Villa Captures Huerta Stronghold After Six Days of Fiercest Fighting Since the Revolution Began

REBELS GIVEN CONTROL OF NORTHERN MEXICO

Federal Loss Estimated at 1,000 Killed, 2,500 Wounded. Rebels Lose 500 Killed and 1,500 Wounded

TORREON, Mexico, April 3.—(Via Gomes Palacio.)—Torreon, strewn with the dead and wounded of a six-day battle, was occupied by the rebels last night on the heels of the fleeing federals.

In all the fighting no foreigner was killed or injured. The taking of Torreon marks the climax of the first campaign of the revolution to oust Victoriano Huerta from Mexico City. It gives the constitutionalists virtual control over the whole northern tier of Mexican states.

The fighting began last Friday and was almost continuous. At first Villa attempted assaults on the strong federal positions in daylight, but those proved so costly the days were spent in unmanning and the nights in assaults.

Positions were taken and lost again and again. Several night attacks sent the federals scurrying from strong positions, but at daybreak the captors could be compelled to abandon them by the accuracy of the enemy's artillery fire, most of which is said to have been directed by French and German gunners.

LOSSES HEAVY.

Losses have not been compiled, but General Villa estimates his own losses at 500 killed and 1,500 wounded, the federal loss at 1,000 killed and 2,500 wounded, with an unknown number of prisoners.

FEDERAL LOSS HEAVY.

Villa believes that federals, whom his cavalry is pursuing to the south, form only a remnant of the federal forces whose loss—killed, wounded and prisoners—he says probably is close to being total. All the subordinate generals are not yet reported, however, and until they do, just how many were captured cannot be ascertained.

The battle line was four miles long and the field was determined by three hills which formed like a carpenter's square, at either end of which lay the cities of Gomez Palacio and Torreon.

There were about 15,000 men in each army. The federals had fortified the hills with rifle pits, trenches and barb wire entanglements. The nature of the ground made it difficult to recover the wounded and many of them died where they fell of thirst and hunger, or lack of attention.

Automobiles were used in rescue work, but they could not ascend the hillsides.

Some of the fiercest fighting occurred in the hills south of Gomez Palacio and west of Torreon. It raised with great fury in the canon De Fernandez, where the federals made their last desperate stand and from which they finally fled, followed by a column of Villa's cavalry.

FIGHT FROM HOUSETOPS.

Twice the rebels took two of the hills only to lose them, but all the time the attack was becoming more formidable as the soldiers, attacking from all sides except the west and fighting from housetops, drew the circle closer about the enemy.

A hundred small encounters occurred intermittently in the streets or over the possession of some favored roof. But the road of cannon was almost continuous.

Rich sides used armored trains. These, with big guns mounted, would suddenly appear around an elbow of one of the hills, discharge a broadside and then retire. Early in the attack on Gomez Palacio the trains ventured too near the same time and lively exchange of shots ensued, like a naval engagement on land. The federals made use of huge rockets which were shot to a great height, exploding in the air and precipitating a hail of buckshot.

On the fourth day of the fight the insane suffering from lack of water was relieved by a rain, thought to have been brought on by the heavy firing.

During the battle scouts brought word that federal reinforcements from Monterey were approaching on the east. General Herrera was sent against them and later reported that he had sent them scurrying into the hills.

The battle raged first into Torreon, then back to the railroad yards and ravine in the suburbs for two or three days. The federals grew weaker each day in their fighting. Finally, the federals evacuated to the south and the rebels took possession of Torreon.

Many States Now Under Domination of Rebels

(By Associated Press.)

JUAREZ, Mexico, April 3.—With the taking of Torreon by the rebels last night, constitutionalists now control an immense wedge-shaped portion of Mexico, with the point resting on Torreon, 600 miles south of here, and the top extending along the American border from Nogales, Ariz., to a point just west of Eagle Pass, Tex. At Piedras Negras, known also as Ciudad Porfirio Diaz, across the Rio Grande from Eagle Pass, there is a federal garrison but it does not now constitute a menace to the rebels.

The states now subjectto the rebel arms are Chihuahua, Sonora (except the port of Guaymas), most of Coahuila, Durango and Sinaloa.

Yesterday's victory is said to make secured the capture of Saltillo and Monclova in Coahuila and Monterey, the key of the state of Nuevo Leon. The main federal force, according to Villa's

HOW DISTRICTS ARE ARRANGED

Brewerton Has Drawn for Readers of The Journal a Map Showing the Regional Banking Districts Fixed by the Regional Reserve Board—Atlanta's District Is Indicated by the Heavy Black Lines

JOURNAL EXTRAS TELL FIRST NEWS OF CHOICE

Atlanta first learned of its victory in securing the regional bank through The Journal's extras announcing the decision Friday afternoon. Long before any other paper was out with the news The Journal had put the announcement of the decision and a complete story of the campaign for the bank into the hands of the public. Two minutes before anybody else had a message on the wires in regard to the action of the regional bank committee, Ralph Smith, The Journal's correspondent in Washington, had flashed into The Journal office the news of Atlanta's good fortune, and one minute later everybody was reading about the decision in The Journal's first extra.

Much interest centered in the decision. Bankers, merchants and the public at large have long been eagerly awaiting the announcement of the regional bank committee, and for the past several days particularly there was much impatience for the publication of the news concerning the decision. All day long Friday The Journal was besieged with telephone calls, and when the news finally came out the extras were snapped up as fast as the newsboys could put them on the streets.

The first extra conveyed only the news of Atlanta's good fortune, but the second extra not only gave the names of the other cities chosen, but reviewed in detail the campaign for Atlanta and described the southeastern territory of which Atlanta has been made the financial center.

Both extras were on the streets forty minutes before any other newspaper was out, and by the time people had read The Journal's extras they knew all there was to tell about the new regional bank in Atlanta.

WOMAN SAYS SHE CURES BLIND, DEAF AND DUMB PEOPLE

Mrs. Etter Claims Her Only Agency in Working Miracles Is Divine Inspiration—Holds Services in Tabernacle

A series of remarkable cures of deaf, dumb, and blind folks have been worked in Atlanta during the past three weeks, according to their worker, Mrs. M. B. Woodworth Etter, of Indianapolis, Ind., and those who have been attending her "pentecostal revival services" at the old Baptist Tabernacle.

Mrs. Etter, who has been conducting daily services there since early in March, claims she has healed large numbers of people both here and in other cities who have been afflicted with various ills generally pronounced incurable.

She declares she has done this through divine inspiration. She takes no credit to herself for these cures, but says they are accomplished by co-operation of divine belief both by her and her subjects.

"If they come to me having faith and in the right spirit, I can cure them," says Mrs. Etter, "and I have cured them."

hung over her for eight years.

One of those who says she saw this done is Mrs. Elizabeth McCarthy, of the Georgia Woman's Sufferage association.

"I saw the woman, who I knew could not see, go up to Mrs. Etter," says Mrs. McCarthy. "Mrs. Etter held her hands over her and in a few seconds the woman saw. She counted the windows in the room, the electric light bulbs in the ceiling, then turned to a man standing near her and said she could see he had on spectacles."

Mrs. McCarthy says she herself was cured of a partial deafness by Mrs. Etter. Mrs. McCarthy says she has also been unable to see well for many years and that Mrs. Etter healed her of this trouble, too.

Here is the text of the formal expression:

PRESIDENT STANDS FIRM FOR DANIELS' NOMINATION

Fight on Nominee for Commerce Commission Continues in Senate Today

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The fight on Winthrop M. Daniels, of New Jersey, President Wilson's nominee for the interstate commerce commission, continued today in executive session of the senate and caused a series of Wall House conferences. Senator Hughes hurried back from New Jersey to lead the fight for Mr. Daniels.

Senators who visited the president found him standing firm for Mr. Daniels. When the executive session recessed last night those opposing the nomination claimed enough votes to beat it, and among the proposals advanced was one that the president withdraw the nomination. Senators who conferred with Mr. Wilson today found no indication of such a course.

Lengthy debate on the Daniels' nomination has developed considerable opposition to him. Senators Cummins and LaFollette and others who are fighting confirmation, have made it clear that there is nothing personal in their attack but they believe Mr. Daniels' declarations as a member of the New Jersey public utilities commission show that he held unsound economic views, particularly as they might affect future physical valuation of railroads. Friends of Mr. Daniels, including Chairman Newlands and Senator Pomerone, of the interstate commerce committee, who conferred with President Wilson last night, were prepared to argue with their colleagues today that what Mr. Daniels had done in construing a state law should not be held as influencing his views of conduct in a federal office where, they contend, the statutes and economic situation are different.

The president is earnestly desirous that Mr. Daniels be confirmed. He regards him as one of the foremost authorities on political economy in the country.

BRYAN WEARIES OF JOKE ABOUT LOSING HIS VOICE

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Letters and packages loaded with advice and "cures" are pouring in on Secretary Bryan daily as a result of the recent publication of some wag's statement that the secretary's voice had become impaired. Mr. Bryan decided today that the joke had gone far enough and formally denied there is anything wrong with his vocal organs.

RESERVE BANKS TO BEGIN BUSINESS WITHIN 90 DAYS

Officials Think New Currency System Will Be in Operation by That Time

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Although various steps still must be taken before the new federal reserve banking system begins operation, treasury officials expected today that the 12 regional reserve banks would open for business within three months and that the revolutionary change in the nation's financial machinery would be established within that time. With the designation of the reserve centers the organization committee took the first decisive step toward perfection of the system.

The first work today was official certification to Comptroller of he Currency Williams of the selections and Mr. Williams began notifying 7,548 national and state banks which have applied for membership. It was the general expectation that member banks in the twelve districts would immediately begin preparing for the establishment of their reserve banks. Every bank must begin payment of a subscription of 6 per cent of its capital and surplus to the stock of its reserve bank within thirty days after notification.

In accordance with the law, as soon as member banks in a district have subscribed the minimum amount of stock for a reserve bank—$4,000,000—five banks will be designated to execute the formal certificate of organization. After its receipt here the reserve bank will become a corporation and entitled to begin business.

The next step will be the selection of boards of directors for the reserve banks. There will be nine directors for each bank, three to be appointed by the federal reserve board which is to be named by President Wilson, and six selected by member banks in each district.

Although the federal reserve board is to choose three directors in each reserve bank and appoint a reserve agent for each bank who is to act as its mouthpiece, the organization committee may perfect the organization of a reserve bank for all practical purposes before the reserve board is appointed, and it is believed the committee will exercise this authority to launch the system as soon as possible.

In the opinion of officials here the transfer of money from member banks in payment of their subscriptions to reserve banks will be accomplished without disturbance to business and without any curtailment of credit or retrenchment in loans, or discount.

SENATOR SMITH SAYS BANK'S BENEFITS WILL EXCEED EXPECTATIONS

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 3.—Senator Hoke Smith was deluged with telegrams of congratulations from all sections of Georgia today on the splendid victory gained for Atlanta and the southeastern states in the location of a federal reserve bank at Atlanta. Asked if he had any comment to make for publication, Senator Smith said:

"I have no doubt that the benefits to the southeastern section from the location of the reserve bank at Atlanta will exceed the expectations of the most enthusiastic advocates."

The senator was at his home when the official announcement was made at the treasury department. The Journal correspondent conveyed to him the news. He asked for a description of the district, which was given him.

"Are you interested in the other banks?" the senator was asked.

"No, not just now," and he hung up the telephone, satisfied with the result of his unremitting efforts in the interests of his section and his city.

From the beginning of the fight for a reserve district in the southeast, with a bank in Atlanta, Senator Smith worked with tireless energy. He regarded the opportunity for service to his section as one of a lifetime.

ROMANCE OF YOUTHFUL PAIR RUDELY SHATTERED

Girl-Wife Files Suit for Divorce on Husband Who Left the State

The final shattering of a romance between Agnes Almand Maynard, fifteen years old, and Garland H. Maynard, eighteen years old, occurred Saturday, when the girl-wife filed suit for divorce against her husband.

The juvenile couple were married on September 13, 1913, and separated February 5, 1914, when, according to the wife's petition, the husband left Georgia and the jurisdiction of the Fulton superior court after a conviction for forgery.

The court records show that Maynard was convicted on January 21 of forging the name of the landlady of his boarding house to the back of a check given Maynard by his employer to pay his board. Instead of paying it, he cashed the forged check.

He was found guilty by a superior court jury early in February and sentenced by Judge Hill to pay a fine of $50 or serve twelve months on the gang. The fine was paid.

SOUTH'S BIG CITIES TO BE GIVEN BRANCH BANKS OF ATLANTA

New Orleans, Birmingham, Jacksonville, Nashville, Chattanooga and Knoxville Sure of Getting Tributaries

372 MEMBER BANKS TO ELECT THE DIRECTORS

No Site for Depository Selected Yet, but It Is Believed Healey Building Will Be Its Atlanta Home

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The decision of the federal reserve organization committee selecting Atlanta and eleven other cities as banking centers of federal reserve districts, as announced last night, seems to have met with general satisfaction. Secretary McAdoo and the other members of the committee were flooded today with telegrams from all sections of the country commending their work. The only outcroppings of soreness and disappointment came from the cities of Washington, Baltimore, Cincinnati and New Orleans. The first two of those were common rivals against Richmond and the Washington papers today in their news stories profess surprise that the capital of the nation must in future transact its banking business through the former capital of the Confederacy.

BRANCH BANKS.

Cincinnati, Louisville and Pittsburg were the common rivals of Cleveland, which was named as the center of the fourth district. New Orleans was the rival of both Atlanta and Dallas, but the committee felt that the facts did not justify the establishment of a bank in the Crescent City. Atlanta made a much stronger case, as did also Dallas.

With the announcement yesterday, the organization committee completed its work. A new remains for the federal reserve board, nine of whom have not been appointed, to provide for the creation of branch banks. It is believed that New Orleans, Birmingham, Jacksonville, Nashville, Chattanooga, Knoxville, Columbus, Montgomery, Meridian and Mobile will be named for branch banks in the Atlanta district.

The directors of the Atlanta federal reserve will be elected by the 372 member banks, which subscribe all the capital stock of the regional institution. The federal government, under the terms of the currency law, will enjoy supervisory powers over the reserve banks, but the federal government will not provide buildings for the regional banks.

The directors of the Atlanta reserve bank will be nine in number. It is not regarded as important, however, that the federal reserve banks be located in the center of the business district of any city, as they will not be banks of deposit.

The decision of the organization committee, making Atlanta the financial center of the south, was announced at 6:30, eastern time, yesterday afternoon, following a prolonged conference of the committee in the office of Secretary McAdoo.

Earlier in the day a tip gained currency that the decision would be given out at 5:30, so that an hour before the announcement came the reception room of the office of the secretary was filled with newspaper men. They had as result of the hour, during which time all sorts of speculation was had as to the number and location of the banks.

Practically all of the cities represented had published guesses as to the decision, and very few of them had guessed correctly all of the cities.

All of the premature stories published throughout the country were born of the knowledge possessed by all intelligent persons that New York, Boston, Chicago and San Francisco would get banks. With these four certainties, many of the more daring newspapermen exploited the powers of deductions and attempted to anticipate the

MADISON LINES UP FOR GA. RAILROAD CHANGES

Two Additional Fast Trains Would Be of Untold Benefit

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MADISON, Ga., April 3.—Since it was learned that trains 3 and 4 would stop at Madison citizens of this city are lining up enthusiastically behind the proposed changes on the Georgia railroad schedules. The two extra fast trains will mean much for Madison and the section.

Paul M. Atkinson, ex-representative and ex-president chamber of commerce thinks the changes are just the thing.

Lee Trammell, prominent banker and merchant, says he believes the proposed new schedules are the best ever yet contemplated.

A. G. Foster, solicitor of the city court of Madison, is heartily in favor of these changes.

C. M. Furlow, secretary of the chamber of commerce, insurance man and editor of the Madisonian, is delighted and people are practically unanimous for the proposed changes, especially since Mr. Wickersham has given assurance that Madison will be a stop for all trains on the Georgia.

This is an important point as connections are made with the four passenger trains on the Macon and Athens division of the Central.

Atlanta Girl Scores Big Hit in Production For College Benefit

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

BOSTON, Mass., April 2.—"Beau Brummel," by Clyde Fitch, as produced by the junior class of Wellesley college, in the New Cort theater, head of the rebuilding fund, scored a distinct hit. From the time the curtain first went up until the final sombre scene, the interest in the play was tense.

It seemed to many people in the large audience that a company of professional actors of high histrionic attainment producing the comedy instead of a group of third-year college girls.

To Miss Tracy L'Engle, 164 Ponce de Leon avenue, Atlanta, Ga., was given the opportunity to portray "Beau Brummel," which she did with the skill of a master. Others who were applauded were the ballifts, Misses Raechael Davis and Rowena Nye; Marianna Vincent, Lucy Taussig; the prince of Wales, Hildegarde Jones; Oliver Vincent, Nanette Pferik; the duchess of Leamington, Miss Margaret Garide.

Cleveland Plans to Provide Building for Federal Reserve Bank

(By Associated Press.)

CLEVELAND, Ohio, April 3.—A movement was started here today to provide a building for Cleveland's new federal reserve bank as a part of the proposed group plan of public buildings here.

Speculation was rife today as to the membership of the governing board of the new bank. Bankers and business men seemed loath to allow their names to be used as membership of the board will necessitate severing all banking relations and would mean a sacrifice of salary, it was stated.

You'll notice three added "comfort-features" in the Crossett "Doctor" Shoe, which give you greatest help in preventing and correcting fallen arches.

(1) The extended heel.

This heel extends on one side underneath your instep and helps to take away the strain from your arch. The bottom of the heel is slightly raised. This tends to "tilt" your arch gradually back into the correct walking position.

(2) The curved "waist."

This "waist" is the part of the shoe which covers your arch. It is made of soft, flexible leather so as to allow perfect freedom to your arch muscles. It is shaped to foot-form so as to hold your arch firmly in the correct position.

(3) The inside sole.

This is scientifically built to form a perfect rest for your foot. Its special shape not only relieves your arch of strain but it also helps to keep the bones of your arch in place.

The Crossett "Doctor" Shoe is the perfected shoe for preventing and correcting arch troubles. Like the other Crossett Shoes—it is famous for its comfort features. It has received the highest approval from some of the leading orthopedic doctors in Massachusetts.

You'll notice three added "comfort-features" in the Crossett "Doctor" Shoe, which give you greatest help in preventing and correcting fallen arches.

(1) The extended heel.

This heel extends on one side underneath your instep and helps to take away the strain from your arch. The bottom of the heel is slightly raised. This tends to "tilt" your arch gradually back into the correct walking position.

(2) The curved "waist."

This "waist" is the part of the shoe which covers your arch. It is made of soft, flexible leather so as to allow perfect freedom to your arch muscles. It is shaped to foot-form so as to hold your arch firmly in the correct position.

(3) The inside sole.

This is scientifically built to form a perfect rest for your foot. Its special shape not only relieves your arch of strain but it also helps to keep the bones of your arch in place.

The Crossett "Doctor" Shoe is the perfected shoe for preventing and correcting arch troubles. Like the other Crossett Shoes—it is famous for its comfort features. It has received the highest approval from some of the leading orthopedic doctors in Massachusetts.

Clean Up and Beautify Atlanta

The campaign is on. We are going to have a cleaned-up, painted-up Atlanta for the "Shriners."

So far, so good; but let us go further and make use of that cleaned-up yard, both front and back.

Fill the back yard with the money-saving, health-saving vegetable garden.

In front and on the side, patch up the ragged-looking spots in the lawn by sowing Grass Seed; make beds of the bedding and decorative plants, such as geraniums, coleus, salvia, etc. These are and make our home places, individually, and the city as a whole, an attractive place for those of us who have to look at them all season.

It's all right to "slick up" for special occasions, but it's far better to make and keep an "Atlanta Beautiful" all the year for ourselves and the tens of thousands of visitors that are constantly coming to our city and forming opinions from what they see.

Hastings' Is the Place to get all those things in the way of Seeds, Plants, Bulbs and Fertilizers necessary to make and keep Atlanta beautiful this spring and summer.

M. R. WILKINSON PRAISES WORK OF WALTER COOPER

Much Credit Due Secretary for Share in Regional Bank Fight

Mell R. Wilkinson, president of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, says that much credit is due to Walter G. Cooper, secretary of the chamber, for his share in the tedious work of getting up statistics for use in the campaign for the regional bank for Atlanta. In order to satisfactorily present Atlanta's right to the bank, it was necessary to work up a great mass of figures showing the financial, industrial and commercial importance of the city, and Mr. Cooper did all the advance work on these statistics, which were afterwards used to such admirable advantage in pressing Atlanta's claim for the bank.

"The advance work done by Mr. Cooper in compiling valuable statistics and facts to be placed before the bank committee was the most valuable asset we had in presenting our claims," said Mr. Wilkinson Friday. "The amount of labor involved in getting up this statement was stupendous. Mr. Cooper went at it with his whole heart and, though at that time he was not a well man, kept doggedly at the task until it was completed.

"His work showed the most comprehensive statement of facts, figures and statistics that I have ever seen. He was the wheelhorse and a power in our attack. Too much credit can not be given him because I doubt if there are really many outside of those intimately associated with him who know what a potent factor Mr. Cooper was in helping to win for the city one of the federal reserve banks. Because of this and his great work it is a pleasure for me to commend him and let others know where a large share of the credit belongs."

INUNCTION GRANTED AGAINST THE CITY

A temporary injunction restraining the city of Atlanta from selling 833 feet of the Georgia Railway and Power company's tracks on Flat Shoals avenue, was granted Thursday afternoon by Judge George L. Bell of the superior court.

The city had given public notice that this portion of the railway's right of way was to be sold to satisfy a fi fa levying on the tracks for payment of 70 cents a foot for a line of sewer pipes recently installed. The company is supposed to own the land nearest to the pipes, which the city therefore assessed. When the money was not paid, the company's right of way was advertised for sale.

Judge Bell set April 18 for a hearing of the case to determine whether or not the restraining order shall be made a permanent one or shall bedismissed. Colquitt & Conyers filed the injunction for the railway company.

CIRCULATE PETITION FOR CHEAPER GAS IN ATLANTA

Ask $5,000 of Council to Pay Expenses of Probe of Gas Light Company

Petitions asking council to appropriate $5,000 to defray the expenses of an investigation by the state railroad commission into the affairs of the Atlanta Gas Light company, the object of the investigation being an order for cheaper gas rates, are being circulated among the gas consumers of the city by a committee of the Gas Consumers' league, an organization formed to make a fight for cheaper gas.

These petitions are the first use that has been made of the initiative, referendum and recall feature of the city charter which was enacted by the legislature last year and subsequently ratified by a vote of the people.

The new feature of the charter provides that 10 per cent of the voters may bring any matter to council's attention. According to City Electrician R. C. Turner, who is one of the leaders in the Gas Consumers' league, the committee will not stop at getting 10 per cent of the voters to sign the petitions, but will obtain a great many more than this number.

The petitions probably will be submitted to council within the next thirty days, says Electrician Turner. It is not intended to present them next Monday, as was published Friday morning. Following is a comparison of Atlanta's gas rate with the gas rates of some other cities:

Atlanta	$1.00
Detroit	.75
Boston	.80
New York	.80
Baltimore	.90
Indianapolis	.85
Chicago	.80
Holyoke, Mass.	.90
Washington, D. C.	.85
Richmond	.85
Los Angeles	.75

Electrician Turner says: "The city of Atlanta used to own a part interest in the gas works. It was the biggest mistake in the history of Atlanta's city government when that interest was sold. If the city had held its interest it could have insured cheap gas to the people for all time, just as the municipally owned waterworks system is now providing the people with cheap water.

"The Atlanta Gas Light company has a charter granted by the state legislature. Under this charter it operates independent of the mayor and general council. When it wants to lay a main or a street which has no main, it proceeds without asking council anything. When it wants to lay a main under a permanent pavement it has the right to cut through the pavement without asking council's permission.

"Atlanta's city fathers must have been asleep back there when the gas company was getting such a charter from the state.

"But at least the railroad commission can control the company's rates, and the Gas Consumers' league is confident that an investigation by the commission into the company's affairs will reveal the justice of our claim for cheaper gas."

ANSWER TO BUCKHEAD CITIZENS' FARE PETITION

Georgia Railway Official Says Impossible to Give Lower Rate on Line

Preston Arkwright, of the Georgia Railway and Power company, has filed an answer with the railroad commission in regard to the petition of citizens living beyond Buckhead who have requested the commission to order a reduction of 5 cents on the fare from the city to the end of the Brookhaven extension.

The answer says that at the time the extension was built, residents along the line agreed to pay the additional 5 cents fare from Buckhead outward, and that property owners agreed to subscribe $25,000. Only a part of the subscriptions have been paid, and some of the remaining are uncollectable, says the answer; and even with the additional 5 cents fare the line is operating at a loss.

To support this statement Mr. Arkwright says that during January the receipts on the line as far as Buckhead were $6,581.10 and from Buckhead outward, $825.50. The operating expenses, not allowing for depreciation, were $4,598.57, while taxes and interest that are assignable to that portion of the trolley system, amounted to $2,695.95. This left a deficit of $813 and some odd cents. Mr. Arkwright says that if the additional fare beyond Buckhead be withdrawn the line will operate at a great loss.

Copies of this answer will be sent to those petitioners who are requesting the withdrawal of the additional fare, and if they then insist on pushing the matter further a date for a hearing will be set by the commission.

Hyomei Relieves

Catarrh, Head Colds, Snuffles

Why delay and continue to needlessly suffer the ravages of catarrh? It is not only unnecessary, but dangerous. Try now—today—the Hyomei treatment for catarrh ills, head colds, hoarseness or bronchitis.

WOMAN'S GARB BY POND IS REGARDED AS HOAX

Notwithstanding the improbability that a woman attempting suicide by drowning would not stop to disrobe at the water's edge, the city police dragged a sewer pool at the outlet of the Hill street sewer, Thursday afternoon, and found nothing.

A dress and a purse, empty, were found on the bank of the pool by passersby, and the police were notified.

The officers believe the clothing and purse were put there by an April Fool joker.

Atlanta and Georgia Chambers Congratulate Senator Hoke Smith

Both the Atlanta chamber of commerce and the Georgia chamber of commerce have sent congratulatory telegrams to Senator Hoke Smith, crediting him with the victory of winning a federal reserve bank for Atlanta and the southeast.

Through Secretary Walter G. Cooper, the Atlanta chamber sent the following telegram Thursday night immediately after The Journal's extras telling of the victory reaching the street:

"Now that Atlanta has been awarded a regional bank, allow me to again thank you personally and in behalf of the chamber of commerce for the great work you did for Atlanta and the southeast in this matter. President Wilkinson also sends his thanks and congratulations.

President Charles J. Haden, of the state chamber, wired Senator Smith Friday morning. The telegram follows:

"Let us thank you for the able efforts of yourself and other Georgia representatives in getting the regional bank. It was a great victory."

(Signed) "CHARLES J. HADEN, "President, Georgia Chamber of Commerce."

WILSON IS INDORSED ON REPEAL OF TOLLS

A resolution indorsing President Wilson's stand on the repeal of free canal tolls for American coastwise vessels was unanimously adopted by the Fulton county Democratic executive committee at its meeting Friday.

The resolution was introduced jointly by Albert Howell, Jr., Louis Gholston, Albert D. Thomson and J. O. Cochran. It read as follows:

Whereas, There is now pending before the congress of the United States a bill to repeal free tolls for American coastwise vessels, and

Whereas, Free tolls is nothing but a species of subsidy for the ships of the shipping trust, against all the principles and traditions of the Democratic party.

Therefore be it resolved by the Fulton county Democratic executive committee, That we indorse the position of the president of the United States urging the repeal of the bill heretofore passed by a Republican administration; and

Be it resolved, That this committee learns with much pleasure that the congressional delegation from Georgia stood solidly for the repeal of this bill when voted on in the house of representatives, and whereas we also learn through the press that the two senators from Georgia have announced their intention to support the president in the fight to repeal this bill;

Therefore be it further resolved, that this committee indorses the attitude of the Georgia delegation in the house and senate and the announced determination of the Georgia senators in reference to this bill.

Resolved, That a copy of this resolution be sent to the representative from the Fifth district and to the senators from Georgia.

FORBIDS SINGLE-SHOTTING.

The committee passed a special resolution calling the attention of candidates and voters who participate in the county primary on May 5 to the long standing rule of the committee, which will be rigidly enforced, prohibiting voters from single-shotting for certain candidates where more than one vacancy is to be filled. The rule is that such a vote is to be thrown out, insofar as the particular office is concerned. This means that the voters must cast their ballot for three members of the Fulton county board of commissioners, and that if a voter casts his ballot for only one county commissioner it will do that candidate no good, for the managers will throw it out. The vote will count, however, for the candidates for other offices where only one vacancy is to be filled if the voter properly marked his ballot.

The resolution by Albert D. Thomson, outlined in Thursday's Journal, calling on Fulton county's representatives in the legislature to introduce a bill at the next session providing for the submission to the people of an amendment to the state constitution whereby two-thirds of those voting in a municipal bond election may authorize the issuance of bonds, was unanimously adopted. The resolution set forth that the present constitutional provision requiring two-thirds of the entire registration to authorize the issuance of bonds was put in the constitution for a particular purpose, that it has served its purpose, and has now become an extreme hardship on municipalities, especially those of large population.

The committee took no action with reference to postponing the date of the county primary from May 5 to May 25, in order to allow more time for a campaign of education for plank bonds, which it was proposed a few days ago to submit to the voters of Atlanta on this proposed date.

FAMILY IS FORCED TO JUMP TO ESCAPE FIRE

James Bearden Catches Children as Wife Tosses Them From Windows of Home

James E. Bearden and five members of his family were forced to jump from bed room windows to escape flames which destroyed their residence, 27 Glendale street, Edgewood, at 3 o'clock Friday morning.

The fire, which is believed to have been caused by a defective wire, started about the ceiling or roof. All members of the family slept peacefully until the fire had gained considerable headway, and then Blanche Bearden, aged seven years, was awakened by the crackling flames. She aroused Mr. Bearden and when Mrs. Bearden and the other children, Nellie, aged five years; Fred, three years old, and Edwin, two years of age, were awakened, all started to leave by the front door. They found the exit blocked by flames. It was also impossible to leave from the back door, and then Bearden jumped from a bed room window and Mrs. Bearden dropped the children out of the window and he caught them. Then she jumped. The drop was only about fifteen feet, as the house was a one-story structure.

The Bearden residence was destroyed, and the flames did considerable damage to the residence of Mrs. Dulcina Cronell, 25 Glendale street. The total fire damage will amount to $8,000, according to the police.

Members of the Bearden family left the burning building in their night clothes and were sheltered during the evening by neighbors. Nothing was saved.

GENERAL BARRY GOES TO PHILIPPINE ISLANDS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Major General Thomas H. Barry arrived at Manila yesterday. He will assume command of the Philippine division, relieving Major General C. General Bell probably will take command of the central department and join the troops at Texas City next fall.

FRIENDS OF W. C. VEREEN WANT HIM FOR GOVERNOR

Delegation Here to Watch Developments at Executive Committee Meet Saturday

Colonel Z. H. Clark, of Moultrie, a member of Governor Slaton's staff, is in the city with a delegation of friends of W. C. Vereen, of Moultrie, for the meeting of the state Democratic executive committee tomorrow. Other friends of Mr. Vereen will reach Atlanta Saturday morning to watch the situation in his interests.

"Mr. Vereen has made no statement determined to place him in the race for governor, in the event Governor Slaton makes the race for Senator Bacon's unexpired term.

"Mr. Vereen has made a statement concerning such a prospective candidacy," said Colonel Clark, "but his friends in southwest Georgia are determined to place him in the race for governor in the event the situation develops in accordance with our expectations.

"The only statement Mr. Vereen has authorized is that he will not under any circumstances be a candidate for the United States senate. Whether Governor Slaton runs for the senate or not, he has stated he will not be in the senate race.

"But his friends from all sections of the state have made up their minds definitely and positively as to what they propose to do; and if Mr. Slaton runs for the senate we shall certainly insist on Mr. Vereen's making the race for governor."

COOLER WEATHER IS IN PROSPECT FOR SATURDAY

Sun Will Be Shining, However, According to Forecaster's Predictions

Cooler weather Saturday with light frosts in the low places Friday night, is the weather man's forecast. He says Saturday will be a fine, fair day, however, and there are no indications of a lower temperature than 46 degrees.

Early Friday morning the mercury stood at 50 degrees, and the forecaster predicts a drop of 5 degrees for Saturday morning. The coolness will probably last all day.

Dispatches from Washington predict frosts Friday night in Virginia, the interior of North Carolina, and the northern parts of Georgia and South Carolina.

Severe weather conditions for this season prevail in many sections, says the Washington weather man. Rains and snows persist over the northern districts east of the Mississippi. Ten below zero readings were recorded north of Lake Superior.

THEATERS

The most delightful musical play of the entire year is now at the Atlanta. It is "Adele" and the critics and public alike agree as to its appeal and interest. The music is far away better than any heard here in many seasons in a play of this character while the company is all that could be asked. Those who came back from New York praising the play declare this the better company. The music is rendered by an orchestra of fifteen and the attendance has been most excellent. Tonight's indications point to the largest house of the week while an excellent sale forecasts a big matinee Saturday. The last performance will be given Saturday night. Those who like a real plot in a comedy and who like real music will miss the treat of the year if this is missed. It is also the best dressed show of the year, the costumes being little less than wonderful.

An acceptable bill of vaudeville has recorded one of the biggest weeks of attendance in the Forsyth's history, and has stimulated more interest in vaudeville than any offering that can be immediately recalled. This situation is a manifest argument in favor of the declaration that this style of entertainment is fast getting a secure grip on all classes of theatre-goers. The demand for seats for the remaining four performances is greater than has ever been registered.

The Louise LaVerne company, fifteen strong, not including the scenic and stage departments, will arrive in Atlanta tonight or Saturday morning, to immediately commence rehearsals for the spring and summer stock season at the Lyric theater. Mr. Wells has determined upon using the Lyric because of its ideal arrangement for summer use.

SKIN ERUPTIONS

Evidence of Impure Blood and a Run-Down Condition.

When the blood becomes thin, poor, devitalized nature cries out through such external evidence for help, and the safest, surest and most helpful remedy we know is Vinol.

This is because it is a combination of the two most world famed tonics, the medical curative elements of cod liver oil (without the oil) and tonic iron for the blood. Vinol strengthens the digestive organs, creates a hearty appetite, purifies and enriches the blood, creates strength.

Mrs. Helen Wingate, St. Louis, Mo., says: "I was in very poor health, nervous and run-down, and nothing in the way of medicine did me any good until my druggist recommended Vinol. It built up my health, restored strength and I feel that I owe my life to Vinol. I cannot praise it too highly."

We say positively there is nothing like Vinol to purify and enrich the blood and build up weak, run-down people. If it should fail in your case we will return your money. Elkin Drug company, Atlanta, Ga.

JACOBS' PHARMACY

It Is Very Interesting and Convincing and Will Encourage Thousands of Others

Here is the remarkable results obtained by Mr. D. H. Brantley, 161 Formwalt street, this city from the use of the wonderful Quaker Extract. So here it is. He said:

"I am 28 year old. And have lived here all my life, and my friends and neighbors know how I suffered for several years from a dreadful case of stomach and liver troubles. It seemed no matter what I ate, it would not agree with me. Everything soured on my stomach and caused gas to form. This gas would distress me terribly, and pressed against my heart, causing pains, palpitation and difficulty in breathing. Often these attacks would also come during the night. In the morning I would usually awake with a dull headache and general tired feeling. My tongue was very heavily coated and my breath bad. One day I was told to give Quaker Extract a trial. I did so. I bought a treament at Coursey & Munn's drug store. At first I felt discouraged as ever, as the remedy seemed to have no effect on me at all. But after a few days I noticed that my tongue was getting clean. I seemed to sleep better and feel more refreshed in the morning. Gradually the gas stopped forming and oh, my, what a relief this was. And then I kept growing better. I ventured to eat some boiled cabbage, a thing I had not dared to do for years. As this did not distress me in the slightest I realized that my stomach was strong and healthy again. Since then I have been doing anything served to me at home I thank Quaker Extract for my life."

If you suffer from stomach, liver, kidney, catarrh, rheumatism or blood troubles you should call at Coursey & Munn's drug store, 23 Marietta street. You can obtain Quaker Extract for $5.00, 3 for $2.50. Oil of Thanks, $1.00. We prepay express charges on all orders of $3.00 or over. So do not delay your visit, but call today.—(Advt.)

SCHOOL BOOK PROBE ON

INQUIRY ON THE COST OF STATE'S SCHOOL BOOKS

Chairman Reads Reports on Prices of Publishing in Many Other States

The legislative investigating committee, which was appointed last summer at the instance of Representative C. R. McCrory, of Schley county, to inquire into the cost of publishing school books, met Friday morning at the capitol to receive reports and examine witnesses.

M. L. Brittain, chairman of the committee, presented a report showing the comparative costs of the required basal school books used in the grades below the high school in twenty-two states which have uniform text books adoption and in California, where the state publishes its own text books.

Mr. McCrory submitted letters from California which, he said, indicated that the state could publish its text books cheaper than it could secure them in any other way.

As the cost of books in Ontario, Canada, figured largely in the discussion of cheaper text books, Mr. Brittain secured figures on the Ontario prices. He found that the cost there is $2.35, but there is no fifth reader, no text in agriculture nor in civics; only one arithmetic, one grammar, one geography, two histories, one speller and five copy books, in addition to this the government furnishes the publisher the manuscript and plates for the books.

Mr. Brittain read a letter from a Canadian publisher in which he offered to publish the Georgia text books at a cost about one-fourth lower than the present figures, provided the state will furnish the manuscript and plates, as does the Canadian government. Mr. Brittain said that while on the face of it the figure was lower, he believed in the end the total would be greater if the state had to furnish manuscripts and plates.

CALL WITNESSES.

At the suggestion of Mr. McCrory the following witnesses were called before the committee:

Representative J. E. Sheppard, of Americus; H. S. Bowden, of Blakely; I. H. F. Beck, of Bowden; E. T. Moon, of LaGrange; J. C. Harris, of Rome and George M. Morang, of Toronto Canada.

Thomas E. Watson, of Thomson and I. L. McNair, of Macon, were also called but were not present.

The members of the investigating committee are C. R. McCrory, of Ellaville; W. J. Nunnally, of Rome; H. C. Shuptrine, of Savannah; J. P. Fegon, of Mount Airy; A. F. Foster, of Covington, all of the house of representatives, and M. L. Brittain, of Atlanta; Dr. T. F. Woofter, of Athens, and Dr. G. R. Glenn, of Dahlonega, members of the state board of education.

Mr. Morang, who is a publisher in Toronto, Canada, appeared before the committee upon the invitation of Dr. I. A. Branham, state agent of the American Book company. He went into a detailed explanation of the book publishing system in Ontario, declaring it was the result of politics and that two of the reasons why the text-books of that province are supplied cheaper than they are in the United States was because the government furnishes the manuscripts and plates and because the contracts for publication are let to big department stores and other concerns which use them as methods of advertising.

Mr. McCrory who questioned Mr. Morang at some length and strenuously objected to his remarks being included in the record, also offered a number of objections to the minutes of the previous meeting of the investigating committee. These objections were in the main overruled. Chairman Brittain's report, which was adopted as evidence to be presented in the committee's report to the legislature, is as follows:

COSTS IN OTHER STATES.

Comparative costs of the required basal school books used in the grades below the high school, in the twenty-two states having uniform text book adoption, and California with state publication.

Georgia. $7.90.

Alabama, $9.85—This state has four books in arithmetic, three in grammar, and two in physiology.

Arizona, $9.95—This state has no text in agriculture nor civics and only two in history, but there are three in grammar and two in physiology.

California, $7.23—This state has no text in agriculture, only two in history, and five copy books. These prices do not take into consideration the depreciation of the plant, interest on money invested, salaries of officials, etc., neither do patrons have the benefit of exchange price.

Florida, $10.10.

Idaho, $10.09—This state has no text in agriculture.

Indiana, $8.85—This state has no text in agriculture nor civics, only one in geography, one in history, one speller and five copy books. There are two texts in physiology. Books are bought at wholesale by the boards of education.

A Clearaway in the Corset Section

$15 to $35 Corsets at $7.50

$10 to $12.50 Corsets at $3.50

Because certain very fine corsets of exquisite brocaded silk, batiste and suedine, and very best boning are not fashioned in the style that we deem best this season we have reduced their prices in the most drastic manner.

They are from makers who turn out only the highest grade corsets; among them are a number of Lily of France Corsets.

Medium and low busts, medium length over the hips. The tremendous reduction is not justified by the worth of the corsets, for, with a slight alteration that we are prepared to make, these may be made into a corset that is of style of the moment.

And, so the saving on a faultless corset!

New $2.50 Corsets at $1.49

New $1.50 Corsets at 98c

A specially fortunate purchase makes this opportunity for you. The corsets are of the moment. Both prices bring models of coutil, with very low bust, long, boneless hips, six hose supporters; embroidery trimmed, the difference between the two is the quality of materials and the boning.

IF BACK HURTS USE SALTS FOR KIDNEYS

Eat less meat if Kidneys feel like lead or Bladder bothers

Most folks forget that the kidneys, like the bowels, get sluggish and clogged and need a flushing occasionally. Then we have backache and dull misery in the kidney region, severe headaches, rheumatic twinges, torpid liver, acid stomach, sleeplessness and all sorts of bladder disorders.

You simply must keep your kidneys active and clean, and the moment you feel an ache or pain in the kidney region, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good drug store here, take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then be fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is harmless to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity. It also neutralizes the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

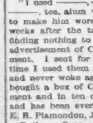
Jad Salts is harmless; inexpensive, makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which everybody should take now and then to keep their kidneys clean, thus avoiding serious complications.

A well known local druggist says he sells lots of Jad Salts to folks who believe in overcoming kidney trouble while it is only trouble.—(Advt.)

RASH ON BABY BURNED LIKE FIRE

So that He'd Nearly Go Into Fits. Could Not Sleep. Bought One Box Cuticura Soap and Ointment. In Ten Days Baby Well.

R. F. D. No. 3, Ashville, N. C.—"Last summer my baby's hands had a terrible breaking out on them which soon spread all over his body. The breaking out first appeared as a rash and filled with clear water in a few days. When baby scratched these they turned to bleeding sores and burned like fire so that he'd nearly go into fits. He couldn't sleep at night and he was so cross



His clothing would stick to him and irritate him until I finally had to take off nearly everything he had on. Where the water from the sores ran the breaking out would come.

"I used ——, ——, soda and water, to make him worse. About four or five weeks after the trouble began and after finding nothing to help him, I noticed an advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment. I sent for a sample and the first time I used them the baby went to sleep and never woke again that night. I then bought a box of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and in ten days my baby was well and has been ever since." (Signed) Mrs. E. R. Plamondon, June 27, 1913.

First Advance Shriner Here From California

of Al Malaikah temple, Los Angeles, here to get Kimball hotel ready for four temples from Pacific coast.

Douglas White, of Al Malaikah temple, Los Angeles, the first of the Shriners' advance guard, arrived in Atlanta Thursday night and began Friday morning his task of preparing for the California Shriners. The four temples of that state will occupy the Kimball hotel and change its name to "Hotel California" during Shrine week.

Mr. White will be busy during the next several weeks with details of plans which the Californians have sketched generally, and which have been delegated to him for consummation. First, he has in hand the decoration of the hotel, inside and out, with flags and lights. Several big electric signs will be put in place to advertise the "Hotel California" to the world. In the decorations the California "bear" flag will play a prominent part. This was the original flag of the California republic and was raised by General Fremont at Monterey away back yonder in pioneer days when California seceded from Mexico.

"We are coming primarily to help make the imperial council meeting in Atlanta the biggest thing on record in Shrinedom," said Mr. White Friday. "Secondly, we will boost San Francisco's candidacy for the 1915 meeting. We Californians have a lot of friends in Atlanta and Georgia. They have won us by visiting us. Now we want to return their courtesies in proper fashion. The entente cordials between Atlanta and California cities is something wonderful, and we want, everybody to appreciate it."

Mr. White represents officially the potentates of Islam Temple, San Francisco; Al Malaikah temple, Los ngeles; Asahmen temple, Oakland, and Al Bahr temple, San Diego. He has covered the route of the entire transcontinental tour the Californians will make on their way to Atlanta, having stopped and made necessary arrangements in Kansas City, St. Louis, Chicago, Detroit, Niagara Falls, Buffalo, Rochester, Albany, New York, Washington and Richmond.

The California Shriners will come on four special trains leaving their home cities April 30, assembling in Kansas City and continuing together from there on. They will arrive in Atlanta on Sunday, May 10. They won't get back home until May 19. Everywhere they stop they will detrain for a jollification. They will bring their own combined band of 120 pieces, their patrol battalion of 130 officers and men, and the Al Malaikah "Chanters" comprising twenty of the finest male voices in California. The trains will be the most luxurious that any tourist party ever traveled on. Everything on them will be fitted especially for the trip.

Mrs. White has accompanied her husband to Atlanta, and the visiting couple will be shown numerous attentions by local Shriners. Mrs. White is a real Californian—a rarity these days—her ancestors for three generations on one side of the house and two on the other having been natives of the state. She is a grand niece of Peter Burnett, the first governor of California.

Mr. White was already engaged, Friday morning, with decorators and electricians. The California Shriners will occupy four floors of the hotel.

WILMER MOORE BEGAN MOVE FOR NEW BANK

Former Chamber of Commerce President Started Work Last August

The Atlanta chamber of commerce is happy over the selection of Atlanta as the site for a regional bank. Active work to secure this bank was begun in Atlanta by Wilmer L. Moore, then president of the chamber of commerce, who early in August, 1913, wrote to each of the banks and trust companies of the city calling attention to the fact that when the new currency bill was enacted by congress several cities would compete for the regional banks to be provided for in the act and urged importance of beginning at once to prepare for that contest, emphasizing the great importance of a regional bank for the city.

Early in September Mr. Moore received a call from Dr. W. J. Blalock, of the Fulton National bank, who agreed with him as to the importance of early efforts on this line.

Mr. Moore called Dr. Blalock's attention to the fact that Senator Smith and Congressman Howard were then in the city and suggested the advisability of a meeting of the clearing house with these gentlemen present. Dr. Blalock at once took the matter up with the officers of the clearing house and a meeting was called with Senator Smith, Congressman Howard and Mr. Moore present with the bankers. Senator Smith explained the status of the currency bill and gave his idea as to what would be necessary to secure one of the banks for Atlanta.

JOINT COMMITTEE NAMED.

As a result of this conference it was decided to appoint a joint committee consisting of three from the clearing house and three from the chamber of commerce to take charge of the work.

This committee was not formally organized until Christmas week, but a great deal of statistical work was done by the chamber of commerce and considerable information was collected by J. K. Ottley and Dr. Blalock. The secretary of the chamber of commerce, W. G. Cooper, prepared in the fall an elaborate brief, including a statistical statement worked out by the American Audit company, showing the population, cotton production and the banking power of the territory within 500 miles of Atlanta and New Orleans. This and other information was transmitted to Senator Smith, who presented it to the members of the organization committee in December, which gave Atlanta the first presentation.

Christmas week the joint committee was organized with J. K. Orr as chairman, R. F. Maddox, J. K. Ottley, W. J. Blalock, J. W. Grant and Joseph A. McCord, with W. G. Cooper as secretary.

This committee made a new start and prepared new briefs, covering the territory of seven states, showing the resources of the region and Atlanta's business within the territory. A new brief for the chamber of commerce was prepared by Secretary Cooper, and special briefs were prepared by President M. R. Wilkinson, R. S. Wooster, Clyde L. King, Jacob W. Patterson, Robert F. Maddox, J. K. Ottley, Joseph A. McCord, Oscar Elsas, A. P. Coles, Milton Dargan and B. J. Guinn. J. K. Orr prepared and delivered the introductory statement and Wilmer L. Moore presented the chamber of commerce brief.

The conclusion for Atlanta was made in a powerful speech by Senator Hoke Smith. This was one of the great efforts of the senator's career and had a telling effect in behalf of Atlanta.

Bank Gets Charter

Secretary of State Cook Friday granted a charter to the People's Banking and Trust company of Macon. The capital stock of the new company is $100,000. The incorporators are Lee M. Happ, T. J. Carling, C. E. Newton, W. C. Miller, L. A. Thorpe, Price E. Hertz, Max Jackson and Walter A. Harris, all of Macon.

POLITICIANS ASSEMBLE HERE FOR BIG SESSION

Democratic Executive Committee to Discuss Many Subjects on Saturday

Atlanta will be the mecca of the politicians on Saturday. Many arrived Friday and others are trekking hither. They are coming to be in attendance upon the state Democratic executive committee, which meets in the senate chamber in the capitol Saturday morning at 11 o'clock.

In addition to the sixty-odd members of the committee, representing every congressional district in the state, dozens of candidates for office will be here to look after their interests, as will fifty or a hundred other politicians who will come to get a line on things.

The committee will fix the date of the state-wide primary, prescribe rules to govern same and levy assessments on the various candidates. It will also select the convention city and name the date when the convention will be held.

Many members of the committee favor holding the primary between the 6th and 15th of August, but it is more than likely that the date selected will fall in the latter part of August, after the adjournment of the legislature.

It is generally believed that the committee will adhere to the county unit rule for the nomination of governor and state house officers, but that a majority popular vote will be applied to the two senatorial races.

Such a rule, it is claimed, would conform to the spirit of the federal law which requires that United States senators be elected by direct vote of the people. The senatorial nominations would not, under such a rule, be thrown into the state convention, and a second primary would be required in the event neither of the candidates in a senatorial contest gets a majority of all the votes cast.

The convention will probably be held within two weeks after the primary and it is quite likely that Atlanta will be chosen as the convention city, although Macon will make a strong bid for it.

Following the meeting of the state committee, Chairman Harris will entertain the committeemen with an informal luncheon at the Piedmont hotel.

Members of the committee from the state-at-large are:

W. J. Harris, of Cedartown, chairman; W. Woodward, of Valdosta, vice chairman; A. H. Ulm, of Atlanta, secretary; C. R. Hutchens, of Rome; J. H. Tipton, of Sylvester; Dr. S. A. Griffin, of Buchanan; Hugh Rowe, of Athens; A. S. Hardy, of Gainesville; J. C. Jarnigan, of Warrenton; D. G. Forgarty, of Americus; R. W. Prier, of Douglas; Peschoi Graham, of McRae.

BATTLE IN PRIZE RING FATAL TO JIMMY GRANT

Boy Who Collapsed After Fight With Knockout Eggers Died Friday Morning

In the quiet hours of daybreak Friday Jimmy Grant died at the Grady hospital. It was 4 o'clock in the morning when the little fighter breathed his last. Only one man was with him at the time, Dr. L. C. Roughlin, who has attended him since he was first stricken.

Jimmy Grant never regained consciousness. From the moment he collapsed in the corner of the ring at the Orpheum theater after his fight with Johnny Eggers Tuesday night, the darkness never lifted. He was in a stupor 18 hours until death came.

"Pneumonia was the cause of his death," stated Dr. Roughlin and Dr. W. S. Goldsmith. "The boy probably was overtrained when he entered the ring. The shock of the ten rounds of fighting brought the illness to a head and his system was unable to resist.

"There were no marks of bruises on his body and while he may have suffered from brain concussion, pneumonia, indirectly caused by the fight with Eggers, was the real cause of his death."

Eggers, who was arrested immediately after the fight and charged with disorderly conduct, is out on $500 bond. Chief Beavers stated Friday morning that the charge against Eggers would not be changed until he was arraigned before Judge Broyles Friday afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. There will be no coroner's inquest as there were plenty of eye-witnesses to the fight. The police court hearing will probably end in Eggers being bound over for involuntary manslaughter, to await trial in the state courts.

Grant's body has been removed to H. M. Patterson's undertaking establishment. It will be held there until word has been received from his mother and sister in Chicago.

In Chicago Jimmy Grant was born and lived there nearly all his life. There he first took up the ring game, contributing his earnings to the support of his widowed mother.

His real name was Victor Barnett, but as a fighter he was always known as Jimmy Grant.

Last spring Jimmy came to Atlanta. He fought several minor bouts here and attained instant popularity with followers of the ring. He was a bantamweight, a quiet young fellow who seldom took the initiative in a conversation or an argument, but who was always ready with a cheery smile and a warm handclasp for his friends.

One of the sad features of his untimely death—he was only twenty-three years old—was that the fight which killed him was the one he had hoped would make his reputation. It was his first big bout. Victory would have secured success.

So he trained for it hard, trained too hard. He was excited, nervous, overfit, when the battle started. Those who sa wthe fight said Grant was beaten from the gong. Yet this gritty little fighter stood up under his medicine for round after round, refusing to take the count so long as he could stand and see.

Jimmy Grant was never a quitter. He took the decision as he took everything life sent him—courageously; for he had done his best. And now that the Great Referee has called Time on Jimmy Grant's last battle, he leaves behind him the unsullied record of one who never flinched on the firing line, one who lived the clean life of a gentleman unafraid, who met death as he met life, with open heart and a smile.

MONEY IS NEEDED TO CLEAN MONUMENTS

S. B. Turman, H. M. Ashe and F. J. Paxon have been appointed by the Old Guard as a committee to raise money for the cleaning and rehabilitation of the McPherson and Walker monuments by the time the Shriners come to the city.

About $200 will be needed, and as the monuments are in need of attention, the committee requests Atlantians to come to their assistance.

The McPherson monument is just off of Moreland avenue, near the county line, and the Walker monument is about a half-mile distant on Glennwood avenue.

INJURED BOY ASKS FOR LONGER AMBULANCE RIDE

Foot Crushed Under Car Wheels, Child Wanted to Ride "Some More"

Slipping under the rear trucks of a southbound car on Kennedy avenue near Griffith street, Hitha L. C. Gantle, four years old, son of Celbert Gantle, 159 Jett street, had his right foot and ankle crushed entirely off late Thursday afternoon.

In spite of the terrible pain, the little fellow when taken to the Atlanta hospital in Greenberg & Bond's ambulance, did not want to get out, but asked the attendants to be allowed to "ride some more."

He talked to the ambulance attendants all the way to the hospital, telling them that he had "hooked" a ride on the rear step of the car with several other boys, and that he had slipped and fallen under the rear wheels.

Trustees of State Institution Elect Officers and Discuss Needs

Dr. J. N. McClure, of Norcross, was elected president of the Georgia Tuberculosis sanitarium at a meeting of the board of trustees at the institution at Alta. Dr. I. H. Goss, of Athens, was chosen vice president; Dr. Jeff Davis, of Toccoa, secretary, and Joseph A. McCord, of Atlanta, treasurer. Dr. William P. Parramore was re-elected superintendent.

Inadequate appropriation given by the state to carry on the work was discussed.

"The sanitarium receives only $30,000 annually from the state," said Rev. Graham Forrester, pastor of the First Baptist church at West Point, Ga., and a trustee of the sanatarium. "This is inadequate, and $75,000 would not be too much to meet the needs of the institution."

Society Brand Spring Suits

YOUNG men and men who stay young have come to regard the styles set by Society Brand Clothes as being assuredly correct --and rightly so.

There is a freshness, a spontaneity about them that is easily recognizable. This is so because their conception is the work of an acknowledged style-artist.

One of the main elements of good style is precision. The cut of the lapel, the front, the cuff, each of these must be chosen unerringly, for it is the little things that distinguish to the initiated real style from the mediocre.

You will find here the models delineated in this illustration. You will find pure wool, superior workmanship and finish, and lastly you will find style of such smartness and emphatic correctness as always shown in the famous Society Brand.

Not "Raised" with Yeast—

You can "raise" a loaf of white flour bread with yeast—but you can't "raise" healthy, robust American youngsters in that way. The best food for growing boys and girls is

Shredded Wheat

It contains no yeast, no fats, no chemicals of any kind—just pure whole wheat, steam-cooked, shredded and baked. The crisp, brown Biscuits are not only deliciously appetizing, but they encourage thorough chewing, which makes them better than porridges for growing youngsters. Ask your grocer.

Always heat the Biscuit in oven to restore crispness. Two Shredded Wheat Biscuits with hot milk or cream will supply all the energy needed for a half day's work. Deliciously nourishing when eaten in combination with baked apples, stewed prunes, sliced bananas or canned or preserved fruits. Try toasted Triscuit, the Shredded Wheat wafer, for luncheon with butter, cheese or marmalade.

Truth Triumphant

"Blessed Is He That Cometh in the Name of the Lord"
Matt. 21:9.

Crowds bearing palms.

Christ in the midst of the joyous, shouting throngs who greeted Him---

"Hosanna: Blessed is he that cometh in the name of the Lord---"

Despairing Pharisees wailed to one another---

"Behold how you prevail nothing; lo, the world is gone after Him."

But leading citizens had gathered at the call of Caiaphas.

They said---

"If we leave Him thus alone, all people will believe on Him: and the Romans will come and take away our place and nation."

ONLY ONE OF THE MANY CIVIC GATHERINGS, WHERE FOR THE GOOD OF THE CITY AND NATION, MEN HAVE PLANNED TO KILL THE TRUTH.

They always fail.

Sacrifice principle for policy?

Behold the blindness of sin---

Caiaphas and his crew saw only a carpenter of Nazareth.

To them, His Gospel of Love, when confronted with the mailed fists of mighty Rome, became only folly. They thought themselves compelled to get rid of Jesus.

For business reasons---to save their city with their cash they crucified the Lord.

Instead of saving, they lost their lives, their wealth, their city, their all---The Romans came.

Caiaphas and Annas with Jerusalem fell.

BUT THE CONQUERING CHRIST MOVES ON.

Oh man, beware!

Reject not the Truth.

You never gain---

You only ruin, when, for so-called business reasons, you seek to sacrifice God's Truth.

Immorality, greed and lawlessness, which ever demand the crucifixion of the truth---these invariably bring in their train sorrow and suffering.

All history proves---

The cities and civilizations which reject God's Law of Love inevitably fail and fall as did Jerusalem ages ago.

Your Lord---God's living Word has come.

What will you do with Jesus?

EXECUTIVE COMMITTEE OF THE MEN AND RELIGION FORWARD MOVEMENT

HOW ATLANTA WON HER CAMPAIGN FOR A REGIONAL BANK

Gate City Becomes Money Center of the Southeast

SENATOR SMITH'S BRIEF HELPED ATLANTA TO WIN

Georgian's Compelling Arguments in Favor of Creation of Reserve District for the Southeast With This City as Its Pivot, Exerted Powerful Influence in Forming Organization Committee's Decision—Contains Amazing Array of Facts and Figures Impossible to Combat

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 3.—One of the most compelling arguments in favor of the creation of a reserve district in the southeast, with a regional bank in Atlanta, was a brief prepared by Senator Hoke Smith and furnished to members of the organization committee, and the president, early in March. It did much to turn the tide toward Atlanta.

The brief contains not only some interesting facts concerning the passage of the currency bill, but also lots of illuminating data relating to the state of Georgia and to the city of Atlanta.

SENATOR SMITH'S BRIEF.

The brief follows:

When the banking and currency bill was pending in the senate, the senate committee on banking and currency divided. One-half desired four reserve banks and one-half desired eight.

In the Democratic caucus the report of the Democrats in favor of eight reserve banks was amended so that it should read, "Not less than eight nor more than twelve."

This was done avowedly to make certain that the southeastern section of the country might have a reserve bank. The motion for the amendment was introduced by the junior senator from Georgia and supported by the senior senator from Georgia, and passed with only two or three dissenting votes.

They put the motion upon the ground that the southeastern section would rather have only four banks and stay in New York, unless they were given a reserve district of their own with a bank in their immediate section. By giving the organization committee the privilege of increasing the number from eight to twelve, it was believed that a reserve district and a reserve bank would be made certain for the southeastern section, and the history of the amendment almost amounts to a direction.

We suggest a reserve district from the Mississippi river east to the Atlantic ocean.

GEORGIA is the largest state east of the Mississippi river.

GEORGIA has more national banking capital than any state in this section.

ATLANTA is the largest city east of the Mississippi river and south of the Ohio river.

ATLANTA has more national banking capital than any city in this entire section, so that Georgia will have more stock in the bank than any state, and Atlanta will have more stock in the bank than any other city in this section.

Why take Georgia's and Atlanta's money away under these facts?

The bill provides that the organization committee shall consider two things:—

First—Convenience, i. e., facilities for reaching the different parts of the district from the city in which the reserve bank is located.

Atlanta has one hundred and fifty-two trains which come in and go out each day, and from the hour the banks close in the afternoon until the hour they open in the morning, a passenger and mail train will reach from Atlanta any portion of the district, and from any portion of the district to Atlanta. This is not true of any other city in the district.

Second—The bill requires the organization committee to consider the "ordinary course of business."

ATLANTA THE GREAT MARKET.

Atlanta is the great market of the southeastern region. Its commerce of over one hundred and forty millions of dollars annually in the southeastern states is not equalled or approached by any other city.

Atlanta is headquarters for the insurance business of the entire south, being the fourth largest insurance center in the United States.

Atlanta is headquarters for the railroad, telephone and telegraph and express companies for the south.

Atlanta is headquarters for the Southeastern Passenger Tariff Association, which extends from the Potomac and Ohio rivers to the Mississippi.

Atlanta is headquarters for the Southeastern Freight Bureau, and the Southern Weighing and Inspection Bureau covering the same territory.

Atlanta is headquarters for five hundred agents representing all important manufacturers in the United States doing business in the south.

Why have railroad, telephone, insurance and manufacturing companies made Atlanta their headquarters for the business which they do from the Mississippi to the Atlantic south of the Ohio and Potomac rivers? The answer is easy. Because Atlanta furnishes the place of convenience for their business in this section. They selected Atlanta in preference to other southern cities because Atlanta furnishes them convenience, and having selected Atlanta they made Atlanta the center of the usual course of business.

The federal government recognized it as the center of the southeastern section for its most important operations, including the railway mail service, military headquarters, the new Bureau of Commerce.

After careful study of this entire territory, based upon convenience and accessibility, the federal prison for this entire territory was located at Atlanta.

This is Atlanta "doing" for the ordinary course of business for this entire section is shown by the fact that the postal receipts of Atlanta substantially exceed those of any other city in the south.

NATIONAL BANK TABLES.

The following tables are taken from the National Bank Report for January 13th, 1914, viz.:

	Capital and surplus of National Banks.	Required subscription to capital stock of Reserve Bank.
Georgia	$24,615,910	$1,476,954
Tennessee	19,340,565	1,160,433
Alabama	16,363,095	981,785
Florida	9,910,977	594,658
New Orleans	6,730,000	405,800
Mississippi	5,165,204	309,912
Total	$80,125,751	$4,827,542
South Carolina	8,734,750	524,085
Kentucky	18,001,000	1,080,000
Total all	$106,861,501	$6,431,687

Not only has Georgia the largest National Banking capital of the states of the region, but Atlanta has more National Banking capital than any city in the region.

	Capital and Surplus.	Individual Deposits.	Subscription to Capital Stock of Reserve Bank.
Atlanta	$8,600,000	$24,531,575	$516,000
Louisville	8,280,000	20,740,375	496,800
New Orleans	6,730,000	19,406,054	403,800
Birmingham	3,200,000	9,354,360	198,000
Chattanooga	2,978,000	10,173,426	178,500
Knoxville	2,490,000	8,660,152	149,400
Memphis	2,140,000	7,417,434	128,400
Savannah	1,600,000	1,369,221	96,000
Columbia	445,000	1,108,267	26,700

The increase in National Banking capital in Georgia and Atlanta, compared to this section and as compared to the entire country, is most striking.

In ten years the banking capital of Atlanta has increased 400 per cent; the deposits 500 per cent, and her clearings 600 per cent.

INCREASE OF NATIONAL BANKING POWER IN THE SOUTHEAST.

	1914.	1902.
Georgia	$24,615,910	$6,854,000
Tennessee	20,340,697	8,575,000
Alabama	16,363,095	4,996,000
Florida	9,910,977	2,302,000
South Carolina	8,734,750	2,731,000
Mississippi	5,165,204	2,079,000

Not only present conditions should be considered in fixing the Reserve Districts, and the location of the Reserve Banks, but as these Districts and Banks are being fixed for the future as well as the present, the indications of growth should be considered. Georgia and Atlanta have both.

In this connection, in an article found on Page 56 of the Manufacturers Record of March 5th, 1914, it is shown that while Texas has led the states of the country in the value of the thirteen staple crops, Georgia is fourth in the entire country and leads the southeastern section. This lead applies both to the total crops and to the percentage of increases.

TOTAL VALUE OF THIRTEEN STAPLE CROPS.

	1909.	1913.
Texas	$244,721,000	$400,231,000
Georgia	176,959,000	217,753,000
Alabama	108,095,000	156,175,000
Mississippi	107,054,000	130,822,000
South Carolina	109,689,000	139,076,000
Tennessee	84,341,000	114,249,000

VALUE OF ALL CROPS.

	Actual 1913.	Estimated. 1909.
Texas	$298,133,000	$488,086,000
Georgia	226,986,000	729,170,000
Alabama	144,257,000	205,233,000
Mississippi	147,316,000	178,934,000
South Carolina	141,984,000	180,618,000
Tennessee	120,706,000	148,375,000

The most important feature shown in the tables from which we have used the extracts, is that the percentage of agricultural growth from 1909 to 1913 in the south was 27.7 per cent and in the balance of the country 2.9 per cent.

GROWTH OF THE REGION.

The growth of this entire southeastern section has been phenomenal. Its development is more rapid than that of any other section of the United States, unless it be Texas and Oklahoma, or a portion of the Pacific coast.

Georgia has made more progress in the last ten years than any state in the southeast when you consider the combined growth of agriculture, manufactures and commerce.

Atlanta's commerce in this section exceeds that of any other city.

Borrowing by the banks in this section from banks in New York and other cities during the crop season is largely offset by the balances which southeastern banks carry in New York and other cities as reserves and for exchange purposes.

During most of the year other sections are debtors to this southeastern section when deposits are taken into consideration, and if interest were charged both ways at the same rate there would be a large balance of interest in favor of the southeastern banks.

BORROWING FROM OUTSIDE TERRITORY.

The national banks in this region lend to other banks in the region far more money than they borrow from banks outside the region. This is shown by the following facts:

1. The larger banks lend to the small banks, and these again lend to still smaller banks, so that much of the amount borrowed during the cotton moving period by banks in Georgia is really triplicated so far as it indicates borrowing from outside the section.

2. The deposits outside the section by our existing reserve system and the additional deposits carried in the large cities for exchange purposes, will average two-thirds as much as the actual money borrowed from those outside cities during the cotton moving season, and send into this section.

3. This money is not borrowed for the ordinary course of commerce, but to move the cotton crop, and under the present system it requires several times longer to clear it than it would with a reserve bank located in this section. A large part of the cotton bought is exported and with a reserve bank conveniently located in this section, handling foreign exchange, the time would be greatly reduced for the clearings that the actual money required would be much less, and the convenience to the section much greater by locating a reserve bank near its center, in the largest cotton producing state east of the Mississippi river.

Georgia comes next to Texas as a cotton producing state, and the region suggested produces about one-half of the entire cotton crop.

OTHERS FAVOR ATLANTA.

A large part of Florida, including eight or twelve banks in Jacksonville favors Atlanta. The governor and his cabinet indorsed Atlanta.

Savannah asked that the reserve bank be located in Georgia, whether in Atlanta or Savannah.

Mobile, after New Orleans, has asked to come to Atlanta.

Montgomery, after herself, asked to come to Atlanta.

Chattanooga, after herself, asked to come to Atlanta.

The Knoxville board of trade indorsed Atlanta as first choice.

The president of the Mississippi Bankers' association gave his evidence first for New Orleans and second for Atlanta.

In the hearings throughout the United States, Atlanta was named all over the country as a place at which a reserve bank should be located, and the thought of the entire country indicates the necessity for a reserve district in the southeastern section, with Atlanta as its center and site for the reserve bank.

We do not undertake to definitely insist upon an exact reserve district.

What we do insist upon is that the southeastern section is entitled to a reserve district; that Georgia is the largest state and contributes the largest amount of capital to the bank; that Atlanta is the largest city and contributes the largest amount of capital to the bank.

The claim as to Georgia and Atlanta extends from the Mississippi river to the Atlantic ocean, going north to the Ohio river, and from Atlanta accessibility exists to every point, and from Atlanta the ordinary course of business is to all this section.

However, the district might be modified, Georgia will still be its principal state, and Atlanta its principal city, covering convenience and ordinary course of trade.

In support of these statements, we ask reference to the briefs filed by the Atlanta committee, which support every claim we make and many more excellent claims not mentioned in this brief statement.

THE MAN WHO LED THE FIGHT FOR SOUTHEASTERN STATES AND WON

SENATOR HOKE SMITH.

BANKERS PROVED CITY'S RIGHT TO DEPOSITORY

Arguments Heard on Friday the Thirteenth, but It Was No Hoodoo—Speakers Had Facts to Give Committee

On February 13, which was Friday, the fight was started that has ended now with such success for a regional bank in Atlanta.

That was the day on which the reserve bank organization committee heard Atlanta's claims. Atlnta was first under the guns in the hearing which began that afternoon in the local federal building.

J. K. Orr, president of the Red Seal Shoe company, chairman of the joint committee representing the clearing house association and the chamber of commerce, conducted Atlanta's case at that hearing.

J. E. Ottley, vice president of the Fourth National bank, spoke on the trend of banking, following Chairman Orr's introduction. Robert F. Maddox, vice president of the American National bank, came next, discussing banking in the southeast. Joseph A. McCord, vice president of the Third National bank, hammered further argument home under his subject—"The Financing of the Crops."

Wilmer L. Moore submitted a brief by the chamber of commerce, compiled under the direction of Secretary Walter G. Cooper, that was one of the most comprehensive documnts of its character that ever had been drawn up about Atlanta.

Other briefs on distinct phases of the subject in hand were prepared and filed by A. F. Coles, vice president of the Central Bank and Trust corporation, whose subject was foreign exchange; Mell R. Wilkinson, president of the chamber of commerce, on cotton seed products and commercial fertilizer; Clyde L. King, president of the Atlanta Agricultural works, on the manufacture of agricultural implements; Oscar Elsas, vice president of the Fulton Bag and Cotton mills, on the manufacture of cotton goods; R. S. Wesselle, manager of the Tribune Plate Glass company, on the manufacturers' agents located in Atlanta; Milton Dargan, manager of the southern department of the Home insurance company, on fire insurance; Major R. J. Guinn, general agent o fthe New England Life Insurance company, on life insurance; and Jacob W. Patterson, president of the Fraternal accident company, on live stock.

There are those among those formal arguments in behalf of Atlanta constituted the major portion of this city's case. But there was much work to be done after they had finished.

HOKE SMITH'S ADDRESS.

Senator Hoke Smith, who opened the addressing the organization committee at the very end of its hearing, Saturday afternoon, February 14, Columbia, Savannah, Chattanooga and Birmingham—all claimants for the same distinction Atlanta sought—had been heard. The hearing was over—except for Senator Smith's summing up.

Those who heard the senator that afternoon, or who read his speech reproduced fully in The Journal next morning, remember his argument as one of the most powerful presentations of any subject they ever gave attention to. All of the senator's training as a lawyer, as a debater, as a thinker upon broad governmental questions, was brought into play in that address.

Fight Launched Last June in Washington

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 3.—Atlanta's fight for a regional reserve bank was launched in the city of Washington on the night of June 23, 1913. That was the night President Wilson delivered to congress his address on the currency question.

James H. Ottley, editor of The Atlanta Journal; John K. Ottley, vice president of the Fourth National bank of Atlanta, and Senator Hoke Smith were parties to a conference which was held at the senator's home on the night of the day the president delivered his message.

At this conference a campaign was outlined, and before the night was over steps had been taken to boost Atlanta's chances for a regional bank.

The campaign was based on the belief of Senator Smith, Mr. Gray and Mr. Ottley that the southeastern section of the United States should constitute a federal reserve district, and that Atlanta, as the center of this section, should be selected as headquarters for the reserve bank. No departure was ever made from this basic idea, and throughout the struggle it furnished the ground work for all arguments that were advanced in Atlanta's interest.

Messrs. Gray and Ottley went to Washington on the morning of June 23. They occupied seats in the gallery of the house of representatives when the president delivered his memorable address on the currency question. The first draft of the administration currency bill had been introduced previously by Mr. Carter Glass, of Virginia, and in this bill provision was made for districting the country into reserve regions, with a bank in each district.

Prior to the president's address the currency question was in a nebulous state. Many persons, among them senators and representatives, needed not only the wisdom of attempting currency reform, but the heels to the tariff legislation, but also the ability of President Wilson to impress his desires on congress.

Our banking laws must mobilize reserves, said President Wilson in his appeal to congress for currency legislation. They must not permit the control to exist anywhere in a few hands of the monetary credit resources of the country or their use for speculative purposes in such volumes as to hinder or impede or stand in the way of other more legitimate, more fruitful uses. And the control of the system of banking and of issue which our new laws are to set up must be public, not private, must be vested in the government itself, so that the banks may be the instruments, not the masters, of business and of individual enterprise and initiative.

The committees of congress to which legislation of this character is referred have devoted careful and dispassionate study to the means of accomplishing these objects. They have honored me by consulting me. They are ready to suggest action. I have come to you, as the head of the government and the responsible leader of the party in power to urge action now, while there is time to serve the country deliberately and as we should, in the clear ear of common council. I appeal to you with deep conviction of duty. I believe that you share this conviction. I, therefore, appeal to you with confidence. I ask at your service without reserve to play my part in any way you may call upon me to play it in the great enterprise of exigent reform which it will certainly grace distinguish me to reform and discredit us to neglect.

As they left the gallery of the hall the national house of representatives, with the concluding remarks of the president, just quoted ringing in their ears, Messrs. Gray and Ottley felt assured that currency legislation would be enacted by congress before the snow flew.

While neither Mr. Gray nor Mr. Ottley had entertained any doubt as to the necessity for currency legislation, nor as to the president's ability to carry out his program, the appeal they had just heard gave them satisfactory reassurance.

Feeling certain, as they did, that currency legislation was assured, and that the president's views would be followed, the Atlantians were confident that a federal reserve system would be enacted into law, that the country would be districted and that a number of regional banks would be established in the various sections.

"We must have a regional bank in Atlanta" remarked Mr. Ottley. The sentiment was indorsed by Mr. Gray.

That night the editor and banker called at the home of Senator Hoke Smith for a conference. They learned to their great satisfaction that the senator was in entire sympathy with the president's desire for currency legislation, and that he felt as keenly as they did about locating a regional bank in Atlanta.

THE SECOND MOVE.

As a result of the conference at the Senator's home, Mr. Gray wired to Major John S. Cohen, managing editor of The Journal, and suggested the wisdom of favorable action by the Atlanta bankers with reference to the president's currency program. This was the second move.

The next morning, June 24, a meeting of the Clearing House association of Atlanta was held, and the members of the association were informed of the conclusions reached and suggestions made by Mr. Gray, Mr. Ottley and Senator Smith.

Two hours later a telegram came to Mr. Gray in Washington, informing him that the clearing house bankers of Atlanta had adopted resolutions commending the president's message and his demand for currency legislation. The message breathed a sympathetic interest in the progressive purpose of the president.

This was the first affirmative action taken by a bankers' association in America. The telegram and resolutions were presented to President Wilson by Mr. Gray, and the president was so much pleased that he asked to keep the telegram.

The currency bill, in substantially the form introduced by Mr. Glass, passed the house on September 18. The Democrats of the senate decided to make the question a party issue and the bill was considered in caucus for several weeks.

One of the most effective moves in the interest of the southeastern states as a federal reserve district and with Atlanta as a regional bank center was made in the caucus by Senator Hoke Smith.

Among many Democratic senators there was a disposition to reduce the number of districts to four. Senator Smith objected very strenuously to this. He declared in caucus that the southeastern states were entitled to a federal reserve district bank, and that if the number were restricted there would be small chance of this right being recognized in the organization of the system. He advocated not less than eight nor more than twelve regions.

The late Senator Bacon joined in this demand, and the Georgia senators succeeded in amending the bill to embody this provision. The amendment was adopted by the caucus with the practical understanding that the southeastern states were to constitute a federal reserve district.

The bill passed the senate as perfected in caucus, and in conference between the two houses the amendment relative to the number of banks was left undisturbed.

President Wilson signed the bill on the evening of December 23, and on the following morning the clearing house association of Atlanta was called to meet, at the suggestion of Mr. Ottley, acting on a telegram from Senator Smith. The national bank members of the clearing house association at this meeting agreed to accept the terms of the bill and to become members of the federal reserve system.

Their action was among the first to be taken following the passage of the bill, and was extremely gratifying to the administration in Washington. Again had the Atlanta bankers indicated their sympathy in the president's currency program.

The organization committee started on its tour of the country shortly after the first of the year, to hear the claims of the several sections and several cities. The hearing in Atlanta was one of the last to be held.

ACTIVITY IN WASHINGTON.

Senator Smith went to Atlanta for this hearing, and it was during his presence there that his colleague, the late Senator Bacon, died. Mr. Smith attended the funeral at Macon and hastened back to Washington, to meet the organization committee upon its return, notwithstanding the fact that matters of grave political importance were then being discussed in Georgia.

"I am more concerned about a reserve district in the southeastern states and a regional bank in the city of Atlanta than I am about politics," Senator Smith told his friends who thought he urged him to remain in Georgia until the democratic primaries occurred.

Arriving in Washington, Senator Smith was ordered to bed by his physician. He had contracted a heavy cold in Macon, which developed into the grippe. He remained in bed for ten days, but disregarded the advice of his physician and devoted much time to the preparation of briefs sustaining Atlanta's claim for a reserve bank which he dispatched to members of the organization committee. As soon as he was able to be up he made personal calls upon the respective members and elaborated upon the briefs which he had submitted.

Senator Smith never let up in his fight for Atlanta until the final decision was made by the committee. A couple of weeks ago he summoned to Washington Mr. Ottley and Mr. Gray, who interviewed President Wilson and Secretary McAdoo and Comptroller Williams concerning Atlanta's claim for a regional bank.

James R. Gray Wires Congratulations To Senator Hoke Smith

The following telegram was sent to Senator Smith by James R. Gray, editor of The Journal:

Hoke Smith, U. S. Senate, Washington, D. C.:

Accept my heartiest congratulations, and my personal thanks for your great victory in securing a regional bank for Atlanta. The South Atlantic section, and especially Georgia and the city of Atlanta, owe you a debt of gratitude which they will not be slow to acknowledge. Without your able and earnest efforts we feel that this section might not have received the recognition that its merits demand.

All patriotic Georgians appreciate more than ever before the towering ability of a great Democratic president, the comprehensive grasp and intelligent discrimination of the organization committee, and the inestimable value of a great senator with the ability and desire to represent and protect the interests of this section in the government of the United States.

On behalf of the people of Georgia I again congratulate you.

JAMES R. GRAY.

BANKERS, MERCHANTS, REAL ESTATE DEALERS AND MANUFACTURERS SEE GREAT FUTURE FOR ATLANTA

LEADERS IN EVERY CALLING ENTHUSED OVER BANK VICTORY

Increased Commercial Activity Seen in Government's Selection of City as Financial Center of the Southeast

MEANS MORE INDUSTRIES; HELPS THOSE HERE NOW

Senator Hoke Smith Given Large Share of Credit in Interviews on What Institution Will Mean to Atlanta

Atlanta bankers, merchants, manufacturers, real estate men and citizens in every line of business are rejoicing over the selection of this city as the center of a regional reserve district by the United States government. All see in the selection great things for Atlanta and the section this city will serve. Interviews are given below with many leaders in which they tell in their own words just what the regional bank means to Atlanta and the southeast.

Here is how Atlanta feels about it.

COLONEL ROBERT J. LOWRY.

"I think it is one of the greatest victories ever won for Atlanta, and one of the most important events in the history of the southeast," said Colonel Robert J. Lowry, president of the Lowry National bank and of the Clearing House Association. "It is a great thing—a great thing."

Wilmer L. Moore, who as president of the chamber of commerce last year, inaugurated Atlanta's fight, said Atlanta will be advertised not only throughout the nation but among financial centers of the world as one of the twelve big centers of the United States.

"It establishes us definitely in the eyes of the world," said he. "It places on Atlanta the seal of the government's indorsement. It stamps us as the industrial, distributing and financial center of the southeast."

Said W. J. Bialock, president of the Fulton National:

"This bank will enable us of the southeast to finance our own needs. We can make ourselves independent of New York for the first time in history. It is the biggest thing for this section that has happened in a long time."

JOSEPH A. M'CORD.

"I think Georgia owes a great deal to Senator Smith. He had a good case to argue, of course, but I think his way of putting it secured the bank for us."

"It is the first thing in fifty years that gives the banks the assurance they can do business on an even keel and not be brought into jeopardy at certain times of the year—especially at those times when money is needed for the crop movement. It makes Atlanta the financial center of the southeast," said Joseph A. McCord, vice president of the Third National bank. "The bank does not confer on Atlanta any more privileges or advantages than it does on all other cities in the district, but by reason of its location here it makes us the center of finance and trade in the district."

Mr. McCord was one of those who argued before the senatorial committee for Atlanta. He has been interested and working for what has just now come to pass, since 1906.

ROBERT F. MADDOX.

"We have cause to be gratified very deeply," said R. F. Maddox, vice president of the American National bank, and one of Atlanta's men who was in the hearing by the organization committee. "The location of a bank here is a big thing not only for Atlanta but for this whole section of the country as well. It impresses me that the important southeastern territory, including such magnificent associates for southern prosperity as New Orleans and Birmingham and Nashville, Chattanooga, Jacksonville, Savannah, and other cities, has been assigned to Atlanta as headquarters.

"The wisdom of the organization committee in selecting Atlanta will be justified by the progress with which this city can serve this territory allotted to it. It is another evidence of Atlanta's growth and prosperity and rapid advancement among the important commercial cities of the United States. None has advanced more in the past twenty years than Atlanta. I believe the reserve system will work out to the great satisfaction of the people all over the country with the districts that have been designated, and to the great credit of Mr. Wilson's administration."

CAPTAIN J. W. ENGLISH.

"I'm mighty glad we won it," said Captain J. W. English, president of the Fourth National bank. "And I am ready to acknowledge our debt to Senator Smith. He is the man behind the guns. All we could do was furnish him a little ammunition and let him use it. He was on the job.

"The effect of the announcement will be noticeable at once, I believe. As soon as the system is organized, and the bank is open here and attending to business, we will begin to realize the full fruits of our success.

"This victory is worth a great deal to Atlanta. It will fix our position as the financial center of this territory. Atlanta wanted it. Atlanta got it. We know whom we owe it to."

J. K. OTTLEY.

"The designation of Atlanta is a matter of which all our citizens and friends should feel proud indeed," said J. K. Ottley, vice president of the Fourth National bank. "That puts us among the twelve financial centers of the United States from this time on, and distinguishes us beyond further question as the commercial center of the southeast.

"I believe the effect will begin to be not unlike right away. Later, when the district reserve board is organized, we will begin to see other evidences of what we have won. The plan calls for a real bank, with customers, in its own stockholders and customers, in its own home and like other great financial institutions in all respects save it does not deal with the public.

"I believe Hoke Smith is the one man pre-eminent among all of us who worked for this victory. Great credit, unsted and unqualified praise, are due the senator from Georgia for the effective work he did in Washington in our behalf. He worked primarily for the southeast, which without his aid might not have won any bank at all. The section and the state and particularly Atlanta owe him a big debt of gratitude."

Mr. Ottley was one of the generals of Atlanta's fight. His conservative, well-prepared argument on the trend of banking, before the organization committee at its Atlanta hearing, was one of the impressively helpful presentations of Atlanta's case.

CHARLES E. CURRIER.

"I think it is the greatest in Atlanta's whole list of successes," said Charles E. Currier, president of the Atlanta National bank.

"It establishes our position among the financial centers of the nation.

"Hoke Smith did as much, or more, than any other one man associated in the big undertaking in Atlanta's behalf.

"I think the announcement will have an immediate effect. It will increase our fame, for one thing. General conditions are improving irresistibly even without the regional bank. With it, they will grow better even more rapidly. It's a great thing for the country and for us."

ASA G. CANDLER.

"We are to be congratulated not only on winning the regional bank but that we have in this region a man as big as Hoke Smith to take care of our big interests as he has taken care of them in this fight," said Asa G. Candler, president of the Central Bank and Trust corporation.

"We may expect this good fortune to have a wonderful and early effect on our business affairs. This will come as soon as the reserve board is named.

"I hope the president can give time enough to the matter very soon so that the reserve system can be put in operation without great delay.

"We work together, here in Atlanta. As long as we do that we need not be surprised at any big thing that comes our way."

"I think the effect of the committee's announcement will be to create new interest and enthusiasm in business all over the country and particularly in Atlanta. The territory that has been assigned to Atlanta's care compliments our city magnificently. For us to stand at the head of such cities as New Orleans, which is a city of tremendous commercial interests, is to occupy a position in which we should take much pride."

A. P. COLES.

"I want to say most emphatically that I think the great share of the credit for getting the bank is due to Hoke Smith," declared A. P. Coles, vice president of the Central Bank and Trust corporation. "If it hadn't been for him, we never would have gotten it. That's my flat opinion. Our champions had done their best, and they had put up a magnificent fight. But I believe Senator Smith was the man who put us over the line. I don't care how emphatic you make my opinion on that point. I think this is the biggest work he ever has done since he entered public life.

"The bank in Atlanta will increase our industrial, commercial and banking business. It will have a marked effect for greater prosperity. It will induce still greater trade to flow this way rather than to the north as heretofore. This is the biggest thing that ever happened for Atlanta."

Mr. Coles was one of those who submitted briefs before the organization committee's hearing in Atlanta. His address was foreign exchange.

FORREST ADAIR.

Forrest Adair, of Forrest & George Adair, said that the winning of the regional bank was a great thing for real estate and everything else.

"The biggest advertisement the city could have," said Mr. Adair. "Two things got it for us—our own commanding advantages, and the intelligent cooperation of Senator Smith.

"When you consider that Atlanta won over so many other cities larger than it, you realize what a wonderful advantage of location and enterprise this city has."

CARLOS LYNES.

Carlos Lynes, of Thomson & Lynes, said that the bank was the biggest thing that ever happened.

"That and the bringing of the Ford plant to Atlanta were two notable events," said Mr. Lynes. "Both look to going to lead to other industries coming to this town."

S. B. TURMAN.

S. B. Turman said: "The establishment of the bank here establishes the fact of our rapid growth, and it means that the United States government has put the stamp of its approval on Atlanta as one of the country's leading financial centers.

"It is unquestionably the biggest thing that could have happened to us."

ALBERT D. THOMSON.

Albert D. Thomson said that the bank would advertise the city to the rest of the country as never before.

"It will result in many people coming here, surveyed by Atlanta's latest accomplishment as headquarters of the southeast. Incidentally I say, 'Hurrah for Hoke!'"

J. H. EWING.

J. H. Ewing, of Smith & Ewing, said that the government puts its stamp of approval on Atlanta as one of the leading money centers of the country.

"It is a great thing for us," he said. "It would be difficult to estimate the extent of the good that will come from it."

CHARLES J. HADEN.

President Charles J. Haden, of the Georgia chamber of commerce, was delighted with the news that Atlanta had been designated as the location of one of the regional banks. "It is a great victory for the city, the state, Senator Smith and his colleagues in Washington," he said. "At the last meeting of the state chamber held in Macon during the latter part of January, we had between 400 and 500 delegates present from every part of Georgia and unanimous resolutions were passed indorsing Atlanta.

"Speaking for myself and the organization of which I am president, I can say that the result is most gratifying. We were squarely behind Atlanta in the fight and rejoice in the signal victory."

V. R. DAVIS.

V. R. Davis, of Davis & Freeman, jewelers, said: "The regional bank is a mighty good thing for Atlanta. Today everybody is delighted and wearing the smile that won't come off. We get it by our determination, for when we start a movement we succeed, and through the able presentation of our advantages coupled with the good work of our representatives in Washington."

M. RICH.

M. Rich, of M. Rich & Bros. Co., "Like Captain English said in his interview this morning, I consider the regional bank the very best thing that Atlanta has ever gotten. The benefits will be unlimited. It gives us the prominence we sought and deserved and I hope it will bring us nearer a new postoffice building, which we need. I have lived in Atlanta forty-nine years and I am very proud that we should have forged ahead in that time of the oldest cities surrounding us. Credit is certainly due our citizens for their work in presenting our case, and to Senator Smith for his work in Washington."

EUGENE V. HAYNES.

Eugene V. Haynes company, jewelers: "I am highly pleased, just as everyone else. The regional bank, in my opinion, will loosen things up a great deal. It will make it easier for our banks and business men generally to get accommodations and thereby help all lines of trade. I think Senator Hoke Smith had loyal support as much as anyone else to do with bringing the bank here."

W. W. ORR.

W. W. Orr of the George Muse Clothing company—"Like everyone else, I am greatly delighted. The regional bank will give us greater prestige than anything else, making us the very first city of the south. It will be one of the best advertisements we could possibly have. The eyes of the whole section will be upon us, and we will stand out as one of the big financial and business centers of the country. In facilitating the movement of the crops the banks should make us practically independent, and bring to us the advantages which other cities have heretofore enjoyed as sources of money supply. In securing the regional bank, great credit must be given to Atlanta for the superior advantages she offered, for the splendid and able manner in which these advantages were presented by Atlanta's representative committee, and the way they were furthered and emphasized by Senator Hoke Smith in Washington."

MORRIS EISEMAN.

Morris Eiseman of J. Eiseman & Sons Co.—"The regional bank for Atlanta is a great victory both financially and from a business standpoint. It places Atlanta as one of the country's financial centers and is bound to help her in forging to the front. The selection of Atlanta goes to show our representatives in Washington were ever on the alert in looking out for our interests, and our citizens are due great credit for the way in which they presented Atlanta's arguments."

FRED B. LAW.

Fred B. Law of Law Bros. Co.—"The regional bank is great. Not only does it make Atlanta the central point of the whole southeast, but it helps this section proportionately as much as it helps the town. Atlanta is easier reached than any other city in the section, being a 18-hour ride from practically every point in the territory defined. The regional bank will draw money here, draw business here, and draw people here. My opinion is that we should give Hon. Hoke Smith his full share of the credit for getting the bank."

G. W. SEAY.

G. W. Seay of Southern Suit and Skirt company—"The regional bank is one of the greatest things Atlanta ever secured. It will redound to the good of the merchants here and throughout this section. It will help Atlanta's reputation more than anything else I know of. It will keep our money at home. We can discount our paper here and be independent of the outside world so far as money stringency is concerned."

B. J. EISEMAN.

B. J. Eiseman, of Eiseman Bros. Co.—"Like everyone else, I think the regional bank for Atlanta is a bully thing. The benefits we will derive are too many to be enumerated. Not only will it help us, but it is a splendid thing for the surrounding section. I am not surprised that we got it, because we were entitled to it."

CHRIS H. ESSIG.

Chris H. Essig, of Essig Bros. Co.—"Atlanta will benefit in more ways than one from the regional bank. Not only will we finance this whole section of the country, but we will stand out in black type as the center and the most progressive city of the south, doing the things she wants, to do and getting the things she goes after. The work of our citizens to get the bank typifies the Atlanta spirit. And Senator Hoke Smith deserves great credit. I was with a party of twenty or more gentlemen this morning and they were every one unanimous in saying that Senator Smith, for this one piece of work alone, deserves to be and will be re-elected."

J. P. ALLEN.

J. P. Allen, of J. P. Allen & Co.: "It is the greatest thing that ever happened for Atlanta. The big benefit, as I see it, is that the bank will make Atlanta the center for the people of the whole surrounding section to look to and come to. Already this is the case, but it will be even more so after the bank is here. The bank will make us the New York of the southeast. A great deal of the credit is due Senator Hoke Smith. Our local citizens also did some splendid work. They kept playing ball right up to the ninth inning, and that's the way to win."

BEAUMONT DAVISON.

Beaumont Davidson, of Davison-Paxon-Stokes company: "I consider the regional bank the most valuable thing that Atlanta could possible have secured. It will establish us as the financial and business center of the southeast, and one of the big centers of the entire country. I cannot too strongly express my opinion as to the advantages and benefits which Atlanta and our surrounding section will derive."

J. FROHSIN.

J. Frohsin, of J. Frohsin, Dry Goods: "The regional bank will be of great benefit to Atlanta. It establishes us as the center of this section of the country and advertises us to the world at large. We worked for it, like everything we go after, and we got it, just as we get everything we want."

W. H. BRITTAIN.

W. H. Brittain, president and manager of the J. M. High company: "Atlanta is the center of the prosperous southeastern section of the country. Atlanta is the railroad center of this southeastern section. The south is occupying the center of the stage at the present time; the recent large crops are bringing prosperity to this section, increasing bank clearances enormously, and the general air of prosperity in this city and section is attracting wide attention all over the country.

"Eastern and western business men and capitalists agreed that Atlanta was the logical place for the regional bank hence the action of the committee at Washington meets with unanimous approval.

"Business for 1914 is going ahead in a very satisfactory manner, merchants are investing freely and there is absolute confidence that this will be the banner year in our history.

"This decision of the regional bank committee is just another instance of Atlanta's greatness and will undoubtedly focus attention of the country generally to this city and section."

WALTER BLACKSTOCK.

Walter Blackstock, president of the men's furnishing shop, Blackstock, Hale & Morgan, said: "I think the fact that the regional bank means the most valuable asset that Atlanta and the entire south has achieved in its history."

D. C. VORUS.

D. C. Vorus, of the Savery Furniture company, said: "It is no surprise. Atlanta is the logical place in the south east for the regional bank. The selection is but another proof of Atlanta's advantages geographically, commercially and financially."

Proposed Flight to Bermuda.

The Aero Club of America has proposed an air race from the United States to Bermuda, and, since there is no lack of intrepid birdmen and generous patrons of adventure, the contest will doubtless occur. If there is a successful flight, it will be one of the most marvelous in the world's records of aviation, more so, perhaps, than any yet accomplished in Europe, and will greatly hearten the ambitious project of winging the Atlantic.

Recent achievements, such as Garros' flight across the Mediterranean and des Moulinais' from Paris to Warsaw, indicate that the flight to Bermuda is by no means impossible. But it will test to the utmost the power of the flying machine and the skill of the aviator. "In the most favorable conditions," says the New York Times, "the voyage through the air will be sufficiently exciting and its perils not inconsiderable. To make it will just about exhaust the known capacity of any aeroplane motors that have yet been made.

"The most important peculiarity of the race" continues the Times, "is that those who make it will have to prove the practicability of determining closely the position of an aeroplane by astronomical observations made far from land. It takes a good navigator to find Bermuda with a ship; the vastly greater 'drift' of an aeroplane will make the task so much harder that some expert navigators doubt its feasibility. Patrol boats and wireless equipment will lessen the dangers, but leave them still sufficiently many and great to test the courage of any aviator."

It is interesting to note in this connection that he longest over-water flight yet made in the United States, or rather from the United States, was that of a Cuban aviator, Domingo Rosillo in April, 1913, from Key West to Havana, a distance of approximately a hundred miles, Garros' flight over the Mediterranean, however, covered five hundred and fifty-eight miles. The proposed aerial race to Bermuda has already kindled high enthusiasm. Substantial prizes have been offered both in this country and on the island. Several aviators have signified their purpose to enter the contest. Unless present plans go awry, it will be conducted next summer, and the world will await its outcome with intense interest.

A Passenger Airship.

The subject of aeronautic adventure and progress calls to mind the feats now being performed at St. Petersburg, Russia, with a gigantic biplane in which passengers are transported over the city and its environs in security and comfort. This machine, called the "Ilya Mouromets" after a legendary hero, contains spacious cabins and observation parlors and glides through the air more smoothly than does the best built Pullman on land. It is described as follows by a correspondent of the London Times:

The Ilya Mouromets has a wing area five times that of the ordinary Farman biplane. The metal fuselage is 65 feet long. The forepart of the cabins extending over a length of 28 feet. The cabins have large windows on both sides, and also windows in the floor for observation and photographic purposes. At night the cabins are lit by electricity. On the roof of the cabins there is a platform. The total weight of the aeroplane is three and one-half tons. With a total development of horsepower of 400 the Ilya Mouromets raises a total useful weight of a little over one ton one and one-half hundredweight, besides nearly eight hundredweight of fuel and oil. The mechanics can move about freely to attend to the motors and other parts of the machine without disturbing the equilibrium of the aeroplane while in flight.

A student of aviation has said, "You can fly a kitchen table, if you can get a sufficiently strong motor." The Russian air ship seems to have solved the motor problem so far as lifting and sustaining power is concerned. In craft of lesser size and accommodation, the development of the motor has been equally marked. Man's conquest of the air proceeds steadily, almost miraculously. Will it not some day be complete?

A Victory for Georgia And the Southeast.

The selection of Atlanta as the location for a regional bank in the Southeast is a matter of supreme significance to the city, the State and the section.

It means that this part of the Union will receive the best possible service under the new banking and currency system, that its agricultural and business interests will no longer be dependent on remote quarters of finance but will have at their very center, accessible at all times, the monetary resources they require.

It means that Georgia will attain financial importance equal to that she already enjoys in industry and farm production, and that opportunities for enterprise and development throughout the commonwealth will be greater than ever before.

It means, morever, that Atlanta is recognized by the national Government as the business center of the Southeast and the point from which all parts of the region can be most conveniently reached. The prestige and influence that naturally accompany such recognition are immeasurable. Atlanta looms out as one of twelve cities, chosen after months of expert investigation, to administer the country's banking and currency affairs. In this important sphere of the nation's economic life, it takes rank with Boston, New York and Philadelphia in the east, with Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Cleveland and Minneapolis in the West, with San Francisco on the Pacific coast; and it extends peculiarly cordial greeting to Richmond and Dallas in the South.

If it be true that trade follows the flag, it is certainly true that interest and confidence will follow the paths marked out by the Government's selection of regional banks. The fact that Atlanta has been chosen as one of these centers will appeal to investors and homeseekers the country over, and will tell incalculably for the city's growth and development through years to come.

Atlanta has won on the broad merits of its case, has won because it is the commercial and financial center of a great territory which is plainly entitled to a federal reserve district. It was presumed from the outset that this city would be selected as the site of a regional bank. But so eager was the contest throughout the Union, that the most persistent and skillful efforts on the part of Atlanta's and Georgia's friends were necessary.

Our sister cities in Georgia and neighboring States who supported us in this great cause—the common cause of the Southeast—are due hearty thanks. The Atlanta Clearing House Association, the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce, and the Georgia Chamber of Commerce are likewise to be congratulated for the excellent work they did. The local committee that presented Atlanta's claims is due particular praise. But there is one influence, one man to whom the city and the State are peculiarly indebted—Senator Hoke Smith.

From the day the currency bill was introduced to the final stages of the organization committee's work, Senator Smith has striven unceasingly in behalf of the State. It was his resolution, introduced in the Democratic caucus of the Senate, that fixed the number of regional banks at a maximum of twelve instead of the smaller number originally proposed; the establishment of a bank in the Southeast was thus made possible. It was his speech before the committee at its meeting in Atlanta and his brief submitted subsequently at Washington that swept away such difficulties and doubts as endangered Atlanta's chance. Senator Smith has stood by the State on this vital question issue, loyally and ably. For the splendid service he has rendered, he merits, and, we are sure, is accorded the cordial appreciation of every Georgian.

Editorials in Brief

When the wave of misrepresentation passes, as it soon will, the utter shallowness of the cry of "surrender" raised by those elements in the Democratic party that are endeavoring to discredit President Wilson will be clearly understood.

There is no "surrender of sovereignty" to Great Britain or to anybody else. Such sovereignty as the United States exercises over the Panama canal zone and the canal itself will not be affected in the slightest degree by the repeal of the "free tolls provision" in the Panama canal act.

There is no "surrender of control." Nobody has questioned and nobody will question the right of the United States to absolute control over the canal, its administration, its operation and everything affecting it.

There is no "surrender to the transcontinental railways." The transcontinental railways cannot influence the rates upon freight carried by the coastwise steamers one way or another. If they could the interstate commerce commission has full power over the regulation of rates, and through this body the government of the United States can control them.—New York Herald.

"CORNED PATRIOTISM"
By Savoyard

Good and sound corned beef, I distrust not, is an excellent and wholesome article of food, though I never could stand it. When the McKinley regime was all there was political in this town some of the newspapers of this capital, perhaps taking its given to snobbery, used to go into hysterics over Mark Hanna's corned beef hash, and no doubt it was very good, but I prefer bacon: Josephus Daniels and Tom Pence will tell you of the most delightful breakfast ever ordered, the piece de resistance of which is corned mullet, and likely that is better than corned beef. Tom Pence says it is the best fish there is.

But we have another "corned" stuff in this country that is simply atrocious. It is odorous in congress and it is nauseating in journalism—I mean corned patriotism. We have it abundant in all debate of the time bill to repeal that ship subsidy known as the canal tolls. And of this I shall try to discourse in a few days.

But the particular corned patriotism to which I would now call your attention is that we hear so much about in the discussion of the Mexican situation. You remember honest old Sam Johnson's original definition of "patriot" in the first edition of his lexicon—"the last resort of a scoundrel." At that time there was a political party in England and its members called themselves "The Patriots." Pultiney was the head of it, and that William Pitt, who subsequently was the great Chatham, was a member of it. Grim old Sir Robert Walpole, in a speech in the house of commons, told how he could make a regiment of 'em overnight. The Hon. Fall and the Hon. Jones, of the United States senate, would have been distinguished members of this party had they been English statesmen of that epoch.

I will not trouble you with Walpole's receipt for making a patriot, but shall go on to tell you how to make a can of American corned patriotism. The Hon. Mondell, representative in congress from the Hon. Warren's sheep ranch, loves corned patriotism and feeds on it ravenously. Occasionally it troubles him with dyspepsia, madcap, and he goes to the lard's and he abuses God's patience and the king's English scandalous when so taken. The devil of it is that nobody knows, not even the Hon. Mondell himself, when it is going to break out and grow confluent in his case.

Well, a General Diaz was here the other day. He is the man who will likely be great. He proposed to the administration that if it would recognise his revolution he would go down to Mexico, set it on foot and restore order. Then, with charming naivete, some of his followers declared that the "sinews of war were to be obtained from a New York syndicate that had agreed to finance the revolution if the United States would recognize Diaz."

Preposterous! There has not been "a revolution" between the Rio Grande and Cape Horn the last fifty years that was not set on foot and paid for by dirty money from Europe or from North America. Huerta is so financed, Carranza is so financed—all, all of them are so created. Mexico, Central American and nearly all of the South American states have been afflicted with these "revolutions" the whereof the memory of man runneth not to the contrary.

Why there was a fellow in Central America—in Nicaragua, or Guatemala, or elsewhere. He had an immense coffee patch. He was dissatisfied with the government and went to New York, pledged his coffee for money, went home, hired an army, fought—such fighting as it was—and got on top. The revolution was triumphant and he president-dictator. By and by, the money gave out and he went to Europe and there pledged his coffee patch for some more money, got it, went back, and he had a high old time as long as that batch lasted. He played this game repeatedly and maybe is doing it to this good day. Did you ever read Charles Dickens' immortal work—"Martin Chuzzlewit?" If so, you will remember that odious Jonas Chuzzlewit. Avarice is ever a fool when it mests cool rascality. Read Dickens and the end of Jonas.

Just as Guzzlers led to murder, so will London money, Paris money, Berlin money, Frankfort money, in Europe, and New York money, in America, be ventured in Latin-American revolutions in the hope of gathering a dividend from strife and anarchy, blood and murder.

Democracy and Socialism

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1914, by Frank Crane.)

"Why is it," asks a correspondent, "that you are always talking of Democracy, and while you praise Socialism often, yet you insist that you are not a Socialist? Is not Socialism pure Democracy? Why don't you come out flat for Socialism?"

Because Socialism is European. It is the best European can do. In America we have something better, Democracy.

Socialism is an Ism, or theory. Democracy is a Crace, or a power.

Socialism is a scheme; Democracy is a growth.

Socialism is artificial; Democracy is natural.

Socialism is a dream of men; Democracy is the outworking of destiny.

Socialism appeals to the class spirit; Democracy loathes it.

Socialism is an air plant, a fungus growth, subsisting upon the branches of the future; Democracy has its roots in the past.

Socialism proclaims revolution; Democracy evolution.

Both revolt at injustice and herald the era of equality, but the one is to be by the will of man, the other by getting into line with the deep purpose of that power in whose mind is the great universal plan.

Democracy is accomplishing the change wrought out now in the workshop of actual conditions. It is a "word" being "made flesh" by infinite pains, a lesson which a nation is laboring good-naturedly to learn by practice. Democracy means patient readjustment of things as they are in order to get things as they ought to be. Socialism is fiercely impatient for fruit, with a contemptuous disregard of tree and soil.

Democracy is the determined effort of the New World; Socialism is the petulant gesture of the Old.

The types of Democracy are Abraham Lincoln and Woodrow Wilson; the types of Socialism are Karl Marx and Bernard Shaw.

Socialism is represented by the wish of Omar to "grasp this sorry scheme of things entire" and "remold it nearer to the heart's desire." Democracy is expressed in the lines of Tennyson:

Yet I doubt not through the ages one increasing purpose runs,
And the thoughts of men are widened with the process of the suns.

Socialism is a phase of Democracy, one of the effects of the spirit of Democracy working in men's minds.

Hence we are in favor of whatever there is in Socialism that helps along Democracy, but do not join the party because it carries a lot of European byproducts for use in Democracy in the United States does not care.

No one can observe current events, the president and his counsellors, the senate, the house, doing the best they can with the material they have, and not see that Democracy is aware that those economic questions which Socialism champions are of prime importance and is undertaking their solution with a serious sense of responsibility. With a noble persistence Democracy applies itself to the complex and baffling task of making things better without smashing those things our fathers got from an untoward world and bequeathed to us.

A merion is committed to no well-thinkered scheme, to no Utopian plan, that leaves the instincts of human nature and the practicalities of our present immaturity out of mind, but throughout her history have

Statesmen at her council met
Who knew the seasons, when to take
Occasion by the hand, and make
The bounds of freedom wider yet.

Leave Hoke Smith on the Job; His Senatorial Record Alone Is an All-Sufficient Reason

(From today's Augusta Chronicle.)

Probably no man in Georgia will accuse the Chronicle of any undue concern over the political fortunes of the Hon. Hoke Smith. On the contrary, we have never been able to travel with him politically since he helped to make the fight—which the Chronicle started—to keep Georgia out of the Hearst column in the 1904 presidential contest. After that, Hoke Smith, himself, went over to the radicals, and, indeed, became the dad and sire of the so-called "progressive" movement in Georgia.

As a result of this upheaval led by him he was twice elected to the governorship, serving only a small part of his second term before he was elected to the United States senate for the unexpired term of the late Senator Clay.

At the outcome of that contest the Chronicle expressed "neither surprise nor chagrin," but frankly admitted that "no state in the union will have an abler representative in the senate chamber; in fact, we might add, that "with Augustus O. Bacon and Hoke Smith in the senate, Georgia will stand head and shoulders over any other state in the union in that body in point of ability." Speaking more to the point, the Chronicle—on July 13, 1911—said:

"If we have not been amongst those who espoused Hoke Smith's cause in the recent senatorial contest we have no apologies to make for it. —If there really be any—who believe that any serious injury has been done the state, or that her banner has been lowered, we send to him there. Frankly, we believe he will make a better senator than he has made, or would make, a governor; indeed, we might feel entirely certain that he would make one of the best, if not the best, that the traditions of this or any other southern state in the senate, if we could be assured that henceforth he is sufficiently far removed from the obligations and temptations of local factional politics.

"As we have explained many times before, we have not followed Hoke Smith's political leadership, and that not from the reason that he took a 'new road,' and one, too, which he used to tell us was hedged with danger. In other words, when he became a radical we remained a conservative, and, therefore, our ways parted. But it took radicalism for him to win the people's confidence —even though he lost, ours—and upon that platform he stepped to the goal of his ambition.

"But what will he do when he will continue to be a radical—or will he, once more, become himself? We hope for, indeed, we look for, the latter, because Hoke Smith is one big constitutional figure, and Hoke Smith is too broad between the eyes not to know that this country needs safe and sane leadership, and that no man ever won anything more than passing notoriety by any other leads. Certainly, he is equipped by nature to give Georgia as able representation in the national senate as she, or any other state, ever had; and we have never been so much in favor of anything that we would not wish to see him measure fully up to his opportunities."

Well, Hoke Smith has been in the United States senate now nearly four years—and Georgia has been reasonably quiet, politically, at home. But the latter is not the point. The point is—and the only point—has he made good? Has he measured up to what his state had a right to expect of him? Has he fulfilled the prediction which even a hostile newspaper made for him—that he could, if he would, "give Georgia as able representation in the United States senate as she or any other state ever had?"

This, after all, is the yard-stick which we should apply to Senator Hoke Smith, or any other public servant, in measuring his claims to continuance in service. The mere question of factionalism should not control—unless of course, the opposing faction has as good or better man for the place. Even then, it is of somewhat doubtful value for self resurrecting old grudges and unfurling political banners just for the sake of a "fine-up." As we see it, it is not nearly so essential that Georgia be kept divided into two warring political camps as that she should have good men on the job here at home—and still better men, if possible, on the job in Washington.

This view of the senatorial situation in Georgia, and of the political situation in general will not be over-pleasing, we fear, to some of our political brethren; but to us Georgia's interests in this matter are of far greater consequence than the interests of any faction or any individual.

This being the case, the Chronicle sincerely feels that it would be doing a little less than its duty to its state if it did not speak up, here and now—in advance of the meeting of the state Democratic executive committee in Atlanta tomorrow—and, therefore in advance of any further developments in the Georgia senatorial situation—and say:

Let Hoke Smith alone! You haven't in Georgia today a man who can fill his place in the United States senate; nor one whom you could elect over him if you had. Therefore, why make a fight; why needlessly disturb a situation which cannot be improved upon? Why not, indeed, be rather proud of the fact that Georgia has in the United States senate a man who, even during his first term, promptly stepped to pre-eminent leadership in that body; who, as the Chronicle predicted for him nearly four years ago, has "fully measured up to his opportunities?"

That he himself has been extremely partisan in the distribution of such federal patronage as has come his way; that in his heart, he has been unwilling to recognize other than members of his own faction—even going so far as to oppose the nominations of his fellow senator —was, perhaps, to be expected; at least, the Chronicle, for one, never deceived itself with any thought of political generosity on the part of Senator Smith. But, after all, these are matters more of individual consequence and concern and in no way wipe out the fact that—

Hoke Smith is one of the ablest of the many able men who have represented Georgia in the United States, and far and away the most influential, energetic and effective representative this state has had in the upper house within a generation or two—if, indeed, we have ever had his equal in these latter things.

Why then, in the name of all that is good, bad and indifferent in politics, should we want to make a change?—even if we could.

As we remarked the day after Hoke Smith's election to the senate, "we have never been so much his political enemy that we would not wish to see him measure fully up to his opportunities" in the national congress, and we are not now so much his political enemy—nor so much any one else's political friend—to deny that he has more than "measured up," and is, by all the rules of the game, entitled to re-election without opposition.

To our mind there is but one vacancy from Georgia in the United States senate—the unexpired term of the late Senator Bacon. And our advice would be to all who aspire to a senatorial toga—and this means our political friends, as well as those who count us otherwise—that they will give Georgia no favor and themselves no good by striving for any other position, particularly one that is already just a little better filled at present than we could hope to have it otherwise.

All of which we make bold to remark, not because we love our friends less, but Georgia—not Hoke Smith —more.

Quips and Quiddities

However brave the policeman are, they are careful about not breaking the laws and ordinances. A patrolman was kicking his feet down on one of the docks on the lake from the other morning, when an excited citizen ran up to him and cried: "Say, hurry up! A man has just jumped off the pier!"

"With his clothes on?" asked the officer.

"Yes—fully dressed." "Hurry!"

"What do you want me to do? There ain't no ordinance against a man swimmin' as long as he's properly dressed."

THE SODA FOUNTAIN
By Frederic J. Haskin

Ponce de Leon was 300 years too soon. He should return to this continent today to look again for that elixir which he sought in vain. Let the hardy old adventurer stop at almost any store in almost any street of any United States community of over 500 souls. We overhear, "Have you the fountain of perpetual youth in stock?" queries the venerable gentleman. The young tradesman, in his white bib and tucker, smiles ingratiatingly, points with a flourish to a glittering spectacle of onyx and glass and silver, and replies: "No, sir, not at present, but we have something just as good—the great American soda fountain that runs every day in the year."

The "soda jerker" speaks truly. The soda water business has expanded to such a degree that it is almost as busy in the winter as it is in the summer. Hot chocolate, steaming bouillon, savory clam broth and the like begin from the first days of autumn to take the place of ice cream, sodas and frappes, and there is even a small steady demand for the stimulating drinks. The recently conceived luncheonette draws an ever increasing trade daily, and changes in the weather have little effect on the status of the fountain as a social center.

The American people spend about $250,000,000 a year at the never closing soda fountain. Millions are invested in the manufacturing end of the trade, huge skyscrapers have been built out of profits from favorite beverages, enormous sums are spent in advertising a single mechanical accessory, and more than one journal devoted solely to this diversified industry is waxing fat.

The soda fountain is pre-eminently an American conceit. Baseball is our great national game, but it sprang from the English game of rounders. Others of our characteristic institutions, political or social either came to us in some form from abroad or have been adapted to the use of other peoples in all parts of the world. Not so the soda fountain. Thus, Dr. Joseph Priestley, an Englishman who discovered oxygen, suggested in 1772 that a good substitute for spring water charged by nature might be a mixture of carbonic acid gas with plain water. It was also this able chemist who, of making the gas from marble dust and sulphuric acid, then mixing it with water by agitation, is the basis of that used at the present day.

It was Joseph Bramah, in England again, that first taught people to use soda water. It is well liked there now, but they drink it warm from bottles, and not of the kind the fountain and its myriad of drinks common to us. From a German scientist, Dr. Raydt, we got the idea which makes it possible for us to shop liquid carbonic acid in cylinders and all parts of the country. Your fountain owner, be he of city or hamlet, gets the cylinder, and when the valve is opened the liquid expands into its greater body of gas. Nothing more remains but to compel the cylinder to the fountain. Dr. Raydt proved the feasibility of this idea on August 28, 1879, in Kiel harbor. He pushes an empty balloon under the surface and tied it by wire cables to an anchor. The new thing 43,500 pounds. At the bottom of the balloon was a cylinder full of liquid carbonic acid, and this a diver released into the balloon by turning a lever. In eight minutes the inflated bag, lifting the immense weight with the wire, rose above the surface. This happened a generation ago, but even today the German empire knows not the soda fountain, so unfamiliar to every American man woman and child.

The first soda water patent was taken out in this country as long ago as 1810. This was granted to Simmons & Rundell, of Charleston, S. C. The man who really founded the soda water business was John Matthews, of New York. In 1832 he began with a wee and crude fountain hitched to a pushcart. He did everything himself, including charging the wares, mixing the drinks and selling the product on the streets. Other pioneers in his wake were Lippincott in Philadelphia, Hyatts & Puffer in Massachusetts, A. J. Morse and G. D. Daws. The first boom came when Lanman & Kemp got out their first catalogue, and the nerve to pay the freight on the $50,000 for the exclusive soda water privilege at the Philadelphia Centennial of 1876. Such a concession, even if it could be secured at the Panama-Pacific exposition next year would be a gilt edge investment at $500,000. At Philadelphia millions of people from all parts of the country became acquainted with soda water, and the sizzling carbonic that pours forth each year now exceeds forty Niagaras.

Soda fountains cost from $100 to $25,000, but very few under $500 are ever sold. Fashions in style, construction, material, equipment, etc., change constantly; hardly a season passes without the invention of some labor and saving of efficiency promoting device that necessitates alterations either in the fountain or its accessories. A fountain is antiquated in five or six years, and a newer and better one must be installed to meet the enterprise of the times and competition. Improvements are always being made in nut cutters ice breakers, straw covers, glass washers, candy racks, furniture, water purifiers and everything else pertaining to the business. The use of ozone as a way to purify water was announced only a few months ago but the big and progressive establishments have already begun to use it.

The business has no favorites in communities of locations. Perhaps the largest single fountain is in New York City, as it is the whole industry in itself and sells over two gallons of ice cream a minute in the busy season. Many other cities and other cities have more elaborate places than any in New York with this one exception. A city of 20,000 may have a magnificent fountain, while the metropolis of 1,000,000 or more a few miles away has a great many more but not one to equal the pride of its little neighbor. Two of the best fountains in the country are in the far western cities of San Francisco and Spokane. A soda jerker has found a remarkable branch. Lodge Pole, Neb., on the soda map by letting the trade in on a very clever way he has of quickly washing glasses with a simple preparation that costs only 1 or 1 cents a pound.

Ice cream, ice cream soda, the fifty-seven varieties of sundaes, the host of wondrous beverages of all hues of the rainbow, the "dopes," as many other cities tipple of the summer days are known to all, but the development of the winter trade is of recent origin, and the rise of the luncheonette is entirely a new phase. There are twenty-five standard ways of making hot chocolate. One dealer in New York City sells 10,000 cups every winter season. Hot grape juice is in demand, and coffee must be kept in the pipes at 198 degrees Fahrenheit is no rarity. The summer temperature of soda water is 32 degrees. Other popular hot drinks are egg preparations, non-intoxicating egnogs and claret lemonade. The luncheonette is a great variety of sandwiches, salads, soups, biscuits, wafers and cakes.

The multitude of fountain concoctions continue to bear up under outlandish titles. There is pineapple temptation, soul kiss, Cupid's delight, lovers' delight peach Melba, harem bliss, sunset sizzle, Halley's comet, heavenly hash, Nippon cooler, the Pocahontas, ambrosia of wealth, lemonade coco and the many coupe and the subway cooler. Some are doubtful aids to health. However, a national organization known as the Dispensers' Testing club, headquarters in New York, is meeting with success in its campaign to systematize nomenclature, standardize all beverages, and establish a high standard of purity. It has its own laboratory and force of chemical experts. The various ice cream associations are doing a great work in drawing up and observing sanitary codes. All the best plants now have metal ceilings, tile or cement floors and spotlessly clean workers.

As a social center in small communities, and as a rallying point in the great cities, the modern Ameri can soda fountain is without a rival in the commercial sense. In the little homey places it is the rendezvous of maidenly cliques and the boys of the gang age. When budding maturity comes along both must learn to tell many a sweet story without words over a lingering—very lingering—ice cream soda. In the cities lodges and social clubs adjourn to the corner drug store.

BURNS IN KANSAS FOR CLUE IN PHAGAN CASE

Detective Will Not Divulge New Evidence—Expected Here on Saturday

The trail in the Mary Phagan murder case has led Detective William J. Burns from New York to Kansas City during the present week. It is admitted by his office here that the detective was in Kansas City Thursday, and his mission there was in connection with the Atlanta case, it is said.

At his office it is stated that Burns accomplished successfully the task which took him to Kansas City, but the nature of the work he did there is not divulged.

Burns is expected to return to Atlanta Saturday night. Whether or not his report will then be made is a matter of conjecture.

Dan S. Lehon, at present in charge of the probe for the Burns agency, and Leo W. Hiddinger, who did much secret work on the case, are both said to have completed their work, and are ready with their reports. Therefore it is possible that Burns will formulate and make public his full and final report soon after his arrival.

However, Burns has stated that he expects to interview the state's authorities, city detectives, and certain of the state witnesses at the trial before he completes his probe, and this he has not yet done. The day before he left for New York Burns made an effort to hold a conference with Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey, but owing to other engagements the two men could not fix an hour, and Burns was unable to delay his trip for the proposed conference. Whether or not he still considers it necessary to interview the state's authorities is not known.

Guy Hiddinger, who left Atlanta as mysteriously as he came to the city, is now in Florida. The Journal has learned. While the Burns agency here refuses to divulge the reason for his trip to the southern state, it is said that Hiddinger left here to find and interview C. Burtus Dalton, the state's witness, who has repudiated, according to the defenses' affidavits, the damaging part of his testimony against Frank. Dalton was an important witness for the state, and it is said that Hiddinger considered an interview with him as necessary.

The criminal division of the superior court is expected to adjourn on Friday or Saturday next in order that Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey can have time to prepare his answer to the defense's extraordinary motion for a new trial for L. M. Frank.

While the attorneys for the defense of Frank have been working constantly on the case, Solicitor Dorsey has been engaged during each day in the trial of other cases in the criminal court.

The court adjourns for two weeks the session will probably go to Valdosta to do its work there.

TIME ARRIVES FOR REAL WORK IN BIG CAMPAIGN

Seven More Days for Candidates to Get Busy for Easter Distribution

Time is fading fast, and but seven short working days remain before the call of "Time" puts an end to the work of candidates in The Journal's Big Easter Gift Distribution. All is eagerness and excitement these days, and the spirit of determination and "get there" will even more earnestly characterize the work next week. Every candidate has now reached the point where he or she realizes that it is up to him or her to get out and vigorously campaign, if there is any expectation of being returned a winner. The time is so short that there is no time to think, only time for real, earnest and sincere effort.

The most important fact of all for every candidate to bear in mind is that the campaign is not over, and will not be over until 10 o'clock p. m. on the night of Saturday, April 11. Until this time your efforts will bring you far greater returns than they have ever brought you before, or probably ever will again. Until this hour there is time for any candidate, by dint of hard and determined work, to be returned a winner, and time for the too confident ones to lose out against more earnest workers. No one has any right to be sure of success—only by "sticking-to-it" can they be sure of coming out on top. There is too much sincere effort being put forth, and too much real work will be done during these last important days for any one to say, "I am certain of winning." The prizes will not be won until the last moment is over, and the last ballot deposited.

But success is bound to come to those who work earnestly and continue their efforts up to the closing minute. 'Les race for each and every prize is going to be a close and exciting one, to judge by all present indications, and all would do well to heed this warning: DON'T LET UP IN YOUR EFORTS UNTIL 10 O'CLOCK ON THE NIGHT OF APRIL 11 ARRIVES. There are many candidates who have only started to work, but who, by their determined and persevering work during these last days, are certain to press closely, if they do not actually win out over those who think their efforts up to this time have brought them success. There is need, and extreme need, for every bit of work that can be done and for every subscription that can possibly be secured.

This is the time to work if you never worked before, and if you do really work, and the finish finds you the winner of ONE THOUSAND DOLLARS IN GOLD, you will be thankful that you took this advice to allow nothing to stop your work during this last and all important week.

NEGROES' CAMP ORDERED OUTSIDE OF GALVESTON

GALVESTON, Tex., April 2.—Approximately 500 negroes who are encamped here waiting for the steamship Curityba to take them to Africa under the direction of "Chief" Alfred C. Sam, have been ordered to move outside the city limits before Saturday night. The orders were issued by the city authorities after an inspection of two of their camps had been made and revealed them as unsanitary.

The negroes will establish a camp outside the city limits. They do not know whe nthe Curityba will arrive.

DANDRUFF SOON RUINS THE HAIR

Makes It Lifeless, Dull, Dry, Brittle and Thin.

Girls—if you want plenty of thick, beautiful, glossy, silky hair, do by all means get rid of dandruff, for it will starve your hair and ruin it if you don't.

It doesn't do much good to try to brush or wash it out. The only sure way to get rid of dandruff is to dissolve it, then you destroy it entirely. To do this, get about four ounces of ordinary liquid arvon; apply it at night when retiring; use enough to moisten the scalp and rub it in gently with the finger tips.

By morning most if not all, of your dandruff will be gone, and three or four more applications will completely dissolve and entirely destroy every single sign and trace of it.

You will find, too, that all itching and digging of the scalp will stop, and your hair will be silky, fluffy, lustrous, soft, and look and feel a hundred times better. You can get liquid arvon at any drug store. It is inexpensive and four ounces is all you will need, no matter how much dandruff you have. This simple remedy never fails.—(Advt.)

Milady's Newest Neckwear Is the "Easter Lily"

—A fair and pretty name for an airy and picturesque neckfixing. Its creator found inspiration in the rounding cup shape of the lily—hence the name. Normandy Rolls, Gladstone Fichus and Incroyable collars are other new conceits.

—Ruchings play a prominent part in the present fashions. Malines, shadow laces and organdies are fluted and pleated and combined in charming ways. Crepe de chine in solid colors or beatrewn with flowers captivates. Widths range from one to six inches.

Boxes and boxes of other neckwear, too, for the last Saturday before Easter brings the stock to high tide. 25c to $12.50.

The Radiant Easter Sun Is Reflected in Glorious Ribbons

Have you ever seen the sun shining in a pool; the water reflecting its rays in a rainbow play of colors. Artists have enmeshed those kaleidoscopic hues in silk and satin ribbons. The flowers of the forest, too, are imbedded in silks; and chameleon colored nature has furnished inspiration. This vivid portrayal of colorings means that Easter shall be gay with ribbons—for sashes, for bows, for hat trimmings.

The stock is fascinatingly complete and our saleswomen are splendidly ready to serve you from:

Taffetas—black and colors, 25c to $1.
Moires—black and colors, 25c to $1.50.

All Countries Contribute Ideas to the Suits for Young America

WE'VE made a new connection with a maker of real suits for boys. The man's a genius. Importing the best models from abroad, he slightly adapts them for Young America; makes the suits in quantities, and brings the price away down. In showing the suits, he says:

"Here's your Russian"
"Here's your Frenchman"
"Here's your Englishman"

The English suits are adapted from the time of Dickens. There's the Pickwick suit, the Dombey suit, the Oliver Twist. The latter style is a white waist with straight colored trousers. $2.50.

Russian suits as shown are $1 to $5.
French blouse suits $1 and $2.
English middy suits $1 to $3.

All the above are white or white with colored trimmings. Materials are linenes and galateas. Colored suits are of plain or striped chambrays, ginghams and percales. $1 to $2.50. Sizes throughout are 2 to 6 years.

Borders Are the New Note in Easter Handkerchiefs

—The distinguishing mark of the smartest handkerchiefs for Easter are the borders. Some are extra wide, permitting the working of embroidery in white or colors. Some borders are colored to match one's gown. Some borders are of colored Madeira embroidery scalloping, with embroidered initial to match. Some—but come and see; there are smart handkerchief novelties from Armenia, Madeira, Ireland, France and Switzerland. Prices range from 5c to $5, with especially strong lines at 25c and 50c.

OUR ASTROLOGER

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

HOROSCOPE FOR SATURDAY, APRIL 4, 1914.

Will stars bless With happy rays?

Astrologers read this as an unfortunate day for Mars, Venus and Saturn are all in adverse aspect.

Weddings and all social entertainments are subject to an unlucky rule. Disappointments are pressaged for those who give banquets or receptions at which men and women are brought together.

During this rule of the stars all who sell articles for the adornment of women—modistes, milliners, jewelers, chemists, perfumers and dry goods merchants—are supposed to partake of the evil fortune, which Venus brings to the inhabitants of the world.

Painters, actors, writers and musicians are subject to unfortunate influences under this configuration. They should begin nothing new and should not seek recognition while it prevails.

Mars' unfriendly influences are held to affect surgeons, architects, decorators, builders, signal service men, lawyers and policemen. All these are said to be rendered irritable, domineering and unreasonable so that it is difficult to transact business with them.

It is not a favorable time for beginning long journeys or for making any important changes in business.

Surgery and dentistry are subject to an unfortunate sway. Cuts, burns, and minor accidents are believed to be numerous under this sway of the stars.

The aspect is not encouraging for domestic happiness. Quarrels should be warded off. Increase of divorce and many scandals are foretold.

All the English seers predict a serious crisis in the government of Great Britain. A surprise is foreshadowed, which will bring about radical reforms.

Ancient lore found this position of the stars particularly favorable for farm work and gardening. There is also said to be a lucky omen for baking and other household tasks including cleaning and hiring servants.

Extreme fluctuations in railway stock are again predicted. Corn will cause a flurry in the market.

Persons whose birthdate it is may have quarrels and misunderstandings with friends and business associates. Widows have the promise of offers of marriage.

Children born on this day may be impulsive and self-willed. Both boys and girls will probably be too fond of spending money and enjoying life. Girls have the augury of happy marriage.

Dr. Griggs to Give Lecture Series

The Alumnae association of the Girls High school is bringing Dr. Edward Howard Griggs for three lectures, the first of which will be given in Browning hall on April 13, Easter Monday.

The deep interest in the Griggs lectures on art last spring and the many requests for more of Dr. Griggs' work resulted in arrangements for the coming course. The general theme will be "Social Progress," and the first lecture will answer the question, "What Is Progress?"

The officers of the Alumnae association request prompt payment of membership dues. The card of membership entitles holder to two admissions to each of the lectures.

Dues may be sent either to the class chairman or direct to Miss Mattie Slaton, treasurer.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Two tongues at once are one too many. And better 'twere there were not any.

Which means that when two people try to talk at the same time it is very unpleasant for themselves and even more unpleasant for others who may have to listen to them. When Blacky Crow came flying out from deep in the Green Forest so excited that he was cawing at the top of his voice, Sammy Jay had at once flown to meet him. Now, Sammy was just as excited, and he was screaming at the top of his lungs. You see, he knew that Blacky had found the stranger who had so excited him. Now perhaps the little people of the Green Forest and the Green Meadows would believe him and no longer think him crazy.

But they didn't! No, sir, they didn't! Instead they thought that Blacky the Crow had gone crazy, too. Never was there a worse racket than Sammy and Blacky made as each tried to talk louder and faster than the other. Neither was listening to what the other was saying, which in itself was very impolite, even if they were cousins. Worse still, each kept interrupting the other, and, you know, there is nothing more impolite than to interrupt when another is speaking. But neither seemed to mind in the least. Each kept right on talking and growing more and more excited.

Of course, all the little people within hearing hurried over to find out what it all meant. But they couldn't understand at all what Sammy and Blacky were talking about. You see, Sammy and Blacky interrupted each other so often that all that those who were listening could make out was that there was a great big stranger in the Green Forest, a stranger who wore black fur and was as big as Farmer Brown's boy. Now, none of the little people knew of any one as big as Farmer Brown's boy unless it was another boy or a man. But Sammy and Blacky said that the stranger was not a man. So all their neighbors shook their heads sadly and said: "They're crazy," and then again shook their heads sadly.

"Too bad," said Jimmy Skunk. "I always thought Blacky was smart, very smart, but there certainly is something the matter with him now."

"Yes, sah, there certinly is," said Uncle Billy Possum. "Something's wrong with both Brer Jay and Brer Crow. They're foolish in their haids."

"Do you suppose it's catching?" asked Bobby Coon. "You know, Sammy Jay had it first and now Blacky has it."

"What's all this fuss about?" demanded a new voice. It was Peter Rabbit. He was all out of breath he had hurried so. You see, he had been away up in the Old Orchard, when he heard the screaming of Sammy and Blacky, and he had started right away, for, you know, Peter would feel dreadful to miss anything that was going on.

"Nothing, only Blacky the Crow is just as crazy as his cousin, Sammy Jay," replied Jimmy Skunk. "Blacky says he has seen the same stranger in the Green Forest that upset Sammy so... Just listen to those two birds! Did you ever hear anything like it? I'm going home." With that Jimmy Skunk turned his back in disgust and started up the Crooked Little Path that comes down the hill.

Bobby Coon and Uncle Billy Possum started for their homes, and Danny Meadow Mouse began to run along one of his little paths to get as far as possible from such a noise. But Peter Rabbit suddenly sat up with his ears popping right out of his head. He had just remembered the strange tracks he had seen in the snow deep in the Green Forest just at the end of winter. Could it be that they were made by the stranger who had so excited Sammy Jay and Blacky the Crow?

Good Eating at Low Cost

We eat far too much meat. We eat meat to excess under the mistaken idea that it is necessary to nourish our bodies, while we continually pass up foodstuffs that (weight for weight) contain more nutriment and cost considerably less than meat.

Take Faust Macaroni for instance. A 10c package of this macaroni contains as much nutriment as four pounds of beef, and has another big advantage, too, in that it is much easier digested.

And consider the many savory, appetizing dishes that can be made from Faust Macaroni. Write for free recipe book today. Your grocer sells Faust Macaroni—5c and 10c packages. Buy today.

The Spring Table

Fresh flowers should form the foundation of all springtime table decorations. And the simpler and daintier the flowers, the better suited they are to this season. Of course, it is too early yet in most localities for the wild flowers. But when they appear they should be used liberally on the table. Nothing is lovelier than a bowlful of hepaticas, for instance, or wild violets arranged with their own foliage. These flowers possess a certain attractive lack-ing in the more formal hothouse flowers that we gladly welcome throughout the winter. So do the other wild flowers—arbutus, anemones, spring beauties and all the rest.

Ferns from the woods are lovely on the table. They can be transplanted from their native home to a jar for the table as soon as they have reached a few inches in height. They may not live very long, but they can be replaced with others, and they may become well acclimated to their new home, if they are put out of doors much of the time when they are not in use on the table.

Flowers for the table can be produced from budded branches of fruit trees. Cut short lengths of the branches and bring them into the house. Give them plenty of water and keep them in a sunny window until they begin to open. They can then be transferred to the table.

* * *

A Japanese landscape is a charming spring table decoration. These small landscapes are the specialty of some florists. But it is possible to make one that is attractive and not so expensive as those bought ready made. Get a flat Japanese dish—you can get one for 35 or 40 cents—with high sides. In the middle of the dish or at one side, put a small mirror. Then spread half an inch of sand over the bottom of the dish, clearing it away over the mirror—which, of course, is to be a lake. Make a hill on one side of good garden earth and face it with moss. Perhaps you can get some from the woods, with a little of the earth attached about the roots, that will really grow. Then buy some outlings for your landscape. Perhaps you can buy a little pagoda or a bridge of china or metal. Small wooden houses with Japanese figures working in front of them can also be found. Arrange a pagoda or two or a house or two on the hill or in the sandy valley. A small bridge over one end of the lake adds to the prettiness of the scene. Some trees can be twigs of evergreen stuck into the moss or sand. The Japanese, of course, use real dwarfed trees, tiny things not more than three or four inches old that are yet full grown trees, but these are more expensive.—Copyright, 1914, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.

NEW JAPANESE CABINET IS HARD TO CONSTRUCT

Opposition to New Premier Causes Many Statesmen to Decline to Serve

(By Associated Press.)

TOKIO, April 3.—Difficulty in constructing a new Japanese cabinet has been encountered by Viscount Keigo Kiyoura, who undertook the task at the request of the emperor. Many of the statesmen who had been selected for portfolios declined as there had been much popular disapproval of the selection of Viscount Kiyoura.

The political groups in the house of representatives are opposing the new premier on the ground that his selection signifies a revival of the old bureaucrats.

will be brim full of health builders if the foods it carries are made with

Cottolene

Pastries, doughnuts and all foods are far more digestible when made with Cottolene. Physicians and expert dieticians have passed the verdict of science in favor of this clean, food-bettering product. Cottolene is pure and wholesome and should be used in all cookery.

The children will adore the cook who makes this:

COTTOLENE FAIRY GINGERBREAD

2-3 cup Cottolene; 2 1-2 cups sugar; 1-2 cup sweet milk; 3 eggs; 1 teaspoon soda; 1 tablespoon ginger; 7 cups flour (or enough to mix as stiff as can be rolled).

Cream Cottolene and sugar, add beaten eggs, soda dissolved in sweet milk and ginger. Add flour (as much as can be stirred in). Roll to about one-half inch thickness, in a sheet to cover bottom of a large, low baking-pan, score with fancy rolling-pin or springerle stamps, sprinkle with sugar and bake to a very delicate brown. Cut apart and remove quickly by passing knife underneath and stand on edge in a pan to cool.

Order a pail of Cottolene and just try these crisp wafers. Use Cottolene in all cooking, always using one-third less than you would of butter or lard, because Cottolene really goes farther. Also send to us for the valuable FREE Cook Book, HOME HELPS. Do it NOW.

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

Paris.—Waistcoats are the height of fashion. This is to be expected when stripes and Italian hose and other sartorial fancies of the French Revolution are revived. They are not new, they appeared as late as last summer, and Cheruit even made fashionable a waistcoat blouse, which had sleeves in it so that it could be worn without a coat.

But these present affairs look as though they had been made by haberdasher. There is nothing feminine about them. Seams are missing, sleeves are omitted and collars are very high. One can buy them at the places where men go to get clothes, and as the women of today have as few curves as a planked shad, the masculine waistcoat does very well.

All these shops are showing ready made ones in any color to suit the fancy or the frock. White linen ones are preferred for the warmer weather. Suede in various light shades is a fancy of the woman who always dresses differently from her neighbor. Such shops as the Galeries Lafayette have small imitation ones that have no backs but serve to fill in the front of the jacket. Here one can also buy masculine looking affairs that might have been worn by Beau Brummell. They are of pique and heavy linen with two pockets at the waist line and a row of gilt buttons running straight down the front.

Striped Waistcoats in Fashion.

Probably the most dashing of the accessories to the new short coats are those made of broadly stripped silks. These are in gray and green and yellow, or in blue in two shades and yellow. There is no getting away from yellow, you know, so it is just as well to make up your mind to accept it.

Of one thing beware, however, if your suit is of a striped material, let the waistcoat be plain. Only indulge your advocacy of striping in a single garment. It is all one woman can stand, be she young or old, thin or stout. Even if you are led away into a paiid silk hat, wear it only with quieter clothes.

Linen Waistcoats Good Style.

Probably the best choice for the American to make of all the waistcoats offered her is one of white linen in a good quality. It will stand the wash tub and the iron, and be cool enough to go with a taffeta suit on the majority of days. Those who live in climates too hot for any accessory like this in summer, should take advantage of the fashion at the present hour and touch up a spring suit with any kind of vest they like.

SLOOP DEFIANCE TO BE LAUNCHED BOW FIRST

Owner of Aspirant for Cup Honors Thinks It Means Luck

(By Associated Press.)

BATH, Me., April 3.—The sloop Defiance, under construction for the America's cup trials, will take the water bow first when she is launched on May 11. George M. Pynchon, managing director of the sloop syndicate, said this departure from the usual method of launching was a hobby of Designer Owen, who believed it would lessen the possibility of any accident to the rudder. After the Defiance slides down the ways, three days will be required to set up her rigging. Her hollow spars of Oregon pine are on the way here and the sails are expected soon.

Like the other aspirants for the honor of meeting the Shamrock IV, the Defiance will have a center board with a estimated drop of eight feet.

Johnson Favors Intended Pass For Hurlers

Great Pitcher of Nationals Argues Against Any Legislation to Prevent a Pitcher From Passing Dangerous Batter in a Pinch--Says Rule Could Be Evaded

WASHINGTON, April 3.—The monarch of the mound sees no chance of legislating out of baseball the intentional pass of a batter. During the winter Ban Johnson caused quite a furore by declaring that he was in favor of a rule compelling a twirler to pitch to a good batter when there were men on the bases instead of giving him a base on balls, and thereby getting a chance at a less dangerous hitter.

Many suggestions were at once made, but the one most repeated was to have the catcher's box so narrow that it would be impossible for the backstop to handle a "pitch out."

Walter Johnson, however, sees no merit in such a contention. He feels that it would be an injustice to a catcher to restrict him any more, and besides brings out the point that when a pitcher wants to get rid of a certain batter all that is necessary is to hit him with the ball. If the leather strikes the hitter he takes his base; if he sidesteps it is a "ball," and four of these would compel him to walk.

"I see no reason for the proposed rule," said Swifte comment on the discussed the Johnsonian propaganda today.

"When a good hitter comes up with runners on, the crowd is worked up to a high pitch. If he hits all is well, but if he is passed intentionally this simply adds to the tenseness of the situation. Often the next man will whale the ball out and with the same, so nothing is gained by the little bit of strategy in allowing the first man to walk.

Fans Want Hitting.

"People are in the stands to see good baseball and get plenty of excitement. The crowds are now beginning to be well educated in 'inside stuff' that they appreciate the point when the intentional pass is used. But even to the casual spectator, with a limited knowledge of the game, this little trick appeals, as it keeps him keyed up, and he enjoys it even though it should accidental the team for which he is pulling.

"I think it would be a mistake to do away with the intentional pass. On the other hand I see no danger, as I cannot conceive of how it could be accomplished."

Another proposed change that finds little sympathy here is the one that would penalize blocking at the plate. Some of the game's reformers have moved to compel the catchers to end the practice of standing in the path when receiving a throw home. They say that it is dangerous to life and limb? But they have found no cure. None of the Washington catchers or pitchers will agree that the catchers should be forced to go without their shinguards. If these protectors were removed the receivers would not be prone to take their place in the lines brace themselves and ward off incoming runners. This, according to the players, would be an injustice to the men who must be guarded against foul tips as well as flying spikes. The opinion here is that blocking at the plate is in the sport to stay.

Amateurs Form Another League

One of the newest leagues to enter the amateur field in Atlanta will be the Morning league. This league will be composed of probably six teams and will play the national pastime in the early mornings, between 5 and 7 o'clock. This plan, while not in effect last year, is not a new one, since up to last year there has been a league that played games in the morning for several years.

A meeting was held by the teams that desire to enter such a league, and the following turned out: J. M. High, George Muse, the Georgian, Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose company, Rich's, and Dawson-Paxon-Stokes company.

All of these teams will be composed of players that desire to play ball this summer, having only the mornings in which to play.

The next meeting of this league will be held Friday night at 6:30, at which time final arrangements will be perfected for the opening of the playing season. The meeting will be held at 119 Peachtree.

Tigers Will Play Open Football

PRINCETON, N. J., April 3.—That Princeton will employ the open game in football next season was made plain in a letter to the Daily Princetonian Thursday from Knowlton L. Ames, '90, chairman of the graduate coaching committee, which has practical charge of all of the football coaching.

THE SPORTLIGHT
BY GRANTLAND RICE

THE FIRST DAY OUT.

I shot a golf ball into the air;
It fell to earth, I know not where;
For when it struck upon the ground
I think it went half way to China.

And still I swam from spot to spot,
Trying in vain to play a shot;
I got a "screen," "eight" and "ten"—
And the worst cold I ever had in my life.....

In place of the bizarre Feds benumbing Col. Ebbets to any extent, they have only worked him up to a heavier froth. Last season he had only 37 dedications. This season he has already planned 68, and is only getting into his swing.

As we figure it up to date, the only entries that Colonel Ebbets hasn't dedicated are Huerta, bread pudding, Jack Johnson and the burning of Moscow.

B. L. T. VS. JERRY TRAVERS.

Sometime this summer we hope to rent Madison Square Garden or the White Sox park to install a spirited debate between B. L. T., of Skokie and Prof. Jerome D. Travers, of Upper Montclair.

B. L. T. announces that the only correct way to putt is to look at the cup—not at the ball.

"If he can furnish me one good reason for this system," Jerry Travers told up before he left, "I'll swallow my putter. The only way to putt is to keep your eye on the ball and keep it there until the club head has done its work."

AGREEING WITH TRAVERS.

As between these two eminent scientists we are inclined to string stoutly with Mr. Travers. And for these reasons—to wit—

1. All the best putters we have ever seen—Travers, Travis, Alec Smith, Ouimet and a host of others look at the ball as the stroke is made.

2. In every other shot in golf, looking at the ball is a necessary device. To look away is developing a bad habit.

3. It seems quite reasonable that it is much easier to get results by looking at the object you are about to hit than by looking twenty feet away from it.

4. We have tried them both out and the "looking-at-the-ball system feels about 27 times more natural—and produces about 75 times more cheering results.

"Ninety-five per cent of those playing golf are not looking at the ball as the club head strikes it," says Travers, "which accounts for the fact largely that 95 per cent of all golfers are bad or uncertain putters."

Personally, and impersonally, we believe in the main respect that both are wrong. The only way to develop consistent putting among the 95 per cent referred to will come from digging a deep, narrow trench from ball to hole, or by presenting the cups with a diameter of seven feet.

ANOTHER CUBIST POEM.

Old King Cole was a jolly old soul.
A jolly old soul was he;
But when they told him that he had to work
The opening game against the Athletics
Practically all the jollity evaporated
From his buoyant young life.

COLE VS. FORD.

Speaking of coincidences, which we intend to do right here, the case of King Cole and Russ Ford is an interesting one.

Back in 1910 these two young debutantes led their respective circuits. Cole, a Cub recruit, won 21 games and dropped but 3. Ford, operating with the Yanks, won 26 and lost 6.

Both began to skid a bit after that wonderful start. But for 1914, as Ford moves from the Yanks to the Buffalo Feds, Cole takes his place, working once more under the manager who lifted him from the tonsorial league to the big tent.

LEAGUE LEADERS AND THE FATES.

Leading a league in pitching seems to be considerable of a hoodoo. Cole and Ford led their two circuits in 1910 and both have drawn a jerky time of it since.

In 1911 Bender led the American and the next campaign was one of the worst he ever knew.

In 1912 Joe Wood led the American and Hendrix the National. And a year later Wood was crippled and out of it, while Hendrix dropped far dawn the list, winning less than half his starts.

The citizen who led the American league last season was Walter Johnson. He may be so harassed by the fates this season that he will be unable to win 35 or 40 games.

A MESSAGE OF CHEER.

"Johnson will show more stuff this season," says Grif, "than he has ever shown before."

This is the most cheering message that A. L. batsmen have ever drawn. They have never been able to see what he had before and the change will be a welcome relief.

Hank O'Day's luck is beginning to turn. After spending the last twenty-one years umpiring and managing the Reds, he is the only Cub leader in the last eight seasons who won't be forced to serve under the moguls hip of our departed college chum.

We may be wrong about it, but we have a hazy hunch that the thought of working a series with the Boston Braves will very shortly be highly repugnant to about seven of Mr. Tener's leading umpires. Our idea of no way to spend the time is to be surrounded on a hot, sticky, nerve-festering afternoon by George Stallings and Johnny Evers.

Allen Won Second Block

KANSAS CITY, Mo., April 3.—Benine Allen, of Kansas City, last night won the second block of 300 points in his match with Edward Ralph, of Hightstown, N. J., for the world's championship at pocket billiards. The score was 250 to 108, making the standing at the end of the two nights' play 400 to 267. Allen, who is titleholder, last night made a high run of 36. Ralph's high run was 15. The match will end tomorrow night.

Forrest Avenue Won

By the score of 28 to 14, the fifth grade of the Forrest avenue school defeated the fifth grade of the Calhoun school, in a rather one-sided game of ball. The feature of the game was the hard hitting of the Forrest avenue boys and the pitching of Watson.

Fishburne Won Big Checker Match

UNION, S. C., April 3.—W. B. Fishburne, of Greenville, S. C., Thursday defeated G. C. Anderson, of Mount Airy, N. C., in checkers, claiming the southern championship as a result. Fishburne won seven games to his opponent's six. The tournament, which commenced Monday, was conducted under the auspices of the Union Checkers' club.

Dentists Beat Preps

The Atlanta Dental college team defeated the Peacock-Fleet nine Thursday by a score of 18 to 5. The feature of the game was the heavy hitting of the dentists. Newsom hit a home run in the seventh. The dentists want games with other city teams. Address J. M. Resedo, care of the college.

Emory Juniors Beat Freshmen

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

EMORY COLLEGE, Oxford, Ga., April 3.—Another afternoon of baseball has placed Emory's interclass race as follows:

	P.	W.	L.	Pct.
Juniors	2	2	0	1.000
Seniors	2	1	1	.500
Sophomores	2	1	1	.500
Freshmen	2	0	2	.000

In a full nine-inning farce yesterday afternoon the juniors slaughtered the freshmen by a score of 15 to 1. This battle was the postponed affair from Monday afternoon, and from the spectators' standpoint, it would have been better had it never been played.

Summers worked seven innings on the mound for the juniors and gave up only one hit, being relieved by Neal after the game had progressed to the joke stage. Summers connected with three hits out of six trips to the plate, one being a three-bagger. Stakes, for the juniors, came next with two hits.

The freshmen appeared to be glad to get through with the game, much less make it interesting for their opponents. Lane, a freshman infielder, connected for the only two hits his team secured. Williamson worked well in the box for the freshmen, but his support was ragged.

Score by innings:	R.	H.	E.
Freshmen.....000 100 000—	1	2	10
Juniors.....321 302 22x—15	12	1

Batteries: Freshmen, Williamson, Lane and Mobley; Juniors, Summers, Neal and Cheshire. Umpires, Kitchens and Saxon.

'War' Sanders on Job at Newnan

NEWNAN, Ga., April 3.—Manager War Sanders, of the local Georgia-Alabama league baseball club arrived Thursday and is very much pleased with the material that he has signed. He states that he has 65 players for tryouts, and, out of this number, he says that he has twenty who would make good in the Southern league.

Pitcher Lovett will arrive in a few days and begin his training a little earlier than the rest. Lovett led the league in pitching last year, and states that he will do all in his power to land the locals on top this year. This young pitcher was the man who aided Newnan so much in beating LaGrange last year. Out of the 10 games he pitched against that club he won 9 and tied 1. Newnan and LaGrange have always been rivals and although Newnan defeated her neighbor last season, she hopes to see the Elm City run a close second, with the locals on top.

Work on Princeton Stadium Begins Soon

NEW YORK, April 3.—Work on the new stadium at Princeton university, made possible through the gift of $300,000 by Edgar Palmer, of Rye, N. Y., will begin some time this month. George R. Murray, graduate treasurer of the Princeton Athletic association, who made this announcement here yesterday, said that the work will be rushed with the end in view of having the new field finished in time to stage some of the big games there next fall.

Mr. Murray said that the stadium would have a seating capacity of 41,000.

Red Sox Beat Vols

NASHVILLE, Tenn., April 3.—The Boston American league team defeated the Nashville Southern league club here Thursday by a score of 7 to 5. Outfielder Lewis, of Boston, secured a home run, triple, double and single out of five times at bat.

Score:	R.	H.	E.
Boston	7	10
Nashville	5	6	1

Travis Beaten At Pinehurst

PINEHURST, N. C., April 3.—There was little of interest to reward the big galleries that turned out Thursday to watch the second round of play in the fourteenth annual United North and South golf tournament here. Perhaps the most interesting event today was the defeat by William Paul, of the Mecklenburg County club, Charlotte, N. C., of his club mate, C. T. Dunham, 3 up and 2 to play.

There was added interest in this match, as it was Dunham who defeated the veteran golfer, Walter Travis, yesterday. Incidentally, Travis was put out of the consolation flight today by J. M. Thompson, of the Springhaven (Pa.) Country club, 2 up and 1 to play. Other first flight winners were: C. H. Gardner, Providence, R. I., who defeated N. F. O'Connell, Fitchburg, Mass., 4 up and 3 to play; N. S. Worthington, Shawnee (Del.) club, who won from C. L. Becker, Auburndale, Mass., 5 up and 3 to play. The match tomorow between Paul and Worthington is expected to prove interesting.

Dodgers Won Opening Game

NEW YORK, April 3.—Major league baseball had its season's opening in New York Thursday with an exhibition game between the Brooklyn National and New York American League teams at Ebbets field, the Brooklyns winning, 4 to 3, in a ten-inning struggle.

Frank Chance's men looked like winners until the eighth, when, with Dalton on first, Wheat hit Warhop for the circuit, tying the score. A base on balls with the bases filled gave Brooklyn the game. Score:

Hebner Sets New Swimming Record

CHICAGO, April 3.—H. J. Hebner, of Chicago, lowered the world's swimming record for 110 feet in the open swimming meet of the Illinois Athletic club here last night, making the distance in 1 minute, 2 3-5 seconds. The former record was held by C. Healy, 1 minute 3 1-5 seconds. Perry McGillivray failed in an effort to cut down the 1,000-yards record, swimming it in 18 minutes 28 1-5 second.

Collier Pitched For Griffmen

WASHINGTON, April 3.—In one of the best exhibition games played here this season, the Washington Americans Thursday defeated the Newark International, 3 to 2.

Braves Return For Two Games With Crackers

Boston Team Arrives for Two Games Beginning Today, Visitors Have Won Two and Tied the Third -- Last Big League Team to Play Here This Season

Following the departure of the Naps who left this morning for Chattanooga, where they play today and Saturday, the Boston Braves return for another series of two games. The first of these will be staged this afternoon at 3 o'clock. Manager Smith will probably select his hurlers from Price, Perryman or Lawrence, and two of these will probably be used.

On the recent trip to Macon the Crackers dropped one to the Braves by a score of 3 to 0, and tied the other, after getting away to a good lead. The local entry will, therefore, exert every effort to grab at least one of the games of this series. These two games will mark the last appearance of a big league club here this season. Next week John Ganzel will bring his Rochester club for a series of exhibition. At last Saturday's game with the Braves, the best crowd of the season to date turned out to witness the fray, and no doubt local fans will turn out in good numbers to see these two games.

In connection with the deal which sends Al Nixon to the Beaumont club in the Texas league, it is understood that Al had formerly been offered to Otto Jordan for his Dallas club. Otto did not think the price was in line, however, and turned the proposition down. There is a matter of some doubt as to whether or not Nixon will hit in the Texas league, since it is a fact that B league and turns out some good pitching. But it is a practical certainty that there will be few better gardeners in the circuit than Al. Also it is a foregone conclusion that the outfielders in the league carry a better throwing arm.

Stinson Gets Cuban Players

BOSTON, Ga., April 3.—When the Boston Nationals left for Atlanta today for a series of two games on its way north two of the Cuban players did not accompany the team. A deal was consummated here Thursday whereby Pitcher Villasen and Third Baseman Gonzales will play on Manager Stinson's Macon team in the South Atlantic league this season. This completes the Macon roster and will make the team, it is believed, one of the strongest in the circuit. The other Cuban player on the Boston team, Pitcher Luque, will proceed to Boston with the team and if he fails to make good he will be sent to the Macon team.

Third Baseman Sylph, obtained from Jacksonville, will go to the Georgia State league.

Dooin's Daisies Down Athletics

PHILADELPHIA, Pa., April 3.—Two young pitchers shut out the world's champion Athletics Thursday at Shibe park in the first of the series of spring games with the Philadelphia Nationals. The score was 4 to 0. "Cy" Marshall allowed only two hits in the first four innings and Deschler, formerly of St. Mary's college, Oakland, Cal., only one hit in five innings. Colonels Took Second From Reds

LOUISVILLE, Ky., April 3.—Although Herzog shifted the Red's batting order as well as the lineup, playing himself second on the list, the Louisville American association team made it two straight from Cincinnati on Thursday. A wild Yingling allowed ten hits in six innings. McLarry's hit in the sixth brought in four runs.

Score: R. H. E.
Cincinnati 2 8 3
Louisville 4 10 1

While there are not as many players under assumed names with the Federals this year as there were last, still it develops that there are a few. One of them made known is Austin Walsh, who was in the Texas league last year. He is with the Chicago Feds under the name of John Jones.

Alabama Does Big Come-Back

TUSCALOOSA, Ala., April 3.—Alabama Thursday afternoon showed a complete reversal of form over Wednesday's performance and defeated Mississippi College by a score of 10 to 4. Thought, the locals were ragged in the field, presenting the visitors with all four runs made, they ran the bases well and hit when hits counted for runs. Cargyle, third baseman, starred on the paths, stealing four bases during the game, while Sewell, right fielder, did the heavy work with the stick. Out of four times up he hit safely three times, two of his drives going for two bases and drove in five of Alabama's ten runs.

McGraw Can't Buy Texas League Clubs

DALLAS, Tex., April 3.—It became known here last night in connection with the refusal of the Houston, Tex., league club owners to sell their franchise to John McGraw, that the manager of the New York Nationals has made similar overtures to the owners of the Dallas club. It was said the club was not for sale. McGraw is reported intending to place his brother, who lives in New York, in charge of the club he acquires.

Jackets Play Miss. College

Techites Meet New Rivals With Changed Line-Up. Donaldson Out of Game. Start at 3:30

Georgia Tech and the University of Mississippi will cross bats at Grant field this afternoon beginning the second series of the season at 3:30.

The Yellow Jackets were defeated by the Auburn team last week in the first game of the series, but came back strong and took the second contest. This leaves the Jackets in the same standing in the championship race.

The local boys will present a different front to that of last week. Witherington will be behind the bat with Newsome as second catcher. Burr will occupy first base with Tyler Montague on second. Hill will hold down third, but Wooten has been shifted to shortstop in place of Donaldson, who is not in the game this week. The Tech team is especially weak with the stick at present, but Donaldson does not seem to be able to get his eye on the ball as yet.

Wooten is a good fielder and is also a good man with the willow, hence the change. Donaldson is a good man when it comes to fielding, but his batting has the edge on him in the other department. Just who will catch is a question. Either Burr, Pitts or Eubanks will be used in the opening game. They all will be kept going a good deal this season, and with a warm day on tap they should be able to show some real stuff.

The visitors appear to have a strong team. They cleaned up with the University of Alabama Wednesday, and whether striking out twenty men. If he can get by with that against Alabama he should certainly romp on the local collegians, as they are very weak with the stick at the present time. However, there will be no walkover. The Techites have a young team, composed of some of the gamest fighters that ever wore a Tech uniform. Two games will be played with this club, the other game starting at 3:30 Saturday.

Braves Blanked Sally Leaguers

MACON, Ga., April 3.—The Boston Nationals shut out the Macon South Atlantic league team 3 to 0 Thursday afternoon in the final game on the local diamond. The feature of the game was the batting of the Braves off Macon's best pitchers, Stallings' men making 13 hits, including two home runs by Marsonville and Whaling, a triple and four two baggers.

Griffith, rightfielder, for Boston made a triple and two of the two baggers.

Score: R. H. E.
Boston 3 13 0
Macon 0 6 1
James, Meikle and Whaling; Vaughan Martin and Veach.

Chinese Athlete Wins Distinction

CHICAGO, April 3.—When Wah Kai Chang, a Chinese student, engaged in practice with the track team at the University of Chicago, in January, he was a novice in athletics.

Yesterday A. A. Stagg, athletic director, gave Chang his 1917 numerals in recognition of his talents as a sprinter and complimented him on his success as the first Chinese to receive the honor at the university.

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

The Southern Cattle Tick

THIS dreaded little insect has caused a loss of millions of dollars to all sections of the south, but the United States government is getting this country fast cleaned up from this great drawback to the cattle industry. They have men working in all parts of the country, and the government furnishes a man in every county where the county authorities are willing to pay one-half of the expense. It is a great help for any county to have it cleaned of ticks, and immediately after it is done the quarantine is lifted and cattle can be shipped from that county to all parts of the world, making an unlimited market for the products grown in that county. When otherwise it cannot be done and its market is only limited.

A great many people are not posted on the ravages of this tick, but we all should know more about it as it is money in our pockets and helps us to be benefited.

At this season of the year people should begin to fight ticks and not allow any on the premises. It can very easily be exterminated from anywhere if you start in time. The cattle should be dipped three or four times in a dipping tank or should be thoroughly sprayed. Dip or spray them once for four weeks it will not only kill the ticks on the animals, but those in the pasture, if it is done at this season of the year.

Ticks sap the life out of thousands of cattle every year. They keep the cows from giving a full flow of milk and the quantity of butter, and will keep the flesh off of the cows. No one can afford to be bothered with these little insects and should by all means clean them out of their premises of them. Ticks usually require about two hundred pounds of blood per year from each animal they infest. You can readily see that a person cannot afford to feed ticks on cattle any more so than they can afford to feed lice on fowls or hogs. And, if you have any ticks on your premises do not delay getting rid of them at once.

The United States government expert, Dr. E. H. Neighbert, in the Federal building, Atlanta, will gladly furnish you with a bulletin telling you how to get rid of these insects, and by following his instructions you can easily clean up your farm. If your neighbor is not inclined to do so, you should by all means get rid of them and avoid a heavy loss that comes to every man who cultivates ticks on his premises.

This is one great drawback in shipping good cattle to the south and has killed many animals that have been shipped to this country. As a rule it does not kill young animals or calves born on them—that is they do not usually die when they become infested before they are one year old, but it will stop their growth. In nine cases out of ten where a cow over two years old comes in contact with ticks she will die. They have killed hundreds of head of cattle that have come into sections that had ticks and people do not know what caused their death. Any man is very foolish to buy and bring into any section that is infested with ticks cows past two years old that ticks on them before, because they will surely die if they come in contact with these little pests.

It is so easy to get the ticks off your premises that no one should neglect it a day longer, and assist in every way possible the government authorities who are working in this section of country, and help every man in it to be benefited. We should all co-operate with them and lend every assistance possible to rid our premises of these insects.

Yours very truly,

The Real Estate Field

Mrs. Swift Buys 120 Feet of Frontage on Whitehall Street Adjoining the Fairbanks-Morse Building, Which She Already Owned—Acreage Near Chamblee Road Changes Hands—Real Estate Men Elated Over Atlanta Getting Regional Bank

Although the real estate agencies Friday were mainly concerned with the selection of Atlanta as a regional bank center, they managed to make one or two important news announcements.

The Georgia Realty company has sold to Mrs. Berta M. Swift extensive frontage on Whitehall street, adjoining the Fairbanks-Morse building, which Mrs. Swift recently bought. The price was $42,000. Mrs. Swift was represented by Tom Swift, of the Porter & Swift agency, and the seller by John H. Maddox, of the Smith & Ewing agency.

Mrs. Swift bought 120 feet of frontage adjoining the Fairbanks-Morse building on the west. The lot extends back 125 feet to the railroad and is part of the H. H. Smith subdivision.

Mrs. Swift acquired the building as part payment on the Peachtree street property she recently sold to J. R. Smith.

ACREAGE SALE.

W. L. & John O. DuPree have sold for W. R. Metcalf to Dr. A. Dawson, 61 acres of land just off the Chamblee road and nearly a mile from Silver Lake. The price was $6,500.

This is in land lot 307 of the Eighteenth district of DeKalb county, and is in the midst of extensive acreage and subdivision development.

REGIONAL BANK.

No class of business men was more elated Friday over the selection of Atlanta as a regional bank center than the real estate men. As one of them pointed out, the government is just recognizing and advertising the world what the real estate men, as one of them pointed all his business life—the immense advantages enjoyed by Atlanta.

As a direct benefit to real estate, the agents say that the establishment of the bank will bring people here on financial business who will incidentally be impressed with the city's general business development and will be induced to buy real estate here.

Heretofore the merchant and banker has gone to New York to borrow money. Under the new banking system the merchant and banker of the southeast will come to Atlanta.

While, hazy will see the city, be impressed with it, and figure on its real estate possibilities.

This might be called the direct, special benefit to real estate. What is more important is the general effect. The city will be proclaimed daily in every important financial paper of the country. Outsiders seeing here the official money center of the southeast will begin to investigate the other possibilities. This will lead to the establishment of still more manufacturing concerns, to the opening here of branches by big outside enterprises. These will mean greater population and greater demand for land.

It is doubtful if the full benefit of the bank can be estimated. Much of the good that it will do will be indirect.

Money had already become easier, and building is steadily improving. The establishment of the bank adds a great sentimental influence which cannot fail

BANK VICTORY MAKES BUSINESS MEN REJOICE

Great Things Are Predicted for Atlanta Because of Regional Bank.

Here are the opinions of some of Atlanta's leading business men on the wisdom of the selection of this city as a regional reserve center:

L. J. DANIEL.

"Congratulations were telegraphed Senator Hoke Smith by L. J. Daniel in the name of Daniel Brothers. Mr. Daniel was jubilant.

"It is one of the greatest things that ever happened to Atlanta," he declared. "It is a most valuable asset. All thanks and credit are due to Senator Smith, who was the most instrumental factor in getting us here.

C. A. SMITH.

C. A. Smith, secretary and treasurer of Jacobs' Pharmacy, agreed with Mr. Daniel.

"If it hadn't been for Hoke Smith we wouldn't have gotten the bank," he declared. "The credit is due entirely to him. The victory will be a great benefit to our bankers, but to our business men as well. It makes us the trade center for this entire section, which everybody knew before, but which only goes to make it a little stronger."

SIMON EINSTEIN.

"Our enthusiasm is pitched so high," said Simon Einstein, president of the Globe Clothing company, "that we can hardly express it. If you could see the word in the dictionary that is strong enough, use it. It is one of the best things that ever happened to Atlanta, and will send business up to the top notch. A great part of the credit for getting the bank—three-fourths of it, I think—is due the press."

JAMES DUFFY.

"After I read the good news in The Journal last night," said James Duffy, of the Duffy Dry Goods store: "I was so tickled I dreamed I counted that dollars were flying through the air. I see my dream didn't come true, too."

A. L. MYERS.

"Tickled to death," was the way A. L. Myers, of the Myers-Miller Realty Co. rumpe company, put it. "The eyes of the whole country will center on Atlanta as the financial center of the South, and it will make the city grow as nothing has in the last fifty years. Every member of the Atlanta family should be congratulated for so ably presenting our case."

B. F. JOEL.

Said B. F. Joel, vice president of the Rich's dry goods store: "Everybody should take off their hats to Hoke Smith. He's the man that turned the trick. Getting the bank and the Federal pood it will do the city is the biggest advertisement Atlanta has ever had. It will make us the recognized money center of the south, will stimulate real estate and bring the attention of the entire country to our city."

R. S. JOHNSON.

"I don't see how they could help giving it to Atlanta," declared H. S. Johnson, of the Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose company. "The people in the banking line, business will boom, we will be the money center of this part of the universe."

JAMES A. LE CONTE.

"I've just one thing to say," said James A. Le Conte, treasurer of Kile Hardware company, "and that is—it's the best piece of legislation passed in favor of the south I will ever see. A fluctuating money market and will give us a prestige above any other city of our size."

J. S. STANFORD.

"Great credit is due the committee," said J. S. Stanford, of the Cloud-Stanford store. "The wonderful thing about it is that the location of the bank here will affect everybody, business of all kinds. I predict a brilliant future for Atlanta as the result."

MARK HIGHTOWER.

Put me down as agreeing with those who said it's the best thing that ever happened to Atlanta," stated Mark Hightower, of the Hightower Hardware company. "That expresses it exactly."

"The location of the regional bank here," said J. K. Orr, head of the J. K Orr shoe company, "will undoubtedly help Atlanta's manufacturers and the size of their goods into an ever larger territory than they now cover. The recognition of Atlanta as a central city of great benefit in this way. I felt certain from the first that Atlanta would get the bank because, she deserved it. The action of the board has called the attention of the whole country to the city."

Oscar Elsas, president of the Fulton Bag and Cotton mills, said:

The prestige given the city by the location of a regional reserve bank here cannot help but prove a great aid to manufacturing enterprises. Atlanta is already famous as a diversified manufacturing point and its just recognition will be great assistance in increasing manufacturing as well as all other business."

HOKE SMITH DESERVES CREDIT.

"Of course that Atlanta would get here will greatly aid all manufacturers," said H. Minot, president of the White Hickory Wagon Manufacturing company, "and Senator Hoke Smith deserves great credit. I congratulate him on the credit, for securing the bank for Atlanta."

David Woodward, president of the Woodward Lumber company, declares the coming bank will of necessity be greatly beneficial to the lumber milling enterprises. "The credit system of the whole country, which is a big factor in all manufacturing enterprises will be helped and strengthened by the currency reform legislation, and naturally will this be true for concerns located in a city which has a regional bank," he said.

The banks here will now be able to finance manufacturing concerns at a fair rate of discount, and that is a boon of incalculable benefit."

Sam D. Jones, president of the Atlanta Stove Works, said: "The increased monetary importance of Atlanta will of necessity bring other manufacturers to Atlanta and assist those already here. With the bank, Atlanta manufacturers will have increased facilities, and they will share greatly in the benefits to business generally."

"ATLANTA IS CENTER.

"H. McCrea, of the Nunnally & McCrea company, overall manufacturers, said: "The decision of the federal reserve board shows conclusively that Atlanta is the center of the southeastern territory from a distributing standpoint, and that is the prime factor in the manufacturing proposition. I am glad that we are located in the most distributing territory and we will naturally encourage us and will naturally encourage us and will naturally encourage other manufacturers to locate here. Atlanta deserved to get the bank. However, more than merit alone was necessary to secure the bank for Atlanta, and whatever that was Hoke Smith had it."

Brooks Morgan, of the Frank E. Block company, said: "The great importance of Atlanta as a manufacturing and commercial center has never been fully realized at home or abroad, but the fact that the attention of the whole world has now been directed to Atlanta as a banking center will do more than anything else to bring us prestige and business."

"The locating of the regional bank here will be the greatest incentive to business generally that the city could have," said T. K. Glenn, of the Atlanta Steel company, "and the manufacturers will benefit with general business. One of the best features from a manufacturer's standpoint is that we will be able to go direct to the real source for financial assistance. It puts Atlanta manufacturers in close touch with the main fountain head where we secure money to finance their enterprises."

DODGE OF GRATITUDE.

Louis Gholstin, of the Gholstin-Cunningham Shipping & Manufacturing company, says:

"Every manufacturer and business man in Atlanta owes a debt of gratitude to Senator Hoke Smith, for he was largely instrumental in securing the regional bank for us. And the bank will mean an increase in every line of business."

Paul Hoffman, manager of the General Fire Extinguisher company and president of General Pipe and Foundry company, said:

"This substantial recognition of the importance of Atlanta by the federal reserve board will therefore to prove the truth of the statement that has been made from time to time in various quarters that Atlanta is the natural financial financial center of the southeast, and the largest city of its size in the country."

"It is only too true that the development of many of our cities has been retarded, but that will be one of the institution Atlanta may lay claim to being the banking city."

W. T. Healey, owner of the Healey building and one of the wealthiest men of Atlanta, predicted his association in the regional bank with praise of the administration which was behind the passage of the currency act.

"If that new law is put into force and worked out successfully," Mr. Healey said, "and there is no doubt it will be, there will be another Democratic administration. No finer thing for the country was ever conceived.

"The great benefit for Atlanta is in making us less dependent on New York. Financial business will be transacted between home folk. We will be brought into closer touch with one another, and there will be a new era of business development in this section."

ADVERTISES ATLANTA.

Bryan M. Davis commented the advertisement that the city would get through the establishment of a regional bank.

"Atlanta will be mentioned in every financial report in every newspaper in the country. We will be known officially as the metropolis of the south.

"Business men from hitherto have come to New York on money matters will henceforth come to Atlanta. This will result in direct interest in our local enterprises. It will have the greater effect of introducing the city to the great possibilities of this city."

"We mustn't expect the bank to revolutionize things at the jump," said Asa G. Candler, Jr., commenting on the bank, emphasized the fact that it would bring more people to Atlanta.

"The people of the whole southeast cial center, and doing this they will civic center, and in this way we will naturally inspect the other advantages of the city.

"Coming here on banking business, they will be impressed with our other inducements. Outside concerns will have further inducement to locate here."

"The decision," said William S. Ansley, "simply means that the government recognizes Atlanta as the center of this territory just as Chicago is the center of the west and New York of the east. I am sure that the insurance companies and other big out-of-town concerns recognized long ago the preeminence and recognizing, that this city is the logical center of the southeast."

Harris G. White, president of the Atlanta real estate board, said that Atlanta would be advantaged by the location of one of the leading financial centers of the United States.

"Our organization has backed and the splendid campaign waged by our leading men." Mr. White added, "won the bank for us. No bigger thing could have happened for us."

ADVANTAGE INESTIMABLE.

Charles P. Glover said that no man at this stage could accurately estimate the advantages that would come to Atlanta by the location of the bank here.

"They will be great, however, there can be no doubt of that," he said. "We will feel the benefit in communication for what we have known were our advantages all along."

Thomas K. Adair, Jr., considered the government had paid Atlanta a great and deserved compliment.

"I had thought all along that Atlanta would be selected," he said, "and now that it has been, all the credit is removed. We are assured of greater and greater development."

Charles H. Black made this comment on the bank situation:

"We real estate men feel prouder than any other class of Atlanta citizens over our great victory we have been preaching for years the wonderful location and attractions of the Gate City of the Southeast. None of us who are natives of Atlanta realize how commercially important Atlanta is, but we appreciate what the large cities, the government and the lending companies think of this city.

"The fact that the loan departments of the great life insurance companies are now making loans on a liberal basis in Atlanta at rates ranging from 5 to 7 1-2 per cent, while they are scrutinizing every loan they put through in loans in other cities much larger, is another index to better times and a more prosperous future for Atlanta."

"It simply means that Uncle Sam has put his official stamp of approval on Atlanta as a city to live and do business in," said Walthall.

"What we have known all along is now presented to the world by the United States government."

Clyde L. King, president of the Atlanta Agricultural Works, said: "It is a great achievement. Business men must believe, that the locating of the regional bank here is the best thing that ever happened to Atlanta from a financial and business standpoint. A wonderful lot of work has been done in preparing for the bank. Atlanta manufacturers will have increased facilities, and they will share greatly in the benefits to business generally."

TRADE INTERESTS' BUYING CAUSED RISE IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed 3 to 8 Points Higher Than the Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, April 3.—The cotton market made new high ground for the movement today, first prices being 5 to 10 points higher than at which the previous trading left interests for near months. Fluctuations were somewhat irregular with prices easing off 4 to 5 points under realising, but the undertone held relatively steady on continued covering.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET HEAVY IN LATE TRADING

Canadian Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Copper, Reading, Steel, St. Paul Led

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, April 3.—Missouri Pacific dropped 3¼ at the opening on the Gould announcement that negotiations for acquisition of control of that road's Gould lines by the Rockefeller interests had been abandoned. Early in the day's trading the market showed good showing with a majority of fractional gains, chiefly advanced on

FIRST—ADD—STOCKS.

Reports of increases in cars being loaded during March by the principal western roads and by the Pennsylvania railroad. Prices eased off quite generally to below yesterday's close. Stock Island collaterals declined further to 38½.

Withdrawal of buying by commission houses fell away and much of yesterday's advance was cancelled in the morning. Traders attempted to support the list but the demand was feeble and pressure from professional sellers increased.

Progress of reorganization plans for Stock Island collaterals was followed by a wide changes in the securities of these roads. Rock Island refunding 4s sold at 50 and the new 5s at low records. Wabash 4s, after rising to 58¾, declined to 57¾, a net loss of 1 point for the week, fell back 3 points. Investment buying of Union Pacific bonds continued steadily. The rally reflected in improvement of state, municipal and the more seasoned railroad bonds. Bonds irregular.

Selling orders did not follow prices down and the market in the main was steadier in the afternoon. Gains in Canadian Pacific and Missouri Pacific were responsible for the speculative selling of the lower-priced issues.

Closing prices of stocks bought in hopes of continuance of the week's rise. The late afternoon witnessed a more pronounced decline.

Stocks were liberally supplied as the session progressed. Trading was more active than at any other period. Canadian Pacific lost 2 and the customary 1 point.

Weather Conditions

Forecast till 7 p. m. Saturday:

Atlanta and vicinity: Fair tonight and Saturday.

Georgia: Fair tonight, possibly slight frost in northern portion and in low places in central portion; Saturday fair.

Alabama: Generally fair tonight and Saturday.

Fair weather prevails in the southeastern part of the United States, but in the central valleys, lake region and most of the country west of the Mississippi river the weather is cloudy and unsettled. A slight disturbance seems to be central over northern Mexico, while in the atmospheric pressure is high over the Dakotas. Some rain has fallen in Texas and snow in the lake region.

Temperatures are low for the season in the central valley and north, the line of freezing extending from Buffalo south to Pittsburg and Toledo and west through Huron to Havre. At 8 a. m. the range of the temperature was 40 degrees at Louisville and 84 at Galveston. It is likely that light frost may form in northern Georgia tonight and in exposed places in central Georgia.

Fair weather is indicated for Atlanta, today and Saturday.

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

Weather Reports, Crop Advices, Expert Opinions and Newspaper Comment

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat:

The salient feature of yesterday's market consisted in the further rise, sharp, despite news of better weather in the belt. And this feature was emphasized by the fact that the buying power came from the spot department, not from manipulative tactics. The bulls themselves have been willing to confess that advices from Washington indicated that the government crop report would show a close, back ward season with no chance of improvement for a while, which can be taken as much food for thought in this telegram from New York: "It is understood that the committee of bankers having under consideration the Loundale plan to trade in 'puts' and 'calls' on government standard and monthly meeting of the board of directors this afternoon. From this report it is well to note committee by creating districts and locating banks in their own minds, and announcing them as inside information.

As a matter of fact, there was no inside information. As late as 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Postmaster General Burleson and Senator Hoke Smith were speculating as to whether Dallas and Atlanta would be designated. The committee trusted no one with its decision, in advance, and two hours before the announcement of the general scheme might have been altered materially without violating a promise. No hands were pressed. Each case was settled on its merit as reflected by the arguments presented.

OTHER CITIES GIVEN BANKS.

The Atlanta district comprises Georgia, Alabama and Florida, east Tennessee, southern Mississippi and south eastern Louisiana.

Within the district are New Orleans, Nashville, Chattanooga, Knoxville, and also of course Birmingham and Jacksonville, Mobile, Montgomery and Savannah.

The full list of cities which are to become reserve centers under the new currency act was announced as follows: Boston, New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Richmond, Atlanta, Dallas, Minneapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, Chicago and San Francisco. Missouri with banks at Kansas City and St. Louis, is the only state with two banks located inside its borders.

Organization of the reserve system will follow at once upon the appointment of the federal reserve board members by President Wilson. The president is expected to announce his appointments soon.

ATLANTA REGIONAL.

The official announcement by the organization committee, describes the Atlanta district as follows:

"District No. 6—The states of Alabama, Georgia and Florida, and all that part of Tennessee located east of the western boundary of the following counties: Stewart, Houston, Wayne, Humphreys and Perry; all that part of Mississippi located south of the northern boundary of the following counties: Issaquena, Sharkley, Yazoo, Kemper, Madison, Leake and Winston, and all of the southeastern part of Louisiana located east of the western boundary of the following counties: Pointe Coupe, Iberville, Assumption and Terrebonne with the city of Atlanta, Ga., as the location of the federal reserve bank.

The district contains thirty-seven national banks which have accepted the provisions of the federal reserve act. The capital stock of the federal reserve bank of Atlanta, on the basis of 6 per cent of the total capital stock and surplus of the assenting national banks in the district, will amount to $4,641,-415; and if there be added 6 per cent of the capital stock and surplus of the state banks and trust companies which have applied for membership up to April 1, 1914, the total capital stock will be $4,702,780."

COMMITTEE'S STATEMENT.

The statement of the federal reserve committee, announcing the selection of Atlanta and eleven other cities for regional banks, as given out yesterday, follows in full:

The regional reserve act directs the reserve bank organization committee "to designate not less than eight nor more than twelve cities to be known as federal reserve cities" to "divide the continental United States, excluding Alaska, into districts, each district to contain only one of such federal reserve cities," and to apportion the districts "with due regard to the convenience and customary course of business." The act provides that the districts may not necessarily be coterminous with any state or state.

In determining the reserve districts and in designating the cities within such districts where federal reserve banks shall be located, the organization committee has given full consideration to the important facts appearing on the subject. The committee held public hearings in eighteen of the leading cities from the Atlantic to the Pacific and from the great lakes to the gulf, and was materially assisted thereby in determining the districts and the reserve cities.

Every reasonable opportunity has been afforded applicant cities to furnish evidence to support their claims as locations for federal reserve banks.

More than 200 cities, through their clearing houses associations, chambers of commerce, and other representatives, were heard. Of these, thirty-seven cities asked to be designated as the headquarters of a federal reserve bank.

Th emajority of the organization committee, including its chairman and the secretary of agriculture, were present at all hearings, and stenographic reports of the proceedings were made for more deliberate consideration. Independent investigations in addition were made through the treasury department, and the preference of each bank as to the location of the federal reserve bank with which it desired to be connected was ascertained by an independent card ballot addressed to each of the 7,745 national banks throughout the country which had formally assented to the provisions of the federal reserve act.

FACTORS IN NAMING STATES.

Among the many factors which governed the committee in determining the respective districts and the selection of the cities which have been chosen were:

First—The ability of the member banks within the district to provide the minimum capital of $4,000,000 required for the federal reserve bank, on the basis of 6 per cent of the capital stock and surplus of member banks within the district.

Second—The mercantile, industrial and financial connections existing in each district and the relations between the various portions of the district and the city selected for the location of the federal reserve bank.

Third—The probable ability after the provisions of the federal reserve act shall have gone into effect, to meet the legitimate demands of business, whether normal or abnormal, in accordance with the spirit and provisions of the federal reserve act.

Fourth—The fair and equitable division of the available capital for the federal reserve banks among the districts created.

Fifth—The general geographical situation of the district; transportation lines and the facilities for speedy communication between the federal reserve bank and all portions of the district.

Sixth—The population, area and prevalent business activities of the district, whether agricultural, manufacturing or commercial; its record of growth and development in the past, and its prospects in the future.

In determining the several districts, the committee has endeavored to follow state lines as closely as practicable, and wherever it has found necessary to divide, the division has been along lines which are believed to be most convenient and advantageous for the district affected.

FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD.

The payment of subscriptions by banks will be spread over many months, but in the meantime President Wilson is expected to name members of the federal reserve board. The president today said that owing to the fact that the process of organization will take some time, no immediate announcement will be made. He said an announcement may not be made for at least a month longer.

In a supplemental statement the committee gave the following statistics used in determining the cities and districts:

No. 1, area in square miles 66,465, population 6,557,841; No. 2, area in square miles 49,170, population 9,113,279; No. 3, area in square miles 39,865, population 3,110,217; No. 4, area in square miles 183,995, population 7,961,022; No. 5, area in square miles 173,818, population 8,519,218; No. 6, area in square miles 238,860, population 6,695,541; No. 7, area in square miles 176,940, population 13,620,884; No. 8, area in square miles 146,474, population 6,726,611; No. 9, area in square 427,950, population 5,794,892; No. 10, area in square miles 509,649, population 6,206,850; No. 11, area in square miles 404,826, population 5,310,561; No. 12, area in square miles 693,658, population 5,389,203.

According to this statement there will be at least 7,548 banks of all sorts members of the system, with total capital and surplus of $1,851,648,260. Their 6 per cent subscriptions would amount to $109,898,903, according to the committee's figures.

Healey Building May Be Home of Regional Bank

It is too early yet for anything official about the location of the regional bank, but it is regarded as very probable that it will take space on the ground floor of the Healey building.

The possibility is given considerable color by the fact that the building manager, R. K. Hoffman, has refused to let its space on the ground floor, although it is accepting leases for the rest of the space. Bona fide offers have been made for the ground floor space by established concerns here, but all have been turned down.

There is 200 feet of frontage on Forsyth street and 100 on Walton and Poplar streets, all or any part of which the management is in a position to lease to the government bank.

It is known that negotiations have been made in connection with this space, and it doesn't seem likely that the building management would lose time in turning down good offers for space unless it had pretty definite assurances that the bank would take it.

Mr. Healey himself said Friday that it was too early yet to talk about the proposition.

A. F. Liebman, who handles the leasing of the building, said the same thing, but admitted that the bank could be accommodated with any kind of space it wanted.

The bank will lease its quarters temporarily at least. Ever since this building was desirable, it would hardly have time to build and equip one before the currency law went into effect.

report to General Carranza, was wiped out by death, wounds, capture or flight at Gomez Palacia and Torreon.

Mazatlan, the federal port in the state of Sinaloa, by the release of the veteran army at Torreon, also is in a precarious state.

Thus by his successful campaign of the last month General Francisco Villa has practically assured rebel control of the vast territory of the northern states of Mexico and gained for himself the reputation of being the foremost leader in the country.

It was but a little over a year ago that he started out from a village near here with two companions, six horses, $7 in money and a meagre supply of beans, coffee and sugar. The horses at the time were not paid for, and Villa's first act upon capturing this city three months ago, was to repay the liveryman from whom the horses were "borrowed."

General Pablo Gonzales, for months has harassed the federal forces at Monclova and Monterey and now that Torreon has fallen strategists here assume the federals will evacuate these points and attempt to retreat to Tampico, the seaport of Tamaulipas. This state is sprinkled with rebel troops all along the line of retreat, which makes it evident that the federal garrisons already are threatened with capture by immensely superior numbers.

Never in all its dramatic history since the Madero revolution of 1910 has Juarez gone so nearly mad with enthusiasm as it did when a scout messenger from military headquarters ran through the streets shrieking that Torreon had fallen. Drunk with elation, men embraced each other wherever they met. Bells in the 300-year-old mission of Guadeloupe were set ringing loudly and faster than ever they have rung for religious purposes. Khaki-clad rebel soldiers woke from their sleep in the town's many barracks to cheer. Then, stirred by a common impulse, their rifles were turned loose into the air.

GENERAL VILLA'S MESSAGE.

General Villa's telegram to General Carranza, announcing his victory at Torreon, follows:

"Torreon, Coahuila, Mexico, April 2, 1914. General Venustiano Carranza, Supreme Chief of the Constitutionalists: In this moment the remnants of the federals are leaving Torreon in flight, after eleven days of terrible fighting, in which we lost 1,00 wounded and 500 killed, and the federals, for the enormous number of bodies found, must have had over 1,000 killed. Their number of wounded I am unable to estimate. Our forces have full possession of Torreon. I regret to announce that among the wounded were General Ysabel Robles and General Calixto Contreras. I congratulate and salute you with respect and esteem that I have always had for you. Your subordinate,

"GENERAL FRANCISCO VILLA,
"Commander-in-chief of constitutional ist forces of Chihuahua."

Return of Lind Revives Interest in Mexican Policy

WASHINGTON, April 3.—Announcement of the prospective departure for the United States of John Lind, President Wilson's personal representative in Mexico, has revived interest in the future trend of the Washington government's policy toward the southern republic.

For the last few weeks, officials have pointed to the battle of Torreon as likely to furnish an index of the future, for the result as well as its effects on the military and diplomatic situation appects the strength of the two factions, is still a matter of uncertainty.

While the president has said Mr. Lind would not be sent back, Cruz after he had obtained a rest and vacation in the United States, many observers think he never will go back, as there has been a disposition for many weeks on the part of the Washington government to refrain from diplomatic activity while the military forces of the constitutionalists and federals struggled for supremacy. The prospect of even more vigorous warfare and the unwillingness of either faction to accept any proposals for compromise or mediation has caused the American government to assume an attitude of strict neutrality. That this position will be continued indefinitely is probable unless injury to foreigners or some other unlooked for emergency causes embarrassment.

Meantime the presence near at hand of Mr. Lind will be valuable because of his familiarity with conditions and leaders in Mexico. It is recognized that a decisive result at Torreon or some other strategic point in Central Mexico may bring about a situation in Mexico City where a personal representative of the president might be of assistance in composing the situation, but as yet there is little evidence of such a necessity.

Administration officials are emphatic in their declarations that Mr. Lind's movements at present mean no change in the American policy. Jarge O'Shaughnessy will continue at Mexico City to conduct any routine business that may arise with the Huerta government. In none of Mr. O'Shaughnessy's transactions however it is pointed out here is formal recognition involved, the policy of the Washington government being to deal with authorities in de facto control.

FIRST USE OF RESINOL STOPS TERRIBLE ITCH

When Other Treatments Gave No Relief, Suffered 8 Years, but Resinol Cured in a Week.

Jan. 27, 1914: "I suffered over eight years with eczema. It started in one little place and kept spreading until it covered my hands. My hands looked like they had been burned by fire and peeled off in large pieces until they were only raw flesh. I was told it was eczema. It itched and burned me so that I could not sleep at night. I tried all sorts of eczema salves and one prescription after another, but nothing gave me any relief until I tried Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment, and after the first application my hands never itched or burned again, and were well in one week. I want every sufferer from eczema to know of this. Resinol is the cure in Resinol." (Signed) Miss Ethel Scott, Milstead, Ga.

Physicians have prescribed Resinol for nineteen years, for all sorts of skin troubles, pimples, dandruff, sores, ulcers, burns, wounds and piles. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap. For free trial cake, write to Dept. 2-R, Resinol, Baltimore, Md. Do not be deceived by imitations. (Advt.)
