yesterday passed the Sheppard substitute for the Lipscomb bill by a vote of 107 to 59.

This was only fourteen votes over the required constitutional majority, and without the help of tax reform ers, who believe in a state board and equalization among counties, it would have been impossible for the bill to have passed at all.

Quite a number of members who had lined up with Mr. Sheppard and Dr. Stovall in the mutilation of the ways and means committee bill did not vote for the Sheppard substitute and went on record as opposed to any form of tax revision whatever. Analysis of Vote.

There were others who voted for the adoption of the Sheppard substitute, who, when the roll was called for the final passage of the measure, cast their votes against it, enough of these, in fact, to have defeated the measure had it not been for the state board revisionists who came to

Dr. Stovall, of Elbert, who, more than any other, was responsible for the mutilation of the ways and means bill, was one of those who voted for the adoption of the Sheppard substitute and then voted against it on its final passage.

Tax Reformers Saved Substitute. This seems clearly to have demonstrated what the advocates of the ways and means bill have claimed from the first, that the Sheppard substitute was put forward in the hope of defeating all tax reform. That it did not succeed in doing this was due largely to the efforts of those open and in earnest advocates of tax revision, who came to its aid at last moment and would not allow it to be butchered at the hands of its supposed friends.

That Mr. Sheppard himself worked very earnestly for the salvation of the measure, when its passage seemed to be threatened cannot be doubted. This is shown by the fact that he even called upon the state board revisionists to save it from defeat. Of the men to whom he yielded his time, after the previous question had been called, one was an outspoken and thoroughgoing advocate of the state board principle, who had determined to vote for the substitute as a last resort to save the cause of tax reform, and another was a member who had always been counted on that Within three-quarters of an hour after she had eaten her frugal breakfast of cabbage and bread, Mary Phagan was dead.

This startling fact was brought out at Friday's session of the Leo M. Frank trial, when Dr. Roy Harris, secretary of the state board of health, took the stand to tell of the postmortem examination he performed on the body of the child.

Frequent Clashes

Frequent clashes took place between opposing counsel during the testimony of N. V. Darley, assistant superintendent of the National Pencil factory. Washington, August 1 .- Secretary McAdoo today prepared to distribute twenty-five to fifty millions of dollars of government funds in the agricultural regions of the south and west. The secretary is collecting information as to the relative needs of each section where harvesting is now under way or soon to begin, and expects to have the money in the banks in ample time for the movement of crops. Treasury officials today were confident that the secretary's plan would be a powerful factor in averting or relieving the prospective tightness of money characteristics of the crop moving season.

Much interest was manifested in the secretary's declaration of willingness to receive prime commercial paper as security for the deposits. This innovation marks the government's first participation in the commercial mar-

THE SENATE'S OPPORTUNITY.

The house yesterday committed itself to a bare excuse for a tax equalization bill. and, strange to say, the substitute as passed secured an affirmative vote only by the aid of those who had been standing for genuine tax reform as represented in the bill of the ways and means committee. Proving that many of those who antagonized the ways and means bill were against any measure that looked to tax reform, quite a number of those who originally were supposedly lined up for the substitute as against the committee measure actually voted against the substitute itself after the adversal of the committee's bill. The substitute was saved by those who favored the committee bill, they preferring this to no legislation at all, supporting the substitute with the hope that, taking it as a basis, the senate might build up on it and return to the house a real tax reform measure.

It is true that county boards of equalization are created by the substitute. But even these boards are given very flimsy authority. The absence of a central authority, or balance wheel, means that eventually the counties now giving in re- ations. It is the stultification and shame the real value of property will cease to do so. They will, inevitably and in self-protection, follow the pace set by the counties giving in the lowest ratio- 10, 20 or 30 county can be expected to tax its citizens motive of England and Germany in the at a high rate, when counties all around are taking advantage of the laxity of the law to turn in just what they please and no more. Seemingly, the house has acted upon the principle that public sentiment demands that something be done, and it has with apparent deliberation done as little as it could and make even a plausible show-

The one redeeming feature of the when they get it. house's action is that the poor and evasive measure it did pass keeps the issue alive and carries it to the senate, which appears to have the courage and the patriotism to enact a real tax equalization measure. The senate cannot originate revenue legislation. Had the house strangled equalization outright instead of by subterfuge, the matter would have ended there.

As it is, the house's apologetic bill now goes to the senate where, if the temper of that body is correctly estimated, the state is justified in expecting results.

The finance committee of the senate has already given evidence of its nerve in grappling with the crisis, in its action in knocking $280,000 from the house appropriations bill. That is precisely the excess of house appropriations over current revenue. The senate recognizes the principle that it is as dishonest for a state to spend more than it takes in as it is for an individual to do so. It proposes to place itself on record as determined to put the state in an attitude of honor and orderly business procedure, and its course in using the appropriations bill as a club in this crisis is wholly justified.

The senate will earn the gratitude of the people if it refuses to recede from its position until it secures legislation protecting the edit, the honor and the reputation of the state.

THE WAYWARD GIRL'S HOME.

Friends of the measure committing the state to the construction of a home for wayward girls are hoping, with the cooperation of Chairman Crawford Wheatley, of the house appropriations committee, to enact it in such shape as will at least enable the institution to get a start this year. From the very first there has been no doubt that members of the appropriations committee and the subcommittee unanimously agreed upon the desirability of the movement. The one hitch has come in the matter of an appropriation, with the legislature already having to pare and prune to pay the state's fixed charges, and failing even in that.

Chairman Wheatley knew that if the bill came to a vote under these conditions, and carrying a large appropriation, it would be defeated. Being heartily in sympathy with its principle, he saved the bill by having it tabled. It is now proposed to take the bill from the table next Tuesday and pass it with this amendment-that the state appropriate this year a nominal sum only, anywhere from $500 to $1,000, so that the institution may at once be gotten under way with the official indorsement of the state. The advocates of the movement notably the good women of Georgia, believe that with a home given the official sanction of the state, they will be able to secure large outside contributions such as would, in the long run, lessen the amount ultimately to be asked of the legislature.

The compromise thus suggested has the approval of Chairman Wheatley and other members of the committee and subcommittee. Involving only a small appropriation, it should appeal successfully to the legislature. As to the merits of the movement. The Constitution need add little to the arguments it has already advanced in favor of the home. It is estimated that each year from ten to twelve girls in each county in Georgia are lost through the lack of such an institution. That one fact ought to render superfluous any elaborate plea in behalf of the home.

DISHONOR'S REWARD.

England and Germany have decided not to participate in the exposition to be held at San Francisco to celebrate the opening of the Panama canal. While no official explanation has been proffered, it is generally understood that both these powers are actuated by the position of the United States with regard to Panama canal tolls.

And England and Germany are thoroughly justified. They would cut pretty figures participating in an exposition to mark the opening of the canal when the United States has made the canal available to their ships only under conditions of outright national dishonor.

A few zealous persons in this country will, of course, proceed now to declare that Europe is taking this attitude to browbeat us into repealing that clause in the Panama canal act which exempts our own coastwise vessels from tolls.

It should be immaterial to the man who is sincere with himself whether the action of England and Germany is a bluff or put | an object for envy than pity." torward seriously. The main thing is that the repudiation of a solemn compact by a great nation has brought its inevitable consequences in retaliation. O'Cowley, Duke of Wellington.

(Mora M. Campbell, in The New York Sun.) English works on the battle of Waterloo. savs our correspondent, H. J. Jackson, are worthless owing to the inability of the English to admit certain facts. I wonder how many of them contain the admission that the proper name of the Duke of Wellington was not Wellesley, but O'Cowley. The family of O'Cowley, to which he belonged, was a branch of the family of the O'Flinn, Lord of Tuirtre and northern Clanaboy. It was his grandfather, Richard O'Cowley, first Lord Mornington (died 1758), who changed No matter how the people try, they can't his name to Wesley or Wellesley on succeeding to the estates of Garrett Wesley, the son of his father's sister.

The second Duke of Wellington, the son of the Iron Duke, wrote to Dr. O'Hart, author of the celebrated work on "Irish Pedigrees," that if his father had been called by his ancient Irish name he would in all probability never have become the Duke of Wellington. To this anti-Irish feeling the duke referred or deferred when he said that "to be born in a stable does not constitute a horse," weakly insinuating thereby that although he was born in Ireland of an immemorial Irish family he might not be an Irishman.

A Story of the Moment By WALT MASON. The Fumous Prose Poet

MAKING A CHANGE.

"T've cut out all kinds of meat from my bill of fare this summer," remarked the retired merchant, "and I feel a whole lot bet-

"Of course, you do," replied the hotelkeeper. "And you'd feel a whole lot better if you cut out vegetables and ate nothing but meat. Any change will make you feel ten years younger, if you have time to go around telling people about it. Old Quackenbush was in here this morning saying that he hasn't swallowed anything but buttern.ilk in three weeks, and he felt so good he wanted me to go into the alley, so he could show me what he'd do to the white hopes if he ever got them in the ring. If the doggone old chump had to swallow buttermilk and keep the fact to himself it would make him sick inside of twenty-four hours, but there's no law against talking people's arms off, so he feels ever so much better.

"It isn't what you eat or don't eat that makes you feel better; it's this thing of going around telling windy stories that does it. That's at the bottom of all fads. People live on skimmed rainwater, not because they like rainwater, but because it gives them something to talk about until their hair falls out. In the last two or three days I've heard you tell a dozen men that you're not eating an ounce of meat nowadays, and I noticed that every one of your victims yawned at the top of his voice and took the first opportunity to make a sneak. You talk in such a superior way, as though there's something particularly virtuous in doing without meat, that you make everybody sore and tired, and one of these days a sufferer will pick up a chair and pat you on the head with it.

"The desire for notoriety is the mainspring of most human actions, doggone it. One man heads himself up in a barrel and goes over Niagara Falls, and if he survives he appears on the stage and bores the whole country until a new freak comes along and makes him an also ran. I have some respect for that sort of man, for he takes chances. But I haven't much respect for the citizen who tries to attract attention by living on sawdust, or for the one who writes a patent medicine testimonial in order to get his picture in an almanac. "Old Turpentine has had a holiday assortment of diseases for a good many years, and he's always discovering some new and remarkable remedy. For a while he was baosting Dr. Bildad's syrup of wild onions as the greatest thing that ever happened. He carried a bottle around in his pistol pocket and urged his friends to take a snifter. He insisted that Dr. Bildad should be president of the United States and that congress ought to pass a law requiring every citizen to consume at least a gallon of the syrup every day. After a while the exasperated people began to tell him that if he didn't quit yawping about Dr. Bitdad and his dodgasted syrup, they'd forget he was an invalid and deface the landscape

"So he had to hunt up a new topic, and he began explaining that he was mistaken about the syrup after all. It was greatly overestimated. At last he had found the real thing, however. It was Dr. Playfair's compound tincture of dandelions and bullthistles. He wasn't happy unless he was telling how much the compound tincture had done for him, and on several occasions I had to push him out of this hotel to keep the guests from rioting. It went along that way for months. He'd talk up one medicine until he saw that the intelligent voters wouldn't stand for his discourse any longer. and then he'd take up another, and every one was better than the last, and none of them was any good.

"Why should a man who is supposed to be same conduct himself in this way? He just wants to attract attention, like the variety actress who carefully arranges to have her plate glass jewelry stolen. If a man was alone on an island, where he couldn't talk people to death, he'd never think of taking patent medicines or going without meat.

The Lyttelton Ghost.

(From The Pall Mall Gazette.) The story of the Lyttelton ghost is one of the best of English family legends. Thomas Lord Lyttelton dreamed one night that a bird flew into his room, which changed into a woman in white, and bade him prepare to die. "I hope not soon." he said: "not in two months." "Yes, in three days," replied the spectre.

He told of the dream at breakfast next morning (Thursday, November 25, 1779). On Saturday he was in excellent health, and thought he would "bilk the ghost." A few minutes before midnight on that day, just as he was undressing, he fell back dead.

They Sell 'Em Everywhere.

The Atchison Globe tells of a pathetic sight on Main street the other morning. An old and very poorly dressed colored woman was in a frenzy of grief; she walked up and down the street moaning and wringing her hands and searching for something she had lost. When asked what her trouble was, she walled that she had lost her "ticket to heaven." She explained that in her church each member who paid a certain sum of money was given such a ticket. This old colored woman believed implicitly in the power of her ticket: to her it represented a berth in heaven. She had paid for it with hours of back-breaking labor.

The World's Mysteries THE AMERICAN INDIAN-OF WHAT RACE?

Ever since Columbus discovered America in Genesis, chapter 1, verse 27, "So God in 1492 an unsolved question of international interest has been: Who are the Indians? To which of the races do they belong, or are they a race of their own? From whence came the inhabitants of the newfound world? These inquiries have furnished the subject of many a ponderous volume with answers as varied as the ques-

Most authorities believe the misnamed ed men of our western continent constitute just as distinct a sub-species to the human race as do the Africans or the Caucasians. But the problem of their origin remains unsolved. "It is almost certain," says one authority, "that no common origin for all of them can be assured." Another noted authority takes an entirely different view when he affirms that, "Indeed, it may be correctly said that no other race shows equally permanent and individual traits; because there is none that shows so little variation over such a wide area, exposed as it is to the extremes of tropical and Arctic environment."

The first writer referred to further states; "Failing accurate knowledge of the geological conditions existing in earlier epochs, the most probable sources of immigration were Asia by way of the northwest coast of North America. Europe by the way of Greenland, and the general region of Polynesia by way of South America. There are correspondences in physical types and cultures which tend to support particularly the idea of Asiatic and Polynesian relations.

The second writer referred to takes an entirely different view and states: "In craniology, in facial expression, in skeleton. in brain capacity, in color, hair, eyes, stature, muscular development and viability, there is very little difference to be noted among all the various races of Indians on the American continent, from the Eskimo to the extreme south."

Looking at the question from all points, it would appear the proper theory is that the American as an independent center of origin has much in its favor, and must be taken into account. Taking the Bible into the controversy, the story of the flood, etc., it is very difficult to offer any explanation of the existence of this peculiar nation of red men as the inhabitants of the American

A theory has been advanced also that the five different races of the world represent five simultaneous creations. We read I the first chapter of Genesis.

Lime Salts and Health.

(From The Indianapolis News) The Berliner Klinische Wochenschrift, in an article on the influence of lime salts on the constitution and health, speaks of some physicians who are coming more and more to believe that the use of calcium (lime) in various forms is the keystone of individual hygiene. Remhardt, a German physician. quoted, says: "Neurasthenic, overworked dence. It may sound that way, but it refers and physically depressed persons are so rapidly healed that they can not show sufficient gratitude. They feel as if newly-born, full of the zest of life, stronger and more enduring than ever and twenty years younger" It is not improbable that there is here an overmeasure of enthusiasm. Many of the older physicians will remember Dr. Brown-Sequard and the wonderful things that were to be done by his discovery in making old fellows young again. The melancholy Jacques observed that "from hour to! hour we ripe and ripe and then from hour it up in despair and goes home to soak his to hour we rot and rot -the decay of the tendon of Achilles in arnica. natural forces by age. G. B. Shaw on Order.

(From London Life) "I love order in all things," said George Bernard Shaw, at a public meeting some time ago. "For this reason I am not content with ordering my life, I also order my personallty. I have cocoa colored hair, so I wear enena colored clothes and drink cocoa." Shaw today has reached the position of becoming a public Institution. For more than twenty years he has succeeded in fulfilling his boast that every day some leading paper would have something to say about him! George Bernard Shaw is the jester at the court of King Demos. When years ago he was appointed dramatic critic to a well-known journal he refused to obey the ironclad regulation that occupants of the stalls must wear evening dress. The first night he was stopped at the door of a theater by an attendant. "What do you object to?" inquired naw. "My cocoa colored jacket?" tendant assented. "Very well, then," said the critic, "I will remove it." And the next moment he was striding up the aisle in his shirt sleeves. "That won't do, sir!" shouted the attendant, running after him. "Won't do?" exclaimed Shaw, with a fine assumption of indignation. "Do you think I'm going to take off any more?" The nonplused attendant handed him his jacket, and Shaw took his seat in the stalls triumphantly.

female created He them." The plural form is used in the first chapter and the singular form in the second chapter of Genesis. From the twentieth chapter of Genesis on the Old Testament is the continued history of one pair; the Adam and Eve: the created man in His own image: in the image of God created He him; male and man and the woman from wnom by direct descent the Christ came. Sacred history notices other peoples and races of men, but the Adamic creation of man, from Genesis to Revelation, is sufficient as a type for the purpose of God in the creation of man. The theory of the simultaneous creation of the five races in no way conflicts with the sacred Scriptures. These five races, so the advocates of this theory affirm, have peopled the whole earth, each pair having been adapted to the "Garden" in which they were placed, and still further, they argue that no new race has been found to exist.

Men of all climes and countries are either of the Caucasian or white race, of the Malay or brown race; of the Ethiopian or black race; of the Mongolian or yellow race. and of the American or red race. The scientists who exploit this theory, therefore, dismiss as trifling all attempts to connect the Aborigines of America whom we miscall Indians with any other race genealogically.

The great search of these scientists is now only to obtain a clew as to the antiquity of the red race. Philology is the strongest test now used in the classification of the races. It is upon philology that American ethnology is based. Eight distinct languages are traceable in North America and one hundred in South America.

Dr. Daniel G. Brinton, in his "Essay on Native Dialects," says: "The exceeding diversity of languages in America and the many dialects into which they have split are cogent proofs of the vast antiquity of the red race stretching back tens of thousands of years. Nothing else can explain its multitudinous forms of speech. But underlying all these various forms of expression there are found some roots common to all, and never quite absent from any of them." This, then, would appear to be strong proof that the red men are indigenous to America, and that all effort to find a foreign origin for them has thus far failed. But opposed to this theory of specific diversity is the still more familiarly established theory of the unity of the human race, and some of the deepest thinkers of today are going back to the opinion of St. Paul and

TACOMA, WASH.

By GEORGE FITCH, Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

Takoma, Wash, is not an exhortation to wrap up a bath and carry it to your resito one of the most irrepressible and uncontrollable cities on the Pacific slope-Tacoma, once the rival of Seattle and, according to the Tacoma papers, tomorrow the rival of Chicago.

Tacoma is situated on one of the many vermiform appendices of Puget sound. Its feet are buried in the mud flats, which are sold periodically to eastern investors, and its head is in the pine forest 300 feet above. Tacoma slopes gently up out of the water and continues to slope until the tourist gives

Tacoma is situated on three great transcontinental railroad lines and all trains stop there. Most of them not only stop there, but disintegrate and go no further. Steamships from a hundred ports toot their way up the sound to Tacoma and every year a whole pine forest comes down to the city and is shipped for foreign parts. Tacoma was first thought of in 1883, and seven years later it had $8,000 people, was first modeled in pine like Portland, but From 1890 to 1900 Tacoma enjoyed a long refreshing nap while Seattle blazed away with great energy and assumed a command-

Tacoma is smaller than Seattle or Portland, but is much fiercer than either. Police regulations forbid discussions of the two cities by Tacomans and Seattle men. The city is remarkably healthy, practically the only occupants of the cemeteries being Tacoma, like other western cities, is upto-date, and has the commission form of government, including a recall clause. Tacoma's greatest ambition is to recall Seattle to about 150,000 population and then pass her in the next census.

Long Literary Life.

(From The London Chronicle.) It would be hard to parallel the achieve ments of M. Francois Fertiault, the lates Chevalier of the Legion of Honor, who published his first volume in 1830, when he was 17, and his latest in 1912. There appeal to be only two other instances of a centenarian writer, and neither of these could show a literary life extending over eighty two years. Michel Chevreul, who died in 1889 at the age of 103, issued his earlies publication at the age of 37 and his lates whose death occurred last September in he 101st year, came nearer than this to the rec ord of M. COPPER MINERS FLAY METHODS OF TROOPERS

"Rules of Civilized Warfare Are Being Swept Aside," Says Union Bulletin.

Calumet, Mich., August 1 .- Methods of state troops on duty in the mine strike zone in keeping the streets clear today brought vigorous protests from union headquarters. In several authenticated instances citizens were struck while passing along the sidewalks or ordered into their houses while sitting on doorsteps.

Isaac Rahula, a jeweler, was clubbed by a patrol which drove its horses on the sidewalk on one street. The following statement was issued from union headquarters by Guy E. Miller, of the executive board of the Western Federation of Miners:

"The rules of civilized warfare are being swept aside in the copper district. Last night's brutalities certainly deserve the censure of every man who has not lost all respect for human rights. Notwithstanding the statements of the mining companies that strike-breakers would not be used, we find such men active about

"Last night a baby carriage was run over and its little occupant thrown on the pavement and an old man was beaten with a pick handle and later taken to the hospital. Residents in various parts of the city were driven from the porches of their homes. Had such acts being committed in an unorganized community a riot would certainly have resulted. It seems that home parties who are supposed to be guardians of the peace seek a pretext for martial law." General Abbey has promised town officials that the patrol will be held

Some appropriations in Georgia:

$10,000.00 agriculture.

$10,000.00 carrying out pure food and drug act.

$ 5,000.00 for cattle tick eradication and protection of live stock.

$15,000.00 to developing live stock and exterminating the cattle tick.

$ 6,000.00 to manufacture and distribute hog cholera serum.

$20,000.00 horticulture and entomology.

Nothing for wayward and delinquent girls-for their protection, development and culture-

Later, if—

Maybe, next year-

God pity them!

THEY CAN NOT WAIT.

These are girls-not hogs, nor cows, nor fields which may be replaced.

Once lost, these-?

And crime claws-

Hell reaches out for them, even while you talk.

Seventy-five girls-

Only those under sixteen known to us-others-scores are in the State sinking because there is no place.

Care for prisoners is required by the laws of Georgia and of God, as well as appropriations for sick cattle and hogs. And if the State's Wards -we will not call them prisoners-be as they are, these girls, what will you do with them?

In the chaingang?

With the hardened prisoners of the prison farm?

You could not put them in your reformatory for boys.

The Prison Commission says: "No place for them in Georgia."

Pure food. Tickless cattle.

Choleraless hogs.

These are much to be desired. They should be cultivated and sought. But you know these girls. You would take care of them. They are

"It was referred to a subcommittee to plan for the creation of a home and to make such changes in the measure for an appropriation that could be granted.".

Cutting $45,000.00 from the $75,000.00 appropriation asked, the subcommittee reported back the bill carrying an appropriation of $30,000.00, for action by the whole committee.

The Penitentiary Committee had previously recommended the bill without a dissenting vote. All recognize the need.

And if money can be obtained for the cultivation of hogs, cattle and fields, surely it can be found for this—the saving of girls.

His Criticism.

BARNEY SHERIDAN, in The Mobile NASHVILLE-Register, criticises the Gulls for giving Welchonce a crack at that old globule on Wednesday in the ninth inning, when he poled one over the right field fence. He argues that Welchonce was hitting like a fiend, while Wallop Smith, who followed, while a dangerous man at the bat, was in the throes of a batting slump. He says in part. "Welchonce was permitted to He got a low curve ball-his groove. A Pretty Play.

IN THE RUSH we came near overlooking the prettiest play of the day at Ponce. Tommy Long pulled an unassisted triple play when he caught an apparent safe hit from Spratt's bat off his shoe strings and ran and touched second. It was the first time this season an outfielder has pulled this at Ponce. Tommy got a good hand.

Government Condition Report May Lower Than Expected and closed steady. Caused a Sharp Advance. Spot Cotton 10 Points Up.

New York, August 1 .- The governments report making the condition of the growing cotton crop 79.6, against $1.8 last month, 76.5 last year and a ten-year average of 80 per cent, was under general expectations, and caused quite a sharp advance in the market during today's trading. Business was not particularly active, and there was nothing to indicate that the official statement had materially stimulated demand from either trade or speculative sources; but there was considerable covering, as well as some support from Wall street bulls, and the market advanced some 18 to 20 points after the publication of the figures. The close was barely steady, as a result of realizing, but last prices were from 8 to 14 points net higher. Business was quiet enough during the morning to suggest that scattering accounts had previously been pretty well evened up for over the bureau. Cables were a shade better than due, covering by nervous shorts or continental buying, and the local market opened steady at an advance of 2 to 5 points. There was not enough demand to maintain this improvement, however, and toward mid-day the market eased off, under scattering liquidation. which seemed partly due to reports of showers in central Texas. Just before the government report was isued, prices were 2 or 3 points net lower on new crop positions, but quickly rallied, closing within 4 or 3 points of best of day. Spot cotton quiet, 10 points up; middling uplands, 12.10, do. gulf, 12.55 Indications pointed to lower tempera
