GROUND WILL BE BROKEN SOON FOR NEW OGLETHORPE

University's Assets Now Total $477,204 — Great Institution Will Become a Reality Within Short Time

CALL FOR PAYMENT ON PLEDGES IS COMING SOON

Many Subscribers Have Anticipated Request and Already Have Sent Their Checks to Directors

Within a few days the first dirt will be turned for Oglethorpe university.

Get that? It's big news. It means the beginning of one of the great works by this generation of southerners. It means the renaissance of the fine old ante-bellum Presbyterian university that is planned to become now the Princeton of the south.

Atlanta fixed the location of the university several weeks ago when she completed the $250,000 fund that was her assigned task.

Now the titles have been passed and the surveys have been made and everything is ready for the recording this week of the deeds covering the university site.

Then the call will go out for payment of the first installment on all pledges. Many subscribers have anticipated this call, and their checks are in the hands of the directors.

And with the money that will begin to pour in, th graders and gardeners will start their work in a very few days.

ASSETS $477,204.

The university's total assets in hand April 1 are set down by Auditor S. A. Duncan at $477,204.50. Of that amount Atlanta's subscriptions were shown as $163,139.50; donated by the Silver Lake company, the site as $100,000; and subscriptions from Georgia, otuside of Atlanta, $16,264—making the total from Georgia $418,394.50. The remainder, $58,810, came from other states as shown by the following detailed statement compiled by Mr. Duncan:

Atlanta site of university	$100,000.00
Atlanta subscriptions	263,130.50
Georgia, outside of Atlanta	55,264.00
Total for Georgia	$418,394.50
Alabama	9,350.00
Connecticut	1,000.00
District of Columbia	50.00
Florida	11,350.00
Louisiana	2,100.00
Massachusetts	100.00
Mississippi	3,010.00
New York	10.00
North Carolina	4,300.00
South Carolina	10,520.00
Tennessee	4,810.00
Texas	11,100.00
Virginia	1,000.00
Washington	100.00
Total, above states	$ 58,810.00
Grand total	$477,204.50

Ivan E. Allen, chairman of the campaign committee which raised Atlanta's contribution to the total, and now chairman of the finance committee of the university's board of directors, announced yesterday that the actual work of building the structures of new Oglethorpe will be deferred only until the grounds are laid out and graded.

"That work will take several months, I understand," said he. "That is the great preliminary task. When it is completed we will be ready to start the foundations of Oglethorpe's buildings."

A great deal of grading work has been promised as the contribution of the De-Kalb county board of commissioners. This will be one of the first donations to be realized. Thereafter will come contributions of stone for building material.

The call for payment of first installments on subscriptions will be issued in behalf of the executive committee of the board of directors by James R. Gray, president of the board; S. M. Ottley, treasurer, and Ivan E. Allen, chairman of the finance committee. Conditions on which the pledges were made have been compiled with, but the call will not go out until the deeds are on record. It will be addressed to the whole list of subscribers, numbering about 3,000, all of the stated in the auditor Duncan's statement above. The envelopes are addressed and ready now for the mail.

45 ACRES FOR UNIVERSITY.

Forty-eight and 16-100 acres are shown in the blue print made by Civil Engineer Charles I. Boyle to cover his recent survey of the property. It is located at the corner of Peachtree road and the boulevard, which gives entrance to the Silver Lake property, with the main body in the left corner, and a strip

PRESIDENT THANKS GEORGIA DEMOCRATS FOR THEIR SUPPORT.

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—The action of the Georgia Democratic executive committee in indorsing the national administration was particularly gratifying to President Wilson. Upon receipt of information relative to the committee's action, the president wrote the following letter to Chairman Harris, which was made public this afternoon:

"White House, April 1, 1914.

"My Dear Mr. Harris:

"I genuinely appreciate your kind telegram of this afternoon and wish you would accept for yourself and convey to the members of the Georgia Democratic executive committee my warm thanks for this generous expression of approbation and pledge of support.

"Sincerely yours,

"WOODROW WILSON."

ATLANTA'S GROWTH WILL SOON REQUIRE NEW P. O. BUILDING

Statements Borne Out by Figures Prove That in Two Years' Time Present Structure Will Be Inadequate

LARGE INCREASE IN CITY'S POSTAL RECEIPTS

Say Government Should Spend $5,000,000 for Erection of Modern Building, Necessary to Handle Growing Business

Within two years' time it will be absolutely necessary for Atlanta to have a new postoffice building; and, in order to adequately care for future growth, the government should spend at least $5,000,000 on the new building. Such was the statement made Saturday by those who are familiar with the present situation in the Atlanta postoffice.

The rate of increase in Atlanta's postal receipts is amazing, and with the location of the regional bank in this city and the enlargement of mercantile and manufacturing receipts, the city's growth will continue at a phenomenal rate, according to postal authorities.

These statements are borne out by figures compiled in the past six months. The first seven days in April, 1914, showed an increase of 15 1-2 per cent over the business of the same seven days during April, 1913, and in the last twelve months the firstclass mail matter handled in the Atlanta postoffice has shown an increase of about 59,000 pieces per day over that of last year.

In the parcels post division the increase has been particularly notable.

During the first fifteen days of October, 1913, a count was made to determine how many pieces of parcels post mail went out from the city office. The total was 77,000 pieces only.

A count is now being made of the number of outgoing pieces handled during the first fifteen days of April, the current month, and the figures have already mounted up to such an extent that the total is sure to exceed 300,000 pieces. This is an increase of about 200 per cent within six months. In view of the fact that the weight limit for parcel post packages has recently been materially increased, the difficulty in handling the mail matter is doubled, but by using the basement and a system which utilizes every convenience offered by the present building, the mails have been well handled heretofore.

On January 1, 1914, the parcel post rates were reduced on an average of about 40 per cent, but, even taking into account the reduction, the increase in receipts has been over 10 per cent for each month during the first of the year.

At the present rate of increase, the postal business cannot be handled in the present building for more than two years at the otuside; and, as the necessity for the new building is apparent, those who are interested in the matter are hoping that a large appropriation will be secured soon from congress in order that work on the new building may be started at once. If this is done the new building would be finished soon after the capacity of the present building is absolutely exhausted, and would afford a place to which the postoffice could be transferred without loss of time or injury to the service.

ARSON CHARGE IS ADDED TO ATTEMPT TO POISON

Macon Man, Accused of Giving Girl Poisoned Banana, Served With Warrant

MACON, Ga., April 11.—After a hearing in municipal court today, John W. Yarbrough, a former Macon merchant, who was arrested a few days ago on the charge that he had given Miss Irene Herndon, nineteen-year-old daughter of G. W. Herndon, a banana containing five grains of bichloride of mercury, was held over to superior court under $1,000 bond. Yarbrough did not give bond and while on his way to the county jail in another warrant taken out by State Fire Marshall W. R. Joyner, of Atlanta, charging arson.

Among the witnesses against Yarbrough were Miss Herndon and Detective Oglesby, of Atlanta, a Pinkerton operative. The latter, a former told of Yarbrough giving her the banana and of her knowledge that Yarbrough had four trunks filled with personal effects saved from his house which burned recently, stored away in his barn. She claims it was this knowledge that made Yarbrough want to put her out of the way so his plan for collecting the insurance would not be interferred with. State Fire Marshall Joyner has been here three days working on the case to determine whether there was ground for a charge of arson. He claims to have evidence in his possession of numerous other fires Yarbrough is alleged to have had in the last few months. Yarbrough, at the hearing today, on the charge of assault with intent to murder, declared Detective Oglesby had entered his home Saturday while his family was away and had made a list of all his personal effects. Yarbrough intimated he was going to cause the detectives' arrest on charges of entering his house and of perjury.

DOG'S DISCOVERY LEADS TO ARREST FOR MURDEF

COLUMBUS, Ga., April 11.—J. J. Rogers, aged 50, a well known muscogee county planter was arrested this afternoon on the charge of killing a negro by the name of Hubb last January. The arrest is a sequel to the discovery of the body of the negro and arm of the negro in possession of a dog early in February, which later led to the discovery of the mutilated body.

Following the coroner's inquest, which resulted in a verdict of murder, the authorities set out to locate the guilty party and the long probe led to the arrest today.

Rogers, who has a large family is said to have threatened the negro because he left his employ in January. The preliminary hearing has been set for next Saturday morning.

Successful Benefit for Home for Incurables Brings Forth Fine Exhibition of Horsemanship

It would have gladdened the heart of Joseph Rudyard Kipling had he been at Piedmont Park yesterday afternoon and seen the brown race track and green enclosure dotted with men and women and horses and pony carts.

It was a real gymkhana—one of those gay, horsey scenes that dance at intervals through Plain Tales from the Hills and Stories of Mine Own People, a little piece of India dug out of the hot plains and dumped down in Atlanta.

This gymkhana thing is a sort of pony show and Kentucky Derby combined, with half of society cantering around in the paddock and the other half criticising and praising said cantering from the side lines.

The gymkhana in Atlanta has grown to be an annual event, an institution. It was a fine day for one yesterday, plenty of sunshine and good-natured rivalry, many entries and some fine horses and ponies.

The number of children entered was surprising. Not only was their work in the pony class remarkable, but many of them gave their elders a close run for first honors with gaited saddle-horses. Atlanta has some horsemen and horse-women in the making in these youngsters.

Winners received blue, red and yellow ribbons, with beautiful silver cups for blue ribbon takers. The proceeds of the gymkhana were fairly large. They will be given to the Home for the Incurables. Joe Brown Connally and D. N. McCullough acted as judges. The results were as follows:

Class I.—Best pony under 13 hands, or fifty-two inches, saddle class: John K. Ottley, Jr., first prize; Samuel Inman, Jr., second; Tom Coggins, third.

Class II.—Best saddle ponies over 13 hands, three gaited: Mary Allgood Jones' horse, ridden by Tom Coggins, first prize; Katherine Dickey's horse, ridden by Ann Patterson, second; Miss May Atkinson, third.

Class III.—Ponies in harness under 52 inches: Louise Inman, first prize; Troy Bivings, second; James Calhoun, third.

Class IV.—Five-gaited saddle ponies, open class: Miss Katherine Dickey, first; Miss Mary Allgood Jones, second; Rankin Manley, third.

Class V.—Ponies in harness over 13 hands: Miss Mary Allgood Jones, first prize; Miss Katherine Dickey, second; Rankin Manley, third.

Class VI.—Best boy rider, riding only counted: Under twelve, John K. Ottley, Jr.; over twelve, Tom Coggins.

Class VIII.—Saddle championship, open to all winners of blue and red ribbons: John K. Ottley, Jr., first prize; Sam Inman's horse, ridden by John Grant, second.

Class IX.—Miss Josephine Windle, first prize; J. S. Slicer, second; Miss May Atkinson, third.

BAND WAGON TRAILS TO PONCE TUESDAY! LET'S ALL GO OUT!

Atlanta Needs 10,000 Persons at Ball Park on Opening Day to Win Attendance Trophy—Are You Going?

3:15 o'clock.
Tuesday afternoon.
Ponce de Leon Park.
Crackers vs. Volunteers.

Let's all get on the band wagon boys, and ride away—to the opening game of the 1914 season of the Southern Association of Baseball clubs, to another ball in the old peinnant pole, to a dual victory for Atlanta, against Nashville for the first game, against the "hull league" for the attendance trophy.

Just join the procession. Results will follow.

Yes, Ophelia, it's all about a simple baseball game, but that game means more to Atlanta than anything that has happened since we copped something called a regional bank not long since. It means, if won, a flying start in the battle for the grand old rag.

It means, if Atlanta will only turn out, as the fast citizens, as Atlanta certainly will—that we have once again put the Q. E. D. to the problem of the best baseball town in Dixie. That's Atlanta, but we have to prove it to those other towns each spring. Everybody's got to sell in and do it.

You simply have to come to the baseball game to get in the swim. Things begin to happen in Atlanta next week. The baseball game is but the maul to the wedge that opens up a week of grand opera, a week of Shriners, a merry month of moonshine and high C's and red feses that Atlanta has been bottling up all winter.

And it all starts with the baseball game, not A baseball game, but THE baseball game.

Now for a few facts.

You will begin to hear about this baseball game tomorrow morning. If you are a member of the chamber of commerce you will receive a card from President Wilkinson and Secretary Leahy telling you to be at Ponce de Leon Tuesday or miss half of life's happiness.

If you are a member of the Ad Men's club—ditto. And you will also "Jine the cavalry" when the Ad Men parade through Atlanta Tuesday morning with all the automobiles in Fulton county and Harry Schlesinger's "High-Fly" and a brass band and vehement instructions to follow them to the ball park. Everybody's invited to fall in.

The brass band will make its appearance Monday, for Frank C. Callaway, the Atlanta club president, has ordered it to track Atlanta from end to end so that nobody will think this party Tuesday is a pink tea and stay away.

President Callaway has two ordered slides inserted in the "movies," so if you're a film fan you will have to resort to the wrong baseball bugs.

And Mayor Jim Woodward is doing his part. He's ordered all the city offices closed at noon Tuesday, so if you want to pay your water bill you will have to see Brother Williams in the grand stand.

And nearly every wholesale and retail house in Atlanta is painting a shoe, new sign, "Closed for Baseball," which they will tack in front of the shop at 2 o'clock. Every employe in

NEW YORK GUNMEN ARE DOOMED TO DIE MONDAY

Supreme Court Justice Goff Denies Last Appeal for a New Trial

NEW YORK, April 11.—The last hope of the four gunmen condemned to die Monday for the murder of Herman Rosenthal, the gambler, seemingly was blasted tonight when Supreme Court Justice John W. Goff, to whom final appeal for a new trial had been made, declined to reopen their case.

At a prolonged hearing today, Justice Goff, who was the presiding judge at the gunmen's trial, listened to the testimony of new witnesses produced at the last moment by counsel for the doomed men.

For more than four hours the justice toiled over the record of the day's proceedings. Then, shortly before 10 o'clock he appeared at the door of his chambers and, pale and quiet, announced to the waiting crowd of newspaper men that he had denied the application for a new trial.

Justice Goff in his opinion, cited that the application had been referred to him because the law requires that motion for a new trial be made before the justice who presided at the trial.

Pointing out that on behalf of the defendants' nineteen affidavits had been presented, the court declared fifteen should be disregarded, as consisting "mainly of hearsay, impressions and matters that are irrelevant and immaterial." Of the other four affidavits those of Dresner, Burwell, Kalmanson and Reo must not be considered as of any probative value whatever. Consideration of these four affidavits must include their cross examination and cross-examination had in open court."

Concerning the impression produced on his mind by the testimony given by the new witnesses, Justice Goff said,

"The impression which was produced upon my mind during the examination and cross-examination of the witnesses was most persuasive of disbelief in what they said. If no other circumstances existed but that of their silence and delay in coming forward until the last moment, notwithstanding there existed great public excitement and widespread newspaper reports and comments, of which the court will also take judicial notice, it of itself would be sufficient to create grave doubts of their truthfulness and good faith.

"On the law and the facts the defendants have had a fair trial and a jury of their fellow citizens has pronounced them guilty. The court of last resort has unanimously affirmed that conviction. Appeal has been made for executive clemency, and in these last moments, a year and five months after the conviction when the crime itself is almost forgotten, and human sympathies have had time to assert themselves, four human beings paying the highest penalty known to the law, strenuous efforts to the contrary, are the product of the law. Were those efforts directed alone to human sympathy there would be but one answer. But they are not directed to human sympathy.

"They are directed to an instrument of the law whose sole duty is to administer justice, and no matter how harsh it may seem to be it is nevertheless justice to deny the motion."

Judge Wahle declared he would go to Albany early tomorrow morning and would make another personal appeal to Governor Glynn.

Today is Easter Sunday.

If the weather only behaves it should be the happiest Atlanta has enjoyed in many years. The calendar, the churches, the florists, the fashion-fixers—all have contributed to make it the pleasantest in the city's history.

It remains for the weather man to come across. He has predicted—much against his own will—a damp, rainy Sunday, a Sunday that should turn the watering pots of Jove on the pomp and panoply of Easter fashion, should send icy winds whistling through milady's new silk dress and shrivel the gorgeous flowers on her Easter bonnet.

But there is hope. The weather is the most fallible of our institutions and even the weather man admits his forecast can be turned topsy-turvy.

And he will do his best, he says, to give Atlanta a perfect day, without cold, without rain, just such a day of sunshine and blue skies and green and growing things as might have been had day so many years ago in far off Palestine when Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went through the dawn of the morning to the empty tomb.

In churches all over Atlanta this morning the story of that day will be told in song and sermon. Easter music, the most beautiful of all choral anniversaries, will sound forth in churches of all denominations, for not one of them

WILSON AND PARTY LEADERS WORRIED ABOUT LEGISLATION

Lack of Teamwork and Tendency to Kick Over Traces Becoming More Pronounced in Congress

PRESIDENT'S TELEGRAM TO UNDERWOOD SIGNIFICANT

"Now for Triumphant Completion of Session's Program" Was Hitched to Congratulation on Election

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—In the hurly-burly of politics, due to the returns of Tuesday's elections, a significant sentiment, passing over the telegraph wires from President Wilson to Representative Underwood, escaped general notice. The president wired his felicitations to Underwood on his success in the Alabama primaries contest, and added this sentence:

"Now for the triumphant completion of the session's program."

Which, interpreted, means that the president and the rest of the party heads are becoming real anxious at the present, confused and discouraging state of legislative business. There can be no concealment of the fact that the tendency to kick over the traces is becoming more pronounced in congress.

MUCH BITTERNESS.

The bitterness engendered by the tolls fight, the pent-up feelings of members against the administration on patronage and other matters of irritation have been accelerated quite skillfully by the Republicans. They are doing their best to work up resentment against the White House by playing on the tender spots of congressional prerogative and it is all combining to produce a state of mind that is not conducive to team work.

On the present showing there isn't a chance of getting the currency bill here before September. Five appropriation bills are unenacted, trust legislation is in its infancy and the rural credits bill is not much better off. The Panama tolls fight has filled the legislative machinery with sand.

The Republicans are decidedly happy over the situation. They are merely waiting the psychman days to get a oracle at the president and they think they have matters comfortably their way. They will be entirely satisfied to have congress stay here and stew over legislation until fall, when the November ills of the "Dems" are here workers. The Republicans back home can be building fires under the political bottoms of the distracted Democrats.

DEMOCRATS IS AROUSED.

The Democrats are just opening their eyes to the Republican game. Wilson's message to Underwood plainly shows that he realizes the necessity of getting together and making a determined effort to push up the currency bill now. It will take a strong hand to hold the Dems together, but in the tariff and currency fights it is a question if there is the capacity to play a winning hand against the Republicans and the proverbial pussedness of Democracy.

The tolls fight may drag on in the senate for two months, Senator O'Gorman is entirely satisfied with himself and the particular kind of politics he is playing. If the democratic filibustering hearings on the question does not consume more than fifteen days, there will be a surprise.

The policy of these hearings may be hedged by the fact that the currency is now in full debate on the floor of the senate. Today Senator Lodge made a big speech and it is expected that there will be any substantial return on the investment because senators now know all there is to know about the bill, save of a decisive vote.

The Republicans, the Democrats figure that the senate can carry on its dilatory tactics all it wants, if matters can be arranged to have the house act on the trust bills and rural credits by July 1. The house can then recess and members back home can begin their campaign fights for renomination. It is more important to the Democrats to have the house members back home than the senate, because Democratic prospects as to the senate are better than the house.

It is possible that the president may be able next week to divert his attention from the tolls fight to the task of getting the trust program in order, nursing the rebellious lads in the house back into line and keeping the rural row from becoming more pronounced. In this he will need the active assistance and good will of Senator Underwood.

It has now been definitely settled that the advocates of a constitutional amendment providing for nationwide prohibition will try to force action at the present session of congress. Representative Son, who is the author of the amendment, retires to private life at the end of the short session and will not return next December. He returned here fresh from his defeat at the polls of his home state determined to force action before he retires.

TRAIN BANDITS BELIEVED SURROUNDED IN SWAMP

Posse Expects to Capture Two Men Who Made Attack On Illinois Central

(By Associated Press.)

AMITE, La., April 11.—Posses headed by Sheriff Ballard, of Tangipahoa parish and Special Agent Young, of the Illinois Central railway, tonight surrounded Beaver Swamp, near here, where the two white men, who today attempted to hold up Illinois Central passenger train No. 34, wounding Tom Allen, a porter, and causing the death of Lude Anderson, who jumped from the train and was stunned to death beneath the wheels, were believed to be concealed.

W. T. Gentry to Celebrate Sixtieth Birthday Tuesday

W. T. GENTRY.

Handsome Silver Service to Be Presented Him as Token of Esteem in Which He Is Held by Telephone Officials

On Tuesday, his sixtieth birthday will be celebrated by W. T. Gentry, president of the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company and of the Cumberland Telephone and Telegraph company. Perhaps he doesn't know yet that he is to celebrate the day, but he will, for Mrs Gentry has arranged an "at home" for that evening, and the telephone officials will anticipate it by presenting to him a handsome silver service.

Mr. Gentry's rise in the service which he now heads is replete with inspiration for the young man who seeks to tackle one thing and make a success of it.

He was born at Gordonsville, Va., April 14, 1854. Sixteen years later he entered the telegraph service at Charlottesville, Va. In 1872 he was promoted to circuit manager of all lines of the Southern and Atlantic Telegraph company in Virginia. Three years later he was transferred to Lynchburg when the company was purchased by the Western Union. Later he went to Wilmington, N. C., where he remained four years, serving part of the time as chief operator. In 1879 he was transferred to the telephone department of the Western Union, and constructed and put in operation an exchange for that company at Wilmington.

In 1880 he became manager of the Western Union in Alexandria, Va., and soon afterward constructed a telephone exchange in that city for the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph company and was appointed its manager.

In 1884, when he was appointed manager of the Atlanta telephone exchange, he came to this city. In 1890 he was appointed assistant superintendent of the Georgia division of the Bell system, in addition to his duties as manager of the Atlanta exchange. During 1893 and 1894 he had charge of practically all the construction work of the Southern Bell company in Georgia, Alabama, South Carolina and Florida. When the construction department of the company was organized, in 1895, he became general superintendent of construction. In 1899 he was appointed division superintendent with headquarters in Atlanta. When C. H. Wilson resigned as general manager in 1901, he was elected to that office. In 1903 he was chosen vice president, continuing as general manager. In 1906 the growth of the company's business necessitated the separation of the two offices, and he remained vice president, relinquishing the duties of general manager.

In 1909 Mr. Gentry was elected president of the Southern Bell company; and in 1912 he was elected president of the Cumberland Telephone company. He is vice president of the Telephone Pioneers of America, and is regarded as one of the national authorities on the telephone and its operation.

EMORY COLLEGE WINS INTERCOLLEGIATE DEBATE

Emory and Henry Loses With Argument Opposing Initiative and Referendum

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

OXFORD, Ga., April 11.—Emory college triumphed in the intercollegiate debate here tonight with Emory and Henry college, of Virginia.

The subject was: "Resolved, That as a General Policy a System of Direct Legislation by the Initiative and Referendum Should Be Adopted by the Several States." Emory college, which championed the affirmative side, was represented by T. H. Shackelford and F. W. Ellerbee. Emory and Henry college was represented by J. W. Bain and C. C. Quillian.

Dr. C. E. Dowman presided and the judges were Dean Hamilton Douglass, of the Atlanta Law school; Philip Walker, of Atlanta, and Dr. Robert P. Brooks, of the State university.

At the conclusion of the debate the student body held here today P. A. Meghee, of Thomson, was elected president; Louis King, of Madison, vice president, and Lester Rumble, of Forsyth, secretary.

YOUR attention is respectfully called to an important point not generally known, that a laxative should have a tonic element to successfully meet constipation.

Mr. John B. Capers, of 610 Pecan St. Fort Worth, Texas, had a significant experience in this particular. He was afflicted with a severe case of constipation and bowel trouble. He spent a great deal of money in trying to find a remedy. To his astonishment, Peruna very quickly relieved him of the bad symptoms. This happened a number of years ago. Since then, Mr. Capers states that he has had several attacks of trouble, the prominent symptom of which is constipation, and has always found prompt and efficient relief from Peruna. He says: "Up to the time I started using your Peruna I could drink castor oil like water. It did no good. As for salts, they were of no use. Physics of all kinds and classes were used, but we had to call on the fountain syringe for help." Peruna was able to correct this condition completely in Mr. Capers' case, and there is every reason to believe that it was the tonic qualities of Peruna, added to the laxative qualities, that procured this very desirable result.

these hundreds of stores is going to the game, and those that just can't quit business for the afternoon have agreed to let off half the force and pray for victory.

LICKING DUE THOSE BARONS.

You see, we just have to win that attendance trophy. Last year we won it, but Birmingham came so close they scared us—almost. This year the doughty Barons are so sure they're going to lick Atlanta's attendance record they are betting on it, and New Orleans, chaining Johnny Dobbs's Pets will wipe up the circuit, has decided it would rather have the trophy than anything else in the world—except a reginal bank.

O, there are others. We also have our neighbors, Chattanooga, and Nashville and Montgomery and Memphis, too, to beat.

But we can do it.

It will need 10,000 men, women and children, packed in every available space in Ponce to pull the trophy over, but Atlanta has it in her to hit the tape first. We already have the record for the biggest crowd in Southern league ever saw.

Remember that Mobile game last fall? There were 13,140 paid admissions in Ponce da Leon, and many more unpaid. And they all expect a big family reunion at Ponce Tuesday p. m.

As for the game, we will have Elliott Dent, the man who beat the Gulls last year on the mound, and opposed to him either Moore or Berger. It will be a great game, all right; but that's not the question.

The question is—are you coming to that game? It may be a foolish question, but you will have to answer it in person. Of course you are. Atlanta needs you.

We won the trophy last year——in the rain. Let's show 'em what an real baseball crowd is, a sunshine crowd, an Atlanta crowd.

Let's all get on the band wagon and ride away.

Indian POWER

The Indian motor is a development of the highly talented and ever-advancing mechanical thought centered in the famous Indian Engineering Department.

For 13 years it has been evolving—adding power, gaining speed, adopting all that test and experience uncovered in motor progress, taking the lead in the march toward perfected construction. Today it is man-grown—a matured mechanism recognized the world over as a pre-eminent achievement. The Indian motor is standard. There are over 100,000 of its kind operating on Indian Motocycles in all parts of the world—a triumph not only of numbers, but of universal acceptance based on performance.

To Disclose Methods Of White Slavers in Moving Picture Films

One of the strongest features of the spectacular white slave film, "smashing the Vice Trust," which comes to the Atlanta theater on Monday, is the disclosure of the traps that are laid for young girls.

George S. Dougherty, Deputy Police Commissioner of New York, and famous for his detective work all over the country, has, in connection with this disclosure, given out to us commandments for girls in this country.

"If these commandments are obeyed," he says, "girls can save themselves from the worst conceivable snares. No girl should associate with a man in questionable places where they may have dancing halls. There, all various dances lead to a certain degree of familiarity.

Be modest, without being a prude.

Don't use paint and powder on your face.

Don't bleach your hair.

Don't flirt.

Don't dress too flashily.

Look out for the flatterer.

Know your company wisely and well.

Don't drink intoxicants.

Be a lady at all times."

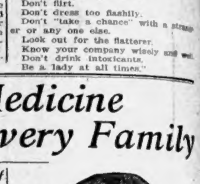
A Staple Medicine for Every Family

No Self Respecting Group of People Should be Without a Good Family Laxative.

It is inconceivable in this day of general intelligence that any family should be without a simple remedy for the minor ills of life, for often by giving such a remedy in time a serious disease can be frustrated and a life saved.

For example, if at the first sign of a cold a simple laxative-tonic like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin were given, the beginning of a serious attack of one of a typhoid fever might be avoided. And also in headaches, nervousness, etc., a small dose of this remedy would relieve the congestion and replace distress with comfort. Mothers give it to tiny infants, little children, and grown people take it with equally good effect.

Thousands of good American homes are never without it, among them the home of Mrs. C. A. Wright, 1321 Passadena Ave. Long Beach, Cal. She had considerable trouble raising little Lawrence, three years old, but, after reading how others with small doses of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin he began to thrive and she had no further trouble with him. They use it generally in her home.



LAWRENCE A. WRIGHT.

Syrup Pepsin saves the health of the family, and it saves doctor's bills. It is a guaranteed cure for any form of stomach, liver and bowel trouble, constipation, indigestion, biliousness, gas on the stomach, headaches, drowsiness after eating, etc. Have no hesitancy about giving it to any member of the family, however young or old, for it contains nothing injurious to the youngest person.

A bottle can be obtained at any nearby drug store for fifty cents or one dollar. The latter size is more economical and is bought by those who have already convinced themselves of its merits. Syrup Pepsin users learn to discard pills, salts, cathartics and purgatives generally as they are too great a shock to any average system.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

FEEL FINE! LIVER CLEAN, STOMACH SWEET, BOWELS ACTIVE—"CASCARETS" DIME A BOX

Cascarets make you feel bully; they immediately cleanse and freshen the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels. A Cascaret tonight straightens you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any druggist keeps you feeling good for months. Don't forget the children.

BREWERTON'S BILL BOARD OF THE WEEK'S EVENTS

OFFERS BIG REWARD FOR EVIDENCE AGAINST FRANK

Burns to Give $1,000 for Proof of Perversion—Detective Disappears

In a signed statement Sunday afternoon William J. Burns offered a reward of $1,000 to any person who will furnish him with definite and satisfactory evidence concerning any act of perversion or immortality on the part of Leo M. Frank.

The action of the famous detective in offering the reward is construed as meaning that he has found nothing to substantiate the attack of the state on Leo Frank's character in the trial last August.

Burns' statement, signed and made in the form of a letter to the editor of The Journal, follows:

"In making my investigation of the Frank case it is of the highest importance that I get at the truth of the reports concerning acts of perversion and of immortality on the part of Leo M. Frank.

"In the papers yesterday, I requested that persons having information bearing in any way on the matter would communicate with me at once. Having received no response at all from anyone, and having obtained no information in this way, I am compelled, on account of the extreme importance of the matter, to make this statement: That I will pay $1,000 to any person, or persons, who will furnish me any definite and satisfactory information on the above lines.

"It is noted that Burns does not qualify his offer of a $1,000 reward except that it will be paid for definite and satisfactory information. He stated Friday that he was anxious to get any definite information derogatory to Frank's character, regardless of the time any specific act may have been committed.

STATE'S WITNESSES UNFEARED.

At the trial nearly a dozen girls appeared for the state to swear that Frank's character is bad. These witnesses were not cross-examined by the defense, and as the result charges of specific acts were not made. Apparently Burns' offer does not exclude these witnesses, if they can tell him of definite acts.

By his questioning of witnesses, Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey at the trial insinuated that Frank had improperly approached a number of women, whom he named, and one woman, according to one of Dorsey's questions, had thrown a monkey wrench at Frank, when he is alleged to have made an indecent remark. Burns, who has studied the record of the case, does not exclude from his offer of a reward these people named by Dorsey.

In other words, Burns' statement is practically an assertion by him that the state's charges are false.

Chief of Detectives Newport A. Lanford, when told of the offer of a reward, quickly said:

"I don't want his money, but if Mr. Burns comes down here we can furnish him with all the information along that line he wants. In fact, I expect we can furnish him with more than he wants.

"I will be glad to see Mr. Burns at any time, and will gladly furnish him with this information, gratis."

BURNS DISAPPEARS.

Burns mysteriously dropped out of sight Saturday afternoon, and a reporter was unable to locate him to secure a reply to the statement by the chief of detectives.

Burns has rooms at two hotels, but was at neither during the afternoon, nor was he at the office of his agency in the Healey building. Dan S. Lehon, his lieutenant, would not divulge the whereabouts of his chief.

Mr. Lehon said that he did not expect Burns to be visible Saturday night. He would not say whether he was out of the city or not, nor when he would return to one of his hotels or to his office.

The mission on which Burns is engaged is of extreme importance, his lieutenant said. Mr. Lehon added that the investigation is progressing very satisfactorily.

A published rumor that William A. Pinkerton, head of the national agency that bears his name, was in Atlanta Saturday, watching Burns and developments in the Frank case, has been found to be erroneous.

GEORGIA CADETS TO PAY TRIBUTE TO DR. TODD

To Form Honorary Escort at Funeral This Afternoon at First Methodist

Secretary Robert L. Rodgers, of the Georgia Cadets association has issued a call to all members requesting them to meet at 3:30 o'clock Sunday afternoon at the residence of the late Dr. J. S. Todd, at 177 West North avenue.

The cadets, who were members of the class of the old Georgia Military Institute at Marietta, Ga., which forsook its studies to enlist in the Confederate army, will act as an honorary escort to Dr. Todd's body at the funeral. Dr. Todd was president of the Georgia Cadets association and was much beloved by his classmates.

The funeral services will be held at 3 o'clock from the First Methodist church, but the cadets are asked to assemble at the residence at 2:30 o'clock. Carriages will be provided for them.

REEVES-CLINE REALTY CO. NOW IN HEALEY BUILDING

The Reeves-Cline Realty Co., have opened up offices in the Healey building and are well organized and in position to do great things. S. A. Givens and F. M. Tessier, sales managers, are experienced real estate men, having been in the business for a number of years. Messrs. Reeves, Cline and Givens, were formerly great assets to the Butterfield agency, and figured likewise in the Ogletborpe campaign. Mr. Tessier was formally assistant sales manager with the Chelsea Heights Land company, and leaves behind him an enviable record. The company will conduct a general real estate business, they will finance the building of homes for any desiring to build on property purchased from the firm, and also have a loan connection which will be operated in conjunction with the city and building department. They will specialize on Clairemont Park, in Decatur and suburban properties.

Special Services at St. Johns

The special revival services which have been in progress for the past week at St. Johns Methodist church, on Georgia avenue, continue to grow in interest and attendance.

Rev. A. M. Pierce, of Cedartown, who is conducting the meetings, assisted by the pastor, Rev. G. H. Eakes, is having splendid success and numerous additions to the church are expected at an early date. He will preach at the services tomorrow at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m. The afternoon service at 3:30 o'clock will be conducted by Dr. Eakes, the pastor. At all the services Mr. W. M. Bearden, the director of the St. John's choir, has charge of the music. The public is cordially invited to attend these special meetings.

MRS. C. B. WILLINGHAM DIES FOLLOWING FALL

Mrs. Cecilia Baynard Willingham, widow of Thomas H. Willingham, died yesterday morning at the residence of her daughter, Mrs. C. J. Daniel, 100 Forrest avenue. On March 27, at her home in Tifton, Mrs. Willingham suffered a fall, from which she could not recover. She was brought to Atlanta and received the best of surgical and medical attention, but owing to her extreme old age she never rallied.

Mrs. Willingham was born in Beaufort, S. C., on January 10, 1828. She was the daughter of Mr. Archibald Baynard, who married Mrs. Elizabeth Calder. In the rare old social environments of that day she grew up surrounded by all the comforts and luxuries that wealth could give in ante-bellum times. Beaufort and Charleston were centers of an aristocracy that wielded a large and splendid influence in affairs of church and state and ruled the society of that day.

In the Baynard family were many sons and daughters who grew to manhood and womanhood amid these influences and their descendants are numerous and well known in that state and in Georgia.

Miss Baynard married Thomas H. Willingham, whose mother was a member of the Lawton family. She was the mother of fifteen children, ten of whom survive her: Mrs. E. H. Bacon, of Eastman; Mrs. T. O. B. Wood, Mrs. H. Tift, Mrs. J. W. Myers, and W. J. Willingham, of Tifton; W. B. Willingham, B. L. Willingham, Baynard Willingham, and Mrs. C. J. Daniel, of Atlanta, and Mrs. W. L. Pickard, of Savannah.

Sunday morning her remains were carried to Albany, Ga., to be laid to rest beside her husband and others of the family.

Increase	$ 2,566,347.40

GEORGE L. WORD MOVES TO HEALEY BUILDING

George L. Word, who for the past two years has been engaged in the mortgage loan business, announces his removal to room 1117 Healey building. Mr. Word, in addition to handling private funds, is placing loans on improved city property for the Title Guarantee Trust Co., of St. Louis, Mo. They have an unusually attractive ten year loan, and through Mr. Word, were induced to do business in Atlanta, which is the only city outside of St. Louis, where they are making this particular kind of a loan. In St. Louis, this company has loaned over seven million of dollars within the past fifteen years, and have never had a foreclosure. Those who have accepted their loans in Atlanta are highly pleased with them.

GEORGIA MINISTER FINDS TRUE DELIVERANCE FROM BODY ILLS

Rev. J. Powell Tells How He Found New Strength to Give to His Labors

Rev. J. Powell, of Statesboro, Ga., suffered from stomach troubles so seriously that they affected his work.

He struggled on under the handicap as best he could—hardly realising, perhaps, just how much sickness was hurting him.

One day he learned of Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy. He took the first dose—then decided to take the full treatment. He wrote:

"Since using the six bottles of your wonderful stomach remedy I feel like another man. It has been quite a wonder to me to know how one could have a stomach disease like mine and live and do the work I did. I just escaped the operating table.

"Now I can eat what I please and it doesn't hurt me night or day."

The first dose was proof to Rev. Mr. Powell. It has been proof to thousands of people in all parts of the nation who are today grateful.

Mayr's Wonderful Stomach Remedy clears the digestive tract of mucoid accretions, removes poisonous matter and brings swift relief to sufferers from stomach ailments, liver and intestinal disorders. Many declare it has saved them from operations and many are sure it has saved their lives.

The wonderful success of this remedy has caused many imitators, so be cautious. Be sure it's MAYR'S. Go to Jacobs' drug store and ask about the remarkable results it has been accomplishing—or send to Geo. H. Mayr, Mfg. Chemist, 154-156 Whiting St., Chicago, Ill., for free book on stomach ailments and many letters from grateful people who have been restored. Any druggist can tell you its wonderful effects.

Buy Diamonds That Are Worth While
Our interest and the interests of our customers are identical. We do not mean by this merely that it is good business to render good service.
We invest heavily in diamonds, and naturally take care that they are carefully and efficiently graded, weighed and priced. This we do ourselves as diamond specialists.
Diamonds carefully bought are an investment. They are particularly safe, marketable and appreciate in intrinsic value. They are not subject to manipulation or depreciation.
Our diamonds are marked in plain figures; nothing is hidden. If a stone is not perfect, the shape or cutting not correct, or if it is "off color" it is so marked.
Every diamond is absolutely guaranteed to be just what we sell it for, and you are therefore fully protected, as it is graded and classed to its real intrinsic value.
Let us explain personally our terms and prices on diamonds. We are never too busy to give you courteous attention, whether you are ready to buy or merely seek information.

Young Men
Look Them All Over
all the well-known lines of Young Men's Clothes,—and you'll find that the most stylish, the most attractive, the most desirable in every way are the famous "Schloss-Baltimore" models, now on display in the leading stores everywhere.
You can find in them everything you're looking for,—extreme, conservative or medium styles, — and in every one the most desirable models of the day.
"SCHLOSS-BALTIMORE"
Clothes carry out the modern "Young Men's" idea better than any others because they are designed, cut and made by young men who know how to make the present fashions look well on any man. You don't have to be young, to wear these Clothes appropriately — so long as you feel young. But you'll find that these "Schloss-Baltimore" Clothes will give you a live, brisk, well-dressed feeling of up-to-dateness, that other so-called Young Men's styles don't give. See the genuine Schloss Models—now on display.

Building Business
Recently, a large New York store of very honored name became insolvent and passed into the hands of a new owner—an energetic young man.
Little was left to the business but the good name. There were strong stores all around it.
The first thing this merchant did was to emphasize in his advertising that he kept well known, popular, advertised articles—mentioning those advertised in the local newspapers by the manufacturers.
He did not advertise them at a cut price. He merely let it be known that he carried them and would give good service.
That was a few months ago. Already the business has started to revive to an extent that competitors are sitting up and taking notice.
This man makes it a rule to mention every day in his advertising the name of some well known, branded article that he carries—a name that stands for character in the mind of the public.

DOCTORS WATCH WOMEN WHO WANTED TO DIE

Two Who Were Near Death Are Now Expected to Recover

Doctors at Grady hospital Saturday night were watching two cases of young women who have attempted suicide in the last two days, both of whom were near to death but are now expected to recover.

Mrs. Goldie Smith, who tried for the fourth time to kill herself Friday night, is reported to be doing well and will be released within a few days. Mrs. Smith says she intends to "try again" when she leaves the hospital.

The other case, Mrs. Nellie Cisco Johnson, aged eighteen, tried suicide Saturday morning because she did not wish to be a burden to her young husband, who is in financial straits.

After making a careful toilet, preparatory to death, the young woman drained a bottle which contained two ounces of belladona, according to her husband. She drank the poison at the Edgewood hotel, 1041-2 Edgewood avenue, where she and her husband were stopping, at about 9 o'clock Saturday morning. According to her husband, physicians worked vainly with her for several hours, and then a hospital ambulance was called.

L. M. Johnson, the husband, says that he found a note in his wife's stocking, in which she said she was ending her life because he was having a hard time making enough money to live on, and she did not want to be a burden.

Johnson was at the hospital with the woman. He says that he married Nellie C isco in Atlanta in May, 1913. For a number of months she traveled about the south with the Speer & Setton Musical comedy company, and he accompanied her, working in each town. Six weeks ago the company disbanded in Americus, he says, and they came here.

Manager Peters, of the Edgewood hotel, where the couple lives, declares that Mrs. Johnson did not commit suicide, but was moved from the hotel at his request.

NO PAINT AND POWDER AT "LILY" REHEARSAL

MISS MARGUERITE CHAFFEE.

She used to be a little West End girl who liked to "say pieces" and now she's a really truly actress.

Miss LaVerne's Players Set of Jolly Folk With No Frills, They're Hard at Work Now

It was dark on the stage of the Lyric when one's eyes still were blinking from the afternoon sunshine, and chilly, too, for Georgia was in the throes of its annual peach crop destruction. That's the reason the love scene, then in its most impassioned stage, seemed so nearly a burlesque.

"I love you! Love you madly, desperately!"—or words to that general effect, came from the center of the stage, close to where the footlights should have glowed.

They were uttered by a tall man in a golf cap and raincoat with the collar turned up, and evidently addressed to an ingenue who sat on a soap box and drew a cape or a shawl or something of that kind about her neck, shivering visibly, despite the warmth of the dialogue.

Lucille LaVerne and her players were putting the final bits of polish on their lines. The best part of the stage which on tomorrow night will be enclosed by painted scenery was outlined at corners and entrances by a chair, a sandbag, three bricks and a trunk which looked as though it had been round the world. The rosewood table called for in the property man's list was another trunk, turned on end. The tapestries and Oriental rugs were left to the imagination. The players inside the make-believe "interior" were rigorously taking the poses of their parts. Behind the sandbag and bricks they relapsed immediately into themselves.

DEAF TO OUTSIDE NOISE.

It's odd, the power of concentration achieved by an actor at work. They delivered their lines with supreme disregard of the stage hands a few feet away, who loudly discussed a recent prize fight and the probability of the fight game being canned. Just outside the magic lines Louis Mason was teaching the newest tango step to little Olive Blakeney, the ingenue. There was no music, but they danced as though a full orchestra was ripping out ragtime.

Miss LaVerne finished her lines, walked right through the scenery which wasn't there, and chatted a bit.

"Mr. Mason is one of the finest tango teachers in the country," she said. "Did you know we'll give tango teas after the matinees? Well, we are. We're going to invite everybody to come up on the stage, have a cup of tea and dance, and Mr. Mason will teach them the steps. And as soon as we can put a hardwood floor in the big foyer we're going to send the orchestra out there between the acts and after the performance and have really big dances. Nice idea, isn't it?"

Miss LaVerne gives one the impression of being an extremely capable, businesslike woman. Within the lines aforesaid she was an actress, speaking her lines dramatically, powerfully, expressively. Behind them she became a pleasant, straightforward head of an organization.

"No, I don't play all the leads," she said. "We try to cast the roles where they'll fit best. For instance, next week I go in a character part—the old maid sister. It was Nance O'Neil's role in the original 'The Lily.' Miss Chaffee has the leading woman's part. Oh, Miss Chaffee! Just a moment!"

THAT ATLANTA GIRL.

The moment was worth while. Miss Chaffee, who not so many years ago was a little girl out in West End and who still thinks Uncle Remus was the greatest man who ever lived, came out of the scene and shook hands. She is tall, pretty, sweet-voiced, just the sort of girl one would like to point out to a friend from an orchestra chair and say "I know her when she was a little girl in pig-tails." She has been several years away from Atlanta, but her girl chums remember her impassioned elocutionary efforts at the High school and her amateur dramatic roles in the college plays at Bremau.

It's quite a fair-sized company. There's Miss Helen Haskill, who won a beauty prize somewhere, one of the men said. He probably was right. Anyway, she should have won it. Miss Blakeney, putting her hair into shape after the disorder of her tango, promises to build up what stock people call a "personal following."

The men of the company are not a bit stagey. Bob Middlemass, a long, lean gentleman in a brown coat, looked anything but a matinee idol, though that's usually demanded of the leading man in a stock company. Eugene Stewart and Guy Gilham seemed just everyday folks without frills, and Jim Marcus, the veteran of the company, is a jolly 260-pound character comedian who promises to be really funny. There are a lot more, but they didn't come on in the act under rehearsal, and when an actor isn't working he doesn't hang 'round.

The company has had a week or so of unusually hard work in preparation for "The Lily." Belasco took six months to whip his company into shape for it, but Miss LaVerne appeared in the play for many weeks and had so thoroughly memorized every bit of the famous Belasco detail that it is comparatively easy for her to stage the play as the master himself presented it.

TRAVELERS INTERESTED IN COMMERCE CHAMBER

That the movement on foot by the Atlanta chamber of commerce to make all local traveling men associate members of the organization and fit up for them attractive headquarters in their new building at North Pryor street and Auburn avenue will be successful from the start is evidenced by the amount of interest already being manifested by those who are to profit by the offer.

Commercial travelers living here and associated with foreign concerns as well as those traveling out of Atlanta, who are eligible to membership, have given the movement the stamp of their approval and express themselves as ready to co-operate with the chamber. Chairman J. H. Andrews has not yet appointed his committee but will do so early this week after a conference with President Mell R. Wilkinson. Immediately the campaign will be started and pushed vigorously until a large associate membership is secured.

IMPORTANT SCHEDULE CHANGES

The Southern Railway announces that effective Sunday, April 12th, Royal Palm No. 3, southbound, will arrive Atlanta 10:46 p. m., leave Atlanta 10:55 p. m.; Kansas City Florida Special No. 24, southbound, will arrive Atlanta 9:25 p. m., leave Atlanta 9:35 p. m., instead of 10:30 p. m., as at present. Effective April 19th, Ohio Florida Special No. 14, southbound, and effective April 12th, No. 23, northbound, will be discontinued. J. C. Beam, Assistant General Passenger Agent.—(Advt.)

ON TRIP AROUND WORLD JUST TO BOOST GALVESTON

Just to boost Galveston, Texas, Frederick J. Baxter is making a trip around the world.

Baxter arrived in Atlanta at noon Saturady having been on the road since March 8. He wears a corduroy suit with Galveston written across the coat in big letters.

He says he will make the trip around in the world, between 60,000 and 70,000 miles in about 16 months returning in time to attend the San Francisco exposition.

"I am just spreading the gospel of Galveston," he replies to questions as to why he is making the long journey.

Baxter exhibits credentials from the Galveston Commercial association, which officially dubs him "The Galveston Booster."

Baxter declares that he is making expenses as he goes at any odd job he can pick up.

Baxter declares that he will receive no reward for the hardships he is enduring on the trip except commendation of the Galveston Commercial association and the knowledge that he has done his best to advertise his town.

Schley Howard Convulses House and Floors Foes in Regional Bank Discussion

Speech of Georgia Congressman Comparing Advantages of Atlanta and New Orleans Sparkles With Witticisms as Well as Facts

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11.—The Howard-Dupre debate in the house over the relative merits of Atlanta and New Orleans as the financial center of the south sparkled with witticisms, in which the Atlanta congressman more than sustained his reputation, as instance the remark of Congressman Rucker, of Missouri, at the close of the discussion:

"Mr. Speaker, I have been interested in this debate. I am glad to hear the glories of Atlanta proclaimed, and I hope New Orleans has been aroused and will awaken from her slumbers."

Following the last speech the house proceeded to stop further discussion by demanding the regular order.

Howard started out to deal in facts, figures and ridicule in his speech. He poked fun mercilessly at New Orleans, and many times the house was swept by laughter at his quick and sharp rejoinders to interruptions from Dupre.

After inviting attention to the fact that Atlanta has been selected as the southern headquarters of the railroads, insurance companies, the postoffice department, the telephone and telegraph companies, the express companies and as the distributing point of scores of manufacturing industries, Schley Howard said:

"Now, Mr. Speaker, we have still another great institution down there where we have to entertain, not in the higher sense of the word, but we entertain them continually—in fact, we always have somebody in attendance upon them while sojourning in our midst. We have several distinguished citizens from New Orleans with us in the Atlanta penitentiary."

The house laughed heartily at this remark, and it was too much for Dupre, who interrupted with this query:

"And I might add with equal propriety, Mr. Speaker, that if Munchausenism was a federal offense, those who attended that mass meeting in New Orleans and passed those resolutions would soon become temporary citizens of Atlanta."

Whereupon, Minority Leader Mann observed: "The gentleman from Georgia has enumerated many valuable things at Atlanta, but has omitted one. The gentleman did not enumerate himself."

Howard continued:

"The federal reserve organization committee visited New Orleans and it visited Atlanta. Its members saw the difference between the dreamy-eyed people of New Orleans and the bright-eyed business men of Atlanta, and that settled it."

"When it comes to eyes, I am willing to submit mine as against the gentleman's from Georgia," broke in Dupre, "who is always well dressed, epic and span, one of the beaux of the house.

"I know the gentleman from New Orleans possesses those fathomless, dreamy eyes, that will attract any one who takes much stock in eyes," Howard replied. "I hope the gentleman some day will get close enough to some beautiful Louisiana girl that she may look into those eyes and become enamored thereby, and that he may take her unto himself."

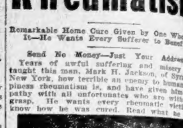
Rheumatism

Remarkable Home Cure Given by One Who Had It—He Wants Every Sufferer to Benefit.

Send No Money—Just Your Address.

Years of awful suffering and misery have taught this man, Mark H. Jackson, of Syracuse, New York, how terrible rheumatism is and how to relieve it. He has such perfect confidence in his remedy to banish rheumatism in any and every form, that he is willing to send it entirely free of charge, to every sufferer who writes him for it. Don't send a penny, don't even write a letter, just send your name and address and you will receive by return mail a trial package of this wonderful discovery, entirely free of charge. Write today and get rid of rheumatism forever.



"I Had Sharp Pains Like Lightning Flashes Shooting Through My Joints."

"In the spring of 1903 I was attacked by muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as few people who have not had it can imagine for three years. I tried remedy after remedy, and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally, I found a remedy that relieved me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number of my friends who were afflicted and they were bothered with Rheumatism, and it effected a cure in every case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a penny, simply mail your name and address and I will send it free to try. After you have tested it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of curing your Rheumatism, you can send the price of it, one dollar, but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer when positive relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write today.

Armistead Stands On Record

To the Voters of Fulton County:

Although it is now well known that I am a candidate to succeed myself as Tax Receiver of Fulton County, and I have been assured of a warm and hearty support by my many friends throughout the County, I wish at this time to make some public acknowledgment of my thanks for the support I am receiving and to say a few words in regard to my candidacy.

I am making this race on my record. If I have been faithful and efficient public servant, I want your votes. My years of experience as is the case in any line of business, should, I believe, be a guarantee of my success as a public officer. If there ever was a public office in which experience is an asset to the people, it is that of Tax Receiver. It takes years to become thoroughly acquainted with the public and conversant with property values.

I stand squarely for equalization of taxation, and it has always been my purpose, and shall be as long as I stay in the office of Tax Receiver, to do everything possible to equalize taxes so that the burden shall fall equally and justly upon all taxpayers.

It has always been my practive, and I shall continue to make it so, to show every leniency, courtesy and consideration to those who give in their taxes, just as far as the law will allow me. I recognize that taxation is often a burden and one that should be made without any unnecessary hardship. It has been my endeavor to allow the taxpayers every possible opportunity to make their returns with as little trouble and inconvenience as was within my power, and it is only the experienced and well-informed Receiver who can thus save the taxpayers time and trouble.

I wish to say just one word about the legality test that was made of the law in regard to fees and salaries. The law was not unconstitutional and the Supreme Court of Georgia unanimously and emphatically so declared. The test had to be made and it was the duty of County Officials to make it, for if the fees were under the law that had not been made at the limit was and afterwards the law was declared null and void, our bondsmen would have been affected, for my bond, for instance, is binding for twenty years, and serious litigation, costly to the County, might have resulted. In making the test a solemn and imperative duty to the people was performed, and consequences, probably disastrous to their interests, averted. The test of the constitutional law had to be made and officials were the only ones to take the initiative, and the sooner it was done the better for the taxpayers. We were advised by some of the best and most prominent lawyers of Atlanta that it was our duty as officials to ascertain if the law was valid.

I first came to Atlanta in 1858, when a mere boy, and lived here until the breaking out of the War Between the States, when I enlisted in the Confederate Army. After the war, I returned to Atlanta in 1879, and have lived here continuously since. My record as a citizen, as well as a public official, is an open book. You know me and know my record. If that record is a sufficient guarantee of my further faithful service, vote for me, and I shall thank you.

Respectfully yours,

T. M. Armistead

MUSICAL ASSOCIATION TO ELECT DIRECTORS

Mrs. John M. Slaton Urges Full Attendance at Annual Meet Next Tuesday Night

The annual meeting of the members of the Atlanta musical association for the purpose of electing three members of the board of directors will be held next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Ansley hotel.

The by-laws of the constitution provide for the retirement of three directors each year, and provide for an annual meeting of the members on the evening of the second Tuesday in April, at which committee shall in turn elect three directors to succeed the ones retiring. The directors serve for three years.

Mrs. John M. Slaton, president of the association urges every member to be present at the meeting. It is important for two reasons: First, because of the election of the directors; second, because the association is now making a campaign for new members, and plans are likely to be discussed at this meeting. It is intended, however, to adjourn in time for those present to fill other engagements which they may have for the evening.

Sues for Alimony

Alleging that her husband, Samuel T. Ogletree, deserted her on April 1, 1914, leaving her with no means of support and in ill health, Mrs. Annie L. Ogletree filed a petition in the superior court Saturday for alimony. No divorce is asked. Moore & Moore, attorneys, filed the suit.

Coeur De Leon Commandery No. 4 Largest in the South

Couer De Lion Commandery No. 4, Knights Templar, the largest commandery in the south, having a membership of 500, at the annual conclave held on Friday evening, elected the following officers:

Eminent commander, William S. Richardson; generalissimo, David E. Shumaker; captain general, Elzie E. Thomas; senior warden, Richard D. Guinn; junior warden, Curtis S. Buford; prelate, William L. Champion; treasurer, Augustus L. Holbrook; recorder, Augusta P. Tripod; standard bearer, Lester Stephen Crane; sword bearer, Richard L. Mills; warder, J. Cleves Symmes; sentinel, James M. Fuller; rep. board of rel. Chris. H. Essig; tample, director, John C. Joiner; trustee, Luther F. Stephens; third guard, Paul H. Dobbins; second guard, T. Howell Jackson; first guard, Thomas C. Law; fipance committee, George H. Holliday, Luther F. Stephens and Arthur H. VanDyke.

The templar year just closed has been the most successful in the history of the commandery; 82 sir knights having been dubbed during the year. The retiring commander, Eminent Sir George F. Eubanks, was presented with a past eminent commander's jewel in the shape of a diamond ring, the presentation being made by Sir Frederick J. Paxon, in his usual happy style. Eminent Sir Eubanks in acceptance feelingly expressed his appreciation.

The newly-elected commander has been prominently connected with Atlanta Masonry for a number of years, having been honored by the various bodies of which he is a member to the highest office within their gift; he is pastmaster of Fulton Lodge No. 216, F. and A. M., past high priest of Mount Zion Chapter No. 16, R. A. M., and past thrice illustrious master of Jason Burr Council No. 18, R. and S. M.

A Human Churn

WHEN the food reaches the stomach it is subjected to a peculiar churning movement by the muscular walls of the stomach"—(See Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser, page 45). In the liver, kidneys and skin, the blood is purified of its waste materials—these organs act as human filters, leaving the blood pure and clear—unless liver, digestive tract and kidneys are clogged.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is a stomach, liver and kidney tonic—by assisting the stomach to assimilate, the liver to filter, the kidneys to act—the poisons are removed, the red blood corpuscles are increased and one feels light, fresh and active instead of logy, dull and heavy. The "Discovery" stimulates the stomach, increases action of heart and arteries and is a most satisfactory alterative in blood-taint of any character. The refreshing influence of this extract of native medicinal plants has been favorably known for over forty years. Everywhere some neighbor can tell you of the good it has done.

Sold by all medicine dealers in liquid or tablet form; or send 50 one-cent stamps to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., and a trial box will be mailed you.

SAVE YOUR HAIR! IF IT IS FALLING OR FULL OF DANDRUFF—25 CENT DANDERINE

Ladies! Men! Here's the quickest, surest dandruff cure known

Thin, brittle, colorless and scraggy hair is mute evidence of a neglected scalp; of dandruff—that awful scurf.

There is nothing so destructive to the hair as dandruff. It robs the hair of its lustre, its strength and its very life; eventually producing a feverishness and itching of the scalp, which, if not remedied, causes the hair roots to shrink, loosen and die—then, the hair falls out fast. A little Danderine tonight—now—any time—will surely save your hair.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter, and after the first application your hair will take on that life, lustre and luxuriance which is so beautiful. It will become wavy and fluffy and have the appearance of abundance; an incomparable gloss and softness, but what will please you most will be after just a few weeks' use, when you will actually see a lot of fine, downy hair—new hair—growing all over the scalp.—(Advt.)

The Red Cross Society is making it very uncomfortable for the users of the famous Greek Red Cross or the words "Red Cross" in any way whatever. Congress passed an act approved January 5, 1905, forbidding the use except by the National Red Cross Society.

The famous Red Cross Sanitary Felt Mattress, however, was using the cross and the name as a trade-mark long before the law was passed and the society fully recognizes the Southern Spring Bed Company's title and right to use it.

The man who shouts the loudest during the political campaign very often forgets to register.

The committee on the selection of regional bank locations realizes that you cannot please all the cities all the time.

Oglethorpe University.

Atlanta was called upon some months ago to raise two hundred and fifty thousand dollars as her part of a fund for the re-establishment of historic Oglethorpe University. There was a brief, spirited campaign to which the community responded with generous enthusiasm, and in a few weeks the amount required was pledged. Indeed, Atlanta did more than she was asked to do, for, instead of pausing at the quarter-of-a-million mark she added more than twelve thousand dollars for bounteous measure, so that now her subscriptions aggregate two hundred and sixty-three thousand, one hundred and thirty dollars.

That fund is the foundation from which a truly great institution of learning is soon to rise. The University's total assets today approximate half a million dollars, including fifty-five thousand, two hundred and sixty-four dollars contributed in Georgia outside of Atlanta, fifty-eight thousand, eight hundred and ten dollars subscribed in other States, and a hundred thousand dollar site donated by the Silver Lake company. It is thus possible to begin preparations for actual building without further delay. In a few days, in fact, the grading and landscape work will be undertaken, and the cherished dream of a Southern Princeton will take on the hue and substance of reality.

It is purposed, however, that Oglethorpe University shall be made a million dollar institution. Nothing short of that will satisfy its friends, and there is every reason to believe that their hopes will be realized. Through the admirable work of Dr. Thornwell Jacobs, who is directing this particular phase of the enterprise, new contributions are being made at the rate of about ten thousand dollars a month; and when building actually begins, the response will naturally be quickened.

The people of Atlanta are to be congratulated on their part in this magnificent endeavor. They answered when the call of duty and opportunity came; they were prompt and liberal at the decisive moment; they furnished the first great impetus to a cause that will grow in magnitude through all the years to come.

In one way, however, the peach crop will not escape being canned.

It's easy to tell others how they might have succeeded after they fail.

Colonel Roosevelt doubtless succeeded in reminding South America of what it already knew.

Ten years from now New Orleans will see clearly enough why she had no business with a regional bank.

An Urgent Need; Let Council Act.

"Editor The Journal: I am a stranger in your town, and find it hard work to get readily about the city on account of the streets not being marked at corners. Why not put, on the buildings at each intersection, a small card or sign bearing the name of the street. It would be a great help to people not acquainted, and I guess you will have a plenty of them when the Shriners get here."

This suggestion from a visitor, who is one among thousands daily perplexed and embarrassed by Atlanta's lack of street designations, should stir Council to immediate action. The main thoroughfares at least should be marked so that strangers can find their way. This need has been sorely felt for many years, but it will become especially vexing unless it is supplied before the week of the Shrine convention.

That occasion will bring to Atlanta tens of thousands of visitors from every quarter of the Union. It is due them, as the city's guests, that they be spared the confusion and inconvenience which the lack of street signs would entail. Surely, Council will appreciate this urgent matter and give it due attention.

A Quietus for the Kickers.

IN the light of the facts and figures given out by the Reserve Bank Organization committee, New Orleans' fussy protest over not having been allotted a regional bank appears distinctly Pickwickian. In all kindliness, we counsel the good Lady on the Gulf to hold her tongue till she regains her temper and to look realities honestly in the face instead of vainly denying their existence. It is but natural that she should be disappointed, as were a score or more of other cities, but for the life of us we cannot see why she should turn shrew and fall to scolding so good a neighbor and friend as Atlanta. Yet, we shall not fall out with New Orleans on this account. We are too mindful of her solid virtues to let her momentary choler in any wise becloud the hearty admiration we have always felt for her people and their brilliant achievements. We are sure that she will recover her wonted poise and will realize in time that failure to secure a regional bank has not at all impeded or restricted her commercial growth. She will come to a clearer understanding of the purpose of federal reserve banks, will see that they are bankers' banks, not ordinary business banks, and that her everyday banking affairs and relationships will move on as freely and prosperously as ever.

Certain it is that the organization committee's reply to the criticism from New Orleans and other sulking cities is complete and unanswerable. We sincerely wish that conditions were such as to warrant the establishment of a reserve bank at New Orleans as well as at Atlanta, but the data presented by the committee shows that this could not be justified and that, as between the two cities, the interests of the district and the purpose of the new banking and currency law demanded the choice of Atlanta.

For one thing, the committee's poll of national banks applying for membership favored Atlanta and Dallas over New Orleans in the districts of the Southeast and the Southwest. That was the decisive balance of opinion held by the bankers themselves and by business leaders generally. In this connection, the committee's direct statement is noteworthy:

> "The banks of Alabama desired to be connected either with Birmingham or Atlanta, only three expressing a first choice for New Orleans. The banks of Georgia desired to be connected with Atlanta, none expressing a first or second choice for New Orleans. Of forty-four banks in Florida, nineteen gave Atlanta as their first choice; only five expressed a first preference for New Orleans, and those were in the western corner. No bank in Tennessee expressed a first or second choice for New Orleans, while seven expressed a first choice for Atlanta, fourteen a second choice and thirteen a third choice. Generally speaking, the only banks desiring to be connected with New Orleans and expressing a first preference for her, were twenty-five of the twenty-six banks reporting in Louisiana and nineteen of the thirty-two in Mississippi. On a poll made from the comptroller's office of all banks expressing their preference as to the location for a federal reserve city, one hundred and twenty-four expressed a first preference for Atlanta (in this district) and only fifty-two for New Orleans. (Two hundred and thirty-two expressed a first preference for Dallas over New Orleans.)"

It is thus evident that the committee's decision squarely accords with the prevailing business judgment of the districts, and is, indeed, a direct expression of that judgment. The rank and file of the banking, industrial and commercial interests concerned knew that they could be served better from Atlanta than from New Orleans. Surely, then, there is no ground for complaint because the committee acted accordingly.

Not only the weight of business opinion but the preponderance of banking facts as well confirms the fairness and wisdom of the committee's decision. The official records of the United States treasury department show that in capital and surplus, loans and discounts and individual deposits, the national banks of Atlanta far exceed those of New Orleans. This point is made clear in the following table:

	Capital and Surplus	Loans and Discounts.	Individual Deposits.
Atlanta	$8,600,000	$26,038,000	$24,348,000
New Orleans.	$6,730,000	$17,285,000	$16,857,000

Even more impressive, as the committee points out, is the comparative banking growth of the two cities from September, 1904, to March, 1914. During that period the capital and surplus of Atlanta's national banks increased from $2,410,000 to $8,600,000, a gain of two hundred and fifty-six per cent, while the capital and surplus of New Orleans' national banks increased from $6,250,000 to $6,730,000, a gain of only eight per cent. In loans and discounts the Atlanta banks advanced from $10,329,000 to $26,038,000, a gain of one hundred and fifty-two per cent, while the New Orleans banks decreased from $20,088,000 to $17,285,000, a loss of thirteen per cent. Likewise in individual deposits Atlanta's banks increased from $9,931,000 to $23,348,000, a gain of one hundred and forty-five per cent, while New Orleans' banks decreased from $19,425,000 to $16,857,000, a loss of thirteen per cent.

In the light of these figures, it is ridiculous to contend that as between Atlanta and New Orleans the former should not have been chosen as the location for a regional bank; and the comparative figures on Dallas and New Orleans are almost equally as strong in support of the committee's decision. New Orleans could not expect to be favored when the important facts in the case were all against her. She is evidently entitled to a branch bank and will probably be given one; and that will serve her needs just as well as a regional bank would have done. But there is no reason or grace in assailing the committee's report when it is grounded in facts that cannot be disputed.

Indeed, there is no room for logical complaint against any of the committee's apportionments. The secretary of the treasury, the secretary of agriculture and the comptroller of currency were all eminently fitted both in character and ability to perform the task assigned them. They heard the claims of some two hundred cities, of which thirty-seven were insistent applicants for bank headquarters; they heard the opinions of thousands of bankers and business men and gathered authentic information concerning the needs and conditions of every quarter of the Union. It is but reasonable to believe, therefore, that they were better qualified than any one else could be to establish the districts and allot the banks in accordance with the country's common welfare. Their view was national and expert, while that of the few cities which are now protesting is necessarily local and inaccurate.

The committee's statement explaining just why Atlanta and Dallas were selected over New Orleans, why Richmond was chosen instead of Baltimore or Washington and Kansas City instead of Denver, effectually disposes of the clamor that has been heard. The suggestion that the committee's work may be undone or altered is absurd. The New York Journal of Commerce well says in this connection:

> "It is not likely that any change will be made in the present districting, unless it should come from the action of Congress. The idea that Congress may intervene does not seem very probable when it is remembered that the great bulk of the banks appear to be satisfied with the districting, and that the present complaint is limited to a very small number of places. As for the idea that the reserve board will probably bring about alterations, nothing at present seems less likely. Two of the organizing committee have seats on the board, and it is not probable that any such reversal as seems to be predicted in some quarters can be secured unless entirely new conditions develop themselves."

The fact is the Reserve Bank Organization committee has done its work pre-eminently well; it has satisfied the rank and file of business interests throughout the country; it has served the national welfare; it merits and is accorded the hearty admiration of the American people.

There's nothing so gloriously uncertain as a sure thing.

Asquith's Victory.

Premier Asquith was re-elected to the House of Commons last week without opposition, a fact of much significance when viewed in the light of its attending circumstances. The Premier had resigned his seat in order that he might legally accept the portfolio of Secretary for War. It was around that office that the Ulster crisis and the army crisis were most sharply defined. Colonel Seely, its former incumbent, had retired under the displeasure of his Liberal associates because he had yielded to certain army officers in their demand for government guarantees that they would not be called upon to employ force in putting down any rebellion which might develop in northeast Ireland. Mr. Asquith decided upon the bold course of assuming personal direction of the war office until its entanglements could be unknotted. But since precedent, if not law, required him to resign from Parliament and stand for re-election, if he wished to remain in the Commons and at the same time hold a salaried cabinet post, he took the chance of an election.

Interestingly enough, however, the Unionists put forward no opposition candidate in his home constituency. They dared not do so on the issues of the hour. The Premier stood squarely for the supremacy of Parliament over the army; no stood also, as Liberal leader, for Irish Home Rule. On neither of these questions was he challenged. Therefore, while the election was local in character, the fact that he was unopposed indicates that the Unionists see the futility of further resistance to the Home Rule policy. It seems, indeed, that the bill granting Ireland the right to self-government in its internal affairs will soon become a law without further agitation. Ulster will doubtless accept the compromises offered by the Liberals and Nationalists, and what once threatened to be a tempest of civil war will pass harmlessly away.

Editorials in Brief

Let the Interstate commerce commission decide the rate increase first. Then let it deal with the administrative abuses that have come to light in the management of certain railroads. That is a simple and common sense program. Government has no more important function than the restoration of credit and confidence by the just exercise of lawful powers. When the railroads are asking for a small increase in freight rates as a matter of financial life or death, and the great body of shippers are willing to pay these increased rates for the sake of the stimulation they will give to business in general, why should government block the way? And more especially, why should government block the way when these increased rates can be withdrawn whenever it is found that the railroads no longer need them?—New York World.

Referring to the President's "matters of nearer consequence and greater delicacy," Senator Brandegee says, "I have not found any man anywhere who understands what in the world that language means." The Inner Parliament

BY DR. FRANK CRANE.

(Copyright, 1914, by Frank Crane.)

Inside the human breast is a parliament.

When you consider whether or not you will do a certain thing there is always an inward discussion, sometimes orderly, sometimes turbulent.

Joan of Arc thought she heard voices in her childhood at Domremy. But the decision in the case of every one of us is accompanied by many voices.

The WILL is the judge upon the bench. Each voice tries to influence, to persuade him.

The question arises: "Shall I do a certain thing?" DESIRE speaks up. It has but one word, but that is a tremendous one. It is "I WANT TO." It speaks loudly, its tones echo. The whole body trembles, applauds, for Desire is its spokesman.

Then comes CONSCIENCE. It speaks for the spirit as Desire for the body. It says "I ought," "I ought not." Desire and Conscience argue hotly.

Here enters a third voice, that of REASON. Sometimes it is the bribed lawyer of Desire. Sometimes it is the attorney of the soul. It talks voluably, subtly, giving excuses, citing examples, adducing palliations.

Now perhaps FEAR steps forward. It presents consequences of pain, of humiliation. It warns the body against results of yielding to desire; it warns the spirit against the high price of cobwebs.

IMAGINATION takes the floor. It does not reason. It presents pictures, now beautiful, enticing, as it sides with Desire; now appalling as it sides with Fear.

LOVE rises to speak. It takes the argument out of self, and pleads the welfare of another. How will the issue affect the beloved? Will it hurt or please him or her? Love will must hear that plea, too.

Another speaker is THE COMMUNITY, a Voice which represents your fellow men. What will THEY thing of you? Will THEY praise or blame, reward or condemn? No one is wholly indifferent to the judgment of others.

Other Voices take part. PRIDE has its say. Dull OBSTINACY asserts itself. ADVENTURE makes its bold and reckless proposals. CAUTION shakes its warning finger. LOVE OF EASE has a tone that is strongly persuasive. And pure MISCHIEF is not always silent.

Besides, there is that Voice which Victor Hugo so graphically depicts in the scene in "Les Miserables," where Jean Valjean is arguing with himself whether to be base or noble. He speaks of it as a deep Voice, thunderous as the sea. It is GOD.

Unfortunate are those human creatures whose inner parliament is but a riotous mob, in whom decisions are reached by clamor, panic, stampede.

Still fortunate are they whose debates are orderly, whose Will is a sober and upright judge, whose decisions are based upon full and fearless debate, and whose judgment stands.

WHAT THE YEARS BRING

By Mrs. Minnie E. Hogan

Yes—as some one has said: "The years bring their own recompense—charity, understanding, tolerance, a mellowing of head and heart."

First, charity—love, that great something that comes into your life with the years, touching a deeper chord in the heart as if touched by an invisible and sympathetic spirit of another world, creating that noble desire for the love that will kindle in your heart the desire to love and help all of God's children. Yes —"the years bring their own recompense"—this love of humanity, of loving, of sharing disappointment, the fire that separates the dross from the true metal, and makes the heart cry out for the best that is in the life of your friends, and sympathy for their weak points of character.

"Though I speak with the tongues of men and angels, and have not charity, I am become as sounding brass, or a tinkling cymbal. And though I have the gift of prophecy, and understand all mysteries, and all knowledge; and though I have all faith, so that I could remove mountains, and have not charity, I am nothing." It is that which comes into your life and makes you see clearer, love nobler and better things and all humanity to the exclusion of the one selfish love.

Second, the years bring "understanding"—and what is understanding but the tie between friendship and love, or shall we call it friendship, for it makes us we cry for admiration. It is nature's trick to win for us that which will make us more useful for her purpose. In middle-life we long for appreciation. "We have done our best,"we plead, 'give us your praise before it is too late.' But as the sun goes down behind the mountain and the twilight gathers, there comes the great deep, hungry call, and that for love, just plain, close, human love. Desolate then the heart which has not made human ties."

Quips and Quiddities

Before "Monticello," the Virginia home of Thomas Jefferson, became the property of Mr. Levy it had passed through various hands as owners and owners. Several old negroes lived on the place, presumably caretakers, and were grandchildren and great grandchildren of slaves owned by Mr. Jefferson. They had as much pride in their birthright as any of Mr. Jefferson's descendants, and showed the place with great satisfaction to visitors and were humbly grateful for a few pennies as their reward.

On one occasion while showing some strangers over the grounds one of the old white-haired darkies pointed with great pride to the marble statues. "Dis here, sah, is Mrs. Venus and dis one is Miss Ceres, her daughter. Dese here is Miss Marse Jefferson met when he was a-travelin' over dar in Paris."—Lippincott's.

Rennold Wolf tells this one of Nora Bayes:

Once Miss Bayes was espousing in a breakfast scene where eggs were being served and a child sitting in a box made manifest his interest in the food. Stepping down to the footlights she tendered the youngster an egg, but his mother drew back her child with a sign of annoyance.

"You should let the young man take it," said Miss Bayes quietly. "It is unique for eggs to be passed from this side of the footlights."—Green Book Magazine.

THE FEDERAL CITY

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

VIII.—REBUILDING IN 1814.

The second period of the history of the federal establishment in the District of Columbia begins with the rebuilding of the capitol and the restoration of the White House after they had been burned by the British. At that time the fortunes of the new city were at their lowest ebb. The failure of the original speculations, described in previous articles, had discouraged investment, the location was found to be unhealthy and visitors from abroad, members of the congress and American writers joined in ridicule of the pretentious plan and its failure to develop. The sale of the building lots which had been donated to raise money for federal purposes had practically ceased, and it was realized that the growth of the city would be slow.

The decision of the congress not to remove the capitol elsewhere but to restore the buildings damaged by the British insured the continuation of the city, but by 1828 it had become certain that Washington would have to depend for its prosperity almost exclusively on its character as the seat of the federal government, and that commerce or manufacturing could not be depended upon to make Washington a great city.

It seems to have been the view of the congress that the property owned by the United States in the city was far in excess of any possible federal needs and that the residue of lots from the original donation would be a source of embarrassment rather than of ultimate use and profit. Large numbers of the building lots were in inaccessible portions of the city, covering tracts of marshy lands, and as late as 1861, land now worth $2 a square foot was so cheap that no city scavenger could afford to purchase two whole squares on which to deposit refuse.

In the eastern part of the city over 2,000,000 square feet of land had been mapped for streets and building squares which was entirely under water, and building lots had been sold, even by the United States itself, in locations remote from the actual city and which were covered by the tides.

After the first quarter of a century of its existence Washington had few features that impressed the visitor. There had been rivalry between the eastern and western sections so that the private buildings which had been erected stood in isolated groups instead of forming a coherent whole, and these were connected by a sort of "string town" along Pennsylvania avenue. The avenue itself was not much more than a country road alternating mud and dust and was overflowed in the spring floods of the Potomac.

In 1828 congress took a view of these unsold lots and directed the division of such as had any apparent value, between Georgetown university, Columbia college and the Catholic and Protestant orphan asylums of the city. The other lots remained inactive for twenty years more when they were sold at low prices to investors, among whom was W. W. Corcoran, the philanthropist, who made large sums of money by the subsequent subdivision and sale of the squares acquired from the United States.

It was urged at an early date that the proper procedure on behalf of the United States with reference to the lot property in the city of Washington was to sell as little as possible and hold the remainder for increased values. Congress, however, seems never to have had any confidence in the probable increase in value of Washington property with one result that the one-half interest of the United States in five squares south of Pennsylvania avenue was sold for about $6,000 in the early days of the city, the whole of the squares has recently been acquired for department buildings and cost the government two and one-quarter million dollars.

It was also thought that the reservations which had been made for its public spaces were more than sufficient for any possible growth of the federal establishment, and the park connecting the capitol and White House reservations was narrowed by laying out several additional building squares. The lots in these squares were sold at a moderate price and on easy terms in order to raise money to fill up and improve the inundated portions of the reservation. The disposition of the congress to rid itself of surplus holdings in the city resulted from the insistent demands of the residents of the city that congress should pay a considerable proportion of the expenses of permanent improvements. It was also urged that congress ought also to contribute to the current expenses of the municipality.

These demands were based not only on the amount of land in the city which had been reserved for federal purposes and on the number of building lots which remained to the government, but on the amount of land which had been removed from taxation by the unusual width of streets and avenues provided in the plan of the city. It is generally held that streets of sixty feet in width are sufficient for municipal purposes and the streets and avenues of the original city of Washington are from eighty to one hundred and sixty feet in width. There is a strip of land on each side of most of the streets and avenues which is not used for street purposes, ranging in width from twelve to twenty feet and this land is occupied by the owners of adjoining lots for gardens or for business purposes according to the location of the street. None of this land is subject to taxation, and as the street space of the original city of Washington is about equivalent to the building space, the tax payers have uniformly urged that congress should make up the deficiencies in the revenues of the city resulting from the withdrawal of this excess land from taxation.

In 1878 congress acceded to this demand, in view of the constantly increasing indebtedness of the city of Washington and established what is known as the "half and half" plan by which one-half of the expenses of the District of Columbia are paid from revenues derived chiefly from the taxation of land and the other half is paid from the treasury of the United States.

The entire District of Columbia is now under one municipal government, and the proportion of taxable land is much greater than the holdings of the United States, exclusive of streets and parks, so that in recent years the equity of the half and half principle has been questioned and the proper proportion which the United States should contribute to the expenses of the municipal government is now a matter of debate in congress.

* * *

The next letter of this series will be devoted to a description of the 'plant' of the United States used for federal purposes as the seat of government. It will be interesting to note here the amount of property with which it began its activities in the District of Columbia, excluding the streets and the building lots.

Dawn

The dawn comes cold; the haystack smoked,
The green twigs crackle in the fire.
The dew is dripping from the oaks,
And sleepy men bear milking yokes
Slowly toward the cattle byre.

Down in the town a clock strikes six.
The gray east heaven burns and glows.
The dew shines on the thatch ricks,
A slow old crone comes gathering sticks,
The red cock in the ox yard crows.

Beyond the stack where we have lain
The road runs twisted like a snake
(The whits road to the land of Spain),
The road that we must foot again.
Though the feet halt and the heart ache.

W. J. HARRIS MAY ENTER CONTEST FOR GOVERNOR

Census Director Seriously Considers Request of Friends to Announce for Office

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—William J. Harris, chairman of the state Democratic executive committee and director of the United States census, is seriously considering entering the race for governor of Georgia. It is expected Mr. Harris may issue a statment in the near future outlining his future course and those who enjoy his confidence would not be surprised if this takes the shape of a formal announcement for governor.

Mr. Harris has been mentioned prominently as a possible candidate for some weeks and on his return from Georgia he found scores and scores of letters from all sections of the state urging him to enter the lists.

"I have been much gratified at the heavy correspondence," said he tonight, "but I have no definite statement to make."

Mr. Harris is one of the best known and most successful of the younger politicians in Georgia. As a member of the state senate from Polk county, he won a commanding position in the general assembly several years ago. Subsequently he was prominent as a leader in the Wilson movement in Georgia, and as director of the census, to which position he was appointed by the president, he has made a record of which his friends are proud.

Judge W. E. Thomas Is Indorsed for Governor

A mass meeting of the Democratic voters of Thomas county, held here this morning, a resolution was adopted indorsing Judge W. E. Thomas, of the southern circuit, as thpe people's candidate for governor without reference to any section or division of the state.

Judge Thomas is very strong here and if he enters the race will carry the vote of the county. It was also decided that the county primary of Thomas will be held on August 19, at same time as the state primary.

Monroe County Primary Will Be Held August 19

FORSYTH, Ga., April 11.—The Monroe county Democratic executive committee has act the county primary for August 19, the date for the state primary.

In adopting the regulations for this primary, the committee passed some stringent provisions governing the conduct of candidates and their "strikers." The candidates must remain dumb on the day of the primary, for, says the committee, "No candidate shall work or electioneer in his behalf, or discuss his candidacy, or have others do so for him, at the voting place in any district, on the day of the primary election."

And, cigars, treats, etc., so dear to the hearts of candidates, are tabooed, and the candidates are not even allowed to provide transportation for their friends to and from the precincts. The committee puts its foot down on this manner of "influence" in the following words:

"No candidate, heeler, or representative of a candidate shall stand by any voting place on said election day and solicit votes nor work on the election grounds in behalf of any candidate nor accompany any voter to the ballot box for the purpose of seeing him vote nor shall any candidate provide means for conveying voters to or from said election nor furnish, directly or indirectly, money, treats, cigars, financial or other aid, tending to influence votes, either on election day or at any time between the passage of these rules and said election day."

The committee seems determined to have the primary on August 19 free from any undue influence which would prevent the contest from expressing the "free and untrammeled will" of the sovereign voters.

"I'm in the Race to Win," Says Dr. L. G. Hardman

Dr. L. G. Hardman, of Commerce, the first and so far only candidate for governor to issue a formal announcement to the people of the state, was in Atlanta Saturday morning en route to Macon, where on Saturday evening he delivered an address to the student body of Mercer university.

Commenting upon his candidacy for the governorship Dr. Hardman said: "I am in the race to win. Since my announcement I have received hundreds of pledges of support from leading citizens in all parts of the state. I am highly encouraged by the manner in which the people have accepted my candidacy. It is my purpose to engage in an aggressive campaign, during which I will make a number of speeches."

Dr. Hardman has not yet decided where he will open his campaign headquarters, but it is quite likely that he will direct his campaign from Atlanta because of the accessibility of this city to all portions of the state.

Felder Hasn't Mapped Out His Speaking Itinerary

Attorney General Thomas S. Felder has not yet decided just when or where he will make the first speech in his campaign for the United States senate. He stated Saturday morning that he would not make any campaign plans until after he resigns the office of attorney general on April 16, when he would go to Macon, open his campaign headquarters and prepare his speechmaking itinerary.

"I am going to win this race," he said. "I am more than gratified at the response which has followed my announcement. It is my intention to meet the people face to face, and to speak in as many sections of the state as possible. I will tell the people where I stand on all questions and will openly discuss the issues with them. I have tendered my resignation as attorney general because I felt that it would be unjust to the state for me to hold on to that office while I was campaigning for another. Had I not resigned it would have been necessary for me to either neglect the state's business or neglect my campaign."

Eyster Rabbits Vie With Hats And Lilies for First Honor

Children Find Many Bunnies in Cage and Window on Atlanta Streets

The White Rabbit that lured Alice down the long tunnel to Wonderland is invested with no more glamor to child hearts than is the Easter bunny that is popularly supposed to herald this Sunday morning with various pink, purple and blue eggs deposited in green nests in one's front yard.

Being a very timid sort of individual with pink eyes and a nose that whimpers, the White Rabbit probably doesn't realize his importance and certainly was scared to the end of his whiskers when two little girls grabbed him by the ears yesterday.

The two little girls were Mary Hill Bloodworth and Alice Greene and they just happened on the White Rabbit cuddling in a cage outside of McMillan's seed store, with a number of others who were white and black and brown.

So they opened the cage door without so much as "by your leave" and grabbed the White Rabbit till he kicked sturdily. But Mary Hill smoothed his coat and whispered in one long ear:

"Keep with blue spots on 'em, White Rabbit. Don't make 'em hard-boiled, either, and be sure the color won't lick off."

The White Rabbit only kicked the harder and wiggled his pink nose till it became q ite red; but there is no doubt he understood, for Mary Hill and Alice were quite satisfied and declared the White Rabbit was "just too sweet."

POLICE BOARD IS STILL DEADLOCKED ON CHAIRMAN

Indications Are Second Effort to Elect Next Tuesday Night Will Fail

The board of police commissioners next Tuesday night will make a second effort to elect a chairman, and the present indications are that it will be no more successful than the first effort, which terminated in a hard and fast deadlock after 165 ballots had been taken.

The line up of the board is the same today as on the night of the second Tuesday in March, when it tried to elect a chairman and failed, this line up being as follows:

For W. P. Fain—A. H. Baskin, W. P. Fain, R. Lee Smith, George E. Johnson, Andy R. King, George B. Dixon—5.

For R. T. Pace—R. T. Pace, Robert C. Clarke, A. R. Colcord, Mayor James G. Woodward—4.

For W. A. Verney—W. A. Verney, C. R. Garner—2.

There are twelve members of the board and it takes a majority, which is seven, to elect a chairman.

Thus, with th eline up as it stands above, no candidate has a majority; and so long as this line up continues, no chairman can be elected.

And so long as the board fails to elect Mayor Woodward will act as chairman, exercising all the rights and prerogatives of the regular chairman of the board. A deadlock in the police board over the election of a chairman is no new thing, and years ago the framers of the rules governing the board's procedure passed a rule providing that in the event of a deadlock the mayor shall preside, so that the ordinary routine business will not be held up.

Inasmuch as W. A. Varney has the fewest number of votes he has naturally been expected to be the first candidate who would retire, if either of them did. But Mr. Verney states that he hasn't any idea of retiring. Neither has Mr. Fain, nor Mr. Pace. So there the matter stands.

TO HOLD SERVICES IN MOVING PICTURE HOUSE

Dr. John E. White, pastor of the Second Baptist church, will deliver an Easter address Sunday afternoon at 3:30 at the Alamo theater No. 2 at 37 Whitehall street, on the subject "Where Is Jesus Christ? Is He Alive?"

Some leading Baptist minister will conduct meetings in this theater every Sunday afternoon from now on. The male quartet of the Central Baptist church will furnish special music for the occasion. The public is cordially invited to attend all these services.

Rheumatic Throat Is Common Trouble

Should Be Treated in Blood To Prevent Recurrence.

There are successful gargles that stop soreness in the throat, but to prevent their incessant return, the blood must be put in order. The best remedy is S. S. S., as it influences all the functions of the body to neutralize the irritants or waste products and to stimulate their excretion through the proper channels.

Rheumatic sore throat is a dangerous indication, as it means that the blood is loaded with more uric acid than the kidneys can excrete, and may thus lead to serious general disturbance.

The action of S. S. S. stimulates cellular activity, prevents the accumulation of irritants in local spots. It enables the arteries to supply quickly the new red blood to replace worn-out tissue.

For this reason uric acid that finds the throat an easy prey to its breaking-down influence, is scattered and eliminated. In other words, S. S. S. prevents chronic conditions by enabling all the mucous linings of the body to secrete healthy mucus. Its influence is shown in a marked improvement of the bronchial tubes, whereby the hoarseness of voice with thick, grayish secretorations is overcome. S. S. S., well diluted with water, means a blood bath, since it is welcome to any stomach and at once gets into the blood.

S. S. S. is free of all mineral and contains ingredients wonderfully conducive to well-balanced health.

You can get it at any drug store, but do not accept anything else. There is danger in substitutes. S. S. S. is prepared only by The Swift Specific Co., 159 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Our Medical Dept. will give you free instruction by mail on any subject of blood disorders. Write today.

CITY IS HOPING WEATHER MAN'S WRONG

but has arranged an elaborate program which they have been practicing for weeks.

To the beauty of the music will be added that of Easter decorations. Florists' windows for many days have been speared with the smooth, white cups of Easter lilies and sunk in banks of green. These with potted flowers, tulips, hyacinths, with lilacs, spires, ylolets, all the carefully nourished buds of the hot houses, all the blazing azalea, dogwood, and wild flowers that home on the woods and fields around Atlanta, will adorn the altars of Atlanta churches this morning.

Many of them will be taken away after the morning service to bring the Easter spirit to hospitals and homes of the sick and the helpless.

Below is a list of the musical programs for Easter Sunday in the various churches:

PRYOR STREET PRESBYTERIAN.

The choir of Pryor Street Presbyterian church, corner Fryor and Glenn streets, will sing the cantata, "O'er Death Triumphant," by Gelbey, Easter Sunday morning at 10 o'clock.

INJUNCTION TO PROTECT MACON TROLLEY TRACKS

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MACON, Ga., April 11.—The city of Macon has been temporarily enjoined from tearing up the tracks of the Macon Railway and Light company on College street, at Tatnall square park, and Judge Mathews has set April 25 as the date for the hearing which will determine if the injunction will be made permanent.

City council has passed a resolution ordering the company to take up the tracks and instructing the city engineer and the city attorney to see that the company does not do so by next Tuesday. Judge Mathews' restraining order suspends any further activity on the part of the city pending the hearing.

WOULD GO CRAZY SCRATCHING ECZEMA

Came in Red Bumps. Spread All Over Head. Could Not Rest at All. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Completely Cured in Two Weeks.

R. F. D. No. 26, Pelham, N. C.—"My little girl broke out with something she says is eczema. It just came in red bumps and she would just go crazy scratching. I would have to pin a cloth around her head to keep her from scratching it. Then the bumps would get white on top and then they spread all over her head and I had to cut her hair off. She just could not rest at all and I tried everything any one told me and nothing seemed to do any good. I used ——— and ——— and they did no good. I had to be up day and night for she could not rest scarcely any. She would continually fret and I just had to walk all the time with her.

"I saw the advertisement of Cuticura Soap and Ointment and wrote for a sample. It did so much good I got some more. I would take some real warm water and Cuticura Soap and bathe her with it, then anoint her with the Cuticura Ointment. I bought three cakes of Cuticura Soap and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment and in two weeks she was completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. C. Blackwell, Sept. 17, 1913.

To relieve dandruff, prevent falling hair, remove crusts and scales, and allay itching and irritation of the scalp, frequent shampoos with Cuticura Soap, assisted by occasional dressings with Cuticura Ointment, afford a speedy and economical treatment. Sold everywhere. A single set is often sufficient. Liberal sample of each mailed free, with 32-p. Skin Book. Address postcard "Cuticura, Dept. T, Boston."

Men who shave and shampoo with Cuticura Soap will find it best for skin and scalp.

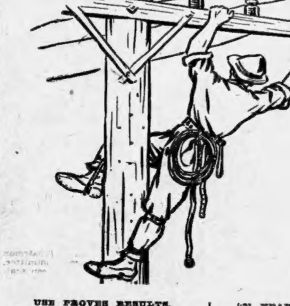
Ruptured for Fifteen Years, Now Can Climb Phone Poles

George Higgins Tells How Wonderful Schulling Rupture Lock Cured Long Standing Ruptures.



George H. Higgins, superintendent of construction for the Citizens' Telephone Company of Grand Rapids, Mich., suffered from ruptures for fifteen years. No truss could give him relief. Often he was forced to go to bed. To work was torture.

Then he put on a Schulling Rupture Lock.

He was himself again at once.

He found he could even climb a telephone pole with any of the "boys" if he wanted to.

He was convinced. A year later Mr. Higgins, certain that the benefits were permanent and that he was really cured, wrote a letter telling of his experience. He said:

"For fifteen years I went around as best I could with two ruptures, at times so painful that I was forced to take to my bed. Had tried for relief in almost every way known to science, but all turned out the same, no good for me.

"I was advised to try a Schulling Rupture Lock by a friend, who claimed he was cured, which I did, and in one year I was entirely cured on both sides, health restored, feeling strong and active as a man of twenty.

MADE HIM YOUNG AGAIN.

"Mr. Higgins knows he is cured.

Any rupture sufferer may be cured can write to Mr. Higgins at No. 1431 Robinson Road, Grand Rapids, Mich., and he will answer questions and tell you all he knows.

The experience of Mr. Higgins is proof positive of the safety and effectiveness of the Schulling Rupture Lock.

When such an active man, with a case of such long standing, gets relief as Mr. Higgins did, any ruptured sufferer, man, woman or child, can be sure that the Schulling Rupture Lock will give satisfaction under any demands that may be put upon it.

MOST IMPORTANT OF INVENTIONS.

The Schulling Rupture Lock is the most important of inventions since the treatment of rupture began.

Rupture sufferers have been robbed for years by fake trusses. These worthless devices made only to "sell." The Schulling Rupture Lock is made to cure.

You have doubtless been disappointed and discouraged by the many promises and seductive statements of all kinds of rupture quacks. You perhaps have tried many trusses and torturing devices that gave no satisfaction. Meanwhile, the handicap of rupture remained.

It has been a burden on your life and your work that you have been unable to throw off.

But this announcement brings you honest assurance that you can get real relief.

The Schulling Rupture Lock will cure rupture.

You can put on the Schulling Rupture Lock and throw your truss away forever.

USE PROVES RESULTS.

The Schulling Rupture Lock has been tested and proven by results that have stood for years. Results are proven by hundreds of cases. People in all kinds of occupations, frm "desk jobs" to the hazardous lights of the firetiers, declare it has relieved and cured them.

You can get the Schulling Rupture Lock on thirty days' free trial. In that time we know that it will prove itself to you. You assume no risk whatever in this matter. We are so confident that we know we are taking no risk at all. You will certainly want it. You will know at once that you cannot afford to be without it.

It does not matter what has failed before. The Schulling Rupture Lock is a wonderful invention that eliminates the possibility of danger. It will save the ruptured sufferer from dangerous operations; it will cure rupture. It brings the ruptured parts together with a firm but gentle pressure, under just the right conditions for nature to complete the cure.

COMFORTABLE TO WEAR.

The Schulling Rupture Lock is simple in construction and comfortable to wear. It avoids acute pressure on the public bone, hip or spine. It has no unsanitary leg bands, elastics, springs or steel stays and metal bands. The lock is free in its action, yet absolutely sure and safe.

Our book on rupture explains in detail all the wonderful features of this remarkable invention. This book will be sent free by the next mail, on your request.

"31 YEARS OLD; HEALED"

John Schinnerer of Columbus Ind. said:

"I was fitted with the Schilling Rupture Lock four months ago, and now find that the ruptured openings are entirely healed up. I am 31 years old and never expected a cure at my age.

"WORE IT 8 MONTHS; CURED."

Edward E. Dickerson, Prescott and S. Division St., Grand Rapids Mich., writes:

"I had been ruptured for years—had worn all kinds of trusses and appliances, but all to no avail until you fitted me without it. Was ruptured at nothing before had done. Wore it eight months and was completely cured."

WOMAN ESCAPES KNIFE.

Mrs. Catherine Sottong of Brookville, Ind., writes:

"I had been a rupture sufferer for a long time and it was getting so bad that I could scarcely move around the house any more. It was as large as two fists, and I was afraid to ever try pain; never could get anything to keep it up. My doctor and lots of other physicians said that I must have an operation to do me any good, but I was afraid and put it off. Finally I read that I might some day find some kind of an article that would help me, and I am glad that I waited, for at last I heard of the Schulling Rupture Lock. I ordered one to try, and, sure enough, it held my rupture right from the very first, and now, I am cured and only wore it five months."

The Schulling Rupture Lock is the thing for you.

MARIST HAS ENTERED FAST BASEBALL NINE

Coach Holliday Has Uncorked Three Mighty Good Twirlers

BY CAPTAIN E. OBERDORFER.

The Marist college has entered a fast little baseball team to contest in the prep league for the pennant. Coach Holliday has rounded the team into good shape, and unless some serious mishap should occur, Marist will finish not far from the top. For twirlers the cadets are dependent upon Bratton, Brock and Wrigley, all of whom have been given try-outs and have shown themselves to be worthy. "Shag" Hubert, manager of the aggregation, is holding down the catcher's position, and although new at the position, it is thought that he will make a very good man after getting the lay of the land, behind the bat.

Shan Harrison, captain of the team, is holding down the first bag with versatile success, while Perry Adair and Howard McGill are respectively proprietors of the second and third bases. George Manning, the active little shortstop, is always on the job, and although small in stature is leading the team in batting with nearly .400 per cent. The outfield is very efficient and is composed of Liddell, Callaway and Cunningham. The above is the line-up which has faced its opponents in the foregoing games. Mott, Hilsabeck and Cheves have also been in several games. Coach Holliday says that in a short time the team will be in better working order, and then it will be able to put in its real work.

The battalion is now hard at work preparing for the United States government's annual inspection, which is to occur the 30th of this month. In the examination the corps will go through Hutt's Manual, bayonet exercises, battalion parade, drill and inspection, guard mount, guard duty, company close and extended order drill, and schools of the soldier and squad.

The commandant, Major E. R. E. Schmidt, has expressed his gratification at the corps' work and wishes to announce to the friends and parents of the cadets that the public is cordially invited to attend the dress parade held each Friday afternoon at 1:15.

The cadets are rejoicing in their Easter holidays, beginning last Thursday and lasting until Wednesday. On Thursday the annual military mass was held and in it many of the Marist officers and cadets assumed important roles.

A new social club has recently been formed at Marist, by the name of the Sesquicentennial. Its membership is now limited to the officers and non-commissioned officers of the battalion. Officers of the club are elected and elected and before long it is hoped that some social outing can be planned by the club.

Formwalt Has Defeated Every Team on South Side

The visit of Miss Haralson last week has indeed very complimentary. The spelling contests and fifth grade work is excellent while the sixth got very good, owing to a little mistake made by their teacher. We feel very proud of this report and hope that all the grammar grades will be able to get excellent on the next visit.

All the grades, especially the two first grades, anticipate great pleasure in learning and studying the most interesting things of Europe.

The eighth grade has won the spelling honor for the last two weeks and is trying very hard to win it again this week.

While the members of the seventh grade were laboring over their history examination today, a real live moth flew across the room and fluttered before their eyes. They had forgotten that last fall one of the boys brought a cocoon to school and in placing it in the moulding, it fell between the blackboard and the wall. When this beautiful creature came out from his hiding place only they all remembered the incident and it goes without saying that everyone in the class was willing to quit struggling over the Missouri compromise and Monroe doctrine long enough to make the acquaintance of this lovely butterfly. They haven't decided yet whether his name will be Daniel Webster, John C. Calhoun or Henry Clay.

Formwalt baseball team piled up three victories to its credit last week by defeating Bull, Peeples and Walker. All this completed our first round and we did defeated every team on the south side we were beginning to have a very comfortable feeling.

That feeling rather disappeared though Tuesday afternoon, when we started on our second round and let Fraser beat us six to 1. Enough said. Consult the Fraser news for the details of the game.

On last Thursday the entire school gave to Formwalt library a book shower in honor of Mrs. Sams' birthday. Over one hundred books were presented and on Friday the givers were given the honor of having first choice. We wish Mrs. Sams many more happy birthdays.

Many Pupils Are Awarded Prizes at Fair Street

Beautiful yellow bows were distributed in the first grade A for especially good marks. Those receiving bows were: Daniel Green, George Glover, Esther Pinerowsky, Lottie Blumfield, Rosie Koplin, Tilitha Enzor, Nellie Daniel, Gertie Horowitz, Louise Bennett, Nellie Butler.

The following of first grade A are also the proud owners of blue bows for good, neat handwriting: Lillian Williams, Daniel Green, Nellie Butler, Lottie Blumfield, Nellie Daniel, Esther Pinerowsky, Rosie Koplin.

In the first grade B the following children received pretty pink bows for excellent work: Kenneth Brown, Christine Chambers, Fred Phillips, Dennis Swanson.

We wish to extend our thanks to the faculty of the Girls' High school for their kind invitation to "Dido," which we enjoyed very much.

Steady work and advancement in the different figures of the field day exercises characterize the work of the girls and boys of all the grades which are to take part in the Field day exercises on May 7.

B. H. S. DEFEATED STONE MT. NINE ON FRIDAY

Scott Introduced E. T. Colton, Y. M. C. A. Speaker, Debate Good

BY W. P. KINNS.

Boys' Hi defeated Marist and Stone Mountain this week and thus added two more victories to her list. Priddell pitched six innings of the game with Marist and did splendid work for the victors. He was a little wild in the first inning and allowed Marist to score two runs, but in the second inning he settled down and held Marist without another run. The cadets played good ball, but were too light for Sid Johnstone's bunch. When the last ball was thrown the score stood 6 to 2 in favor of Boys' Hi.

The Student Christian Movement at Boys' Hi is doing splendid work under the leadership of Alfred Scott. The Bible study class has found a splendid teacher in Mr. Sibley, a young lawyer. The class meets every Friday night and has a splendid lecture fro mthe teacher. At the close of the last Alciphronian meeting, the school enjoyed an interesting address from Mr. E. T. Colton, the international student secretary of the Y. M. C. A. Mr. Colton spoke with great power of clean sports and clean living. He was especially interesting because of the fact that he himself had been a great athlete in his college days, having been captain of the baseball and football teams at the University of Pennsylvania.

The debate, for the day was on the income and inheritance tax. The best debate was delivered by Ferdinand Vogt, of the senior class, who upheld the negative side. Ferdinand made a thorough comprehension of his subject and argued every point with great care. The views of such speakers as Vogt helps to show the boys that the successful debator must have a grasp of the whole subject and not spend the short time allotted in ranting over non-essentials.

Four Tied at Forrest for Medal Given by Principal

The first grade is doing finely in physical training. They received stars in physical training and music the last time the directors were at our school.

The little children in the first grade are beginning to come back to school after having had whooping cough or measles.

Miss King, our third grade teacher, is still out on account of illness. Miss Hubert is teaching the class now.

One of our school's baseball teams played Norfolk avenue school Monday. The score was 16 to 4 in favor of Forrest avenue. The lineup for the game was as follows:

The sixth grade is practicing hard for the dodge ball contest. They are working now to pick out the best players.

The fifth grade won the attendance banner last week. Their average was 95.6.

Miss Kate Massey, our principal, offered a beautiful gold medal to the eighth grade for the one who could recite best "Charge of the Light Brigade" the best. There were four of the children tied for the medal. Last Monday the last seventh and eighth grade children hear the ones who were tied say it before the judges. Those tied were Ruth Stone, Nora Smith, Newton Anderson and Elizabeth Stroup. The judges decided in favor of Ruth Stone.

Barefoot Boys at Peeples Endangered by Splinters

Thursday we had the pleasure of having with us Mr. Armistead and other members of his committee who made a thorough investigation of the condition of our school building. Through them, as councilmen, we have great hopes of getting some improvements around our confinements. Being sadly in need of new school floors we sent to Mr. Armistead through the chairman of the school improvement committee, a bunch of splinters that had been scalped from our floor by bare feet of children walking in an orderly way through our hall. Now, that bare-foot time has come, little boys especially are in constant danger of suffering serious results from the wounds from these large splinters.

The seevnth grade pupils contested in a spelling match last week, Grace McGowan and Marjorie Gregory being the choosers. Julia Green on Marjorie's side was the last to remain standing.

Monday we took our farewell glance at the athletic plaques which the eighth grade of last year won for us. We are hoping that their departure will be but for a short time, for determined are we not to relinquish our claim to them if work can avail.

The seventh grade girls as well as the rest of us received with disappointment the news Tuesday forbidding us to play on the tennis court at recess without tennis shoes. The seventh grade has been enjoying playing captainball there the entire year. However, it is not such a loss as it would have been last year, as our yard has been fixed over beautifully.

The eighth grade is not known that it has a poet artist in our midst until we began drawing pictures of "Good Queen Bess" and Edith and Elsie, Moses and Aaron before Pharaoh. The majority of the pictures were exceptionally good.

MARY ARNOLD.

WALKER STREET SCHOOL.

Miss Milledge and Miss Haralson, music directors, visited us last week and six directors were busy with the work of the children. The eighth grade children are working especially hard on their music as they are to be in the concert.

In a spelling match held in second grade B last week by those who could not be outspelled were Jacob Bressler, Alton Smith, Lillie Ganer, Howard Giles, Sidney Hall, Hall Whittle, Mabel Dean, Georgia Tick, Henry Rosenbloom, Goldon Clark. Those who remained standing in the spelling match held in the eighth grade were Violet Garortt, Ruby Hirsch, B. P. Wood, Mollie Bressler and Isma Jones. In the spelling match in fourth grade A the boys spelled against the girls and were victorious.

All the children here are to be in the field day exercises are practicing hard and intend to have their parts perfect for this occasion.

MOLLIE BRESSLER.

SPEAKERS IN TECH HIGH'S EXERCISES FRIDAY

Hill Debates "Men Are More Extravagant Than Women"

Old winter paid us a very unappreciated visit Wednesday, bringing with him a bit of dampness which was very disagreable. We hope that summer will gain a more secure foothold on his next arrival.

The children of the fourth grade wish for the return of their teacher, Miss Fluker, who has been absent for a period of several days. Miss Davenport, our supernumerary, is the successor of the absent teacher.

We regret very much the departure of Dorothy Stillman, one of our bright eighth grade pupils, but we wish her much success which we feel will fall to her lot.

The fifth grade pupils are practicing very enthusiastically for the drill exercises. We hope to have the best display of all.

Edwin Williams, Frank Reed and Israel Lefkoff, as speakers of one side, and J. C. Shelor, Charlie Winburn and John Peacock of the other, consider that a great honor has been bestowed upon them by being selected to produce the last debate of the year. The subject has not yet been selected.

The winners of the chance on the final chance for the medal are, for the boys, Ned Hull and Frank Alexander. For the girls, Grace McMichael and Marian Ansley, are the winners.

The Hill Street School Literary and Debating society will meet Friday. We hope to have a very successful meeting. A very interesting debate will be heard. It is:

"Resolved, That men are more extravagant than women."

If the rapid call for books increases much more it will be necessary to summon an assistant to help distribute the books.

"Believe me" we are going to give somebody a hot chase for that rag. We played Fraser street schools baseball team last Friday. The result was a score in favor of Hill by a large majority. Tuesday we met Walker who was our opponents for the second time. They also left the field with a defeat in their favor. The score was 7 to 1. When it comes to playing baseball Bill is right there with the goods.

LANIER SOCIETY OFFERED GOOD PROGRAM AT HANNA'S

Girls Make Unusually High Averages in Their Studies

BY DOROTHY DAVIS.

The Lanier Literary society held its regular meeting on last Friday. The president called the society to order and the roll was called by the secretary. We then proceeded with a most interesting program:

Reading—Irene McMurry.
Piano Solo—Lena Dale.
Reading—Opal Perkins.
Piano Solo—Dorothy Davis.
Recitation—Miss Mathis.
Critic Report—Maggie Lee Oglesby.
Critic Report, Junior—Lenoir Lewis.
Want Ads—Mary Chitwood.
Talk—Miss Hanna.

Visiting us on last Friday were three of our seniors of last year, Miss Louise Thrash, Miss Louise Donaldson and Miss Eva Doyle. All of them gave us very interesting talks.

The highest general average for the month was won by Miss Irene McMurry, making 98 8-9. Other high ones were Miss Ruby Sawyer, 98 7-9; Miss Dorothy Davis, 98 5-8; Miss Maggie Lee Oglesby, 97 4-5; Miss Hazel Rainey, 98 5-11; Miss Opal Perkins, 97 4-5; Miss Leona Dale, 97 8-11.

The seniors are very much interested in their work in civics, astronomy and United States history. We hope the complete these so as to supply "logic" in their places before the end of the year.

ABBEY STREET.

Dr. Toepel came last week. He said the fifth grade had a very good dancing exercise.

Miss Graves also came last week. She said the fourth grade did excellent work.

The first grade boys got the reward last week for good lines.

Mr. Landrum also paid us a visit. We enjoyed having him very much.

IZOLA SMITH.

Boys of Pryor's Ball Team Celebrated With a Banquet

The lower grades enjoyed a delightful visit from Miss Milledge last Tuesday. The second and fourth grades were very proud to receive excellent for their fine work and the other grades are doing good work.

We are very glad to see that the Women's Civic club of the Second ward, is taking such an interest in the improvements to be made in this part of town. We hope they will help us out in our improvements. We now need crushed rock very badly on our yard, as it is very muddy on rainy days, and as they are now going to widen Pryor street, they will tear down our wall, and thus ruin our beautiful hedge, which is just beginning to look so pretty. As it will be during vacation we hope the ladies will see that the rock is distributed and not left to die. The ladies' club met at our school last Wednesday. We wish to say that they are always welcome to our auditorium and we invite all of the mothers of this ward to their meetings.

Our boys' team played Fraser for the second time last Thursday. They won the game, the score being 15 to 8, in favor of Pryor. They were delightfully entertained Tuesday night by one of its members, William Blake. Each of the boys on the team invited a girl. Those who were present were Willie Blake, Lizzie Aitken, Warren Davis, Willie Art, Guy Quillian, Lamar Granger, Arthur Greenor, Mattie Boston, Guy Cantrell, Vera Summers, and Frank Terrell.

The eighth grade won the spelling banner last week, having made the highest average.

The fifth is going to bring some flowers Friday to send to some hospitals. They are sorry that Janie Coleman, one of their pupils, has the scarlet fever. We hope she will soon be able to return to school.

One of the little first grade A pupils, Miss Sallie Wood, was knocked down by an automobile last week. She is improving rapidly, and will soon be able to come back to school.

HAZEL HUDDLESTON.

Edgewood Pupils Working on Grounds; Tenth Is Defeated

We have been very busy looking after our school's grounds, but as it is only a few weeks we shall be duly paid for all our efforts.

The absence of Ada Tippens is felt by all her many school chums. We are very sorry to lose her, but we hope that success will ever attend her in her journey through life.

The fifth grade A was the lucky winner of the attendance banner.

The girls of the eighth grade have now organized a volley ball team, and are fast learning to be fine players. We are working hard and hope to be the champion volley ball team next Field day.

The boys' baseball team played a game Friday with Ivy Street. Edgewood played fine and was returned the victor over Ivy. The boys did some good all-round playing. The final score was 10 to 3 in Edgewood's favor.

Well, the baseball team was not to "be beaten" and so after defeating Ivy Friday, the team gave Tenth a hard defeat at Piedmont park last Tuesday. The score was 6 to 1 in our favor. Tenth did some good work, but our boys entered with a strong determination to win.

The girls' basketball team has challenged Crew Street to a game for Wednesday. Crew has a fine team and we know we will have to put up a hard fight, but we intend to work hard for Edgewood would like mighty well to be the victor in this game.

We enjoyed a visit from Miss Smith and also Mrs. Osgood last week. We received good reports.

The winner of the elocution medal for last month was Ruth Lawshe.

The first grade B was sorry to lose two of its little pupils, Reginald Bloom and Thomas Bradley. The first grade A was also sorry to lose a pupil, Arnold Pendley. These little grades are doing fine work in music, both grades having received a star last week.

RUTH LAWSHE.

DR. VAN HOOSE TO TALK ABOUT SHORTER COLLEGE

Dr. A. W. Van Hoose, president of Shorter college for girls, at Rome, Ga., will spend this evening at Jackson Hill Baptist church concerning the work of the college. He will exhibit stereopticon views showing the college buildings and grounds and lecture on the same. The church is at the corner of North Jackson street and East avenue and the hour is 8 o'clock.

MISS CATHERINE ISABEL HACKETT

Miss Hackett, a student at the Girls' High school, is the prize recipient of the Atlanta public schools. She won the prize in the eighth grade, the silver cup offered by the D. A. R. and medal given by Walter Rich.

WASHINGTON SEMINARY WINS FROM GAINESVILLE

Sigma Tau Sorority Entertained at Theater Party

BY SARA CLEMENT.

On Saturday, March 4, the Gainesville high school basketball team were the guests of the seminary. In the afternoon an exciting game was played in which the seminary won 5 to 4. The playing of the visiting team was remarkable and the players deserve a great deal of credit. The seminary team wishes to compliment the Gainesville girls on their excellent work, that shows good training.

The Sigma Tau sorority was entertained at a delightful theater party Saturday afternoon, March 11, by Miss Helen Johnson, at the Forsyth theater.

These students of the seminary are enjoying their nice long Easter holiday of four whole days!

The members of the freshmen class miss their classmate, Miss Ruth Walker, who left for California last week.

The seniors are working hard on their play which is to be given soon at the seminary auditorium.

Fourth Grade at Battle Hill Wins From Peeples

The little fourth grade rs played Peeples Street team Monday and "beat 'em all to pieces," as one little boy said, with a score of 10 to 4.

The fifth grade won in the highest weekly spelling average, 96.7.

In the seventh grade the class is divided into sections of A and B, in spelling. The children in the A class are the ones who never miss, and the remainder are in the B class.

The girls who are to contend for the medal this month are Pauline Dobbs and Louise Smith. The boys are Herschel Bryant and Charlie Lee.

We are all bringing labels for Miss Graves, who is working for the Young Woman's Christian association and the Journal contest. Quite a large number has been brought.

We have had quite a siege of chickenpox in the first and second grades, but the little "veterans" are returning one by one, much to the delight of their teachers.

Horace Wood, Clifford and Horace Nolan received an enthusiastic welcome to our school this week. We hope they will soon feel at home among us.

CATHARINE ROONEY.

Tenth's Seventh Grade Will Meet North Ave.'s Field Day

One of the second grade A's former classmates presented them with a beautiful plant.

The second grade B is having a beautiful spring cleaning. They enjoy the work exceedingly.

In the third grade A the spelling contest was won by the "Blues" this week.

The third grade B is highly pleased with their drawing this month, which is about Greek and Egyptian art. They hope to have Weir Crankshaw back soon. He has been sick.

The fourth grade A won the spelling and attendance banners and they also had a very neat report. The boys have been busy organizing a baseball club.

Grace Martin, of the fourth grade B, has a record to be envied. She has not been absent or tardy since the first grade.

The fifth grade received the most stars for the neatness of their room. They won the attendance picture and also tied for the best lines. The girls defeated the boys in a spelling match.

The sixth grade won the attendance banner last week. They also had a report card in geography received.

The seventh grade received and accepted a challenge from North Avenue to play captainball on Field day.

Tenth Street baseball team vanquished their foes, Boulevard, by a score of 17 to 6. Newman pitched good ball for Tenth.

The eighth grade won the spelling and best line banners last week.

NEW COUNTY HIGHWAY IS OPENED BY E. P. ANSLEY

County Commissioners Accept Deed to Oglethorpe University Road

A new public road in Fulton county was established yesterday when the county board accepted formally from Edwin P. Ansley the deeds to Agle-thorpe University road, 5,960 feet long, the main artery from which radiate the boulevards in Mr. Ansley's latest development, Oglethorpe Park.

Oglethorpe University road starts from Peachtree road at the residence of S. S. Stovall, and runs from there in a general northerly direction to the upper end of Oglethorpe Park, turning northeast and east there, terminating in the grounds of Oglethorpe University, through which the way continues to Peachtree road.

This new county thoroughfare starts with a width of 200 feet at Mr. Stovall's residence, forming the main entrance to the park. A short distance beyond it becomes 66 feet wide, and continues with that width to its end.

The county's participation in the park's development insures merely the maintenance of the main road, which Mr. Ansley's forces will make ready for public travel. Lots in the north end of the park are being placed on sale several days ago. An auction will be held there Monday afternoon.

BRIGADIER CRAWFORD TO PREACH EASTER SERMONS

Brigadier Andrew Crawford, the divisional officer of the Salvation Army, will preach at both of the services in the Salvation Army hall, 9-1-2 Marietta street on Easter Sunday.

The services will be held at 10 a. m. and 8 p. m.

ATLANTIANS GIVE FUND TO CLEAN UP MONUMENTS

Old Guard Committee Asks Others to Complete Amount Needed for Battle Shafts

Of the amount needed to put the McPherson and Walker war monuments in condition to be seen by the thousands of visitors who are soon to be here, approximately one-third has been received by the old guard committee which has undertaken to gather public subscriptions for this purpose. The committee estimates $200 will be needed for painting and cleaning and beautifying the monuments. It has received $82 in cash and one donation of paint as follows:

Ed L. Wight	$ 5.00
S. B. Turman	5.00
F. J. Paxon	5.00
E. M. Ashe	5.00
W. S. Witham	5.00
A. F. Brown	5.00
Fred Koch	5.00
H. N. Randolph	5.00
Miss Katherine Koch	10.00
Marion and Minor	10.00
Atlanta chapter, U. D. C.	10.00
W. H. Harrison	2.00
A. H. Bancker	1.00
Louis Gholstin	1.00
Joseph Powell	2.00
W. M. McMillan	2.00
F. A. Hooper	1.00
F. P. Hodge	1.00
James T. Wright	2.00
Doozier and Gay, paint.

"The city ought to look after the McPherson monument, which is in the city limits, at least to the extent of protecting it from vandals," said H. M. Ashe, a member of the old guard committee with S. B. Turman and Col. Fred Koch, yesterday afternoon. "It is given no protection at all. Small boys mutilate it before the eyes of their parents and are not corrected. On at least one occasion a policeman saw the boys at this vandalism and said nothing to them. The L. A. R. have spent $900 in improving the McPherson monument, but miscreants have destroyed the guard railing and have ruined the other improvements.

"Nor are these depredations confined to the McPherson monument," continued Mr. Ashe. "The Walker monument has suffered very considerably.

"A movement is on foot to establish a national park on the battlefield of Atlanta, where these monuments are located. Under the auspices of the G. A. R., who could help us immeasurably in putting it through, are too discouraged to look for any permanent assurance of protection against vandals, and that at least we ought to give in full measure."

The McPherson monument marks the spot where General J. B. McPherson, commanding officer of the army of General Sherman, was killed very shortly after the battle of Atlanta began. The Walker monument marks the spot where General H. D. Walker, one of the division commanders in Hardee's corps, C. S. A., was killed a few minutes later. The battle of Atlanta was one of the two battles of the civil war in which an army commander was killed. The other was the battle of Shiloh, or Pittsburg Landing, fought April 6,1862, wherein General Albert Sidney Johnston met his death.

Thousands of visitors will want to look at these monuments during the coming few weeks. Atlanta's indifference of half a century toward her historic points of interest is beginning to disappear. The old guard committee is meeting with a ready response to its appeal for a public fund to clean the monuments. The United Daughters of the Confederacy and the Women's Relief corps of the G. A. R. are giving the committee their support and aid, and Miss Katherine Koch of East Atlanta is making collections in that part of the city.

Anyone who is interested can send a contribution to H. M. Ashe, 1329 Healey building.

"Please don't wait for a committee to call," he asks.

CHAMBERLIN'S TO OPEN PIANO STORE MONDAY

Famous Starr Make to Be Handled—J. B. Cleveland Will Be in Charge

The Chamberlin-Johnson-DuBose company will open a piano department Monday, and from now on will handle the Starr piano. The announcement will be of interest to many patrons of the store, and the fact that J. B. Cleveland, formerly president of the Cleveland-Manning Piano department, is to have charge of the new department will awaken further interest.

The Chamberlin-Johnson DuBose company have been thinking of adding a piano department for several years, but had not been able to decide upon the make of piano they wished to handle. Mr. Cleveland learned that the Starr company, which is one of the old and substantial manufacturers, wished to place its pianos in Atlanta, and he effected the arrangement whereby the department was opened.

Chamberlin's is the first department store in the city to add pianos to its stock. One of the Starr pianos, which have won many medals at large expositions, will go to the front show window Sunday, and the Monday department, which adjoins the coat and suit department on the second floor, will be open to visitors.

TWO DOZEN EGGS BROKEN IN EVERY CASE SHIPPED

Faulty Methods of Packing Responsible—New-York Loses 116,668,267 Annually

WASHINGTON, D. C., April 11.—Nearly 7 per cent of all eggs packed in crates and shipped across the country are broken in bad order, according to figures just obtained by the food research laboratory of the United States department of agriculture. This means that on an average 24.96 eggs out of every 50 dozen packed and shipped arrive at the market either as cracks, dents or smashes. These startling figures were obtained as a result of the individual examination of 6,000 dozen eggs before and after shipment. The results of the entire study of the condition of 71 carloads, or over 500,000 dozen eggs shipped from packing houses in the corn belt to 10 different markets on the eastern coast. The results of this study have been furnished in a preliminary report which is submitted to the joint committee on transportation of egg shipments of roads and the United States department of agriculture.

These figures mean that in New York city alone 116,668,267 eggs, valued at $1,166,682.67, and other terminals in bad condition. This represents a loss of about 1.96 cents for each of the 4,000,117 thirty-dozen cases or eggs which represent New York city's annual requirements.

CARELESS PACKING RESPONSIBLE.

In determining whether the egg breakage was due largely to the fault of the packer, 100 cases of 6,000 cases. Every egg was examined and the location in each carton and condition of each breakage or crack of every egg was charted to determine whether breakage occurred principally on any particular point of the box. It was found, however, that the breakage in the packing houses was distributed throughout the case. The result of this examination of the 6,000 cases egg by egg, it was found that 19.22 eggs per case was the average, or 6.4 per cent of the cracked shells before they were put on the railroad cars. These eggs were then packed and shipped to distant points, and again examined egg by egg on their arrival. It was found that during the transfer to the car, switching, hauling, railroad trip and unloading, there was an additional breakage of 5.70 eggs per case on an average, which made a total of 24.96 eggs to be bad order out of every thirty dozen that arrived. In other words, 6.94 per cent of all eggs shipped in car-load lots are received with damaged shells.

These figures, however, do not at all represent the actual total damage from breakage. Practically every broken and every smashed egg is a case lowers the value of several eggs around or below it, because each leaking egg soils a number of other eggs and reduces their market value. Further, it does not include any deterioration or spoiling of whole eggs on account of heat or faulty refrigeration.

HOW NO REMEDY LOSSES.

As a result of the study, the department's specialists have issued the following preliminary suggestions for the consideration of the egg shipping industry:

1. The Package—Use only sound, strong, new cases and new fillers. Never re-use fillers and flats. These are the cardboard partitions in the cases. The specialists find that fillers that have once been used are very apt to have their "ears," as the little projections that keep the eggs from the sides of the cars are called, bent or weakened so that the egg may hit the box when the box is jarred or moved.

2. Packing the Eggs—Use more care in handling eggs to prevent cracked shells; do not permit eggs already cracked to enter the case, and establish an inspection system to secure obedience in your candling room. The shrunken, cracked or leaking eggs should not be packed be accepted in this day of "scientific management." The analysis it is said, is the packer who is most commonly inefficient—not the farmer.

3. Stowing—Handle the cases more carefully in loading. Do not stow less than two cars in a good repair, with drain pipes clear. Make a solid floor. Use bedding between layers. Use pipes is particularly important to prevent leakage of water from the refrigeration. An egg that has once gotten wet will spoil very rapidly. Avoid overcrowding the refrigerating area that tends to prevent bacteria or air entering the case.

4. Bracing in the Car—Take no chances on the shifting of the load in the car. Brace it, and if any brace looks frail, take it strong. Never put a layer of cases on top of the load lengthwise to the floor boards. Use cross pads into the insulated car.

5. Suffering Around the Cases—If straw is used to protect the cases from the ends or sides of the car, it should be loose and not packed. Air force greater than would be exerted by the breathing of the load of eggs should be used in ventilation. Under compression of the straw will be forced into the egg cases, to the common damage. This objection does not apply to rackwork used for the transportation of fruit, certain shippers rolled on straw around the edge of the load to protect it from shock. The straw was quickly compressed and gave the cases much more room to spare with the result that the cases on the end showed a high percentage of breakage. This is avoided.

The report to the committee is preliminary only. The agricultural department, during the coming shipping season, will conduct extensive shipping experiments, commencing with Texas and extending through Oklahoma, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois and Minnesota, the great egg-producing state of the corn belt. Supervised shipments will be made from each of those states to distant markets, and the breakage carefully checked up.

AUBRIN & RAIT COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Cotton: After the reaction Monday the market met renewed buying yesterday at the opening, and this has been evident for the past six weeks and advanced to new high levels. With the reaction Tuesday just preceding the closing of all markets for a three-day holiday, it remains to be seen just how these advances can be maintained. The bearish sentiment now today as regards the old crop situation was a surprise to many, but even a small crop of cotton is a natural desire as well as a healthy condition.

Of course, it can well be said that those who were the most outspokenly bearish when prices were one cent lower just a month ago now occupy the most ardent bulls, but in a wise man who will change his position when it is wrong at the most opportune time. It is said that conditions have so materially changed that the change in the situation is not so surprising. By this we mean the change in character of the new crop months, making it impossible to deliver on contract the large proportion of the low grades that have only had been steadily hedged in into market, the spinner placing his hedges, and as it has always been done before, selling on what we have previously referred to when we mentioned that the spot situation will here after be more criticised for a condition concerning the character of the new crop than it has been in control. With the elimination of such an abundance of low grade stock before the early first market necessarily, and while this naturally places the premium on the better grades, which had been steadily hedged in into market, the spinner's place can be hedged

Uneasiness Over Green Bugs in Oklahoma Caused Rise in Wheat

Buying on the Part of One Chicago Firm Alone Amounted to Nearly 2,000,000 Bushels—Corn Was Under Heavy Pressure

(By Associated Press.)

CHICAGO, April 11.—Uneasiness over green bugs in Oklahoma had much to do today with the advance in the price of wheat. Considering the manner the market closed steady at a gain of 3/8@3 3/4c, corn finished 3/4@7/8c to the good, oats unchanged to 1/4c lower, and provisions off a trifle to 30c.

Equally the opinion by a veteran crop expert that the green bugs had done no damage to wheat as yet, buying on the part of one Chicago firm alone amounted to nearly 2,000,000 bushels. Advices were to the effect that the bugs had appeared in numerous counties in southern Oklahoma counties and that conditions were favorable for their spread.

Forced to starting spring crop seeding both in the United States and Canada, the bugs are a menace to the wheat bulls. Besides, world shipments are reported to be on a steadily falling off, and there was talk that Nebraska needed rain badly. The market at the time shows unusual excitement.

Corn broke sharply under selling pressure from local and outside sources. Word that Argentine corn was being sold in Oklahoma had a depressing effect, and cash prices at Kansas City and Omaha tended also to make the market heavy. Reports that the Argentine government of trading served only to render the weakness here more evident by contrast.

Oats were unsettled, but finally displayed good strength. Lack of interest in corn, and relief concerning influence was the weakening factor in provisions.

Prices ranged throughout the day. Lack of any interest in corn left the main rea-

ATHEN'S MAIL GRAIN LETTER.

NEW YORK, April 11.—Wheat: The government report indicated such a mammoth winter wheat crop that the bulge in July prices immediately were abandoned, for the time being, and the market was weakened to an especially severe extent. The weather this week assures a probability that the government prospect could easily be cut down and there is no reason for overemphasizing the bearish side into consideration, and at these prices the market is expected to show declines. Corn on 10.31 a level was reached which, if not more severe, is at least as severe as the Difficult to keep wheat up, with the exception of the contract.

While certain trade interests are trying to keep up the price of corn by talking up the strength of the stocks and Argentina brings heavier offerings, the market may soon prove a general decline. On the other hand, the stocks of heavy oats are abnormally heavy and consumption is not keeping pace with the supply. We continue to favor a lower corn market on bulges and believe that the oats will follow suit. Oats will follow the lead of corn, therefore the article does not promise the bearish features of corn.

Provisions: The continued large numbers of hogs coming to market and the forces in steel and railroad lines making it hard to keep up high prices, particularly with the weak situation in stocks on hand, appear to be the weakness on the list. On the other hand the supply of hogs is much lighter than a year ago, and should continue so for some time, with the spring stocks of pork below consumption. The government report showed the number of hogs on farms March 1 to be 58.9 per 1,000, against 67,000,000 a year ago. The previous high records were in 1910, when the number was 67,000,000, and in 1911, when the number was 67,000,000. The decrease in the number of hogs on farms March 1 was 8.8 per cent, against 5.1 per cent in 1913. The low condition of 91.4 last year, against 91.6 this year, and the high record of 97.4 in 1910, although at the moment the market may have to exercise some caution.

OUTLINE CAMPAIGN FOR GREATER HOSPITAL HERE

Fulton County Medical Society Unanimously Indorses Plan for Bond Issue

At a meeting of the general committee for the new Grady hospital bond issue held yesterday afternoon at the chamber of commerce with Bishop C. K. Nelson presiding as chairman, a comprehensive organization plan was outlined for the campaign.

Pledges of support were received from the various branches of civic, business and industrial life of the city and promises were made which indicate that a great concerted movement is beginning in favor of the issue as already recommended by mayor and council.

A central executive committee was organized as follows: Captain J. W. English, J. K. Orr, Ivan E. Allen, Thomas Eggleston, S. B. Marks, J. B. Hewitt, John E. Murphy, Fred J. Paxon, Dr. W. S. Elkin, Wilmer L. Moore, Albert S. Adams, E. H. Goodhart, E. J. McBurney.

At the same time a motion was passed providing for the formation of an active campaign committee, to be composed of from 100 to 250 members, and that this committee be sub-divided so that there would be a special sub-committee actively at work in each ward in the city. It was decided to select from 10 to 25 representative men from each ward. A special committee with R. L. Foreman at its head was appointed by the chair to select tentatively the personnel of this big working campaign committee, and to report back at an early meeting.

A finance committee was formed by the appointment of Dr. Floyd L. McRae as chairman, with the right to select two more committee members. At the same time Dr. W. S. Elkin was chosen vice chairman of the general committee.

The publicity committee reported that 25,000 campaign buttons had been ordered, bearing the slogan "FOR GREATER GRADY HOSPITAL" and that they would be distributed throughout the city as soon as they arrive.

The chairman notified the general committee that Mrs. Lumpkin, president of the Federated Women's club had made arrangements for a meeting of the federation Monday noon at the Women's club building on Baker street, and that the women's organizations would be glad to hear from the committee on the hospital question. Dr. Elkin, Dr. Summerall, Bishop Nelson and Ivan E. Allen were appointed to attend the meeting and make speeches. Bishop Nelson said that Mrs. Lumpkin had already received assurances of active support from the various women's clubs of the city.

The Fulton county medical society, at its meeting Saturday morning, unanimously indorsed the proposed hospital bond issue.

Captain J. W. English, in pledging his active support to the movement said: "I don't see how the people can close their eyes to the fact that we must make better provision for our sick and injured. We must have larger and better facilities to keep pace with the growth of the city population." Captain English was one of the first to suggest the idea of getting campaign committees at work in the city wards.

Rev. H. H. Proctor, one of the leading negro preachers of the city, and pastor of the Congregational church, was present by special invitation, and pledged the support of himself and other leaders of his race for the hospital bond issue. "We colored people are greatly interested," he said. "There is no color line in questions of health and disease. The city needs these increased hospital facilities. Both races need it. Our race needs it very badly, for the death rate among colored people is twice as high as it is among the whites. When our people fall sick, too, there are usually poor facilities to care for them in their homes. I believe that we ought to have a mass meeting of the colored voters to tell them about the objects of this bond issue, and I offer the Congregational church for the purpose. It seats 1,000 people."

Dr. Summerall explained that the plan as mapped upon by committee would be of equal benefit to both races, since it provided for out-door clinics, laboratory and clinical facilities, and emergency operating rooms, for both whites and colored respectively; also special contagious disease hospitals for whites and negroes respectively; also additional white wards at a cost of $125,000 and additional colored wards at exactly the same cost, $125,000.

Jerome Jones, head of the Federation of Labor, and editor of the Journal of Labor, made one of the most interesting speeches of the afternoon and offered some practical suggestions of great value which were adopted. He told how the printers' union had already strongly endorsed the hospital bond movement, and expressed the belief that when the proposition was fully explained it would have the unqualified endorsement of all the labor organizations of the city. He promised to aid in the organization of special campaign committees, and his advice will be sought in making up the personnel.

The various committees will hold frequent meetings from this time on, and a little later it is planned to hold daily luncheon meetings, along the plan that big public movements which have met with success in Atlanta in the past.

Another meeting of the general committee will be held within the next couple of days.

At the meeting of the Atlanta Ad Men's club on Thursday, April 16, Dr. W. S. Summerall, superintendent of the Grady hospital, will address the members on the subject of the proposed bond issue for enlarging and improving the hospital.

JUDGE HILL DOWN WITH ATTACK OF RHEUMATISM

Confined to His Room Several Days, but Hopes to Be Out Shortly

Judge Ben H. Hill of Fulton superior court has been confined to his rooms in the Georgian Terrace hotel several days with inflammatory rheumatism in the left foot.

It has caused him great pain and required treatment by a physician, but otherwise Judge Hill is in good health and hopes to be out again in a few days.

Meetings will be held today at 9 and 10:30 o'clock in the morning, 2:30 and 4 o'clock in the afternoon, and 7:45 o'clock at night.

SUPPORT FOR HOME TROOPS

FIFTH REGIMENT IS AN ASSET, SAY CITIZENS

Chamber of Commerce Secures Many Letters Saying Military Is Necessary

The movement by the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce to enlist the support of the business men of Atlanta in behalf of the Fifth regiment, to the end that they will interpose no obstacles in the way of their employes enlisting in the regiment, is meeting with the most cordial support.

Following the recent action of the military committee of the chamber in recommending that the chamber take cognizance of the decreasing enlistment of several companies in the regiment and call upon employers generally to permit their men to enlist, the chamber mailed out letters to practically all its members who are employers and already has received a large number of responses heartily indorsing the movement.

Following are some of these indorsements selected at random:

Colonel W. L. Peel, president of the American national bank: "I consider the Fifth regiment vitally important to the community. The policy of our bank has always been to permit and encourage our men to enlist if they are a mind to, and this will continue to be our policy."

Captain James W. English president Fourth national bank: "We could not get along without the Fifth regiment. It is not often that we need a regiment of military in action to protect lives and property but we are liable to need it at any moment and when we need it bad."

Dr. W. J. Blalock, president Fulton national bank: "I am heartily in sympathy with any movement looking to the support of the Fifth regiment."

Colonel Robert J. Lowry, president Lowry national bank: "We could not get along without the Fifth regiment, any more than we could without our police department, for the military is our police reserve force. The regiment is entitled to and should have the support of the entire community."

S. J. Ellsworth, Sisseman Bros: "I certainly believe in the maintainance of the Fifth regiment. I am a member of the Horse Guards myself (org.) I believe it is absolutely necessary for the regiment to be kept up to the highest standard."

ONE OF CITY'S ASSETS.

Fred J. Paxon, of Davison-Paxon-Stokes Co.: "I am heartily in favor of the Fifth regiment. It is one of the city's assets, and everyone should cooperate to make it a successful and useful organization."

Lloyd Parks, of Parks-Chambers-Hardwick Co.: "We feel that the regiment ought to be encouraged and kept up. You can never tell when we will need its services, and then we need it badly and accordingly should be prepared."

Dr. Joseph Jacobs, president of Jacobs' Pharmacy Co.—Certainly we indorse the Fifth regiment and any movement in its behalf. We indorse it most heartily, and any clerk we have is at liberty to enlist. He can get off when needed, and the regiment will have our cooperation."

W. W. Orr, of George —use Clothing Co.—"We think the Fifth regiment is a good thing. We have always endeavored to cooperate with it, and will continue to do so. We have no objection to our men joining where discretion is used. We are thoroughly in sympathy with this so doing. We think the regiment should be kept up and to the extent of our ability will cooperate to that end."

ENTITLED TO SUPPORT.

W. A. Speer, of John Silvey Co.—"Certainly the Fifth regiment is a good thing. It is entitled to our support, and by that I mean the entire community."

H. A. Rogers, manager of the Swift Fertilizer Co.—"The Fifth regiment has our indorsement and we are willing to cooperate in making it a success."

Forrest Greene, Georgia Car & Locomotive Co.—"I am right with you in the movement for the Fifth regiment. It should be maintained at a high standard. We never interpose any obstacle in the way of our men enlisting if they want to."

S. A. Carter, Gate City Cotton mills. —"The Fifth regiment is a most valuable thing for the town and should be cordially supported."

Oscar Elsas, Fulton Bag & Cotton Mills.—"The military is very valuable to the community. We have no objection whatever to our men enlisting in the military. It is a good thing. We are obliged to have it. The Fifth regiment is a splendid organization and the entire community should support it."

either principal cmfw mfw mfwyp

J. G. Oglesby, Grisby Grocery company.—"The local military should have the support of the community."

O. T. Camp, president Retail Grocers and Butchers' association—"I am heartily in favor of the movement to get the business men more actively interested in the Fifth regiment. It should have the support and co-operation of every employer."

George W. Walker, of Walker Brothers Grocery Company—"Military duty is like jury duty—it is a business of citizenship. The military, like the jury, needs good men. Good men are the kind their employers need. Therefore the employers should make the necessary sacrifices to permit their men to serve in the Fifth regiment. It won't seriously cripple any firm."

W. M. Crumley, president Crumley-Sharp Hardware company: "We are glad to permit our men to serve in the Fifth regiment."

This "Peerless" Refrigerator Is $16.50

500 Pounds of Ice Free

Every "Peerless" Refrigerator Has a Sanitary Glass Syphon

Its construction prevents outside odors from entering the refrigerator.

Sediment and impurities in the bottom of the Syphon and the glass face indicate when it needs cleaning. In other refrigerators they pass through and there to the drain pipe, hidden from sight and are hard to clean.

The Syphon enables you to keep your "PEERLESS" Refrigerator sweet and clean—in the most easy manner. "PEERLESS" is the only Atlanta "PEERLESS" agency and the prices range from $18.50 all the way up to $60 on "PEERLESS" Refrigerators.

LEGAL NOTICES.

Notice of Bond Election to be Held Upon the Issuance of Bonds for Grady Hospital. Date of Election Tuesday, May 5, 1914.

STATE OF GEORGIA, COUNTY OF FULTON, CITY OF ATLANTA:

Notice is hereby given to the qualified voters of the City of Atlanta that the mayor and general council of said city have called an election to be held at the several voting precincts in the city of Atlanta, within the legal hours for holding elections, on Tuesday, the 5th day of May, 1914, to determine whether the qualified voters of the city of Atlanta will assent, by the requisite two-thirds majority, upon the following bonds, to-wit:

$750,000.00 of bonds of the city of Atlanta, of the denomination of One Thousand ($1,000.00) Dollars each, and $50,000.00 of bonds of the city of Atlanta, of the denomination of One Hundred ($100.00) Dollars each, bearing interest at the rate of five per centum per annum, the principal of said bonds to be paid in 30 equal installments, annually, beginning July 1, 1915, in gold coin of the United States of America of the present standard of weight and fineness, and the interest on said bonds to be evidenced by coupons falling due semi-annually and to be paid in gold coin of the United States of America of the present standard of weight and fineness.

If said issue of bonds is assented to, by the requisite vote, an annual tax shall thereafter be levied, beginning with the year 1916 and running through the next succeeding 29 years and collected by authority of the mayor and general council of the city of Atlanta, on the taxable property within said city, sufficient in amount to pay the interest on said bonds as said same of bonds, and for the payment of said bonds as they mature. The proceeds of said bonds shall be applied exclusively for rebuilding, new buildings and extensions to Grady hospital, with modern fixtures and furnishings for same, and for purchasing additional real estate for said hospital, shall have written or printed on their tickets the words:

"For the issue of Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand ($750,000.00) Dollars of bonds for the improvement of Grady Hospital."

Voters opposing the issuance of such bonds shall have written or printed on their tickets the words:

"Against the issue of Seven Hundred and Fifty Thousand ($750,000.00) Dollars of bonds for the improvement of Grady Hospital."

Notice is also given that the tax collector of Fulton county, state of Georgia, the registrar of voters for elections ordered by the mayor and general council of the city of Atlanta, the books of registration for the purpose of registering the qualified voters of the city, under ordinances and laws governing same, and such registrar will keep said books of registration open daily (Sundays excepted, until within ten days of the date of said election, at his office, No. 4 East Hunter street, between South Pryor street and central avenue, in the city of Atlanta, said county, and only those voters whose names appear on said registration books, as qualified to vote in the city elections for the present year, and on the bond issue, shall be permitted to vote in said election.

This notice is given in pursuance of an ordinance calling for an election, approved on the 1st day of April, 1914.

Given under the official hand and seal of said city and by the authority and in the name of the mayor and general council of said city and likewise by authority of and in the name of the city of Atlanta, on this the 2d day of April, 1914.

J. G. WOODWARD,
Mayor of the City of Atlanta.

WALTER G. TAYLOR,
Clerk of Council of the City of Atlanta.

Some Things Important for Farmers To Know

AN traveling over the state anyone cannot help but be impressed with the tremendous amount of work that the farmers have already done to their land this season. I have never before seen land so thoroughly prepared and made ready to receive the fertiliser and seed. There never was so much land broken so deeply as it is this year, but there is one item that the farmers must not overlook if they get the full by the farmers of this country is wasted or not distributed so that benefit of the great amount of fertilizer they will use this year. A large per cent of the fertiliser used the plants can utilize it to the best advantage, and it is the proper time. Unless the farmers are very careful this year the fertilizer will be placed too deep in the ground and the roots of the plants never get the benefit of it. Fertilizers of all kinds should be placed as near the top of the ground as possible so that the roots can carry its feeding value to the lateral roots of most kinds of plants. A great many people do not know this, but the lateral roots of cotton, corn and grain are the ones that supply the principal food elements of the soil to the growing plants. The tap roots generally supply water. Many people put the fertilizer down in the furrow too deep and it is not properly utilized by the plants. I see ahead this year, on account of so much land being deeply plowed after this one thing will be a great disadvantage unless it is guarded against.

Do not put the fertilizer too deep down in the furrow and throw a big furrow on top of it to receive the seed. If you do the plants will never get full benefit of the fertilizer. It is by far better to distribute a limited amount of fertilizer in drill and then as the crop grows make two applications around the crop or near the top of the soil so that the rain can reach the food elements of the fertilizer and distribute it where the roots can get the full benefit of its feeding value. One will get far better results by distributing a small amount of fertilizer at two or three different intervals around the growing crop than if it is all placed in the drill before the crop is planted, or at the same time it is planted. The lateral roots usually reach out from one row to another and if the fertilizer is properly distributed they will get the full benefit of it and feed to the growing crop.

If we should have an abundance of rain the fertilizer becomes available very quickly and if it all put down at one time the strength is gone and there will not be a sufficient amount left to feed and mature the developing crop on the lands as they become nearly grown. As a rule this is the most important time that plants of all kinds need fertilization. Just as they are maturing the crop. In nearly all sections we get a sufficient size weed for cotton and a stalk too large to produce a heavy crop of corn and when the plant needs lots of food to mature a crop that it has already set the strength of the fertilizer is usually gone. One should be very careful and watch closely this point this year and just how the fertilizer is distributed and at what time. Millions of dollars could be saved for the Georgia farmer and they could get the full benefit of the commercial fertilizer that are used by knowing just what kind is suited to the wants of their land and the growing crop planted on it, and then supply these foods at the proper time. If our farmers will be careful this year and notice these little things it certainly will help to increase the yield and get the full benefit of the tremendous amount of fertilizer that will be used throughout this country this year. Thousands of dollors worth have already been sold and the farmers will probably use in this state at least $5,000,000 worth of commercial fertilizer this year. If one-fourth of this amount is not distributed so that it will become available for plant food you can readily see what a big loss would be sustained. But, by being careful one can get the full benefit of this valuable plant food at the proper time and harvest this fall the greatest crop this country has ever seen.

Fertilizers are valuable and pay well when used judiciously but a large per cent of their goods has been wasted. Knowing this to be a fact I simply write this article, hoping that it will help many to be benefited by same.

Yours very truly.

FEED

AUNT PATSY POULTRY FEED, THE EGG PRODUCER.
No matter from what point of view Aunt Patsy is discussed, it has been proven to be the feed of all feeds.
It is the best feed because containing every ingredient of which an egg is composed. You are feeding the small egg (the seed) in the chicken's bag when you give them Aunt Patsy, hence the eggs grow to full size and then the hen must lay—she can't help herself. It is the best feed because it keeps the hen in a thrifty, healthy condition all the time. It is the best feed, because the baby chicks will thrive and grow faster than any other feed. It is the best feed because the pullets when fed constantly Aunt Patsy will lay earlier than when fed on other feeds. It is the best feed because it a properly balanced ration. It is the best feed because it gives more satisfactory results than other feeds. It is the best feed because it costs only 1-2 cent per day to feed the hen against over one cent per day to feed the hen on other feeds.
It is the best feed because it gives the hen every thing she needs in the way of nourishment, as well as giving her all necessary help to bring the egg to full growth and make her lay.

PEACHTREE AND PEACHTREE CIRCLE $8500.00

HOME OPPORTUNITY

You will buy this on sight if you have been looking for a home in this section. You have seen values in the Peachtree-Peachtree Circle section go far beyond the limits of your purse or at least the limits of your willingness to tie up in a home; but you have missed one place you could afford because it was not on the market. The home on the Peachtree corner from this cannot be bought for $10,000. While the home on the Peachtree Circle corner from this is not on sale at any price.

Between the two corners for $8,500 we have an eight-room, two-story residence that must be seen to be appreciated.

It is needless to tell you that homes all around it are worth from $10,000, the cheapest, to $40,000, perhaps the highest. The terms on this are only $1,250 cash, assume a $ 1-2 per cent mortgage and balance easy.

We have doubled our regular space to feature this one HOME OPPORTUNITY. Will you grasp it?

FOR SALE—REAL ESTATE

TAKE ADVANTAGE OF THIS OPPORTUNITY.

Similar Ones Don't Present Themselves Often.

Most people have their own ideas in regards to what they want their own home to be. To get these ideas worked out to any degree of satisfaction, you've got to build, unless you happen to find a home whose owner has ideas similar to yours. This is most unusual.

The only satisfactory solution is to build for yourself.

This requires a large outlay of money, a lot of trouble with many plans, and a thousand and one annoying details that you will have to attend to yourself.

We have a client who has just started a six room bungalow in a section that speaks for itself—Thirteenth street (between Peachtree street and Piedmont avenue).

This house is not the "regulation stock house" used by a great many builders.

The plans have been drawn by the well-known architects, Heats & Reed. This fact alone, guarantees you an exclusive individual home.

Six room, furnace heat, three bed rooms, sleeping porch, hardwood floors, and as for fixtures, inside detail work, and the tinting of the walls, we will leave to you, if you will come in within the next five days and give us your ideas.

We venture to say that a similar opportunity won't be offered you often.

The price is going to be reasonable, about $6,000, with easy terms.

There are lots of advantages about this place, that can be gone over much better in person, so if you want a high-class reasonably priced individual home, don't fail to see us about this place.

WHAT DO I GET WITH A BROOKHAVEN LOT?

YOU GET a highly refined finished product.

YOU GET a home site at the hub of the south's most splendid suburban community. The Capital City Country Club insures around its borders, a community of people, to whom the highest standards of living strongly appeal.

YOU GET a lot planned, in conjunction with the magnificent club grounds which it faces, by the country's most eminent landscape artists.

YOU GET below you an unsurpassed scenic view of a crystal lake and 18 holes of beautiful rolling golf greens.

YOU GET a front yard of 150 acres for golf, tennis, bathing, boating and dancing.

YOU GET an investment that can not be duplicated elsewhere—it is the history of every large city that property surrounding high-class country clubs is almost unbuyable. You get an investment that is in the recognized center of the city's most active section.

YOU GET the first opportunity to purchase lots fronting Brookhaven Drive East, which is now being opened up and paved.

YOU WILL NOT GET the opportunity to secure a Brookhaven lot in the near future at the present price—at best it is physically possible for only a limited number of lots to face the Club grounds. When these are gone, they are gone.

WHERE can you get more at $14.00 to $30.00 per foot?

Real Estate and Renting

10 Auburn Avenue

100x200 West End Home

ON ONE of the most prominent corners in West End, we have a handsome home on a beautiful corner lot 100x200. The house was built at a cost of $14,000. Lower floor finished in beautiful hardwoods; in fact, entire building is built of the very best of everything. This corner, without a doubt, has a speculative feature and will sell for business property within five years, and today you can make a killing by rolling house and building a modern apartment on the corner. Price $15,000, on very easy terms.

$16,500.00 Peachtree Street

THIS SIDE of Fourteenth street, nine-room house, modern in every way. There's a sure profit in it; now renting for $900 per annum. Buy it—live in it a few years, then collect your profit. $3,000 cash, balance to suit you.

Price, $26,000.00, Will Pay $3,600.00 Per Annum

16 ACRES, 10-room Colonial house, street graded through it, one block from city limits on beautiful paved road; two blocks of car line; one of the prettiest elevations around the city. Has on it modern hot house plant, selling more than $200 per month in cut flowers. Owner has been offered $100 for three years for the house and two acres; two hundred feet of railroad side track. An ideal gentleman's country home, that will pay you a handsome income by devoting a little time to a very pleasant business. Easy terms; would consider $10,000 in other property. Good reason for selling.

$16,500.00 Modern Peachtree Home

IN THE prettiest part of the street, a brand-new house, consisting of reception hall, living room, dining room, butler's pantry and kitchen on first floor; beautiful hardwood floors; second floor: four bedrooms, two baths, sleeping porch; closet in every room; east front lot. In our honest opinion you can live in this house two years and re-sell for $20,000. Price $16,500—$2,500 cash, balance easy.

Central Business Lots

JAMES STREET, 1,000 feet of Peachtree and Candler building, just below Ansley Hotel Annex, in the center of big things. If you will come with us and look at this we believe that you will agree that it will sell for $500 per foot within five years. 25 feet front. Price $250 per foot; one-fourth cash, balance at six per cent.

$30,000.00 House for $15,000.00

WE HAVE a lot 80x100, with alley on both sides, a few feet of Peachtree street, that we can sell for $15,000 and give a house to move over on it that cost $30,000 to build. It will pay you to investigate.

Price $15,000.00, Rents $1,440.00

ON GOOD street in West End, three modern eight-room houses on lots 50 feet front each, that are always rented for $120 per month. A clean, high-class rent-paying machine. You are seldom offered property of this class paying as big interest. A home and investment combined. Terms.

$25,000.00 Corner 150x113

PONCE de LEON avenue corner, in 800 feet of Georgian Terrace hotel and Ponce de Leon apartments. Property one block this side sold for $500 per foot. In our opinion this lot will re-sell for $300 per foot within twelve months. Price $25,000; $5,000 cash.

$7,500.00 Apartment Site

300 FEET off Peachtree, on a corner looking into Peachtree, 50x150 feet. A $10,000 building on it will pay 20 per cent. A most unusual location. Let us show you.

Young Women's Christian Association Is Offered Locations for New Building, and, Although Plans Are Indefinite, It Seems That It Will Begin a Campaign for Greater Institution Here—Small Sales Announced Yesterday

Those who followed with so much interest the whirlwind campaign of the Y. M. C. A., which resulted finally in the erection of a 10-story, $250,000 building on Auburn street, will be interested in the announcement that the Young Women's Christian Association is now working along the same lines.

So far the plans of the organization seem to be rather indefinite as to the character of the building, but they have taken much definite shape that the organization is in the market for a location.

Not long ago the Y. W. C. A. bought a property on West Baker street which, it was announced at that time, would be its future home.

Apparently that plan has been abandoned. Quite recently three new locations have been offered the association. One is a corner at Cone and Poplar streets, valued at $60,000; another a corner at Ellis and Ivy streets, valued at $60,000, and the third the Hawkes property on Mitchell street near Whitehall, also valued at $60,000.

Whether the association would buy a location outright, or use its Baker street property as part payment, is not known just at this time.

W. J. SPEER GIVES PRAISE TO STATE IN HIS REPORT

Treasurer Says Georgia's Credit Is on as High a Plane as Any in Union

In his annual report to the legislature, now in course of preparation, State Treasurer W. J. Speer is calling particular attention to Georgia's splendid credit.

He discusses the temporary loan made by the state to tide it over the period when tax money was scarce, and which for the first time in the state's history was in excess of $200,000. Under the new constitutional amendment the state borrowed this time $475,000 for temporary relief, and every dollar of it was immediately used in paying what was due the public school teachers of the state as far as it would go.

Treasurer Speer calls attention to the fact that Georgia's credit is on a plane as high as that of any state in the Union. Her bonds whenever offered, are taken as safe and profitable investments at par, premium and have always brought a good premium in the market.

"It is a fact greatly to Georgia's credit," says Mr. Speer, "that the state of Georgia has never in all her history had to sell her bonds for less than par or face value, which is due to unusual safeguards and protection thrown around the public credit by the splendid provisions in the state constitution."

This remarkable credit which the state possesses is greatly strengthened, the treasurer points out, by the fact that under the state constitution all of the public property of Georgia which includes the Western and Atlantic railroad, estimated to be worth $20,000,000, is held as security for the bonds which bear Georgia's name.

TO RAISE FUNDS FOR W. C. T. U. CONVENTION

Evangelical Ministers' Association Arranges Plans to Entertain Delegates

The Evangelical Ministers' association and members of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union in Atlanta are beginning the preliminary work of raising funds with which to entertain delegates to the International Woman's Christian Temperance Union convention which will be held in Atlanta during October.

It is expected that the convention will assemble in the city 20,000 women and men from every state in the union and from European countries. As it will take much money to properly entertain them, the women of Atlanta, through Mrs. Forrest A. Adair, are trying to devise means of raising it by means other than personal solicitation.

One of the first things that they will do will be to hold a flower carnival during May 11-14; and at that time they want every man, woman and child in the city to purchase flowers through them.

Prettily dressed women will sell flowers on the streets, and several other features will add to the interest of the fiesta of blossoms. Regular orders for flowers can also be placed through the women, and they will appreciate the co-operation of all.

A meeting of those particularly interested in the flower carnival, will be held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the Piedmont hotel.

SIX SUNDAY SCHOOLS IN ANNUAL SONG CONTEST

Six Sunday schools competed in the annual song contest of the Atlanta Union Singing convention Friday night at the auditorium. They were the Ponder Avenue class, Walton Chorus society, Lakewood Heights class, Happy Unity class, Western Heights class and the Cooper Street class.

The winners in the contest will be announced Sunday afternoon at the Western Heights church, following all-day singing by the convention in the auditorium. The judges are Prof. George Kyme, Prof. A. C. Boatman and Prof. Charles H. Barnes.

ORGANIZE LEAGUE HERE FOR CIVIC IMPROVEMENT

Citizens of Tenth Ward Have Successful Meeting in Capitol View Church

For the purpose of organizing a civic improvement league a mass meeting of nearly 100 citizens of the Tenth ward was held at Capitol View Methodist church Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock. A permanent organization was effected and the following officers elected: C. A. Carpenter, president; W. A. Fursley, vice president; A. M. Turner, secretary; C. A. Armstrong, treasurer.

During the discussions of the evening it developed that the county commissioners were planning to use the county convicts from the camp near Capitol View to East Point. In view of the fact that so little work had been done on the streets of Capitol View and vicinity, and the present condition of Stewart avenue from Dill avenue to Whitehall street, a strong protest was made against this plan.

It was stated at the meeting that very few of the residents in Capitol View are supplied with water for fire protection, even the fire department could reach there in time to be of any service.

No section of the city has grown more rapidly during the last three years than Westminster Park and Capitol View, yet very little work has been done by the city or county, the citizens declared, in that section as compared to its needs.

A beautiful park was given to the city by Messrs. Forrest & George Adair with the understanding that the city, should open the streets surrounding the park, which is located near the George W. Adair school, but up to the present, it is said, not only have these streets not been opened, but practically nothing has been done to improve the park.

Records kept by patrons of the Stewart avenue cars show, it is declared, that during rush hours mornings and evenings the car registers range from seventy to 100 and sometimes more. The Stewart avenue line is said to be one of the very few lines in the city with a schedule of fifteen minutes during rush hours and twenty and fort yminutes at all other times.

These and many other questions the league proposes to take up and thoroughly investigate and endeavor to remedy.

PREP SCHOOLS READY FOR DECLAMATION CONTEST

Mayor Woodward to Deliver Medal to Winner Friday Night

What promises to be one of the best declamatory contests that the Atlanta prep. league has ever had will be held Friday night in the Girls' High. All the Girls' High school. Six of the seven schools that are in the "prep." league will be represented.

The new member of the league this year is the university school for boys at Stone Mountain. This school was admitted last September, and since then has participated in every event of the league and will have a speaker at the contest on Friday night Georgia Military academy will not be represented in the contest this year.

The winner of the contest, will be awarded a handsome medal by Mayor Woodward, who will also make the presentation speech.

At the contest held last year at Taft hall in the auditorium, Cecil McPhail, declaiming, "The Defense of John C. Cook" by Vorchees won the medal.

The schools to be represented in the contest this year are: Boys' high, Tech high, Stone Mountain, Peacock-Fleet, Marist, college and Donald Fraser. The speakers from these schools are as follows: John P. Stewart and Walter P. Binns, from Boys' high. H. N. Cobb, and E. D. Cuints, from Tech high, Emmitt and Van Valkenburg, from Donald Fraser, Smith and Dunagan, from Stone Mountain, McCall and Jewell, from Marist college, and Pew and one other speaker to be selected from Peacock-Fleet.

Professor J. A. Boyd, of Donald Fraser is in charge of the contest this year and Donald Fraser has been using to all details of arranging the meet Professor Boyd will act as master of ceremonies, or president of the society.

The music will be furnished by the Marist college orchestra, who furnished the music last year to everyone's satisfaction.

ST. LUKE'S M. E. CHURCH BEGINS EXTENSION WORK

St. Luke's Methodist church has opened an extension of the church at 268 Waldo street. It will be known as the Waldo Tabernacle. Sunday school will be held each Sunday at 9:30 a. m. and preaching at 11 o'clock. Both services will be conducted by Rev. R. L. Mobley.

Dr. John S. Jenkins, missionary secretary of the North Georgia conference, will preach at St. Luke's church Sunday morning at 11 o'clock.

Rev. J. D. McPhail at Commerce

COMMERCE, Ga.—Rev. J. D. McPhail, assistant pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Atlanta, Ga., filled the pulpit of the Presbyterian church at the 8 o'clock service last Sunday night. The announcement had been made at the morning service that Mr. McPhail would preach last night, and in consequence of that fact there was an unusually large congregation present to hear Mr. McPhail. Mr. McPhail's subject was "Forgiveness," the supreme test of the Christian character.

All-Day Service at Sharon Church

An all-day service will be held at the Sharon Baptist church Sunday. The service will begin at 9 a. m. The morning service will be a missionary program and very interesting. Dinner will be served on the ground at noon.

The first part of the afternoon program will be an Easter service by the children of the Sunday school. Then there will follow an Easter egg hunt. The afternoon service will conclude with a great song service.

Dublin Meeting Closes

DUBLIN, Ga.—The services which have been held at the First Methodist church of this city for the past two weeks will close Thursday.

Rev. R. A. Edmondson has been conducting the meetings and has preached some strong sermons. The attendance has been unusually good.

FRUIT EXCHANGE GIVES INFORMATION ON CROPS

President Hunter Gives Data Showing Results Obtained by Organization

Now that the peach crop seems to have passed safely through the blighting season the greatest problem confronting the growers is the gathering for distribution of what promises to be a bumper fruit crop.

President W. B. Hunter, of the Georgia Fruit exchange, has just written a most illuminating and convincing article on the features of the Georgia Fruit exchange. He presents much interesting data and facts showing the result of the proper handling and distribution of peach crops through the medium of this organization. The article is addressed primarily to those growers who are not yet members of the fruit exchange, showing out the great benefit to be derived through marketing their 1914 crop through the medium of this co-operative organization.

He points out that it is really members of the Georgia Fruit exchange who are independent rather than those who are not members of the exchange. He proves the independence of the members by showing how they are relieved of all details incident to the sale and delivery from the time it is ready for market until it is sold and the high prices received for the fruit.

The exchange is now making a thorough canvass of the state in an effort to interest the few remaining growers not now members of the exchange in order that all may work together in handling the crop promised to be the biggest fruit crop Georgia has ever produced.

It is estimated that unless the recent cold snap has proven more disastrous than is feared Georgia will ship over 6,000 cars of peaches this year.

FLORIDA BANKER GLAD OF ATLANTA'S VICTORY

W. B. Sadler Declares Whole State Is Pleased With the Board's Action

"Jacksonville is glad Atlanta won the regional reserve bank for this district; Florida is glad this city was successful in its fight," declared W. B. Sadler, vice-president of the Hemt National bank, of Jacksonville, and former Florida state auditor, who is in Atlanta on a few days visit.

"Atlanta's claims for the institution were unanswerable. There was no way the committee appointed to select the sites could get around the Georgia city's argument. The committee is now having a discordant rattle from over in the vicinity of New Orleans because the reserve bank failed to get the depository, but had New Orleans been selected, that same committee would have been deluged with protests from a little corner, but from over the entire south.

"It would have been unfair to Florida, Georgia, Tennessee and all but a small portion of Alabama had the Louisiana city been named as the center of this district.

"The trouble with New Orleans is that she looked her stable after her horse had been stolen. Securing Atlanta of locking the stable door with politics and pull.

"Politics have politics played a part in the selection of the sites. If it hasn't it could have done better.

"The trend of trade in the south is toward Atlanta, not New Orleans.

"Atlanta, Jacksonville, is going to be a bird of a debutant. She too, has many suitors. Manufacturers and capitalists are besieging her daily and some day she will be recognized as the next best looking daughter of the south."

Mr. Saddler, while in the city is the guest of W. G. Peeples, local manager of the Western Union Telegraph company.

GOV. SLATON TO ADDRESS WESLEY HOSPITAL CLASS

Executive's Participation in Program April 20 Will Set New Precedent

Governor John M. Slaton will establish a new precedent in commencement programs when he delivers the address to the graduating class of nurses from Wesley Memorial hospital on April 20. No previous class of nurses has enjoyed honor of this portion.

Another new departure in the graduation of the 1914 class of Wesley Memorial will be the commencement sermon, to be preached in Wesley Memorial church next Sunday, April 19, by Rev. W. R. Hendrix, the pastor.

The formal exercises, at which Governor Slaton's address will be heard, will be held Monday evening, April 20, in the church. The full program will be announced later. Friends of the graduates and the hospital are invited to attend.

This will be the eighth class to graduate from Wesley hospital. Its members are Miss Ella Margaret Brown, of Dalton, valedictorian; Miss Mary Sinclair Battey, of Oakland, Cal.; Miss Nina Laurette Axley, of Murphy, N. C.; Miss Margaret Spence Evans, of Tampa, Fla., and Miss Sarah Gertrude Holloway, of Atlanta.

On the morning of April 20 the alumnae of Wesley hospital training school will assemble at the hospital to form an alumnae association. There are over forty of these graduates.

FILE 186 SUITS AGAINST SUGAR REFINING CONCERN

NEW YORK, April 11.—Arguments on exceptions to 186 suits demanding damages in the aggregate of $160,000,000, filed by various Louisiana sugar interests against the American Sugar Refining company and Jackson T. Witherspoon, local manager of the company, were heard in the United States district court today and the case was taken under advisement. The sugar company and Mr. Witherspoon are attached in the suits, which are practically identical, with operating in violation of the Sherman law.

Revival at Decatur

Great interest is being manifested in the revival services now being conducted by the Rev. Frank Hall Wright, the Indian evangelist, at the Decatur Presbyterian church. Services are held twice daily, at 8:30 in the mornings and 7:30 at night.

A feature of the meetings is the song service, led by Mr. Walter Good, assisted by a large chorus choir. Come, you time will be well spent, and you will experience a spiritual uplift.

TRAVELING MEN'S REPRESENTATIVES TELL HOW THE NEW MILEAGE PLAN WAS SECURED

STOP-OVER TICKETS PROVE THE MEANS OF SOLVING DIFFICULTY

Interchangeable Mileage to Be Restored a Few Days—Stop-Over Tickets Will Be Placed on Sale June 1

R. A. BROYLES WAS FATHER OF NEW MILEAGE PLAN

Railroad Chairman of Georgia T. P. A. Tells How New System Originated and How Its Adoption Was Secured

The new mileage fight a new ...ile has been evolved which the representatives of the traveling men's organizations who were instrumental in securing its adoption declare is not only a most happy but a final solution of the problem and that they are convinced the traveling men of the state will be much satisfied with when they become ...miliar with its details and find ...t works in practice.

The new plan was established last ...ednesday when the railroad commission approved the agreement made by the traveling men's representatives and the passenger traffic officials of the railroads whereby a distinctly new mileage system will be inaugurated, the central point of which is the stop-over ticket privilege.

Under the new arrangement interchangeable mileage will be restored in the form in which it ...peared before it was ...ruptly ...celled January 2, 1914, ...SM all passenger script, at the rates for ...ormer classes of the respective roads.

This mileage can be exchanged for tickets which will be good over the line of the carrier issuing the ticket, but ...t beyond the line of the conductor or ...ticket collector. It will be good for ...60 days and will allow a stop-over at ...y or all intermediate stations.

The present mileage, good only in Georgia and which is pulled on trains, will be discontinued.

Credit for the plan is due to R. A. Broyles, railroad chairman of the Georgia division of the T. P. A., who originated it, and to H. D. Shackelford, representative of the U. C. T.'s and the Georgia Travelers' association, who did valuable work in putting it through.

Mr. Broyles and Mr. Shackelford met with the traffic officials of the various roads at the Ansley hotel on March 31, at which time the new plan was discussed and at a further meeting, April 7, the agreement was signed which was approved last Wednesday by the railroad commission.

In another column will be found an interview from H. D. Shackelford explaining the advantages to accrue to the traveling men from the ne wsystem.

Below will be found a statement of Mr. Broyles in which he discusses in detail the various points of the new system.

Mr. Broyles' statement, made in reply to an inquiry from the Firing Line, follows:

In reply to your inquiry relative to a final settlement of the mileage question between the railroads and traveling men, I was happily brought to a ...ee of perfect harmonious agreement between the railroads and ...ir ...ed commission on April 7, when I was always confident it would be (when they had duly considered), after being given our ...ights as ...

SALESMEN TO BE MEMBERS OF COMMERCE CHAMBER

J. H. Andrews Heads Committee Which Will Carry Out the Idea

J. H. Andrews, secretary of Post B of the T. P. A., has been appointed chairman of the commercial travelers' standing committee of the Atlanta chamber of commerce by President Mell R. Wilkinson.

Following this appointment last week Mr. Wilkinson announced that the traveling men are to be made associate members of the chamber of commerce with all the privileges of the new building at the corner of Auburn avenue and North Pryor street.

"All men traveling for Atlanta firms and Atlanta men representing foreign houses will be tendered the associate membership and the start on a campaign to secure a large number of such members will be made when Mr. Andrews calls a meeting of his committee in the near future.

"I believe the effort to enlist the traveling men is going to be successful," said President Wilkinson last week. "Their quarters in the new building will be attractively furnished and everything will be done for their comfort and convenience. It will be an ideal place to carry out of town customers and the cafe to be opened in connection with the chamber will be an attractive feature.

"The chamber will have a very effective set of men to co-operate in it's work in the commercial travelers. They are the original 'boosters for Atlanta.'"

The idea of chamber of commerce memberships to traveling men was first proposed by Wilmer L. Moore during the latter part of his term as president.

DABNEY CO. TO FEATURE JOHNSTON HARVESTERS

Will Give Floor Demonstration All This Week—All Persons Interested Invited

The W. J. Dabney Implement company will give a floor demonstration all this week of the celebrated Johnston harvesting machinery at their store rooms at 96 Forsyth street. The Dabney company are state agents for the Johnston machinery and invite everybody interested in harvesting machines to come and witness the demonstration which is bound to prove interesting and instructive.

THOMAS N. CLYATT WEDS MISS LITTLEFIELD

The marriage of T. N. Clyatt and Miss Littlefield, of Atlanta, was solemnized last Wednesday morning at the parsonage of the Second Baptist church, Rev. John E. White, the pastor, officiating. The happy couple are now in Florida on their honeymoon. Mr. Clyatt is the popular city salesman of Pain & Stamps and his bride is a young lady of beauty and many charms. The ceremony was performed in the presence of a small party of friends among whom were W. P. Pain, who was best man, and W. C. Stamps, of the firm of Pain & Stamps. All the Firing Line circle wish for the happy pair long life and happiness.

AUTO TRUCK HASN'T HURT HEAVY HARNESS BUSINESS

So Says D. Goldin, but He Acknowledges a Shrinking Demand on Light Harness

That the coming of the auto truck has not so far resulted in any falling off in the demand for heavy harness is the experience of the Goldin Harness factory, of Atlanta.

Some interesting figures are given by this concern regarding the effect of automobiles in general on th eharness business. During the last three years the demand, according to Mr. Goldin, has dropped 10 per cent on carriage harness, 50 per cent on surrey harness, and 25 per cent on buggy harness.

"The heavy harness and pony harness are holding their own," says Mr. Goldin. "There has been an unusually large number of ponies sold from the Atlanta markets in the last six months which has helped pony harness business. We are selling just as much heavy harness as ever."

The experience of this local dealer is in accord with a recent statement of J. H. Ward, secretary of the Western Harness Manufacturers' and Dealers' association, who said that "the fine harness business has fallen off about 50 per cent as a result of the introduction of the automobile but the heavy harness business is improving steadily, being better than ever before."

INDUSTRIAL TOUR WILL BE HELD ON MAY 26

The second industrial tour of Atlanta which was scheduled to take place on May 6 has been postponed until May 26. The change of date was due to the fact that the time at first fixed upon fell just between grand opera week and the Shriners' meeting, both occasions being periods when the railroads would be especially busy. The railroad officials held a meeting with Secretary Leahy, of the industrial bureau on Friday afternoon, when the new date for the tour was decided upon.

EVERY MAN WITH CO. SHOWS A GOOD GAIN

Figures for the business of the first three months of the year were completed last week at the Coca Cola-Nashkin Drug company and a comparison with the same period of last year shows a substantial increase.

The increased business is well distributed among the salesmen, not a one of them failing to show a gain and the force includes the same men as in 1913.

OFFICIAL OF U. C. T. SHOWS BENEFITS OF NEW MILEAGE PLAN

H. D. Shackleford, Who Represented U. C. T. and Ga. Travelers in Mileage Agreement, Discusses Its Merits

"SIMPLE, EFFECTIVE AND HIGHLY SATISFACTORY"

Believes Arrangement Will End All Mileage Difficulties and That Travelers Will Be Delighted With It

"I consider it one of the biggest victories ever gained by the traveling men and one that will solve all the mileage trouble with which they have heretofore been contending," said H. D. Shackelford, representative of the U. C. T.'s and the Georgia Travelers' association, in discussing the new stop-over ticket plan and the restoration of interchangeable mileage with a Firing Line representative last week. "The plan is so simple and so effective that I believe that it will be adopted throughout the southeast and in other parts of the country.

"The plan was first suggested by R. A. Broyles at the time of the recent hearing before the railroad commission on the mileage matter. I saw that it was a satisfactory solution to the whole mileage question and I gave it a hearty indorsement. Railroads asked for a conference on the subject and two meetings were held, the first on Tuesday, March 31, at the Ansley hotel, at which Mr. Broyles and myself presented the matter to the railroad traffic officers, and it was duly discussed and an agreement reached on it at a later meeting.

"The principal complaint the traveling men have had about the old mileage system was that they were compelled to lose a great deal of time at small town stations, exchanging their mileage for tickets, time which they desired to be devoted to their business. It was recognized by the travelers that, as the larger terminal points there were swift, efficient ticket agents and the exchange of mileage for tickets was made without any time or annoyance. Under the plan that has now been adopted, and given approval of the railroad commission of Georgia the travelers will be compelled to exchange his mileage for tickets only one time and that at the beginning of his trip for the week which in practically all cases is from a point having full ticket exchange facilities. The ticket which he gets allows him to stop off at any intermediate points that he may desire without the purchase of any other ticket or the use of his mileage at all.

"To illustrate this, on Monday morning the traveling man usually has his trip for the week mapped out, say, he desires to work the territory from Atlanta to Macon, he takes his mileage to the ticket window and has it exchanged for a ticket to Macon. The ticket is a Macon ticket and has on it the name of every station between Atlanta and Macon. He can then visit every station on the route to between the two towns on this ticket, provided he keeps within the five-day limit, and should he desire, when he gets to Jonesboro to drive from Jonesboro to Hampton, he can have the unused portion of the ticket from Jonesboro to Hampton redeemed in cash. In fact, all unused portions of the Macon ticket may be redeemed in cash by following the usual regulations that the carriers require in such cases.

"The greatest inconvenience any traveler may be put to would be the exchange of his mileage for his ticket once a day, and all traveling men know what towns they will make in one day, and most of them, as I have said, know which towns they are going to make for the week.

"The new plan in a measure gives to travelers a flat 2-cent rate all over the state of Georgia. I have the personal assurance of the general traffic managers of the Central of Georgia

START WORK ON NEW HOME FOR JOHN DEERE PLOW. CO.

Farm Implement Concern to Have Handsome Building at Nelson St. and So. Ry.

Excavation work began last week for the new home of the Atlanta branch of the John Deere Plow company.

The announcement of this new building carries an added interest because of it being the first in the new Terminal district development west of the railroad.

With five floors, two below and three above Nelson street, 16,000 square feet to the floor, the building will house the largest agricultural implement stock in the south. It is to be of concrete, mill style, construction.

The company's architect and John C. Battle, of Atlanta, together planned the building, and the contractor is A. V. Guda, of Atlanta. It is being built by Ernest Duncan, secretary of the company behind the new Terminal district development, and leased to the Deere corporation for twenty years.

Spacious offices covering nearly a half of the second floor above the street, with separate rooms for stenographers, a traveling men's room, a lunch room, a ninety-feet a minute speed freight levator, and a five-car shipping space are some of the features of the building.

The big implement concern, which has factories at Moline, Ill., and branches throughout the country, has developed its southern business rapidly since its Atlanta branch was established about five years ago. W. H. Steele is general manager of the southern branch.

The company intend inviting the Deere dealers from all over the south to the "opening" in August.

Spring Bottlers' Trade Opens Fine For Frank Revson

One of Atlanta's jobbers with whom Spring business is opening up nicely is Frank Revson, of Revson Brothers' supplies.

The 25,000 square feet of floor space in the Revson warehouse is well stocked. Last month was the best the concern has had in years.

Capital City Co. Adds Another Auto Wagon to Service

Another auto delivery wagon has been added by the Capital City Tobacco company for deliveries to the city trade.

This is the concern's third truck, all three being now in daily use. The first was bought in April, 1912, and the second in July, 1913.

INGRAIN CARPETS STILL ENJOY STAPLE DEMAND

While Not So General in Use as Formerly, the Demand Persists

Ingrained carpets are not a dead article in the furniture trade, though many dealers have so considered them.

The Rosenfeld company, the Atlanta jobbers of house furnishings, report many recent calls for the ingrained variety in their carpet department.

Many of the sales of this class of goods are to churches and other institutions with only an occasional call from private individuals. As some furniture dealers do not even know they can secure these goods in Atlanta it will surprise many to know there is still a fair sale on them.

APRIL TRADE BRISK AT J. D. FRAZIER CO.

Business for the past week has been on the boom for the J. D. Frazier company, makers of mixed molasses stock feeds. The mixing plant has been running at night to keep up with the constant flow of outgoing shipments. The shipments to south Georgia and South Carolina have been especially large. Notwithstanding the rush, however, the company has everything in hand so that all shipments go out promptly on schedule time.

SKETCHES OF ATLANTA'S PIONEER CITY SALESMEN

NO. 4—J. W. REAVES.

J. W. REAVES.

Mr. Reaves Has Been Working the City Trade for 24 Years—There Are 300 City Salesmen Now to 50 When He First Began—Retail District Was Confined Principally to Four Streets

J. W. Reaves, who has been working the city trade for the last 4 years and who for the past 18 years has been continuously with the Gershon Brothers company, wholesale dealers in woodenware, is one of the few horses among the pioneer city salesmen of Atlanta.

He and his son, Henry W. Reaves, cover the city trade for Gershon Brothers and make a team hard to beat, with the experience of the father and the enthusiasm of the son, both alike result-producing.

"When I first began work as a city salesman," said Mr. Reaves, "Atlanta had a population of only about 85,000 and one man could easily work the trade. There were practically no stores on the corners in the residence streets and the retail district was confined principally to Peachtree street, Whitehall, Decatur, Marietta and Wall, Mitchell streets and West End. There are now as many stores scattered in the residence part of the city as there were business houses on the main streets in those days.

"Perhaps 50 would comprise the total number of city salesmen in Atlanta at that time. Now there are fully 300. Competition of course is sharper and it requires a larger degree of activity and a higher grade of salesmanship for the city salesman to succeed.

"If I were giving advice to any young salesman just starting out, I would say to him, 'Never misrepresent anything. If you haven't got what your customer wants, don't substitute.'

"I have seen many men try the retail game, have seen many succeed and many fail. From my observation I would say that those who succeeded put a fair profit on their goods and do not become price cutters. A fair profit is necessary to anyone staying in the mercantile business. The successful retailers have been those who in addition to this watched their expenses closely and kept up with the times. One thing I believe putting into all departments of their work continuous enthusiasm and energy.

"I was a charter member of the Atlanta City Salesmen's association and consider that this organization has done more than any one factor in upbuilding the wholesale trade here."

Mr. Reaves was born in Watkinsville Ga., in 1861. He came to Atlanta in 1890. His first work was with J. Harmon, after which he went with the firm of Beattie & Lampkin, wholesale grocers, as bookkeeper and floor. After firms that he worked with before going with his present firm, Gershon Brothers, were Wilson, Bell & Company, wholesale grocers; J. J. & J. E. Maddox, wholesale grocers, and the Warren Grain company.

"ONLY PARTIAL VICTORY," SAYS HOLLINGSWORTH

Declares Mileage Pact Dwarfed Victory for Travelers, Full Grown One for Roads

Editor Firing Line:

Since the published information of a settlement of the mileage question, I am asked on sides what I think of it. First, I am glad to have interchangeable mileage back, but see no victory except for the railroads. The stop-over tickets if we travelers were foolish enough to buy them, would in many instances prove a revenue to the railroads for the reason that as explained in the news columns, the long mileage would be pulled.

To illustrate, I will quote the trip from Atlanta to Savannah. The long mileage is 295, the short about 265 or 270. Then those of us who travel frequently double to save time and would be paying double fares.

We might admit that this is a dwarfed victory for us, but a full grown one for the railroads. If the roads want to offer some little inducements to get the travelers to help them out of the mess they dumped themselves and us into by withdrawing the interchangeable books, why do they not continue to sell individual books subject to the just and reighteous rules made by our railroad commission?

The railroads have just realised they have taken all the chances with the judgment of the public and higher courts as is safe, and dropped the bait, that users of the book would never bite at, nor mistake for a victory.

The railroad commission has been patient, earnest and fair to all concerned, and I feel sure that if the matter is dropped where it is the roads will concede this while they laugh down their sleeves at our fickleness.

We real travelers who use the book are not fooled, but are satisfied, and feel sure the railroad officials know who knows a subterfuge from a victory.

Yours truly,
C. J. HOLLINGSWORTH.

HIRSCHBERG CO. TO PUT ON UNIQUE STATIONERY

The Hirshberg company, now busy preparing their new line of samples for fall business, have secured the new novelties a line of foreign stationery.

The stock of foreign letter paper will be received in time for fall and will be presented to all of the southern trade by the Hirshberg travelers.

A very wide variety of colors and a unique texture of paper distinguish the line.

BROWER CO. HAS SUCCESS WITH PRIZE ASSORTMENT

The Brower Candy company salesmen are having much success with the new prize scheme assortment the concern is offering the trade.

The first of the new $5 assortments were taken out by the salesmen last week. The idea embraces a prize ticket scheme that is expected to make them quite popular.

Latest Pattern Walking Cultivator

It has a perfectly balanced frame with stationary offset axles.

It is the easiest cultivator of all to widen or narrow. It has an adjustable arch, easily regulated by two set collars.

Wheels have two-inch tires, extra strong. The boxes are capped self-oiling and dust-proof.

The hitch is direct from the clevis on eveners to the end of each gang, giving a straight pull from the gangs.

The gangs are of an entirely new pattern.

There is a slotted hole in each gang coupling, and five hole clasps attached to each evener, by means of which the gangs can be made to follow straight and pull to or from the row, as desired. This entire change can be made by loosening only two nuts.

Each gang swivels in the gang coupling, which permits the inside standards to be placed in position to clean beds from any grass or weeds. The outside standards swivel in cross head, which gives an adjustment of the outside standards entirely independent of the inside ones. Each of the standards can be placed separately at any angle desired or necessary for the farmer to use shovels, scrapers, sweeps or discs to the best advantage.

To the Grocery Trade

We'd like to fix things so that when you think of groceries, you'd think of McCord-Stewart Co.

It's that way now with just thousands of retailers. And it's getting more so all the time.

There are reasons—lots of them.

One is that we carry such tremendous stocks of good stuff.

Another is that we sell this same good stuff at the lowest possible prices. You see, we both buy and sell for cash, and that cuts out all the extras. Rock bottom.

Another reason is that we manufacture Farm Bell goods—soda, baking powders, flavorings, candies. We put up Farm Bell teas and coffees. These goods are known to be pure and honest—made at home—freights minimized.

And, maybe the best reason of all is that folks know we positively live up to what we say.

CORRESPONDENCE CARDS ARE IN GREAT DEMAND

Stationery Trade Finds Cards Now in High Favor With Consumers

A tendency of the trade in the stationery business that is becoming quite marked is the demand for correspondence cards.

With the experience of the S. P. Richards company taken as an index it can be said that the popularity of this stationery is now at its height.

This firm states that one-fourth of their entire sales of box paper this season have consisted of these cards, while two years ago they did not make more than a tenth of the business.

The cards, known in the trade also by the name of "regret cards," are used for short notes and come in all colors as with the regular note paper.

H. L. SINGER CO. MAKES BIG PINEAPPLE DEAL

Contracts for 2,500 Cases of Gold and Silver Bar Hawaiian Pineapples

The H. L. Singer company last week signed a contract for the largest single shipment of pineapple ever sent south of Baltimore. The shipment will consist of over 2,500 cases of pineapple to be shipped direct to Atlanta from the Hawaiian islands. The deal was made by Dolan, Lifsey company, brokers of Atlanta, for Griffin & Skelley, of San Francisco, packers of Gold and Silver bar fruits. railroad, the Louisville and Nashville, and the Western and Atlantic roads that have never recognised the 2-cent mileage, that in the near future their roads will adopt the 2-cent mileage plan of the other carriers, and the traveling men will thus have the 2-cent rate throughout the southeast which includes the territory south of the Potomac and east of the Mississippi. Interchangable mileage will be restored in ten days and the coupon stopover tickets will be put on not later than June 1.

"I am satisfied and delighted with the new plan and I am sure that all the traveling men, when become thoroughly familiar with the new system, will be convinced that it is the solution of the mileage system and that it will meet with their hearty approval. It is wonderful in its simplicity and I feel that the carriers have at last recognized the traveling men are their most valuable patrons and are now willing to consult with us for the mutual interest to both parties."

Shacklefod Thanked For Mileage Victory

The following letter has been received by H. D. Shackelford from George A. Gershon, prominent member of the A. C. T., with reference to the mileage agreement.

Dear Sir and Brother:

It was with a great deal of pleasure that I read the announcement in the press of your successful work in the interest not alone of the traveling men, but of the traveling public.

Every loyal member of the U. C. T. as well as the public generally, should tender you a vote of thanks for your interest in their behalf. The writer knows the enormous amount of work you have done in this matter and as a member of the organization wishes to extend to you his many thanks and appreciation for your efforts in this most deserving cause.

Sincerely and fraternally yours,

Senior Counselor U. L. Cox urges that as many members as possible from Council 18 attend the meeting of the grand council at Jacksonville, Fla., on May 7 and 8. He wants Council 18 to make a splendid showing on that occasion.

JENKINS WRITES ON TRAVELING MEN'S TRAITS

Tells of Their Open-Handed Generosity at Home and on Road

Editor Firing Line:

If I could write an eulogy, it would be on the traveling man. With all his splendid, noble traits of character, the world knows very little about him. His character, his personality, his salesmanship, his all round good qualities are often misunderstood and underestimated.

As I sat in the convention hall of the Travelers' Protective association at Columbus last week I thought of the traveling man in a thousand different ways. There he was struggling and striving for uplift of humanity, the public good, his progressiveness, his untiring efforts to bring about better conditions.

Surely the time will come when he will be more clearly and more definitely understood if not better rewarded. As a whole traveling men are the most optimistic set of men that can be found and carry sunshine and success with them everywhere they go. They believe in the future and the great present. They think success, talk success in an earnest, honest, faithful, thoughtful way that is effective, helpful and so beneficial to others.

As Ike Bolk said, "Golden hearted men that radiate sunshine and happiness wherever they go."

Growth and development do not come by accident. It comes by hard, honest and faithful endeavor. Albert Erlish won the secretaryship by hard work. No first rate salesman would have anything that did not cost something. He is used to paying for what he gets, all he gets and some things he does not get. He meets extended hands for pay, churches to be built, organizations of charity to be kept up, at home and on the road, customers and would-be customers, friends and would-be friends. Christians and would-be Christians all turn to the traveling man in times of need and want.

His smiles, his friendship, his purse are all theirs. His goodness never stops, the hotels, the porters, the waiters, the bell boys, the cab man, the liveryman, are all on the job. Then when he goes home, its wife and children where duty begins and ends. Home enterprises and institutions come in for their share of reward. The traveling man, God bless him, I would crown him the fairest, squarest, best of men.

Yours truly,
W. M. JENKINS,
Press Chairman Georgia Division Travelers' Protective Association.

E. L. ADAMS CO. HAD 25 PER CENT INCREASE

Editor Firing Line: When the Firing Line representative was at our place on Saturday last and asked about how business this year compared with last, we stated that up to March 20 we showed a 25 per cent increase over last year. The item as it appeared in your columns reads "3 per cent." As a 2 per cent increase would not be worthy of notice the error possibly places us in somewhat of a ludicrous attitude before your readers, since the error is not self-apparent, and while, of course, the error was unintentional, we feel in justice to ourselves it should be corrected. Yours very truly,

"You and I both purchase tickets to Dalton at the Atlanta ticket office. Both of us want to go to Dalton, you direct without stopping, while I want to stop at a half dozen stations on the way. Now, if the roads will sell me a ticket with these stop-over privileges with sufficient time to make my destination I will concede no further complaint is justified, as we would then be on a parity."

"Later I made this statement to Mr. J. R. Richardson, chairman of the Southeastern Passenger association, stating it would solve the whole mileage problem. He communicated my views as expressed to the various passenger agents and traffic managers, who at once called a conference with Mr. Shackleford and myself, and the suggestion was with unanimity accepted and agreed to.

"I was fortunate in being able to speak at this conference, both from the standpoint of the traveling man and a former railroad transportation man. These carriers did not regard the acceptance of this proposition as being wholly in the interest of their patrons, but recognized the great benefit to themselves in concentrating their accounting in the hands of their most capable agents at terminals, taking this responsibility and labor off the small agencies where necessarily agents who are not near so capable are employed.

"Hence my belief is that they will make this plan operative throughout the southeastern territory, and perhaps other passenger associations will gladly conform to this rule, for, while 'tis true we (the traveling men) got all we wanted, yet the roads will also be greatly benefited."

Mr. Shackleford rendered me valuable aid in our efforts and the United Commercial Travelers are fortunate in having a man of his ability as their representative."

SAMPLES AND SHIPMENTS

ON THE ROAD AND IN THE OFFICE WITH ATLANTA'S BUSY ARMY OF COMMERCIAL TRAVELERS

The "ins" at Fain & Stamps yesterday were Cliff Edwards, W. A. Bailey and S. E. Smith. Ben Thompson, of this firm, paid a visit to headquarters last Thursday.

The E. L. Adams company since beginning the summer custom of closing on Saturday afternoon at 1 o'clock has changed the hours of its Saturday salesmen's meeting from 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon to 10:30 o'clock in the morning.

Max Samuels, who travels Mississippi for the Hirshberg company, says Atlanta's 1,500 feet above the sea level looks good to him after his recent flood experience at Jackson, Miss., where the water rose to a three-foot depth in his hotel while he perched on a trunk to keep his feet dry. Mr. Samuels is largely occupied just now with Masonry work and will be in Atlanta several weeks.

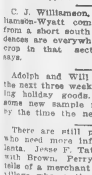
A. J. Bruce, representing the Thomas J. Lipton teas and coffees, was a visitor at Fain & Stamps Saturday after a trip to the territory about McRae and Eastman, Ga.

Boykin S. Pennington, former traveler for the Ragan-Malone company, now representing the Quinn-Marshall company, of Lynchburg, Va., was calling on some of his friends among the Atlanta salesmen yesterday. He says he is much pleased with his new connection.

A. S. Harris who is working in southeastern Alabama for the A. M. Robinson company is having the best business he has had since he returned to this house about a year ago.

J. P. Armstrong, new man on the Georgia road for the Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company, is reported by this concern to be doing well.

Zack Daniel has been doing two men's work down the Georgia road. His teammate for that territory, Sam Hanes, has been kept in Atlanta for the last two weeks by the serious illness of his wife. She is much improved and Mr. Hanes will be among his customers again this week.



The first shoe salesman to use an auto around Atlanta was W. N. Nichols, city man for the Grambling - Spalding company. It looked like he might have to return to the trolley cars temporarily when an express wagon mule started in on his car last week while it was standing in front of the company's place and chewed up a corner of the top covering before he was stopped.

C. J. Williamson, of the Ridley-Williamson-Wyatt company, has returned from a short south Georgia trip. Evidences are everywhere of a fine peach crop in that section this year, he says.

Adolph and Will Montag will spend the next three weeks in New York buying holiday goods. The firm's handsome new sample room will be ready by the time the new stock arrives.

There are still plenty of merchants who need more information about Atlanta. Jesse F. Tate, the hat salesman with Brown, Perryman & Green Co., tells of a merchant in a South Carolina village who, noting the announcement of the regional bank for Atlanta, inquired blandly if the town didn't have one bank already.

T. B. Fowler, popular city man of the Capital City Tobacco company, who has been kept at home by illness for the last two weeks, is improving, but is still unable to be out. W. E. Parks is looking after both his own and Mr. Fowler's territory.

Easter mail order business has been keeping the Orr Shoe company force working extra hours during the last several days.

J. N. Alexius, special representative of the M. Stachelberg company, is on a trip through the larger towns of South Carolina and Georgia with M. J. Diemmer, of the Capital City Tobacco company.

George E. Morgan, manager of the Atlanta Coffee Mills company, has returned from New Orleans, where he found the principal topic among the coffee people is the high prices of the last few weeks.

A carload order from George S. Blount was one of the good things of the week at the White Hickory Wagon Manufacturing company.

When two leaders get together on a trip a good string of orders must be the result. C. C. Phillips and T. B. Lewis, of the Capital City Tobacco company, are doing team work in south Georgia for a short period to show just what can be done in selling tobacco.

For a three-minute visit to his house, the S. P. Richards company, E. S. Harrison stopped off in Atlanta one day last week. With health much improved and good conditions in his territory, he is going strong now.

W. T. Heath and C. A. Clifford, the road men of the H. L. Singer company, are prizing up things these days in the way of orders. The city men of this firm will have to get a wiggle on to keep ahead of these two new but alert travelers. I. R. Banks, the shipping clerk, has already had to turn a little more steam on his always high pressure activity in order to get out promptly the shipments for these rapid-fire order takers.

Frank Baker, the recent addition to the Grambling-Spalding staff who is in the south Georgia field for them, is reported by his house to have made a good get-away and landing fall orders at a pace that will push some of the old regulars.

T. K. Johnston, sales manager of the John Deere Plow company, will return tomorrow from a several days' stay at Savannah.

E. F. Geiselman paid a visit to headquarters last week and an all the talk at the John Deere offices is of the new buildings they are to have, his customers can look out for a great deal of his fund of enthusiasm being spent on these lines for the next week or so.

Speaking of sales far from home, an Atlanta concern's man out in Texas, M. J. Kent, of the Rosenfeld company, is greeting spring with sales of blankets that are liable to break all records of this concern on this item before the season is over.

H. Y. McCord, Sr., made a two-day business trip down the Georgia road last week.

L. C. Scott, representative of the Lauson Manufacturing company of New Holstein, Wis., makers of the Lauson Frost King gasoline engine, was a visitor last week at the W. J. Dabney Implement company. Mr. Scott was delighted with the prospect for sales of his engines in the south. "The use of gasoline engines is fast increasing everywhere in the southern states," said he. "The fact the south is a wonderful country and its development is just beginning upon the long era of progress which is before it."

W. R. Simpson of Jones Brothers & Co. spent the latter part of last week at Montgomery taking orders for his company's pickles, preserves and vinegars. C. M. McKain of this company secured a car load shipment at Albany last week while R. E. Dawson spent the week working the retail trade at Tampa, Fla., with the salesmen of C. B. Witt & Co., wholesale grocers of that city.

The March business of the W. J. Dabney Implement company showed a 32 1-2 per cent increase over March of last year. The spring business of this company has been unusually strong and the year 1914 bids fair to show a wide margin over the entire year of 1913.

M. Lehman, who has been for several months working local territory with salesmen of the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co. on a campaign with a new cigar, has returned to New York. He has made friends here who hope to see him back in this field again.

Among visitors to the Lamar & Rankin Drug Co. last week were the following: Dr. Bowdoin, of Adairsville, Ga., Dr. Carlisle, of Carrollton, Ga.; H. B. Barnett, of Lovejoy, Ga.; Dr. Starr, of Newnan, Ga.; W. E. Jacobs, of Loganville, Ga. An opening bill order was taken from Dr. Power, of Roswell, Georgia.

Down at the McCord-Stewart company last week there was much rejoicing over the fact that the fruit crop escaped a freeze during the recent cold snap. A big fruit crop means a big demand for fruit jars which this company handles, and besides a good fruit yield means wide prosperity for many of the richest sections of Georgia and the south.

MORGAN-THORNTON CO. NEW BROKERAGE FIRM

L. B. Morgan, Jr., and D. M. Thornton Form Partnership to Handle Groceries

A new brokerage firm, the Morgan-Thornton company, composed of L. B. Morgan, Jr., and D. M. Thornton, has entered the local field to deal principally in grocery specialties.

With about twenty-five manufacturers' accounts, and a wide acquaintance in local trade circles, the new firm starts with a bright future. It will carry a strong line of canned goods and cover the state with them. Both members of the firm are young men, experienced in dealing with the grocery trade. Mr. Morgan through his connection with the American Bakeries corporation of Atlanta as salesman, and Mr. Thornton through several years with the N. K. Fairbanks company in Atlanta and T. S. Southgate & Co., of Norfolk, Va. Both have many friends here who will watch the progress of the new firm with much interest.

The concern has offices at 325 Atlanta National bank building.

AGRICULTURAL WORKS TO ADD BIG FLOOR SPACE

Lets Contract for Building 40,000 Square Feet to Its Immense Plant

The Atlanta Agricultural works on Friday let a contract for an addition to their factory approximating 40,000 square feet of floor space. Business has been so heavy with this company during this season that it finds its plant inadequate to take care of the constantly increasing demand, and have found it necessary to build this addition to the plant.

A Kind of Substitution That Will Help You

Volumes, more or less, have been written on the "substitution evil."

"You're rather a young man to be left in charge of a drug store," said the fussy old gentleman. "Have you a diploma?"

"Why, er—no, sir," replied the clerk, "but we have a preparation of our own here that's just as good."

They've got the habit in some stores. "Just as good" comes to their tongues just as naturally!

Now, we haven't got the faintest idea of sermonizing on the substitution EVIL today—this spring day, with hints of the New and the Better and the Brighter everywhere about us.

But we do yearn to drop into your thought-box an idea or two about a kind of Substitution that will HELP YOU.

We're speaking to Merchants—to Dealers who live and sell and have their profits right here at home, in Atlanta, in Georgia, in the neighborhood of home, so to speak.

What you want, Dealers, is stuff that will sell. That goes without saying. There's your basis.

There was a time when you had to buy that sort of goods FAR AWAY.

But that day is history—gone glimmering!

It's gone because now you can get the JUST AS GOOD goods AT HOME.

Are you willing to substitute the Short Haul for the Long one and save the freight?

Are you willing to substitute Home Products for Foreign ones and spin the dollars round in local territory?

Are you willing to substitute Local Enterprise for Remote Push and add the weight of your loyalty to home development?

This is the kind of substitution that will HELP YOU.

You can't, to save your life, get away from the economic fact that whatever benefits your community benefits YOU. No use to argue—it's a visible, tangible, self-evident FACT.

And here's another—just as incontrovertible:

You, as Dealers, and we, as Manufacturers, have INTERLOCKING INTERESTS.

We need each other. We're bound to get together.

You need us as your best, nearest, cheapest source of supply.

We need you as our steadiest, surest, most desirable Outlet.

It's the natural relation. It's the safe one for us both. You see we're being perfectly frank and open with you and with the public.

We urge you to SUBSTITUTE us, your neighbors, for Tom-Dick-and-Harry, your remote and inaccessible acquaintances.

We can meet the said Tom-Dick-and-Harry at every point with our JUST AS GOOD goods.

We are educating the people up to this standard as fast as we possibly can.

If you Dealers will help us, we'll hit the double-quick.

If you Dealers will help us, we'll both benefit by the co-operation.

If you Dealers will help us, we'll both be doing a beneficent public service.

And that's where the thing stands. Go to it!

Our traveling men are easy to reach. We are easy to reach. There's the telephone, the telegraph, the mail. There's the parcel post, the fast express, the hundreds of trains a day out of this town.

What do you need? What does your trade want? What are the farmers of your community going to buy?

They're going to be governed by you—largely.

Just keep it in mind that the SUBSTITUTION we are suggesting is the kind that will HELP YOU. Make us your Supply Base and train up your buying constituency in the way it should go.

How do you feel about this, brethren? We'd like mighty well to hear from you. Drop us a line.

What we make is JUST AS GOOD. To have the Home Folks use it is a "HEAP BETTER."

GEORGIA REPRESENTATIVE WINS IN SPIRITED DEBATE

William Schley Howard Has Lively Tilt With New Yorker in House

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, April 11.—William Schley Howard and John J. Fitzgerald, of New York, engaged in a spirited debate in the house today, and the young Georgian more than held his own with the veteran New York legislator, who is chairman of the appropriations committee. The tilt today resulted from an attack which Fitzgerald made yesterday on the Democratic party for its alleged extravagance. Howard and many other Democrats had succeeded in overthrowing Fitzgerald's desire to defeat a $9,000 appropriation for an assay office in Montana. Thus angered, Fitzgerald proceeded to denounce his own party and make campaign capital for the Republicans

Today Howard sought an opening to answer Fitzgerald, and the New Yorker innocently gave it to him. Howard asked to reduce the number of messengers on the pay roll of the war department. The messengers by the way are negroes

"If a mgilad th egentleman has let has had the effect of bringing the gentleman from Georgia to a willingness to economize," observed Fitzgerald with fine sarcasm.

"If this is his conscience offering a sen gratitud," said Howard.

"I am gla dthe gentleman has let down the gap for me to make a few words regarding the statement he made here yesterday. The Democratic party is not guilty of the extravagance with which the gentleman from New York charges it.

"The gentleman from New York talks about the defection yesterday of Democrats who voted against his committee. I remember the other day the gentleman from New York bolted his party, his president, and violated the tradition of the Democratic party and in doing so he attempted to throw millions of dollars into the hands of the shipping trust in toll through the Panama canal when his party stood four to one against any such subsidy for coastwise vessels.

"The trouble with the gentleman from New York is that he has assumed to himself all the wisdom of the Democratic party and wants the country to believe that he is the only economical Democrat in the party. It is all right when the gentleman wants an increased appropriation for New York, or when only a western state asks for $8,000 the gentleman from New York gets mad and denounces the Democratic party."

ARCHITECT'S DRAWING OF STATION AS IT WILL LOOK COMPLETED.

Old Style of Square Brick Building Gives Way to New and Attractive Bungalow Type

The new fire station to be built in the Eighth ward, on West Peachtree street, near Fourteenth street, is a radical departure from the old style square brick building commonly used for fire stations.

An old style fire station in the heart of an up-to-date residence section would not harmonize with its surroundings and would be objectionable to the home owners.

Consequently the Atlanta fire department, at the instance of Fire Chief W. B. Cummings, has evolved a new type of fire station for residence sections.

It is simply a bungalow, built as near by like a home as possible, and as attractively as the city's appropriation will permit. The picture shown above illustrates the type. The station in the Eighth ward is the second of the new style houses to be built, the first one being in the Tenth ward. Instead of being an eyesore to the neighborhood, the bungalow fire stations are decidedly pretty and attractive, with their brick walls, tile roof, well-kept lawn and flowers.

The main room of the Eighth ward station, which will be entered through the archway, is where the automobile fire apparatus will be kept. On the left side of this room, facing the picture, will be a combination library and living room for the firemen. There will be four bedrooms, and on the rear a sleeping porch.

As said above, Chief Cummings originated the idea of a bungalow fire station, and built the first one in the Tenth ward. The Journal published a picture of that station, together with some descriptive facts, and the story was copied in many parts all over the country, with the result that Chief Cummings in a few weeks got inquiries from many other city fire chiefs, and the bungalow style of architecture is now in general use where fire stations are to be built in residence sections.

In the designing of the new station for the Eighth ward Chief Cummings collaborated with the architects, Morgan & Dillon, taking advantage of the experience gained in the Tenth ward station.

For securing the appropriation to build the station, credit goes to Councilman W. G. Humphrey, the Eighth ward's senior councilman. In 1912 he got an appropriation, only to see it taken away later in the year to meet some emergency. In 1913 it again happened. This year the councilman got his appropriation again, and now he is planning to spend it before other emergency arises.

M'NEW AND MATHEWS CONVICTED AT LYERLY

Will Be Sentenced Tuesday for Robbery of Bank on January 29

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

LYERLY, Ga., April 11.—At a call term of the Chattooga superior court, held yesterday and today, Mark McNew and Frank Mathews, charged with robbing the Bank of Lyerly on the night of January 29, were tied and convicted without any recommendation to the mercy of the court.

McNew was not able to secure counsel inside Moses Wright, Walter Wesley Shropshire, of Summerville, to defend him. F. W. Copeland and Barry Wright, of Rome, came to his assistance. The jury was out only two hours and twenty-five minutes on each case.

As the regular term of court for the case of Mathews was set for trial, Mc-New having confessed to the robbery and implicating Mathews, many of the state's main witnesses against Mathews are

In the trial Friday, McNew swore that the confession he made was forced and that he knew nothing of the robbery, but Mathews resembled the man that brought a sack to his house on the morning after the robbery that had something in it that rattled like silver money.

Mathews, who is said to be in the last stage of tuberculosis, is not confined in jail, but is under guard at his home.

Judge Wright has set Tuesday, April 21, to pass on them. It is thought there will be a motion made for a new trial.

Condemned Man Asks Deputy Sheriff to See Him to the Gallows

When John Wright, condemned Fannin county murderer, goes back to Blue Ridge to die on the gallows Deputy Sheriff J. L. Bridwell, undertaker is going with him as friend and spiritual adviser.

Wright, who has been held in the Tower many months, pending an appeal of his case, was carried Wednesday to Blue Ridge and resentenced to hang on June 5.

On his return he told Mr. Poindexter, who is one of Sheriff Mangum's deputies, that he would like very much to have him next time and hear his dying statement. The deputy has promised his prisoner to comply with his request.

Wright declares that he wants Deputy Poindexter, instead of a minister, to stand by him on the gallows and hear his last words. His final statement will be a declaration of innocence of the crime for which he was convicted, Wright says.

The Fannin county man has been condemned for the murder more than a year ago of the wife of Mr. Moultrie Hughes. Hughes, holding his child in his arms was shot and killed while standing in his cabin door, and a bullet also pierced the child's body. Several people, who have not been apprehended are also alleged to have been connected with the crime. Wright was charged with firing the shot that killed the child.

The verdict of guilty has been sustained by the supreme court, and Wright will be executed on June 5 unless the governor intervenes.

AUTO TRAIN TO SHOW BIBB'S ALFALFA CROP

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MACON, Ga., April 11.—Under the auspices of the Bibb county agricultural fair board, which has charge of the first automobile, alfalfa and clover train for this county will be operated next fall, according to farmers, merchants and other business and professional forces of Macon and the county. It is hoped eventually to turn out for an inspection of the alfalfa and clover crops of the county, which crops were never grown in Bibb to an extent until the agricultural institute was formed several years ago.

The automobile train will be in charge of W. G. Middlebrooks, county demonstrator, who has worked out all plans for the spending of an entire day inspecting these crops.

THE THEATER IN NEW YORK

By Myron C. Fagan

NEW YORK, April 11.—Theatrical managers in this city are recognizing Holy Week and as a result the only new production in sight for this week is the revival of "Pinafore" at the Hippodrome.

But, as the storm frequently follows a calm, so will Easter Monday ushering in an avalanche of new productions. In fact, the theatrical map is soon to undergo almost a complete change.

"LADY WINDERMERE'S FAN."

One of the best of all the attractions on view in this city is Margaret Anglin's performance of Erlynne in "Lady Windermere's Fan," Oscar Wilde's dramatic gem. As we all know, the role of Mrs. Erlynne is one that might lead the average actress into an emotional display verging on the maudlin. A mother who has played the game of life so badly as to cheat herself out of a daughter is a character likely to fill the actress who plays it with self pity. But Miss Anglin knows her art too well. Never for a moment, not even when words are like so many daggers to wound her, does she play for sympathy.

This revival is in very good hands this year. Miss Anglin being well supported by Mrs. Leslie Carter as the duchess. Miss Margaret Maud in the title role and Pedro DeCordoba as the young husband.

THE "BELLE OF BOND STREET."

Last week's activities ran exclusively to revivals, the Shubert theater being given over to Gaby DeLys and Sam Bernard who appeared in a revised edition of "The Girl from Kays," now known as "The Belle of Bond Street."

First honors went to Bernard in his old role of Horgenheimer. He played the part with the zest that he brought to it in the days when "sufficiency" was the by-word on Broadway.

Gaby makes a beautiful "Belle" and is proving possession of real histrionic power. Others in this revival are Harry Pilser, Lawrence D'Orsay and Leslie Collins. But it was sputtering Sam Bernard and disdainful Gaby DeLys who carried "The Belle of Bond Street" into the highway of success.

EXHIBITING GAME RAPPED.

The recent convention of exhibitors in Cleveland, Ohio, emphatically condemned the manufacturers of films who entered into the exhibiting game, and, while no definite names were used it was generally understood that a direct shot for the Vitagraph company which operates the Vitagraph theater.

The Cleveland exhibitors surely reckoned with little consideration if such was the case and it now seems that the many rumors to the effect that the Vitagraph company was embarking in the exhibiting business on a large scale have been started, in fact all unfounded. This is shown by an announcement that "A Million Bid" and "Goodness Gracious" are being released to the public through the General Film company.

The Vitagraph theater opened Saturday night, February 7, 1914, with the policy of four shows a day. The pictures displayed were "A Million Bid," a five-reel drama from the play "Agnes," by George Cameron (Mrs. Sidney Drew), and "Goodness Gracious," a three-reel comedy evolved principally by J. Stuart Blackton and staged and elaborated by James Young.

SHUBERT TO BOOK PICTURES.

Announcement is made by the Shubert theatrical interests that a new company has been formed to be known as the Shubert Feature Film Booking company for the purpose of booking motion pictures to be made from a long list of dramatic and musical comedy productions controlled by the Shuberts. W. A. Brady and other dramatic managers. The total number of plays thus made available for picture production approximates about 200, many of which are noted successes.

Joseph L. Rhinock as president of the new corporation; Jules Murray, manager, and Lou Weiss, booking agent. J. E. Brulature and Ch. Jourjon, of the Eclair company, are said to be interested in the new concern.

Work on productions for the new booking agency is now under way at the Eclair studios in Fort Lee, and, unfortunately, some of the negatives were destroyed in the fire which burned Eclair factory two weeks ago. But the plans for the new Eclair factory and studio are designed to take care of the large enterprise contemplated by the organization of the Shubert Feature Film Booking company.

Here's One Week Jovial Jack Prince Won't Be Welcome

Jack Prince, the rain-maker, had it in mind to visit Atlanta during Shrine week next month, but the local committee got word of it and has taken emphatic action.

They don't want that Shrine gathering spoiled by rain. And rain there will be—whole floods of it—if Jack Prince comes to Atlanta. That is proved by history.

Prince, whom Atlantians have known since the days when he used to conduct bicycle races in the old coliseum at Piedmont Park, is in Houston, Tex., opening a motordrome that he built there after he finished the one in Atlanta.

"I've been thinking I'd come to Atlanta next month when the Shriners were here, but I guess I'll see it taken away later in the year to meet some emergency," Prince wrote Noon Hudson, manager of the Atlanta motordrome.

Mr. Hudson hurried to the office of Potentate Forrest Adair of Yaarab Temple, who is in charge of the Atlanta Shriners' program.

"Just read that!" he exclaimed, thrusting Jack Prince's letter beneath the potentate's nose. "Read it! Read it all! I can see those motordrome races we've arranged for Shrine week, floating down the Chattahoochee river right now."

"You telegraph that man Prince if he shows his nose here during Shrine week we will have him arrested and sent off as far as the law can take him," said Mr. Adair, having read the letter.

"Tell him we think a whole lot of him, but we don't want him here Shrine week," Mr. Adair's message was sent liberately.

"Tell him if he waits until after the Shriners are gone, we will meet him at the depot with a brass band," he added.

Mr. Hudson transmitted the message, but has not yet heard from Prince.

"Why, even Lloyd's wouldn't give us insurance against rain if they knew Prince was coming," he said Saturday. "I won't sleep until Jack promises to stay away till after the meeting."

ANOTHER PLAYHOUSE CONVERTED INTO "MOVIE"

CHICAGO, April 11.—Announcement was made today that another of Chicago's large down town theaters—the sixth within a year and a half—would be converted into a moving picture playhouse. The latest theater to join the roster of the "movie" houses is the Princess theater in South Clark street, where legitimate drama and musical comedy has been shown since its construction several years ago.

MRS. T. E. PATTERSON PAYS TRIBUTE TO MRS. STEVENS

Noted Temperance Leader Was Known Throughout South

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

GRIFFIN, Ga., April 11.—Mrs. T. E. Patterson, of Griffin, president of the Georgia W. C. T. U., today paid a beautiful tribute to the memory of Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens, of Portland, Me., president of the national and vice president of the World's Woman's Christian Temperance union, who died at her home in Portland on the 6th of this month. Mrs. Patterson said:

Mrs. Stevens was the peerless leader of hundreds of thousands of America's brightest and best women, who loved and honored her for the great work she has wrought, and for her splendid and matchless leadership of sixteen years. Throughout the entire world hearts will ache and heads be bowed in sorrow when the news is broken that the "great chieftain" of the temperance forces of the nation has passed from earth to heaven. Like the Apostle Paul she might have said: 'I have fought a good fight; I have finished my course, I have kept the faith; henceforth there is laid up for me a crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give to me at that day; and not to me only, but unto all them also that love his appearing.'

"Mrs. Lillian M. N. Stevens has been characterized as a statesman among women reformers, a woman who, albeit essentially a woman, possessed a perception so keen, a logic so unerring, and a delivery so forceful she won the respect and admiration even of those who may have disagreed with the principles that she lived and labored for so faithfully. Mrs. Stevens has been active in the temperance and prohibition cause since 1875, and since 1878 she has held official position in the World's Woman's Christian Temperance union, succeeding Frances E. Willard as president of the national organization in 1898. She was vice president of the World's W. C. T. U. in the early days of the movement, Scotland, in 1910, and in the absence of the countess. Mrs. Stevens again presided at the last convention in New York in November, 1913. As a parliamentarian Mrs. Stevens had few equals."

MRS. LILLIAN M. N. STEVENS.

Mrs. Stevens, president of the national W. C. T. U., died on April 6. She was well known in Georgia.

EASTER CEREMONIES BY KNIGHTS ROSE CROIX

The ceremony of "re-lighting the lights," celebrated each Easter by all Knights Rose Croix, 18th degree of Scottish Rite Masonry, will be held this afternoon at 3 o'clock in Masonic Temple. The public is invited to attend, and ladies especially will be welcomed.

This is the companion ceremony of that held last Thursday night, in celebration of Maundy Thursday, when the lights were extinguished in compliance with the ritual of the degree. From the list of those participating at Maundy Thursday the name of J. LeRoy Duncan was omitted through a mistake. Mr. Duncan's part was perhaps the most dramatic in the entire mystic ceremony.

The Maundy Thursday and Easter ceremonies are obligatory upon all Knights Rose Croix. They are required to attend unless prevented by valid reason and even then they are required to take some part, in spirit at least, in the celebration.

Stops Tobacco Habit in One Day

Sanitarium Publishes Free Book Showing How Tobacco Habit Can Be Banished in From One to Five Days at Home.

The Elders Sanitarium, located at 953 Main St., St. Joseph, Mo., has published a free book showing the deadly effect of the tobacco habit, and how it can be banished in from one to five days at home.

Men who have used tobacco for more than fifty years have tried this method and say it is entirely successful, and in addition has improved their health wonderfully. This method banishes the desire for tobacco, no matter whether it is smoking, chewing, cigarettes or snuff dipping.

As this book is being distributed free, anyone wanting a copy should send their name and address at once.

BUCHU FINE FOR DIABETES

We Eat Too Many Sweets, Which Clog Kidneys — Try Old Folks' Recipe of Buchu and Juniper

Candy, sugar and sweets, eaten to excess, have a bad effect on the kidneys and bladder, causing Diabetes, says a well-known authority. The kidneys get clogged and sluggish and hurt. You experience scalding, drinking, urinating or too frequent passage of urine; forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; sharp pains in the back, joints and limbs; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and despondency. Diabetes, Bright's Disease. The moment you have any of the above symptoms of Diabetes and weak kidneys get from any reliable druggist a good, mixed bottle of Stuart's Buchu and Juniper Compound. Take a tablespoonful after each meal. Plenty of fresh water and abstain from eating too much sugar, sweets or highly seasoned foods. Your kidneys and bladder will then get fine and natural. Stuart's Buchu and Juniper has been used for generations by those with clogged kidneys, also to neutralize the acids and sugar in urine, so it no longer hurts you to pass water. It is an old-time recipe for weak kidneys and bladder and strengthens these organs and cures Diabetes, and reduces all swellings; also acts gently on the bowels. Be sure you get Stuart's Buchu and Juniper, as Stuart's is properly compounded for kidney and bladder trouble and Diabetes.—(Advt.)

CONSTIPATION IS THE BEGINNING OF NEARLY ALL DISEASES

Keep your bowels open and liver active and avoid biliousness and kidney diseases

All food eaten has some indigestible waste, which the liver clears away day by day. Now, a heavy or unusual diet, or a change in water, may cause the liver to leave a few particles, and the next day its cleansing work is more difficult. These particles pass and clog, and more are left over; and so this waste accumulates, clogging stomach and intestinal canal and causing Constipation.

This is not all. If this waste is not eliminated, it ferments and generates toxic acids, a poison, which gets into the blood stream and is carried along through the system to poison it and develop disease.

JACOBS' LIVER SALT dissolves the uric acid and passes it out in the urine. It flushes and cleanses the stomach and intestinal canal and relieves the liver from the pressure of fermenting waste matter. The liver then resumes its normal activity

JACOBS' LIVER SALT is much better than calomel. It causes no griping, nausea or vomiting, because it acts mildly and without force. It is the mercurial force of calomel that nauseates and salivates. JACOBS' LIVER SALT is harmless and bubbling, agreeable to everyone, and no other Liver medicine acts so quickly and so gently. Don't take an inferior substitute. Some stores may offer other preparations upon which they make larger profits, perhaps similar in name, but very different "in action to the genuine JACOBS' LIVER SALT. Large jar 75 cents by mail 15c extra). For sale by all Jacobs' Pharmacy Stores and druggists generally.

WHAT WILL CHURCH COMMISSION DO ABOUT STYLES IN GEORGIA?

"Styles are Going to Reform Themselves," Says Miss Virginia Bowie, Who Is One of the Authorities in Atlanta on Dress. "The Same People Who Came to Me a Year Ago and Asked to Be Made as Ridiculous Looking as Possible, Want Fuller Skirts Now. Mrs. Mary L. McLendon Said Something to the Point Not Long Ago When She Accused Men of Making the Very Styles That They are Criticising. It Used to Be That the Girl That Baked the Best Bread and Was Handiest With the Needle Had All the Beaus on Sunday Night. But It's Different Now."

HALF the ministers at last week's evangelical conference, where all the Protestant denominations meet, had forgotten that the Georgia churches have commissioned a committee to investigate new styles and new dances and decide what's to be done about them.

But not more than two weeks ago the commission met in Atlanta and appointed Dr. C. B. Wilmer, rector of St. Luke's, as a subcommittee of one to make the investigation himself and suggest to the commission the best course to pursue.

It was last November that the different Protestant denominations, at their separate state conventions, adopted resolutions agreeing that a joint commission should be appointed to create a public sentiment against new fads that are objectionable.

The Georgia Baptist convention, at its session in Gainesville, adopted resolutions, deploring "the immodest dances, the immoral theaters, the extreme and suggestive styles in women's dress, and the general lack of refinement and courtesy indulged in many young people of our day."

The Presbyterian and Methodist bodies adopted similar resolutions, and the Episcopal church, without declaring modern dances, women's dress or sex dramas, viewed "with alarm the widespread laxity of social usages and calls upon the clergy and laity alike to use all influence at present and example to correct these errors."

Styles Unchanged.

After these resolutions were adopted and the conventions had adjourned they remained as they were except for a ruffle added midway between the bottom and top hems.

And as for sex dramas. Atlanta and among others, "Bella Donna," which recognized no problem at all and contented itself with a realistic picture—boat boys waiting behind the scenes while the wife poisoned her husband.

The question of dress, dance and theaters have remained largely undisturbed, as far as the church commission is concerned, except for the immediate effect of the resolutions that were adopted and published.

But, while the existence of the commission has dropped out of notice and its activity has been delayed, its work really has just begun. Dr. Wilmer, as representative of the commission, will make his recommendations, the commission will refer its plan to the various churches, and the effort to discourage extravagant customs will have its beginning.

What the commission will decide is something the commission hasn't determined. But it is probable that a general effort will be made to discourage "laxity of social usages," and that no specific protest will be made against styles or dances.

Control the Children.

The resolutions adopted by the Baptist convention may be addressed to the various churches as a wise statement containing good counsel.

In speaking of unbecoming fashions in dress and manner, the convention resolved:

"First. That this convention is heartily and emphatically opposed to these things and, as we believe the fault lies mainly with the parents in the lack of control of their children, we earnestly and affectionately, in our Master's name, urge the fathers and mothers who are members of our churches, to see to it that these evils be taken away from the lives of our children.

"Second. We request all our pastors to resolutely, but at the same time tactfully, and in the spirit of our Master, preach and teach against these things, in their pulpits and in their daily intercourse with the members of their churches.

"Third. We call upon the Godly women of our churches, in their local societies and general conventions, to take this problem up earnestly and faithfully that their great influence may be exerted in suppressing these evils."

"Impertinent," Says Mrs. McLendon

At the time the state conventions were meeting and resolutions were being passed, the Woman's Christian Temperance association convened and was asked to deplore the extreme tendency of the modern woman's dress. The association declined to adopt such resolutions. And since then, Mrs. Mary L. McLendon, who attended this meeting and who is president of the Georgia Woman's Suffrage association, has insisted that it is a piece of impudence for any man to say how a woman shall dress.

"I think your—what do you call 'em—pantaloons—are more sensible," she grants. "But women are just as good and sensible as they ever were, and they can choose their own dress.

"It's a piece of impertinence for any man, business or ecclesiastical, to say what a woman shall wear."

And, according to Miss Virginia Bowie, who is one of the authorities in Atlanta, on styles, fashions are sure to become less and less open to criticism.

"I'm sure," she said last week, "that skirts are going to become broader, and that in six months time you won't see any more that are slit.

"The same people that used to come to me and say, 'Now, I want to be made just as ridiculous as you can make me,' are asking for fuller skirts.

"One thing Mrs. McLendon said was very true and very much to the point. As she put it, men make the styles now, women have to wear them—they've got to wear something—and then men pose as the critics.

Men Are at Fault.

"There are other ways men are to blame, too. I was telling one the other day that they cause women to dress outlandishly, and he couldn't understand why. Then, I explained.

"As I told him, you see a knot of men on the street corner, and a girl passes by who's dressed modestly—just as she ought to be. And do they notice her? Not any more than they notice the church paper when they get home and there's the sporting page of today's daily paper handy. But if she's dressed in a tight skirt and gaudy colors, they all look.

"Well, a woman's a woman. She wants to be noticed. It's natural, isn't it?

"Now, look how things used to be. A girl stayed at home and baked and sewed, and the one that made the best bread and was handiest with the needle was the one that had all the beaus on Sunday night. The girl that was frivolous and gadded about and didn't know, anything wasn't noticed.

"Well, women began to find out that men didn't like them any better for learning to be good housewives and real home-makers, and so they changed their habits. And now you hear mankind longing for the old-fashioned girl. Pshaw!

"One of the surest things about the fashions right now," went on Miss Bowie, "is that they're going to change. Fickleness is their characteristic. And my opinion is that the change is back to conservatism. I can see that the tendency is toward more sensible and becoming styles of dress, although maybe the sights you see on the streets don't go to show that.

Dancing to Become Stately.

"Nevertheless, women are already asking for wider skirts, and I am confident that by fall it will be apparent that styles are returning to the old sane, common-sense fashions. In six months' time there won't be any more slit skirts."

But the church commission is not concerned merely with dress, but also with all the other fashions—dances, the theater and social usages in general.

As for dancing, the teachers say it is tending every day toward the graceful and the so-called aesthetic and away from the crude steps danced to ragtime.

Mrs. Wayne Wilson, who studied dancing last year in various European cities, predicts that along with the summer and fall importations that reach Atlanta by way of New York will be steps that express nothing more than the rhythm of music which is semi-classical.

"The phases of dancing rebuked by the church will soon fall into decay, she believes.

"The tango as it has been danced here," she said, "has been more of a romp than a dance. But it is now beginning to have the grace and the stateliness of the minuet. The trouble with dancing here is that it is too fast. The music should be played slower, the dancers shouldn't let their shoulders move, more figures should be employed, and the dancers should catch the spirit of rhythm, which is the spirit of the tango."

Theater is Getting Better.

Mrs. William C. Spiker, president of the Atlanta Drama league, talks about the theatrical situation.

"We get plays that are objectionable, and good plays by poor companies," she says. "But there is a movement the country over for a better theater. As far as morals go the theater is getting better instead of worse. And this improvement is sure to continue, because playgoers are organizing everywhere to encourage the demand for better plays and to see that this demand is complied with.

"The thing we want in Atlanta is a municipal theater, and when we get it, we'll have the means of educating the taste of people. The problem of the theater now is simply one of education. Get people to wanting good plays and we'll get them.

"I think the most effective means to this end are lectures such as we have arranged. We meet, have some competent authority to discuss this or that good play, and learn in a practical, common-sense, real way about the drama.

"Any influence that will help better the theater is needed, but I think the most good will be done by the organizations of theatergoers."

As to what the commission will do, Dr. C. B. Wilmer, appointed as the subcommittee of one, has made only a general comment.

"Some of our styles of dress," he says, "are improper, and some of our dances are done improperly. It seems to me no sane man can deny that. This is what the churches thought, and their idea in appointing a commission was to create a counteracting influence.

"It is not their wish to lay down rules. They simply want to set up a feeling of opposition to any styles in dress that are improper and to any dances that are objectionable."

But while recommendations will be made by the church commission, individual churches probably will follow each its own course in discouraging unbecoming fashions in dress, speech and manner.

At the recent meeting of the Evangelical Ministers' association of Atlanta, the need of the churches speaking as a body, instead of expressing themselves through the medium of officers or the pastor, was urged.

This suggestion was made in a discussion of the attitude of the church toward locker clubs. But it was expressed as a fact true of the church's relation to any subject.

"Our opponents," explained Dr. Charles W. Daniel, pastor of the First Baptist church, "express themselves individually and in large numbers. But the churches are heard only through the pastor. It is time for the individual churches to act through their members. Present vital matters to the congregation and let them decide and speak for themselves. This gives weight to what the churches say, and leaves no doubt that it is the church and not merely the pastor who is speaking."

Toward the close of this meeting, Baptist, Presbyterian, and Methodist ministers were interviewed concerning the church commission and their opinion of the changes that are needed in fashions. But it proved to be true that the existence of the commission had slipped from notice, and that the question of dress, dances and theaters was not one of the prominent considerations before the Evangelical association.

Nevertheless, there is no doubting the fact that dress is creating a hubub the country over. Legislation has been proposed in some states, and many have been the resolutions passed to make the new-fashioned woman's attire accord with the old-fashioned man's views.

The crusade is begun by men.

And yet, says Marian Cox, in a widely-discussed defense of women's fashions, "woman dresses to please man. And as she is not yet developed sufficiently in her aesthetic sense to know how to achieve this end, her dress and fashions are designed, accepted, or banned by man. She has but one great inspiration in dressing herself, viz, man is a polygamist. Hence, the personal aim of woman's dress is always newness, variety, novelty. The clever woman of the world seeks to give man a new woman in herself every season, so new and startling strange from footgear to headgear, that he—marked by Darwin as being ready to pair with any female—cannot recognize the sameness of the old feminine core concealed by the mutations of fashion."

THE NEW POST-OFFICE

COFFIN IN WHICH PIZARRO'S BONES LIE

LIMA'S CHIEF BUSINESS STREET

—H.M.Jackson—

By Frank G. Carpenter

Lima, Peru.

CLIMB with me to the rocky top of San Cristobal mountain and take a look over the city of Lima. We are on the edge of the Rimac valley, within eight miles of the Pacific ocean and about 1,000 feet higher up in the air. Sitting on this bleak desert hill, the sea seems a wide streak of silver, beyond which are mountainous islands bordering the coast. Right in front of us, on the edge of the water, is the port of Callao with its mole reaching out into the ocean, and opposite it are the islands of San Lorenzo which are to be joined to the mainland to form one of the finest harbors of the eastern Pacific. At our backs, lost in the clouds, lie the high peaks of the westernmost range of the Andes; and right under us, so near that we could throw a stone on to its roofs, is the great low city of Lima, spread out on the plain. That winding stream which runs through it is the Rimac. It springs forth from the glaciers of the high Andes, and gives life to the irrigated valleys below. It alone makes Lima possible; and it waters the orchards and vineyards and great fields of grain which form the emerald setting for the yellow city, between us and the sea.

Now let us take our glasses and look more closely at the Peruvian capital. It was originally named the City of the Kings, and it was laid out by Pizarro only forty-three years after Columbus discovered America. There was a great city here 100 years before the ground on which Chicago and Cincinnati now stand had been trodden by the feet of white men. The city is one of the oldest of the hemisphere. It was born long before New York or Boston. It was the capital of all South America when the United States was subject to England, and today it is the quaintest and most interesting town upon the two continents.

Look at it as it lies there before us. The roofs are all flat and the houses are mostly of one and two stories. There is a vast expanse of low buildings, with a great cathedral and a number of different churches rising here and there out of the whole. The cathedral is almost in the center, with its great green plaza in front. That church was laid out by Pizarro before John Smith landed at Jamestown, and its original cost was more than a half million dollars. It has been thrown down again and again by earthquakes; and altogether it was ninety years in its building. It contains the bones of Pizarro, which we shall see later on.

As we look over Lima we can see other churches and convents whose spires extend high over the roofs. The city has seventy churches in all, and nearly every one will pay visiting. The church and convent of San Francisco is said to have cost $15,000,000; and the altar of Santa Rosa, the patron saint of Lima, had in it, when at its best, 1,500 pounds of gold and silver and jewels, which embraced 1,400 diamonds, 1,200 emeralds, 120 fine pearls and 600 rubies.

If you look closely you can see beyond the cathedral the Plaza de Armas, where stands the building which is now the Peruvian museum, but which was once the seat of the inquisition, and on the space in front of it hundreds were executed and many were burned to death, the victims of the autos de fe.

Now let us turn from the sacred to the secular parts of the town. There is one just below us. It is the great round Plaza de Toros, the immense bull-ring where fights are held every Sunday, and where the Limenos come by the thousands to see their favorite matadors butcher the bulls. Some of them are quite as bloodthirsty as the Romans when they looked at the gladiators in the amphitheaster at Rome. Only last Sunday, for instance, the bulls were not considered as fierce as they should be, and the crowd hissed the fighters and drove them out of the ring. They even began to tear up the seats, and set fire to the building, and the soldiers had to rush in and put down the mob.

The bullring is on this side of the Rimac. The main part of the city is over the river, and there we can see the palace of the exposition, which contains the museum, the government palace near the cathedral, the great university, the oldest in the new world, and the vast numbers of low yellow houses which are the stores and the homes.

But let us go down from the mountains, and make our way over the Rimac and wander about through the streets. There is no city in Europe that compares with Lima in quaintness, and but few in historic interest. The streets are narrow, and they cross one another at right angles. There are many great plazas or squares which have fountains and gardens; and, extending out from these, run narrow thoroughfares walled with low buildings. The buildings are all close to the street, and in the residence section the ground floor windows are covered with great iron bars. Where the houses consist of two or three stories, there are balconies that extend out above the street, and some of these are so wonderfully carved that they make you think of the harem quarters of Cairo, or those of old Spain. In the business parts of the city, most of the people live over the stores and stretching from one end of the street to the other are long lines of these balconies, each house having its own peculiar architecture. The main business streets are not more than thirty feet wide. They are so narrow that the single street car line is close to the sidewalk, and one must be careful lest he lose a leg as he walks through the streets.

The stores are far different from ours. Only the newest of them have plate glass windows, and there are no fancy fronts with gorgeous window displays, which may be looked at Sundays and evenings. The most of the stores have no windows at all. They are shut off from the street by great doors that are taken away during business hours. The shops are separated by thin walls, and going along them is like walking through a museum or an oriental bazaar. The sidewalks are narrow and the goods are displayed close to the streets. Many of the dry goods stores hang fancy patterns of cloth from the ceiling, and the larger establishments will have piles of goods put on the floors and stacked up near the street. Notions of all kinds are hung from strings stretched across from wall to wall high up, and all sorts of queer ways of display are contrived. The light of the stores comes in through the doors or from the roofs. Many of the business establishments are large, with stocks of fine goods. The prices are high. The best from all over the world is brought here for sale, and the city, while not a rich one, has thousands of well-to-do people.

The chief shopping hours are from 4 to 6 o'clock in the afternoon. At that time the streets are crowded with women and men, and the crowd is as thick as that between the treasury and the patent office on F street in Washington at about the same time. Moreover, it looks much the same. No one is in a hurry. The people saunter along or stop and chat with their friends. Nearly every one is well dressed, and nearly every man, old and young, carries a cane. The Limenos are very polite. The men bow and lift their hats when they meet, and they tip their hats and bow again as they pass. There are many well dressed women, wearing the fashionable outlandish styles of today, and there are also many who are clad in the dead black that the lady of Lima of the past always wore when she went out to walk. Such women do not wear bonnets, but they wrap fine shawls of black goods about the head, pinning them back so that the face alone shows. This background adds to their beauty, and the costume is far better than the monstrosities our women now wear. It saves the buying of new hats and bonnets and it is easy to put on or take off.

And this brings me to the crowd which one sees here on Sunday. Lima is a godly city, although we have a Methodist bishop here in my hotel who says it is the most bigoted on earth. It is altogether Catholic, and that not of the modern Catholicism of America and Europe, but somewhat the same as it was in the days o Pizarro. There are priests and nuns everywhere and often the streets are filled with families on their way to the masses which are celebrated at the cathedral and churches. Every one is dressed for the occasion and almost all of the women are clad in black. None of them wears hat or bonnet and none goes to church merely for the sake of showing her clothes. The usual headdress is the cloth shawl covering the hair and neck so that the face only shows out. Some wear mantillas or shawls of lace over the head and not a few are now beginning to wear dresses other than black. I am told that women would not be permitted to enter a church in a bonnet and that those who do so are tapped with a long stick by the sexton and told to take their hats off. In the churches the men sit by themselves on one side and the women have their seats on the other, making you think of a collection of nuns who are dead to the world.

I am told it is different when church is over. The people then put on their gay clothes. Some go to the bull fights and others have evening parties and dances. I would say that the costumes at church are far more seemly than those of our country, where one looks over a tropical garden of flowers and birds-of-paradise feathers in a vain attempt to reach the eye of the preacher.

The Sunday sights of the streets are also more seemly. There is no business done in Lima on the Sabbath. The stores are closed and you walk between blank walls or great doors fastened with padlocks. Every store has its windows of boards, and there is not a sign of goods of any kind to be seen. Sometimes there is a grating at the top of the door for ventilation and sometimes a round hole has been made at the height of one's face so that those within might look out; but there is no business carried on anywhere. This is also the case in the evenings on week days. The ordinary business hours are from 9 until 6; and at night there is no walking along and looking into the store windows. Indeed, after dark the streets are almost deserted, except near the moving picture shows which have recently captured Lima by storm.

And just here I would say that there is a great liberal movement going on in this country. The people are demanding liberty of religious thought and worship. New laws have been passed by the national congress and it is now possible for any person to establish any kind of a church where he pleases. Until now the Protestant missionaries have not been permitted to push their religion into the interior, but the new laws provide for full religious freedom throughout the country.

This movement is at its beginning in Peru, but it has been going on throughout South America for several years past. Ecuador, which was once very intolerant, has established complete religious freedom. Paraguay has done the same, and Uruguay is about to adopt a new constitution in which a section shall be inserted providing that there shall be no union of the church and state. Similar demonstrations are going on in Chile, and there a general demand is expressed that from now on religious and secular institutions shall stand alone.

But before I leave the churches I want to take you into the cathedral of Pizarro. It faces the Plaza Mayor with its palm trees and its beautiful fountains. It is in the heart of the city, and its towers can be seen almost anywhere over the Rimac valley. The building is said to be the finest church edifice on the South American continent with the single exception of the cathedral at Mexico City. The interior is very impressive, and it makes one respect the Catholic religion when he remembers that Catholics have worshipped for more than 300 years on that spot. The high altar is a fine example of massive silver construction and the stalls of the sanctuary are extraordinary specimens of Indian carving, when Indian carving was still in its prime.

On the walls are fine paintings by Murillo and other great masters, and the chapels are of exceeding beauty. I was especially impressed by that of Pizarro. The little verger of the cathedral took me into it, and under the altar he showed me the coffin in which Pizarro's bones lie. The coffin is of white marble with glass sides and top, so made that one could see plainly the remains lying within. The verger lighted a candle and waved it up and down over the glass. As he did so I could see all that is now left of the great Spaniard who first explored and conquered the west coast of South America. It consisted of a skeleton lying upon a red velvet cushion embroidered with gold. The skeleton is black as mahogany and it looks as though it were varnished. The skull lies on a pillow, the neck being fastened to it by wires through the ears. The jaw is a trifle drooping, the nose is prominent and the great eyeless sockets looked up at me as I gazed down through the glass top of the casket. As I looked more closely the whole seemed merely a shell. The skin has begun to peel from the shins and there are little worm holes in the bones. I am told that in times past patches of skin have been cut off and given to relic hunters, but as far as I can see the most of the corpse is intact, though decidedly leathery and the worse for wear. From the outside of the coffin I have copied these words:

"Captain General Don Francisco Pizarro, Fundador de Lima en 18 de Enero de 1535. Muerto en 26 de Junio de 1541." As I left I gave the verger a dollar, and Carl snapped a photograph of him as he showed me the door.

Lima is a city built in a desert. Its irrigated tracts are scattered through fifteen small valleys, and they consist altogether of about 70,000 acres of cultivated fields and woodlands. They are divided into 176 estates, many of the holdings being large. Practically the whole support of the city comes from this land, and from the trade with Peru.

The conditions about Lima are such that it never rains. There is not a waterproof nor a pair of overshoes in the whole town, and umbrellas are used only to keep out the sun. The streets have no gutters, and the roofs have no chimneys. All of the cooking is done over charcoal, the fumes of which get out as they can. The town has practically no backyards, and only on the outskirts are there gardens. The most of the buildings run around courts or patios upon which the chief rooms face. The larger houses are fine and they cover a great deal of ground, a single one often having twenty or more rooms, surrounding several large courts, in some of which play fountains amid tropical trees.

Many of the older buildings are beautiful and exceedingly comfortable. Some of them are largely constructed of sun-dried brick, or of plaster spread over a framework of wood, lathed with bamboo canes. The roofs are of this nature. The outer walls of such buildings are covered with stucco and the city has a very substantial appearance, whereas much of it, as I said in a former letter, is a combination of mud and fishing poles.

Of late they are putting up many fine structures of reinforced concrete; and along the Avenue of the Exposition, for instance, are residences that would be considered fine anywhere in the world. Lima has altogether now about 150,000 inhabitants. It is steadily growing, and when the canal is completed its population and business will greatly increase. It will be one of the chief tourist resorts of South America; and if it can only have some better hotels, it will be the most delightful resort along the west coast.

As it is now the hotel accommodations are limited. There are two or three large establishments which have rooms and board. You may take your accommodations on the American or European plan, and the rates are just about as high as those of the states. You will have chambermen instead of chambermaids, and your meals will consist of desayuno, almuerzo and dinner. Desayuno means the cup of black coffee and two little rolls which you eat for your breakfast. This the boy will bring to you in your chamber, and you may have it in bed if you choose. Almuerzo comes at 11 o'clock, when there is a fairly good table d'hote meal, and at 6 or 7 there is a table d'hote dinner. At both of these latter meals the dishes are Spanish, and they are rounded on a menu which most tourists need a dictionary to read. I am stopping at The Maury, which stands with the Grand as the best hotel in Peru. It is a great two-story structure with wide balconies extending over the street. I have a room, facing the street for which they ask $1 gold per day without board. Back of this is a little, dark sitting room. There are no private bathrooms to speak of, and altogether the hotel might be improved in a number of ways.

Federal Marketing Bureau

"One of these days the American people are going to the cupboard to find that there is nothing for breakfast."

That is the prediction supported by a mass of government statistics, made by Representative Hatton W. Sumners, congressman-at-large from Texas.

"The present increase of prices does not indicate improved economic conditions surrounding agriculture," he said. "It is instead the herald of coming hunger widespread.

"We are working toward a lower food supply level, because a small crop brings more money to the farmer than a big one, and just a little surplus knocks the bottom out for prices. Take the 1910 cotton crop situation. That year southern farmers produced 12,000,000 bales of cotton. The world said it was not enough. Next year they produced 16,00,0,000 bales. The world showed its appreciation by penalizing the farmers $125,000,000. Is it any wonder that the country boy quits in disgust when a 16,000,000 bale crop brings $125,000,000 less than a 12,000,000-bale crop? The corn crop of 1912 was considerably larger than the 1911 crop, yet it brought $50,000,000 less money.

"We must ourselves pay more for what we consume, or we must help our farmers to get a larger part of what we pay for.

"The government must create a sales department, or marketing bureau, perhaps a part of the agricultural department, but having close working relations with the department of commerce, the consular service and the treasury department.

"It should be a clearing house of information available to the seller and to the buyer. It should afford a facility in making sales similar to that which a real produce exchange could afford. Through its agency these products could be standardized. Sales could then be effected at the point of origin and the congestion of some markets, while others are unsupplied, could be avoided.

"Year before last in Texas, I saw thousands of bushels of vegetables rotting in the fields, fields of watermelons ungathered, because the price to be had did not pay for the cost of marketing. Yet 50 hours away from these same fields canteloupes were selling for 5 cents apiece. Under anything like a proper method of distribution these melons could have gone to the tables of ones could have gone to the tables of the average family at a price which would have given the farmer some reward for his labor.

A Practical Experiment

(Boston Herald.)

The friends of a certain distinguished professor frequently dropped into his lab. for a chat in the evening. Generally they found him busily engrossed in some experiment.

One evening, when two friends called, they found the professor bending as usual over a spirit lamp, on which a small pot was boiling.

"Well," said one of the callers, "what is it tonight?"

"Cocoa," murmured the professor.

"Micrococci?" asked one.

"No."

"Pneumococci?" asked the other.

"No."

"Spirochaetae?"

"No."

The callers ran the scale of micro-organisms as far as they knew it. Then one of them said:

"Well, we give it up! What is it?"

The professor smiled blandly. "Summer

Healer's Meetings At Old Baptist Tabernacle Are "Abnormal," Say's Atlanta Preacher.

Mrs. M. B. Woodworth Etter, the Healer

"These people," says Dr. Owen, "Are Perhaps Good People and Sincere. But their Methods Are Clearly Abnormal. That Some of the Cases of Healing Are True I Will not Deny, Some I Think Pure Failures."

By Rev. William Russell Owen
Pastor of the Capitol Avenue Baptist Church.

At the request of The Atlanta Journal that I visit the Etter meetings now in progress at the "Old Brighton Tabernacle," and ascertain the truth of the claims of Mrs. Woodworth Etter and her followers to heal, to speak with tongues and to fall in trance visions, I visited four meetings.

I spent over two hours in a morning testimony meeting, about two in the afternoon and considerably more than that at night. I paid another short visit later. I tried to secure an interview with Mrs. Etter but missed her.

On my first visit I did not see "Sister" as she is affectionately called. The meeting was conducted by a man who seemed to be in charge, but with the impression of little force. Testimony after testimony was being given. I heard a preacher who at present has no church and who has recently been in a most distressingly despondent state of mind, give his testimony. He ascribed to these revival meetings all the zest again in the right way, and he trusted that now the way was open for him to preach with his old time zeal a full gospel, which he had learned through the demonstrations of the divine healing. He told how a missionary had been healed of pain but it was still inflamed and swollen and still limping. Then followed a sweeping the "Hallelujahs," and "Amens" and the "Praise the Lords" and testimony after testimony. The emphasis seemed to fall on the healing power of Jesus. This woman declared that she could read the figures on the bulletin boards. She declared that Mrs. Etter, who, she says, is all the credit to God.

Testimonies and Tongues.

Then the voices of those who had all been pitched different keys, and the words of their testimonies took the form of the old-time preacher. One woman worked herself into an unusual state of excitement. He was earnest and very honest seemed to me, and was about half way in his exhortation when he began to testify to the fact that he was filled with Holy Ghost. One of the loudest and fullest voices, but his sincerity was not questioned by me. She said that when she was baptized (meaning the baptism with the Holy Ghost baptism) she had spoken different languages. They said," she declared. "I don't care if she never spoke again." As she ended her stirring exhortation she closed her eyes, speaking, in tongues, a sentences in what sounded like Hebrew to me. In a very short while a gray-haired woman garbed in black and very frail, began to stagger to the platform and speak in a quiet way and so low I could not distinguish her words. She offered what was evidently a testimony and then growing excited and whirling her arms and waving her hands she closed with louder and faster speaking in a tongue which I judge was perhaps German.

There was no doubt that what these ladies said was not English, though I am unable to say it was some intelligible tongue. They spoke always with great excitement. The young man who was leading the meeting told how that when he was baptized with the Holy Ghost he was carried through the air for at least a quarter of a mile and once when he was prone on the ground on the farm a cloud of fire half as large as the room where he stood had enveloped him with a mighty power.

The "hallelujahs" and "glories" and "amens" by this time had burst out in a discordant chorus. Music with a peculiarly emotional air was now begun. The stronger and stronger it swelled the more frequent became the "He loves me, He loves me, He loves me. I save myself to Jesus because He loves me so."

I was peculiarly impressed with what I had read of the Indian religionists with their hypnotic powers. I had read that one of their methods of producing the impression they desired over their subject was the art of repeating "mum," "mum," "mum" in a droning fashion that has a peculiar emotional influence on the mind. The singing was genuine, hearty, though only fair music.

Healing Demonstrations.

Then came the call for all who wished to be healed to come to the front. The singing never ceased. The drone and confused murmuring kept pelting away at the mind and the personal band of workers engaged in conversations and prayer for the afflicted.

I can testify to two cases which seemed to me to be cases that may be granted as healed or at least benefitted. One old lady hobbled to the platform. She was a poor woman, as her plain black dress and poke bonnet seemed to betray. She was prayed with. She was shouted on. She was shouted "at." Her hands were placed above her head and she was exhorted to praise God and believe and shout "glory!" A sweet smile broke over her face and in a splendid simplicity she walked up and down the platform really praising God. This sister had been lame.

The other case was also an older woman who seemed from her cheap neat dress to be a poor woman. She likewise claimed to be healed. I asked her if she was really healed.

"Well," she said. "I am better. I was paralyzed. I cannot straighten out my hands, but the pain is gone. I can work my fingers a little better." The fingers, however, were still badly distorted.

Here were two cases genuine, so far as I could tell, but to me they were sadly explained. The chronic condition was one which only some great stimulous as this excitement to hope and faith could benefit. It was a clear case to both instances of suggestive therapeutics.

Demonstrations of Trance.

In the afternoon I returned to see a meeting not so well attended and wholly different in character.

It practically started with a purling croon. The low murmurs would blend into a subdued song which now and then would be broken by a shriek, a shout, and often from the young leader by a sound that seemed much like a soft bleating, as of a sheep. This was evidently a meeting in which the followers of Mrs. Etter thought the spirit was making demonstrations of trances and swoons and stares and poses and convulsive spasms and twitchings and visions and practically all the phenomena which one can find in these meetings, except I did not see at this meeting the holy dance which came at night and the speaking with tongues which came in the morning.

I must confess that the meeting in the afternoon did not impress me with the seriousness or sincerity of the one in the morning. Everybody was asked to pray. One little girl was praying in the platform and she would get from her knees occasionally to rearrange the beads about her neck, at least so it seemed to me. Her companion fell prostrate in a swoon and held her hands twitching aloft for perhaps half an hour. At night this young woman testified in a modest way that I could not hear, but Mrs. Etter told that she had seen visions of the saints going up in the trance of the morning. Another man fell into a trance and fixed his rolled-back eyes toward the ceiling and remained thus for a long while. One young lady was in a corner in convulsive spasm, in which she seemed to suffer as one in an ordinary convulsion. She would embrace those who were holding her and then roll back on the floor, dragging them along. Then long, gaunt hands were lifted, twitching, jerking clenching, shaking through long periods. The singing still continued, while the confusion of noises now was certainly unpleasantly confusing to me. I felt like one feels who has been to a street carnival and is made oppressively awearied as he hears the jargon of sounds beating their distressing discord of pains, of jeers, of laughter, of weeping, of sighs, of whirling wheels, of dragging feet into his ears for hours and observes its pushing, moving, moving, massing human interests and human concerns and human incidents that pass in the panorama of the crowded streets. It was the din and roar of a multitude disquieted.

Some Humor Seriously Meant.

In this meeting there was much loud testimony from women—rather it was shrill and strained and piercing. One woman with a good face, an honest face, rose to testify to her baptism in the spirit. She was from Griffin. She had been healed for many years by Jesus only." Her teeth had been her chief trouble and she testified "that they were better now than ever." As she spoke her voice rose to a high keyed tone, broken now and then with a peculiar laughter which was in the nature of an emotional religious ecstacy. It was contagious, however, as she stopped for breath and laughed "Ha! ha! ha!" in a pleasing way. The audience laughed also. She cried with great emphasis. "The Lord has cured me, soul and body, teeth and eyes." Once she said she had used glasses at first, but now she had thrown them away. (By the way, Mrs. Etter used glasses at night to read and complained of the drafts being hard on her voice.) "Oh," she shouted, "I said before the baptism that nobody could have religion with such a husband as I had, and I prayed God to make Jack better, but 'Hallelujah,' 'Glory to God,' 'Praise His name,' 'Ha, ha, ha,' the trouble was with Mary and not with Jack; praise the Lord." This testimony was so genuine and human it brought forth many amens and shoutings. She caused quite a laugh when she invited all who cared to investigate her case to have a look at her teeth as a proof of her healing. At the close of her testimony she threw back her head in convulsive twitches for perhaps ten minutes. One sister said: "That sister yonder said her baptism was 'cam,' but mine warn't, the cats and dogs knowed it when I was baptized. I made some noise, I did."

One of the men who had been singing in the choir told me that at one of the meetings the young leader had made a strange gurgling in his throat which was pronounced heavenly music.

"If that was heavenly music," he said to me; "I can beat that down here."

My Impression of Mrs. Etter's Meeting at Night.

I was not impressed with Mrs. Etter as I had expected to be. I was told she was quiet, but she was not. Her voice I expected to be soft and gentle, it was harsh and hoarse and quite loud at times. I was impressed least with her sincerity than with the sincerity of all those whom I saw and heard in the other meetings. I do not doubt Mrs. Etter's sincerity, however. But I was not impressed with her personality as I had expected to be. Her whole time in the first part of the meeting was to get some kind of movement. She finally asked all who wanted to go to heaven to stand. All stood. She urged testimonies, which did not come as readily as in the morning. She waved her hands incessantly, urging more singing, or more testimonies. She was really the central figure in the crowded auditorium.

Mr. Burge, of the local Gideon band, made the announcement that the Old Tabernacle was so crowded that they desired to push back the walls, which have been considerably reduced in capacity since Broughton used it. He said $250 or $300 would do what they wanted. After an effort of perhaps a quarter or half an hour to get pledges started for the amount he gave it up as a bad job. I followed the amounts called out, which I heard and they were in one dollar and ten dollar and five dollar pledges. The amount thus pledged and obtained was $37. Maybe it was larger, but this is what I heard.

Her Sermon.

Mrs. Etter preached about Paul's seeing a vision and the "fire-works of God," as she termed it. She was not as impressive a preacher as I had expected. "It took three visions for God to bring Paul to power," she said. She rather ridiculed the churches for being unpiy and having a historical faith and being devoid of signs and wonders. The attitude of the meetings is not especially sympathetic with the churches.

"The world wants to see the supernatural and they have a right to see it. You see it here, don't you? 'Greater works than these.' You see signs here, don't you?" She preached quite a long time. She had good attention, but not rapt attention, and concluded with a call for those who desired to be "baptized" and to be healed. There was immediate confusion and singing, and thronging, and the excited people stood now during the healing practices of Mrs. Etter.

One woman said she had been lame for eight years. She certainly stepped pretty lively over the stage that night after Mrs. Etter had pulled and rubbed, and punched, and stroked, and shouted and exhorted her. Another woman said she had her blindness healed, at least I think it was blindness she said. Another, who appeared to be a Jewess, came with anxiety on her face, slowly and with pain, to the platform. After a rather strenuous effort by Mrs. Etter the Jewess arose and, walking the platform, praised God in the finding of a Saviour and the losing of pain and weakness after four operations which rendered her useless.

One woman who brought her young boy and another a lady with her baby were motioned off the platform because they had not given themselves to Christ. "You needn't expect God to do anything for you until you give yourself to Him," the young assistant shouted. One baby which seemed to me to be really afflicted was brought by a mother who was quiet, and calm, and earnest and well dressed and well in the middle class of people. Mrs. Etter passed her hands over the child, which seemed to be torn with great pain. No benefit, however, seemed to come to the crying infant, and the mother took it from the platform.

A Good Testimony.

A large man, a doctor, living in this city, well dressed and of striking and distinguished appearance, explained with great calmness and deliberation, that he had come into the meeting a few days ago sick and had not expected at that time to be alive then, as he was speaking. He felt a thrill pass through his body as Mrs. Etta touched him, and claimed he was perfectly healed. He said, however, that he had no quarrel with the doctors for "we are all in the same business trying to relieve suffering." Towards the close of his testimony he said: "I am willing to dance for God, to speak with tongues for God I want the baptism of the Holy Ghost." He was quite aroused before he closed.

After the sermon, a young girl, an extreme blonde, began a "holy dance," and continued waving her hands and shaking her hands as the proverbial aspen leaf for perhaps a half hour.

The meeting closed amid great excitement, and intense interest and in a fair show of good order.

What Does It All Mean?

My own conclusions after this much of a careful and certainly not antagonistic investigation is simply this: These people are perhaps good people and sincere, but their methods are clearly abnormal, and whether harmful or not let each one judge for himself. To some people the whole procedure will perhaps be to confuse in a fatal way all their religious life. I am sure in some cases the great excitement will have a tendency to hysteria of one form or another.

That some of the cases of healing are true I will not deny, some I think pure failures. But the seeming genuine cases are like cases to those which have been cured through the centuries by various forms of suggestive therapeutics. I know a prominent minister of Washington, D. C., who has lately gone in to psychic healing. He has left the ministry, though he still often preaches in prominent pulpits; but he has made wonderful cures of the class of hysteria which are most easily cured by such methods. The neurestheinic and hypocondriac are easy cures by this method.

The Emmanuel Movement of Boston and the East has been using for years physicians to diagnose cases and then prayer and mental suggestion to heal. This has been done in the name of the best churches, the first being the Emmanuel Episcopal church of Boston.

Alexander Dowie cured thousands as he claimed by divine healing. Slatterer, or a similar name, cured thousands in Pittsburg.

The Same View and Method.

I believe it is altogether the teaching of the New Testament that God is able to cure the body. Jesus is called the Saviour of the body as well as of the soul. In many cases of nervous exhaustion, of various forms of hysteria, and mental trouble certainly the words of Jesus, "Come unto me and I will give you rest," are true.

In such cases physicians cannot help because of the state of the patients' mind. I believe if one is able to point such a hopeless, despairing, nerve-frayed patient to God who is life, and love, often a "cure" is effected. In other words normality is restored.

The physician, the surgeon, the hospital, the pharmacopea, these are the methods, I believe, which ought to work in the name of the church of Jesus Christ to heal the body. Prayer may set a broken bone, but prayer certainly can bind up a broken heart. The greatest boon to this sick and wounded age is the Christian physician and the Christian hospital. All preachers can cite case after case of healing which they believe to be the direct result of prayer. Robertson Nicoll, the editor of the British Weekly, has called on this age to prove the supernatural in our faith. But the supernatural in our faith is normal, not abnormal. The danger of all this meeting lies in the spectacular which is unlike the serenity of Jesus; in the abnormal which has a tendency to put the healing of the body to be desired above the service which the soul can do, and in the occasional, and emotional, with at least some spurious manifestations, to the exclusion of the Christ-controlled mind and the crowning majesty of common sense.

Miss Alice Downie eight years or more ago learned that some of the people of the Telugu mission fell into a trancelike condition and spoke strangely. We are constantly hearing bona fide accounts of such among heathen converts. Dr. A. C. Dixon, in a conference here a few years ago, told of some people who had been speaking in tongues and when interpreted by a Chinese Christian, and a Japanese Christian the words were found to be "obscene and unworthy." Speaking in tongues is spoken of in the New Testament, and it is commanded that they always be interpreted, but Saint Paul said, "I had rather speak five words with the understanding than ten thousand with tongues." It is unscriptural to make a less important gift of tongues, even if they are true, a more prominent feature in the Christian services than a dedication of one's life to the service of man and God. Saint Paul does not commend one seeking the gift of tongues but he commends the offering of one's life as a willing service to the whole human race.

My conclusion—Quite sincere, quite abnormal.

Secularism in Education Breeds Crime Suicides By Bishop Warren A. Candler

Some years ago a distinguished writer and educator, who was at that time a professor in Columbia University, wrote an article on the effects of "Modern Education." He was well qualified to discuss the subject, for he had seen the methods of modern education in both Europe and America having studied in Berlin and Rome after he had had a very thorough course in American schools in which he distinguished himself as a student and won many degrees. He had also engaged in the work of education under the most favorable conditions for careful study of the whole field.

In the article to which reference has been made, he deprecated "the idea, almost universal among our people, that education in itself and for all human beings is a good and thoroughly desirable possession." Contending that this idea is "fraught with social and political peril," he proceeded to say, "Education means ambition, and ambition means discontent. * * * We see on every hand great masses of men stirred by a vague dissatisfaction with their lot, their brains addled and confused by doctrine that is only half the truth and vaguely understood, yet thoroughly adapted to make them ripe for the work of the agitator and the enemy of public order. * * * Such education as these possess can never qualify for any serious role; it only makes for grievous disappointment and a final heart-break. Nor is there any moral safeguard in a limited degree of education. Quite the contrary. It only makes the naturally criminal person far more dangerous, converting the potential sneak-thief into the actual forger and embezzler and the barroom brawler into the anarchist bomb-thrower. Statistics lately sent to congress in a veto message show the fact that in our prisons the proportion of the fairly educated to the uneducated is far larger than among an equal number of ordinary citizens."

The veto message to which the professor alluded was that of President Cleveland vetoing an immigration bill which proposed to exclude from the United States all "immigrants physically capable and over sixteen years of age, who cannot read and write the English language or some other language." In the course of the message, Mr. Cleveland said: "In my opinion, it is infinitely more safe to admit a hundred thousand immigrants who, though unable to read and write, seek among us only a home and opportunity to work, than to admit one of those unruly agitators and enemies of government control who can not only read and write, but delight in arousing by inflammatory speech the illiterate and peacefully inclined to discontent and tumult. Violence and disorder do not originate with illiterate laborers. They are, rather, the victims of the educated agitator."

The weighty words of this wisest of presidents are finding multiplied exemplifications in the increase of agitators and agitations in our country which have marked the advance of education in the nation. The recent Socialistic agitations in New York, in which churches were invaded, were led by persons of more or less education, and made capable of mischief by their education.

As knowledge has increased among our people, both discontent and disorder have increased. In a book published about a year ago, from the pen of Hon. Bird Coler, it was shown that New York's vast appropriations for education had failed to produce a pure and peacable citizenry, that the gunmen of the city were educated, and that men of the highest culture had been convicted of the grossest crimes of violence and dishonesty. Crime and culture keep about an even pace in the United States, suggesting the words of Sir Archibald Allison, who in his "History of Europe During The French Revolution" discusses the beneficial results of intellectual culture without moral character, saying, "It is only simply knowledge, it is knowledge detached from religion, that produces this fatal result. The reason for the increase of depravity with the spread of knowledge and the corrupting tendency in morals of education detached from religion is evident—when so detached it multiplies the desires and passions of the heart without an increase to its regulating principles; it augments the attacking forces without strengthening the resisting powers, and thence the disorder and license it spreads through society. The invariable characteristic of a declining and corrupt state of society is a progressive increase in the forces of passion and a progressive decline in the influence of duty".

The great men who made the utterances which have been quoted were not fools or fanatics; and if the half of what they said is true, the American people need to take alarm at the spread of a type of education, which utterly separated from any saving religious quality, in our country. The eating of this tree of knowledge means the loss of our political paradise in which we have enjoyed peace and unexampled prosperity so long.

The first colleges and universities in the United States were penetrated with religious instruction and influences, and in the first public schools there were religious text-books used. Such is no longer the case. Aggressive warfare is made by secularists for the capture and control of the institutions of higher learning in the United States, and they openly avow their purpose to kill what they can not control. Institutions founded by the Churches are allured from their devout founders by promises of pensions and the rewards of mammon.

No man who is even tolerably well acquainted with history will doubt for a moment that the end of all this is social disorder and political disaster. "Knowledge is power", but it may be good power or bad power; and it is always bad power when it is not directed by high mo-

"It's hard f'r me to make out fr'm th' frag mentary repoorts iv th' war corryspondints," said Mr. Dooley. "But as far as I can see th' situation stands about like this: Th' ar-rmy iv Ulsther has won a splindid vickthry, but th' English ar-rmy has not been disgraced. It has rethreated with colors flyin', dhrums batin', an' nayether its honor nor its buttons tarnished. Gin'ral Ed Carson, th' dauntless leader iv Ulsther, magnanimously permitted th' officers to retain their side arms, dancin' programs, tea caddies, an' enough marmalade to sustain thim ontil fresh supplies can be for'arded fr'm home. Gin'ral Carson is to be proclaimed king or impror iv forty-four per cint iv th' county iv Anthrim, impror iv thirty per cint iv th' County Down, an' protictor iv th' County Donegal, or such part thereof as needs his protiction. It was a gr-reat war, an' I'm glad it's over an' ordher has been restored in Ireland. Now ye may see some fightin'.

"Arly in January th' king iv England ordhered an immeejit attack on th' rebels undher Gin'ral Carson. A council iv war was hurridly called, consistin' iv Gin'ral Lord Guff, Gin'ral Lord Stuff, Gin'ral Lord Bluff, Gin'ral Lord Muff, an' Gin'ral th' Hon'rable Percy Algernon Herbert Fluff. Owin' to th' unaccountable delay in th' tailorin' departmint th' unyforms were not completed ontil arly in March, whin intinse excitemint was noticed at th' war office. Cabs dashed up an' dashed away, waiters rushed in an' out, an' all th' grim signs iv th' comin' conflict cud be obsarved. Inside th' ol' sthructure, whin th' tea things had been cleared away, th' sthratejists gathered around th' boord an' laid out th' plan iv campaign. Afther that ivints followed in rapid succission. It was detarmined to reconoither th' inimy's position at wanst. A sthrong foorce undher Gin'ral Fluff swooped down on a neighborin' news stand an', afther a brief but fierce resistance, which did honor to both parties, procured copies iv all th' mornin' pa-apers. These were hurrid to th' council boord, where afther a hasty examination iv th' racin' news th' gin'rals gleaned fr'm spies that Gin'ral Carson's foorces numbered in th' neighborhood iv fr'm wan thousan' to five hundherd thousan' picked men, most iv thim silicted fr'm th' ladin' stores iv Belfast but includin' a gr-reat manny who had seen achal service undher Lord Londonderry, ayether mounted or as footmen. They were well armed with rifles, monkey wrenches, pick axes, pikes, hosepipe, bricks, nutmeg graters, an' religious convictions. They were inthrenched behind counters or in butlers' panthries, an' manny iv thim were in th' shipyards, where it wud be almost impossible to attack thim without takin' a polisman along. Gin'ral Carson himsilf occypied a house in th' suburbs, where he was heavily guarded be a few zealous frinds an' made occasional sorties in a cab f'r lunch or dinner, but always took his breakfast at home, like th' ol' campaigner he is. It was plain at wanst that it wud be worse thin folly to attimpt to attackt this disprit an' well armed organi-zation. 'It is apparent to me that we have been outmanoovered,' said Gin'ral Guff. 'It wud be a military crime to sacrifice a British ar-rmy in such a rash entherprise,' said Gin'ral Bluff. 'Carson is in a disprit mood,' said Gin'ral Muff. 'Hiven knows what he might do if pressed. He has had lagal thrainin' an' he might get out an injunction against us. I will not lead me gallant fellows against a possible concealed writ or some devilish conthrivance like that. I've been in such an action befure, in th' chancry coorts, an' I know th' cost,' he says. So it was detarmined to sind Gin'ral Lord Guff over to see th' sicrety iv war an' discuss th' matther with him. Th' supreem chief iv th' ar-rmy received him sternly an', afther th' tea things had been cleared away, demanded to know why he had disobeyed ordhers, an' wud he give him a light? 'We have decided to discontinue this crool, onnecessary war,' says th' gin'ral gruffly, puffin' a cigareet. 'Why?' says th' sicrety iv war angrily. 'Because,' says th' gin'ral, 'in th' first place th' inimy ar-re armed,' says he. 'That is a raison that don't appeal to me at this distance,' says th' sicrety iv war haughtily. 'An' in th' sicond place,' says th' gin'ral with risin' anger, 'I won't make anny further sacrifice iv blood an' threasure to put Ireland in th' hands iv people that keep Lent with so much bigotry that they'd soon desthroy th' salmon fishin',' says he. 'Why didn't ye say that befure?' says th' sicrety iv war. 'I had no idee that such a horrible catasthrophy was starin' us in th' face,' he says. An', embracin' th' gin'ral an' pinnin' th' Victory cross on his chest, he sint him back with insthructions f'r th' ar-rmy to beat a hasty rethreat. An' they beat it.

"I don't blame English gin'rals f'r not wantin' to fight thim Ulsther men. If I was an Englishman, which, thank goodness, I'm not, th' last inimy I'd pick out wud be thim tough fellows fr'm th' north. As foreigners I despise thim, but as fellow counthrymen an' inimies I hold thim in th' highest regard. Now that th' military has retired, if th' polis will kindly step aside, we'll resoom th' argymint where it was left off whin th' English had th' presumption to intherfere. Good mornin', Alexandher; take that. How d'ye do, Michael, th' same to ye with this pick ax! We undherstand each other perfeckly. So we must fight. Nawthin' leads to throuble so quick as a perfeck undherstandin'. Th' English don't undherstand us an' they always mess things up in Ireland. They are an onraisonable an' slow actin' people, while we're raisonable an' impetchus.

"But whin sojers sthrike I don't know what's goin' to happen. Th' nex' thing ye know a polisman will refuse to catch a burglar because th' house he's robbin' is ownded by a Republican. Thin a fireman will come down th' ladder, throw th' hose on th' ground, an' say: 'Cap, I ain't goin' to squirt out that fire. I see a pitcher iv Willum Jennings Bryan on th' wall.' An' th' cap will say: 'Ye done right, me boy. Sind th' comp'ny back to th' injine house.'

"Annyhow, I don't blame a gin'ral f'r not wantin' to fight. With a sojer it's diff'rent, but if I was a gin'ral divvle a fut cud they dhrive me into a war without they loaded a cannon behind me. If a statesman come to me an' said, 'Gin'ral Dooley, in ordher to square mesilf with me constituoents in Kansas I must ast ye to grab th' ol' flag an' rush into a gory grave,' I'd say, 'No, thank ye kindly,' I'd say; 'I'm comfortable here. It's a good job, th' quarthers are to me likin', an' I'm told be th' fair that th' unyform is becomin'.

"'I have no hard feelin's at all again anny foreign nations whativer. Th' foreigners I have met has been agreeable fellows. If ye feel badly about th' way th' govermint iv Pattygonya is actin', if ye'er impetchus blood is bilin' beyond endurance, if nawthin' but slaughther will satisfy ye'er ardent nature, ye'll find me soord hangin in th' close. Take it, me boy, an' lead ye'ersilf to death or victhry, or both. I'll stay back here an tell ye what to do fr'm time to time,' I'd say. No sir, if Andhrew Carnaygie ra-aly wants to have peace an' isn't on'y on a spree with his money, he'll stop hirin' orators an' thry to have th' English ides took up be all th' wurruld. Lave th' indian war to th' gin'rals an' we'll have peace. No gin'ral ought to go to war onless he was ready, an' no gin'ral that knows his business ought iver to be ready. Maybe that's why we've had so few wars lately. Th' statesmen ar-re always prepared to fly somebody else at th' throat iv th' inimy in their counthry, but just as things looks fine f'r a fight th' gin'ral steps in an' whispers in th' statesman ear: 'We are in a wretched state iv onreadines. We have on'y three millyon men an' not more thin siventy thousand millyon rounds iv ammynition, an' we'd be bate in a week,' an' he goes home an' goes to bed an' th' nex' day th' pa-apers says th' situation has been improved by mutual concessyons.

"But with th' private sojer it's diff'rent. If ye left it to him there'd be nawthin' but war. Th' martial jooties iv a sojer in pipin' times is peace, as Hogan says, seems to excite him to go out an' kill some wan. A young fellow, afther enangin' his name so's his parents won't know he's took up th' ancient an' noble pro-fissyon iv arms, enlists an' goes where glory waits him. Whin it ketches him it ayether puts him to wurruk at his old thrade at wan-fifth th' union scale or taches him a new an' akelly onpleasant occypation. A plumber who goes into th' army to dhrink th' disgraceful pro-fissyon at five dollars a day finds he's wipin' jints in th' barracks f'r wages that wud make th' walkin' dillygate have him up at sunrise. Whin not dhrillin' or writin' letters to th' pa-aper complainin' about th' food, he idles away his time in curryin' horses, shinglin' pro'fe hoem weeds in th' colonel's garden, or wheelin' th' major's baby in th' perambylator. Some day he does somethin' that if he done it befure he become a hero th' most he cud get wud be a ten days vacation in th' bridewell. Th' coort martial takes into account all th' extenooatin' circumstances an' gives him two years at hard lab r. Small blame to him if ye niver hear him yellin' 'Excelsior' Andhrew Carnaygie goes on. No, sir, if I had iver been timpted be thim colors I'd onchere to enlist an' th' gin'ral was to come to me an' say 'Corporal'—f'r I'd be that or nawthin'—'th' governmint wishes ye to go out an' night Hinnissy, ye'er best frind. Can we rely on ye?' I'd say. 'Hinnissy? That little, disagreeable fellow? Why, I've wanted to shoot that man f'r forty years.' 'Thin I will lead ye to victhry.' 'I don't care where ye lead me to. On'y lead me away fr'm here.'"

"I see in th' pa-aper that if thim gin'rals were in Germany they'd be hanged," said Mr Hennessy.

"If thim gin'rals were in Germany they wudden't be gin'rals," said Mr. Dooley.

SOMETHING is no concern for the safety, good health, good spirits and general welfare of grown people I am likely to overlook my little folk for too long at a time. Only the other day I was reminded of this by watching a group of my small neighbors having games on the vacant lot. How they did romp! I believe I am one of the few who cannot look on and not feel like joining in. I was meant, I suppose, to be interested in tops and marbles and children in white dresses which as effectually prevent any sort of movement and natural, wholesome, healthful activity as a suit of coat of armor would do. Of course, I realize the necessity of these little precautions against tuberculosis, but I am sure that was not what was meant.

I was also interested to see the different types of little children in white dresses which as effectually prevent any sort of movement and natural, wholesome, healthful activity as a suit of coat of armor would do. Of course, I realize the necessity of these little precautions against tuberculosis, but I am sure that was not what was meant.

I was also interested to see the different types of little children in white dresses which as effectually prevent any sort of movement and natural, wholesome, healthful activity as a suit of coat of armor would do. Of course, I realize the necessity of these little precautions against tuberculosis, but I am sure that was not what was meant.

"Why," said a little friend of mine to his well-informed mother, "do the kitties like to play better than the mother cat?"

"Because," answered his mother, "the kittles must grow and so they stretch and kick and exercise their limbs and muscles until they are quite as big as the mother cats. When they are that big, they stop playing so hard, for they have quite grown. That is why grown folks do not like to play and romp as do children, and that is why children need to play very much, so that they may grow."

Surely, we would not knowingly prevent our little ones from growing up into robust, healthy men and women.

Nothing is more fun for the child than a pan of soapy water and a clay pipe with which to make bubbles. If one wishes to go to a trifle more expense, there are the bubble sets which come with pipes that make the bubbles wonderfully large, and sometimes one bubble inside another. A little glycerin will make the bubbles a little more substantial, so that they will float about for some time without breaking. Bubble blowing is constructive play, for the child's lungs are strengthened by the blowing, as well as its being a wholesome amusement. Frequently informal little bubble parties can be arranged with the neighbors' children and some sort of very inexpensive prize given for the largest bubble blown. If one's children are blowing bubbles they are reasonably safe, and watchful mother-eyes may relax slightly their endless vigilance.

Tableaux are another wholesome pastime and what would be considered a constructive play, for they give poise and grace to the body. When I was a small girl, I can remember that they played at "statues." No doubt some of you will remember it too. What fun they were! In the beginning, one would be "counted out" in "Eenie, meenie, minie, mo" fashion, and the one left would be the sculptor. The sculptor would proceed in undignified fashion to take each child by the hand and swing him round and round a number of times, and then, letting him go gently, each child would swing into some sort of statue. The statue thus made would pose patiently until all the children were swung into statues. Then the sculptor would judge which child was the best statue, and the best statue would turn sculptor and swing all the other children. It's great fun, and is the best substitute for staged tableaux, if the latter cannot be conveniently arranged. The child thus gains grace, poise, steadiness and confidence.

Reaching the arms above the head and rising up on the toes, with the assistance of an overhead rope, will strengthen the ankles and help the child to rest upon the balls of the feet when walking. This is easy and an exercise to be encouraged.

The slight wringing required in washing such pieces as doll clothes develops the arms of the child. A doll baby's washing and ironing is a constructive and instructive play. It trains certain arm muscles, and through the play the little girl can be taught to wash properly, starch, rinse and iron, just as though the clothes were of more importance. Even if she never has to do her own laundry work when she grows up, it is fitting that she shall know how it should be done.

Jumping rope is another developing or constructive exercise if not done to excess. A bit of jumping now and then for the child who has not a weak heart promotes the circulation and aids deep breathing, both of which make for health. Decry the rivalry in this. Never encourage your child to jump more steps than any other. And place the hand of moderation on the jumping rope.

Let the playtime be a building-up time. Make the happy games of childhood contribute to the general good health of your boy or girl.

wrath roused by tears and soiling. Dress the youngsters in sensible clothing that will stand hard usage. Let them have just as much exercise as they can well take without fatiguing their small bodies overmuch.

The other day I had occasion to ride in a street car in which was a mother and small child. The child would wriggle and was quite unruly, and the mother kept steadily objecting to every small movement its small body made. Instead of cheerfully allowing it a few movements in which to expend its nervous energy she sought to check all, until the child, growing callous under the shower of don'ts," had taken matters into his own hands and refused to obey even in a reasonable measure.

"Why," said a little friend of mine to his well-informed mother, "do the kitties like to play better than the mother cat?"

This talk today is emphasizing nature. If you could only appreciate the force and the beauty of nature! When things go wrong and you need a rest and inspiration, do not shut yourself up in a close room and cry; go out into the spring air and let the song of the streets inspire you. At least it will take your mind off yourself and show you that there are other important things in life that need sincere thought. Walk out into the country and away from yourself. Learn to think of others. Try appreciating the trouble and sorrow of another woman or man your own will sink into insignificance.

In the same way the happiness that comes to you should not make you oblivious of the happiness of others. Above all, my dear friends, resolve to be less selfish in your actions. Grow from self out to a consideration of others; from egoism to altruism move. The unselfish way is the only one that will give the right happiness.

Take today and think seriously about your work and your ideals. Make them better than they were last week and resolve to make them grow better each day. Let the thoughts that have come to you about them make the time that you have spent on resolutions worth while. And whether this day be bright or dull, may the outlook on your life be very much brighter than it was yesterday.

Solutions to Social Problems

When Answering Questions

DEAR Mrs. Adams.

When saying yes or no to a person is it proper to say ma'am after either word?

D. C.

The term "Yes, ma'am" or "No, ma'am" is objectionable to the ear. It is much better to say yes or no and then mention the person's name after it. However, the tone in which the answer is given is really as important as the words uttered.

Entertaining First

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Will you kindly tell me who should entertain first, the bride's or the groom's parents? My husband wishes me to entertain first, but I do not think it proper. I have never been at the homes of any of his people.

NEWLYWED.

It is customary for the groom's parents to invite the bride and her family to their home as soon as the engagement is announced. However, distance, ment is announced. However, distance, circumstances which could not or some circumstances which could not be overcome, may have prevented this act of courtesy. If at present you are living in the same vicinity, they should take the initiative. If they fail to do so, do not stand on ceremony any longer, but please your husband by following his wishes. You will not be doing a reprehensible thing by complying with his request.

Cards to Leave

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Will you kindly tell me how many cards a married woman should leave when calling on a wedding reception?

G. G.

She should leave one of her own and one of her husband's.

A Friend in the Hospital

Dear Mrs. Adams.

A dear friend of mine is ill in the hospital, and as he has no relatives in the city, I want to know if it would be proper for me and myself to go to see him. May we send him flowers?

DORIS.

The young man would most certainly appreciate a call from you and your mother, especially when he is so far away from relatives. You may with propriety send him flowers. Do not, however, embarrass him by sending him a bouquet every day.

Wedding Announcements

Dear Mrs. Adams.

When a man and woman are married in a near-by city in order to avoid the fuss of a home wedding, is it proper for them to send out announcements?

JANE.

Yes.

Objects to Men Friends

Dear Mrs. Adams.

A young man had been taking me out a great deal and seemed to care for me a great deal. A month ago he told me he loved me very much. Another young man told him that was not true, but he doubted my word, and I have not seen him since. My parents, as well as myself, like this young man very much. Another young man is very anxious to call and take me out. What shall I do?

MATLYN.

The young man was very selfish if he did not care to have you associate with other men. Do not let his absence disturb you at all, but accept the invitations of your other men friends.

Serving Refreshments

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Is it necessary to serve refreshments on one's "at home" days? If it is, please tell me what should be served.

NEWLY MARRIED

Yes, it is customary to serve light refreshments at one's at home days. A cup of tea or chocolate, dainty sandwiches and cakes may be served.

What to Say

Dear Mrs. Adams.

What is the proper thing to say when a man gives you a verbal invitation to go somewhere with him?

GENEVIEVE

If you cannot accept, you should say "No" and give your reason for the refusal. If you wish to accept, say "Thank you," or I shall be very glad to go with you."

P. P. C. Cards

Dear Mrs. Adams.

I have received a card on which are written the letters P. P. C. What do they mean and what kind of a reply should be sent?

FLORENCE.

The letters are an abbreviation of the French phrase "Pour prendre congé," which means "To take leave." It is a custom for persons who are leaving the neighborhood or city of residence for the season or for a voyage, to leave cards on all those with whom they have visiting relations, in order to inform them that they are departing. On the visiting cards they write the letters P. P. C. The receipt of such a card requires no acknowledgment.

Meaning of Colors

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Please tell me the meaning of the different colors.

CIVIC LEAGUER.

Black and brown—Death and sorrow.
Green—Wickedness.
Blue—Constancy.
White—Purity.
Yellow—Jealousy.
Purple—Royalty.
Red—Courage, danger.

Cards to Leave

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Will you kindly tell me how many cards a married woman should leave when calling on a married woman?

E. W.

One or her own and two of her husband's cards.

Does Not Love Him

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Kindly advise me what to do. I have been engaged for the past year to a young man whom I thought I sincerely loved. Our engagement is known and the wedding day is set for a few months hence. How the problem arose is this: We had a argue over the most trivial matter, and since then I have been very unhappy because I know my mistake, and that I can never love him again as I once did.

When being introduced to a man or woman, is it proper to shake hands with both?

C. A. E.

The only fair and square thing for you to do is to break the engagement immediately. It is too bad that your love affair should end unhappily, but it is very fortunate for you and your fiance that you have discovered your mistake now instead of after the marriage.

It is quite proper for a girl to shake hands with either a man or woman when being introduced. Extremely formal persons, however, prefer not to shake hands, but instead give a pleasant smile, incline the head and repeat the person's name who is being introduced. Of course, the hostess is always expected to extend her hand.

An At Home Card

Dear Mrs. Adams.

What is the proper thing to do when one receives an at home card?

BEAUREGARD.

An at home card, unless it bears the letters R. s. v. p., does not call for an acceptance. The invited one accepts by attending the affair. If it is impossible to accept, the invited one sends her card to her prospective hostess so that it reaches her the day of the reception.

A Wedding Anniversary

Dear Mrs. Adams.

Will you kindly tell me what should appear on cards for a wedding anniversary? Should the couple celebrating sit side by side at the table?

J. P.

On the cards should be the names of the married couple, the hours of the reception to be given and the two dates. This form may give you a better idea:

1872 1900

Mr. and Mrs. Warren A. White request the pleasure of your company on the twenty-fifth anniversary of their marriage on Tuesday evening, May third, at half past eight o'clock. Forty, Spruce Street.

On such an occasion the husband and wife sit side by side at the table.

ANSWERS TO BEAUTY QUERIES

REPLIES to letters to the writer of this department will be printed in regular order; but no replies in print may be expected in less than three or four weeks.

Correspondents desiring immediate replies to queries may get them by inclosing a stamped self-addressed envelope. Personal inquiries will receive prompt attention if accompanied by a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

Using Soap

Dear Mrs. Symes.

After cleansing the skin thoroughly with soap, warm water and a complexion brush before retiring, is it necessary to use soap on the face the following morning?

MARIE.

Unless your skin is very oily, it is not necessary to use soap in the morning after having used it the previous evening. Bathe it first in tepid water and then cold water.

Gray Hairs

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you please tell me what to do for my hair? It is turning gray. I am a woman 40 years old. I have always been very careful to massage the scalp every night and morning, but my hair is lifeless and stringy.

Mrs. R. S

Is your general health in good condition? This is necessary if you wish to have healthy hair. I advise you to rub cocoa oil into your scalp every day. This will give the hair nourishment and retard the grayness if the change in color is due to a lack of proper nourishment. After the massage, brush the hair thoroughly, dividing it into strands, so that no part will be neglected. Do not brush the hair flat to the scalp, but away from it. You will be surprised to see what a difference this makes.

Bathing After Eating

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you please tell me why it is injurious to take a bath immediately after eating?

RUTH.

A warm or cold bath brings the blood to the surface of the skin, and takes it away from the internal organs. Therefore, the digestive organs are not able to act on food, and indigestion is likely to follow.

To Fill Out the Neck

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My neck is very thin and scrawny looking. Will you please tell me what to do to develop it?

THELMA

Bend the head slowly forward until the chin touches the neck, and then slowly raise the head to its normal position. Repeat these movements until you are tired. Then bend the head as far backward as possible. Sitting erect in a chair, bend the head from one side to the other, and then roll the head to the right, left and forward. Another good position is to let the arms hang loosely at the side. Raise the shoulders as high as possible, then forward, down and backward, until a circle is formed. Continue this for a time and then reverse the motion. Do this every day for five or ten minutes.

Again, stand perfectly erect with the arms at the sides, lift them up vertically, inflating the lungs as the arms ascend. At the same time rise up on the tips of your toes, throw your head back and touch the backs of the hands overhead. As the arms slowly descend exhale from the lungs.

It is also well to massage the neck and shoulders well with cocoa butter.

Salt Water

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I have heard that bathing the feet with salt water is very good for them when they are unusually tired, but I forget if this is correct.

READER.

The virtues of salt water are so many that one could fill a book writing of them. It is splendid for a nose spray when one has a cold in the head; it relieves inflamed eyelids; it is very good for a throat gargle and, among other things, it gives relief to tender and tired feet. Add a handful of salt to a gallon of water. Have the water as hot as can be comfortably borne, immerse the feet and throw the water up over the knees with the hands. When the water grows cool rub the feet and limbs with a dry towel. Keep the room warm all the while, and go to bed immediately after the treatment, so that you will not catch cold.

Desires Gray Hair

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Please give me directions for producing gray hair permanently if possible. I desire something that will turn the hair gray but will not encourage the hair to fall out.

I am unable to give you the directions you desire. Have patience, for your hair may turn gray in time. Keep it in good condition by rubbing vaseline into the scalp and massaging it thoroughly every day.

Chapped Skin

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you kindly give me the recipe for a lotion which I can make at home and use on chapped skin?

SARAH.

A very splendid lotion is made of the ingredients here named:

Tincture benzoin..... 20 drops
Glycerin..... 2 ounces
Cologne..... 4 ounces

Rub this on the chapped skin night and morning.

A Cough

Dear Mrs. Symes.

If I had a very bad cold several weeks ago and although I am better, I still have a cough which bothers me a great deal. What do you advise me to do for this?

LOIS.

For temporary relief try drinking a glass of warm milk to which a small teaspoonful of glycerin has been added. Do not depend on this for a cure, however, but go to your physician and get something that will remove the cough entirely. A cough is a great strain on the system and should not be allowed to linger.

Blackheads

Dear Mrs. Symes.

My nose is so full of blackheads that I feel ashamed to have any one look at me very closely. Can you tell me what to do to get rid of them?

R. E. T.

Every night give your nose this treatment. Apply to it clothe wrung from hot water. When the pores have been very well opened, cleanse the skin with green soap, hot water and a complexion brush. Rinse the skin with clean warm water, and after drying the skin apply the cream for which I am giving the recipe. The cream that is not absorbed by the skin should be wiped off with a soft cloth or a piece of absorbent cotton.

The following morning bathe the face with warm and then cold water.

Cleansing Cream

White wax	2 ounces
Spermaceti	2 ounces
Sweet almond oil	12 ounces
Distilled water	3 ounces
Glycerin	2 ounces
Salicylic acid	60 grains

A Twitching Eyelid

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Can you please inform me what causes a twitching of the eyelid? I am often annoyed this way.

ELEANOR.

The twitching of the eyelid indicates nervousness, which may result from a need of glasses. I advise you to consult a reliable oculist as soon as possible, for this matter should not be neglected.

Hair Has Split Ends

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I have very pretty brown hair, but the ends are split and the brittle white necks showing throughout my hair do not look very well. What do you advise me to do?

RACHEL.

The splitting and breaking of hair is usually due to lack of oil. You should give your hair enough oil to restore its elasticity and resistance. It is well to cut off the split ends at a point below the split. Every day rub castor oil into your scalp. It is not necessary to rub enough to make the hair unattractive. After the massage brush the hair thoroughly.

To Soften the Hands

Dear Mrs. Symes.

1. Will you please tell me what I may use to whiten and soften my hands?

2. What can I do for my nails, which are very brittle?

EDITH

Following are the directions for making a splendid lotion to whiten and soften the hands:

Put into a bottle 2 ounces of glycerin, 2 ounces of water, 4 tablespoonfuls of orange juice and a few drops of carbolic acid. Shake well. Rub a little of this lotion into the hands, and a little of the mixture into them.

Hold the tips of your fingers in a vessel containing enough olive oil to cover the entire nails and the cuticle at the base of same. Keep the tips in this oil, which, by the way, should be warm, for five or ten minutes. At night before retiring anoint the nails with cold cream, and let the cream remain on until the next morning.

A Massage Cream

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you please publish the recipe for a massage cream for the development of the bust?

Here is the recipe for a very splendid cream, which you can use while massaging the bust:

Massage Cream for the Bust

Lanolin	5 ounces
Cocoa butter	1 ounce
Mutton tallow (freshly tried)...	4 ounces
Cocoanut oil	4 ounces
Oil of sweet almonds	4 ounces
Oil of bitter almonds	4 drops
Oil of tuberose	4 drops

Mix as you would any cream of the sort. Rub on gently at night.

A Mouth Wash

Will you please give me the recipe for a harmless mouth wash?

Also publish one for an eye lotion.

FANNY.

To make a mouth wash rub together in a mortar 34 ounces each of pulverized borax and strained honey; then add gradually 1 pint of pure alcohol and 1 pint each of spirit of myrrh and red saunders wood. Let the whole stand in a large-mouthed glass bottle for two weeks. Shake the bottle occasionally. Pass through a filtering paper and it is ready for use.

Boric acid is very good for the eyes Use one ounce of it to one pint of boiling water. Let the boric acid dissolve before bottling the mixture.

Stain for the Hair

Dear Mrs. Symes.

Will you please give me the recipe for a stain which I can make at home and use on my hair? It is dark shade? At present it is a light brown.

Following is the recipe for a walnut stain which will help to darken your hair:

Walnut Stain for the Hair

Four ounces of walnut skins, beaten to a pulp, to which is added pure alcohol, 18 ounces.

Let stand eight weeks and strain. Then apply to the hair with a small brush.

For Corns

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I have a corn on each foot and wish you would tell me what to use to remove them.

KATHERINE.

Use the mixture for which the recipe is here printed:

Corn Remedy

Borate of sodium	1 dram
Extract of cannabis	1 scruple
Collodion	1 ounce

Paint over the corn once or twice a day and scrape away superficial growth in three or four days.

A Rouge

Dear Mrs. Symes.

I am very anxious to get the recipe for a liquid rouge, and write to you to see if you will publish it.

MARIE.

Here is the recipe you desire:

Liquid Bloom of Roses

Carmania	30 grains
Ammonia water	1 fluid ounce
Rosewater	4 fluid ounces
Spirit of rose	1 fluid dram

COMMON SENSE in the HOME
EDITED by MARION HARLAND

THE "BLOCK BEAUTIFUL."

A FEW weeks ago a friend took me in her carriage one afternoon to see the "block beautiful" of her neighborhood. Although I had heard of this block several times I had little idea of what it was until I saw it. When we drew up at the street corner I saw a row of half a dozen houses, all of them especially attractive in appearance. They were not copies of one another, but each was good to look at in its own way. One was of dull red brick, another was brown, a third was painted a soft old rose, like the pink villas dear to the memory of those who have traveled in southern Italy.

All the houses had plants about them. A pair of little evergreens stood by the front door, on either side, or window boxes of growing things decked the casement ledges, or hanging baskets were suspended where they would show to best advantage.

After I had looked and admired sufficiently my friend explained the beginning and continuation of the movement which was responsible for the "block beautiful." A man who owned one of the houses and who was fond of the neighborhood, which was most respectable, although no longer fashionable, conceived the idea of trying what he could do to make this section desirable for those whose work made the quarter especially convenient for them. The row of houses in which he lived was well built, although old fashioned and unbeautiful. He looked over the dwellings and saw their capabilities and set himself to work developing them

Neighbors Follow Suit.

Fortunately for the plan he was a man of means and managed to buy two or three of the other houses in the block and remodel them so far as he could without greater outlay. It cost comparatively little to throw out a balcony or two, to put in a mullioned window, to alter the door and window casings, even to cover poor bricks with concrete in one case.

By the time his own houses were fairly finished the emulation of other residents in the block was aroused. They saw the improvement the changes had wrought and attempted a few of their own. The window boxes and other green things were within the reach of all and in a short time the row was transformed and the "block beautiful" had become the pride of its owners and of the neighborhood

When my friend had finished her account she pointed to the opposite side of the street.

"You can see how the leaven has begun to work there," she said.

There were six houses in the block. Four of them were shabby, although sound, one had been done over in most pleasing style, another was in the hands of the workmen, undergoing a species of renovating or remodeling

"The others in the block can't hold out long," said my friend confidently. "Within a year those houses will be as good looking as these"

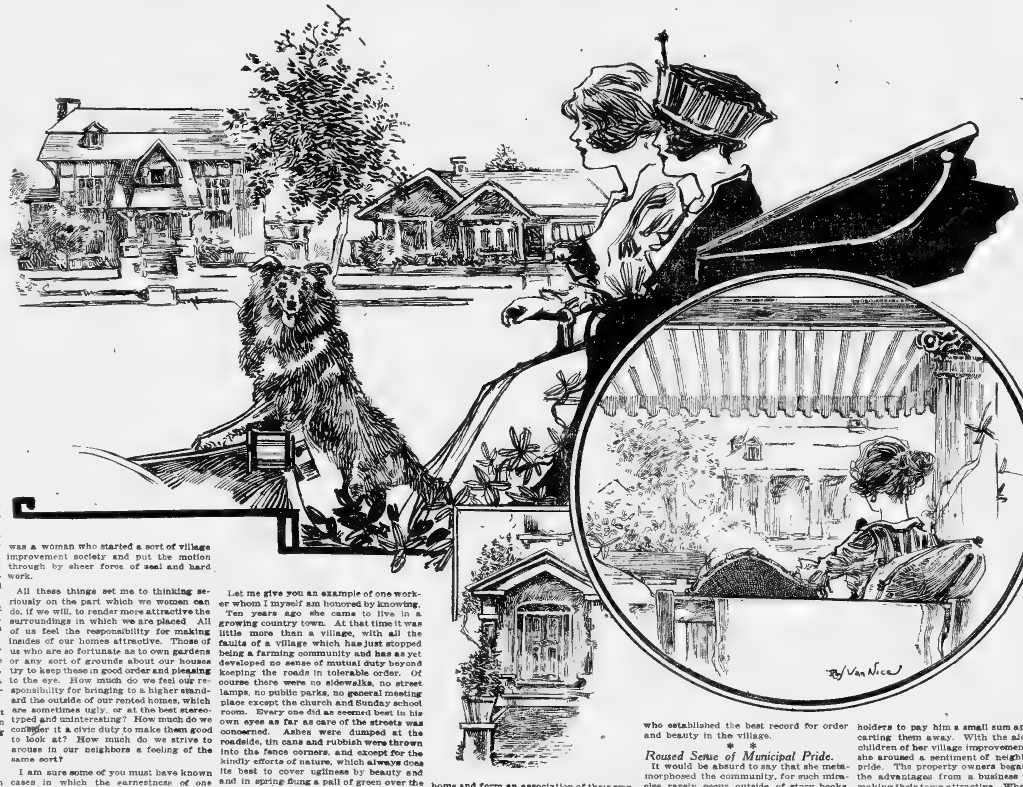
Improving a Small Town.

With the tendency to coincidence which we have all noted I heard of two similar movements within three days—both of them the result of the efforts of enthusiastic workers who determined to beautify the condition in which they lived. One of them was a woman who started a sort of village improvement society and put the motion through by sheer force of zeal and hard work.



All these things set me to thinking seriously on the part which we women can do, if we will, to render more attractive the surroundings in which we are placed All of us feel the responsibility for making insides of our homes attractive. Those of us who are so fortunate as to own gardens or any sort of grounds about our house try to keep these in good order and pleasing to the eye. How much do we feel our responsibility for bringing to a higher standard the outside of our rented homes, which are sometimes ugly, or at the best stereotyped and uninteresting? How much do we consider it a civic duty to make them good to look at? How much do we strive to arouse in our neighbors a feeling of the same sort?

I am sure some of you must have known cases in which the earnestness of one woman has wrought wonders in this line. Will not some of you write and tell me about them and let me pass the information on to others whom it may encourage to similar attempts?

Let me give you an example of one worker whom I myself am honored by knowing.

Ten years ago she came to live in a growing country town. At that time it was little more than a village, with all the faults of a village which has just stopped being a farming community and has as yet developed no sense of mutual duty beyond keeping the roads in tolerable order. Of course there were no sidewalks, no street lamps, no public parks, no general meeting place except the church and Sunday school room. Every one did as seemed best in his own eyes as far as care of the streets was concerned. Ashes were dumped at the roadside, tin cans and rubbish were thrown into the fence corners, and except for the kindly efforts of nature, which always does its best to cover ugliness by beauty and and in spring flings a pall of green over the unsightly remnants, no attempt was made to improve the appearance of the borough.

The worker of whom I speak began by enlisting the children in a village improvement society. She got them to come to her home and form an association of their own with a name and pass words, a constitution and bylaws, and herself presented their badges. Also she instituted a series of prizes, inexpensive in a money sense but valuable as tokens of success, for those who established the best record for order and beauty in the village.

Roused Sense of Municipal Pride.

It would be absurd to say that she metamorphosed the community, for such miracles rarely occur outside of story books, but she wrought a change which seemed wonderful to those who knew the place and the people. She managed to point out to one man the profit there was in collecting ashes and garbage, and to induce the householders to pay him a small sum apiece for carting them away. With the aid of the children of her village improvement league she aroused a sentiment of neighborhood pride. This property owners began to see the advantages from a business point of making their town attractive. When one or two women had introduced such adornments as window boxes others followed their lead and the outside of the houses began to vie with each other in the beauty of growing things.

As I have said, it was ten years since the woman began her propaganda, and town has been growing steadily all the time. Now they have an attractive library, a public hall, a small common or park and various other advantages which are in a way part of the growth of the place, but are also largely due to the more awakened a sense of municipal pride and duty. In the village and who helped the children of that day, who are now men and women now, in a feeling of responsibility and enthusiasm for the welfare of their town

Perhaps few of you could do what she did, and yet I believe that there is hardly a woman who does not have a chance to do some work in this line, if it is not more ambitious than by example We have great deal of talk now of women going into politics and bettering the condition of the country at large. I don't wish to put my foot down as a hopeless reactionary, but confess that the verse that springs to my lips when I hear the large plans which are sometimes made for purifying politics and reforming abuses is, "If thou hast run with the footmen and they have wearied thee, how canst thou contend with horses?"

When women have not discharged the duties that lie nearest them, when they have in many cases even failed to recognize the fact that there are duties unperformed, how can they consider themselves capable of assuming the solution and management of bigger problems" For every one of us there are things to do that we do not always see.

Not a Costly Business.

None of us enjoys being a preached at or having our shortcomings pointed out to us, no matter how kindly. So if you tell your neighbor that her yard looks shabby and her front yard down at the heel you are likely to get harsh words rather than gratitude, and I believe none of us would be inclined to justify the neighbor.

But there is an object lesson possible for any of us to give by improving our own homes and there is no reason why it should be a costly business. I grant we would all like to make the outside of our house beautiful with fresh paint, to remodel the into a more pleasing style than that which marks them now, but such changes are within the reach of comparatively few of us. But what most of us can do is to increase neatness and cleanliness, to keep the place looking tidy, to indulge in the adornments of flowers and vines, especially at the seasons of the year when nature helps us in our labors

As a matter of course you do much of this for your own sake and for that of your family. But there is pride in having what belongs to you kept in good condition and attractive. Perhaps you have not thought what a reason you are giving the women across the way who compares her surroundings with yours and sees what might have been able to do in the face of disadvantages. When the next door neighbor comes home and notices the contrast between her home and yours don't you propose that we be stirred to try to bring it up to the mark? Don't you see your chance to start on no matter how small a scale "block beautiful" for yourself and those about you?

MARION HARLAND'S HELPING HAND.

"MAY I tell you a wee heart story which I believe will be of help to others in showing how I started for one kind of success and finally attained another? I was married at 17 to a young lawyer just starting to practice, and we made and lived upon $60 a month. I knew nothing of housework or cooking, and these first seven or eight months were awful. F.rst, I tried to learn by going to a good cooking school, in the hope of getting the substantial and ordinary things I wanted to know, not so many fancy dishes. It did no good. I wanted the small every day things—how to get a whole meal hot and done at the same time, without the vegetables raw and the meat cooked when dinner should be ready, or vice versa. In despair I appealed to an old lady who was a friend, and she made me come and watch her work in her home for several weeks. The result is that I am a good plain cook and can also make good cakes and pies and some of the more fussy desserts

"About this time I also learned shorthand to help my husband in his work. In the course of a few years we became more blessed with worldly goods and the shorthand just naturally died, but still I studied business, so that I could have a speaking acquaintance with his work, and kept posted in current events I had a fine singing voice, and my great ambition was to study for concert work, and the idea of grand opera was floating in the background of my brain. To study meant to deny myself many things or to economize in some way. I had never sewed, so I went to a good dressmaker and asked to be allowed to work there for three days a week to learn. Now I can make all kinds of dresses and have a good idea of tailoring. That saves a great deal.

"I sing a great deal now at church, receptions, etc., but the idea of big success has gone, and I study vocal music and practice, and I can sing grand opera, and do, but in the home, for that means too much to leave. It is far more precious than fame, even in a large sense. I feel that I am a real worker in home building. In some ways it is small, but I do all the housework—laundry, cooking, sewing—have a fine rose garden and a back yard vegetable garden and my music for recreation. I begin in June to make embroidered Christmas gifts, and by December I have a box of beautiful gifts with a bit of myself sewn in, and the cost has been gradual and slight, and there is no worry and rush to fret my nerves. My husband is an exceptional man. I have my own account of all my expenditures and my personal checking account. We never have petty quarrels over money affairs, and that alone seems to wreck many lives I am a happy and, I believe, a successful woman. It seems to me that we can all make of our lives what we will, although it takes ambition and perseverance to do it.

"I have many old and new magazines and much music I'd be happy to pass along if any one near me would care to call for it.

"MRS. E. B."

This letter is so interesting that I do not feel any apology is needed for having printed it at such length. Part of it, that which deals with an outline of specific expenditures, I have had to cut out, but the rest must appeal to every young woman who is striving to fit herself for the business of being a housekeeper and home maker. While it is wise for any one to take up the study of those things when she finds she is not competent, she does well if she acquires some of the desirable knowledge before her marriage. It saves her trouble and distress and not every woman is married to such an exceptional husband as the correspondent seems to be. I congratulate her on her home and her husband, and I agree with her in thinking that she is successful and happy, although there would be a terrible lack in my life were I in her place and had no children in my home. I am afraid all the knowledge of cookery and sewing and shorthand and singing would not compensate me for that heart breaking deprivation. Still, I am glad she makes the best of her life, even if it is incomplete, although I do not altogether accede to her theory that one can make one's own life with ambition and perseverance. Health counts for much, disposition for perhaps more. What do the other Cornerites think of the idea? The offer of magazines and music is sure to be promptly accepted.

Coloring Furs and Tanning Hides.

"I would like to know how to color house cat's fur so it would not fade or wash out in the rain or weather. How or where or what must I use to color the fur brown or black and how to color a white fur whiter? Do you know of any recipe for tanning small furs with the hair on? Could you give me a recipe to tan cow or horse hides with the hair off so as to make leather?

"MRS. E. W. B."

For answer to these questions I must refer you to some one better versed in home dyes than myself. I may say that it is rather unsafe to rely upon them for furs and the like and that I would recommend your taking them to a professional. But it is possible that some of our readers are familiar with good methods that can be advised, and in that case I shall be happy to give your address.

Blind and Helpless.

"I read of the kind person who offers two wheeled chairs to some worthy person through your Helping Hand. I know a dear little deserving boy, 10 years old, who would love to have a chair with a handle, so that his mother could push it. The child is an invalid and cannot walk or help himself in any way. Lately he underwent an operation on the head and now he is left blind his dear, little mother has other children to care for, and her duties are confining at home, but if she had a chair that could be wheeled the mother would gladly take the little blind and helpless boy out for some fresh air and derive the same benefit herself. If the chair has already been given away, perhaps you will put this plea in your Corner in the hope that it may reach the notice of some one else who can help the child. I will try to settle the freight on the chair myself.

MINA A. R. M."

Another correspondent who fails to give the name of the friend who made the offer to which she refers. Yet I have no doubt that some one will be moved by the story of the little blind and helpless boy who might at least feel the sunshine he cannot see and smell the flowers and growing things he is not able to run about and gather. Spring is here with all it means of beauty and life and helplessness and suffering seem somehow harder to bear now than at any other time of year. There must be some one of the many who rejoice in their strength and in their ability to move about freely and feast their eyes on the miracle of spring and summer who will long to bring a bit of joy into the hearts of the little cripple and his mother. The correspondent who signs the letter just given will be glad to put friends into communication with the child's family.

Covering a Chair.

"I see that some one has some silk pieces to give away. She signs herself Mrs. H. B. I have started a cover for my husband's chair and am quite short of pieces and would be pleased to do something in return for some.

MRS. L. C."

I regret to say that Mrs. H. B.'s pieces have already been given away, but I hope there may be some one who has some to give in exchange for anything Mrs. L. C. can offer. She does not say what she wishes to do in return, but it ought not to be difficult to adjust this.

Invalid Wants a Graphophone.

"I have an invalid friend, a young man who has been confined to an invalid chair for a number of years. He saw your statement that some one had a graphophone to give to a shut-in, and I wish he could get it. He lives far out in the country, so few can visit him, and he has little to amuse him. It would brighten and cheer his life greatly if he could get the machine. He has an invalid chair he can put on the dispensary, if any one who needs it. Will you not write him? His signature is

J. T."

This is another illustration of the difficulties into which we are put by our confriends among our correspondents. The writer of this letter gives us no clew by which we can know who offered the graphophone to which she refers, and among the enormous number of addresses we file and keep it is impossible to find the name. In any case, it may have been given away by now, and all I can do is to print the story of J. T. with his offer of the invalid chair and the hope that both may receive a prompt answer.

Recipe for Layer Cake.

"I will be much obliged if you will tell me of a good layer cake recipe. I like cake, but always have such bad luck about making it, the trouble being in the mixing, I think. I would like a recipe for soft chocolate frosting and soft white frosting, too. I would like, too, a recipe for fried cakes that would not soak up the lard while cooking.

M."

My own opinion is that there is no such thing as luck in cake making. If the cake is mixed in the right proportions, carefully measured out, not guessed at, and made according to rule, not at haphazard, it will turn out right unless some-thing is seriously wrong with the materials. Cream half a cup of butter with a cup of powdered or fine granulated sugar, working it until smooth and light. Put in the beaten yolks of two eggs and three-quarters of a cup of sweet milk. Sift one teaspoon of baking powder with two cups of flour and add this to the first mixture alternately with the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs. Turn into well greased jelly cake tins and bake in a steady oven, taking pains the oven is not slammed or the stove jarred while the baking is going on. If the flour makes a batter stiff, use a little less For a soft frosting put a cup of granulated sugar and a third of a cup of cold water over the fire and boil until it begins to candy, pour on the stiffly whipped whites of two eggs, beating all the while. Flavor and spread on the cake at once. For soft chocolate frosting follow the same recipe and add to it after the whites of eggs two tablespoons of grated chocolate, two tablespoons of cream, a tablespoon of butter, and a teaspoon of vanilla. When "fried cakes" soak up lard the fault is not with them, but with the heat of the fat. Make it so hot that a cube of bread dropped into it browns in one minute put in your cakes a few at a time so that they will not chill the lard too much and cook them quickly—two minutes should be enough when the lard is hot enough—take them out with a skimmer or a split spoon and lay them on a piece of soft unprinted paper in a hot colander I would like much to know what success you have when you try this plan.

Recipe for Mush.

"Here is my recipe for making cornmeal mush: Use a double boiler for it. Put the lower pan that goes inside on the stove and fill with water almost to the top. For one quart add a scant teaspoon of salt. When the water is boiling add the meal by sprinkling it in, stirring all the time Do not make it thick, but allow it to be thin enough to run off the spoon slowly. Cover and beat for a few moments, then set in the other receptacle and set back on the stove. Allow to cook for thirty or forty minutes, and it will be rich and clear, like cream of wheat. I was always a boiler when it came to making cake at home, and was the proud owner of one for years, but not a good cake baker. Therefore I have been on the lookout. I use this foundation for all kinds of cake, and it is my favorite common, every day pound, but is good. Two eggs, one tablespoon of butter, two teaspoons of baking powder, one scant cup of sugar, one-half cup of corn starch, two teaspoons vanilla. Beat the sugar and butter together until creamy, add the eggs and beat again, put the corn starch in a cup and fill the cup full to the top with milk, stir together, and add to the cake a scant cup of flour and the baking powder sifted together and added a little at a time Beat hard, the more the better. Bake in three layers and fill with any desired filling

HOOSIER MAID.

Here is another suggestion for layer cake for the correspondent who has never had good luck with it. I hope she may be successful with one or both sets of directions.

AN EVERY-DAY HEROINE—BRAVERY IS PART OF THE TRAINED NURSE'S DAY'S WORK

Miss Lilly Dickson, One of Atlanta's Brave Army of Trained Nurses

By Ward Greene.

MISS DICKSON is a trained nurse in a big Atlanta hospital, one of a great army of every-day heroines whose code is "Always smile."

From the time she starts work at 7 o'clock in the morning until she stops (supposedly at 7 at night, generally much later, oftimes at daybreak—she must smile, for that is the first duty of a trained nurse.

She has a first name, but in the course she is just "L. Dickson," to patients she is "Miss Dickson," and to her fellow nurses plain "Dickson."

So when Miss Dickson started her day's work the other morning she put on her smile just as she would don her blue dress and her white apron and cap.

Next she looked in the mirror just as anxious to see that her smile was bright, cheery, heart-warming smile as she was to see that her apron was straight or her skirt or her cap was at the correct angle on her head. Pins or that, the scissors and the safety pins were in her belt.

At breakfast Miss Dickson left off her smile long enough to bemoan with the other nurses the rigor of her fate, for as it is a good working rule to do work among his fellows. But she put on her smile again when she passed the street from the dormitory to the hospital.

It was 7 o'clock. The day's work began.

Miss Dickson, a senior nurse, was in charge of one floor in the hospital. Three nurses were under her direction, nine patients were on the floor, in various stages of illness from the pneumonia patient in the shadow of death at the front porch to the professional hypochondriac in No. 10.

A Smile for Each Patient.

And to each of these nine Miss Dickson must smile, a very wistful and tender smile to the pneumonia patient, who was so sick he hardly saw her; a smile perhaps a little strained for the hypochondriac, who was the most trying because he insisted on having his face washed several times a day.

First she examined the book to see what the doctors who called had left instructions as to the various duties of any particular patient. It is part of a nurse's duty to make these instructions fit into the ordinary book.

So she found the doctors had left instructions—soft diet for this patient, liquid diet for that, changing the [illegible] changing hours. She [illegible] in the diet kitchen.

Her smile entered but a little while before.

[illegible]d each of the ten [illegible] morning smile for each patient, for those who had spent a restful slumber and required her smile for smile, for those who had laid on restlessly couched and greeted her with paled faces and aching eyes.

Then took the temperatures of each and entered them in the book in the chart that must record each [illegible] symptom that a patient [illegible]

One of the patients she had assigned to other nurses. Three she would see by the time she had finished taking the first one, had accomplished arduous and not always pleasant task of turning her from one side of the narrow cot to the other, and had cleaned up the room. It was breakfast time. The other two must wait until after breakfast.

In the meantime there were medicines. These she must get from the little closet in the hall, must see that each was as each doctor said it should be and each was given properly.

Voice of the Buzzer.

More baths, more turnings in bed, more smiles—and one's day's work was fairly under way. It was about time for the buzzer.

The buzzer has a voice all its own. It is a nagging, pe-vish tone that means someone on the other end, pressing it petulantly, is uncomfortable or tired or restless or angry.

It rings in the hall and may come from any of the nine rooms. Any nurse that is in the hall is supposed to answer it. To Miss Dickson, as to every other nurse in the hospital, it seemed that the buzzer was forever ringing just as she was passing by.

On this morning the buzzer rang first from No. 6. Miss Dickson answered it, with a smile. She knew before she opened the door what the matter was.

No. 6 was an appendix. A society woman, as haughty as a society woman can be, as pampered and spoiled, as ready to become furious when a crumb tickles somewhere or the story she has been reading in a popular magazine ends wrong.

"Mercy, where have you been?" shrilled the society woman, as Miss Dickson entered the room. "You've been an age! The way you nurses loaf—why, it's terrible!"

"What did you want, ma'am?" said Miss Dickson, and she smiled.

"Why the light," said the society woman. "It hurts my eyes. One of you nurses left the shade up too high. It might injure me irretrievably. I'm so delicate, you know," and she sighed in self-pity.

Miss Dickson lowered the shade a trifle while the society woman fidgeted nervously with her hands and directed her. At the tenth pull the shade was adjusted to the society woman's satisfaction.

As Miss Dickson softly closed the door, the buzzer jangled harshly. She frowned ,but when she entered room No. 10 she was smiling.

Wanted His Face Washed.

"Oh, there you are!" greeted the voice from the bed. a man's voice, hearty and insistent. "Must have some tobacco. Can't get along without it."

"I'm sorry," smiled Miss Dickson. "But doctor's orders, you know. Perhaps in a little while."

No. 10 had just come in the day before. A great swine of a man, it seemed laughable that he should ever be sick, but there he was, gastritic, a light case.

No. 10 sighed heavily, but he brightened at once. "Well, you can wash my face anyway."

"But I just washed it an hour ago," said Miss Dickson with a little laugh.

"Wash it again." he commanded. So she washed it again, while he lay back on the pillow smiling a greedy smile of satisfaction. And Miss Dickson wondered to herself, why is it that the men will have their faces washed six times a day?

When she started out the door he urged her to sit down and talk to him, but she refused.

"We never sit down," she said, and smiled at him out of brown eyes.

It was time to see about the pneumonia patient, she thought. Every half hour the pneumonia patient had to be seen to, for he was very sick and much temperature-taking, pulse-feeling and chart-writing was necessary.

They had put him out on the front porch, where the April breeze from the east swept into him and he could catch it in feeble, gasping breaths.

He was a young man and while Miss Dickson stood beside him and counted the slow, drumming flutters in his wrist, she looked at his pinched, white face and the brown curls matted with sweat on his forehead and she ceased to smile.

Will She Come Today?

But pretty soon the pneumonia patient's eyelids flickered a trifle and they opened big and blue. Miss Dickson leaned over and smiled.

"What day is it?" whispered the pneumonia patient.

"Tuesday," said Miss Dickson.

"Do you think she will come today?" said the pneumonia patient wistfully and Miss Dickson knew without asking who She was. "Saturday was the last time, you know."

"I think she will." Miss Dickson smiled again. And content shone in the pneumonia patient's eyes as he closed them.

Miss Dickson had time to see that all the disinfectants in the scrub-room were well-filled and to clean up in there a bit—which every nurse is supposed to do in off moments, be she probationer or head nurse.

Then one of the other nurses met her in the hall. "No 4 wants an orange. It will be all right, won't it?"

No. 4's record flashed through Miss Dickson's mind. He was one of the few patients who never punched the buzzer, and his timid brown eyes in his boyish face told the reason—he was afraid

"Certainly," she said, and went to the telephone and called the drug store on the corner. which keeps a supply of oranges, tobacco, magazines and aught else that the imperious demands of a convalescent are likely to require.

When the orange came up Miss Dickson took it to No. 4 herself. He was a typhoid, a ten-year-old boy in the final stages of convalescence and fearfully hungry.

Miss Dickson's smile was no ready-made article when she entered, for No. 4 looked at the orange as if he could swallow it, skin and all.

Wanted a Cook Book.

"Oh, thank you," he cried, as he grasped it, and then, looking up passionately, "I want some bacon and eggs, thick, greasy bacon and eggs a mountain high. Ain't I gonna have 'em soon?"

"I'll ask the doctor," said Miss Dickson. "Perhaps in a day or two, a little bit."

No 4 was silent for a minute while Miss Dickson stood and watched him peel the orange. Then he spoke plaintively.

"Haven't got any cook books around here, have you? My mother used to have 'em, great big ones, with ways to make ginger-bread and pie and strawberry ice cream an' jam tarts—Oh! if I could only have some jam tarts!"

"I'll see," said Miss Dickson, so when she left, she guiltily extracted a worn cook book from the diet kitchen and gave it to No. 4, who grabbed it eagerly and proceeded to devour it mentally for the remainder of the day.

In the meantime Miss Dickson, busy with medicines, temperatures and the buzzer, had yet found time to snatch twenty minutes for dinner at the dining room downstairs.

And then, just as she was beginning to feel ready for a good, long rest in her two hours off a new patient came in and she was assigned to her.

The patient was operated on at once. While the doctors and the surgical nurses were preparing the operating room upstairs Miss Dickson prepared the patient in No. 7.

The first thing she did was to shave No. 7's head behind the ear. You may not know it, but trained nurses, it seems, are some of the best barbers we have. So with a plain razor Miss Dickson shaved the hair away from No. 7's head and swathed her in the "leggins" that each patient wears who is operated on.

Then she put her on the "trundle-bed" and she was taken away to the operating room. While waiting until No. 7 should be brought down again Miss Dickson renewed her acquaintance with the buzzer and the scrub room.

She was very tired, but she still remembered that a trained nurse can never sit down. She snatched a few minutes' rest at the chart, where she seated herself while she filled out the card of the patient who had just arrived.

Wouldn't Take Off Wedding Ring.

"Date, hour of admission, name, age, occupation, married, single, room, name, address, name and address of nearest relative to whom notice shall be sent in case of serious illness, patient's residence, doctor, nurse."

Then she smiled to herself. She remembered how No. 7 had bridled indignantly when she had asked her if she was married. It was funny how indignant some of these patients become at the question.

And No. 7 had objected seriously when Miss Dickson had asked her to remove her ring, a plain, gold band. For that is part of the duty of the trained nurse. But No. 7 had absolutely refused.

Miss Dickson had explained that some of the medicines used in the operating room might dull the gold or eat it away, but the woman had declared she would take the responsibility.

When No. 7 was brought back to her room Miss Dickson waited for the reaction. Patients came out from the ether in different ways. some quietly with a smile, some frightened, some fighting mad, all confused. Miss Dickson hoped it would be the first.

As hour later she left to take her two hours off, the smile all gone, the noise of the buzzer still in her ears, the memory of how the frightened woman had clung to her and begged her not to leave, still in her heart

After she had left No. 7 it had been necessary to take all the temperatures again, feed one patient who was too weak to sit up, fill the chart book to date, give more baths, more alcohol rubs.

"Bones" Bacteriology.

Then she was free—for two hours. She had meant to spend her off-time in a walk, for she was very tired of the close green walls and smelly medicines of the hospital, and the wind from over the hills danced an invitation down the long, still street, shining cool beneath the green trees.

But there was the lecture. Trained nurses are students during their entire three years, and she had remembered that the doctor who lectured on bacteriology would make his weekly visit to the dormitory that night. He always asked questions and delighted in his ability to catch anyone napping.

So for two hours she stayed in her room and "boned" the thrilling subject of bacteriology. When she closed her book with a sigh, it was supper time. The lecture and then an hour of play before she must turn in at 10 o'clock. Trained nurses have two nights off a week, one late night, until 11 o'clock, a month.

It was a most uninteresting lecture she listened to that night and when she was asked a question it was the very one she didn't know. She was thoroughly tired out and unsmiling when 8 o'clock came and she started for her room.

"Miss Dickson!" came a voice. "Oh. Miss Dickson!"

She turned. It was the head nurse.

"An emergency case has just come in and I haven't anybody to spare. Afraid I'll have to put you on special tonight."

Miss Dickson smiled, wearily, patiently. "Oh, all right."

The emergency call was a man shot through the breast in a street brawl. She prepared him for the operation, while he moaned and whimpered, half conscious.

It was late, nearly 11 o'clock, by the time he was brought down from the operating room to No. 5. Watch him carefully when he reacts, the doctor told her, he may break the stitches in the wound.

The Delirious Patient.

In the little room she sat beside the inert form on the bed. The electric light glared brightly overhead, the air outside lay dark and hot. She could hear the hum of the city far off, the lonely whistle of a freight train.

There in the silence she waited minute after minute, too tired to read, but at last, on "special," able to sit down. A long, fluttering sigh came from the bed and a man's hand picked nervously at the coverlet. He was coming out from the ether.

Miss Dickson bent over No. 5 as his bloodshot eyes opened wildly and gazed at her like an animal's at bay, the blood-lust of delirium in them.

"You turned me up, you damn traitor!" No. 5 hissed at her. "I'll fix you! I'll fix you!" One great hand swept like a flail through the air while Miss Dickson pressed the other down against the coverlet and smoothed his forehead back.

No. 5 suddenly shrank against the pillows. He gazed horrified at the green wall opposite and whimpered piteously:

"Do you see it?" he whispered. "There!——It crawls, it's making faces at me—keep it off! keep it off!"—his voice rose to a shriek and he trembled like a tree shaken in the wind—"Don't let it get me, touch me! Don't let it, I tell you! Save me for God's sake! Save me!"

Miss Dickson was forcing him down into the pillows, speaking in soothing tones, smoothing his head back, holding his hands in a fine grip. No. 5 changed and began to sing, laughing insanely and trying to rock back and forth.

"Oh, it's al-ways fair wea-ther!" he shouted at the top of his voice and then went off into a fit of coughing that left him weak and gasping. Miss Dickson feared a hemorrhage, but No. 5 sank back on his pillow with a long sigh.

By and by he turned his eyes toward her and spoke thickly. "Where am I?" he asked.

"You've been shot, you're in the hospital," Miss Dickson smiled back at him. "Don't worry. Just go to sleep and you'll be all right."

For a full minute No. 5 gazed at her in doubt, then he turned his face to the wall and lay silent. Miss Dickson sat, not daring to move. Pretty soon No. 5's breath lengthened into regular respiration, long and deep. He began to snore.

Miss Dickson leaned back with a sigh. A breeze lifted the window curtains and touched her hot cheeks. Outside the darkness thickened and the hum of the city grew distant and dim.

A street car clanged by, shattering the silence for a moment and waking Miss Dickson violently from the doze she had dropped into.

She sat up and winked her eyes rapidly and then sat quietly peering with wide eyes into the night. Far off down the street a whistle sounded. "Come Back to Erin, Mavourneen, Mavourneen," until it trailed away to silence once more.

And so she sat there, battling against sleep and weariness, with her eyes jerking between the darkness and the form on the bed, until at last the dawn shivered white and cold outside and the day's work was over.

Japanese Killed Five Hundred Bears With Bow and Arrow

THERE is in Japan a man who is popularly believed to have killed 500 bears with a bow and arrow. A short time ago some Americans visited him in his wild mountain home on the island of Hokkaido.

This island belongs to the group north of Japan. Otoko Yama is the name of the bear hunter. He prefers his bow to modern weapons. Recently he tried an old muzzle loading gun, and while he had some success with it he liked his bow and arrow better.

Otoko Yama is an Aino, a member of one of the aboriginal tribes of Japan. Some years ago when the Japanese began to pay more attention to the government of Hokkaido and its other island possessions in the north they started to register or make a census of the inhabitants. This was by no means easy because these long bearded and half wild people had no names, and so the Japanese authorities had to name every man as best they could.

High up in the mountains they came across a man who seemed to be leader among the people in that vicinity. He was a great hunter and much admired by the natives because of his prowess. When the Japanese officials learned that he had killed many bears with a small bow and arrow they could scarcely believe it, but he took them into the forest with him and soon proved it by killing a bear with a poisoned arrow sent with accurate aim into bruin's body just below the fifth rib.

Because this man seemed to be head of the people in the mountain district they called him Otoko Yama. Otoko means "man" and Yama means "mountain."

Not long ago Major Wigmore, former American Attache at Tokio, and C. J. Arnell, Japanese secretary of the embassy, accompanied Otoko Dama on a bear hunt in the Hokkaido mountains.

"How old are you" asked Major Wigmore by means of an interpreter, whereupon the old hunter commenced to repeat "herring, salmon, herring, salmon, herring" and so on. Major Wigmore knew a little of the language and he was puzzled. The interpreter laughed.

"He is counting up his years," he said, "and the way he does it is to count the seasons. To him there are only two seasons, when the herring come and when the salmon come. One herring season and one salmon season makes a year." Otoko Yama finally gave it up. He could remember about fifty herring and salmon seasons, but no more.

King Edward's Chef

LONDON, April 4.—M. Juste Alphonse Menager, King Edward VII's chef, has just died in Twyford-avenue, Acton, at the age of sixty-eight.

He became the Royal chef about twenty years ago and was head of the Buckingham Palace kitchens throughout the reign, retiring on his Majesty's death. Some days ago he received a kind message from Queen Alexandra

RAFFLES—NEW AMATEUR CRACKSMAN SERIES

BY E. W. HORNUNG

Nine Points of the Law

WELL," said Raffles, "what do you make of it?"

I read the advertisement in the last column of the Daily Telegraph, and it ran:

TWO THOUSAND POUNDS REWARD.

The above sum may be earned by anyone qualified to undertake delicate mission and prepared to run certain risk. Apply by telegram, Security, London.

"I think," said I, "it's the most extraordinary advertisement that ever got into print!"

Raffles smiled.

"Not quite all that, Bunny; still, extraordinary enough. I grant you.

"Look at the figure!"

"It is certainly large."

"And the mission—and the risk!"

"Yes; the combination is frank, to say the least of it. But the really original point is requiring applications by telegram to a telegraphic address! There's something in the fellow who thought of that, and something in his game, with one word he chokes off the million who answer an advertisement every day when they can raise the stamp. My answer cost me five bob; but then I prepaid another."

"You don't mean to say that you've applied?"

"Rather," said Raffles. "I want two thousand pounds as much as any man."

"Put your own name?"

"Well—no, Bunny, I didn't. In point of fact I smell something interesting and illegal, and you know what a cautious chap I am. I signed myself Glasspolo, care of Hickory's, Conduit street, that's my tailor, and after sending the wire I went round and told him what to expect. He promised to send the reply along the moment it came. I shouldn't be surprised if that's it!"

And he was gone before a double knock on the outer door had done ringing through the rooms. It returned next minute with an open telegram and a face full of news.

"What do you think?" said he. "Security's that fellow Addenbrooke, the police court lawyer, and he wants to see me instanter!"

"Do you know him, then?"

"Merely by repute. I only hope he doesn't know me. He's probably the one man who would have the cheek to put in an advertisement like that and the one man who could do it without exciting suspicion. It's simply in his line; but I may be sure there's something in it at the bottom of it. The odd thing is that I have long made up my mind to go to Addenbroke on accidents should happen. And now I'm going to him now?"

This minute said Raffles, put on his hat, "and so are

Mr. Bennett Addenbroke occupied official offices in Wellington Street Strand, and was out when we called; but he had only just gone over the way to the courts, and five minutes sufficed to produce a brisk, fresh-colored, resolute-looking man, with a very confident, rather festive air, and black eyes that opened wide at the sight of Raffles.

"Mr. Glasspool?" exclaimed the lawyer.

"My name," said Raffles, with dry effrontery.

"Not up at Lord's, however!" said the other, slyly. "My dear sir, I have seen you take far too many wickets to make any mistake!"

For a single moment Raffles looked venomous; then he shrugged and smiled, and the smile grew into a little cynical chuckle.

"So you have bowled me out in my turn!" said he. "Well, I don't think there's anything to explain. I am harder up than I wished to admit under my own name, that's all, and I want that thousand pounds reward."

"Two thousand," said the solicitor.

"The matter, however, is of a strictly private and confidential character." And he looked very hard at me.

"Quite so," said Raffles. "But there was something about a risk?"

"A certain risk is involved."

"Then surely three heads will be better than two. I said I wanted the thousand pounds; my friend here wants the other. Must you have his name, too? I should give him my real one, Bunny."

Mr. Addenbrooke raised his eyebrows over the card I found for him; then he drummed upon it with his finger nail, and his embarrassment expressed itself in a puzzled smile.

"The fact is, I find myself in a difficulty," he confessed at last. "Yours is the first reply I have received; people who can afford to send long telegrams don't rush to the advertisements in the Daily Telegraph; but, on the other hand, I was not quite prepared to hear from men like yourselves. Candidly, and in confidence, I am not sure that you are the stamp of men for me—men who belong to good clubs! I rather intended to appeal to the—er—adventurous classes."

The black eye gleamed shrewdly.

"We are not professional rogues, if that's what you mean," said Raffles, smiling. "But we would do a good deal for a thousand pounds apiece, eh, Bunny?"

"Anything," I murmured.

The solicitor rapped his desk. "I'll tell you what I want you to do. You can but refuse. It's illegal, but it's illegality in a good cause; that's the risk, and my client is prepared to pay for it. He will pay for the attempt, in case of failure; the money is as good as yours once you consent to run the risk. My client is Sir Bernard Debenham, of Broom Hall, Esher."

"I know his son," I remarked.

Raffles knew him, too, but said nothing, and his eye dropped disapproval in my direction. Bennett Addenbrooke turned to me.

"Then," said he, "you have the privilege of knowing one of the most complete blackguards about town, and the fons et origo of the whole trouble. As you know the son, you may know the father, too, at all events by reputation; and in that case I needn't tell you that he is a very peculiar man. He lives alone in a storehouse of treasures which no eyes but his ever beheld. He is said to have the finest collection of pictures in the south of England, though nobody ever sees them to judge; pictures, fiddles, and furniture are his hobby, and he is undoubtedly very eccentric. Nor can any one deny that there has been considerable eccentricity in his treatment of his son. For years Sir Bernard paid his debts, and the other day, without the slightest warning, not only refused to do so any more, but absolutely stopped the lad's allowance. Well, I'll tell you what has happened."

The lawyer drew his chair nearer ours, and leaned forward with a hand on either knee.

"On Tuesday of last week I had a telegram from Sir Bernard; I was to go to him at once. I found him waiting for me in the drive; without a word he led me to the picture gallery, which was locked and darkened, drew up a blind, and stood simply pointing to an empty picture frame. It was a long time before I could get a word out of him. Then at last he told me that that frame had contain one of the rarest and most valuable pictures in England—in the world—an original Velasquez. They say at the National Gallery that the picture is practically priceless. And young Debenham has sold it for five thousand pounds!"

"The deuce he has," said Raffles.

I inquired who had bought it.

"A Queensland legislator of the name of Craggs—the Hon. John Montagu Craggs, M. L. C., to give him his full title. Not that we know anything about him on Tuesday last: we didn't even know for certain that young Debenham had stolen the picture. But he had gone down for money on the Monday evening, had been refused, and it was plain enough that he had helped himself in this way; he had threatened revenge, and this was it. Indeed, when I hunted him up in town on the Tuesday night he confessed as much in the most brazen manner imaginable. But he wouldn't tell me who was the purchaser, and finding out took the rest of the week; but I did find out, and a nice time I've had of it ever since! Backward and forward between Esher and the Metropole, where the Queensleader is staying, sometimes twice a day; threats, offers, prayers, entreaties, not one of them a bit of good!"

"But," said Raffles, "surely it's a clear case? The sale was illegal; you can pay him back his money and force him to give the picture up."

"Exactly; but not without an action and a public scandal, and that my client declines to face. I am to get it back by fair means or fair. He gives me carte blanche in the matter, and, I verily believe, would throw in a blank check if I asked. He offered one to the Queenslander, but Craggs simply tore it in two; the one old boy is as much a character as the other, and between the two of them I'm at my wits' end."

"And you wish us to steal this picture?"

It was magnificently said; the lawyer flushed from his hair to his collar.

"I knew you were not the men!" he groaned. "I never thought of men of your stamp! But it's not stealing," he exclaimed heatedly: "it's recovering stolen property. Besides, Sir Bernard will pay him his five thousand as soon as he has his picture; and, you'll see, old Craggs will be just as loth to let it come out as Sir Bernard himself. No, no—it's an enterprise, an enterprise, an adventure, if you like—but not stealing."

"You yourself mentioned the law," murmured Raffles.

"And the risk," I added.

"We pay for that," he said once more.

"But not enough," said Raffles, shaking his head. "My good sir, consider what it means to us. Double your stakes, and I for one am your man."

Addenbrooke wavered.

"Do you think you could bring it off?"

"We could try."

"And you would really run the risk for four thousand pounds?"

Raffles looked at me, I nodded.

"We would," said he "and blow the odds!"

"It's more than I can ask my client to pay," said Addenbrooke, growing firm.

"Say three thousand if you succeed!"

"Four is our figure, Mr. Addenbrooke."

"Then I think it should be nothing if you fail."

"Doubles or quits?" cried Raffles. "Well, that's sporting. Done!"

Addenbrooke opened his lips, half rose, then sat back in his chair, and looked long and shrewdly at Raffles —never once at me.

"Damme, I believe you're my very man!" he said.

The bargain was clinched at the Cafe Royal, where Bennett Addenbrooke insisted on playing host at an extravagant luncheon. I remember that he took his whack of champagne with the nervous freedom of a man at high pressure, and have no doubt it kept him in countenance by an equal indulgence; but Raffles, ever an exemplar in such matters, was more abstemious even than his wont, and very poor company to boot. I can see him now, his eyes in his plate thinking—thinking. At the close Raffles apologized for his preoccupation, called for a timetable, and announced his intention of catching the 3:02 to Esher.

"You must excuse me, Mr. Addenbrooke," said he, "but I have my own idea, and for the moment I should much prefer to keep it to myself. But speak to Sir Bernard I must, so will you write me one line to him on your card? Of course, if you wish, you must come down with me and hear what I say; but I really don't see much point in it."

And as usual Raffles had his way, though Bennett Addenbrooke showed some temper when he was gone, and I myself shared his annoyance to no small extent.

That day I saw no more of Raffles, but a telegram reached me when I was dressing for dinner:

"Be in your rooms tomorrow from noon and keep rest of day clear. Raffles."

I had been sent off from Waterloo at 6:42.

His telegram meant that he had no desire for my society that night for the following forenoon; that when he wanted me I should see him soon enough.

And see him I did, toward 1 o'clock next day. I was watching for him from my window in Mount street when he drove up furiously in a hansom, and jumped out without a word to the man. I met him next minute at the door, and he fairly pushed me back into my rooms.

"Five minutes, Bunny!" he cried. "Not a moment more."

And he tore off his coat before flinging himself into the nearest chair.

"I'm fairly on the rush," he panted; "having the very devil of a time! Not a word till I tell you all I've done. I settled my plan of campaign yesterday at lunch. The first thing was to get in with this man Craggs. Only one sort of pretext would do—it must be something to do with this blessed picture, so that I might see where he's got it and all that. Well, I couldn't go and ask to see it out of curiosity, and I couldn't go as a second representative of the other old chap, and it was thinking how I could go that made me sure a bear at lunch. But I saw my way before we got up. If I could only lay hold of a copy of the picture I might ask leave to go and compare it with the original. So down I went to Esher to find out if there was a copy in existence, and was at Broom Hall for one hour and a half yesterday afternoon. There was no copy there, but they must exist, for Sir Bernard himself has allowed a couple to be made since the picture has been in his possession. He hunted up the painters' addresses, and the rest of the evening I spent in hunting up the painters themselves; but their work had been done on commission; one copy had gone out of the country, and I'm still on the track of the other."

"Then you haven't seen Craggs yet?"

"Seen him and made friends with him, and if possible he's the funnier old cuss of the two; but you should study 'em both. I took the bull by the horns this morning, went in and lied like Ananias, and it was just as well I did—the old ruffian sails for Australia by tomorrow's boat. I told him a man wanted to sell me a copy of the celebrated Infanta Marie-Teresa of Velasques, that I'd been down to the supposed owner of the picture, only to find that he had just sold it to him. You should have seen his face when I told him that! He grinned all round his wicked old head. 'Did old Debenham admit the sale?' says he; and when I said he had he chuckled to himself for about five minutes. He was so pleased that he did just what I hoped he would do; he showed me the great picture—luckily it isn't by any means a large one—also the case he's got it in. It's an iron map case in which he brought over the plans of his land in Brisbane; he wants to know who would suspect it of containing an old master, too? But he's had it fitted with a new lock, and I managed to take an interest in the key while he was gloating over the canvas. I had the wax in the palm of my hand, and I shall make my duplicate this afternoon."

"Worth fifty thousand pounds, my boy, and I got it for five!"

Raffles looked at his watch and jumped up, saying he had given me a minute too much.

"By the way," he added, "you've got to dine with him at the Metropole tonight!"

"I?"

"Yes; don't look so scared. Both of us are invited—I swore you were dining with me. I accepted for us both; but I shan't be there."

His clear eye was upon me, bright with meaning and with mischief. I umpired him to tell me what his meaning was.

"You will dine in his private sitting-room," said Raffles; "it adjoins his bedroom. You must keep him sitting as long as possible, Bunny, and talking all the time!"

In a flash I saw his plan.

"You're going for the picture while we are at dinner?"

"If he hears you!"

"If he does," said Raffles, "there will be a solution, that's all. Revolver would be out of place in the Metropole, but I shall certainly take a life preserver."

"But it's ghastly!" I cried. "To sit and talk to an utter stranger and to know that you're at work in the next room!"

"Two thousand apiece," said Raffles, quietly.

He put on his coat and his hat.

"What time have I to be there?" I asked him, with a groan.

"Quarter to eight. There will be a telegram from me saying I can't be made since the picture has been in his possession. He hunted up the painters' addresses, and the rest of the evening I spent in hunting up the painters themselves; but their work had been done on commission; one copy had gone out of the country, and I'm still on the track of the other."

"Then you haven't seen Craggs yet?"

"Seen him and made friends with him, and if possible he's the funnier old cuss of the two; but you should study 'em both. I took the bull by the horns this morning, went in and lied like Ananias, and it was just as well I did—the old ruffian sails for Australia by tomorrow's boat. I told him a man wanted to sell me a copy of the celebrated Infanta Marie-Teresa of Velasques, that I'd been down to the supposed owner of the picture, only to find that he had just sold it to him. You should have seen his face when I told him that! He grinned all round his wicked old head. 'Did old Debenham admit the sale?' says he; and when I said he had he chuckled to himself for about five minutes. He was so pleased that he did just what I hoped he would do; he showed me the great picture—luckily it isn't by any means a large one—also the case he's got it in. It's an iron map case in which he brought over the plans of his land in Brisbane; he wants to know who latest news! I'll tell old Rebenham to expect you; he shall give us both a bed. By Jove! he won't be able to do us too well if he's got his picture."

"If!" I groaned as he nodded his adieu; and he left me limp with apprehension, sick with fear, in a perfectly pitiable condition of pure stage fright.

For, after all, I had only to act my part; unless Raffles failed where he never did fail, unless Raffles, the neat and unlined, made me clumsy and inept, all I had to do was indeed to "smile and smile and be a villain." I practiced that smile half the afternoon. I rehearsed putative had originally fired my host's ambition to possess what he was pleased to call a "real, genuine, twin-screw, double-funnelled, copper-bottomed old man-of-war."

"But you must see it. Next room. It's his way," he said

"Isn't it packed up?" I inquired hastily.

"Lock and key. That's all."

"Pray don't trouble," I urged.

"Trouble be hanged!" said he. "Come along."

And all at once I saw that to resist him further would be to heap suspicion upon myself against the moment of impending discovery. I therefore followed him into his bedroom without further protest, and suffered him first to show me the iron map case which stood in one corner; he took a crafty pride in this receptacle, and I thought he would never cease decanting on its innocent appearance and its lock. It seemed an interminable age before the key was in the latter. Then the ward clicked, and my pulse stood still.

"By Jove!" I cried next instant.

The canvas was in its place among the maps!

"Thought it would knock you," said Craggs, drawing it out and unrolling it for my benefit. "Grand thing, ain't it? Worth fifty thousand pounds, my boy—and I got it for five!"

He dug me in the ribs, and seemed in the mood for further confidences My appearance checked him, and he rubbed his hands.

Heaven knows what I contrived to say at last. Struck speechless first by my relief, I continued silent from a very different cause. A new tangle of emotions tied my tongue. Raffles had failed—Raffles had failed! Could I not succeed? Was it too late? Was there no way?

"So long," he said, taking a last look at the canvas before he rolled it up—"so long till we get to Brisbane."

The flutter was in as he closed the case!

"For the last time," he went on, as his keys jingled back into his pockets. "It goes straight into the strongroom on board."

For the last time! If I could but send him out to Australia with only his legitimate contents in his precious map case! If I could but succeed where Raffles had failed!

We returned to the other room. Whiskey and soda water became the order of the hour. I scarcely touched it, but he drank copiously, and before 11 I left him incoherent. And the last train for Esher was the 11:50 out of Waterloo.

I took a hansom to my rooms. I was back at the hotel in thirteen minutes. I walked upstairs. The corridor was empty; I stood an instant on the sitting-room threshold, heard a snore within, and admitted myself softly with my gentleman's own key, which it had been a very simple matter to take away with me.

Craggs never moved; he was stretched on the sofa fast asleep. But not fast enough for me. I saturated my handkerchief with the chloroform I had brought, and I laid it gently over his mouth. Two or three stertorous breaths, and the man was a log.

I removed the handkerchief; I extracted the keys from his pocket. In less than five minutes I put them back, after winding the picture about my body beneath my Inverness cape. I took some whisky and soda water before I went.

The train was easily caught—so easily that I trembled for ten minutes in my first-class smoking carriage—in terror of every footstep on the platform, in unreasonable terror till the end. Then at last I sat back and lit a cigarette, and the lights of Waterloo reeled out behind.

To think that I had succeeded where Raffles had failed! Of all our adventures this was the first in which I had played a commanding part; and, of them all, this was infinitely the least discreditable. I left me without a conscientious qualm; I had burglarized a robber, when all was said.

And I had done it myself, single-handed—Ipse egomet!

I pictured Raffles, his surprise and delight. He would think a little more of me in future. And that future should be different. We could send sand pounds apiece sunder—choose a start afresh as honest men—and go through life!

In a glow I sprang out at Esher and took the one belated cab that was waiting under the bridge. It was perfect time. I should reach Broom Hall with the lower stories in darkness, and saw the front door open as I climbed the steps.

"Thought it was you," said Raffles cheerily. "It's all right. There's a bed for you. Sir Bernard's strictly forbidden us to shake your hand."

His good spirits disappointed me. But I knew the man. He was one of those who wear their brightest smile in the blackest hour. I knew him well by this time to be deceived.

"I've got it!" I cried in his ear.

"I've got it!"

"Got what?" he asked me, stepping back.

"The picture!"

"What?"

"The picture. He showed it to me. You had to go without it! I saw that. So I determined to have it. And here it is."

"Let's see," said Raffles grimly

I threw off my cape and unwound the canvas from about my body. While I was doing so an untidy old gentleman made his appearance in the hall, and stood looking on with raised eyebrows.

"Looks pretty fresh for an old master, doesn't she?" said Raffles

His tone was strange. I could only suppose that he was jealous of my success.

"So Craggs said. I hardly looked at it myself."

"Well, look now—look closely. By Jove, I must have faked her better than I thought!"

"It's a copy!" I cried.

"It's the copy," he answered. "It's the copy I've been tearing all over the country to procure. It's the copy I faked back and front, so that on your own showing, it imposed upon Craggs, and might have done him happy for life And you go and rob him of that!"

I could not speak.

"How did you manage it?" inquired Sir Bernard Debenham

"Have you killed him?" asked Raffles sardonically.

I did not look at him. I turned to Sir Bernard Debenham, and to him told my story, hoarsely, exhibiting it was all that I could do to keep from breaking down. But as I spoke I became calmer, and I finished in bitterness, with the remark that the other time Raffles might tell me what he meant to do.

"Another time!" he cried aghast. "My dear Bunny, you speak as though we were going to turn burglars for living!"

"I trust you won't," said Sir Bernard, smiling, "for you are certainly two very daring young men. I hope on first making Rebenham's acquaintance to do as he said, and not open his case till he gets back there. He is a man of his word, and I shall be very much surprised if he troubles any of us again."

Raffles and I did not speak till we were in the room which had been prepared for me. Nor was I anxious to do so then. But he followed me and took my hand.

"Bunny," said he, "don't you think hard on a fellow! I was in the devil of a hurry, and didn't know that you would ever set what I wanted in train and that's a fact. But it serves me right that you should have gone and undone one of the best things I ever did. Your own reputation's safe now, you won't mind my saying that; I didn't think you had it in you to do it before—"

"Don't talk to me about the future I cried. "I hate the whole thing! I'm going to chuck it up!"

"So am I," said Raffles, "when I've made my pile."

Secularism in Education Breeds Crime Suicide

Among English-speaking people at least the experiment of a purely secular education has never yet been tried; but our nation has gone far along the dangerous way of this godless experiment. We should halt in this mad course of folly before it is too late to save ourselves from the horrors of a revolution worse than that which drenched France with blood and subjected the French people to the domination of a Napoleon. le requires more tyrannical. if possible, than the reign of the Bourbons.

The professor to whom reference has been made has recently exemplified a fact of which we have had his own words touching some of the effects of "modern education". The press dispatches report that a few months ago he committed suicide. Before his untimely end, he had been divorced from one woman and had married another, the divorced wife, however, taking charge of his lifeless body for burial when he killed himself. Here is a commentary upon his sad words, "Such education only breeds a feeling of grievous disappointment and final heart-break."

And it should be remarked that education such as we have had, during the time which has elapsed since the secularists have obtained dominancy influence in educational institutions, has tended to increase the number of suicides in the United States. The same effect has been noted in Japan, where materialistic culture has gone while the old religions have been passing away and before Christianity has reached enough of the people to save the nation. In like manner Roman culture in the days of the republic led to suicides. When the pagan faith of the Romans had given place to the type of education which was illustrated in such men as Cicero suicides became common among educated readers. Indeed, the cultured Cicero wrote in defense of suicide, saying in one his letter to Atticus that there was "no surer refuge against circumstances". SEGADLOS
THE HOME OF DANCING IN ATLANTA

ONCE upon a time there came to Atlanta a sorcerer named Se[illegible] a master of the [illegible]art. And he wanted [illegible]nta and her people [illegible] of dancing.

But he found [illegible] many another [illegible] that Atlanta [illegible] taught. For a [illegible] struggled along as [illegible] few patrons and [illegible] enlisted the interest of some society folk, among them Mrs. Lem Huntley. It was Mrs. Huntley [illegible] Segadlo a little [illegible] a dancing studio [illegible] between the two Peachtree [illegible] day after day Segadlo [illegible] the waltz and the two-step and first steps in aesthetic dancing to young Atlanta. But it was a [illegible] losing fight, and so one day the little professor quietly gave up the battle and died, just on the eve [illegible]

[illegible] Segadlo was gone did Atlanta realize his true worth. Sorrow at his death was deep among his patrons, and one of these, Mrs. Huntley, decided that the most fitting memorial would be a bigger, better Segadlos studio on the site of the old one. And so Segadlos was built, the dancing studio which today is the most universally known and loved place of amusement south of Mason and Dixon's line.

Located in the heart of the residence section, this unique little hall has been the trysting place for season after season of young folk. The name of Segadlos is familiar not only in Atlanta but in every college town in the south and throughout the year it vibrates with genuine happiness and the joy of youth.

The Long Mirror.

Since it was first founded about ten years ago, its popularity waxed and waned. For a while, toward the first, Segadlos lost some of its distinction, but with the coming of Miss Lillian Viola Moseley to Atlanta six years ago, it regained its old prestige and today is the non plus ultra of dance studios in Atlanta and Dixie.

If the long mirror set in the north wall of Segadlos could send forth again across the polished floors the faces and forms it has reflected in the years it has stood there, there would fit a long procession, the beauty and gallantry of Atlanta society for the past decade.

The waltz and the two-step, classic dancing, the Boston, a brief spasm of the turkey-trot, the tango, the maxixe, the one-step—all would fit into the pageant.

What belles and beaux of yesteryear would laugh out at you from the long mirror. There would be college sets that merged into debutante sets and young married sets. There would be fraternity dances, football dances, baseball and holiday dances, boys and girls who have grown into young men and women, children who have passed into girl and boyhood—all of whom have danced across Segadlos floor and smiled into the long mirror as they swept past.

Weekly Dances.

Many of the dancers of these vanished days still frequent Segadlos, most of them in fact, for the weekly program arranged for the studio by Miss Moseley includes enjoyable classes and dances for Atlanta society, whether young or old.

Of course the college set considers Segadlos its especial property. The dances there after Tech's football and baseball games have become an institution and much of the bitterness and rivalry that characterised the gridiron when the Red and Black met the Gold and White has died away in the face of the good fellowship that reigns at Segadlos.

During the college year Segadlos is taxed often to its utmost capacity with the leading beauty and representative young manhood of the principal southern cities. A fraternity dance is not a real fraternity dance unless it is held at Segadlos, the weekly college dances are as much a part of Tech's curriculum as the class room and the campus.

Once a week the debutante set and their friends [illegible] at Segadlos and visiting young ladies are always entertained at these affairs and number them among the most enjoyable events of their visits to Atlanta.

Once a week the married contingent also assembles at Segadlos at a mid-week informal dance, as a relaxation from the more formal functions at the clubs. Then the real pleasure experienced on these occasions is expressed by the happy smiles on the faces of those present and the spiritedly graceful execution by the dancers of the newest and most difficult steps.

Children's Classes.

Perhaps no feature of Segadlos is more worthy of comment than Miss Moseley's classes for children. One [illegible] to them will convince you of the marvelous grace of the new dances and [illegible] ability of Miss Moseley's young pupils to perform them.

She herself declares that she would not mind exhibiting them before the greatest dancing masters of America. The grace and ease that characterize the performing of the one-step, the hesitation and the tango by some of Miss Moseley's children is enough to bring envy to an older and more experienced dancer.

Aesthetic dancing is taught to classes of Atlanta children by Miss Moseley. Not only does this result in a grace of carriage and a distinctive poise, but they are endowed with a love of true beauty that could be gained in no other way.

These young people are in love with their work, in love with their teacher. For under Miss Moseley's leadership a spirit of harmony and pleasure is apparent in each class and every dance. She has won a firm place in the affections of her pupils and her friends, and the greater part of Segadlos' popularity is due to her unflagging endeavors to place its dances on a high plane.

The true secret of Miss Moseley's and Segadlos' success is the true merit of her work. She is not just a dancing-teacher. She is an artist. She has a passionate love for her profession and is conceded to be the leading authority on dancing in the south.

Miss Moseley studies each summer with Louis N. Chalif, of New York city, formerly of the imperial ballet of Russia and recognized head of the dancing profession in America. Under his instruction, Miss Moseley studies classical, aesthetic, interpretative, symbolical, characteristic and imitative dancing.

She has also studied pantomime and ballet dancing under Romeo, former ballet master at the New York hippodrome. Her annual trips to New York enable her to bring home the latest and most fashionable steps for her pupils. This year she is contemplating a trip to Europe, where she will study under the leading dancing masters of the continent, with a few weeks of instruction in New York city to thoroughly Americanize what she has learned.

Grand Opera for Federal Prisoners

Caruso, Farrar and Other Members of the Metropolitan Company May Sing This Month at the Goverment Penitentiary.

By Angus Perkerson.

THE foreman pushed back his hat and smiled in the Scotch fashion by drawing down the left hand corner of his mouth and elevating his right eyebrow.

In the middle of the stone shed a fat Italian stood on a platform hammering at a chunk of stone as big as a boxcar. The windows in the shed threw out the light in such a way as to "etch" his figure.

He seemed seven feet tall and a yard broad, and when he swung his hammer aloft and poised it there he was statuesque as well as tremendous.

"Come up a little closer," urged the foreman.

The mason swung his hammer upward, then downward, and broke off a corner of stone the size of a Belgian block.

"La, la, la," he hummed as he brushed away the dust of the stone with his hand, and set his chisel in a new place.

Up went the hammer, paused a moment while the mason finished a bar from "Il Trovatore," and whacked against the top of the chisel.

The Best Next to "Bull."

"Next to 'Bull,' he's the best baseball player we got," compialsed the foreman, "but all he can do now is whistle untuneful music, and count the days. 'Bull's' our no-hit man, and he didn't lose but two games last year. They'd dug up a new counterfeiling charge against him then, and it hurt his control."

The bunch of Italians at that end of the shed hummed softly under their breath, and a faint medley in which Verdi predominated, pushed itself above the rattle of the hammers.

"What do you think they're going to sing?" asked the foreman. "Maybe 'Annie Laurie'?" he pleaded. "Well, they ought."

"You know," said Warden Moyer, at the front door of the federal prison, "grand opera week means about three times as much on the inside of this penitentiary as it does on the outside. And this year it may mean more than ever."

Perhaps Caruso, Miss Farrar and three or four other members of the company will visit the penitentiary and sing there.

If you'll remember, the Italian prisoners sent a message to Caruso last year by a guard named Fajella, who could speak to the singer in his own tongue.

In the Name of Brotherhood.

"In the name of brotherhood," they asked, "won't you come and sing to us?"

And because of this message from his unfortunate countrymen, he visited the prison, and, in the little chapel where men charged with many crimes sat in rows, he sang with finer emotion than at any opera given here.

He began with an aria from "L'Africana," then he sang a ballad by Tosti, and ended with his sob song from "Pagliacci."

Just before he reached the prison the men filed in one by one and silently took their places in the chairs which are arranged like seats in a theater.

The leader of the group that turned to the left and took their seats in the left hand section was an Indian, ponderous, flabby, his face broad and good humored, who'd killed half a dozen men in Indian Territory. Near him was Bram, the sailor, about whom Mary Roberts Rinehart, the novelist, has written a book to prove his innocence. Next came a man to whom Harper's once paid $10,000 for a novel. Then trooped the counterfeiters, and the lank, rugged old moonshiners.

Everybody sat down and waited. Visitors began to arrive. The orchestra came in. The visitors craned their heads to see Caruso who was entering, but the prisoners sat stolidly in their seats, as though they had trained themselves against curiosity.

The orchestra began to play popular music, and you could see smiles break over the faces of the men in gray uniforms.

When Caruso Sang.

Caruso sang his first two songs, and the Italians who sat together toward the front, made themselves distinct by leaning forward with their chins in their hands.

Then, he sang the last of his three arias, the song from "Pagliacci." As the orchestra began to play he came nearer to the edge of the platform. One prisoner in the group of Italians half rose, then sat down again. The visitors stopped their low chatter. The moment was intense. And the time that he sang seemed hardly more than an instant; yet, it was also very long.

Everyone roused himself from a few minutes of complete absorption. The Italians seemed to forget rules for they rose and one or two called to the singer.

The applause was first a ripple; for prisoners are slow to clap their hands. It seems that they get used to silence. Then, the hand claps rose in a storm. The singer returned from the wings, bowing, throwing out his hands to his audience, exclaiming to them.

The guards gave the word or the visitors to remain still, and the prisoners began to leave the hall. The group of Italians went last. They were filing through the door when one cried Caruso's name, the applause broke out again, and the singer hurrying back to the stage, waved to them until the last man had passed through the doorway and the hall was empty except for the people who had come to look on.

Miss Geraldine Farrar and Enrico Caruso

Bori Lends Her Smelling Salts.

In the wings, Segurola and Scotti exclaimed that Caruso had surpassed himself, and Bori lent him her smelling salts.

Had it not been for a misunderstanding they would have joined in the concert. Someone said Caruso wouldn't sing if anybody else did. And, while his visit to the prison was in a spirit of humanity that had nothing to do with pittishness, the prisoners had left the hall before the misunderstanding cleared awey. Then, all the singers hurried to the warden and said that when they saw Atlanta next, they would visit the prison and sing.

Bori will not be with the company this year; Farrar is singing the principal roles.

Perhaps, she and Caruso and Scotti and Segurola and others besides will go to the prison. Perhaps, instead of a concert, it will be the cream of the Metropolitan's repertoire of grand operas that the prisoners will hear.

Everyone hopes so. The warden pointed to a picture of Miss Farrar hanging on the wall of his office in a frame larger than President Wilson's.

"Of course our population's changed a lot since she sang here," he granted. "But there are a good many who remember when she sang in the chapel. Her singing was something a lot of us won't ever forget. But you might go through and get your own impressions."

The first visit was to the chapel. It is a quiet, tranquil room, with the light sufficient to render it cheerful, and subdued enough to make it restful.

The Book Mender.

Near the entrance are two rooms in which prisoners were mending old leather bound books. All the books seemed old and to have leather bindings.

A prisoner began to play the "Fifth Nocturne" on the time-worn piano in the chapel. The voice of the piano has grown weaker with age, but its tone seems to have become sweeter. The man played in a dreamy way, pausing over passages that pleased him, repeating them, going back to them.

He picked up his music, slid off the piano stool and started toward one of the book-binding rooms. It seemed a good chance for the first impression.

"What?" he said, turning round quickly, "Opera? Do we? Well," he paused a minute, "I'd rather hear Caruso over than get out a month sooner."

First a visit to the kitchen, then the tailor's shop, and the stone shed was reached

"We got our picture in Roach's guide," said the foreman, "come on and look at it. You know, our regular season opened last week, and we're playing every Saturday now. Look at the shop from here."

In two rows down the length of the shed the prisoners bent to the task of hammering Stone Mountain granite into shape for the new front of the prison. Above them towered the fat Italian. He was pausing with the hammer raised above his head.

Camp of the Sick Men.

Any moving picture company with such a subject would have dramatized two books of the Apocrypha to work in his mighty figure.

"Grand opera," said the foreman. "Sure. But Caruso ought to sing 'Comin' Thro the Rye.' Bull," he asked, what was the score in that Giants and Tigers' game yesterday?"

The trip of inspection turned to the camp of the sick men. Tents have been pitched for the tuberculosis patients in the lee of the concrete wall that encircles the prison. The camp is a row of tents surrounded by a wire fence; the sun shines on it, two apples trees, covered with white blossoms stand at each end of the row of tents, and before the canvas houses are planted plots of flowers.

No one works. Prisoners tend the flowers and play dominoes under the blossoming trees. One of the three players was an old man. He laid down the counter he had held in his hand, while he studied the board, and leaned back.

"Opera," he said. "Yes, we all want it. But I wish they'd sing a hymn."

He picked up the counter and made his move.

Write Your Own Price Ticket

BY HERBERT KAUFMAN.

There is always another way to do it. A dogged brain will eventually gnaw its way through any obstacle.

Hindrances do not thwart determination but inspire it.

Almost everything that men use or do was considered unfeasible or impossible to all men in some century.

Tomorrow's promise largely lies amid yesterday's failures. The greatest hope of the newcomer is to be found on the field where his inefficient predecessors surrendered to hardship.

Opportunity is not a flower-bed but a thorn-patch. None but the hardy, unqualing and persistent can expect to surmount the adverse chance against the majority.

Nugget gold is a rarity. Free ore is scarce.

Today the dividing line between the few who have much and the many who have little is marked by merit.

And ambition finds it keenest stimulus in the contemplation of an oppressive list of names conspicuously noteworthy by the unflagging zeal and unfaltering purpose through which humble-born thousands have attained rank and distinction.

You can't take a better man's place until you are ready to accept and abide by the conditions, the deprivations, the disappointments inseparable from the careers of the stern fighting company whose path is rough but leads high.

You will have to stay with and continue to accept the insufficiencies of the flabby-brained, spineless, ordinary, nameless millions unless you emerge from your background with a backbone.

In this year of our Lord, 1914, anybody can write his own price ticket and only a better man than himself can alter the figures.

SIGNS OF THE TIMES

SNOWY ascension lilies, typifying in their grace and beauty the resurrection morn, have been seen during the past few days in florists' windows, nodding exquisite flower faces in welcome to the passerby, commemorating the coming Easter day. This morning the hospital wards and corridors are ahloom with beautiful blossoms, their fragrant greetings representing to the sufferers within the visible incarnation of a loving and kindly thought from the great joyous world without. In the homes baskets of vari-colored flowers have brought their message to matron and maid, debutante and younger sister, and have awakened in many a wonder as to the origin of the beautiful word Easter, which long ago was applied by the Anglo-Saxons to the greatest feast of the ecclesiastical year. The word and its derivation are shrouded in mists of antiquity, but its meaning is thought to be identical with the rising light of day and spring, and as far back as the time of the venerable Bede, April was called the Easter monath.

AN announcement of today that will occasion widespread interest is that of the engagement and approaching marriage of Miss Frances Josephine Stewart and Dr. Hugh Inman Battey. Miss Stewart is one of five lovely sisters who are unusually accomplished, and is herself an honor graduate of Vassar college. Her education has been broadened by extensive travel on the European continent, and several years of study in music have made her a finished pianist. Dr. Battey, who is named for his uncle, the late Mr. Hugh Inman, is the second son of Mr. and Mrs. George Magruder Battey and a grandson of the late Dr. Robert Battey, from whom he has inherited a splendid ability in surgery, which has gained for him instant recognition in his chosen profession. Dr. Battey and his bride will go abroad on their wedding trip, arriving in London in July to attend the Clinical Congress of Surgeons of North America, after which they will remain traveling on the continent for several weeks. The wedding will take place at the residence of the bride's mother on West Peachtree street.

The New 1914 Rengo Belt Reducing Corsets

are beautiful examples of the scientific reduction of stout and medium figures

NO OTHER corsets ever have or ever will have, the wonderful value that is represented in the great strength and wearing qualities of these new 1914 models. By their extra strength, their shapeliness will be retained long after other weaker corsets have stretched and gone to pieces.

The new models introduce abdominal reducing features strikingly simple, successful and comfortable. In addition to the famous Rengo Belt reinforcement over the abdomen, we have added this season special wide elastic webbing, which automatically reduces the excess flesh and gives an upward support that is most comforting to the wearer. This elastic webbing affords perfect freedom and particularly gives comfort in the sitting position.

All models are boned with double watch spring steel and guaranteed not to rust. (Corsets, Second Floor.)

69c Condiment Sets at 39c

The silver plated castor contains three glass shakers with silver plated tops—one salt, one pepper, one paprika shaker. Set complete, 39c.

25c White Plisse Crepes 19c

A charming crepe, so wrinkly and crinkly that you couldn't iron even if you wanted to. Tumbled and jumbled in the weave. No doing up worry for them. Sun-dry, so they're not asleep. Winsome, open to the air. That's plisse crepe, choice of three styles; plain or striped. 19c. (White Goods, Main Floor, Left.)

50c & 65c Imported Scissors at 29c

—An importer's odds and ends of high-grade German steel sewing and cutting scissors, 6, 6 1-2 and 7 inches blades. Wonderful values at 29c. (Main Floor, Center.)

Bolts of Wash Braids at 10c

—Fast color scalloping braids for trimming tub dresses. All white or with colored edge. Some have embroidered dots between the scalloped. Wide 9 yards to bolt; narrow 6 yards. Choice the bolt, 10c.

25c Doz. Pearl Buttons 15c

—First quality ocean pearl buttons in 24 and 30 ligne sizes. Plain and fancy, two and four-hole style.

When the April Curtain Sale Calls Prudent Housekeepers Must Heed

Whoever needs Curtains can ill afford to miss this sale. Every curtain in stock reduced a fifth, a third and more.

HERE, then, is the best curtain news we expect to publish this season. Spring has just begun; the curtain stock is at its best, filled with fresh, attractive styles at every price and for every purpose. It is your good fortune to choose the curtains you want and pay from—a fifth to a third less than usual

There are many odd lots, moreover, and if you find what you want among them—as you doubtless will—your savings will range to nearly half

There are Arabian curtains; Filet and Renaissance; Cluny and Point Olympia; Scrims and Muslins; Madras and Fish Nets, and others and others. Styles are innumerable; all with the freshness and charm of spring.

Prices start at $1 for curtains usually $1.25 and $1.50, and climb slowly to $20 for curtains usually $30. In between one chooses at the same proportionate savings; except that in the odd lots the reductions are much greater.

(Curtains, Third Floor.)

Sale starts Monday; runs through Saturday. Mail orders will be filled.

Munsingwear Union Suits

They look well and fit well; the shape retaining qualities being woven into them. Every thread perfect; smooth, uniform finish. Every union suit is hand finished. The suits will go through many tubbings before losing their first blush of newness. Munsingwear union suits fit, wear and satisfy. All sizes for misses and women, in tight, lace or shell knee. Neckless and sleeveless styles. 50c, 75c, $1 and $1.50. (Underwear, Main Floor, Right.)

News of Women and Society

Mrs. Lumpkin Urges Attendance at Meeting

Every woman in Atlanta is urged to attend the special meeting of the City Federation of clubs which has been called for Monday at 13 o'clock at the Woman's club on Baker street, for the purpose of discussing ways and means of aiding the Grady bond movement through which it is hoped to secure better hospital facilities for Atlanta.

"Every woman in Atlanta is vitally interested in this question of proper hospital facilities," said Mrs Samuel Lumpkin, president of the city federation. "It is a matter that touches every home, and we want every woman to attend the meeting in order to learn how to help in the movement for better hospital equipment.

"The various organizations of women in the city are particularly invited to attend in a body, and I hope every one will be represented at the meeting Monday."

A number of physicians and several business men who are aiding the movement for a Greater Grady hospital will address the meeting.

To Mrs. Moore

A pretty event of Friday afternoon will be the 4 o'clock tea at which Miss Irene Smillie will entertain at her home on Piedmont avenue, in honor of Mrs. Edwin S. Moore.

Miss Hopkins' Bridge Party

The bridge party given by Miss Nancy Hill Hopkins Saturday afternoon was a pretty compliment to Miss Katherine Richardson, whose marriage to Captain Haynes Reeves, U. S. army, will be an interesting event of the week.

The living room, in which the guests assembled, was artistically decorated with quantities of fragrant lilacs and white narcissi.

The honor guest was presented with an embroidered towel and the prize for top score was gun metal shaded silk hose, and the consolation prise was white silk stockings.

Miss Richardson was attractive in a smart taffeta model, fashioned with panniers.

Miss Hopkins wore pale lavender taffeta, trimmed in lace and chiffon.

Mrs. Charles Hopkins, who assisted in the entertainment of the guests, was gowned in black and white charmeuse, embroidered in cut steel.

The sixteen guests present included the wedding attendants and intimate friends of Miss Richardson.

Competitive Drill and Dance

Cards are being issued by Company F, Fifth Regiment, National Guards of Georgia, known as the "Grady Cadets" for a competitive drill and dance to be given by the company Friday evening at the Auditorium-Armory.

The drill is the first of three drills that are to be held by the cadets this year for a handsome gold medal, the trophy to be worn by the winner of this drill until July, when the company will compete for it again.

The medal becomes the property of any man in the company who wins it three consecutive times.

The dance to follow the drill will be one of the largest affairs the company has ever attempted.

The hall will be attractively decorated with the colors of the company and refreshments will be served.

Admission by card only.

The Vesper Club Dance

The dance given by the Vesper club Friday evening was one of the most enjoyable events of the past week.

The guests of honor were Miss Miriam Porter, from Knoxville, Tenn., and Miss Margerite Darby, from Washington, D. C., who is the guest of Mrs. Virgil Shepard.

Among others who attended were: Miss Orda Thayer, Miss Laura Wyatt, Miss Laura Ripley, Miss Jamie Arnold, Miss Louise Couper, Miss Anna Lou Jenkins, Miss Margerite Darby, Miss Leslie Weathers, Miss Louise Meltchamp, Miss Idalia Andrews, Miss Mamie Morris, Miss Margerite Winsfield, Miss Christine Nelson, Miss Vie Swanson, Miss Theodosia Andrews, Miss Edith Hudson, Miss Monette Altman, Miss Agnes Bell, Miss Miriam Porter, Miss Imelle Dunn, Miss Marie Vaughn, Miss Mabel Hurt, Miss Lilolee Reid, Miss Margerite Hynds, Miss Lawson Hynds, Miss Tommy Hancock, Miss Edwinia Harper, Miss Margerite Harper, Miss Sula Roberts, Miss Clara Harrison, Mr Bob Goldstein, Mr. J. Easter Egg Hunt

An event of Monday afternoon, will be the Easter egg hunt, at which little Miss Idoline Lewman, the young daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Lewman, will entertain a number of her little friends, at her home on Peachtree place.

Fifty young people have been invited.

Piano Recital

An interesting event of the coming week will be the piano recital to be given by a number of the pupils of Miss Martha Bearden, on Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at her studio, 47 E. Tenth street.

To Miss Green

One of the delightful affairs of the past week was the miscellaneous shower and heart-dice party given by Miss Clara Beets in honor of Miss Ora Green, a bride-elect of April.

The house was artistically decorated with quantities of yellow daffodils and white narcissi, suggesting the Eastertide.

The luncheon table had for its centerpiece a mound of Easter lilies and jonquils.

The prize for top score was won by Miss Green.

Club Entertained

Mrs. M. J. Wright entertained her card club Thursday afternoon at he home on Park avenue.

Top score was made by Mrs. W. R. Anglin, who received the club prize, a white and gold plate, and Mrs. Guy Webb cut the consolation, which was also a piece of hand-painted china.

The guests included Mrs. J. C. Harrison, Mrs. Annie Bunch, Mrs. Joseph Brown, Mrs. W. R. Anglin, Mrs. J. W Haden, Mrs. Guy Webb, Mrs. Jay Rudasill, Mrs. C. Ray, Mrs. Burks, Mrs. W H Duerley, Mrs. M. Anderson, Mrs Trippe and Mrs. J. L. Selman.

Allen's Shoes

In Patent Leather at $6.00

This cut represents one of the many new styles that we have received within the last week.

When your footwear is shabby and out of date, don't you feel that everyone is looking at your feet? Don't you feel and look your worst, even in your prettiest frock? The right footwear, neat and smart and up-to-date---and the attractiveness of your costume is half made, you rise in your own self-respect. Take the first step now with both feet well shod.

Beauty and common sense so mingled in fashionable footwear that everyone who walks is pleased.

The new lines are gracefully slender, yet comfortably broad; the stylish heel is common sense.

Your taste, your comfort, your price has been our consideration.

Prices $4.00 to $8.00

GRAY HAIRED FOLKS ATTENTION!

Gray Hair Darkened Evenly—No Greasy Drugs—Harmless—

No matter how many other things have failed to restore color to your gray hair, no matter what your age or what caused your grayness, "Q-Ban" enables you to darken your hair to original color, vigor and charm. If hair is streaked with gray, white, faded or all gray, on retiring apply Q-Ban to hair and scalp like a shampoo. Let hair fall free and dry over night. It darkens the hair beautifully, evenly, naturally and produces that soft luster and appearance of abundance which makes the hair so fascinating and attractive, besides prevents dandruff, itching scalp and falling hair. Q-Ban is not sticky or mussy—delightful to use. Cannot injure or stain the most delicate scalp or hair. If you care for dark, thick, soft hair, free from grayness, make a personal trial of Q-Ban. It will please, delight and surprise you with satisfactory results to your hair. A large 7-ounce bottle sold and guaranteed for only 50 cents by Edmondson's Drug Stores, 11 N. Broad street, or 104 N. Pryor, Atlanta, Ga. Out-of-town people supplied by mail.—(Advt.)

SULPHUR FOR ECZEMA

APPLIED LIKE COLD CREAM IT STOPS ITCHING AND DRIES SKIN ERUPTIONS RIGHT UP

With the first application of bold-sulphur cream the angry itching attending any eczema eruption ceases and its remarkable healing powers begin. Sulphur, says a renowned dermatologist, just common bold-sulphur, made into a thick cream will soothe and heal the skin when irritated and broken out with Eczema or any form of eruption. The moment it is applied all itching ceases and after two or three applications the Eczema disappears, leaving the skin clear and smooth.

He tells Eczema sufferers to get from any good pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur cream and apply it to the irritated, inflamed skin, the same as you would any cold cream.

For many years this soothing, healing sulphur has occupied a secure position in the treatment of cutaneous affections by reason of its parasite-destroying property. It is not only parasiticidal, but also antipruritic, antiseptic and remarkably healing in all irritable and inflammatory conditions of the skin. While not always establishing a permanent cure it never fails to instantly subdue the irritation and heal the Eczema right up, and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.—(Advt.)

Cox College

One of the most interesting events of the season at Cox college was the debate on woman's suffrage between the Philologian and Sidney Lanier Literary clubs on Thursday evening. The question was widely discussed by the following young ladies, Miss Jennie Phillips, Miss Bessie Maynard, Miss Monzine Williams, Miss Eunice Glausler and Miss Eugenie Chapman. The paper by Miss Lois Cheek was read by Miss Wynona Nance. This debate was only a trial one prior to the wider discussion of the question during commencement week.

A pleasant affair of the last week was the picnic at Grant park which was given on Monday by the seniors to the girls in the fourth year academy. After a delicious lunch in the park, boating was enjoyed on lake Abana.

The students are working earnestly during the last weeks of school for the final examinations which are to be held at no early date. Preparations for commencement are almost completed and the week will be filled with many happy events.

An art exhibit and informal reception will be held in the art studios during the first week in May. Elaborate preparations are being made by the director of the department, Mrs. Mamie Hollfield Montgomery, and her pupils.

JACOBS' MALT EXTRACT

The medicinal qualities of malt extract are thoroughly recognized by physicians and the public generally, and Jacobs' Malt Extract is known by thousands of people as representing the very highest quality.

Jacobs' Malt Extract is prepared from the very finest barley malt, properly combined with other valuable ingredients. It contains all the nutritive and medicinal features of the malt.

It is primarily a liquid food and digestive agent, and as such is highly recommended. It promotes digestion, strengthens the nerves and increases the appetite.

Jacobs' Malt Extract is sold as a tonic, not as a beverage, and for this reason is not to be confused with the many stimulating extracts of malt that possess absolutely no medicinal or otherwise beneficial properties.

Sure Enough Garden Time Now

Up to the Easter period is almost always a season of more or less unsettled weather, cold rains, freezes, frosts, etc., making gardening, especially with the more tender varieties of vegetables and flowers, hazardous.

Within a few days after Easter the weather "settles down" and spring is really here—making safe the planting out of every vegetable and flower.

The weather may not be right for planting Monday or Tuesday, but now is certainly the time to buy whatever you may need in seeds, plants, bulbs, fertilizers, etc., so that you won't be delayed when the right time comes.

Clean Up, Paint Up and Plant

We have no interest in the sale of paint, but we believe thoroughly in this "clean up, paint up" campaign that is to make an "Atlanta Beautiful," not only for the Grand Opera visitors and the Shriners, but for ourselves, who have to look at Atlanta all the time.

Cleaning up is always in order. Fresh paint brightens, but the real beautifying comes from planting—the well seeded, even, green lawn; the beds of foliage or flowering plants, and the ferns on porches or in windows. These are always beautifiers, and to beautify the city, you, as well as others, must do your share.

This week our store will be especially attractive. In addition to our regular lines of seed we offer—

Tuberoses Double Excelsior Pearl Tuberoses, guaranteed blooming size bulbs. Deliciously fragrant. 15 cents per dozen. By mail postpaid 25 cents dozen.

Big Ferns A superb collection of Boston and Pierson Ferns for immediate effect. Clean, healthy large size plants for price. 60 cents; $1.00; $1.50 and $2.00 according to size.

Geraniums Strong, healthy plants of best French and American varieties. Finest shades and colors adapted to southern plantings, 15 cents each, $1.50 per dozen.

Gladioli These beautiful flowering bulbs with their wide range of shades and coloring become more popular each year. Fine bulbs 20c dozen. By mail 30c dozen.

Salvias Nothing on earth will give you such a brilliant color display in late summer and fall as a bed of our Salvia Splenders. Good, healthy plants—50 cents dozen.

Tomato and Pepper Plants Best varieties grown direct from Hastings' Seed. Fresh plants in from greenhouse twice daily. Get a quick start now for June tomatoes. 25 cents dozen.

Dahlias Splendid, large field grown roots of Decorative and Cactus varieties. Roots from a great Dahlia specialist. Six colors, 15c each; $1.50 dozen. By mail 5c each additional.

Coleus Has been aptly called the "gardener's paint box." Either for design bedding, borders or assorted beds, our collection has no superior. 50 cents dozen.

Evergreen Lawn Grass Have you noticed the grass in front of the Massengale bulletins on Peachtree, back of the Hurt Building and near Atlanta Theatre? That's our lawn mixture. 20 cents pound, 14 pounds $2.50.

Cannas Large three to four eye roots for quick effect. Best varieties for bedding to give tropical effect all summer. 50c dozen. By mail postpaid 70 cents dozen.

Sheep Manure Wizard Brand direct from the Chicago Stock Yards. Dry and weedless. Just the fertiliser for lawns, flower beds, etc. 100-pound bags, $1.50.

Flower Seeds Finest seed of varieties adapted to this section from our growers in Germany and France. An experienced lady gardener (Mrs. Sherrill) to advise you. Come and ask her.

Double Daily Delivery Service At this time of year prompt delivery service is essential. We recognize this, hence, during the gardening months we maintain a delivery service, reaching all parts of Atlanta twice daily. Come if you can for we are always glad to see you. If not convenient to come however, just use your phone. Our numbers are—Bell Phone, Main 3962, Main 2565; Atlanta Phone 2568.

THE WEEK IN RETROSPECT

THE last week in Lent has proved a very quiet one socially. The presence of several attractive visitors has been the reason for a number of small parties which have been thoroughly informal and have for the most part secluded only close friends of the hostess and the honor guest. Mrs. Max Franklin Howland, of Boston, has been the recipient of a cordial welcome from her many friends and has been the central figure at a number of entertainments. Mrs. Robert L. Foreman was hostess at a luncheon and Mrs. George B. Howard gave an afternoon tea for Mrs. Howland both parties being among the largest given during the week.

THE lecture given by Monsieur Andre Tridon Belmont Monday afternoon under the auspices of the French Alliance was a very interesting one and was attended by a large audience. Monsieur Belmont, who is the official lecturer of the alliance, gave a most interesting address on the "Parts that Americans do not see." The talk abounded in clever descriptions and interesting detail and many who were present and contemplating trips abroad during the summer, made mental notes, to see the charming spots which are omitted from the guide books. An informal reception was held before the lecture which gave the members a chance for a little personal conversation with the distinguished visitor who was forced to leave immediately after his lecture to fulfill another engagement in New Orleans.

THE series of evenings being given by the University club at their hospitable club home are proving very pleasant events and are being anticipated with pleasure by the members and their friends. The informal addresses which are featured at each meeting are followed by a delightful social hour.

The officers of the club and their wives are assisted by a number of the organizations of the city in receiving and a most cordial greeting is extended to the visitors by the committees. Assisting in the entertainment of the guests Tuesday evening were Mr. and Mrs. Morris Brandon, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Atkinson, Mr. and Mrs. Lee Worsham, Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Porter, Mr. and Mrs. W. A. Wimbish, Mr. and Mrs. F. R. A. Hobson, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Peeples, Mr. and Mrs. A. Ten Eyck Brown, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Stevens, Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Jones, Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Schoen, Mr. Burton Smith, Mr. Thomas Whipple Connelly, Mr. Hal F. Hentz.

Receiving with them were the members of the alumni associaton of Yale university, the University of Georgia, Emory college, Atlanta branch of the Southern Association of College Women, Unity club, Ten club, Granite club, Alliance Francaise, Brenau club and the Atlanta Pan-Hellenic.

MUCH interest was occasioned by the announcement in The Journal of the plans made for the social entertainment of the Shriners, many of whom will be accompanied by their wifes and daughters. May is the most beautiful month of the year in Atlanta and the country clubs will present an ideal background for the social side of the convocation. Open houses will be kept at the town and country clubs and many of the large entertainments will be given at the latter. The opening of the new Druid Hills Golf club will be an interesting event of April 29 and following closely upon that will be the elaborate luncheon on May 13 in compliment to the visiting ladies. The garden party to be given by Governor and Mrs. John Marshall Slaton at their home on Peachtree road on Wednesday afternoon, May 13, will be in honor of the visiting ladies and will be one of the most delightful events of the week.

A number of smaller parties are also being arranged which will include luncheons, informal dancing parties and teas.

THE following young people took part in the pony show and exciting Gymkhana games Saturday afternoon at Piedmont park, which was arranged for the benefit of the Home for Incurables:

Alumnae Meeting

The Hanna alumnae held a meeting Wednesday at 368 Peachtree street.

An election of officers for the ensuing year was held and a committee consisting of Mrs. Cothran, Mrs. Bedard and Mrs. Chad Sasnett was appointed to make suitable arrangements for the annual banquet.

The next meeting will take place the first Wednesday in May. It is hoped that a large attendance will be present. Reminiscences on Wednesday was largely participated in.

Report of U. D. C. Meeting

The Atlanta chapter of the United Daughters of the Confederacy held a very interesting meeting Thursday in the Woman's club rooms on Baker street.

The occasion was a book shower for Mrs. Rabun Gay school and there were over 100 volumes donated, with the promise of many more.

The book is a memorial to the late lamented General Francis Bartow, and the library of the school is in memory of Mrs. Robert Emory Park, and is called Emily Hendree Park library.

Mrs. Plane, Mrs. Pattillo, Mrs. Wilson and Miss Baxter spoke short words, each saying a beautiful tribute to their former co-worker.

A motion was made and adopted that the chapter donate the sum of $10 to the Home, which is building a new home for the purpose of cleaning the Walker and McPherson monuments and putting the grounds around them in presentable shape before the Shriners' convention.

As a result of the untiring efforts of the president, Mrs. William McCauley, in connection with the good work of the Seventh ward chapter, the old cemetery, chased Moseley park, which is situated near the Battle Hill settlement. The mine out of Ezra church mark the battle ground.

A committee was appointed from the chapter to go before the park commission, enlisting them to allow the Daughters of the Confederacy the privilege of giving it a name suitable to memorialize it as a landmark of the Confederacy.

A resolution was offered and adopted to be presented to Mr. Arkwright, of the Georgia Railway and Electric company, asking for good street car facilities to the park so as to enable people interested, strangers as well as townspeople, to visit this historic spot.

The Daughters of the Confederacy and the Pioneer Women are working to put suitable markers on all the battle grounds around Atlanta, so that future generations will be able to identify the exact locations around which so many hard and bitter memories filled the hearts of their forefathers.

CHARMING YOUNG VISITORS OF EASTER WEEK

Happenings in Londontown

LONDON.—Queen Alexandra, who has now quite recovered from her indisposition, kept the fifty-first anniversary of her marriage to the late King Edward. Although the queen-mother is admired and popular in London, it is, of course, at Sandringham where she is best beloved. Scarcely a cottage can be entered, or a single individual be spoken to, without hearing some story of how Queen Alexandra had help in any hour of need which had arisen. "She always knew just what was wanted," said one. "I have many a time blessed the day the queen ever came here," said another. "Look what our lads dear king and queen have done for us all," said a third; and so on all over the royal domain.

It is true that her son, King George, and Queen Mary sit upon the throne, but down in the heart of rustic Norfolk it is Alexandra who is queen. "Queen mother" and "Queen Alexander" are never heard there. "She is our queen," said a villager; "when our children grow up Queen Mary will be the queen to them, perhaps, but this one is queen to us because we love her," and so it will probably be to the very end. Little is seen of Queen Alexandra nowadays, but the gracious lady who has done so much for the land of her adoption has insured for herself a unique place in the affections of the nation.

It is amusing sometimes to follow the growth of a legend and trace it from an acorn to oak. King George is a very good shot; as soon as he came to the throne the journalists began to talk of him as the best shot in the kingdom; now we read that at a shoot in December he "chaned guns twice and had four birds dead in the air at once." Similarly Paris papers used to talk of duellists exchanging two balls, meaning that each man fired once. The other day Lord Desborough spoke of the king as "a good sportsman." Now the Evening Standard has it that he is "the best sportsman in England," and soon, of course, it will be "in the world," and so the childish rumor grows.

Prince John, the most lively of the king's sons, was admonished the other day by his mother for using the word "kids." Prince John pointed out that all boys talked acunt "kids," and anyway he had "asked two of the workmen's kids to tea. (Some workmen at the time were giving a few finishing touches to Buckingham palace.) The queen had no more to say and the "kids" were in due course entertained to tea. Princess Mary was in transports of delight, for three of her brothers were with her at Buckingham palace. The ghosts of Wales came up from Oxford, Prince Albert from the Collingwood, and, Prince Henry from Eton.

I am wondering if Queen Mary knows that her dressmakers supply half the smart and pretty actresses of London with clothes. One of the daigners for this firm, which is to London what Worth is to Paris, was remarking a night or two ago on the contrast between the last dress designed for the second row of the chorus in "The Didn't-they-ought-to Girl." The fundamental difference was that in the latter case the circumference of the hem of the skirt was a question of feet, in the former, a matter of yards.

So the king and queen are to visit Edinburgh when they go to Scotland. Edinburgh was rarely visited by the late king who avoided the capital for reasons which one day may be revealed when the time is not yet. There are a half centuries ago Holyrood palace rich in historic associations, lodged a Queen Mary within its walls, and our queen may still see the royal bed in the royal room which the unhappy Mary, queen of Scots occupied. Yet no dreams of the tragic incidents that marked the life of her namesake seem to disturb Queen Mary for her apartments will be in a different part of the palace, and not in the blood-spot of the murdered Rizzio (until recently stained afresh every year)—is now covered by a more convenient brass plate recording the tragedy.

Cubist pictures are bad enough, but a cubist room! The idea has not daunted the earl of Drogheda, however, for he has actually got such a room at his residence in Wilton-crescent, S. W. He commissioned Mr. Wyndham Lewis to do the work. This is what the room looks like. The greater part of the wall space consists of black velvet panels, framed in slips of mirror, the dado and angles of the room being panelled in gold. The ceiling and carpet are black. The chairs are upholstered in gold thread striped with colors. The room is lit by electric lights concealed in alabaster urns of a reddish tint, four of them standing on tripods in the corners of the room. A frieze comes immediately below the cornice. In it are suggestions of birds, fish, fruit, dishes, bowls, and even of knives and forks. This is in keeping with the room, which is a dining room.

The presence of a trio of lovely visiting girls in the city has been the occasion of many of the informal parties which marked the past week. Miss Virginia Pound and her attractive guest, Miss Josephine Colyar, of Chattanooga, have been delightfully entertained by the members of the younger set. Miss Elliott Meador, of Houston, Tex., is another pretty visitor who is receiving many pleasant attentions during her visit to Miss Mildred Harman at East Lake. In the upper left is Miss Colyar. Center Miss Meador. Lower right Miss Pound.

EASTER

By Edmund Spenser

Most glorious Lord of Lyfe! that, on this day,
Didst make Thy triumph over death and sin;
And, having harrowed hell, didst bring away
Captivity thence captive, us to win;
This joyous day, dear Lord, with joy begin;
And grant that we, for whom Thou didest dye,
Being with Thy dear blood clene washt from sin,
May live for ever in felicity!
And that Thy love we weighing worthily,
May likewise love Thee for the same again;
And for Thy sake, that all lyke deare didst buy,
With love may one another entertayne!
So let us love, deare Lord, lyke as we ought,
—Love is the lesson which the Lord us taught.

CANVASSES TYPIFYING ORIENT TO BE SHOWN IN ATLANTA

An interesting visitor of the week is Mr. Cameron Burnside, of Paris, France, who with Mrs. Burnside is the guest of Mrs. Virginius Hitt, at her home on West Fifth street. Mr. Burnside, who is very well known in art circles of Paris and London, has brought with him a number of his canvasses which have been exhibited in the salons of Europe, and during his stay, these pictures will be placed on exhibition.

Mr. Thurston Hatcher, who is himself a artist, has written the following description and appreciation of the pictures: "The oriental studies in oil, painted by Mr. Burnside, during his recent visit to Tunis, are all masterful interpretations of the orient, and I consider them to be the most beautiful collection shown in Atlanta recently. Among the most interesting subjects is a group of orientals in a dark or covered street, with the sun light filtering through its small openings in the street roof on to the figures and pavement below. Another, that rivets attention is a "Group of blind beggars." They are standing in an archway, opposite a picturesque old mosque. In still another, the figures of two veiled women are sharply outlined in the foreground of a "Street of Shops." Mr. Burnside is exceedingly versatile in his work and possesses the rare faculty of being able to portray entirely different characters with the same precision and skill.

The subject is two mountain peaks, in the early morning when the sun's rays have just come over a distant range of mountains, producing those faint shimmering reflections as they touch the glaciers on the peaks of the "Twins."

A beautiful Swiss is "A winter's morning" which was painted from a height, and looks down on the Chateau of Chillon, lying at the foot of a mountain and on the edge of a lake. The atmospheric effects in these Swiss landscapes are perfectly rendered and cannot be surpassed.

President Poincaire Views Pictures.

Mr. Burnside has exhibited his pictures in numerous galleries within the past year or two. His most recent exhibits have been at the "Societa Nationale Gallery d'eorpe Petit" where was held the exhibit of the international society of water color painters. "Salo D'Automne" the Royal Academy in London, Liverpool Art gallery and Pennsylvania Academy of Fine Arts.

A few months ago Mr. Burnside was invited to exhibit with the orientalists in Paris His pictures were grouped in one of the chief rooms. During the exhibition, one day the salon was closed to the public and only invited guests were present. The guests for the day were the great French artists, President Poincaire, members of the government and ministers of the colonies.

After viewing the pictures the president sent for Mr. Burnside and congratulated him upon the excellence of his oriental productions.

Mrs. Burnside is also quite an artist She has the distinction of being the only woman artist who has ever copied "Frans Hals" wonderful group of "Old Women" in exact size of the original which is one of the largest canvasses painted by the old masters."

Bridge Party for Mountain Boys and Girls

The educational committee of the Atlanta Woman's club under the leadership of Mrs. Spencer Atkinson will give a bridge party at the Whitecoff hotel, Saturday, April 18, at 2 o'clock; admission 50 cents. There will be a prize at each table and punch will be served during the afternoon.

The proceeds of the meeting will be devoted to the education of mountain boys and girls in the rural districts of Georgia, a work that is receiving the closest attention from Georgia's ablest men and women.

Mrs. Atkinson urges a large attendance at the bridge party Saturday afternoon.

OUR ASTROLOGER

"The stars incline, but do not compel."

HOROSCOPE FOR MONDAY, APRIL 13, 1914.

This day wise men await To test decrees of fate.

Wise men and women will be cautious today if they heed the advice of the astrologer. Uranus, also, is in benefic aspect, and the planet does not exercise its kindly sway until evening.

The influences are peculiarly favorable for travelling, which has as its aim business or scientific pursuits.

The day should be most fortunate for inventors and all who depend upon novel ideas for their success. It is a time to investigate whatever is new, odd, curious and mysterious.

Reformers are under an auspicious rule. It is predicted that prison management will be completely changed. Startling revelations concerning eastern penitentiaries are also foretold.

Children should benefit from the planetary sway, which will affect social conditions in the next few months. The wrongs of childhood will be righted, the sears declare. There is a minister sign governing orphans' asylums. They will be abolished in the future, if the stars read aright.

Today's astral government should be most encouraging to lovers who are attracted by intellectual gifts. The sextile of Uranus is believed to encourage the association of persons of opposite sex and to unseen influences.

The evening should be highly fortunate for those who have a deep spiritual side. The rule is held to be essentially psychical in its trend.

There is a prophecy that congress will have exciting sessions this month. A southern member will create a sensation.

Changes in President Wilson's cabinet again are foreshadowed.

Marriage among the wealthy will attract much attention in June. One of these will be most unfortunate, according to the stars.

Farmers in the west are to prosper greatly. Droughts in foreign countries will increase exports of grain.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the prospect of an anxious year. Both business and domestic affairs may be exciting. Those who are employes should be industrious and tactful.

Children born on this day may be accordingly impulsive and headstrong. They may have to work hard in order to gain success. As subjects of Aries, they

The Difference Between COMFORT and DISCOMFORT

Just as a hair may divide the false from the true, so may a spring prove the difference between comfort and discomfort. And comfort is a very desirable condition.

It is restlessness at night and loss of sleep which produce nervousness; which undermine health. In too many instances the real cause is not thought of. Are you laboring under discomfort which robs you of a night's good rest? Perhaps your bed is not equipped with the proper spring. Perhaps the spring is too weak in some places and too rigid in others and has an uneven surface.

Mine isn't "The 400" Mine is

Springbed

No. 5

is guaranteed the best made. It is manufactured of highly tempered Premier wire which gently conforms to the body lines. Each of the 88 oil tempered coils is carefully tested. The frame work and connecting wires are stiff and rigid to hold the spring in shape. The whole is heavily coated with durable black enamel which makes the spring noiseless and rustless and germ proof. The surface is smooth and even with no rough ends to tear mattress tick. Insure your comfort.

Start a health account in the bank of life for your baby

THE best heritage that you can give your baby is health, and health depends mainly on his food. Nurse your baby if you can, but when mother's milk fails, do not use cow's milk. It is almost impossible to get it pure, and it is always hard for babies to digest. Cow's milk was made for strong little calves, not for babies' tender little stomachs. Use the Food that for three generations has been best for babies—

Nestlé's Food

Nestlé's is pure and safe. It has just the nourishing elements necessary to build firm flesh, bone and muscle. Pure cow's milk is the basis of Nestlé's Food—milk from rigidly tested cows in sanitary dairies. In Nestlé's the curd of the milk is rendered soft and fleecy as in mother's milk, and to it are added the food elements that cow's milk does not contain, and that baby needs, until it is a perfect Food for your little baby. Just add cold water and boil.

Send the coupon today for a free sample box of Nestlé's and see for yourself how perfectly Nestlé's Food agrees with your baby. With the sample—enough for twelve feedings—will come our "Book for Mothers" filled with the things you should know about your baby, and our "Better Babies" Chart which tells how much your baby should weigh, what his correct measurements should be, etc. Send the Coupon today, and make sure that your baby is getting the best Food you can give him.

Makes Home Beautiful

Home is beautiful to the man who provides, in just so far as the housewife makes it so. Many a wife of limited means has a more attractive home than many another wife with plenty. The difference is in the wife and not the income.

One who has imagination can see how to make common-place things attractive. She is the sort who can, with 15c worth of Fixall, make the $10 dining table look like an expensive one; or a scarred, rickety chair a home comfort.

FIXALL

is a finish that anyone with the will can apply. It is great for floors and doors and all sorts of woodwork and furniture.

It is really wonderful how Fixall can be made to brighten a home. If you are interested in making your home cosy and comfortable, write for our little book on this subject.

Fixall is sold in cans holding one-fourth pint to one gallon at 15c to $3.50. There is a right size can for every purpose at your dealers.

"Little Miss Fixall" has prepared a series of transparent illustrations which show just how your room would look finished in the various Fixall colors. These illustrations are a source of information to the housewife who wants the best color effect on floors and woodwork and are very interesting to the "Little Miss Fixall" in your home. Union Increases Service

TWO connected telephones make the simplest form of telephone communication.

Three segregated pairs give three lines for telephone talk.

Unite the three pairs by means of a central office and an intercommunicating exchange system is formed, giving fifteen talk tracks.

Five pairs thus connected give forty-five lines of communication, and so on, in regular mathematical rule.

Millions of such groups are thus connected in the Bell System.

Take Jacobs' Liver Salt on Arising

And You'll Enjoy Your Breakfast

NO appetite in the morning? Bilious? Headache? Best thing in the world for you is Jacobs' Liver Salt. Bad breath, biliousness, constipation, flatulency, daytime drowsiness, wakefulness at night—all from FOOD POISONING. Undigested food, fermented, is poisoning the system.

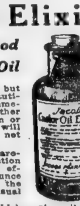
Jacobs' Liver Salt instantly flushes the alimentary tract with, water, sending a cleansing stream through it from all parts of the system. Packed, clogging matter is loosened and with the fermentation washed away, pressure is removed, liver and kidneys resume their natural cleansing processes of elimination. No forced action as with calomel and severe purgatives; never a griping pain or nausea.

Take Jacobs' Liver Salt on arising. It is effervescent and stimulating. You feel better at once, good appetite for breakfast and good digestion, that dull heaviness vanishes and your brain is clear and quick.

Jacobs' Liver Salt keeps one up to the top notch. 25c at druggists, or by mail postpaid.

Jacobs' Castor Oil Elixir

Looks Delicious, Smells Good and You Can Not Taste the Oil



IT is a pure castor oil, the best purgative known, but its color is the clear, translucent green of the beautiful berry and its odor is so pleasant you will immediately whiff it again. You can not taste the oil, neither when taking it nor afterwards, as it does not return or nauseate. It has a slightly sweet taste. Children will not suspect it, as the taste is pleasant and the most the yellowish color of oil.

It is a pure cold pressed castor oil prepared with aromatics and carminatives, which have a specific action upon the stomach and prevents the usual griping effect of the oil. Two grains phenolphthalein to the ounce increases the efficiency as a mild purgative and at the same time reduces the dosage about half the usual quantity of castor oil.

Jacobs' Castor Oil Elixir is the best form in which castor oil has ever been prepared, and the only form that is agreeable to every one. Safe for children of any age. Physicians use it. The hospitals use it. It is the only truly pleasant and unrecognizable form of castor oil known. 2-oz. bottle, 25c.

Root Out Your Corns With Painless Tango

Don't Fuss and Worry, and Pick and Gouge and Torture Your Toes With Caustics

TANGO for Corns is music to the Feet

TANGO for Corns is the most marvelous remedy of the age. No wonder everybody is enthusiastic about it. One touch of TANGO on a corn and pain ceases. Applied in a second, it's done. No plaster or salve to fuss with; nothing to stick to the stocking and be jerked from the sore toe with excruciating agony; no swelling and tenderness, no blood. Whatever you do for a corn, NEVER use a point or a blade, because the risk is too great. A slip of the instrument and a drop of blood caused many cases of blood poison.

TANGO is the one safe remedy that roots out the core of the corn painlessly. It softens this kernel and brings it out, the root and the corn is gone forever. No pain, no fuss, no sore, bandaged toe.

TANGO is the safest and most reliable cure for corns and bunions; the one GUARANTEED remedy.

Any druggist will return your money if TANGO fails to root out the CORE of the corn painlessly. 25c at All Druggists. Made and guaranteed by Jacobs' Pharmacy, Atlanta.

New Stock Company to Open

Forsyth Offers Attractive Bill, White Slave Movies at Atlanta – Bijou Offers Melodrama

As if the regular theatrical season were in its infancy, instead of approaching its end, comes the Lucille LaVerne company with a plan of action in things theatrical which presages some of the rarest treats of the year.

The ball is to be started rolling tomorrow night with the presentation of a play written and produced by David Belasco and one thus far denied Atlanta. It is "The Lily," a play that took New York by storm. The scenes of its opening night at the Belasco theater are still fresh in the minds of the Broadway habitues. As the great climax, when Odette, the long suffering, opposed daughter, to be played by Miss LaVerne, delivered her speech of denunciation against her worthless and selfish father, the audience was carried beyond itself and went to the last extreme of demonstration. In this scene Miss LaVerne runs the gamut of every human emotion.

The press of the entire country has been quite as outspoken. The comments of the papers are interesting. The Boston Post, conservative in the extreme, wrote, "No female part, not even in the hands of Mary Anderson, Ada Morris or Julia Marlowe, has made so unequivocal a hit in the last twenty-five years of the Boston stage." Alan Dale, in the New York American said, "Nothing as great as 'The Lily' has been seen in New York in years."

The story of the play, which David Belasco has adapted from the French of Pierre Woolfe and Gaston Leroux, is doubtless familiar. The father, Comte de Malen, exercises a rigid rule over his two daughters, although the restraint is largely due to a selfish regard for his own comfort. They are allowed no male society, their function is merely to wait on him. The great scene, the climax of the play, in which Odette pours forth her denunciation of her father in a passionate outburst, is one that will linger with all who hear it and the very memory of which will ring a thrill.

Miss Margaret Chaffee will be seen in a part quite in keeping with the warm reception she has received from her friends here during the past week.

There will be dainty little Olive Wakeley and statuesque Helen Haskell Beauty is not skin deep with either of these girls. Robert Middlemass, Forbes Aylmer, Eugene Stewart, James Marcus and Guy Milham are all high salaried actors, much in demand by managers.

If there are any finer, handsomer, cleverer people in any way than those Miss LaVerne has brought to Atlanta we should like to know where they may be located. She had the pick of Broadway and she picked carefully. She claims to have secured and brought to Atlanta the best actors available and we are willing to have the strength of her convictions.

"PERSIAN GARDEN" FORSYTH LEADER.

With the opening of Easter and the release of a good many hundreds of theatergoers who have spent forty days away from the lure of the footlights, he Forsyth is offering a magnetic attraction.

Louis Simon, one of the cleverest comedians in all the profession, heads a special company in his own act, "The New Persian Garden," a miniature musical comedy that is conceded to be one of the biggest headline acts in modern vaudeville. He is assisted by Flavia Arcaro a splendid musical comedy comedian, noted on both sides of the deep waters for her beauty and charm and in the company will be Lillian Boardman, who was prima donna comedienne with Gus Edwards on both visits of the Song Revue to the Forsyth. The story and the lyrics written by Edgar Allan Woolf and the music by Anatol Friedland give the talented players splendid material to make up the best musical comedy offering in vaudeville. Woolf has presented sketch successes at the Forsyth and Friedland appeared recently at the popular theater, and with the credit of a hit that has not been eclipsed.

Stuart Barnes will be a feature. There is not a better singing comedian in the profession than this star. He has appeared in muscial comedy and in vaudeville in Atlanta.

Austin Web, supported by a selected company will present the thrilling dramatic sketch "Your Flag and Mine" based on the effort of an officer to sell plans to a foreign agent and the result. Austin Webb is a very popular actor. He was last seen in Atlanta in the leading role of David Belasco's "The Woman" and he made a wonderful reputation as the colored lieutenant governor in Dixon's "The Clansman." Mr. Webb has a supporting company that will assist in making his sketch a real success.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmie Barry are going to present "The Rube," one of the cleverest of the clever rural comedy playlets of vaudeville. Jimmie Barry is a comedian and an actor and the sketch will be a feature. Allie White, a pleasing violinist, and Charles Prelle's Dog Circus will help make the bill one of excellent quality.

"ACROSS THE DESERT" AT THE BIJOU.

Following the city drama, "Driven from Home," which scored such a hit the past week at the Bijou, Eddie Black announces for his next offering the western melodrama entitled, "Across the Desert," which will be presented under the personal direction of the author, H. Walter Van Dyke.

The splendid success that has generally attended western melodramas has spurred the management to hunt for something unusual in the way of melodrama, and it is confidently expected that "Across the Desert" will be one of the most thrilling, exciting and satisfying melodramas that has yet been presented by this popular organization. The story of the play is laid in the desert of Arizona, and fives exceptional opportunity for clever stage effects. Special attention will be paid to the light effects, and this, together with the special scenery, will make the production noteworthy.

Eddie Black will have a splendid role in the character of Jimmie Hearn, a comedy cowboy; Edwin Vail will play the part of the hero, George Hampton; Walter Van Dyke will play one of the most difficult roles in the production, that of Wanesto, an Indian, a part in which he has scored a great success in road productions, and will give the clever author-actor an opportunity to do his best work. The entire strength of the company will be represented in the production.

Matinees will be given daily during the week at 2:30, and night performances at 8:30. Monday night ladies will be admitted free when accompanied by an escort holding a paid 50-cent ticket, purchased before 6 o'clock.

"DOPE" DRAMA AT GRAND THIS WEEK

A most interesting fact about "Dope," the six-reel photodrama, the attraction at the Grand this week, apart from the interest of the production itself, is that Herman Lieb, after playing this story in vaudeville more than 1,500 times, has finally put it on the screen so that it will come to the attention of more millions of theatergoers. Lieb does more than star on the films. He "staged" the production throughout. Lieb heads the cast.

Lieb made his first appearance as an actor when twenty-five years of age in Mrs. Patrick Campbell's company. He played the role of a man ninety years old, but was so nervous that he didn't have to pretend to shake. He then played with Mrs. Fiske, and, after that, had a season on the road.

He played Hodgman in "Arizona," and then went with the Davis Stock company in Pittsburg. After that he was with John T. Kelly and subsequently appeared in such productions as "The County Chairman" and Fitch's "The Toast of the Town." He was prominently associated with the Drama Players in Chicago, and succeeded Jameson Lee Finney in the leading role of "The Blue Mouse."

Although he has played more than 100 different roles, the name of Herman Lieb is always associated in the popular mind with "Dope," the sketch written by himself and which has outlived any and all of the plays of its sort. Managers call "Dope" the sketch that won't die, and Mr. Lieb believes that the film will make the sketch more popular than ever.

There will be exhibitions at 2 and 8:30 daily.

WHITE SLAVE MOVIES AT THE ATLANTA.

"Smashing the Vice Trust," the new white slave moving picture in which District Attorney Whitman appears, will be presented at the Atlanta theater all this week.

A number of New York social workers, including Dr. Charles K. Parkhurst, Dr. Anna Shaw and Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont, have indorsed it as a moral lesson, largely because half of the incidents in the picture are based upon actual happenings unearthed by District Attorney Whitman in his famous fight against the vice interests.

The staging of the spectacular raids upon the vice trust has rarely been approached. It is the first life-like presentation of the fight against crime at terrific odds. Interwoven with this portrayal of actual incidents, is a beautiful love story, exquisitely tinged with pathos, of a young girl who leaves a country town to seek employment in a large city. It follows her career step by step and the efforts of her mother, sister and fiance, who find her when she has been snared by the vice agents.

When this picture was passed by the national board of censorship, one of the members of the committee rose and said, "This picture will do more toward shattering the illusions of country girls about large cities than any picture ever staged."

It is a big, vivid, dramatic warning for women and girls who are little aware of the dangers that lurk in the traps laid by the vice trust.

OTIS SKINNER IN "KISMET" SOON.

Although the opening of the "Kismet" engagement at the Atlanta is still a week off, the work of preparing for the performance in this city will begin in earnest tomorrow. One of the assistants stage managers of the company will then organize and begin rehearsing the body of supernumeraries to be obtained here for the pageants and bazar scenes. Traveling with the company are thirty "extra people" who appear as soldiers, dancers, merchants, slaves and donkey boys, but forty more men and women are needed for the crowds, and so complicated is the action of the play that a week's rehearsal is necessary for the local people before they begin rehearsing with the traveling corps.

The stage manager will be accompanied by two members of the "Kismet" mechanical staff, whose business it is to prepare the stage for the proper mounting of the large production. One item of their several duties is to cut an opening in the stage for the tank that appears as a great marble bathing pool in the harem scene. This tank is sufficiently large to accommodate two swimmers, and it is deep enough to enable them to dive with safety. When the play is actually in progress no less than 170 people are at work back of the curtain line, besides the extra musicians in the orchestra.

Klaw & Erlanger and Harrison Grey Fiske have spared no expense in making the production perfect in every detail, and to Mr. Fiske, who personally staged the play, there has come the highest praise for his masterful accomplishment in theatrical artistry. Otis Skinner has, in the role of Hajj, the Beggar, made the most brilliant success in his career.

CONCERNING "DAMAGED GOODS."

Theatrical tradition and all the precedents of the show world were shattered recently when a New York theater, and a Broadway playhouse at that, was closed for three days in order that the company playing it might journey out of town to fill a special engagement. It remained for Richard Bennett and coworkers who have been appearing at the Fulton theater in Eugene Brieux's great sociological drama, "Damaged Goods," to upset the usual order of things. Mr. Bennett, who is responsible for the production in America, of "Damaged Goods," which the New York Times describes as "the play which initiates a new epoch in civilization," had promised the officials of the Fourth International Congress on School Hygiene to play a special engagement before the congress when it met in Buffalo. Of course, at that time Mr. Bennett did not realize that he would be in the midst of a second New York run.

The play comes to the Atlanta April 24 and 25.

This Woman Knows How D. D. D. Cures Skin Trouble!

(This letter is just received:)

"Toronto.

"I am the mother of twelve children. I took a bad leg at the birth of my last child. It was laid up five weeks, with a doctor attending me who does nothing but treat this kind of skin disease. Six weeks ago I heard of D. D. D. As I used to tear my leg at night until it was a bleeding mass I applied a bottle of D. D. D. I can't tell you the ease it gave me. I never used to sleep with the pain. Many a time I nearly fell with dizziness from want of sleep. Now my leg is completely healed up. Words can't bless D.D.D. I never expected a cure. I only got D. D. D. to take the terrible itch away. But by degrees I saw the big sore getting smaller. I have a thankful heart today."

Millions of mothers know that it is the ideal laxative to give cross, sick feverish children. But get the genuine, ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups on each bottle. Refuse with contempt the cheaper fig Syrups and counterfeits. See that it bears the name—"California Fig Syrup Company."—(Advt.)

I have taken a treatment of the above Company's Medicine. I find it pleasant to take. I began to improve in a few days after I began taking the treatment and was restored to health in a short time. I had tried several remedies for Stomach and Kidney Troubles, but found no relief until I began taking their wonderful treatment. I take great pleasure in recommending it to all sufferers with the above troubles.

Exquisite Hair Tinting

There is a new preparation on the market that is so entirely harmless and so easy to use that there is really no excuse for any woman (or man) to longer tolerate gray or streaked hair.

"Brownatone" meets and overcomes every objection heretofore found to hair stains and is so pleasing in its uniformly splendid results that it has within a few months made thousands of friends who could not now be induced to use anything else.

"Brownatone" is the result of most exhaustive experiments and is absolutely guaranteed satisfactory or money will be returned.

It positively cannot be detected, will not rub off or wash off, and is harmless, and permanent in every way.

Prepared in two shades—one for golden or medium brown—the other for dark brown or black. Also in two sizes, 50c and $1.00.

A trial size and an interesting booklet will be sent upon receipt of ten cents, or we will fill your orders direct if your druggist insists upon substituting.

Insist on "Brownatone" at your hairdresser's.

Made only by the Kenton Pharmacal Co., 427 E. Pike St., Covington, Ky.

Sold and recommended in Atlanta by Jacobs' Pharmacy and other leading druggists.—(ADV.)

KOPSERVICE Nemo CORSETS $5.00

THESE WONDERFUL CORSETS—

Have One Great Fault—They're Too Low-Priced at

SOME women insist on paying $10 to $25 for corsets, in the belief that superior style, comfort and wear are not obtainable at a less price.

Therefore, the one great fault of KOPSERVICE Corsets—the LOW PRICE—prevents these women from enjoying the wonderful service these corsets give, though the very same women would buy KOPSERVICE with joy if the price were doubled or trebled.

The best doesn't ALWAYS cost THE MOST. KOPSERVICE Corsets, at $5.00, give everything that can be put into a corset to make it stylish, comfortable, healthful and long-wearing. Fancy fabrics and trimmings would add to the PRICE, but not the SERVICE.

You can't get a BETTER corset than the KOPSERVICE at $10 or $15—now or twice that. You can't get such a perfect combination of style, hygienic comfort and wear AT ANY PRICE.

Don't be ashamed to wear a $5.00 corset that is intrinsically far more valuable than your $10 to $25 models. Sensible economy is a real virtue.

KOPSERVICE Corsets are Made Upon an Entirely New Principle

They combine the comfort of the old-fashioned short corset with the easy fit and sweeping lines of the present so-called "corsetless" mode.

$5.00

Nemo KOPSERVICE Corsets enable every woman to attain the true, healthful and graceful "nature figure" without discomfort or menace to health, and with no danger of losing her shape permanently. Every woman who aims to be up to date, yet values her health and comfort, will derive much benefit from studying these new models. [V]

Heavy Voting Marks Week Of Journal's M. & M. Race

Georgia Baptist Hospital Clings to First Place, With Inman Park Baptist Church Second, Universalist Church Third

The voting in The Journal's M. and M. Selling Campaign has been exceedingly heavy during the week. All the contestants seem to be taking advantage of every opportunity to get in as many votes as they possibly can.

The Georgia Baptist hospital still clings to first place in the organization class, with the Inman Park Baptist church second, and the Universalist church third. The latter organization was one of the last to enter the campaign and has shown remarkable work for the short time that it has been working.

Paul Morris leads the retail clerks' class with F. R. Cline a close second.

The children have shown as much enthusiasm during the past week as some of the older contestants, nearly all casting votes during the week. Little John R. Wilkerson Bradley leads this class with a safe margin.

The combinations offered this week have an equal bonus value in each set for each cent spent and the ones that seem the easiest are the ones to concentrate your efforts on. This will be the largest bonus offered on combinations, and subject to withdrawal by giving due notice.

In the future any bonus votes offered will be on a reduced scale, so get busy.

MISS ETTA STUART WHITAKER.

Miss Whitaker's wedding to Mr. Carl Haner, of New York, will be solemnized Monday evening, at All Saints' Episcopal church when the full vested choir will lead the bridal procession and sing appropriate nuptial songs.

Parties Arranged For Mrs. Dent

Mrs Stanley Hubert Dent, of Washington, D. C., will arrive next week to be the guest of Mrs. James A. Castleman, in College Park, and during open week, she will be with Mrs. James L. Hickey and will be the honor guest at a series of delightful entertainments.

Mrs. Castleman will entertain at luncheon Wednesday, April 22 at the Piedmont club, and covers will be laid for twenty guests.

Mrs. Hickey will be hostess at luncheon at the Piedmont club, Monday, April 21 and thirty-five guests will be invited to meet Mrs. Dent.

Mr. and Mrs. Hickey will entertain at the dinner-dance at the Piedmont club Tuesday, April 28, inviting twelve friends to meet the guest of honor.

Mr. and Mrs. Castleman will entertain fourteen guests at the dinner dance at the Capital City club on Thursday, April 30.

Pan-Hellenic in Macon

An interesting event of Monday was a large and enthusiastic gathering of fraternity women in the parlors of the Hotel Dempsey, in Macon, to discuss plans for the organization of a Macon Pan-Hellenic.

The chairman of Sororities of Georgia Federation of Women's clubs gave an outline of the work being done by the Atlanta and Rome Pan-Hellenics, and asked the Macon fraternity women to lend their efforts in organizing the third Pan-Hellenic in the state.

Miss Elizabeth Baker, a 1913 graduate of Wesleyan, was elected leader.

Among the fraternities represented were Alpha Delta Pi, Chi Omega, Delta Delta Delta, Kappa Delta, Phi Mu, Sigma Sigma Sigma, Zeta Tau Alpha.

This Pan-Hellenic will be one of the largest in the state as there are about 600 fraternity women in Macon.

The second meeting of the Pan-Hellenic will be held Monday, April 13, at the Hotel Dempsey.

Cabaret Tea

The entertainment committee of the Woman's Relief Corps held a meeting Friday at the home of the president, Mrs D. R. Bootes.

Plans were perfected for a very elaborate entertainment in the form of a cabaret tea, which will be given under the auspices of the corps Friday afternoon, April 24, from 4 to 8 at the home of Mrs. L. W. Rogers, 350 West Peachtree street.

A number of Atlanta's most talented artists will render a delightful program and every effort will be made to make the occasion a pleasant one.

A cordial invitation is extended to the public.

Birthday Party

An enjoyable event of the week was the birthday party given by little Miss Louise South in celebration of her ninth birthday at the home of her parents in Inman Park.

Games were played and the favors were tiny chickens.

Margaret Buchanan and Winston Carroll were winners in the prize contest.

Those present were Nanetta Antiletti, Inez Willingham, Elizabeth Carroll, Louise Seaborn, Margaret Buchanan, Mary Buchanan, Alline Nash, Josephine Worshaw, Lorine Priddell, Vivian Sheridan, Doris Thurman, Myrtle Guest, Adeline McNair, Bernard Willingham, Winston Carroll, Jack Anthony, Lawton Abernathy, William Hope, Dixie Seaborn and John Bitton.

Southern University of Music

In the weekly students' recital, given last Wednesday evening, the following students of the Southern University of Music took part in the program: Miss Lois Arnold, Miss Hazel Means, Miss Hazel Frohsin, Miss Marguerite Edwards, Miss Agnes Bell, Miss Irma Toland, Miss Norwood Key, Miss Maybeth Johnson, Miss Nettie Pearl Monge, Miss Ruby Rogers, Mr. Gilmer Siler, Mr. Alex Copeland and Mr. Herbert Goode.

The students of the advanced classes [illegible] which is to be given soon, and in which a highly artistic program will be presented.

Mr. Kurt Mueller, one of the directors of the university, will give his annual piano recital within a few weeks.

Industrial Day at Woman's Club

The Atlanta Woman's club will meet Monday afternoon at 3 o'clock with the first vice president, Miss Alice Baxter presiding.

Saturday the president, Mrs. A. P. Coles sailed for Europe and during her two months' absence Miss Baxter will act as president.

Mrs. Frank Neely, chairman of the industrial committee, has arranged an interesting program for the meeting.

Mrs. Nelly has invited Mr. W. H. Leahy, secretary of the industrial bureau of the chamber of commerce to discuss "Industrial Conditions in Atlanta of Women and Children."

Miss Lillian Duke of Lindall, who is in charge of the social welfare work of mills in Georgia owned by the Massachusetts mills, will discuss the work, which is constructive and far-reaching in results and all club and social workers will be interested in hearing what she has accomplished in Lindale.

Mrs. Neely will discuss briefly woman's responsibility in the industrial life of Georgia.

Important business will be transacted and Miss Baxter urges all members to attend the meeting.

Progressive Rook Party

Mrs. Walter Brown was hostess at a progressive rook party, at her home in Ansley Park, Saturday afternoon, in honor of Mrs. Lorenzo Johnson, of Marburg, Ala., who is the guest of Mrs. S. L. Winn.

The rooms in which the game was played were attractive with tall vases of Easter lilies and white enchantress carnations. The punch bowl, placed in the sun parlor, was banked with fruit, and presided over by Mrs. Horace Epps.

Mrs. Brown was assisted by Mrs. S. L. Winn, Mrs. S. C. Coley and Miss Katie Winn.

The honor guest was presented with a hand embroidered handkerchief, the first prize was silk hose, and the consolation prize was a piece of lingerie.

Those present were: Miss Mattie Irwin, Miss Irma Dawn, Miss Mary Gathright, Miss Daisy Oxford, Miss Kilen Chambers, Miss Lillie Turman, Mrs. A. E. Almond, Mrs. S. T. Harvester, Mrs. J. E. Kerr, Mrs. Ray Camp, Mrs. Edward Oxford, Mrs. Claud Sims, Mrs. C. E. Knight, Mrs. Earl Knight, Jr., Mrs. Williard Clifton, Mrs. W. B. Sassnett, Mrs. A. H. Smithson, Mrs. Ida Fisher and Mrs. M. F. McSherry.

To Bride-Elect

Miss Nell Lewis entertained at auction bridge Saturday afternoon, at her home in Kirkwood, in honor of Miss Sallie Fanny McKinnon whose marriage to Mr. W. T. Moyer will take place on April 16.

The color scheme of lavender and white was carried out in all details. The ices were white squares with lavender hearts in the center. Quantities of dogwood, lilacs and violets were used in the decorations.

Punch was served by Miss Mary Lee Wilhelm.

Miss Lewis was assisted in entertaining by her mother, Mrs. R. M. Lewis. Miss Maisie Lewis and Miss Ursula Workman.

At the close of the game Miss Mc Kinnon was surprised by receiving a miscellaneous shower.

Thirty-six guests were entertained.

Club Entertained

Mrs. W. B. Sassnett entertained the members of her club Thursday afternoon at her home in Inman Park.

Those present were: Mrs. Harvey Westherly, Mrs. G. E. Grimm, Mrs. Thomas Strange, Mrs. P. H. Flury, Miss Annabelle Gill, Mrs. Phil Hemply and Mrs. J. Y. Pinston.

The next meeting will be with Mrs. Harvey Weatherly at her home in East Decatur.

Bridge Party

[illegible] noon will be the card party given by the Joseph Habersham chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, at the Ansley hotel. Quite a number of tables have been taken and others may be secured from chapter members.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE IN LINE TO BOOST ATTENDANCE AT OPENING GAME TUESDAY

This Organization Joins With Ad Men to Help Atlanta Set High-Water Mark for Opening Day Attendance — Crowd Should Reach 15,000

Another strong factor in Atlanta's battle for the largest attendance at the opening baseball game of the 1914 season, which will be played Tuesday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park has entered the lists, and already active work has been vigorously taken up. Reference is made to the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce. A card signed by President Mell R. Wilkinson and Industrial Secretary W. M. Leahy has been sent to all members. This card urges that every single solitary member of the organization make ready to get out to that game, and furthermore, that each man make it a point to stir up his friends on the matter.

The chamber of commerce is taking up the matter in the light of having Atlanta keep up her reputation as the leading city of the south, and since baseball is such a nation-wide institution, no better opportunity of demonstrating the fact can be had, than by turning out the record crowd for opening day. The organization is strongly

Manager Smith Releases Two

Manager Bill Smith again got busy with the pruning knife Saturday in cutting his squad of ball tossers down to conform with the limit prescribed by the league rules. The men to be cut off the local squad yesterday were Frank Manush and Elmer Lawrence. Manush was given his unconditional release. According to the contract signed by Frank he was to be given his freedom, provided he failed to show

Billikens Put Up Good Games Against Majors

Gilks Has Mixed Old Heads With Youngsters With Good Results — Montgomery Fans Expect Team to Stand Up Well

BY W. A. ALLEY.
Sporting Editor The Advertiser.

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

MONTGOMERY, Ala., April 11.—Manager Bobby Gilks, of the Montgomery team of the Southern league, has definitely decided upon his line-up for the first few weeks of the season at least, and he is more than well pleased with the showing his players have made in the exhibition games.

Montgomery had but three games scheduled with big league clubs during the exhibition season, and of these three the Billikins won one, lost one and tied one. They won a 3-2 game from Detroit's regulars, with the exception of Cobb and Bush, although Dauss and Dubuc were on the mound. And in the tied game the Yanks were shut out 1 Montgomery 1, twelve innings. Cleveland scouts were held to a 3-2 score for seven innings, but the Montgomery team went to pieces for a short time in the last two innings, allowing the Youngster playing third, and the American leaguers won out. In the other games played with other Georgia State league clubs the Montgomery team has won seven games and has yet to meet defeat.

Lefty Tate the Montgomery team — they will line up against the Pelicans here this afternoon—has given the club the only real battle the Billikens have had. Tate is a Southern product, having played with the Georgetown university. Hollander's hitting has been a feature of nearly all the exhibition games and he is a fine throw across the diamond from the short field. He bats either right or left-handed.

BAKER FOR SECOND.

Baker, second base, Montgomery purchased the release of this player from the Pittsfield, Conn., club of the Eastern association, which league he led in stolen bases last year. He comes with quite a reputation as a batter, having the splendid average of .307 last year.

Jod Daly, in left field, will need no introduction to any Southern baseball fan. Daly was with Nashville last year and had somewhat of an off year. He played better ball for the Vols after the trade between the Montgomery and Nashville clubs, which sent Spratt to Nashville and Daly to Montgomery was announced than at any other time during the season. Daly is very popular here and always played great ball for this club. He is expected to do well in the "comeback" trail this year.

Elwert, third base, again holds the clean-up position and he is one of the most dangerous batters in the circuit. He always hits around .270, but is a good man to have up in a pinch. He, too, is well known to the Southern league fans.

McDowell, right field, is another of the 1913 Montgomery team. McDowell was captain of the University of Alabama's team last year and at the end of the season reported to Dobbs. Dobbs turned him over to Selma, of the Cotton States league, under an optional agreement and brought him back here during August. He is a fast man, good fielder and good on the paths. He should hit around .290 to .300.

Jantzen, centerfield. This sensational player was with the Vols late last season, and until taken sick during mid-season of 1912 he was hitting well over .300, but since that time his batting eye after his illness. This year he is hitting the agate hard and looks to be in great shape for his league.

SNEDECOR, A GOOD ONE.

Snedecor, first base. This youngster is another former University of Alabama star, though this is now his third year in professional baseball. Snedecor is one of the best fielding guardians of the initial sacks in this circuit, and he hitting better than .250 this year. Should Snedecor hit around .275 this season he is sure for faster company next season and he will go with the St. Louis at the end of this season, as Dobbs turned him over to Gilks on an optional agreement.

Kleinow, catcher. Many fans will recall Jack Kleinow, the Pecos New York American catcher. Jack was with the Cleveland Federals last year and it was his good judgment that sent them in the race for the rag in the Outlaw league. His arm is in great shape and he will show considerable in this league a few things this season.

Gribbens, catcher and utility man. Gribbens, too, is a well known player to fans of the Southern league. This year he will not only be one of the catchers for the Billikens, but will carry the official title of utility man. He has played good ball in both the infield and the outfield and is a good man to have around on account of his ability to hit in pinches.

Nelson, a former Pelican favorite, will probably be detailed to do the heavy work in the opener Tuesday, but Gilks has six others to pick from—Case, of last year's team; East, purchased from Rome, the Appalachian league; Black, drafted from the Ohio State league; Pruitt, secured from the Sally league; Buschorn, purchased from Western league, and Jack Lively, a former star in this league and afterwards in the American league and international league, but last year in the Pacific Coast league.

As a whole, the Montgomery team looks stronger than any that has ever represented this city in this circuit.

enough to stick here, and in case Manager Smith can hold not sell his contract to a club which was agreeable to the player.

Lawrence goes to Norfolk in the Virginia league. He is turned over under optional agreement, and his work will be watched with a careful eye during the coming season. Lawrence led the hurlers in the Appalachian league last year, but he was hardly strong enough to beat out the opposition he encountered here. He should make the Norfolk club a good man, and the chances are that he will go higher by the close of the approaching season.

Mobile Outfit Looks Weaker Than Last Year

Pitching Staff Shows Only Two Veterans, While Infield Is Hardly Up to Standard—Lord Expects Reinforcements

BY G. J. FLOURNOY.

MOBILE, Ala., April 11.—The Mobile club is by far at this time 50 per cent weaker than the 1913 organization, and the chances are that Lord has very little chance to strengthen up before the opening ball is rung for the opening game at Birmingham, although he is in hopes of securing an additional infielder or one or two pitchers. The former big league outfielder who is having his full taste of managerial troubles providing some new material is not secured will go on the field at Magic City for the first contest of the season with the following line-up:

Tepe, shortstop; Odell, third base; Perry, second base; Lord, center field; Calhoun, first base; Clark, left field; Miller, right field; Schmidt, Berger and Brown, catchers; Hogg, Robertson, Williams, Townsend, Keeley and Fritz, pitchers.

The team does not look strong compared with Atlanta, Memphis and New Orleans, who look to have the only real ball clubs at this time of the season. Hogg and Robertson are dependable pitchers, who look to be in the game after a lay-off of a year and who was with Memphis and New Orleans; Williams, the former Jackson, Miss., Cotton States pitcher; Lee Townsend, a local boy who was with Pensacola in the Cotton States last year, and Keeley, picked up by Lord from the Tri-State league, are yet to be heard from. Williams looks like a real pitcher, and young Keeley has been showing considerable stuff in the exhibition games, but he is light in weight. Schmidt, the leading catcher of the team, will be called on to do most of the catching. Berger has a chance to make good and will prove a good assistant to Schmidt, and it will take several games to show if he is fast enough for Class A company, although he made good in the Cotton States and South Atlantic last year, playing with Pensacola both as catcher and first baseman. Brown has been in the last month of the season with that league. Larky Brown, who was secured from Lord by Tind and finished second in the list of initial suckers. He will stick and Lord has a hard job on him.

Perry, who is covering second, came to Mobile from the Nashville club in the trade of Pitcher Heine Berger. He is in the best of condition and should have no trouble in landing a job.

Tepe, the shortstop that Lord has at the present time, came to Mobile from the Evansville club of the Central league the first part of 1913, whereby Starr was sold to the Pelicans. He is a slugger but is erratic at his position. It is believed that he will improve, but he is more than likely to go to make room for a much faster man.

Al Odell, who has been with the club for two seasons, coming here in 1912 from Atlanta, last season possessed the same old steam and some youngster will have to go hard to replace him.

Jimmy Clark has been assigned the left garden to look after again this season. He made good with the Gulls under Mike Finn, but whether he will show enough class this year to be a fixture remains to be seen.

Lord will cover the centerfield territory and act as captain of the team until he is able to secure a better man for that position. He announced that he would play only now and then and for in as a pinch hitter, but for inability to secure new material has forced him in the game. Lord will act as captain of the club.

Elmer Miller, the right fielder, is the best piece of property on that department of the game that Lord has and can hit consistently and during the forty days he was with the team last season made good from the jump. He was secured by Finn from the Minnesota-Michigan league, playing with Duluth.

Amer. Assn. Will School Umpires

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., April 11.—Three of the eight umpires of the American association, who were to have entered a school of instruction on the rules of baseball with T. M. Chivington, president of the league, as teacher, have failed to arrive tonight but were expected in time for tomorrow's session. The school will continue through Monday. The five umpires here are: Johnstone, O'Brien, Westervelt, connolly and Johnson, and the others are: Hurley, Hart and Harry.

A copy of definite instructions on rules which may be decided on the school will be sent to managers and club owners so there will be no misunderstanding, Mr. Chivington announced.

This is Lord's first year in a managerial role. He played one season in this league with Pelicans under Charlie Frank.

CRACKERS TOOK FINAL CONTEST FROM BRONCHOS

of the ingredients that went to make the battle between the Crackers and the Rochester Bronchos Saturday afternoon. It was the final fray between the two clubs, and also it was the last preliminary with a league adversary for the locals, before their opening battle with the Nashville Volunteers on Tuesday.

And, friend fan, if you had just happened into the ball park not knowing the circumstances or conditions of the battle, you would have very promptly decided that it was either the first battle of a training season, or else a hurried job put up on get-away day. More kinds of errors were perpetrated before the first nine innings of play than Frank Merrill in his palmiest day ever thought could be credited on a ball field. There was one redeeming feature, the fact that the home entry cantered over the wire a winner, and a finish that would have made Snapper Garrison turn green with envy.

Heavy Hitting in Ninth.

Viewed purely in the light of the terrific bombardment, launched by the home defense in the final chapter, the affair was a roaring success, and the term "roaring" is used advisedly, for when the crowd filed out of the gates at the close of the game, the terrific pounding in the final chapter was still sounding and resounding up and down the neighboring vales. Four hits artistically draped about a couple of free tickets dished up by Hardgrove were forced to put the Smithites out in front by a comfortable margin, while a single hand had been killed off. At the rate they were going that booming batallion would, if it been pounding out base hits until well past dark, had they been needed.

But charitable as might be the spectator, he could hardly find it in his heart other angle to the fray, and veer around to any position he might choose, he would be forced to a conclusion that was paid position betrayed at least a tinge of unpleasantness. The chief cause for depression arose from the fact that this bunch of Bronchos, who had led the local pastimers to a merry chase; who were born and bred in the near vicinity of Trappe, Md., every mother's son of them, and that they were built up to the personal habits of J. Franklin Baker.

Schul's Demon Hitter.

There was one party in particular who has been practicing a cheap deception of the game that Lord has made to this fellow Schults. This towheaded Teuton faced Jack four times, and on three of them he did: For 1, a sacrifice fly, scoring Breen; No. 2, a slashing triple in the third, scoring Priest; No. 3, a home run that all but had Harry Welchonce tired out when he finished chasing it in the fifth; No. 4, a clean single to left in the seventh, scoring Breen. Schultzie not only hit for a healthy average, but where they could not get, try as hey migh.

The visitors combed Jack for a total of eleven safe punches in seven innings, including a double, a triple and a home. Very naturally this awful fusillade shot holes into the defense, and runs were ebbing in at almost every turn. Furthermore, Jack wasn't drawing the kind of support that old Peter Dauchwick had in mind when he figured bogey for the game. The slips occurred at times, when trouble resulted therefrom, and altogether the prospects looked rather blue for the home boys until way long towards closing time.

Then the Ninth.

However, as some observing gent remarked the days long past, "Church is never over until singing is done," and it so happened that the local choir did not get a chance to sing a confounded note till the final session. True enough they hummed a few bars in the sixth, when they chopped off three hits from Mr. Hoff's delivery, and which they made sacrifice for as many runs, and the kindly help of one base on balls, and a muff by Priest in right of Jennings' high fly. George Kirsche batted in Hoff for Doescher in the seventh singled, was followed by a safe rap from McConnell, and scored on Perryman's sacrifice fly, making a total of four runs.

Then in the ninth, the regular celebration broke out. It was much like a fair, and was so strongly welcomed by a good crowd of fans that the details are worth while.

Red Lynch essayed to hit for Perryman who had relieved Doescher, and Lynch who replaced Hoff on the mound for the opponents, couldn't get them within Hedd's reach, and he walked. McConnell grounded out Breen to Courtney, after the latter had let a throw from Noyes to catch Lynch get away from him. Jennings likewise drew four defective ones, and then the hitting began. Welchonce drove a stinger to left and Lynch counted, but Jennings was halted at third. Long bit safely to right, and Jennings pulled up at third on the advice of Rube Kissinger, and the bases were loaded. Hack Ehpel dropped a Texas leaguer back of third and Jennings scored. Flanagan was walked pushing Welchonce over with the tying run. Harry Holland

Moley Expects Great Things of 'Curley' Brown

Baron Leader Will Carry Six Hurlers and Counts Strongly on Ex-Billiken Star — Chubby Manager Likes His Team

BY K. C. VANCE,
Sporting Editor Birmingham News.

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., April 11.—Manager Moley Molesworth has announced that he will carry a sextete of hurlers throughout the season. The bulk of the twirling will fall on Brown, last season with Montgomery and purchased from the Byrne-Hopkins crowd, bought from Savannah in the Sally league for $2,000; Hardgrove, veteran of last season; Johnson drafted from Madison, Wis., and Hargrave from Galveston team in the Texas league will be fourth and fifth pitchers. The sixth job lies between Gregory, purchased last season from Ottumwa, and Bertie Grimes, with the Lookouts the latter part of last season, and grabbed by Molesworth for the first base job.

Hargrove is a tried man and is known quantity. Curley Brown, the left-hander, was a terror to Southern league batters last season with his cross-fire and he is in mid-season shape right now. Dickey Robinson is a vest pocket edition, but has a spitter with a wonderful break. Johnson seems to have as much speed as the other Johnson boy, while Holden has a great amount of stuff and uses his head.

COVINGTON ON FIRST.

Covington, purchased from the St. Louis Browns, is a great fielder and should hit around the .270 mark. Marcan is a vet, while Boy Elliott will remain at short. The two latter will hit lower than any men on the team but are good on the defense. Moley thinks ceased to be a hold-out and will cavort on the third cushion. He is not in condition to play ball, having defeated Phone the Lowell, Mass., club and hit .341 last season. He has batted at a .418 clip in spring games. McBride has won out over Herndon, a Sally leaguer, and has been switched from left to center, with Wallace at third. Mosley, who batted over the coveted mark last year, is in good shape. He declares he will bat .350 and lead the league.

Three men are trying out for the backstopping position—Segerson, purchased from Boston ;Fred Dilger, a veteran who was out all last season on account of a broken collarbone, and Wallace, a recruit from the Appalachian league. Wallace and Tragresser are from school, but Moley declares they must show something else in the pegging line or Dilger will hold on. Carroll will play utility.

MOLEY LIKES CREW.

Molesworth declares that he has the best bunch of players that he has had since the days when he was a rookie himself. He feels that he can finish among the first four with his present lineup.

Birmingham will attempt to cop the opening day attendance honors. Boosters bodies are busy with a slogan: "15,000 or Bust." Those who journey out to the Magic City will probably see the following line-up and batting order: McDonald, third base; Marcan, second base; Magee, left field; McBride, center field; McFride, center field; Covington, first base; Tragresser, catcher; Elihan, short stop, and Hargrove, pitcher.

Molesworth is down to the twenty-player limit, which will hold forth till May 1. Rain has hampered his progress and he is undecided as to who else will receive the coveted catcher. Pitchers Fittery and Grimes or Gregory and Outfielder Herndon will probably walk the plank when the first of May rolls around.

He's Pels' Boss

JOHN DOBBS.

Dobbs is beginning his first year as Pelican manager. He formerly led Nashville, Chattanooga and Montgomery.

But One Recruit In Line-Up of Pelican Crew

Out of Many Youngsters Signed, Manager Dobbs Has Retained Only Sylvester—Crescent Fans Like Team

BY S. W. ELL.

NEW ORLEANS, April 11.—Out of the horde of recruits that Manager Johnny Dobbs collected for the Pelicans before the beginning of the present season, only Sylvester, an outfielder, will appear in the line-up for the first game Tuesday. All of the others have been passed on to other ventures. Cochran, the big gardener who was such a heavy slugger in the Appalachian league last season, has failed to be cut adrift, having been farmed to Albany, in the Sally league on Friday. Cochran showed a decided weakness for low curved balls.

Of the other new men who will appear in the Pelican line-up, Red Bluhm is the latest acquisition. Bluhm came from the Cleveland club, of the American association. His coming was rather unexpected, since a deal has really been hanging fire since last season, involving his transfer to the local club. Bluhm will cover first, and his arrival means the displacement of Edmundson, who has covered that position in a majority of the exhibition contests.

Bill Lindsay will cover the third base position. However, Bill is no stranger to the Southern league. He played here several years ago, and was afterwards transferred to the Western league, and subsequently to the Portland club, of the Pacific Coast league.

The two other infielders with the Pels are both new to the club, but have been considerable service in the league ranks. As a matter of fact, one of these—Cotton Knaupp—was formerly a Pelican in days gone by. Last season he was with Dobbs, at Montgomery, and the local pilot thinks highly of his ability. The second baseman, Charlie Carroll, comes from the Mobile Gulls. It is rumored that Staff was traded because of the fact that he rather loaned Dobbs for the managerial job, and it was feared he might not fit in well with Lord's outfit.

The outfield will be made up of Hub Northern, in right; Sylvester, in center, and Burns in left. Northern was obtained from Newark, in the international league, but is well known to fans in the circuit, where he has played before. Burns, like Bluhm, played with Cleveland Association team. Hence, as above stated, Sylvester is the only man in the line-up who has not previously held a class A experience.

Manager Dobbs has not definitely determined which of his pitchers he will use, nor has he made a definite selection of the receiver who will handle the slants in the opening game. The choice, however, lies between Walker and Will Adams, the former, of Rocky Mount, and Adams for catcher. In either case the battery work should be above par, and will offer considerable resistance to the Montgomery Billikens.

Local fans feel confident that Manager Dobbs has assembled a team that will make every other entry in the league race hustle to beat them, and if Lady Luck is on the job he will be back Pelicans may again float a Southern league pennant, which by the way will be the first time in the history in this circuit—if he wins this year.

Mgr. Schwartz All Ready for Opening Game

Nashville Pilot Has Selected Line-Up for Battle Here Tuesday—Will Work at First Base Until Another Is Secured

NASHVILLE, April 11.—Manager Schwartz is ready for the Crackers on April 14.

The Vols roster has been practically completed and the bunch which will open the season "way down in Atlanta" has been decided upon.

At first either the manager himself of inch McCabe, who came to Schwartz has been working out carefully all the spring and having seen some time with the Browns at St. Louis last season, he ought to be in shape to give a good account of himself. In case the manager decides to watch the first battle from the sidelines, he will shoot McCabe in to the battle. McCabe was signed as an outfielder, but he has been doing considerable first basing since he arrived and takes care of the big bag very good style.

At second Otto Williams, lately purchased from Kansas City will hold forth. Williams is a veteran who knowns the game thoroughly, and is one who is spry enough on his pins to cover ground. Together with Johnny Lindsey he ought to show the other infields in the league a fast article around the second bag Williams played with the Browns several years ago, but for several years has been in the American association.

HEMINGWAY ON THIRD.

Edson Hemingway has a third nailed down, since there are none on the local roster who has anything with which to hoodoo him out of his warm place. Hemmy has been covering for Jacques Spratt's former positions with great class, and should the latter decide he does not like Nashville he will be missed. Hemingway is one of the best fielding guardians of the hot corner in the Southern league, and comes to getting 'em anywhere, the best of all the rest. Johnny's hitting has been steadily improving during the exhibition games and if he can only keep up the good work with the stick he will be a big help to the team. He is one of the strongest members of the team.

Manager Schwartz has not definitely determined which of his pitchers he will use, nor has he made a definite selection of the receiver who will handle the slants in the opening game. The choice, however, lies between Walker and Will Adams, the former, of Rocky Mount, and Adams for catcher. In either case the battery work should be above par, and will offer considerable resistance to the Montgomery Billikens.

Local fans feel confident that Manager Schwartz has assembled a team that will make every other entry in the league race hustle to beat them, and if Lady Luck can be back on the job the Pelicans may again float a Southern league pennant, which by the way will be the first time in the history in this circuit—if he wins this year.

Earl Stimson, a youthful Rickenbacker recruit, was released from the Browns, will be in the left garden when the season begins. Stimson's work in the outfield has been of the sensational order, in practically every game he has played he has pulled off a sensational catch, and making great throw-ins of wallops in his garden. He has been a little weak on hitting, but has been improving steadily

Yale Sloan, ex-Billiken, is practically a certainty for the Vol roster as one of the heaviest hitters on the club, and is also considered one of the classiest outfielders now occupying a berth with the locals.

Red Smith, ex-Kitty Leaguer, will be behind the bat on the opening day. Red has been working in over half of the exhibition games and looks to be a dependable backstop this year. Mage Gribbens, another catcher of the local receiving corps, will probably see considerable service with the Vols this season.

On the hill Manager Schwartz will use Forest More or Hollis Bruce, two veterans well known all over the Southern, and when they meet the Crackers on opening day Tuesday Billy Smith will meet foes worthy of Elli

Herman Fails to Get One Over On Bro. Jacob

Studebaker Salesmen Had Rather Unique Experience in Selling Cars to Schmidt Brothers—Both Landed Sales, However

It is a thoroughly established fact that there are more Schmidts in Milwaukee than in any other American city of similar size.

This condition was personally known to J. G. Wollager, who sells Studebaker automobiles in the Wisconsin metropolis. He was therefore not greatly surprised to note one day that his list of prospective customers included two Schmidts.

That afternoon Mr. Wollager sallied forth in a Studebaker Six touring car, met Herman E. Schmidt and family, and took them for a ride. Mr. Schmidt noted the quietness of the car and the easy way it handled its seven-passenger load on high gear. Mrs. Schmidt was also pleased. Mr. Wollager produced an order blank and the Schmidts bought a car.

While this deal was in process, H. S. Deland, Mr. Wollager's chief of staff, had been out in a "six" Landau roadster and had picked up Jacob S. Schmidt, according to arrangement. Jacob looked at the car as a closed vehicle and as an open body for touring. He admired its perfect fitting equipment, said he knew Studebaker quality from experience and didn't care to fuss with mechanical details which he was ready to take on faith, and bought the car.

Both the Schmidts arranged to take delivery on their cars the following Saturday. Both appeared in due order. Mr. Wollager welcomed Herman E. and took him to the garage where his shining touring car was waiting. Then arrived Jacob S. who was turning a new landau over to Jacob S.

Henry began to walk slowly round his new possession with an approving eye. Between his car and the "six" touring car loomed Jacob S. who was also perambulating. The Schmidts looked each other in the eyes, each showing a straight glare.

"Ach, pshaw!" said Henry disgustedly.

"Rats!" replied Jacob in plain language.

"Trying to put something across on me, brother, eh?" continued Henry. "I thought you were going to buy a small car!"

"Yes, and you were going to wait all summer before you got yours," responded Jacob. "Trying to get away with it—eh?"

Then they both grinned and exchanged congratulations.

Henry and Jacob are brothers and business partners in a big Milwaukee enterprise of state-wide reputation. Now and then each tries to provide a little personal surprise for the other. Now and then something interferes.

Talladega Team Reports Monday

TALLADEGA, Ala., April 11.—The Talladega Indians will report to Manager Carl Face for practice next Monday morning, Secretary Hugh F. McKlderry having written or wired the following men to be on hand on the 13th: W. L. Watters, of Howard college, Birmingham; White, of Dothan; Scoke, of Eddie Hammers, of Tullahoma, Tenn.; Hodler, from Murfreesboro, Tenn.; Sparks, from Houston, Tex.; Carl Wilson, from Oxford; B. F. Mann, of Valdosta, Ga.; T. Cope and G. C. Roberts, two outfielders from Guntersville; Wash Jewell, from Hope Hill, Ala., all of these men are coming to Talladega on their own expense for a trial and if any show class they will be retained and will do practice along with the regulars who are instructed to report on Monday, April 20.

Among the regulars signed by Manager Face are the following: Bill McKeathen, catcher from the Indiana universities; E. B. James, catcher from Rockville, Ind.; Clyde Doyle, of Richmond, Ind., and Albrecht, of Columbus, Ga., both candidates for first base; Powers, of Cleveland, Ohio, will fight it out for the short field position; Dan Murphy, of Nashville, La., and Perkins, of Gilbert, Ark., candidates for third base in the outfield the candidates are Edward Camp, a Talladega boy and who played with the Indians last season; McLester, from San Antonio, Tex., and Smith, from Texas. The manager is also on the lookout for three more men, and negotiations are under way with them for outfield positions.

The pitching staff will be composed of the following candidates: Turner Brooks, from the Cairo club, of the Ohio league; Richard Schwartz, of the Notre Dame university; Breckinbridge, of the Lewis club; also "Lefty" Woodruff, who was with the Indians part of last season.

Manager Face states that he is dickering with several other players who have had the experience and were promising men at present these two officials are engaged in supervising the rebuilding and improving of the local baseball grounds and when completed the stands will seat 2,500 people and the diamond will be the best in the history of the local baseball regime.

President C. L. Brunner will attend a meeting of the Georgia-Alabama league this week in Gadsden or Anniston at which time the schedule for the 1914 season will be adopted and other details arranged. The opening game at Talladega will likely be with Talladega and Anniston as opponents on May 6.

Hill Climb Will Be Grand Event

As practically every automobile concern in Atlanta has served notice on Chairman Chas. that they are going after Bleiby's goat in the coming hill climb, it appears that everyone that can possibly do so will enter one or more cars and that the third annual hill climb of the Atlanta Auto and Accessory association is going to be a great success. Since there will be machines entered from all over Georgia, it can truthfully be said that this year, the hill climb will be an affair of state.

Aside from the free-for-all which will be contested for by Betsy, Mary Jane, Bear Cat, Bullet and all the other old reliables and some new cars, the event for motorcycles pulling side cars will be one of especial interest. Saturday, May 9, at 1 p. m. will see the biggest and best hill climb ever pulled off by the Atlanta Auto and Accessory association.

Waycross Plans To Win Trophy

Fans of South Georgia City Expect to Show Largest Attendance on Opening Day

WAYCROSS, Ga., April 11.—"Waycross will win the attendance trophy in the Georgia State league for two seasons—we have the right spirit and we have the people." This is the view the mayor of the city, who is an ardent baseball fan, takes of the contest that is on in the Georgia State league for the 1914 opening day attendance cup. And the mayor is not alone in his belief, because a large number of fans are determined that Waycross will win the cup. Last season Waycross beat the league in opening day attendance, Brunswick being second. This season every city in the league wants to head Waycross off, and fans all over the circuit have been at work on schemes to boost the attendance.

Acting on the request made by the league president, I. J. Kalmon, of Americus, Mayor Beaton will issue a proclamation declaring April 16, the opening day in Waycross of the Georgia State season, a half-holiday, and will urge all citizens to aid in the fight to beat five other live Georgia cities in the race for the attendance trophy.

Anticipating a demand for more room to care for the tremendous crowds expected the local association has already built an addition to the grandstand, and has made arrangements to seat several hundred more people on the field lines, besides enlarging the parking space for automobiles. Many of the boxes have been purchased this far in advance and if weather conditions are anywhere near reasonable there will be an outburst of baseball enthusiasm in Waycross a week from today such as no city in the state has known in years.

MANY CONFLICTING DATES IN FEDERAL LEAGUE SCHED.

CHICAGO, April 11.—The Federal league, which opens its season this week, will conflict with organized ball in 275 games this year, according to its schedule which was announced here a few days since by President Gilmore. The schedule was adopted practically as drawn up by Secretary Lloyd Rickard, who spent weeks trying to overcome the many difficulties that had to be surmounted before a chart acceptable to all the clubs was possible.

The impossibility of avoiding conflicts entirely was recognized at the start, but Rickkardt eliminated many of them that at first it seemed probable would have to stay in the schedule. The fact that Baltimore and Buffalo, for instance, are in one section in the Federal league and in different sections in the International made it impossible to arrange the chart that both clubs would be away when their competitors were home. Similar conditions governed Kansas City and Indianapolis, and Brooklyn and Pittsburg.

The greatest number of conflicts take place in St. Louis, where the Federal lecauers will compete with the American and National league teams in seventy games. Chicago is next with about fifty eight conflicts; Kansas City has thirty-four; Indianapolis about twenty; Pittsburg, twenty-seven; Baltimore twenty; Brooklyn twenty-one, and Buffalo twenty.

The objection of President Ward, of the Brooklyn club, to Sunday baseball resulted in the Brooklyn team being carded to play double-headers on five Saturdays which preceded the Sundays into which its series in western towns would naturally run.

The opening of the season will spread over several days. Only one game will be played on April 13, when Buffalo opens the season at Baltimore On April 14 Pittsburg starts the campaign at home with Brooklyn. On April 18 Indianapolis opens the season at St. Louis and Chicago at Kansas City. Home games in Chicago and Indianapolis will be played first by Kansas City and St. Louis April 22.

Before they play at home the Brooklyn and Buffalo teams will be on the road nearly a month. After the two opening series, they, as well as the Pittsburg and Baltimore teams, tour the four cities of the western section, and will not appear before the fans on their home towns until May 11.

Memorial day double-headers will be played by Kansas City at St. Louis; Indianapolis at Chicago; Pittsburg at Baltimore, and Brooklyn at Buffalo. On July 4, St. Louis plays two games at Kansas City; Chicago at Indianapolis; Buffalo at Brooklyn, and Baltimore at Pittsburg. On Labor day, St. Louis is at Kansas City; Chicago at Indianapolis; Baltimore at Brooklyn, and Baltimore at Buffalo. The season of 154 games for each club closes October 14.

Hard Games on For Riverside

Gainesville Cadets Tackle Boys' High Team on Saturday and G. M. C. Tuesday

GAINESVILLE, Ga., April 11.—On account of the first annual inspection by the United States war department, the Riverside Military academy has not been paying very much attention to athletics during the past two weeks. This inspection will come off in the next week, and as soon as it is over the Riverside boys will go right to work for their approaching baseball games.

On Saturday, April 18, the first big game of the season will come off, when the Atlanta Boys' High school comes to Gainesville for a game. Then on, the following Monday and Tuesday, the strong Georgia military college will be played in Gainesville, and on the Saturday of the same week, the Richmond academy, from Augusta, will play them in Gainesville. This gives Riverside four hard games to be played in one week, and with only one week to practice for them.

Coach Anderson, of the team, has made several changes in his line-up, due to several causes.

At the backstop position, Jones, from Columbus, Ga., is now rated as a first backstop, and he is showing up in this position excellently. After Montgomery was forced to leave school on account of protracted illness, Coach Anderson developed Jones into a first rater.

Morris, Miller, Driggers and Page, are the four men that Coach Anderson has developed into pitchers, and all of them give promise of being good ones.

The infield is composed of Haney at first, who is a first-year man; Holleman at second, who was in school last year and filled this place, Stroupe, at short, was with Stone Mountain last year and is holding down this place very acceptably, and Smith at third, who also was with Stone Mountain last year.

Captain Carraway, in center, is the only old man that is back and playing the outfield. The other two new men are Harden, in left, and Mcconnell, in right. Both are good players, however, and give promise of developing into good players.

Coaches Anderson and Graham have been badly handicapped this year in getting the students out on practice. They have to remain in school until 4:45 o'clock, and in the brief time that is left some strenuous practice have been held.

Riverside will bid for the state championship this year on two things, their excellent base running and swell twirling corps, and the chances for their winning this honor are very bright.

John Aiken to Try for Record

Johnny Aiken, the hustling Harley-Davidson dealer, will attempt to make a record ride from Atlanta to Macon and return today. He leaves early in the morning, and rides to Macon, expecting to beat the previous record held by Harry Glenn of 3 hours and 55 minutes, and of course will have to beat the same record coming back. It is Aiken's intentions to make a mark so that other riders can go to it afterwards to try and beat it.

When it is considered that the railroad time from Atlanta to Macon is between three and four hours, it can be seen that these boys on the motorcycles really do some very fast riding when they cover the same distance in less than three hours. Quite a crowd will be watching out for Aiken's return from Macon in the afternoon about three o'clock, where he will be checked in at 224 Peachtree street.

Players Report To LaGrange

Three local boys, Charlie Allen, Gene Walton and Bill Simmons, will leave here Monday to report to Manager La Fitte, of the La Grange team of the Georgia-Alabama league. Allen and Simmons are infielders, and have played with some of the fastest amateur teams of the city. Allen hails from Marist while Simmons has played with several city league clubs. Pitcher Weston was with the Tech High team and stands a good chance of sticking in the Georgia-Alabama league. Judgine from his showing with the school team.

Jack Donaldson, an infielder, playing with the Yellow Jackets at present, will sign up with the La Grange team at the end of the present college season, according to reports. Jack has been going good this year and will give some one a hard fight for a position on LaFitte's club.

Electrically Started Electrically Lighted
Seven-Passenger

The Studebaker SIX fairly clamors for comparison with "Sixes" selling for more money.

It is the uttermost in six-cylinder smoothness and seven-passenger comfort.

The full floating rear axle is a type of the high standard maintained throughout this splendid car.

And the system of starting and lighting conforms to the same exacting quality requirement.

No matter how much more you are willing to pay—money can't buy a better rear axle or a better system of starting and lighting.

Take these two vital features as a starting point and every feature and every function of the car will reveal to you elements of value beyond which manufacturing skill cannot go.

We have a folder which you should read, fully describing in simple terms the full floating axle and making plain the superiority of this type over others. Call or write for it.

Chalmers—1915 "Light Six"

Master "Light Six" $1800.
Fully Equipped—f. o. b. Detroit

Our 1915 Demonstrating Car is Here

We beg to announce the arrival of a new Chalmers model—the 1915 "Light Six."

In this new Master "Six" we offer you the latest, and we believe, in many respects, the greatest product of the Chalmers factory.

Here is the most truly sensational "Six" on the market, the car for which thousands have waited.

This 1915 Master "Light Six" offers you for the first time the luxury, smoothness and flexibility of the high-powered "Six" at the low initial cost and with the upkeep economy of any comparable "four."

This new "Light Six" gives us a complete line of the famous Chalmers cars—the Master "Light Six" at $1800 and the larger Master "Six" at $2175. There is now a Chalmers "Six" to suit your every requirement, and we stand ready to prove that, in classes, these two great cars cannot be equalled within $500 of the Chalmers prices.

No Reason for Buying "Fours" Now

With the appearance of the Chalmers 1915 Master "Light Six," the last reason for driving a "four" has disappeared. For in this 1915 model the Chalmers Company has answered the last arguments of the four-cylinder builders—those of price and economy.

In all the qualities of mechanical smoothness, endurance, silence, flexibility, and good looks, the 1915 "Light Six" is like the larger Master "Six" at $2175.

It has the same T-head, long stroke motor; the same silent one-motion Chalmers-Entz electric starter which makes the motor non-stallable; the same wonderful flexibility which has earned for Chalmers "Sixes" the title of "one speed" cars. It is a real maufactured car—built complete in Chalmers shops.

But the Master "Light Six" is built expressly for those who want a car of low initial cost and economy of maintenance.

This new "Light Six" is slightly smaller than the Master "Six." That means lower cost and makes possible the astonishingly low price of $1800.

Light for Economy; Heavy Enough for Service

The Master "Light Six" is a lighter car, but not a little car. It is light enough to be easy on tires, economical of fuel and easy to handle. Yet it is not flimsy. It is built heavy enough to assure safety in any emergency and comfort on any road. Don't make the mistake of buying too light a car—for any apparent saving in first cost, gained through skimping, is more than offset by the costly repairs which result from too light construction. Medium weight is right weight. The extra gasoline used by a medium weight car as compared with a very light car won't amount to $25 in 10,000 miles. And $25 won't buy many repairs for a car so flimsy that it shakes itself to pieces in ordinary service.

The 1915 "Light Six," like all Chalmers cars, is built to give satisfactory service through many seasons.

This latest Chalmers has a slightly smaller motor than the Master "Six." Yet it develops up to 50 horsepower, giving all the speed and all the power you will ever want in a car of this size. No car of equal motor and car size will show greater mileage per gallon of gasoline.

High Priced Features; Low Cost

Though the price of the 1915 Master "Light Six" is only $1800 it has all the features of high-priced cars. Such, for instance, as: 6-cylinder en bloc motor with small bore and long stroke; cork insert disc clutch; left drive and center control; interlocking transmission gears which can't slip or be accidentally shifted; combination splash and direct oiling; cellular radiator; diamond-hard Tungsten steel valves; exclusive Chalmers design molded oval fenders; underslung Vanadium springs; non-stallable motor; Chalmers-Entz electric starter; tires carried at rear, giving absolutely clear running boards; the newest design streamline body with flush fitting doors; electric lights and horn. In a word, every feature of advanced construction and equipment which most cars in the $2000 class will not have for another year.

A Year Ahead of Others

These are a few of the reasons why experts have declared this 1915 Chalmers "Light Six" the last word in medium priced 6-cylinder construction; why we claim you will find no car in the same class within $500 of the price to equal the 1915 Master "Light Six."

The other reasons why the Master "Light Six" is one year ahead of all other cars in its class, we'll be glad to show you in the Chalmers Standard Road Test. We are now arranging demonstrations, and can make prompt delivery if you place your order as soon as the 1915 "Light Six" has convinced you. At least do yourself the justice of a thorough inspection of the one "Light Six" which is a year ahead of all others.

Eggers Gives Up Fighting Game

Bantam Who Took Part in Fatal Local Bout Declines to Box for New Orleans Club

NEW ORLEANS, La., April 11.—Knockout Eggers, New York bantam, who recently participated in the fatal bout at Atlanta, Ga., with Jimmy Grant, as a result of which Grant died, has given up the ring for good.

Such was the announcement made here late today by Dominick Tortorich, of the Orleans Athletic club. Eggers had been matched to fight Young K. O. Brown on Monday night here. Promoter Tortorich was expecting him in town today. Instead he received a letter from Eggers

"Please do not ask me to fight any more Mr. Tortorich," read the missive, "ever since the Grant fight I do not believe that I have had my right mind. Jimmy was one of the foremost little fighters that there was, and I have been so upset that I do not believe I can train or that I can ever box again as long as I live."

Eggers missive went on to explain he was sorry of the outcome of the Grant fight, "I am going back to New York to try and forget all about the fight game. Perhaps I will find some other business just as good." Wrote Eggers

RICE'S REMINISCENSES OF THE GREAT RUBE WADDELL

By GRANTLAND RICE.

Written and related incidents pertaining to the bizarre career of the late Rube Waddell recall to us the first time we ever saw this highly complex southpaw at work.

Back in 1898, when we were scrambling for a place on the Vanderbilt line up town in sunny Tennessee Frank Graves brought his Detroit club there for spring practice. The big leaguers trained on the college field and worked out a series of exhibition battles with the Vanderbilt squad.

WADDELL ARRIVES.

Groves brought more than one famous star to town that spring. Pabst Nordyke, Sam Dungan and Hoss Twineham were there. They were where well known back in the musty dynasty of the game on his squad. But his star attractions were his two great southpaws—Noodles Hahn and Rube Waddell —a great veteran just facing the finish and a youngster just coming to the front. Hahn had been the mainstay of the Reds for many a year and had about run his course. And 1898 was Waddell's first year of service under the main tent.

ALWAYS THE SAME RUBE.

We'll never forget how Rube looked to freshman eyes as he swung across the campus one March morning sixteen years ago. He looked to be about two-thirds as big as all outdoors. He was a whale—a whale in a suit of conductor's blue, big square-toed shoes and a dinky felt hat that curled up all the way around.

"Rube" was written all over him. You could tell it a mile away. And when you saw him about a couple hundred yards off his mask in as unconcerned moment and signaled Rube to wait until he adjusted the strap.

But being of an impatient nature, Rube didn't wait. He yelled "Look out!" and then pegged one through. In place of "Rookie" out there, Rube picked up—and he also went to the hospital for a month.

Rube wasn't very popular with his bunch that spring. He broke their curfew and beamed their best batters and made a frolic out of the trip. He had the stuff, but it was too raw and unwieldy to be confined to any restricted spot 18 inches across. And it was a long spell before he found enough time between fishing trips to work up on control.

After he had beaned that first batsman and the gore had been turned into a drain and run off the field, the others stood back and gave Rube a choice—between acquiring a strike out or a base on balls.

Waddell only worked six games for Detroit that season, but he got his toe hold in the Western league next year with Columbus and Louisville, when he won thirty-one and lost ten. Even then he was not exactly famous, as he pitched 208 passes. But he also fanned 281 batters.

A PUNCTURED LIBEL.

Waddell was often referred to as a pitcher with a $10,000 arm and a 10-cent head.

Nothing was further from the highway of fact. He was no J. H. Aristotle or S. P. Plato of the field. Inside the box he was a pretty wise old fox. He knew a lot more about pitching than shooting the ball to the catcher. He not only had the stuff, but he knew how to use it. He was, in fact, above the average in the way of pitching intelligence or the pitching instinct. But after all, with the speed he had and the curve ball and the control he later developed, he had no great use for any head at all. When he first broke in he could step out and beat any ball club all by his own playing—and beat it to death.

He showed that in 1908. Released to St. Louis by Connie Mack, he waited for the cold days, sat around together in a ballyard one day and struck out sixteen—and that was after he was supposed to be all through.

Record Encounter.

If Waddell had been of the steady, consistent type his record would have been unbeatable. As it was with all his wonderful brilliancy, he never got over twenty-five games in any one season. Unlike other great stars—Mathewson, Johnson, Wood and Chesbro, who have won from thirty-five to forty-three contests in one year—the Rube was generally good for only about twenty-two or twenty-three victories. This shortage wasn't because he was beaten often but simply because he refused to let baseball cut into his afternoons when he felt otherwise inclined.

The game for him was always a sport —never a profession. Life was too short for the Rube's philosophy to make a grind of it. With him it was a case of eat, drink and do whatever you please, for tomorrow the game is called on account of darkness. Like the renowned Colonel—only in quite a different way—he "had a perfectly corking time." And that was all he wanted to have. He had no ambition to satisfy—except for the day he satisfied it by making Simian wonders out of every pallid bloke game enough to step up and take a crack at what he had to offer. He was the truest genius baseball has ever known—for which his tangled eccentricities he had a wonderful talent. A game heart, a kindly soul and the uttermost capacity for enjoying life. And in the League of Baseball Immortals this epitaph: "He had a fast ball, a wicked drop and one heluva good time."

JENNINGS JOKE OUTFIELDER, BECAME STAR ON INFIELD

BY BERRY L. DOUGHERTY.

KNOXVILLE, Tenn., April 11.—When Morley Jennings, the new Atlanta prospect, came to Knoxville in 1912 he wanted to be an outfielder.

Manager Frank Moffett sent the youngster to the outer territory and gave him a thorough trial. After about an hour's work Morley came back to the bench, and approaching Moffett, inquired:

"What did you think of my work?"

"It won't do. You must beat that, or back to the farm for you. Come out here again tomorrow afternoon and I'll see you another trial."

The next afternoon Jennings was on hand, smiling confidently. Moffett sent him to the outfield again and when an hour had passed by he called Jennings in.

"Nothing doing. You go after those high ones like a broad jumper."

Just then the veteran first baseman was showing signs of unusual bush league calibre and Moffett turned his attention from Jennings to the initial bag. Following a strenuous argument with the would-be first sacker, Moffett switched Captain Bill Wynne from short to first and then turned to Jennings.

"Go out there on short and see what you can do."

Jennings went. Within five minutes he had attracted the attention of the Knoxville manager. Within ten minutes Moffett slapped his hands on his knees and smiled broadly. Fifteen minutes passed by, and then Moffett turned to the writer and said:

"Now wouldn't that kill you! That Morley Jennings comes here and tells me he is an outfielder when he is the best shortstop I have seen around this park in five years. Look at that throw. Watch him get the ball away fro mhim."

The next day Jennings went into the game, and from that time until the 1912 season closed he was the fielding sensation of the Appalachian league.

In the course of time the big league scouts began to invade the Appalachian league. One day Howard Goode, of the Pittsburg Nationals, breezed into town. He told Moffett that he had come to look Jennings over. A little later Moffett called his star shortstop aside and said:

"Look here, Jennings, a Pittsburg scout will be in the grandstand this afternoon to look you over. Try to get in there with the best you have."

Jennings promised everything in the line of baseball, and that afternoon he was up to the plate four times and struck out three times, besides making a couple of costly bobbles that put a crimp in the game for Knoxville. The Pittsburg scout left town that night in disgust.

The very next day Mike Kahoe, Washington American league scout, came to Knoxville. He said he had heard much about Jennings. But Moffett had still his shortstop that Kahoe was in the neighborhood. Jennings got into action that afternoon with a vengeance. Knoxville was playing the Bristol team, which always caused Moffett more grief in the race for the flag. Jennings marched up to the plate bristling with confidence and he hammered out two home runs in succession and a long sacrifice fly. He accepted seventeen chances in the field without a bobble, which was a near-record for the league. Scout Kahoe was pleased with Mr. Jennings and promptly recommended that the Knoxville shortstop to Clark Griffith. Consequently, Jennings packed his trunk and departed for the Senators' training camp the next spring.

Displaying the same fielding ability and the same batting prowess that he dished out to Appalachian league fans in 1913, and continuing the same good work that characterized his stay with Hartford, in the Connecticut league, last year, Jennings should be able to make good with Atlanta, even though he is compelled to enter into the most strenuous sort of competition.

Hunter Defeats Walter Travis

Former Champion Was Even With Winner on Eighteen Holes, but Lost Nineteenth

PINEHURST, N. C., April 11.—In a match that required nineteen holes to decide, Walter J. Travis, of Garden City, L. I., former international champion, today went down to defeat before Robert Hunter, of Westbury, Conn., in the final round of the annual mid-April golf tournament for the president's trophy. A large crowd of enthusiasts followed the match.

The match was closely played throughout. Travis rounded the turn 1 up, with the holes with a four on a game apiece, but rimmed the cup, losing the hole and match.

In the consolation match Lawrence Cowing, of Cincinnati, defeated Henry F. Downes, of Pittsburg, two up and one to play.

N. D. Becker, of Dunwoodis, N. Y., won in the second division and J. S. Neil, of Fredericktown, N. J., the third.

Federal League Is Vindicated

NEW YORK, April 11.—"A vindication" is the way President James Gilmore, of the Federal league, today alluded to the decision of Federal Judge Sessions in the Killifer case at Grand Rapids, Mich. Gilmore explained why the Federals have induced, as claimed, two St. Louis American players, Hamilton and Clemens, to jump to his organization. It is not a case of retaliation, he said, nothing more.

"Organized baseball went after players who had violated the New Orleans City team suffering in particular," Gilmore asserted. "In all, five players have been lured from the two clubs. Naturally, we might be expected to be entitled to the same method of procedure, but I gave permission to our clubs to go and get one signed player for every signed Federal leaguer who might be taken from us. That is why we have taken Hamilton and Clemens."

TECH WARRIORS TRIM ILLINOIS IN SECOND GAME

Eubanks who was on the mound for Tech, held Illinois to five hits that way, allowing only six hits to be gotten off of his delivery and one of these was of the scratch variety. He fanned eight men, and walked two. Whenever he was in a hole, he would invariably lighten up and retire the side without a run.

Larson who pitched for Illinois after the third inning, was a trifle wild, and the local boys, as they hit him when he was batting.

The feature of the game was the base running and fielding of the Yackets, the two accomplishing a few stellar double plays, and on one of these, Illinois had three men on and only one out. They stole home on balls, pulling off one double steal.

In the ninth inning, E. Montague made a pretty running catch of a fly short fly by Tolmie. This was a beautiful running catch, and Montague after catching the ball, fell and turned over twice, but gamely held onto the horsehide.

Wooten had a good day with stick, getting three safe bingles, and a sacrifice fly out in the four trips. He also fielded his place in fine style and figured in one of the double plays.

Tolmie played a good game at second, getting one hit and handling three chances without a boobie.

Burr, Hill and Pound played good ball for Tech also, while the playing of Arbuckle, Phelps and Thomas was the best for Illinois.

Okla. Gov. Puts Ban on Racing

TULSA, Okla., April 11.—Under orders from Governor Cruce to stop races announced to begin here Saturday under the auspices of the Tulsa Jockey club even if the callon arrest of the militia were found necessary to accomplish the purpose, Adjutant General Canton, of the Oklahoma National Guard late Saturday conferred with District Judge Ros and Captain Gilmore of the local militia company. Later neither he nor the other conferees would make a statement. Meanwhile pouring rain made it impossible to start the races.

Officials of the Jockey club deny the right of the governor to interfere, asserting that, pending the refereedum petition on a state anti-betting bill, there is now no law prohibiting betting on horse races in the state. Theses officials said the meeting would be carried out as planned.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE GETS IN LINE TO BOOST OPENING ATTENDANCE

behind the Crackers and believes that Manager Bill Smith, and the local association have gotten together a team well worthy of the support of the local populace.

Regarding the task before Atlanta fans of duplicating last season's record, when the Crackers brought home the trophy over all other contenders, it is interesting to note that at least three cities in the league are making a determined battle to land the honor. It is a matter of more than passing interest to learn from a Nashville scribe that Chattanooga won the trophy in 1911 with a paid attendance of 5,886. This scribe goes on to say that this a record mark for Southern league attendance.

The above is all right except in a few minor details. In the first place, the figures given are those shown by the turnstiles at Ponce de Leon park season, when the Crackers beat out the Barons. Also the local club drew 8,140 paid admissions on September 4 of last year, at one of the Mobile games. This is represented the paid admission, and was exclusive of the ladies' tickets on which the fair sex were admitted free that day. It appears that the Pelicans are figuring on beating the figure credited to the Lookouts. Possibly they will beat it, and that, too, by a good margin, but if they want to win the league trophy this year, they will have to raise the ante by a wide margin. The local association figures that with favorable weather, the clickers at Ponce de Leon are going to show mighty close to 16,000 when returns are in Tuesday afternoon.

"Why," said President Callaway, "last season we drew almost nine thousand and that, too, although the day was decidedly unpleasant for two successive years, and Atlanta fans had allowed their interest and enthusiasm to die down to a considerable extent. This season we confidently believe we have a team that will be near the top all the way through with enough left next September to tear down through the stretch to another pennant.

Billy Smith likewise figures that opening day is going to set a new record for attendance in the league. The Cracker pilot is tickled with his team, and it looks to be in the championship game can be counted on to turn out shouting that familiar refrain, "Hail Hail, The Gang's All Here. Et-

Tech Federals Beat Boys' High

The aggregation of Georgia Tech boys playing under the team name, "Federal league," copped a pretty game from the Boys' High school nine at Tech Field Saturday afternoon by the score of 7 to 1. Only two times during the game did the high school boys solve the delivery of Pitchers Center and Carpenter for a clean single.

The "Federal league" however, connected with Warwick's delivery for eight safeties. The errors were even, two for each team.

The line-up was as follows

Tech High Beats Locust Grove

Sprinzing a fierce batting rally in the ninth inning, Tech High defeated Locust Grove, 7 to 5, Saturday.

Locust Grove scored first in the opening inning, and in the third, sixth and the ninth.

The feature was the general all around ability of the Tech High boys to clout the ball, and the pitching of Smith after the opening round

The Locust Grove men were able to get only nine hits off of him and the difficulties in the league are making a stiff fielding of the young blacksmiths in the infield. Several hits that had the home run sign tagged on them were pulled down for outs.

Chivington Signs Umpire Owens

Can't Stand Clock's Din

Dr. G. W. Milton, of Cairo, Ill., writes a Detroit friend that he has had to remove the auto clock he had fitted up his Studebaker "Four." He alleges that the ticking disturbed the quiet which he had enjoyed touring in the car prior to the clock's appearance the Crackers look good. They are hitting strongly, and the pitching shows a class that has been highly above the general average to be expected at this time of the year. In fact, Manager Bill is pleased with his troubles in getting down his hurlers.

With all of these conditions to be considered, it is easy to understand that a record crowd may be expected. The team is playing good ball every day and Atlanta booster is working hard to turn the crowd out. The Ad-Men are pinpointing all the time, and the Chamber of Commerce is taking a very active part. The attraction will be there Atlanta has the distinction, and the gang can be counted on to turn out shouting that familiar refrain, "Hail Hail, The Gang's All Here. Et-

Third Endurance Run for Sunday

Local Motorcyclists Will Cover New Route, Including Rome, Cedartown and Other Points

At the regular meeting of the Atlanta Motorcycle club held Friday night, at 224 Peachtree street, it was decided to hold the third and last of the series of the three endurance contests on April 19. This run will cover a distance of 150 miles and will leave from No. 224 Peachtree street on the morning of April 19 at 7 o'clock, going to Dallas, Rockmart, Cedartown, Cave Springs and Rome. Contestants will get dinner at Rome, and leaving Rome will go to Cartersville and Marietta, arriving back in Atlanta in the evening at 5:30.

In addition to the regular control of each of the above named points, there will be possibly five secret controls. A regular schedule between these controls will be maintained with a ten minutes lee-way at each control. Any rider receiving outside assistance in any manner will be penalized so many points for each offense. Riders having falls from their machines or allowing their machines to fall on the ground or assisting their machines up any hill or through any sand stretches, punctures, the losing of any nut or screw from off their machine, the breaking of any part, all of these different features carry a point for penalization.

Judges Examine Machines.

Before the riders leave from the first control their machines are examined by the judges, and after their return in the evening these machines are checked in, and the rider who covers the entire trip without having any of the above numerous possible points against him is awarded the perfect score of 1,000 points.

Considerable interest is being centered in this particular contest on the 19th as the combined scores of the three runs will decide the winner of the gold medal for the best score. In the previous two runs the best scores were made by A. A. Parrish, who rides a Harley-Davidson, L. Hudson, who rides a Thor, and Johnny Aiken, the hustling Harley-Davidson dealer, on a Harley-Davidson. These three are really the contestants for the gold medal which will be decided on the third run on the 19th.

It was decided at the meeting on Friday night that the club would give a banquet at the Ansley hotel on the night of the 21st of April, where the gold medal will be awarded to the rider having the best average score on the three runs. This third and last contest is creating considerable interest among the motorcyclists of Atlanta, and it is expected that there will be about fifty riders who will participate. Quite a number of these will go along with the boys just for the fun of the ride, as the schedule is arranged in such a manner that almost any rider of a motorcycle can keep up with the boys. There will be no racing or speed, just a steady average trip of about twenty miles per hour. Quite a number of the riders will carry with them their cameras, and photographs of different scenes and groups will be taken during the run. Every rider of a motorcycle is invited to join in this run. All that is necessary is to be at the starting point No. 224 Peachtree street, 7 o'clock a. m. on April 19.

Athletic Frat Growing Fast

The new athletic fraternity, Sigma Delta Psi, membership in which is to be won by ability to attain certain marks in a list of specified athletic events, is making rapid growth in population and membership in Eastern college circles. Started in the middle west about a year ago, the plan and objects of the fraternity have gained adherents in all parts of the country.

Tests are designed for the most common events most common to the American university athletics and have been framed by the athletic directors at leading American universities, the idea spreading from institution to university, but receiving prompt support and considerable development in the east. One of the rules of membership is that a college letter won in any sport shall count for the test in that sport. That is, membership on the college football team will abolish the need of competition in the football test. The requirements for membership in the full or regular grade include twelve all-round athletic tests, as follows:

One hundred-yard dash, 11 seconds; 120-yard hurdles, 20 seconds; running high jump, 5 feet; running broad jump, 18 feet; putting 16-pound shot, 23 feet, 6 inches; running broad jump, 16 feet, putting 16-pound shot, 8 feet; pole vault, 8 feet; throwing baseball, 250 feet; football, 150 feet; 2-mile run, 14 minutes, 20 seconds; 10-mile walk, 2 hours, 30 minutes; 100-yard swim. The trailing tests not yet specified.

There will also be a junior grade in the gymnasium, admission to which will be through slightly modified tests as follows: 100-yard run, 12 seconds; running board jump, 16 feet; putting 16-pound shot, 25 feet; pole vault, 8 feet; throwing baseball, 200 feet; punting football, 90 feet; 2 mile run, 20 minutes; 10 mile walk, 3 hours; swim, 50 yards.

Amateur League Needs Two More Teams

The State City league, a newly organized amateur league that will play on Sunday afternoons from May 10 to September, held its third meeting on Tuesday night.

The meeting was well attended by various amateur managers and players. The league needs two more fast amateur teams and any teams desiring to enter this new league will please be present at the next league meeting, on Tuesday, April 14, or communicate with L. G. Mozley, Bell phone, Ivy 1464.

ARE FEDERALS NOW

Otto Knabe, manager and second baseman, and Mike Doolan, shortstop on the Baltimore Federals, one of the three strongest teams in the new league and which will likely be out in the front fighting for the pennant right from the start-off. Baltimore opens the season April 13 with Buffalo.

HENDERSON COMING STAR IN THE BILLIARD WORLD

CHICAGO, April 11.—Look out for William Henderson!

Who on earth is William Henderson?

Well, William Henderson is a dark horse in the amateur billiard world. He is a member of the Chicago board of trade and has been discovered by Charles Frederick Conklin, former national and international amateur balk line champion.

When Conklin withdrew from the amateur ranks he, in partnership with William Burdick, opened a billiard room on Jackson boulevard, directly across the street from the board of trade. At least Conklin and Burdick acquired the room which had formerly been conducted by Charles H. Weeghman, president of the Chicago Federal league baseball club. And it was there that Conklin first got his lamps on William Henderson, "the coming national amateur balk line champion."

So impressed was Conklin with the natural, fine swinging stroke of Henderson that he displayed a keen interest in the grain broker from the start. Taking him on for a game, Conklin found the dark horse a worthy opponent, and the old champion had to step right along to beat him. Conklin averaged 9, while Henderson's clip was a trifle under 5.

HENDERSON BECOMES PUPIL.

From that moment Henderson became a pupil of Conklin, and an apt one at that. His style needed correcting and he was a bit shy on his draws and masses, but in general his work was good and he possessed all the earmarks of a champion.

Now Conklin has sometimes to travel at a 20 average to beat the newcomer in the amateur field and only last week Henderson took Charles Fredericks' measure in a 400-point game at 18.3 balk line. In that contest Henderson averaged 18, and had the high run of the game, a well accomplished combination of 124.

Henderson, though a man of forty years or better, has shown such marked improvement under the earnest tutelage of the former amateur champion, that Conklin first got his lamps on William Henderson, "the coming national amateur balk line champion."

Henderson, though a man of forty years or better, has shown such marked improvement under the earnest tutelage of the former amateur champion, that Conklin is willing to wager a good hat national tournament next year, feeling that he will have an excellent chance to carry off the championship. And Conklin is willing towager a good hat right now that his protege will not finish worse than third in the big event of 1915.

Conklin also thinks that Charles Hedden, the Dowagiac, Mich., publisher who won the high run prize in the recent tourney with a collection of 125 points, which set a record for national tournaments, will be a contender for championship honors next year. Conklin says that Hedden played excellently in spots, but lacked the necessary steadiness which comes only of experience and which he has now gained to fit him for the games in 1915.

CONKLIN SEES MAYER FALL.

Conklin must have felt funny when, as referee, he saw Jos Mayer who had beaten him for the title in 1913, go down in defeat with an average of .125 during the first opening game of the national tournament. Mayer was forced to average 20 to beat Conklin the year previous.

Morris D. Brown, of Brooklyn, amateur champion of 1912 and runner-up to Edward Gardner in the last New York tournament, will visit Chicago late this month, at which time Conklin plans to match him against Henderson as a tryout for the clever member of the board of trade.

Motorcycle Is Now Widely Used

President of Hendee Manufacturing Company Talks of Merits of Two-Wheeled Motor Conveyance

"Fifteen years ago we were going through one of the greatest crazes ever known in the history of sport," says President George M. Hendee, of the Hendee Manufacturing company. "This was bicycling. Young and old—rich and poor—man, woman and child—seized upon this two-wheeled vehicle as the one predominant machine for amusement and health. The era of the bicycle was an era of acquaintance with American out-of-doors to millions of people who otherwise would have scarcely known the natural wonders and delights of their country.

"This self-same era is repeating itself today by means of the motorcycle. But with an undreamed-of comfort and tenfold pleasure.

"Gone is the fatigue of pedaling up hills and against head winds—all the exertions of cycling have disappeared with its motorization. Likewise, its gratifications have increased.

"Fresh regions are constantly opening up to the motorcyclist: thousands upon thousands of miles of smooth state roads—macadamized and oiled—await his preference.

"Not that a motorcyclist needs fine roads. Steep grades, sand, the narrow riding space, rough surfaces mean nothing to this machine. It has the power, control and comfort for an automobile—positive features too little realized by those who have not given the motorcycle a careful consideration.

"On the other hand, the running cost of a motorcycle is next to nothing per mile. Sixty-five miles on a gallon of gasoline, or five hundred miles on a gallon of oil, are average performances. Repair charges are correspondingly low. Official reports of the Detroit police motorcycle squad using Indian motorcycles show the average cost of unkeep per machine to be $2.18 for 5,000 miles.

"The motorcycle needs no garage, and requires a minimum of care. It is always ready to take you to any point within a twenty-five-mile radius within an hour's time. Throw a leg over the saddle—give a twist of the throttle—and off you go. You are master of the machine whether throttling down to a walking pace in congested traffic or opening up to sixty miles an hour on a cleared road."

Gate City Team Won From Scottdale

SCOTTDALE, Ga., April 11.—The Gate City baseball team defeated the Scottdale club here 7 to 1. Duncan pitched a good game for the local club. Melton featured the game with his brilliant fielding. Finley, Gilboun and Royster starred with the willow, each getting a two-base hit.

JOE HARANG, NEW ORLEANS BATTLER, SHOWS PROMISE

Classy featherweights are few and far between at present and the crop is shy the class that is possessed by Johnny Kilbane. Promoters and sport scribes throughout the country have searched in vain for a boy of sufficient class to promise development into a championship possibility.

The majority of featherweights of the present are near lightweights scarcely able to do better than 124 at 3 o'clock and who could never make 122 at ringside. Besides all of these boys are small in stature and of the slugging type and few possess any real class.

Down in New Orleans they're prepping a youngster that has real promise to judge from his performances against the feathers who are ranked next to the champion. Only recently this boy, Joe Harang, won referee decisions over Cal Delaney and Gene Delmont at Memphis which is certainly proof of some class for Delaney has beaten Matt Brock and a number of other good boys and Delmont defeated Jack White at Memphis and is well known in Philadelphia.

Little has been heard of Harang outside of New Orleans and Memphis. Time was when fighting was only a side line with the little Frenchman who comes from the district known as the Irish Channel and then he trained at night and worked as a bookkeeper in the day time, but now he is seeking recognition as a championship contender and he is starting on a campaign which he confidently hopes will ultimately bring him a match with Kilbane at 122 ringside.

Harang has a natural advantages in height and reach that are not possessed by any other featherweight. He is the tallest featherweight in the game at present and stands 5 feet 8 inches and yet he can make 122 ringside without any trouble.

Delaney, Delmont, N. Y. Kid Herman and practically every opponent has had from 4 to 8 pounds advantage in weight.

Freddie Welsh, Jack Britton and Mike Gibbons are a few of the known boxers who have praised the Crescent City featherweight for his cleverness and scribes in both Memphis and New Orleans look upon him as the cleverest boxer of any weight in the southland.

Carrying a good right hand punch and a tantalizing left, possessed of ring generalship that is remarkable considering that he has had but eighteen battles and a coolness that has been likened to icebergs in the Arctic region are features that warrant the prediction that within less than six months Joe Harang will be rated the strongest contender for the featherweight crown.

Dakota Dealer Makes Big Hit

The Minot Auto company, distributors of Overland cars in Minot, N. D., and adjoining territory, has been interesting method of demonstrating the worth of their product at the mid-winter fair being held recently in the Minot city. This was a non-stop run in which the motor of a Model 79 Overland car, which started on the day of the fair, and was not allowed to stop during the 120 hours, or six days, the fair was in progress. One of the conditions of the run was that no adjustments or repairs were made and the motor came through with colors flying.

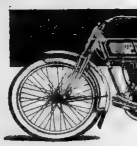
Not a single tool was laid on the engine during the entire run and the records made in other ways were remarkable. Only eight pints of lubricating oil were required to keep the machine not only in perfect running order, but under high speed, and less than a gallon of water was evaporated from the radiator in keeping the motor cool. Competing links who reached the run declared that the motor was running more smoothly and developing more power at the end of the long run than at the start.

In commenting on the performance, Mr. Willys said, "It reminds me of that old suspender advertisement we used to see, 'The longer you wear 'em, the better they get'."

E. P. Murray, the first Federal league sleuth sighted in these parts, was an interested spectator at a game in New Orleans.

Manager Lord Sells Lieberman

MOBILE, Ala., April 11.—Manager Eriscoe Lord today sold Pitcher Fred Lieberman to the Cordele, Ga., team of the Empire State league. Lieberman came to Mobile from the New Orleans club and previous to that time was with a bloomer-girl baseball organization.



Harley-Davidson $200

Many exclusive features, including Double Clutch Control, Double Brakes, Ful-Floating Seat, Free Wheel Control, and Flexible Flat Belt Drive with Harley-Davidson Idler.

THIS latest belt-driven Harley-Davidson model boasts of more exclusive and important features than any belt model ever produced by the Harley-Davidson Motor Company or any other manufacturer.

The belt tension is adjustable by means of the patented Harley-Davidson idler operated by hand lever just left of the tank. Experience with the high powered machines of the present day has proven that the ordinary coaster type brake alone is not sufficient. For this reason this new Harley-Davidson carries, in addition, a special Harley-Davidson band brake operated by a convenient foot lever.

Large, comfortable, folding foot-boards, a double lubricating system, all steel luggage carrier, Bosch magneto (highest priced magneto made), priming cups, priming gun, large metal tool box, and three-inch tires in addition to other features mentioned, make this Harley-Davidson the greatest value for the money ever offered.

Complete catalog of 1914 Harley-Davidson motorcycles and Harley-Davidson sidecars will be mailed to any address upon request.

Kelly-Springfield Automobile Tires

Tire-making is like aeroplaning. It requires experience, a trained and careful hand, and an absolute knowledge of quality in materials. The masters in both professions are those who survive. Kelly-Springfield Tires and Tubes have been longest in the field and they still are above all others.

How Goodyear Fights Loose Treads

After we ended rim-cutting we took up loose treads—another major tire trouble.

At the base of the tread in every tire there must be a breaker strip. In all tires save Goodyears this strip is made of closely-woven fabric. And road use often separates this breaker strip from the rubber.

We bought the rights to a patent fabric which we picture here. It cost us $50,000, and it forms our breaker strip.

This fabric rivets itself to the rubber. The tread rubber is forced down through these openings, while in a plastic state, forming hundreds of large rubber rivets. Then the whole tire is vulcanised en masse.

This lessens by 60 per cent the risk of this tread separation. And no other maker employs it.

Millions Saved

That is one way in which we save tire users millions of dollars yearly.

Another is our "On-Air" cure. No-Rim-Cut tires are final-cured on air bags, under actual road conditions. This saves the countless blow-outs due to wrinkled fabric. This extra process costs us $1,500 daily, and no other maker employs it.

Rivet Fabric

In these tires alone is rim-cutting ended in a satisfactory way. We control the method.

And these tires alone have our double-thick All-Weather tread—a smooth-running anti-skid.

16 Makes Cost More

No-Rim-Cut tires are the only tires embodying these costly features.

After years of tests on countless cars they have come to outsell any other tire in the world.

Yet there are 16 makes of tires which sell at higher prices. Some nearly one-half higher. Three such tires cost as much as four Goodyears. That's a curious situation.

No-Rim-Cut Tires

Hupmobile Precedence

The Hupmobile takes precedence in low cost of operation—in gas and oil economy, in tire economy, in repair economy.

It excels in these most important features because Hup engineers, scientifically applying the small-bore, long-stroke principle, build throughout for quality and long life and untiring service, and for them alone.

One Cent Per Mile

And because of these things, Hupmobiles uniformly command a price higher by 25 to 40 per cent. in the second hand market.

The Hup owner figures depreciation at an average of one cent per mile traveled.

Isn't that an unanswerable argument for good motor car investment?

Visit the Hup dealer. He will add specific instances that will delight and convince you.

Annual Spring Real Estate Review

STORY OF NORTH SIDE TOLD IN PICTURE AND IN TEXT

Mayor Woodward's Theory of Why Cities Grow North and East—New Subdivisions Opened in Various North Side Sections—Handsome Homes That Have Been Built There. Splendid Roads That Have Made the Country Famous

IN a talk made not long ago to the members of the Atlanta Real Estate board at one of their monthly luncheons, Mayor Woodward offered a plausible explanation of north side values.

He prefaced his remarks by saying that in nearly all cities the most rapid growth was in a northern or western direction, and he named several of the largest American cities in proof of his remark.

He explained this tendency by saying that most of the breezes came from the north and west, and that homeseekers constantly went further and further out in an effort to get as near possible to the fresh air currents.

Consequently they moved north and west, meeting the breezes half way, so to speak, searching for places which would have the advantage of fresh air unpolluted by dust and smoke in its passage over the settled part of the city.

WEST IN ATLANTA BARRED BY RAILROADS

Continuing his argument, the mayor pointed out that the people of Atlanta in common with those of other growing cities, pushed northward in search of fresh air.

In Atlanta's case they pushed north because the west was barred by an intricate network of railroad tracks, which extended from the depot to a point far out in the country.

Consequently the homeseekers were forced to push northward. The close-in north side becoming crowded, they pushed further and further out.

Then, as the west was still barred to them, they began to overflow to the east, and consequently the extensive residence movement began to flow in two directions.

SECTION EMBRACED IN ATLANTA'S NORTH SIDE

Not so long ago the north side ended rather abruptly at Sixth street, and at the same time Ponce de Leon avenue had not been opened any further than the ball park.

Now the north side extends up to Chamlee, in DeKalb county, along Peachtree road, and to the Decatur court house along Ponce de Leon avenue. Out in the country the western trend meets another natural barrier in the form of the Chattahoochee river.

Nowadays real estate agents in referring to the north side, mean all that territory lying between the railroads on the west and the Georgia railroad on the east.

Any property referred to in that section, except in some special community, is referred to as north side property.

Consequently the country around Ponce de Leon avenue and Druid Hills is generally classified as north side.

BUILDING DEVELOPMENT FOLLOWED MAIN STREETS

Confining the attention to the original north side, the first outward development took place on Peachtree street.

Only a few years ago the city limits ended at Sixth street. People, however, who liked the country, began to build homes on Peachtree beyond Sixth street.

By gradual degrees they got as far as Fourteenth street, then to Brookwood, where the present city limits are, and now they are going on further.

Meanwhile the side streets developed also, so that the territory out West Peachtree street and Spring street, west of Peachtree, and on Juniper street and Piedmont avenue, and Myrtle street, was developed soldidly.

Pretty soon the Fourteenth street limit, considered extremely suburban not so long ago, was built up to uniformly, and the north side was settled east and west as well as north and south.

RESIDENCE SECTIONS RAPID DEVELOPMENT

Comparisons are best obtained by referring to familiar institutions. The development of Ansley Park, for instance, was barely started ten years ago, whereas now that section is within the city limits, with all street improvements down, and solidly built up.

Twelve years ago it was a farm on the suburban outskirts of Atlanta. Now it is a continuation of the city.

Brookwood, which is now in the city limits, less than four years ago was a remote suburb. Buckhead, a few years ago a detached Georgia town, is now a suburb of Atlasta.

Less than ten years ago the development of Druid Hills was started. Now a considerable part of that is in the city limits and built up with expensive residences. The subdivision itself extends to Decatur, and the city of Atlanta has grown up solidly to it.

FUTURE ADDITIONS IN PRESENT ACREAGE

Comparing the future with the past, it is not so remarkable that so much country acreage in North Fulton is being subdivided to meet the future demands of the city.

The section around Ansley Park ten years ago was as far out, relatively speaking, as the Brookhaven and Silver Lake sections are today. In not so many years those sections will be part of the city of Atlanta.

GOOD ROADS AND AUTOS HELPED ADVANCE

As pointed out in a previous article, the advent of the automobile, and the building of good roads, has much to do with carrying Atlanta's development so far out.

No finer roads exist in the south today than those on the north side of Fulton county, and the automobile has made the remote farm of ten years ago seem no further away than a close-in suburb.

Consequently what used to be merely a summer home, to be used only a few months during the year, has become the year around habitation.

HOW VARIOUS ROADS CONNECT TERRITORIES

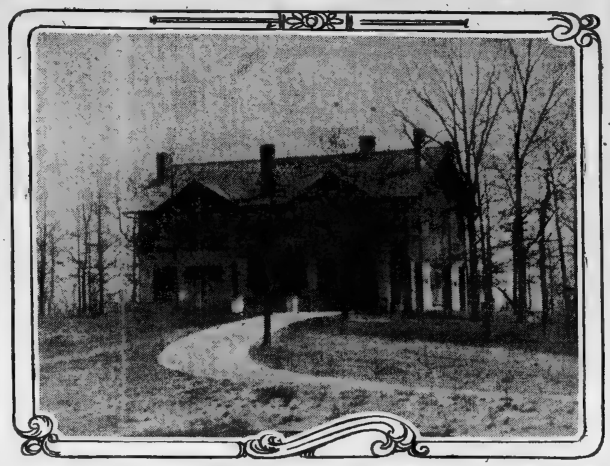
The various subdivisions of the north side, as well as the residence colonies already built, are connected across wide spaces by a perfect system of roads.

A subdivision as far east as Decatur can be put into communication with Silver Lake through Clairemont avenue and connecting main thoroughfares.

All the main roads are bisected by other thoroughfares running east and west or north and south, or by circular driveways.

Thus it is possible for an automobilist on one afternoon's trip to visit every important community in the entire section.

J. K. OTTLEY RESIDENCE ON PEACHTREE



This is Mr. Ottley's new home on Peachtree road, near Buckhead. Particular care has been taken in constructing it to go with the beautiful grounds, which it commands from a fine elevation.

MANY NEW APARTMENTS BUILDING ON THE NORTH SIDE

Several Are Under Construction and Permits Have Been Asked for Others

When Joseph Gatins not very long ago conceived the idea of building a hotel at Peachtree street and Ponce de Leon avenue, people thought he was going into the country.

However, he built the hotel. That was the beginning of a wholesale hotel and apartment house invasion on the north side.

Pretty soon, Albert Howell, Jr., built the ten-story Ponce de Leon apartment house across the street from the Terrace. This started a fresh invasion, and now the north side is noted for its apartment houses.

Like Atlanta office buildings, Atlanta apartment houses in good residence districts are soon rented, and the demand for apartments continues strong.

Since The Journal last printed a group of pictures showing newly completed apartment houses on the north side, there have followed announcements of still more.

Tom Swift and F. E. Mackie have started to work on a $60,000 apartment house at Juniper and Third streets, which will be completed late in the summer.

John D. Babbage, Jr., it at work on a $60,000 apartment house on Lafayette drive, in Ansley Park, which will be one of the most attractive in the city.

A most unique apartment house will soon be started on Fourteenth street at the corner of Piedmont avenue, a large corner which has the attractive outlook of Piedmont Park in front of it.

Several men who found housekeeping irksome planned to move into apartments. That they might be sure of getting exactly the kind of apartment they wanted, they conceived the idea of building one to order.

So they formed a company and bought the Piedmont avenue corner. Now each member of the company will have its own apartment built to order, to say nothing of being able to dictate what other tenants shall occupy the rest of he building.

Several smaller apartment houses are being built on the north side, and there seems to be no end of the let up in demand for them.

VIEW OF PEACHTREE ROAD

This shows one of the most attractive stretches of Peachtree road, where it passes Peachtree Heights park, about five miles from the center of the city. The road appears here in all the beauty of its impressive width and beautiful perspective.

Oglethorpe Tracts to Be Sold at Auction Monday

Several Have Already Been Sold at Private Sale, and 7,000 Feet of Additional Frontage Will Be Ready to Offer by Monday—Mr. Ansley Makes Proposal of Interest to the Brookhaven Club—Other Facts About Park

On Moday afternoon, at 3 o'clock, Edwin P. Ansley will offer at auction some of the choicest of the acreage tracts in his big subdivision of Oglethorpe Park.

This will afford the public an opportunity of buying at its own price building sites in this new subdivision.

S. E. Davidson, salesmanager of the Ansley agency, has sold at private sale $25,000 worth of the tracts, and by Monday 7,000 feet of additional frontage will have been laid off and ready to offer.

An additional large force of graders, with dynamite and steam shovels, is now at work on Oglethorpe drive, the main boulevard through Oglethorpe park, one of the big real estate achievements of Edwin P. Ansley.

Tracts facing this drive have already been sold, and the work is being pushed to rapid completion.

This boulevard will extend through the S. C. Stovall property, past the Capital City club, and through the Hart estate, lying just north of the Brookhaven club estate and the country club, thence into DeKalb county, and, through one land lot, to the Oglethorpe university grounds and Silver Lake properties.

Proceeding then it will go on a direct route to Chamblee, and, extending north by way of Peachtree road, with a network of lateral drives leading in every direction, complete the system.

WILL OFFER TRACTS.

Mr. Ansley conceived the idea that, instead of offering to the investor merely a vacant lot he would offer acreage in Oglethorpe park.

So the properties will make only a few tracts of two or five acres each. Each will be developed on its own merits, and a building site chosen.

The route selected is on a ridge higher than any part of Peachtree road, and overlooks the entire country. The park has the admiration of some of the best landscape artists in the entire country.

R. F. Maddox says that the Capital City club will undoubtedly exercise its option on the Brookhaven club property. In this connection Mr. Ansley offers a suggestion. He says;

MR. ANSLEY'S SUGGESTION.

"If the club had a beautiful site on which to erect its premanent club, I believe its members would quickly subscribe to a bond issue to pay for such a club, and to induce the street car company to extend its car line to said site.

"Mr. Stovall has agreed to donate the lot or tract marked 'B' adjoining the club property, and I am willing to donate the tract marked 'C' for a club site, and I am also willing to co-operate with Mr. Stovall in grading the driveway marked 'Club Drive' across the club's property and that agreed to be deeded to it, provided the club will secure an extension of the Peachtree and Brookhaven car line from its present terminus to the north line of the property agreed to be donated to the club by me.

"For the consideration named, and in order for its club to secure additional land for its new golf course, at a point where the new links are very much congested, I am willing to deed to the club the tract of land marked 'D' on the plat, provided the club agrees to maintain said tract for club purposes, such as golf links and park.

"The driveway marked 'Club Drive' could connect the present and proposed new club building, both with an electric and an automobile drive. The driveways shown on the plat will furnish the most attractive driving system in the south.

"As Oglethorpe park will soon have nine or ten driveways into it, a few weeks' work will convert from sage fields, laps and hitches, into a beautiful suburban residence section.

"When the Piedmont Driving club burned, a few years ago, I offered as present home site (then in the rough) and forty acres adjoining, for a golf course, in exchange for its present fivesacre site. Some of its members hooted at the proposition. Since that time, dozens of these same members have come to me and said they would

Remarks About Oglethorpe Park and Mr. Ansley By Some of Our Citizens and Publications

"Nature has done everything possible in contributing to the beauty of this section. The transformation of that whole section into an aggregation of beautiful country estates is assured."

Clark Howell

"I unhesitatingly say this property offers the surest and quickest profits to the speculator that I have ever seen. It only needs to be seen to be appreciated."

W. A. Vernoy

"I have investigated your proposition. A splendid opportunity to investors who are seeking locations for country estates ideally located."

W. M. Hutchinson

"The projected development of this plateau, with its beautiful forests, and the system of drives, will enhance every foot of property in this section."

Dr. William Owens

"I believe the Club and University will certainly co-operate with you to the fullest extent in carrying out the development plans."

T. Julian M'Gill

"I should think the merits of this proposition would fully warrant the County Commissioners of Fulton and DeKalb counties in co-operating fully with you."

R. F. Maddox

"I am further willing to co-operate with you in grading the driveway marked 'Club Drive' its entire length and deeding to the Club lots or tracts marked on the Oglethorpe Park plat as lots A and D."

S. C. Stovall

"The wonderful pine forests rival those of Lakewood and the altitude gives the air a rarity which I think equals that of Asheville."

Keats Speed

"Twentieth Century activities, and the natural inclination of normal man to possess his own principality, are influences carrying to the summits of Atlanta's outlying property, substantial, permanent homes and making of Fulton county the land of 'heart's desire.'"

Isma Dooly

An Editorial from Atlanta Constitution

"Mr. Ansley is a man who does not go off half cocked. He has only to point to what he has done in the phenomenal Ansley Park and Forsyth street projects, to submit convincing testimony of his qualifications as a practical prophet. In every enterprise he has attempted he has proven to be an advance agent of expansion and of progress. His name is synonymous with success."

A Clipping from Atlanta Georgian
About Oglethorpe University

"An expert survey has been made of the grounds with a view of breaking dirt for the proposed building. The topographical survey is now under progress and will soon be submitted to the landscape artists who are to construct the most beautiful grounds possessed by any Southern educational institution.

"The University now possesses a half million in cash and real estate. Contributions are still coming in at an average of $10,000 monthly."

Editorial from Atlanta Georgian

"Edwin P. Ansley has begun another great real estate development near Atlanta. This time he has chosen a plat of ground adjoining the golf course of the Capital City Club, and is devoting all his wonderful energy to it. Mr. Ansley is the kind of a man who should be encouraged. The brains and capital of the Ansley type are constantly working in Atlanta and for Atlanta. They have made Atlanta."

ENDORSEMENTS OF OGLETHORPE PARK AND ITS BUILDER

ATLANTA, GEORGIA, April 4th, 1914.

TO THE INVESTING PUBLIC:

Oglethorpe Park is a "creature of accident." Its development was begun on "Friday the Thirteenth" (13th) of March," and the first installment of lots will be sold at auction on the "highest bidder" on the "Thirteenth" (13th) of April at 3 P. M. If there is any bad luck in "Thirteen" ("13"), I must suffer the consequences.

I abandoned the development outlined in Mr. H. E. Heitman's letter at Ft. Myers, Fla., because of the lack of co-operation of "one" property owner.

I abandoned a similar development at Sarasota, Florida, because of the lack of co-operation of "two" property owners.

It has been my experience in all my development enterprises that the parties who were most benefited, gave me the least co-operation.

I was asked to develop the "Hart Estate" in Land Lot No. 12 Fulton County immediately North of the Capital City Country Club, and fronting 1,500 feet on the Peachtree and Dunwoody (North Peachtree or Balloon Road, which is now being widened and graded by the county) into acreage tracts, suitable for the public's demands.

In seeking to find the best plans for developing the Hart property I sent for Mr. S. Z. Ruff, the Engineer who helped me develop Ansley Park, and he laid out the system of "Driveways" shown on the "Driveway Plat," which, together the two points of greatest interest in the public mind just at this time, viz: The Capital City Country Club and the site of Oglethorpe University.

Within the limited time between March "13th" and April "13th," we have not been able to grade the complete "Driveway System" planned and shown, but you can get your own agent to take you in his automobile and enter the "Temporary Road" at Sam Stovall's private entrance at the end of the Peachtree car line and follow that "Temporary Road" until you reach the lots immediately North of the Capital City Club Golf Links, platted to be sold at Auction Monday the Thirteenth (13th) at 3 P. M. You will be surprised at what you find.

I GUARANTEE to bring all the roads shown on the "Driveway System" to a proper grade, and I would never be able to look the splendid men, who gave me the endorsement herewith presented in the face, if I failed to carry out any plans that I present to the public. They and nearly one hundred similar endorsements have been the sole inspiration for the strenuocity I have been through in the past thirty days.

The opening of the "Baseball Season" on Tuesday, and engagements in New York and Florida, force me to offer the lots for sale at auction on Monday the 13th at 3 P. M. in the Rough; as I did the first lots on Peachtree street in Ansley Park, April 4th, 1904; but my "loss" is your "gain."

If I keep my promise to perfect the "Driveway System" Mr. Ruff has outlined, even a few weeks will make a great difference in the value of the lots to be sold to the "highest bidder" Monday the "13th" at 3 P. M.

All I ask is that you go out and look at the property, either with your own agent in your own automobile, or allow us to take you over the property from the end of the Peachtree Car Line in an automobile.

Thanking the Citizens of Atlanta for their splendid support in all my development enterprises, and hoping to merit their continued support,

I am, Yours for the Upbuilding of Atlanta,

EDWIN P. ANSLEY.

Mr. Geo. Rowland,

New York City, N.Y.

Dear Sir:

Mr. Edwin P. Ansley is visiting our city and intimates that he expects to spend the winter some where in South Florida. We have heard of the work he has done in developing Ansley Park and Forsyth St., and boosting the advantages at Atlanta and the State of Georgia at large.

We have a wonderful section in Lee County, Fla. that is practically undeveloped and part of it almost undiscovered. A large portion of the soil is very fertile and especially adapted to Citrus fruits, vegetables and all kinds of semi-tropical fruits and flowers.

We are below the frost line and three hundred miles farther south than the southern boundary of California and Jacksonville, and the section furnishes the finest fishing and hunting in the U.S. and affords splendid opportunities for all kinds of pleasures for the man of means and at the same time offers a rich field for investments of all kinds.

We are particularly anxious to have a high class residence park and golf link located near our City and to have our advantages properly presented to the outside world, and we have indicated to Mr. Ansley we believe he would get strong local support if he would undertake a development of this kind here.

In order to induce and influence our wealthiest and most influential citizens and largest property owners to give Mr. Ansley the support necessary to get him to undertake this development, we are writing you to ask that you give us your opinion of Mr. Ansley as a man, a developer and advertiser, also the results of his developments and work both in Atlanta and throughout the State of Georgia. Please show the effect of his developments in the neighborhoods in which they have been undertaken both in the improvement of the neighborhood and in increasing the value of surrounding properties.

Very truly yours,

H. C. Brohawn

December 24, 1913.

Mr. H. E. Heitman,
Fort Myers, Florida.

Dear Sir:

I have your letter of December 20th with regard to Mr. Edwin P. Ansley.

I think that Mr. Ansley is peculiarly fitted to undertake and carry to successful conclusion the development in which you refer. Mr. Ansley has done similar work here in Atlanta, and has been most successful at it. A number of years ago he purchased a large tract of land, consisting of three or four hundred acres of original forest, on the outskirts of the City of Atlanta. He opened, graded, and paved streets and drives, put in sewer pipes, water mains, gas pipes, and electric light lines, laid out and constructed a golf course, and set apart and beautified small parks within the tract. He had a number of options, did a great deal of advertising, and conducted numerous private sales. This tract of land is now covered with the very best class of residences, and is, perhaps, the most desirable residential location in or near the City of Atlanta. The proposition could not possibly have been handled better, and it has proven an unqualified success to the original investors in the Company, to the purchasers of lots, and to the community.

Soon after this work was commenced, Mr. Ansley took hold of a second way street in the central district of the City of Atlanta. This street had been neglected for years and the property was in a stagnant and prices out of proportion with the price of land on other streets in the neighborhood. Mr. Ansley secured option on and purchased a number of the lots fronting on the street, improved the street to be regraded and paved, constructed office buildings, a theatre, and a hotel on the street. Others have followed suit in the construction of delightful dwellings, and the street is now one of the very best and most important streets in the City of Atlanta.

Mr. Ansley has a great deal of initiative, is active, energetic, enthusiastic; his judgment of real estate values and development possibilities is good. He has the knowledge and experience necessary to undertake work of this kind, and has capital for the help of making a success of real estate development.

Yours very truly,

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES U. S.
COMMITTEE ON MILITARY AFFAIRS
WASHINGTON, D. C.

December 17, 1913.

Mr. C. W. Shriver,
Fort Myers, Florida.

My dear Sir:

Your letter of the 15th instant just to hand relative to the work done by Hon. Edwin P. Ansley in the development of the city of Atlanta.

The truth of the business is, there is so much to be said about the work of Mr. Ansley, that one who is familiar with all of his magnificent efforts in and around Atlanta does not know where to begin. His development of Ansley Park will stand as a monument to his genius for generations to come. It is one of the most beautiful residential sections in the South, and it has doubled and trebled in value since Mr. Ansley turned it loose.

Next he took hold of the Forsyth Street proposition, an unattractive street running through the central portion of the city, and his development of this property has astounded the citizens of Atlanta and the enhancement in value has been amazing.

There is but one thing to say about Mr. Ansley, and that is he is a wizard in the development and promotion of anything he gets behind. He is conservative, he figures everything ahead, and always has his hand on the throttle.

I will be delighted if the people of your locality can get Mr. Ansley interested in anything out of which you want to make a success.

With best wishes, I am,

Very truly yours,

Mr. Edwin P. Ansley,
Atlanta, Ga.

My Dear Mr. Ansley:

I have just examined with great interest your plans for developing a suburban residence section in the vicinity of Oglethorpe university site. This section you have wisely and appropriately named "Oglethorpe Park."

In my opinion it is one of the most important developments that have been projected around Atlanta in years. The natural beauty of the country, its hills and brooks and trees, its accessibility to the city from Peachtree road, and the numerous winding drives which you have laid out, make it most attractive.

I am glad you have undertaken this development. It means that this park is to be directed by your splendid intelligence and energy to successful accomplishment.

I am especially pleased because of the proximity of this beautiful park to Oglethorpe university. It will add greatly to the attractions of the university grounds, and in this and other ways will be a great advantage to the institution.

We have practically half a million dollars with which to begin the erection of Oglethorpe university, and expect to have a great deal more in a short time, just as soon as certain preliminary details can be satisfactorily determined. We shall begin the work of erection on the establishment of Oglethorpe park will help us greatly in solving some problems that we must deal with, and I am convinced that the university will be an added attraction to the park.

Your splendid enterprise appeals to me so strongly that I cannot refrain from expressing to you my warm commendation and approval.

I trust you will have the greatest success in carrying out the plans that you have undertaken.

Very truly yours,

Mr. Edwin P. Ansley,
Atlanta, Ga.

Dear Mr. Ansley:—Of all the real estate development enterprises which have been undertaken in Atlanta during the past twenty years, it seems none offers better opportunities than the Oglethorpe Park movement and the immediately adjoining enterprises, all of which practically united affect some 1,500 acres of as attractive suburban property as adjoins any city in the United States.

It was inevitable when the Capital City club took over the Brookhaven Country club with its wonderful scenic attractions that every acre in that immediate section should be brought at once into the public eye for development as a highclass residence section. This movement was crystallized and established when the Oglethorpe university movement assumed definite shape, assuring the establishment of a great southern university on the Silver Lake property. If any doubt remained, all that was necessary to assure the success of the movement was the touch of your magic hand as a developer.

The story of your work transforming Ansley Park from a wilderness to one of the handsomest residence sections of Atlanta is known throughout the country, as is also your splendid development of the Forsyth street section which in a few years has become one of the most active business sections of the city, with property valuations increased. I understand, over 1,000 per cent in five years.

Now that you have taken hold of the extensive development plan of the property lying between the Capital City Country club and the Oglethorpe university site, the transformation of the whole section into an aggregation of beautiful country estates is assured.

Nature has done everything possible in contributing to the beauty of this section, and you are fortunately being able to secure the services of Mr. S. Z. Ruff, whose ability has been demonstrated in the landscaping of Ansley Park and Druid Hills. Mr. Ruff is an artist of rare ability and he is fortunate in having such a splendid subject for development.

Your plans furnish additional inspiration for the further development of the Capital City club. It's golf course is already one of the best and the additional acreage offered will make it as perfect as any in the country. I am sure the club will assist you in every possible way to secure the extension of the electric car lines, which to the very nature of things will be extended to the club and to Oglethorpe university.

It is gratifying that the other real estate developments in that section are co-operating with you just as you are co-operating with them, and with this combination the results will no doubt be equally gratifying as have been the result of your efforts on the Forsyth street and Ansley Park properties.

Very truly yours,

CLARK HOWELL.

Georgian-American

Mr. Edwin P. Ansley, Atlanta, Ga.

My Dear Mr. Ansley: I am a constant visitor at the Capital City golf course, and many times have gone over the section adjoining the club's property, which you have named "Oglethorpe Park."

To my mind it is the most beautiful country in all Georgia. The wonderful pine forests are equal those of Lakewood, and the altitude of more than 1,100 feet gives the air a rarity which I think equals that of Asheville. The property is also beyond the smoke limit, and it does not seem probable that the homes which will eventually be built there will ever be affected by the nuisance which is being abated so slowly in the city.

Your property will undoubtedly be a new milepost in the development of Atlanta. The luminous success, consistent of the Capital City Country club, of the Oglethorpe university and the Silver Lake development, all go to make it almost that Oglethorpe Park, lying between all these properties, leads me to believe without reserve, that the development of this section will be of the rapid-fire order that characterizes the growth of Ansley Park.

So convinced am I of the future of Oglethorpe Park that as you know, I have already purchased a plot there on which I expect to build a home.

Yours very truly,

Dear Sir:

I beg to acknowledge receipt of your letter of December 26th and in reply will say, it is a little amusing to me that anyone south of the Mason and Dixon line should make inquiries regarding the ability of Mr. Edwin P. Ansley as a developer, advertiser, and of the results of his developments, for the reason that it seems to me he is one of the most widely known business men in the South; and I will say to you frankly and after twenty-two years' residence in the West, he is the "livest wire" it has ever been my pleasure to know, the very soul of honor, a man of large means, and to my personal knowledge is regarded as one of the very leading citizens of Atlanta, Georgia. He has probably done more for the city of Atlanta in developments than any other one man. Only large deals and those which seem impossible to the average business man, it appears to me, interest Mr. Ansley and the gratifying part of it is, he always seems to be successful in these undertakings. I cannot commend him to you and your citizens too highly, and if he undertakes to put through a development in your vicinity, you may count upon it with almost absolute certainty that his efforts will be crowned with success.

Yours respectfully,

GTH.F. President.

Dear Sir:—

Yours of the 15th to hand. With regard to Mr. Edwin P. Ansley I beg to say that in my opinion he is a man of fine business attainments and integrity. I do not know what his means are but consider them ample. I regard him as the finest promoter and advertiser that we have had in Atlanta for twenty five years. He has been remarkably successful in developing a section of our city which, at the time he began, looked almost hopeless but has resulted in a wonderful success. He is not a pin-hook man and goes on the principle that to make money in the development of property, money has to be spent liberally in advertising and promotion. If there is real merit in the undertaking you suggest I do not know a man better gifted to make it a success than Mr. Ansley.

Yours, very truly,

Mr. C. W. Shriver,
Fort Myers, Fla.

Dear Sir:—

I am in receipt of your letter of December 15th, asking my opinion of Mr. Edwin P. Ansley, of this City.

I have known Mr. Ansley since his boyhood. I consider him one of the best developers that it has been my privilege to know. I was only yesterday talking with a lot of gentlemen about the notable men who have pushed forward Atlanta and its interests. We all agreed that Mr. Ansley was one of the epoch making men who had lived in this City. A few years ago he purchased 800 acres of land on the out-skirts of this City, which at that time was a forest and today it is covered with some of the finest residences in Atlanta.

A few years later he conceived the idea of making one of the ugliest looking streets in Atlanta a first class business street. To-day that street has some of the nicest buildings in Atlanta on it.

I do not think Mr. Ansley has a superior as a developer. My private opinion of him is that he is one of the most unselfish men it has ever been my fortune to know. He seems to forget self entirely in all his operations. I do not know what more could be said of this man. He is a big asset to any community in which he may cast his fortunes and his interests.

If there is any other question that you would like to ask me in regard to Mr. Ansley, I would be glad to answer same. If Mr. Ansley contemplates leaving Atlanta I would regret very much, with other citizens, his taking any such steps.

Very truly, yours,

ATLANTA CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

Mr. H. E. Heitman,

Dear Sir:—

I am in receipt of your letter of the 26th.

If you can prevail upon Mr. Edwin P. Ansley to undertake any development work for you or in your section you will have one of the ablest and most successful men which can be found throughout the entire country.

His success in Atlanta has been most remarkable with the insurmountable obstacles confronting him. He personally is entitled to the credit for his success, as at the beginning he had very little co-operation from our financiers.

In my opinion he has done more for the City of Atlanta than any other man. He is an exemplary man in every sense of the word, and a man of the highest integrity. He is candid; in fact, the manner in which he transacts his business in the open would lead a stranger to believe that there was something lacking in his business acumen. I have no doubt that this characteristic has been one of his strongest inducements in obtaining the co-operation of the public.

Yours very truly,

Dear Sir:—

It affords me pleasure to respond to your very kind request of the 26th instant, touching my opinion of Mr. Edwin P. Ansley as a man, a developer and an advertiser; with the results to this community of his work for Atlanta and the county.

We believe that he has no superior in the State in all the above particulars. We are glad to say that he is taking a brief respite in your splendid community, from his labors in Atlanta. Your section could not receive a greater New Year's blessing than to have him identified with it. He will more quickly appreciate the wonderful possibilities, and more attractively present them to the public than any man I know of, and while we wish he may do for you all he has done for Atlanta, we must it distinctly understood that his connection with you does not mean his withdrawal from us.

Very truly yours,

Dear Sirs:—

Your letter of December 16th, which reached this office during my absence, has been referred to me.

It gives me pleasure to say that I know Mr. Edwin P. Ansley personally, and consider him one of the greatest men in the real estate business in the South; in fact his success with Ansley Park and other real estate propositions in Atlanta and elsewhere has been phenomenal. He has added millions of dollars to Atlanta real estate values, and I have yet to hear of anyone losing money through him.

Mr. Ansley is a man of broad visions, great energy and initiative, and simply makes a thing "go", whether it will or not. I would consider you people most fortunate if you are able to interest him in your proposition. I tried to interest him in Augusta suburban proposition some years ago, but could not.

Yours very truly

STUDY THIS MAP! of PIEDMONT HIGHLANDS

Wise and Conservative Buyers Predict PIEDMONT HIGHLANDS the North Side Home Site and Investment Opportunity of 1914!

A careful survey of this map with its social and commercial setting is forcibly suggestive of the fact that a very unusual opportunity is at hand for the timely investor or suburban home seeker. Neither too near or too far from the city and situated on one of the only two great boulevards, Piedmont Avenue, leading from the commercial zone to the swellest North Side and Brookhaven districts, this handsome property commands the double consideration of conservative investment coupled with the social distinction of being "the right place to live." These two distinctions, high-class investment and close in suburban residence property, so happily blended in Piedmont Highlands, presents an appeal to thoughtful men and women seldom found in real estate offerings.

Piedmont Highlands

Location is Pre-eminently the Best

The lots are large, deep, elevated, beautifully shaded and carry city improvements.

Just look at the map: You can easily see how exceedingly splendid Piedmont Highlands is located. It is surrounded by other high-class properties, that have been developed with every modern convenience and residence advantage.

This is the opportune time to purchase in this exceptionally well located subdivision for immediate residence purposes and reap twofold—as the wise buyer of a home site and as a shrewd investor who reaps rich rewards by timely investments.

THREE NEW RESIDENCES ARE BEING BUILT AT BROOKHAVEN

They Are on Brookhaven Drive, Facing the Brookhaven Country Club Grounds—Brookhaven Estates Acquires Land to Protect Exclusiveness of Its Lots and to Preserve the High Residential Character of the Community

Three extensive residences are now being erected on Brookhaven drive fronting the Brookhaven Country club. One, to cost $12,500, is being built by L. T. D. Quinby, and the other two by Gude & Co., for clients.

The Brookhaven Estates, which is represented by the Charles P. Glover Realty company, has had a great deal to do with the activity in the Brookhaven section.

In order to maintain the exclusive character of the property, the Brookhaven Estates acquired a strip of land entirely surrounding its lots and the club grounds.

The company is specialising on home sites facing the club grounds. Such sites not only have the advantages of being exclusive and high-class, but they also have as a park all the open space of the club grounds in front.

SILVER LAKE ESTATES WILL ORGANIZE SOON

Meeting Will Be Held April 25, When Charter Will Be Adopted

Formal announcement is made today of the organization meeting of Silver Lake estates, to be held in Atlanta Saturday, April 25. Subscribers to Silver Lake Estates will then adopt their charter and by-laws and choose a board of directors and officers for the management of the property they are planning to develop as a high class residence community.

Silver Lake Estates has an authorized capital of $500,000. The company has been chartered and will be organized for the purpose of purchasing and developing for residence purposes the beautiful Silver Lake property.

Oglethorpe University with a fund of $500,000 already raised, and to which Atlanta gave $250,000 of this amount, is already planned to be built as a part of Silver Lake Estates; and it is anticipated work will begin upon it this summer.

PLAN OF L. P. BOTTENFIELD.

Silver Lakes Estates is the plan and project of L. P. Bottenfield, one of Atlanta's ablest and most energetic real estate developers. The project is one of the largest and most important from a residence subdivision standpoint Atlanta has seen in years; and Mr. Bottenfield is being widely congratulated upon the splendidly successful manner in which he conceived and carried it out.

For Silver Lakes Estates is, today, a success. It remains only to organize and select officers and then the big work of development will begin. As a matter of fact work is now going on at Silver Lake and has been in progress for several weeks for the purpose of getting things ready for the thousands of spring and summer visitors who will go there.

There are seven miles of roads already laid out and graded through the property; and there are 9,000 feet of frontage on paved roads, including the Boulevard leading to the lake, and Peachtree road. These latter roads need only resurfacing, the others need only to be paved. With this work well under way, as it soon will be, it is announced that it will be a matter of only thirty to sixty days before building lots in Silver Lake Estates are on the market ready for the home builder.

TO HAVE A STRONG BOARD.

The subscribers of Silver Lake Estates include many well known citizens not only of Atlanta, but of other sections of Georgia and of other southern states. Their names and standing are such as will insure the selection from among the stockholders of able and high-class officers and directors, thus assuring the public and purchasers of lots in this residence park that every promise made regarding improvement and development will be carried out.

One of the first developments will be the completion of the driveway entirely around the lake and upon which there will be four miles of residence frontage looking directly upon this attractive body of water. Most of this road has already been graded and it will be the company's first work to finish it.

WATERS AND SEWERS.

Adequate water and sewer systems will be installed at the start, ready for practically the first homes that will be built there. Transportation service will be provided, and all municipal conveniences of home life will be supplied.

A summer pavilion with boating and bathing houses will be erected on the lake at once for the benefit of the many visitors who will go out this summer, and transportation service to the lake will be installed for their benefit. It is contemplated soon to erect a concrete pavilion, with boat and bath houses on the lake as a permanent structure. Other improvements include a club house, public schools and, ultimately, a tourist hotel which will crown one of the prettiest hills around the lake. The homes all around Silver Lake will be built upon hills. The ground is high and the outlook in every direction is an attractive one. In fact, there is not to be found anywhere in the country a prettier tract for home-building purposes; and with its many natural beauties and advantages, with the complete improvements to be made and with Oglethorpe University, the Princeton of the south, located here, Silver Lake Estates promises to become a high-class residence community that will be immediate and big demand for home building.

CLAIREMONT PARK IS NOW BEING DEVELOPED

Some Improvements That Have Been Made in Neighborhood of This Property

The greatest activity that has ever been known in the Decatur section is now taking place. Ponce de Leon Ave has already been graded to the Decatur Court House and Clairemont avenue, water, sewer, gas and tile sidewalks are down to within two blocks of the court house, and the cherting of this street will be completed in sixty days.

When the Ponce de Leon car line, which is now being extended, reaches Decatur it will enable the citizens there to reach their business in Atlanta in twenty minutes by the way of Ponce de Leon avenue, through Druid Hills. This will greatly add to this section, causing many more people to seek homes in Decatur.

In addition to its good streets and sidewalks Decatur has the best schools of any town its size in the South, its churches are among the best, and the board of trade is doing much toward the betterment of the sewerage system. Also they are bending every effort in conjunction with the numerous other interests to complete the granite pike from Decatur to Stone Mountain, which is to be a continuation of Ponce de Leon Ave. This pike when completed will make the most beautiful driveway in the entire South.

Adjoining Ponce de Leon is Clairemont avenue, which runs direct into Peachtree Road between the Capital City Country Club and Oglethorpe University and the Silver Lake Estates. Among the many improvements which are taking place on Clairemont avenue, the most important is the rapid development of Clairemont Park by the Reeves-Cline Realty company.

This park consists of about seventy acreas, located on Clairemont avenue, about two blocks from the Decatur court house. The plans for the development of Clairemont park now being rapidly pushed will make it one of the most attractive and exclusive resident parks off Ponce de Leon. The Reeves-Cline Realty company, state that they will have all improvements in this park such as water, sewer, light, sidewalks, cherted streets and curbing, and will be in position to enroll for those wanting homes in this section, allowing them to be paid for like rent. Gas will also be a great feature in Decatur. And it is expected that it will increase the value of property in that section as soon as it is installed, which is to be within the next sixty days.

Plan to Help Unemployed

(Special Cable to The Journal.)

DUBLIN.—For the purpose of assisting the 4,000 men who are unemployed in this city, a novel co-operative society, on Syndicalistic lines, has been established. The moving spirits in the organization are Captain White, the son of the defender of Ladysmith; Jim Larkin and Mr. George Russell, the well known writer on economical subjects.

It is estimated for the present that a capital of $500,000 will suffice, and it is understood that the greater portion of the money has been either subscribed or promised, generous contributions having been received from English sources. The new established society proposes to tender for contracts particularly in the building trade and to compete in various business activities, dividing the proceeds among the members of their community.

To Organize Pan-Hellenic

Monday afternoon at 3:30, in the parlors of the Hotel Dempsey, there will be an important meeting of all the sorority women of the city. The object of this meeting is to discuss plans for the organization of a Macon Pan-Hellenic.

Miss Kempton, sorority chairman of the Georgia Federation of Women clubs, desires to meet women of the sororities represented here.

Miss Kempton and Miss Ollie Barmore, both of Atlanta, came Friday afternoon for the purpose of organizing the chapter. Miss Kempton was just appointed by Mrs. Fitzpatrick, of the Georgia Federation, six weeks ago, and since that time has organized the Pan-Hellenic in Atlanta with 18 sororities represented, and in Rome with 10. Macon is the third to have the organization.

The young women will be in the city several days.—Macon Telegraph.

B. B. HARE RETURNS TO ATLANTA HEADQUARTERS

Butler B. Hare, secretary of the Fifth Civil Service district, had just returned to the Atlanta headquarters from a trip over the entire district, which comprises six southern states.

Mr. Hare says that a publicity campaign will be undertaken soon in which interest in civil service jobs, some of which pay as high as $3,500 a year, will be a boomed. Examinations are going on here now and will continue into the month of May.

PIEDMONT HIGHLANDS OPENED; LOTS FACE ON PIEDMONT AVENUE

The Georgia Land and Investment company, of which Charlton Barrett is the head, has opened a new residence subdivision, known as Piedmont Highlands.

This subdivision is on one of the most attractive drives in Fulton county, which is Piedmont avenue, formerly the Plaster's Bridge road. This is really an extension of Piedmont avenue from the Driving club into Peachtree road.

Automobile drivers now take this direction from town, making a loop at Peachtree road and returning that way, or else taking side drives along the other fine roads in north Fulton county.

The new subdivision is just east of Piedmont Peachtree road, and is destined, within a few years, to be taken into the city.

It has the advantage of being neither too near nor too far from the city, and is on a main boulevard leading from the north side to the Brookhaven section through Peachtree road.

The subdivion is not only convenient to other fine roads of the north Fulton section, but is surrounded by the property of wealthy owners and by some of the most beautiful estates of the county.

The same owners own the Decatur Heights subdivision, whose rapid sale was a real estate sensation.

Since that subdivision was put on the market the street car line was extended to a point in front of the property and another new public school costing $25,000, has been completed.

Equally sensational was the sale by the Georgia Land and Investment company of the Peachtree Road Park subdivision, facing the Brookhaven grounds. A total of 102 lots was offered, and every one of the lots was sold in a short time.

Lots in Clairemont Park are selling rapidly (nearly fifty already gone) to the kind of folks you'll like for neighbors. Happy, healthy folks with an interest in life. Realizing that the price of real estate in this vicinity will soon advance, they are buying NOW; many are preparing to build their homes. And they will be the kind of homes that will make the kind of neighborhood in which you'll like to live.

Decatur is one of the prettiest home centers in the South. It offers fine schools, churches and stores; has 18 miles of tiled sidewalks, 13 miles of cherted streets, gas, electricity, fine water and all other conveniences. Many men prominent in business and professional life in Atlanta live there.

Clairemont Park is one of the choicest spots in Decatur. This subdivision has been carefully laid out, as study of plat above will show. All the lots are large. Work is being rapidly pushed to completion. All conveniences—water, gas, electricity, sewerage, are being installed; streets graded, sidewalks laid.

Three street car lines within a few blocks of Clairemont Park operate a five-minute schedule and place you in Atlanta in twenty-five minutes. The new Ponce de Leon extension through Druid Hills to Decatur is nearing completion. When completed it will reach our property, making the ride to Atlanta twenty minutes, through the handsome residence sections of Druid Hills.

Leaving the home question aside, consider this from the point of investment. On the terms we offer, it should be an easy matter for you to own one of these large and beautiful lots in Clairemont Park. That you will ultimately realize a handsome profit is a certainty. The steady growth of Atlanta, the steady advance of the better class of people in this section, insures this.

Write, phone or call and we'll arrange to show you through Clairemont Park. Once there, standing on the lot that appeals most to you, seeing in your mind the many beautiful homes that will soon be built, we feel sure you will do as many are doing, buy to build the kind of home you've planned and dreamed of for years.

Trolley Time Tells the Story

Good transportation service is one of the first requisites in selecting a lot for building a home. "How quick can I get to business?" and "How quick can I get home?" are the questions to be answered.

And here's the answer:

The time from Five Points, the business center, to Peachtree Heights Park, by the official figures of the Georgia Railway and Power Co., is quicker than to any other of Atlanta's new residence sections. Read the figures:

TIME FROM FIVE POINTS TO—	MINUTES
Peachtree Heights Park (Buckhead Line)	24
Brookwood (Peachtree Line)	25
Buckhead	30
Brookhaven	40
Druid Hills (Schedule 30 min. with layover)	27½
Highland Avenue (End of Line)	25
West End (Gordon Street Line)	25

GO AND SEE

Drive out today and take a look at Peachtree Heights Park. Stop your car at some spot that particularly interests you. Get out and have a walk over one or two lots and study them; you will enjoy it and you will realize the truth and force of all that we have been saying about this splendid home property.

This map tells you two impressive facts about Peachtree Heights Park:

The People who live there, and

How quickly you can get to and from your home there by trolley.

Read over these names and when you have noted them, there is but one conclusion you can possibly reach. It is this:

These men have built their homes where they did because they were building in Atlanta's best, most attractive and most valuable home section.

Here, to the North, is Atlanta's "show" section; always has been and always will be. It is where the automobilist most frequently drives; it is where the visitor is first taken.

There is a ten-minute trolley schedule to and beyond Peachtree Heights Park, on the Buckhead line, and the official time from Five Points is only

24 MINUTES

The official schedule figures speak eloquently.

But this is not all. Peachtree Heights Park offers you

CITY CONVENIENCES:

Water, sewers, telephones, electricity.

A pure and untainted atmosphere.

Large, roomy lots.

Plenty of parks and playgrounds.

Beautiful forest trees.

Well paved roads and driveways.

The highest class neighborhood.

Compare this with other high-class residence property, then get the prices from us or from your own agent.

You will be convinced that Peachtree Heights Park is your best home opportunity, for its location means rapid and sure enhancement in the value of your home while you are living there.

There will be more residence development and building between Brookwood and Brookhaven in the coming four years than in all the rest of Atlanta put together. This sounds broad, but watch the prediction, and Peachtree Heights Park Is in the Center of It.

Come to see us and we will be glad to show you these lots; or have your own agent take you out.

REAL ESTATE BONDS AS SAFE INVESTMENTS FOR THE PUBLIC

R. H. Jones Tells How This Form of Investment Brings Both a Good Return and Yet Offers Safety for the Amount of the Funds Invested, and Explains How the Bonds Are Secured by Real Estate and How the Income Is Secured

BY R. H. JONES.

Real estate investors are appreciating more and more the numerous advantages in dealing in Atlanta property through the guaranteed 6 per cent, and also profit-sharing bonds of the Atlanta Development company.

The ordinary investor usually buys much more than he has money to pay for—assuming obligations which he is obliged to meet, or perhaps lose what he paid at first. He has also to pay interest on these obligations and taxes on the property. If he invested in vacant property he loses the interest on his cash payments. If these assumed obligations fall due before he has sold—they frequently become very embarrassing, and often force him to sell at a time when it is not best to do so.

When you invest say $1,000 in property and assume $6,000 obligation, you have not made a safe investment for your $1,000, because there are $6,000 ahead of your $1,000, which must be portected first, and if you have not the $6,000 to pay and depend only upon the sale of the property itself to pay it, you are taking big chances.

These conditions are avoideed when you deal in property through the secured guaranteed 6 per cent and also profit-sharing bonds of the A. D. Co.

The bonds are in $100, $500 and $1,000 denominations, so you can buy just what you can pay for in full. And as your money is added in and becomes a part of the entire capital used by the Atlanta Development company ((which is now nearly $200,000) it enables the company to handle deals that an ordinary investor could not.

The company secures your bond against loss by placing their entire assets behind the bond. They are now over $8 security for every $1 of bond issued. In addition to the above ample security, the bond is specifically secured by a deposit of state of Georgia bonds as a sinking fund, held in trust to redeem these bonds at maturity.

The money used from the sale of bonds goes back with improvements on the property of the company. Thus your bond is thoroughly secured.

Six per cent interest (free of taxes) is paid from the date of your investment.

You get your proportion of one-half of all the profits as distributed from time to time—thus you are a full partner.

The company will redeem your bond in cash. You have the right to sell it at any time. The company will accept it as cash at any time in payment for property. The issue of these bonds is limited.

It is the only way we know of whereby you can deal in Atlanta real estate with your capital secured against loss—receive a fixed and guaranteed income (free of taxes—company pays the taxes) and also get the profits made in handling this line of business.

These bonds are earning 20 per cent—the owners have received an average of 10 per cent in cash per year during the past three years, and the balance has been placed to surplus account for distribution from time to time.

The Atlanta Development company does not speculate. It handles only the staple residence property—bought in acreage form at wholesale—and after being properly developed, is sold in lots, at the ruling prices of the surrounding property. Over twenty years experience by its management enables them to exercise the best judgment as to where and when to buy. Its past success is its best reference.

Should you wish to secure some of these bonds we would be pleased to call on you and show you the bond and more fully explain—take you out to see the property now owned by the company, and show you how the money you pay for your bond will be invested. Or you might call in person at the office of the company, 1403-6 Third National bank building.

BROOKHAVEN HEIGHTS NOW ON THE MARKET

Fine Residence Subdivision Bounded by Peachtree Road and Decatur Road

That magnificent residence park, Brookhaven Heights, now being developed and sold by the American Realty company under the management of Mr. W. T. Martin is located in the triangle bounded on the north by Peachtree road, the Boulevard of the south, and on the east by Decatur road, which is the continuation of Clairmont avenue connecting Agnes Scott with Peachtree and Oglethorpe, with Druid Hills a short distance to the south, and will with the completion of the extension of the Cheshire Bridge road through this property to Peachtree be on the most direct route from Five Points to both the Capital City Country club and Oglethorpe University.

In fact it is impossible to reach either of these places without passing by or through Brookhaven Heights, which as you see justifies the claim of the center of north side development.

This property is being developed along modern lines, safeguarded by the proper restrictions, beautifully laid out with wide streets and serpentine drives upon which cement or tile walks will be laid, trees planted, and many things that will add to its beauty and convenience. Brookhaven Heights is located on a plateau commanding a view of Peachtree road, Capital City Country club property, Oglethorpe University, and Atlanta, thus forming a panorama that is hardly excelled in Georgia.

The company developing this property bought before the University had been located in this section, and consequently are in a position to give their purchasers the benefit of the very low price on this magnificent property, and though it has been on the market only a very short time, more than $65,000 worth of these lots have been sold to date to the better class of home builders, among which are some of the most influential citizens of Atlanta.

Silver Lake Estates

Will Be Organized April 25

ANNOUNCEMENT

SILVER Lake Estates, with an authorized capital of $500,000, chartered to purchase and develop, for residence purposes, the famous Silver Lake property, is ready for organization.

¶ Subscribers to Silver Lake Estates, who live all over the South, will meet in Atlanta Saturday, April 25th, for the purpose of adopting their charter and by-laws and electing officers and directors.

¶ The names of these subscribers, including some of the most substantial citizens and business men of Atlanta, of Georgia, and of other southern states, give ample assurance that officers and directors of the highest class will be chosen for the management of the company's affairs.

¶ Immediately following organization, the work of development, which is already under way, will be pushed as rapidly as men and money can make it go.

¶ With seven miles of road frontage already developed, needing only road paving to complete it, and with 9,000 feet of frontage on roads already paved, more than one-third of Silver Lake Estates will soon be in shape for home-building.

¶ Within thirty to sixty days building lots in Silver Lake Estates will be ready for inspection and purchase by prospective home-builders.

¶ With Oglethorpe University to be built at once, practically as a part of Silver Lake Estates; with the restrictions which will be thrown around building there; with perfect water and sewer systems installed as one of the foremost developments; with transportation service which will be supplied, and with Silver Lake, the prettiest body of water in North Georgia, as a centerpiece, Silver Lake Estates will rapidly develop into one of the most attractive and desirable residence communities in the South.

¶ Many Atlantians, many Georgians, are eagerly awaiting an opportunity to purchase home lots in Silver Lake Estates, and have urged us to let them know when they would be ready for sale.

¶ We make this announcement for their benefit as well as for that of the subscribers whose interest and investments have made possible the development of one of the most attractive residence communities anywhere in the South.

Lots in Silver Lake Estates will be ready for sale within 30 to 60 days by

PEACHTREE HEIGHTS PARK AS LOCATION FOR THE HOME OWNER

E. Rivers Tells Why This Park Is Desirable—It Is Built Up With Homes to the Park and on Beyond It, and No Subdivision Can Show Better Roads or Finer Topography for the Location of Fine Residences

There is no more attractive home-building property anywhere in or around Atlanta, than Peachtree Heights park. It is in the center of north side residence development; some of Atlanta's handsomest homes have already been built beyond it.

In a forceful statement, Secretary and Treasurer E. Rivers of the Peachtree Heights Park company, shows the splendid advantages which this property possesses for the location of the home.

"Peachtree Heights park speaks for itself," Mr. Rivers said. "It is only necessary for one to look at it carefully and compare it with any other residence property in or around Atlanta. We have no fear whatever of the result of any unprejudiced comparison. The plat showing the location of Peachtree Heights park, published in this issue, and a simple inspection of the property itself will tell a story a great deal stronger than I can put it in words.

Atlanta is built up in homes right to Peachtree Heights park. It is built up with handsome homes beyond it and now many Atlantians who are particular about their location are building on this property.

The property in Peachtree Heights park people was not ready for the market until last October. Now we are ready for anybody's most critical inspection, and we defy any sub-division in Atlanta, Fulton county, Georgia, or the south, to show a prettier tract, more beautifully winding roads or lots cut to better, with all city conveniences and located at just the proper distance from the business center of the city for homes.

LOCATION IS RIGHT.

Absolutely the only criticism which has ever been directed at Peachtree Heights park has been based on its distance from Five Points; and we can attribute this only to a lack of absolute information regarding the property since it is official schedule time that the trolley time to the business center of the city is quicker than from any other of Atlanta's residence sections which have been recently built up.

The truth of the matter is that Peachtree Heights park is at the proper residence distance right now and this as Atlanta continues to grow at the same rate, it is possible that within a few years it will be a little bit close in. Anticipating this condition, we have thrown around the park such restrictions as will take care of home building there for many years to come. The lots are large and the building lines are 50 feet back. No lot in the tract can be subdivided so as to make another lot which has less than 100 feet of frontage, and only one house can be built on 100 feet of frontage within the next 15 years. Long before this every lot in the park will have been built up and those who so desire will have it like they want it.

Personally, I have given the question of home building in Atlanta a great deal of study, not only from observation, but from actual experience of my own, and I cannot understand why any man or woman should want to build a home on a cramped city lot and be cooped in the year around amid the dust, smoke, noise and crowd that they must have, if they live anywhere near the business section. It is enough for a business man to breathe this sort of atmosphere all day. It must be repellant to him to think that he has to go home and continue it at night.

TEN MINUTES ON TROLLEY.

Lots in Peachtree Heights park we are offering the business man and the home making woman everything that goes to constitute an ideal home. At the present time, it is only 24 minutes by trolley from his office in the center of the city, with a ten-minute schedule. Every one must realize that time with growth and progress will give a still better trolley service and it will not be long before this will be greatly improved and express schedules put on which will make the trip to the business center within 15 minutes. This is nothing extravagant. What we base this prediction. It is merely a repetition of history in other large cities and it is history that will repeat itself in Atlanta.

A business man is due his family some consideration whether he thinks of himself or not. It may not matter to him personally where his home is located, but if he has any consideration for his wife and children, location is an essentially important factor. And when it comes to location from a family standpoint, he cannot improve upon Peachtree Heights park. I have always found it an advantageous policy in business to weigh and consider the suggestions and the opinions of successful business men. This has frequently been helpful to me in MAKE up my mind in important questions. In this connection, I might call attention to the fact that such men as Robert F. Maddox, W. H. Kiser, John W. Grant, Morris Brandon, J. K. Ottley, W. S. Witham and many others known to all Atlantians, have each built their all-the-year-around homes farther out than Peachtree Heights park; and I do not hesitate to say that if you will ask any of these or any others who have built homes out there, they will tell you they could not have done better or even so well, anywhere else in or around Atlanta.

TIME TO SELECT NOW.

Atlanta business men, or those who have recently come here to engage in business, and to make their homes in this city, have a better opportunity right now to select and get the lots they want than they will ever have again, for there are more beautiful building sites to select from and never again will they be able to buy them so cheaply as they can right now.

If any business man will give proper consideration to the selection of his home site, whether he buys in Peachtree Heights park or not, he will begin to look around now. He will begin to figure on getting out of the dust and smoke of the city; on getting away from the close quartered apartment house and out of the crowded and noisy business section.

"Naturally, we think we have got the best property anywhere in or around Atlanta, and with an examination and consideration of it and a comparison with any other, we are willing to rest on the decision reached as to its merits."

regrets. Therefore, I say, let's look to the future growth of Atlanta and its suburbs before the club rejects an offer to acquire additional property that it will never have again, except at a large cost."

MR. MADDOX TALKS.

"The establishment of a country club at Brookhaven by the Capital City club has proven a wise and popular step. I think the club will unquestionably exercise its option to buy the property in June, 1916, and when we do, we will erect one of the handsomest club buildings in the south."

This was the statement of Robert F. Maddox, president of the Capital City club, to whose efforts is due much of the credit, both for the leasing of Brookhaven and for the successful maintenance of the attractive country club.

"The tract," continued Mr. Maddox, "consists of 150 acres, ideally adapted as a country club. The lake, clear as crystal, and ideal for boating, is one of the prettiest in the state.

"The golf links, now nine holes, is being enlarged to an 18-hole course, which gives promise of being not only the sportiest in the south, but without question the most picturesque.

"The clubhouse, while attractive, both as to interior and exterior, and while answering its purposes at the present time, will probably give way to a larger one when we exercise our option to buy, and it is safe to assume that the Capital City will build a clubhouse of which all Atlanta may justly feel proud.

"The members of the club, without exception, as far as I have been able to ascertain, are tremendously pleased with the success of Brookhaven so far, and nothing will be overlooked in continuing its usefulness as an ideal country club."

ALL BUT TEN LOTS SOLD IN HOPKINS SUBDIVISION

Extensive Improvements Are Made on Tract Bordering Pace's Ferry Road

Roff Sims & Co. report the sale of all but ten of seventy lots of the L. C. Hopkins subdivision on and near Pace's Ferry road, with good inquiries for the remaining lots.

L. C. Hopkins purchased this tract of ninety acres in September, 1910. It fronted on the south side of Pace's Ferry road at a point between the residences of Robert F. Maddox and William Kiser on one side and the residence of John Grant (now in course of construction).

This property was laid off in streets, all of which have been beautifully macadamized and city water laid in front of every lot. The principal streets through this property are Habersham drive, which leads from Pace's Ferry road to a point on Peachtree street, near Peachtree creek; also Andrews drive runs directly through this property.

This drive commences at Peachtree road at the residence of Colonel Walter Andrews and extends to Pace's Ferry road. This property was divided into seventy lots, all of which have been sold except ten. This undoubtedly is one of the most beautiful pieces of suburban property about Atlanta and is destined to be occupied by some of the most beautiful homes in that section.

Mr. Haverty has recently completed a new residence on Peachtree road, diagonally across from the DuBose home and not far from Deerland, the Spalding home. This is one of the most effective residences on Peachtree.

WORLEY'S WOODLAND HILLS A TRIUMPH OF SUBDIVISION

Lots in This Subdivision Are Subject to Restrictions That Assure a High-Class Residence Community—It Is Situated on Piedmont Avenue, Briarcliff, Cheshire Bridge and Other Roads, and It Is Not Far From Piedmont Park

The idea of restrictions in fashionable residence subdivisions is being applied by W. E. Worley to his Woodlawn Hills residence subdivision.

There the lots are cut wide and deep, from 100 feet wide and 500 feet deep on up, and purchasers are restricted from subdividing their lots, and also as to the character of building and its position on the lot.

In subdivisions like this, the buyer is assured that he can build an expensive residence and not be afraid that his next door neighbor will back up a house against his, or that a factory or some other building not suited to a home section will be built on the same street.

The lots being large, the houses cannot be crowded.

Woodlawn Hills is situated on Piedmont avenue, Briarcliff and the Cheshire Bridge roads, to say nothing of various other roads and driveways that connect with the old roads, and that are now being constructed by a large working force.

The subdivision is accessible through Highland, but is within easy access of several fine old country drives.

The Briarcliff road has been extended to the Cheshire Bridge road. The line of the Seaboard Air Line is on the border of the subdivision. Woodlawn road, a boulevard specially constructed, runs through the subdivision.

This subdivision is not far from Piedmont Park, and is one of the class-in residence communities. Several fine residences will be built there.

Mr. Worley is one of the pioneer developers in the Ponce de Leon avenue section, and his first operations were east of the Southern railway and between that and Druid Hills.

He foresaw a big drift of residence population to that section, and operated accordingly. The results have justified his judgment.

But in Woodlawn Hills Mr. Worley has given his best study and accomplished his greatest achievement. His opening of this subdivision is one of the big developments of the year.
