BURNS EXPECTED IN ATLANTA TUESDAY TO TAKE UP FRANK CASE

Detective Finishes His Lecture Tour in St. Augustine Monday Night and Will Then Hasten Here

COURT TO RESENTENCE FRANK DURING WEEK

His Attorneys Will Ask That Life Term Be Given Defendant Instead of Sentence of Death

William J. Burns, who has achieved an international reputation as a detective, is expected to arrive in Atlanta Tuesday to commence an investigation of the Frank case. Burns finishes his lecture tour Monday night, when he will deliver an address in St. Augustine, Fla., and he will then start for this city.

Burns has been retained in the case by friends of Leo M. Frank, whose names he refuses to divulge. When he agreed to take up the case Burns declared he would simply make an effort to develop any evidence which might have been overlooked by the authorities, and that he will divulge any evidence he finds regardless of whether it tends to clear Frank or to weave the chain more closely about the convicted man.

If the remittitur in the Frank case from the supreme court is received in the superior court within the next two days, Frank will be arraigned before Judge Ben H. Hill and resentenced within the week.

Attorneys for Frank will make an effort to have Judge Ben H. Hill impose a life sentence in lieu of the death penalty, but if this effort is futile, Burns will have less than 60 days in which to secure evidence, which might be of assistance to Frank. The defense's extraordinary motion for a new trial will probably be delayed as long as possible, that the detective may have a chance to develop new evidence.

Regardless of the failure or success, however, of Burns' work, an extraordinary motion is certain, and it will be based on Dr. H. F. Harris' admission that his microscopic examination showed the hair found on the lathe in the pencil factory not to be Mary Phagan's, and on the repudiation of his testimony by Albert McKnight, a negro witness for the state.

Rumors that other state's witnesses have repudiated their testimony made at the trial are persistent, but Frank's attorneys, Reuben R. Arnold and Luther Z. Rosser, remain silent on the point.

Although the 'embargo' has been lifted and reporters now have free access to Frank's cell in the tower, the convicted man had nothing to say Monday.

Frank declined to discuss the statement of little Helen Ferguson that the Saturday before the murder of Mary Phagan that the negro Conley, Frank's accuser, had made advances to her.

The effort of the defense to secure a life sentence for the convicted man from Judge Hill is certain to be opposed by Solicitor Dorsey, who will depend on the Baughn case in his argument. The supreme court held in that case that the resentencing of a defendant in a capital case is simply the fixing of a new date for an execution, and that the original penalty cannot be changed after it has once been imposed.

The Journal has received a letter from Allan Pinkerton, of the agency, which bears his name, stating that his visit to Atlanta last week had nothing to do with the Frank case. The Journal's report was that William Pinkerton was in the city and this was erroneous, as William Pinkerton is in California, and the report grew out of the visit of Allan Pinkerton.

At the time of the visit of Allan Pinkerton, Harry Scott, assistant superintendent of the Atlanta agency and the man who worked the Phagan case, was out of the city.

WAYCROSS POLICE HOLD TWO ON MURDER CHARGE

Death of Dennis Dixon Charged to C. G. Powell and Mose Steedley

WAYCROSS, Ga., March 2.—C. G. Powell and Moss Steedley, of Bristol, are held by the police in connection with the killing early yesterday of Dennis Dixon, of Patterson. Dixon's body was found by officers, a bullet through the heart. Powell was arrested a block away, with a pistol in his possession. Powell and Dixon came into Waycross on the same train last night and are said to have quarrelled on the train. It is said that Powell threatened Dixon's life and remarked that he would kill him later.

Dixon was 25 years old and unmarried. His body was taken to Patterson last night.

The coroner's jury today rendered a verdict charging Powell with the murder and Steedley with being an accomplice.

"I am not guilty. I don't care what the officers think because I had nothing to do with the killing," is all Powell would say today, regarding the murder.

Steedley says he knows nothing of the murder and will demand an immediate trial.

POLICEMAN SAID NEGRO WAS WEARING HIS SUIT

McKinley Crosby, a negro, was indicted by the Fulton county grand jury on Monday on a burglary charge on the testimony of Patrolman Cochran who declared that the negro was wearing one of his suits when arrested.

Crosby was arrested in a Decatur street pawn shop, while trying to dispose of goods stolen from another residence.

When the negro was brought to headquarters Officer Cochran recognized a suit of his own clothes, which had been stolen a few days ago, when his residence at 405 East Fair street was burglarized.

Pupils March From Burning School to Strains of "Dixie"

Fire Drill Worked to Perfection, and Children Helped Fight Flames

While fire burned briskly on two floors of the Peeples Street school in West End Monday morning, eight classes of boys and girls marched out quietly by the regulation school fire drill, and several eighth grade boys and the negro janitor succeeded in putting out the flames with the fire extinguisher before the fire department arrived on the scene.

The fire caught in a cloakroom flue on the first floor. It was caused directly by the intense cold, as the janitor had stoked the furnace to the breaking point in order to protect the pupils from the high wind that snarled at the eaves of the school house.

When one of the children discovered it the flames had made fair headway already. The flue in the cloakroom is separated from the wall by a zinc facing, but this had become so hot that the wood easily caught fire.

The alarm was given and the school bell tolled out its warning from the roof. As composed as if it were an every day drill, despite the fact that they could smell the smoke as it curled through the corridors and occasionally view a wicked tongue of flame licking upward along the wall, the children of each grade formed in line and marched out to the tune of "Dixie," played by one of their number on the piano.

Meanwhile the janitor and several of the larger boys in the eighth grade tore the fire extinguisher from the wall and began a steady play on the flames that were creeping up through the ceiling to the second floor.

The alarm was turned in, but when the fire engines arrived on the scene the boys had coped with the flames successfully. The entire school, drawn up in line outside the building in the cold wind that swept across from the west, had watched the course o fthe flames with excited attention, but as quietly as if it was part of the regular school curriculum.

As the engines clanged up to the curbing they were greeted with a stifled cheer, but save for the shouts, it was all over. The children marched back as quietly as they had come out.

"It was a remarkable exhibition," said Superintendent W. M. Slaton. "The children marched out under the direction of Miss Ruby Jones, who is one of our best principals. The whole affair shows to me two things: the great success of the fire drill in our public schools and the need of more fire extinguishers and safer as well as better heating facilities."

CHURCH SPIRES FALL BEFORE MARCH WIND

Baltimore Swept by Gale-Fires Break Out and Destroy Many Places

(By Associated Press.)

BALTIMORE, March 2.—The terrific windstorm which swept over this city and vicinity last night continued early today, but with slowly diminishing strength. Reports of property damage came from all quarters.

The steeple of the Mount Calvary Protestant Episcopal church, Madison and Eutaw streets, was torn away and hurled into Eutaw street. Windows in the houses on Hamilton Terrace, on the opposite side of Eutaw street, were broken, and the roof of the rectory, adjoining the church, was torn off. Roofs and signs were blown down all over the city, and thousands of panes of glass were broken.

During the height of the storm the Lutheran Church of the Reformation, at Lanvale and Caroline streets, caught fire and was destroyed. The church stood in the center of a thickly populated section, and many residents, fearing a spread of the flames, fled to the storm-swept streets in scant clothing.

One thousand barrels of whisky were destroyed when two big warehouses of the Canton Distillery company, at Canton, a suburb, were burned today.

The loss, based upon the amount of whiskey stored in the two warehouses, was estimated at $200,000.

FOUR PERSONS DEAD AS RESULT OF FIRE

Two Others Are Seriously Injured When Flames Destroy Three Cottages

(By Associated Press.)

SHREVEPORT, La., March 2.—The death of Lillian Bass, aged four, early today, brought the death list in last night's fire up to four. Two others were seriously injured. One of these, Ernest Bates, aged 18, carried three children from the dwelling occupied jointly by the families of Luke Bass and John D. Mulhearn.

The dead, in addition to Lillian Bates, included Edward Bass, aged two, and Fred and Jessie Mulhearn, aged 5 and 3, respectively.

Three cottages were destroyed, causing a loss estimated at $10,000.

BOYS' HOME IS BURNED AT LOCUST GROVE INSTITUTE

LOCUST GROVE, Ga., March 2.—The wooden dormitory at the Locust Grove institute, known as the Boys' Home, was burned this morning at 3 o'clock. No one was injured. There will be no interruption of school work, as Locust Grove institute still has ample dormitory accommodations for all pupils. The loss partially covered by insurance. Plans already are on foot for the erection of a new brick building.

BRYAN SIGNS PEACE TREATY WIT PARAGUAY

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Secretary Bryan and Minister Velazquez from Paraguay today signed the fourteenth of Mr. Bryan's peace treaties. The convention provides that all questions arising between the two countries which cannot be settled by diplomacy shall be submitted to an international commission for investigation for at least one year during which hostilities shall not be begun.

VILLA LOYAL TO CHIEF; COMMISSION CANNOT VIEW BENTON'S BODY

Wilson, However, Takes It for Granted That Inspection Party Will Start for Mexico in a Few Days

GENERAL HUERTA MAY EVENTUALLY RETIRE

Can Accomplish More by Time Says President Than by Giving Lives of Sons, Sweethearts and Brothers to War

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 2.—That General Villa has acknowledged the authority of General Carranza as his chief and will not permit the American commission to examine the body of William S. Benton until the Washington government has consulted General Carranza, was the explanation made by President Wilson today of the latest phase of the Mexican situation.

The president told callers that the desire of the commissioners to get further instructions from Washington as well as orders from General Villa himself has necessitated a postponement, but Mr. Wilson takes it for granted that the commissioners will start in a few days.

Asked whether, in view of the new developments, a change of policy was intended by the United States immediately, the president pointed out that a country of the size and power of the United States could afford to wait just as long as it pleased; that nobody doubted its power and nobody doubted that General Huerta was eventually to retire.

GO SLOW, SAYS WILSON.

The president made it clear that there need be no hesitation in forming the judgment that what the United States wished to accomplish in Mexico would be accomplished, but that those people who were in haste to have things done were forgetting that they would have to do them themselves, that they would have to contribute brothers and sons and sweethearts if they wanted something done right away. If they were willing to wait, the president indicated such a step might not be necessary.

The president was referring, it was presumed, to speeches in congress demanding radical action of some kind or armed intervention, which he seemed to deplore.

CARRANZA'S PRESTIGE.

General Carranza's prestige in the eyes of the American government and the future of the constitutionalist movement so far as the United States is concerned, depended to a large extent today upon the recognition or repudiation by the constitutionalist chief of the principle that the United States is the virtual guardian of the interests of all foreigners in Mexico.

A test of General Carranza's attitude is involved in connection with the arrangements which the American government is seeking to make for the examination of Benton's body at Chihuahua. The United States desires that British and American representatives shall view the corpse in company with physicians. General Villa has acceded to the request. On the other hand, General Carranza has pointed out to the state department that he, too, must be consulted about foreign affairs. The Washington government now is consulting General Carranza. If the latter permits the expedition to go to Chihuahua, he will be acquiescing in the right of the United States to make inquiry about the welfare of British subjects. A flat refusal of the America government's request for the examination, it is admitted, would render the situation most acute.

INTERNATIONAL LAW.

The White House view is that strictly speaking, there is no right of international law by which the United States could insist on acting for Great Britain, although the American government has been asked by the powers to use its good offices for the protection of foreigners. If, however, England should not ask the United States to pursue the matter into further complications with Carranza, the American government would not feel obliged to go beyond an investigation of the facts through its own consular representatives.

The next step, it would appear from the official viewpoint here, is some intimation from Great Britain as to how far she expects the United States to push the Benton case. On the other hand, there is every reason to believe that Carranza will be expected, in the near future, to give the American government further assurances that all foreigners, regardless of whether their governments have recognized Huerta or not, will be safe in northern Mexico.

BRYAN TO TALK PRIVATE.

Secretary Bryan cancelled his engagement to discuss the situation with the house foreign affairs committee, and probably will enlighten some of the congress on Mexican affairs privately. Efforts to head off any agitation in congress that the executive departments might not be embarrassed in dealing with the affair were evident.

Sir Cecil Spring-Rice, the British ambassador, and Senor Riano, the Spanish ambassador, conferred with Secretary Bryan, but the subject of the discussion was not divulged. Huerta's latest note asking the United States to reconsider the lifting of the arms embargo was expected here today.

Villa Admits Carranza Halted Probing Party

CHIHUAHUA, March 2.—General Villa said today that the orders delaying the Benton investigation commission, which was halted at Juarez yesterday, were issued by General Carranza, who has determined to handle all diplomatic subjects himself.

General Villa today indicated his belief that Gustav Bauch is dead, when he said that Bauch, an American, was liberated at Juarez and "doubtless was assassinated by some of his enemies." Villa said Bauch has many enemies, and

JUDGE BEN H. HILL ISSUES HIS CHARGE TO NEW GRAND JURY

We Can't Assume Long-Established Clubs With Reputable Memberships Will Violate Law, He Says

Bills of indictment against the city's locker clubs will be submitted soon by the solicitor general to the March grand jury, which was organized and charged by Judge B. H. Hill, of the Fulton criminal court, Monday morning. These bills have been prepared for some days. The January grand jury, which was discharged Friday, declined twice to consider them. It is known they will be submitted to the new jury. No witnesses had yet been summoned, however when the March term inquisitors began their work Monday.

In charging the jury on the sale of intoxicating liquors (one of the subjects set down by law for specific charge to every grand jury) Judge Hill said:

GOOD AND BAD CLUBS.

"We do not assume that any of the long-established locker clubs with reputable membership will violate intentionally the law against sale of liquor. But we should make diligent inquiry to see if the law is being observed by them. It is said there is a class of clubs using the company of these other clubs as a cloak for sales of liquor for gain. If clubs of that class exist, they should be put out of business by indictment. The law does not allow indictment on suspicion. The question of whether or not evidence brought before you justifies indictment is one for your individual consciences to decide. The matter of a law being wise or unwise is not for you to consider. That is for the legislature to decide.

"If it be said that crime is on the increase in Georgia, the responsibility rests not with the courts. The court awaits the grand jury's indictment before it can try a case. The court cannot punish unless the petit jury convicts. The judge is merely an umpire."

OTHER SUBJECTS.

Other subjects on which Judge Hill charged the jury specifically were the carrying of concealed weapons, gambling, the keeping of disorderly houses, etc.

Grand Juror Harry Schlesinger arose before the judge began his charge and asked why it is that the grand jury is surrounded by a veil of secrecy.

Judge Hill explained that the law binds grand jurors not to divulge the counsel given them by the state's officers nor the positions of each other. It does not bind witnesses against revealing what they have testified, said he. The object of this, he added, is to protect the grand jurors and the officers from criticism, interference, and possible violence.

Tango Dance Is Reversion To Monkeyism, Declares Dr. G. Campbell Morgan

ATTITUDE OF WEST MAY DECIDE SLATON'S PLANS

Senator-Designate Is Said to Have Been Appointed Unconditionally

Whether Governor Slaton will be a candidate for the unexpired term of the late Senator Bacon depends, in large measure, say the governor's friends, upon the attitude of Colonel W. S. West, whom the governor has appointed for the ad interim term.

According to those close to the governor, he gave the appointment to Colonel West unconditionally and without strings attached, not even ascertaining in advance what the attitude of Colonel West toward the unexpired term would be.

"If Colonel West decides to run for the unexpired term," said one of the governor's friends Monday morning, "he will not be a candidate. You may rest assured that he will not run against his own appointee. On the other hand, if Colonel West does not aspire to hold on to the senatorial office, Governor Slaton will, in all likelihood, be a candidate."

Colonel West is expected to reach Washington on Wednesday. He will immediately qualify and take his seat in the senate. It is expected that he will make known his intentions regarding the unexpired term soon after he enters upon his official duties, and Governor Slaton's announcement of his own plans is expected to follow without delay.

The general opinion is that Colonel West will not be a candidate for the unexpired term, but will be a candidate for governor. Of course, if Governor Slaton does not run for the senate and seeks re-election as governor, Colonel West will not oppose him.

At any rate, the present week will doubtless clear up many uncertainties and bring out a number of important political developments.

There are at present three candidates for the unexpired senatorial term: Attorney General Thomas S. Felder, of Macon; Congressman T. W. Hardwick, of Sandersville, and John R. Cooper, of Macon.

Already candidates are announcing for the offices now held by Attorney General Felder and Congressman Hardwick. The first to announce for attorney general is Clifford M. Walker, of Monroe, Walton county, former solicitor general of the northeastern circuit.

Judge Carl Vinson, of Milledgeville, Baldwin county, has announced himself a candidate to succeed Congressman Hardwick as the representative of the Tenth district. Judge Vinson has served several terms in the legislature and was at one time speaker pro tem of the house of representatives.

INADEQUATE HEATING CAUSES SUFFERING IN SCHOOLS OF CITY

Pupils in Two Big Girls' High Schools and Four Others Are Sent Home Because Rooms in Buildings Are Too Cold

COUNCIL IS BLAMED FOR NOT REMEDYING DEFECT

Freeze That Gripped Atlanta Caused Intense Suffering Throughout the East—Eight Deaths Reported in New York

Inadequate heating facilities in six Atlanta schools occasioned the dismissal of several hundred pupils Monday morning who were suffering from the cold that gripped Atlanta and the entire eastern part of the United States Sunday night.

The freeze broke all cold weather records for two years in Atlanta, making Monday the coldest March 2 in history. In more northernly cities it was even worse, cutting off New York from communication with the outside world, save by way of London, and paralyzing traffic over many big eastern railroads.

According to Superintendent W. M. Slaton, the Atlanta pupils who were sent home would never have had to leave school had the schools been granted the appropriation for heat and other purposes recently asked by the board of education.

It was stated at the superintendent's office that one half of the children in Edgewood Avenue school were dismissed, that several classes had to be dismissed in the Girls' High school, the English-Commercial High school, the Grant Park school, the W. F. Slaton school, the Fraser Street school.

Superintendent W. M. Slaton was called over the phone and verified the report that the children were sent home, school weer sent home. He said the superintendent of the school had informed him that the temperature in the rooms on the north side of the building was 28 and 30 degrees.

"We have an insufficient amount of heat out there," said Mr. Slaton, when asked the cause o fthe dismissal, "simply because the plant is defective. I have asked the board for an appropriation and the board has asked city council. But they have done nothing."

"I do not wish to be put in the position of complaining as the aggressor on this point," continued Mr. Slaton, "but you have asked me about it and I can but give you the facts. I have been informed by the janitors and the engineers and the principals at the Girls' High school and the English Commercial High school and the Grant Park school that insufficient heating Monday morning was causing acute suffering.

One Atlanta citizen stated to a Journal reporter that the conditions in the schools appeared to him as if the "dollar was more than the child" to the city of Atlanta.

"While our children are suffering from cold in their school room council is wrangling over the finance sheet," he said. "What are we to do, I'd like to know?"

COLD RIDES ON GALE.

Atlanta's coldest weather in two years rode at the height of a terrific gale that swept the city from early Sunday morning until far into the day Monday, averaging forty-three miles an hour and plunging the mercury to a temperature of 15.2 degrees Sunday night.

Not once this winter has Atlanta had such cold weather. February 8 the thermometer registered 19 degrees, the coldest until Sunday night. The temperature of 15.2 degrees was the coldest since January 15, 1912.

Records at the weather bureau show the 15.2 degrees recorded Sunday night is the coldest March 2 in the history of Atlanta. With one exception it is the coldest weather recorded for any March day during the thirty-five years of the weather bureau's establishment. The exception was March 7, 1893, when the mercury reached 8 degrees.

The official forecast given out at the weather bureau proclaims the approach of warmer weather Tuesday. Mr. von Herrmann stated the high wind would probably blow all day Monday, dying down Monday night.

"It will be cold Monday night," he stated. "Not colder—but cold. While

Noted London Divine Gives His Views on New Dances—Expresses Belief That Women Should Be Allowed to Vote

According to Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, the noted London divine who is here to attend the Bible conference, the modern devotion to the tango and other new dances is a "reversion to monkeyism."

"Of course," said Dr. Morgan, "I know very little about such things. But I have watched them dancing on the boat crossing the ocean, and I think the dances are a reversion to monkeyism. It is laughable.

"Of course our queen does not countenance them at all. She will not even go to the houses where they are danced."

Dr. Morgan, who is the leading figure in the Bible conference, was interviewed as he was hastening to the Tabernacle to fill his engagement to speak Monday morning. In a hurried talk he touched upon several interesting topics, among them the suffrage movement in England and the Men and Religion Forward Movement in Atlanta.

Dr. Morgan himself introduced the question of suffrage.

"Of course I favor equal suffrage," he declared, "but I do not approve of militant suffragism. It is doing the movement much harm in England. Indeed, I know a number of men in parliament who will vote against suffrage just because the militants have antagonized them. Of course, I should vote for suffrage despite the militant suffragists, because I think it is right."

Dr. Morgan said the militant organization does not represent the majority class of women in England, nor the most representative.

"Do not, however, misunderstand my meaning. There are some splendid women among the militants, women of much intelligence. They are just mistaken in their policy, I think."

Dr. Morgan, when asked his reasons for favoring suffrage for women, said:

"Why, I should ask you for one reason against suffrage. The denial of the right to vote has been based on the old assumption that woman is man's intellectual inferior. That, of course, is utterly wrong. Women should be granted the suffrage on an equal basis with men, whatever that may be.

"Many women are in business, are property owners, and pay taxes. Why should they not be represented?"

Arrival at the Tabernacle and the necessity for Dr. Morgan's going at once to the platform cut short the interview, but before he entered the church he said:

"Now, tell me one thing. From where in the world does this wind come?" And he shivered as he pulled a purple knit muffler closer about his ears.

"Oh, this is most unusual weather for Atlanta," protested the reporter.

TRAIN STRIKES AUTO; TWO WOMEN KILLED

COLUMBUS, Ga., March 2.—Mrs. Lee Knight and Miss Pauline Crawford were instantly killed and C. F. Hollis seriously injured near here late yesterday when the automobile in which they were riding was struck by a Seaboard Air Line passenger train. A fourth occupant of the motor car escaped unhurt.

A Good Start In Home Economy

The housewife who is not economical is sure to have trouble all her life, and the most economical thing she can do is to become a reader and user of The Journal Want Ads.

The economy in The Journal Want Ads consists in the fact that they tell of the reciprocal wants of employer and employe, and they bring to the housewife the applicants for domestic positions, instead of obligating her to seek, at the expense of trouble and time, the maids she needs.

Domestic economy begins at home, when The Journal Want Columns are being read and used.

POLICE SEEK $20,000 BURIED BY YEGGMAN

Money Said to Have Been Hidden in Savannah by Man Who Was Slain

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., March 2.—The Savannah police and detective forces started on a hunt this morning for $20,000 supposed to have been buried in Savannah by C. C. Craven, alias Charles Prator, alleged professional yeggman who recently was killed near Wildwood, Fla., in a duel with a detective of the Seaboard Air Line railway. Craven or Prator lived in Savannah and his wife alleges she thought him a traveling man. A letter written by her and addressed to a supposed yeggman in High Springs, Fla., asked that the man come to Savannah and help her recover $10,000 Craven had buried under their home here.

When the woman was quizzed by the police she said that $10,000 was under the house and that another $10,000 had been placed under ground at Avondale, a small station on a trolley line near Savannah. The chief of police and detectives began a search for the hidden treasure this morning, but it had not been found at noon. Mrs. Craven who passed as the widow of a traveling man killed in a wreck has received much sympathy and considerable money from kind hearted people here. She has been detained by police on suspicion and is ill at a local hospital.

She induced a prominent minister in Savannah to send telegrams to various friends throughout the country asking for assistance and many of these responded. The police say the names and addresses she gave were those of well known crooks. Mrs. Craven's mother lives in Syracuse, O.

Carranza May Interfere With Investigators

(By Associated Press.)

El Paso, Tex., March 2.—Inquiry here and at Juarez early today failed to reveal the reasons of the constitutionalists for preventing the investigating commission from proceeding to Chihuahua yesterday to make an examination of the body of William S. Benton, the British subject killed.

It could not be learned here whether the commission will be permitted to go to Chihuahua at a later date or whether permission to view the body will be denied altogether. The commissioners were prepared to board a waiting passenger train when instructions were received by the military commander from General Carranza, head of the constitutionalists, forbidding them to make the trip.

Many Reported Killed in Battle Near Rio Molino

(By Associated Press.)

EAGLE PASS, Tex., March 2.—That an all day battle had raged near Rio Molino, fifty miles west of Piedras Negras, in which a number had been killed, was officially reported to Mexican federals here today. It was said 200 Huerta dragoons engaged 100 rebels.

British Officials Believe It Unsafe for Commission

LONDON, March 2.—Secretary of State Bryan has ordered the commission inquiring into the circumstances of the death at Juarez of William S. Benton to wait at El Paso. Francis Dyke Acland, parliamentary secretary of the foreign office, made this announcement in the house of commons today. He said the British government had been informed from Washington that the secretary of state considered it unsafe for the commissioners to proceed.

Former Madero Official Gets Appointment to London

NOGALES, Sonora, Mexico, March. 2. Miguel Covarrubias, who held a diplomatic position under the Madero government, was appointed today as confidential agent of the Mexican constitutionalists at London. It was thought this action of General Carranza had connection with the recent international representation in the case of William S. Benton at Juarez.

Chapter Organized

Mrs. Rose M. Ashley, worthy grand matron of the order of the Eastern Star of Georgia, will institute a new chapter with one hundred and twenty charter members at Capitol City, lodge F. and A. M., on Marietta street, this evening at 7:30. Mrs. Belk and Miss Ethel Halbrook of Electa chapter will assist the grand matron in this work.

JURY OF PHYSICIANS BRIGHT'S DISEASE

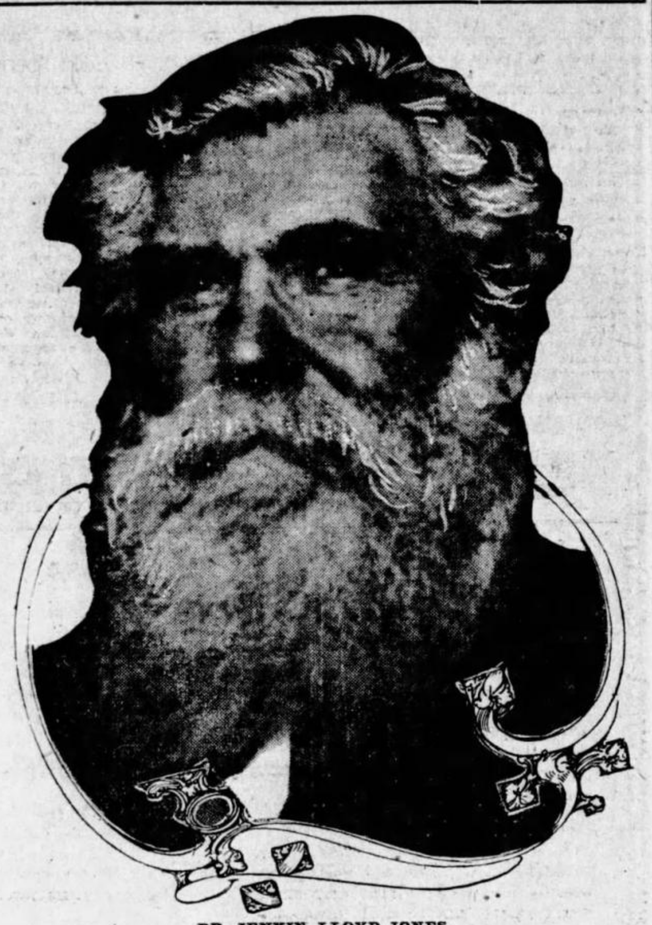
"They were not genuine cases of Bright's Disease." Then how about cases like this?—

R. C. Pell, cor. Broadway and Battery Sts., is the manager of one of San Francisco's big corporations. His son had Bright's Disease. He called two physicians, one of them an Army surgeon. Usual albumen and patient swollen with dropsy. The doctors declared the case incurable. The father thereupon ordered Fulton's Renal Compound administered. Patient began to mend and in six months was so well his father could hardly credit it and had two other physicians examine the patient and analyze samples. Both reported normal.

Thus a jury of physicians decided the patient had Bright's Disease and was incurable and another jury of physicians later determined his recovery. As to permanence, this was nine years ago and patient is in business in San Francisco at this writing, (Feb., 1914.)

The ability of Fulton's Renal Compound to reduce albumen in many cases of Bright's Disease is not a matter of opinion but a FACT IN PHYSICS and we will mail formula for albumen test that will show the percentage from week to week. As the albumen declines improvement commonly follows, recoveries having been reported in thousands of cases. Formula and literature mailed on request. John J. Fulton Co., San Francisco. Edmondson Drug Co., 11 North Broad St. and 106 N. Pryor St., Atlanta.—(Advt.)

NOTED CHICAGOAN TO LECTURE HERE



DR. JENKIN LLOYD JONES.

Dr. Jones, whose books, lectures and sermons have won for him a leading place in the religious world, is in the city to deliver a series of sermons and addresses. He spoke Sunday morning at the Unitarian church; Sunday evening at the First Universalist church, and Tuesday afternoon he will address the Drama league on "Henrik Ibsen, a Prophet of Modern Literature." Tuesday night, at Cable hall, he will speak on "The Call of the City."

the mercury is sure to be below freezing. I think it will warm up considerably Tuesday and that Tuesday night the temperature will hardly be as low as 39."

The vanguard of the blizzard marched on the city at daylight and by 7 o'clock the wind was blowing great guns. It continued to get up speed during the day, and by nightfall was roaring like a cyclone.

It continued throughout Sunday night, never falling to a rate of less than thirty-six miles an hour, and sometimes swelling to a fifty-miles-an-hour speed. At 7 o'clock Monday morning it was blowing forty miles an hour.

There was no fireside circle, howsoever defended, Sunday but had one bromidic member who quoted, "In like a lion, out like a lamb." Likewise, much small talk went the rounds regarding the recent snow storm and Atlanta's innate possibilities for all kinds and conditions of weather.

PITY THE FORECASTER.

Sympathy was expressed for the weather man, who, after predicting cold waves all winter, decided to switch his dope Saturday night and prophesied a warm, fair Sunday.

It was fair all right, a condition which mitigated the fierceness of the blizzard by half. With a warm sun beating down on the city and the weather man declaring the gale would abate during the day Monday, the outlook was propitious for pleasant weather Tuesday.

The local blizzard was but the fail-end of a storm that gripped the entire east, snarling traffic, cutting cummunication and burying the northern portion of the country under an avalanche of sleet and snow.

The telephone and telegraph companies reported wires were down between Atlanta and many of the principal cities of the east.

No rain or snow prospects appeared on Atlanta's skyline, and the city may congratulate itself on escaping complications that would otherwise have made the blizzard one of the bitterest in local history.

An evidence of the cold weather was the appearance of seven hoboes at police station Sunday night en route from their "winter home" in Florida for the north. This was the first time this winter any sons of rest had taken advantage of free sleeping quarters offered by the police station. Even Tuesday's snow wasn't cold enough for the hoboes to seek the station, but they crowded it Sunday night, declaring they had left Florida entirely too early.

East in Grip of Worst Blizzard Known in Years

NEW YORK, March 2.—Points as far west as Cleveland and as far south as Baltimore were battered by wind, stung with sleet and buried in snow in a terrific storm, central over the states of New York and New Jersey, which began early yesterday and was still in progress today.

In New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania between eight and eleven inches of snow, layers of it packed hard and frozen, covered the ground at noon and was still falling.

Not in twenty-five years had greater New York and environs experienced such a storm. At times the velocity of the wind reached eighty-four miles an hour. Traffic everywhere in the storm area was demoralized; in some instances interrupted entirely. Hundreds of telegraph poles in New York, New Jersey and Pennsylvania were carried down.

Eighty-five thousand commuters on Long Island were marooned, and residents of New Jersey coming to the city were from one to five hours late.

Eight persons have ben killed, so far as reported, railroad traffic is tied up and wire communication crippled. The streets and sidewalks are covered with an icy coating, making walking dangerous, and vehicle traffic is almost impossible.

Few trains are leaving today over any of the main trunk lines for the west and south. Street car and elevated traffic in the city and suburbs is delayed and in some instances suspended.

Not since the blizzard of 1888, which old residents point to as the worst in the history of the city, has a storm resulted in so much suffering. A milk famine was the most feared today because of the suspended train service in New Jersey and New York state.

Nine and one-half inches of snow fell yesterday, and when it stopped a howling gale set in. The temperature, which had remained at a few degrees above freezing, dropped many degrees, freezing the slush and snow.

Philadelphia Visited by Worst Weather in Years

PHILADELPHIA, March 2.—Blizzard weather held Philadelphia today. Conditions were accounted worst in several years.

Suburban residents were obliged to dig through snow banks that had drifted fence high and traffic on most of the surface car lines was at a standstill. Conditions on the steam roads to outlying sections were little better and thousands of persons were late in reaching their places of employment, while others did not get to the city at all.

Severe Storm Brings Suffering to Vast Area

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The severest storm of the winter brought suffering and destruction today from Eastport, Me., to Savannah, Ga., while a cold wave rolling down from the Great Lakes country overspread the Atlantic states as far south as Florida. Lowest temperatures ever recorded in March were registered in Charleston and Macon and other points in the southeast.

Centering over southern New England today, the storm brought heavy snows north of Maryland and caused shifting gales all along the Atlantic coast. No marine disasters had been reported.

Still colder weather in New England was predicted tonight, but a warmer wave moving on from the plains states today promised relief for the entire east by late tomorrow and Wednesday.

Thinly Clad Hotel Guests Driven Into Streets by Blaze

Practically All Personal Possessions Are Lost as Building Goes Up in Smoke

(By Associated Press.)

DANVILLE, Ky., March 2.—Thirty guests of the Gilcher hotel here were forced to leave the hotel in light wearing apparel when fire destroyed the building early today. The personal possessions of practically all were consumed.

Other buildings in the hotel block were burned before the firemen controlled the flames, the total loss being estimated at $75,000.

Cold weather hindered the firemen in their work.

CONCORDIA COLLEGE IS DAMAGED BY FLAMES

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, March 2.—Two hundred students at German Lutheran Concordia Teachers' college, fought for two hours tonight to save four domitories theratened by a fire that destroyed the administration building. The burned structure was in the center of a square formed by the four buildings in which the students live. These buildings caught fire seevral times, but the flames were extinguished by bucket brigades. The loss is $5,000.

PIMPLES ECZEMA

Itching Humors, Risings, Boils. Smith's Blood Syrup Fine for These Troubles

Hard work, worry and the coming of spring weakens the blood and we have all sorts of itching humors, eczema, risings, boils, offensive pimples, swellings, blood humors—we feel tired and all played out, we have bad breath, spots flying before the eyes, hands and legs tremble and can't stand exposure to the weather. The moment you feel as above or have aching bones or any blood humors, get a bottle of Smith's Blood and Liver Syrup from any reliable druggist. Take a spoonful in a glass of water after meals and on retiring. Also eat plenty of nourishing food. Soon your blood will become pure and rich, and your skin takes on the rich, red glow of perfect health and your body is changed into a clean, healthy condition. Aches and pains and itching stop. All sores are healed. Smith's Blood and Liver Syrup has been used for generations to purify the blood. It is made from an old Indian formula and is dispensed by most druggists in big half quart bottles for only $1, or will be sent express prepaid by John B. Daniel, 4 Wall st., Atlanta, Ga.—(Advt.)

MURDER CASES OPEN MARCH COURT TERM

Lon Biddle, Who Narrowly Escaped Lynching at Shiloh, First to Be Tried

With two murder cases, both brought from Harris county on a change of venue, on trial Monday before Judge Ben H. Hill, the March term of the criminal division of the superior court commenced.

Lon Boddie, colored, accused of the murder of Perry McDonell, a farmer, near Shiloh, Ga., in Harris county, on November 27, 1913, was the first defendant to go on trial for his life.

Boddie was brought to Atlanta by Sheriff M. M. Hadley, of Harris county, a month ago, after he had been taken by the sheriff from Shiloh to Columbus on the day of the killing to escape a mob bent upon lynching the negro.

In his statement to the jury, the attorneys for Boddie admitted the killing, but said it was done in self-defense, after McDonell had attacked the negro with a revolver in each hand.

The attorney stated that McDonell had made the attack upon Boddie because he heard that the latter was going to "squeal" on him in regard to alleged illegal selling of liquor, in which McDonell, with Boddie, had been involved.

The state, represented by Solicitor General George C. Palmer, of the Muscogee circuit, and Solicitor General Dorsey, contends that Boddie had been stealing chickens from McDonell; that the latter, hearing a noise in the chicken house early in the morning of November 27, went out, armed, to find the thief; that tracks led from the chicken house to the road; that McDonell followed these tracks, and came upon Boddie in the road; that Boddie shot McDonell after a struggle between them; that dead chickens were found near the scene of the shooting, and that feathers similar to those on the chickens were found in Boddie's house by the sheriff.

Three pistols, two belonging to McDonell, and one to Boddie, were in court as evidence. One of them had the chambers wrenched out. This, it is claimed, was done in the struggle between Boddie and McDonell. Boddie was shot in the abdomen and arm; he was carried to Atlanta as soon as he left the hospital in Columbus.

J. D. H. McDonell, father of the dead man, was put on the witness stand as the principal prosecutor of the case.

The other murder trial, to be taken up Monday, is that of the state against J. E. Melton, a prosperous young farmer of Harris county. Melton is charged with the killing of "Mans" Tiel, another farmer. When brought to Atlanta a month ago, Melton stated that the killing had been done in self-defense, that he shot Tiel with a shotgun after the other had tried to draw a revolver on him. Tiel was sitting in a buggy outside of Melton's home when shot. Melton was brought to Atlanta under a change of venue to avoid a possible feud between the Tiel and Melton families in Harris county.

WEATHER TOO SEVERE FOR DEPUTY'S PRISONERS

Because of the excessive cold Monday morning Deputy Sheriff Plennie Minor borrowed the automobile patrol from the city police to carry prisoners fom the Towe to the superior court.

"There were nine prisoners," said Mr. Minor, "four white men and five negroes. Some of them had been in the tower since last summer, and had on light clothes. I think they would have been frozen if I had carried them over in the open county wagon."

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 2.—Ernest Gary was a member of a South Carolina family which at this time is represented by three judges on the South Carolina bench. The lad's father, Eugene B. Gary, is chief justice of the supreme court. Ernest Gary, an uncle, is judge of the fifth district, while another uncle, Frank B. Gary, is judge of the tenth district. The boy's granduncle, General Martin W. Gary, was a brigadier general in the Confederate army.

Tears Bible in Pieces

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. 28.—A tall, well-dressed young man made his way through a crowd today attending the laying of the cornerstone of the First Congregational church here and tore in pieces a marked Bible, throwing the leaves at the feet of the pastor, Rev. Dr. Charles F. Aked. The Bible's cover was tossed on the cornerstone. The man then disappeared.

AGREEMENT IS REACHED AND BUDGET WILL PASS

Differences Between Aldermanic Board and Common Council Settled

The differences between the aldermanic board and the common council over the finance sheet, which differences have held up the sheet since early in January, are practically settled.

The sheet will be passed by the common council Monday afternoon, and the aldermanic board, if it holds a special session Monday afternoon at the mayor's call, will concur in council's action. Otherwise the aldermanic board will take up the sheet at its regular session next Thursday, and will pass it on that day.

The changes which the finance committee has agreed to make in the sheet, as a concession to the aldermanic board, are as follows:

For Whitehall street regrading, $11,000; for Cherokee avenue paving, $3,000 additional, making a total appropriation of $8,000 for this project; salaries of two inspectors in the construction department, which the finance committee left out of the sheet and which the committee now agrees to restore.

Mayor Woodward was undecided at 1 o'clock whether he would call a special meeting of the aldermanic board Monday afternoon or not. He said if an agreement had been reached, he reckoned the aldermanic board would pass the sheet Thursday without any hitch, but if there was a request for him to issue a call he would do so.

Cardinal Kopp Dies in Tropau of Meningitis; He Was 77 Years Old

INDIGESTION OVERCOME

Overcome by Simple Remedy.

Hurried and careless habits of eating, iregular meals and foods that do not harmonize, tend to weaken the digestive organs and result in different forms of stomach trouble.

If you are one of the unfortunates who have drifted into this condition, eat simple foods only, slowly, regularly and take Vinol, our delicious cod liver and iron tonic.

Mrs. H. J. Smith, Thomasville, Ga., says: "I suffered from a stomach trouble, was tired, worn out and nervous. A friend advised me to take Vinol. My stomach trouble soon disappeared and now I eat heartily and have a perfect digestion and I wish every tired, weak woman could have Vinol, for I never spent any money in my life that did me so much good."

The recovery of Mrs. Smith was due to the combined action of the medicinal elements of the cods' livers—aided by the blood making and strength creating properties of tonic iron, which are contained in Vinol. We will return the purchase money every time Vinol fails to benefit. Elkin Drug Co., Atlanta, Ga.

ERNEST GARY DROWNS IN TESTING ICE ON POND

Son of Chief Justice of South Carolina Supreme Court Is Dead

LEXINGTON, Va., March 2.—Ernest Gary, the seventeen-year-old son of Chief Justice Eugene B. Gary, of the South Carolina supreme court, was drowned yesterday while testing ice on a pond one mile from Lexington.

Gary, a student at Washington and Lee university, was out walking with Cadet Smith, of the Virginia Military Institute, when he decded to see if the ice was thick enough to hold him. He ventured too far and fell into twelve feet of water.

Smith made a brave attempt to rescue him, and in doing so, went under. With a plank, he endeavored to save Gary—from drowning, but Gary was chilled and weak, and in a moment he sank. Smith was rescued. Gary's body was recovered. It was sent to Abbeville, S. C., today.

EXPLAINS WHY TEACHERS GET HALF PAY IF SICK

Assistant Superintendent L. M. Landrum Issues Statement on Subject

L. M. Landrum, assistant superintendent of the public schools of Atlanta, has issued a statement explaining the rule of the school department which allows teachers only half pay when they are absent on account of illness.

The rule was not passed to prevent the teachers from imposing on the city, says Mr. Landrum, but was passed for the protection of the teachers.

Mr. Landrum continues: "The rule used to be that a teacher absent on account of illness got no pay for the time lost, except by special action of the board of education. Under that rule a teacher who had lost time would apply to the board for full pay. Sometimes the board would grant the application, sometimes not—according to the circumstances of the case. Naturally this led to dissatisfaction among the teachers.

"Then the rule was changed to provide that a teacher absent on account of illness would get half pay. This was to apply in all cases, and was considered fairer than the previous rule. The half pay rule is still in force.

"Of course the board of education doubtless would be glad if teachers could be paid full pay for time lost on account of illness. But the appropriation for salaries allotted to the school department by the general council will not allow it. The appropriation is figured on the basis of regular teachers putting in full time. When a regular teacher is out, a supernumerary takes his or her place. The supernumerary has to be paid. There is not enough in the salary appropriation to pay both. If both were paid, the appropriation would be exhausted before the end of the year."

LOOKING FOR MISSING BOY AND BICYCLE

Charley McMonagle, twelve years old, is reported missing from his home since Sunday morning. The police are looking for him in all parts of the city. His parents fear that some accident has befallen him or that he has suffered from exposure to the severe weather Sunday night.

Henry McMonagle, father of the boy, says that Charley was rebuked by his mother for some slight misconduct Sunday morning and rode away on his wheel as if to go to church. He has not been seen since then. Mr. McMonagle searched the city for his boy Sunday, without finding a trace of him. Charley wore a blue suit of clothes, says the father, and is of light complexion, with light hair and blue eyes.

IN LOCAL THEATERS

"The Will," the latest important play from the pen of James M. Barrie, will be presented at the Atlanta Tuesday and Wednesday, with a Wednesday matinee, by John Drew. It shows three successive pictures of three successive "generations" in the life of a married couple. The will is made when the couple is young, full of ideals and hopes. In the second of the little scenes the characters have become "practical" and are changing their will to accord with their new lights. In the last scene the husband alone remains—with money and position, but nothing to do with it—ideals, affections and hopes all dispelled.

The longer piece of the evening will be Haddon Chambers' comedy, now something of a classic in its way, "The Tyranny of Tears." Playing with Mr. Drew are two accomplished actresses of great personal beauty, who have so often before done excellent work with him, Laura Hope Crews and Mary Boland.

In the realm of the dance one figure dominates—Pavlowa, the peerless Russian. Any mention of dancing necessarily brings to mind this wonderful artist, who, to quote a description, "is supreme in her own art as the immortals of poetry and music and painting are in theirs." Pavlowa has exalted the ballet, elevated it to the fine arts and compelled for it an admiration that never before existed. She has invested it with hitherto unrevealed beauty and expression, and has inspired it with a new allurement, and so doing, she has popularized it.

There are forms of dancing which, while possessing a definite artistic value, lack, perhaps, certain of the engaging qualities that abound in the ballet. Mystic, symbolic, ceremonial and dances of that kind are interesting, but they do not excite popular favor as does the ballet. This latter form of dancing, while ennobled with the extreme of artistry, has the further merit of a very general interest. It is art that is widely entertaining, and it will be illustrated at its best at the Atlanta Monday and Tuesday, March 9 and 10, with a Tuesday matinee, when Pavlowa and her brilliant company come for an engagement. Seats were placed on sale today.

A bill of excellent promise will be the attraction at the busy Forsyth this week. A headline feature is Hassard Short's recent Lamb's gambol success, "The Dance Reveries," presented by a sextet of pretty girls and a graceful male dancer. The dancer, returning from a social event, falls to sleep and dreams he is still at the dance and his "dreams" appear in costumes of past and present periods, each doing the dance of the time. Ethel Green will make her first visit in a long time. Williams, Thompson and Copeland, the comedians, with their "Burglars' Union" sketch, promise to eclipse the hit they scored two seasons ago. A musical treat will be the contribution of the Gray Trio. Sam Curtis and company will offer their singing novelty, and the Hassmans an original gymnastic novelty. Prevost and Brown, in a new style of gymnastics, will also appear.

"Alias Jimmie Valentine" will be the farewell offering of the Norman Hackett Stock company at the Lyric. The company has finished its season of ten weeks, and the players will return east, where they will take up engagements with road combinations and stock in other cities. "Alias Jimmie Valentine" is about the best play that could have been selected for the farewell week, because this Paul Armstrong story will give every member of the company a fine opportunity to do something to have the theatergoers remember the season at the

CHILD DIES OF BURNS AS MOTHER TRIES RESCUE

Little Agnes Lee Smith Burned to Death in Her Home Sunday

Left alone in a room by her mother for a few minutes, Agnes Lee Smith, the two-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. K. Smith was burned to death at the family residence on Washington street, East Point, Sunday afternoon. The little tot went too close to an open fireplace and her clothing caught fire. As the flames enveloped the child, Mrs. Smith came into the room. She made valiant efforts to extinguish the flames but was too late.

Medical aid was summoned, but to no avail.

The funeral will be held from the residence Monday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock with interment in East Point cemetery.

WHEEL OF DUMP CART ROLLS THROUGH WINDOW

The big plate glass window of the Oakland Motor company at 45 Auburn avenue, valued at about $200, was smashed to bits Monday morning by a recreant wheel from one of the city dump carts.

According to the Oakland people, the dump cart, a two-wheeled affair drawn by a mule, was opposite the Oakland company shop when the axle broke.

The left wheel veered to one side, jumped the sidewalk and rolling straight as an arrow, crashed through the window. The accident appeared to be one of those unavoidable kinds that will happen even to the best regulated dump carts.

BEAVERS' ATTITUDE UNALTERED, HE SAYS

Anouncement of Citizens' League Platform Does Not Worry Him

"As long as the law remains as it is, and as long as I am in my present position as a public official, my attitude will remain unaltered," is Chief of Police James L. Beavers' declaration anent the new state of affairs caused by announcement Sunday of the Citizens' league platform.

Chief Beavers stated specifically that he did not wish to be understood as replaying to the league or its platform. In an address Sunday afternoon to the Georgia Gideons, at the Hotel Ansley, he made no reference to the league.

"I would rather lose my office than change my convictions," continued the chief. "The law is plain, and I consider it my duty to enforce it as I find it. If what has been done in Atlanta, in the way of abolishing the restricted district, is fanaticism, it appears to me the whole country is on its way toward fanaticism."

Chief Beavers had no comment to make on the closing, Saturday night, of the restricted district in St. Louis, or on the closing of the open saloons in Memphis at the same time. He praised the bulletins of the Men and Religion Forward Movement that have appeared in the Atlanta newspapers, saying they are an element to be considered in molding public opinion, and that they were largely instrumental in convincing him as to what he ought to do. He does not believe their duty of usefulness has passed. "It is human nature to forget and grow lax," said he. "The bulletins continue as a safeguard against just that tendency."

Dr. H. M. DuBose, chairman of the Law Enforcement league, pastor of the First Methodist church, introduced Chief Beavers to the Gideons Sunday afternoon. Dr. DuBose said that when he was preparing a series of sermons on the locker club situation he was counseled against that course by prominent members of his congregation. He added that he intends to say and do what he believes to be right.

Marion Jackson, of the Men and Religion Forward Movement, author of the bulletins published by that organization, has declined to comment on the platform of the new Citizens' league.

TENNESSEE UNIVERSITY WINS FROM CHATTANOOGA

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Feb. 28.—The University of Tennessee basketball five defeated the University of Chattanooga quintet here tonight, 34 to 18, in a fast and furiously contested game. The fray at times was exceedingly rough, and Greenwood, at center for the Vols, was knocked unconscious for several minutes and forced to retire early in the second half.

Playing interlocking halves, the Tiger five of this city defeated the team of the Somerset, Ky., Athletic club, 26 to 22. This melee also was very rough.

ALLEGED PICKPOCKET IS WANTED IN CHICAGO

Harry Holland, alias William Newman, who was arrested last Sunday on the charge of picking the pockets of spectators at the McKenzie building fire, is wanted in Chicago on a charge of larceny.

After Holland's arrest he was photographed and his Bertillon measurement was taken. The photographs and measurements were sent out to police departments of the various large cities.

Saturday morning Chief Beavers received a telegram from Detective Chief John J. Halpin, of Chicago, stating that Holland was wanted there for larceny. The name he is alleged to have in Chicago is William Nalson.

Special Officer Ed Arthur arrested Holland. The man will be tried here and if convicted will serve his sentence before he is turned over to the Chicago authorities.

TURNERS PLANNING BIG CELEBRATION FOR TUESDAY

Governor Slaton and Mayor Woodward Will Be Among the Speakers

An elaborate celebration of the forty-first anniversary of the Atlanta Turn Verein will be held Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock at the headquarters of the society, 26 1-2 South Pryor street.

A Dutch supper, followed by speeches and music, will begin the evening. Then dancing will take place in the big ball room, lasting until a late hour.

Governor John M. Slaton, Mayor James G. Woodward, Albert Howell, Jr., John Y. Smith, Hugh M. Dorsey and F. E. Radensleben are the speakers.

A feature will be the singing of the "Singer Section" of the Turn Verein. This is a chorus of more than thirty voices, and is said to be one of the best in the south. Solos will be sung by John Edgar McKee, Solon Drukenmiller and Frank Wheat. Miss Rosena Asmus is the accompanist.

Only members and their immediate families are invited.

MISSION MASSES WILL BE HELD ALL THIS WEEK

Services at Church of the Immaculate Conception

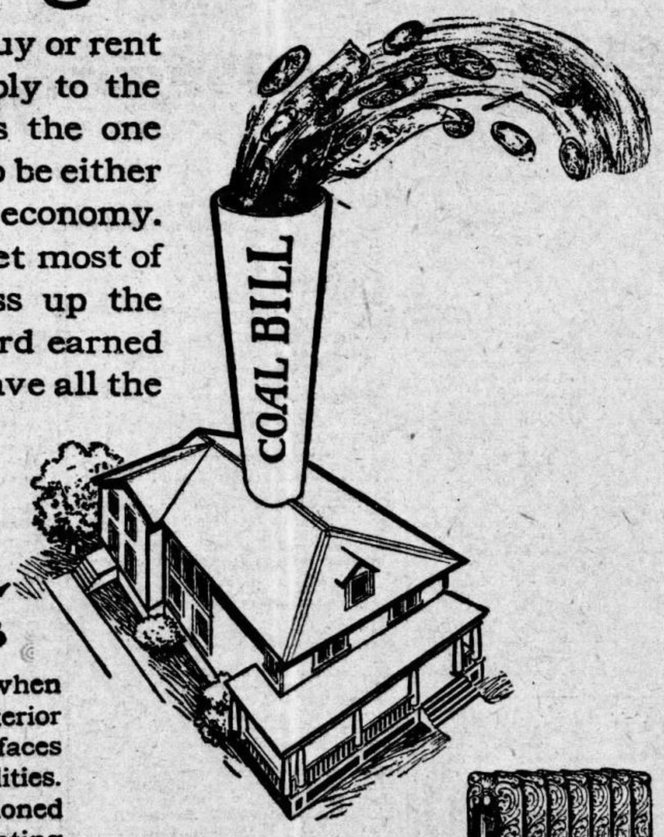
Commencing on Sunday and continuing every day through the week except Saturday mission masses will be conducted at the Catholic church of the Immaculate Conception at 5:30 and 8:30 o'clock in the mornings.

The rosary sermon and benediction will be delivered each evening, except Saturday, at 8 o'clock.

Father Cleary and Father Cahill will conduct the mission services, and they will be assisted by Father Kennedy.

Is your heating coal wasted?

When you build anew, or go to buy or rent a house already built, look sharply to the heating outfit. Remember, it is the one feature of the building which is to be either a constant expense or a lasting economy. Old fashioned heating methods let most of the rich heat-making gases pass up the chimney in a waste-spout for hard earned dollars. You can stop this and have all the heat conserved and distributed to your rooms by use of



AMERICAN RADIATORS & IDEAL BOILERS

Many heating devices, built on old ideas when fuel was cheap, have long and useless interior flues or fire travel, extended heating surfaces (largely ineffective) and poor air-mixing facilities. IDEAL Boilers have scientifically proportioned fuel chamber, correctly arranged live heating surfaces, ample air-mixing—all of which extract every available bit of heat from the coal and its rich heat-making gases.

A No. C2118 IDEAL Boiler and 270 sq. ft. of 38-in. AMERICAN Radiators, costing the owner $135, were used to heat this cottage. At this price the goods can be bought of any reputable, competent Fitter. This did not include cost of labor, pipes, valves, freight, etc., which are extra, and vary according to climatic and other conditions.

The result is that the utmost volume of heat contained in the fuel is sent directly through the hollow-piping and distributed through the hollow AMERICAN Radiators. You get full comfort and the most cleanly heat—which saves drudgery for the women and saves much wear on furnishings.

A Little Journey to the Home of Oriental Rugs

—Our trip takes us to Persia, Syria, Turkey—various places in the Orient where time and labor means naught. With infinite patience a native puts in a year, two years, or more, on one rug. Her wage—for the work is carried on chiefly by women and girls—is five or ten cents a day.

Rug Designs Require Interpretation

—While it is impossible to understand accurately the symbolism of the Oriental rug, each design is fraught with significance. The circle signifies continuity; zig-zag figures, lightning; the lotus, new life and fecundity; the palm, a blessing or benediction. Color symbolism is equally important. Blue stands for truth, virtue and sincerity; orange, resignation; yellow, joy and victory; black, evil; white, purity and innocence.

The Wonderful Durability of Oriental Rugs

—Is due to the careful selection and preparation of the woolen yarns and dyeing. The dyeing process is generally a family or tribe secret zealously guarded and handed down from generation to generation. The woolen, plus the peculiar method of hand-tieing each knot, make Oriental rugs

The Most Economical of Floor Coverings

—Though the increasing demand for Oriental Rugs has brought into the market much that is spurious and of little value, anyone can buy of the well-established stores with the assurance that the rug, if given proper usage, will be a lifetime investment. It is profitable just now to buy rugs during Rich's

ATLANTA MEDICAL COLLEGE IS GIVEN CLASS A RATING

Local Institution Takes Rank With Highest Class Colleges in United States

The Atlanta Medical college has just been given a class A rating by the Council on Medical Education of the American Medical association, and Atlanta thus becomes more firmly established as the southern center of medical education.

This action was taken at a meeting of the council in Chicago last Tuesday, before which appeared Dr. W. S. Elkin, dean of the faculty, and Dr. George H. Noble, vice president, for the purpose of making a statement of the Atlanta institution's case and answering any questions the council might ask.

As soon as the Atlanta physicians made their statement the council voted unanimously to give the Atlanta college a class A rating, thus placing it in the front rank right with the best appointed and highest class medical colleges in the United States.

The important and far-reaching effect which this action will have aside from the natural prestige which it gives the institution, is that it will enable the graduate students of the Atlanta Medical college to apply for license to practice before the medical examining board of any state in the union or of any foreign country.

Prior to the enactment of Georgia's new medical practice law and before this class A rating was given, there were a number of states in the union which would not license graduates of this institution: they would not even give them the right and opportunity of standing examination. In one short year the leading physicians of Atlanta and Georgia have changed all this, and have brought about improved and up-to-date conditions under which medical education in Georgia will now receive world recognition.

To secure this recognition from the council on medical education, it was first necessary for Georgia to have an adequate medical practice law. This was finally secured at the 1913 session of the general assembly; and it is noteworthy that Dr. A. D. Bevan, chairman of the council by which this recognition was granted, commented on the Georgia measure as one of the best medical practice bills that has been enacted in the United States.

REQUIREMENTS INCREASED.

The rating of medical colleges in classes A, B and C is governed by their hospital facilities their labratory equipment, their full paid professors in the elementary branches, their entrance requirements and other similar considerations. The entrance requirements of the Atlanta Medical college have been increased so that the applicant for matriculation must now have not only fourteen Carnegie units and a diploma from an accredited high school, but also one year of college work in physics, chemistry, biology and German or French.

Another fact in addition to the new medical practice law and increased entrance requirements, which has contributed largely to the rapid advancement of the Atlanta institution, was the merger last year of the two Atlanta medical colleges, the Atlanta College of Physicians and Surgeons and the Atlanta School of Medicine, which brought together the best talent in the state. The two schools were united under the name The Atlanta Medical College, which was the name of the original medical institution founded in Atlanta in 1857.

This merger has put medical education in Atlanta on the highest plane. It has given the institution better hospital and laboratory facilities and a stronger faculty than either of the two colleges could have maintained had they kept apart.

As a result of the merger the Atlanta Medical college now has 490 students, an unusually large number and considerably more than were expected at the beginning of the year. But this number will now be gradually diminished as the result of the strict educational requirements for entrance. It is the purpose of the faculty not to turn out numbers, but the best possibly equipped physicians.

It is evident that the Atlanta Medical college has thus made unusual and remarkable progress within the last twelve months, and with the advantages which it has attained under the new Georgia law and its high official standing, it may be said that even bigger and broader progress and expansion are ahead of it.

OLD WOUND TROUBLES CITY DETECTIVE WEBB

City Detective Sam Webb, who was shot through the jaw in a raid on a negro crap game about a year ago, had to have an operation at Grady hospital for an abcess which developed in the wound and became very painful, if not serious. He is now at home and is resting well, but will not be able to work for some time.

Webb and other officers raided a crap game in the rear of a house on Alexander street between Peachtree and West Peachtree. Most of the negroes went headforemost through the windows. Some fired at the officers as they fled, and a bullet took effect in Webb's jaw, inflicting a wound which kept him at Grady hospital eight or ten weeks.

SAYS HUSBAND CRUEL NOW WANTS DIVORCE

Alleging cruel treatment, Mrs. Mabel S. Graham filed suit for divorce in the superior court Monday against Dr. J. M. Graham, now thought to be in Birmingham, Ala.

The petition alleges that the marriage took place in Decatur in April, 1910, and that Mrs. Graham left her husband, after he had choked her and slapped her face, on October 27, 1913. She asks for total divorce. The defendant, supposedly out of the state, will be served by publication.

MANY NOTED SPEAKERS DELIVER ADDRESSES AT BIBLE CONFERENCE

PROMINENT MEN AT BIBLE CONFERENCE.

In the group, from left to right, are Dr. Sol C. Dickey, of the Winona, Ind., conference, who is directing the Atlanta conference; Rev. Richard Orme Flinn, of the North Avenue Presbyterian church, Atlanta, chairman of the executive committee of ministers, which made all preliminary arangements for the meeting; W. H. Culleson, of Indiana, who has charge of all the music of the conference, and Secretary Dibble.

Large and Interested Audiences Hear Dr. Morgan, Dr. Palmer, Dr. Gordon and Others at the Baptist Tabernacle

Following the big opening meeting of the sixteenth annual Bible conference Sunday afternoon at the Tabernacle, regular sessions were begun Monday morning, several noted speakers addressing the conference. They were Dr. G. Campbell Morgan, of London; Dr. F. N. Palmer, of the Winona conference and Dr. S. D. Gordon, the noted minister and author, of Philadelphia.

Dr. Palmer spoke on "The Orientalism of the Bible;" Dr. Morgan spoke on "A Nation's Righteousness," and Dr. Gordon also delivered an inspiring address.

Many visitors are in the city for the conference and despite the biting wind of Sunday a packed house greeted Dr. Morgan, Dr. Sol C. Dickey, of the Winon conference, and others at the opening session Sunday afternoon at the Tabernacle.

Though the meeting was largely a preliminary one, the addresses were notable, and the deep attention of the large audience bespoke the interest felt in the occasion.

Rev. Richard Orme Flinn, pastor of the North Avenue Presbyterian church and chairman of the executive committee in charge of the conference, presided. On the stage were Dr. Dickey, Dr. Morgan, Dr. J. F. Purser, Dr. Lyman Hood, of Atlanta; Dr. Ng Poon Chew, the noted Chinese leader, and others.

Dr. Flinn opened the meeting with a preliminary address in which he paid living tribute to Dr. Len G. Broughton, the founder of the conference, who is absent this year for the first time in its history.

MESSAGE TO BROUGHTON.

By unanimous standing vote of the assembly the following cablegram was sene to Dr. Broughton in London: "We greet you, we miss you, we love you; we hope tohave you with us next year."

Dr. Flinn referred to the pleasure of the conference in having as its director Dr. Sol C. Dickey, "whose great ability has been proved by his wide experience and success as the head of the Winona conference, which has world-wide fame."

Gratification was expressed because of the fact that Dr. Dickey, in picking speakers from all over the world, had chosen men who are known and loved in Atlanta, with the exception of three new speakers, Dr. F. N. Palmer, Dr. William Souper and Dr. Ng Poon Chew, "and these," said Dr. Flinn, "we are already learning to appreciate."

Dr. Dickey spoke next, and expressed his pleasure at being chosen to direct the Atlanta conference.

the Atlanta conference, which he said, was the one great winter conference.

The success of the Atlanta conference, said Dr. Dickey, had much or do with his plan of holding a series of winter Bible conferences, and he felt that he was in Atlanta to learn rather than to help. He praised the manner in which all details had been arranged prior to the arrival of the visitors. He referred also to his recent visit ot London, where he saw Dr. Broughton in his church and his home, "and found how dear to his heart Atlanta is."

H. A. Etheridge, treasurer of the Bible Conference association, spoke next and after him Dr. Morgan talked.

"I feel at home in Atlanta," said Dr. Morgan. "In a peculiar sense the city feels like home to me."

And indeed Dr. Morgan has been acquainted with the city since 1898, when he made his first visit here, and it was he who laid the cornerstone of the new Tabernacle in which the conference meetings are being held.

In his preliminary remarks, Dr. Morgan asked the audience to stop to consider the question, "Why should people, in this busy day when time is such a precious thing, feel justified to stop their work in order to attend the Bible conference?"

STRESSES CONFERENCE VALUE.

He then stressed the value of the conference, and told how the "powers that be" in Washington had taken time to attend the conference held there; how "the wheels of industry stopped" in Columbus, O., that employes might hear the conference lessons, and how the schools of Nashville closed that the pupils might attend.

His address was a masterpiece of thought, and his audience was intensely interested until the last word fell from his lips.

Monday night Dr. Morgan will speak in Athens, that city and others having been included in a chain of auxiliary conferences which are being held at the same time as the Atlanta conference.

Dr. George R. Stuart will speak Monday night in Macon and Dr. S. D. Gordon will speak in Covington.

Monday night, Rev. Mell Trotter, the noted rescue worker and evangelist, will address the colored people of the city at Big Bethel church, the conference association having decided to hold auxiliary meetings among the negroes also. Special space has been reserved on the main floor of the Tabernacle auditorium for colored ministers and workers, and they will be made welcome.

Every day at noon, Rev. Mell Trotter will hold a short meeting for busy people at the Wesley Memorial church, and, as he is a man of unusual attainment, the noon meetings will be most interesting and instructive.

At 2 o'clock Monday afternoon, Dr. George R. Stuart, of Knoxville, will speak; at 3 o'clock, Dr. Ng Poon Chew, of San Francisco; and the concluding speaker on the afternoon's program will be Dr. William Souper, of London.

Monday night at 7:30 o'clock at the Tabernacle, W. H. Cullison will lead the song service, and at 8 o'clock Dr. Camden M. Cobern will speak.

Tuesday's program is as follows:

At the Tabernacle 9 a. m. Dr. F. N. Palmer will speak; at 10 a. m. Dr. Camden M. Cobern; 11 a. m. Dr. G. Campbell Morgan; 2 p. m., Dr. S. D. Gordon; 3 p. m., Dr. George R. Stuart; 4 p. m., Dr. William Souper; 7:30 p. m., song service; 8 p. m., Dr. G. Campbell Morgan.

RAILWAD CAMP WINS WOODMEN'S SILK FLAG

At a recent meeting of the Woodmen of the World, held jointly at the Red Men's wigwam, 86 Central avenue, the silk flag offered by State Manager Newton Phillips for the largest number of applicants passed since the first of the year, was awarded to Railway Camp, No. 511.

Four meetings of the Woodmen are held each year, the next to occur in the latter part of May. At the last meeting an address was made by Sov. A. O. Blalock, and members of the eight camps of Atlanta present made the joint meeting a permanent institution by naming it unanimously a Greater Atlanta Degree Camp.

PRINCETON FOOTBALL PLAYER CROSSES ANDES

WASHINGTON, March 2.—An American-built automobile, driven by Johnson Martin, of Glen Ridge, N. J., a Princeton football player of recent years, has succeeded in crossing the Andes, thus achieving a victory for which automobiles of a number of foreign makes have been striving for the last five years or more. A cablegram today to the Pan-American union announced Martin's arrival in Santiago, Chile, from Buenos Aires, Argentina.

A number of attempts to cross the Andes in aeroplanes have failed. Martin crossed the backbone of the South American continent, at a height of more than 15,000 feet through the famous Uspallata.

MRS. W. J. PAGE'S BODY TO BE BROUGHT HERE

News has been received in Atlanta of the death of Mrs. W. J. Page, wife of the former rector of the Church of the Incarnation in West End, which occurred Saturday afternoon at her home in Glenn Burnie, Md.

Mrs. Page was the daughter of the late O. I. Culberson, of Atlanta, and a niece of Hubert Culberson, county treasurer, and A. P. Stewart, county tax collector.

The body will be brought to Atlanta and will arrive Tuesday morning at 11 o'clock. It will be taken to Barclay & Brandon's chapel and funeral arrangements will be made later.

HARALSON AS TROUBLE FINDING TAX EQUALHIZERS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

TALLAPOOSA, Ga., March 2.—The new tax law is not well received in Haralson county and complaints are heard of it every day. The ordinary has appointed a board of equalizers, but they declined some days ago to serve, and he has not yet been able to locate three men who would act as equalizers.

Several strong denunciations against the measure have appeared in the papers of this section the past few weeks. The ordinary is still looking for men to act as equalizers.

OPERA SEASON TICKETS SALE STARTS MARCH 9

Seven Performances Beginning April 27 Ending May 2. Single Sales April 6

President W. L. Peel, of the Atlanta Music Festival association, announces that the sale of season tickets for the 1914 season of Metropolitan grand opera in Atlanta will begin on next Monday, March 9, at Phillips & Crew's and the Cable Piano company, and will continue through March 28. The sale for single performances will begin on April 6 and will continue through the engagement.

The dates of the opera season this year are April 27 to May 2, inclusive. There will be seven performances for the season this year, the same as last year, and the prices for all seats, both season sale and single performances, will be exactly the same as in previous seasons.

The seven operas for this year are "Carmen," "Trovatore," "Rosenkavalier," "Le Bal Masque," "Madame Butterfly," "Lohengrin" and a double bill with "Madeline" and "Pagliacci."

All the famous stars with whom Atlanta is already familiar will be back his year, including Caruso, Farrar, Alda, Gadski, Homer, Hempel and Amato. In addition there will be Margaret Ober and a number of other famous stars new to Atlanta.

MALT CONCERNS REFUSED PERMISSION TO MERGE

TRENTON, N. J., March 2.—The board of public utilities commissioners today refused to approve a merger of the American Malting company and the American Malt corporation, New Jersey corporations, into a single corporation with a capital of $15,000,000 The action was taken under the "Seven Sisters" anti-trust laws of 1913.

According to the board, the malting company is an operating company and the malting corporation is a holding concern. This, the commission holds, does not come within the definition of corporations doing a cognate business as required by the law.

The malt corporation has comparatively no assets, the commission asserts, aside from its ownership of about 98 per cent of the total stock of the malting company, which is another reason given for denying the merger.

The commission estimates the tangible assets of the malting company at approximately $9,244,000 or nearly six millions short of the proposed capitalization.

DR. T. J. KEMP LOSES IN APPEALS COURT

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 2.—The district court of appeals today refused to reverse a lower court which sentenced Dr. Thomas J. Kemp, a son-in-law of Senator Fletcher, of Florida, to a two-year jail term for sending prohibited matter through the mails. He may appeal further.

Form Canning Club

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

TALLAPOOSA, Ga., March 2.—A tomato canning club is being organized in Haralson county, and already about thirty people have applied for membership. It is the object of the club to produce $10,000 worth of tomatoes in this county in 1914. A formal organization will be made in a few weeks.

COLLEGE PARK PROFITS BY MUNICIPAL LIGHT PLANT

City's Assets Now Are $108,000 With Only $80,000 Liabilities

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

COLLEGE PARK, Ga., March 2.—That municipal ownership is profitable has been thoroughly demonstrated by the city of College Park. Less than three years ago this city was spending more than 50 per cent of the total income from all sources for street lights alone. At that time the city inaugurated a system of lights and water under municipal ownership. Today this system is furnishing 130 street lights free, maintaining a system that gives efficient service to more than 300 homes at a very low rate and putting more than $400 per month into the bond and sinking fund, after all expenses of the water and light departments have been paid.

W. W. Northern, public accountant, has just completed an audit of the financial affairs of the city for 1913. This report will be submitted to city council tonight. On good authority it is stated that this report will show the assets of the city to be in excess of $108,000, with liabilities, including outstanding bonds, of les than $80,000, leaving a surplus of over $30,000. The surplus of the city three years ago was less than $1,000, showing about $10,000 increase annually.

A comparison of figures of four years ago with those of the present show that the income from taxes and all other sources is now almost three times as great as in 1902. This is indicative of the growth of the city since there has been [illegible] a very slight increase in the tax rate.

Mr. Northern's report to council tonight will show that the city owns more than fifty miles of electric wirse and poles, more than seven miles of water mains, 300 water and light customers with free street lights, 130 in number, and free fire protection.

DISASTER AVERTED BY BROKEN TROLLEY WIRE

Suburban Electric Train Stops Just Before Crashing Into Obstruction

(By Associated Press.)

LOS ANGELES, March 2.—A broken trolley wire was all that saved a suburban electric train carrying 250 passengers from striking obstructions piled on the track between Del Rey and Redondo Beach and rolling down a twelve-foot embankment into the ocean late last night.

Running from Los Angeles along the ocean front toward Redondo at forty-five miles an hour, the two-car train slackened speed and stopped when the wire snapped and the current was interrupted.

A few yards ahead lay six ties piled across the track. A short distance farther on a hydraulic jack was chained to the rails. Beyond that was a big sawbuck.

The police are searching the beacn district for the would-be train wreckers.

Sailor Loses Life

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, La., Feb. 28.—After a visit of a week here the battleship Ohio sailed today for Brooklyn, where the crew is to be transferred to the new dreadnought New York. Captain J. S. McKean advised the city officials that Mayo A. Dow, aged twenty-three, of Lowell, Mass., a member of the Ohio's crew, either fell or jumped overboard today and was drowned.

MANY GEORGIA CITIES OWN POWER PLANTS

Municipal Control of Electric Light Plants in Seventy-Six Towns

Statistics compiled by the state railroad commission for its annual report show that seventy-six Georgia towns and cities have municipally owned and operated electric light plants. A number of these towns do not generate the current used by them, but buy it from privately-owned companies and distribute it within the municipal limits.

There are 127 cities and towns of 1,000 population or upward, having one or more public utilities serving them. One hundred and eighteen of these towns and cities are lighted by electricity, and, as stated above 76 of them own their plants, while 42 are lighted from privately-owned plants.

Thirteen towns and cities have gas plants, of which three are municipally owned. These three are Albany, Cartersville and Dalton.

The cities owning and operating municipal electric light plants are, Acworth, Arlington, Buena Vista, Cairo, Cartersville, College Park, Dalton, Dublin, Forsyth, Hampton, Jackson, Lawrenceville, McRae Moultrie Richland, Sparta, Sylvester, Thomasville, Warrenton, Winder, Adel, Ashburn, Blackshear, Calhoun, Cedartown, Dawson, Elberton, Ft. CIVIL SERVICE OFFICIAL ASKS MORE APPLICANTS

B. B. Hare Anxious That More Interest Be Taken in Securing Positions

In reference to the large number of civil service examinations to be held in Atlanta for the Fifth district, beginning March 2 and continuing at stated intervals until April 15, 1914, for government positions paying annual salaries ranging as high as $4,000, Butler B. Hare, district secretary, with headquarters here, calls especial attention to the apparent lack of interest in such examinations in the past and expresses the hope that this district will show more applicants in the future.

Mr. Hare stated that it might be of interest to some to know that the United States is divided into twelve civil service districts, established for convenience in holding examinations and making certifications for filling vacancies in certain field positions, that is, positions outside of Washington, D. C. The fifth district, with headquarters in Atlanta, compries the states of South Carolina, Georgia, Florida, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee.

When asked whether he contemplated making any changes in the work of the office, Mr. Hare said:

"As the method of administration has been so clearly defined by various acts of congress and rules promulgated by executive orders, there can be little or no change in the administrative features of the office. It shall be my purpose, however, to give greater publicity to all examinations and endeavor to interest a greater number of persons in the opportunities frequently offered by the government. So often you hear it said that the states in the fifth district do not receive as large a proportion of the better class positions in the government service as the other states or other sections."

FEW TAKE EXAMINATIONS.

"This is not surprising when we observe that such a small proportion of their population, when compared with other states, take the civil service examinations. For instance, I find from the records of the commission at Washington that one person out of every 10,000 population in the second civil service district took one of the manual (spring or fall) examinations in 1913. The same was true in the fourth district, while in the fifth district there was only one applicant out of every 23,000 population.

It has been asserted that many have refused to take the examinations in the past on account of their political affiliations, believing that because they belonged to a different political faith than the party in power they would be discriminated against and would therefore stand little or no chance of appointment. Whether or not this impression was well founded, I am not in a position to know, but since there has been a change in the administration, I am sure there can now be no grounds for such an apprehension.

"I might say just here that the increased publicity which we hope to give our examinations is not simply to get a greater number of applicants, but a greater number of persons competent to pass the examinations. It may not be amiss to say in this connection that over 50 per cent of the 4,500 persons who took our field service examinations last year failed to obtain eligible ratings. Contrary to general belief, it has been very difficult to obtain sufficient eligibles to meet the demands of a number of positions in the field service, especially stenographers, typewriters, marine firemen and postoffice clerks in some of the small offices.

It will be understood, however, that our efforts will not be confined to obtaining efficient eligibles for field service, but we will endeavor to give greater publicity to all departmental examinations for vacancies in Washington or elsewhere as they may arise from time to time."

MAY ERECT NEW RIBBON CO. PLANT IN ATLANTA

So impressed is he with Atlanta as a city and a distributing point, that E. C. Hirschfield, general manager of the American Ribbon and Carbon company, of Rochester, N. Y., who is visiting his local office here Monday, will when he returns to the factory urge the establishment of a factory in Atlanta.

Mr. Hirschfield has been here for several days, the guest of his southern manager, S. H. Nuckolls, who is in charge of the local office of the company. He has carefully looked over the ground and declares that he believes Atlanta an ideal spot for a branch plant for the manufacture of typewriter ribbons and carbon sheets.

His determination to come here, he says, is due entirely to the advantages offered by the city and its adjacent territory and because he realizes Atlanta is one of the foremost cities in the entire south.

WOMAN ACCUSED OF JAIL BREAKING PLOT

A fourth prisoner—a woman—is held at police station in addition to three others suspected of complicity in connection with the robbery of W. M. Lankford, of Canon, Ga., Friday night by a bandit posing as a detective.

She is Mrs. Fred Wilson, wife of one of the trio now behind the bars, consisting of Wilson, John J. Johnson and J. M. Griffith. Mrs. Wilson, according to officers, was overheard conversing with her husband in his cell the other day regarding an attempt the latter should make to escape.

The woman admits that Wilson urged her to slip him some saws, but declares she never made the attempt. Wilson, Johnson and Griffith are each in separate cells.

F. P. SINGLETON TAKEN TO HOSPITAL FOR TREATMENT

F. P. Singleton, of the J. J. Barnes-Fain & Co., who has been suffering from an attack of catarrh of the head, has been taken to Wesley Memorial hospital for treatment. His condition is not considered serious, and his physicians expect him to be out again soon.

WOMAN'S BEAUTY NO SECRET

It all lies in the care she bestows upon herself and in keeping at bay those dread ills peculiar to her sex. The flashing eye, the elastic step and the clear complexion never accompany organic troubles. The distressed expression, lassitude, headaches and mental depression are only the telltale symptoms. Women so troubled should take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, that simple remedy made from roots and herbs and restore their health to a normal condition.—(Advt).

French Duke and American Wife Are Here for a Visit

ARMAND DUC DE RICHELIEU.

Armand Duc de Richelieu Talks Interestingly When Finally He Is Cornered by Reporter for The Journal

Armand duc de Richelieu, with his wife, the Duchess de Richelieu, formerly Miss Douglas Wise, of Baltimore, Md., arrived at the Georgian Terrace hotel Monday morning, as he expressed it, the guest of the city, and incidentally the guest of these United States for the past seven months.

At the hotel the duc denied himself to all newspaper men having left instructions at the clerk's desk that he was in America purely on pleasure and positively declined to be interviewed. Quietly he left the hotel with his wife and Miss Katherine Ellis and called on Judge William T. Newman, of the United States court for the northern district of Georgia, in the federal building, whom he met during the Mardi Gras celebration in New Orleans, last week.

As has been said, the duc has been touring this country for the past seven months, and during that time has been successful in dodging newspaper men who continually, but without success, camped on his trail, so to speak. He even dodged the alert camera men until Monday morning when The Journal's staff photographer caught him as he left the postoffice building. At the click of the kodak, he smiled, and literally jumped into the machine, remarking in a delightful foreign accent, "You American newspaper men are certainly clever."

REPORTERS SEE HIM.

Also, let it be said the duc was interviewed, oFr the first time since he has been in this country he let down the bars of conventionality and talked to a Journal reporter who had been introduced to him by Judge Newman. At the time he was in ernest conversation with Randolph Anderson, of Savannah, Ga., president of the state senate. Politics interested him, he said, and he was glad of the opportunity to talk of conditions first hand with one who was in on the ground floor, so to speak.

Duc de Richelieu appeared somewhat surprised when he learned a reporter had gained audience with him. "I thought I had dodged all of you fellows," he laughed. "You know I never cared for publicity and always deny myself to representatives of the press. The Americans are so persistent in such matters and we Parisians are not exactly used to it."

The duc has just returned from the west and had intended going into Mexico, but said that he decided it was no place for him in vie wof the internal disturbances. Such a crid did not look particularly safe, he said, and he and the duchess decided, when they reached the border that the battle-ridden republic was no place for the casual sport or sight-seeing. They then turned their faces eastward and took in Mardi Gras before coming to Atlanta.

"We have heard much of your city," he said, "and I have always had a desire to visit a federal prison. I have never seen one and I am now on my way to the penitentiary here. There must be a striking contrast with our old prehistoric dungeons that have been standing for centuries and still in use.

"Atlanta is wonderful. It is really a big city with all the bustle that one sees in New York. It is your metropolis on a small scale and a city that every citizen should be proud of."

WAYCROSS MERCHANT IS SERIOUSLY BURNED

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WAYCROSS, Ga., March 2.—As he was building a fire in a heater this morning R. S. Dicken, well known merchant of Waycross, was seriously burned when his night clothes caught fire. Both arms were blistered by the flames and other parts of his body blistered. It is believed he will recover.

Meeting the Manufacturer Half Way

When the manufacturer of a well known branded article comes into The Journal with his advertisements, meet him half way, Mr. Dealer.

Show him that you appreciate the fact that he is making a market at your doorstep rather than at the doorstep of some other fellow in another town.

The manufacturer's advertising is going to create in the minds of people a desire to see the goods.

They will want to know more about them. Through co-operating with the manufacturer by showing the goods and letting the public know that you have them, you are bringing the trade into your own store.

At the same time you are meeting the manufacturer half way—you are showing him that you are alert to a good thing.

When that manufacturer has any extra favors to distribute he is pretty sure to come your way.

One big favor he has always shown is to decrease your cost of selling goods. It only takes a second to hand out an article asked for by name, and to please your customer. It may take half an hour to sell something else, and displease your customer in doing it.

PRINTERS HAVE CHARGE OF WIER'S CAMPAIGN

Members of the Typographical Union Will Conduct Race for County Commissioner

The campaign of William S. Wier, who was put into the race for a place on the board of Fulton county commissioners last week by the Labor Legislative League, representing the five thousand members of organized labor in Atlanta, will be in charge of the three hundred odd members of Atlanta Typographical Unibn, No. 48, of which Mr. Wier is a leading member.

At the meeting of the typographical union Sunday afternoon a report was read from the Labor Legislative League in which that body's indorsement of Mr. Wier was proclaimed.

Immediately after the union adjourned its business session the members present resolved themselves into a mass-meeting and adopted a resolution providing that the union printers should take charge of Mr. Wier's campaign.

J. L. Rodier was elected chairman of the campaign committee and Earl Griggs was chosen secretary. Sometime during the week the executive committee with sub-committees on registration, publicity and mass-meetings will be announced.

Mr. Wier is one of the best known members of organized labor in Atlanta. He is a son of A. M. Wier, of DeKalb county, known all over the south through his writer's nom de plume of "Sarge Plunkett."

Mr. Wier has been a citizen of Atlanta and its suburbs all his life. He resides at Center Hill, Fulton county, and is foreman of The Atlanta Journal composing room. He is thoroughly conversant with county affairs and is one of the best stump speakers in the state.

ASKS APPROPRIATION FOR A NATIONAL UNIVERSITY

Prominent Educators Approve of Plans and Will Argue in Its Favor

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Representative Fess' bill asking an initial appropriation of $50,000 for the establishment in Washington of a "National University of the United States" was considered again today by the house committee on education. That the measure would receive the committee's favorable indorsement at an early date was predicted, as the members of the committee expressed almost unanimous approval of the project.

Prominent educators representing the National Association of State Universities and the National Education association were ready to be heard, well supplied with arguments favoring the creation of the proposed institution.

Representative Fess had supplied the committee with complete outline of his proposal. According to his statement the bill would create an institution equipped to advance science and the fine arts; to train men and women for posts of responsibilitity in public and private service, and to work in co-operation with the public and private institutions of learning in the United States. It would be supported by government or by individual donations, and would not interfere with any other institutions of higher learning. A board oftr ustees to be appointed by the president would be authorized to supervise the workings of the institutions.

ROAD CONGRESS TO OPEN NOVEMBER 9

Fred Houser, secretary of the convention bureau of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, is in receipt of a telegram Monday morning from J. E. Pennypacker, secretary of the American Road congress, advising him that the week of November 9, 1914, has been selected for the mammoth gathering.

Now that this final and important detail is settled, the committee in charge of the advance work will renew their eenrgies toward making the necessary preparations to take care of the delegates and care for the numerous exhibits of road machinery and materials.

CITY WELL ADVERTISED BY SHRINERS' MEETING

Folder Issued by N. C. & St. L. Ry. Will Be Distributed All Over the Country

"Atlanta is getting more advertising and better advertising, out of the fact that the Mecca of Shrinedom will be here in May, than she ever could have gotten in any other way at any cost," said Forrest Adair, potentate of Yaarab Temple, Monday, pointing to a pile of mail.

First on top was a new folder issued by the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis railroad, with Shriners' fezes in red on the covers, and with the inside pages full of information about Atlanta and the south, all illustrated with fine photographs. This folder, said Mr. Adair, will be distributed all over the country, like that issued by the Southern railway recently, and will be read by thousands of people to whom Atlanta heretofore has been but a name.

Another docufent in the pile was a bulletin issued by Kismet Temple, of Brooklyn, on the Atlanta pilgrimage, extolling the sights to be seen and the times to be had, and inviting all its members to join the big caravan. Kismet is one of the temples that will bring both its patrol and its band.

Below that was an elaborate bulletin from Medinah Temple, Chicago, telling of the Atlanta trip.

Another bulletin, just as elaborate, issued by Almas Temple, Washington, devoted one of its pages to the Atlanta pilgrimage, giving in detail the itinerary arranged for the nobles.

BRENAU LIERARY SOCIETY INSTALLS NEW MEMBERS

Four Young Women Added to Membership List of Phi Beta Sigma

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

GAINESVILE, Ga., March 2.—Annual installation of new members of Phi Beta Sigma, the honorary literary society at Brenau college, took place at noon Friday in the college auditorium.

Miss Jurelle Little, of Cordele, Ga., Miss Louise Lidden, of Mariana, Fla., Miss Katherine Lumpkin, of Columbia, S. C., Miss Maggie Marvin, of Hendersonville, N. C.; and Miss Mary Gullatt Smith, of Talbotton, Ga., are the newly-elected members.

Announcement of the new members of Phi Beta Sigma is one of the most important events of the college year. The girls are chosen by vote of the faculty, and election to the society is considered the highest honor in the college.

Dr. H. J. Pearce, one of the presidents of Brenau, delivered the address at the installation exercises, his subject being "Truth."

The talk which was marked by scholarly and original thought, was most interesting. He discussed the ever-changing aspects of truth and stressed the necessity of keeping in touch with it as it evolves into newer phases.

STUDENTS ARE ACQUITTED FOR KILLING A "PEEPER"

(By Associated Press.)

MOUNT VERNON, Iowa, March 2.—Four Cornell college students were relieved by a coroner's jury here this evening of blame for the death of Howard Manning. A bullet fired by one of the students to fighten Manning, caught peeping into the windows of the girls' dormitory last night, killed him. The four students recently were deputized by town officials to watch for men who had been annoying the young women.

PRISON PAPER STARTS CAMPAIGN FOR REFORMS

"Good Words," Printed in Atlanta Penitentiary, Advocates Changes

"Good Words" the prison paper of the Atlanta Federal penitentiary, has inaugurated a series of unique articles that are nothing short of a campaign, conducted by the prisoners themselves, for prison reform.

It is not directed so much at the prison itself or any particular phase of life at the Atlanta pen, but at the general system in vogue in all United States penitentiaries.

The establishm nt of a technical training school in the prison, changes in the administration of the parole law, the proposal of a United States prison commission—these are some of the suggestions made by "Good Words."

Warden Moyer has told the prison editors, "The paper belongs to the prisoners to express their views, and I am not inclined to put any restraint on them, within reasonable limits."

Both by cartoon and by printed word the paper sends forth its suggestions. Coming as they do from those who of all men are certainly most interested in prison reform and should be best inform d of conditions in the prison, the views of the paper are most interesting.

Following is the new plan for prison management suggested in the current issue of Good Words:

We offer the following for consideration:

The supervision and control of federal prisons and prisoners shall be vested in a board, to be known as the United States Prison Commission, composed of three memb rs to be appointed by the president and to hold office during his pleasure.

The board shall meet at stated periods at each prison, and at such other times and places as they may determine upon.

The board shall have full jurisdiction to grant paroles to prisoners at any time after sentence, whether or not appeals are pending, and shall receive all applications for executive pardons or commutations, and report their findings to the president for his action.

The board shall apoint a superintendent of prisons and district parole officers, and such other officers and employes as are not otherwise herein provided for.

The board shall appoint for each prison, a warden, deputy warden, physician, chief clerk, chaplain and prisoner's atorney.

The warden of each prison shall appoint all other officers and employes for such prison.

The superintendent of prisons shall appoint a deputy, and such other clerical force as may be needed, subject to the approval of the board.

The board shall designate parole districts, and a parole officer for each district, who shall have the care and control of paroled prisoners residing therein.

The prisoner's attorney shall be an atttorney at law, admitted to practice before the United States supreme court. He shall reside in the vicinity of the prison, and shall have an office therein. He shall have no other business, and shall devote his entire time to the purpose for which he was appointed. He shall maintain regular office hours, and shall at all proper times be accessible to prisoners to hear, investigate and seek a remedy for any case of hardship, or injustice done to a prisoner, by which he was wrongfully convicted, or sentenced to suffer an excessive term of imprisonment, and also any wrong or unnecessary hardship inflicted on a prisoner within such prison. He shall represent the prisoners seeking paroles, pardons or communications.

The salary and necessary expenses of such attorney shall be paid by the United States, and he shall not otherwise receive directly or indirectly any fees or gratuities.

Here are a few interesting news items gleaned from "Good Words:"

"Good Words begins its third voyage on the stormy sea of prison journalism."

There are 793 prisoners in the Atlanta pen, 22 received in February, 36 discharged in February, 82 on parole, 7 discharged from parole.

Thirteen new books have been added to the prison library, including detective stories by Le Quex and Maurice LeBlanc, Henry Sidnor Harrison's "Queed;" Rex Beach's "The Silver Horde;" Alexander Dumas' "Camille," and books by O. Henry, Frances Hodgson Burnett and Orrison Sweet Marden.

At a recent track and field meet such prizes were awarded as pie, ham and egg suppers, steak and potato suppers, and apples.

A minstrel show and moving pictures on Washington's birthday were included in February amusements at the prison.

The baseball season hasn't started at the prison, but a game was played on the only Saturday in the month of February that wasn't rainy. Another game was played on the Monday following Washington's birthday. Although the prisoners now have two hours of recreation each Sunday, they have refused of their own accord to desecrate the Sabbath with a regular ball game.

A regular season of handball games will be arranged at the prison.

COL. HALL HAS MANY PLANS FOR REGIMENT

Fifth's New Head Considers Several Novel Entertainment Features for Militiamen

Colonel Orville H. Hall, recently elected to head the Fifth Georgia regiment, vice Colonel E. E. Pomeroy, resigned, is planning a number of events that are already the source of much interest among the militiamen. At present plans are on foot for the exercises marking the presentation of the silk regimental colors at the auditorium-armory some time this month.

The details of this event, while not completely worked out, promise a most entertaining evening. The entire regiment will be massed at the armory with its bands and some lady, whose identity is to be kept a secret, will present the colors during the program of appropriate exercises.

Colonel Hall has planned for each of the companies to have two sponsors who shall occupy boxes as a special mark of distinction. The boxes will be decorated with the colors and flags of the company they represent.

THE EVENING STORY

(Copyright, 1914, by W. Werner.)

AT EIGHT YEARS

Ellen sat on a low gate and swung her bare legs carelessly and impudently. She was eight years old, thin, freckled and tow headed. Her wardrobe made one think of a rainbow, because it was so unlike one, both in color and charm. Originally her somewhat soiled gown had been a pretty brown and pink plaid gingham, but it had been worn successively by her big cousin Edith in the city, then by her small cousin Etta, then by her three-year-older sister Linda, and when, after numerous launderings and remakings, it had come to her, the brown and pink squares were blotches of drab and muggiiness.

"It's 'cause of it," grumbled Ellen to herself, and cast sour eyes upon the limp, soiled skirt. But immediately she assumed a blatantly cheerful expression and sang, with a loudness of voice intended to carry far:

"There is sunshine in my soul today. Sunshine, bl-e-s-sed sunshine."

Down the opposite street strolled a group of other eight-year-olds white socked, white shoed, and bright sashed, their hair a-flutter with pink or blue ribbons. They spoke to Ellen condescendingly. They were acquainted with her. Oh, yes, they knew her well, having gone to the same school teacher for over two years. But they had been invited to Annie Smith's party and Ellen hadn't. Ellen was hardly ever invited to parties—she didn't fit at parties. Their fathers didn't go much on Ellen's father. He worked only sometimes at odd jobs. Mostly he tinkered at Ellen's home. And Ellen's mother didn't associate much with their mothers. Mostly she was sick—a pain in her side, she said and Ellen said—lazy, their mothers said, and they added: "Treat Ellen nicely and be polite to her, but don't play with her."

So they didn't. Ellen looked after them oddly. It is hard to keep your face creased as required in a carolling "Bl-e-ssed Sunshine," when one wants to cry. Ellen blinked her eyes. At parties they have ice cream, and Ellen had heard, from a gossip at school, that at Annie Smith's house they had two kinds of ice cream, also a delicious sort of candy that stores never sold.

Snc didn't fit at parties.

She whirled from the gate and started down the street. In times of great grief Ellen found solace looking at the postcards in the window of the news store downtown. But presently she turned and came slowly back. Somehow today postcards in a window didn't appeal. She turned in time to collide with a grim, old whiskered man who carried a satchel.

He was looking for Ellen's father. "Dunno," yawned Ellen. She wasn't in a mood for talking, although at times she would have been glad of the diversion. "I s'pose, though," she added, with some of the disgust she had seen in her thin tired mother, "that he's home tinkerin,. That's where we live," waving a small hand at the shabby house. The old man looked at her carefully, then he went up the shabby walk and knocked.

And then Ellen forgot all about him. Through the lilac bushes in the yard at the end of the street she could see the green grass beside Annie Smith's pretty white and green home. They were playing there. That was Mabel's blue sash that flashed past the opening between the two tall shrubs. She could even catch a shrill cry. "They're playin' hunt the handkerchuf," sighed Ellen. "I always did like that game."

Presently she went into the house. The sunshine of the afternoon had dulled and the first grayness of oncoming evening was falling. Maybe supper would be ready, and maybe there would be something good for supper. That latter hardly ever happened, but Ellen exerted all her power of hope. But supper wasn't ready, and she didn't see anything in sight—she had surreptitiously peeked into the cupboard—except some cold Irish stew left from the evening before. Ellen didn't care much for Irish stew, but she was quite sure that her mother would not throw anything so eatable out. Down at Annie Smith's house they lots of times threw stuff out that they didn't like. Ellen's mother was making no preparations for supper, either. She was sitting hunched in a chair and her cheeks were red. In the parlor, which was sitting room and bedroom, too, Ellen's father was talking to the old man. He seemed terribly excited. How foolish! No one gave a party and left him out. Ellen sighed lonesomely. "Ma," she began.

"Don't talk to me now," said her mother, sharply. She was listening to Ellen's father as he declared excitedly. "Don't try to jew me down. Good heavens! Do you think I don't know how much the idea is worth? Why, it will revolutionize gas heating. I want twenty thousand——"

Ellen wandered out and swung on the gate. The gray dusk had crept down heavily and now she could no longer see among the lilac bushes. And the girls had gone inside. They were likely eating supper—ice cream and candy and pickles and cake and pie. Ellen stamped her foot. "I wish there was no such thing as warmed over stew," she said passionately to the gate.

Then the old man came out, walking rapidly. He smiled at Ellen as he passed, but she didn't smile back. Why should she? She didn't feel like smiling. She went inside. Still there were no preperation for supper. Her mother and father were talking fast—half crying, it seemed. Their words came tumbling out like the school teacher's when she caught a boy chewing gum.

"Knew they liked me."

"I held out," cried her father. "I knew well enough that he'd never come this far, unless he meant business. And the royalties beside the twenty thousand down. Pretty good, eh! And there's that other lamp that I've almost got figured out. He'll jump for it. Oh, now that it's over I don't know how we've struck——"

"It's over," said Ellen's mother. "Dear, I lost patience at times."

"But you needn't skimp and fuss any more. And now I can get you a decent climate."

They turned at sight of Ellen.

"Ellen," said her father, "what do you want more than anything else in the world?"

"Not to have stew for supper," promptly replied Ellen.

Her father and mother laughed and grimaced. "But I'm afraid you'll have to," sighed her mother. "I wouldn't ask them to trust us——"

"Oh, we can stand it for another day," jovially said her father, "and, then, when I deposit this check I guess our credit will be good."

Ellen looked at her parents curiously. Why, they ate that old warmed over stew as though it were—say, ice cream. And they laughed. And a day later they read the town newspaper together and laughed.

"Our esteemed citizen," quoted her father, "inventor—and last week I was that 'tinkerer.' Like it?" he said, turning to Ellen, who was chewing candy at a rate calculated to make up for years of restraint. She nodded.

And presently Ellen strolled out to the gate. Some girls were passing. She wished they could know that her mother had bought some goods to make her a new pale pink dress. She wished that she had it on. Of course they might not be impressed; but they might. And then those girls who yesterday had sailed by with a condescending nod halted. "Hello!" said Ellen, wonderingly. "What did they want?

"I think it was a shame Annie Smith didn't ask you to her party," said Mabel Brown, earnestly. "But I'm going to have one next week, and my mother says I must ask you, Ellen. And me says your mother is the sweetest woman."

Surprise and delight struggled for supremacy in Ellen's blue eyes. How nice, and how overwhelming. And presently Mabel elected to play "drop the handkerchuf" in Ellen's yard.

"I was so surprised," Ellen afterward confided to her mother. "Why, I never knew they liked me."

Ellen's mother laughed queerly. "It's the way of the world," she said.

MRS. SARAH B. O'KEEFE TO BE BURIED MONDAY

Pioneer Society Woman and Took Interest in Important Civic Questions

The funeral of Mrs. Sarah Branch O'Keefe, who died Saturday night at the residence of Mrs. Drury Powers on Peachtree Circle, will be held Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock from the Second Baptist church. Interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

Mrs. O'Keefe's death is regretted by a large number of friends. She was the daughter of the late Captain John Branch, a wealthy planter of Green county, Georgia, and was the widow of the late Dr. Daniel Cornelius O'Keefe, a prominent physician, writer and founder of Atlanta's public schools.

Mrs. O'Keefe was a woman of fine mentality and strong character. She had long been a well known figure in the life of the city. She was left a widow when comparatively young, and successfully undertook the management of a large estate, and was interested in all important public questions. She had been a constant reader of The Journal since its first publication.

She belongs to the Pioneer society, and was a devout member of the Second Baptist church. Her life was characterized by beautiful unselfishness, and she will be lovingly remembered by many friends in Atlanta, in Georgia, and in other southern states.

She is survived by three children, Mrs. Wallace Kirkpatrick, Mrs. Drury Powers, and Mrs. Julia O'Keefe Nelson.

Here's an Atlanta fact.
You can test it.

D. J. Johnson, contractor and builder, 382 Spring St., Atlanta, Ga., says: "About four years ago, I first used Doan's Kidney Pills for kidney complaint that had been bothering me for years. It began with a feeling of distress in my head and often I could see black specks in front of me. The kidney secretions were scanty and sometimes I couldn't pass them for twelve hours. The secretions burned in passage and there was sediment in them. I am now free from all these kidney ailments, since I used four boxes of Doan's Kidney Pills. They gave me a lasting cure after other remedies failed to help me."

MARCELLUS ANDERSON'S ELECTION IS CERTAIN

General Council Will Override Seventh Ward's Nomination for Police Board

General council Monday afternoon in the election of a police commissioner from the seventh ward will override the precedent of letting the ward delegation's nomination control.

The seventh ward delegation will nominate R. T. Pace for the police board. Council will elect Marcellus M. Anderson, on the nomination of someone other than the seventh ward delegation.

It should be stated for Mr. Pace, who is superintendent of the Atlanta Terminal Station, that he has made no campaign for the election. He was selected by the seventh ward delegation when they saw that thy could not beat Mr. Anderson with Fred Lester, who had been their choice. Mr. Anderson's friends have made an energetic campaign in his behalf and secured the promise of enough votes to override the precedent and defeat Mr. Lester. Then Mr. Lester withdrew and the seventh ward delegation picked Mr. Pace. But Mr. Anderson's friends were unwilling to compromise, and he will be elected.

Mr. Anderson is now serving the unexpired term of J. N. McEachern on the police board. He will be elected to a full term. It will be recalled that Mr. Anderson and Mr. McEachern swapped places last fall. Mr. McEachern resigned from the police board, and Mr. Anderson, then a member of the board of education, resigned from that board and was elected to serve Mr. McEachern's unexpired term on the police board. Thereupon Mr. McEachern was elected to fill Mr. Anderson's unexpired term on the board of education.

Three other members of the police board will be elected Monday afternoon.

In the Eighth ward Robert C. Clarke is opposed for re-election by Henry Heinz. The latter is cashier of the Mitchell street branch of the Central Bank and Trust Corporation. He came into the race only a short time ago, and his advent took Mr. Clarke's friends by surprise. On his nomination the eighth ward delegation will be divided. Alderman John S. Owens of the eighth ward, who is vice president of the Central Bank and Trust Corporation, will nominate Mr. Heinz. Councilman Humphrey and Councilman Reynolds of the eighth ward, will nominate Mr. Clarke.

The race between these gentlemen is close. The result is still in doubt.

The term of Charles Mason of the first ward, chairman of the police board for several years, expires Monday, and he is ineligible for re-election to the board, having served the full time allowed by the city charter. Dr. A. H. Baskin, a well known physician and former councilman of the first ward, will be elected to succeed him without opposition.

Andy King, police commissioner from the Ninth ward, whose term expires Monday, will be reelected without opposition.

Atlanta Council, No. 2, Junior Order United American Mechanics, will give an entertainment for the benefit of the orphans Friday evening, March 6, at Taft hall. A two-act farce will be put on, spattered with jokes on people and places in Atlanta. A spanking machine will be used in the course of the evening.

ATLANTA RESIDENTS TO HELP STRIPLING'S FAMILY

Sympathizer, a Poor Man, Sends Journal $5 Toward Proposed Fund of $100

Their sympathy aroused by the story in The Journal's Sunday magazine of Edgar Stripling, the ex-police chief, dying at the state prison farm at Milledgeville and unable to care for his destitute family, Atlanta folk started a movement Monday to raise the necessary $100 which will save his family from mendicancy.

One who signs himself "a sympathizer" encloses a $5 bill in a letter to The Journal, and calls upon the people of Atlanta to be among the donors to the fund. He recalls the pathetic case of Stripling, who killed Bill Cornett in Harris county for alleged ill-usage of Stripling's sister, was imprisoned, escaped and lived for thirteen years as Danville, Va.'s, chief of police before he was brought back to Georgia to serve his time.

"You good people with warm homes and Christian spirits chip in and let us raise the sum in a jiffy," writes "a sympathizer." "I am a poor man, but this appeal from this 'man of destiny' is too much for me to resist. Let us show this man and his family that although he is in prison there are sympathizers on the outside who are praying that the state prison commission will soon take up his case and that their action will be favorable for an immediate pardon."

BROTHERS ARRESTED ON SHIP FOR HONOLULU

Said to Have Duped Chicago Bank of $4,800—Apprehended by Wireless

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, Mar. 2.—J. C. and J. E. Fielding, brothers, of Montreal, Canada, were arrested on board the steamer Matmonia, bound from San Francisco to Honolulu and the orient, charged with obtaining $4,800 fraudulently from the Continental and Commercial National bank, of Chicago, according to a wireless message received yesterday.

According to Samuel W. Jackson, local attorney for the Royal Bank of Canada, the brothers left Montreal two weeks ago. J. C. Fielding was auditor of the Royal Bank at St. Lambert, a Montreal suburb. His brother was employed by a Montreal insurance broker. Two days after their departure bank officials are said to have found several blank drafts gone.

A warning was sent to the bank's correspondents in New York, Chicago and San Francisco. The warning was received by the Continental and Commercial National bank here two hours after it had paid a $4,800 draft on the Canadian bank to "J. E. Johnston." The description of Johnston is said to have fitted that of J. E. Fielding.

The San Francisco bank is said to have made plans to catch "Johnston." When the young man appeared with a $5,000 draft, however, he scented trouble and disappeared. It was learned he had sailed on the Matsonia, and his arrest was ordered by wireless.

STORM DEVELOPED IN SOUTHWEST GEORGIA

(By Associated Press.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., Feb. 28.—Developing suddenly in southwestern Georgia, a storm swept through south Georgia in a northeasterly direction tonight. It will continue its course up the Atlantic coast.

The first news of the storm's approach was received by the local weather bureau at night in the following telegram from the central bureau in Washington: "Hoist northeast storm warnings 8 p. m. Fort Monroe to Savannah. Storm central in southwest Georgia, moving northeastward and increasing in intensity. Will give strong winds along south Atlantic coast tonight, shifting to northwest Sunday."

The advance is made, President John Casper Branner said, in order that these men and their wives may maintain at least a suitable standard of living.

One hundred and sixty of the beneficiaries are married. A like increase of $10,000 was made last year.

ATTORNEY FIGHTS EFFORT TO MAKE WOMAN MOVE

Carl Guess Declares He Will Get an Injunction for Client, Lula Bell

Declaring he will take out an injunction preventing Chief Beavers from moving his client, Lula Bell, from 164 1-2 Decatur street, Attorney Carl Guess Monday morning prepared to fight charges against her of operating a disorderly house when she is arraigned before Judge Andy Calhoun Tuesday.

Lula Bell has been bound over seven times since the closing of Atlanta's restricted district, each time on the statement of the police that 164 and 164 1-2 Decatur was a disorderly house, and not a boarding house, as she claims.

She was never convicted in the higher court. She was bound over again by Recorder Broyles Monday morning, and the recorder ordered the chief to force her to move. Her attorney, Carl Guess, declared he would at once get out an injunction preventing the chief from so acting.

In the meantime Lula Bell will appear in Judge Calhoun's court Tuesday in a case for which she was bound over some time ago, and in addition has Monday's case to face trial for later on.

MISSIONARIES RETURN TO POSTS IN FUKIEN

(By Associated Press.)

PEKING, March 2.—American missionaries, who for a long time have been at Fuchow, province of Fukien, fearing to return to their missions in the interior because of the hostility of the brigand, Hwang-Liang, have gone back to their posts, the government having guaranteed their safety. The government also indemnified the missionaries for property destroyed by the brigands.

U. S. WILL NOT HAVE TO IMPORT FOODSTUFFS

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 2.—"There is no cause for alarm in the imminent possibility that the United States will have to import wheat and other food stuffs," said United States Senator Theodore E. Burton, of Ohio, today at the Saturday luncheon of the Republican club. At present the average acre of land in this country, he explained, produces only fifteen bushels of grain, while the average for England, France and Germany is from twenty-eight to thirty. Better farming would ultimately restore the economic equilibrium of the United States, now seemingly threatened, he said.

CARRIERS PERMITTED TO MAKE CHANGE IN RATES

Interstate Commerce Commission Authorizes Changes Under Certain Conditions

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 2.—An order was issued today by the interstate commerce commission permitting common carriers to make ordinary changes in rates pending action on applications for relief from the operation of the law's long and short haul provision.

Specific regulations for the making of such changes are prescribed by the commission and they must be made with the understanding that the commission does not give necessarily its approval to them. They may be attacked by shippers and may be changed by the commission.

TEN BRITISH COAL KING STATUES CAUSE TROUBLE

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, March 2.—Complete disruption of the Royal Society of British Sculptors is threatened by a squabble over the selection of sculptors to execute ten statues which are being presented to the Cardiff city hall by D. A. Thomas, the British coal king.

Original promise of Mr. Thomas was to hold a competition, but he subsequently decided to invite the council of the society to appoint an adviser to assist him in selecting the sculptors. Sir George J. Frampton, president of the society, was appointed adviser, and commissions for the statues were awarded to ten selected sculptors. The result was discontent on the part of the unselected, who raised such a disturbance at today's meeting of the society that the entire council, including Sir George Frampton, resigned.

The Roar of the March Lion Calls For Warmer Bedding

And Now Comes the Clearaway of All Blankets and Comfortables

A blanket on the bed is worth two in a store---on such a night as last night.

Lest there be other nights right soon such as last night, make your way early tomorrow to this Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. Clearaway.

This is the last call on Blankets and Comfortables.

Prices have dropped with the thermometer.

A housekeeper will not have to reason long about the savings---blankets and comfortables to end the season with, to begin next fall with---the economies of this sale are evident from both viewpoints.

We merely list the reductions below, believing that most Atlanta women have come to know that at regular prices values are representative here and therefore that the savings are genuine.

You will find that many of the blankets are a little soiled on the outer fold---not "dangerously". The comfortables are fresh.

The Blankets

$4.50 Were $6.50; 12-4 size, three-quarters wool; white, with pink and blue borders.

$5.00 Were $7.50; 11-4 size, three-quarters wool; white, with pink and blue borders.

$6.50 Were $10.00; 11-4 size, seven-eighths wool; white, with pink and blue borders.

$6.00 Were $8.50; 12-4 size, three-quarters wool; white, with pink and blue borders.

$9.00 Were $12.50; 12-4 size, seven-eighths wool; white, with pink and blue borders.

$11.50 Were $15.00; 12-4 size, seven-eighths wool; white, with pink and blue borders.

$12.00 Were $16.50; 13-4 size, seven-eighths wool; white, with pink and blue borders.

The Comfortables

$1.00 Were $1.25; crib size, 45x54 inches; cotton filled; pink and blue colors.

$2.25 Were $3.50; size 6x7 feet; sateen covers; many patterns.

$2.75 Were $4.00; size 6x7 feet; maish cotton filled; fancy covers.

$4.00 Were $5.00; size 6x6 feet; down filled; satin covers.

$6.50 Were $7.50; size 6x7 feet; filled with lamb's wool; silkoline covers.

$17.50 Were $25.00; size 6x7 feet; filled with lamb's wool; silk covers.

Here's News!

A Clearaway of Rich and Beautiful, Street, Reception and Evening Dresses

$45, $50, $55, $60 to $85 Dresses Are $15.00

$30 and $35 Dresses Are $10.00

An odd lot---priced in the typical Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose Co. clearaway fashion. The dresses show the marks of handling. We can not hold them as perfectly fresh, but the ingenuity of a woman will soon remedy that.

There are twelve of those at $15. They are gorgeous affairs---every one a distinct style. Lacy bodices, velvets, charmeuse, chiffons, jeweled bands, rich girdles---these are but the elements of their beauty. A wonderful opportunity for twelve women. With these we have put one opera coat of brocaded pink velvet, kimono sleeves, three-quarter length, skunk collar. It was $50, now $15.

There are six of the dresses now $10. Chiffons in light shades, lacy, frilly, of beautiful lines.

Who will get them?

$2.00 Messaline Petticoats $1.50

Some six dozen all silk messaline Petticoats—about all colors—get into a Clearaway tomorrow at $1.50 each. Splendid values at $2.00. Accordion plaited ruffles.

Free Delivery Within 300 Miles

Hereafter all purchases of $5.00 or more will be delivered within the third parcel post zone free of charge.

The Value of Polar Exploration.

To those who ask doubtfully what practical good can ever come from polar quests, the recent Antarctic expedition conducted by Dr. Douglas Mawson, of Australia, suggests an interesting answer. Dr. Mawson reports among his rare discoveries the finding of a vast bed of coal and also deposits of copper and other valuable minerals.

These resources, to be sure, are now unavailable, however abundant they may be. But who can say that in time they will not be brought within reach of civilization and, perhaps, serve urgent needs? Human life on this planet is in its infancy. Industrial commonplaces of today were marvels dimly dreamed of a thousand years ago, and less than five centuries past America itself was a wilderness as remote from the world's activity as arctic or antarctic regions now are. To science, a thousand years are but as a day. The essential, ultimate value of treasure stored around the poles is not to be overlooked or minimized. The earth's supply of fuel is said to be steadily dwindling. Is it not possible that in ages to come men will turn to these mines of the frozen north and south for motive power and for warmth against the winter's flaw?

The spirit of the polar quest is the spirit of research and discovery in which all our great conquests over matter have been achieved. When Columbus sailed adventurously westward with his three little caravels, there was no practical need for a new continent. The Old World was concerned with many problems far more pressing, it seemed, than those of geography; yet, as matters eventually fell out, the voyage of 1492 was the all important event of the age. It was a pathway to new endeavor, new opportunity and the beginning of tremendous changes in the history of the world.

Arctic and antarctic exploration is justified by the truths of science it brings to light, by the examples of courage and hardihood it holds aloft, by the sense of fresh human interest it awakens, and it may be justified long centuries hence by the stores of natural treasure to which it blazes a way.

Half the truth may cause more trouble than a whole lie.

Some men who pose as highflyers land with a dull, sickening ker-chug.

Remarkable Growth Of Southern Banks

"With about one-third of the total population of the country, and with its background of twenty years of stress and strain causing it to be slow to accumulate any kind of capital and slower to turn its capital to national banking, the South has in its national banks $415,592,033, or 20.2 per cent of the total capital, surplus and undivided profits of all the national banks of the country; $2,142,656,730, or 23.4 per cent of the total aggregate resources; and $1,089,229,251, or 17.9 of the total individual deposits."

These figures, compiled by the Manufacturers' Record from official reports on the condition of the country's national banks at the close of business on January 14 last, strikingly attest the soundness and the growth of the South's financial interests. In 1880, as the Record observes, the national banks in the seventeen Southern States under review had only 11.6 per cent of the capital, 9.6 per cent of the aggregate resources and 8.4 per cent of the individual deposits of all such banks in the United States. Since that year, when the South began to emerge from the blight of war, the capital of its national banks has increased 358.6 per cent, their aggregate resources 1003.9, their individual deposits 1389.6.

This rate of advance is relatively far greater than that of the remainder of the country. Since 1900, the Record shows, "the increase has been at a rate greater than 130 per cent in capital, greater than 230 per cent in aggregate resources, and greater than two hundred and ten per cent in individual deposits for national banks in the South, while for those in the rest of the country the increase has been less than 67 per cent in capital, less than 123 per cent in aggregate resources and less than 143 per cent in individual deposits."

Particularly imprssive is the statement that the aggregate resources of national banks in the South are now nearly thirty-seven million greater than were those of all the national banks in 1880 and that the deposits of the South's national banks exceed by $215,691,614 the deposits in all the national banks thirty-four years ago, despite the fact that the population of the South is seventeen millions less than that of the entire country in 1880. This remarkable advance in banking interests simply reflects the South's development in all fields of material endeavor.

Women form alliances with each other for offensive and defensive purposes.

Atlanta's Business Vigor.

Atlanta's bank clearings continue to give striking proof of the city's business vigor. For February, they amounted to sixty-one million, nine hundred and ninety-three thousand, seven hundred and ninety-one dollars, an increase over the corresponding month of last year of seven million, seven hundred and seventy thousand, six hundred and fifty-five dollars.

This record is the more noteworthy because it is typical of conditions which have developed steadily since last autumn and, indeed, for years past. Atlanta's bank clearings for 1913 exceeded those of 1912 by considerably more than thirty-three and a half million dollars. They advanced from less than sixty-one millions in 1893 to more than three quarters of a billion in 1913. And this year they are growing more substantially than ever.

Atlanta reflects the material progress of all the southeastern states. Its trade and industry are interlaced with that of the fertile region of which it is the financial center. Its achievements are representative of this entire territory; its prosperity is an omen of the whole south's future.

This community has thriven in periods of general depression. Its business has moved surely forward when other parts of the country were downcast and hesitant. It possesses inherent strength that renders it, in a measure, proof against untoward conditions, however prevalent they may be. What wonderful development may we, then, expect when the nation at large is astir with business energy and faith!

From every corner of the Union come auguries of good times. "A great industrial revival has begun," says the New York Herald, basing its statement on carefully gathered facts. "The American people have lost none of their ingenious enterprise, indomitable energy or surpassing skill, and there is going to be an abundance of cheap credit—the sinews of peace—at their disposal. The country never was on a sounder basis than at present, and the recent partial restriction of industries will be inevitably followed by a period of unexampled activity and prosperity."

Under the stimulus of such conditions, the native vigor of this city and state and of the great region around them will leap forward to extraordinary results.

To buy its own liquor, Tennessee will have to move out of the state.

In union there may be strength but without unions there would be no divorces.

After all, the Georgia moonshiner remains the original anti-prohibitionist.

Pass the Rural Credits Bill.

Democratic leaders do well to urge the enactment of a rural credits bill at the earliest possible day, certainly before the present session of Congress adjourns. The matter is one of peculiar importance to the party and to the country.

The subject of rural credits was purposely excluded from the banking and currency law because that measure was designed to serve general needs. It was commonly understood, however, and tacitly agreed that the financial interest of agriculture would be taken up without delay and duly provided for.

When this is done, the administration will have completed its great constructive program in behalf of the country's economic welfare; and the party will enter the autumn campaign on an invulnerable record.

Senator Fletcher, of Florida, has introduced a bill for the establishment of a national farm-land bank system that admirably meets the needs of the situation. It is to be hoped that this measure will be pressed to prompt enactment.

Cheer up, the first has come.

And yet spring is only three weeks off.

These bills tax our income even if Uncle Sam doesn't.

As a moral force, the average man can never hope to be more than a danger signal.

Now that it has come in like a lion, we would like to see it go out like a lamb.

Huerta probably feels relieved by having the spotlight turned from him to Villa.

Editorials in Brief

What shall we do with our ex-presidents? That query never will be applied to William Howard Taft. Since leaving the White House the former statesman has been honored on a number of occasions. As a lecturer on law in one of the great universities of the country he has been a very busy man for some time. Now he has been notified that he has been chosen as the first president of the American Academy of Jurisprudence, a voluntary organization which is to be incorporated by an act of Congress. The academy proposes to foster systematic research; to formulate and give momentum to a uniform system of education in the law schools of the United States, and to produce a codified system of the law. As the presiding officer of the new body, the former Chief Magistrate will offer the service which should be of the greatest value to a profession now aiming to better its condition in a systematic manner.—Troy Record.

The difficulties that Republicanism faces are revealed once more in the speech of Senator Borah yesterday at Columbus, O. He is a radical Republican, but he is not a Progressive. Even if his party were dead, he says, he would not join an organization like that headed by Mr. Roosevelt, which approves of monopolies, if they are of the right sort, and seeks only to regulate them. The response to this from Armageddon will be, of course, that a monoply which by contributions to the campaign chest has gained the indorsement of the uplift is no longer a monopoly. It is a Christian soldier.

"COUSIN JOE"---NO. 1

By Savoyard

And Joe Blackburn has come to town again, and how glad we all are, men, women and children, white and black, for of all the celebrated who have trod these walks none was better loved than Joe. He was the spoiled child; many a time and oft the congress felt like taking Joe across its knee and giving Joe a spanking, which he deeply deserved, but there was a something about him so engaging that all of us of all parties and all factions of all parties loved Joe for his qualities and we forgave him for his sometime vagaries.

Yes, we are glad Joe is with us again, and we welcome him as the earth the springtime, as the desert the dew. No common man is Joe. He occupies a large space in the great American heart, and no scamp is capable of that sort of thing.

* * *

Let's see. Joe was graduated from Centre college, one of the famous class that shed such luster on the old commonwealth. John Young Brown, W. C. P. Breckinridge, John C. Young, Thomas L. Crittendon, James B. McCreary, Boyd Winchester, Thomas M. Green, and others were his schoolmates. In those days, the middle of the last century, Centre was the foremost institution of learning in the Mississippi valley, and perhaps it is true that as a tutor of youth Dr. Young, the head of the college, never had a superior in our republic.

Of course Joe had to be a lawyer, but the war came on and Joe turned soldier. At Chickamauga, where he served on Buckner's staff, he was distinguished for intrepidity and on that bloody and victorious field he gallantly earned the praise all give to a brave man.

And so when the war was over old Kentucky was just getting good and mad because she had not seceded in 1861 when her heart was for the south and her head for the union. I do not believe that Kentucky—that is, Democratic Kentucky—ever admired Joe Blackburn as she had John Young Brown in that wonderfully gifted man's young manhood, but Democratic Kentucky loved Joe Blackburn as she never loved any other of her sons.

The cause was not far to seek. Joe, though of the bluest blood of the state, was even more of a Democrat with a little "d" than he was a Democrat with a big "D," and that looks impossible, though it is fact. When Joe was a veteran statesman at this capital bootblacks and newsboys called him to his face "Joe," and it was the nature of the man to enjoy the familiarity. Before Thomas Jefferson was president he was one day at his mill and a boy rode up with grain in his sack to have it ground. Jefferson was there looking over things. He was one of the very first men in all the world, and then and there he lifted the sack off the horse and carried it into the mill. Christopher Sandidge, who died at a great age in Kentucky about forty years ago, was that boy. I heard him tell the story a hundred times when I was a child, boy, youth.

Joe would have done the same thing, for Joe is as much of a Democrat with a little "d" as ever was Jefferson or anybody else. And yet Joe had an element of the dude in him. His foot is as shapely as sculptor could wish for model. He took great pride in it, for it was the highest instep you ever heard of, and Dick Wintersmith said that Joe gave more attention to his shoe laces than any boy in town to his neckties. But Joe's feet, shapely as they are, are too small. Had they been as big as the great gluts James B. Beck had for feet, Joe would have been a far greater man. There is much virtue in big hands and feet. Fact.

* * *

Well, Joe got here at the opening of the forty-fourth congress, the first Monday in December, 1875. It was the first Democratic house of representatives since the thirty-fifth, in 1857. Incidentally, Joe joined with Morrison and Proctor Knott to beat Randall for speaker and they succeeded in electing to that dignity Kerr, of Indiana. It was the first month of that congress that witnessed the waving of the bloody shirt by James G. Blaine, and "the man from Maine" did it with something akin to "the Athenian's glowing style and Tulley's fire." This assault on Jefferson Davis was as vicious as it was mendacious; but Prometheus was chained to the rock for vulture to tear his vitals, as Lamar so classically put it later.

And Joe was there when Ben Hill came back with that crushing reply that is the south's case, so far as concerns that controversy. On it at least the south, the old south, rests and O how confidently! And well she may.

* * *

It was during the second session of that congress that "the party of Great Moral Ideas" stole the office of president of the United States and bestowed that transcendent dignity on a man who had admitted that the people had chosen another. Joe was an accomplished parliamentarian, had learned the rule of it in the Kentucky legislature, and he joined with J. Proctor Knott and others to defeat the infamy. Mr. Speaker Kerr had died the August before, and Randall had succeeded to the speakership. By the exercise of parliamentary czarism the efforts of the filibusters were defeated.

In 1879 Joe, had he been a little less of a Hotspur, would have defeated Randall for speaker of the forty-sixth congress. Alexander B. Stephens had much to do with Joe's defeat. It shows how things are bred in the bone. Stephens was an old Whig, as were Toombs and Ben Hill, and Randall was an old Whig.

One could write a mile of stuff about Joe and possibly I shall continue this paper on him later.

Mr. John A. Bryan

Mr. John Averette Bryan, long time a resident of Talbotton, an prominent as a citizen of this town and of the state, died at his home in this place Saturday morning, January 31. Mr. Bryan was traveling representative of The Atlanta Journal, and was one of the best men this paper had ever had to travel for it. He had been suffering with Bright's disease for some time and had not been at work in several months.

Mr. Bryan was not a member of any church organization, but was a devout Christian man, and took an active interest in all kinds of religious work. He was also interested in all school work and everything of a public nature. His influence was felt for good in this community. He was everybody's friend, because he had a hearty handshake and a pleasant word for everyone with whom he came in contact.

Mr. Bryan was an able speaker, and his support was sought in political conventions and secret order conclaves. His speeches in praise of his favorite candidates were always literary gems, and much enjoyed by those who had the pleasure of listening to them.

Mr. Bryan was born in Houston county, January 8, 1869, and was married to Miss Lynda Lee, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. J. L. Lee, of Covington, Ga., December 11, 1901. Dr. J. B. McGehee performed the marriage ceremony in the Methodist church at Talbotton. To this union were born three children, Cabaniss, John Lee and Lynda Lee.

Mr. Bryan for a long time was a school teacher, and later he entered the newspaper field as agent for the Macon Telegraph, and later as an agent for The Atlanta Journal. During the year 1909 he and his wife leased the Talbotton New Era and ran it with Mrs. Lynda Lee Bryan as editress. Since that time he has devoted his entire time, when able to do so, to The Atlanta Journal. Mr. Bryan was held in high esteem by those in control of this paper, and they showed it by their attentions during his sickness and at his funeral. Six employes of this paper acted as pallbearers at the funeral Sunday.—Talbotton New Era.

Strange as it may seem, the Panama Canal was not built solely for the purpose of putting the transcontinental railways out of business. They, in fact, are worth more than the canal both in money and in service. The question of tolls will not make very much difference one way or the other, but demagogy is seen on the pinnacle when it puts forth as a reason for the exemption the theory that this would enable the nation to punish the railroads severely.—Philadelphia Public Ledger.

The Conning Tower

BY FRANKLIN P. ADAMS.

Do You Know?

I shot a pome into the Tower.
It showed acumen, skill and power;
Yet no one grabbed me by the hand
To say: "Old kick, this stuff is grand!"

But some one went to work and wrote:
"Dear Sir: You are a rotten pote;"
Another said. "You have no style;"
Another: "My, that verse is vile!"

And so I thought: "Why slave and strive
To be the greatest bard alive?
I'll write without the slightest care
For words and rhythm and rhyme—so there!"

Whereat I did a slipshod rhyme
And said: "To print it were a crime."
'Twas printed. . . . . And the public swore
As roundly at me as before.

I learn from these two flights in rhyme
You can't please people all the time;
In fact, though earnest your endeavor,
It's difficult to please 'em ever.

ANOTHER THREE-PLY POME BY THE CONTRIBUNAL, J. O. L., CHICOT AND NAT.

If we wrote a villanelle around that Villa,
The guerilla who is out to grab the tiller—
Or could spill a solemn thesis on the land where never peace is,
Would we prove that villain Villa was a killer?

And if Villa, like Achilles with the willies,
Were to fill a cannon full of sauce from Chili
With a squad of Escamillos? and a horde of armadillos
Were to capture Villa now, or willy-nilly?

Then a-riding on a filly, he would beat it to Manilly
Till a feller there would tie himm to a pillar;
With a chilly banderilla he would put an end to Villa

Won't that make a silly seven-reeler thriller?

It's clear that this contribbing to the Tower has its zest.
To charm and please with verse and wheeze, we've done our little best.

OCCUPATIONAL DISEASES

X. LABOR LEGISLATION.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Effective labor legislation to prevent unnecessary accidents and to minimize occupational diseases is a jurisprudence of very recent origin in the United States. True, Massachusetts turned its attention to child labor as early as 1836, but industrial development, particularly in textile industries, soon outgrew these regulations. Also, the first statute governing safety and sanitation was passed by Massachusetts in 1877, but again it stood practically alone, and this pioneer legislation merely brings out clearly the backwardness of our other states. Even Massachusetts failed to take up a comprehensive study of occupational diseases, deep and thorough, until 1907. From this dates the crusade that is gaining in momentum every day.

* * *

Then came the United States bureau of labor with its monumental series of bulletins, designed, and successfully so, to arouse public interest independent of state boundaries. Illinois was next in line, enacting in 1911 legislation resultant from an investigation which began four years before. In 1911 and 1913 California, Wisconsin, Connecticut, Maryland, Michigan, New Jersey and New York passed laws requiring physicians to report occupational diseases, including anthrax, compressed air or caisson disease, and poisoning from lead, phosphorus, arsenic and mercury, and their compounds.

* * *

All forty-eight states now have laws, more or less effective, designed to provide for the installation of safety devices for the prevention of industrial accidents from moving machinery. Regulations—haphazard, it is true—for protection against injurious dust have been enacted in twenty-two states; against defective or improper lighting in twelve states; against excessive temperature and humidity in eleven states; and for the protection of workers in compressed air in one state—New York.

Perhaps the American Association for Labor Legislation has more to do with these reforms than any other single organization. Certainly its part has been as important as that of any other, governmental or private. To this association is mainly due the thanks of the nation for its successful fight of years which absolutely stopped the manufacture of poisonous phosphorous matches in this country on July, 1, 1913, and ended forever in this country the loathsome "phosey jaw."

* * *

Thirteen states have workmen's compensation or accident insurance laws, but not one has provided thus for insurance against occupational diseases. Sociologists and labor hygienists are almost unanimously in favor of it. It is applied successfully in European countries, and they see no good reason why it is not necessary here. The Illinois special commission reported to the legislature that undoubtedly the time is not distant when industrial states must take up the problem of legislation upon sick insurance. To provide a scientific basis for such legislation it recommended the appointment of a competent commision having the powers and the means to make a thorough study of kinds, causes and extent of diseases among working people of the state, and the most modern methods of protection, prevention and insurance. The legislature did not see fit to go so far at that time, though it did enact considerable remedial legislation.

* * *

Wisconsin sems to have gone further in industrial regulation upon behalf of the working class. As a result of several years of patient investigation by the state university a state industrial commission was created. This body has great powers. It, and not the employer, decides what is and what is not safe and beneficial to the workers, and its administrative functions are mandatory enough to speedily enforce every order it issues. This cannot be said of most of the other states.

* * *

A prime necessity in the movement to protect the toiling masses is a nation-wide standardization of all the factors that pertain to occupational diseases, and it is contended that the federal government or a commission representing the several states should conduct an exhaustive survey.

* * *

John B. Andrews, secretary of the American Association for Labor Legislation, declares that one reason why many safe methods are not in operation is simply that many employers, engrossed in profit making, have had no sufficient incentive to notice factory sanitation. He gives as another reason the fact that sate factory inspectors have not always been fully aware of heir opportunities and responsibilities. Also, that even the most enthusiastic "boosters for safety" among the thoughtful efficiency experts now recognize the absolute necessity for the establishment of uniform legal standards if the safety of the great majority of our factory workers is to be conserved.

* * *

Certainly, there is a field for regenerative measures in this country. Nearly 700,000 wage earners perish from industrial tuberculosis every year in the United States, and it is estimated that by strictly proper factory inspection and effective measures, rigorously and continually employed, the total could be halved. The same thing is being done elsewhere. In Solingen, Germany, for instance, according to Prof. Ropke, a campaign of general education and factory sanitation reduced the death of cutlery workers from 20.63 per 1,000 in 1885, to 9.3 per 1,000 in 1910, and the tuberculosis mortality from 540 per 10,000 of population in 1885 to 180 in 1910. The diseases of respiratory organs in one of the German cement works has been cut from 9.3 per cent to 3.3 per cent after the installation of dust prevention apparatus. Great Britain also could be cited in bringing about sweeping reforms, particularly in lead poisoning. France is another country worthy of note.

* * *

Before closing this series a brief resume of occupational disease investigations and those prosecuting them is pertinent. Bernardini Ramazzini, an Italian, is the pioneer. His first volume was produced in 1700. It was translated into English five years later, and into French in 1777. Modern labor hygienists still quote from him. In 1810 the French government issued a decree relative to dangerous, insanitary and overcrowded establishments. In 1822, C. Turner Thackrah, of Leeds, England, wrote a monograph on the "Effects of the arts, trades and professions, and of civic states and habits of living, on health and longevity." Twenty-three years later Halford, a German, came out with a very important volume on occupational diseases.

* * *

In 1833 the English parliament appointed factory and labor commissioners, and six years later France did the same, followed by Bavaria and Prussia. In 1833, 1864 and 1870 England passed her factory laws. France came along with a child labor law in 1841, followed by a workable labor code in 1874. Germany and other European countries provided satisfactory labor legislation between 1859 and 1886. In 1897 expert German authors gave to the world a tome of over 1,200 pages on the subject, and a group of British authorities under the leadership of Sir Thomas Oliver, produced 891 pages to "Dangerous trades, the historical, social and legal aspects of industrial occupations as affecting health."

* * *

Of modern authorities on occupational diseases Sir Thomas Oliver is generally regarded as the greatest in the world. Dr. Ludwig Teleky ranks very high in this constellation. In the United States at the present time the nation looks with pride toward Dr. George M. Kober, of Georgetown university, Washington, D. C., also a prominent official of the International Congress of Hygiene and Demography; Dr. B. S. Warren, of the United States public health service, now consulting expert to the United States industrial commission; Frederick L. Hoffman, John B. Hoffman, Josephine Goldmark, Prof. John R. Commons, Henry Japp, Charles H. Verrill and Drs. Alice Hamilton, Joseph A. Holmes, William C. Hanson, W. Gilman Thompson, J. W. Schereschewsky, George M. Price, David Edsall, Frank E. Tylecote, Francis D. Patterson, Seward Erdman, Prof. William A. White and Prof. Frederic S. Lee.

WESLEY HOSPITAL FUNDS SHOW LARGE INCREASE

$20,030.50 Cash and Pledges Received by Central Committee to Date

To the subscriptions already received (and which are to be announced in full next Sunday), $2,030.50 in cash and pledges was added Monday morning at the first of the daily meetings of the ladies' central campaign committee for a new Wesley Memorial hospital.

These additions were reported as follows: From the First Methodist church committee, Mrs. William Nixon, chairman: Mrs. Henry P. Scales, $100; Mrs. E. P. McBurney, $100; Judge H. E. W. Palmer, $100; Lewis Beck, $100; Thomas B. Felder, $20; Dr. Hugh Lokey, $100; Mrs. Preston Arkwright's Sunday school class, $25; Mr. and Mrs. George Winship, $1,000; Mrs. W. D. Bailey, $10; Mrs. William Donovan, $25. Total, $1,630.

From Trinity church committee, Mrs. Jane F. Carr, chairman: Henry Hines, $50; Mrs. Stella Carr Benson, $25. Total, $75.

From Wesley Memorial church (given Sunday, and reported by Mrs. R. K. Rambo, of the central committee): Fred Miles, $25; W. P. Bloodworth, $25; Walker White, $25; J. R. Meredith and wife, $25; Mrs. Clarice B. Walker, $25; Mrs. R. J. Guinn, $25; Harry Fraser, $10; Rev. W. F. Glenn, $10; John C. Crowell, $10; V. E. Saterfield, $10; Mrs. Lena Fox, $10; W. D. Hart and Mrs. Hart, $15; T. J. Thomason, $2.50; Burr Cullam, $8; Miss K. Pickett, $5; Miss Laurie Jones, $5; Mrs. L. E. Pierce, $5; Miss Marion Preston, $5; Mrs. W. D. Roper, $5; Mrs. E. L. Cain, $5; Theron Evans, $5; Mrs. Rush F. Irvin, $5; S. R. Jones, $5; W. B. Sharp, $5; W. S. Gillam, $5; W. H. H. Phelp, $5; J. N. Copeland, $5; Mrs. Clara Williams, $5; C. R. Fox, $5; Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Terrell, $5; U. A. Robertson, $5; W. A. Dodge, $5; Miss E. E. Wilder, $1; J. S. Holmes, $1; J. N. Copeland, $1.50; Mrs. Corrie Rodgers, $2; Fannie Carpenter, $1; Miss Elizabeth Weathers, 50 cents; Miss Virginia L. Scott, $1; cash, $1. Total, $224.50.

In addition to these amounts in behalf of Atlanta, Mrs. T. R. Kendall reported for the Georgia fund $1 from Mrs. T. P. Martin and $1 from Miss Claude Law, both of Gainesville.

The meeting, held at the Hotel Winecoff, began at 11 o'clock and was brief and businesslike. Each day at the same hour and place the members of the central committee will gather, to make preliminary reports, formulate plans, and get things generally in working order for the big campaign that starts next Monday. The ladies expect to raise not less than $25,000 in Atlanta to meet Asa G. Candler's contract with them to give $75,000 when they have $25,000 in bank. Inasmuch as the amount must be in bank, the ladies are striving for as many cash subscriptions as possible. All pledges must be paid before next November.

Mrs. H. H. Tucker, general chairman, surrendered the chair Monday to Mrs. R. K. Rambo, chairman of the Woman's Auxiliary of Wesley Memorial, who presided. Reports were heard from Park Street church, where a special sermon was preached Sunday on the hospital campaign; from First Methodist, from St. Marks, where Mrs. T. R. Kendall spoke Sunday; from Grace church, and from Martha Brown Memorial. Mrs. Kendall spoke at Payne Memorial, also, Sunday evening.

Dr. A. M. Hughlett, pastor of St. Marks church, attended the meeting and added to its enthusiasm. Dr. Hughlett said that he will address a letter Monday to about 100 members of his congregation, asking them to give to the fund. He suggested that other Methodist ministers adopt this plan.

One of the chairmen reported that two prospective subscribers whom she has approached are considering the dedication of memorial rooms in the new hospital. Under the arrangement already announced, a memorial room can be established by each $1,000 subscription.

Following is the personnel of committees reported at Monday's meeting:

First Methodist—Mrs. William Nixon, chairman; Mrs. Charles Haden, Mrs. Preston Arkwright, Mrs. Hugh Lokey, Mrs. R. P. Milam, Mrs. H. E. W. Palmer, Mrs. J. R. Mobley, Mrs. Fannie Berry Wright, Mrs. William Crumley, Mrs. E. B. Stuart, Mrs. W. T. Thornhill, Mrs. W. P. Howard, Mrs. W. V. McMillan, Mrs. Russell Bridges, Mrs. W. R. Prescott, Mrs. Andrew Calhoun, Mrs. George Winship, Mrs. B. B. Crew, Mrs. George Holliday, Mrs. E. R. Kirk, Mrs. Ella M. Carter, Mrs. George Wigh.

"Whose Wife am I?" Asks Americus Girl, Principal In Twin Brother Puzzle

MISS ROSEB UD ENGLISH.

Young Woman Who Gave Up Her Husband Because She Thought He Was His Twin Brother Wants Him Back Again

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

AMERICUS, Ga., March 2.—"Whose wife am I, anyway?" Rosebud English asks the courts of Georgia.

Once she was Mrs. Oliver; then she was Mrs. James; now she is known as Miss Rosebud English, the name she had before she first sailed out over turbulent matrimonial seas.

She divorced Oliver because she thought he was his twin brother who already had a wife, and married James; she divorced James when she found out that Oliver was not his twi brother, and therefore had no other wife at the time he married her.

So it's up to the court to decide the legal status of the former wife of Alfred D. Oliver, now that he has been released by the Mississippi authorities on the ground that he is not L. C. Harding, in whose name he was serving a penal sentence, and who Oliver claims, is his twin brother.

Oliver was formerly a bank president. According to him, it was his half brother and not himself who perpetrated the offenses that were laid at his door. He intends to enter the banking business again. His wife, or former wife, has already entered into negotiations to see if he will allow her to return to him.

"Our marriage should not have been annulled," she explains, "for as I am convinced now, he is his own self and not the twin brother known as Harding, and who married the woman who claimed my husband as hers.

"Therefore, as we were separated because the court decided my husband was really Harding, the courts ought to put us back on the same standing again—husband and wife.

"I admit that I have had another husband in the meantime, but I married him because I thought Oliver had deceived me into a bigamous marriage—the court said so—but now I know the court was wrong and my husband was right. I want him back with me again.

"If he wasn't guilty of bigamy when he married me, and that he wasn't has been legally decided since, then our marriage was legal, the annulment illegal, and I am still his legal wife. That's what I think, but I wish I were sure."

GENERAL EVANS RECEIVED BIG SALUTE OF GUNS

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 2.—Brigadier General Robert K. Evans today assumed temporary command of the eastern department of the United States army, pending the transfer of the post to Major General Leonard Wood, now chief of staff.

General Evans, who has been in command of the Second brigade, with headquarters at Atlanta, Ga., is expected to be in command of the department for at least two months. A salute of eleven guns marked his entry upon his new duties.

BELIEVED MAN MAILED HIMSELF DEATH DEVICE

(By Associated Press.)

DECATUR, Ill., March 2.—Inquiry continued today in the matter of the death of Fred Mennerich, who was blown to pieces by an infernal machine at Sullivan yesterday.

The machine was mailed at the Decatur postoffice or one of the sub-stations. The theory that Mennerich came to Decatur and mailed the machine to himself is gaining strength.

PREDICTS TWELVE BANKS, ONE OF THEM IN ATLANTA

Dispatch From Chicago to New York Times Makes an Interesting Forecast

A special from Chicago to the New York Times, published in that paper under date of February 27, predicts that twelve regional reserve banks will be established, and that one of them will be located in Atlanta.

Following is the dispatch:

CHICAGO, Feb. 27.—A dispatch from New Orleans today reported that according to advices received there, the number of Federal reserve banks is to be twelve, the maximum number authorized by the new currency law. Further, the dispatch says:

"Three of the banks will be in the east—at New York, Boston, and Philadelphia; four in the middle west—at Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, and Minneapolis; two in the south—at Atlanta and New Orleans; one in the Rocky Mountain region—at Denver, and two on the Pacific coast—at Portland and San Francisco.

"From this list not more than one change is likely. The one proposed for Kansas City may go to Omaha.

"This information was obtained today from an official of the American Bankers' association. It is understood that Secretaries McAdoo and Houston have adopted a large part of the recommendations of Sol Wexler, of New Orleans, spokesman for the association's executive committee."

DEATHS BY ACCIDENTS IN N. Y. STREETS DECREASE

NEW YORK, March 2.—Fewer persons were killed in the streets of New York by traffic accidents during February than during any month since February, 1911, according to the report of the National Highways Protective society made public today. In the last month eight persons were killed by automobiles, ten by trolley cars and two by wagons, a total of twenty, as compared with four by automobiles and one by trolley in February, 1911.

The society believes that the decrease in street traffic accidents was due largely to the big snow storm which prevented speeding and heavy traffic.

RESCUE MISSION FIRE AT MACON DURING SERVICES

MACON, Ga., Mar. 2.—Fire broke out in the Tabernacle rescue home just outside the city during religious service this afternoon. Eighteen inmates fled into the cold, not being able to save their clothing. Officials of the home say that all books are saved, but buildings are destroyed. Loss is $3,000.

WILSON GETTING READY TO PAY INCOME TAX

Monday Is Last Day Under New Law for Filing Returns

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Today marked the last day under the new income tax law, for the filing of returns on private income for last year. The law is explicit as to time of filing returns and, under regulations of the treasury department, only sickness and absence are regarded as grounds for an extension. All those who fail to file their returns today are liable to fines ranging from $20 to $10,000.

All collectors of internal revenue recently were advised to forward to the treasury department reports showing the number of returns filed up to February 20 and officials were prepared today to receive these reports. As fast as the work can be dispatched officials of the internal revenue bureau, aided by a large force of assistants, will begin the issuance of assessment preliminary to the payment of the income tax.

Yesterday the White House executive force was busily engaged in compiling a statement of President Wilson's private income for submission to the collector at Baltimore. While the president is not taxable on his $75,000 government salary he is taxable on the income of his books and such sources of revenue. Secretary McAdoo, who is charged with the administration of the new law, already has filed his returns.

TESTIMONY HEARD FOR SUGAR REFINING COMPANY

(By Associated Press.)

ST. LOUIS, March 2.—Testimony for the defense in the suit of the United States against the American Sugar Refining company for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust act was delivered in a hearing before Special Examiner George J. Chambers, of New York, which was begun here today. The suit was instituted by the government in November, 1910.

MAY STILL SMOKE IN EXECUTIVE SESSIONS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 2.—Senator Tillman's resolution to prevent smoking in executive sessions of the senate and to prohibit smoking altogether in the senate wing of the capitol, was reported by the rules committee today without recommendation. It went to the calendar without consideration.

Pavlowa Tells How New Social Steps Are Danced

THE TANGO: LESSON 2

A PASSING STEP IN THE TANGO, SHOWING THE PROPER POSTURE IN A HALF OPEN FIGURE.

A Sense of Rhythm the First Requisite for Perfect Grace in Tangoing – The Passing Step

BY ANNA PAVLOWA.

(This is one of a series of articles especially written for this newspaper by Mlle. Anna Pavlowa, the greatest living premiere danseuse, who has posed with her dancing partner, Lawrenti Novikoff, for each figure. The dances to be explained and illustrated are those now in vogue in society ballrooms.)

Rhythm, or a keen feeling for rhythm, is one of the first requisites for any one who wishes to dance the tango.

Getting out of time in the tango is equivalent to getting out of step. Sometimes when slight accidents occur on the dance floor such results follow, but they should be the exception, not the rule.

Coming now to the third tango step—a step, not a complete figure—we find it in a half-open position facing to the front. This is a step which, like many identified with the tango, can scarcely be designated as a figure. But with others it goes to make up what may be termed figures, and each has its proper place in the tango scheme of things and calls for mastering.

The accompanying photograph illustrates the proper holding of the dancers' bodies and the poise of arms and feet in the half-open, forward facing position.

The toe is pointed on the second beat of the music, with the weight of the body resting on the opposite leg, and there should be maintained a slight inclining backward. In reality this step is as much a pause as a definite movement.

As in the one step, the nice joining of figures and steps is wholly dependent upon the dancing instinct and judgment of the man partner. Experience enables him to feel the logical time to make a change, and as he becomes expert it will be found that the possible number of combinations is surprisingly large.

The manner in which various steps in any dance, are joined is one of the factors that differentiate the excellent from the mediocre dancer. Observation during any dance function will permit any one to quickly discover the success with which these "passings" from step to step and figure to figure are accomplished.

The passing glide is the next tango step, and we will take it up in the coming article.

Engagement of Miss Isaetta Phinizy and Mr. Henry B. Garrett Announced

Mr. and Mrs. Stewart Phinizy, of Augusta, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Isaetta, to Mr. Henry B. Garrett, the marriage to take place in the late spring.

Cordial interest will be felt in the announcement in Atlanta, where Miss Phinizy has been a frequent and charming visitor, having been delightfully entertained as the guest of Miss Marion Goldsmith and Mrs. A. P. Coles. Mr. Garrett, who is a prominent young business man of Augusta and a member of all the social clubs, is equally well known in the city, where he has spent much time, and has many friends who will be interested in the news of his approaching marriage.

OUR ASTROLOGER

HOROSCOPE FOR TUESDAY, MARCH 3, 1914.

Fortune may beguile,
For two planets smile.

Mercury and Neptune are both in benefic aspect today. According to astrologers, the influences tend to stimulate inspirational ideas, increase inventiveness and intensify all intellectual activities.

It is an auspicious time for writers, philosophers, sculptors, orators and teachers. Actors, painters and musicians also should benefit.

The configuration is held to be peculiarly advantageous for advertising men and promoters of every sort.

Mercury is believed to be kindly in its sway during this configuration for postmen, messengers, expressmen and all who carry communications between persons or places.

Neptune is in a place read as of happy augury for all who travel by water or deal in liquids of any sort. The good aspects of this planet are said to bring success through dealing in choice foodstuffs, canned fruits and delicacies intended to please the palate.

The king of Sweden is under a malefic sway of the stars. The seers declare that the transit of Saturn next summer will cause him to suffer greatly not only in health, but in prestige.

Saturn will also affect the president of the United States, it is predicted, causing him many anxieties, among which will be certain trade complications with foreign powers.

Visits from royalty will be more numerous than in previous years, it is prophesied. The spring and summer will bring many distinguished visitors to this country.

Speculators in the west are subject to an adverse rule. San Francisco business men may suffer severe losses.

Floods will be unusually widespread. While those prophesied for California proved to be destructive, the east will suffer much more than the west.

The stars, which presaged a disaster for New York City, still repeat warning of loss of life and property which shock the nation.

Persons whose birth date it is have the prognostication of an average year in which they will be moderately successful. Law suits will be disappointing.

Children born on this day have lucky stars to guide them. They probably will enjoy wealth and opportunities which come to the few. They are warned to be cautious in marrying.

Warner's
Rust-Proof Corsets

Paris has spoken, and Dress Fashions have therefore been set for Spring.

Modistes, milliners, tailors—all have ordered their gowns. Every west-bound ship is bringing a wealth of feminine apparel from Europe. Dressmakers are studying and copying these new designs; and in a week or two you yourself will be enraptured before the splendor of the new Fashions for Spring.

Now Is the Time to Select Your Corset

Choose a Warner's—for a Warner's is designed to accurately set off the fashions of the season—wear it for a couple of weeks, and then have your Spring suit or gown fitted over the new corset. You will be surprised how much easier the fitting will be and how much more satisfactory the result.

The New Warner Styles--- Laced Back or Front as You Prefer--- Meet Every Detail of Fashion's Edict

New gowns are fluffy and full over the hips, and Warner's Corsets have long or medium skirts inset with elastic gores or lacings to permit the necessary freedom.

Your Waist this Season Must Be Natural

—unconfined, not unnaturally round and confined; and for certain extreme gowns reflecting the Venus de Milo pose, the corset must curve over the abdomen. There are Warner Corsets designed to create this pose in easy, natural lines—corsets designed to support the figure, too, if you prefer.

Diaphanous, Veil-Like Bodices Are Extremely Smart

—but the beauty of the blouse depends largely on the Brassiere over which it is worn. There are Warner's Brassieres different from anything you have ever seen; delicate, lacy and neat—a fitting adjunct to the beauty of your lingerie and your Warner's Corset.

Choose your Warner's now. Wear it when fitted to your new gown

—Mrs. C. E. Attaway, of Millen, Ga., is the guest of Mrs. A. C. Thurman.

Griffin-Golightly

The wedding of Miss Lutie Golightly and Mr. David Griffin, of Atlanta, was the most elaborate affair of the winter season. Previous to her marriage Miss Golightly was given a round of parties.

On Monday Dr. and Mrs. T. P. Bullard entertained the bridal party at tea. Mrs. Eanora Dean Stith gave a beautiful luncheon on Tuesday. Wednesday the Misses Condor entertained at a linen shower, when many beautiful gifts were presented the honor guest.

The reception following the ceremony at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Bullard was attended by many guests from Atlanta, Macon, Newnan and Fairburn.

The entire lower floor was elaborate with decorations of pink roses and smilax.

The bridal party included Mr. and Mrs. Griffin, Mr. Lyman Golightly, Miss Evelyn Smith, Mrs. George Ware and Mrs. Sanora Dean Stith.

Assisting in the parlor were Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Bullard, Mr. Baylor and Miss Lucile Smith, Mr. Roy Brittiam, Mr. Persons, Miss Dorothy Duke, Miss Martha Zellars and Miss Catherine Smith.

Others assisting Mrs. Bullard in entertaining were Mrs. Herrington and Miss Alice Herrington, of Macon; Mrs. Edward Duke, Mrs. T. P. Zellars, Mrs. S. M. Dean, Miss Helen Hudson served punch.

The Misses Condor poured tea.

Program for Philharmonic Concert

An event of social and musical interest will be the concert to be given on the evening of March 4, by the Philharmonic orchestra at the Atlanta theater. The coming of Myrtle Elvyn the noted concert pianist who will appear with the orchestra is a theme of interest among the music lovers of the city. While still very young Miss Elvyn ranks with the foremost pianists of the day and has won a meed of praise on the concert stage of Europe as well as of America. An artistic program has been arranged for the concert which will embrace a wide and varied range of selection. Several box parties will be given at the concert which will be followed by supper parties at the clubs. The program follows:

Soloist—Myrtle Elvyn, pianist.
Overture to "Don Juan" W. A. Lozart.
Concerto for piano, Miner, Opus 16, Edvard Greig.
Allegro molto moderato, Adagio, Allegro marcato.
Intermission.
From "Rural Wedding" Carl Goldmark.
Intermezzo, Scherzo.
"The Seasons," P. I. Tchaikowsky.
"Song of the Lark" (March); "Barcarolle" (June); "Hunting Son" (September); "Christmas" (December).

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

Variety Marks the Skirt of the Minuet.

PARIS, Feb. 12.—Perhaps there never has been a time when the skirt was the subject of so much attention, so much experiment, on the part of the dressmakers.

Of course, the line of the neck interests us. So do the details of long or short sleeves and the size of the armhole. We are rather fascinated with the idea of a new sort of bodice—one that buttons snugly down the front, like that worn by Madame Lefranc, designer for Premet, at his opening last week. This frock distinctly recalled the styles in vogue shortly before our civil war period. Here it is called a Louis Philippe frock. It was made of mahogany taffeta with a Venise lace collar, and a flounce of mahogany mousseline, embroidered in green. And it was buttoned down the middle of the front.

But after all our interest centers in the skirt. What will it be?

It is still narrow at the foot line. Some fuller skirts are shown, especially Premet and Cheruit. But on the whole the line is no wider about the ankles.

On street skirts the length is short, above the instep. And the slash is simply a reminiscent opening extending for three or four or five inches from the bottom of the hem.

About the hips the skirt of the moment is decidedly bouffant. I have seen several minaret tunics and many of the long, flaring tunics that open over narrow skirts. Then there are panniers of all sorts.

In spite of the fullness about the hips, the skirts are, in many cases, held in just about the waist with sashes or yokes. T his treatment lengthens the waist.

SKIRT THAT IS A BAG.

A good deal of interest has attached to the skirt that is in reality a bag. It is a full skirt and the hem of the front is sewed to the back with a slit at each side for the feet.

This skirt is pictured in the sketch today. It is made with a square train which perhaps adds to its dignity. But it is dignified enough, as it is and needs no excuse. It is odd, to be sure, but it is quite modest.

These silks, as they were produced by the house of Martine in Paris, were the result of the ideas of untrained peasant girls, and their coloring and design were vividly original. They immediately took of plain blue satin—blue of a bright shade that is used in the figured silk. Loose straps about the armholes break the monotony of the figured silk in the bodice.

There are two full tunics in the frock pictured, each edged with a wide band, the eye of the public and now they are well and widely imitated in America.

Little Stories For Bedtime

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Some people like to spread bad news. They had rather spread bad news than good news. It's queer, but it's so. Sammy Jay is that kind. He never seems so happy as when he is flying about through the Green Forest telling some dreadful news to everybody he meets. And this isn't the worst of it. He doesn't always tell the truth! He sometimes makes things out a great deal worse than they really are so as to make his story more exciting. And so it often happens that Sammy spreads false reports. You know false reports are stories that are not true or only partly true.

Now, Sammy Jay had happened along just in time to see Farmer Brown's boy pick up poor Mrs. Grouse after he had broken the hard, icy crust that had made her a prisoner underneath. She had been so weak and worn out that she could only flutter feebly when he had set her free, and so he had picked her up and started for home with her. Sammy Jay had seen this. His eyes had poped out with excitement. Here was great news. He couldn't sit still a minute. And what a splendid chance to say something bad about Farmer Brown's boy! Sammy never misses a chance to make trouble for Farmer Brown's boy.

So off he started as fast as he could go. The first one he met was Chatterer the Red Squirrel.

"Great news! Great news!" screamed Sammy.

"What is it?" asked Chatterer.

"Farmer Brown's boy has killed poor Mrs. Grouse and taken her home for his dinner!" cried Sammy.

"I don't believe it," replied Chatterer, who right that very minute was eating nuts that he knew Farmer Brown's boy had left for him.

"You don't have to, but that doesn't make it true it isn't so. I saw him do it," retorted Sammy, and started on.

Right away Chatterer lost his appetite. He didn't know whether to believe it or not. He felt dreadfully sorry for Mrs. Grouse and then, too, he didn't think that Farmer Brown's boy would do such a dreadful thing. You see Farmer Brown's boy had been very good to him, and though he had once hated him he rather liked him now that he had come to know him, though Chatterer wouldn't have admitted this to anybody for the world. Oh, my no! "I don't believe it," he muttered over and over to himself. "I don't believe it." But just the same he lost his appetite.

Presently Sammy Jay saw Reddy Fox. "Great news! Great news!" shrieked Sammy.

"What is it?" demanded Reddy.

"Farmer Brown's boy has killed poor Mrs. Grouse and taken her home for his dinner," replied Sammy.

"How do you know?" demanded Reddy suspiciously.

"I saw him do it," replied Sammy.

"I hate Farmer Brown's boy!" growled Reddy Fox. "Mrs. Grouse belonged to me. I meant to have her for my dinner some day."

"Why didn't you catch her, then?" asked Sammy Jay slily.

"I would have some day," snapped Reddy.

"The way you have Peter Rabbit!" laughed Sammy.

Reddy couldn't say a word, for you know he had tried and tried to catch Peter Rabbit and never could. He just glared up at Sammy, who just laughed and then flew off to spread the dreadful news. All the rest of the day he told the same story until all the little people, who were out that cold winter day in the Green Forest and on the Green Meadows, green no longer because they were covered with snow, had heard that poor Mrs. Grouse had been killed by Farmer Brown's boy. And some it made very, very sad. And some, like Reddy and Granny Fox and Old Man Coyote, it made angry, for each of them had meant some day to have Mrs. Grouse for dinner themselves. And all the time Mrs. Grouse wasn't dead at all, as you and I know.

Ex-Cub Stars Discredit Report of Murphy's Holding in Club

LITTLE PAL---HE STUDIES THE FASHIONS --BY LEO

Did Murphy Own Majority Stock in Cubs?

Report That C. Webb Sold 53 per Cent for Half-Million Dollars, Discredited by Frank Chance and Miner Brown. Claims Murphy Never Owned 20 per Cent

NEW YORK, March 2.—Although the deal whereby Charles Webb Murphy and the National league parted company was completed more than a week ago, mystery still envelopes the transaction. From various sources come conflicting stories. Murphy declares he received more than half a million for his majority stock in the Chicago club and still retains his interest in the grounds on which stands and fields of both the Chicago and Philadelphia National league clubs are built.

According to remarks made by Murphy in New York City at the time of the National league schedule meeting he apparently desired to give the impression that he owned 53 per cent of the Chicago club stock, which could be bought at the rate of $10,000 per share. Frank Chance, formerly manager of the Cubs, declares Murphy never owned more than 15 or 20 per cent of the club's stock, and that this stock was purchased out of the profits and salary he received under a contract with Charles P. Taft, the real owner of the Cubs. Chance says the report that Murphy held a majority of the stock was on a par with previous stories relative to big dealings and salaries that Murphy permitted to get into print by inference rather than by the actual declarations. In this conection Chance is backed up by Mordecai Brown, once star twirler of the Cubs and now with the Federal league.

Brown says the largest salary he ever received from the Cubs was $7,000, and that was at the height of his career. Brown further says this was the biggest salary paid any player on the team except Frank Chance, who received $10,000 as player and manager. Evers, who succeeded Chance as manager, received $6,000 as player and $4,000 additional as manager, which is believed by many to have been in all probability the same terms on which Chance worked, except that Evers held no stock in the club, whereas Chance owned 10 per cent, which netted him about $25,000 a year in dividends. The top figures reached by other club stars under Murphy are given as: Tinker, $6,500; Hoffman, $5,000; Sheckard, $4,400.

Perhaps this is why President Tener is not so positive that Evers will receive the $20,000 bonus the Cubs' second baseman said he was to get for signing a Boston contract. President Gaffney, of the Boston club, is undoubtedly ready to pay that amount according to the contract, but it is understood that President Tener believes that, in view of the elimination of Murphy and the fact that Boston assumed all the obligations of the Chicago contract with Evers, the player should accept a lesser sum. This question will be settled at the meeting of the league magnates in New York City Friday.

Golf Invasion Stirs Britons

English Writer Recalling Ouimet's Victory Warns Home Talent to Seriousness

BOSTON, Mass., March 2.—The Englishman's pleasure in welcoming to Sandwich in May the brilliant quartet of American golfers—Ouimet, Travers, Herreshoff and Schmidt—mixed with just a little anxiety.

The venue is somewhat ominous, since it was at Sandwich in 1904 that Walter J. Travis brought off his somewhat sensational victory. Until then the Englishman was apt to be a trifle contemptuous over the golf that was not of native origin, and the happenings at Brookline last September have forced home upon him the convictions that his former attitude was all wrong. Writing in the Pall Mall Gazette, Mark Allerton says:

"Mr. Ouimet we know only from what has been told us. It may safely be said that no entrant will be regarded with more awe and respect than the youthful giant who showed Vardon and Ray how to play golf. With so imposing a list of invaders we are tempted to implore those in whom we have put our trust to take their golf very seriously during the period that elapses before the championship. For if we do not win at Sandwich n othing is more certain than that for a long time afterward we shall be assailed with diatribes on the degeneracy of the British race.

STRAY SHOTS AT SPORT TARGETS

BY INNIS BROWN

DISCREDITS MURPHY.

Now comes the report that Charlie Murphy has just been continuing his role of champion "Mexican Athlete" concerning the sale of his interests in the Cub team. Frank Chance and Miner Brown insist that Murphy never owned any 53 per cent to begin with. Chance claims that Murphy owns only the stock that he purchased with his salary as ruler of the Cub team, together with his annual dividends on what stock he had acquired in this way from time to time.

Miner Brown also explodes some famous old stories about the fabulous salaries paid Cub players. He claims that he received at the height of his career a salary of seven thousand dollars a year, which was the high water mark, except for Frank Chance, who held the managerial reins. If what Brown and Chance say is correct, and we would gamble that it is, it is merely a little more proof that all "stage money" is not used back of the footlights.

QUEER TURNS.

At the little game of making strange bed-fellows, politics has nothing on the festive pastime of baseball. Consider the case of Hank O'Day and Duke Bresnahan. A few years ago when the Giants and Cubs were lumbering down the stretch at the close of the pennant race, Roger was a member of the Giants, while Hank was an umpire. So bitter were the charges of partisanship against O'Day by the Giants, that one day, when he came out to work in a game between the two contending teams, Bresnahan asked O'Day whether he had his Cub uniform with him. Later during the same game, O'Day banished Roger to the sidelines, and eventually had him put out of the park. Now they are hooked up together as members of the Cubs. It will be a rather interesting proposition to note just how they will pull together.

A recent post mortem, credited to Mordecai Brown, seeks to switch the credit for the famous "touching second" play of the 1908 season in the National league from Johnny Evers to Artie Hofman. The Miner claims that it was Artie who first noted the situation, and returned Bridwell's hit to the infield, and that Evers happened to get the putout because he was nearest second base. However, there is no discussion as to who failed to jog on down to the second bag.

MAY BE SYMPATHY.

A Chattanooga scribe is either a sympathetic soul, or else he would have his readers believe that Bill Smith has crawled far out on a limb, and is waiting for somebody to chop the limb off. He calls attention to the fact that the recent ruling of the National Baseball Commission, whereby players may not be released to teams in a Class A league, until after teams in Class AA leagues have waived on them, is going to put Bill up against it, when it comes to getting any hurlers from Clark Griffith. If Bill is angling for a hurler from Griffith he has certainly kept everything mighty quiet. And what is more, when you begin to talk of pitchers, Bill's chest sticks out like a pouter pigeon, proving that he is pretty well satisfied with what he has in stock.

RATHER ROUGH.

They still remember Clayton Perry over in Nashville. Here is what one sport scribe has to say, referring to Clayt. "Clayton Perry has signed with the Gulls, but we would like to know who he mooched that stamp from with which he mailed his contract."

In a majority of cases the fellow who carries the punch brings back the bacon, but there are exceptions to practically all rules. Take the case of Harry Meek, who formerly played with the Barons. In sixteen years Harry has compiled a grand batting average of .339, and yet he has never been in the big leagues. Only four seasons has he dropped below .300, and never has he hit less than .286.

"They all look good far away," remarks Rube Goldberg, and that goes in a baseball way, too, at least in some cases. For instance, President Somers, of the Naps, has offered Cy Falkenberg a nice fat raise now that he has gotten as far from the Nap corral as the Federals. When close up, Somers could see only a small raise of a little less than ten bucks a week for Falky.

After reaching their training quarters at Charlottesville, Va., a few days since, the Washington ball players found weather that permitted only indoor work. Among poker, checkers, bull slinging and basketball, all well-known indoor sports, they chose basketball as being rather more vigorous than any of the rest. Eddie Ainsmith proved the star of the game. However, Nick Altrock scored heavily with the gallery by trying to throw goals without looking at the baskets.

Recent reports from the Stygian training camp—

It has just been learned that Mark Antony has jumped to the outlaws. He is said to have signed with the Egyptians.

J. Caesar, the Romans' star boxman, is expected to show a return to form this season. He looks as good in early workouts as he did the day he trimmed the Nervii.

Ulysses is the champion "comeback" of this league. After an absence of seven years he got back in the game, and showed all the batting strength that he did in the famous Trojan campaign.

Kid Nestor, the Hans Wagner of this league, looks about as good this spring as he did fifteen years ago, in spite of the fact that they have been counting him out for a decade.

Matty to Play With Giants

MARLIN, Tex., March 2.—"I have no intention of playing elsewhere than in the National league," said Christy Mathewson, star pitcher of the New York Nationals, last night in discussing his possible baseball connections for next season, and a Federal league offer which was said to have been that he could "name his own terms."

"I do not take that Federal league offer seriously," he continued. "I did get a telegram from President Gilmore asking if I would consider an offer to manage the Brooklyn team, but no terms were stated and I have not replied."

Mathewson had been quoted as saying that the Federals' offer sounded "interesting."

President Hempstead, of the Giants, did not talk with either Mathewson or Fred Snodgrass today on the subject of signing.

Novelty Stunt For Trap Shots

NEW YORK, March 2.—Day and night open air trap shooting competitions on the roof of the Grand Central Palace 250 feet above the level of the street will be novel features of the Travel, Vacation and Sportsman's exhibition, to be held March 5-14. The events have the sanction of the Interstate Trap Shooting association, and will be in progress for six hours by daylight and for two hours at night under electric lights, with two sets of traps in use.

Women guns will meet in an amateur ladies' individual championship for the first time in connection with a sportsman's exhibition, and there will also be an interclub team match for women. The other events will be amateur and professional individual championships and an intercity team match with entries from Manhattan, Brooklyn, Philadelphia, Wilmington, Del., Boston, New Haven and probably Providence.

Nine Homers Made Off Ford And W. Johnson

Russ Ford Tied With Big Walter in Number of Circuit Wallops Allowed—No Other Hurlers in American League Allowed as Many—Baker Got Two on Johnson

It possibly will surprise fans to learn that Russell Ford, who has gone over to the Federals, was in Walter Johnson's class in one respect last season, that respect being the permitting of home runs. The Yankee hurler allowed nine four-bag blows to be struck by his adversaries and so did the man whom the Chalmers jury of newspaper experts picked as the player most valuable to his team. Ford and Johnson were nicked for more circuit clouts than any other American league gunners. The players who touched the Chalmers car winner for homers were Frank Baker (twice), Harry Hooper, "Buck" Weaver, Ray Schalk, Harry Lord, Joe Lake, Wheeler, Johnston and Joe Jackson. Four-bassock drives off Ford were obtained by Howard Shanks, Sam Agnew, Derrill Pratt, Eddie Collins, Gus Williams, Eddie Ainsmith, Wallie Schang, Sam Crawford and Joe Jackson. The last-named probably made the longest home run of the year when he landed on one of Ford's spitters in the game of June 4 and hoisted the ball over the right wing of the grandstand at the Polo grounds.

Next to Johnson and Ford, Tom Hughes, of the Nationals, allowed the greatest number of smashes for the full distance. He was located for eight drives of this character. Bobby Groom, of Washington, had seven homers made off his delivery and these men had six: Baumgardner, and Mitchell, of St. Louis, Blanding, of Cleveland, and Brown, of Philadelphia. Five four-baggers were secured off Caldwell, of New York, and Bush, of Philadelphia, and four off Schultz, of New York, Pennock, of Philadelphia, and Dauss, of Detroit. The veteran Eddie Plank, one of the heroes of the world's series of 1913, was nicked for three four-baggers and so were Joe Bochling, of Washington, Earl Hamilton and Walter Leverenz, of St. Louis, Willie Mitchell, of Cleveland, and Ray Collins, of Boston, who arae mong the American league's cleverest southpaws.

"Chief" Bender had only one home run made off his curves last season and that four-bagger, manufactured by "Ping" Bodies, of the White Sox, added a defeat to the Indian's record. Other boxmen who allowed only one four-bagger were Wellman, of St. Louis, Steen, of Cleveland, Dubuc, of Detroit, Walsh of Chicago, and Bedient, of Boston. Joe Wood, of the Red Sox, was even stingier than all these men previously named, for he refused to allow anyone to get a homer off of his puzzling delivery.

Of the 159 four-baggers made in the American league in 1913, 35 were obtained off Washington's pitchers; 31, off New York's; 25 off Philadelphia's; 20 off St. Louis'; 19 off Cleveland's; 13 off Detroit's; 10 off Chicago's, and 6 off Boston's. The individual list follows:

Aviator Beachey Has Thrilling Experience

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., March 2.—While "looping the loop" here yesterday Lincoln Beachey, the aviator, lost control of his biplane and fell 1,600 feet, but managed to right himself 400 feet from the ground and escaped with slight injuries. The machine crashed into a tree, but suffered slight damage.

Quartet of Braves Arrive in Macon

MACON, Ga., March 2.—Four of the Boston National league players arrived here yesterday. By tonight Manager Stallings and all of the other players of the team will be here, it is expected, to begin spring training. Players who arrived yesterday are Otto Hess, Harris Gowdy, James Schultz and C. A. Deal.

Billiard Stars Meet in Tourney

Five Star Performers Enter Contest Begining in Chicago Today – Hoppe and Ymada Open Play

CHICAGO, Ill., Mar. 2.—Five of the world's greatest billiard players will meet this week in an 18.2 tournament here, which will begin Monday night and continue through the week. Games are planned for every evening and afternoon except Monday and Saturday, when only night games will be played. The five stars are William Hoppe, the champio, whose form makes him the favorite in the meet; Koji Ymada, the Japanese, who has the distinction of having beaten Hoppe; George Sutton, George Slosson, and Calvin Demarest.

Hoppe and Ymada will open the tournament tomorrow night. On Tuesday afternoon Slosson and Ymada will meet, and Tuesday night Demarest and Sutton play. The remainder of the schedule will be arranged according to the outcome of the first matches.

The players will divide a purse of $500 and the receipts.

New York Rowing Clubs to Organize

NEW YORK, March 2.—Organization of an association to be known as the Metropolitan Rowing association, which will include all of the prominent rowing clubs in Greater New York, will be discussed tonight at a meeting of representatives of about 25 clubs affiliated with the Harlem Regatta association, which the proposed organization would probably replace. It is expected that the plan will be adopted and officers elected tonight.

Pelicans Win From Nondescript Team

NEW ORLEANS, March 2.—The New Orleans club outplayed a patched-up team of Clevelanders and Toledo players in a game Sunday by a score of 8 to 4.

The score:	R.	H.	E.
Clevelond,	4	4	4
New Orleans,	8	12	3

Benn, Styles, Morton, Fohl and Crosby; Gudger, Cullom, Walker, Peddy and Higgins, Adams. Umpire Pender. Time 2:10.

Driver aMrquis Is Improving Rapidly

LOS ANGELES, Cal., March 2.—J. B. Marquis, the motor car racer hurt yesterday when his car turned over in the grand prize race at Santa Monica, was reported last night to be in excellent condition. Harry Hough, his mechanician, was well enough to smoke cigarettes.

Chase Admits Negotiations With the Federal League

SAN JOSE, Cal., March 2.—Hal Chase, first baseman of the Chicago White Sox, yesterday confirmed a report that he is dickering with the Federal league. Chase said he was told to name his own terms and that he replied with a demand of $30,000 for three years and a $5,000 bonus to sign.

Jack Lelivelt, who had a trial with the Naps last fall, but was shipped to Toledo, Charles Somers' farm, is tickled that the Federal league is making such a howl. By this Jack was able to get another chance with the Sixth City aggregation.

James Rourke, a brother of William Rourke, of Omaha, has been elected president of the Grand Island club of the Nebraska State league. Fred Glade, the former pitcher, is vice president. The Grand Island fans want Clay Schoonover, formerly with the Rourkes, to manage the team. Schonover had charge of the team late last season.

Pirates Hope Koney Repeats

PITTSBURG, Pa., March 2.—If Ed Konetchy plays as well for the Pirates this year as he did against them in 1913 Fred Clarke will have no cause to complain. The big Bohemian soaked the Pirate hurlers for a mark of .333 last season and fielded at a rate of .995 clip. The averages Koney made in the championship race were .276 and .995. Averages, however, do not always tell just how much a man accomplishes, and in Koney's case they fail to show that he played the principal part in downing the Pirates five times last year. Here is what Koney did against the Pirates in 1913:

April 23, Cardinals defeated Pirates, 3 to 1, Koney getting both his team's hits off Hendrix (a double and a triple) and scoring two runs—one by stealing the home plate.

April 26, Cardinals defeated Pirates, 6 to 1, Koney scoring two runs and batting in one.

May 3, Cardinals defeated Pirates, 6 to 3, Koney getting three hits (a single and two triples) off O'Toole and Robinson, scoring two runs and batting in two runs.

June 26, Cardinals defeated Pirates, 5 to 4, Koney winning game by making homer in eighth inning off of Hendrix when two men were on the bases.

June 28, Koney made four hits off O'Toole, Cooper and Robinson.

June 29, Cardinals defeated Pirates, 4 to 3, Koney driving in winning run in sixth inning with sacrifice fly.

Star Athletes Enter Meet in N. Y. Tonight

Best College Performers in the East Will Compete in Big Indoor Meet – Kiviat Kolehmainen and Other Club Performers Will Also Take Part

NEW YORK, March 2.—Almost every athlete of note in the east will strive for titles at the indoor national championship contests at Madison Square Garden tonight. Many college men are among those entered.

Patterson and Lippincott, of the University of Pennsylvania, Tescher, of Harvard, and O'Harak, of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, are entered in the 300-yard dash. Kiviat, of the Irish American Athletic club, and Meredith, of the University of Pennsylvania, will meet in the 600-yard run. Kiviat is also entered in the 1,000-yard run.

In the two-mile run Kramer, Kolehmainen and Smith, the latter a long distance runner, who has won several local races, will contest. In the standing high and broad jump Platt and Ben Adams are among the entries and in the weight events McGrath, McDonald, Ryan and Lawler, the latter of Boston, will compete.

Reduced to $5.00 per ton. Best high-grade Jellico Coal. Carroll & Hunter.

Mgr. Stallings Pleased With Young Players

Braves' Manager Will Try Out Nineteen Recruits—This List Includes Players Who Led Their Leagues in Hitting and Fielding in Many Cases

BOSTON, March 2.—Before leaving last night for the southern training camp at Macon, Manager Stallings took occasion to pass several compliments on his recruits for the coming season, and if his youngsters from minor leagues show up as well as he expects them to, he will give McGraw and the rest of the bunch a great old battle for championship honors. It would indeed be strange to see the Braves win a pennant, but no obstacle seems to be able to stop the Big Chief, and in connection with this witness his wonderful work with the Yankees, when he turned New York fans upside down by landing the Highlanders right up near the top the year he looked after the team in Gotham.

If Stallings' judgment in the matter of picking recruits from the lots is as keen as ever, and if he is as fortunate as he was in buying up youngsters last season, the Braves promise to again prove a sensation in the major organization.

In the batting line, the nineteen recruits, who will strive to make a name for themselves in the big ring the coming season, compiled an average of .282, which is a very good mark. Then five of the kids swatted for better than .300 during their careers in the minors. Of the lot Griffith, the outfielder, who operated in the meadows the latter part of last year, was the leader, with a .346 mark.

Then came Schmidt, the big first sacker, who also played a few battles last fall, with a .331 mark, compiled in the International league. Schmidt also hit 308 in the twenty-two battles he played with the Braves at the close of the 1913 campaign.

GOWDY AND DEAL WILL BE BACK.

Hank Gowdy, who a couple of seasons ago was a member of the Giants, but later sent to the Braves, will be back for another chance. When Gowdy was up before he was a first sacker, but now he is a catcher. For Buffalo he swatted .317 last year. Deal, the third sacker, who once had a chance with the Tigers, is another ex-major leaguer to strive with the Braves.

But Deal has a very good chance of landing a regular berth. Third base was a weak spot on George Stallings' infield last year, and if the ex-Tiger can come near the mark he made with Providence in the International last season, when he hit .312, he will without a doubt be the regular far corner guardian for the Braves the coming season. In the field Deal had a percentage of .37 in the 99 contests he played.

Zwilling, an outfielder from St. Joseph, who also was up before, was the other to hit in the select circle. Zwilling who while a member of the White Sox for a short while gained the title of having the biggest feet of any athlete in the majors, clouted the Western league hurlers for a .306 average. He also pilfered thirty bases.

In Luque, who last year was a member of the Long Branch club in the New York and New Jersey league, Manager Stallings gets a pitcher who can hit as well as fool the opposing batters. With Long Branch he also was used as a utility fielder, piling up a batting percentage of .281. Then he also had the best percentage of any of the flingers, winning 22 games and losing only 5, for an .815 percentage.

Dugey, a second sacker, who was with the Waco club of the Texas league the 1913 season, was the leading base stealer of the kids coming to Stallings' crew. Dugey pinched 69 sacks on the catchers in the Lone Star state organization last summer. Dugey also swatted .279. Gilbert, the outfielder from Milwaukee, was second stealing bases with 43. Zwilling and Gilbert, with 89, topped the run getters.

Getting recruits from the minors ranking high was the specialty of the Braves' leader. Seven kids came from the International, three from the Western and Texas, while the New York and New Jersey supplied two. The American association, Northwestern, New York State and Northwestern housed one of the youngsters to try for a berth with the Braves last summer.

Yankees Reach Houston Camp

HOUSTON, Tex., March 2.—Twenty-eight members of the New York American league baseball team reached Houston last night, to begin spring training. Most of them coming east in charge of Arthur Irwin, scout, Charles Barrett, trainer, and Mike Bergen. Frank L. Chance, manager, accompanied by Mrs. Chance also arrived from their winter home in Clendora, Cal.

Among the players here are Maisel, Gilhooley, Hartzell, Peckinpaugh, Fisher, Gossett and a number of recruits. Several pitchers now at Hot Springs, Ark., will join the squad later.

HARD LUCK ADAM.

Adam had no Easter hat to buy for Mrs. Eve;
Adam had no "cost-of-living" troubles to aggrieve;
Adam had no jobs to hold by slaving day and night—
Adding columns, beating carpets, planning stuff to write;
Adam had a hectic cinch—played across the boards;
Everything that nature and a simple life affords;
And yet I wouldn't change with him, whatever be my loss—
He never saw a triple drive the winning run across.

Adam had no dress to buy to calm his spouse's grief
(All that Adam had to do was go and pull a leaf);
Back in Father Adam's day, long before Tycobb,
There was not a Villa or Huerta on the job;
Raving politicians never roamed about the land
Double-crossing voters in a way to beat the band;
And yet, with all his blessings ,what a dull and massive pall—
Poor old Father Adam never saw a game of ball.

The Big League winter which has batted around .446 so far is a great indication for an early spring. We have made a fairly accurate computation of weather conditions in this respect and the big average is in favor of a balmy March and April after a rough January and February, such as we have been plastered with. Oil of which is penned in the manner of throwing out the life line to those who are beginning to yearn for the opportunity of sinking a four foot putt or establishing the status of forty love in a hectic exchange of vollying.

The Feds are planning to open their season on April 25. By this procedure the St. Louis Feds will be starting their pennant race upon the date wherein the Browns and Cardinals are finishing theirs to the grand old cnorus entitled "Next Year."

TRAVERS PACKING UP.

Within the next fortnight Jerry Travers will be on his way to England to start his preliminary campaign for the British amateur and open championships. The amateur champion will leave on March 12, heating Ouimet over by almost a month. While Travers hasn't played a round of golf in over two months, he has been working a bit upon the necessary shift in his make of putter, as the Schenectady type was barred abroad after Travis setting the British kingdom upon its beam's end with this tool.

After some experimenting Jerry has decided to employ a revised edition of the aluminum putter with a thinner surface than the etasblished type. He has experimented with this shift and finds it works well enough—so well, in fact, that he doesn't look for any setback along this line.

Fred Hereshoff will not be able to make the trip so Travers is pulling for the truth of the rumor that Evans and Wood would join Ouimet and himself. If this quartet went over the four best possible candiates would be upon the job.

FROM THE LONG ROAD.

When I come home again—
When I come back to scenes I knew in boyland's drifting days—
When I nave seen old faces there, and when
I've journeyed down the well-remembered ways—
The pathway to the river and the lane
That twisted out beneath the waving trees,
That echoed with the mockingbird's refrain—
The thrush's call—the drowsy hum of bees—

I wonder if the sun will seem as gold
As I once knew it in the days gone by?
I wonder if the paths I knew of old
Will wind beneath as deep and blue a sky
As I once loved before I went away,
Or if the song of birds will seem as sweet—
The bluebird's note—the catbird's roundelay—
As when I wandered down the old home beat?

And when the purple [illegible] drop and fall
Just as the moon has mounted o'er the hill,
Out by the gate, where roses climb the wall,
I wonder if I'll find YOU waiting still,
Remembering me the weary seasons through
With eyes aglow, just as you waited then?
I wonder if the joys will be yours, too,
When I come home aagin?

Half the town of Marlin came out to greet young Palermo, the Cuban pitcher, upon his first alleged arrival in the Giant camp. But if he blows not nearly that percentage of New York will accompany him to the train to bid him bon voyage and the rest of it headed back towards Cuba.

As our eminent pal just above us almost said: "They all look good whey they're on the way." But the view isn't quite so delicately shaded and tinted in retreat.

MORE SPRING TRAINING.

This will be the greatest season for spring training that football has ever known. Yale, Harvard and Princton in the east all have weighty contracts to carry out next fall, especially Yale and Harvard, with the western contingent to face.

And from the west, Michigan and Notre Dame are headed eastward, so the double landscape will be a scene of prolonged activity in the hope of jumping off to a flying start next fall.

FULLERTON'S GOSSIP

Templeton's feat of smashing the Australian pole vault record by clearing the bar at 11 feet 7 1-2 inches is explained. Someone whispered to him that he was jumping toward San Francisco.

Not carping; but isn't it a dubious compliment to arrange four banqueas in three nights for a man whose stomach has just been rescued from foreign specialists?

Observing that it is the polo and motor boat racing set that plays racquets we judge that racquets is millionaire's handball.

Favorite spring training exercise; instead of telling how many bears and deer they killed last winter the players are now relating how much the Federal league offered them.

The Feds efforts to get the ex-Red Sox manager are hanging fire-Stahled as it were.

HORRIBLE THOUGHT.

What if, after all this abuse, censure and ribald storming, it should develop that C. Webb Murphy is only a good soldier obeying orders?

When we read that Eddie Waddell, the once great left hander, was down, out and in helpless condition Uncle Ben Shibe quietly wired a sum of money, and said he would take care of "Rube" the rest of his life. And some people wonder why the Athletics are always a great club, with Uncle Ben as owner and Connie Mack as manager.

George Horine, the champion high jumper, is playing first base for a team at Palo Alto. There are a lot of major league shortstops and third basemen who would welcome him, with his six feet seven record.

Feds Announce Opening Dates Of Their Season

New League Proposes to Start Season on April 13, One Day Ahead of National and American Leagues—Will Play 154-Game Schedule

CHICAGO, March 2.—The Federal league's playing season, which will be opened April 13, one day before the National and the American leagues begin their campaigns, will include 154 games, which will be extended on the cards over nearly six months. The end of the season, President Gilmore said today, will come early in October, or about the time the National and the American wind up.

"We will be ready to play for the world's championship the second week in October," said one of the club owners who remained over Sunday after attending the meeting of the league yesterday to portion the 200 players already signed.

Many of the new league owners expect to be in the fold of organized baseball within a year at the outside.

Every club in the league will be represented at New York when the world tourists land this week. President Gilmore will head the reception committee, and is confident of signing some of the best known players.

A report that Eddie Sweeney, catcher of the New York Americans, had signed with the Federals, gained currency today, when Sweeney was seen with Manager Schlafley, of the Buffalo Federals; Brown, of St. Louis, and Stovall, of Kansas City.

Sweeney was expected to be in the New York club's training camp at Houston, Tex., not later than tomorrow, and his presence here was taken to indicate that he planned to join the new league.

The Buffalo club has made Sweeney an offer, it was said.

CHICAGO MAYOR ALL BUT STOPPED WORLD'S SERIES

BY RUGE S. FULLERTON.

Charles W. Murphy is gone from baseball, and it is apropos to tell some of the unprinted things that marked his stormy career of eight years as owner of the Chicago club. Some of the long hidden truth is coming out; but no one outside the Cub office ever will know how much happened during that eventful epoch.

Did you know that once only the intervention of one man prevented the calling off of one world's series and the stopping of the third game of that series?

It was in 1908. Chicago had won the National league pennant after a desperate struggle, winning the play-off of the tie from New York in a wonderful battle on the Polo grounds. The feeling was tense. The Chicago players were beaten, mobbed, then bombarded in their club house after their victory.

They fled from New York. Just as they were rushing for their train, the national commission telegraphed deciding upon Detroit. President Murphy was on the train. At Chicago the office force was busy selling tickets and all Chicago was demanding them.

During that rush for tickets Mayor Fred Busse's private secretary, accompanied by Jimmy Markham, secretary of the police, went to the Cub offices to see about tickets for Mayor Busse. Markham knew Murphy's secretary, Thomas, and started to introduce the mayor's secretary.

"You know Mr. —," he said.

"No," said Thomas," "but I know you—you're a ———."

Mayo rBusse was told about it.

"Call a patrol wagon," he said. "Go get that fellow. Bring him to my office and I'll talk to him."

A patrol wagon, loaded with police obeyed. The mayor said a few things. Then the ticket scandal broke. The Chicago club came home to play the first game in Chicago.

Mayor Busse was told about it. dered 400 policemen on foot, and a big squad of mounted police to block the streets leading to the Cub park, to prevent the game, because of alleged violations of building and other laws, and because of the scalping outrage.

There was consternation in the Cub management. In that dilemma one man rose to the emergency. He was Secretary Charles Williams, who recently left the Cubs and went to the Chicago Federal leaguers. Williams went to Ed Brundage, then high in political circles, and pleaded with him to intercede with the mayor. Brundage appealed to Mayor Busse and, at the last minute the order was canceled and the world's series was permitted to proceed.

Staten Selects Saul to Referee

Harry Staten announces that he has completed all arrangements for the three boxing bouts which he will stage Tuesday night at his club on Viaduct Way. He has chosen Mike Saul to handle these bouts, after talking the matter over with the principals in the main bout. Saul has handled a large number of local battles, and his selection should prove popular both with fighters and fans.

All of the boys who will box Tuesday night have been on hand for several days, working out in local quarters. Staten appreciates the fact that, no matter how clever a boxer he may be, he cannot go into a bout in poor physical condition and make a satisfactory showing. For this reason he has insisted that all of these boys get themselves in good shape.

The fact that Young Jackson and Gus Sharkey, who will meet in the main bout, are new boxers here should add interest to the battle. Both of these boys offer lengthy records of contests in which they have taken part; but local fans prefer to see them show something in the ring rather than exhibit a past record, regardless of what they have done. Both of these boys are big, hefty looking chaps, and, from appearances, they should be able to put up a good battle. Reserved seats to the show are on sale at Staten's place, and purchasers are assured that seats will be held for them regardless of the time of their arrival.

FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE

A BIG CENTRAL LOT

Just once and a while, a big central lot gets on the market. And when it does, a big price generally goes with it.

We have a big lot on Marietta street, big in every way but price. The lot owned by the First Presbyterian Church, on Marietta street, is the best buy on the market today. Churches are not in the real estate business, therefore when they move, they are willing to sell at a reasonable price.

Just run over in your mind the church lots in the center of Atlanta, and figure how much profit has been made by the purchasers. This is another opportunity of the same kind. Mark our prediction, the man who buys this property will make a fortune.

Ninety foot front by 196 feet deep, fronting Marietta where Spring and Cone empty into it. A viaduct sure to be built across to the Terminal, within 100 feet of it.

The biggest buildings, and the most people, are only a short distance away, and experience tells us that this property will be inside the big district very soon.

We have a price of $1,500 a foot on it, and believe it is the cheapest property in our city today.

The Real Estate Field

Dillin-Morris Co. Buys Ten Lots on Bedford Place for $25,000, Which It Will Improve With Two-Story Residences, W. F. Winecoff Takes Permit for Alterations on His Whitehall Street Property—Other Realty Notes

An interesting vacant lot sale and building announcement was featured in Monday's real estate announcements.

The Dillin-Morris company has bought from H. A. Etheridge ten building lots on Bedford Place extending from Seventh to Eighth streets, for an aggregate consideration of $25,000.

The purchasers have already started building near Eighth street, and will erect two-story residences on every lot.

The same company bought a tier of lots on West Ontario avenue in West End Park, which they will improve with homes. The company has just sold three residences there and will start three more this week.

The company reports the following sales of homes, all made recently: No. 49 West Ontario avenue to Mrs. M. L. Moody, for $4,900; No. 80, on the same street, to Mrs. L. L. Wilder, for $5,500, and No. 49, to a north side client, for $4,600. It also sold for the Pittman Construction company to A. E. Summerill, a house and lot on Kirkwood avenue.

WHITEHALL IMPROVEMENTS.

The regrading and repaving of Whitehall street south of Mitchell has resulted in extensive improvements in the buildings facing that part of the street.

W. F. Winecoff on Monday took a permit for extensive alterations on his leased buildings just south of Mitchell street. The renovations will cost $6,000.

The lowering of the grade at points added a story to several buildings.

GARNETT STREET SALE.

Papers went to record Monday conveying from R. C. Little to M. A. Massoud No. 118 Garnett street, the sale of which was announced recently. The consideration was $8,750.

EFFECT OF WEATHER.

Severe weather of the past few days has of course halted real estate activity, but this is practically the last blast of winter, warmer conditions will follow, and a good spring trade will begin.

The weather is seasonable, and while it results in temporary inconvenience, it will more than offset it with its beneficial effect on land and crops.

It virtually assures the state of a big fruit crop, which amounts to something like $3,000,000 in the dull summer season, and it puts farm land in fine shape to receive seed. All these things result in a good harvest, and a good harvest means greater bank clearings and more money for investment in real estate.

COTTON MARKET STEADY; PRICES SLIGHTLY LOWER

Few Brokers Were Around the Ring and Wire Service Was Crippled

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 2.—The cotton market, after opening irregular, sold off 2 to 4 points, with little feature outside of a few local and Liverpool orders. Few brokers are around the ring.

No fresh feature developed during the afternoon.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, March 2.—The cotton market opened quiet at a decline of 1 to 4 points on selling prompted by incomplete reports telling of lower cables than due. No support was offered after the call and in the early trading the market fell to a level 4 to 7 points down. The market gradually sagged to a level 7 to 8 points down. Scalping shorts took profits and at noon prices were 3 to 4 points down.

The market held dull in the afternoon and at 2 o'clock stood 5 to 6 points under Saturday's closing level.

AMERICANS NOT SURPRISED TO LEARN OF BAUCH DEATH

American Consul Arrives to Escort Commissioners on Benton Inquiry

(By Associated Press.)

EL PASO, Tex., March 2.—General Villa's expressed belief that Gustav Bauch, who was arrested at Juarez as a spy two weeks ago, was the victim of an assassin, occasioned no surprise here. The German-American's sister, Mrs. J. M. Patterson, and others interested in the case, have been resigned to the conclusion that Bauch was slain at Juarez, a week ago last Friday. They scout the personal enemy theory, however.

Repeated assertions have been made by certain Juarez rebels, talking incidentally to friends on this side of the border, that Bauch was executed, and the stories all agreed on the date of the execution, which was the day that General Villa departed for Chihuahua.

For a week official Juarez maintained that Bauch was in Chihuahua, but Chihuahua declared and informally proved that Bauch was not there at all.

Mrs. Patterson asserted that her brother, a locomotive engineer, had no enemies. His statement before the alleged courtmartial that he went to Juarez "to get drunk," was accepted by Mrs. Patterson as the truth.

Marion Letcher, American consul at Chihuahua, arrived here on a special train today for the purpose of conducting the Benton investigation commission to Chihuahua. When he will return was not certain.

Mr. Letcher, who will act as adviser to the commission, expected to return to Chihuahua on the special train which was provided by Villa, but the exact time of his return, he learned, would depend upon contingencies that might arise after a conference with the commissioners.

It was the plan, on arriving at Chihuahua, to go at once to the cemetery where Villa says Benton's body is buried. After the body is examined by the two United States army surgeons in the presence of the American and British representatives, the commission, without making its findings known, will return to El Paso to formulate its report.

"I am acting as an escort to the commission, to give every facility for making the examination," said Consul Letcher.

"Have you seen the grave where Benton's body is supposed to be buried?" he was asked.

"No; I have only Villa's word that it is buried in the Panteon de la Regla. The grave has not been pointed out to me."

The testimony of one witness has already been taken at Chihuahua by the British consul. It will be presented to the commission. The witness said he accompanied Benton from El Paso on the street car to Juarez the day the British subject was executed.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET WAS QUIET AND LOWER

Canadian Pacific, Reading, St. Paul, Copper and Erie Led the Decline

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, March 2.—Trading was slow at the opening today. The storm restricted the attendance of brokers and interferred with the business of the wire houses. The undertone was heavy.

Absence of demand caused prices to fall of their own weight, practically no speculative selling being evident.

Apart from the effect of the storm in limiting business, the market was influenced by the unfavorable character of Saturday's bank statement and additional poor railroad returns for January.

Some of the newer industrials declined sharply, but losses among the leading shares were not large.

The market became very dull after the noon hour and prices sought a lower level when selling orders appeared.

Decrease of $3,654,000 in the January net earnings of the New York Central system caused increased selling of that stock in the final hour and it lost nearly 2 points. Elsewhere the movement was inconsequential but the undertone remained depressed.

Closed heavy.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S COTTON LETTER.

NEW ORLEANS, March 2.—The may shows fair weather in Atlantics, cloudy in the rest of the belt, freezing temperatures over the entire eastern half of the belt, continued cold with frost to the coast in the west. This continued cold weather is unseasonable in the gulf districts and crops are delayed in the earliest sections. Indications are for fair and continued cold weather in Alabama and the Atlantics, cloudy and unsettled and warmer west of the Mississippi river, followed by rain and colder in the next few days.

Liverpool is holding well, considering the wide difference from New York; futures were 5 points down as due; spot prices 3 points lower; sales 8,000 bales. Owing to wire trouble in consequence of a severe storm over the north Atlantics, communication with the other markets was interrupted.

Our market opened 2 points lower and dropped to 12.41 for May on a little selling by scalpers, evidently counting on further pressure in New York.

Professional advices from there is that the short interest in March is still large and with leading interests selling May and July, the premium of March over these positions is likely to further increase.

Everybody realises the importance of the action of spot holders in the south these days. Unless spots give way the decline in futures and bearish control which has already carried the summer positions in New York 120 points under the middling price in the nearest southern spot markets should come to an end, particularly as early new crop matters are not as good as they might be.

Weather Conditions

Forecast till 7 p. m. Tuesday:

Atlanta and vicinity: Fair and continued cold tonight; Tuesday fair, warmer.

Georgia: Fair and continued cold tonight, temperature below freezing; Tuesday fair, with rising temperature.

Alabama: Cloudy tonight and Tuesday; rising temperature.

A most severe storm developed during Sunday in the north which moved directly eastward and is central this morning off the coast near New York City, where the barometric pressure is below 28.86 inches. This storm was accompanied by precipitation, mostly in the form of snow, in the Ohio valley, Lake region and northeastern section, and heavy gales along the Atlantic coast line and in the Lake region. Some of the highest velocities were 56 miles at Savannah, 60 miles at Hatteras, 56 miles at Washington and 48 miles at New York.

In the rear of this storm a cold wave of considerable force developed rapidly and spread over the entire southern and eastern section of the country east of the Mississippi. The lowest temperature at Atlanta Monday morning was 15 degrees, next to the lowest temperature for March on record; the fowest previously recorded was 8 degrees in March, 1899. The temperature in the west and northwest this morning, however, is not greatly colder than at Atlanta and although it will be cold Tuesday morning a rapid rise will take place Tuesday afternoon under the influence of another disturbance now forming over Colorado, which is accompanied by cloudy, comparatively warmer weather in the west.

Fair weather is indicated for tonight and Tuesday. The temperature will be again quite low Tuesday morning, but will not fall below freezing Tuesday night.

COTTON GOSSIP

Washington long range forecast: A cold wave for the eastern part of the country extending as far south as the Gulf of Mexico for the first days of the week, with warmer temperatures by the middle of the week and generally fair weather, were forecast by the weather bureau.

"A storm of marked intensity, central Sunday morning off Hatteras," said the weekly bulletin, "will move northeastward and be attended by west and northwest gales, and decided colder weather.

"Frosts and freezing temperature will occur in connection with this cold wave as far south as the east gulf and south Atlantic states, except the southern portion of the Florida peninsula. This cold wave, however, will be of short duration and a general reaction to higher temperatures will set in over the middle west Monday and eastern and southeastern states Tuesday.

"Generally fair weather will prevail during the next several days in virtually all parts of the country except the north Pacific states.

"The next storm of importance to cross the country will appear on the north Pacific coast Wednesday, cross the Great Central Valleys about Friday and the eastern states near the end of the week. This disturbance will cause rains in southern and probably rains and snows in northern states east of the Rocky Mountains."

Map shows fair, freezing weather Atlantics, cloudy entire rest of belt, no precipitation.

This cold weather at beginning of March with freezes and frosts to coast is unseasonable; crops are being delayed in earliest sections.—Kofler.

Forecast: Louisiana—Tonight unsettled, probably showers Tuesday, warmer tonight, warmer in east portion Tuesday; light to moderate easterly to southerly winds on the coast.

Arkansas—Tonight unsettled, warmer; Tuesday probably rain, warmer in east portion, colder in northwest portion.

Oklahoma—Tonight unsettled, warmer in east portion; Tuesday unsettled, colder.

East Texas—Unsettled tonight and Tuesday, probably warmer tonight except in extreme northwest portion, colder in the interior Tuesday; light to moderate southerly winds on the coast.

West Texas—Tonight unsettled, warmer in southeast portion, colder in northwest portion; Tuesday unsettled, colder.

Kansas—Unsettled weather tonight and Tuesday, probably rain or snow; warmer in extreme east and colder in west portions tonight; colder Tuesday.

A night letter from New York says considerable short interest in March yet, unless spots give way, short covering likely to increase the premium of March over May and July.

Weather map indicates fair, cold in Atlantics and Alabama, cloudy unsettled with bad spell of weather, warmer coming on western and central states next few days.

Georgia: Fair and continued cold tonight, temperature below freezing; Tuesday fair with rising temperature.

Alabama: Cloudy tonight, Tennessee, Kentucky: Fair and not quite so cold tonight; Tuesday increasing cloudiness and warmer, probably folowed by rain west portion.

Mississippi: Cloudy and warmer tonight; Tuesday rain and warmer, moderate variable winds.

GRAIN GOSSIP

Since the Argentine became a factor in the world's corn trade, practically the only considerable foreign demand for American corn comes during the first three months of the year, filling in between old and new Argentine corn, and while Danubian navigation is locked in ice. For example in 1913 we exported 34,000,000 bushels in January, February and March against only 10,000,000 during the other nine months of the year while in 1912 20,000,000 bushels went out in the three months which much less than a million bushels, a month thereafter until December. This year the old Argentine crop has held over and supplied January and February European wants that we had no export demand and now the Danube navigation is open and Europe as usual will get her supplies from that source until the new Argentine corn is exhausted. We have been cut out of our usual export call so far this year and there is no reason expect a belated demand in the months which past records show Europe always independent of us.—Rycroft.

King, of Toledo, says: Oklahoma March wheat condition 96; February 99; last March 85; no damage by late freezes.

Oats, acreage will increase 1 per cent; they raised 18,000,000 bushels each wheat and oats this season.

Grain belt forecast: Illinois, Missouri, Wisconsin, Dakotas, Nebraska and Kansas, unsettled probably rain or snow, warmer; Minnesota probably snow flurries, some colder.

Shoplifter Was an Inventor

Elastic String Used in His Operations Strictly an Original Idea.

(New York American).

Honest faced Frank Smith was taken as a prisoner to the West Thirtieth Street Station charged with stealing in downtown department stores.

Nora Bennett, store detective in a Thirty-fourth street establishment, watched Smith for a long time before she mustered courage to arrest him—he looked so honest. He had ill-kept country looking clothes. His boots were spotted as though there was a farmyard somewhere. He wore spectacles. Particles of dust, like hayseed, were on shoulders and hat.

But when he was searched at the store office a black, stout elastic was found fastened to the upper left vest pocket. At the other end of th elastic was a fastener with hooks. When this caught an article on a counter all Smith had to do was to walk away. Inventive genius and the elastic did the rest.

In his pockets were soap dish, hair brush, shaving brush, mirror, toothbrush, shoe horn, button hook, hatpin, purse, earrings, glove stretcher, pocket knife and atomizer, all from the silver counter. He had patronized liberally other counters and another store. Twenty-grin, not much concerned over the arrest, pointing to the rubber string.

"That's my own idea," he remarked, with a four articles in all were in numerous pockets.

WHEAT IN CHICAGO WAS IREGULAR AT THE CLOSE

Wheat Closed 1-4c Off to 1-4c Up—Corn and Oats Steady, Provisions Firm

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, March 2.—Wheat eased off today influenced by the absence of any reports of damage by freezing. Prices started ¼ to ⅝ off and underwent some additional setback. Subsequently the wheat market rallied on scattering advices of crop injury through alternate thawing and cold. Closing prices were steady ¼ cent off to ⅛@⅜ up compared with Saturday night.

Corn sagged as a result of the depression in wheat. Opening figures were ¼ to ⅛c lower, but there was a little subsequent reaction.

Predictions of a falling off in corn receipts led to covering by shorts. The close was steady at ⅛ to ⅛@⅜ cent net advance.

Oklahoma reports for increased acreage weakened oats. Trade, however, was chiefly of a local character.

Packers buying gave the provision market a lift. First sales ranged from Saturday night's level to 5c advance with later transactions showing the upturn well maintained.

BLEASE MEN SUSTAIN HIS VETOES IN HOUSE

Caucus Results in Governor's Followers Standing Pat on All Bills

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

COLUMBIA, S. C., March 2.—Followers of Governor Blease, in the caucus Friday night, decided to sustain vetoes of the chief executive on the appropriation bill and other matters. The meeting took place in rooms of the Union National bank building, opposite the capital, and it is understood that the appropriation bill was considered seriatim and an agreement reached as to what would be vetoed and what would be let pass. The caucus voted, the majority binding each member. Governor Blease was present and participated in the caucus. Four senators and about fifty members of the house attended.

The result of the caucus was felt Saturday whe nthe local bills, including one providing compulsory school attendance for the city of Spartanburg, were vetoed by Governor Blease and the vetoes sustained in the house. There was majority for the passage of the bills over the veto but not the necessary two-thirds, the house being anti-Blease by about 15 majority.

Followers of the administration are jubilant and the effect of the organization are being seen. It is understood that plans for capturing the next state convention are frequently the subject of conferences which are participated in by the Blease minority in the general assembly

Senator John L. McLaurin, who will run for governor, is said to have been present at the Blease caucus and to have taken an active part in its deliberations.

Both branches of the legislature adjourned until Tuesday night at 8 o'clock. The general appropriation bill is still in free conference and the free conference committee has recessed until Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

TILLMAN AND BLEASE HIT.

"Senator Tillman has slandered the senate for the past two years," said Senator Appel during a hot debate over the two-cent rate bill, in the course of which some warm passages were indulged in. Senator Buck denounced Senator Tillman, and others took a crack at him.

"Not only Senator Tillman, but one nearer home is bringing pressure to bear to get his bill through," said Senator Crouch, referring to Governor Blease.

Senator Ginn, who is supporting the bill, threatened to exceed a speech sixty hours in length unless the opponents of the measure agreed to letting it get to a vote. Senator Laney, also advocating the rate bill, said: "Is there anyone in the senate to whom the expression 'whose bread I eat, his song I sing?' can apply?"

The senate has been debating this measure for several days and the opponents have persistently refused to allow the senate to vote on the two-cent rate bill. With Senator Tillman and Governor Blease both hammering for the passage of the bill, the senate has stood firm and added one more obstacle to the effort to bring the bill to a vote when they adjourned further debate on the measure until Tuesday night.

While the filibuster against the bill was raging last night members of the house gathered in the lobby and sang

NEW TRIAL DENIED IN $10,000 DAMAGE SUIT

Judge William T. Newman, of the United States court, signed an order Monday denying a new trial in the case of W. M. Morris et al. vs. the Southern Ice company and holding that $10,000 damages should be paid.

An original judgment of $15,000 was awarded W. M. Morris. On the appeal of the defendant for a new trial the court ordered that $5,000 should be written off, but that the new trial should be denied.

Died Near Coffin

(By Associated Press.)

ROANOKE, Va., March 2.—Mrs. Matilda K. Kelly, sixty-three years old, died suddenly yesterday afternoon while funeral services were being conducted for her husband, George W. Kelly, a farmer, who died Thursday in the Ballahack district of Roanoke county.

Mrs. Kelly was seated beside the casket when she was stricken. She went out on the porch where she fell and succumbed in a few minutes.

VOWS OF POVERTY TO BE GIVEN TEST IN COURT

Important Question Affecting Catholic Church Goes Up for Decision

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, March 2.—On decision of the supreme court in a case to be considered this week may rest the future of every brotherhood and sisterhood of the Catholic church in the United States. The court will be called on to decide whether the vows of poverty in these orders are against public policy as recently decided by the United States circuit court of appeals of the eighth district.

The case in question arose out of the death of father Wirth, a member of the Order of St. Benedict, rounded about 525 A. D. At the time of his death in 1901, he was in charge of the German Catholic church at Springfield, Minn.

Nearly fifty years before his death he took the vows of the Benedictine Society of Chastity, poverty and obedience. He was then 23 years old. The effect of the vow of poverty was that all right of possessing property on his part was transferred to the order and that the order on its part became obliged to educate, maintain and support him for lift.

Father Wirth became a member of the St. Vincent Mission of Westmoreland county, Pa., in 1846. Later he was made prior of a monastery in Kansas and about 1897 went to Minnesota. During his life he had become such an honored member that his superior permitted him to retain in his possession certain property. At the time of his death he was in possession of some $5,000, in addition to royalties from books he had written.

The probate court of Brown county, Minn., recognized his heirs as entitled to the property. After a series of contests wiah the order, the heirs succeeded in getting a decision from the United States circuit court to the effect that the vow of poverty was against public policy and therefore void. The heirs were held entitled to the property.

Approximately 59,000 priests, brothers and nuns will be effected by the decision, as it is probable the title of the orders to their churches, colleges, schoolhouses, hospitals and sanitariums in practically every state of the union may be drawn into question.

"TRANSITORY INSANITY" IS DEFENSE OF ELLIS

Physician Says Man Who Slew Wife Appeared to Be an Epileptic

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, March 2.—The defense of psychic epilepsy, otherwise known as "transitory insanity," was brought forward today to save William Cheney Ellis from the death penalty for killing his wife here in a hotel last October.

The psychic epilepsy testimoney was given by Dr. L. Patrick Mackler, superintendent of the emergency hospital. Dr. Meckler said he put eight stitches in the self-inflicted gash in Ellis' neck and dressed the lacerations on his wrist.

"Ellis appeared to be an epileptic. It seemed to me that he had just emerged from a fit," said Dr. Mackler. "From my examination I would say he might have been in the epileptic seizure from eight to sixteen hours. He was in a dazed condition."

"Dostor," asked Prosecutor Malato in cross examination, "if I were to point this revolver at this juryman and kill him during an attack of psychic epilepsy, would I know anything about it afterward?"

"Possibly, and then again possibly not," replied Dr. Mackler.

"An epileptic's mind is a blank at the time a crime is committed by him, but sleep and different surroundings may bring recollection of it."

EATONTON FISHERMEN LUCKY DURING SNOW

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

EATONTON, Ga., March 2.—Proving the old adage that "snowy weather is the best time to catch," B. L. Royal, of this city and his son, J. The fish sold here at 15 cents a pound.

TWENTY-SEVEN IN RACE FOR SIX WARE OFFICES

Executive Committee Fixes May 20 as Date for Primary

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

WAYCROSS, Ga., March 2.—For the six offices in Ware in which a contest has developed to date 27 candidates are running. Several weeks ago it was believed the announcements were all in and that an early primary would be called to settle the county races without delay. But since the executive committee named May 20 as the date for the primary it appears that the list of candidates is apt to grow steadily until the closing day.

The race for tax receiver has the most candidates at present. Eight want the office. The candidates are R. D. O'Berry, A. L. Hughes, John D. Gibson, C. H. Lowther, J. W. McQuaig, E. M. Herrin, J. P. Lide and E. M. Pafford. The race for county treasurer is a close second to that for tax receiver, as there are seven after the place. These are D. A. Williams, W. E. Steedley, J. Baker Smith, J. F. Harbin, J. W. Bellinger, J. B. Thorpe and J. D. Crawford, Jr.

Four want to fill the office of sheriff. The incumbent, D. W. Pittman, asks re-election. The other candidates are E. J. Murray, Jesse Cannon and H. S. Guthrie. For clerk E. J. Berry seeks re-election, and has as opponents James Cowart and O. W. Williams. For the office of coroner also a spirited contest is on, three asking for the place. These are S. T. Cordell, W. C. Paul and Joel S. Walker. The race for tax collector is so far only a two-sided one, the present incumbent, J. T. Strickland, being opposed by H. J. Mullis.

Unless there are radical shifts in the present situation it is certain that a second primary will be necessary to fill one or more of the county offices, and as the second primary won't be held until the state primary it looks as if it will be late in the summer before some of the candidates know where they stand.

Canals of Mars

(By Associated Press.)

BOSTON, Mass., March 2.—The so-called canals of Mars are exhibiting striking seasonal developments, according to Dr. Percival Lowell, of the Flagstaff, Ariz., observatory. In a dispatch received here today he said: "The north polar cap of the planet is melting and the canals are strongest and darkest near the edge of the cap."

This is declared to be in accord with Dr. Lowell's theory that melting of snow at the Martain pole produces floods that are responsible for color changes in the "canals."

HOTEL HORAN AT DALTON IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

DALTON, Ga., March 2.—Accomplishing the best work ever seen here since its organization, the local fire department Sunday afternoon prevented the spread of flames from Horan hotel to a block of business buildings within a few feet of the burning structure.

The loss is estimated at between $2,000 and $3,000, partially covered by insurance.

AN IRISH MUSICAL GENIUS

Some of His Songs

Michael William Balfe was born in Dublin, Ireland, 1808. His father taught him the rudiments of music and to play the violin when only eight years old, receiving great applause for his performance at a Royal Exchange concert.

Five years later the death of his father so agitated the boy that he went to Charles Horn, the great musician, and in desperation besought him to take him with him to London. The great-hearted musician consented, and Balfe was soon able to improvise and compose music with facility.

Later Count Mazzora, who at sight of young Balfe grew pale and nearly fainted, explained that only a few months before he had buried his only son, whom Balfe so closely resembled that no one could have told them apart. So greatly did the count feel attracted to young Balfe that he offered to take him to Rome, receive him into his family, and give him every opportunity for the highest culture. Horn advised him to go, and with his affectionate patron he went to Italy.

Balfe was ushered into a large but dingy palace, whose halls suggested the days of luxury. The servants threw open a stately portal, revealing a splendid suite of rooms flooded with soft radiance and royally furnished, in which a queenly matron and beautiful girl awaited their strange guest in welcome. It was as if the dead had returned alive. The mother, with the abandon of her race, caught Balfe to her breast, covering his face with tears and kisses and uttering the most touching endearments, suggesting "I Dreamt I Dwelt in Marble Halls."

Balfe was a true genius, and does not seem to have properly appreciated the favors heaped upon him. At the end of a year Mazzora arranged for Balfe to study in Milan during his absence in England, and Balfe was able to impress Glossop of the great La Scala Theater with his ability as a composer.

He became a singer in Italian opera at Paris, where he died October 18, 1870, in his fifty-third year. Of twenty-seven operas and seven cantatas, the "Bohemian Girl" alone has never lost its hold on world-wide popular favor.

Several of Balfe's famous songs are to be found in "Heart Songs"—the book now being presented to the readers of this paper. The coupon printed elsewhere in today's issue, explains the terms.
