

Dorsey."

(f). On the last day of the trial, Monday, August 25th, 1913 a large crowd, including many women, had assembled in the court room before court opened, taking up every seat in the court room. The jury were in their room about 20 feet from the court room, and as Mr. Dorsey entered the room, the crowd applauded loudly by clapping of hands and stamping of feet, which the jury perhaps could have heard. The court did nothing but admonish the people that if the applause was repeated, he would clear the court room.

(g). On Monday the last day of the trial after the argument of counsel had been had and the charge of the court had been given and the case was in the hands of the jury, when Solicitor Dorsey left the court room a very large crowd awaited him in front of the court house and shouted and applauded by clapping their hands and shouting, "Hurrah for Dorsey."

(h). When it was announced that the jury had agreed upon a verdict, the Judge of the Superior Court, his honor L. S. Roan, went to the court house which was a comparatively small room on the first floor, at the junction of Hunter and Pryor streets, and found the court room packed with spectators.

Fearful of misconduct among the spectators in the court room, the court of his own motion cleared the room before the jury announced their verdict. When the verdict of guilty was rendered, the fact of the rendition of such verdict was signaled to the crowd on the outside, which consisted of a large concourse and crowd of people standing upon Hunter and Pryor streets. Immediately upon receiving such signal and while the court was engaged in polling the jury and before the polling ended great shouts arose from the people on the outside, expressing gratification. Great applauding, shouting and halloing was heard on the streets and so great became the noise on the streets that the court had difficulty in hearing the responses of the jurors as he polled the ~~jurors as he polled the~~ ~~jurors as he polled the~~ defendant contends, that the defendant did not have a fair and impartial jury trial and that the demonstration of the crowds
