their relatives and their friends are at Grant Park celebrating the Fourth as the guests of the Hearst papers.

Promptly at 10 o'clock nine of the ponies which are to be awarded as prizes in the contest started in parade formation from The Georgian and American offices in Alabama Street.

It was a pretty sight. The buggies were swathed in flags, and the ponies, sleek and shining, proudly wore tiny flags on all parts of their harnesses. Five of the ponies were hitched to buggies; the others were saddled.

Nine of the most eager contestants were chosen to drive and ride the ponies to the park, but with attendants close at hand to prevent any mishap, for the Shetlands are spirited. While gentle, still they are not getting the work they should and are inclined to be lively.

At the park every contestant is being given a ride or a drive. Lemonade and other refreshments are being served. Dan Carey, superintendent of parks, said The Georgian's guests could "own the park" for the afternoon, and they took him at his word.

Men from The Georgian and American offices were delegated to look after the children, so that parents who let them go unattended need have no worry as to their safety.

Many persons have good tenants moving into their property to-day merely because yesterday they had an ad in The Georgian's For Rent Columns. Phone Main 8000 or Atlanta 8000.

STARK BITTERLY ARRAIGNED BY SUFFRAGIST

Mrs. McLendon Scores Lawmaker for Opposition—Fight for Senate Chamber Renewed.

Characterizing Senator W. W. Stark as a man of small mental caliber, Mrs. Mary L. McLendon, president of the Georgia Woman's Suffrage Association, said Frdiay the suffragists would renew the fight for the use of the Senate chamber during their State convention.

When Senator Stark ascertained the suffragists intended to enlighten the Senators on the question of votes for women, and then moved the tabling of a resolution to grant them the use of the Senate chamber on the nights of July 9 and 10, he provoked the ire of Mrs. McLendon.

Mrs. McLendon declared the suffragists of Atlanta and Georgia were indignant. She believed that common courtesy should have impelled the Senators to willingly grant them the use of the Senate chamber, irrespective of the Senators' views on suffrage.

She Calls Condition "Pitiful."

"It is pitiful that women have to beg the men for such things as that," she said.

During a brief recess Mrs. McLendon asked Senator Stark why he opposed granting the use of the Senate chamber to the suffragists, and he replied it was because the Saviour did not call a woman as one of His disciples.

"The answer seemed so absurd, so little to the point," she asserted.

"I asked him if he didn't know that the women of Georgia helped to build that State House, and that we had as much right there as anybody else. Governor Brown let four cowboys from Washington ride horses up the steps, yet the women of Georgia can not meet there."

Plan to Renew Fight.

"We are going to renew the fight for the use of the Senate chamber," Mrs. McLendon continued.

"Mr. John Y. Smith said he would reopen the question for us next Monday. Mr. Blackburn said he would, too. Mr. Blackburn is not in favor of woman suffrage, but his personal belief has nothing to do with this question. No, I don't think we'll get the use of the Senate chamber, but we'll show the smallness of the average Georgia legislator. Just because they are elected by the men people they try to keep the women down. They are afraid the women might rise against them, so they keep their heels on the women's necks."

Mrs. J. K. Ottley, a suffragist sympathizer, said she had no opinion regarding Senator Stark or the reasons he advanced for opposing suffrage, but she was surprised at the Senate's refusal to allow the women to meet there.

Mrs. Ottley Is Surprised.

"I should think they would be very glad to extend the use of the Senate chamber to any association which was neither incendiary nor objectionable," she said, "and, judging by the headway made in other States, the suffragist associations are neither incendiary nor objectionable.

"I am surprised that they should have denied the use of the Senate chamber to any group of respectable Georgia women seeking something they believed to be for the State's good."

Mrs. Ottley said she believed woman's suffrage would come, but she would probably never make an effort to bring it.

Militants Burn Large Warehouse.

BIRMINGHAM, ENGLAND, July 4. Militant suffragettes burned a big warehouse here to-day, doing $25,000 damage. On a nearby building they posted a placard saying:

"Fires will never cease until women vote."

Bill to Reimburse Dairymen Drafted

A cattle bill, providing for the reimbursing of the dairymen for cows killed by order of the Health Department, will be introduced by Representative R. Frank Smith, of DeKalb County, at the request of the Georgia Dairymen's Association, which has been agitating the matter for years.

It provides that the owner shall be reimbursed in the value of the animal killed as shown upon the tax books.

3 Drowned as Engine Topples Into River

MEMPHIS, July 4.—A switch engine on the Illinois Central to-day toppled off a bridge over a small river near Darnell, Miss.

Three men were drowned.

LITTLE GIRL IS A HOTEL VETERAN; SHE HAS NEVER MADE MUD PIES

Demure Miss at the Majestic Can Order Dinner Like a Real Epicure.

Think of it! Tobe 7 years old and not know what a mud pie looks like.

That is little Miss Christine Lewis, demure, pretty, petite daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Lewis, who has spent all of her blissful seven years in a hotel and wouldn't live anywhere else even if her parents insisted.

Miss Christine is at the Majestic at present. She can order a dinner as well as her mother, and she orders the porters and bellmen around with the nonchalance of a legislator. From the time she awakes in the morning and takes here seat in the dining room at 9 o'clock until she is tucked in bed at 8, after bidding guests on the veranda good-night, she is the sunshine of the hotel.

Miss Christine is a veteran.

"Waiter," she beckons at the table, "I don't care for consomme to-night. You may bring me chicken, if you have it, and veg'tables. And I want ice cream. And it's hot in here; I wish you'd start the 'lectric fan. Please don't forget the ice cream."

Mud pies are unknown to her. Miss Christine's frocks know not the stain of the red Georgia soil. In the afternoon, instead of playing in the street as most children do, she goes to a picture show. And there she sits up straight and watches the romances unreel. It is more fun, says Miss Christine, than playing in the hot sun.

Miss Christine Lewis, who has spent all of her seven years in hotels.

Doesn't want to live in a residence ever, says petitie miss, who is the pet of the Majestic's guests.

Likes picture shows better than romping. because romping soils her dresses.

FEVER EPIDEMIC SURE TO COME

We have already this season experienced the hottest weather known in eleven years. Look out for all kinds of fever during the next few months.

Dr. Verdier's Liver Ease is the very latest discovery in medicine to take the place of calomel. Remember that calomel is a poison, made of a heavy powdered metal that heats and inflames the tissues all through your entire body. It is never eliminated from the system—it's too heavy. It will damage you and make you prematurely old.

Dr. Verdier's Liver Ease taken at the first sign of any bad feeling will ward off fever in grown-ups, diarrhoea in children and insure perfect health. You can't afford to neglect yourself when you can get a safe remedy at so small a cost.

Fifty cents for a large bottle at any drug store in Atlanta, fully guaranteed or money back. Ask for Liver Ease in a pink package.

PAY ME FOR CURES ONLY

If you have been taking treatment for weeks and months and paying out your hard earned money without being cured, don't you think it is high time to accept DR. HUGHES' GRAND OFFER?

You will certainly not be out any more money if not cured. Consultation and Examination are free for the next thirty days.

If I decide that your condition will not yield readily to my treatment, I will be honest with you and tell you so, and not accept your money under a promise of a cure.

My treatment will positively cure or I will make you no charge for the following diseases:

KIDNEY, BLADDER AND URINARY TROUBLE, STRICTURE, VARICOCELE, HYDROCELE, NERVOUS DEBILITY, RUPTURE, ULCERS AND SKIN DISEASES, CONTAGIOUS BLOOD POISON

Eczema, Rheumatism, Catarrhal Affections, Piles and Fistula and all Nervous, Chronic and Private Diseases of Men and Women.

Newly contracted and chronic Cases of Burning, Itching and Inflammation stopped in 24 hours. I am against high and extortionate fees charged by some physicians and specialists. My fees are reasonable and no more than you are willing to pay for a cure. All medicines, the purest and best of drugs, are supplied from my own private laboratory. OUT-OF-TOWN MEN VISITING THE CITY, consult me at once upon arrival, and maybe you can be cured before returning home. Many cases can be cured in one or two visits.

CALL OR WRITE—No detention from business. Treatment and advice confidential. Hours 9 a. m. to 7 p. m. Sunday, 9 to 1. If you can't call, write and give me full description of your case in your own words. A complete consultation costs you nothing and if I can help you I will.

WAVES U. S. FLAG IN CANADA AND STARTS RIOT

Overpatriotic American Flaunts Emblem in Regiment's Face and Is Beaten Up.

WINNIPEG, July 4.—An overpatriotic American started a small-sized riot on Main Street here to-day by waving an American flag in the face of the Tenth Canadian Regiment as they were returning home from camp. In the fight that followed, soldiers and civilians alike participated.

The American was roughly handled and the flag tossed into the street and trampled on by the marching soldiers. Before the police could interfere several who took part in the fight received black eyes and cuts on the face.

The incident happened when the streets were crowded with friends of the returning soldiers. The young American, who is employed in a local restaurant, as he waved the flag at the soldiers shouted, "Hurrah for the American Eagle!"

Colonel J. B. Mitchell, in command of the regiment, ordered one of his men to quiet the American and tell him to put the flag down. As the soldier sprang forward to obey, several civilians closed in on the American and a fight commenced, which finally was quelled by the police.

No arrests were made. In all probability the matter will be taken up with the American Consul General.

U. S. Is Paying More For Seamen's Food

WASHINGTON, July 4.—The increasing cost of living is demonstrated in contracts for feeding the officers and men of the Revenue Cutter Service during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

New York City shows the greatest increase. It will cost $.436 a day to feed each sailor there this year as against $.38 last year. Baltimore and Boston are the only cities showing decreases, the cost in Baltimore dropping from $.41 to $.401, and in Boston from $.387 to $.383.

Electric Fan Demand Swamps Local Shops

The hot weather of the past several days has developed an electric fan famine. The demand has so increased that orders can not be filled. Electrical concerns have long waiting lists to be filled as soon as new shipments arrive.

More than 1,000 fans have been rented and sold within the last few days by one concern.

THE PLAY THIS WEEK

Keith Vaudeville at Forsyth.

Edward Abeles, the distinguished comedy actor, who has created a number of important leading roles with great plays, is making himself a real favorite with the patrons of the Forsyth this week, in the presentation of his excellent playlet, called "He Tried To Be Nice." Miss Charlotte Lander gives valuable assistance to the star in the act and it has won applause that made extra curtain calls at every performance. The bill is one of exceptional quality and real interest. There are acts that are of a keen and drawing power and collectively make up a program that is full of good things.

Talking Pictures at the Grand.

Matinee and night performances of Edison's talking pictures will be continued Friday and Saturday at the Grand. The program is new—different from the first part of the week, and just as interesting. Interest in the pictures has grown steadily. The Edison novelty has won on pure merit and the big Grand is being well filled at every performance.

Extra Matinee at Bijou To-day.

The pleasing impression made by "A Trip to Paris" on Monday at the Bijou has brought crowded houses to the theater all week. The warm weather has not affected the attendance, and Bijou patrons have shown their appreciation by the generous applause and frequent curtain calls. "A Trip to Paris" is one of the best tabloids that has been offered. Extra matinee to-day at 2:30.

Stabs Son-in-Law In Fight Over Wife

DAHLONEGA, July 4.—When William Stover, of Auraria, started a row with Lon Jett, Gus Stover interfered and was seriously stabbed by Jett. Gus Stover is a son of William Stover and a son-in-law of Jett. Remarks that the elder Stover made about Jett's daughter, Gus Stover's wife, started the difficulty.

Sheriff T. M. Ray was notified and reached Jett's home shortly afterward. He was arrested and placed in jail. Gus Stove is in a serious condition.

WAR RELICS EXHIBITED.

Sunday School Body Plans Monthly Meet

The regular monthly session of the Atlanta Baptist Sunday School Association will be held Sunday afternoon at 3:30 o'clock, at the Jones Avenue Baptist Church. This association, of which John M. Green is president, embraces about 30 Baptist Sunday schools in Atlanta and Fulton County.

At the meeting Sunday addresses will be delivered by Dr. C. A. Ridley, Rev. H. S. Wallace and L. W. Smith.

Court Held on 4th; First in 3 Decades

For the first time in 30 years the Fulton Superior Court was in session July 4.

A phase of the Guarantee Bank and Trust Company case was being argued, and Judge John T. Pendleton declined to adjourn court until it was completed.

Exchange to Fight Cotton Future Tax

NEW YORK, July 4.—A formal protest by the Cotton Exchange will probably be made against the amendment to the tariff bill providing for taxing sales of cotton futures one-tenth of a cent a pound.

Cotton brokers and spinning interests declared that the taxation of one-tenth of a cent a pound on sales of futures would drive the market for cotton to Liverpool, where there are no such restrictions.

Poison Kills Wife of Greensboro's Mayor

GREENSBORO, July 4.—Mrs. Mary Lizzie Branch, wife of Mayor L. Henry Branch, died to-day, after an illness of two days, of blood poisoning. She was 43 years old and is survived by her husband, a young daughter, Rachel, and several brothers and sisters.

Interment will be in Greensboro cemetery.

PRINCE SAYS KIN WON'T SLIGHT U. S. BRIDE

Austrian Noble Also Denies King Blocks His Marriage to San Francisco Girl.

LOS ANGELES, July 4.—"Miss Marie Freeze is the equal of any princess of Austria, and as my wife she will be received at the imperial court beyond any question," declared Prince Stanislaus Sulkowski, of Austria, in reply to a report that lack of royal consent was delaying his marriage to the Los Angeles girl.

"It is not true that Countess Szechenyi, who was Miss Gladys Vanderbilt, was not received at court or was coldly treated by the nobility of Austria-Hungary," he added.

Prince Sulkowski said he awaited the consent of the ministry of war to the marriage, a consent made necessary by the fact that he is an officer in the Second Dragoons.

Prince Sulkowski insists, in spite of reports of Gladys Vanderbilt's unhappy experiences, that there will not be the slightest disposition on the part of the nobility of his country to turn a cold shoulder to Miss Freeze when he takes her to Vienna as his bride.

Thieves Ambushed By Elkin Drug Clerk

Through the vigilance of R. W. McRoberts, an Elkin Drug Company clerk, six negro thieves, who, for some months past, have caused annoyance and considerable loss to the company, were arrested and bound over on $200 bond each.

Candied cherries, perfume and drugs were the principal things taken, but the negroes became more bold and carried out bottles of alcohol in the bottom of the trash cans.

McRoberts and three others secreted themselves in the basement and captured the negroes.

LONGSTREET'S WIDOW TELLS OF REUNION

Describes Meeting Sharpshooter Detailed to Kill Husband, Whom General Captured.

By HELEN D. LONGSTREET.

GETTYSBURG, July 4.—The tents of America's loyalty are pitched today on the world's greatest battlefield. Gettysburg's bugles echo today over a reunited nation.

Standing on the borderland of eternity, with its shadows touching their bent forms and silvered heads, these last survivors of an army the like of which the world shall see no more have gathered here, not Northern, not Southern, but all American, bridging the bloody rift of the sixties with fraternal unity more ancient than sectionalism, more lasting than hate.

To the youth of this nation the inspirational value of this day on Gettysburg's field will outweigh the sordid accumulations of all the Rockefellers the world will ever produce.

"Where did you lose your arm?" I asked of one melancholy-faced soldier in blue, who walked a little lamely notwithstanding his brave efforts.

Detailed to Kill General.

"After the battle of Chickamauga," he said. "I was one of twenty sharpshooters detailed to kill Longstreet. He captured us all and I lost my right arm. Did you ever see Longstreet?" he inquired pathetically. "How sorry I am that he did not live to be here."

Gazing over seas of Old Glory, miles of which stream from the houses and dot the hillsides, swathing the trees and bridging the streets, until a loyal canopy of red, white and blue almost conceals the blue heavens above.

"Oh, isn't it glorious!" I said to a veteran in gray. "How could you look on the old flag and know its meaning and fire on it?"

The veteran in gray said, brokenly, as he looked with me upon the shining colors of our country's standard:

"That's My Flag Forever."

"I didn't stop to think so much about what we were fighting about; my land and my people called to me. They were in trouble; it was about the same as if it had been my mother. Right or wrong, I would rush to her rescue."

"But now you are glad," I said, "glad that you didn't win; glad that the American Union lives."

He bared his head and, pointing to the glorious sweep of color, said reverently:

"That is my flag, the flag of my fathers, the flag of my country, my children's flag forever. God keep it in the skies. It means strength and progress and peace that will endure. It blazed the only road to national happiness and greatness."

A melancholy-eyed veteran in worn gray, gazing wistfully across Cemetery Ridge, had gone back to the daring days of the long past. Lost to the present, oblivious of surroundings, he said sadly:

Mourns Over Pickett's Charge.

"If Pickett hadn't made that charge we stood a good chance of whipping the Yankees."

"But," I said, "it is best for us all that you didn't whip them; and they are no longer Yankees, just Americans; and, looking toward the East, shoulder to shoulder, heart beating close to heart, our country's mighty destiny is our common hope and glory."

"I know all that," he said, "but I just sometimes can't help feeling powerful sad when I think of them brave boys who had to die out there for nothing."

"Oh," I replied, "nobody ever dies for nothing who dies for right."

On this field of tearful memories a sea of brown tents stretching miles in all directions, it is learned that no provision whatever has been made for the participation in this greatest event in the country's peace history of the women who sent husbands and fathers and sons and sweethearts to answer the call at the first tap of the drum in 1861. The hardship, the suffering, the agony of the women who waited in the war homes of the nation may never be told.

Veteran Longs for Wife.

Some day a grateful Government will erect a monument that will pierce the blue heavens from Gettysburg's stateliest, sunniest slope, and on it will stand the figure of one in whose courageous soul every battle was fought and every victory won—the woman who placed the flag of her faith in the hands of her best beloved and sent it to the front when the first gun was fired on Fort Sumter.

A veteran, shambling rather dejectedly along up Emmitsburg Road, overtook me. He was hot, dusty, tired. I said: "Do take my umbrella. I really would rather walk without it."

He straightened up with some of the old fire and vigor.

"Pshaw! I was fighting up this road before you wuz born. I guess I kin stand a little sun now. But how I wish Jane wuz here. She had a harder time than I did enduring the war."

Later a little woman with faded eyes overtook us "up Emmitsburg Road."

"I wasn't expected," she said, "but I just couldn't help coming. Jim was killed along here somewhere. I think it must have been about here."

Pausing at a clump of trees, she rested a thin hand on one of the outstretched branches.

Going to Her Sweetheart.

"Your husband?" I said.

"Oh, no, he was just my sweetheart, but I told him that I would wait until he came back. I won't have much longer to wait now. He did not come back to me, but I am going to him."

Some time there will be another and a greater reunion on this field. The next time it will include the real soldiers who made the four years of fighting possible.

On that day, a rich, grateful Republic will pour out its millions, and all the gray, bent Janes who had "a harder time" than their husbands on the field, and all the sad-eyed Sarahs who are still waiting for sweethearts that never came back will gather here on the scene of a Republic's trials, tribulations, and sufferings, and that will be a real reunion of the white souls that laid the supreme offering on the altar of country, of the tortured hearts that wrestled with the uncomplaining pain through the long four years when the nation's harpstrings were tuneless because her daughters could not sing the old songs.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

by JAMES B. NEVIN

By refusing the perfectly reasonable request, legitimately entered, of certain advocates of woman suffrage in Georgia that they be permitted to use the Senate chamber for a meeting, at a time definitely sure not to conflict with any busines of the Senate, it is extremely doubtful whether the Senate has covered itself with any amazing amount of glory or erected a perpetual monument to its common sense.

That is the way a great many people appear to view the matter, anyway!

Moreover, if the Senate is opposed to woman suffrage, which it is agreed all around it has a right to be, it doubtless has helped the cause rather than injured it in Georgia by refusing the request noted.

Woman suffrage may not be popular in Georgia—on the contrary, it may be more popular than some folks imagine—but certainly its advocates thus far working in the open are women of extraordinary intelligence and marked conservatism of action.

To deny them a request that would have been granted, readily enough, to the State Democratic executive committee, say, is not particularly convincing in the minds of some people that woman suffrage is either an error or a monstrous wrong.

To be sure, the women may hold their meeting elsewhere, but in view of the fact that all sorts of political meetings have been permitted in the Senate chamber—which is a public place—and all sorts of people permitted to speak therein, in season and out, the needless turning down of a handful of women, desirous of holding a welfare meeting in behalf of their own organization, seems to have been rather out of place, if not absolutely cheap.

The Senate of Georgia before this time, however, has strained at gnats only to swallow camels subsequently. It appears that the present Senate was not loathe to let it be known that it could do that old act itself, if occasion seemed to require the performance.

It is the opinion of a number of people that the Senate's refusal of the request of the women involved was extremely ungracious, to say the least of it!

It should be borne in mind that neither Representative McArthur nor Representative Browning, of the new counties of Wheeler and Bleckley, respectively, were expelled from the House.

Both gentlemen had been sworn in, but that fact did not make them members de jure of the House, necessarily. The constitutionality of their titles to their seats was raised and sustained by the House, and their seats therefore were declared vacant, or, rather, their seats were declared never to have existed.

Both gentlemen are very popular, and are citizens of the very highest integrity and standing. Indeed, as a purely personal matter, the disposition of the House undoubtedly was to seat them. However, the House, after thrashing the matter out exhaustively, decided that the law plainly was against them and very properly it acted accordingly.

Discussing this matter to-day, Representative Hardeman, who made a speech denying the right of the gentlemen to their seats, said: "It is a tribute to the patriotism and genuine worth of the House that it acted as it did in this matter, despite its heavy personal inclination to vote otherwise. My own vote was embarrassing, in a way—I hated to vote against these two splendid men, but I could not afford to do that which I feared would Legislature, and so I voted as I did.

"I think the George House of this year may be depended upon to do the right thing in all matters, judging by the way it acted in this very trying situation."

Close behind the introduction of a bill in the Georgia Senate by Hon. J. L. Sweat, of the Fifth District, Waycross will organize for a determined campaign in favor of extending the State road to the sea, via Waycross.

Right-of-way through Ware has been pledged, and the county convicts will be loaned, if necessary, to the State for the road construction.

Other counties through the Ware County section have agreed to make similar offers, and all will exert themselves to get favorable action by the Legislature.

Governor John M. Slaton's suggestion of a State Highways Commission has met with the hearty approval of the farmers of Floyd County, and they have not been at all slow in making that fact known.

Meetings were held throughout the county Thursday, warmly approving the idea, and the Rome Chamber of Commerce has set the seal of its indorsement upon it.

Howard Ennis, of Baldwin, who defeated former Speaker Pro Tem Carl Vinson for re-election to the present House by the squeaky margin of five votes, has made marked progress in the esteem and respect of his fellow members. Already Ennis of Baldwin is known of everybody, and is most generally approved.

Despite the fact that Ennis defeated Vinson as aforesaid, the two men are the warmest of friends, and may be seen almost any day that Vinson is in Atlanta, arm in arm, and as thick as can be. Both are high-class men.

Representative Barry Wright, of Floyd County, a former member of the House and legislator of experience, has just been re-elected president of the Cherokee Life Insurance Company of Rome.

Mr. Wright is one of the younger members of the present House of Representatives, and is perhaps the very youngest life insurance president in the United States.

D. F. McClatchey, the House reading clerk, not only has a powerful and sonorous voice, but one possessed of marvelous powers of concentration.

In reading a bill for the first or second time Mr. McClatchey frequently condenses pages into paragraphs, and paragraphs into sentences. Sometimes he gets by with a sentence so fast that the audience can not hear it at all!

By condensing things after the manner he does, Mr. McClatchey undoubtedly saves the State thousands of dollars annually in the mere matter of time prevented from going to waste. If McClatchey didn't get over the ground orally as fast as he does the entire time of the House doubtless would be taken up listening to bills read.

Mother's Advice To Her Daughter

A Real Live Doll to Fondle Is Woman's Greatest Happiness.

One of the most important matters about which women concern themselves is their future status as a grandmother. And she is wisdom itself who knows of or learns of that famous remedy, Mother's Friend. This is an external application for the abdominal muscles and breasts. It certainly has a wonderful influence, allays all fear, banishes all pain, is a most grateful encouragement to the young, expectant mother, and permits her to go through the period happy in mind, free in body and thus destined to anticipate woman's greatest happiness as nature intended she should.

The action of Mother's Friend makes the muscles free, pliant and responsive to expansion. Thus all strain and tension upon the nerves and ligaments is avoided, and, in place of a period of discomfort and consequent dread, it is a season of calm repose, and joyful expectation.

There is no nausea, no morning sickness, no nervous twitching, none of that constant strain known to so many women, hence Mother's Friend is really one of the greatest blessings that could be devised.

This splendid and certain remedy can be had of any druggist at $1.00 a bottle, and is sure to prove of inestimable value, not only upon the mother, but upon the health and future of the child. Write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 132 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their book to expectant mothers.

JUDGES CHOSEN FOR SLOGAN CONTEST

Georgian's Prize Offer for Best Button Caption Increases Interest in 500,000 Club.

The Georgian's 500,000 club movement was given a new impetus Thursday when three of the best known men in Atlanta became actively identified with it as judges of the $25 slogan prize contest. They are:

John W. Grant, Wilmer L. Moore and Walter C. Taylor.

"The constant stimulus our newspapers give to the Atlanta spirit is one of the finest things in the city, or any city in the country for that matter," said Mr. Grant. "The 500,000 booster club idea will result in much good, and the census of 1920 will be ample proof of it."

"I want to help the 500,000 club all I can," said Mr. Moore.

"I often think that we don't know how to appreciate Atlanta until we get out of it," said Walter Taylor. "Often when I was in other towns and heard of the things being done in Atlanta, I got as homesick as when I first left home as a boy.

"Every traveling man, every Atlantan who goes away for a trip, as well as all good boosters at home, should wear one of the 500,000 club buttons. You can't calculate the boosting that such a plan will effect."

Since The Georgian offered $25 for the best slogan for the buttons interest has greatly increased in the enterprise to get 500,000 people into Atlanta by 1920.

The contest will last for ten days, the winner of the prize to be announced in Hearst's Sunday American of July 13. All entrants must mail their slogans to the Contest Editor, Atlanta Georgian. They will be transmitted to the judges and merit will decide. The originator of the one selected will be given $25 in cash.

It is an easy way to make $25. It's a chance to render a civic service. Thousands of buttons bearing the slogan will be distributed. A few words penned in an idle moment may speak volumes.

Commodore Palmer Loses Race to Wife

NEW YORK, July 4.—Mrs. Edgar Palmer, wife of Rear Commodore Palmer, of the American Yacht Club, yesterday administered a good beating to her husband—in a yacht race.

Mrs. Palmer, in her own yacht, the Joyette, outsailed and outmaneuvered her husband in a thrilling race, which she won by seventeen seconds.

New Manager for Big Piano Concern

T. C. CALLOWAY

T. C. Calloway, one of the best known retail piano men in the South, has purchased an interest in the Cleveland-Manning Piano Company and has been elected treasurer and general manager of the concern.

Mr. Calloway has been in the piano business for fifteen years and has worked his way up from a small position in Rome. On April 1 he became sales manager of the Cleveland-Manning Company, and after seeing the rapid strides this concern has made in the retail piano field, he purchased stock and was elected to his present position at a meeting of the board of directors.

He has many friends all over the State who will be pleased to learn of his present connection.

BUSINESS IN WOOL IS TAKING ON LIFE

Prices on Free Trade Basis Except for Medium Fleeces—London Auctions Open.

BOSTON, July 4.—More wool has been sold in Boston during the past week, and the market has assumed an appearance of activity lacking for months. Transfers foot up well over 1,500,000 pounds, including territories, fleeces and Texas wools. Prices have been low, keeping the market down practically to a free wool basis on all grades except medium fleeces. Active buying in the West now is largely confined to Montana, where the new clipping season is just getting under way. Other States have been fairly well cleaned up, the best wools having been purchased and the heavier wools consigned. Business in foreign wools remains at a standstill, as manufacturers will not pay the duties in the face of free wool. The London auction sales opened about as expected with American buyers unusually active for the first day.

Receipts of wool in pounds for the week ended and including Wednesday were as follows:

	1913.	1912.
Domestic	4,534,887	8,130,912
Foreign	181,560	3,420,304
Totals	4,716,447	11,551,216

Receipts in pounds from and including January 1, 1913, as compared with the corresponding period of 1912, were as follows:

	1913.	1912.
Domestic	48,564,733	80,539,576
Foreign	41,118,995	72,537,688

The Social World

The Capital City Country Club inaugurated a series of weekly dinner-dances Thursday evening, which assembled a large number of club members and their friends. These informal dinner-dances will be given every Thursday evening, and will form a delightful part of the midsummer entertaining.

The largest dinner party given Thursday evening was that given by Mr. and Mrs. Robert Foster Maddox, their guests including the members of the Pace's Ferry colony. Dinner was served on the porch overlooking the lake, each table being adorned with a vase of vari-colored garden flowers. After dinner, there was dancing.

Among those entertaining parties were Mr. and Mrs. William D. Ellis, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Cliff Hatcher, Mr. and Mrs. John Lamar Meek, Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Hockaday, Mr. and Mrs. F. S. Watson, Messrs. W. R. Prescott, Edward Alfriend, Edward Austin and Lee Harvey.

Others attending the dinner and dance included Misses Jennie D. Harris, Gladys LeVin, Isabel Kuhrt, Miss Almand, Lillian Logan, Mary Hines, Harriet Calhoun, Margaret Grant, Adgate Ellis, Esther Smith, Passie May Ottley, Laura Cowles, Lyda Nash, Caroline Muse, Mr. and Mrs. William Spalding, Mr. and Mrs. William Shallenberger, Mr. and Mrs. Philip Alston, Mr. and Mrs. John Hill, Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dorsey, Mr. and Mrs. William Hawkins, Messrs. Willard McBurney, E. W. Alfriend, Edward Austin, Lee Harvey, Norman Canton, Philip L'Engle, Madison Bell, Charley Ryan, Hugh Adams, Bowie Martin, Cam Dorsey, Edward Barnett, Howell Foreman, Clarke Howell, Stewart Witham, Prince Webster, Eugene Haynes, Dr. Montague Boyd, Carl Fort, Dr. Williams, Turner Carson, Livingston Wright and Julius Jennings.

Children's Party.

Mrs. John N. Goddard gave a Fourth of July party Friday afternoon in honor of her little daughter, Mary. The little guests assembled at the home of the grandparents of little Miss Goddard, Mr. and Mrs. George Andrew Nicolson, on Peachtree Road. Tables, decorated in red, white and blue flowers, with appropriate Fourth of July favors, were placed on the lawn. The hostess wore white lingerie over pink, with pink slippers, stockings and ribbons. Guests included Anne Moore, Helena Callaway, Mary Anne Lipscomb, Katherine Harris, Marian Bryan, Virginia Caverly, Jennie Caverly, Idolene Lewman, Emmie Nixon, Rosalie Gunby, George Gunby, Louise Inman, Sarah Tilt, Mary Cohen, Hortense Adams, Frances Arnold, Laurie Hoke, Myra Boynton, Palmer Atkinson, Edna Horine, Louise Stubbs, Douglas Paine, Mary Cooley, Julia Hill O'Hear, Josephine Clarke, Clayton Callaway, Mark Orme, Doughty Manley, Sarah Hurt, Callie Orme, Isabelle Johnston, Mark Johnston, Clara Kellogg, Dan Conklin, Frank Inman, James Robinson, Jr., James Keenan, Sam Weyman, Phinizy Calhoun, James Calhoun, James T. Southerland, Theodore Smith, Harry Thorn, John White, Colquitt Howard, Victor Hobbs, Douglas Mangham and Sam Mangum.

For Miss Dobbs' Guests.

At her new home in Druid Hills, "Glengarrah," Miss Mildred Dobbs is entertaining at a house party her two cousins, Misses Lois and Ellen Mixon, of Macon, and Misses Annie Kate and Julia Adams, of Atlanta. Master Harry Maxwell, of Trenton, N. J., is expected this week as Master S. C. Dobbs, Jr.'s guest. Several have entertained in honor of these young people, among the affairs being a matinee party and a swimming party at East Lake given by Mrs. John Cooper. Misses Adams entertained Friday afternoon in their honor. Mrs. S. C. Dobbs will entertain forty young people Tuesday.

For Miss Hanson.

Miss Gladys Snook Hanson, who is spending the summer at home with her father and sisters, was tendered a dinner party at the Piedmont Driving Club Thursday evening by Colonel and Mrs. Robert J. Lowry.

Dinner was served on the terrace and the table was elaborately decorated with pink and white gladioli and pink fairy lamps. Covers were laid for twelve. Miss Snook wore white crepe, with a white hat adorned with lavender plumes.

Informal Dance.

Mr. Howard McCall, Jr., was host at a dancing party given Thursday evening at the summer home of his grandfather, Mr. R. W. Tidwell. His cousin, Mr. Reuben Tidwell, of Denver, was the honor guest of the occasion, and a number of young people were entertained. Dancing was enjoyed on the spacious porch, which was festooned with Japanese lanterns and greenery.

Fourth of July Dance.

A Fourth of July dance will be given by the East Lake Country Club Friday evening in compliment to the members. Patriotic decorations will adorn the clubhouse, and the dinner tables will be brightened by red and white flowers.

This dance will not take the place of the regular week-end dance Saturday evening.

For House Party Guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Woods White will entertain at a watermelon cutting Friday evening at their country place, "Woodshack," for Miss Dodo White's house party guests; Misses Helen Dunn, of Lake Providence, La.; Miss Elizabeth Stubbs, of Shreveport, La.; Cleta Slagle, of Clarkes, La., and Alice Jones, of Birmingham.

Lecture on New Education.

Rev. J. B. Spiers, of Richmond, Va., who is a guest of the Misses Burkert, 831 East North Avenue, will lecture Sunday at 3:30 o'clock in Cleveland-Manning Hall, 80 North Pryor Street, on "The New Education."

Miss Jackson to Entertain.

Miss Eula Jackson will entertain a party of twelve young people at a dinner-dance at the Piedmont Driving Club Saturday evening.

PERSONALS

Miss Emily Leonard, of Macon, who has been visiting Mrs. Robert Hemphill for a week, now is with Mrs. George Winship for a few days.

Mrs. Benjamin Wilson Tye and little daughter, Caverly Tye, accompanied by Miss Mary Adelaide Caverly, left Friday for a stay of three weeks at Wrightsville Beach.

Messrs. Robert Stallworth and Thornton Buchanan will motor to Jackson for the dance Friday night given by the Jackson Rifles.

Miss Helen Yauch, of New York, who was entertained as a guest of Mrs. Beaumont Davison for several weeks, has returned home.

LITTLE STORIES of the TOWN

Sneezetown Is Up in Wisconsin.

Here's a story told by a visitor at the Transportation Club the other evening:

The elderly matron with the bundles, who was journeying to a point in Wisconsin and occupied a seat near the middle of the car, had fallen asleep. One the seat in front of her sat a little boy. The brakeman opened the door of the car and called out the name of the station the train was approaching. The elderly lady roused herself with a jerk and inquired hurriedly of the boy:

"Where are we, Bobby?"

"I don't know, grandma," answered the little boy.

"Didn't the brakeman say something just now?"

"No, he just stuck his head inside the door and sneezed."

"Help me with these things, Bobby!" she exclaimed, hurriedly. "This is Oskosh. It's where we get off."

Wouldn't Stand To Have It Filed.

The conversation led to surgical operations and Congressman John H. Small of North Carolina told of the experience of a Southern blacksmith.

The blacksmith sprained his wrist one afternoon, and lost no time in hustling to the office of a physician.

The doctor examined the wrist and then took a small bottle from a shelf, but found it empty.

"James," said he, turning to an assistant, "go upstairs and bring me down a couple of those phials."

"What's tha?" exclaimed the patient, suddenly showing large signs of emotion.

"I was merely asking my assistant to bring me down a couple of phials from upstairs," answered the doctor.

"Piles!" cried the blacksmith, with a look of determination. "No, you don't, Doc! If that hand has got to come off you will use an ax or a saw!"

Real Modesty From Down State.

The only unoccupied room in the hotel—one with a private bath in connection with it—was given to the stranger from the wiregrass. The next morning the clerk was approached by the guest when the latter was ready to check out.

"Well, did you have a good night's rest?" the clerk asked.

"No, I didn't," replied the guest. "The room was all right, and the bed was pretty good, but I couldn't sleep very much, for I was afraid someone would want to take a bath, and the only door to it was through my room."

RECORDER FINES DE LAMATER ON WIFE'S PLEA

Druggist Promises Court He Will Not Molest Estranged Spouse Again—Injunction Pending.

The last twenty-four hours were eventful ones for Ira J. DeLamater, of the DeLamater-Lawrence Drug Company.

Here is what happened to him:

Arrested on the story of his wife, who is suing him for divorce, that he was at her home in an abusive and intoxicated condition.

Locked in the police station for two hours.

Served with a temporary injunction preventing him from molesting or visiting his wife.

Given notice that action has been taken to have him adjudged in contempt of court.

Summoned to appear as defendant in the Recorder's Court Friday morning.

Fined $10.75 by Recorder Broyles for intoxication and disorderly conduct.

Notified that he will have to appear August 16 before Judge L. S. Roan when decision will be made on the permanency of the injunction standing against him and when he will be given opportunity to answer to the contempt charge.

DeLamater was let off with a light fine in the court of Recorder Broyles Friday morning on his promise that he would not seek to see his wife again and would not in any way molest her.

His trial was the sequel of an exciting scene at his wife's residence, 60 Currier Street, Thursday afternoon. He is said to have gone there in an intoxicated condition and uttered threats against her father, City Comptroller J. H. Goldsmith.

Mrs. DeLamater called Policemen Nashburn and Pate. They warned him to leave, and when he disregarded their orders, placed him under arrest. He explained at the police station that he was at his wife's residence only to see his children and to try to effect a reconciliation with Mrs. DeLamater.

Mrs. DeLamater's attorneys, Daley & Chambers, obtained a temporary injunction from Judge L. S. Roan, restraining DeLamater from visiting at her home, and at the same time made application to have him adjudged in contempt of court for his failure to pay the $75 a month temporary alimony which Mrs. DeLamater is said to have been awarded pending the settlement of her divorce suit.

FOREST FIRE PERILS TOWNS.

Head of Navy Yard Makes 'Bossy' Ruling

WASHINGTON, July 4.—The Secretary of the Navy has telegraphed the commandant of the navy yard at Portsmouth, N. H., asking if there is anything in the Constitution to prevent a certain woman's cow from crossing the navy yard to its annual pasturage at Kittery.

Secretary Daniels does not give the name of the woman, but he says she has had the privilege of getting a cow across for about 30 years. He doesn't know why any objection was raised this year and he proposes to find out.

Citizens Win Fight On Fertilizer Plant

CORDELE, July 4.—Because the City Council granted the Empire Cotton Oil Company a permit to erect a fertilizer-mixing plant a short distance from the residence section of Northern Heights more than 50 citizens of that section appeared before that body last night, urging that the permit be revoked.

Council voted to withdraw the permit. It is understood that the company will bring legal proceedings.

Demand for Beer Bottles Increasing

TERRE HAUTE, IND., July 4.—Glass factories here which make more beer bottles than in any other city in the United States report an unprecedented demand in June, one factory shipping 300 carloads to breweries. The usual July shutdown has been waived.

Manufacturers are installing fans, running water, etc., so that blowers may be able to work during the hot weather.

U.S. ASSETS FIXED AT $2,000,000,000

Surplus of $40,083,229 Wiped Out by Canal Expenditures. $275,000 in Reserve.

WASHINGTON, July 4.—Uncle Sam closed the fiscal year 1913 with a surplus of $40,083,229, a gain of $3,750,000. Panama Canal expenditures and public debt transactions, however, wiped out this surplus and created a deficit of $2,449,000.

Total receipts were $723,782,921, and ordinary disbursements $683,699,692. Corporation taxes yielded the Government $34,948,870. Custom receipts reached $318,142,000, an increase of nearly $7,000,000.

The Government spent $41,741,000 on the Panama Canal, making a total of $318,229,000 spent to date.

Secretary McAdoo to-night announced that the daily treasury statement in future would be issued in a completely changed form, designed to show at a glance the assets and liabilities of the Government.

The first statement will show, the Secretary said, that the grand total of assets of the Government is nearly $2,000,000,000, against which there are liabilities including the gold and silver certificates aggregating about $1,725,000,000, leaving a balance in the treasury of from $350,000,000 to $275,000, including the gold reserve of $150,000,000.

Skirts at Savings

Woolen skirts and white washable skirts, both values that will commend themselves to the woman with a sense of economy, but who at the same time does not lose sight of style points. However, there are not more than thirty of the woolen skirts to be distributed at this price, certainly not enough to last out the half-day. So the cool of the morning will be the best time to visit the Ready-to-Wear Department.

$1.50 For $5.00 Woolen Skirts

The materials are Scotch mixtures in brown, and black-and-white effects, and a soft tan-and-white striped fabric. Splendidly tailored, of graceful lines, with two little tailored straps in front. High waist line. $1.50 does not pay for the material!

69c For $1.00 Washable Skirts

Of a smoothly finished white linene—that will make many successful trips to the laundry. Four-piece skirts, broad tuck in back, closes side front with large pearl buttons, patch pocket at right side. Indeed an unusual value at $1.00, now 69c.

50c & 75c Brassieres 29c

For a busy half-day! A likely lot of brassieres that were 50c and 75c (because they were—and are—worth those prices) now 29c. Choose from several styles of embroidery and lace trimmings—all neat; all of fine cambric.

THE GEORGIAN'S MAGAZINE PAGE

Revenge Is Sweet

"BELINDA," said the brother of that good woman, looking up from his magazine, "if you sigh like that again I shall leave home. What do you find in those price lists to distress you so painfully?"

"I was trying to select enough plants and shrubs to embellish a three-acre lot and provide a succession of blooms during the summer," she replied. "I must choose only varieties that need very little cultivation and scarcely any watering and will be somewhat out of the ordinary and will cost not more than $10. After working on the problem all morning I'm convinced that it's impossible."

"What is it, a prize contest for some horticultural society?"

"No, of course not; I'm acting as a committee of one appointed by the Village Improvement Society to 'landscape garden' the public square."

"Indeed! And with the munificent sum of $10? Why is the Village Improvement Society so reckless with its funds?"

"You know very well, Ben, that in such a little village there isn't much money to spend, and the society is quite generous.

Her Scheme.

"I was invited to attend the meeting yesterday," she explained, "and offer suggestions about the planting of the square. When I finished speaking it was unanimously voted that $5 be expended on the work."

"I thought you said $10 a minute ago."

"Well, I didn't like to dampen their enthusiasm by explaining that $5 was hardly a drop in the bucket, so I told them that you and I would be glad if they would let us add another five."

"How thoughtful of you! Thank you for my share in it. I suppose they agreed?"

"Yes, and I naturally wish to do the best I can. But the society is so particular that it makes things rather difficult. Mrs. Hart says the odor of peonies makes her husband ill, and as his feed store opens upon the square that settles the peonies. Mrs. Bell can't endure flowering almond because she associates it with lonely days on her old farm. As she is the president of the society, that's reason enough for not having flowering almond. Gladys Smith thinks we should make a feature of the most expensive hydrangeas grown. She saw them while she was away at school. Miss Hitty Watkins considers lilacs dreadfully common, and they don't bloom for several years. 'Immediate results!' is the cry of the whole society.

"However, I persuaded them to buy some annuals for this year's flowers, for it's too late now to plant seeds, and to spend most of the appropriation on permanent shrubbery. It's my business to make that $10 cover my plans. Ben, will you please see if my addition is correct while I search for a better bargain in hydrangeas and weigelas? I want to get the order off on the afternoon mail."

While one was engrossed with the catalogues and the other with the auditing a shiftless figure slouched across the lawn and leaned against the porch railing. He made his presence known by an apologetic clearing of the throat.

"Hello, Mike," said Ben. "Going fishing?"

"No; I came out here on business for the improvement society. I got a bill for Miss Belinda."

"For me?" exclaimed she, astonished.

"Why, yes. You see, I ain't never been paid for the work I done last summer on the square. Them women hired me to keep it in order and I kep' the paper and trash picked up and cut the grass real often and I pulled up them house plants they set out there that died, and I ain't never been paid. I heard that you was in charge of the square now, so I come over to get my money."

"But," protested Miss Belinda, with some warmth, "I had nothing at all to do with last year's affairs."

"No, I know that, but I went to see Mrs. Bell and she and Hitty Watkins put their O. K. on my bill, so I come on over here to get my pay, just as they said."

Miss Belinda looked appealingly at her brother. He took the note too clean slip of paper in his hand.

"I think there's nothing for it but to pay," he said, laughing. "It's only $7."

"Seven dollars!" echoed Miss Belinda. "I don't see how you can laugh, Ben. It isn't funny—it's tragic."

Funny.

When Mike, with the money in his pocket, turned his back on the brother and sister, Ben said: "It is funny, Belinda. It is positively side-splittin'." Miss Belinda had to laugh.

"And now what about your plans?" her brother asked.

"I shall buy as many hydrangeas as I can with the miserable $3 and take peonies, flowering almond and lilacs out of my own garden to make up the deficit."

"Revenge is sweet. I wonder what would have happened to Mike's bill if you hadn't added our $5 to the society's appropriation?"

All Beach.

Wilfrid was sitting on his father's knee, watching his mother arrange her hair.

"Papa hasn't any waves like that," said the father, laughing.

Wilfrid, looking up at his father's bald pate, replied:

"No; no waves; it's all beach."

The GHOST BREAKER

By C. W. GODDARD and PAUL DICKEY

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

The scene of the story is laid in the Vanderlip Hotel, New York City. The Princess Maria Theresa of Segura, a beautiful Spanish woman, is suddenly awakened in her suite by the sound of pistol shots. She hears a man running down the hall. He crashes against her door, breaking the lock, and enters. She sees he is a tall, good-looking young man, dressed in evening clothes. He is carrying a revolver in his right hand, and blood is dripping from a wound in his left. He begs the Princess to hide him. She, moved by some indescribable impulse, decides that she will. She directs him to an inner room, and a few minutes later, when the hotel detective knocks on the door, she tells him she is all right and sends him away. The young man, who is Warren Jarvis, of Kentucky, comes out of his hiding place, and the Princess, for the first time, notices his wound. She is moved to sympathy and showers him with questions as to what has occurred. Jarvis tells her about a Kentucky feud between his family and another named Markham. He says he left Kentucky to avoid the feudists, but encountered one of them in the hotel, which explains the shots.

Now go on with the story.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"It's all right," said Jarvis, with a little sigh of relief. "But how am I going to get out of here?"

His liege lady smiled a little sarcastic smile.

"Resourceful man! I thought of a plan long ago—the trunk." And she indicated a capacious traveling van at the foot of the bed.

"The trunk?" he echoed, blankly. "What about it?"

"Well, you are stupid," decided the Princess. "I am sending it on the steamer at 6 o'clock."

A light of understanding but distinctly not of joy leaped to Jarvis' eyes.

"You mean to get in it?"—Good Lord!—Is it big enough?"

He walked—stood over it dubiously a moment and threw back the lid.

The Plan.

"I think so," said the princess. "And no one could possibly suspect. Take out those trays."

"Sure it's big enough," conceded Warren doubtfully, as they leaned over the interior, "but what about these?"

Something fell and tinkled on the brass work.

"Oh!" exclaimed Dona Maria. He picked it up and held it out to her, examining it curiously.

"It's nothing," she assured him hastily, regaining possession. "I mean—it's all right—it's just a locket."

"Did I break it?"

"Oh, no—I broke it myself—on purpose—yesterday," she explained, somewhat confusedly. Then, when she had concealed it once more in the fold of her gown, she went on gravely. "It means a great deal to me—and, perhaps, to you. I crossed the ocean for that locket. Some day you may know the reason why."

Before he could make any comment she returned briskly to the matter in hand.

"We had better send these," she suggested, indicating the trays.

"Hold on—I've got it!" he exclaimed suddenly, then stopped. "No—you better phone. Ask the operator to give you the Hotel Belwood, across the street—my room is 417. Rusty, my servant, is there now, waiting for word from me." The Princess frowned and shook her head. "He can be trusted," he assured her. "Tell him to come here at once; and just say 'Warren'—that'll fetch him."

The Princess hesitated a moment as if still in doubt, but his confidence reassured her and she went to the telephone and got the connection.

"Ask if it's Rusty, and be sure to say 'Warren,'" he cautioned her in a hoarse whisper. The Princess nodded.

"Hello—is this—Mr. Rusty?" Jarvis grinned in the background at the title. "Well, listen carefully—you are to come right over to the Vanderlip Hotel, across the street from where you are. A bell-boy will be waiting for you at the desk and he is to bring you right up to Room 1121——"

"And keep his mouth shut," interrupted Jarvis.

"And—and don't talk to anyone," translated the Princess. "What's that——? There was a pause and she put her lips close to the mouthpiece. "Warren," she said, waited a moment, and hung up the receiver.

"He's coming right over."

Jarvis chuckled exultantly. "Now, get the desk and tell them to look out for Rusty, and also tell them to send up some wrapping paper and twine."

When Dona Marie had communicated her instructions to the desk she returned to find her cavalier, coat and overcoat thrown aside, inside the trunk cutting at the tough leather with a pocketknife.

"Got to breathe," he explained between pants. Swearing a little under his breath he threw his weight onto the knife, and the blade snapped, gashing his finger.

"Oh, what did you do?" she exclaimed with solicitation that was extremely gratifying to the knight.

"Snapped the blade," he growled, eying the bleeding cut with disgust.

"But you hurt your hand—your injured hand!"

He tried to belittle it and looked hopelessly around for another engineering tool; but Dona Maria insisted on examining the wound and bathing with alcohol and wrapping it up.

"Now, how am I going to cut a hole in that trunk? he wondered while these ministrations were in progress. Dona Maria looked about the room also.

"My shears," she suggested, suddenly.

"If they're not too light. Let's see."

"Come back here," she ordered, holding onto his hand. "It's not tied yet."

He laughed and looked down at her mischievously. "Do you know—I'm beginning to like this job already?"

The hand was instantly released and the work of making an air-hole resumed.

"What time does the boat sail?" he inquired after certain grunts of satisfaction announced success.

"Nine o'clock."

"Good!" he grunted, stabbing savagely with the shears. "That will give Rusty time to get on board with these trays and my baggage."

He toiled a few minutes more in silence, Dona Maria watching him and throwing occasional anxious glances at the clock.

"We've ten minutes before they call for the trunk," she said, at last. Jarvis raised his head to reply, when there came a knock at the door. Swiftly and silently he got out of the trunk and slipped behind the portieres that cut off the alcove, as the Princess opened the door and received Rusty and his brass-buttoned escort, who also delivered the wrapping paper and twine, and withdrew.

Rusty stood in stolid silence until the boy had disappeared, and Dona Maria invited him in and bolted the door behind him.

He was a gray-haired darky of heavy and important mien, whose architecture followed in a general way the liberal cylindrical design of New York's new courthouse. His system of locomotion was full of strange and unexpected eccentrics, and his efforts to reach a given point, however near, were always accompanied by truly distressing wheezing and groaning which deceived every one but his master. His besetting sin was an earnest devotion to the principle of repose, and his crown of glory a blind, unwavering, idolatrous loyalty to his master.

"Rusty's heart is all right," Jarvis used to say, "but it is so heavily surrounded by fat that it has some difficulty in expressing itself."

The bellboy had walked him somewhat hurriedly down the hall, and this unwonted activity, combined with real uneasiness over the possible predicament of his master, caused alarming sounds to arise from the cavernous depths of his heaving chest. Before he could spare a few cubic inches of breath for inquiry Jarvis stepped back into the room.

The Escape.

"Lor' bless you, Marse Warren!" he gasped, holding up his arms and rolling his eyes in token of thanksgiving. "I sert'nly thought you all——"

"Never mind what you thought," interrupted Jarvis in brisk tones, "Take these," and he pointed to the trays, "with our baggage to the steamship Lusitania, of the Cunard line—buy accommodations. Mind, you won't see me till after we get out to sea. Keep in your stateroom and sit tight until you hear from me. Understand?"

As promptly as if it were an every-day occurrence, Rusty had fallen to work on the trays, and, by a change in his manner of puffing, indicated that he was following the rest of the instructions.

"I'll give you the money," went on Jarvis, "and the clerk at our hotel will attend to everything and get the tickets. Then you pay the bill. No; get hold of this."

Rusty took the wallet his master held out without a word and went busily back to the trays again.

"Let me help," offered Dona Maria.

"No, we can manage it, I guess," said Jarvis easily, smiling at the uproar that emanated from his servant. Who was forced to stop over the work. "This is Rusty. Rusty, this is the Princess of Aragon."

Rusty eagerly straightened and turned with a profound bow.

"Yas, sah,' he grinned. "How do, Mrs. Princess Ah—ah-go-on."

Jarvis pressed his lips togther to suppress a giggle.

"I said Aragon," he corrected gravely.

"Yas, sah," was the aggrieved reply. "That's what I said—Ah-go-on."

"I guess you'll have to let it go at that," smiled Jarvis. "There—that's all right, Rusty. Now, you understand everything, do you?"

"Yas, sah," Rusty assured him, picking up the bundles. "I take eve'ything to th' steamboat—git acom—acom——"

"Accommodations."

The Last Moments.

The darkey nodded brightly. "I knows what you means—fer us an' Mrs. Princess ah——"

"No, no," snapped Jarvis, impatiently. "Not for the Princess—just for us two."

"Oh, yas, sah. I unnastin' puffectly."

"All right." Jarvis pushed him toward the door. "Now, get a move on you and don't miss the boat. Remember the name of the line?"

Rusty put his head on one side and thought for an instant, and then showed a yard of teeth.

"Yas, sah, the—the Coon-ard Line."

The instant the door was locked behind him Jarvis returned to his work at the trunk. He had just succeeded in making a small hole when the time was up.

"Make another," urged Dona Maria.

He shook his head decidedly. "Haven't time. I'll widen this one a little." He rested both hands on the side and looked up at her soberly. "Remember this trunk must not go into the hold of the ship. Have it marked 'Wanted on Voyage,' and 'This End Up.' I'll lie with my head in this direction."

"I'll remember," she promised earnestly; "now let me get you a pillow."

Heavy folds of her clothing padded the bottom and he arranged the pillow for his head. Then he sat in the trunk and looked very serious.

"Before I get into this coffin," he said, "there are one or two things I should like to know. How do you know that you can trust me?"

"I don't," she replied instantly; "I'll have to take that chance."

He winced a little.

"But you must have a pretty good reason," he insisted.

"I have," was the cool response.

"Well—what about the ghosts?"

"Pardon me, Mr. Warren, but so far your credentials do not warrant further confidence."

Repulsed in the direct attack, the young man was silent a few moments. So was the young woman. Then he essayed a flank movement.

"You are Spanish—yet you speak with no accent," he charged.

"I was educated in England."

Another pause and another attempt.

"Are you really—a sure-enough princess?"

A certain wintriness apeared in the soft, dark eyes that looked down into his.

"Why do you say that?"

"Oh—I—don't know," he stammered, uncertainly. "I—somehow—you aren't quite like what I thought a princess would be."

"I'm sorry," she remarked, coldly.

"Oh, I didn't mean it that way," he hastened to protest, feeling that he was making next to no headway. "I mean that you're different from the popular idea of a princess. You have more—more—understanding," he floundered, but the wintriness did not vanish, "more—more—sympathy—more heart——"

"In that respect," cut in Dona Maria, swiftly, "you will find me quite a conventional princess."

The House Detective.

The knight immediately began a painfully careful examination of the hole through which he must breathe for several hours and thus he did not notice that the Princess colored slightly and the winter in her eyes gave way momentarily to spring. He was grateful that he had the hole in the leather to examine during the painful silence.

"I wonder"—he cleared his throat, and began again—"I wonder if this opening will let in enough air."

"I hope so," said the Princess, and he had to look up at her face to make sure that she was not as indifferent as the tone of her voice indicated. What he saw evidently reassured him, for his embarrassment vanished.

"I'll put the shears in here," he remarked cheerily, "and if it gets too stuffy I can cut another hole from the inside."

There was a knock at the door. Both started, and Jarvis noiselessly coiled himself into his cage.

"It must be the man for the trunk, she whispered. Then she called. "Just a minute, please."

He let the lid down a little way and she bent over him.

"Remember," he whispered earnestly, "this must not go into the hold of the ship. You must have it marked 'Wanted,' and 'This Side Up.' You might add 'With Care' if you've a mind to," he added with a wry smile, and he cautiously let the lid down.

"Are you all right?" she whispered, her hand on the lock.

"If they don't lose the trunk," came in a muffled voice from within.

To Be Continued Monday.

"How am I going to get out of here?" said Jarvis.

JARVIS GETS READY TO FLEE

.:. "Too Nintimate" .:.

By WINIFRED BLACK.

THEY'VE quarreled, the two "nintimate friends.

No, I don't mean "intimate," I mean "nintimate"—that's what they call each other. One's ten and one's nine, and they've been playing dolls together for weeks.

I told Ten-year-old that she had better play with someone else for a while.

"You and Nine-year-old will quarrel as sure as fate," said Ir, oh, so wisely.

"Quarrel, my 'nintimate' friend and I?" cried Ten-year-old in horror. Oh, how could we ever do such a thing? Why, she's the sweetest girl in the world. I wish my hair was the color of hers and my eyes, too, so we could wear the same colored ribbons, and oh, can't we both have linen hats, the same shade anyhow?"

So they had linen hats the same shade, and the new kind of heelless shoes the same shape, and Brown Eyes tied on a pink ribbon and so Blue Eyes had to tie on a pink ribbon, too.

But now they've quarreled, quarreled badly. It began over the dolls. Nine-year-old wanted the dolls to go to school and say their seven times, and Ten-year-old wanted to send them to the mountains or to the seashore or somewhere.

"Isn't it bad enough to say our own old ten times and eight times over and over," said Ten-year-old, "without making per-f-e-c-t slaves of the poor, darling dolls?"

"I'm not a slave," said Nine-year-old, "and I'd thank you not to call me one."

"Why," said Ten-year-old, "I didn't, I said"——

"I know what you said," said Nine-year-old, "I can hear all right"—— only she said "hyear."

"Well, then," cried Ten-year-old, "why don't you talk all right." F-t-t-t—the trouble began right then—dolls went home—ribbons came off—hats were thrown in the closet—out of the hated sight. "I'll never play with her again," sobbed Ten-year-old.

"I hate the sight of her," quavered Nine-year-old, and so the day was clouded.

What mattered how gayly the sun shone, what mattered how sweetly the flowering bush at the back gate beckoned—who cared what the robin tried to say. Gone—to smithereens—one long, happy, happy day. Gone never to come back again—alas, alas, what a sinful waste, and all because the "nintimate friends" were just a shade too "nintimate," that's all.

The young couple next door—how dead in love they are; she walks to the corner every night to meet him, and he turns around three or four times to wave her good-bye in the mornings. And the other night, when one of his old friends dropped in for a pleasant evening, she pouted; I could see it by the very turn of her shoulders.

She didn't want a soul around but him. And Sunday, when her sister came over after church, he went upstairs and sulked. I could see his shadow on the blind.

They won't admit now that there is any gulf at all, oh, no. They're one, you know; didn't they say so before the parson and all the church full of smiling friends. One—which one I wonder?

Will she give up her individuality—the one thing that called him to her—or will he be just an echo of her.

One! Which one? I always wonder. How much better it is when you get to understand that two human beings mean two every time and not one at all; the man is a man, not a copy of a woman, and the woman is a woman, not an echo of the man; each must live his and her own separate life, and the sooner they begin to do it the sooner they'll be happy.

"And then where did you go?" says the young wife when Husband is a few minutes late to dinner.

Young Husband's brow clouds. After all, must he be watched like a criminal. "Oh, then I came home," he says, and doesn't tell the young wife that he stopped to chat with old Billie from Yale a minute or so, and the next day the young wife meets old Billie from Yale and he says: "Had a fine talk with Jimmie yesterday,"—and there's trouble in store for husband when he gets home that night.

"Too nintimate," that's all, "too nintimate," that's actually all that's the matter!

Your husband's heart is yours, not his brain and his soul, too. Your wife is faithful, loving, devoted, that's enough fou you to know, young man. Don't be too "nintimate" either of you—or you "won't speak" before six months is gone. Oh, yes, it's a pretty fiction, "two hearts that beat as one, two souls with but a single thought," etc.—a pretty fiction—thank goodness, it isn't a bit true. What a bore it would be to live with a twin, wouldn't it?

Do You Know That—

James Morris, who has been chauffeur to Cardinal Bourne since the latter was presented with a motor car some years ago, and who had previously been coachman to Cardinal Vaughan, has retired. It is Morris' boast that he has safely driven nine princes of the church in the motor car, which he has piloted 18,000 miles "without ever getting the Cardinal into trouble with the police for exceeding the speed limit." Cardinal Bourne has presented him with an autographed portrait of himself.

The languages and dialects into which the Bible is translated now number 450. The British and Foreign Bible Society's issues of copies of the Scriptures now reach the huge total of 7,899,562, made up of 936,346 Bibles, 1,269,919 New Testaments and 5,696,297 smaller portions. In China last year, for every two English books the society sold it disposed of three in Chinese—the bulk of these being single gospels.

Haste Quite Unnecessary.

The evening was damp and cold and foggy, and the Rev. Candy Macgregor, while walking absent-mindedly along the street, fell heavily into a deep hole which had been made by order of the local sanitary authorities.

For a long while the Rev. Sandy struggled to escape. Then despairingly he began to shout for help. A passing laborer heard his cries, and, looking down into the hole, asked who was there.

The minister informed him, but in return received only meager comfort.

"Weel, weel," said the laborer, "ye needa kick up sic' a noise. You'll no' be needed afore the Sawbath, and this is only Wednesday nicht!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Deep Breathing Lessons from Miss Zoe Barnett

Miss Zoe Barnett.

By LILIAN LAUFERTY.

"HAVE you ever watched a fish breathe?" asked dark-eyed Zoe Barnett, of Lew Field's "All Aboard" company. "No, I'm not bringing the role of comedienne into this interview; I am about to tell you the greatest beauty secret I know. A fish breathes visibly—you can see its little sides expand and contract as it breathes deeply and all over its body. But most women breathe either in the top of their lungs or expand their diaphragms as much as their stiff corsets will let them. Now, I wear corsets of 'Grecian tricot'—or webbing—and those corsets breathe with me."

We were sitting in Miss Barnett's own cool-shadowed room, and the grateful breeze that fluttered the curtains had not seemed a possible thing down on the sidewalks below. My hostess was wearing a fascinating pink kimono—just the pink to bring a flush to the clear olive of her cheeks; pink "mules" peeped daintily out, and her head was bound in a scarf of soft pink silk with a big pink bow drooping in graceful lines just at the base of a left ear that fitted in with the color scheme of sea-shell pink. A very witching negligee for a midsummer day. Try it with the finishing touch of surah silk sash and see, little sisters.

"Now, I will give you a little exhibition of proper breathing, and then you would probably like a little sermon on just what it does for you," went on Miss Barnett, making the interviewer's lot an easy one, indeed.

An Exhibition.

"Please put your hands here on my ribs and feel them press out and out till they are fully expanded by my full lungs and till my chest is pushed way up by those same lungs, and all the hollows in throat and neck are padded out and filled by the splendid clean air I am drawing up from my diaphragm. That is deep breathing.

"Deep breathing helps you have a figure that is slender yet round. It banishes hollows and unupholstered bones, and it helps the skin throw off impurities and keep white and fine of texture. It lets you have a clear voice, with plenty of reserve power and strength back of it. Try it at an open window twenty times each morning—increase your twenty to thirty—to fifty—breathe deeply whenever you are outdoors—and finally grow into the habit of breathing deeply all the time.

"Do you know, when I feel a little headache starting or find an attack of indigestion imminent, I rush to the open window and breathe deeper and deeper until that internal application of fresh air clears my system and wards off the threatened attack."

"Do you aid and abet your deep-breathing measure by some sensible dietary laws?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, the food supply is first aid to the air supply," said the girl who adds so much wholesome sanity to the more scintillant charm of her delightful personality. "I eat only two meals a day. I find that I can sing over a sore throat—even an ulcerated one—but my voice will not make music over an overworked and protesting stomach. Overeating seems to be a more general complaint than starvation in our land of too plenty."

Choosing Costumes.

"And to your theory of unlimited fresh aid and limited food supply you add a bit of originality in choosing costumes, don't you?"

"A good bit," was the answer. "I loathe putting myself into clothes that some one else has designed for me. I don't feel quite free to be myself unless everything about me is me and expresses me. I like my clothes to be one form of my self-expression, and I think it is worth while bringing earnest study to the understanding of your own type. But if a woman lacks that great essential taste, she can do one great thing toward being well dressed—she can attend to the details of her costume. Never wear a bedraggled petticoat or go about in run-down heels, for if every little detail is neat and in good taste, even the simplest costume looks attractive and dainty."

And in the fine glow of an independent spirit that dares preach because it practices, Miss Barnett concluded: "Work hard at deep breathing and at deep feeling and thinking and trying, and then you'll be a success at being a woman and a worker, and a beauty, too, maybe!"

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

THE continued demand made upon the time of Mrs. Lysander John Appleton and her daughter, Daysey Mayme, to reform the world has proved a blessing to Lysander John, leaving him uninterrupted opportunity for research work.

"I feel," he said calling the two fat pillow cushions to order, "as if my hands were being uplifted and strengthened by unseen forces; as though I, too, a mere man, have a hand in the progress of the world."

He paused. The two fat pillow cushions looked at him with such blank expressions he realized that they had reached the highest degree of culture. It meant so much to be understood, and they understood him!

"As a result of a week's deep study, and untiring poring over old manuscripts, I have found that the following problems of life remain unanswered. I open my hand, as it were, and fling them broadcast to my sex for solution. Let them come nobly forward and take this share of the world's work on their shoulders!

"Let them, I say, relieve our poor struggling mothers, wives, daughters and sisters of some of the burden of exploration of the unseen that now rests with them.

"First, I would ask: Which is preferable to sleep with—A baby, or one of those insects the commonplace call a bedbug, but which we, who are more temperamental, know as a crimson rambler?

"A woman will leave guests at the table, or her husband on his deathbed, to run to the window to see the fire engine go by, but would she run if in the midst of a marriage proposal?

"Does a wooden-legged man take his wooden leg to bed with him?

"Is there more reason for a man to be grateful to his wife for cooking a steak well than there is for her to be grateful because he bought it?

"If it is true that the spirits of our ancestors are constantly flying around us, are our women ancestors up in the air all the time because of indignation over the scraps wasted that would make quilts and rag carpets?

"Who is the more wasteful: The boy who cuts up pumpkins for Jack lanterns or the woman who makes them into very poor pies?"

He paused to give his next question impression and weight. It was a problem older than the world itself, and no one has ever solved it.

"On whose head," he asked—then he paused to scratch his head after the manner of those who are deep thinkers—"On whose head did a certain pair of insects travel on that famous journey in the ark?"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

BY YOUR ACTIONS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19 and in love with a man one year my senior. He loves me also. He has two sisters who are jealous of me and they are always telling him falsehoods about me, some of which he believes. What shall I do to prove that these things are not true? BILLIE G.

If you will conduct yourself in a way with which the most carping critic could find no fault, his sisters' charges will fall flat to the ground. Always remember that time has never weakened the force of that saying, "Actions speak louder than words."

If his love is worth the keeping he will have no doubt of your worth.

YOU DON'T LOVE HER.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 25 and dearly in love with a girl one year my junior who says she loves me. While at a party late one evening she fell asleep and started to walk in her sleep. I have heard since that she walks in her sleep quite often. Do you think we could live happily together, or should I give this girl up? WORRIED.

If you loved her, such a trivial failing would appeal to your sense of protection. Not for a moment would you consider giving her up.

Are you quite sure, young man, that you have no failings more undesirable than sleep walking? If this is the only fault she has she deserves a particularly worthy man.

Household Suggestions

A bright, glossy head of hair, easily kept in curl, may be obtained by dissolving in a pint of boiling water a small square of camphor and a tablespoonful of powdered borax. Into this liquid the brush must be dipped several times whenever the hair is brushed.

A soft piece of linen dipped in milk and bound round a rheumatic joint will often cure a most obstinate case of rheumatism. The linen should be covered with a piece of oiled silk and dipped again in the milk when dry.

The marks of matches struck on walls may be cleaned by applying the cut side of a lemon. Then rub the place with whiting, and lastly scrub with soapy water.

To prevent flies settling on pictures or windows, pour boiling water over an onion. When the water is cold use it for washing over the glass.

An invaluable cure for sore eyes is a little boracic powder dissolved in warm water. When cold bathe the eyes two or three times a day.

Soft hair bristles can be made stiff and firm by dipping them in a pennyworth of alum dissolved in sufficient hot water for washing the brush.

When frying fish, dip it in milk instead of egg before rolling in breadcrumbs. This is more economical and tastes better.

Tie a piece of lemon on a corn every night for five nights and it will generally cause it to drop out.

The Mistakes of Jennie

By HAL COFFMAN

Being a Series of Chapters in the Life of a Southern Girl in the Big City

"He is Mine!"

Chapter 15.

WHEN Jennie saw her former girl friend at the office next morning the girl scowled at her, and when she got a chance hissed in Jennie's ear: "I'll get even with you if it's the last thing in the world I ever do."

Poor little Jennie wanted to tell her that it was not her fault that the girl's fellow acted so the night before and wanted Jennie instead of the girl. But she would not listen to Jennie, only to swear at her and call her a little trouble maker.

Jennie could do nothing but think about it all day, and received a severe "call down" from the boss in which he said he had noticed for several days past that her mind had not been on her work, and that she would have to pay stricter attention or he would have to get some one that would.

Jennie noticed several times during the day that the tears were streaming down the girl's cheeks as she bent over her work. So after work Jennie waited outside and wanted to explain to the girl that it was not her fault the way the fellow acted.

The girl backed away from her and said: "You little fool, don't you know he is all I have in the world, and if I lose him I will have to 'walk the streets' for I can't and won't TRY to live on the money I get in the office. I was a fool in the first place to let him see you—for he is MINE! MINE! I tell you, and you—you little fool, let him alone!" Jennie tried to explain, but the girl flounced away cursing her.

The Case of Alfred

THE middle-aged woman with the youthful hat sank into the car seat with a sigh of relief. "My, but I got tired waiting on that corner!" she said to her companion. "I hate this standing around waiting for street cars when there might just as well have been an automobile in the family! As I was saying to my husband this morning, it does beat all that after you slave and plan all your life for your children things never turn out as you want them to!"

"That's so," agreed the woman in the shade too bright heliotrope suit. "They just do as they please!"

"Not that Lizzie is not a good daughter," went on the middle-aged woman. "It's just that you can't tell about men. They can be the blindest, most exasperating, contrary creatures! As I was saying to my husband when he took Alfred Quam for a partner, who on earth would have dreamed that such a boyish, pleasant fellow could have such a will of his own and be so absolutely deaf to the call of what are really his own interests?

"He has money, you know, and as his folks did not live here I made up my mind that it was my duty to be kind of motherly to him," explained the middle-aged woman. "I think there is nothing so pathetic as a nice young man away from home and a prey to every designing creature who sets her eyes on him, especially when he is a good-looking young man like Alfred."

"I thought," said the other woman, "that he and Lizzie——"

"I don't believe in trying to make matches," said the middle-aged woman, firmly. "I wouldn't dream of interfering with fate! Lizzie may be 26, but she doesn't look it, and anyone with taste would realize how good-looking she is—in a quiet way, of course. I don't think it is refined to have the sort of looks that attract attention, Mrs. Garver, indeed I don't!

"The first night that I had Alfred Quam to a good home-cooked dinner I let Lizzie stir up the French dressing and stuff the baked potatoes, and if I happened to mention that she got the dinner I can't see that there was any necessity of my explaining just what part of it she got. Alfred always was glad to get an invitation to dinner. Afterward I had Lizzie show him her book of photographs. There's nothing like letting young people get acquainted.

"Anyhow, Alfred Quam might have considered himself in luck to get a nice girl like my Lizzie—not but that she could have her pick of far better than he! There's no telling what a man will like—and to think that he should toss his head over that silly, giggling Georgie MacPrang, who grew so fond of Lizzie all of a sudden on the evenings she found that Alfred was coming! Lizzie is so unsuspicious that she seemed glad to have Georgie come and make eyes at Alfred till I put a stop to it. I guess I wasn't going to have Lizzie beaten on hero wn ground.

"When he got his runabout I mentioned that Lizzie was perfectly crazy over autos and that the fresh air was so good for health. He took her out several times when I invited him to come early for dinner, so they could get a ride afterward, but it wasn't a month before that Georgie MacFrang was driving the runabout with her own hands and smiling condescendingly when she passed our house!

"You don't know what I suffered at the hands of that Georgie MacPrang, Mrs. Garver! I'd ask Alfred out for a nice little family game of cards and he'd have an engagement and the next day Georgie would drop in and tell what a fine time she and Alfred had at the theater the night before.

"He was perfectly nice to Lizzie and if she dropped into the coal office near closing time, as it was perfectly natural for her to do, since it was her father's office, Alfred would usually bring her home. 'Don't push yourself,' I told Lizzie. 'Only don't be backward about showing him that he's popular with you! That flatters a man—having him think you like him and are too modest to show it!'

"Just as I had arranged to have Alfred take his summer vacation at the same time we did and be our guest at the cottage we were going to rent, in comes that Georgie MacPrang with a solitaire as big as a paving stone, all smiles and applied blushes and throws herself on Lizzie's neck and says she must tell her first because it was through her that she and Alfred found each other.

"Isn't that enough to make a woman give up in despair, Mrs. Garver? Not that I'd have dreamed of trying to force Alfred or Lizzie in each other's direction—not me—but being a junior partner and, of course, what's her father's will be Lizzie's some day, and then Alfred would have had it all—and his nice automobile and he is so good looking—and to think that that silly Georgie's MacPrang——"

"Maybe something will happen," said her friend, comfortably. "Lizzie may yet be glad she didn't get him——"

"My goodness!" said the middle-aged woman emphatically. "Why, my Lizzie wouldn't have had Alfred Quam, not if he'd begged her on his knees."

COMPLICATION OF WOMAN'S ILLS

Yields to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Athens, Texas.—"I had a complication of diseases, some of them of long standing. I wrote to you for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and some other things that you suggested. I must confess that I am much better in every way and have been relieved of some of the worst troubles. My neighbors say I look younger now than I did fifteen years ago."—Mrs. Sarah R. Whatley, Athens, Texas, R. F. D. No. 3, Box 92.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many of them state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

If you want special advice, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

How Strict Are You with Your Daughter?

—answer it, parents. Are you too strict, or aren't you strict enough? Either course is liable to be disastrous. Your daughter's welfare means as much to you as anything else in the world, yet do you know what to watch in bringing her up.

There are few men who know the problem as Judge Freschi does. For years a magistrate in the City of New York, his work has brought him into personal contact with thousands of girls and their stories. He has had an opportunity to analyze the causes of their failure. His name has become known throughout the country as their benefactor.

The angle from which he discusses the diverse elements that enter into the upbringing of the girl is a new one that you probably have never thought of. As a thoughtful mother or father you ought to read what he says in his article, "How Strict Are You with Your Daughter?" It appears in the

CONFIDENCE MEN SHOW TARHEEL EASY MONEY

He Goes Home From New York for More Funds and There Learns Something More.

NEW YORK, July 4.—During all the many years that Edward Lee Baxter Davidson had been living in the progressive town of Charlotte, N. C., it was his foolish belief that the only way to make money is to work for it.

Leading about $1,000 in cash and a draft for $10,000 by the right hand, he arrived in this hospitable village on June 24. Four days later he was going to accompany a steamship to the other side.

He registered at the Hotel Martinique, and there met a well-dressed young man.

In the cafe the well-dressed young man was met by a friend who almost tore a pocket in trying to remove an obese roll of yellowbacks in an unostentatious manner.

Easy, Too Easy.

"This is a mere nothing," said the friend, carelessly. "When I see so many really intelligent young men working for money it breaks my weak heart."

That called for an explanation, and it was given. By tapping the wires that carry racing results one could make a fortune in 20 minutes.

After several minutes Davidson at length persuaded the young man to accept a few dollars from him for sample bets. He was successful. He wanted to know more about this road to riches and, on being assured that the more money you put up the more you made, he handed $700 to the well-dressed young man.

Goes Home for Money.

Somehow or other the money was lost, but, said the well-dressed one, Davidson should not be discouraged. He should make a bigger bet.

"Could you use this $10,000 draft?" he asked.

They could, if they knew that Mr. Davidson really had the money. Mr. Davidson replied quickly he could prove that he had by going to his home and getting it. He went back to Charlotte and there opened his heart to Frank Osborne, brother of James W. Osborne, the lawyer, of this city. Frank Osborne, suspicious, instructed Davidson to see James W. This he did and Mr. Osborne took Davidson to Deputy Police Commission Dougherty, who wired Frank Osborne to telegraph to the suspects when they would arrive.

The two tappers were arrested when they met Davidson. The North Carolinan took a liner to Europe.

Davidson Reputed Wealthy.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., July 4.—Baxter Davidson is one of Charlotte's best known men. He is a bachelor somewhat beyond middle age and a capitalist. He is a member of one of North Carolina's most prominent families.

Following the declaration of J. O. Cochran, president of the City Park Board, that he would have the city health officers investigate the quality of ice cream and soft drinks sold in the city parks by Concessionaire C. L. Chosewood, several members of the Park Board went out and, after a test of some of Mr. Chosewood's ice cream, exonerated him on their own authority.

Those who testified in his behalf were Commissioners S. S. Shepard, M. B. Young, R. A. Burnett and L. C. Green. A resolution recommending the quality of the refreshments was then proposed by Commissioner Young and adopted.

Suffrage Advocates Win in School Debate

ATHENS, July 4.—Women should be given the right to vote, according to Georgia High School debaters at Baxley, with the affirmative side, won in the first debate of the State High School meet here last night. Fitzgerald represented the negative. The winners were Lucius Tippet and Mack Rogers. The winners in the music contest have not been announced.

To-day there will be declamation and elocution contests and athletic events on Sanford Field.

ATHLETIC CLUB TEAM WINNER IN LOCAL MEET

By Innis Brown.

SEVERAL hundred spectators braved the sizzling rays of a July sun at Piedmont Park Friday morning to watch the first field meet pulled off by the Playgrounds Committee of city parks. In one or two of the events they were repaid for their bravery, and the fact that a larger number did not beat a hurried retreat to the waters of Piedmont lake is evidence of the fact that there is real local interest in such athletic events.

A large number of entrants had been registered for the various events. However, the broiling sun, no doubt, caused many of these to change their minds, even after they had reached the scene. This was especially true in the running events, and accounts for the fact that more starters did not toe the mark.

In the 100-yard dash, the opening event, Hill, of the Athletic Club, came home ahead of a good margin. In fact, he held the field well enough in hand to look back over his shoulder as he reached the tape. Brannen, also of the Athletic Club, ran second, and a clubmate, Allen, took third. A large number were carded to go in this race, but all save four or five were scratched.

440 Is Great Race.

The quarter-mile run furnished the best contest of the meet. Four contestants entered, but within the first 100 yards the race had narrowed down to Allen and Locke, both of the Athletic Club. The former reached the finish first by a step, the time being 52 2-5 seconds.

Locke came back in the half-mile event, winning as he pleased. Five men faced the starter, and by the time the first turn was reached Locke had opened up a nice lead, which he improved all the way. He finished 30 yards ahead of the field, without extending himself. Jarvis came in second, with Weaver third.

The running high jump was taken by Walter Robinson, of the Athletic Club, with a jump of five feet five inches. J. M. Beutell, affiliated with the same club, was second, with "Buss" Beutell, unattached, third.

"Buss" Beutell reversed the decision in the running broad jump with a leap of 18 feet 10 inches. Hill was second, and Dubard third.

Ben Montgomery, of the Athletic Club, won the pole vault at 8 feet 9 inches. Buss Beutell finished second in this event, with Blodgett and Sullivan tied for third place.

Walter Dubard had comparatively easy sailing in the shotput. He got 42 feet 6 1-2 inches in one heave of the preliminary. This was enough by more than a foot. West, of the Fifth Regiment, came second with a put of 41 feet 4 inches. Jones scored third with 39 feet 11 inches.

Hugh Mauck ran away with the hammer throw. His best effort was 139 feet. This was more than 33 feet better than his next opponent. MacKinnon scored second best with 105 feet 10 inches. Brannen was third with 100 feet 2 inches.

Sullivan Wins Steeplechase.

The steeplechase was run over a course beginning on the east side of the lake and finishing at the regular mark on the track. It included swimming the neck of the lake near the bridge. Wesley Meyers got away ahead and completed the aquatic performance with a lead of 20 paces. He crossed the green from the lake to the track with such a margin. Sullivan, however, caught him tiring when less than 100 yards from the finish and won by ten paces. Weaver ran third.

A summary of points according to clubs shows the Athletic Club ahead with a total of 44. The Fifth Regiment made second place with 11 points, and S. V. D. scored 8. Winners of the remaining 17 points entered unattached.

The meet was handled by the following officials: J. O. Cochran, referee; J. W. Heisman, judge of finish; Dr. Dan Sage, time. Joe Bean, clerk of course. Charlie Wahoo, judge of weight contests; Ben Adams, starter; Willis Westmoreland, announcer.

Results:

One Hundred-Yard Dash—Hill (A. A. C.), first; Brannen (A. A. C.), second; Allen (A. A. C.), third. Time, 10 4-5 seconds.

Four Hundred and Forty-Yard Run—Allen (A. A. C.), first; Locke (A. A. C.), second; Thomas (S. V. D.), third. Time, 52 2-5 seconds.

Half-Mile Run—Lock (A. A. C.), first; Jarvis (Fifth Regiment), second; Weaver (A. A. C.), third. Time, 2 minutes 13 2-5 seconds.

Running High Jump—Robinson (unattached), first; J. M. Beutell (A. A. C.), second; R. L. Beutell (unattached), third. Height, 5 feet 5 inches.

Running Broad Jump—R. L. Beutell (unattached), first; Hill (A. A. C.), second; Dubard (A. A. C.), third. Distance, 18 feet 10 inches.

Pole Vault—Montgomery (A. A. C.), first; R. L. Beutell (unattached), second; Blodgett and Sullivan (S. V. D.), third. Height, 8 feet 9 inches.

Shot Put—Dubard (A. A. C.), first; West (Fifth Regiment), second; Jones (S. V. D.), third. Distance, 42 feet 6½ inches.

Hammer Throw—Mauck (Fifth Regiment), first; MacKinnon (A. A. C.), second; Brannen (A. A. C.), third. Distance, 139 feet.

Steeplechase Race—Sullivan (S. V. D.), first; Meyers (unattached), second; Weaver (A. A. C.), third. Time, 2 minutes 51 1-5 seconds.

VETERANS WIN HONORS

Grant-Thornton Cop Georgia Title

GRANT and Thornton, in their prime the greatest double tennis team of all Dixie, demonstrated that they are strong players even now by defeating Mansfield and Smith on the courts of the Piedmont Driving Club Thursday afternoon, 6-4, 11-9, 7-5. The match was started several weeks ago, but was postponed in the second set and was taken up where it was left off.

Grant and Thornton won the opening game yesterday, making the score 8-7 in their favor, but Smith and Mansfield won the next and deuced the set again. Not until a total of twenty games had been played was the set decided.

In the third set after Grant and Thornton had Smith and Mansfield 3-1, the latter won the fifth game, and with the score fifteen-fofty against them in the sixth pulled up and finally won, tying the score 3 all.

The only time that Smith and Manning led in games during the afternoon was in the third set when they had their opponents 5-4, but Grant and Thornton came strong in the next game, winning it and also the next two, which gave them the game 7-5 and also the match.

Mansfield did some pretty playing. Grant and Thornton directed most of their clouts at him and he handled them well. Grant and Thornton played him almost entirely throughout the match, preferring his returns to the rifle-like shots of Smith.

In the finals in the mixed doubles Miss Stanton and Thornton won by default from Miss Muse and Carter, as Carter is playing in the tournament now going on at Augusta.

DIRECTORS DID NOT ASK SMITH ABOUT PITCHER

Manager Billy's Advice Was Not Sought in Purchase of "Pop-Boy" Smith.

ALTHOUGH Bill Smith, manager of the Crackers, does not know anything about the desire of the local team to get Clarence "Pop Boy" Smith, it is more than probable that the Crackers will have to do without the White Sox hurler.

According to a report from local headquarters Comiskey offered Smith to the Crackers for $2,000, under optional agreement. This was in a night letter Tuesday night. The local club accepted his proposition by wire on Wednesday morning.

Bill Smith, when called up this morning over the phone, said he knew nothing of the deal. This seems to be a queer condition of affairs, as the Cracker manager is usually notified of all deals.

Smith pitched the last four innings of the game against the Tigers on Wednesday, and held that hard-hitting crowd to one hit. This made such an impression that the White Sox decided to call off the trade.

The local club, however, is still after Smith and hopes to land him before the month is over. The Crackers are badly in need of another good twirler right now to help Conzelman, Dent, Price, Musser and Brady.

There is also a rumor going the rounds these days that everything is not running smooth between the local directors and Billy Smith. Smith's ignorance in the White Sox deal can not be accounted for, unless the directors are discouraged with several deals the Cracker manager has pulled off. There is still some talk about the way the local club has been stung in the Dent trade when they turned over $2,000 to Washington for the twirler.

GUNBOAT SMITH WANTS GO WITH GEORGE CARPENTER

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, July 4.—Gunboat Smith, claimant of the world's title for heavyweight boxers, has challenged George Carpentier, the young French champion of Europe, to a 20-round contest for $5,000 a side in England, France or Belgium. If Carpentier agrees the match probably will be arranged to take place during this summer.

SULLIVAN WINS; AHEARN KNOCKS OUT BARTFIELD

BUFFALO, July 4.—Jack Twin Sullivan outpointed Barney Williams in a fast ten-round bout here last night.

Young Ahearn knocked out Soldier Bartfield in eight rounds.

Tommy Bresnahan drew with Willie Houck.

TURF RACING A LUXURY.

PARIS, July 4.—The average cost of keeping a race horse in France is placed at $1,000 a year. The total training expenses in France, not taking into account the capital invested in the various stables, is placed at $5,600,000. The total of the prizes offered is $3,600,000. Hence the owners support an annual deficit of $2,000,000.

EMPIRE LEAGUE NOTES

Waycross has released Second Baseman Brouthers, who has signed with Americus. He plays the outfield as well as the infield, and while with Waycross led the team at the bat and in base stealing. Internal dissension is given as the reason for his release. He is a clever player and will make good wherever he plays.

While not so well pleased with the start of the season, fans in Waycross are banking on Wild Bill Clark to give Waycross a pennant winning team.

In Chancy the Americus team has an outfielder that is bound to go up. He is a steady hitter, getting two and three hits a day almost as easy as some people eat watermelon. He is fast on his feet, too, and gets many hard chances in right.

By swapping a three-game series to enable Valdosta to play at home next week for a celebration Brunswick will play six straight games in Brunswick this month with Valdosta.

In Griffin, Americus has a first baseman who makes friends wherever he goes. He is always happy—in fact, has a winning smile besides a batting eye.

Few teams in any league boast of as many reliable left-handers as the Valdosta team. Otto Jordan seems to know good men when he sees them from the kind of material his team is made up of, even if the best of them have off days once in a while.

Some idea of the class of baseball that the Empire is capable of might be found in a daily comparison with the scores of the big leagues. There is hardly a bad game played in the Empire but what a worse one is found in a higher league.

Claiming that the Americus team had thirteen men in uniform on the Waycross diamond Wednesday, Waycross has filed a protest for the first game of the double bill. President Groover attended the game and had his attention called to the alleged violation of the 12-player rule.

No one in the Empire circuit any longer doubts that the league will be in existence next year. Plans have already been made in Cordele and one or two other cities for next year's schedule.

Practically every team in the league wants to win the race in the second half, and with this in view are making a number of changes. The race from now on is going to be a keen one and much faster baseball will be seen than ever before in the new league.

"Goat" Holliday, of Atlanta, the Empire's benedict, continues to pull off sensational plays at first. He has made a home in Waycross and can stay here as long as he pleases. "Goat's" wife is at every game to see him play and, needless to say, the youngster does even better than heretofore, which is saying a great deal.

Attendance reports continue to show that fans in the cities of this league will support good baseball. None of the cities expected to make money the first season and yet it is stated on good authority that more than one city is well ahead of the game financially and hopes to finish the season with a neat pile in the treasury. All of which sounds good for next year's season.

FRED TONEY IS LET OUT; BACK TO LOUISVILLE CLUB

CHICAGO, ILL., July 4.—Fred Toney, heavyweight pitcher of the Cub team, was given notice of his release to the Louisville team of the American Association. The big fellow never was much of a big league success, though pitching a fair sort of game now and then.

This release brings the Cubs down to the limit of twenty-five players.

JIMMY SHECKARD GOES TO CINCINNATI CLUB

CINCINNATI, July 4.—It was announced from the office of the Cincinnati baseball club to-day that the deal for James Sheckard, the St. Louis National League team outfielder, has been officially consummated. Manager Tinker refused to waive claim on Sheckard.

Carter Plays Ramspeck in Finals

AUGUSTA, July 4.—The ladies' tennis championship was won here Thursday by Mrs. Johnson after three terrific sets, by a score of 7-9, 6-2, 6-3. Miss Adger's forehand drive is one that would do credit to anyone, either man or woman, and it was on the strength of this drive that she won the first set. Mrs. Johnson won the rest on her ability to cover her court and her placing.

The men's singles were carried through the semi-finals, the survivors being E. V. Carter, Jr., of Atlanta, ex-South Atlantic champion, and Carl Ramspeck, also of Atlanta and also an ex-South Atlantic States champion.

The final between these two will be played off this afternoon about 6 o'clock, and should prove one of the prettiest matches ever seen in Augusta. These two have met once before in Augusta, the event being the challenge round two years ago, when Ramspeck was champion and Carter challenger. Carter won on this occasion in straight sets on a rather wet court.

The results in the men's doubles were as follows:

First Round—Erwin brothers defeated Phinizy and Ridgeley, 6-2, 6-4.

Second Round—A. Capers and M. Kennedy defeated Ferris and Brand, 6-2, 5-7, 6-2. Hall and Parks won by default from Brinson and Branch. Waring brothers defeated Carter and Griffith, 6-3, 6-4. R. Capers and Mikell won by default from White and Bredenberg. Marrett and Gary defeated Hester and Wall, 6-4, 5-7, 6-2.

Third Round—Waring brothers defeated Hall and Parks, 6-1, 6-3, and by winning get a place in the semi-final in the top half.

The following are the results of the matches played in the consolation singles:

Second Round—Crockerson defeated Roseboro by default. Matthews defeated Harper, 6-2, 6-3. Capers defeated Wright, 6-4, 6-4. Stulb defeated Berkmire, 6-2, 6-4. Roseman defeated Sheridan, 6-1, 6-1.

The results of the mixed doubles matches are as follows:

First Round—Mrs. Milam and Reynolds defeated Miss Emily Thomas and J. K. Orr, Jr., 3-6, 6-4, 7-5. Mrs. Johnson and G. W. Waring defeated Miss Thorn and Ramspeck, 6-0, 6-1.

RITCHIE PUTS RIVERS OUT IN 11TH

Champion, Forced Hard All the Way Makes Mexican Quit Fighting.

By W. W. Naughton.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 4.—Willie Ritchie successfully defended his lightweight crown against Joe Rivers here this afternoon, making the Mexican quit in the eleventh round.

It was a hard, even fight up to the eleventh, but the champion tore open in this round and floored the Mexican with a right to the jaw. Rivers was on one knee when the official time-keeper counted "eight, nine, out."

He did not appear to be in bad condition and could have probably continued the fight had he so desired.

ROUND ONE.

Both men began fighting at 2:27. Rivers bored in to a clinch, blocking a left hook. Rivers landed lightly with the right on the face, and they punched each other while holding. Rivers got in a good body dig with a free left. They broke and feinted. Ritchie got in a left hook on the body and tehy closed in again. Rivers missed with the right and took a right on the ear. Rivers got in two left pokes on the chin at close quarters, and Ritchie met Rivers with a solid straight left, and followed with left and right on the side of the head They closed, and Rivers worked a free right to the jaw twice. Rivers put a left to chin. Rivers shot in a straight right. Rivers crowded Ritchie into a corner and reached the face with both hands. Ritchie retaliating with straight left on the mouth.

ROUND TWO.

They closed in and Rivers put a right to ear. When they broke Ritchie planted a straight left on the face and sent home two rights on the ear. Ritchie scored with a good right uppercut and Rivers jarred Ritchie with right hard right on chin. Rivers sent in two straight lefts and there was blood on Ritchie's lips. Ritchie missed with several attempts, and Rivers drove a hard right into the body. Ritchie whipped a right across on the jaw, and Rivers scored with a hard left hook. Ritchie repeated with the left hook and missed with the right. He crowded Rivers to the ropes. Rivers swung a left to the body and fell to his knees when he missed. Ritchie sent in several lefts and rights and kept punching Rivers after the bell rang. Graney pushed the champion to his corner.

ROUND THREE.

Rivers covered and blacked a left hook. He kept covered and Ritchie was unable to break through his guard. Ritchie was there with a light right facer and Rivers hooked the champion on the jaw with the left. Ritchie swung straight left on the chin and drew away from Rivers' right. Ritchie sent home a straight right body blow and followed with left to the face. Ritchie put a hard right on the body. Rivers staggered Ritchie with a right on the jaw. They clung together and Rivers had the best of the slugging. Ritchie's head was wagging from the Southerner's right. They broke and Rivers fell to his knees when Ritchie ducked a couple of vicious rights. They mixed it freely and Rivers had the better of the scoring.

ROUND FOUR.

Rivers blocked straight lefts that Ritchie put in. Rivers planted both fists on the stomach and shot in a straight left on the mouth. Spider Kelly shouted to Rivers not to let his man rest. Each man missed with vicious swings and then Rivers scored with three left hooks in succession. There was a swelling under Rivers' right eye. They each kept at arms' length, but Rivers jumped close and got to the face with left and right swings. Ritchie seemed inclined to hold. Ritchie whipped a left into the stomach and drove Rivers back with a left swing on the chin. Rivers covered from right uppercuts and pinned Ritchie in a corner with left and right swings, both reaching the head.

ROUND FIVE.

Rivers shot in a straight left and they went into a clinch. Each used a left on the body while holding. Ritchie scored with a straight left on the body. Rivers bored in with his head covered and swung an overhand right on the neck. Rivers was there with a left hook. Rivers ducked a right cross and sent his right against the ear. Ritchie got there with a straight left and Rivers swung a fierce left to the chin. Ritchie held on in the clinch that followed. As they broke Ritchie whipped a left to the stomach. Ritchie got a right uppercut and Rivers sent his head back with a straight left. Ritchie followed Rivers, shooting in straight lefts. Rivers tried left swings, Ritchie ducking. Ritchie was the aggressor, sending in face and body punches with both hands. Ritchie's friends were cheering.

ROUND SIX.

Ritchie missed a body blow and they closed. Ritchie got there with a straight left and repeated a second later. Ritchie got there with two lefts, one to the body and one on the face. Rivers swung a left on the jaw. They landed mutually with straight lefts. Ritchie drew back from Rivers' leads and scored cleanly with straight lefts. Ritchie whipped in a right above the belt line and Rivers landed with a high right hook. Ritchie landed both hands to the body and for a while scored three punches to Rivers, one dividing his attention between ribs and face. Rivers brightened and used both hands with effect on the side of the head. They slowed up for a while by mutual consent, but were slashing out at the bell.

ROUND SEVEN.

Ritchie was there with a straight left and drew back from a return. Ritchie hooked the ear with a right. Rivers' left doubled around Ritchie's neck, and Ritchie nailed Joe with a left uppercut. Rivers missed a left swing and Ritchie peppered him with rights and lefts. Ritchie continued to score, and Rivers swung two hard lefts on the jaw. Rivers piled Ritchie into a corner. Ritchie missed his footing and fell on the lower rope. When he stood up Rivers swung a right to the neck. Ritchie forced Rivers to the ropes and then to the center of the ring. It is a very vicious fight.

ROUND EIGHT.

They went close together and exchanged lefts and rights, Ritchie landing left and right hooks and sending home straight lefts. Ritchie was close and tilted the Mexicans head with a right swing. Ritchie landed a right against the ribs. Rivers was there with two straight rights to the ear. Rivers covered from right uppercuts and missed left swing. Rivers sent Ritchie's head back with a brace of left swings. A straight left brought blood from Rivers' mouth. Ritchie kept the blood owing with right uppercuts, and it was now Rivers' turn to hold on. Ritchie's straight left was continually in evidence. Then Rivers go tto the side of the head with right swings. Rivers swung the left on the neck as the round ended.

ROUND NINE.

Rivers backed away and swung a left on the face. Ritchie whipped the body with the left and then swung a left on the ear. Ritchie was there with a straight left, and Rivers came back with a left hook. They closed in and fought at the body. They broke and Rivers scored with a left hook. Rivers planted a left hook and Ritchie came back with a fusillade of lefts and rights. Rivers backed to the ropes and covered up, while Ritchie hammered at his gloves. Rivers cut loose with left and right swings, knocking Ritchie's head from side to side. They closed in and Rivers held on. Ritchie used a free left in the clench. They broke and Rivers scored with lefts and right swings, following with an extra right which turned Ritchie's head aside.

ROUND TEN.

Rivers swung a left on the neck and took a straight left. Ritchie pressed in, forcing Rivers around the ring. Rivers covered up and took Ritchie's blows on his gloves. Rivers was there with two straight lefts, and Ritchie missed with a right uppercut. Ritchie swung a glancing right on the cheek. The men fought as though tired. Rivers' left swing glanced from Ritchie's crown.

ROUND ELEVEN.

Rivers swung a left in the hollow of the neck and backed away as Ritchie forced him. Ritchie was there with a right uppercut and Joe held on. Ritchie put in a left body blow and followed with a light right to the chin. Ritchie crowded him, bringing him down on his hands and knees with a hard righthander. There was blood coming from Rivers' mouth and nose, but he did not appear to be knocked out. There was plenty of intelligence in his eyes as he hunched his back and raised himself partly from the floor. He still had one knee touching the mat when Time Keeper George Harting counted "eight, nine, out." And he was standing up a second later. It looked like a clear case of quitting, so far as Rivers was concerned. He had been discouraged for many rounds, and he probably decided to retire at about the first opportunity.

CROSS STOPS ANDERSON IN 12TH

Hard-Hitting New Yorker Proves Too Rugged a Walloper for Los Angeles Boy.

By H. M. Walker.

LOS ANGELES, July 4.—Leach Cross knocked out Bud Anderson in the twelfth round of a vicious fight here this afternoon. It was a give-and-take battle all the way, with the New Yorker nearly always in the lead.

ROUND 1—Anderson shot in a straight left on the mouth. Clinch. Cross poked two lefts in on the body and whipped the right over on the jaw. Bud landed a left on the chest. Bud reddened Leach's right eye. Leach sent in two straight lefts on the face. They danced around the ring and Leach suddenly whipped over the right on the jaw. Anderson went to the floor. He jumped up quickly. Cross tried to take advantage of his opportunity, but Bud danced out of harm's way. Cross displayed much more cleverness and ducked under many of Bud's right swings.

ROUND 2—Cross reached the ribs with a light left and they mauled each other on the head and ribs. Leach put a short right on the jaw. Bud reached the jaw with a right. Each landed lefts on the jaw, and Anderson ducked two swings for the jaw. From a clinch Cross reached the jaw with a right. Cross reached the jaw lightly with the right. Anderson tried twice with his left before it reached the mouth. Cross put the right on the jaw again. Cross' round.

ROUND 3—Cross again led with the left on the ribs. This time Bud reached a stinging right on the jaw and Cross grabbed Bud and held on. Bud danced away from Leach's right, coming out of the clinch. Leach then sent in a series of left-facers and brought a smear of blood over Bud's face. They went to a clinch and Leach hammered the back of the head and the kidneys. Cross fell short with a right for the jaw and they went to a clinch. Cross kept hammering the mouth. Bud stuck a hard right hook on the jaw, and a moment later staggered the Jew with another right on the jaw. Bud made the New Yorker miss three right swings by beating him to the blows. A moment after the bell Leach landed a left on the jaw.

ROUND 4—Bud smashed a left on the mouth and hooked jaw with the right. Cross planted two rights on the ribs. Cross ripped a stiff right uppercut on the mouth coming out of a clinch. Bud planted a left on the wind and then beat Cross to two lefts on the face. Leach landed on the jaw with a right hook. Bud planted two lefts in the mouth and another on Leach's sore eye. Clinch. Both reached the face with lefts. Leach swung a back-hand left on the jaw and followed it with a right lightly on the same spot. The two blows coming in rapid succession half turned Bud on his feet.

ROUND 5—They feinted. Bud struck two lefts on the face and Leach sent in a series of right and left facers. Anderson sent Leach's head back with a running left to the face. Clinch. Bud reached the face with a left and tripped over Leach's foot and went to his knee. Bud danced back from a right lead, but shot in another left-facer, while he leaped toward the New Yorker. They clinched, they went into another clinch and Cross reached the face with left and right. After they broke Leach placed left and right again on each side of the face and Bud feinted the air foolishly for half a second.

ROUND 6—Bud placed a hard left on the jaw and followed in a second with the right on the jaw. Cross covered up. Bud kept on top of his man and tore in terrific lefts and rights on the jaw. Bud had Leach wobbly on his feet from the mauling he was giving him. Leach could not defend himself, but kept his guard up as best he could. Leach wobbled about the ring for half the round. Suddenly he seemed to regain his strength and tore in a series of rights, but they failed to reach their mark. Cross reached the face with the left, then shot the right over the jaw just as the bell rang. Ringsiders all during the round cautioned Bud to look out; that the New Yorker was stalling.

ROUND 7—Cross reached the ribs with left and they went to a clinch. Anderson sent in a terrific left on the heart. Leach began slugging and reached the face with lefts and rights at close quarters until Bud backed out of harm's way. Anderson poked the face with the left and swung the right on the jaw. He repeated the trick a moment later, but the blows were not hard ones. They went to a long clinch. Leach reached the chest with the left and the ribs with the right. Anderson reached the face with a left as the bell sounded. Both boys fought as if they were a bit tired during this round.

ROUND 8—Leach walked slowly out of his corner and they went to a short clinch. Leach sent two lefts around the neck and they went close. Bud reached the face twice with the left and missed a right swing. Bud again tripped and went to his knees. Cross reached the face with two light lefts and they went to a long clinch. Cross planted a stiff left on the jaw, but appeared to be afraid to get close enough to follow with the right, which went short. Cross then reached the point of the chin with the right. Bud turned Cross half around with a short right on the jaw and then followed it with a left-facer.

ROUND 9—Leach reached the body with a left and Bud the face with a left. Cross reached the jaw with a left. Bud rapped Leach's sore eye with two rights. Bud ducked under a vicious right swing and Leach rapped him between the shoulders as he turned. As they came close, Leach's left went round Bud's neck. Leach missed a left uppercut coming out of a clinch. Leach got to the face with a left, and as they came closer shot the right on the jaw. Bud never crouched away from these blows, however. He stood straight and danced away when he could or ducked them. Leach tore in with rights and lefts and a right on the jaw just at the bell.

Round 10—Both reached the face with lefts and went into a short clinch. Leach put the left on the ribs and then quickly switched it to the face. Leach sent Bud through the ropes with a short right on the jaw. Bud did not wait long until he was up. Leach kept cooly after his man right in the face with both hands. Bud fought back but he was stunned. Leached reached the jaw with the right again and Anderson held on in the clinch that followed. Bud's eyes had a glassy look. In a clinch Leach again reached the jaw with left and right. Then Bud planted two rights on the Jaw and Leach covered up for an instant.

ROUND 11—They fought cautiously and Bud appeared a little awkward on his feet. Anderson reached the mouth with left and they clinched. Both reached the jaw with lefts. Leach then sent the left again against the jaw and brought it back-hand fashion against the other side. Leach rammed the left into the stomach and brought the right lightly upon the face. Leach switched the left across Bud's face and then brought it back, quickly following with the right on the jaw. Each seemed to wan to rest. Leach's left went around Bud's neck as they went to another clinch at the bell.

ROUND 12.—Leach reached the face with two lefts, Bud seemed very slow with his feet and missed his mark three times in succession in close quarters. He tore a right uppercut to the jaw. Cross tore in and mauled his man to a groggy state with right and left facers. Bud hung on at the first opportunity, but had no judgment. Bud even failed to keep his guard up. Leach landed a hard right on the jaw. Leach mauled his man all over the ring. He finally floored Bud with a short right on the jaw. Bud fell through the ropes and the referee began counting. Bud's seconds yelled at him to stay down, but Anderson had no sense of his own, nor could he heed the advice of his handlers. He rose as quickly as his weak knees could lift his feet. Cross seemed to take compassion on his opponent and hesitated before landing another blow, apparently expecting Bud's handlers, who had crawled half way along the length of the ring outside the ropes, to toss in the towel, but they would not give up. Then Leach sent his right across the jaw again and Bud went on his back. Leach now showed that he had been thoroughly frightened. He rushed astride on the limp body, and lifting his head in his two hands shook it violently. Bud's seconds rushed in with a sponge full of water, but they could not resuscitate the lad. He was dragged to his corner, where it took several minutes of vigorous attention to bring him about.

WHITE LOSES TO BRITTON IN 18TH

Referee Stops Battle When Jack Sends in Finishing Punches to the Stomach.

NEW ORLEANS, July 4.—Jack Britton won from Jack White in the eighteenth round of their scheduled twenty-round battle here this afternoon. It was a corking fight up to the finish, when Britton sent home some terrible stomach wallops. White was all but out, and as he was absolutely helpless the referee called a halt to the proceedings and raised Britton's hand.

ROUND 1—Britton missed right and stuck a left to the stomach. They mixed for body blows in the center of the ring. Britton landed right to nose. They were cautious as the bell rang. Britton's round.

ROUND 2—White rushed Britton to a corner and landed light left to the side. Britton landed left to stomach. White landed two lefts to face. They clinched. Britton peppered White's stomach. White landed stiff right to face. They clinched at the bell. White's round.

ROUND 3—Britton sent left to jaw. White landed right to face. White scored two lefts to body. Britton landed two lefts to face. White retreated to a corner. They exchanged lefts. Britton's round.

ROUND 4—Britton landed right to chin. White landed left to stomach. Clinched. Britton rushed White and mixed. White landed left to chin. Clinch. White landed light right to face and Britton countered with left. Britton's round.

ROUND 8—Britton rushed White to corner, landed right to body and two lefts to chin. White missed left to chin. White sent right to side. Britton missed two left jabs. Clinch. White landed left hook. White's round.

ROUND 10—Britton stuck lefts and rights to face. Charley rushed Britton. White landed right to wind. Britton missed left uppercut. Britton's round.

ROUND 14—White landed left to stomach. Britton put glancing right to face. Britton jabbed three lefts to face. White sent right to stomach. Britton's round.

ROUND 15—Britton rushed White to ropes. They sparred. Britton stuck lefts and forced White to corner. White put three lefts to stomach. Britton rained rights and lefts to White's face. Britton's round.

ROUND 16—Britton forced White around the ring. Clinch. Britton stuck two light lefts and a stiff left to the face. White put in light left. Britton missed right swing. White retreated to ropes. Britton's round.

ROUND 17—Britton appeared fresh. White rushed Britton across the ropes, putting in rights and lefts. Britton sent left to face and White spat blood again. Britton missed left to face, but landed right to jaw. He sent in light lefts to face and light right to body.

ROUND 18—White sent right to face and they clinched. Britton drove in right and White again went to ropes. Britton got in good stomach blows and referee stopped the fight, giving the decision to Britton, as White was all but out and helpless.

JORDAN STILL LEADS IN GREAT DASH FOR VOTES

"Goat" Holliday a Good Second in Popularity Contest for The Georgian's Cup.

OTTO JORDAN, second baseman and manager of Valdosta, with an average of several thousand, not hits, but votes, is rushing madly ahead of all others in The Hearst Sunday American and The Atlanta Georgian's great race to decide who is the most popular baseball player in the Empire State League. His lead is very young, only held to-day, and to-morrow he may be fighting for the top with "Goat" Holliday, now second; "Wild Bill" Clark a good third, and Whitey Morse, first baseman of Valdosta, the fourth player in the contest.

Jordan surged into the lead just about the time the popularity baseball editor surged into the mass of mail that came to him yesterday. He expects thanks from the postmaster general at the end of the contest for preventing a deficit in that Federal department this year. He also expects a long rest.

Send in Votes.

Send in your votes, you Jordan fans, if you would have your favorite remain in the lead. His rivals are pushing him hard for first place, and a very few votes separates the first four. In fact, any of the other players entered in the contest have a great chance if their admirers will only get busy.

Ed Alperman, outfielder of Waycross; Kid Wilder, of Cordele; Rube Zellers, Valdosta; Griffin, of Americus, and Mutts Gray, of Cordele, were others to receive a large number of votes yesterday.

Coupon in Every Day.

Remember that every day the coupon is printed on page 2 of The Georgian.

Mail 'em, bugs, to the Popularity Baseball Editor, Georgian, Atlanta, Ga., and win a beautiful trophy for your favorite ball player. Vote to-day.

BILLIKINS, 7; VOLS, 2.

BALL PARK, NASHVILLE, TENN., July 4.—Montgomery took the morning game from the Vols in easy fashion, 7 to 2, driving More from the rubber in the fifth. Williams checked the heavy scoring. The game came near ending in a riot when the entire Montgomery team began to crab over a decision at third, a fight between Manager Dobbs and Umpire Stockdale being third. A fight between Manager narrowly averted.

Case humbled his former pals, holding the Vols to five widely scattered hits. The Vols played a listless game.

ZIMMERMAN GETS PRIZE; GOOD FOR TWO WEEKS

CHICAGO, July 4.—Heine Zimmerman, the pugnacious third sacker of the Cubs, is $100 richer to-day because he has not sassed, assaulted or assassinated even one umpire in two whole weeks.

A fortnight ago a Cub fan promised Zimmerman $100 if he would remain on his good behavior for two weeks and not be chased from the game for "run ins" with arbitrators. Heine has been a very nice young man for the past two weeks, but yesterday—the last day of the time limit—he almost forgot about the $100 when he was called out at home on a close play.

TRAINER SEMMENS DIES.

CINCINNATI, July 4.—George ("Doc") Semmens, physical trainer of the Cincinnati National League baseball club, died here to-day from the effects of heat. Yesterday he left the hospital where he had been operated upon for appendicitis.

FOURTH OBSERVED IN PARIS.

PARIS, July 4.—The American colony celebrated the Fourth of July here to-day with a banquet. Ambassador Herrick attended.

"DOYLE HITTING, GIANTS UNBEATABLE"—STALLINGS

NEW YORK, July 4.—"Larry Doyle has recovered his old form and that is why the Giants are now leading the National League," said George Stallings, manager of the Boston Braves, to-day. "Until recently Doyle was unable to hit with his usual vigor and the Giants were losing games. But they braced the moment Larry's bat began to meet the ball successfully. He is the king pin of the New York team, and now that he is himself McGraw's men can not be headed off.

BOXING
News of the Ring Game

Quite a number of big fights will be held throughout the country on the Glorious Fourth. The most important are the Ritchie-Rivers; Britton-White and Anderson-Cross affairs. All are scheduled to go 20 rounds.

* * *

Bud Anderson, who is one of the sensations of the season and who has put a stop to a number of good boxers, might also spring a surprise on Cross. The latter, though, has the advantage of being an exceedingly heavy hitter as well as a great ring general.

* * *

It would not be much of a surprise if the fans would wake up on the fifth and discover a new lightweight champion in the person of Joe Rivers.

* * *

Local fans are showing much interest in the Whitney-Thomas bout at New Orleans to-day. Both boys have fought here and

Poultry, Pet and Live Stock

Light Brahmas Are The Largest Fowls In Poultry Breeding

Judge F. J. Marshall: Which are the largest breeds of chickens in their respective order as to size, feathered on non-feathered legs, and where can some be procured of pure breed; the largest variety of game chickens, color and where obtainable of pure breed?

Blue Ridge, Ga. H. W. B.

Reply—The largest chicken bred and recognized in the Standard of Perfection (the guide to all thoroughbred poultry breeding) is the Light Brahmas; weights are, cocks, 12 pounds; cockerels, 10 pounds; hens, 9 1-2 pounds, and pullets, 8 pounds. They have pea combs and feathered shanks. Their body color is white with a black stripe down the center on each feather on the neck, and black tails. Inside of wings black not showing on the surface when the wing is folded. The next range in size comes these varieties, all of the same weight: Dark Brahmas, Black, White, Buff and Partridge Cochins, the weights being just one pound lighter than the Light Brahmas all through. All feathered-leg varieties, the Dark Brahmas are the same in characteristics as the Lights. The color is a black penciling on a gray ground color, the penciling being very narrow and conforming to the edge of the feathers in shape. The male has a black tail. The female's tail is black, except the two top feathers, which are penciled. Cochins are next in size; weight, 11 pounds; cockerels, 9 pounds; hens, 8 1-2 pounds, and pullets, 7 pounds. Cochins are noted for their extreme full feathering and very short legs, which make them appear to be almost one big, fluffy ball of soft feathers from head to toes. The general outline might be described as round, being short from head to tail, with high rounded back in female and full back in male; tails very short; in fact, the tail of the female scarcely shows at all. They are bred in four varieties, Buff, Black, White and Partridge. In form of penciling the Partridge is the same as the Dark Brahma, but the color of the penciling is dark brown on a surface of mahogany red. The Brahmas and Cochins are all feather-legged varieties, the Cochins being much more profuse than the Brahmas. The Cochin has a small single comb. The next in size are the Orpingtons, Buff, Black and White, all smooth-shanked varieties. Weights are, cocks, 10 pounds; cockerels, 8 1-2 pounds; hens, 8 pounds; pullets, 7 pounds. Comb, single, of medium size and five points. In shape the Orpingtons are rather shorter than the Plymouth Rocks, but not so blocky as the Wyandotte; legs rather large and stocky. The skin and flesh are white, as is the case with all fowls of English origin and make-up. The Buffs should be clear buff throughout, the Blacks solid black, and the Whites solid white. The buffs have a tendency to throw some black in tails, so when a little of it shows up there it should not be considered an impurity of blood. Breeders of these varieties should advertise in The Georgian.

July the Month to Get Most for Your Money Buying Good Stock

For those who are striving to be economical in their outlay for good stock July is the month of the year in which to get the most for their money purchasing good breeding stock. Any one who is regularly in the business has before this time hatched all the young stock he can handle and as a rule has not the room to carry over all his breeding stock, and for the sake of making them move off lively will offer them at a greatly reduced price. A few dollars invested at this time with some good breeder for a pen of first-class chickens would be money well placed. True, you would have to carry them through the molt, but that does not begin to offset the big reduction secured. A pen of chickens bought now and fed lightly for a month and the feed increased after that time should soon come into laying, and with judicious management a few fall chickens could be raised and still have the parent stock ready for early spring business. This is not a theory of ours, it is a custom of many of the best poultry people all over the country, and beneficial to both buyer and seller.

In your endeavors to make a purchase of this character be sure you strike some one who really has a surplus he does not wish to carry over, and for that reason will let them go for a sacrifice. A few hundreds of dollars invested in this way by the farmers of the South at this time to get good stock with which to supplant their scrubs would mean thousands of dollars to them during the next twelve months.

We only wish each and every one could see it as we have seen it tried, time and again in our experience in traveling over the country, and how we have been told by those who had made the experiment, as they called it, of the increased profits they had derived by handling first-class, thoroughbred poultry. So well satisfied are they that they could not be hired to go back to the old plan of the "scrub is good enough for me."

There is no experiment about it, it is a business proposition.

FOR SALE

ON PIEDMONT AVENUE, near school, on the car line, we have one of the best bungalows to be found in the city. Built by the present owner for a home out of the best material and workmanship. Never expected to sell it, but keep it for a home. The lot cost him $3,000 vacant. If vacant to-day could not be bought for $4,000.

This bungalow has seven rooms—fine shaded east front lot—all conveniences, one year old.

The owner's work has called him to Florida, and he must sell by August 1.

We have had this place listed at $7,000, and cheap at that—but the owner says he must sell—therefore, he is putting the price down to $6,250. This should sell at once.

Medium-Sized Acreage Tracts

ALL of us know the profit that is usually made from acreage. It is almost a conceded fact that if a person owns good acreage, he has a sure profit in it sooner or later. When we think of acreage propositions, we think of lots of land, and naturally lots of money, because the usual acreage transaction involves a great deal of money. The demand for good, close-in acreage for subdivision purposes is increasing every day. A trip to the outskirts of the city in any direction you choose to take will convince you of this fact. We are going to offer a tract of about 100 acres, between Decatur and East Lake, which we have cut up into five, ten and fifteen acre tracts. The price and terms on these tracts make it possible for almost anybody to handle them.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Park Community To Cost $150,000

Twenty West Peachtree Cottages. To Sell James Home—University Club Plans—Aragon Hotel Offer.

A park community plan which will involve the expenditure of probably $150,000 and revolutionize a section of West Peachtree has been evolved by Lavender Ray, owner of considerable property on West Fourteenth and West Peachtree. Mr. Ray will utilize the depressed northeast corner of West Peachtree and West Fourteenth Streets for a handsome three-story apartment house and erect 20 artistic cottages for young married couples in a park space which he owns between West Fourteenth and West Fifteenth Streets, with frontage on West Peachtree.

"I hope to build the apartment house for $25,000, although it may cost more," declared Mr. Ray in speaking of his plans, "and to spend an average of $4,000 to $5,000 on the cottages. A handsome colonnade will extend over the West Peachtree entrance and the colonnade effect will be carried out through the string of ten cottages on either side, with porte-cochere effects between the dwellings. The trees will make it possible to provide a little park and playground for children.

"I hope to provide a restaurant where all couples can get their meals, and to supply all the cottages with heat from a central heating plant, possibly from the apartment house. The dwellings will be uniform in size and architecture."

Mr. Ray has drawn rough plans for the colonnade and will soon begin sketches for the dwellings. His frontage on West Peachtree is 175 feet and the depth between the other streets 572 feet. He expects to cut a street like Grant Place through the center of the property, to be 50 feet wide at the front and 40 feet wide at the other extremity. Attractive alleyways will be provided for automobiles and other conveyances behind the cottages, and entrance can also be effected through the rear.

The West Peachtree frontage for the apartment is 100 feet, and the frontage on Fourteenth Street is 118 feet.

To Sell Peachtree Home.

John H. James, the well-known banker and real estate operator, has placed on private sale his former home place at 314 Peachtree, on the west side of the street between Porter Place and Baker Street, and just south of the old J. Scott Todd lot. This property was bought by Mr. James fifteen years ago for $7,000, or at the rate of a little less than $130 a foot. The two-story frame home cost him about the same amount. To-day property in this block is held at $1,500 to $1,600 a foot, which would make the 54 by 175-foot lot worth $81,000 to $86,400. The dwelling is now rented as a boarding house.

Mr. James is also the owner of the property at 135 Whitehall Street, on which is located the Martin & Knott Furniture Company. This is on the west side of the street just north of Trinity Avenue. Mr. James bought it a number of years ago for about $15,000, and to-day holds it at $50,000. He is not yet ready to sell this parcel, however.

University Club Plans.

Hal F. Hentz, of the firm of Hentz & Reid, architects, has been put to work on plans a new University Club home, and is expected to complete a tentative sketch shortly. The University Club has under consideration a building in the neighborhood of the Aragon Hotel, which will be extensively remodeled if the plans of the executive committee are carried out. It is planned to install shower baths, a swimming pool, a gymnasium for light exercises, lockers, etc., and to take the building on a lease.

Members of the club are desirous of obtaining a location close to Five Points, and for this reason nothing has been considered seriously north of Baker Street. Among places mentioned have been the J. R. Hopkins home at the southeast corner of Baker and Peachtree, the former home of Charles E. Sciple at the northwest corner of Kimball and Cypress Streets, and the Joseph Rhodes Building back of the Winecoff Hotel, on West Ellis Street.

The University Club must vacate the old Abbott home in October, and on account of the short space of time the executive committee have gone ahead with preparations to move.

Offer on Aragon Hotel.

It has been learned on good authority that an offer was refused the other day on the Aragon Hotel property, the owners declining to name any price. This is the property that a would-be purchaser offered several years ago to cover with dollars, and was told by the late George W. Collier that he could get a warranty deed if he would put the coins on edge. The new prospects were not even given this opportunity.

The Aragon is under lease to the Harrels for hotel purposes.

Job Still Unfinished.

Although the impression has gone abroad that Peachtree Road paving has been completed from Buckhead to the DeKalb County line, property owners north of William S. Witham's deny it in positive terms. They declare that the bulk of the convicts have been transferred to Peachtree work south of Buckhead and that only a handful are left on the other job. The said property owners have been placated, however, through circumstances. Whereas the outlying work has not been completed, the closer-in job is getting good attention.

The convicts, by the way, are taking a rest until the Fourth of July has passed.

Railroad Rumblings Heard.

Where is the railroad "lightning" going to strike on the West Side? A hundred property owners would like to know, since their land will jump far above what they paid for it. "I have a large tract on the West Side," declared a young business man Thursday, "and I would give a good deal to know if any railroads are coming through my property."

One of the best posted real estate men in the city declared that something big was going on and he couldn't find it out. "They haven't let me on to it," he said, "but I expect to get in before they are through. I have had some quiet offers on my property, but I have not set any price. My tip is to watch Walton Street. I believe a spur track will run up this thoroughfare before long and I shouldn't be surprised if the Seaboard will use it. The Seaboard is dependent on the N., C. and St. L., and through it, the L. and N., for both its freight and passenger terminals in Atlanta, and I believe is figuring on an arrangement of its own. I expect them to build both passenger and freight depots on the West Side."

Plans for running a connection between the Southern and the A., B. and A. near Mangum Street, and for putting a spur track adjacent to property of Judge E. C. Kontz and Philip Weltner for manufacturing purposes have already been told. That there is something else in the nature of a big surprise, however, is the belief of many, and the railroads are being watched closely.

Twelfth Story on Skyscraper.

Workmen are now ready to put the steel on the twelfth story of the Healey Building. Having placed the girders on the tenth floor, they are going two higher. The Healy Building now towers above the Grant Building and will soon surpass the Empire.

To Sell Lots at Auction.

Five lots and a six-room house at the corner of Park Avenue and Bryant Street, Grant Park section, will be sold July 9 by William A. Vernoy.

Ansley Park Buy.

Harry L. Waters has bought from A. C. Woolley a California bungalow on a 50 by 240-foot lot at 85 East Park Lane, Ansley Park, for $7,500. The deal was handled through W. L. & John O. DuPree.

Demand for Apartment Houses.

Atlanta continues to be a good market for apartment houses. Although a number are constantly building, there seems to be little trouble disposing of them at good prices. Cordial interest accordingly centered around the transfer of the Byron on West Peachtree, near Linden, from Byron Souders to I. P. Bradley, of Newnan, at $150,000. This was in the nature of a swap, Mr. Bradley putting in a Coweta County farm, besides assuming a loan of $40,000 placed June 30 through the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, and giving notes for most of the difference.

The property is 84 by 200 feet and adjoins a 100-foot parcel which Mr. Souders owns at the southwest corner of Linden and West Peachtree and which was the old Bewick place.

The Byron contains eighteen apartments and rents for $15,000 a year. It is distinctive in the possession of grotesque masks with which the front pillars are studded. Mr. Souders got these from a cast made by a local artist, and he introduced many other innovations picked up here and there.

Remodeling Eiseman Store.

The Eiseman Brothers' Company has begun making alterations on its store at 11, 13, 15 and 17 Whitehall, the same to cost about $4,000. The front stairway is being closed up and will be placed toward the rear, and more attractive show windows are being built. The Krueger Manufacturing Company has the contract. Business is going on as usual.

Prominent Atlantans Buy.

A. V. Gude, Jr., J. R. Moore, A. A. and Joseph Doonan, Lee M. Jordan, John J. Lynch, Joel Hunter and Chas. S. Kingsbery have bought a batch of ten large building lots in Cobb County just over the Chattahoochee River and on the river car line. The seller was the L. P. Grant estate, and the aggregate consideration $6,000. Mr. Lynch and Mr. Hunter bought two each and the others one each.

The lots are 100 by 400 feet, in the neighborhood of the residences of Howard Matthews, Sid Mitchell and others. A road through them is due to be paved soon.

Exchange Completed.

Details of the recent exchange of properties between Dr. M. A. Massoud and Jonathan B. Frost have been announced. Mr. Frost takes the S. Y. Tupper place at the northeast corner of West Peachtree and North Avenue for $44,000 and gives as part payment 209 Washington Street, formerly the Massoud home, at $25,000, and a vacant lot on the northeast side of Marietta Street, near Pine Street, at $6,000, and assumes the difference.

The Tupper corner is 68 feet on West Peachtree Street and 84 feet on North Avenue. It has been occupied lately by a fraternity house with a chapter at Tech. The lot netted Dr. Massoud $14,000 in three months.

A Queer Idea of Senatorial Courtesy--Particularly as Applied to Women.

Senator W. W. Stark, who represents, after a fashion, the Thirty-third District in the Senate of Georgia, has a queer idea of senatorial courtesy—particularly as applied to women.

He protested, and successfully, we are sorry to say, against permitting an hour or two's use of the Senate chamber of Georgia to a handful of earnest, sincere women of Georgia, because he—the Senator—does not "believe in" woman's suffrage!

These women did not propose to interfere with the proceedings of the Senate, and Senator Stark did not base his objections to their meeting upon that ground. He objected because he does not "believe in" woman's suffrage.

The Senator, no doubt, would have agreed, fast enough, for the Farmers' Union, or the State Democratic Executive Committee, or some other male organization, to meet in the Senate chamber, but he could not bring his weighty statesmanship to the point of permitting a few of the WOMEN of Georgia to tread within the sacred precincts of that hallowed spot set aside for Starks!

Senator Stark has much to learn. He will find that he can not slap the women of Georgia in the face—even a few of them—and "get away with it!"

The cause of woman's suffrage will stand or fall NOT by the standards set up by the Starks.

It will stand or fall in Georgia, according to the COMMON SENSE AND FAIRMINDEDNESS OF THE PEOPLE!

The Georgian understands that the women turned down by the Senate will apply to the House for permission to hold their two-nights' meetings there.

We believe they will be granted the small and perfectly legitimate favor they ask. The House will hardly repeat the remarkable and silly performance of the Senate, engineered by Senator Stark, and carried through, we really believe, before the Senate had opportunity to think of what a foolish and unwarranted thing it was being made a party to.

Teach Atlanta Mothers How to Bring Up Babies

Members of the Atlanta Mothers' Congress, who have undertaken to provide the poor babies of the city with milk during the hot summer months, have inaugurated a campaign of instruction.

Much of the milk is delivered by the members of the congress in person, and instruction on the care of babies can easily and readily be given.

The following rules for the care of the child have been indorsed by leading physicians throughout the country, and should be told and emphasized to every mother to whom deliveries of milk are made:

If you are worried about your baby, have a doctor see it, A GOOD DOCTOR. If you can not get a good doctor, go to the Department of Health, get the advice of a doctor at a free dispensary.

Don't wean the baby when the weather is very hot, if you can possibly help it, or when it is ill. The change in food upsets the digestion and may be fatal at a critical moment.

Feed your baby regularly.

Sacrifice everything to this important point. The child's stomach gets used to food at certain times, and digests it easily at those times, if the food is regular.

Every two hours in the daytime, and every four hours at night will do for feeding for a healthy child.

Don't dress your baby warmly, HAVE NOTHING TIGHT AROUND ITS NECK OR STOMACH, KEEP EVERYTHING LOOSE AND AIRY EVERYWHERE.

Have your windows open day and night. Keep the baby off the dirty floor, where it gets germs on its little hands and puts them in its mouth.

Remember that in the really hot weather the thinnest possible clothing is all that a child needs. One little, thin, cotton shirt, low-necked and without sleeves, will do while the baby is indoors.

Avoid strong draughts. But better a draught than not enough air.

Above all, give your baby enough to drink. If the baby cries in hot weather, give it two or three spoonfuls of water, cool, BUT NOT ICED.

Boil the water that you give your baby. And keep the boiled water tightly corked in a clean bottle so that germs won't get into it.

Feed it with a spoon dipped in hot water, A CLEAN SPOON.

Dangerous signs of disease that carry off children suddenly are vomiting and diarrhea. Notify your doctor, or the Health Department, AT ONCE.

Let your baby REST. KEEP THE FLIES AWAY FROM IT. THEY BRING DISEASE.

A young baby, washed clean in the morning, with cool but not cold water, put on its back almost naked on a bed with a mosquito netting thrown over the top of the bed (but not touching the child)—such a baby, fed regularly, with water to drink when it wants it, will be happy in hot weather.

Don't let the children tease the baby. Don't let grownup people play with it and tire it. Remember that it is GROWING UP AND DOING NOTHING ELSE. Don't try to awaken its intelligence or make it laugh.

If you stir up the little brain you disturb the little stomach.

Remember, WHENEVER A BABY CRIES SOMETHING IS WRONG.

Don't get cross; FIND OUT WHAT'S THE MATTER; that's your business. It may be a tight string, a bandage drawn too closely around the legs, need of a change of linen, or it may be thirst.

Don't feed the baby every time it cries. Give it water. Remember that.

MEANING AND SCOPE OF THE NEW CURRENCY BILL

Editor The Georgian:

I wish to thank you for the explanation which you have made regarding the meaning and scope of the new currency bill which is before the Congress for action. I have read your several editorials on the subject and desire to say that I not only concur in your opinion regarding the measure, but feel sure the lucid explanation which you have made will serve to give your readers a better and more comprehensive understanding of the bill than it has been possible to gather from the brief references made to it in the general press. I think it an excellent idea to put the facts about proposed important legislation within reach of your readers that they may have an opportunity of weighing them and ascertaining whether or not this legislation is what they want.

Cost of Neglecting Our Merchant Marine

More Than $1,000,000 Is Paid Each Day to Foreigners Building and Operating Foreign Ships to Carry the Trade of Our Country, He Says.

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES

IT is estimated that for the fiscal year ending June 30 the exports of the United States will reach the enormous figure of $2,400,000,000, and that the balance of trade in our favor will approximate $675,000,000—a sum never before equaled upon the balance sheet of nations.

These figures are a tribute to our national greatness and prosperity. They carry also a serious reflection upon our national enterprise and a distinct humiliation to our national pride.

For of all this mighty commerce overseas less than 8 per cent was transported under the American flag. This magnificent balance of our trade is almost cut in two by the enormous sums we pay to foreign ships to carry our own products to the markets of the world.

More than $750,000,000 of foreign capital is to-day invested in foreign yards building ships to transport the commerce we furnish.

MORE THAN $1,000,000 IS PAID EACH DAY TO FOREIGNERS BUILDING AND OPERATING FOREIGN SHIPS TO CARRY THE TRADE OF OUR COUNTRY. OF THIS $1,000,000 DAILY PAID 90 PER CENT GOES TO FOREIGN LABOR.

This $1,000,000 each day should be given to the American laborer and kept at home to do American business instead of going abroad to feed foreign labor and to enrich our commercial rivals.

No Delivery Wagons.

This is but a single phase of the injury we suffer from having no ships of our own. Our stupendous foreign trade is made in the face of the greatest obstacles. It would easily double within the next five years if we had our own ships—our own delivery wagons—to carry our trade to our customers.

The rate paid by every passenger and by every pound of freight going from any port of this country to any foreign port is fixed in advance by agreement among foreign steamship combines and conferences. If an American shipper desires to send a bushel of wheat or a bale of cotton or of any other product to Europe, he must pay the rate fixed in advance by the trust in Hamburg, Germany. If an American merchant wishes to send a barrel of flour or of cement or a piece of machinery or any freight to South America, he must wait until the foreign steamship combine in this country can ascertain from Europe what price must be charged for carrying it.

Not an American vessel runs from this country directly to South America beyond the Equator.

EVERY AMERICAN CITIZEN THAT CROSSES THE ATLANTIC OR GOES TO SOUTH AMERICA MUST PAY THE RATE THAT THE FOREIGN STEAMSHIP COMBINE FIXES IN ADVANCE IN JENA, GERMANY. OF COURSE, THESE RATES ARE ALWAYS THE HIGHEST THAT THE TRADE WILL BEAR.

Six per cent net is considered a reasonable profit upon investment of great sums of capital in this country. Yet the Hamburg-American Steamship Company admits a net profit of more than 10 per cent upon a capitalization of approximately $100,000,000. In fact the real net earning of the Hamburg company is said to be nearer to 20 per cent annually. This tremendous profit is chiefly levied upon American commerce.

Opposition to America.

Not only are all freight and passenger rates from this country to foreign ports fixed by agreement by these foreign combines, but these conferences constantly discriminate against American commerce in all competitive markets.

Take South America for illustration. The American shipper pays exactly the same rate from this country to South America on slow and antiquated ships running at irregular intervals that his European rival pays on fast modern vessels running on regular schedule. Now and then the European shipper by secret arrangement secures an advantage. Not only this, but the European shipper is given an immense advantage in promptness of delivery.

Under no circumstances will these foreign steamship combines permit an advantage to the American shipper.

To illustrate: Brazil prefers our flour. She gave us an advantage of 30 per cent over the other nations of the world in flour. Immediately these foreign shipping pools increased the freight rate on flour to just that extent. Again we were given an advantage of 20 per cent on cement. Immediately the freight rates between this country and South America on cement were increased over Europe until the European manufacturer controlled the market.

Deadly Tactics.

These are the deadly tactics followed by these foreign steamship lines in respect to every competitive article in which our country's products might have an equal chance with foreign products. And all the while we go on pouring our millions of servile tribute into the laps of the foreigners that rob us.

Every fact stated above as to the attitude of these foreign steamship combines has been testified to under oath by the agents and representatives of these combines in the recent Congressional investigation.

These combines state boldly that they monopolize our trade, that they fix our freight and passenger rates by agreement and that these rates are made in Europe. They further acknowledge that they are violating our anti-trust laws and that they intend to continue to violate them!

Yet because they are foreign companies we submit to this extortion and defiance of our laws with an indifference and complacency that is cowardly and shameful.

In the pending tariff bill an attempt was made to at least express our right to favor our own ships. It is simply inconceivable that an American Congress should have been deterred by any sort of influence from doing this and doing more!

The French in Mexico

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

IT was just 50 years ago—June 10, 1863—that the soldiers of Napoleon the Third, under the command of General Forey, with drums a-beating and bunting a-fluttering, marched into Mexico, to establish upon these Western shores a great Latin kingdom.

Almost immediately after the entry of the French, and doubtless by pre-arranged program, there was a meeting of the "Assembly of Notables," at which it was decided, with all due solemnity, that there should be established a monarchy with the City of Mexico as its capital and with Maximilian, Archduke of Austria, as Emperor.

On June 12, 1864, Maximilian and his wife entered the city of the Aztecs as Emperor and Empress, and three years later, June 19, 1867, the farce ended with the crack of the rifles which sent Maximilian to his death and his consort, broken-hearted, back to Europe.

The "Assembly of Notables" did not amount to as much as its members thought it did; and the Old World was given its first practical demonstration of the power of the "Monroe Doctrine;" a doctrine which, it would seem, Napoleon the Third had not looked upon with becoming seriousness.

To this day the Maximilian episode remains a puzzle to the student of history.

Some say that the idea of a great imperial Latin State side by side with the great English-speaking communities furnished the fascination upon Napoleon's mind which was responsible for the business; while others hold that the pursuit of the bubble was a necessity imposed upon the Emperor by the exigencies of his situation.

BULGARS CHARGE GREEK GUNS; 5,000 LOSS

Terrific Fight Raging Near Salonika—Another of Ferdinand's Armies Routed.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ATHENS, July 5.—Nearly a quarter of a million soldiers are engaged in a terrific battle which is being fought between Greece and Bulgarian armies north of Salonika.

The battle line extends for 100 miles, and from dispatches received to-day from the Greek military headquarters in Salonika it is estimated that more than 5,000 men had been killed or wounded.

There were 80,000 men in the Greek army, which is opposing a force over 100,000 strong. The Greeks have the advantage in location, occupying a lofty plateau. The Bulgarians charged repeatedly up the shell-swept slopes, exhibiting the utmost gallantry in their efforts to capture the Greek artillery.

Bulgars Charge Up Slope.

More than 150 heavy guns were ranged along the eminence and the most desperate fighting centered around these batteries. With brilliant courage the Bulgarians swept up the sides of the plateau, which was soon covered with dead and wounded troops.

Dispatches from the front said that the result would be decisive. King Constantine directed the operations of the Greek army from headquarters in Salonika, and it was believed here that he would take the field in person if he saw the day were going against his army.

A second Bulgarian army of 30,000 men is reported to be moving to join the troops engaged in battle. The second Bulgar army was at a point south of Tachynos Lake to-day, advancing on a forced march for the battlefield.

Greek Victory Reported.

A Greek victory is reported from Kilkis, where the Bulgarians were crushed by the heavy ordnance of the Hellenes. The Bulgars were unable to bring their artillery into action, owing to the fact that the infantry had outdistanced the artillery in the march upon the Greek forces.

The Bulgarian soldiers were dispersed, leaving behind sixty heavy guns, which the Greeks captured.

Miss Pearl McKay Is Heroine of Attack While Selling "War Cry" in Saloon.

One might not believe pretty Miss Pearl McKay, a sixteen-year-old Salvation Army lassie, has punch enough in her right arm to put out a big, strong man, but there is one man in Atlanta who knows that she has. Generally Miss McKay's uniform entitles her to every protection, but, to quote her own words, "sometimes a rowdy who doesn't know any better tries to get fresh."

Miss McKay sells the "War Cry" in offices, stores, on the streets, and also in near-beer saloons, and only one time during her six months' experience in Atlanta has she had an unpleasant experience.

On this occasion Miss McKay was selling the "War Cry" in a near-beer saloon. Starting out the door she was seized from behind by a intoxicated man. Quickly turning, Miss McKay struck the man in the face. This angered him, and instead of loosening his hold, he tightened it.

With a desperate effort she tore from his grasp and struck her assailant with all her might. He staggered back, but the little Salvation Army lassie's ire was up, and she went after the man, raining blow after blow on his face and head.

The onlookers applauded the plucky little maid as she continued her punishment.

Evidently realizing that there was to be no let-up in the sturdy blows of the angered girl, the man turned and fled, followed by the delighted jeers of the spectators.

ARREST NEAR OF AUTOIST WHO HIT CHILD

Citizens Join Hunt for Speeder. Declare They Can Identify Guilty Driver.

The police dragnet set for the automobile driver who ran down and seriously injured little Eva Kilpatrick last Wednesday has resulted in the finding of a clew which, it is believed, will result in the arrest of the guilty party within twenty-four hours.

Special Officer J. B. Dorsett, who had been detailed on the case reported to Captain Poole Saturday morning that he had found several persons who reside in the vicinity of the Kilpatrick home who say they will be able to identify the driver of the car.

Although none of these persons witnessed the accident they did see the car both before and after the accident, it is said, and furthermore have seen the same car pass down Mills Street on other occasions.

In the meantime the war on speed has been waged so vigorously that Recorder Broyles had not a single case before him Monday morning. He declared, however, that breakers of the law would promptly be sent to the stockade upon conviction.

Chief Beavers also has redoubled his efforts to apprehend the violators of the speed law by detailing special men.

Legal Battle To-day in Phagan Case

CITIZENS AID IN TAKING YEGGMAN

Robber, Surrounded and Wounded in Kirkwood Postoffice, Said To Be Freed Convict.

Evidence to show previous safe-blowing activities of Thomas W. Turpin, alias J. W. Johnson, the yeggman who was shot in a pistol duel with citizens and constables after attempting to blow the Kirkwood post-office safe shortly after midnight Friday, was found Satuday morning at Turpin's boarding house, 226 1-2 Marietta Street, where he removed about five days ago after being ousted from the Union Rescue Mission. Police Sergeant Hewell found a large number of postage stamps, stamped envelopes, special delivery stamps and a couple of hundred pennies in Turpin's boarding house.

Further discoveries develop the fact that Turpin was released last March from the Federal prison and that since that time he has been cared for a prominent society woman who was interested in his case.

Wound Found to Be Slight.

Although Turpin was believed to have been mortally wounded in the duel with the officers, an examination at the Grady Hospital showed the wound to be in the flesh only. Turpin Saturday morning was removed to the Decatur Jail, where he refuses to talk further than to say that he was the man who attempted to blow the safe of the Kirkwood Post Office Friday night. He still maintains that his name is J. W. Johnson, of Philadelphia, although this has been disputed by Officer Hewell, who has found evidence at his boarding house.

Sheriff McCurdy, who has the prisoner in charge, has placed a strong watch at the prison, as Turpin is regarded as a desperate man, who will stop at nothing to make a getaway.

Kirkwood has never been the scene of such another battle as was enacted Friday. Following two explosions, which partially wrecked the office, L. J. Cassels, one of the owners of the building, and Marshall H. P. Phillips hurried to the scene. Others joined the party on the way, and when the line of battle was drawn, the yeggman was found barricaded in the office, while opposing him were Cassels, Phillips, Fleming and City Clerk O. O. Ray.

Drives Citizens to Cover.

The firing began almost immediately, Turpin, it is said, leading off with an automatic pump gung which sent members of the posse scampering to cover. Marshal Phillips and the other members of the attacking party returned the fire, firing from behind neighboring trees. Suddenly the firing ceased as quickly as it had begun, for the man in the office was heard to utter a sharp cry of pain.

The attacking party rushed from behind the trees at this juncture and found their man lying on his face, apparently desperately wounded. Although shot near the heart, the wounded man was able to murmur a name, J. W. Johnson, of Philadelphia, to Marshal Phillips.

The postoffice was wrecked by the explosion and the safe blown open.

Double Jewels on Ankles at Newport

NEWPORT, R. I., July 5.—Mrs. Charles H. Welsh, of Philadelphia, appeared on Thames Street wearing two jeweled ornaments on her ankles. Mrs. Welsh astonished Newport a week ago when she wore a single jeweled ankle ornament, but the two are said to be far more ornate than the one exhibited last week.

'Hello Girls' Throw Open Summer Camp With Informal Dance

Camp Wyanoke presented a beautiful scene at its opening last night when 100 young ladies of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company entertained a number of friends at an informal dance. The pavilion, just completed, was gayly decorated.

The camp, an innovation in the way of entertainment for the "Hello Girls," has been established under the auspices of officials of the company and is in charge of competent chaperones. The young women employed by the company will spend their vacation there.

Mrs. Mattie Kirkpatrick, of Decatur, is in charge of the camp. She will remain there for three months. Miss Kathryn C. Tatum and the chief operators, Mrs. Belle Mitchell, Miss Ada Melor, Miss Alice Means and Miss Estelle Rutledge, form the committee in charge.

Griffin Gasps as Folk Get Glimpse Of Slashed Skirt

GRIFFIN, July 5.—Griffin got its first view of the famous slashed skirt here yesterday when Miss Eleanor McHarris, of Macon, appeared at the Spalding County Fair Grounds during the Fourth of July festivities. She came near breaking up the celebration. Everybody left the barbecued meats, interest was lost in the horse races and nobody cared whether a game of ball was played or not. Miss McHarris made a brave effort to overcome the gaze of the crowd, but failed.

The skirt was not of the ultra-fashionable cut, but it was more than Griffin was accustomed to So Griffin took a good look.

RICHMOND, July 5.—Colonel William H. Chapman, revenue agent in charge of the Virginia District, is being strongly urged for the position of chief revenue agent, wi th headquarters in Washington. This place is now held by G. W. Trowbridge, a Republican.

Colonel Chapman is a close friend of Colonel William H. Osborn, of Greensboro, N. C., the new Commissioner of Internal Revenue. He is a brother of Miss Kate Chapman and Edmund G. Chapman, of 63 Fraser Street, Atlanta.

Two Drowned Near Savannah on Fourth

SAVANNAH, July 5.—The Fourth took a toll of two deaths near Savannah yesterday. George Egan, 17 years old, of Barrigan, was drowned in a creek near Herb River, Thunderbolt, when he got over his depth while in bathing. But for the timely arrival of a boatman, Dewey Holmes would also have been drowned.

James O. Knight, aged 22, fell from a boat on the Ogeechee River and was drowned before other people in the boat could go to his rescue. He was attending a Sunday school class picnic.

Writ Out for Arrest Of Sylvia Pankhurst

LIBERTY FOR NEWT LEE SOUGHT

Writ to Free Watchman From the Tower Will Be Filed—State to Oppose Liberation.

The prosecution will fight an entirely new angle in the Phagan case Saturday morning when Barnard L. Chappell, attorney for Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, files a writ of habeas corpus for the release of the negro from the Tower, where he is being held without any charge against him.

Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey will ask the courts to hold the negro as a material witness for the State, or may charge him with being an accessory. He was determined Friday to take no chances on so important a witness getting out of his control, as he feared the negro might get beyond the jurisdiction of the courts if given his liberty.

Attorney Chappell and Solicitor Dorsey had agreed, when the negro was committed to jail, to keep him there until the trial. Chappell notified Dorsey Wednesday that he wished to withdraw from the agreement and get his client freed.

Chief Discounts Conley Rumor.

The announcement Friday that the defense had secured an important and damaging affidavit that connected the State's star witness, Jim Conley, more directly with the crime created a sensation in the ranks of the prosecution.

Chief of Detectives Newport A. Lanford announced that every movement of the negro on the day of the crime had been "checked up," and that it was a matter of impossibility to find anything more damaging against him than his admission that he helped dispose of the body at the request of Frank.

In commenting on the affidavit secured at the office of Joseph H. Leavitt Thursday the attorney said that it would be almost impossible for the prosecution to break down any statement that was made in the affidavit when the witness was placed on the stand.

Calls Evidence Vital.

He said the witness was a citizen of high standing and would be one of the most important for the defense of Frank.

Attorney Leavitt said that this particular affidavit was one of more than 50 that had been recently secured that dealt almost exclusively with the movements of the negro on the day of the murder. While he would not comment at any length, he intimated that the defense had been able to establish conclusively the exact time Conley entered and left the factory.

He also intimated that affidavits had been secured that would show what time Monteen Stover entered and left the factory and be able to prove she left before Mary Phagan's car reached the vicinity of the pencil factory.

Militants Burn Two Churches; Rob Safe

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

CARDIFF, WALES, July 5.—Fifty thousand dollars' damage was done by militants to-day at Pullheli in Carnarvonshire, where members of the arson squad burned the Welsh Methodist Church.

The women also burned the Tabernacle Baptist Church. They broke into the parsonage, robbed the safe, destroyed the contents of the place and escaped. One of the incendiaries was said to be about fifteen years old.

Forecast for Atlanta and Georgia—Thundershowers Saturday; probably fair Sunday.

Profit Made in Fake Consumption 'Cures' $10,000,000 a Year

NEW YORK, July 5.—Within the last five years, no less than 500 fraudulent "cures" for consumption have been tried on thousands of victims in the United States. Exploiters of these nostrums have reaped a clear profit of not less than $50,000,000. This is an estimate made by the National Association for the Study and Prevention of Tuberculosis.

The association estimates that not less than $20,000,000 is invested in the business of manufacturing and exploiting fake cures for tuberculosis, and that the annual income is $15,000,000. About one-third of this amount is spent for advertising, leavig a profit of $10,000,00 a year, which the association says is "blood money" taken from ignorant consumptives.

The association declares no specific cure for tuberculosis has been discovered, except the well-tried hygienic-dietetic method of fresh air, rest and good food.

Operatic 'Hear Ye!' by A Schumann-Heink

NEW YORK, July 5.—Henry Schumann-Heink, son of Madame Schumann-Heink, the prima donna, received word yesterday at his home in Paterson, N. J., that he is first on the list for the position of court crier in the Passaic County Common Pleas Court.

Many quips were heard about regarding his suitability for the position, as he has inherited a fine voice. Friends of the young man declared that, instead of the dry monotone of the ordinary court criers' the "Hear ye, hear ye!" will hereafter be given in clear, operatic notes.

Giant Fish Wounds Boy, 16, in Swimming

MARSHFIELD, WIS., July 5.—The following fish story is vouched for by Dr. Harold Jensen, of Park Falls, Wis., who dressed the wounds of the boy.

A giant muskallonge attacked Frank Haasl, Jr., 16 years old, when he was in bathing and tried to drag him beneath the surface. When the boy was rescued he was covered with scratches and bites, and it was necessary for his swimming companions to carry him in an automobile to the nearest physician.

Bishop Says Prayer Book Holds Nonsense

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, July 5.—In the Upper House of Convocation for the Province of Canterbury, the Bishop of Ely to-day moved for the appointment of a committee to revise the Prayer Book and Psalter. The resolution was adopted unanimously.

The Bishop of Ely said that all were aware that the Prayer Book and Psalter contained "passages which, to speak truth, are not far removed from being nonsense."

Captain Thompson, Shot at Owls Club, Declares Revolver Fell From Piano.

The mystery surrounding the shooting of Captain A. C. Thompson, County Warden, in the Owls' Club Friday night, for which Mrs. Lucy Ballue is held by the police, was deepened Saturday morning, when fresh statements of the affair were made public to the police by the two principals. The new statements differ even in the minor details.

Captain Thompson told this story of the shooting: He said he met Mrs. Ballus down town late in the afternoon, and that they went to the Owls' Club for refreshments. Thompson denied that they had been drinking, but said they had just ordered some drinks when the shot was fired.

He said that during the wait for the drinks, Mrs. Ballue volunteered to play the piano and seated herself at the instrument. He said he became hot and removed his coat and holster containing his revolver.

Accident Says Thompson.

The coat and gun he placed on the piano, he said, after which he resumed his seat at the table. Mr. Ballus finished playing and whirled around on the piano stool and said something to him, Captain Thompson said, and at that instant the revolver fell from the piano and was discharged. The bullet penetrated Captain Thompson's right thigh near the hip and ranged downward. The wound is not serious.

According to Mrs. Ballue's new statement, she met Thompson about 4 o'clock at Whitehall and Hunter Streets, and then went to the Owls' Club.

Mrs. Ballue's Story.

Mrs. Ballue said they had been drinking before the shooting. She said that she had not quarreled with her escort, and insists that the shooting was accidental. She told the police she had been playing the piano for Captain Thompson and had then returned to their table. When the shooting occurred, they were sitting close together, chatting, she says. Mrs. Ballue declares she did not see Captain Thompson's revolver, and did not know he had a weapon until she heard the report and heard the captain say he was shot.

Mrs. Ballue is the wife of John Ballue, a structural iron worker, from whom she has been separated for about two years. She claims she has known Captain Thompson for nearly a year.

Arrested on Street.

Detectives Doyal and Waggoner, attached to headquarters, arrested Mrs. Ballue at Garnett and Pryor Streets after what they asserted was an attempt to spirit her away by L. C. Raoul, secretary of the Owls' Club. The detectives, unable to find either the girl or Mr. Raoul at the clubrooms, started a search. They learned the girl and the secretary had slipped quietly down the back stairs half an hour after the shooting of Captain Thompson. They hurried down Pryor Street, hoping to intercept them before the girl was taken away.

As they neared Pryor and Garnett Streets the detectives saw a man and a woman lurking in the shadows of the building. Not knowing whether tehy were Mrs. Ballue and Mr. Raoul or strangers, Doyal and Waggoner secreted themselves across the street and awaited developments. In a few minutes a cab drove rapidly up to the curbing and the door was flung open. A voice from within the cab commanded the man and woman to enter, and to "hurry up."

As Raoul and Mrs. Ballue rushed across the sidewalk and started to enter the cab the detectives recognized them and hurried across the street. They accosted the two.

Woman Denies Shooting.

According to stories told to Night Chief Jett by Detective Waggoner, both Raoul and the woman were nervous when confronted by the officers. Raoul did not speak, they said, after they grasped his arm, but the woman twisted away from the detective who held her and faced them. She demanded:

"What do you want me for? I didn't shoot him!"

The woman then tried to break away and enter the waiting cab, but the officers ordered her to go to headquarters with them. Raoul, too, went along.

The detectives claim the utterance of the woman when they placed her under arrest was significant. Waggoner, whom she asked why she was wanted, and whom she told she had not shot Captain Thompson, declared that he had not mentioned the shooting or told her why she was wanted. He and his partner, Doyal, had simply told them to wait a moment, catching them just as they started to hurry into the cab.

At headquarters Friday night the woman answered the questions put to her by Chief Jett readily and composedly, and emphatically denied that she had shot Captain Thompson. Her version of the affair, as told to Chief Jett, is as follows:

Other Women in Room.

She has known Captain Thompson for some time, she declared, and last night had gone with him to the club. They entered the reception parlors of the club and took a seat at one of the tables. She claims she had drank but one glass of wine before the shooting. Her escort, it is said, was drinking highballs and rickeys, but was not intoxicated. Two other men, seated at a table near the doorway, were the only other occupants of the room.

After they had sat at the table for perhaps an hour, the women says, Captain Thompson asked her to play the piano. She played popular music for some moments, she said, and did not hear a shot which, she said, came as she was playing ragtime in a particularly loud key. She said she supposed the sound of the piano drowned the shot. As she softened the tones of the piano she heard the sound of a fall, and turned around on the piano stool.

Then she heard Captain Thompson cry that he was shot and saw him fall to the floor. His revolver lay on the floor beside him. The two women near the door were standing by their table, and gazing in horror at the figure of the captain on the floor.

Mrs. Ballus declared she was dazed by the sight and covered her face with her hands, and when she looked up again the women were gone. A number of men, she declared, were standing over Captain Thompson, and he was telling them he had accidentally shot himself.

Raoul Claims Accident.

Raoul, who accompanied the detectives and their prisoners to headquarters, was not questioned by the police, or asked to give any explanation of his part in the affray. His only comment, made while the woman was being cross-examined by the officers, was that the shooting was an accident. He did not elaborate his statement into an explanation of any sort.

Other officails of the club maintain that Captain Thompson had been wounded by the accidental discharge of a cartridge when his revolver dropped from the holster to the floor of the reception room. Secretary Raoul has advanced this explanation of the shooting, and also declares that two men were in the reception room with Captain Thompson and witnessed the accident. He said there were no women in the parlor.

In direct contrast to Mr. Raoul's statement is the assertion made by Mrs. Balleus that she was in the parlor when the shot was fired, and that two other women occupied seats near the door. One of the mysteries of the affair is the disappearance of the two women whom Mrs. Balleu said witnessed the shooting. They left immediately after the occurrence, and detectives have so far been unable to locate them. The search is being continued, however, and if they can be found they will be held as material witnesses. According to Mrs. Balleu, they are the only persons who witnessed the actual firing of the shot.

Detectives Not Told Truth.

Strenuous efforts were made by the club officials and by Captain Thompson to keep the affair quiet. When detectives arrived to investigate the shooting, accompanied by newspaper men, they were told that Captain Thompson had been accidentally shot and had been taken to his home in a cab. The groans of the wounded man as he lay on a table in a nearby room gave them away, however, and it was discovered that he was still in the club. He was then taken to Grady Hospital for medical attention. Prior to his removal to the hospital, Captain Thompson was questioned by Detectives Vickery and Hamby, who answered the first call to the club, but he refused to talk, and would give no explanation of the shooting.

The officers accompanied the ambulance to the hospital, and continued their quizzing of the wounded man. They claim he remained sullen and defiant, but after being placed on the operating table admitted he had been shot by the girl during a quarrel. Hamby and Vickery visited the hospital against about midnight and again questioned Captain Thompson. This time, they assert, he declared the shooting was an accident, and that Mrs. Ballue had nothing to do with it.

Woman Young and Pretty.

The report that when they entered the club Captain Thompson registered himself and his companion as "Mr. and Mrs. Thompson," is denied by Secretary Raoul. Mrs. Ballue declared her escort did the registering and she did not know what names he wrote. She said she supposed, however, that he had written her real name.

Harry Latham, a court deputy, told the police that when he met Thompson and Mrs. Ballue in the club rooms, Thompson had introduced her to him as Mrs. Thompson, at which Mrs. Ballue became angry and exclaimed that she was not his wife—that she wasn't anyone's wife.

Mrs. Ballue is a pretty, dark-haired woman with brown eyes. She lives at 18 Yynch Avenue. At headquarters she gave her age as 22 years.

Captain Thompson has been in charge of one of the convict camps of Fulton County for several years. He is 30 years old and unmarried, and lives on the Howell Mill Road.

SIDELIGHTS on GEORGIA POLITICS

By JAMES B. NEVIN

The political hosts in Georgia may not realize it quite, but when William Michael Bairman, of The Macon Telegraph, passed away on Thursday last the best informed man on things political in Georgia ceased to be.

Not only was he the best informed man in Georgia on State politics, but he was one of the sweetest and gentlest characters that ever lived within the Commonwealth.

Mr. Bairman was modest to an extraordinary degree, and one rarely saw his name in print—this writer never saw it figure in the head lines, at least, until those head lines announced Mr. Bairman's untimely death.

He it was who kept for years that remarkable "scrap book" of The Telegraph, so often invoked by his chief, Colonel Pendleton, to the chagrin, humiliation and undoing of an antagonist!

If ever you, Mr. Politician, did anything in Georgia that got into a newspaper somewhere, you may rest assured it was in this fearful and wonderful "scrap book!"

And yet Mr. Bairman did not keep that book for the purpose of humiliating or undoing antagonists so much as he kept it for the honorable and worthy purpose of perpetuating genuine history and keeping the records absolutely right. Far from desiring to hurt unnecessarily the feelings of any person, Bairman would not have hurt the feelings of God's humblest creature if it might be avoided!

Like the other men of his kind one occasionally meets as one passes down the way of life, Mr. Bairman was exceedingly generous to his fellow men, both in judgment upon them and in ministering to their material wants. He rarely if ever spoke an unkind word of any man, and if he ever turned down an appeal for charity few people sem to have known anything about it.

For many years he has been Editor Pendleton's right-hand man—and it is certain that that splendid editor will miss him sorely. But the greatest loss is sustained by the readers of The Telegraph. He has been, often unknown to them, their surest source of information and fact.

Postmaster J. Park Bowie, by the womanly grace of Mrs. Woodrow Wilson, will take charge of the Rome office on Tuesday next. When boys and girls together, Mr. Bowie and Mrs. Wilson used to make "mud pies."

Mr. Bowie lost an even $100, and was delayed in going into office two weeks because of a stupid and clumsy mistake made in his commission when it was first issued.

When his first commission arrived it was discovered that it had Rome down as being in "Rome" County instead of in "Floyd" County, and it had to go back for correction. So exacting are the red-tape methods in the Postoffice Department that it was two good weeks before the commission got back, shaped up as it should be.

Postmaster Barclay, the efficient outgoing official, could not see where he stood to shed unnecessary tears over the situation, however, as it rounded up an even $100 for him that he wasn't expecting to get!

Senator E. H. Elkins, of the Fifteenth District, already has grown to be one of the best-known men in the General Assembly.

He is democratic in his ways and the dignity of a Senator, while duly appreciated by him, does not sit too heavily upon him. He is a good mixer and makes friends easily.

Mr. Elkins is a fine business man, and is looked upon generally as safe and sane in judgment, and as a man whose word always is as good as his bond. He evidently is destined to take a high stand in the present Legislature.

Mr. Park, of Liberty, objects to Latin phrases in proposed bills and resolutions.

When Mr. Wright, of Floyd, sent a resolution to the clerk's desk the other day, proposing that certain days to be taken as vacation be declared "dies non," Mr. Park promptly objected. He said he didn't know what "dies non" meant, and he didn't propose to vote for something he didn't know anything whatever about!

Amid the chorus of "noes" entered against Mr. Wright's proposal, Mr. Park's was easily the most vociferous.

The present Legislature, by the way, doesn't seem inclined to do anything calculated to run the legislative session over its natural fifty days' limit.

Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick, of the Tenth District, is in Atlanta for a few days.

Mr. Hardwick has announced his intention not to be a candidate to succeed himself. He desires to enter actively into the practice of law, and feels that he can not well spare further time to Congressional service.

The Congressman from the Tenth has had ten years' experience and in that time has risen to be one of the real influential men in the House. He is attentive to his duties, and has a particularly keen insight into things. He is now a member of the House Committee on Rules, which is the highest evidence of his standing among his colleagues.

Hardwick still is a young man, and has many years of usefulness ahead of him. It is a matter of genuine regret to thousands of Georgians that he has elected to retire at the end of his present term.

Next week will see the beginning of real legislative activity.

All the committees of the Senate and House have been organized and are ready for business. There is not a committee of importance, moreover, that hasn't already on hand a more or less jam of business. Between Monday and Saturday there should be reported back to the House a large number of bills with recommendations.

Representative Crawford Wheatley intends working his big Committee on Appropriations to a frazzle, if necessary, in order to get the general appropriations bill on its way to the Senate. But before starting them to work Mr. Wheatley proposes putting them in a perfectly good humor with himself and the world in general by dining them sumptuously.

He will give the committee an elaborate dinner Tuesday evening at the Capital City Club.

BUY A TUT, TUT-OPHONE AND SAY WHAT YOU LIKE

("Tut, tut" is President Wilson's fiercest expletive, according to Robert Emmet Taylor, at the Washington Country Club.—NEWS ITEM.)

By HANK

It used to be the custom, when a golf ball disappeared,
For each disgruntled player to go cussing in his beard,
A dot, a dash, an asterisk, would mean some bold expletive
Directed at a golf ball most annoyingly secretive,
But now if something jars you as you "drive," or "swing," or "putt,"
You mustn't venture further than a simple, mild "Tut, tut,"
And if a nail you're driving, and your thumb you neatly squash,
Your feeling can be petted with the exclamation, "Gosh!"
The uttermost that you can say is, "Goodness sake!" and "Mercy!"
The good old days of —!—! and !—!—! have surely vanished, but We're not bereft, there still is left that terrible "Tut, tut!"

250,000 KAFFIRS REBEL IN AFRICA

Reign of Terror Grips Johannesburg — Many Striking Gold Miners Slain by Police.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

JOHANNESBURG, SOUTH AFRICA, July 5.—Many striking gold miners in the Rand district were shot down to-day by British soldiers in the korst fighting which has occurred in the great gold tie-up of South Africa.

This city is held at the mercy of turbulent mobs, armed with rifles and dyanmite. One thousand strikers, including many Kaffirs, paraded through the streets shooting up the city and causing a reign of terror.

In one clash with the police 65 men were shot. Half that number were killed. A state of anarchy exists in many districts. A mob of 1,000 rushed the railway station at Braamfontein Park and burned it.

Fighting was in progress here all night and it was estimated that at least $50,000 damage was done. Efforts of the police to control the situation was futile.

A state of revolution has been brought about by the action of the blacks in joining the strikers. At least 250,000 Kaffirs are taking part in the conflagration of violence.

The unions are trying to induce members of other trades to join the walk-out, thus completely tying up all the industrial interests in South Africa.

Taste for Melons Seems on the Wane

Dealers in watermelons are up in arms over the apparent lost appetite of Atlantans for the luscious fruit or vegetable, as you choose to call it. Despite the fact that a large supply of the juicy fruit was in Atlanta yesterday the demand was small.

"What has become of the old watermelon cutting parties?" queried one dealer. "The sale of watermelons in restaurants is greatly on the increase, but the home consumption is falling off rapidly.

Turnverein Holds Its Annual Picnic

Members of the Atlanta Turn Verein enjoyed their annual picnic at Germania Park yesterday. An unusually large crowd attended it, and from 10 o'clock in the morning until late last night there wasn't a dull moment.

Dancing was indulged in, while nearly everyone donned a bathing suit and spent hours in the lake.

U. S. SETS SMOKE AND DRINK RECORD

Consumes 64,500,000 Barrels of Beer, 143,300,000 Gallons of Liquor, 7,707,000,000 Cigars.

WASHINGTON, July 5. — The American people drank more whisky and beer, smoked more cigars and cigarettes, and chewed more tobacco during the fiscal year 1913 than in any other yearly period of the nation's history, according to estimates based to-day upon the record-breaking internal revenue receipts of the Federal Government for twelve months ended June 30.

The drinkers consumed 143,300,000 gallons of whisky and brandy and 64,500,000 barrels of beer.

Smokers puffed 7,707,000,000 cigars and 14,012,000,000 cigarettes. Patrons of the pipe smoked 403,200,000 pounds of tobacco and chewers of snuff disposed of 33,2000,000 pounds.

Despite the high record, the number of saloons of the country decreased by 18,000 during the year, the retail liquor dealers numbering about 450,000.

Assessments on drinking and smoking luxuries, on corporations and on oleomargarine and other articles taxed by the Federal Government brought into the United States treasury $344,426,884, the greatest amount in history, exceeding the previous high record of 1911 by $21,900,000.

FINDS FARMERS SERFS UNDER U. S. LAWS

John Sprunt Hill, of American Commission Abroad, Recounts Needed Credit Reforms.

By JOHN SPRUNT HILL.
(North Carolina Member American Farm Credits Commission.)

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, July 5.—The banking system of America has until now been conducted too much on city lines. It has neglected the farmer.

Investors will not furnish money to the farmer at the same rates of interest as to railroads and corporations:

Firstly, because of antiquated laws in a majority of the States taxing mortgages at from 2 to 3 per cent, while railroad bonds, payable to bearer, and therefore easily concealed, practically remain untaxed;

Secondly, because of the lack of machinery for placing land mortgages before the investor.

U. S. Banking Restrictions.

We have one banking institution for about 4,000 people in the United States, but national banks are prohibited by law from lending money on real estate and a great majority of the State banks, savings banks and trust companies, for some reason which they are unable satisfactorily to define, share this prejudice.

Though along this line in the United States is moulded almost entirely by city bankers who do not come in close contact with the farmer and small land owner. City bankers are apt to assume that principles governing the conduct of business in cities should be applied to the financial affairs of farmers. The result is that the merchants and manufacturers and business men in cities have virtually all the machinery for obtaining cheap credit in their hands while the average farmer is thrown back on such forms of high-priced credit as he can obtain from local merchants.

Financial Serfdom.

The small farmer is, therefore, restricted in the choice of places for buying his supplies, forced to pay at least 33 1-3 percent higher for supplies than other persons paying cash, is also frequently restricted as to the place for selling his products, denied the benefits of competitive prices, and in many cases reduced to a state of financial serfdom.

There is no such discrimination in Europe. Generally speaking, Continental Europe furnishes sound, elastic credit to the farmer on as good or even more favorable basis than to any other class. We need a campaign of education along this line in the United States that will promote a better understanding between our bankers and farmers.

We need a system in the United States by which land mortgages can be quickly and economically mobilized so that collateral trust bonds issued on these aggregated mortgages can be made readily negotiable and marketable.

What is the plain story of Europe should be the story of the United States, namely, that farm lands on a basis of real value, earning power and stability are the best asset in the country. Some day doubtless President Wilson and Bryan and Taft will give more attention to the farmers and less to cities.

In the United States we need cooperation to still the raging winds of discontent and give relief in the sunshine of equal opportunity of organized democratic manhood and brotherly love.

Need of Co-Operation.

Co-operation is necessary to check socialism, which tends always to drag things down to one level. Co-operation is essentially American. Socialism is not American. In many parts of Europe co-operation flourishes, and land is considered a safer and more favorable basis of credit than stocks of corporations and other securities.

The foolish laws and more foolish prejudices against extending credit on land as security should be abolished, and as in Europe, money advanced 5 per cent or less, should be brought within the reach of the small farmer. Our antiquated laws should be reformed, and our farmers should know some of that "new freedom" of whom President Wilson speaks and hopes so much.

LAWYER ADMITS FLNDERS CASE IS DROPPED

Evidence Is Insufficient to Show Woman Had Guilty Knowledge of Slaying, Prosecutor Says.

SWAINSBORO, GA., July 5.—The reports which have been published from time to time that Mrs. Mattie Flanders will never be tried for murder of her husband to-day are formally confirmed by a statement made by A. S. Bradley, of counsel engaged by the Flanders family to prosecute the woman.

"The State does not expect to try the case against Mrs. Flanders, and I will ask the court to enter a nolle prosequi," Mr. Bradley said.

"This in fact seems to be the only honorable course to pursue, frankly, so far as the attorneys representing the prosecution are concerned. We have been convinced of the fact ever since the trial of Dr. McNaughton, and before the jury rendered a verdict the matter was discussed among us. We decided that while the evidence showed beyond a doubt the guilt of Dr. McNaughton it was legally insufficient to connect Mrs. Flanders with the crime.

"There is great distinction between the cases against the two defendants and this has been especially marked by the line of reasoning the Supreme Court adopted in arriving at a judgment sustaining their verdict against Dr. McNaughton.

"The State is not in possession of sufficient evidence to even lead to a conclusion that Mrs. Flanders was aware that drugs administered to her husband were poisonous.

"We have continued the trial so far for the sole reason that we felt that it might be possible more evidence would be obtained. It has not been obtained and there seems to be no reasonable possibility that any stronger case can be made out at this time. If more evidence can be brought to light in the future it still would be possible to indict the defendant and try her.

"Frankly I always have felt that I did not care to go before a jury and ask it to render a verdict of conviction in a case in which I have absolutely no confidence in the legal sufficiency of the evidence."

Smithsonian Given Star-Spangled Flag

WASHINGTON, July 5.—The Smithsonian Institution announces that the original Star-Spangled Banner was in the possession of the Smithsonian and had been placed on exhibition. This flag floated over Fort McHenry on September 13 and 14, 1814, when the British fleet attacked Baltimore. It is 27 feet 6 inches wide by 32 feet 10 inches long and has fifteen stripes and fifteen stars.

The flag that was the inspiration for the famous patriotic song was kept by Colonel George Armistead, who was in command at Fort McHenry, and handed down to his grandson, Even Appleton, of New York.

GERMANS THINK CANAL WILL BE FAILURE

Landslides Will Make It Unsafe for Big Vessels, Expert Engineers Claim.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, July 5.—Experts sent to Panama by a leading German steamship line which contemplates big developments when the canal is available have reported that in their opinion large ocean-going liners will not be able to pass through that waterway for another five years at least.

They base this opinion on the frequency of landslides in the Culebra cut, which have been on such a scale recently that steam shovels are making no progress in that part of the work. It is probable, the experts admit, that next January, if not sooner, several torpedo boats will be sent through by the United States Government. Indeed, it is said the cutting is deep enough now to allow small vessels to go through, but there apparently is no assurance of permanency.

Moreover, the engineers are said to recognize that when the water is let in there will be some erosion and that unless proper preparations are made it will cause the slides to block the canal.

Another danger is said to arise in connection with earthquakes, which may endanger the stability of the lock gates.

Generally speaking, the shipping people, as well as the underwriters on this side of the Atlantic are not now quite so certain about the Panama route as they were some time ago. Some members of Lloyd's have said that they will not cover the risk unless at premiums which probably will be considered prohibitive.

It is asserted that those responsible for the enterprise now admit that the plans should have provided for a sea-level waterway.

R. F. D. Men Urge State Road Body

At the annual meeting of the Rural Mail Carriers' Association of Georgia a resolution was adopted urging the creation of a state highway commission and that all rural routes be made public roads. The carriers, who are among the most active advocates of better roads, were unanimous.

They were given an address of welcome by Mayor Woodward. Fred L. White, of the letter carriers, responded. Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick delivered an address and a number of other talks were made.

At the second session of the meeting Saturday Governor John M. Slaton and W. D. Brown, editor of The R. F. D. News, of Washington, made talks. The meeting was prepared to adjourn after the election of officers.

FIGHTS MAD DOG, SAVING CHILDREN

Youth Holds Animal by Neck 30 Minutes — Police Come and Slay It—Hailed as Hero.

Displaying great courage and judgment, J. A. LaHatte, 17 years old, of 125 Washington Street, held a mad bulldog by the throat 30 minutes Friday afternoon, saving his own life and that of several small children.

LaHatte noticed the dog following and snapping at children playing on Washington Street. He warned them of their danger. The animal turned into the yard of 295 Washington Street and entered the home of Mrs. Mary L. Belcher, trailing after the frightened children to an upstairs bedroom.

LaHatte went to their rescue. In the upstairs apartment the dog leaped at him. He caught the animal in the air and held his jaws apart till an opportunity to clinch its neck presented itself, when he shifted his grip.

Policemen Shumate and Palmer arrived in answer to summons. While LaHatte held the dog, they tied a rope about his neck, lowered it to the ground, tied it to a tree and shot it to death with their revolvers.

Policemen and all the men and women in the neighborhood gave LaHatte an informal levee, complimenting him on his bravery.

Dr. Robert Bridges To Be Poet Laureate

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, July 5.—Pall Mall Gazette states that Asquith has offered the poet laureateship to Dr. Robert Bridges, who will probably accept it.

Bridges is 69 years old. He was formerly a medical practitioner and is a distinguished scholar, highly esteemed by brother poets. His works include eight poetic plays.

TURTLE EATS CHICKENS.

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—A snapping turtle 26 inches in diameter and weighing 47 pounds, crawled out of the lake in Lansdowne Park, East St. Louis, and ate two fine Plymouth Rock pullets belonging to Norton Bryan, who lives in Forest Place, two blocks from the lake.

Many persons have good tenants moving into their property to-day merely because yesterday they had an ad in The Georgian's For Rent Columns. Phone Main 8000 or Atlanta 8000.

Reading Clerk McClatchey's 8-Year-Old Son Has Determined on Career of Public Service.

Eight years of age with three years' experience as a page in the House of Representatives is the luck of D. F. McClatchey, Jr., who is also quite fond of sitting on the knee of his father, who has been Reading Clerk of the House for sixteen years.

Young D. F. bids fair to prove as popular as his father, who manages to inject enough life in the reading of House bills to make it pleasant for the Legislature. Acoustics of the House are not the best in the world, and the powerful voice of D. F. McClatchey is about the only one which has ever overcome this difficulty.

The ambition of young D. F., though, is to combine the positions of Reading Clerk and Speaker. He like his father's job, but he also has a great longing to handle the gavel.

He is sure of a place as page in the House until he is old enough to vote, when he expects to become a full-fledged member of the House. He will then take a turn in the Senate, put in a couple of terms as Governor, try out Congress for a few terms and then make himself President. And there's not a member of the House who does not believe this prediction is more than apt to come true. The youngster can shake hands with you as heartily as any politician who ever lived, or curl up in his father's lap as cute and loving as a youngster should be.

"Keep your eye on that young McClatchey," is the way his father likes to refer to him.

Atlanta-Carolina Highway Proposed

ELLIJAY, July 5.—A monster barbecue and good roads meeting was held at Ellijay yesterday in the interest of an automobile highway from Atlanta to Murphy, N. C. Enthusiastic speeches were made by Dr. E. W. Watkins, of Ellijay; C. J. Haden, of the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce; Professor Harwood, of the Chamber of Commerce of Murphy, and others.

A practical working scheme suggested is for Gilmer, Pickens and Fannin Counties to pool their convicts and go to work on the road at an early date, raising money by popular subscription for machinery.

PLAY BALL!
BUT PLAY IT RIGHT!!

HERE, at last, you Fathers, is the book that will tell your red-blooded, ball-loving, lot-playing, growing-up boys---who long to excel in the game, and in whose team exploits you take such pride---HOW TO PLAY BASEBALL RIGHT.

And you Amateur Team Members, Semi-Pros, and Minor-Leaguers---it will tell you, too, HOW TO PLAY BASEBALL RIGHT.

And you, Mr. Fan, it will tell HOW BASEBALL IS PLAYED RIGHT, and enable you to appreciate all the better the fine points of the game.

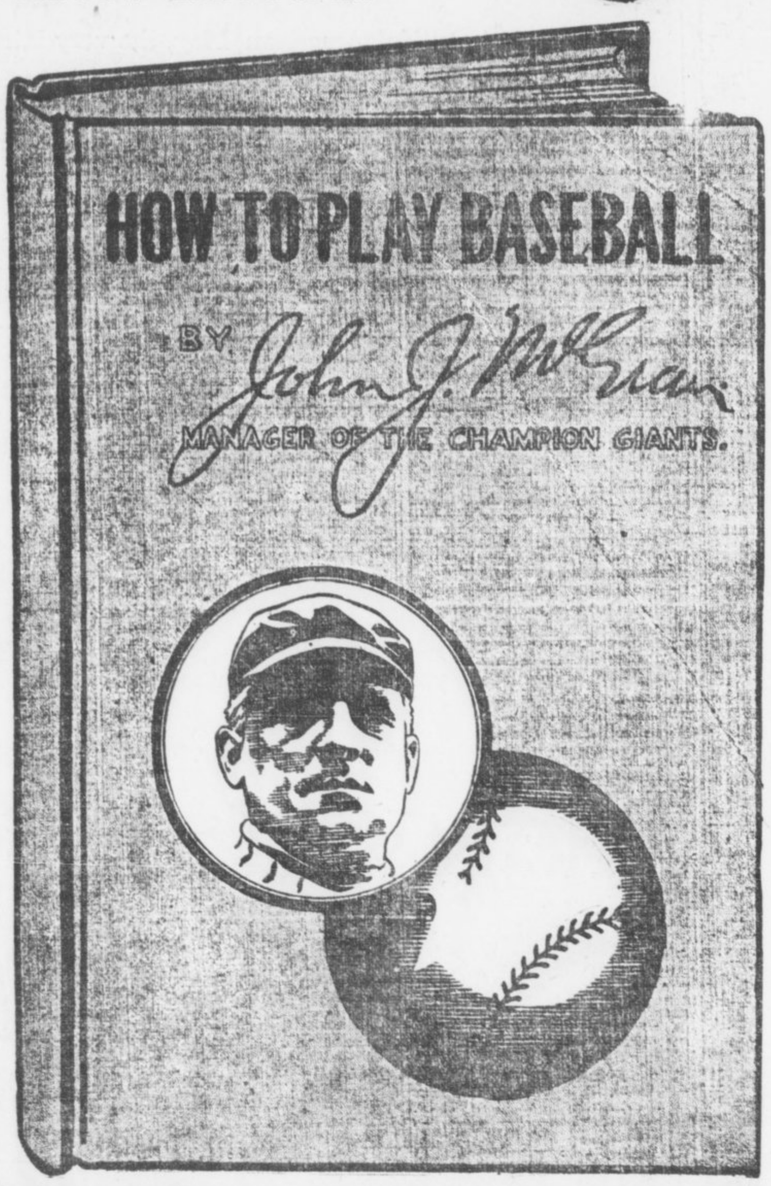
"HOW TO PLAY BASEBALL" has been written for all ball lovers and players, young and old, by the man critics say has developed more young ball players into Big League stars than any other baseball master of his time---JOHN J. McGRAW---Manager of the Giants---Winner of Four National League Pennants and One World's Championship---the "Little Napoleon of Baseball."

Manager McGraw's book is the result of his two decades in Big League Baseball---and in it he gives the same instructions that he employs to make Champion Giants out of raw material.

By special arrangement with Manager McGraw, and for a limited period only,

Hearst's Sunday American---The Atlanta Georgian

are able to offer you this, the greatest book on baseball ever written, for ONLY TWENTY-FIVE CENTS A COPY. Read below how to take advantage of this offer---then ACT AT ONCE---and get YOUR COPY of this great book NOW---before it is too late.



McGraw's Great Book on "How to Play Baseball" describes fully, clearly, simply—so the youngest baseball enthusiast can easily understand—HOW TO PLAY RIGHT EVERY POSITION IN THE GAME. In addition, there are chapters on batting, base running and general team management.

The thirty-two superb half-tone illustrations of big league stars in actual play were selected by McGraw himself to elucidate important points in the science of playing baseball right.

The book consists of 192 pages, and the workmanship equals that on the best novels made to sell for $1.00 and $1.50. The illustrations show exact size of book in rich red cloth binding. The heavy durable paper cover carries the same design.

Through HEARST'S SUNDAY AMERICAN and THE ATLANTA GEORGIAN you can secure a copy of this great book for ONLY TWENTY-FIVE CENTS FOR A LIMITED PERIOD IF YOU ACT AT ONCE. See HOW in last column.

THEFT NO WORSE THAN DODGING YOUR DEBTS

Line Between 'Mine' and 'Thine' Too Badly Blurred at Present, Says Forbes.

By B. C. FORBES.

There is a difference between "Mine" and "Thine." Many individuals, not a few companies and a few States and municipalities need to be reminded of this simple fact. Lax notions are prevalent on the subject.

* * *

A debt is a debt. All debts are debts of honor and should be honored. In these days of unthinking extravagance too many debts are light-heartedly incurred and not paid. The habit of getting into debt, like most bad habits, is alluring at first, but, also, like most bad habits undo their victims in the end.

* * *

The phrase falling "into debt" is apt. The descent is easy enough, but the climb back is usuallypainful.

* * *

This dissertation is inspired by the frequency of late with which corporations have failed to pay off obligations falling due. Instead of walking up to the counter and handing over one hundred cents on the dollar in hard cash, as was stipulated when the debt was incurred, borrowers have too frequently resorted to makeshifts, to temporizing, to compromising, such as offering, in lieu of cash, a new obligation for the old, with an intimation that if this be not accepted the lender will fare much worse.

* * *

The most brazen instance of such questionable conduct is afforded by Atchison, Kans. An issue of some $267,000 bonds of this city fell due Tuesday. Did the lenders promptly receive their money as they were entitled to? Oh, no. In Atchison, Kan., a debt is not a debt of honor, something that must be discharged. Just read what the Mayor has the effrontery to tell the holders, who, of course, have counted upon receiving their money—money which could be used at a high rate of interest to-day:

* * *

Atchison will have $266,950 4 per cent thirty-year bonds issued in 1883, due July 1. In the past, it seems to have been their judgment that a sinking fund was not necessary.

I have inherited a debt—I would not repudiate it, but will defer it by offering a renewal fully as good as the one you hold.

I realize the opportunity of money at present, but as a representative of the taxpayers I can not increase their obligation on account of a temporary stringency in the money market.

A new bond for the old one, with the same rate that has satisfied for thirty years, ought to be acceptable under the adverse circumstances.

I regret that it is the best I have to offer.

* * *

"Regrets" don't pay bill. The holders of Atchison's bonds care nothing about the Mayor's sympathies; they want and are absolutely entitled to receive their money, every penny of it, the moment it fell due.

* * *

One debt unpaid often causes a whole chain of debts to be dishonored. "So-and-So hasn't paid me and I can not pay you" is an excuse often given.

* * *

In America debts are run up with shameful alacrity by people who know full well they will not be able to meet them—run up, too, not always for necessities, but often for luxuries, for things that could be done without, for baubles or pleasures.

* * *

Not to pay a debt is akin to stealing. You keep what belongs to another. And by so acting you may force your victim to become a delinquent.

* * *

The tortures that ought to visit debtors sit lightly on many people. To borrow money on false statements is considered clever rather than scoundrelly. Some of our big corporations, railroad, industrial and mercantile, have stooped to such deception. When the time for repayment came and there was no money for the purpose—oh, well, try to arrange a compromise or let the concern fail.

* * *

The time is coming when those who are responsible for enterprises that become bankrupt, entailing losses upon innocent investors and others, will have to pay the penalty. To-day McCrum-Howell, U. S. Motor and similar scandals can be perpetrated without anyone going to jail. It will not be always so.

* * *

To dishonor a debt is tantamount to stealing. Stealing is a criminal offense. The sooner corporations, cities and individuals realize this naked truth the better. A wholesome law that will open prison doors to those who wheedle money or its equivalent out of others and do not "make good" is not far distant.

* * *

The line between "Mine" and "Thine" is at the moment badly blurred.

BASS VIOLIN MASTER BLINDED, RESTS BOW

'Dolph Wurm, the South's greatest master of the bass violin, has had to rest his bow. Cataract has grown over his eyes. As his light gradually has been shut out the darkness has drawn him more and more into seclusion.

Atlanta musicians are telling his story as their most interesting bit of "shop talk."

Many, especially old-time, Atlantans, remember him as the slender, serious-looking little man who stood on the left end of the orchestra, wearing a black silk skull-cap and leaning on his big fiddle until he became a natural part of the scenery.

He was the Thor who hurled the theatrical thunder. He was the master who marked the syncopated time of the first "rags" at the society balls, silence before the motives of his music had had time to create the real turkey trot.

Fiddle 123 Years Old.

There is no more interesting figure in Atlanta to-day than the old man in his quiet home down on Pine Street with his old comrade, the fiddle, close beside him as he dreams of other and eventful days.

The fiddle, which Mr. Wurm himself said once could vibrate so strongly that it rattled the window panes, now has a plaintive note on account of its cracks. It was made in Germany in 1790 and was brought to this country by the owner's father in 1848.

Mr. Wurm was for 40 years one of the principal members of the Wurm Orchestra. They furnished the music at all the society events at the old Kimball House, when the Kimball House was the social center of Georgia. For 18 years they formed the orchestra at DeGive's Opera House, now the Bijou Theater. All the members, especially 'Dolph, on account of his big fiddle, grew to be among the best known men in Atlanta.

He Loves the Instrument.

Mr. Wurm took out his fiddle when a Georgian reported called to see him. Tenderly he stroked its strings.

"A bass fiddle is not usually regarded as a very affectionate member of the orchestra," he said. "The other members try to make of it an object of humor. They used to joke me about not being able to sit down when I played.

"Somehow the instrument impressed me differently. When my father began to teach us to play on the different instruments I naturally took to the bass violin. And I have stuck to it ever since, always playing the same fiddle.

"In this day most of the musicians in Atlanta have something else to do which they call their regular vocation. They play for extra money. But I never did anything but play the bass violin. Mind you, I never married and lived economically."

Once Chess Champion.

"During my leisure I played chess. That program seemed to me the best way to enjoy life."

Mr. Wurm explained that he had not played for a year. He said he also had to give up his beloved chess, of which he was once the champion of Georgia. But in his calm philosophy he remarked:

"My doctor tells me as soon as this cataract is ripe he can operate and restore my sight. Then in a few months I will be playing again, both the fiddle and the game of chess.

"Of course, the old fiddle is cracked. You know it doesn't matter how much you may think of a bass fiddle it is awkward to handle. But the tone of my old violin is still deep and sweet, though not so loud as it once was."

Jane Addams Not in Chicago Mayor Race

NEW YORK, July 5.—"It would be unwise for women of Illinois to accept or seek public office until they have had a few years' experience as voters. At this time I think I should refuse to be a candidate for any public office," said Jane Addams, of Chicago, who returned yesterday from Europe and was told her friends were booming her for Mayor of her home town.

Plan to Rid Kansas of Coyotes by Freezing

TRIBUNE, KANS., July 5.—Farmers near here are circulating a petition asking the State veterinary authorities to inoculate Western Kansas coyotes with mange of dogs to free the State of the pests. The method is said to have been tried in Montana with good results.

The mange takes all the hair off the animals and they freeze to death during the cold weather.

RESINOL CLEARS BAD COMPLEXIONS

PITTSBURG, PA., July 5.—Miss Elizabeth Arbuthnot, society girl and member of one of the leading families of Pittsburg, dislocated a bone in her left leg while dancing tango at a fashionable party in the East End. Bonesetter Reese, of Youngstown, was here, attending the International Elstedfodd.

His services were called into requisition to untango the tangoed limb. Miss Arbuthnot is much improved.

The New Bazar

edited for the woman who must keep au courant with the smart world

THE best from each field of art, all the resources of brush, pen and camera, beautiful paper, perfect typography, render it a magazine individual in its expression and absorbing in its interest to the woman of fashion. In its new form, Harper's Bazar is the edition de luxe of women's magazines.

Sparkling with the news of both Europe and America, the Bazar makes instant appeal to the woman of the smart world.

If she would read of social functions, races or sports here or abroad, she finds in it the most noteworthy. If she would discover the latest creations from the ateliers of Paris, she sees here their most recent expression.

The skill of the couturière, of the artist, of the decorator is displayed in its myriad possibilities. Vexatious questions as to the maintenance of her establishment and any like phases which come within the realm of the woman whose time is much in demand, are discussed by those well versed in these matters.

In the July number, Elsie de Wolfe gives a description and views of her own home; Mrs. August Belmont has an illustrated article concerning the artistic development of the child; the lovely Countess of Warwick reveals the secret of the retention of personal charm.

There are photographs of the newer landscape effects secured in the Rockefeller gardens, and reproductions of the most famous paintings of Mrs. Astor, Mrs. George Gould and other renowned beauties of our times.

What is more, there are the costumes which are most à la mode from the stage, models from Lady Duff Gordon, sketches by Tighe, showing the newest cunning of the French houses and an important message from Henri Bendel as to Fall hats.

For diversion, a new set of Elinor Glyn's piquant letters and another powerful story from the pen of Robert W. Chambers with illustrations by Charles Dana Gibson.

Revenge Is Sweet

"BELINDA," said the brother of that good woman, looking up from his magazine, "if you sigh like that again I shall leave home. What do you find in those price lists to distress you so painfully?"

"I was trying to select enough plants and shrubs to embellish a three-acre lot and provide a succession of blooms during the summer," she replied. "I must choose only varieties that need very little cultivation and scarcely any watering and will be somewhat out of the ordinary and will cost not more than $10. After working on the problem all morning I'm convinced that it's impossible."

"What is it, a prize contest for some horticultural society?"

"No, of course not; I'm acting as a committee of one appointed by the Village Improvement Society to 'landscape garden' the public square."

"Indeed! And with the munificent sum of $10? Why is the Village Improvement Society so reckless with its funds?"

"You know very well, Ben, that in such a little village there isn't much money to spend, and the society is quite generous.

Her Scheme.

"I was invited to attend the meeting yesterday," she explained, "and offer suggestions about the planting of the square. When I finished speaking it was unanimously voted that $5 be expended on the work."

"I thought you said $10 a minute ago."

"Well, I didn't like to dampen their enthusiasm by explaining that $5 was hardly a drop in the bucket, so I told them that you and I would be glad if they would let us add another five."

"How thoughtful of you! Thank you for my share in it. I suppose they agreed?"

"Yes, and I naturally wish to do the best I can. But the society is so particular that it makes things rather difficult. Mrs. Hart says the odor of peonies makes her husband ill, and as his feed store opens upon the square that settles the peonies. Mrs. Bell can't endure flowering almond because she associates it with lonely days on her old farm. As she is the president of the society, that's reason enough for not having flowering almond. Gladys Smith thinks we should make a feature of the most expensive hydrangeas grown. She saw them while she was away at school. Miss Hitty Watkins considers lilacs dreadfully common, and they don't bloom for several years. 'Immediate results!' is the cry of the whole society.

"However, I persuaded them to buy some annuals for this year's flowers, for it's too late now to plant seeds, and to spend most of the appropriation on permanent shrubbery. It's my business to make that $10 cover my plans. Ben, will you please see if my addition is correct while I search for a better bargain in hydrangeas and weigelas? I want to get the order off on the afternoon mail."

While one was engrossed with the catalogues and the other with the auditing a shiftless figure slouched across the lawn and leaned against the porch railing. He made his presence known by an apologetic clearing of the throat.

"Hello, Mike," said Ben. "Going fishing?"

"No; I came out here on business for the improvement society. I got a bill for Miss Belinda."

"For me?" exclaimed she, astonished.

"Why, yes. You see, I ain't never been paid for the work I done last summer on the square. Them women hired me to keep it in order and I kep' the paper and trash picked up and cut the grass real often and I pulled up them house plants they sat out there that died, and I ain't never been paid. I heard that you was in charge of the square now, so I come over to get my money."

"But," protested Miss Belinda, with some warmth, "I had nothing at all to do with last year's affairs."

"No, I know that, but I went to see Mrs. Bell and she and Hitty Watkins put their O. K. on my bill, so I come on over here to get my pay, just as they said."

Miss Belinda looked appealingly at her brother. He took the none too clean slip of paper in his hand.

"I think there's nothing for it but to pay," he said, laughing. "It's only $7."

"Seven dollars!" echoed Miss Belinda. "I don't see how you can laugh, Ben. It isn't funny—it's tragic."

Funny.

When Mike, with the money in his pocket, turned his back on the brother and sister, Ben said: "It is funny, Belinda. It is positively side-splittin'." Miss Belinda had to laugh.

"And now what about your plans?" her brother asked.

"I shall buy as many hydrangeas as I can with the miserable $3 and take peonies, flowering almond and lilacs out of my own garden to make up the deficit."

"Revenge is sweet. I wonder what would have happened to Mike's bill if you hadn't added our $5 to the society's appropriation?"

All Beach.

Wilfrid was sitting on his father's knee, watching his mother arrange her hair.

"Papa hasn't any waves like that," said the father, laughing.

Wilfrid, looking up at his father's bald pate, replied:

"No; no waves; it's all beach."

The GHOST BREAKER

By C. W. GODDARD and PAUL DICKEY

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE.

The scene of the story is laid in the Vanderlip Hotel, New York City. The Princess Maria Theresa, of Segura, a beautiful Spanish woman, is suddenly awakened in her suite by the sound of pistol shots. She hears a man running down the hall. He crashes against her door, breaking the lock, and enters. She sees he is a tall, good-looking young man, dressed in evening clothes. He is carrying a revolver in his right hand, and blood is dripping from a wound in his left. He begs the Princess to hide him. She, moved by some indescribable impulse, decides that she will. She directs him to an inner room, and a few minutes later, when the hotel detective knocks on the door, she tells him she is all right and sends him away. The young man, who is Warren Jarvis, of Kentucky, comes out of his hiding place, and the Princess, for the first time, notices his wound. She is moved to sympathy and showers him with questions as to what has occurred. Jarvis tells her about a Kentucky feud between his family and another named Markham. He says he left Kentucky to avoid the feudists, but encountered one of them in the hotel, which explains the shots.

Now go on with the story.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"It's all right," said Jarvis, with a little sigh of relief. "But how am I going to get out of here?"

His liege lady smiled a little sarcastic smile.

"Resourceful man! I thought of a plan long ago—the trunk." And she indicated a capacious traveling van at the foot of the bed.

"The trunk?" he echoed, blankly. "What about it?"

"Well, you are stupid," decided the Princess. "I am sending it on the steamer at 6 o'clock."

A light of understanding but distinctly not of joy leaped to Jarvis' eyes.

"You mean to get in it?"—Good Lord!—Is it big enough?"

He walked—stood over it dubiously a moment and threw back the lid.

The Plan.

"I think so," said the princess. "And no one could possibly suspect. Take out those trays."

"Sure it's big enough," conceded Warren doubtfully, as they leaned over the interior, "but what about these?"

Something fell and tinkled on the brass work.

"Oh!" exclaimed Dona Maria. He picked it up and held it out to her, examining it curiously.

"It's nothing," she assured him hastily, regaining possession. "I mean—it's all right—it's just a locket."

"Did I break it?"

"Oh, no—I broke it myself—on purpose—yesterday," she explained, somewhat confusedly. Then, when she had concealed it once more in the fold of her gown, she went on gravely. "It means a great deal to me—and, perhaps, to you. I crossed the ocean for that locket. Some day you may know the reason why."

Before he could make any comment she returned briskly to the matter in hand.

"We had better send these," she suggested, indicating the trays.

"Hold on—I've got it!" he exclaimed suddenly, then stopped. "No—you better phone. Ask the operator to give you the Hotel Belwood, across the street—my room is 417. Rusty, my servant, is there now, waiting for word from me." The Princess frowned and shook her head. "He can be trusted," he assured her. "Tell him to come here at once; and just say 'Warren'—that'll fetch him."

The Princess hesitated a moment as if still in doubt, but his confidence reassured her and she went to the telephone and got the connection.

"Ask if it's Rusty, and be sure to say 'Warren,'" he cautioned her in a hoarse whisper. The Princess nodded.

"Hello—is this—Mr. Rusty?" Jarvis grinned in the background at the title. "Well, listen carefully—you are to come right over to the Vanderlip Hotel, across the street from where you are. A bell-boy will be waiting for you at the desk and he is to bring you right up to Room 1121——"

"And keep his mouth shut," interrupted Jarvis.

"And—and don't talk to anyone," translated the Princess. "What's that——? There was a pause and she put her lips close to the mouthpiece. "Warren," she said, waited a moment, and hung up the receiver.

"He's coming right over."

Jarvis chuckled exultantly. "Now, get the desk and tell them to look out for Rusty, and also tell them to send up some wrapping paper and twine."

When Dona Marie had communicated her instructions to the desk she returned to find her cavalier, coat and overcoat thrown aside, inside the trunk cutting at the tough leather with a pocketknife.

"Got to breathe," he explained between pants. Swearing a little under his breath he threw his weight onto the knife, and the blade snapped, gashing his finger.

"Oh, what did you do?" she exclaimed with solicitation that was extremely gratifying to the knight.

"Snapped the blade," he growled, eying the bleeding cut with disgust.

"But you hurt your hand—your injured hand!"

He tried to belittle it and looked hopelessly around for another engineering tool; but Dona Maria insisted on examining the wound and bathing with alcohol and wrapping it up.

"Now, how am I going to cut a hole in that trunk? he wondered while these ministrations were in progress. Dona Maria looked about the room also.

"My shears," she suggested, suddenly.

"If they're not too light. Let's see."

"Come back here," she ordered, holding onto his hand. "It's not tied yet."

He laughed and looked down at her mischievously. "Do you know—I'm beginning to like this job already?"

The hand was instantly released and the work of making an air-hole resumed.

"What time does the boat sail?" he inquired after certain grunts of satisfaction announced success.

"Nine o'clock."

"Good!" he grunted, stabbing savagely with the shears. "That will give Rusty time to get on board with these trays and my baggage."

He toiled a few minutes more in silence, Dona Maria watching him and throwing occasional anxious glances at the clock.

"We've ten minutes before they call for the trunk," she said, at last. Jarvis raised his head to reply, when there came a knock at the door. Swiftly and silently he got out of the trunk and slipped behind the portieres that cut off the alcove, as the Princess opened the door and received Rusty and his brass-buttoned escort, who also delivered the wrapping paper and twine, and withdrew.

Rusty stood in stolid silence until the boy had disappeared, and Dona Maria invited him in and bolted the door behind him.

He was a gray-haired darky of heavy and important mien, whose architecture followed in a general way the liberal cylindrical design of New York's new courthouse. His system of locomotion was full of strange and unexpected eccentries, and his efforts to reach a given point, however near, were always accompanied by truly distressing wheezing and groaning which deceived every one but his master. His besetting sin was an earnest devotion to the principle of repose, and his crown of glory a blind, unwavering, idolatrous loyalty to his master.

"Rusty's heart is all right," Jarvis used to say, "but it is so heavily surrounded by fat that it has some difficulty in expressing itself."

The bellboy had awaked him somewhat hurriedly down the hall, and this unwonted activity, combined with real uneasiness over the possible predicament of his master, caused alarming sounds to arise from the cavernous depths of his heaving chest. Before he could spare a few cubic inches of breath for inquiry Jarvis stepped back into the room.

The Escape.

"Lor' bless you, Marse Warren!" he gasped, holding up his arms and rolling his eyes in token of thanksgiving, "I sert'nly thought you all——"

"Never mind what you thought," interrupted Jarvis in brisk tones, "Take these," and he pointed to the trays, "with our baggage to the steamship Lusitania, of the Cunard line—buy accommodations. Mind, you won't see me till after we get out to sea. Keep in your stateroom and sit tight until you hear from me. Understand?"

As promptly as if it were an everyday occurrence, Rusty had fallen to work on the trays, and, by a change in his manner of puffing, indicated that he was following the rest of the instructions.

"I'll give you the money," went on Jarvis, "and the clerk at our hotel will attend to everything and get the tickets. Then you pay the bill. No; get hold of this."

Rusty took the wallet his master held out without a word and went busily back to the trays again.

"Let me help," offered Dona Maria.

"No, we can manage it, I guess," said Jarvis easily, smiling at the uproar that emanated from his servant who was forced to stop over the work. "This is Rusty. Rusty, this is the Princess of Aragon."

Rusty eagerly straightened and turned with a profound bow.

"Yas, sah," he grinned. "How do, Mrs. Princess Ah—ah-go-on."

Jarvis pressed his lips togther to suppress a giggle.

"I said Aragon," he corrected gravely.

"Yas, sah," was the aggrieved reply. "That's what I said—Ah-go-on."

"I guess you'll have to let it go at that," smiled Jarvis. "There—that's all right, Rusty. Now, you understand everything, do you?"

"Yas, sah," Rusty assured him, picking up the bundles. "I take eve'ything to th' steamboat—git acom—acom——"

"Accommodations."

The Last Moments.

The darkey nodded brightly. "I knows what you means—fer us an' Mrs. Princess ah——"

"No, no," snapped Jarvis, impatiently. "Not for the Princess—just for us two."

"Oh, yas, sah. I unnastin' puffectly."

"All right." Jarvis pushed him toward the door. "Now, get a move on you and don't miss the boat. Remember the name of the line?"

Rusty put his head on one side and thought for an instant, and then showed a yard of teeth.

"Yas, sah, the—the Coon-ard Line."

The instant the door was locked behind him Jarvis returned to his work at the trunk. He had just succeeded in making a small hole when the time was up.

"Make another," urged Dona Maria.

He shook his head decidedly. "Haven't time. I'll widen this one a little." He rested both hands on the side and looked up at her soberly. "Remember this trunk must not go into the hold of the ship. Have it marked 'Wanted on Voyage,' and 'This End Up.' I'll lie with my head in this direction."

"I'll remember," she promised earnestly; "now let me get you a pillow."

Heavy folds of her clothing padded the bottom and he arranged the pillow for his head. Then he sat in the trunk and looked very serious.

"Before I get into this coffin," he said, "there are one or two things I should like to know. How do you know that you can trust me?"

"I don't," she replied instantly; "I'll have to take that chance."

He winced a little.

"But you must have a pretty good reason," he insisted.

"I have," was the cool response.

"Well—what about the ghosts?"

"Pardon me, Mr. Warren, but so far your credentials do not warrant further confidence."

Repulsed in the direct attack, the young man was silent a few moments. So was the young woman. Then he essayed a flank movement.

"You are Spanish—yet you speak with no accent," he charged.

"I was educated in England."

Another pause and another attempt.

"Are you really—a sure-enough princess?"

A certain wintriness apeared in the soft, dark eyes that looked down into his.

"Why do you say that?"

"Oh—I—don't know," he stammered, uncertainly. "I—somehow—you aren't quite like what I thought a princess would be."

"I'm sorry," she remarked, coldly.

"Oh, I didn't mean it that way," he hastened to protest, feeling that he was making next to no headway. "I mean that you're different from the popular idea of a princess. You have more—more—understanding," he floundered, but the wintriness did not vanish, "more—more—sympathy—more heart——"

"In that respect," cut in Dona Maria, swiftly, "you will find me quite a conventional princess."

The House Detective.

The knight immediately began a painfully careful examination of the hole through which he must breathe for several hours and thus he did not notice that the Princess colored slightly and the winter in her eyes gave way momentarily to spring. He was grateful that he had the hole in the leather to examine during the painful silence.

"I wonder"—he cleared his throat, and began again—"I wonder if this opening will let in enough air."

"I hope so," said the Princess, and he had to look up at her face to make sure that she was not as indifferent as the tone of her voice indicated. What he saw evidently reassured him, for his embarrassment vanished.

"I'll put the shears in here," he remarked cheerily, "and if it gets too stuffy I can cut another hole from the inside."

There was a knock at the door. Both started, and Jarvis noiselessly coiled himself into his cage.

"It must be the man for the trunk, she whispered. Then she called, "Just a minute, please."

He let the lid down a little way and she bent over him.

"Remember," he whispered earnestly, "this must not go into the hold of the ship. You must have it marked 'Wanted,' and 'This Side Up.' You might add 'With Care' if you've a mind to," he added with a wry smile, and he cautiously let the lid down.

"Are you all right?" she whispered, her hand on the lock.

"If they don't lose the trunk," came in a muffled voice from within.

To Be Continued Monday.

"How am I going to get out of here?" said Jarvis.

JARVIS GETS READY TO FLEE

.:. "Too Nintimate" .:.

By WINIFRED BLACK.

THEY'VE quarreled, the two "nintimate friends.

No, I don't mean "intimate," I No, I don't mean "intimate," I mean "nintimate"—that's what they call each other. One's ten and one's nine, and they've been playing dolls together for weeks.

I told Ten-year-old that she had better play with someone else for a while.

"You and Nine-year-old will quarrel as sure as fate," said Ir, oh, so wisely.

"Quarrel, my 'nintimate' friend and I?" cried Ten-year-old in horror. Oh, how could we ever do such a thing? Why, she's the sweetest girl in the world. I wish my hair was the color of hers and my eyes, too, so we could wear the same colored ribbons, and oh, can't we both have linen hats, the same shade anyhow?"

So they had linen hats the same shade, and the new kind of heelless shoes the same shape, and Brown Eyes tied on a pink ribbon and so Blue Eyes had to tie on a pink ribbon, too.

But now they've quarreled, quarreled badly. It began over the dolls. Nine-year-old wanted the dolls to go to school and say their seven times, and Ten-year-old wanted to send them to the mountains or to the seashore or somewhere.

"Isn't it bad enough to say our own old ten times and eight times over and over," said Ten-year-old, "without making per-f-e-c-t slaves of the poor, darling dolls?"

"I'm not a slave," said Nine-year-old, "and I'd thank you not to call me one."

"Why," said Ten-year-old, "I didn't. I said"——

"I know what you said," said Nine-year-old, "I can hear all right"—— only she said "hyear."

"Well, then," cried Ten-year-old, "why don't you talk all right." F-t-t-t—the trouble began right then—dolls went home—ribbons came off—hats were thrown in the closet—out of the hated sight. "I'll never play with her again," sobbed Ten-year-old.

"I hate the sight of her," quavered Nine-year-old, and so the day was clouded.

What mattered how gayly the sun shone, what mattered how sweetly the flowering bush at the back gate beckoned—who cared what the robin tried to say. Gone—to smithereens—one long, happy, happy day. Gone never to come back again—alas, alas, what a sinful waste, and all because the "nintimate friends" were just a shade too "nintimate," that's all.

The young couple next door—how dead in love they are; she walks to the corner every night to meet him, and he turns around three or four times to wave her good-bye in the mornings. And the other night, when one of his old friends dropped in for a pleasant evening, she pouted; I could see it by the very turn of her shoulders.

She didn't want a soul around but him. And Sunday, when her sister came over after church, he went upstairs and sulked. I could see his shadow on the blind.

They won't admit now that there is any gulf at all, oh, no. They're one, you know; didn't they say so before the parson and all the church full of smiling friends. One—which one I wonder?

Will she give up her individuality—the one thing that called him to her—or will he be just an echo of her.

One! Which one? I always wonder. How much better it is when you get to understand that two human beings mean two every time and not one at all; the man is a man, not a copy of a woman, and the woman is a woman, not an echo of the man; each must live his and her own separate life, and the sooner they begin to do it the sooner they'll be happy.

"And then where did you go?" says the young wife when Husband is a few minutes late to dinner.

Young Husband's brow clouds. After all, must he be watched like a criminal. "Oh, then I came home," he says, and doesn't tell the young wife that he stopped to chat with old Billie from Yale a minute or so, and the next day the young wife meets old Billie from Yale and he says: "Had a fine talk with Jimmie yesterday,"—and there's trouble in store for husband when he gets home that night.

"Too nintimate," that's all, "too nintimate," that's actually all that's the matter!

Your husband's heart is yours, not his brain and his soul, too. Your wife is faithful, loving, devoted, that's enough fou you to know, young man. Don't be too "nintimate" either of you—or you "won't speak" before six months is gone. Oh, yes, it's a pretty fiction, "two hearts that beat as one, two souls with but a single thought," etc.—a pretty fiction—thank goodness, it isn't a bit true. What a bore it would be to live with a twin, wouldn't it?

Do You Know That—

James Morris, who has been chauffeur to Cardinal Bourne since the latter was presented with a motor car some years ago, and who had previously been coachman to Cardinal Vaughan, has retired. It is Morris' boast that he has safely driven nine princes of the church in the motor car, which he has piloted 18,000 miles "without ever getting the Cardinal into trouble with the police for exceeding the speed limit." Cardinal Bourne has presented him with an autographed portrait of himself.

The languages and dialects into which the Bible is translated now number 450. The British and Foreign Bible Society's issues of copies of the Scriptures now reach the huge total of 7,899,562, made up of 936,346 Bibles, 1,269,919 New Testaments and 5,696,297 smaller portions. In China last year, for every two English books the society sold it disposed of three in Chinese—the bulk of these being single gospels.

Haste Quite Unnecessary.

The evening was damp and cold and foggy, and the Rev. Candy Macgregor, while walking absent-mindedly along the street, fell heavily into a deep hole which had been made by order of the local sanitary authorities.

For a long while the Rev. Sandy struggled to escape. Then despairingly he began to shout for help. A passing laborer heard his cries, and, looking down into the hole, asked who was there.

The minister informed him, but in return received only meager comfort.

"Weel, weel," said the laborer, "ye needa kick up sic' a noise. You'll no be needed afore the Sawbath, and this is only Wednesday nicht!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

Deep Breathing Lessons from Miss Zoe Barnett

Miss Zoe Barnett.

By LILIAN LAUFERTY.

"HAVE you ever watched a fish breathe?" asked dark-eyed Zoe Barnett, of Lew Field's "All Aboard" company. "No, I'm not bringing the role of comedienne into this interview; I am about to tell you the greatest beauty secret I know. A fish breathes visibly—you can see its little sides expand and contract as it breathes deeply and all over its body. But most women breathe either in the top of their lungs or expand their diaphragms as much as their stiff corsets will let them. Now, I wear corsets of 'Grecian tricot'—or webbing—and those corsets breathe with me."

We were sitting in Miss Barnett's own cool-shadowed room, and the grateful breeze that fluttered the curtains had not seemed a possible thing down on the sidewalks below. My hostess was wearing a fascinating pink kimono—just the pink to bring a flush to the clear olive of her cheeks; pink "mules" peeped daintily out, and her head was bound in a scarf of soft pink silk with a big pink bow drooping in graceful lines just at the base of a left ear that fitted in with the color scheme of sea-shell pink. A very witching negligee for a midsummer day. Try it with the finishing touch of surah silk sash and see, little sisters.

"Now, I will give you a little exhibition of proper breathing, and then you would probably like a little sermon on just what it does for you," went on Miss Barnett, making the interviewer's lot an easy one, indeed.

An Exhibition.

"Please put your hands here on my ribs and feel them press out and out till they are fully expanded by my full lungs and till my chest is pushed way up by those same lungs, and all the hollows in throat and neck are padded out and filled by the splendid clean air I am drawing up from my diaphragm. That is deep breathing.

"Deep breathing helps you have a figure that is slender yet round. It banishes hollows and unupholstered bones, and it helps the skin throw off impurities and keep white and fine of texture. It lets you have a clear voice, with plenty of reserve power and strength back of it. Try it at an open window twenty times each morning—increase your twenty to thirty—to fifty—breathe deeply whenever you are outdoors—and finally grow into the habit of breathing deeply all the time.

"Do you know, when I feel a little headache starting or find an attack of indigestion imminent, I rush to the open window and breathe deeper and deeper until that internal application of fresh air clears my system and wards off the threatened attack."

"Do you aid and abet your deep-breathing measure by some sensible dietary laws?" I asked.

"Oh, yes, the food supply is first aid to the air supply," said the girl who adds so much wholesome sanity to the more scintillant charm of her delightful personality. "I eat only two meals a day. I find that I can sing over a sore throat—even an ulcerated one—but my voice will not make music over an overworked and protesting stomach. Overeating seems to be a more general complaint than starvation in our land of too plenty."

Choosing Costumes.

"And to your theory of unlimited fresh aid and limited food supply you add a bit of originality in choosing costumes, don't you?"

"A good bit," was the answer. "I loathe putting myself into clothes that some one else has designed for me. I don't feel quite free to be myself unless everything about me is me and expresses me. I like my clothes to be one form of my self-expression, and I think it is worth while bringing earnest study to the understanding of your own type. But if a woman lacks that great essential taste, she can do one great thing toward being well dressed—she can attend to the details of her costume. Never wear a bedraggled petticoat or go about in run-down heels, for if every little detail is neat and in good taste, even the simplest costume looks attractive and dainty."

And in the fine glow of an independent spirit that dares preach because it practices, Miss Barnett concluded: "Work hard at deep breathing and at deep feeling and thinking and trying, and then you'll be a success at being a woman and a worker, and a beauty, too, maybe!"

COMPLICATION OF WOMAN'S ILLS

Yields to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Athens, Texas.—"I had a complication of diseases, some of them of long standing. I wrote to you for advice and took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and some other things that you suggested. I must confess that I am much better in every way and have been relieved of some of the worst troubles. My neighbors say I look younger now than I did fifteen years ago."—Mrs. Sarah R. Whatley, Athens, Texas, R. F. D. No. 3, Box 92.

We know of no other medicine which has been so successful in relieving the suffering of women, or received so many genuine testimonials, as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

In nearly every community you will find women who have been restored to health by this famous medicine. Almost every woman you meet knows of the great good it has been doing among suffering women for the past 30 years.

In the Pinkham Laboratory at Lynn, Mass., are files containing hundreds of thousands of letters from women seeking health, in which many openly state over their own signatures that they have regained their health by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many of them state that it has saved them from surgical operations.

If you want special advice, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman and held in strict confidence.

Daysey Mayme and Her Folks

By FRANCES L. GARSIDE.

THE continued demand made upon the time of Mrs. Lysander John Appleton and her daughter, Daysey Mayme, to reform the world has proved a blessing to Lysander John, leaving him uninterrupted opportunity for research work.

"I feel," he said calling the two fat pillow cushions to order, "as if my hands were being uplifted and strengthened by unseen forces; as though I, too, a mere man, have a hand in the progress of the world."

He paused. The two fat pillow cushions looked at him with such blank expressions be realized that they had reached the highest degree of culture. It meant so much to be understood, and they understood him!

"As a result of a week's deep study, and untiring poring over old manuscripts, I have found that the following problems of life remain unanswered. I open my hand, as it were, and fling them broadcast to my sex for solution. Let them come nobly forward and take this share of the world's work on their shoulders!

"Let them, I say, relieve our poor struggling mothers, wives, daughters and sisters of some of the burden of exploration of the unseen that now rests with them.

"First, I would ask: Which is preferable to sleep with—A baby, or one of those insects the commonplace call a bedbug, but which we, who are more temperamental, know as a crimson rambler?

"A woman will leave guests at the table, or her husband on his deathbed, to run to the window to see the fire engine go by, but would she run if in the midst of a marriage proposal?

"Does a wooden-legged man take his wooden leg to bed with him?

"Is there more reason for a man to be grateful to his wife for cooking a steak well than there is for her to be grateful because he bought it?

"If it is true that the spirits of our ancestors are constantly flying around us, are our women ancestors up in the air all the time because of indignation over the scraps wasted that would make quilts and rag carpets?

"Who is the more wasteful: The boy who cuts up pumpkins for Jack lanterns or the woman who makes them into very poor pies?"

He paused to give his next question impression and weight. It was a problem older than the world itself, and no one has ever solved it.

"On whose head," he asked—then he paused to scratch his head after the manner of those who are deep thinkers—"On whose head did a certain pair of insects travel on that famous journey in the ark?"

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

BY YOUR ACTIONS.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 19 and in love with a man one year my senior. He loves me also. He has two sisters who are jealous of me and they are always telling him falsehoods about me, some of which he believes. What shall I do to prove that these things are not true? BILLIE G.

If you will conduct yourself in a way with which the most carping critic could find no fault, his sisters' charges will fall flat to the ground. Always remember that time has never weakened the force of that saying, "Actions speak louder than words."

If his love is worth the keeping he will have no doubt of your worth.

YOU DON'T LOVE HER.

Dear Miss Fairfax:

I am 25 and dearly in love with a girl one year my junior who says she loves me. While at a party late one evening she fell asleep and started to walk in her sleep. I have heard since that she walks in her sleep quite often. Do you think we could live happily together, or should I give this girl up? WORRIED.

If you loved her, such a trivial failing would appeal to your sense of protection. Not for a moment would you consider giving her up.

Are you quite sure, young man, that you have no failings more undesirable than sleep walking? If this is the only fault she has she deserves a particularly worthy man.

Household Suggestions

A bright, glossy head of hair, easily kept in curl, may be obtained by dissolving in a pint of boiling water a small square of camphor and a tablespoonful of powdered borax. Into this liquid the brush must be dipped several times whenever the hair is brushed.

A soft piece of linen dipped in milk and bound round a rheumatic joint will often cure a most obstinate case of rheumatism. The linen should be covered with a piece of oiled silk and dipped again in the milk when dry.

The marks of matches struck on walls may be cleaned by applying the cut side of a lemon. Then rub the place with whiting, and lastly scrub with soapy water.

To prevent flies settling on pictures or windows, pour boiling water over an onion. When the water is cold use it for washing over the glass.

An invaluable cure for sore eyes is a little boracic powder dissolved in warm water. When cold bathe the eyes two or three times a day.

Soft hair bristles can be made stiff and firm by dipping them in a pennyworth of alum dissolved in sufficient hot water for washing the brush.

When frying fish, dip it in milk instead of egg before rolling in breadcrumbs. This is more economical and tastes better.

Tie a piece of lemon on a corn every night for five nights and it will generally cause it to drop out.

The Case of Alfred

THE middle-aged woman with the youthful hat sank into the car seat with a sigh of relief. "My, but I got tired waiting on that corner!" she said to her companion. "I hate this standing around waiting for street cars when there might just as well have been an automobile in the family! As I was saying to my husband this morning, it does beat all that after you slave and plan all your life for your children things never turn out as you want them to!"

"That's so," agreed the woman in the shade too bright heliotrope suit. "They just do as they please!"

"Not that Lizzie is not a good daughter," went on the middle-aged woman. "It's just that you can't tell about men. They can be the blindest, most exasperating, contrary creatures! As I was saying to my husband when he took Alfred Quam for a partner, who on earth would have dreamed that such a boyish, pleasant fellow could have such a will of his own and be so absolutely deaf to the call of what are really his own interests?

"He has money, you know, and as his folks did not live here I made up my mind that it was my duty to be kind of motherly to him," explained the middle-aged woman. "I think there is nothing so pathetic as a nice young man away from home and a prey to every designing creature who sets her eyes on him, especially when he is a good-looking young man like Alfred."

"I thought," said the other woman, "that he and Lizzie——"

"I don't believe in trying to make matches," said the middle-aged woman, firmly. "I wouldn't dream of interfering with fate! Lizzie may be 26, but she doesn't look it, and anyone with taste would realize how good-looking she is—in a quiet way, of course. I don't think it is refined to have the sort of looks that attract attention, Mrs. Garver, indeed I don't!

"The first night that I had Alfred Quam to a good home-cooked dinner I let Lizzie stir up the French dressing and stuff the baked potatoes, and if I happened to mention that she got the dinner I can't see that there was any necessity of my explaining just what part of it she got. Alfred always was glad to get an invitation to dinner. Afterward I had Lizzie show him her book of photographs. There's nothing like letting young people get acquainted.

"Anyhow, Alfred Quam might have considered himself in luck to get a nice girl like my Lizzie—not but that she could have her pick of far better than he! There's no telling what a man will like—and to think that he should lose his head over that silly, giggling Georgie MacPrang, who grew so fond of Lizzie all of a sudden on the evenings she found that Alfred was coming! Lizzie is so unsuspicious that she seemed glad to have Georgie come and make eyes at Alfred till I put a stop to it. I guess I wasn't going to have Lizzie beaten on hero wn ground.

"When he got his runabout I mentioned that Lizzie was perfectly crazy over autos and that the fresh air was so good for health. He took her out several times when I invited him to come early for dinner, so they could get a ride afterward, but it wasn't a month before that Georgie MacPrang was driving the runabout with her own hands and smiling condescendingly when she passed our house!

"You don't know what I suffered at the hands of that Georgie MacPrang, Mrs. Garver! I'd ask Alfred out for a nice little family game of cards and he'd have an engagement and the next day Georgie would drop in and tell what a fine time she and Alfred had at the theater the night before.

"He was perfectly nice to Lizzie and if she dropped into the coal office near closing time, as it was perfectly natural for her to do, since it was her father's office, Alfred would usually bring her home. 'Don't push yourself,' I told Lizzie. 'Only don't be backward about showing him that he's popular with you! That flatters a man—having him think you like him and are too modest to show it!'

"Just as I had arranged to have Alfred take his summer vacation at the same time we did and be our guest at the cottage we were going to rent, in comes that Georgie MacPrang with a solitaire as big as a paving stone, all smiles and applied blushes and throws herself on Lizzie's neck and says she must tell her first because it was through her that she and Alfred found each other.

"Isn't that enough to make a woman give up in despair, Mrs. Garver? Not that, I'd have dreamed of trying to force Alfred or Lizzie in each other's direction—not me—but being a junior partner and, of course, what's her father's will be Lizzie's some day, and then Alfred would have had it all—and his nice automobile and he is so good looking—and to think that that silly Georgie's MacPrang——"

"Maybe something will happen," said her friend, comfortably. "Lizzie may yet be glad she didn't get him——"

"My goodness!" said the middle-aged woman emphatically. "Why, my Lizzie wouldn't have had Alfred Quam, not if he'd begged her on his knees."

The Mistakes of Jennie

By HAL COFFMAN

Being a Series of Chapters in the Life of a Southern Girl in the Big City

"He is Mine!"

Chapter 15.

WHEN Jennie saw her former girl friend at the office next morning the girl scowled at her, and when she got a chance hissed in Jennie's ear: "I'll get even with you if it's the last thing in the world I ever do."

Poor little Jennie wanted to tell her that it was not her fault that the girl's fellow acted so the night before and wanted Jennie instead of the girl. But she would not listen to Jennie, only to swear at her and call her a little trouble maker.

Jennie could do nothing but think about it all day, and received a severe "call down" from the boss in which he said he had noticed for several days past that her mind had not been on her work, and that she would have to pay stricter attention or he would have to get some one that would.

Jennie noticed several times during the day that the tears were streaming down the girl's cheeks as she bent over her work. So after work Jennie waited outside and wanted to explain to the girl that it was not her fault the way the fellow acted.

The girl backed away from her and said: "You little fool, don't you know he is all I have in the world, and if I lose him I will have to 'walk the streets' for I can't and won't TRY to live on the money I get in the office. I was a fool in the first place to let him see you—for he is MINE! MINE! I tell you, and you—you little fool, let him alone!" Jennie tried to explain, but the girl flounced away cursing her.

How Strict Are You with Your Daughter?

—answer it, parents. Are you too strict, or aren't you strict enough? Either course is liable to be disastrous. Your daughter's welfare means as much to you as anything else in the world, yet do you know what to watch in bringing her up.

There are few men who know the problem as Judge Freschi does. For years a magistrate in the City of New York, his work has brought him into personal contact with thousands of girls and their stories. He has had an opportunity to analyze the causes of their failure. His name has become known throughout the country as their benefactor.

The angle from which he discusses the diverse elements that enter into the upbringing of the girl is a new one that you probably have never thought of. As a thoughtful mother or father you ought to read what he says in his article, "How Strict Are You with Your Daughter?" It appears in the

RAW DEAL FOR FANS AT PONCY PARK ON 4TH

It's Up to the Local Association to Honor Rain Checks for the Second Game.

By W. S. Farnsworth.

WE have been bunked so many times on fake fights that it doesn't sting when we are forced to separate ourselves from a perfectly good two-dollar bill nowadays to see a pair of alleged boxers stall through ten rounds.

But we had always considered that the good game of baseball would net us a full value return for our money. Yesterday, however, we were "held up" and our pocketbooks nicked with the skill of an expert light-fingered gent.

It came first in the morning at Poncy Park. The Crackers and Pelicans were scheduled to play to a finish. Instead the game was called at the end of the tenth inning with the score two-all. It was then five minutes after 1 o'clock.

Should Have Played It Out.

All the rest of the afternoon was open and the game should have been played out. But, of course, a tie game is always played off. Thereby the local association will net great profits with a double-header on the next trip of the Pelicans here.

We stood for that bit of "highway" without squealing.

But what a yell we did let out about 6 o'clock last evening.

The Crackers and Pelicans met again in the afternoon. They battled four innings when it started raining.

Seven thousand fans waited the usual 30 minutes.

The umpires didn't come out on the field and declare themselves one way or the other.

Five thousand fans took it for granted that everything was off for the day. The elements had cheated them out of an opportunity to witness what would have probably proved a mighty interesting battle.

But they were consoled by the fact that tucked away in their coat pockets were rain checks. They would yet be given a run for their money.

Brooms Swept Off Water.

Exactly one hour and five minutes after the game had been called the umpires, players and ground keepers appeared on the field. Brooms swept the tons of water off the base lines and play was resumed.

The management didn't want to honor those rain checks. If one more inning could be played they were in hundreds of dollars. The Pels held a 3 to 1 lead. They never figured the Crackers would tie up the count in the fifth. But they did. Then the game went on for two more innings, and again it was called on account of darkness, and still a tie.

The fans were "stung."

And we would suggest that President Kavanaugh, for the good of the game, investigate.

Likewise, the local association, if they take our suggestion, will still honor those rain checks.

Obstinate Acne Quickly Yields

Fine Remedy That Clears Skin of Pimples on Cheeks, Temples, Sides of Nose and Chin.

Acne attacks the glandular structure of the skin, more particularly those tiny glands that secrete fat.

And it is here that S. S. S., the famous blood purifier, is most active in its influence.

There is one ingredient in S. S. S., the purpose of which it is to stimulate the cells in the tissues that thus select from the blood the nutriment that makes new skin and thus eliminates all irritants, acids and parasites that inflame the glands. There is a natural tendency of the fine network of blood vessels in the skin to throw off impurities, but where a persistent inflammatory process has invaded the skin, the natural repair work of the blood is interfered with. It requires the stimulating activity of S. S. S. to overcome such morbid conditions. If you have been troubled with acne, do not despair of a cure.

You can get S. S. S. in any drug store, but insist upon having it. The great Swift Laboratory in Atlanta, Ga., prepares this famous blood purifier, and you should take no chance by permitting anyone to recommend a substitute. And if your blood condition is such that you would like to consult a specialist freely, address the Medical Dept., The Swift Specific Company, 181 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga.

Rummy Tries to Trip Up Another Witness

Ritchie Makes Rivers Quit in Title Battle

Mexican 'Dogged' Once Champion Turned Tide

By W. W. Naughton.

SAN FRANCISCO, July 5.—Willie Ritchie, the slim, serious-faced lightweight champion, defeated chubby, olive-skinned Joe Rivers, of the Southland, in eleven rounds, and by doing so retained the title coveted. The whole story in a untshell is that it was the difference between a game lad and one who was not so game.

Before the bout started, Referee Graney and Timekeeper Harting had an earnest discussion as to which of the officials named should do the counting.

By agreement, the duty devolved upon Harting, but when the crucial moment arrived, Rivers relieved both of the responsibility. The Los Angelan actually counted himself out. He has earned the distinction of originating a new ring fashion, even if he missed in his attempt to bear the championship homeward.

This needs a little explanation, and it will be best to narrate the happenings in consequence and approach the terrible crisis gradually.

Just as long as Rivers held the upper hand he fought like a Turk. When brave Ritchie first stemmed the tide, and then turned it, the Los Angelan grew visibly discouraged.

Rivers Great at First.

It was all Rivers in the second, third and fourth rounds. Then Ritchie began to assert himself, and as the fight wore on Rivers boxed with little spirit.

Soon after the eleventh spasm of milling began, Rivers backed toward the ropes. Ritchie, who had been persistently the aggressor for several rounds, strode flat-footed after his man. A light left took Rivers above the belt line, and an equally light right brushed his lower face. Not that the blows lacked steam but the fact that Rivers was retreating and was not quite within range took the edge off the assaults.

As the clip of Ritchie's dexter glove grazed his chin, Rivers stood an instant with his back against the ring boundary. His eyes did not begin to dull like those of a man who is stung, but he lurched forward and fell to the floor. He did not fall in the inert manner of a man who has received a genuine knockdown smash.

Rivers Wanted No More.

When nine seconds had ticked away Rivers rose. Then the champion stepped close and banged his right against the Southerner's jaw. Even that punch did not appear to strike deep enough to produce fuft results, but Rivers was in the mood to take advantage of anything that would mean an end to the hostilities.

He dived slowly to the carpet, the palms of his hands and his knees supporting him for an instant. Then he flattened down on his stomach, with his head just raised sufficiently to keep his forehead and eyes in view.

In his eyes there was the look of a fellow who was not particularly jarred, but who had made up his mind that things had gone far enough. He assumed a look of distress which did not appear to the writer as genuine. He began to gather his legs under him, and while doing so watched the timekeeper alertly. As each numeral denoting the passing of a second was shouted, Joe worked a little nearer to an upright position.

By the time the word "seven" came from Harting's lips, Joe was resting on one knee and the finger tips of one hand, and he was palpably checking the gong-minder's count. When at the last the sounds "eight, nine, out" rose above the turmoil at the ringside, Rivers straightened up with a look of relief. The ordeal was passed.

An Interesting Fight.

Even while Rivers performed like a craven at the finish, the bout was an extremely interesting one. It was replete with vicious spells of smashing, in which the men held each other even, and there were a sufficient number of changes of aspect to keep the crowd guessing as to what the ultimate result would be.

Even after Rivers slowed up and showed his heart was not in his work, the chance that the Southerner would land a heavy swing remained. He had kept Ritchie's head rocking in the earlier rounds, and many a Ritchie well-wisher twitched involuntarily as he noticed how dangerously close Rivers' whizzing blows went to reaching their mark later in the contest.

"DOYLE HITTING, GIANTS UNBEATABLE"—STALLINGS

NEW YORK, July —"Larry Doyle has recovered his old form and that is why the Giants are now leading the National League," said George Stallings, manager of the Boston Braves, to-day. "Until recently Doyle was unable to hit with his usual vigor and the Giants were losing games. But they braced the moment Larry's bat began to meet the ball successfully. He is the king pin of the New York team, and now that he is himself McGraw's men can not be headed off.

WILLIAMS TO CLAIM TITLE; M'CAREY WARNS COULON

LOS ANGELES, CAL., July —Promoter McCarey has wired Johnny Coulon that if he does not come through to-day with an agreement to defend his title Kid Williams will be declared the champion of the world and will become the possessor of the McCarey belt, emblematic of the title.

McCarey wants to see an active champion at the head of the bantam division, and if he puts Williams to the front as champion it is safe to state that the Baltimore boy will be busy from now on.

GAINESVILLE TEAM WINS.

GAINESVILLE, GA., July —Gainesville won from Georgia Railway and Electric Company, of Atlanta, yesterday, 11 to 5. The feature of the game was the hard hitting of the Gainesville team.

Sports and Such

"TO SETTLE AN ARGUMENT" an earnest party wants to know if the educated or college ball player is more useful on the diamond than the boy who picked up his baseball around the sand lots.

This query may be deftly sidestepped by taking the position that it doesn't make any difference where a ball player learns to play baseball so long as he learns. But such dodges are unworthy. What the correspondent wants to know is whether education is likely to give a man the bulge on the uneducated player, and the answer is: Not so that you can notice it.

Education in any direction is useful only in the exact ratio of its application. Thus, it is easy to see that a profound knowledge of the effect of the political clubs on the life of the Athenian republic is not going to help a man decide in a tenth of a second where to throw the ball when he has nailed a line drive and three men are running in three different directions.

* * *

GIVEN A CERTAIN FAIR PROportion of intelligence and adeptness in baseball is a matter of practice. Men who think quickly on the ball field have been used to thinking quickly from infancy as a rule, and in sudden crises their minds from long habit work automatically and correctly. The time is usually too short for conscious thought.

* * *

IN THE MECHANICAL science of the game the same is true. The college professors began explaining the spit-ball a long time after Chesbro and his followers had stood the American League on its head. Chesbro didn't know any more about the physics of the spitball than he knew about the influence of the Medici on the Renaissance, but no college professor could tell him anything about throwing one. Radbourne was curving a baseball at a time when some scientists were holding that the feat was impossible.

John Ward, a real college man and a great ball player, invented the trick of left-handed batting to shorten the run to first base, and his trained mind probably had something to do with that, for it was constructive thought. On the other hand, Buck Ewing, ignorant as dirt, was even a greater baseball man than Ward and infiniteiy his superior as an executive.

Much of the "inside" baseball of to-day was fathered by "Ten-Thousand-Dollar" Kelly, who is considered one of the swiftest thinkers that ever played the game, yet Kelly had to have help with the menu card when he broke into the league.

Harry Dunlap, the "king of second basemen," was almost entirely without education, but his skill in working out the trapped ball trick is the chief reason that we now have the infield fly rule.

Dunlap was so ignorant that he had to make a mark to his contract in lieu of a signature, but so shrewd was his business mind that he got a $5,000 figure into the same contract, more than 95 per cent of the ball players to-day are drawing. And we know a man of rare mental attainments who once stole second with the bases full.

So there you are.

* * *

BUT COLLEGE MEN ARE made more welcome in the big leagues to-day than formerly. Not because of their thinking ability—go and watch two college teams play sometime and you will be purged of that superstition—but simply because they are turning out good ball players in scattered instances. And the college man has lost his propensity to play to the grandstand and sits humbly at the feet of a man who has no alma mater and takes his post-graduate course in the great game.

McGraw once had a college first baseman on trial. A foul was hit a mile over the grandstand, but the collegian tore after, cap gone and hair flying.

"Ah, well," said McGraw wearily, as the youth came back to his bag, "he gave it the old college try."

* * *

FORTUNE IS A JOCULAR dame. Loose-handed Garry Herrmann's team in Cincinnati played a whole game with one ball the other day, while Charlie Murphy's Cubs use up a couple of dozen a day.

Britton Now After Go for the Lightweight Title

Defeats Charley White in Handy Fashion

NEW ORLEANS, LA., July 5.—Jack Britton, the speedy Chicago lightweight, proved in his bout here yesterday with Charlie White, also of the Windy City, that he is a serious contender for Willie Ritchie's title. The clever Chicagoan defeated White in the eighteenth round of a scheduled twenty-round bout, when Referee Burke, acting on the orders of Sheriff Marero, stopped the go to save White from taking more punishment.

Although there were no knockdowns during the entire mill, Britton proved himself superior to his lighter foe. White was thoroughly beaten when Burke stopped the bout and held up Britton's glove. Sheriff Marero declared the bout ceased to be a boxing exhibition.

After the go Nate Lewis, manager of Charlie White, stated that his protege had injured his left hand during the third round and was forced to rely on his right member during the rest of the route. However, this should not take any of the glory that goes with victory from Britton.

Britton a Marvel.

He proved beyond a doubt that he is one of the greatest 133-pounders in the game to-day. His judge of distance is wonderful and he is also some puncher. In defeating White he did what very few other fighters have succeeded in accomplishing. Outside of five rounds Britton had a good shade in the other three-minute sessions. He was fighting fast at the finish and appeared fresh enough to go a number of more rounds.

Jack May Meet Ritchie.

Most of the fans who attended the mill yesterday are of the opinion that Britton would stand a great chance of defeating Ritchie if the pair ever meet. Promoter Tortorich stated that he would get in touch with the champion at once and try to close the mill.

White asked for another chance at Britton, but it is doubtful whether he will get the opportunity to get a return match with his conqueror for some time. Charlie is still a little too light to meet a boy of Britton's ability and hope to win. He weighed yesterday but 129 pounds, while Britton tipped the beam at 136.

FODDER FOR FANS

In the National League the Giants took two games from the Dodgers, the Phillies twice trounced the Braves yesterday, Cincinnati and Chicago broke even in a double-header, and St. Louis took one game from the Pirates, the other ending in a tie.

* * *

In the American League the Naps captured a brace of combats from the Tigers, the Athletics and Red Sox broke even, as did the Yankees and Senators and the Browns and White Sox.

* * *

Larry Doyle, the slugging second sacker of the Giants, seems to have permanently recovered fro mhis batting slump earlier in the season. He amassed a .400 batting average in two games yesterday.

* * *

The Phillies' two victories yesterday fractured their losing streak which had reached eight straight games.

* * *

"Game called to give players and spectators time to eat," was the unusual announcement made yesterday morning at the Red Sox-Athletics game and also at the Pirates-Cardinals combat. The latter contest had gone to eleven innings, the score standing 3 to 3 when the ruling was made, but at Boston it was in the seventh inning when the score stood 13 to 6 in favor of the Red Sox.

* * *

This Speaker, the Red Sox outfielder, in the second game yesterday got a perfect batting average, making four hits out of four tries.

* * *

Mordecai Brown, the three-fingered twirler who was cast off by the Cubs, pitched against his old teammates yesterday morning and added a shut-out to his list of victories.

* * *

Lajoie, the Naps' second sacker, waded deep in the second game yesterday, getting three doubles and a base on balls in four times at the bat.

* * *

Jackson, the leading batsman of the American League, further boosted his average yesterday by cracking out four hits in seven times up.

CRACKERS TAKE A FINAL JAB AT PELICANS TODAY

Games Friday Both Ties—Atlanta Team Playing Improved Ball, Even if They Don't Win.

By Percy H. Whiting.

THE concluding act of the amusing skit entitled "Pulverizing the Pelicans" will be staged this afternoon by Bill Smith's famous company of players at the Ponce DeLeon amphitheater. The curtain goes up at 3 p. m., and goes down again when the festivities are over, if they end promptly, for the Pelican team will beat it homeward to-night to play the usual Sunday game.

Of course the "pulverizing" part didn't happen to stick yesterday. In the morning game the Crackers had no luck at all with it and were fortunate to get a tie. In the afternoon the performance was duplicated. The Pelicans got away for a lead, but the Crackers managed to overtake them in time to get an even break.

Rain messed up the afternoon game. It came down in a fine deluge about the time the fifth inning was due to begin, and if the half-hour rule had been adhered to the affair would have been no game. But Frank and Smith waived the rule, the players hung around until the rain let up and the game was completed. The Crackers came from behind in the fifth, scored a brace of tallies, tied the score and kept it tied until darkness butted in.

WITHOUT wasting time trying to figure out how it happened, it's a fact anyhow that the Crackers are an improved ball club. Brenner had something on them in the morning, but they pulled some grand batting rallies. In the afternoon, when it appeared sure they were beaten, they came from the rear with a rush that gave them a satisfying tie. Of course, they were playing only the tail-enders, but these said tail-enders played plucky, determined, useful ball yesterday.

The local club is fielding and showing lots of "pep." Also, the pitchers are looking more like the real thing. Elliott Dent hurled a very presentable game in the morning. He flickered a couple of times, but made an impressive showing. And it was surely a hot morning for work. Brady held the Pels to six hits in the afternoon.

* * *

WHITEY alperman is still playing ing wonderful ball. "King" Brady said of him this spring that he was off on the best season of his career and it looks like a bullseye prediction. It appeared during spring practice that Alperman wasn't going to be quite fast enough on his feet to be a corking good second baseman this year. But somehow he's found his speed. And his fielding is phenomenal. He is the best pinch hitter of the team and possibly of the league. His work since he returned home from the last trip has been particularly spectacular.

CHICAGO CLUB WINNER OF JUNIOR A. A. UNION MEET

CHICAGO, July 5.—Chicago Athletic Association athletes ran away with point honors in the National Junior A. A. U. meet at Grant Park yesterday. The team captured first place in seven of the eighteen events, taking 42 points. Captain A. W. Kohler, of Michigan, was individual star, taking all the eleven points his school got. Lund, of the Irish-American Athletic Club, New York, broke the only record of the day, throwing the javelin 148 feet 8 inches, a new junior mark.

A feature of the day was the victory of James Ray, of the Illinois Athletic Club, over Strobine, an Olympic point winner in the five-mile run. Ray lay back until nearly the last lap, when he shot ahead and finished 30 yards in front of Strobine, who set the pace practically all the way. The time was 26:39.

HEINRICH SCHMIDT LOSES TO EX-FRENCH CHAMPION

LA BOULIE, FRANCE, July 5.—W. Heinrich Schmidt, of Worcester, Mass., was defeated yesterday in the third round of the tournament of the amateur golf championship of France by Peters Gannon, of Argentina. Gannon was amateur champion of France in 1910.

In the same round C. W. Inslee, of the Oneida Community Club, New York, beat Blandford, of England, by 5 up and 4 to play.

H. W. Stucklen, former champion of Massachusetts, was beaten by E. A. Lassen, the British amateur champion of 1906, by 4 up and 2 to play.

BOYD AND BRUGGERMAN WIN 200-MILE CONTEST

DENVER, July 5.—G. R. Boyd and Bert Bruggerman won in the professional class to-day in a 200-mile motorcycle race.

The time was 3:25:54 3-5. The best previous record for the distance was 4:05:54 2-5. In the amateur class C. Ogcorn and Al Edenberg finished first in 3:32:00.

CARTER SEEMS SURE TO WIN S. A. TOURNEY

AUGUSTA, GA., July 5.—E. V. Carter, Jr., of Atlanta, seems sure to be the man who will face Nat Thornton, of Atlanta, in the challenge round of the South Atlantic tennis tournament. Friday afternoon Carter and Ramspeck managed to play two sets and ten games of the third, when darkness made a postponement necessary. The score stood one-all in sets and 5-5 in games, but Carter seemed to be having all the best of it. "Best three out of five sets" must be played to decide the winner.

The best tennis playing of the tournament was on tap when the crack Atlanta pair clashed. Ramspeck warmed up by playing in the doubles with Orr against Waring and Waring won the first four games and it looked as if he would win the championship. However, his form was not so good after that. Carter, who hadn't warmed up thoroughly when the first set ended, got better and better.

The playing was witnessed by the largest gallery that has been present during the tournament and each player was given the glad hand for his uncanny work with the racquet.

The first set was won by Ramspeck, 6-4; the second by Carter, 6-1, and the third by Carter, 6-4.

Ramspeck and Orr were eliminated from the contest for the doubles championship when they were defeated by Waring and Waring, of South Carolina, 5-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Garrett and Gary, of Augusta, who defeated the Erwin brothers 6-3 and 8-6, enter the finals with the Warings on Saturday afternoon.

Capers defeated Crocheron 6-1 and 6-4 in the consolation men's singles and will meet the winner of the White-Roseman match Saturday afternoon for the championship.

In the mixed doubles Miss Adger and Erwin defeated Mrs. Milam and Reynolds 7-5, 6-0.

Nat Thornton, champion last year of the S. A. L. tournament, is to meet the winner of the Ramspeck-Carter match probably Saturday afternoon.

ALBANY-SYLVESTER RACE IS WON BY E. HANCOCK

ALBANY, GA., July 5.—Elsie Hancock, of Worth County, won the Albany-Sylvester Marathon yesterday, covering the 20 miles in 2 hours 25 minutes and 22 seconds.

Joe Garrett, winer of last year's race, was second, 4 minutes behind Hancock. J. P. Fulghum, of Sylvester, was third, and H. A. Redding, of Albany, fourth.

DANNY GOODMAN STOPPED IN EIGHTH BY MURPHY

NEW ORLEANS, July 5.—Wildcat Ferns, of Kansas City, was awarded the decision over Young Denny, of this city, after a scheduled ten-round bout at Pelican Park.

PIRATES' GOOD HURLERS FAIL TO LIFT TEAM

ST. LOUIS, July 5.—For the first time in thirteen years, the Pittsburg club is in the second division as late as June 26. During Fred Clarke's regime in the camp of the Corsairs, the club never has finished worse than fourth. The low-water mark was reached in 1904. He has won four pennants and finished second or third on all other occasions. Consequently the Smoketown fans are unable to reconcile themselves to the present lowly position of the team, which in advance of the season was said to possess just one more pennant kick.

Second division clubs are an unusual in Pittsburg as first division entries are in St. Louis. The Pirate fans get just as excited over their team being in fifth place as local shouters would if either the Cards or Browns burrowed their way into the exclusive quartet at the top of the heap. For that reason there is trouble in the Pittsburg camp.

Just a Few Reasons.

Asked for a reason for the Pirates' fall-down, one of the players placed the blame on Jinx which has pursued the club with a deal of perseverance. Here are a few pertinent facts:

Wagner was on the shelf from April 10 until late in May.

Gibson broke his ankle at Robison Field on April 20 and hasn't played since.

Simon and Kelly stubbed their fingers and are unable to work.

A pick-up catcher, Coleman, from Davenport, Iowa, is doing all the work.

Butler sprained his ankle and missed 11 games.

Bobby Byrne had a long batting slump in May.

Wagner again is laid up with a lame ankle.

Artie Hofman deteriorated into a minor leaguer and was released.

"So there you are," said the analyst. "We have had good pitching," he continued. "O'Toole has developed into a star. Adams has been going great. So have Camnitz and, at times, Hendrix. We have made our share of hits, as our batting average will prove, but we lacked that punch which is necessary to win. We recently lost six successive games by a margin of one run. We were losing, and couldn't get a break. One error a day would be injected at the wrong time, costing us defeat. It was pretty tough going."

JOHNNY DUNDEE EASY VICTOR IN DIXON BOUT

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M., July 5.—Johnny Dundee, of New York, got the decision over Tommy Dixon, of Kansas City, at the end of a ten-round fight here. Three knockdowns were scored by Dundee.

FRANK WHITNEY VICTOR IN GO WITH JOE THOMAS

NEW ORLEANS, July 5.—Frank Whitney, the "Fighting Carpenter," won by a big margin over Joe Thomas here in ten rounds.

JEANNETTE BEATS DEWEY

SAVANNAH, GA., July 5.—Joe Jeannette, the negro heavyweight, was given the decision over Nat Dewey, of Cheyenne, Wyo., at the end of the ten-round bout here.

CHAVEZ STOPS DELL.

TRINIDAD, COLO., July 5.—Benny Chavez, of this city, knocked out Harry Dell, of San Francisco, in the eleventh round of their scheduled 20-round bout yesterday.

Cross Earns Right to Fight Ritchie for Title

Anderson Was Never in Running With Gothamite

By Paul Armstrong.

Author of the "Escape," "Deep Purple," "Alias Jimmy Valentine" and Other Celebrated Plays.

LOS ANGELES, July 5.—Leach Cross is the only contender for the lightweight championship.

Yesterday he took the rugged Anderson, strong as a bull, teeming with confidence. From the first stab at the body which opened the fray to the last sizzling right hook that flattened him for ten minutes—never mind the ten seconds—Anderson was second. In the first clinch he was blocked with his right chop at the short ribs. Perhaps the loss of his ace so early in the game too some of his confidence. It is a red, white and blue certainty that two body blows which Cross tore into Anderson in the seventh round took about all his steam. From that on he was kosher.

When they came stripped to the fray, there was little difference in their size—not near as much when seen in clothes. Anderson was coarser, bigger boned and looked more rugged, but Cross looked the class. He carried nothing that he could not use in the ring. He was fit, his flesh like velvet and his eyes bright as a hungry snake's.

He got lucky immediately. Anderson had copped the corner with his back to the sun. A coin was tossed. He moved and sat in the other corner, looking at the sun like an eagle. Leach went about things like a business man. He personally inspected Bud's bandages, ordered his clerks about like slaves and got the store ready for the slaughter. In the meantime Anderson smiled and let the others do their will.

Anderson Was Confident.

Cross looked pretty soft to him, evidently, for the smile of pity was still lurking on his lips when the New York boy came feinting in. He got the distance and went to the body with a left jab. He worked in again and drew a lead. They were tangled in a clinch the next second. Anderson let go a chop with the right to the body and found an elbow between him and the mark. He tried for the head and then dropped it for the short ribs. Nothing doing—years and years ago Cross learned how to block that one.

They sparred a moment. Anderson let go a left hook for the head and reached. Cross still kept working in with his straight left for the body. He was stalling for a chance to use the right. Anderson knew it—everybody knew it. Suddenly it came—short? Bud pulled out of reach with a smile. But there was a lot more Anderson had not figured on. Leach shifted as he let go the right and came winging with a left swing. Down went Anderson. He was up instantly, seemingly unhurt.

Knockdown No Accident.

Murmuring boobs who bet 10 to 7, yea, even as good as 2 to 1 on what should have been the short end at 6 to 5, laughed it away—an accident.

It was not. Not a bit like it.

It was planned and executed with deliberation.

ANTHEMING FOR THE FOURTH.

Oh, say can you see, by the afternoon light,
Why so loudly we root while the blood still is streaming,
As we cash in our bets at the end of the fight,
With the losers still sore and the winners still screaming.
The promoters are there with a flock of hot air,
And a man can't get by till he hands them the fare,
And the Star Spangled Banner in sorrow shall shrug
O'er the land of the pug and the home of the thug.

SMALL FIELD QUALIFIES IN CLUB TOURNEY

OWING to the heavy rain of Friday afternoon only 42 players qualified for the President's cup in the tournament started July 4 over the course of the Atlanta Athletic Club.

Twenty players, virtually all those who started their qualifying round in the afternoon, were disqualified by the application of the fool "taking-shelter" rule.

This rule, designed for the drizzly English and Scotch climate and for professional play, is ludicrous when applied to amateur tournaments in the South, where storms of cyclonic violence are likely to sweep over the course any afternoon, making play impossible.

If the local club insists on enforcing that rule, players who can not start their qualifying play in the morning will do well to stay out, rather than to contribute to the prizes of those who are able to qualify in the mornings, when thunderstorms are not to be looked for.

The pairings for match play in the President's cup follows:

First Flight.

R. J. Jones v. James T. Smith, J. A. Ellen v. H. M. Ashe, R. G. Blanton v. James L. Dickey, R. T. ones, Jr., v. Dr. Jackson, H. P. D. Cowee v. V. V. Tilson, T. B. Fay v. J. G. Darling, J. S. Faine v. J. O. Smith, W. H. Glenn v. J. C. Harris.

Second Flight.

D. B. Osborne v. Frank Meador, C. V. Rainwater v. G. N. Spring, Lowry Arnold v. J. K. McDonald, H. Block v. Milt Saul, J. D. Eby v. H. Davis, W. R. Tichenor v. R. E. Trippe, W. P. Hazlewood v. C. Donaldson, C. E. Rose v. T. L. Cooper.

Third Flight.

G. A. Nicholson v. George W. Walker, B. M. Blount v. winner Walker-Nicholson match; J. P. Webster v. T. L. Ingram, William Markham v. C. G. Lippald, J. D. Lighter v. J. V. Dunlap, R. I. Gresham v. winner Lightner-Dunlap match.

O'TOOLE OUT FOR YEAR; APPENDICITIS OPERATION

PITTSBURG, July 5.—Marty O'Toole, the Pirates' $22,500 pitcher, was operated on for appendicitis yesterday. He will be out of the game for the balance of the season.

MACK SIGNS BRICKLEY.

BOSTON, July 5.—Connie Mack has signed up Infielder George Brickley, a brother of Charlie Brickley, the star football player of Harvard. Mack has had his eye on Brickley for some time.

LARSON DIDN'T FIGHT.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., July 5.—Chuck Larson did not go on with Jimmy Anderson here and there was no fight in the city worth mentioning.

HARRY KNIGHT MEETS DEATH IN AUTO RACE

COLUMBUS, OHIO, July 5.—"Well, just this once more and I'm done," said Harry Knight as he slipped under his steering wheel of his racing car yesterday and prepared to line up for the 200-mile race.

On the 110th lap Knight was thrown from his car as the result of a blown tire and was run over and killed by the car driven by Johnny Jenkins, his best friend. Milton Michaelis, his mechanician, was so seriously injured that he died soon after. Both men claimed Atlanta as their home, though both came originally from Indianapolis.

The death of Knight resulted from an accident similar to the one that gave him the title of "The Hero of the Indianapolis Track." On this occasion Knight drove his car into the concrete wall surrounding the track to avoid running over a man who had fallen from a car.

Knight had been officially declared out of the race, owing to time lost as a result of engine trouble, but despite the fact that he had no chance for the prizes he insisted on continuing the race. Almost in front of the grandstand a tire blew, the car swerved, went over, righted—throwing both men to the ground. Jenkins, who was chasing Knight, went over his body. Knight was terribly mangled and died instantly.

Ralph Mulford won the race, breaking the world's record for 200 miles on a dirt track. He won the distance in 3 hours 21 minutes and 48 seconds. The previous best time was made on the Columbus track by Spencer Wishart in 3 hours 28 minutes and 41-2 seconds.

Harry Endicott was second, with the time of 3 hours 45 minutes and 34 55-100 seconds. Ernest Reeder was third, with the time of 3 hours 47 minutes 53 65-100 seconds. Ralph DePalma finished fourth and just within the prize money, with the time of 4 hours 42 61-100 seconds. Prizes aggregated $5,000.

Poultry, Pet and Live Stock

Light Brahmas Are The Largest Fowls In Poultry Breeding

Judge F. J. Marshall: Which are the largest breeds of chickens in their respective order as to size, feathered on non-feathered legs, and where can some be procured of pure breed; the largest variety of game chickens, color and where obtainable of pure breed?

Blue Ridge, Ga. H. W. B.

Reply—The largest chicken bred and recognized in the Standard of Perfection (the guide to all thoroughbred poultry breeding) is the Light Brahmas; weights are, cocks, 12 pounds; cockerels, 10 pounds; hens, 9 1-2 pounds, and pullets, 8 pounds. They have pea combs and feathered shanks. Their body color is white with a black stripe down the center on each feather on the neck, and black tails. Inside of wings black not showing on the surface when the wing is folded. The next range in size comes these varieties, all of the same weight: Dark Brahmas, Black, White, Buff and Partridge Cochins; the weights being just one pound lighter than the Light Brahmas all through. All feathered-leg varieties, the Dark Brahmas are the same in characteristics as the Lights. The color is a black penciling on a gray ground color, the penciling being very narrow and conforming to the edge of the feathers in shape. The male has a black tail. The female's tail is black, except the two top feathers, which are penciled. Cochins are next in size; weight, 11 pounds; cockerels, 9 pounds; hens, 8 1-2 pounds, and pullets, 7 pounds. Cochins are noted for their extreme full feathering and very short legs, which make them appear to be almost one big, fluffy ball of soft feathers from head to toes. The general outline might be described as round, being short from head to tail, with high rounded back in female and full back in male; tails very short; in fact, the tail of the female scarcely shows at all. They are bred in four varieties, Buff, Black, White and Partridge. In form of penciling the Partridge is the same as the Dark Brahma, but the color of the penciling is dark brown on a surface of mahogany red. The Brahmas and Cochins are all feather-legged varieties, the Cochins being much more profuse than the Brahmas. The Cochin has a small single comb. The next in size are the Orpingtons, Buff, Black and White, all smooth-shanked varieties. Weights are, cocks, 10 pounds; cockerels, 8 1-2 pounds; hens, 8 pounds; pullets, 7 pounds. Comb, single, of medium size and five points. In shape the Orpingtons are rather shorter than the Plymouth Rocks, but not so blocky as the Wyandotte; legs rather large and stocky. The skin and flesh are white, as is the case with all fowls of English origin and make-up. The Buffs should be clear buff throughout, the Blacks solid black, and the Whites solid white. The buffs have a tendency to throw some black in tails, so when a little of it shows up there it should not be considered an impurity of blood. Breeders of these varieties should advertise in The Georgian.

July the Month to Get Most for Your Money Buying Good Stock

For those who are striving to be economical in their outlay for good stock July is the month of the year in which to get the most for their money purchasing good breeding stock. Any one who is regularly in the business has before this time hatched all the young stock he can handle and as a rule has not the room to carry over all his breeding stock, and for the sake of making them move off lively will offer them at a greatly reduced price. A few dollars invested at this time with some good breeder for a pen of first-class chickens would be money well placed. True, you would have to carry them through the molt, but that does not begin to offset the big reduction secured. A pen of chickens bought now and fed lightly for a month and the feed increased after that time should soon come into laying, and with judicious management a few fall chickens could be raised and still have the parent stock ready for early spring business. This is not a theory of ours, it is a custom of many of the best poultry people all over the country, and beneficial to both buyer and seller.

In your endeavors to make a purchase of this character be sure you strike some one who really has a surplus he does not wish to carry over, and for that reason will let them go for a sacrifice. A few hundreds of dollars invested in this way by the farmers of the South at this time to get good stock with which to supplant their scrubs would mean thousands of dollars to them during the next twelve months.

We only wish each and every one could see it as we have seen it tried, time and again in our experience in traveling over the country, and how we have been told by those who had made the experiment, as they called it, of the increased profits they had derived by handling first-class, thoroughbred poultry. So well satisfied are they that they could not be hired to go back to the old plan of the "scrub is good enough for me."

There is no experiment about it, it is a business proposition.

FOR SALE

ON PIEDMONT AVENUE, near school, on the car line, we have one of the best bungalows to be found in the city. Built by the present owner for a home out of the best material and workmanship. Never expected to sell it, but keep it for a home. The lot cost him $3,000 vacant. If vacant to-day could not be bought for $4,000.

This bungalow has seven rooms—fine shaded east front lot—all conveniences, one year old.

The owner's work has called him to Florida, and he must sell by August 1.

We have had this place listed at $7,000, and cheap at that—but the owner says he must sell—therefore, he is putting the price down to $6,250. This should sell at once.

Medium-Sized Acreage Tracts

ALL of us know the profit that is usually made from acreage. It is almost a conceded fact that if a person owns good acreage, he has a sure profit in it sooner or later. When we think of acreage propositions, we think of lots of land, and naturally lots of money, because the usual acreage transaction involves a great deal of money. The demand for good, close-in acreage for subdivision purposes is increasing every day. A trip to the outskirts of the city in any direction you choose to take will convince you of this fact. We are going to offer a tract of about 160 acres, between Decatur and East Lake, which we have cut up into five, ten and fifteen acre tracts. The price and terms on these tracts make it possible for almost anybody to handle them.

Park Community To Cost $150,000

Twenty West Peachtree Cottages. To Sell James Home—University Club Plans—Aragon Hotel Offer.

A park community plan which will involve the expenditure of probably $150,000 and revolutionize a section of West Peachtree has been evolved by Lavender Ray, owner of considerable property on West Fourteenth and West Peachtree. Mr. Ray will utilize the depressed northeast corner of West Peachtree and West Fourteenth Streets for a handsome three-story apartment house and erect 20 artistic cottages for young married couples in a park space which he owns between West Fourteenth and West Fifteenth Streets, with frontage on West Peachtree.

"I hope to build the apartment house for $25,000, although it may cost more," declared Mr. Ray in speaking of his plans, "and to spend an average of $4,000 to $5,000 on the cottages. A handsome colonnade will extend over the West Peachtree entrance and the colonnade effect will be carried out through the string of ten cottages on either side, with portecochere effects between the dwellings. The trees will make it possible to provide a little park and playground for children.

"I hope to provide a restaurant where all couples can get their meals, and to supply all the cottages with heat from a central heating plant, possibly from the apartment house. The dwellings will be uniform in size and architecture."

Mr. Ray has drawn rough plans for the colonnade and will soon begin sketches for the dwellings. His frontage on West Peachtree is 175 feet and the depth between the other streets 572 feet. He expects to cut a street like Grant Place through the center of the property, to be 50 feet wide at the front and 40 feet wide at the other extremity. Attractive alleyways will be provided for automobiles and other conveyances behind the cottages, and entrance can also be effected through the rear.

The West Peachtree frontage for the apartment is 100 feet, and the frontage on Fourteenth Street is 118 feet.

To Sell Peachtree Home.

John H. James, the well-known banker and real estate operator, has placed on private sale his former home place at 314 Peachtree, on the west side of the street between Porter Place and Baker Street, and just south of the old J. Scott Todd lot. This property was bought by Mr. James fifteen years ago for $7,000, or at the rate of a little less than $130 a foot. The two-story frame home cost him about the same amount. To-day property in this block is held at $1,500 to $1,600 a foot, which would make the 54 by 175-foot lot worth $81,000 to $86,400. The dwelling is now rented as a boarding house.

Mr. James is also the owner of the property at 135 Whitehall Street, on which is located the Martin & Knott Furniture Company. This is on the west side of the street just north of Trinity Avenue. Mr. James bought it a number of years ago for about $15,000, and to-day holds it at $50,000. He is not yet ready to sell this parcel, however.

University Club Plans.

Hal F. Hentz, of the firm of Hentz & Reid, architects, has been put to work on plans a new University Club home, and is expected to complete a tentative sketch shortly. The University Club has under consideration a building in the neighborhood of the Aragon Hotel, which will be extensively remodeled if the plans of the executive committee are carried out. It is planned to install shower baths, a swimming pool, a gymnasium for light exercises, lockers, etc., and to take the building on a lease.

Members of the club are desirous of obtaining a location close to Five Points, and for this reason nothing has been considered seriously north of Baker Street. Among places mentioned have been the J. R. Hopkins home at the southeast corner of Baker and Peachtree, the former home of Charles E. Sciple at the northwest corner of Kimball and Cypress Streets, and the Joseph Rhodes Building back of the Winecoff Hotel, on West Ellis Street.

The University Club must vacate the old Abbott home in October, and on account of the short space of time the executive committee have gone ahead with preparations to move.

Offer on Aragon Hotel.

It has been learned on good authority that an offer was refused the other day on the Aragon Hotel property, the owners declining to name any price. This is the property that a would-be purchaser offered several years ago to cover with dollars, and was told by the late George W. Collier that he could get a warranty deed if he would put the coins on edge. The new prospects were not even given this opportunity.

The Aragon is under lease to the Harrels for hotel purposes.

Job Still Unfinished.

Although the impression has gone abroad that Peachtree Road paving has been completed from Buckhead to the DeKalb County line, property owners north of William S. Witham's deny it in positive terms. They declare that the bulk of the convicts have been transferred to Peachtree work south of Buckhead and that only a handful are left on the other job. The said property owners have been placated, however, through circumstances. Whereas the outlying work has not been completed, the closer-in job is getting good attention.

The convicts, by the way, are taking a rest until the Fourth of July has passed.

Railroad Rumblings Heard.

Where is the railroad "lightning" going to strike on the West Side? A hundred property owners would like to know, since their land will jump far above what they paid for it. "I have a large tract on the West Side," declared a young business man Thursday, "and I would give a good deal to know if any railroads are coming through my property."

One of the best posted real estate men in the city declared that something big was going on and he couldn't find it out. "They haven't let me on to it," he said, "but I expect to get in before they are through. I have had some quiet offers on my property, but I have not set any price. My tip is to watch Walton Street. I believe a spur track will run up this thoroughfare before long and I shouldn't be surprised if the Seaboard will use it. The Seaboard is dependent on the N., C. and St. L., and through it, the L. and N., for both its freight and passenger terminals in Atlanta, and I believe is figuring on an arrangement of its own. I expect them to build both passenger and freight depots on the West Side."

Plans for running a connection between the Southern and the A., B. and A. near Mangum Street, and for putting a spur track adjacent to property of Judge E. C. Kontz and Philip Weltner for manufacturing purposes have already been told. That there is something else in the nature of a big surprise, however, is the belief of many, and the railroads are being watched closely.

Twelfth Story on Skyscraper.

Workmen are now ready to put the steel on the twelfth story of the Healey Building. Having placed the girders on the tenth floor, they are going two higher. The Healy Building now towers above the Grant Building and will soon surpass the Empire.

To Sell Lots at Auction.

Five lots and a six-room house at the corner of Park Avenue and Bryant Street, Grant Park section, will be sold July 9 by William A. Vernoy.

Ansley Park Buy.

Harry L. Waters has bought from A. C. Woolley a California bungalow on a 50 by 240-foot lot at 85 East Park Lane, Ansley Park, for $7,500. The deal was handled through W. L. & John O. DuPree.

Demand for Apartment Houses.

Atlanta continues to be a good market for apartment houses. Although a number are constantly building, there seems to be little trouble disposing of them at good prices. Cordial interest accordingly centered around the transfer of the Byron on West Peachtree, near Linden, from Byron Souders to L. P. Bradley, of Newnan, at $150,000. This was in the nature of a swap, Mr. Bradley putting in a Coweta County farm, besides assuming a loan of $40,000 placed June 30 through the Penn Mutual Life Insurance Company, and giving notes for most of the difference.

The property is 84 by 200 feet and adjoins a 100-foot parcel which Mr. Souders owns at the southwest corner of Linden and West Peachtree and which was the old Bewick place.

The Byron contains eighteen apartments and rents for $15,000 a year. It is distinctive in the possession of grotesque masks with which the front pillars are studded. Mr. Souders got these from a cast made by a local artist, and he introduced many other innovations picked up here and there.

Remodeling Eiseman Store.

The Eiseman Brothers' Company has begun making alterations on its store at 11, 13, 15 and 17 Whitehall, the same to cost about $4,000. The front stairway is being closed up and will be placed toward the rear, and more attractive show windows are being built. The Krueger Manufacturing Company has the contract. Business is going on as usual.

Prominent Atlantans Buy.

A. V. Gude, Jr., J. R. Moore, A. A. and Joseph Doonan, Lee M. Jordan, John J. Lynch, Joel Hunter and Chas. S. Kingsbery have bought a batch of ten large building lots in Cobb County just over the Chattahoochee River and on the river car line. The seller was the L. P. Grant estate, and the aggregate consideration $6,000. Mr. Lynch and Mr. Hunter bought two each and the others one each.

The lots are 100 by 400 feet, in the neighborhood of the residences of Howard Matthews, Sid Mitchell and others. A road through them is due to be paved soon.

Exchange Completed.

Details of the recent exchange of properties between Dr. M. A. Massoud and Jonathan B. Frost have been announced. Mr. Frost takes the S. Y. Tupper place at the northeast corner of West Peachtree and North Avenue for $44,000 and gives as part payment 209 Washington Street, formerly the Massoud home, at $25,000, and a vacant lot on the northeast side of Marietta Street, near Pine Street, at $6,000, and assumes the difference.

The Tupper corner is 68 feet on West Peachtree Street and 84 feet on North Avenue. It has been occupied lately by a fraternity house with a chapter at Tech. The lot netted Dr. Massoud $14,000 in three months.

A Queer Idea of Senatorial Courtesy--Particularly as Applied to Women.

Senator W. W. Stark, who represents, after a fashion, the Thirty-third District in the Senate of Georgia, has a queer idea of senatorial courtesy—particularly as applied to women.

He protested, and sucoessfully, we are sorry to say, against permitting an hour or two's use of the Senate chamber of Georgia to a handful of earnest, sincere women of Georgia, because he—the Senator—does not "believe in" woman's suffrage!

These women did not propose to interfere with the proceedings of the Senate, and Senator Stark did not base his objections to their meeting upon that ground. He objected because he does not "believe in" woman's suffrage.

The Senator, no doubt, would have agreed, fast enough, for the Farmers' Union, or the State Democratic Executive Committee, or some other male organization, to meet in the Senate chamber, but he could not bring his weighty statesmanship to the point of permitting a few of the WOMEN of Georgia to tread within the sacred precincts of that hallowed spot set aside for Starks!

Senator Stark has much to learn. He will find that he can not slap the women of Georgia in the face—even a few of them—and "get away with it!"

The cause of woman's suffrage will stand or fall NOT by the standards set up by the Starks.

It will stand or fall in Georgia, according to the COMMON SENSE AND FAIRMINDEDNESS OF THE PEOPLE!

The Georgian understands that the women turned down by the Senate will apply to the House for permission to hold their two-nights' meetings there.

We believe they will be granted the small and perfectly legitimate favor they ask. The House will hardly repeat the remarkable and silly performance of the Senate, engineered by Senator Stark, and carried through, we really believe, before the Senate had opportunity to think of what a foolish and unwarranted thing it was being made a party to.

Teach Atlanta Mothers How to Bring Up Babies

Members of the Atlanta Mothers' Congress, who have undertaken to provide the poor babies of the city with milk during the hot summer months, have inaugurated a campaign of instruction.

Much of the milk is delivered by the members of the congress in person, and instruction on the care of babies can easily and readily be given.

The following rules for the care of the child have been indorsed by leading physicians throughout the country, and should be told and emphasized to every mother to whom deliveries of milk are made:

If you are worried about your baby, have a doctor see it, A GOOD DOCTOR. If you can not get a good doctor, go to the Department of Health, get the advice of a doctor at a free dispensary.

Don't wean the baby when the weather is very hot, if you can possibly help it, or when it is ill. The change in food upsets the digestion and may be fatal at a critical moment.

Feed your baby regularly.

Sacrifice everything to this important point. The child's stomach gets used to food at certain times, and digests it easily at those times, if the food is regular.

Every two hours in the daytime, and every four hours at night will do for feeding for a healthy child.

Don't dress your baby warmly, HAVE NOTHING TIGHT AROUND ITS NECK OR STOMACH, KEEP EVERYTHING LOOSE AND AIRY EVERYWHERE.

Have your windows open day and night. Keep the baby off the dirty floor, where it gets germs on its little hands and puts them in its mouth.

Remember that in the really hot weather the thinnest possible clothing is all that a child needs. One little, thin, cotton shirt, low-necked and without sleeves, will do while the baby is indoors.

Avoid strong draughts. But better a draught than not enough air.

Above all, give your baby enough to drink. If the baby cries in hot weather, give it two or three spoonfuls of water, cool, BUT NOT ICED.

Boil the water that you give your baby. And keep the boiled water tightly corked in a clean bottle so that germs won't get into it.

Feed it with a spoon dipped in hot water, A CLEAN SPOON.

Dangerous signs of disease that carry off children suddenly are vomiting and diarrhea. Notify your doctor, or the Health Department, AT ONCE.

Let your baby REST. KEEP THE FLIES AWAY FROM IT. THEY BRING DISEASE.

A young baby, washed clean in the morning, with cool but not cold water, put on its back almost naked on a bed with a mosquito netting thrown over the top of the bed (but not touching the child)—such a baby, fed regularly, with water to drink when it wants it, will be happy in hot weather.

Don't let the children tease the baby. Don't let grownup people play with it and tire it. Remember that it is GROWING UP AND DOING NOTHING ELSE. Don't try to awaken its intelligence or make it laugh.

If you stir up the little brain you disturb the little stomach.

Remember, WHENEVER A BABY CRIES SOMETHING IS WRONG.

Don't get cross; FIND OUT WHAT'S THE MATTER; that's your business. It may be a tight string, a bandage drawn too closely around the legs, need of a change of linen, or it may be thirst.

Don't feed the baby every time it cries. Give it water. Remember that.

It's Tough on Poor Father

"Gee, It's Salt."

MEANING AND SCOPE OF THE NEW CURRENCY BILL

Editor The Georgian:

I wish to thank you for the explanation which you have made regarding the meaning and scope of the new currency bill which is before the Congress for action.

I have read your several editorials on the subject and desire to say that I not only concur in your opinion regarding the measure, but feel sure the lucid explanation which you have made will serve to give your readers a better and more comprehensive understanding of the bill than it has been possible to gather from the brief references made to it in the general press. I think it an excellent idea to put the facts about proposed important legislation within reach of your readers that they may have an opportunity of weighing them and ascertaining whether or not this legislation is what they want.

Cost of Neglecting Our Merchant Marine

More Than $1,000,000 Is Paid Each Day to Foreigners Building and Operating Foreign Ships to Carry the Trade of Our Country, He Says.

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES

IT is estimated that for the fiscal year ending June 30 the exports of the United States will reach the enormous figure of $2,400,000,000, and that the balance of trade in our favor will approximate $675,000,000—a sum never before equaled upon the balance sheet of nations.

These figures are a tribute to our national greatness and prosperity. They carry also a serious reflection upon our national enterprise and a distinct humiliation to our national pride.

For of all this mighty commerce overseas less than 8 per cent was transported under the American flag. This magnificent balance of our trade is almost cut in two by the enormous sums we pay to foreign ships to carry our own products to the markets of the world.

More than $750,000,000 of foreign capital is to-day invested in foreign yards building ships to transport the commerce we furnish.

MORE THAN $1,000,000 IS PAID EACH DAY TO FOREIGNERS BUILDING AND OPERATING FOREIGN SHIPS TO CARRY THE TRADE OF OUR COUNTRY. OF THIS $1,000,000 DAILY PAID 90 PER CENT GOES TO FOREIGN LABOR.

This $1,000,000 each day should be given to the American laborer and kept at home to do American business instead of going abroad to feed foreign labor and to enrich our commercial rivals.

No Delivery Wagons.

This is but a single phase of the injury we suffer from having no ships of our own. Our stupendous foreign trade is made in the face of the greatest obstacles. It would easily double within the next five years if we had our own ships—our own delivery wagons—to carry our trade to our customers.

The rate paid by every passenger and by every pound of freight going from any port of this country to any foreign port is fixed in advance by agreement among foreign steamship combines and conferences. If an American shipper desires to send a bushel of wheat or a bale of cotton or of any other product to Europe, he must pay the rate fixed in advance by the trust in Hamburg, Germany. If an American merchant wishes to send a barrel of flour or of cement or a piece of machinery or any freight to South America, he must wait until the foreign steamship combine in this country can ascertain from Europe what price must be charged for carrying it.

Not an American vessel runs from this country directly to South America beyond the Equator.

EVERY AMERICAN CITIZEN THAT CROSSES THE ATLANTIC OR GOES TO SOUTH AMERICA MUST PAY THE RATE THAT THE FOREIGN STEAMSHIP COMBINE FIXES IN ADVANCE IN JENA, GERMANY. OF COURSE, THESE RATES ARE ALWAYS THE HIGHEST THAT THE TRADE WILL BEAR.

Six per cent net is considered a reasonable profit upon investment of great sums of capital in this country. Yet the Hamburg-American Steamship Company admits a net profit of more than 10 per cent upon a capitalization of approximately $100,000,000. In fact the real net earning of the Hamburg company is said to be nearer to 20 per cent annually. This tremendous profit is chiefly levied upon American commerce.

Opposition to America.

Not only are all freight and passenger rates from this country to foreign ports fixed by agreement by these foreign combines, but these conferences constantly discriminate against American commerce in all competitive markets.

Take South America for illustration. The American shipper pays exactly the same rate from this country to South America on slow and antiquated ships running at irregular intervals that his European rival pays on fast modern vessels running on regular schedule. Now and then the European shipper by secret arrangement secures an advantage. Not only this, but the European shipper is given an immense advantage in promptness of delivery.

Under no circumstances will these foreign steamship combines permit an advantage to the American shipper.

To illustrate: Brazil prefers our flour. She gave us an advantage of 30 per cent over the other nations of the world in flour. Immediately these foreign shipping pools increased the freight rate on flour to just that extent. Again we were given an advantage of 20 per cent on cement. Immediately the freight rates between this country and South America on cement were increased over Europe until the European manufacturer controlled the market.

Deadly Tactics.

These are the deadly tactics followed by these foreign steamship lines in respect to every competitive article in which our country's products might have an equal chance with foreign products. And all the while we go on pouring our millions of servile tribute into the laps of the foreigners that rob us.

Every fact stated above as to the attitude of these foreign steamship combines has been testified to under oath by the agents and representatives of these combines in the recent Congressional investigation.

These combines state boldly that they monopolize our trade, that they fix our freight and passenger rates by agreement and that these rates are made in Europe. They further acknowledge that they are violating our anti-trust laws and that they intend to continue to violate them!

Yet because they are foreign companies we submit to this extortion and defiance of our laws with an indifference and complacency that is cowardly and shameful.

In the pending tariff bill an attempt was made to at least express our right to favor our own ships. It is simply inconceivable that an American Congress should have been deterred by any sort of influence from doing this and doing more!

The French in Mexico

By REV. THOMAS B. GREGORY.

IT was just 50 years ago—June 10, 1863—that the soldiers of Napoleon the Third, under the command of General Forey, with drums a-beating and bunting a-fluttering, marched into Mexico, to establish upon these Western shores a great Latin kingdom.

Almost immediately after the entry of the French, and doubtless by pre-arranged program, there was a meeting of the "Assembly of Notables," at which it was decided, with all due solemnity, that there should be established a monarchy with the City of Mexico as its capital and with Maximilian, Archduke of Austria, as Emperor.

On June 12, 1864, Maximilian and his wife entered the city of the Aztecs as Emperor and Empress, and three years later, June 19, 1867, the farce ended with the crack of the rifles which sent Maximilian to his death and his consort, broken-hearted, back to Europe.

The "Assembly of Notables" did not amount to as much as its members thought it did; and the Old World was given its first practical demonstration of the power of the "Monroe Doctrine;" a doctrine which, it would seem, Napoleon the Third had not looked upon with becoming seriousness.

To this day the Maximilian episode remains a puzzle to the student of history.

Some say that the idea of a great imperial Latin State side by side with the great English-speaking communities furnished the fascination upon Napoleon's mind which was responsible for the business; while others hold that the pursuit of the bubble was a necessity imposed upon the Emperor by the exigencies of his situation.
