PISTOL FAILURE SAVES LIFE OF MANAGER IN COAL YARD ROBBERY

One Safe of Randall Bros. Blown Open and Robbed, Burglar Makes Attempt on Other Plant

NEGRO CAPTURED AFTER BATTLE WITH EMPLOYES

Attempts to Kill Chandler, but Revolver Was Strange Weapon and Wouldn't Shoot, Man Held by Police

Because his revolver happened to be a hammerless with the safety catch locked, Charley Stephens, a negro burglar, was prevented from doing murder early Monday morning, and three men are alive and well who might otherwise have been dead.

Seizing the revolver from a table where J. L. Chandler, manager of Randall Brothers coal yard at 64 Krog street, had laid it when he picked up the telephone to call the police, the burglar aimed at Mr. Chandler and pulled the trigger. He had knocked a monkey wrench from the hand of Frank Moss, a negro driver for the company, when Mr. Chandler had fleft guarding him. He covered Frank with the revolver and pulled the trigger several times with the muzzle almost at that negro.

All this happened in three or four seconds. At the junction when the burglar was backing away from his ex-captors Jackson Reed, another driver for the company, entered the office and threw himself upon the intruder, exclaiming "He'll get me, boss, before he gets you."

The two grappled, and Frank Moss joined them, the two drivers overpowering the burglar after a moment and holding him for the police, whom Mr. Chandler now called without interruption.

When Mr. Chandler entered the office the yard at 6 o'clock Monday morning he heard a noise in the back. Investigating, he discovered some one in the store room and a candle on the floor, although some one had dropped them and fled. Getting his revolver, he continued his investigation, and found a strange negro crouched in a low house at the back. The negro submitted when Mr. Chandler aimed the weapon at him, and Frank Moss, the negro driven, coming up at that moment, the two of them led the intruder to the telephone.

In recorder's court, less than three hours later, Charley Stephens was bound over to the higher courts for burglary and for assault with intent to murder.

During Monday night another of the Randall yards—that at the corner of Boulevard and the Georgia railroad—was robbed, the safe being blown open with such force as to break window sash and loosen the door of the office safe. No one heard the explosion. All the valuable contents of the safe were taken. The loss had not been estimated at 10 o'clock.

SYLVIA PANKHURST TRIES NO SLEEP FOR A CHANGE

Suffragette Walks Day and Night to Keep Awake and Gain Freedom

LONDON, Dec. 15.—Miss Sylvia Pankhurst, militant suffragette agitator, since her arrest on December 10 has adopted the more drastic method of adding a "no sleep and no food, hunger and thirst strike" in order to force the prison authorities to release her. She accomplishes this by walking continually. Her condition already is aggravated and her friends expect her release shortly.

The police, however, plan to keep both Miss Pankhurst and her mother in jail until after today's weekly meeting of Women's Social and Political union.

The militants continue their violent tactics. The arson squad last night burned down an empty mansion near Bristol, another party broke every window in the Richmond police station.

KILLS MOTHER FOR HER DELAY IN GETTING COFFEE

(By Associated Press.)

DONALDSONVILLE, La., Dec. 15.—When his aged mother did not respond promptly to his request for a cup of coffee, Paul Falcon is alleged to have arisen from the supper table last night and shot her through the head.

Falcon's half brother, John Hagan, had returned from work and asked for a change of clothes. She was complying with Hagan's request when she was shot down. Falcon was put in jail with a charge of murder against him.

GOVERNMENT MUST REPAY MUTUAL INSURANCE TAXES

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The supreme court today refused the government's request to have the decision of the circuit court at Philadelphia that the corporation tax was no collectible from "dividends" of mutual insurance companies consisting of premiums refunded or otherwise invested at the option of the policyholder. As a result the government will be required to refund about $1,500,000 already collected and to forego any such collections under the present income tax law.

Auto Rates To Be Fixed By Council

Ordinance Committee Decides on Uniform Scale for Rental and Trips—Owners Enter Protest on Schedule

An ordinance establishing a scale of rates to be charged by automobiles for rent was agreed upon by the ordinance committee of council Monday and will be presented to the general council Monday afternoon.

The scale fixed by the ordinance is as follows:

For one passenger one-half mile, 50 cents; and each additional passenger, 25 cents.

For one passenger one mile, 75 cents; and for each additional passenger, 25 cents.

For one passenger one and one-half miles, $1; and for each additional passenger, 25 cents.

For one passenger two miles, $1.25; and for each additional passenger, 25 cents.

For one passenger 2 1-2 miles, $1.50; for each additional half mile, 25 cents; and for each additional passenger, 25 cents.

Five-passenger car—First hour, $3.50; second and succeeding hours, $3.00.

Seven-passenger car—First hour, $4; second and succeeding hours, $3.50.

The ordinance was introduced in council some weeks ago and referred to the ordinance committee. The committee heard the automobile men Monday. They protested that the rates fixed by the ordinance would put them out of business, but the committee would consent only to a few increases. The report accompanying the ordinance will be unanimous, and the ordinance is thereby likely to be passed.

At present the rates per hour charged by most of the rent men are $5 and $4 for seven-passenger cars, and $4 and $3 for five-passenger cars.

At present there are no established trip rates, and it was the protests to members of council by people who have been charged different prices for identically the same trip that led to the ordinance.

Great Crowds Fight To Obtain View of Famous "Mona Lisa"

FLORENCE, Italy, Dec. 15.—So great is the crowd striving to obtain a view of the Vinci's painting, "Mona Lisa," that authorities have been obliged to remove many of the busts and statues from the Uffizi gallery to prevent them being broken in the crush. So great was the picture.

In four hours more than 20,000 persons viewed the Leonardo masterpiece. When order was partly restored 125 bodies on the average were counted every minute.

Resentment is vigorously expressed in many quarters at the action of the Italian government in returning the picture to France.

Miss Emerson Center Of Suffragette Battle With London Police

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Dec. 15.—The American suffragette, Miss Zelie Emerson, of Jackson, Mich., was the central figure of a furious scrimmage Sunday evening between the police and suffragettes and their supporters in the Kew street district. Miss Emerson and three men were arrested.

The suffragettes gathered for the purpose of demonstrating before the house of counsellors, who had deprived them of the use of the Kew Palm as a meeting place. One hundred police, mounted and afoot, corralled the demonstrators, and, failing to dispurse them from their purposed action, charged the procession.

They seized Miss Emerson, and men and women rushed to her rescue. A wild scene followed, and women and children were thrown to the ground and trampled in the semi-darkness. The seriesk of the frightened mob terrified the onlookers, but when the field was cleared the situation proved not so serious.

Miss Emerson was brought up in police court today charged with disturbing the peace. She appeared in the prisoner's enclosure with one arm in a sling. It had been badly wrenched in the scuffle with the police.

The police testified Miss Emerson smashed a policeman's helmet with the pole of a banner. The magistrate remanded her for a week on bail after she promised to keep the peace until the conclusion of the case.

CAN TAX INSURANCE CO. IN EACH COUNTY, SAYS COURT

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The power of a state to tax net receipts of a fire insurance companies in each county was upheld today by the supreme court, in a case where the New York Life Insurance company resisted the collection of a tax by Deer Lodge county, Montana. The supreme court upheld validity that the action of the state was an interference with interstate commerce. Justices Hughes and Vandevanter dissented.

ARMY-NAVY OFFICERS CENSURED BY WILSON FOR SATIRE AT FEAST

Carabao Club Holds High Jinks and Indulges in Roasts of Government's Philippine Policy

BRYAN'S PEACE POLICY GOT WORST OF CRITICISM

Secretary Daniels Left Dinner Early, but Says Song Was Offensive—High Officers Involved in Affair

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—President Wilson today ordered an investigation by the war and navy departments of the satires on the administration's Philippine policy which featured the annual banquet last Thursday of the Order of Carabao, an organization of army and navy officers who served in the islands. President Wilson suggested to Secretaries Garrison and Daniels reprimands for those responsible.

Secretaries Daniels and Garrison conferred early today and called for a statement of explanation from Rear Admiral Howard and General Aleshire, the highest ranking officers at the dinner.

Secretary Daniels at the same time suggested to Admiral Howard that he decline the presidency of the club at which he was elected last Thursday and informed him that the song "Damn, Damn, Damn, the Insurrectos," which was sung at the banquet, would never be sung again under the present administration with soldiers of the navy present.

PEACE POLICY SATIRIZED.

The president expressed his indignation to members of his cabinet after he had read published accounts of the banquet. He felt particularly displeased over the travesty on the administration's peace policy and criticism aimed at Secretary Bryan, when six models of battleships, born by coaling boys, were carried into the banquet room. In the guns of the guns were stuck cocoanuts and the milk inside dyed and perched on each floating ship.

These were named "United States Steamship Fellowship," "United States Steamship Friendship," "United States Steamship Piffle."

Another was a moving picture film of a three-year war of a Filipino outbreak, which died and again escaped capture and hardly had been apprehended when he was made governor of a province.

The performance, according to advance statements of the Carabao Club society, was designed to show the lack of sympathy for recent developments and tendencies in Philippine government.

President Wilson himself was not satisfied by the dinner but made it plain to his associates that he felt keenly the burlesquing on members of his cabinet. Secretary Daniels and Secretary Garrison shared the president's feeling by the burlesquing on members of his cabinet. Secretary Daniels and Secretary Garrison shared the president's feeling by the burlesquing of Secretary Daniels said today that he left the dinner immediately after making his speech in order to keep another engagement, and did not hear "Damn, Damn, Damn, the Insurrectos," was particularly offensive.

DANIELS DIDN'T LIKE IT.

Secretary Daniels said that had he known the song "Damn, Damn, Damn, the Insurrectos," was to have been sung he would have asked that it be omitted and had that not been done he would have declined to attend the dinner.

The opinion of the president and members of his cabinet is that satires can not be objected to when coming from persons outside of the government but permit no go unnoticed the criticisms of officials of the army and navy is likely to be misinterpreted abroad as a serious breach of discipline.

The news of the proposed investigation fell like a bombshell in army and navy circles. There were hundreds of officers present. Rear Admiral Howard told Mr. Daniels today that they had sung "Damn, Damn, Damn, the Insurrectos," for thirteen years and had not met with any objection. Secretary Daniels pointed out that officers of the army and navy who would be expected to support the administration's policy could not be permitted to ridicule it.

NO EFFORT AT PRIVACY.

Mr. Daniels was inclined to take in consideration that the function was intended as one of jollity and good-natured fun, but was amazed that copies of the songs with descriptions of the travesties were given out in advance and no effort was made to keep the affair private one.

Secretaries Daniels, Redfield and Postmaster General Burleson, Justices Lamar, Pitney and McKenna, of the United States supreme court were among the guests. Major General Wood did not attend.

COURT-MARTIAL POSSIBLE.

"I have been instructed by the president," said Secretary Garrison, "to ascertain the facts with reference to the incidents at the dinner—to determine whether the facts warrant a court-martial or whether they warrant a reprimand. I shall do my duty when I have obtained all the facts in the case."

Secretary Garrison said that he would seek to find out whether the things that occurred at the dinner were in the nature of a breach of discipline in undermining the regulations of the army or whether the entire affair was one of "bad taste" without infraction of any particular regulation. He added that he was making a searching inquiry of the whole thing.

Rear Admiral Howard and General Aleshire voluntarily opened the matter with Secretary Garrison after they had learned informally of the investigation, and told him they would aid in any way to obtain the information desired.

WILSON STAYS IN ROOM BUT DOES SOME WORK

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—President Wilson was declared today to be "doing very nicely." The president remained in his room but took up his work for the first time in several days, dictating letters and reading official papers.

Hundreds of Atlanta families have been sworn in to give the wrong the once over. Their work is confined mostly to the extensive poultry yards in the vicinity of Peachtree and Whitehall streets. A conservative estimate places the sale of the "Chicken Inspector—23" badges at a trifle above the 1,000 mark. This does not include the unauthorized experts engaged in the work.

MOGULS OF SOUTHERN LEAGUE HOLD MEETING

Many Subjects of Interest to Clubs Will Be Considered at Annual Session

The annual meeting of the Southern Association of Baseball Clubs began at the Hotel Ansley Monday morning when the executive committee went into executive session to discuss various protests, complaints and matters of minor importance in league doings.

The meeting proper of the association did not start until after 2 o'clock, when the executive committee adjourned. At the time the board of directors of the league, composed of all owners and managers present, convened. Among the matters of interest to come before them are the naming of a schedule committee, the election of officers, the status of the New Orleans club and the prospect of the retirement of Manager Charlie Frank, the awarding of the Dandolph Rose medal to the league's champion batter, and, possibly, the displacing of the Montgomery club in the league by Little Rock.

Only three managers are attending the league meeting this year: Bill Smith, of Atlanta; Bris Lord, of Mobile, and Bobby Gilkes, of Montgomery, representing Manager C. P. Wilcox, who could not arrange his affairs in time to be here.

Among the moguls attending the meeting are President Kavanagh, Secretary Jacobsen, A. J. Heineman and Charlie Frank, of New Orleans; President Baird and W. D. Smith, of Birmingham; President Frank Coleman, of Memphis; President O. B. Andrews, of Chattanooga; President C. Z. Colson, of Mobile, and President Charley Hirsig, of Nashville.

WEATHER BUREAU SEES NO COLD WAVE SIGNALS

Continuation of Temperature Near or Above Seasonal Average Is Predicted

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—No indications of a cold wave this week can be seen, the weather bureau said last night in its weekly forecast. Continuation of temperatures near or above the seasonal average is predicted, with precipitation generally light and local over most of the country.

"The next disturbance of importance to cross the country," the bulletin said, "will appear in the far west Monday or Tuesday and pass thence across the northern border to the St. Lawrence valley by Thursday, attended by rains and snows in the northern states."

"Another disturbance will develop over the western plateau Thursday or Friday and prevail over the middle west at the close of the week; this disturbance in all probability will be attended by general precipitation and will be followed by decidedly colder weather, which will appear in the northwest at the close of the week."

LOCOMOTIVE ENGINEERS EXONERATE AL J. SMITH

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MACON, Ga., Dec. 15.—Al J. Smith, a Georgia Southern and Florida engineer, charged with retiring from the chief of police race for the sum of $10,000, was exonerated Sunday afternoon at a hearing before the local Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers. Following the trial the engineers declined to discuss the affair publicly. Evidence from Alderman B. C. Hazelhurst, to whom Smith is said to have offered to "sell out," was given in writing. None of those directly interested in the trial appeared in person other than Mr. Smith. Smith declares that in attempting to trap Alderman Hazelhurst he trapped himself.

Oglethorpe Workers Cut Balance to Raise Down To $57,367 On Monday

RENAMING OF CLEMENTS IS PRACTICALLY ASSURED

President Believes Advanced Age Does Not Hamper Interstate Commerce Com'r

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—President Wilson practically has decided to reappoint Judson C. Clements, of Georgia, as a member of the interstate commerce commission. He will soon announce the names of those to succeed the late John H. Marble and Charles A. Prouty. The latter will become director of physical valuation of railroad property.

Persons close to the White House say the president not only did not wish to interfere with the composition of the interstate commerce commission, which is hearing the application of the eastern railways for a 5 per cent increase in freight rates, but notwithstanding Mr. Clements' advanced age, believes him eminently qualified to continue in office.

WANT TRAFFIC LAW PUT OFF UNTIL AFTER XMAS

Merchants, Doctors and Dentists Send Petition to Council Asking Postponement

A petition signed with sixty-five names—among which are dry goods merchants, clothiers, druggists, doctors and dentists—will be presented to the general council Monday afternoon asking that action on the proposed traffic ordinance be deferred until after Christmas on account of the rush in the downtown section incident to holiday shopping.

Council two weeks ago referred the ordinance to the aldermanic board, to act as special committee and hold a public hearing. Merchants and doctors went before the board at the hearing and protested that the ordinance as proposed is too drastic. The aldermen, however, consented to practically two changes and no more. One change was to reduce the zone of traffic regulation. The merchants and doctors claim the ordinance is still too drastic, even with these amendments, and they want to be heard further when the Christmas season is over.

ATTORNEYS MAKE FINAL FIGHT OVER LEO FRANK'S LIFE

TWO DAYS OCCUPIED IN PLEA FOR A NEW TRIAL

Summary of Arguments Delivered Before Supreme Court Monday by Attorneys for Defense and Prosecution

When the state supreme court adjourned its session Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock half of the time which the court had agreed to give to arguments for and against the appeal of Leo M. Frank had been consumed. Attorney Reuben R. Arnold, for the defense, concluded his arguments at 11:40 o'clock, having spoken two hours and forty minutes. Solicitor H. M. Dorsey, for the state, followed Mr. Arnold, and when adjournment was taken he had spoken one hour and twenty minutes. He will resume when court opens Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock, and will be followed by Attorney General Thomas S. Felder for the state. Attorney Luther Z. Rosser, for the defense, will make the closing arguments. The hearing will most likely continue until 1 o'clock, the hour for adjournment, Tuesday afternoon.

In his argument Attorney Arnold laid particular stress upon the contention of the defense that the conviction of Frank was brought about by the influence of the mob spirit which pervaded the courtroom during Frank's trial. He charged that the solicitor had twisted and distorted every little circumstance into an alleged proof of Frank's guilt, and had included in his arguments to the jury assertions which were not based on fact or evidence.

"This mark's conviction," declared Mr. Arnold, "was brought about by innuendo and trumped-up charges."

SAYS JUDGE ROAN ERRED.

Judge Roan's refusal to declare a mistrial following the alleged demonstrations in the courtroom was attacked as error by Mr. Arnold, and his failure to strike from the record Mr. Dorsey's remarks he also declared to have been an error.

Solicitor Dorsey at the outset of his argument charged that the brief of argument submitted by the attorneys for the defense contained numerous misstatements of fact, and announced that he later would ask permission of the court to submit a supplemental brief calling attention to these misstatements. Mr. Dorsey declared the defense was obsessed with the idea that the state had done something wrong and irregular in gathering and presenting its evidence. He insisted that the state had proved Frank's character was bad and that it had offered sufficient circumstantial evidence in addition to the direct evidence of the negro Jim Conley to justify Frank's conviction of the charge of having murdered Mary Phagan.

At 9 o'clock Justices Beverly D. Evans, Hal Lumpkin and H. W. Hill entered the court and mounted the bench. Justice Evans presided. He called the case of Frank, plaintiff in error, vs. the state.

Attorney Arnold, of counsel for Leo M. Frank, arose and asked the court for an extension of the usual time of argument, two hours allowed each side.

Justice Evans answered that the court was to hear 999 cases during the next sixty days, and was to decide that many more; and that, therefore, it could not yield unless the Frank case.

Mr. Arnold argued that the lower courts had spent much time on the case, and it could not possibly be reviewed within too narrow limitations in the supreme court.

The justices conferred a moment and announced they would extend the time of argument to each side to four hours, with the request that no more time than was absolutely necessary within the limit be used. This means that if the lawyers take all the time allowed them they will not finish before 1 o'clock Tuesday.

MR. ARNOLD OPENS.

Mr. Arnold then began his argument. He stated that the murder of Mary Phagan had become one of the most mysteries that ever perplexed a community.

REBELS, BEATEN BACK, LEAVE TAMPICO TO FEDS

Several Hundred Refugees on American Ships—Water Supply Cut Off City

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Latest messages from Admiral Fletcher concerning the Tampico situation were summarized in the following statement by the navy department:

"A dispatch from Admiral Fletcher on board the Tacoma dated 5 p. m., Saturday, December 13, advised that the constitutionalists have shut off the water supply of the city.

"At 10 p. m. he advised that H. M. S. Hermione was in the river carrying the flag of Rear Admiral Cradock.

"Writing at noon on Sunday, December 14, Admiral Fletcher advises that conditions have not changed and that the Ward liner Morro Castle has arrived. There is a north wind blowing and until the weather moderates it will not be possible to transfer refugees to take steamer. He advises that the constitutionalists have withdrawn from the immediate vicinity of Tampico.

"At 1 a. m., December 15, Admiral Fletcher advises that conditions have not changed since he sent his last dispatch."

Firing had ceased this morning in the vicinity of Tampico, the rebels having retired evidently to avoid the continuous cannonade of the federal gunboats, says the report sent to Vera Cruz, by wireless today from Rear Admiral Frank F. Fletcher. The distance to which the rebels had withdrawn was not stated.

Military men regard it as probable that the rebels discontinued firing on the outskirts of Tampico pending the arrival of artillery from Victoria.

The only foreigner mentioned in Rear Admiral Fletcher's dispatches as having been injured is Edward Finlay, who was shot in the ankle, but is being cared for inthe hospital in Tampico, and is reported to be doing well.

Practically all the foreigners were out in the harbor several miles from the scene of the fighting, some aboard the German and English ships, but the greatest number on the American battleships Rhode Island, Virginia and New Jersey. The American army transport Sumner and the American liner Morro Castle were due to arrive at Tampico today, to take away any refugees who desired to go. The official nummer of refugees aboard the American battleships will be given at the navy department tonight as 195 men and 166 women and 146 children.

Americans Kept Back in Fear of Border Engagement

OJINAGA, Mexico, Dec. 15.—Only Americans with special passes were permitted to cross into Mexico today because of the closing in of the rebel forces and the threat of an attack on General Mercedo's 4,000 federal troops garrisoned here.

Ojinaga, in the opinion of military men, is virtually impregnable. The town about which the federals have built strong fortifications, is on top of a plateau which rises abruptly fifty feet from surrounding ground. The river forms a half circle around it on the east and north, while on the south rises a series of hills, all of which may be commanded by artillery located on the plateau. There are three points from which an attack might be delivered. Two of these are so difficult to maneuver cavalry across that they would be useless, as the rebels will rely mainly on cavalry for the offense. The natural opening for an attack would be along the river bank to the southwest.

The importance of the ultimate result here lies in the fact that should the federals win here they would be in a position to attempt to recapture Juarez opposite El Paso. If the rebels win General Mercado's forces either would have to surrender or cross into the United States.

ODDS SEEM TO FAVOR REPUBLICAN CONVENTION

G. O. P. Leaders Assemble to Discuss Reorganization of Their Party

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Such members of the Republican national committee as had arrived here today indicated almost an even division of sentiment on the questions of party reorganization which is to be taken up in conferences beginning tomorrow.

Forces opposed to an extraordinary convention were lining up against the proposed reduction in southern representation. Some committeemen regarded it as probable that before the actual work of the committee begins tomorrow there will be three divisions of opinion.

In the first will be found the national committeemen who favor the calling of a convention immediately; in the second will be those opposed to any convention at all, and in the third will be others who are willing to have a national convention who do not see any pressing need for it.

The first and third groups are expected to join against the second and the odds are said to be in favor of a convention.

$35,000 FIRE AT ROME; ATLANTA MAN LOSER

W. W. Brookes, of Atlanta, Owner of Buildings Damaged in Sunday Morning Blaze

ROME, Ga., Dec. 15.—Revised figures on Sunday's fire here indicate that the total damage to property will not be in excess of $35,000, with insurance of approximately $20,000.

The Cherokee National bank and the Elite theater opened for business this morning in temporary quarters. The brick storm was only slightly damaged by water and opened as usual. The Unity Slate company, L. Gerson, tailor, and the Clemen-Peacock company will open later in the week.

W. W. Brookes, of Atlanta, owner of the three burned buildings on Broad street, between Second and Third avenues, will arrive tomorrow to arrange for rebuilding. Brookes had insurance of $16,000 on the buildings.

BIG GUNS TO PANAMA; WILL GUARD GATEWAY

Steamer Leaves With First of Mortars, Which Will Be Mounted Soon

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The steamer Christobal, operated by a government steamship company between New York and Panama, left port today heavily laden with the first of the big guns to be sent to the isthmus for the fortification of the canal. She carried fourteen large mortars, whose carriages are already in place at the Atlantic and Pacific entrances of the canal. Within two weeks the guns will be mounted and ready for use. A detachment of coast artillerymen sailed with the guns today.

The largest gun in the Panama fortifications will be a nineteen-inch rifle, which will be installed at the Pacific entrance. It will be carried by the Christobal on her next trip, about the middle of January.

In addition to the forts at the entrances of the canal, inland defenses will be constructed along the shores of the canal. The headquarters for the army, navy and marine corps on the isthmus will be at the Pacific entrance of the canal, but several posts will be maintained elsewhere, including the Atlantic entrance, the locks, probably at some point along Culebra cut and at Gatun dam.

IMMIGRATION MEASURE IS REPORTED FAVORABLY

House Committee Recommends Passage of Bill Including Literary Test

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—With an overwhelming majority in its favor, the Burnett immigration bill, including a literacy test such as was vetoed by President Taft, was ordered reported today by the house immigration committee.

The committee cleared up its differences relating to militant suffragists, advocates of sabotage and forms of violence, by adopting an amendment which provides for the deportation of "any alien who at any time within three years after entry shall be found in the United States advocating or teaching the unlawful destruction of property or advocating or teach the overthrow of organized government or the assassination of any public official."

That, it was agreed, would include advocates of sabotage, anarchists or militant suffragists who might advocate destruction of property.

MRS. ANNA RICHTER DIES AT AGE OF 85 YEARS

For Many Years She Was Proprietress of Refreshment Parlor in Atlanta

Atlanta citizens of the older generation, especially those of the Fatherland who made this city their home, will hear with sorrow that Mrs. Anna Richter, for many years proprietor of a refreshment parlor on East Hunter street, died Monday morning at her residence, 91 East Harris street.

Mrs. Richter was eighty-five years of age. Born in Germany, she had lived in this city since her girlhood, and had been a prominent and beloved member of the local German colony.

Many citizens of Atlanta will recall with pleasure the old Richter place on Hunter street, and the kindly face of Mrs. Richter, who always presided over this quaint German inn and served its guests with her own hands. Her passing will bring universal regret.

The body was removed to P. J. Stanfield's chapel, where funeral services will take place at 10 o'clock Tuesday morning. Interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

Workers Selling Red Cross Seals Meeting With Great Success

Enthusiastic workers under the chairmanship of Mrs. D. R. Bootes sold $213.48 worth of Christmas Red Cross seal in downtown Atlanta Saturday, one of the most successful days experienced by the ladies since the campaign started.

Of those who sold over $10 worth Miss Lizzie Johnson was one. Miss Johnson has worked four days straight in selling the seals and has had a record sale on each one. Saturday she turned in $11.25. Others who sold as much as $10 worth are Mrs. E. J. White and Miss Vera Hawke, $20; Misses Estelle and M. A. Lindsay, $19.61; Mrs. D. I. Carson and Mrs. William Marshall, $17.45; Miss Estella Lindsay, $16.40; Mrs. James Gunnell, $12.17; Miss Eliza Morton, $10.70; Mrs. Laura Briars, $10; Mrs. George Collins, $10.90.

ATLANTA BOY ARRESTED FOR THEFT OF MOTOR CAR

Three young Atlanta boys are being held in Valdosta charged with the theft of a touring car of J. W. Hill, publisher of the city directory. The boys are Carl Hagan, Tom Brown and Tip Dukes. The Valdosta authorities read of the theft of the car and arrested the three boys Saturday night. It is said that two other Atlanta boys are implicated. The boys will also be examined as to the robbery of the stores of F. L. Smith and W. B. Collier at East Point on Saturday night.

MR. JOHN M. SMITH IS AT REST IN WEST VIEW

Funeral Sunday Afternoon Marked by Tributes From Many Devoted Friends

The funeral services of Mr. John M. Smith were conducted at 3 o'clock Sunday afternoon from the residence, 112 Lucile avenue, West End, Rev. S. K. Bell, former pastor of the Park street Methodist church, officiated, assisted by Rev. Wallace Rogers, the present pastor.

Mr. Smith died Saturday at his home. He was one of Atlanta's oldest citizens, and many of his lifelong friends gathered at the home Sunday to pay a last tribute to the man they had loved so well and will miss so sorely.

Many floral offerings filled the house, beautiful in themselves, but more beautiful still from the spirit of sympathy and love that prompted them.

Following the funeral service, the body of Mr. Smith was placed in the vault at West View cemetery.

Five Thousand Atlanta School Children Hear Ellery Concert Monday

Five thousand Atlanta school children go to the auditorium-armory Monday afternoon as guests of the Atlanta Music Festival association and Channing Ellery to hear the concert by the Ellery Royal Italian band.

Five or six thousand more school children will go to the Tuesday matinee and an equal number to the Wednesday matinee. At the Thursday matinee all the negro school children will be admitted free. Special arrangements have been made for various grades to go on different days and no school child should come except at the time designated.

In addition to these matinees, night concerts will take place at 8:30 p. m. Monday evening and every evening this week through Friday.

TOM WEAVER, AN EXPERT DESIGNER AND BUILDER OF FINE CLOTHES

Now located at 130 1-2 Peachtree street, upstairs, opposite Candler building. Mr. Weaver announces that during the dull months of December and January he will tailor suits and overcoats at cost price to keep his large force of tailors busy. Those who need good clothes for dress occasions will save money by calling on Mr. Weaver. If you are a stranger call 1,000 of the best dressed gentlemen in Atlanta who make their clothes.—(Advt.)

RAILROAD COMMISSION PONDERS MILEAGE CASE

Will Decide If Roads Violated Rule by Withdrawing Interchangeable Books

The railroad commission is in session Monday to discuss the question of whether or not the action of the railroads in withdrawing interchangeable mileage books is a violation of section 14 of the rules of the commission.

The rule, in effect, provides the railroads shall not discontinue services or conveniences which have become customary without first obtaining permission of the railroad commission. The railroads, following the affirmation by the supreme court of the order of the commission requiring all roads to pull mileage between intrastate points, decided to withdraw interchangeable mileage books without consulting the commission and obtaining permission.

The commission, which is considering the matter in executive session, wishes to determine whether or not this is a violation of its rule and what procedure it shall take in the matter.

The morning session was adjourned at 12 o'clock with no decision in view, and the commission resumed consideration of the question at the afternoon session.

CANDLER TO WASHINGTON FOR RAILROAD MEETING

Chairman Represents Southeastern States in Valuation Committee at Capital

M. Murphey Candler, chairman of the railroad commission, will leave Tuesday for Washington to attend the session of the railroad valuation committee, which has been appointed to appraise all the railroads of the country.

Mr. Candler has been chosen to represent the southeastern states, the appointment being made last week in Chicago by the president of the National Association of Railway Commissioners.

The committee, which is made up of the engineers of the interstate commerce commission, will hear opinions from the engineers of the various roads and from representatives of various states.

Mr. Candler will be in Washington for the remainder of the week.

Deaths and Funerals

MR. WALTER J. AIRD.

Mr. Walter J. Aird, a traveling salesman, died Sunday morning at a private sanitarium. The body was removed to F. J. Bloomfield's chapel and will be sent to Chattanooga for funeral and interment. He is survived by his widow.

CAPTAIN MATTHEW RICE.

News has been received in Atlanta of the death in Augusta, Ga., of Captain Matthew Rice, a pioneer citizen of that city and well known in Atlanta, where he has several relatives living. He was a veteran of the Civil war. Surviving him are the following children: Mrs. John Malone, of Atlanta; Mrs. Charles Howard, of Augusta, and Dr. Edward Rice, of Augusta. The funeral will take place in Augusta Monday afternoon.

MRS. H. F. BROWN.

Mrs. H. F. Brown, aged thirty-nine years, died Sunday at a private sanitarium. The body was removed to Greenberg & Bond's chapel, and funeral and interment will take place in Smyrna.

MRS. C. W. STEPHENS.

The funeral of Mrs. C. W. Stephens was conducted from the Peachtree Baptist church at 11 o'clock Monday morning. Interment was in the church yard.

MRS. E. J. MCBIBBEN.

Mrs. E. J. McBibben, aged fifty-seven years, died Sunday at a private sanitarium. She is survived by one daughter, Mrs. Andrew W. Lane, of Macon; two brothers, J. T. and J. W. Fletcher, of Jackson, Ga., and two sisters, Mrs. L. R. Compton and Mrs. J. W. Lane, of Hampton, Ga. The body was removed to H. M. Patterson's chapel, and will be sent to Jackson, Ga., for funeral and interment.

THREE ENTER RACE TO SUCCEED BERRY IN HOUSE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DALTON, Ga., Dec. 15.—Judge H. J. Wood, ordinary, will probably set a date for the special election some time this week to select a representative to fill the vacancy in the legislature caused by the death of S. E. Berry, but the aspirants are not waiting for the election call to get down to campaigning. Judge George G. Glenn, Constable A. T. Gilbert and H. D. Keith, a former tax collector, are already pressing their claims.

Judge Glenn has already represented this county twice in the house of representatives. It was during his last term that Judge Glenn made his reputation national by the introduction of a measure having in view state regulation in the matter of woman's wiles.

250 HUNTING LICENSES ISSUED IN DOUGHERTY

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ALBANY, Ga., Dec. 15.—That hunting is a popular sport in Albany and Dougherty county is shown by the number of hunting licenses which have been issued by County Game Warden J. W. Nesbitt this fall. In all, 250 licenses have been issued here, 200 of them being state licenses and 50 being county licenses. This represents a total of about $650 spent by Albany and Dougherty county sportsmen for hunting licenses.

Weather Man Sees Plenty of Sunshine For Xmas Shoppers

After a cold, rainy Sunday, Atlanta's weather man predicts clear weather for the next few days, with no squalls or cold waves, in short, ideal weather to do your shopping before a freeze sweeps down from the northwest or it starts drizzling again.

The weather man says he sees no clouds or great drops in temperature in the horizon, but as the weather is notoriously warm for this time of year, he advises Atlanta folk to take advantage of it and shop here the inevitable change sets in.

The forecast indicates the skies will clear Monday afternoon and Tuesday will be fair. The lowest Sunday night was 45 degrees, and the weather man can see no reason why it won't be about the same Monday night.

Paving Tax Upheld

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—The right of a city to assess paving costs on land owners, according to the frontage on streets improved, was today upheld by the supreme court in the case of Elkins, W. Va. Similar questions were pending in other cities.

NEGROES RAISE $5,377 FOR Y. M. C. A. BUILDING

Big Mass Meeting at Auditorium Sunday Night Proves Wonderful Success

Over $5,000 was donated by the negroes of Atlanta to the colored Y. M. C. A. building fund Sunday night at the big mass meeting at the auditorium. Seven thousand and more negroes attended the rally, and the contributions were rapidly announced until the sum of $5,377 had been raised, of this $2,809 was in cash and the remainder in checks and pledges.

This amount, added to $1,500 which has already been paid by the colored people of the city, makes a total of $16,857, and in addition to this outside donations of large amounts have been promised by white citizens. Encouraged by the grand total, the leaders of the movement stated Sunday night that the colored Y. M. C. A. building is practically assured, and that within a few months work on it will probably be started.

The gathering at the auditorium was most interesting. It represented the forty colored churches of the city, and the congregations attended in a body. Gay banners marked the places occupied by the different churches, some of whom sent as many as 1,000 members.

Governor John Marshall Slaton addressed the gathering and he was received with prolonged applause. He, like most of the white men on the program, spoke of the value of the Y. M. C. A. as an instrument with which to fight crime and with which to uplift the moral and civic standing of the negro.

"JUDGE BRILES" SPEAKS.

"Judge Briles" was also one of the speakers. As he stood up he remarked to the audience that he "saw many familiar faces before him," at which the whole assembly cheered and clapped. But the recorder did not speak humorously after that, going seriously into the importance of successfully completing the movement begun a year or two ago.

Marion Jackson, president of the white Y. M. C. A., was the first speaker. He discussed the usefulness of the proposed building and commented incidentally on the interest and enthusiasm with which W. Woods White has entered into the movement to benefit the colored people of the city by giving them an assembly building.

John Temple Graves also addressed the negroes telling them he wished to help them in any way possible in the good movement.

W. Woods White was the last speaker, and he delivered a splendid address on the "Larger Vision of the Work the Colored Y. M. C. A. Is to Accomplish."

Several colored pastors spoke during the evening, among them being H. H. Proctor, of the Congregational church; J. P. O'Connell, of Gammon Theological seminary; P. J. Bryant and W. A. Fountain, president of Morris Brown college, who presided.

Music by the student choirs of Morris Brown and Morehouse college added to the program.

PRISONERS REARRESTED LEAVING U. S. PRISON

As Abb Robbins, aged thirty-two, and Roy Rollings, aged twenty-two, stepped out of the gates of the federal prison Sunday they were arrested by City Detectives Hollingsworth and Butler on warrants from Henderson, Ky., charging them with breaking into a store. The men were sent to the penitentiary about nineteen months ago after conviction on the charge that they robbed a postoffice.

RENEWED LIQUIDATION IN COTTON CAUSED DECLINE

Market in New York Closed 19 to 26 Points Lower Than the Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Cotton was active and unsettled during today's trading. Calls showed more than one and the local market closed easy at a decline of 19 to 26 points under heavy liquidation or bear pressure. This week carried the January contracts off to the lowest price reached in the local market since the January delivery sold at 15.89 one week the end of October and stop orders were evidently executed at the decline. There was an active demand from room sellers around the initial prices, however, while there is no appeared to be some trade buying and prices rallied several points from the lowest before the end of the first hour.

The census supply and distribution figures may have contributed to the early weakness. A rally of 6 to 7 points toward the end of the first hour was followed by renewed liquidation, which carried prices 16 to 26 points net under and the market at midday was still unsettled, although prices were 5 or 6 points up from the lowest.

The failure of demand to broaden on rallies of 6 to 8 points from the lowest inspired renewed general selling during the early afternoon and today also have been encouraged by rumors of large private ginning returns, active months sold about 26 to 31 points lot lower.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 15.—Cotton futures opened steady at a decline of 13 to 16 points on poor cables, which simulated a weak market for short account on this side of the water. The census bureau figures on consumption of cotton in the United States for November of 482,594 bales were called unfavorable by the bear side, which increased its offerings on them chiefly because they showed a falling off compared with October. Bulls pointed out that there were three working days less in November than in October, which fully accounted for the loss of about 60,000 bales, and that the figures showed that the lead over last year was well maintained.

Bears were more aggressive than they have been recently in all parts of the cotton future and bull support was not well organized. At the end of the first hour, however, the general prices were 15 to 17 points under Saturday's close on the near months.

Realizing on profits by sellers of last week became rather general and the market made a partial recovery on it, at the highest standing 7 to 8 points under the closing figures of last week. Bulls did not follow up the advantage given them and the hard spot attracted short selling in fresh volume with the result that late in the morning prices were 17 to 19 points off for the day.

Gossip of the floor was that the market was undergoing considerable hedge selling. It was hinted out that the local stock is increasing and that much more cotton is on its way here. Contracts, it was said, were being sold against a portion of this cotton.

At the lowest of the morning the trading months were 19 points under the close of Saturday and at noon the market was at its lowest.

WON'T REPORT MONDAY ON CITY ELECTRICIAN

Probe Committee Fails to Get Quorum Monday, and Will Ask for Further Time

Owing to failure to get a full attendance Monday morning, the committee investigating City Electrician R. C. Turner will not be able to report to council Monday afternoon, and will ask for further time.

After they had finished hearing the charges and the arguments of the attorneys on both sides, the committee held two long executive sessions last week and were unable to reach a conclusion. They agreed to meet Monday morning, and expected at this meeting to finish. Several members of the committee were kept away, however, by various matters both official and private, and a postponement was necessary.

SUFFRAGISTS WANT LINE ON NEW LEGISLATURE

At a regular meeting of the Atlanta Equal Suffrage association next Wednesday afternoon candidates for the state legislature will be called upon, to the name of the Georgia Men's Equal Suffrage league to declare where they stand in regard to votes for women."

The league and the association announce that unless these candidates can express themselves in favor of the cause," they will incur the opposition of members of the two organizations.

A message from the national convention to the suffragists of Georgia will be heard, and the two principal speakers will be Mrs. Mary L. McLendon, president of the state association, and Leo and J. Grossman, attorney for the association.

MRS. W. S. LOUNSBURY DIES SUDDENLY OF PARALYSIS

Wife of President of Travelers' Bank Stricken Early Monday Morning

Mrs. W. S. Lounsbury died suddenly Monday morning at her home, 272 North Jackson street.

Mrs. Lounsbury was stricken with paralysis about 3 o'clock and her death resulted within a few hours. She had not been previously ill and her death came as a terrible shock to many devoted friends.

Mrs. Lounsbury was forty-three years of age. Before her marriage she was Miss Harriet Crofoot. She was a faithful member of the First Methodist church and during her residence in Atlanta had won the friendship and esteem of a wide acquaintance. She is survived by her husband, Mr. W. S. Lounsbury, vice president of the Travelers' bank, and a daughter.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

ASKS $1,000 DAMAGES FOR INJURY TO HIS WIFE

Because the floor of a section of the house at 314 Lucile street is alleged to have suddenly collapsed, A. Klasset has filed suit in superior court, asking $1,000 damages from S. A. Williams.

Klasset alleges that when the planks of the floor collapsed Mrs. Klasset suffered a fall in which her spinal cord was badly injured. He had notified Williams the floor the defendant was in be rented from the defendant, was in bad condition, Klasset alleges, and charges the landlord was responsible for the injury to Mrs. Klasset.

FALL OF TEN STORIES FATAL TO DETROIT MAN

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Devere Hall, described as a lawyer of Detroit, Mich., either leaped or fell ten stories to his death today from a room in the Hotel Marie Antoinette. He was about sixty years old. His body was found by servants in a courtyard.

25 MORE MEN AT WORK ON CHRISTMAS MAILS

Postmaster Jones Increases Force to Care for Rush of Parcel Post

Fifteen additional carriers and ten more clerks were put on duty at the postoffice Monday, and the increase in Christmas busines is being met as rapidly as it comes up.

Some idea of the increase may be gained from the fact that business for the first nine days of the month gained 26 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

By adding to the force from time to time, however, Postmaster Jones is handling the holiday rush without hitch or friction, and although an immense amount of business is anticipated, especially on account of the parcel post, it will be handled throughout without delay to the public.

SAYS HUSBAND LIVED WITH HER ONLY ONE DAY

Mrs. Hattie Pierce has brought suit in superior court for divorce from Frank Pierce, making the point that desertion after two days of married life constitutes cruel treatment.

According to the law, divorces are granted on the ground of desertion only when the parties have been separated as long as three years Mrs. Pierce, however, declares her husband treated her cruelly by deserting her on the second day after the wedding, to her great humiliation and embarrassment.

The Pierces were married April 27, this year, and, according to the petition, the husband left on the 29th, and has remained away since. Attorney Carl S. Guess filed the suit.

Policy Holders Must Pay for Privilege of Being Sued in Court

It is bad enough to be defendants in a suit wherein the petitioner declares that they are jointly and severally liable for the sum of $450,000 or thereabout; but when you have to pay the cost of serving the papers in the case yourself, the situation becomes unique; but that is what has virtually happened in the suit recently filed by Attorneys Watkins & Latimer and Burton Smith in the case of W. A. Wright, insurance commissioner, against the American Life and Acnuity company and others.

The suit, which is in the name of J. H. Porter, seeks to make the policyholders of the defunct company liable for the certificate notes which were issued by the company. One hundred and thirty-eight of the defendant policyholders live outside of Fulton county, and it therefore costs $2 each to serve them with the papers in the case—a total of $276.

Insurance Commissioner Wright, who has all the funds of the company in his hands, will pay the costs of service; that is, he will take the $276 out of the assets of the company in which the policyholders are made partners by the suit; and thereby the policyholders themselves pay for the privilege (?) of being sued.

This unique feature of the case has caused amusement in court circles.

Mrs. F. C. Edwards Dead

Mrs. F. C. Edwards died Monday morning at Riverside. She was sixty-seven years old. She is survived by three sons and five daughters: C. C., W. H. and C. L. Edwards, Miss Jennie Edwards and Mrs. M. A. Jackson, Mrs. A. R. Queen, Mrs. R. Brown and Mrs. R. Graham. The funeral will be held from the residence Tuesday morning and interment will follow in Mount Harmony church yard.

ATLANTIC FLEET RETURNS FROM MEDITERRANEAN

Battleships Reach New York Harbor Monday to Spend Christmas Holidays

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—The end of the Mediterranean cruise of the United States battleships brought to New York today nearly 5,000 officers and men glad to be home again with a pay day in sight and a chance to spend the Christmas holidays ashore.

The superdreadnaught Wyoming, flagship of Rear Admiral Chales J. Badger, commande-in-chief of the Atlantic fleet, and the battleships Arkansas, Utah and Florida, were the stuning ships awaited hee by the deadnaught Noth Dakota, also of the fiet division. The arrival of the Wyomings attracted more than ordinary interest among naval men because it may be the last time the superdreadnaught will fly the flag of Admiral Badger as commander-in-chief. The commander is to retire early in the comlng year and the navy is already speculating as to his successor in the most important command of the navy.

The returning ships will probably remaiff at New York until after New Year's unless the Mexican situation should become so acute as to necessitate their going to Mexican waters. In that event Admiral Badger would assume command of all American ships in Mexlcan waters with Admiral Fletcher second in authority. Nearly $200,000 will be dealt out to the officers and men by paymasters of the battleships here during this week.

The battleships were reported early this morning by wireless to be within a few hours of New York. The battleship Delaware and the fuel ships Orion and Jason, have been detached from the squadron and are proceeding to Norfolk in company with the battleship Vermont, which broke a shaft last week.

CHILD WELFARE WANTS $500 FROM THE CITY

Delegation Calls on Mayor Monday to Ask That Exhibit's Deficit Be Supplied

A delegation representing various civic organizations in the city called on Mayor Woodward Monday morning to ask for $500 from the city to pay a deficit in the operating expenses of the Child Welfare exhibit and to operate the exhibit for the balance of the present week.

After receiving the delegation, Mayor Woodward said he would be glad if the city could make the appropriation, but doubted if it could spare so much as $500.

CLEARAWAY SALE OF SUITS

Does the simple announcement suffice? Perhaps so to those who know the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. methods of conducting suit sales when their object is to clear away stocks.

If you who are reading this should happen to be one who does not know our rather decisive methods at such times, read below with the confidence that the prices stand for facts just as they are.

Forty-Five Suits That Were $21.75, $25.00 and $29.75 Are $10.00

Eighty Suits That Were $29.75, $35 to $40 Are $14.75

Thirty-five Suits That Were $37.50, $50 to $55 Are . . . $19.75

The price-cuts are a bit unusual, are they not?

And the suits, we might best tell you what they are by telling you what they are not. They are not a maker's odds and ends, thrown together for sales' purposes---such suits do not enter here!

They are suits that our buyer selected.

Smart styles, tailored to perfection, of materials and in colors that need no argument in their favor--such suits as we have been making an enviable reputation on, such as you will be very proud to own.

Are you in need of a suit? Christmas shopping gives place momentarily to such an event, unless it includes a suit as a gift.

Note the number of suits involved in this sale--one hundred and sixty in all. The smart thing to do would be to get a very early start. The store opens at eight o'clock.

The Worst Boy in School.

"His teacher said that at the age of eleven he was the worst child in her experience of many years in school work. He frequently played hookey, associated with the worst boys of all ages, smoked cigarettes, swore like a trooper and lied outrageously. Besides, he seemed to take a stupid pride in learning nothing and thwarting all her efforts. The only physical defect noticed was that he held print unusually close to his eyes. Examination showed that one eye had two-sevenths and the other one-fifth of normal vision."

This is the case of a San Francisco urchin reported in the Journal of the American Medical Association: It could doubtless be paralleled in scores of schools the country over; it is, indeed, a typical case of the backward or incorrigible child who a generation or two ago would have been given up as a victim of "original sin." Fortunately, however, his teacher was a practical-minded, human-hearted woman who decided to make a scientific test of her doltish desperado. His parents were poor and ignorant; and at the time, it seems, no system of medical inspection was established in the city's schools. Accordingly, she coaxed him to her own oculist who examined his eyes and prescribed glasses which, after much ado, he was persuaded to put on. Within a year, the boy was virtually transformed. He attended school regularly, responded quickly to mental and moral stimuli, learned with out difficulty and ranked in the forefront of his class. The Journal of the American Medical Association aptly comments:

"The explanation of this metamorphosis is simple and natural. The child was more than three-fourths blind and no one had known it. He could not learn because he could not see, and his eyes and head undoubtedly pained him when straining to see. His incorrect and absurd answers made the other pupils laugh at and guy him, so he hated everything connected with the school, and in playing truant he met the worst possible associates and learned from them his notable array of vicious habits. When he put on his glasses he saw the world for the first time clearly and in comfort. He therefore was able to learn and his ambition was aroused. Hence he loved schooling and the opportunity to show his real capability, and by regular attendance at school lost the bad companionship which was really responsible for his show of criminal tendencies."

How can we reckon the value of intelligent attention to this one defective child, the value to the community as well as to himself! Had he gone on from year to year sullen and stupid, callous to moral suasion, ignored as unlovable by his parents and branded with an ... name by his neighborhood, it is not probable that he would have developed into a dangerous enemy of society?

What was accomplished for this one child by a teacher's kindliness and common sense can be accomplished for the masses of children by systems of medical inspection in public schools. There are comparatively few cases so acute as that we have described but there are thousands of children suffering from physical defects which impair their efficiency and which, if neglected, may deepen into life-long ills. The school that does not conserve the health of its pupils fails in a fundamental duty to the city and the State. No plan of education worthy the name can rest on decadent nerves; no system of training that ignores the body's needs can fit children for citizenship and home-making.

The school that measures up to its responsibility must have not only good teachers but also proper equipment for heat and ventilation. It must have ample facilities for play and physical culture and it must also give pupils the inestimable benefit of medical and dental inspection.

Your old Scrooge sort rejoices that Christmas does come but once a year.

The best new year resolution would be one not to break any more resolutions.

There is talk about mending the Republican party, and the public had about forgotten that such a thing existed.

Our ex-presidents find plenty to do. One lectures Latin-America and the other commends the administration.

The weather man says there will be no cold wave this week, but many a poor father will get cold feet on the eve of Christmas.

The Decisive Stage Of the Currency Bill.

The promise of an early vote on the banking and currency bill comes like a shaft of cheering sunlight to the country's business interests. Suspense over this measure has been heavier and more disquieting than in the case of the tariff; there has been little apprehension as to what might be done, but a deal of restlessness in the fear that nothing might be done and that an issue which touches all business at vital points might be infinitely prolonged.

Indications now are, however, that the debate in the Senate will end the latter part of the current week and that a final vote will be taken Saturday. In that event, it is believed, the differences between the two Houses can be adjusted speedily and the bill sent to the President for his signature before Christmas.

This hope ought to be realized. There are no fundamental clashes of opinion to be reconciled. In essential points, the report from the Democratic branch of the Senate committee and that from the Republican branch were in agreement. To be sure, there was a desire on the part of some Republicans to provide for a central federal bank but the advocates of this plan have realized that it is a political impossibility. The points on which members of both parties agree are far more numerous and more important than those on which they differ.

If, then, there is no effort to delay simply for the sake of delay, the bill can be perfected in short order. Democratic Senators have shouldered their party's responsibility and are determined to bring the measure to a decisive vote in the immediate future. In this purpose, they seem to have the support of several leading Republican Senators.

When the bill is passed, the country will settle into normal financial temper again and business in every field will move confidently forward.

It is easier to induce a man to accept a favor than to take a joke.

Most of your friends will stand by you as long as you have a dollar.

The Adventure of Chang.

It is not surprising to learn that China is again threatened with revolution. The remarkable fact is that the Republic's experimental days have been so free from violence. A country, whose millions of people are divided by sharp boundaries of nature, by speech and custom and tradition cannot be brought into political concord except through long decades of trial and patient leadership. Indeed, there are observers who doubt that the problem of China will ever be solved until the vast empire is broken into several states, each with a government adapted to its peculiar needs.

The latest disturbance, however, is ascribed, not to old sectional animosities, but to the adventurous spirit of one Chang Hsun, a general of courage and shrewdness, who cares nothing for politics but everything for war.

"During the revolution of 1911," the New York Herald interestingly relates, "the established himself with a force of about eight thousand soldiers, on line of Tientsin-Pukow railway, the main line of communication between Peking and Nanking, then capital of the revolutionists. Both sides made overtures to him and at first he declared himself opposed to both because both were against the Manchus, and the only politics he knew was to be loyal to his emperor. For a time it looked as if he were in a position to turn the scale one way or the other. General Chang was the proud owner of a singing girl famous for her beauty. In an unlucky hour this fair one fell into the hands of the southern republicans who sold her at public auction at Nanking. This episode cleared away the mists of doubt in the mind of General Chang. He immediately cast his lot with Yuan Shi-Kai; and the possibility of marching to Peking was removed. It was General Chang who crushed the second revolution. He drove Huang Hsing and his army out of Nanking, recaptured his ladylove and now threatens to create there a little empire of his own."

Reports indicate that President Yuan has no little anxiety over this new menace to the integrity of the republic and to his own supremacy. But Yuan has proved himself wonderfuly resoureful in problems far more tangled than this one. His rather autocratic methods have provoked enmity in some lesser leaders, but the force of popular influence is apparently behind him. He will doubtless bring the government safely through this attack.

The Chinese republic has been thus far one of the most interesting and amazing experiments in political history. So numerous and far-flung were the difficulties besetting its establishment that had it fallen in the first few months there would have been no occasion for wonder. Yet, it has moved steadily and, for the most part, prosperously forward. Does not this reveal an unsuspected genius in the Chinese people?

The Panama canal has at last reached that distinguished point where a girl is trying to swim through it.

The leader of the Ecclesiastical party in the Mexican Congress must be a newcomer, for, expressing himself on the subject of Gen. Huerta's claims, he said: "I believe the conditions in Mexico are such as to demand a dictator, but the provision should be made defining the use he is to make of his powers." Almost any old settler having a long acquaintance with Mexican rulers will tell the gentleman that a dictator whose powers are defined is no dictator at all.—New York World.

PROFITABLE EVENINGS

A night at cards, if not repeated often,
And (best of all) enhanced by lovely bright dames,
Is not so apt to cause one's brain to soften
As playing other things considered "games."

But solitaire, especially the sort that,
Cognomened "Canfield," keeps one up till morn,
Is to my mind a sorry kind of sport that
Assuredly had better not been born.

JACK.

To Jack, and all others who consider solitaire an utter waste of time, we commend the chapter on solitaire in "The Boss of Little Arcady," Harry Leon Wilson's best and least popular book.

GEORGE HENRY PAYNE.

We have been going over the 1912 files and find, to our amusement, that perhaps we were wrong in awarding the prize to the authors of "The Study Hour." We found Julian Street's "Said Opie Read to E. P. Roe," published last April, and we are torn with misgivings.

The Complete Letter Writer.

(Received by the Biograph Company.)

"I am writing you in regards to a idea which I have had for some time past and so far have never seen my idea in motion pictures I could not put my idea in a picture drama as I have know knowledge of drama writing but as my idea is from a story old, it would be a easy task for a composer to make this idea a ideal motion play. As it might not ever be thought of again in years to come. As the story is old and read by young and old I see of know reason why it would not be a taking topic. I shall hope to hear from you in the near future in my favor."

A great crowd followed a man on Fifth avenue yesterday afternoon, believing they were in the wake of President Wilson. It wasn't the President, but the "Evening Post's" story fails to state who it was. It must have been George Ade with spectacles, Burges Johnson or Wally Eaton.

If we decide that that quatrain wins the prize, we shall have all five two watches, also, as J. M. Flagg was co-author with Mr. Street. So we are not, you see, trying to dodge responsibility.

The Last of the Great Cambridge Group

In Norton I long saw the last of the great group of Cambridge men whom I was privileged to know almost in their prime, or a little past it when humanity is in its autumnal richness and ripeness. In my mid-western remoteness I knew these men only very dimly before it was my good fortune to be among them, as I never could be of them. I did not well imagine them there, qualitatively or quantitatively, or scarcely afterward in my Venetian remoteness. The man whom I was destined to see survive them all was, as I have said, still in my nursery even when I had come to live in New York, and I was to feel his unstinted kindness much before I could appreciate his wisdom. He loved that beautiful and righteous world in which he dwelt; he truly measured it in all its dimensions, and in his tender memories of it he did not exaggerate its importance. He had known more intimately than any of the others the English world of poets and scholars, and I am sensible now of delicate cautions rather than criticisms which from the first might well have been for the instruction of my enthusiasm. But this beautiful and righteous world was his home, and they who shared it with him were his kindred. He was the youngest of the group; the years counted ten between him and Lowell, and twenty between him and Longfellow; after they were gone he grew into contemporaneity with them, and then into a seniority which could judge them paternally, as the present can always judge the past.

I suppose most people would not call him an optimist or me a pessimist, but I do testify that he liked more of the recent things than I did, and though he was ten years older than I, he was, by his birthright from that ever-youthful New England of his nativity, a younger man. We talked that afternoon in the cool light of the vernal or autumnal day, with the fire on his hearth paling under it, and I should like to leave him in it there, among his pictures and his books, the equal of all the beautiful arts.—William Dean Howells, in the December North American Review.

Quips and Quiddities

Not long ago a cub reporter on one of the large dailies was assigned by the city editor to cover a meeting of the board of trustees of a public library. "Bring a story of about 400 words," said the editor.

At a late hour that night this story not being forthcoming, the youngster was sent for. "How about that story of the board meeting?" asked the editor.

"It isn't finished yet. You told me to make 400 words of it, and so far I have managed to get only 360."

"What did the board do?"

"They met, called the roll, and adjourned until Tuesday evening."—Lippincott's.

MEXICO

VI.—THE PRESENT SITUATION.
BY FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

An international explosion was narrowly averted when oil came to the surface of the Mexican situation. We have now the situation advanced from bad to worse until President Huerta announced that a general election for a president, vice president and a new congress would be held on October 26. But no mention has yet been made of the fact that the most acute international interest centered around the great oil fields of Mexico which were being successfully developed by Lord Cowdray, head of the British firm of S. Pearson & Son.

* * *

This aggressive and tremendously wealthy English business man as Sir Weetman Pearson built the East river tunnel at New York, and under an arrangement with the Mexican government constructed the Tehauntepec railway from Salina Cruz on the Pacific to Coatzacoalcos on the Caribbean. He is a Liberal in British politics, having sat as a member of parliament, and quite recently Lord Murray, formerly the Master of Elibank and Liberal whip in the house of commons, became a partner in Pearson & Co.

* * *

Gaining vast influence with the old Diaz government, Lord Cowdray sought and obtained a concession for the Aguila Oil company, in the oil fields of Chiapas, Tabasco, Campeche, Vera Cruz, in the Valle district of Tamaulipas. Also additional rights covering the lakes and lagoons of Vera Cruz.

* * *

Vast sums of money were expended before the largest wells began to yield but the concessions had been proved enormously valuable by the time that naval science demonstrated the practicability of oil fuel and the British government was talking that in all the empire there was scarcely enough oil (free from the political control of other nations) to supply the fuel needs of the royal navy in time of war.

* * *

President Madero looked with suspicion upon the concession granted to the Pearson interests and Lord Cowdray was justly apprehensive of the attitude of Madero toward the concession granted by the Diaz government. The Maderistas attributed to Lord Cowdray a large share of the responsibility for the constant clerical plotting against the Madero government.

* * *

During the election campaign of 1911, General Madero wrote a letter stating that foreign capital would be subjected to no persecution in the event of his election. Immediately he took office he directed Jose Vasconcelos, an eminent lawyer, to investigate the Aguila concession, and the result was a report attacking its validity on the score of constitutionality, the approval of the concession by congress notwithstanding. President Madero insisted that his pre-election statement could not be construed to protect illegal concessionaires, but that, on the contrary, he had frankly declared his purpose to oppose the formation of all kinds of monopolies and combinations in restraint of competition. Although he placed the Aguila concession held by the Pearson interests in this category, it was never actually cancelled and the exploitation of the fields was continued.

* * *

Hints of the part played in Mexican politics by the oil interests became more and more frequent as the election approached, and it was even reported that President Huerta proposed to nationalize the oil resources of Mexico and propose their leasing to certain foreign interests.

* * *

Suddenly, on October 11, 1913, President Huerta arrested and imprisoned eighty-four members of the house of deuties on charge of sedition, the details of which never became clearly known in the United States. He proclaimed himself dictator. On the same day Sir Lionel Carden, who had been appointed British minister to Mexico and had served at the capital some time before, presented his credentials. This was a disagreeable surprise to the Washington government which had felt that President Huerta was on his last legs. Sir Lionel Carden's attitude during many years' service in Latin-American countries caused Washington to regard him as anti-American. For him to extend British recognition to Huerta by presenting his credentials at the dramatic moment constitutional government was again upset was a severe blow to the American policy. The Wilson administration felt that Huerta's lease of life as president had thus been gratuitously extended.

* * *

President Wilson promptly notified the Huerta government that no arms must come to the imprisoned deputies, and on October 14, convinced that Huerta merely sought to prolong his own authority, served notice that the United States would recognize the result of no election held under the prevailing conditions.

The international phase of the situation became acute. Germany and France started warships for the Mexican coast. Huerta announced that the elections would be held notwithstanding the American objections, but President Wilson took care to make known his views on the situation before the polling day arrived. "Government started by force cannot endure," he said at Swarthmore, Pa., on October 25. Two days later at Mobile, Ala., President Wilson, without mentioning Mexico, enunciated a corollary of the Monroe Doctrine which promises to mark its most distinctive and significant development since the Venezuelan boundary dispute during the Cleveland administration.

* * *

Subsequent developments indicated that the president had the British oil interests in mind when he said:

* * *

"States that are obliged, because their territory does not lie within the main field of modern enterprise and action, to grant concessions are in this condition, that foreign interests are apt to dominate their domestic affairs; a condition of affairs always dangerous and apt to become intolerable."

"What those states are going to see, therefore, is an emancipation from the subordination which has been inevitable, to foreign enterprise and an assertion of the splendid character which, in spite of these difficulties, they have again and again been able to demonstrate.

* * *

"They have had harder bargains driven with them in the matter of loans than any other people in the world. Interest has been enacted of them that was not exacted of anybody else, because the risk was said to be greater; and then securities were taken that destroyed the risk—an admirable arrangement for those who were forcing the terms!

* * *

"Human rights, national integrity and opportunity as against material interests—that, ladies and gentlemen, is the issue which we now have to face. I want to take this occasion to say that the United States will never again seek one additional foot of territory by conquest. She will devote herself to showing that she knows how to make honorable and fruitful use of the territory she has; and she must regard it as one of the duties of friendship to see that from no quarter the human is made inferior to human liberty and national opportunity."

President Huerta had declared that although he was not a candidate that he had heard that some friends would vote for him anyway, and that if they did it in large number he would hold the elections void.

* * *

The election on October 26 was a farce. The federal garrison cast their votes for Huerta. Although that Gamboa came second and Felix Diaz a poor third. The constitutionalists refused to recognize the election as legal and did not vote. President Huerta declared the election void so far as president and vice president were concerned, but legal as to congress, a view in which the Washington government flatly refused to agree. President Wilson felt that Huerta sought only a prolongation of his dictatorship and in line with the policy outlined in the Mobile speech gave notice to him and to the world that the United States would refuse to recognize as valid any concessions made by the new congress which Huerta assembled and addressed with assurances that he would proceed to the pacification of the country.

THE MASTERSINGERS

BY DR. FRANK CRANE

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

My Dear Caroline: You write me that Aunt Georgia is going to take you to hear "The Mastersingers" of Wagner, and you want me to "tell about it," as you have never been able to "get anything out of Wagner."

Let me answer you by digging up an old letter, one I wrote some years ago to your mother. I wrote it the day after I had attended "The Mastersingers" at the Prinz Regenten Theater at Munich. It is pretty bumptious and enthusiastic, but perhaps it will be an antidote to the cold-potato, supercilious stuff the musical critics will give you. Here it is:

"I have been to 'The Mastersingers.' I have discovered Wagner. I feel as Columbus must have felt when he discovered America. Richard the Titan has found the open door to my soul, he has swept through me like a storm, and I still live.

"I have bathed in music. My spirit has been seized and carried off by tides of harmony, rivers, brooks, and cataracts of melody, white-capped waves of sweet tones, all bearing me away whither I know not, only into some strange seas I had never sailed before, by islands where haloed mountains loomed in purple glory, and love and nobleness and unearthly beauty combined to break my heart.

"It was not the story of the opera, nor any tune in the music, though the story was unique and the tunes the melodies decided and memorable; but it was the whole thing, the continual swelling up of rich chords breaking into fairy spray, and close-locked discords melting into voluptuous consonance, exquisite as spun glass, and the streaming, insistent passion of the violins that tempted and tore my soul like sirens, and the occasional ripe, round note of a wood-bird flying like a moon upon the hushed orchestra, and the full, loud blare of brass, brave and bully as stamping horses and strong as the elephants of the Maharajah, and the superb chorus, not of ten or twenty, but of five hundred, all with banners waving and all dressed in vivid medieval colors, and all singing, singing until it sounded like the 'voice of many waters' that John heard in heaven, a great white and gold cloud of song that wreathed and wavered upward, while underneath I heard the breathless, racing orchestra, the palpitating strings, the glad fanfare of trumpets, the thundering kettle-drums, with flutes and piccolos whistling like flying birds before the brow of a storm-cloud, and above all, Oh! sweet enough to "woo a soul from purgatory,' sounding clear and limpid above the ocean roar of chorus and instruments, the voice of Walter, singing his 'Prize Song,' and at last I knew what the Greeks sought to express when they made their myth of Orpheus, who

'With his lute made trees
And the mountain tops that freeze
Bow their heads when he did sing.'

"I am glad I never heard this till I was over forty. Such music is not for the young. It speaks only to those who have drunk deep of both pleasure and renunciation, who have felt the keenness of both sensual and spiritual joy and the pang of both sickness of body and of heart. It is not simple, as life looks when we are twenty, but wonderfully complex, as life looks when we are forty-five. The mystery and labyrinthine dimness of the universe come with years. And Wagner interprets life, vague, striving, tangled, lightwrestling with darkness; and yet, somehow, to the sense of God and of Genius, unutterably sweet.

"And then the Quintette at the close of the first part of the third act! So unspeakably appealing! It is as if Della Robbia's babies had found voices; as if the gods of Greece had risen from their dust of years and had come back singing through the summer night; as if five truant cherubs had escaped from their golden house in heaven and had sung smiling one transcendant moment to show us the manner of angels' scenes when they hymn in Paradise.

"The echo of the thing is with me today. I could cry at the least suggestion. I have had a musical debauch. My hand trembles now. I am a little weary; I suppose I am having my musical katzenjammer 'the morning after.'" the press comment on both sides of the Atlantic begin to strain Anglo-American friendship. The British prime minister, Mr. Asquith, cleared the air with a speech at the lord-mayor's banquet on November 15. He said:

* * *

"Mexico is still in the throes of civil war, but there never was and never will be any question by Great Britain in the domestic concerns, direct or indirect, in the Central American or South American states.

* * *

"It is no part of our duty to prevent or to control civil wars. The utmost that we can do is to give what protection is possible on the coast to British subjects and property."

* * *

Mr. Asquith insisted that since Great Britain had recognized Huerta on March 21, as the only person likely to restore order, the change of circumstances later involved no change of policy. He declared his confidence that nothing could happen to disturb British and American resolve to maintain a sympathetic understanding.

Lord Cowdray, during November, began to answer the numerous stories circulated regarding his share in Mexican affairs. He denied the significance of the appointment of Sir Lionel Carden as minister to Mexico, or that he or his interests had financed the Huerta government further than to supply about 8 per cent of a small loan negotiated two months before. He declared that he sought no oil monopoly and that neither he nor his interests had taken part in or aided the effort to overthrow President Madero.

* * *

Through the American charge d' affaires and Mr. John Lind, the United States continued its effort to force the retirement of President Huerta, but he hung on desperately. The constitutionalists moved on Tuxpam and during the week of November 22 gained possession of the Aguila company's oil fields and served notice on Lord Cowdray's representatives that their property would be taken if any further supplies of oil were sold to the Mexican railway, which burns oil almost exclusively. The sale of oil immediately ceased and the constitutionalists hailed this as the greatest victory of the campaign, giving them the power of suspending the traffic so important to movement of government troops.

* * *

Negotiations were conducted between Mr. William Bayard Hale, unofficially representing President Wilson, and General Carranza, first chief of the Constitutionalists, who hoped for recognition from the United States or at least for removal of the embargo imposed upon the exportation of American arms and munitions of war to the Constitutionalists.

As the revolutionists approached Tuxpam and encircled the oil fields back of Tampico, Rear Admiral Friday F. Fletcher, commanding the American forces on the gulf coast, sent ships to these ports with orders to land marines and bluejackets if it became necessary to safeguard foreign interests. The British government ordered a cruiser division under Rear Admiral Sir Christopher Cradock to Mexican waters, but immediately he arrived he waived his superior rank—his commission was issued prior to Rear Admiral Fletcher's—and agreed to take initiative in all matters of naval policy to the American commander as representative of the nation of greatest material as well as political interest in Mexico.

* * *

There the situation stood when on December 2 President Wilson in his first annual address to congress said:

* * *

"There can be no certain prospect of peace in America until General Huerta has surrendered his usurped authority in Mexico; until it is understood on all hands, indeed, that such pretended government will not be countenanced or dealt with by the government in America; we are more than its friends, we are its champions; because in no other way can our neighbors, to whom we would wish in every way to make proof of our friendship, work out their own development in peace and liberty."

RUNAWAY ORPHANS SEE "MOVIES" WHILE POLICE SEEK THEM

Two Little Girls From Decatur Home Yield to Lure of Picture Show and Stir Up Great Excitement

While 300 Atlanta policemen, twenty-six squad men, thirty detectives, two Pinkerton experts and the constabulary of every city and town in Georgia were prowling around their districts looking for two little girls in blue dresses, the innocent cause of all the excitement sat in a Decatur motion picture show slowly chewing gum and exclaiming over the beauties of Maurice Costello, the famous film hero.

Their names were Lelia Mae Crow, aged fifteen, and Maggie Clark, aged fourteen, and until Saturday night they were two very good little inmates of the Decatur Orphans' home.

Just as the shades of evening began to fall the spirit of romance cast a delightful glamour over Lelia Mae and Maggie. Over there beyond the green hedge in the front yard of the home was the big world, full of adventure and mystery and moving pictures and charming persons like Maurice Costello.

They consulted. Lelia Mae had one nickel. Maggie had four cents. After much searching Lelia Mae resurrected another penny. A fortune! Four cents was nothing—with five one could conquer the world.

So just as the big bell boomed out for the supper hour two gray shadows slipped past the white gateposts and were off down the dim-lit street. It was fifteen minutes' walk to the theater that displayed the cynical countenance of Mr. Costello in front.

They hadn't passed their second lamppost before the home was in a turmoil. Maggie and Lelia Mae, the sweetest and best children in the home, were gone. They had escaped.

POLICE GET BUSY.

Within a few minutes the excited superintendent had Chief Beavers on the telephone. Soon every blue-coat and plain clothes man in Atlanta had received an elaborate description of the "escaped" girls, and was keeping a weather eye open on every corner for two blue dresses and a pair of black sailor ties. Telegraph wires were hot all over Georgia and for 200 miles around Atlanta sheriffs and bailiffs were watching any female from six to twenty with suspicion.

And all the while the two little girls in blue snuggled down further on the hard board seats and gazed enraptured at the flickering films. The minutes slipped by on charmed wings, and they had seen Mr. Costello kiss the black-eyed lady four times and start a fifth, when a hand fell gently across their shoulders. Their new evening entertainment was done.

It must have been just about the time that the constable of Hall county was trailing a nineteen-year-old girl in a blue suit down the main street of Gainesville that Lelia Mae and Maggie were sinking a little bit deeper into the big white pillows.

"The superintendent wasn't mad a bit, was he?" murmured Maggie drowsily.

"What did you say, Mr. Costello?" sleepily replied Laura Mae.

EMPEROR'S DEER GIVEN NO PROTECTION IN AMERICA

Two Austrians Released From Jail Though Charged With Poaching at Home

PITTSBURG, Pa., Dec. 15.—Stefan and Wilhelm O'Berlichter, brothers, were released from the Allegheny county jail last night on order of J. B. Densmore, solicitor of the department of labor. The men were arrested and placed in jail December 3 on request of Baron Lothar Van Hauser, Austro-Hungarian consul here.

It was alleged that eight months ago the men entered the royal preserves of Emperor Franez Joseph and shot two deer and carried them off. For this offense they were arrested and sentenced to eighteen months' imprisonment. They were released on bail and came to this country. Consul Van Hauser wanted to have them deported, but his request was not honored by the immigration authorities who ordered the men released.

THREE MASONIC LODGES HONOR GEO. WASHINGTON

He Held Membership in All of Them, and They Adorn His Grave

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Three Masonic lodges with which George Washington was at various times connected today joined in a pilgrimage to Mount Vernon and placed wreaths on his tomb in commemoration of the one hundred and fourteenth anniversary of his death. The anniversary really was yesterday, but it was decided to hold the services today.

The lodges that participated were the Alexandria-Washington lodge, of Alexandria, Va., of which Washington was the first worshipful master; Fredericksburg (Va.) lodge, No. 4, where he was made a Mason, and Washington lodge, of New York City, where Washington made his Masonic home while in that city.

Committees from the latter two lodges reached Washington today and went immediately to Alexandria, where they joined the lodge from that city. A special interurban train took them to Mount Vernon.

IMPORTS OF MAMMALS HAVE GREATLY INCREASED

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 15.—Due to the many monkeys, guinea pigs and mice brought into the United States for experimental purposes, the importation of mammals has increased from fewer than 2,000 five years ago, to 17,272 last year, according to the annual report of Dr. Henry W. Henshaw, chief of the United States biological survey. He expresses the opinion "that the needed supply of guinea pigs and mice might profitably be bred in the United States."

Almost 400,000 canaries were imported into the country during the year of a total of 494,692 birds and mammals imported.

I. W. W. LEADER TRIED FOR INCITING VIOLENCE

(By Associated Press.)
PATERSON, N. J., Dec. 15.—Carlo Tresca, the Industrial Workers of the World leader, who came from New York last spring to help the silk mill strikers, was put on trial here today for inciting his followers to violence. Most of the witnesses against him were police officers.

Like Elizabeth Gurly Flinn, his companion, Tresca was tried before a jury from outside the county. He contended he could not get justice from a local jury. Miss Flinn was tried on a similar charge and the jury disagreed.

Miss Mattie Booker Dies

THEATERS

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
LYRIC—Emma Bunting.
BIJOU—"The Denver Express."
ATLANTA—Dark.

(Omissions of initial performances at the local theaters are written by members of The Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater management.)

Edwin Stevens, with the aid of Tina Marshall will present the headline offering at the Forsyth this week. The contribution will be "The Troubles of R. and J." a dramatic bijhetta with music that is conceded to be the best thing Mr. Stevens has done since he left his successful career in the legitimate helo to win new honors in the varieties. There is not a better entertainer in all the profession than Edwin Stevens. Another feature will be Florence Tempest and her assistants at the piano and in dancing. Miss Tempest is one of the reigning New York hits. She was a member of the Tempest and Sunshine act that scored so heavily some years ago. The Carl Eugene troupe, a combination of ten real gymnasts; Nell McKinley, the quaint comedian; Kaufman brothers, the signing minstrels; Anita Diaz's monkeys, and other features will complete the bill.

Monday night will mark the opening of a week's engagement at the Lyric with little Emma Bunting starring in "The Girl From Out Yonder." The hundreds of Miss Bunting's admirers throughout the city have secured desirable seats for the entire week, numerous parties having been planned. She has just finished an engagement of fifteen weeks at the Dauphine theater in New Orleans, where her greatest success was in "The Girl From Out Yonder," the newspapers giving her the best of criticisms.

The regular schedule of matinees on Tuesday, Thursday and Saturday, and daily night performances, will continue as heretofore.

"It's simply ripping," said the girl in white and her escort emphatically confirmed her judgment—and that is the consensus of opinion of the capacity audiences everywhere that great the dainty musical play, "The Girl of My Dreams."

Nesbit and Hauerbach, authors of the book and lyrics, have adequately performed," while Hoschna's score is equal to any of the latter-day efforts of light musical composition.

A feature of "The Girl of My Dreams" is that it has no star or stars and all the principals are given a chance to do something. A symphony orchestra is another attractive feature of "The Girl of My Dreams," which will be presented here at the Atlanta Thursday, Friday and Saturday, with a good cast, the Harem-Scarem Pony ballet, and a big beauty chorus; seats on sale now.

CHINESE IN AMERICA TRY TO OUST NEW PRESIDENT

San Francisco Colony Raises Funds to Rid Home of Yuan Shi Kai

SAN FRANCISCO, Dec. 15.—Five hundred members of the Chinese colony here met yesterday to take steps to finance a revolution to force President Yuan Shi Kai of China from office. The meeting proclaimed that the president was trying to have himself declared emperor.

Ying Poh Heish, of Canton, head of the Chinese National party and personal representative of Dr. Sun Yat Sen, addressed the meeting.

He declared the life of the republic depended on the removal of Yuan. C. Kang Hoo, head of the Progressive party in China, spoke of the necessity for organizing a movement that would take the reins of government from the hands of Yuan Shi Kai.

The envoy of Dr. Sun accompanied by the leader of the Progressive party, will leave in a few days for Chicago and New York.

STOPOVERS CUT OFF IN FEAR OF PICKPOCKETS

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—Because of the large number of country folk who become easy victims of pickpockets and confidence games in the large cities, the Central Passenger association announced today that beginning February 1 no stopover privileges would be granted by railroads on home seekers' tickets. The principal stopover points on such tickets are Chicago, Cincinnati, St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Paul and Minneapolis.

LEARY MERCHANT KILLS EMPLOYE OF SAWMILL

Jerome Clemons Said to Have Shot Alfred Dyer for Insulting Wife

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
ALBANY, Ga., Dec. 15.—Jerome Clemons, a widely known merchant of Leary, Calhoun county, shortly after dark last night shot and killed Alfred Dyer, an employe of a sawmill near Leary. The shooting occurred in front of the Clemons home, where, it is said, Dyer went on learning of an alleged threat against him. Clemons is said to have made.

The affair is said to have grown out of an alleged insult by Dyer to Mrs. Clemons, whose husband is said to have threatened to shoot Dyer on sight. Dyer, on hearing of the alleged threat, is said to have gone to the Clemons home where the shooting took place.

Dyer's body has been sent to Turnerville, where his wife and children reside.

MISSISSIPPI RIVER BOAT GOES DOWN AT MEMPHIS

Passengers Left Packet Before She Sank—All Members of Crew Escape

MEMPHIS, Tenn., Dec. 15.—The Mississippi river steamer Shiloh, operated by the Delta Navigation company, sank while tied to the Memphis wharf early this morning. All the passengers had left shortly after midnight, and those of the crew aboard reached the bank in safety.

Officials of the packet company are unable to assign a reason for the sinking of the boat. She was valued at approximately $45,000. It is believed the greater part of the cargo, which consisted of 132 bales of cotton and 2,000 sacks of cotton seed, besides miscellaneous freight, can be salvaged.

NEW TRIAL PLEAS FOR NICK WILBURN ARE MADE

Hearing Held Before Judge J. B. Park, at Madison, Monday

MADISON, Ga., Dec. 15.—Motion for a new trial for Nick Wilburn, convicted in the Jones county superior court several weeks ago for murder of James King, will be argued before Judge J. B. Park here today. Wilburn is confined in Bibb county jail.

In the argument for new trial, Attorney John R. Cooper will stress three important points. First, that one juror who convicted Wilburn was a relative of the dead man; second, that Wilburn was forced to give evidence against himself in that Judge Park admitted in evidence his confession, and that his trial was unfair through the refusal of Judge Park to grant a change of venue.

ROYAL Baking Powder

Absolutely Pure

Recognized everywhere and by experts as the very highest grade of baking powder—superior to other brands in purity, leavening strength and keeping quality.

Made from pure cream of tartar, the product of grapes, and the most healthful and useful of leavening agents.

Its use insures the bread, biscuit and cake against contamination from the cheap, improper or injurious ingredients from which lower priced baking powders may be made.

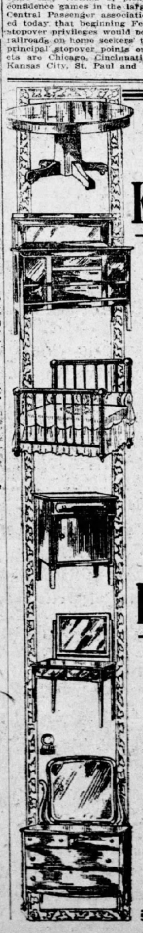
Knott & Carmichael Furniture Co.

Home Furnishings

135 Whitehall Street



We take pleasure in announcing that we are now ready for business at our new place, 135 Whitehall, where we will occupy the entire building of three floors.

Though Whitehall Street is still unfinished, the sidewalks have not been removed, and they are perfectly safe, making our new store easily accessible.

Furniture for Christmas Gifts

We have just opened and placed on display our entire stock of new furniture and house furnishings—and those who want to give something appropriate, andat the same time useful, will be able to make their selections here without any trouble.

It matters not what you want to give, whether it is a Go-Cart for the Baby or an Easy Chair for Grandfather, you will find it here, and at prices that will make you glad to have the opportunity to give.

The glad Christmas season is a good time to brighten up the home, make the living room, bed room or dining room take on a newer and happier look. You'll find it all here, and we invite you to come and look, look carefully, and then select what you want. If desired, we will store your purchase free of charge until such time as you want it delivered.

We Can Divide the Payments.

FIRST AID TO BUSY

AN INDEX TO A BIG

PLEASE Carry Small Parcels.
Keep to the Right in Aisles

Moments are weighted with busy-ness.

Things must be done now or left undone this Christmas. Let's take things as they are, let's do a little thinking and see what we can accomplish.

We have a big store here---it is crowded with Christmas gifts, those things that appeal in other seasons than the Christmas time to numberless people, and with these things distinctively Christmas-y. And every one of them has had to "pass inspection" before it was accepted. It represents our best effort. Under the most ordinary circumstances an ideal place for Christmas shopping, now it is made doubly so since time is so valuable and one may find under one roof presents of the right sort for all.

Read the list through. Its value lies in what it will suggest as a suitable thing for this one and that one. Once you have decided, then the fine varieties that you will find here will make the Christmas shopping a genuine joy.

Hosiery

Vast varieties, representative values by every method of judging them.

Hosiery you would be glad to receive, hosiery you will be proud to give.

Women's lisle hose 25c, 35c, 50c.

Fans

Fans, prices begin at 75c for a very dainty fan and before the other price extreme—$15.00—is reached, many artistic fans are found, real lace, mother of pearl sticks, silk fans, spangled fans.
Children's Fans, with chains, 25c and 50c, feather fans, 25c to $1.00.

Jewelry

An Elegant, Comprehensive Display

We set the jewelry announcement apart! The completeness of the display is impressive. Impressive because the many pieces that go to make it up are worthy and beautiful. Selected with the good taste of trained experts it makes its appeal to the discriminating public with a confidence founded on certainty of values and styles.

There is a name, there is doubtless a number of names on your list that imply a gift of jewelry---you will do well to visit this jewelry store---gifts for men, for women, for children, all fairly priced and reliable quality.

CORSAGE BOUQUETS

We have, in the millinery section, from Estelle Mershon, a beautiful garden of flowers, French corsage bouquets that are most givable.

Roses, violets, gardenias and others, tiny little affairs and great sumptuous corsages, all in Frenchy boxes.

French Ivory

Toilet articles of French ivory have the call.

The favor in which they are held is reflected by this splendid display.

Superb qualities, moderately priced.

Mirrors, combs, brushes, finger nail buffers, shoe horns, powder puffs, trinket cases, picture frames, trays, hat pin holders---prices for children's toilet sets---the list grows very long.

CHRISTMAS SHOPPERS
STORE'S VAST STOCKS

Early Hours Are the Best Shopping Hours. Store Opens at 8

FURS

The gift de luxe.

The fact that the furs, separate pieces, sets and coats are from the makers of known reliability adds its weight to the claim that this is Atlanta's dependable fur store.

We are exclusive Atlanta agents for the clebrated Revillon Freres.

The furs you will find here are all fashioned by those in authority as those most stylish this season.

Waists

This section might be called a section of novelties. Not so many to be found in several stores combined. The piquancy of Paris brought to Atlanta' Shadow laces and chiffons, embroidered and linen laces, fur trimmings.

Soft "crumply" crepes de chine, white and colors.

Giving waists? and many are after seeing these---your first thought should be of this waist department.

Art Goods

The Art Goods Department is proving a Mecca this year for Christmas shoppers.

Novelties one after another, attractive, smart Also all those little "materials" that women need for their "home made" presents are in abundance. For tomorrow some special prices.

THE BAZAAR

The Home of Presents for the Home

No more interesting spot right now in all Atlanta than the bazaar---the gift shop of those who would make a castle of their home. Have you a friend whose first thought is of beautifying her home?

Her present should come from the Bazaar---an incomplete list of things reads like this---

Lamps Lamp Shades Crystals
Bronzes Brasses Oriental Wares
Coal Boxes Sheffield Plate Chafing Dishes
Chinaware Dresden Baskets Silverware
Statuary Artificial Flowers

THE TOYS

The Wonderful New Store Has Won Its Way

Such favor as the new toy store is enjoying proves its worth, proves the service it is rendering the many Santa Clauses of Atlanta.

They tell us they have never seen such fine toys, nor such novel ones.

Tell you what they are! Impossible when it seems that all are different.

But the dolls---famous character dolls, dainty little baby dolls, funny little tramps, it seems all human life is represented among the people of this Doll City.

See them, see them now, before the little children of Atlanta adopt them.

In the Bazaar.

News of Women and Society

To Mrs. Tirrill

Miss Mildred Cabaniss will entertain eight friends informally at bridge Tuesday afternoon in honor of Mrs. George Tirrell, of New York. Mrs. Tirrell was formerly Miss Annie Howard, of this city, and is receiving a cordial welcome upon the occasion of her visit home.

To Miss Grant

Miss Margaret Grant will be the honor guest at a dinner with which Judge and Mrs. Den A. Pardee will entertain at the Piedmont club Saturday evening.

Miss Jones Entertains Miss Ferguson

Miss Lola Dean Jones was hostess at luncheon Monday at the Piedmont club in compliment to Miss Mary Scott Ferguson, of Roanoke, Va.

Luncheon was served in the pink room, the table having for its centerpiece an artistic arrangement of pink roses and white narcissi, while place cards, lace and nonsense continued the pink and white suggestion.

Miss Jones wore a draped gown of brown velvet, the bodice formed of ecru lace combined with fur a large velvet hat completing the attractive costume.

Miss Ferguson wore with a gown of old rose brocaded charmeuse a large black velvet picture hat ornamented with paradise feathers.

Mrs. Harrison Jones, who assisted in entertaining the guests, wore black velvet, the graceful tunic aged with fur. A small number of friends were invited to meet the guest of honor.

Tea and Doll Exhibition

At the musical tea to be given in connection with the congress of dolls on exhibition at the residence of Mrs William Lawson Peel, 1039 Peachtree street, Friday afternoon from 3 to 5 o'clock, the following beautiful program will be rendered:

Miss Adgate Ellis, soprano.
Mr. A. Dago Beaty, baritone.
The pianist of the Little Elegie Doll, "Herman Avery Waldo; "Take Me Back to Babyland," Katherine Windsor Knox—Miss Ellis.

"Aubrey from the Wandering One," Caro Roma; "The Great Unknown," Guy D'Hardelot—Mr. Beaty.

"I Love You," Carrie Jacobs-Bond—Miss Ellis and Mr. Beaty.

"Love's Lullaby," Ethelbert Nevin—Miss Ellis.

"His Lullaby," Carrie Jacobs-Bond; "My Love's Dream," Kate Vannah—Mr. Beaty.

Luncheon for Benefit of Home

The committee of ladies who are interested in the Home for the Friendless request all friends among the throng of holiday shoppers to come and have their luncheon Tuesday at Falk's restaurant, on Peachtree street.

All proceeds from the lunch will be donated by the management to the benefit of the home. Many parties are being formed, and it is hoped that the attendance will be a large one.

Owen-Doremus

A beautiful event of the morning was the wedding of Miss Hildred Scranton Owens and Mr. Frank Doremus, of Augusta, which took place at 10 o'clock at All-Saints' church. Dr. W. W. Memminger performed the ceremony, assisted by Rev. C. T. A. Pise.

Palms, ferns and many lovely bride roses formed the floration of the chancel, and a dense grouping of foliage plants made a vivid background for the assembled wedding party.

There were no attendants, the ceremony being witnessed by only the immediate families and a number of close friends from a distance.

The young bride made a charming picture in her going-away gown of bronze brocaded velvet, the short coat opening over a blouse fashioned of gold net and ore lace, and the hat was a smart velvet model in shades of brown, ornamented with a paradise feather. A corsage of white orchids and lilies of the valley completed the lovely costume.

After the ceremony Mr. and Mrs. Doremus left for the mountains of North Carolina for a stay of several weeks, after which they will be at home in Augusta.

The young bride, who is a daughter of Mrs. Katherine Wood Owen, has been among her recent debut the honor of the younger set and the attractive center of a wide circle of friends.

Mr. Doremus, who is at the head of the cotton firm of Doremus & Co., of Augusta and New York, is one of the prominent young business men of Augusta, and is a member of all the social clubs. Among the out-of-town guests who attended the wedding were Mrs. Frank Doremus, the mother of the groom; Miss Mary Coates, from Macon; Mr. Pierre Heard and Mr. Frank Calhoun, of Augusta.

All Saints' Guild to Hold Art Exhibit

A beautiful collection of reproductions of the masters of art will be presented to Atlanta lovers of art on Tuesday of this week under the patronage of All Saints' guild.

The exhibition will be held in the Hotel Winecoff, and the exquisite bits of great art from the galleries of the world will be shown by the ladies, and some pieces offered for sale for Christmas remembrances.

A prominent artist will assist in showing the collection, which is brought out by Miss Rosa Woodberry.

Among the sculptures in color tones are the "Madonna of the Chair," "Terpsichore," "Sections of the Parthenon," Millet's "Sower," Da Vinci's "Last Supper," Thowtalssen's "Lion of Lucerne," the "Dancing Hours," and many other classics.

The collection of Christ Child Christmas cards and kindred churchly themes, with exquisite lines of the season, will be offered for sale. All are from the P. Parsons studios, of Boston.

A cordial invitation is extended all interested in art to inspect the exhibit, especially to the audience who will attend the reading of the Rev. W. W. Memminger at the Winecoff Tuesday afternoon.

OUR ASTROLOGER

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

HOROSCOPE.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1913.

Under this day's sky Sell, but do not buy.

For all business transactions except selling the signs today are evil, according to astrology. Mars is in an aspect peculiarly ominous. Indications of widespread discontent among the nations of the world are discovered by the seers, who predict warfare and bloodshed.

The elevated place of Mars, ruling the seventh house, is held to be exceedingly threatening. Indications of treachery are read in this position of the planet, the seers giving warning of greed and double dealing in the relations of the powers that rule the world.

Hospitals and institutions for medical research are under a most beneficent rule. The prophecy is that the next year will record wonderful discoveries for the relief of humanity and a greater interest in the conservation of health than at any previous time in history.

Grave anxieties are indicated for the king of England, who will be confronted by many vexing problems, which will occupy parliament where scenes of violence are foretold.

A woman will gain fame in London through deeds of heroism. She will not be allied with the feminist movement.

Radical changes in college life are foreshadowed. The movement for extreme democracy will gain rapidly, it is predicted.

Internal dissensions among churchmen are foretold. Disagreement concerning the work of women will be common. The stars are read as indicative of schisms and sweeping reforms.

A street accident so shocking that it will arouse national indignation is predicted. A man of political prominence will be one of the victims, the seers announce.

Persons whose birthdate it is may suffer severe losses within the year. Economy and cautions in the management of financial affairs are recommended.

Children born on this day will make friends easily. They may be inclined to spend money recklessly. Fondness of change and travel may be among their characteristics. Life probably will be smooth for them.

Miss Donna Bain Describes Parisian Tango and Maxixe

BY ISABELLE ORMOND THOMAS.

A short interview with Miss Donna Bain Monday morning drew forth the information that not only was she interested in showing Atlantians her own artistic interpretation of the new dances so much the vogue in London and Paris, but that her pleasure was doubled in the fact of being at home again and that it was Atlantiate that she was going to teach during the next two weeks.

"It is very good to be home again," said Miss Bain. "A person can hardly realize, unless they have spent as many months abroad as I have reflectly just what a real southern welcome in one's own southern home means."

Miss Bain and her assistant, Mr. Donald Crane, of New York, arrived late Sunday evening, and Monday morning found them early at the club, getting ready for the initial "the dansant," to be held Monday afternoon.

"Maxixe" to Be Danced.

"Do you know," laughed the young dancuse, "this is the day when not only the possible, but the impossible, is done in the ball room? Steps that at first would be thought out of the realm of possibility to learn, after a short while become as easy and as practicable as the old waltz and two-step. Monday afternoon Mr. Crane and I will give the 'Maxixe,' the Brazilian dance which has created such a rage in Paris and which as yet has hardly reached America. Then we want it understood that our 'tango' will be the Parisian tango, and not the American. The difference? Oh, you are not going to ask the difference. Here Miss Bain stretched out her pretty arms. "Why, the difference—one can hardly describe it. The Parisian is a stately measure, full of rhythm and perfect grace, while the American—well, that savors of the rag time.

"Then another charming dance, and one that is sure to make its appeal, is the fancy combination waltz." The introduction to the dance is suggestive of the 'hesitation,' which later glides into such a rhythmic movement, that the best name found for it has been the 'skating waltz'—and really that is just what it is."

Three times a week an interested audience will assemble at "the dansant," and it is predicted that a rarely artistic treat is in store for all interested in the exposition of the late steps as danced by a charming former Atlanta girl all through the fall and early winter before large assemblies in New York City.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

Pompeiian House Decorations in Blocks of White and Black Marble Interest Fashionable Women. John D. Rockefeller, Jr.'s House to Have Pompeiian Wooden Shutters Painted With Dancing Figures.

NEW YORK.—There are two young women in New York who are doing different kinds of house decorations which include the making of novelties. It is a far-reaching business and a lucrative one.

I went into their studio one day to see how they worked, and the studio itself with its many connecting rooms, in which was a vast number of novelties that one does not usually see in America, and which had been imported from Germany and Italy and France, inspired the onlooker into the belief that these women have a comprehensive idea of what others wanted. They have grasped what is essentially new in interior decorations and they are able to give women something different from what their neighbors possessed.

It is true that they aim toward the new and are disciples of that school of decoration which has in it such apostles as Poiret, Iribe, and those men in Vienna.

To begin at the beginning they have tile floors in the large squares of black and white painted on the wood in imitation of Pompeiian marble. This color scheme is always the background of the modernists, for they have gone back to the Pompeiian era for many of their schemes of decorations.

The black and white idea is strongly worked up in many of the newest houses and even the smart specialty shops and the high-priced and exclusive dressmaking houses in Paris is quite enamored of it because these two strongly contrasting colors form a neutral background for the display of any other color that is introduced.

The advisability of choosing this floor rather than a carpeted one is quickly shown when one notices how well the window draperies and the colored novelties look.

Black and Crystal Columns.

Another clever touch introduced in these rooms will undoubtedly interest the host of women who care for house decorations. This is a series of wide black columns inlaid with a mosaic of square pieces of glass. Mosaic work is very old and was a fundamental part of Italian decoration and can be seen in several of the palaces in Venice. There the glass pieces have a gilt background; they are supposed to have been done by a secret process that is very difficult to imitate; there is a bath room done in the old Venetian style at Murtine's in Paris and while one may admire the intricacy and expensiveness of the work one surely would not want to take a bath in that tub.

Without the gilt these square bits of glass are exceedingly attractive arranged in mosaic and the idea is being advanced by the modern decorators. When the glass is put into black columns that support the scene, the effect on a large room is quite impressive.

It is not easy to say how they could be used in private houses, for each house has a soul of its own and its decorations should be worked out accordingly. But here is the idea, fresh from the ancients, and striking a new note in the modern scheme for arranging a house. Anything to use black is the cry of today. Strange, isn't it, that we have gone in for bright colors for our costumery, and black and white for our houses.

Some of the new rooms done by these modern artists are papered in white with touches of black in the white woodwork with a narrow border of black where the walls and ceiling join, and with black furniture on a white and black checkerboard floor. There are libraries which have black velvet carpets and curtains with white floors and woodwork.

Pompeiian Wooden Blinds

The decorators have also revived the use of wooden blinds or window shutters which are straight pieces of wood that cover the glass and are decorated by hand with dancing figures.

Such blinds have been designed for the new home of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., to suit a Pompeiian drawing room on the lower floor. Is one permitted to say that in consideration of the vice crusade that Mr. Rockefeller was waged, and he has written, that a Pompeiian drawing room with the figures of dancing girls painted on the shutters in cops of famous ballets in that dead city, seems incongruous?

The average woman might not care to be so true to an epoch as to use these shutters, for they are heavy, but she might like all the rest of the Pompeiian decorating. There is no doubt that drastic changes are being made in the way we furnish our homes.

One of the house decorators for millionaires told me recently that colonial furniture was dead, utterly dead, and that anything that smacked of Japanese art was bad, very bad. Nothing but French, he says, is to be thought of for a modern home. But by house he does not mean home; he speaks of the New York palaces, most of which he decorates and all of which look as nearly alike in-side as do the French houses.

Even the youngsters as well as the houses show sign of the popularity of black and white. Notice the coat which is sketched today. It is the smartest wrap in Paris for children, and is made of black velvet and trimmed with white rabbit.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BED TIME

By Thornton W. Burgess

(Copyright, 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

Chatterer the Red Squirrel was running for his life and without the least hope, suddenly saw a last chance to escape from Shadow the Weasel. That is, he saw something that might offer him a chance. He couldn't be sure until he had tried, and even then he might escape from one danger only to run right into another equally great. What Chatterer saw was a big brown bunch near the top of a tall chestnut tree, and he feared for that tree as he never before could go. What was that big brown bunch? Why it was Redtail the Hawk, who was doing there with his head drawn down between his shoulders dreaming of the warm southland.

Now, old Redtail is one of Chatterer's deadliest enemies. He, too, quite as fond of Red Squirrel as is Shadow the Weasel, though he doesn't often try to catch one, because there are other things to eat much easier to get. Chatterer had had more than one narrow escape from old Redtail, and was very much afraid of him, yet hefe he was running up the very tree in which Redtail was sitting. You see, a very daring idea had come into his head. He had seen at once that Redtail was dozing and hadn't seen him at all. He knew that Redtail would just as soon take Shadow the Weasel for dinner as himself, and a very daring plan had popped into his head.

"I may as well be caught by Redtail as Shadow," he thought as he ran up the tree, "but if my plan works out right I won't be caught by either. Anyway, it is my very last chance."

Up the tree he scrambled, and after him went Shadow the Weasel. Shadow had been so intent on catching Chatterer that he had not noticed old Redtail, which was just as Chatterer had hoped. Up, up he scrambled, straight past old Redtail, but as he passed he pulled one of Redtail's long tail feathers, then ran on to the top of the tree and with the last bit of strength he had left leaped to a neighboring spruce tree, where, hidden by the thick branches, he stopped to rest and see what would happen.

Of course, when he felt his tail pulled, old Redtail was wide awake in a flash and, of course he looked down to see who had dared to pull his tail. There just below him was Shadow the Weasel, who had just that minute discovered who was sitting there. Old Redtail hissed sharply, and the feathers on the top of his head stood up in a way they have when he is angry. And he WAS angry—very angry.

Shadow the Weasel stopped short. Then like a flash he dodged around to the other side of the tree. He had no thought of Chatterer now. Things were changed all in a flash—quite changed. Instead of the hunter he was now the hunted. Old Redtail circled in the air just overhead, and every time he caught sight of Shadow he swooped at him with great cruel claws spread to clutch him. Shadow dodged around the trunk of the tree. He was more angry than frightened, for his sharp eyes had spied a little hollow in a branch of the chestnut tree, and he knew that once inside of that he would have nothing to fear. Redtail was angry clear through to think that he should be cheated out of that dinner he had been so sure of only a few minutes before. So he screamed angrily at old Redtail, and then, watching his chance, scampered out to the hollow and whisked inside just in the nick of time.

Chatterer, watching from the spruce tree, gave a great sigh of relief. He saw Redtail the Hawk post himself on the top of a tall tree where he could keep watch of that hollow in which Shadow had disappeared, and he knew that it would be a long time before Shadow would dare poke even his nose outside. Then as soon as he was rested Chatterer stole softly, oh, so softly, away through the tree tops until he was sure that Redtail could not see him. Then he hurried. Yes, indeed, he hurried then. He wanted to get just as far away from Shadow the Weasel as he could.

THE EVENING STORY — TWO WOMEN

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Wefner.)

She had been standing since 6 o'clock in the heated, smelly restaurant kitchen baking pastry, and now, when she sank into a chair, it was because she could not keep her feet longer. Near her was a window, from which she could look down into the dingy side street. Along this street a man was passing with that unevenness and lassitudes of gait which marks the "failure." Yet if he was a failure she did not know it. For he was her son. She heard him coming up the stairs and she had a smile ready for him when he opened the door.

"Well, Legrand?"

He looked about the shabby room with a sick "No dinner today?" he asked.

"In half a minute, dear. I thought I'd rest a mite first. I just got home and was a bit winded."

"Confound that restaurant!" he said. "I wish you'd give it up."

She did not answer. She was wondering how they would live if she did give it up, for he earned nothing. Poor boy, he was always looking for a job commensurate with his ability, and, of course, never found it. Her silence irritated him.

"I say confound that restaurant, mother. It's no place for a decent woman to be in."

"They pay me well, Legrand." She rose and stirred up the fire. When she had arranged food on the table she called him gently. She waited upon him before she sat down to her own dinner. Indeed, she had no appetite for anything save strong, cheap tea.

There was a distinct contrast between the mother and son. She was a tall, old woman with streaked light hair, a shriveled skin, and large, pale eyes, which had long since shed all their tears and could only stare with piteous wonder into the void called the future. The one thing that kept her alive was love for her son. And he did not deserve her love. He was a small man, good looking, with a weak mouth and brooding dark eyes. His clothes, though cheap, were neat and he wore a blue pin in his red four-in-hand. To ordinary folks he was a selfish, worthless little loafer, but to her he was the handsomest replica of his dead father.

"Where you been all morning dear?" she asked.

"Where I shall be all afternoon, probably."

She knew where that was. Sometimes she wished he would not spend so much time at Phil Norton's bowling alley.

She poured another cup of tea for herself. Somehow tea failed to refresh her today. When he had finished eating her son took down his hat and, with a mere "So long, mother," went out.

She left the table standing and crept to the old couch near the stove. She was very tired. Each day she had observed fearfully of late she came home in worse condition from her work than she had done the day before. And when she had given out what would they do? Sleep overtook her mercifully while she was pondering the question.

She was awakened by a step in the room. Her son had returned. She rose stiffly. "You're home early, dear. It's only 3 o'clock."

He was silent. He had sunk into a chair and sat huddled, his head on his hand, in an attitude of such dejection that she exclaimed in terror: "Legrand! What is the matter?" She knelt beside him, her arm about him.

"I've been insulted, mother, by a woman. And then the confession came in petulant, sobbing outburst. "It's Hortense Lacey, mother. I knew she'd be home from work this afternoon and I went to see her. I asked her to marry me. And she said—she said— No, I won't tell you what she said. Darn her, I'll never forgive her—never!" She soothed him tenderly. "You see, it was this way," he went on. "A man came in and offered me a job. But when he found out I wasn't married he backed out. Said he wouldn't hire any but a married man. I thought not being married was against me, and I made up my mind to go right down and ask Hortense. I've had a notion this good while that she'd have me if I'd speak. But something's come over her—I don't know what. She talked awful mean to me. She said—" He choked. "No use. I can't repeat it."

His mother did not ask him to. She determined to find out from Hortense's own lips what she had said and to reprove her for it. All the mother in her was aroused against the girl who had dared to take such a liberty. She had known for a long time that he was thinking of the girl and she had been willing that he should marry Hortense if he chose, for Hortense had a little money besides being a great worker, and Legrand would be well provided for were he her husband. And now she has refused him. The gate of that hope or his happiness was shut forever.

Presently she put on her things and slipped away. It was not far to the Laceys'. As she knocked at the door she heard Hortense running the sewing machine. The girl made shirt waists when she was not employed in a local telephone office. The sewing machine stopped and Hortense called, "Come in!" Hortense was a big, solid girl with the bloom of perfect health on her full cheeks.

"How-do, Mrs. Pettis?" she said. "Sit there."

The old woman sat down. "My son's been telling me——" she began, "I want to know what you said to make him feel the way he does."

"Oh, he didn't tell you! I just thought he wouldn't." Hortense smiled. "I guess you ought to know. Mrs. Pettis, and so I'm going to tell you, since Legrand won't. I told him that a man of his age and strength who did nothing but sit in Phil Norton's shebang day after day waiting for somebody to come along and offer him a gold mine wasn't worth a decent woman's consideration. I told him if he'd let his old mother work herself to death for him it was plain to see how he'd use his wife. I told him I had all I could do to take care of myself without taking care of him. I told him all that, Mrs. Pettis, and I meant it."

She paused and looked the old woman in the eyes, challenging refutation of the truths she had uttered. Legrand's mother looked as if she had been struck in the face. Her shamed glance sank and she picked at the frayed fringes of her shawl.

"It's hard to hear such things about anyone you love," she said at last, slowly. "And Legrand isn't to blame, Hortense. He's exactly like his father, and I never found fault with his father. Only I'm giving out now I've often wondered what would become of Legrand if I couldn't look out for him." Her throat was choked with sobs.

"So you've had two of 'em," Hortense said. "It's easy to see what kind of life you've led." She studied the downcast, miserable old face opposite her a moment. "I can tell you right now you've got my sympathy. Maybe you aren't acquainted with the article, but it's something you need mightily. And because I am, I'll add you need it worse going to start a little supply and demand business of our own right here."

The old woman looked up. "I don't understand," she said.

Hortense patted the workworn hand with her plump one. "No, of course you don't. I'm going to marry that shiftless, no-account son of yours, not because I can't live without him, for I can, although I'm fond enough of him. It seems ridiculous that a strapping girl like me should care for a nonentity like him, but I do. And I'm sorry for her dead-use his wife. I mean for you that I'm going to marry him. I'm going to see that you have a little show for yourself the rest of your days. No mother-in-law is going to support my husband. He is going to support himself. Legrand's going to work. I've got to finish this before supper. You can go tell Legrand what I say. He's not over home if you please, Mother Pettis, and bring mad as me by this time. There's one thing more you can tell him for me. If he goes down to Phil Norton's place again I'll be after him. I won't have the man I'm going to marry hanging around that low-lived critter. Not by a long shot. No, sir. Good-by!"

DARKEN GRAY HAIR, LOOK YOUNG

Q Ban—Better Than Any Other Hair Remedy—Is Not Sticky or Greasy—Darkens So Naturally and Evenly No One Can Tell

It is very sensible to do away with any gray in your hair, as are living in an age when appearance of youth and vigor is a great advantage. To darken your gray, streaked with gray, faded or white hair, simply buy a bottle of Q-Ban. Rub vigorously, like shampoo, on the hair and scalp on retiring. In a day or so the gray in your hair disappears, the hair is darkened, and a few more applications of Q-Ban, your hair becomes beautiful, fluffy and full of life and vigor. No one can tell that you darkened your hair with Q-Ban, as it darkens the gray so evenly and naturally. Q-Ban also stops falling of the hair (even if coming out in handfuls), promotes its growth, stops dandruff and itching scalp. Produces the most luxuriant tresses from coarse, dry or wiry hair. Your hair is your charm. An application or two of Q-Ban will enhance its appearance a hundredfold and make you look years younger. Only 50c for a large 7-oz. bottle. Satisfaction guaranteed. Sold in Atlanta, Ga., by Edmond son's Drug Stores, 11 N. Broad street, or 109 N. Pryor street. Out-of-town people supplied by mail. Call or write either store.—(Advt.)

Southern 'Mags' Gathering in Atlanta Today

Schedule Committee Will Be Appointed – Future Ownership of New Orleans Club Yet to Be Announced–Local Club Will Give Banquet

Moguls and managers of the Southern league of baseball clubs meet in annual session at the Ansley hotel today. Several of these, including President Kavanaugh and Secretary Jacobsen, A. J. Heineman and Charlie Frank, of New Orleans; President Baugh and W. D. Smith, of Birmingham; President Frank Coleman, of Memphis, reached Atlanta Sunday night. Others are due in town this morning.

At the meeting a schedule committee will be named to draft tentative schedules for next season. These will be submitted at the next meeting in February. The election of officers will also take place, but this will more likely be a mere formality, since it is not anticipated that any changes in the present administration will be made.

A number of other developments may come out at the meeting, which have not been officially listed on the program. A. J. Heineman, who is representing the New Orleans club, is en route back to New Orleans from Cleveland, where he went several days since to negotiate with President Sommers, of the Naps, for the purchase of the New Orleans club by Crescent City capital. He declined to make a statement as to what had been done. He admitted, however, that he had obtained a proposition, which he will submit to New Orleans capitalists, covering the purchase of the Cleveland magnate's interest. From his attitude it appears likely that the proposition will be accepted.

The status of Charlie Frank was a matter of discussion about the hotel last night, but nothing definite concerning the future program of the veteran Pelican helmsman was allowed to sift out. At present Frank appears to have run his course at New Orleans. However, much depends on the outcome of Heineman's proposition to be submitted to New Orleans parties on the purchase of the franchise. If the plan is carried out, Frank will probably be restored, and will again lead the Pelicans.

Whether or not any further news of the outcome of the New Orleans matter crops out at this meeting, it is a fact that an adjustment of the affair will serve to clear up several matters of importance to a large number of players and managers. For instance it will determine whether or not Frank is to be manager again at New Orleans. Also it will determine whether or not John Dobbs goes to New Orleans or to Toledo, one of which places he appears certain to land. It will likewise settle the question of where Kid Elberfeld will play next season. A short time since a deal was announced which involved the exchange of First Baseman Kutina and First Baseman Hulbin, who is now with Toledo. This exchange may be called off following the settlement of the New Orleans situation.

It is understood that R. M. Rose will offer to the league a medal to be given to the player in the circuit who is considered most valuable to his club. This medal will be awarded in the same manner employed with the Chalmers trophy in the big leagues. One newspaper man in each city will be selected to act as judge.

Following the usual custom the Atlanta baseball club will entertain the visiting magnates and managers with a banquet at the Ansley tonight.

Carpentier Is Fined By Ring Authorities

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Georges Carpentier, the present pugilistic idol of France, recently was disciplined by the French boxing federation. He was fined $100 and his manager mulcted for a similar sum for his bout with "Jim Lancaster" at Geneva.

"Lancaster," investigation developed, was in reality Max Abbott, and Carpentier was charged with boxing Abbott, knowing he was not Lancaster. Abbott was suspended for four months and the referee for nine.

Sweden Trains Team For Modern Pentathlon

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Sweden already had returned from work and asked for try for the modern Pentathlon at the Olympic games in Berlin in 1916. A special training school has been opened in Stockholm and twenty-four young officers are undergoing training under the supervision of professional trainers. The crown prince is taking great interest in the work of the school, where the examinations are held under his personal charge.

STRAY SHOTS AT SPORT TARGETS

By Innis Brown

AFTER a brief review of off-season gossip, we are forced to the conclusion that the promoters and magnates of the Federal league were at some time or other engaged as campaign managers in the political arena. At any rate, we don't recall any other class, quite so strong when it comes to claiming a clean sweep against the field.

No doubt the invaders are causing more or less concern to Ban Johnson, Garry Herrmann, and associated magnates of organized ball, but at the same time, we don't recall having heard any reports that these gentlemen are offering to sacrifice any club franchises or players' contract in consideration of a pleasing ditty well rendered, or that they are dispatching any couriers to the headquarters of the invading hosts with humble supplications for compassion.

Well, if the claims of the Feds are well founded, take a look at what fellows, and see if you don't think it is about time to run up the white flag, call in the advance guard, and prepare to pass over the side arms, with the left fin extended, kinked at the elbow, and side arms, resting thereon.

Here are the boys, who will play in the outlaw band next season, according to claims of the Feds:

NATIONAL LEAGUE.

Cincinnati—Mordecai Brown, Bates, Sheckard, Hoblitzel and Benton.
Chicago—Zimmerman, Schulte, Leach, Bridwell, Richie and Lavender.
Pittsburg—John Miller, Wilson, McCarthy, Dolan and Mitchell.
St. Louis—Konetchy, Sallee, Oakes and Evans.
New York—Herzog, Murray, Wilson, Marquard and Crandall.
Philadelphia—Becker, Devore, Camnitz, Chalmers and Byrne.
Boston—Hap Myers, Perdue and Mann.

AMERICAN LEAGUE.

St. Louis—Stovall, Agnew, Baumgardner, G. Williams and Wellman.
Detroit—Stanage, O. Bush, Moriarity and Dubuc.
Athletics—E. Collins, L. Bush, Pennock and Oldring.
New York—Ford, Sweeney and Cree.
Red Sox—Wood, Cady, Henriksen, Engle and R. Collins.
Washington—Foster, Gedeon, Engle and A. Williams.
Cleveland—Lajoie, Johnston, Mitchell and O'Neill.
White Sox—Chase, Sullivan, Rath and Russell.
McFarland to Prichard to Merrillat."

Never saw that trio figure in a summary to a boxcore did you? Well, no, it isn't quite as familiar as the famous "Tinker to Evers to Chance" once was, or the equally notable "Collins to Barry to McInnis" is and bids fair to remain. At the same time, this first triumvirate had several hundred thousand sport fans chattering wildly a short time back, even though they may not have discussed it just in that order.

You see, McKeown is a cadet at West Point, who plays center on the football eleven. He was not considered All-American caliber, and possibly you don't recall him. Prichard, you should know. He, too, is one of Uncle Sam's students in the gentle craft of warfare, being of the land-lubber branch, as contrasted with the maritime clan. And the rest is easy. You all know Merrillat. He's the guy that drove legion of citizens back to Annapolis on the night of November 29. He's the gink who registered his name high in the hall of West Point athletic fame, along with Devore, Daly, and others, by grabbing a couple of forward passes, at a most opportune time, and scudding across the Navy goal line for touchdowns.

Referring to Merrillat, had it occurred to you that the Army end, did more than any other one man during the past season to force upon eastern rock-ribbed supporters of the old game, a realization that the game as it is played nw, admits of things undreamed of by many of the experts along the northern Atlantic coast?

Practically every eastern expert placed Merrillat on his All-American selection. His game against the Navy turned the tide in his favor. And that game consisted largely of working admirably into the open style game, by handling the receiving end of the forward passing game in faultless style. Had the Navy beaten the Army, even though Merrillat had played a lamp-up game at his finals, it is exceedingly doubtful whether he would have gotten more than honorable mention.

Some time prior to the beginning of the football season just past, Mike Murphy, veteran trainer of Penn athletic teams died.

Penn turns up with fair material, but draws a disastrous season on the gridiron.

The loss of Murphy cost Penn dearly.

We wouldn't claim much on that syllogism in a test on logic, but at the same time we have a hunch that is pretty close to sizing up the situation. Penn had an able instructor in George Brooks, but the team never rounded out like it should have. It knew football, but for one thing the characteristic scrappy spirit was lacking.

Murphy was no doubt the most valuable man in the country at conditioning men, as may be inferred from the fact that he was chosen to handle the American team at Olympic meets. He knew how to put men in shape and also he could size up a man probably better than any other trainer in the business. It is said, he picked up Alvin Kraenzlein after seeing him walk across the campus, and began working with him. Kraenzlein's record is familiar to all followers of track sports. Others have also developed into marvelous performers, largely through the tutelage of the great Murphy.

It may be a long while before Penn finds another like him.

Americans Prone To Iron Driving

Vardon and Ray Say It Is Partially Due to Lack of Bunkers and Rough Play

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Both Ray and Vardon were besieged upon their return to England for expressions of opinion regarding golf and golfers in America. A synopsis of their replies would indicate that the famous English professionals believe J. J. McDermott, the best of the professional in this country, with Chick Evans holding a similar position among amateurs. The best courses they said, were located at Cleveland and Detroit.

They thought American golfers were too prone to use irons off the tees, due in part to the absence of real bunkers and rough going on the courses. According to Ray there is a strong probability that a team of English professionals will tour the world in 1915, playing in America, Australia and Africa.

Vandy Takes on North Carolina

First Game Since 1900 Is Scheduled for October 24, 1914, in Nashville

(By Associated Press.)

NASHVILLE, Tenn., Dec. 15.—It was officially announced last night that Vanderbilt would probably meet North Carolina university in a football next season for the first time since 1900. Negotiations have practically been closed here bringing North Carolina here on October 24. Vanderbilt was defeated 42 to 0 the last time these two teams met. The two-year contract with Virginia will also be renewed, although this step has not been officially taken as yet and Virginia will play here on October 31.

Other games scheduled to date are: Tennessee, November 7; Auburn, in Birmingham, November 14; Sewanee, on Thanksgiving day. The matter of a game with Michigan is being considered, but on account of the hard schedule it is hardly probable that it will be attempted, as it will be necessary to make the trip to Ann Arbor.

Baseball Stars Pronounce Golf A Grand Game

Many Big League Players Spend Much Time on the Greens–Among the List Are Mathewson, Zimmerman, Eddie Collins, Joe Wood, Billy Sullivan and Others

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—Baseball players, boxers and other athletes in increasing numbers are taking up the game of golf as a fall and winter sport. The outdoor game of the best has something fascinating about it for the ball player. When a player once becomes inoculated with the golf germ he is usually caught by the links for keeps.

One ball player who has become a devotee of golf is Billy Sullivan, of the White Sox, and Sully is authority for the information that it is some game. In fact, Sully is an enthusiast in all games and an expert at most of them. Whenever he learns a sport Billy becomes its master instead of letting it master him. This is not said to frighten Johnny Evers, who has also become addicted to the great Scotch and English pastime and who has been challenged by the veteran Sox catcher. Evers would do well to practice his puts and approaches, to say nothing of his drives and brassie shots, however, before tackling Sully. If he fails to take this advice the White Sox may score another victory over the somewhat battered Cubs before Santa Claus makes his appearance.

ZIMMERMAN ALSO A GOLFER.

Heinie Zimmerman is another stalwart son of the diamond who has begun the call of the golf greens. According to rumors, coming from the east Zim has encountered trouble keeping his caddies. His prowess for long hits has become known on the links and few of the youngsters want to run thereless off hunting the elusive spheres when they can get the same wages trudging over the links for short drivers.

A new phase of golf is its value as a conditioner of athletes. In the east, where some of the largest golf links in the United States are situated, several major league players have taken up the game with a zest. Among these are a number of the Boston Red Sox.

Hugh Duffy, former manager of the White Sox, is a pronounced follower of the game, and Duff may be seen almost every day trudging over the well kept yards near Boston, his fall and winter home. Duffy has become a good golfer. He attributes his splendid physical condition largely to golf.

Many present day stars of the game are taking up golf, and when once they hit the elusive "bill" they become confirmed enthusiasts of the game.

Some ball players counted among the stars of the game who are taking up golf are Christy Mathewson, of the New York Giants; Eddie Collins, of the world champion Philadelphia Athletics; and Tris Speaker, Clyde Engle, Duffy Lewis, Harry Hooper, Joe Wood and Ray Collins, of the Boston Red Sox.

Speaker, Wood and Engle were guests of Open Champion Ouimet last summer at his home near Boston and played with the title holder. Engle is the best golfer of the trio.

Fifteen Deaths On the Diamond

All of These, However, Were Unskilled Players, and No Big Leaguer Was Killed

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Dec. 15.—Fifteen deaths was the toll in baseball games during the 1913 season, according to figures published here today. The report shows that the greatest death toll was in Chicago, where three persons were killed by pitched balls.

Twelve victims were killed by being hit in the head by the ball direct from the pitcher's hand.

Foul balls were responsible for the other three deaths. The report points out that all the players killed were unskilled in the game and that no major league player received fatal injuries. Following is a list of the fatalities:

May 18—B. Porrito, Chicago.
May 25—V. Faught, Comd, Neb.
May 26—J. Brushkwitz, Baltimore.
May 30—F. Greenwald, Holland, N. Y.
June 1—C. Brown, Chicago.
June 2—W. W. Wiggins, Kearney, New Jersey.
June 2—P. Smith, Amagstos, Wash.
June 2—F. C. Whittemore, Jr., New Haven, Conn.
June 5—J. C. Gillespie, Chattanooga, Tennessee.
June 13—R. H. Black, Charleroi, Pa.
June 17—J. Whetstone, New Orleans.
June 25—M. Ruth, Jacksonville, Ind.
June 23—F. W. Reed, Harvey, Ill.
June 23—M. McCoy, Chicago.
August 30—L. Roberts, Philadelphia.

ORGANIZED BASEBALL FACES BIG PROBLEM

Tendency of American Business Men to Play Games in Their Leisure Hours, Instead of Watching Games, Makes It Necessary to Sustain Attendance

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Although the annual meeting of the National Baseball league, held here last week, failed to develop any sensational features, aside from aftermath trading, the magnates of the senior baseball organization returned to their homes well satisfied with the outlook for the 1914 season. This optimism is due in great part to the masterly manner in which President Tener, the newly elected executive, handled affairs after he took the gavel. He made his personality felt from the start and there was no question as to who was president, once Tener had stepped into the position. Running the National league is far from being child's play and Lynch's successor gave the impression that he was the man capable of fulfilling every requirement.

It was this impression of executive strength that heartened the magnates, for close observers of the present drift of the sport realize the expenses of professional baseball are increasing much faster than attendance figures. In fact the attendance records of 1912 and 1913 fail to show any considerable increase, while the cost of new parks and stands and raises in players' salaries, have cut into the gross receipts considerably. This situation is not due to any failing off in the interest in professional baseball but to conditions outside the realms of the game.

One of these factors is the tendency of the present day man to be an active rather than passive actor in sport. Whereas in the past he would spend his afternoons and holidays witnessing baseball and other athletic contests, he now uses the same time to participate in some game or recreation himself. Golf, tennis and other semi-strenuous sports are gaining more devotees every day. Membership in walking, athletic and country clubs is increasing rapidly in all sections.

This movement, which is along the lines so popular in England, offers a problem that requires careful study and handling by those who stage athletic exhibitions, which depend for success upon gate receipts. Big league business men are not unmindful of the situation and are preparing to meet it.

National Trials Are Under Way

Practically All Dogs Entered in Southern Trials to Compete in Big Event

MONTGOMERY, Ala., Dec. 15.—The first annual field trials of the National Field Trials club began today over the course at Letchatchie, twenty-three miles below this city. Practically all of the dogs entered in the Southern Field Trials club's contests during the first part of the past week will be entered in the derby or the all-age stakes.

The drawings for the derby, held last night, resulted as follows:

White J., with Miss Helen; Lespiditza, with Dall Helkes; Miss Hattie, with Deep River Lady Ellen; Captain Firebrand, with Nevels; Big Six, with Happy Medium; Bonfire, with Aristotle; Clansman, with Louisiana Duke; Frankie Rambler, with Tom Hankes; Deep River Vanity Fair, with Manitoba Raps Ferris.

Among the prominent men in attendance are A. G. C. Sage, president of the national club, New York; H. B. Edwards, secretary and treasurer, Cleveland; H. B. Duryea, New York; Edo M. Fleischman, New York; Col. Orthaus, Summit, N. Y.; Tom Edwards, Conover, N. C.; Theodore Sturgis and W. A. Titus, judges; W. B. Hamilton, Columbus, Miss.

The drawings for the all-age stakes and the election of officers will be held here tonight.

French Forfeit Negro's Title

M. Vienne, French Boxing Authority, Explains Action Against Jack Johnson

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—M. Vienne, director of the Society for the Propagation of English Boxing in France, explains his reasons for proclaiming the Longford-Jeannette bout in Paris on December 20, as a world championship contest as follows:

"People say to me, 'If a world's boxing championship is organized between two qualified men, why is the winner of the bout not entitled to hold it forever?'

"I reply with facts, and then ask the public to judge. The title held by Jack Johnson is declared vacant because it is not admissable in sport for a man to legitimately hold all his life, or as long as he pleases, a title, which he obstinately refuses to defend against qualified aspirants. Now, I have repeatedly offered Johnson an opportunity of defending his title in Paris under the usual conditions of a participation in the receipts with a guarantee of $25,000. Johnson always has refused.

"In an interview Jack Johnson had in Paris with Victor Breyer, then my associate, and later with Leon See, director of boxing, he made the same public declaration which remains still without denial, that 'I will not box again, even for a million.' Since coming to Paris Johnson's representative declared to me that Johnson did not wish to really have a capable adversary to maintain his title, but only pretenders of a second class. The sporting world has every right to place open for public competition a title which the holder does not wish to have to defend."

PRECIOUS BASEBALL RELICS ARE STOLEN.

(By Associated Press.)

Detroit, Mich., Dec. 15.—Two of "Ty" Cobb's favorite bats, and the glove worn by George Mullen, former member of the Detroit team when he pitched the first game of his career, were among the articles stolen from the residence of Frank J. Healy, property man of the Detroit baseball club, last week. The robbery was not discovered until last night. Catcher Stanage and Shortstop Bush also lost equipment which they valued highly.

Purdue Star Labored Hard to Return for Game

Star Halfback on Football Team Worked Double Shift in Boiler Factory–For Forty-Six Days He Worked 18 Hours a Day

INDIANAPOLIS, Dec. 15.—That Purdue's greatest football player of the last decade performed a deed more heroic than any he executed on the football field was revealed at last night's banquet given by the business men of Lafayette in honor of the Boiler Maker eleven and substitutes. Prof. Gilbert A. Young announced to the assemblage at the Lafayette club that Elmer Q. Oliphant, Purdue's great halfback, had only succeeded in gaining a college education by some remarkable self-sacrifice and unusual effort. Oliphant is the son of a miner at Linton, and when he completed his high school course he found himself financially unable to go to college unless he worked his own way through. This in his senior year and he had worked very hard to make both ends meet. This last summer he worked as fireman in a boiler shop in a southern Indiana city, and after he had held the position a few days he surprised his boss by asking him to be allowed to work both day and night shifts, thus drawing two men's pay and doing two ordinary men's work. The boss told the lad that he could not possibly stand the strain. "Let me try," said Oliphant. Thereupon the request was granted. "Then, said Prof. Young, "this young man for forty-six consecutive days worked night and day at hard manual labor, putting in eighteen and nineteen hours out of every twenty-four. Then you see what kind of stuff a Purdue football player is made of." The business men, professors and football players all acknowledged Oliphant's feat by rising to their feet – and applauding. Oliphant's feat explains why he was physically unable to start practice with the football squad until two weeks after the opening day.

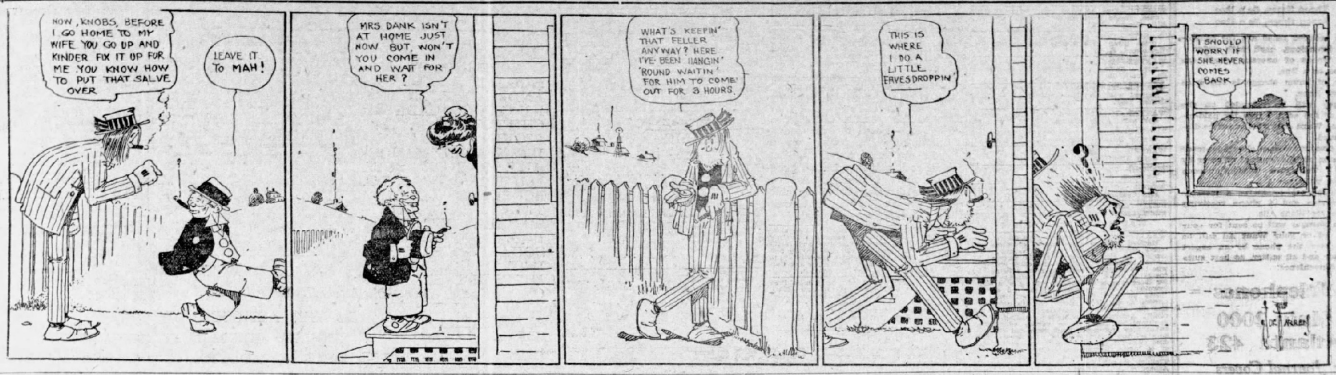
Harvard and Michigan Will Meet on the Gridiron Next Year

AFTER 52 DAYS AS A PRIMITIVE MAN, HANK GETS KNOBS TO SEE MRS. HANK

---BY FARREN



THE SPORTLIGHT

BY GRANTLAND RICE

REMORSE.

Among the dark regrets that rise
As time grows shorter, year by year—
In grim parade before our eyes
A lot of volumes fine appear;
The grave, the gay, the good, the bad—
A motley group just overhead—
They grin, satirically sad,
The books I've bought and never read.

But ah! remorse grows double thick,
When I, as one who often delves
In stuff to read, see spas and spick
Or dusty volumes on the shelves.
For though I read them long ago,
While late the midnight oil I burned,
They grin at me and seem to know —
The bo..owed books I've not returned.

—Exchange

New York has a fine little opportunity to boast of the magnitude of her general advancement as long as she stands for the bushwhackers and thuglstic hold-up of a six-day race each season.

"SWISH-SH!" WENT THE MISSING GRAPNEL.

Just as we thought Chicago and Harvard had steamed alongside some days ago, some bold cabin boy or ship's mate climbed up and snipped the grapnel.

It was probably a bad guess to have ever figured on such a game from the start, for while we have been glad to indulge in worthy praise of the western football system, boosting the conference attitude is something else again. We believe the western conference has done as much harm for friendly, clean sport and advanced methods as anything we know of. It has promoted more bickering and ill feeling and has stirred up more trouble than all other factors together. It has been, in almost every way, a pop-eyed joke. With which few words, we will gladly pass along to something else of greater importance and interest.

However and furthermore, we'll admit the conference had some reason for its existence about seven years ago. But that reason has now passed, and there is no comparison between friendly feelings of sportsmanship that rule among leading colleges in the East and the bickerings that have come in the West. How often do you hear of Princeton protesting a Yale man or Yale having spies out to discover an ineligible kink in one of Harvard's people?

But it takes all sorts of people to compile a world; and the West wants its conference niggardliness; far be it from us to dive beneath the play.

EXPLAINING DELAY.

It is whispered that there is still another reason for Mr. Herrmann's delay in picking a manager. When a supposedly smart ballplayer came up and asked for the job, Garry began to suspect that something had become disarranged in the athlete's conk.

For all that, it would do baseball a package of good to have the Reds rise from their misery and woe. To keep a good burg down for something like thirty years is overcrowding the scheme of things by a kick or two.

AYE.

'Twas ever thus, O bitter feast.
I've seen my fondest dope decay:
The West is west and East is east,
But they won't meet till Judgment Day.

Matty led National league pitchers in his thirteenth year of big league service, thus showing against 13 is a hard luck number for the guys at bat.

The N. L. waited a long time before falling in back of Pop Anson for a lift, but it is to be congratulated for having taken this step. Pop can now go out after his seven-foot putts with a calm and untrammeled soul. May he never miss a one.

A tidea of nothing to grow upset about would be at this juncture to have a hogshead of kale bet that Stallings' Braves finished in the first division. One of the oldtime first division quartet has got to go. If you have any preference, drop us a line.

Tyrus Raymond Cobb announces that he has settled down now to a placid existence—that the good old days of romping on the reservation have passed. Tyrus was deeply disappointed at his work last season when he only batted .350, leading Speaker and Jackson by only 20 points. This slump should stir him up to the necessity of the change which he says will be adopted.

We may have been held a trifle in doubt as to the name of Harvard's new football captain but we are in possession of a faint guess outlining the moniker of the cove which put the series of goals next fall from the 57-yard line. Which is the main answer, after all.

SPLENDID TROPHY OFFERED SOUTHERN LEAGUE PLAYERS

When Walter Johnson was the major-league award for being the most valuable player in the American league, he paved the way for the Southern league to have a trophy to be given on the same plan that is used in the majors. No objection was made at first to giving only one trophy—for the league's most valuable player—on the ground that pitchers would have no chance to win it. Johnson's victory and a bit of retrospection showing that Otto Hess and Harry Ovelskyle would have won such a trophy in the Southern during the past few seasons, combined to show that the pitcher has as much chance as any old player.

Hence it is that Randolph Rose, the well known Chattanoogan, offered at today's meeting of the Southern league a $1,000 trophy to be awarded to the most valuable player in the league, the donation to be made by a commission of eight newspaper men, one from each city in the league. The single 1914 trophy given by Mr. Rose will be as valuable as the three given during the season of 1913. The commission will vote as follows: each member will vote for eight players; his first choice shall be awarded eight points, his second seven points, his third six points and so on. The total votes of the eight sporting editors will be compiled and the player receiving the highest number of points will win the trophy.

The records of the league will have nothing to do with the votes of the commission. They will simply vote for the players who have rendered the best service. In this manner, all the jockeying, partial scoring and the like which was alleged to have taken place last year will be avoided and there will be no chance for anyone to patch the criticism but the newspaper men, who are so used to it that they can stand it.

There was some opposition this morning to the trophy being accepted officially, the magnates remembering the trouble of last fall but it is believed that the objections will be withdrawn at the meeting this afternoon when the full scheme will be explained.

Harvard Plays Michigan Team

Game Between Eastern and Western Teams Arranged for Saturday, October 31, 1914

(By Associated Press.)

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Dec. 15.—Harvard's football team will meet the University of Michigan in the Harvard stadium October 31 next year, according to information received here last night. This falls on the Saturday filled by Cornell this year, but it was not announced what college Michigan would displace on the Harvard schedule. The Crimson management in its recent invitation to Michigan suggested October 24 as a date.

Rule Will Help 'Nooga School

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Dec. 15.—The "one year" rule adopted by the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association will not affect the University of Chattanooga, which was admitted to membership at the same session. Under the resolution only colleges having an enrollment greater than 400 students are affected. This provision relieves the local school of any liability.

It is believed that entrance into the S. I. A. A. will greatly stimulate athletics at Chattanooga and the prospects for 1914 are proclaimed to be the brightest in the history of the institution. But one man will be lost from the football eleven, this being Captain Harbour, while a raft of new material is expected, much of it from the local prep schools.

The Movies Tomorrow

VANDETTE

"Four $100 Bills" is the titled of a Reliance drama with a strong western flavor that will be seen at the Vandette tomorrow. It is one of the best western pictures of the season. The story is that of a young traveling man who goes west with four $100 bills in his purse. He puts up at a western hotel. That night the discovery of the theft is made and the four $100 bills exactly like those the young man has, is searched, the bills are found and he is accused of the robbery. The vigilance committee is about to hang him when his sweetheart intervenes and saves his life. A Vaudeville comedy, entitled "Peggy's Invitation," and a strong Majestic picture, "The God of Tomorrow," will also be shown.

The attention of Vandette patrons is called to the fact that this theater is now handling exclusively in Atlanta the fine Mutual films which are recognized as among the best artistic productions of the present time in the motion picture field.

THE ALAMO NO. 2

"The Wolf of the City," a two-reel Selig drama, will be seen at the Alamo No. 2 tomorrow. A peep at the power of the press in making reputations or unmasking villainies in this day and generation, is vividly portrayed in this latest chapter of life in a great city, where so many seem to live half in the light and half in the shadow. "The Wolf of the City" is a star reporter whose nerves have been shaken before this incident of his stormy career. An interesting Edison film, entitled "Mechanic of West," will also be shown. The Monarch Quartet is still singing, and the high quality of programs at this popular motion picture house is being carefully maintained from day to day.

THE ELITE

"The Vagabond's Conspiracy," a Warner feature in three parts, will be seen at the Elite theater tomorrow. It is a dramatic portrayal of gypsy life of adventure in the underworld. Many scenes in the underworld cafes and the gambling houses of Paris, the world's gayest resort, are shown. The plot is an interesting and exciting tale of an Italian princess kidnaped at her seventh birthday and returned to her parents after fifteen years. It is a picture full of brilliant color and sensational action. It is pathetic, full of interest and imagined for scenic and dramatic effects. The costuming and realism are wonderful. Watch the Elite programs for the most thrilling features shown in Atlanta.

THE SAVOY

Another thrilling feature picture made in Germany and entitled "Tilly, the Money," will be shown at the Savoy theater tomorrow. A Zeppelin airship is destroyed in an explosion and the occupants are thrown into the icy waters of a German lake. The scenes shown in securing these thrilling views. The drive of Bremen into the lake is only one incident in the story, but large as an example of the way an actor will risk his life to make a good picture. The story combines a well knitted plot of highly exciting incidents with many scenes of foreign countries of scenic and historical value. An interesting love story is woven into the plot. The whole acting takes place in and around Berlin and on the beautiful German lake. A Frontier comedy, entitled "When Roaring Gulch Got Suffrage," will also be shown.

ALCAZAR

Maintaining its long recognized high standard, the Alcazar, Peachtree street, opposite Luckie, will present tomorrow a splendid two-reel Vitagraph drama, "The Girl of the Woods." This is one of the strongest film dramas yet brought to Atlanta, and excites and maintains intense interest from beginning to end. With it the Alcazar will show a Crystal comedy reel including "Her Secretaries" and "Percy's New Mama," a scream from start to finish.

SMITH BACK FROM NEW YORK; MANY FAVORABLE REPORTS

Well Pleased With Outfield, McConnell Objects to Coming South—May Get Kohler

Billy Smith returned to Atlanta Sunday from his trip to the National league meeting at New York. On the return trip, Bill also stopped off at Waaniington to hold a big of chatter with Clark Griffith.

During the stay in Gotham, William accumulated quite a bit of interesting gossip. It was announced several days ago that he had acquired the rights and titlements to Imfelder Elwind, formerly of San Antonio, in the Texas league. Pitcher Doescher, of the International, and two semi-pros from Brooklyn. He also says he has signed up Otto Schmidt, an outfielder and brother of Charlie, the Gull receiver.

At the meeting, Bill learned that Amby McConnell has developed a case of that plague common to northern ball players, of being afraid to come south. Amby avers that he has a wife and three little McConnells under his roof tree, and that he fears the deadly germs of malaria common to southern climes. For this reason, would Mr. Smith please not make him play south next year. Bill does not say just what he expects to do. He brings back the report that every mother's son of his acquaintances seen on his trip hand him the information that McConnell would be a valuable acquisition. He says Mac did not get along well with Kelly in the International league, but will admit discounts for the fact that the latter was willing to part with him.

If the Cracker pilot fails to persuade McConnell to come south he will doubtless seek the services of Ben Kohler, who played last year in the Central league. It will be recalled that Ben was a valued member of the Cracker club several years ago. At that time he played the outfield. Since then he has developed into a grand infielder. Also he still carries his old speed on the paths and in covering territory in the field. Kohler hit better than .300 last season.

During his stay in the big city Manager Smith had the pleasure of talking to a host of his friends, among whom was Bisland. He says Bizzy is looking great, has picked up in weight, and is looking fit to jump in and play a game any old time. Bizzy scorned the idea that he would jump to the Federals, as was reported that he might do, along with several other members of the Browns.

Manager Smith also saw First Baseman Bibig, whose home is in Brooklyn. He reports that Joe Agler's successor is a clean-cut looking young chap, who looks like a real ball player. Comment on his ability was most encouraging, although, it is said, he is very quiet.

In the course of his remarks, the manager took occasion to throw a few bouquets at Tommy Long. "By the way, know," he remarked, "I had an offer from no less than five big league managers to purchase Tommy. The big fellows are certainly sweet on Tommy's work last year. Under the circumstances, however, I couldn't see any of them. Tom ought to be a great player next year, and since he is still very young, I believe another year here will put him in great shape for a trip to the big leagues. When he corrects a few faults he is going up to stick."

Referring to his outfield Bill continued: "I think we have picked up a very valuable man in Flanagan also. Wallie Smith writes me that he played with this boy at Vancouver a few seasons back, and that all he needed then was a little seasoning. He is fast, a good fielder, and can swing on the ball, looks like we ought to be pretty well dressed in the outfield."

Griff Gets Adrian Player

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Paul Smith, an outfielder of the Adrian, Mich., club, has been obtained by Manager Griffith and will be given a trial with the National during their stay at Charlottesville in March.

Armstrong Will Coach Yale Crew

NEW HAVEN, Conn. Dec. 15.—Captain T. R. Deneger, of the Yale crew, announced last night that Richard Armstrong, Yale, '95, has been appointed head coach of the Yale crews. Guy Nickalls, of England, coach of the Leander crew, and Coach Ghunnini, of the New York Athletic club, have been asked to assist Armstrong and it is probable they will accept. Both will arrive here this afternoon and met the Yale rowing squad.

Although Yale rowing officials would not talk for publication last night, it is generally agreed that the appointment of Mr. Armstrong and head coach means the retention of the Yale graduate system of coaching. It is understood he will be paid a salary.

Armstrong rowed on the winning varsity crews in 1894 and 1895, being captain the latter year. As "Bob" Cook was then the Yale coach, it is believed Armstrong will abandon the so-called English stroke and reintroduce the "Cook stroke," or a variation of it.

Last year the Yale crews were coached by Harcourt Gold and G. W. Kirby, prominent English oarsmen and British methods were adopted. Yale's defeat by Harvard was decisive and undergraduates and graduates demanded the English stroke. It was decided to give the English methods another trial. Soon afterward the Yale rowed Princeton a short race and was defeated.

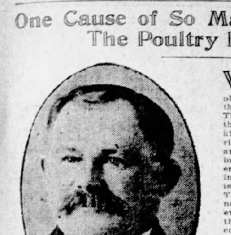
POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

One Cause of So Many Failures in The Poultry Business



WE often hear of many people who undertake the poultry business that make a complete failure of it, or not nearly as much as they expected to out of the venture. There are many various reasons for this. The business like every other kind of industry requires the experience and capital to make any great amount of money out of it. There is no business on earth that will pay enough for a person to make a living out of unless sufficient capital is invested to warrant its doing so. The poultry business of course is not excepted in this respect. However, hundreds of people think that they can start in this business and coin money off of practically nothing, but it simply cannot be done. On the other hand there is no line of investment that a person can get so large a per cent of money out of when properly handled as poultry, especially if a person will not undertake it too large at first and will do these right. Many people who undertake to enter the poultry business will go to work at first without any knowledge of the business and buy a lot of fowls to place in these buildings and will in nine cases out of ten buy something they think cheap at 1 to 2 per head and in the end will not make money out of themselves and will put them off on some inexperienced person. This is the case in nine cases out of ten, and to start with this is the first road to failure.

The proper thing to do for anyone beginning this business right is to visit a number of different breeders, and buy only such birds as are in fine condition, fully matured, and already laying or something that is just coming into laying mind them. It is far better to buy one-third or one-fourth the number of birds of this kind and get one-half the money back that you have to pay for them than it is to buy birds that are in poor flesh, have not finished molting and you will have to feed and nurse two or three months before you get them to laying. If you can find a person who is willing to sell the pick of their flock that are already laying it is far cheaper in the end for you to buy such hens even at $5 each rather than to have as a gift a lot of birds that are not laying. You can select yourself even with a little experience females that are laying and in good condition, and they will soon produce for you enough eggs to more than pay their cost or the difference between them and hens that have not begun laying yet. If you stop to think a hen that is already laying will in two months if properly fed produce at least four dozen eggs and the price of these eggs nowadays will pay for an ordinary hen, and if you will stop to figure one of this kind that is making money and on that has to be put in shape to do so you can readily see why you can afford to pay a good price for something that is already at work.

The same thing applies to pigeons. A pair of grown pigeons that are mated and working are worth four times as much as a pair of squabs or a pair that you do not know positively are mated. And, if people in entering the poultry business would only buy their foundation stock of this kind as above stated and birds that will go right to work they can begin making money the day they put the birds in their houses, and it is far better for you to use only a few of just such birds as you can accomplish this with rather than to take a big lot of birds as a gift or at a low price that would soon eat their heads off and not begin to bring in any revenue. And in the section of country cost money and a hen will soon eat her head off and it is far better to keep only those that are producing eggs and kill or sell the others rather than keep them in hopes of their doing better later on, as a rule, when a hen ceases to be profitable, the best thing to do is to get rid of her. Sell her to eat and put the difference in a nice young pullet that will soon go to producing for you. Never undertake to keep more fowls than you can well care for without being crowded, and such as will continue to make money for you. Most breeders do not like to sell this kind, but they will if you offer them enough money to let you have the pick of their flock. It is by far cheaper to pay the difference and get this kind rather than to have any others as a gift.

If you will take these things into consideration and start in this way you can not help but find poultry keeping profitable and pleasant, and instead of becoming disgusted and quitting the business you will soon wish to increase your output just so long as you find the hens are making you money. No man living is willing to continue to lose money, and he who loses day after day regardless of how much money he has or how much he likes to work. If people would take these things into consideration, be careful in starting, you can find poultry keeping profitable, and not only pleasant, but profitable. The day and time has come when nearly every family is being forced to keep a few fowls for their own use, and by being careful in selecting your foundation stock as instructed you can not help but make money from your venture, and be on the safe side. But, above all things, never go into too big to start with, but learn as you go and increase your business as you learn. By doing so we would have ten people producing poultry and eggs to where there is one today. Yours very truly,

Grigsby-Hunt

The Real Estate Field

United Cigar Stores Co. Leases Entire Ground Floor and Basement of the Grant Corner at Peachtree Street and Auburn Avenue, and Will Make Extensive Alterations – Income That Will Be Subject to the Income Tax

A big lease on Peachtree street was the feature of real estate announcements on Monday.

The United Cigar Stores company, which holds leases on several downtown corners, has leased from the Grant Investment company, of which Bryan M. Grant is head, the southwest corner of Peachtree street and Auburn avenue. The term of the lease is five years, but the consideration was not named.

The lessee already occupied forty feet depth of the ground floor, but the new lease takes the entire ground floor, fronting 27 feet on Peachtree street and extending back 125 feet on Auburn avenue, and the basement. This includes 13 stores on Auburn avenue.

The lessee will take possession on January 1 and will establish their store immediately on the corner. Extensive alterations will then be made and there will be another store facing Peachtree street and several on Auburn avenue, which will be available to other tenants.

This was the corner which the present owners paid the sum of $8,200 a front foot for cash. It would be interesting to know exactly what figure the lessee will give for the ground floor and basement space.

INCOME TAX.

Real estate agents, loan agents and others handling property are directly interested in the provisions of the income tax, since the government will rely on these agents, among others, for the source of their information in levying and collecting the tax.

The tax is so complicated that few people know exactly what constitutes an income subject to it. S. B. Turman, who handles a good many accounts of various kinds, and has studied the law, gives the following data:

The tax is 1 per cent on gross income of $3,000 and over of unmarried, and $4,000 and over of married men. The income, however, is subject to the following deductions, that is, the following expenses are not subject to the tax:

Losses sustained in business, as, for instance, by fire when no insurance is carried; bad debts; a reasonable allowance for depreciation, as applied to machinery, etc., and more highly to certain depreciation of realty, although the latter point isn't clear; all taxes, and interest in national and state bonds.

A person's principal, of course, is not included, nor additions to his property such as inheritances.

All profits, however, made on real estate are taxable, as well as interest. This would apply where a person in an exchange of property made a parcel clear. Profit on purchase money notes is also included except the unearned interest.

Personal and living expenses, however, cannot be deducted from the income, neither can street or sidewalk improvements be deducted, although certain repairs probably could be.

In the matter of property, renting and sales commissions and the like are deducted.

It will be seen from this that the average income is subject to a good many deductions before it can become a net income, and Mr. Turman points out that the law will serve a useful purpose in making people figure out exactly what they do earn exclusive of outlays.

He thinks that once the average person makes this calculation he will be tempted to practice economy.

With the deductions that the law allows, a person's gross income would have to be considerably in excess of $3,000 and $4,000 to make it subject to the income tax.

ATTORNEYS MAKE FINAL FIGHT FOR FRANK'S LIFE

He said the defense purposed showing that the verdict of guilty against Leo M. Frank was unsupported by evidence; that the negro Conley made various false statements and that his evidence was in the main unsupported and therefore should not have been allowed to figure in the trial. Referring to the brief submitted to the supreme court, and to the voluminous brief of evidence, Mr. Arnold described the National Pencil factory, the discovery of Mary Phagan's body, the arrival of the police, the scene of the crime. He called attention to the fact that Mary Phagan's metal hair purse and her hair ribbon never had been found.

Mr. Arnold stated that the time element is a very important factor in the case. Discussing it, he referred to the evidence, pointing out that George Epps, the newsboy who swore he accompanied Mary Phagan to town on the day of her death, testified that their car arrived at Marietta and Forsyth streets at 12:07 or 12:07 1-2 o'clock. Other witnesses testified that the walk from that point to the pencil factory consumed 3 to 3 1-2 minutes. Mary Phagan couldn't possibly have been in the factory therefore at 12:05, as alleged by the state, said he. She couldn't have gotten there before 12:10 or 12:12.

FRANK'S NERVOUSNESS.

The state made much capital of the fact that Frank was nervous next morning after he had been told by the officers of the tragedy. Frank admitted he was nervous. The fact that a tragedy had occurred in the pencil factory, and the sight of its victim at the undertaker's, were enough to make him nervous, said Mr. Arnold.

Mr. Arnold detailed Frank's movements on the Saturday preceding the tragedy. He told of the lodge meeting testified she called at the factory at 12:05, found no one in the office and waited till 12:10, when she left. Frank himself testified Mary Phagan was there at some time between 12:12 and 12:17, and that never has been disputed successfully, said Mr. Arnold. It is possible Frank was out of his office while Jeanteen Stover was there. Frank had every attempt to deny this possibility, though he did not remember it. Miss Hall called at 12:02. At 12:20 to 12:22 Gantt came. At 12:30 Mrs. White came in. She testified Frank appeared nervous when she appeared. They stated laid great stress on that, said Mr. Arnold. The state had magnified and twisted and distorted innocent things to make them appear suspicious, said he.

At 12:50 Frank went upstairs and told the workers there he was going to lunch and would lock the doors. The state made a suspicious circumstance of that, said he, yet none of the workers thought anything of it, the day being a holiday and the doors not being guarded.

"We were surprised many times during the trial by changes in the testimony of witnesses," said Mr. Arnold. "They would come in with the detectives and swear something else than we had heard before. Then we would know. There were some unaccountable changes in the evidence."

Mrs. White testified, said he, that she saw a negro near the exit when she left the factory. Wade Campbell, her brother-in-law, testified that she had told him she saw the negro there when she entered the place.

A witness saw Frank at Whitehall and Alabama streets at 1:15, said he, and others near his home saw him get off the car a few minutes later. He was back at the factory at 10 minutes to 2 o'clock.

STATE HANGS ON CONLEY.

The state's case was built entirely on Conley's evidence, said he. Conley swore that Frank called him at 4 minutes to 1 o'clock, and that from then till 1:30 o'clock they were busy disposing of the body.

In view of the testimony of all these other witnesses, it is shown conclusively that it was impossible for Frank to have been there at the time Conley says," argued Mr. Arnold.

He said the state made a suspicious circumstance of Frank's letter to his uncle.

"They are relying on circumstance," said Mr. Arnold. The first, said he, is that Frank was the last person to see Mary Phagan alive. They got that from Frank's own statement to the detectives.

POOR BLOOD

Cause of Disease – Druggist Tells of Best Remedy for It

Pure healthy blood is a most essential factor to good health.

Poor, thin, devitalized blood may be caused by a weakness of the digestive organs, an accumulation of waste matter in the system, an inactive liver or lack of exercises.

Whatever the cause the best remedy we know is our delicious cod liver and iron tonic, Vinol. It will purify and enrich the blood, tone up the digestive organs, give you a hearty appetite and create strength.

A case has just come to our attention from Gulfport, Miss. Mrs. Armelide Saucier says: "For months I was in a rundown condition and my blood was very poor. I had taken several medicines prescribed by physicians, but they seemed to do me no good. Vinol was recommended and from the first bottle I noticed an improvement. I continued its use and now feel as strong and well as ever."

If you have the slightest indication of poor blood take Vinol. If it fails to help you we will give back your money. Elkin's Drug Co., Atlanta, Ga.

P. S. Eczema Sufferers! We guarantee our new skin remedy, Saxo. (Advt.)

"But it does not follow that he committed the crime," said Mr. Arnold.

The next circumstance on which the state relied, said he, was that Frank dismissed the watchman Lee at 4 o'clock, telling him to come back at 6 o'clock.

"This is trivial, and it couldn't mean anything even from their own view, because Conley said the body had been hid at 1:30," said Mr. Arnold. "The state argued that Frank's nervousness, when he had good cause to be nervous, indicated his guilt; and that his coolness at the trial showed him to be a hardened criminal.

"When it came to the awful ordeal of the trial, Frank stood it like the members of his race have endured persecution from time immemorial," said Mr. Arnold.

FRANK NOT EMPLOYER.

The state next made capital of the fact that Frank employed counsel. Frank did not employ it, said Arnold. His friends were uneasy that something might be done to prejudice him, and so Sig Montag called Herbert Haas by telephone and told him to go to police headquarters. "Frank had nothing to do with it," said Mr. Arnold.

Mr. Arnold said the state twisted into a suspicious circumstance the innocent fact that Mrs. Frank did not call on her husband during the week so that he remained in police station, implying that she had some intuition of his guilt. Frank himself explained that, said Mr. Arnold, by saying that he had asked his wife not to call there, where the surroundings and the atmosphere were not suited to her.

The state attempted to prove that Frank did not look at the face of the corpse, and made great stress of that in its argument, said Mr. Arnold. Yet there was not a word of truth in the assertion. There was nothing in the evidence to show that Frank did not look at the corpse's face, said he.

The state's next claim was that Frank tried to mislead the officers about the time slip in the clock. Frank did later find some errors in the slip when he had more leisure to examine it, he said.

Frank's good character was certified by 103 unimpeachable witnesses, said he. The state brought in some witnesses from the factory whom it asked about Frank's character as to lasciviousness, and some of them answered it was bad, said Mr. Arnold.

"These witnesses had come through the hands of the same detectives who produced the Minola McKnight testimony," said Mr. Arnold. "We didn't cross examine them. Of course we didn't."

Mr. Arnold took up Conley's evidence by point.

Mr. Arnold concluded his argument for Frank at 11:40 a. m., discounting and minimizing the importance to be attached to the state's contention that Frank knew Mary Phagan, and that Frank's visit to the factory dressing room was of any consequence as bearing on the case. He asserted that the defendant was within his rights as superintendent of the factory in visiting the dressing room with the forewoman of the factory to confer with her in private.

ATTACKS STATE WITNESSES.

The testimony of Dalton and of the boy Cannon was analyzed by Arnold. He declared that Dalton was the state's "next best witness," and that Dalton was a "gentleman with a larceny and changing record." He called attention to the fact that the Cameron boy, who testified he had seen Frank talking to the Phagan girl could not tell when he was employed at the factory nor who employed him.

The attorney impressed the fact that the state, in building its chain of circumstances, had resorted to a contention that street cars some time run ahead of their schedule.

The evidence of spots found in the metal room, Arnold asserted, did not tend to prove the guilt of Frank, even though splotches were of human blood. He emphasized, however, that an analysis of these splotches had failed to establish positively that they were made by human blood, and declared that, if anything, they tended to indicate that Conley was guilty of the crime. He declared the testimony of Dr. H. F. Harris concerning the stomach of Mary Phagan, by which the state sought to fix the hour of the crime, was corroborative of the contention that Conley was the guilty man.

Mr. Arnold dwelt with emphasis on the court room demonstrations.

"I don't believe, your honors, that such a record of demonstrations at a trial has ever been certified by a lower court to an appellate court," said Mr. Arnold. "The mob was all around. We were hemmed in. The mob was howling and scowling. The jury was afraid for their very lives. The record shows that counsel for the defense requested that the court room be cleared at the outset of the trial, because of possible suggestive and vulgar testimony. The court refused to do so.

"Counsel for the defense asked that the court rule out testimony of perversion, and when the court ruled against us, there was a noisy demonstration. The jury was within twenty feet and heard the demonstration. The court refused to grant our motion for a new trial then, as it did later."

Mr. Arnold continued to recount various other demonstrations in and out of the court room. He described the scenes on the last day of the trial. He declared that the result—the verdict—was known before the jury could be polled.

"The jury should have been polled under conditions favorable to a fair and unintimidated verdict," Arnold declared.

ASSAILS SOLICITOR.

Next, the defendant's counsel attacked what he declared was solicitor's unwarranted and illegal argument to the jury in citing facts neither in the record nor evidence. Arnold read an opinion written and delivered by the late Supreme Court Justice Lumpkin, in which he scored a solicitor general for going outside the evidence in his argument to the jury.

Particularizing in more detail, Arnold declared that the solicitor did the defense an incalculable injury when he argued to the jury that the failure of the defense to cross-examine the character witnesses of the state was an admission of Frank's depravity.

"Your honors," said Arnold, "the brief of the solicitor general shows that this conviction is the result of innuendo and trumped-up evidence. The solicitor actually argued—and it is here in the record—that the defense used general practitioners of medicine as witnesses, and that the use of these physicians instilled the belief that some of them were the family doctors of members of the jury; this contention placed us in the attitude of attempting a trick on the jury. There was no evidence to justify the assumption or assertion on the solicitor's part."

Arnold declared that the trial Judge Roan—gave the solicitor free rein in his argument to the jury, and that he impressed upon the jury many incidents in the Durrant, Wilde, Beatty and Richeson cases.

Solicitor General Dorsey was in the midst of his argument of the Frank case when the supreme court recessed for

HIS FRIEND HAD BRIGHT'S DISEASE

A. B. Edwards, an engineer of Hamlet, N. C., wrote a couple of years ago giving the name of a friend who had Bright's disease but no means. Said his own wife was seriously afflicted and he would donate the treatment for this unfortunate. We sent him the remedy with our compliments. We had forgotten the matter till the following was received:

"Hamlet, N. C., Feb. 16th, 1913.

John J. Fulton Co.:

Dear Sirs—I have been waiting to see how the patients were going to hold out after they had stopped using the Compound. As I think two years long enough, am delighted to tell you that the case of Bright's has not returned. My wife, pronounced hopeless two years ago, is well. Mrs. Spencer, who was not expected to live, recovered and the case I requested the ten bottles for yielded and the patient is well. He was given up to die. . . I will tell people of it as long as I live. Yours truly,

A. B. EDWARDS."

If you have Bright's disease do you not owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Renal Compound before giving up? It can be had at Edmondson Drug Co., Broad street and Mr. Connor Building, Atlanta, Ga.

lunch at 1o'clock Monday afternoon. He had opened at 11:40 o'clock, and his first statement to the court was challenged by Mr. Arnold, of counsel for Frank.

"Mr. Arnold's argument," declared the solicitor, "abounds in misquotations, and he doesn't stop there, but in their brief the defense resorted to glaring misstatements of fact, and your honors must go to the trial record for the truth."

Attorney Arnold was on his feet in an instant with the declaration that the solicitor was possessed of the defense's brief for ten days and had uttered no word of protest or criticism during this time.

Ignoring the statement of Arnold, Lorsey declared that the state would ask permission of the court to file a supplemental brief at a later date, calling attention to the inaccuracies and misstatements in the brief of the defense.

Passing on, Solicitor Dorsey synopsized the life of the defendant, declaring that Frank has a highly nervous temperament and that, judged by his statement to the jury, is a man of intellect. He asserted that his character in relation to women had been shown to be bad, and that this trait lies at the bottom of the crime of which Frank was convicted.

FRANK WITNESSES FRIENDS.

The character witnesses for the defense, Dorsey asserted, were the business associates, personal friends and employes of the factory of which Frank was superintendent, while the character witnesses put on the stand by the prosecution were employes and former employes of the factory.

"The factory," exclaimed Dorsey, "The factory—that is, the place where this crime was committed, where Frank's character was manifested."

The solicitor painted a dark background of character for Frank, and argued that the testimony gave him a bad record for perversion.

Solicitor Dorsey contended that the state had established the fact that Mary Phagan arrived at the pencil factory between 12:02 and 12:07 o'clock. He said it had showed by Dr. Harris that the cabbage the girl had eaten for dinner had not been in her stomach more than thirty minutes when the functions of digestion was stopped. The testimony that the girl had suffered some kind of external violence before death.

"Leo Frank never gave Mary Phagan a pay envelope to her when she asked for it," declared Mr. Dorsey. He was preparing to take it out of the safe when Mrs. White called and surprised him."

Attention was called by the solicitor to the fact that at the inquest Frank had testified that he left the factory on the day of the tragedy to go to lunch about 1:10 o'clock, but that in his statement at the trial he had placed the time he left the factory before 1 o'clock.

"MISS KERN MISTAKEN."

Discussing the evidence of Miss Kern, who testified she saw Frank at the corner of Alabama and Whitehall streets between 1 and 1:10 o'clock, Mr. Dorsey declared the young lady barely knew Frank by sight and that it was entirely probable that she was in error as to the time she saw him.

"Albert McKnight, the negro husband of Minola McKnight, cook at the Selig home, where Frank lived," said the solicitor, "testified that Frank did not reach home until 1:20; that he did not eat with any of the other members of the family, and within about ten minutes after his arrival at home he had started on his way back to the factory."

"The defense charges me with having intimidated Minola McKnight out of a confession. This isn't true. If I couldn't do anything to help ferret out the crime I didn't intend to throw any obstacles in the way of the city detectives. They are so obsessed with the idea that I have done something wrong in this case that they set down in bold print in their brief of argument the statement that Minola McKnight's second affidavit was taken in my office. This is not true. It was taken by the detectives at police headquarters."

VOCATIONAL EDUCATION BILL READY IN HOUSE

Representative Hughes Plans to Call Up Measure for Action Monday

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WASHINGTON, Dec. 15.—Republican Dudley Hughes expects to call up today the resolution introduced by himself in the house and by Senator Hoke Smith in the senate, providing for the appointment of a commission of nine on vocational education.

Senator Smith introduced the resolution in the senate some time ago, and it was passed, and Mr. Hughes has been watching it closely in the house, and expects to secure its passage. The commission will make investigations as to different phases of vocational education.

FOUR DIE AS TUNNEL COLLAPSES ON TRAIN

CHEMNITZ, Germany, Dec. 15.—Four persons were killed and thirty-four hurt today by the crushing of a passenger train in a tunnel which collapsed during a slight earthquake.

The train was bound from Roesswein to Chemnitz. The tunnel which collapsed pierces the Harras cliffs, eight miles from here. The locomotive and six cars were buried beneath huge rocks. A hurricane, accompanied by snow, hindered the work of the rescuers. The earthquake shock was plainly felt here.

BUTTS COTTON CROP SHOWS BIG INCREASE

JACKSON, Ga., Dec. 15.—The cotton crop in Butts county up to December 1 was 13,970 bales, as against 10,756 bales last year. Last year's total crop was 15,849 bales and the crop this year will be a thousand bales or more ahead of that figure.

PLAN TO STAGE PAGEANT ON SITE OF OLD PANAMA

Theater Managers Will Invade Central America With Opening of Canal

NEW YORK, Dec. 15.—Several theatrical managers are planning an invasion of Central America next spring, it is announced here, in connection with the opening of the Panama canal. One of the most pretentious of the enterprises announced is the staging of an elaborate pageant on the site of the city of old Panama, about seven miles from the present city.

The chief idea will be to present a living picture of the history of Panama from the discovery of the country up to the time of the opening of the canal. To this end plans call for several hundred actors and actresses from this country and the enlistment of a small army of natives to fill in minor roles.

WOULD BRING FATHERS CLOSER TO THEIR SONS

Movement to Accomplish This Result Put Under Way in Cleveland, O.

CLEVELAND, Dec. 15.—A "father and son" movement is to be inaugurated here soon. The object is to promote a closer understanding and a spirit of comradeship between fathers and their sons.

Robert E. Lewis, secretary of the Cleveland Young Men's Christian association, will issue a call this week for a meeting at which plans for the movement will be arranged. He will have the assistance of Mayor Newton D. Baker and other leading citizens.

The aims of the movement are:

To help fathers and sons to understand each other.

To interest fathers in the outside influences their sons meet so they can help them to avoid evils.

To break down the barriers that often exist between fathers and sons.

To make fathers understand that they must go outside the home to best bring their ideas to bear on their boys' minds.
