

FRANK ENDS STATEMENT AFTER TESTIFYING FOUR HOURS

“Silent Man in Tower” Tells His Story to Men Who Will Decide His Fate

“I’VE TOLD THE WHOLE TRUTH” SAYS PRISONER CONCLUDING DRAMATIC STORY TO THE JURY

Two poses of Leo M. Frank on the witness stand on Monday afternoon telling his story to the jury. In one picture he is shown with his notes in his hand.

Frank on the stand was cool, perfectly poised and at all times the master of himself. He showed no trace of nervousness. He looked the jury squarely in the face. He was at times explicit when explaining the details of his business, argumentative when telling of things that had looked dark for him, eloquent as he concluded.

Discussing Much-Fought-Over Point of His Alleged Nervousness on the Morning of the Murder, Superintendent Admits It Freely, Declaring That Any Man in His Place Would Have Been Similarly Affected—Speaks Bitterly of His Treatment by Members of Detective Force, and Says That One Reason Why He Would Not Consent to Meet Conley Was That the Officers Would Have Distorted His Words.

MOTHER AND WIFE OF DEFENDANT EMBRACE HIM WHEN HE LEAVES STAND

Declares Story of Conley Was a Lie From Beginning to End, and Denies Charge of Miss Jackson That He Ever Looked Into Dressing Room of Girl Employees—He Tells of Mary Phagan Coming to Office to Get Her Pay Envelope Shortly After Noon on April 26. Says That He Gave Detectives Clue That Conley Could Write, Which Led to Arrest of Negro Sweeper—No Fund Raised for His Defense, He Asserts.

“Some newspaper man has called me ‘The Silent Man in the Tower.’ Gentlemen, this is the time and here is the place’ I have told you the truth, the whole truth and nothing but the truth.”

Thus did Leo M. Frank dramatically conclude his remarkable statement of nearly four hours, during which time he was in turn explicit as to detail of his doings on the day of the murder, argumentative when explaining some point which had looked dark for him, tender when referring to his wife and his home life bitter when he told of the treatment he had received at the hands of the detective department.

It was in all essentials the most remarkable statement which has ever been delivered in a courtroom in the south. Through the four hours that he was talking there was not the slightest trace of nervousness, not a tremor of the hands, even when conveying a glass of water to his lips. He was perfectly poised, convincingly clear in his statements, the man unafraid.

When he concluded a hush fell over the courtroom. His wife and mother, who had been hanging on his every word fell forward on his neck and the pent up tears flowed freely.

The statement carried the ring of truth in every sentence and scores in the room whose minds had not been made up left the room convinced of the man’s innocence.

FRANK THE MASTER OF HIMSELF.

Shortly before court convened for the afternoon session Frank was chatting with his wife and some friends in the ante-room. He had just had his throat treated for an extremely bad cold which he contracted some days ago. With this exception he stated to a newspaper man that he was feeling fine—that he felt no nervousness and that he expected to be on the stand fully three hours.

Shortly after 2 o’clock Frank took the stand. The courtroom was packed. Scores of friends who have stood by him in his dark days of confinement clustered near his devoted mother and his faithful wife, her sisters and cousins, sat where they could see him clearly.

He began his statement with a swift account of his life and then hurried forward to the events of the fatal day when Mary Phagan entered the office of the National Pencil company for the last time.

He told in detail of his movements and activities that day. From time to time he referred to the financial statement and to various papers on which he says he worked that day. These papers he went over carefully, item by item, figure by figure. He stood facing the jury and talked to them very much as if he were addressing a board of directors before whom he was presenting some proposition demanding explanation.

For some two hours he dwelt on the technical details of the factory to show just how much time it would have taken him to make up the financial statement, and he explained in minute fashion the source from which each item was derived.

LOST SIGHT OF MARY PHAGAN

He told of little Mary Phagan entering his office to receive her pay, of her going out and then returning to inquire if the metal had come. As she left for the last time he spoke of having heard what he thought was a woman’s voice, but of this he said he could not be positive.

He visualized for the jury his work of that afternoon and of his trip to and from home, of how he spent Saturday evening.

Of the early morning ride to the undertaking establishment and of his alleged nervousness he said:

“A good deal has been said of my nervousness that morning. I admit it. I was nervous. Think of it, gentlemen. I was awakened at an early hour, rushed downtown in an automobile going at top speed. I had had no breakfast. I witnessed this poor child—this young girl in the first flush of womanhood—dead and mutilated. Gentlemen, the sight was enough to make any man nervous. It would have touched any man not made of stone.”

Frank then told of his visit to the detective department and of his second visit to the undertaking establishment that afternoon.

Of his experience with the Atlanta detective department he spoke with a trace of bitterness.

He described the manner in which he says John Black administered the third degree to Newt Lee. He said the manner in which he shrieked at and cursed the negro was something awful.

Of the criticism that he would not talk to detectives or to Conley, he said: “My experience with them showed me that they would put words in my mouth and distort what I really said until it became unrecognizable. At first I answered all questions gladly, but finally I decided to wash my hands of them.”

He told of a visit John Black and Harry Scott had paid him.

NO TRACE FOUND OF FLEEING THAW BY HIS PURSUERS

Warrants Issued for Five Men Who Aided Slayer of Stanford White to Escape from Matteawan.

New York August 18.—Sundown to night marked the thirty sixth hour of Harry K. Thaw’s freedom and the police of the United States and Canada had not picked up his trail. They seek him not as the slayer of Stanford White or as escaped lunatic but on a warrant issued at Poughkeepsie today charging him with conspiring with the aged keeper Howard Barnum and the five men who managed the asylum delivery.

On such a technically does New York state base its hope of bringing about the fugitive’s return. Both factions of the double barreled government at Albany have promised rigid investigation and the exertion of every effort to bring about his capture.

Thaw’s seclusion today and tonight was absolute. Out of the cloud of dust which swirled in the wake of the black automobile bearing him and his liberators from Matteawan Sunday morning nothing tangible had come except a aonic letter from Thaw himself assuring his aged mother in New York that he desired rest and would in due time join her at the Thaw country place, “Imhurst at Cresson Penn. In obed.”

"The Pinkertons are suspicious of that man Darley," Black said. "Now, open up—tell us what you know," Frank said.

"I told them that Darley was the soul of honor, and thereupon they left in disgust."

Frank branded as a lie the statement that women had ever visited him. He denied that he had seen Conley on the day of the murder. He told of how he was the first man to prove that Conley could write. He denied all knowledge of Dalton or ever having seen him. He said he had no rich relatives in Brooklyn, and denied there was any fund raised for his defense. The money for this purpose, he said, was secured by mortgaging his parents' property.

He wound up with the dramatic statement quoted at the beginning of this article, and immediately was on his way back to the Tower.

MANY CHARACTER WITNESSES.

Many character witnesses were called at the morning session, all of whom testified to Frank's good character. A large part of the forenoon was taken up in enumerating the various exhibits which the defense wanted to introduce.

Climax of Trial Reached When Frank Faced Jury

The climax of the Frank trial came at the afternoon session Monday, when Leo M. Frank took the stand to tell of his actions on the day of the murder.

The accused man's statement was clear, concise and straightforward. He talked in smooth, even tones, punctuating his statement with emphatic gestures of the arms and fingers. He had more the appearance of an attorney making a jury speech instead of an accused man making a plea for life and liberty.

It was a dramatic story, marked by the straightforward delivery of the prisoner. A hush settled over the room throughout his recital and he was able to talk in an ordinary voice and make himself heard all over the place.

The following is the first verbatim report of his statement to be published: "Now, Mr. Frank," said Mr. Arnold, "such papers as you want to use you can come down here at any time or from time to time and get them on this table right here."

"Before you commence your statement," prompted the judge, "I want to read the law. In criminal procedure, the prisoner will have the right to make to the court and jury such statement in this case as he may deem proper in his defense. It shall not be under oath and shall have such force as the jury shall think right to give it. They may believe it in preference to the sworn testimony in the case. The prisoner shall not be compelled to answer any questions on cross-examination. He should feel free to decline to answer them. Now you can make such statement as you see fit."

"Gentlemen of the jury," the accused man began, "in 1884, the 17th day of April, I was born in Terrell, Texas. At the age of 3 months my parents took me to Brooklyn, N. Y., which became my home until I came south, to Atlanta, to make my home here. I attended the public schools of Brooklyn and prepared for college in Pratt Institute, Brooklyn, N. Y.

"In the fall of 1902 I entered Cornell university, where I took the course of mechanical engineering, graduating after four years, in June, 1906. I then accepted a position as draughtsman with the B. F. Sturdevant company, of Hyde Park, Mass. After remaining with this firm for about six months I returned once more to my home in Brooklyn, where I accepted a position as testing engineer and draughtsman with the National Meter company, of Brooklyn, N. Y.

"I remained with these parties until about the middle of October, 1907, when at the invitation of some citizens of Atlanta I came south to confer with them with reference to the starting and operation of a pencil factory to be located in Atlanta. After remaining here for about two weeks I returned once more to New York, where I engaged passage and went to Europe. I remained in Europe nine months. During my sojourn abroad I studied the pencil business and looked after the erection and testing of machinery which had been previously traded for.

CAME TO ATLANTA IN AUGUST, 1908.

"In the first part of August, 1908, I returned once more to America, and immediately came south, to Atlanta, which has remained my home ever since. I married in Atlanta an Atlanta girl, Miss Lucille Selig. The major portion of my married life has been spent in the home of my parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. E. Selig, at No. 68 East Georgia avenue. My married life has been exceptionally happy, indeed, it has been the happiest days of my life.

"My duties as superintendent of the National Pencil company were in general as follows: I took charge of the technical and mechanical end of the factory, looking after the processes and seeing that the product was turned out in quality equal to the standard which was set by our competitors. I looked after the installation of new machinery, and the purchasing of any machinery, and in addition I had charge of the office work at the Forsyth street plant and the lead plant on Bell street.

"I looked after the purchasing of the raw material. I saw after the manufacture of pencils and kept up with the market of these materials, and when the prices fluctuated so that the purchases could be made to the best possible advantage.

WHAT HE DID ON FRIDAY.

"On Friday, April 25, I arrived at the pencil factory on Forsyth street at about 7 o'clock, my usual time. I immediately started in on my regular routine work, looking over the papers I had laid out the evening before and attending to any work that needed my special attention that morning.

"At about 9:30 I went over to the office of the general manager and treasurer, Mr. Sigmund Montag, whose office is at Montag Brothers, on Nelson street. I stayed over there a short time, and got what papers had arrived in the mail—all the mail of the pencil factory comes over to their office. I got that mail and brought it back to the Forsyth street office. I then separated the mail and continued in my usual routine duties in the office on Forsyth street.

"At about 11 o'clock Mr. Schiff handed me the pay roll book, covering the plants at Forsyth street, and Bell street, for me to check over and see if the amounts and extensions were correct. Of course, this work has to be very carefully done, so that the proper amount of money is drawn from the bank. This checking took me until about 12:30 p. m.

"I then went over to Montag Brothers, took the checks drawn and had them signed by Mr. Sig Montag, after which I returned to Forsyth street and got the leather bag in which I usually carried the money and the coin from the bank, and got the payroll slip, on which the various denominations which I desired to have on the payroll were made out, and went, accompanied by Mr. Herbert Schiff, my assistant, to the Atlanta National bank, where I had the checks cashed.

INSPECTED FACTORY IN AFTERNOON.

"Returning to the factory in company with Mr. Schiff, I placed this bag containing the money for the payroll in the safe and locked it. At this time my wife called for me and in her company and that of Mr. Schiff I went over to the car and went with my wife home to lunch. After lunch I returned to the factory and took a tour for about an hour through the factory, after which I then assisted Mr. Schiff in checking over the amounts on the pay envelopes, checking the money against the duplicate slips that we had got from the bank to see that the correct amount had been given us, and helped Mr. Schiff in checking over the money and in filling the envelopes.

"This took us approximately until a quarter to six to fill the envelopes and seal them, and place them in a box we have there with 200 pigeon holes in it, that we call our payroll box."

"While I was so occupied with Mr. Schiff in filling the envelopes, a young man named Wright who had helped us out in the office as clerk during the past week came in and I paid him in cash, as Mr. Schiff had neglected to put his name on the payroll. I just made out a ticket and put it in the payroll box, not the cash box, and continued in the office with Mr. Schiff, taking all the envelopes that were due the help that had worked from April 18 to April 24, inclusive, to pay them through the window in Mr. Schiff's office. There is a little window built in the wall. I had one side in my office, checking over the amount of money which had been left there.

"This amount should have been equal to the amount loaned out in advance to the help. I took a ticket out when we were filling the envelopes in checking this amount there. As near as I recollect it, it was about $15.

COULD NOT LOCATE SHORTAGE.

"I noticed a shortage of about $120, or something over a dollar, at any rate, and I kept checking to see if I could find the shortage in the various deductions which had been made, but I could not locate it that evening, after the help had been paid off, during which time I stayed in my office. No one came into my office and asked me for the envelope or for an envelope of any other party.

"After the paying off of the help had taken place Mr. Schiff returned and handed me the envelopes which were left over, bound with an elastic band, and I put them in the cash compartment, which is different from the cash box, the key to which is kept in my cash box, and placed them in the safe, and Mr. Schiff placed the amounts in the box, and placed the box in the safe and left them.

"I placed in the time clock slips which were to be used the next day. I took the two time slips dated April 25, which had been used by the help on Friday, April 25—these are the two that I put in the slot (exhibiting the same to the jury).

SAYS SLIPS WERE DATED AHEAD.

"Gentlemen, as I was saying, these two slips dated April 25, 1936, written on the bottom are the two slips I put in the clock on the evening of Friday, April 25, to be used on the day following, which, of course, was April 26.

"I neglected to mention also, in going over my duties at the factory, that Mr. Darley was superintendent of his and managed the help and distribute the help throughout the plant, and to discharge the help in case it was necessary. It was also due to him whether or not the wages were raised or not.

"In other words, he was the man that came directly in contact with the help. Moreover, he saw that the goods progressed through the plant, without stoppage, and engaged and economically for their manufacture.

"On Friday evening I got home at about 6:30, had my supper, washed up, and went to bed at a friend's home in the evening. My wife and I returned home and retired about 11 o'clock.

AROSE EARLY ON DAY OF MURDER.

"On Saturday, April 26, I rose between 7 and 7:30 and leisurely washed and dressed and ate my breakfast, and caught a Washington street or Georgia avenue car, I don't really remember which, and that the price of the car was $2.00.

"Upon my arrival at the factory I found Mr. Libby, who was at that time shipping clerk, about the work he was going to do that morning.

"According to my recollection, we did no shipping that day, owing to the fact that the freight offices were not receiving any shipments, due to the fact that it was a holiday.

"I returned to my office and looked through the papers and sorted out those which I was going to take over on my usual trip to the general manager's office that morning.

EXHIBITS INVOICES TO THE JURY.

"I then turned to the invoice covering shipments which were made by the plant on Thursday, April 23, and which were typewritten on Friday, April 25, by Miss Eubanks, who was the stenographer who stayed at my office. She had hurried through with the office work on the day previous, so that she could go home and spend the holiday in the country where she lived. But I didn't get to check over the invoices on the day that Mr. Schiff and myself were completely occupied with Mr. Schiff, my assistant, to the Atlanta National bank, where I had the checks cashed.

"After finishing the financial sheet, I folded the large sheet and addressed it to Mr. Sig Montag. I then took up the checking up of the cash and balancing of the cash book. I did that work, as near as I remember, between 3:30 and 5 minutes to 6 o'clock. It did not take me more than a half hour, and it in about 25 minutes. There was $306.54. There couldn't have been any more. It was mostly in small change, there was one loan to Mr. White, making the total amount of cash $288.50.

"Beginning that week, we had $39.35 as a balance. We drew two checks of $15 each—I mean by that that we drew from Mr. Montag's office and had him to draw the checks. The total amount of money we had to account for was $69.25. What it was spent for, of course, is shown on the debit side."

"I found at the end a shortage of $4.34 coming about in payrolls within the last three months."

TAKES DRINK OF WATER.

"At this point Frank paused to take a drink of water, having been talking for 2 hours and 30 minutes.

"I finished this work I have just outlined," he continued, "at 5 minutes to 6 o'clock. I took those slips about 10 o'clock. They were put into the clock because no one was coming into the office until Monday.

"Newt Lee's punches on Monday night would appear on the strip placed on the clock Monday night. Just before I left I put a new tape in the clock, and Mr. Newt Lee punched it. Then he went on down stairs to wait and let me out.

"As I started out of the factory I saw Newt Lee talking to a man named Dan Gant who had been released about two weeks before. I gave them permission to go into the factory and get Gant's shoes, which he said were left there, and I told Newt Lee to go with them.

"I reached home at about 8:25 o'clock and at 8:30, thinking Newt Lee would be near the clock, called him over the phone to see if he was getting all right. I could not get him. I called again at 9 o'clock and again at 7:30. At that time I got him and he told me everything was all right and that Newt Lee's parents-in-law had company at the home. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Marcus, Mrs. Gold, Mrs. M. Marx, Mrs. A. B. Marx, Mr. Ike Strauss—who came in at about 10 o'clock. I read a magazine until about 10:30 and then retired."

As I walked down Whitehall street I met Miss Rebecca Carson. This was probably 3:10 or 3:15 o'clock. I greeted her and walked on. I stopped at the basement and walked on. I went from there to the factory.

Advised Fore He Had Returned.

"When I reached there I went upstairs and let the boys know I had returned. A minute later, I returned to my office and started to work on the financial sheet.

"In a few minutes the clock bell rang and Mr. White came into the office to borrow two dollars. It was while I was at work on the sheet at probably 4 o'clock that I went to the toilet.

"As I returned toward the office, I noticed Newt Lee coming toward me from the head of the stairs. I told him he could go on off, but to be sure and hand back a pencil. I told him I was sorry I could not let him know about the half holiday, but that he was at liberty to enjoy himself as he saw fit, but that he must not fail to return the pencil.

"The first night that Newt Lee came to work at the factory I took him over the building, and stressed the fact that the must go into the basement, especially the dirt bin, every half hour.

"I told him it would be part of his duties to watch the back door. He was to make a complete tour every half hour and punch the clock.

Did Not Typewrite It.

"Now, beside the making of this large sheet here and the financial sheet, there are three other sheets that I made out. Now, I want to call your attention to the fact that I did not typewrite it. I merely filled in the blanks. I have several of them typewritten and keep them in my desk.

"In addition to that I make out two copies of the sheet showing the principal figures. They are sufficient for a director or stockholder to see what the factory is doing.

"One of these statements I mailed to Mr. Sig Montag, who is president of the company, and the other to Oscar Pappenheimer, who was a director.

"I put one in an envelope and addressed it to Mr. Oscar Pappenheimer; the other I sent to my uncle along with a price list, and I wrote him this letter:

"This price list is too long for an ordinary envelope, hence the large envelope.

move Saturday night, I retired Saturday night, and on Monday morning about 7 o'clock I was awakened by the telephone ringing and a man's voice which I afterwards found out to be Detective Starnes, said: "I want you to come down to the factory. What is the trouble?" I asked. "Has there been a fire?" No, he said. "A tragedy has occurred," I said. "All right," and he said he would send an auto.

"They came before I finished dressing. At this point I differ with the detectives, Black and Starnes, about where the conversation took place. They say it was after we were in the machinery and it was before we left the house, before my wife. At any rate, here is what was said: "They asked me if I knew Mary Phagan. I answered that I did not. They asked me if I did not pay off a little girl with long hair down her back the afternoon before. I said I did. They said they wanted me to go to the undertaking establishment to see if I could identify the body. They made the trip to the undertaking establishment very quickly. I went in and stood in the doorway. The attendant removed the sheet from the little girl's face and turned the head toward me. His finger was right by the cut on the head. I noticed her nostrils were filled with dirt and cinders and there were several discolored spots on the face and neck. I went around her neck, the kind we used in the pencil factory. I said it looked like a little girl that came to the factory the day before. They had already noted that it was Mary Phagan. We went to the factory and by examining the payroll, I found that Mary Phagan had drawn her pay the day before and that the amount was $1.20.

Saw Darley Going In.

"As we went into the factory I noticed Mr. Darley going in. We went to the office and found Mr. Lee in the custody of the officers. They told me they wanted to go down into the basement. I got the elevator key, but when I tried to start the elevator machinery it would not start. I told Mr. Darley to see if he could start it.

"He started the car, and when we got further down I found that one of the chains had slipped. They showed me where the body was found. I saw the shoe was found and pointed out everything that was at that time known. After looking about the basement we got some nails and a hammer. Mr. Darley picked up the back door. Back upstairs Mr. Darley, Chief Lanford and myself went on a tour of inspection of the three upper floors. We went through the main room, the metal room that had figured so prominently in the trial, and neither Mr. Darley nor myself noticed anything particular on that floor. Nor did Sergeant Lanford, chief of the Atlanta detective force.

"I saw Mr. Darley go into the office to borrow two dollars. It was while I was at work on the sheet at probably 4 o'clock that I went to the toilet.

"As I returned toward the office, I noticed Newt Lee coming toward me from the head of the stairs. I told him he could go on off, but to be sure and hand back a pencil. them until he wrapped them about his fingers several times.

Care Given to Factory.

"Now, gentlemen, if there is one thing about that factory, after my seven years in charge of the place, it is the care that I have given it. I saw drawing compound on the floors, metal and tools. Opposite the dress-ink room there is a scrap barrel. Fluid I put in the barrel will naturally flow on the floor. There is a great deal of lubricant used on the machinery, and naturally, it has formed a cake from a half inch to an inch around the machine.

"All of the accidents that occur in the factory are the result of the carelessness of the injured employee in incapacitated. There are many who cut their fingers, but such accidents are not reported. When they cut their fingers, they make a few days. I saw a drawing compound on the floors, metal and tools. Opposite the dress-ink room there is a scrap barrel. Fluid I put in the barrel will naturally flow on the floor. There is a great deal of lubricant used on the machinery, and naturally, it has formed a cake from a half inch to an inch around the machine.

Gave Scott All Details.

"I gave Scott all the details I had, including Mrs. White's story that she saw a negro lurking near the elevator. I showed Scott all through the building. I took him into the metal room and showed him the table and the lathe.

"Then we went on the fourth floor and looked around, going next to the basement. We made a few days. Scott went back to headquarters, and after explaining to me that it was the custom of the agency to work with city detectives on such cases, I went home and had supper. My wife and I later retired.

"On Tuesday I arose at 8:10, and arrived at the factory at 8:30. At 8:30 I went to Montag Brothers and had suits and a conversation returned to Mr. Jordan to the pencil factory. I did some routine work, putting papers away. Scott came down and took me to police headquarters in an automobile.

I answered willingly all of Chief Lanford's questions. About that time Black and Scott came in with a bunch of notes that they had picked up, like the sample which they showed me. Newt Lee was brought in, and they asked him. Lee said that he had once possessed a shirt like it. I sat in the office until 11 o'clock.

"When Mr. Rosser later came in and told me that Beavers had decided that it would be best to detain me, Detective Starnes came in and dictated to me one of the notes to get a sample of my handwriting. I wrote as Starnes dictated. Starnes spelled out each word. When I was through I put a date on it so that I might identify it and to prevent any erasures being made.

"I was glad, as you can see, to let them compare my handwriting with the notes.

Conference With Frank.

"Now, about midnight Tuesday Scott and Black came in and said, 'Mr. Frank, we want to talk to you a little bit.' They stressed the belief that possibly the stenographer had copies of the factory. I told them that I didn't know of such a practice, and that I knew of any such conduct I certainly would have stopped it.

"When Detective Black said, 'You are Lee's boss. We can't get him to talk, and want you to see what you can get out of him. Tell him, and tell him strong, that he had better open up and tell the truth, or we will both go to hell." I said I would do what I could. They brought Lee in and handcuffed him to a chair. I said, "Lee, do you know anything about that murder? If you do, tell the truth, or we will both go to hell." Lee replied, "Lord God, boss, I don't know a thing."

"Now, that was my first insight into the third degree practiced down at police headquarters. They put Lee through it and he shrieked and cried. Let us look into the charge that they have made that I would not see Jim Conley. I went to the undertaking establishment voluntarily and then I went to the station house. There I answered every question they asked. I went again Tuesday and answered all I was asked, agreeing to speak to Lee alone."

"What was the result?"

Distorted My Meaning.

"They put words into my mouth that I never uttered, and so distorted my meaning that I decided that if that was the sort of treatment they were going to give me, it would be best to wash my hands of them. Black came to me and said that he had a suspicion that Darley had something to do with the murder, asking me what I knew about him."

"I told Black that he had come to the wrong person. Darley is the soul of honor. Black walked away, saying to Scott: 'Come on, Scott; you can't get anything—there's nothing doing.' Now, about the charge that I did not say anything about Conley's ability to write. I want to say that I told the detectives that Conley could write, because I received too many notes from him asking for money loans. I told them to go look in the drawer of the safe and that they would find a note with the address of the jeweler who sold Conley a watch. 'Gentlemen, the person who paved the way to developing the fact that Conley could write is sitting in this chair (pointing to the chair in which he was seated)."

This Charge Is False.

"About the charge that my wife did not come to see me, it is all false. She did visit me and she was willing to share the cell with me, but I did not want to subject her to the embarrassment and annoyance which would be the natural consequence. I wanted to save her from snap-shooters and detectives. I consulted Rabbi Marx and he advised me that it would be best for her not to stay with me. 'I never saw Conley in the factory on that date. The statement of Dalley about him bringing Daisy Hopkins into my office is false. I never peered into the girls' dressing rooms, as Irene Jackson testifies. It is nothing about the safe and in which the girls changed their garments. I had heard that girls flirted from the window and I wanted to break up the practice. 'I never looked into that room at any time when I had reason to suspect that girls were dressing or undressing therein. The employees are supposed to be through undressing at 7 o'clock in the morning. Conley's Statement a Lie.

"Conley's statement is a lie from first to last. The statement that women came into my office is infamous, and the statement that he saw me in that unspeakable position with a lie so vile and vicious that I have not the language with which to denounce it. 'Some of the newspaper men have referred to me as the silent man of the Tower. Yes, I was silent. Silent under advice. This is the time and this is the place. Gentlemen, I have told the truth, the whole truth. With which he quit the stand. Resuming his seat, Frank's wife reached out before he fairly settled into his chair, threw her arms around his neck, sobbing: 'Oh, Leo! Oh, Leo!' Her sobs could be heard throughout the courtroom. His mother, Mrs. Rea Frank, seated in the rear, fell upon the accused man's shoulders, weeping unreservedly. The jury filed past, each man at his turn throwing a sidelong glance at the trio. Friends formed around Frank, and veritably shook him from the embrace of his wife and mother, showering him with a flood of cordial handshakes. Frank, evidently to hide emotion which certainly must have swayed him, beckoned Sheriff Mangum and they hurriedly left the courtroom.

FRANK'S CHARACTER IS TESTIFIED TO BY LONG LIST OF GIRLS

Numbers of girls and women, either now employed or formerly employed at the National Pencil factory, were placed on the stand Monday by the defense to swear to the good character of Superintendent Leo M. Frank. The following, 21 in all, declared Frank's character good: Miss M. E. Fleming, Miss Annie Howell, Miss Lillie May Goodman, Miss Clara Coward, Miss Jimmy Maxwell, Miss B. D. Smith, Miss Lizzie Word, Miss Ida Holmes, Miss Willie Harber, Miss Mary Hatcher, Miss Olive Johns, Mrs. Georgia Denham, Miss Besse White, Mrs. Lizzie Florence, Miss Jennie Spivey, Mrs. Annie Smith, Miss Grace Atherton, Miss Martha McCord, Miss Lena McMurry, and Mrs. W. R. Johnson. Mrs. Mary Bolton, Miss Velvie Holland and Miss Ethel Barber declared that they did not know anything about Frank's character.

MIDDLE-AGED WOMAN TELLS OF FLIRTING OF FACTORY GIRLS

Mrs. Mattie Thompson, a woman of over middle age and an employee of the factory, was among those put on the stand to testify to Leo Frank's character and also about the alleged flirting carried on by some of the girls from the windows of the dressing rooms. She said that she did not know the names of any of them and had never seen any of them in the act of carrying on a flirtation, but that it had been talked of in the factory and she and some of the other elderly ladies had reported it to N. V. Darley, assistant superintendent. She said Frank's character was good. On cross-examination Mr. Dorsey drew from her the statement that she had been talked to by Attorney Hubert Haas, assisting in the Frank defense, just a short while before she took the stand.

Conflicting Statements Made By Frank's Former Stenographer

"Do you see the financial sheet when you see it?" asked the solicitor as though his purpose was to show that the witness would not know a financial sheet from an order book. "I certainly have seen it often enough, and I do know it when I see it. 'Well, you also said you left the factory at 1 o'clock on Saturdays?' 'I did.' 'Then you saw Frank making out the financial sheet on Saturday mornings?' said the solicitor. 'No,' the witness replied. 'You said you saw him making it out?' 'I never said that,' replied the witness. 'You said you saw him making out the financial sheet at times, and you also said you left there at 1 o'clock on Saturdays, now can you tell the jury how it was that the sheet was made up on Saturday but not at any other time on Saturday but in the morning?' 'I never saw Mr. Frank working in the financial sheet,' the witness contended. The solicitor called for the office stenographer to read from her testimony. The part in which the witness said she had seen Frank working on the sheet was read to the jury. Miss Fleming then stated that she had not meant to say that she had ever seen Frank at work on the financial sheet, and that if she had said it she meant that she had only seen him do a little work on the sheet. Miss Fleming was distinctly confused after she finished, and the solicitor told her she might leave the stand.

Mrs. Wardlaw Denies Ever Seeing Frank on Car With Little Girl

When Mrs. J. G. Wardlaw, a bride of three weeks, who was Miss Lula McDonald, recently worked at the National Pencil factory, was on the stand, Solicitor Hugh Dorsey sought to draw from her the statement that she knew that on the Saturday previous to Mary Phagan's murder that Leo Frank had carried a little girl out on the Hapeville car line and tried to get her to leave the car with him at various stops. He also tried to get the witness to say that she knew that on this occasion H. M. Baker and Herndon Stanton, the street car men in charge of the car, had noted the man's actions. Mrs. Wardlaw declared she had no knowledge of anything like that and she declared that she had never even seen the girl or the man. She was then excused.

BOOKS AND PAPERS PUT IN EVIDENCE BY THE DEFENSE

Just before the close of the morning session the defense began putting in evidence various books and papers shown from time to time during the trial. The first thing put up was the pastboard model of the National Pencil factory. No objection was made to this by the state and Attorney Reuben Arnold explained that the model needs slight repairs, as during a "discrepancy" between two gentlemen in the anteroom one of them had been knocked through the elevator shaft, much to the hurt of the shaft. After offering the pastboard model Mr. Arnold put in evidence without objection from the state the following: all financial sheets of the factory from January 10 to April 24, 1913, and the sheets and data from which they are compiled; the letter which is claimed Leo Frank wrote to his uncle, Moses Frank, in Brooklyn on Memorial day, the record of orders received by a Frank's handwriting; ten copy letters which Miss Hall swore Frank dictated to her on the morning of the day of the murder; page 195 of the cash book of the National Pencil company, dating from April 21 to 24; specimens of handwriting by Dr. H. T. Hancock; the four affidavits made by Jim Conley, on May 18, 24, 28 and 29 respectively; the reports of the various convicting witnesses to Frank's alleged misconduct with women in his office. Next the defense offered certified copies of indictments said to be pending now against Dalton in Walton county for selling liquor to negroes. Solicitor Dorsey got these certified out on the ground that an indictment does not necessarily mean anything. The following documentary evidence was submitted by the defense at the close of the morning session and accepted by the court: That part of New Lee's testimony at the coroner's inquest in which he describes Frank's meeting with Gantt at the pencil factory. That part of Harry Scott's testimony at the inquest which states the accused man did not tell him anything of Gantt being intimate with Mary Phagan. The reports of the Pinkerton detective agency pertaining to the first interview with the accused man. The proceedings under which Jim Conley was released from the Tower and transferred to police headquarters. That part of New Lee's testimony at inquest relating to his discovery of the body. That part of Lee's testimony at inquest pertaining to Frank's removal of time-clock slips. Photographs of the Selig home, plans of the structure and block in which it is situated, plans of the pencil factory and photographs of the building, twenty-five in all.

MANY MEN SWEAR TO THEIR BELIEF IN FRANK'S CHARACTER

A number of men were called to the stand Monday evening by the defense. Some of them were factory employees in various positions who swore to the good character of the superintendent and others were asked various questions on particular points. Charlie Lee, known to local fight fans, was a witness to Frank's good character. Rabbi David Marx was called by the defense to explain the Ethel Britz society, of which Leo Frank is local president. He had got as far as the declaration that it is an international Jewish organization when Solicitor Dorsey made the point that the subject was immaterial. Judge Roan sustained him and Dr. Marx was excused from the stand. R. P. Butler, a shipping clerk at the factory, was used to show the dimensions of the doors to Frank's office and also that glass windows were made in the doors to the office on Saturday afternoon and had never seen anything out of the way. Sig Montag, general manager of the National Pencil company, N. V. Darley, head of one of the subsidiary plants, Nightwatchman Holloway and F. Zigank, an employee in the metal room, were later put on the stand as character witnesses. All swore that Frank had a good character. Leo Castro, erstwhile shortstop of the Atlanta baseball team in the palmy days when gonorrhea flew over Poncey park, and since manager of various minor league clubs, followed Harlee Branch to the stand. The baseball player had walked from several corners to the factory and timed himself in an effort for the defense to show the time necessary for Mary Phagan to have gone to the factory from either of the points where the car was left. He also timed himself on several walks Frank claims to have taken that day. Godfrey Wittecoff, superintendent of the lead plant of the National Pencil factory, swore on the stand that he had frequently been to the office on Saturday afternoon and had never seen anything out of the way. Next Montag, general manager of the National Pencil company, N. V. Darley, head of one of the subsidiary plants, Nightwatchman Holloway and F. Zigank, an employee in the metal room, were later put on the stand as character witnesses. All swore that Frank had a good character. NO TRACE IS FOUND OF FLEEING THAW ence to this plan, Mrs. Thaw purposes to start for Cresson tomorrow morning. Mother of Thaw Joys.

Happy, girlish almost in her joy, Mrs. Thaw exhibited the heavily scrawled note from the son whose escapades have cost the family a million and added that whatever Harry did would meet with her approval. This, in view of his announced intention of seeking the warrant to be issued to have the belief that Thaw was preparing to take his case before the courts of that state and relying on the kink in American laws relative to the insane charged with no more to oppose extradition and duplicate in Pennsylvania if possible the course of John Armstrong Chaloner in Virginia. It was in anticipation of such a move that the New York authorities had been exhibiting the heavily scrawled note from the son who was out at Poughkeepsie. Conspiracy, according to the district attorney of Dutchess county, constitutes an extraditable offense. Close associates in the family indicated tonight that the ground work of a legal fight in Pennsylvania had already been laid. Dr. Britton D. Evans, the alienist who testified in Thaw's behalf at the murder trials, held a preliminary conference with Thaw this afternoon and it was said that he would accompany her to Pennsylvania tomorrow. There are to be conferences with counsel and meantime it is understood Thaw is to remain in hiding. Thaw Just Left Dust Cloud.

Figuratively as well as literally, Thaw left behind him only a cloud of dust county dust. Rumors of his passage, descriptions of black automobiles, tales of yacht boarding in Long Island sound, speckled the day's news. The yacht Endymion of George Lauder, Jr., a distant relative of the Thaws by marriage, found mention in

GLYNN DECLARED N. Y. GOVERNOR

Opinion Given by Attorney General of State—Assembly Didn't Exceed Its Power in Impeaching Sulzer.

Albany, N. Y., August 18.—Lieutenant Governor Martin H. Glynn is the lawful chief executive of New York state pending the outcome of impeachment proceedings against Governor Sulzer, according to an official opinion handed down today by Attorney General Thomas Carmody to Secretary of State Mitchell May. Mr. Carmody holds that the assembly was within its rights in instituting impeachment proceedings at an extraordinary session. Opinion Against Sulzer.

"When the governor is impeached by the assembly," says the opinion, "all of his powers are automatically suspended until he has been acquitted or the impeachment proceedings dismissed by the court of impeachment. In the meantime the lieutenant governor acts as governor. This is the plain intent of the constitution. Any other construction would nullify its express provision. With reference to the authority of the assembly to impeach the governor, the attorney general says: 'It is my opinion that if the assembly was not assembled, either in extraordinary or regular session, it might assemble itself and proceed to the discharge of its governmental duties. Otherwise the governor of the state could prevent the impeachment of himself and his friends in office for crimes, however great, after the adjournment of the regular session of the legislature, by the simple process of omitting to call the legislature in session.' Neither Governor Sulzer, Lieutenant Governor Glynn or their counsel would dispute the attorney general's opinion tonight. Sulzer the Whole Board.

The activities of the rival gubernatorial camps during the day centered largely on the escape of Harry K. Thaw from Matteawan and the meeting of the public building board to open bids for reconstruction work in the capitol. The bids for capitol construction were opened in Mr. Sulzer's presence by Chester C. Platt, secretary of the board, an opinion having been rendered by the attorney general that such action met legal requirements. Although one of the points Governor Sulzer has raised respecting the legislature is that it had no right to conduct any business whatever in the absence of a quorum, he was the only member present at this board meeting and conducted the entire proceedings. The expected meeting in this connection of Mr. Glynn as acting governor, and Speaker Smith of the assembly did not occur. Mr. Glynn declined to say whether a date had been appointed for such a meeting, adding that it made little difference, as a considerable time must elapse before contracts can be awarded. During the day he signed several official documents. The crop of rumors. After having left Vineyard Haven, Mass., the craft was reported as cruising somewhere in the sound, possibly not far from South Norwalk. Captain repeatedly mentioned as an objective point for Thaw had been cared to take to sea. Inquiry at the New York Yacht club disclosed that the Endymion was a slow boat and attaches there scouted the idea that Thaw would have gone aboard. While there was nothing to support the theory that Thaw had taken to the sea, this seemed to those who have followed the case to be the likeliest course. Leaving Matteawan by the routes which had been traced back into New York state lay open to him. One lay north by land to Canada, thence southwest along the border of the great lakes and across Lake Erie to a north jutting abutment of Pennsylvania. The other was the water route. Aboard ship in the sea Thaw could bid his time in comparative safety and make his way to Philadelphia via the Delaware river and Delaware bay. Searching for Thaw's Assistants.

Second only to the search for Thaw is the search for Richard Butler, Roger Thompson, Michael O'Keefe, Eugene Duffy and Thomas Flood, the quintet whose muscle, nerve and skill with automobiles did the stop-watch work outside the asylum walls. These five are the "rough work" which was the brains of the plot—whether Thaw himself or some astute lawyer—will have to be developed later. The description of Butler tallies closely with that of an ex-assemblyman by the same name from New York city. William Gordon, proprietor of the little hotel at Flahkill Landing, where the five made their headquarters for two days prior to Thaw's escape, identified tonight a photograph of the ex-assemblyman as one of his late guests. The clerk of the hotel here him out. In New York trace was found of a Butler of the same initials, familiarly known as "Hooks," said of late to have operated taxicabs and formerly to have been a longshoreman. Ex-assemblyman Butler is said to have been identified with the longshoremen's union. Mrs. Butler said tonight that her husband was absent from home from Friday afternoon until Sunday last. She did not know where he had gone. H. Finken, who conducts a transfer service, said that he not only knows Butler, but Thompson, O'Keefe, Duffy and Flood, all of whom he described as shrewds. "I have been handling the baggage of the Thaw family for fifteen years," the transfer man is quoted as saying. "I know Mrs. Thaw and other members of the family. Last Friday a man I know very well but whose name I wouldn't give upon my life, appeared down here at the West Forty-second street, in a big touring car. This man not going to say how he knew this, but I know that the man and he wanted five good automobile men to go up to Matteawan on a hunting trip. I was not saying anything, but he met Richard J. Butler, known around here as 'Hooks Butler' because he was once a longshoreman; Eugene Duffy, Michael O'Keefe, Tom Flood and Roger Thompson, all chauffeurs. He talked with those fellows and they went away with him and haven't been back since. 'Now, I am not going to say how came out, but Butler and Thompson and Flood and the other boys never sooner gone away than it became known around here that they were going to get Harry Thaw out. The fact of the matter is that I don't know any more than all the auto boys around here know, and they knew it was coming off before it happened.' Thaw Planned On Escape.

WARRANTS ARE ISSUED FOR THAW AND FRIENDS

Poughkeepsie, N. Y., August 18.—If Harry K. Thaw has not left the country he will be arrested on a warrant charging him with conspiracy and returned to the Matteawan state hospital for the criminal insane. Action with this end in view was taken in a special term of the supreme court here this afternoon when Justice Joseph Morsehauser issued a warrant for the arrest of Thaw, charging him with conspiracy with Keeper Howard Barnum and five other men in making his escape from Matteawan. Similar warrants were also issued for Richard J. Butler, Roger Thompson, Michael O'Keefe, Eugene Duffy and Thomas Flood. Thaw's alleged accomplices—Keeper Barnum, the guard who opened the hospital gate when Thaw escaped, has been held without bail for examination Thursday. Justice Morsehauser issued the warrants for Thaw and his five alleged accomplices after taking the evidence of several witnesses this afternoon. District Attorney Conroy claims conspiracy is an extraditable charge and that Thaw can be brought back to Dutchess county, no matter to what state he fled. Armed with the warrants, Sheriff Hornbeck and his deputies left hurriedly tonight for the alleged part of the conspiracy. The sheriff made it known he had received a clue which he expected to lead to the arrest of the five accomplices. THAW SAFE IN JERSEY. SAYS DR. B. D. EVANS

New York, August 18.—Dr. Britton E. D. Evans, medical director of the New Jersey state hospital at Morris Plains, intimated late tonight after having held a conference with Mrs. Mary Thaw, that Thaw was out of his cell at the Morris Plains asylum. "He wasn't there when I left and I don't expect to see him there when I get back," said Dr. Evans, evasively. "Has he been there?" he was asked. "I refuse to discuss it," said the doctor. "He would be perfectly safe there," he added, "and I have so assured Mrs. Thaw. Moreover, he would be safe in my opinion he would be as safe in New Jersey as in New Zealand." The doctor expressed his belief that no one could extradite a man for a disease, but hastily added that he was sure Thaw "could make good." As to extradition under similar circumstances he said he had had hundreds of cases in his experience where persons adjudged insane had gone into another state and were never extradited. It is understood that Dr. Evans will accompany Mrs. Thaw to her country place at Cresson, Pa., tomorrow.

Income Tax for Roads.

Washington, August 18.—Senator Dillingham, of Vermont, today proposed an amendment to the tariff bill to spend the proceeds of the income tax on good roads. Each state would appropriate an amount equal to its share of the income tax. Governor Bleasw was appealed to late tonight to call out the militia to protect Fair. He refused, but announced that he would order a special term of court to try the negro.

Several charges of dynamite were exploded late tonight by the mob in an effort to enter the jail. After they had blown down a portion of the outer wall, they were impressed by the show of strength inside the jail and retired, but threats were made to return later with dynamite which they proposed to obtain from a railroad construction camp. Hundreds of pistol and rifle shots were fired when the dynamite was let off, but so far as can be learned, no others were injured.

HEAD PERFECTLY BALD WITH ECZEMA

Side of Face Almost Solid Sore, First Rash, Then Water Pimples, Itched and Burned Badly. Cuticura Soap and Ointment Soon Cured.

B. F. D. No. 8, Maryville, Tenn.—"My baby, when three months old, took eczema on his face and head. His head and one side of his face were almost in a solid sore. The eczema at first was kind of a rash and then it broke out in water pimples and they would burst and look very badly. It would itch and burn so badly that he could not rest at all and his hair just all fell out at once till his head was perfectly bald. He could not sleep at night and was very cross. 'I tried _____ and other remedies without any relief at all; he only got worse all the time until I used Cuticura Soap and Ointment. He had great relief the first application. The first night my baby cried fine and was cross no more. I would rub him with the Cuticura Soap and then apply the Cuticura Ointment twice a day, morning and night. He was soon cured and his hair began to grow back and now he has just beautiful hair and has no sign of eczema." (Signed) Mrs. H. D. Clabough, Jan. 28, 1913.

For treating poor complexions, red, rough hands, and dry, thin and falling hair, Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment have been the world's favorites for more than a generation. HARLEE BRANCH TELLS OF CONLEY PANTOMINE Harlee Branch, a newspaper man who was present when James Conley, the negro sweeper of the National Pencil factory, went through for the police a pantomime of what he claims occurred on the day of the murder when he says he aided Leo Frank in hiding the body of Mary Phagan, was the first witness called to the stand Monday morning. Mr. Branch had been on the stand Saturday, but had not finished his testimony when court adjourned. Through his statements as to the time, Attorney Reuben Arnold drew the conclusion that 49 minutes must have elapsed while Conley was enacting the motions through which he claims to have gone with Frank.

FOREIGN BEEF.

Some criticism has met the action of the department of agriculture in sending Dr. A. D. Melvin and Edward C. Joss, of the bureau of animal industry, to Argentina and Australia to investigate beef production in those countries.

It is difficult to see the justification for such criticism. This action of the department is not, as has been supposed, an attempt to encourage foreign importations, but to safeguard such shipments as will be made under the new tariff law.

Undoubtedly advantage will be taken by foreign countries of the new law which admits cattle and meat products free of duty. But it is feared many foreign shipments will not come up to the high standard fixed by the meat inspection laws of the United States, which are much more rigid than those of other countries.

Secretary Houston, in the effort to prevent confusion and the condemnation of large meat shipments, with the bad feeling which would be engendered had wisely foreseen these difficulties, and seeks to disseminate information as to America's requirements.

The department of agriculture will cooperate with the treasury department in keeping out meats from diseased animals, and that prepared improperly and in insanitary packing houses.

Failure of southern farmers to raise enough meat supplies for their own use and for sale is expected to encourage foreign importations. Secretary Houston, in discussing this point, says:

"The work for tick eradication in single states of the south has increased the annual value of cattle output more than $2,000,000 for a few counties alone. It is hoped that when greater headway has been made against these plagues the deficiency in cat-tle production will be overcome, and an actual increase to meet the population will be obtained. In the meanwhile, however, with the demand for meat greater than the domestic supply, it is only a question of time when economic law will cause foreign shippers to seek a market in the United States."

The southern farmer who raises a few beef cattle and a dozen head of hogs will have no reason to complain of competition from Argentina or Australia.

A NEWSPAPER FEAT!

Mr. M. H. de Young, the owner and manager of The San Francisco Chronicle, has absorbed his republican morning rival, The Call, and henceforth the morning newspaper field in the city by the Golden Gate will be occupied by The Chronicle, Call and The Examiner.

The success of Mr. de Young in the newspaper field has been inspiring and he has helped to make the fame of many notable literary men on the Pacific coast. The paper is today one of the most influential and forceful journals in the west.

Mark Twain made his headquarters in The Chronicle office, and wrote there his famous Carson Appeal letters. Stories that were destined to make Bret Harte famous appeared first in The Chronicle. Prentiss Mulford, who wrote under the nom de plume of "Dogberry," and Charles E. Plurthrup, were contributors. Charles Warren Stoddard circled the world writing letters for The Chronicle. Other contributors were W. A. Kendall and Mrs. Washington Wright, who wrote under the pen name of "Topsy Turvy," and Edward Townsend, who originated "Chimmie Fadden."

The Call was founded in 1856, nine years before The Chronicle, but under the ownership of John D. Spreckles, has not been a money-maker. That the new Chronicle will continue to expand in influence and power is assured.

FOSS' LAST FLOP.

Governor Eugene N. Foss of Massachusetts, one time republican, then democratic representative in congress and later democratic governor of Massachusetts, has again turned republican.

The tariff is at the bottom of Mr. Foss' latest change of faith. He is imbued with the New England idea of tariff revision, which is high protection on manufactured goods and low duties, or none at all, on raw materials the manufacturer uses. He also favors free food products for industrial communities.

Recently Governor Foss started his party colleagues by declaring that he would move one of his plants to Canada because of the pending tariff bill. Just how this move nearer the Canadian market, and made to escape the payment of Canadian duties, was a blow at the Underwood-Simmons tariff bill, he did not satisfactorily explain. There was something in his statement of the case about reciprocity, but it was not clear.

Mr. Foss has now gone over lock, stock, and factory, to the republicans and will again fraternize with his brother, George Edmund Foss, formerly republican representative from the Tenth Illinois.

While critics of the democratic tariff bill were predicting that American factories would move abroad, an unexpected defender appeared in Germany in Dr. Schweighofer, secretary of the Central League of German manufacturers.

This advocate of high protection for Germany sees in the lowering of American import duties the rejuvenation of American industries and a more determined campaign for foreign trade.

In his own country there is at present a widespread and growing demand for the reduction or abolition of duties on food-stuffs for men and animals, such as the Underwood bill carries. High prices of meat in Germany have become a great evil.

One correspondent relates that last year, owing to the failure of the hay crop of 1911, the national and municipal governments of Germany were forced to import meat and sell it at cost to the poor of the great cities. This course was attacked by the farmers, the government defending its action by the statement that duties were paid at the border and later refunded.

While the United States has undoubtedly entered upon a decidedly new economic policy in reducing protective duties, and free listing breakfast table supplies, the country at large believes it will be successful, and that it will help to lower the cost of living.

THE CIVIL SERVICE.

Despite the change in administration, democratic applicants for places under the federal government are finding themselves brought face to face with a stone wall in the civil service law.

As an illustration, examinations were held in the five larger Georgia cities last Saturday for positions in the internal revenue service. It will probably occasion surprise to know that these places have been covered under the civil service, and that the collector must appoint his assistants from the list of those who have successfully passed the required examination.

Under the new tariff law the work of the internal revenue service will be greatly enlarged to include the collection of income taxes. At present one-third of the receipts of the government are derived from internal revenues. The figures for the last fiscal year were $344,424,453. This will be increased by approximately $100,000,000 by income taxes.

To handle this large volume of business requires honest, efficient and capable men, and the merit system has been extended to control their selection.

For the past sixteen years democrats have hesitated to qualify themselves under the civil service, believing that they would not be given a fair showing under a republican administration. There is now no ground for such apprehension.

The spoils system has been abolished, and regardless of delinquencies in the administration of the civil service laws, it is a good thing for the country.

NEW YORK'S EXCISE LAW.

New York has been contributing a mirth-provoking farce for the amusement of the country during the dog days. Mayor Gaynor and District Attorney Whitman are at odds over the interpretation of the excise law. The practical results are ludicrous—except to those involved.

Nighly at 1 o'clock the police raided Healey's restaurant, and bundled well-dressed men and women unceremoniously into the street. The police claimed to be acting under the mayor's orders. The district attorney said it was not against the law to eat at 1:05 in the morning, or any other time.

The climax of the farce came when District Attorney Whitman joined the throng of diners one night. Ten thousand persons waited outside to see what would happen. No cabaret could compare in motion and bizarre features with what did happen.

Promptly at 1 o'clock the crowd was roughly thrown out by the police, Mr. Whitman among the others. The mayor claimed the district attorney was "in the midst of and siding with a disorderly crowd." The mayor's statement continues:

"The district attorney investigated this open and forcible resistance to the police. On Wednesday night he went to Healey's with a retinue of trained and brilliant writers to write him up and of flashlight photographers to take his picture in heroic attitude; and at 1 o'clock in the morning joined a mob which had been collected by concert to forcibly resist the police in doing their plain duty."

The mysterious part of the affair is that one particular restaurant should have been chosen for the police raids, when others in the same district were probably keeping open after 1 o'clock.

Just From Georgia

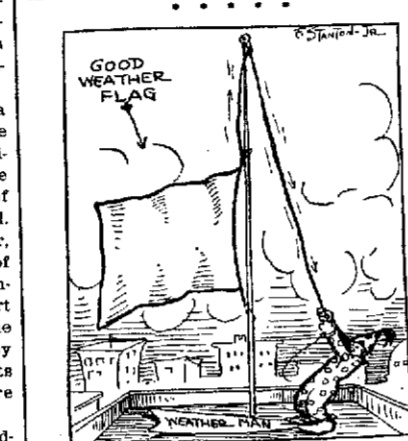

By FRANK L. STANTON

"Pass the Honeycomb!" When them Good Times come along, pass the honeycomb! Hang the sign where all can see: "Walk in! We're at home!"

But we'll never let 'em wait in the rain there, at the gate; Hear us shoutin' o'er the state; "Make yourself at home!" Make 'em jes' so welcome they nevermore will roam; Hang their hat up, with "Hoory!" Glad because they're "Home."

Welcome banners overhead, Plenty on the table spread; Blessings on yer meat 'n bread—"Pass the honeycomb!"

Just Natural Mistakes. Little mistakes will happen in the "make up" when the editor is rushed, thus the editor of The Caboo (Mo.) Enterprise regrets that he "got a portion of an article about Albert Clair's mule in the piece about Mrs. Marcellus' dinner," and now comes the editor of The Adams Enterprise who says he is "mortified to see that the piece he wrote about the decease of a prominent citizen, in which he said: 'He is gone where he is well, should have appeared with an 'h' where the 'w' should have been in the word 'well.' But he assures me that 'mistakes like that sometimes happen in the best regulated newspaper offices.'"

That Trouble pursues us is terrible plain—nothing 'bout which we can brag; Just when the deacons are prayin' for rain up goes the good weather flag! It ain't anything for provokin' a smile—no wonder a feller despair's! Why don't the weather man hold off a while, till Providence answers our prayers? —

The State's Chance. Farewell the legislature—laid high upon the shelf; Sometimes it has to give the state a chance to run itself.

And, without raisin' any row, You bet the old state knows just how!

Now, watch out on the highway, and how you dine and sup, Or 'fore you know some little law will trip a feller up!

But when you have spare time, my son, Show us how YOU the state can run!

No Cause to Quarrel. "How can we find fault with weather which enables us to roast breakfast on the roof and boil eggs in the lake?" asks The Whitest Courier. "Besides all that, if we are really going where the preacher says we are, the heat of the hereafter will come natural to us, and who knows but we may astonish the citizens of that warm locality by coolly baking bread on brimstone!"

Doing Long Time. "How long has it been since they sent him up to congress?" "Twenty years." "The geewillikins! Don't he want to get out?"

The Danger Sign. The poet of The Dalton Citizen, after a vacation in the country, gives this advice: "The bumble bee's a peaceful bird; But take this tip from me: Unless you want your feelings stirred, Just let his 'bumble' be!"

Just Shoes. With "Shoes" for his text the philosopher of The Chanute Tribune delivers the goods as follows:

"Makers of socks rejoice because shoes wear 'em out so quickly. Shoes are loved and ruined by bootblacks; hated by, and newly wedded pairs, and abhorred by young boys. Shoes may be seen anywhere, under beds, on chandeliers, tied to cabs or resting at night and last on in the morning."

A Morning Note. Meet the glad morning on the way; Toss high yer hat and shout "Hoory!" And thank God for another day!

His Work Unfinished. "I've done lost my office of judge of this here justice court," says a Elliville lawyer, "and not more'n one-third o' my enemies are in jail yet!"

Why He "Relapsed." "His sickness was of long duration," says a Georgia weekly exchange, "but he got where he was able to sit up and write a poem, and all might have gone well but for the fact that the editor to whom he sent it was able to return it by the next mail, and that gave him a relapse."

The least part of Huerta's troubles is that they don't pronounce his name right.

Castro has hunted Trouble so long he wouldn't know Joy if he saw him trading a battle-drum for a banjo.

Say what you like of China, she has a statesman who can rule seven wives and the country.

It is probably Ambassador Wilson's busiest day—scanning the "Help Wanted" columns.

Wall street shouldn't worry; the weather is hot enough to roast the fleeced lambs.

It costs some people considerable cash to learn that home is the best place in the world to recover from a nerve-racking vacation.

Report on Liquor Traffic

By Sam W. Small.

The annual report of the commissioner of internal revenue, as noted in the Constitution recently, is replete with some very noteworthy facts, especially with reference to the liquor trade of the nation.

The people who are interested in temperance reform ought to know exactly what those facts mean.

The first item that has attracted the public attention is that the reported "consumption" of spirituous and malt liquors was larger last year by over 7,000,000 gallons than in any other year of our recorded history.

That looks queer to those who know that over half of the people are living under prohibition laws and that seven-tenths of the area of the states is "dry territory." They jump to the conclusion that "prohibition is a failure" and say so with gleeful assurance.

Now let us examine the real conditions and see what the truth is: "Consumption," as used in the government report, does not mean that so many millions of gallons of liquors have been actually sold and drunk by the public. It means the amount of liquor that was withdrawn from government custody.

Take whiskey as an instance. It is over-produced. Last year there were in the bonded warehouses, without a market, 253,755,323 gallons of distilled spirits, the largest on record. The commissioner in his report, said the commission in his report, 8,682,507 gallons of that had exhausted the eight years bonding privilege and had to be withdrawn by operation of law; and so was added to "consumption," though simply transferred from government warehouses to private storage houses.

Today there is enough whiskey in government warehouses to supply the national demand for two and a half years if every distillery were closed down forever on the present instant.

The increase of malt liquors for the year amounted to less than the reported decrease of like liquors in several preceding years, and is accounted for both by immigration of beer drinkers and increased advertising activity by the beer makers in the year.

This year, for the first time in a quarter of a century, the number of retail liquor dealers has fallen below 200,000—and that includes all druggists, hotels and restaurants, clubs, compounders of patent medicines, perfumes, etc. Also there are 600 fewer wholesale dealers this year than last year. The decrease in number of 21,584, being the largest falling off in our history.

In any other industry these figures would be immediately accepted as proof of a tremendous shrinkage of trade. Why not in this case also?

The decreases above noted were almost wholly in states that are "dry" or near dry. The figures of the classes state by state and can furnish the official proof.

Few people seem to know that over one-half of all the retail liquor dealers under the American flag are in six states—New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Illinois, Wisconsin and California! Ten northern and western states contain over two-thirds of the total number.

More than half the brewers are found in five northern states; more than half the retail beer dealers are in eight northern states. The largest consumption of liquors is in the great cities and in those states where licenses are most freely granted throughout their borders. The 1912 year book of the United States Brewers' association, open before me, says the average consumption of all liquor in the prohibition states runs from one gallon to the half gallon to two gallons per capita; in local option states from three to six gallons per capita, and in license states from thirty to sixty-nine gallons per capita; the last named high rate being in Wisconsin.

Really there is nothing in the recent report to cause excitement. Gradually the liquor trade is being driven into close confinement and soon it will be in its last ditch. Meanwhile, "those who always drank now drink the" And few now drink who never drank before!"

The World's Mysteries

THE ADMIRABLE CRICHTON

Are the stories of the Admirable Crichton true? If they are he was no doubt the most precocious young man the world has ever produced, for he was not only the greatest linguist for his age of any age, but likewise the greatest swordsman. The only prototype of such another man is to be found in the wildest of romances. History credits him with having been no marvelous a swordsman, that he could, without assistance, combat successfully with a whole company that attacked him and that at a very youthful age he could dispute successfully with all the most learned men of Europe, and in twelve different languages, and in prose or poetry, whichever they might wish.

The name of this wonderful man was James Crichton, but he is known altogether by his nickname of "Admirable," which he won through his fame as a scholar and swordsman. He was a Scotchman by birth, and lived only twenty-three years, having been born in 1560.

Where did he get his vast amount of learning? History is silent on this point. He was the son of a lord, and his family were descendants from royal blood on both sides. He was only seventeen years old when he left home for the continent of Europe and in the next six years he started the world by his great knowledge. He received the education usual for a boy of his means and social position, but if the stories told of him are true, he must have possessed a master-mind, for it is said that at the age of thirteen he took his degree of bachelor of arts and at fifteen that of master of arts, being third on the list, which included the names of many afterwards famous professors and literary men.

When at seventeen he went to Paris, having quarreled with his father, he not only was a marvelous linguist, but a skilled performer on several musical instruments, and accompanying his mental accomplishments it is noted that he was remarkably handsome and was possessed of a fine voice.

As to his memory, the stories told of it are inconceivable. It is said of it, that after hearing a speech or sermon an hour long he was able to repeat it word for word. It is only possible to accept this story with a grave doubt of its entire truth.

When he reached Paris he proceeded, as was a custom of the period, to affix to the doors of churches and other public buildings challenges to literary and philosophic warfare. At the end of six weeks he engaged to present himself at the College of Navarre to answer any question "in any science, liberal or theological," and this in any one of twelve specified languages, Arabic, Greek, Latin, Spanish, French, Italian, English, Dutch, Flemish and Slavonian.

The learned heads of Paris took it more or less as a joke, but they accepted the challenge, and young Crichton acquitted himself so well that he won general admiration. But he was going to surprise them still more, for the following day there was a tournament in Paris which had attracted the chivalry of the continent, and the brilliant Scotchman, who had astonished them with his learning the previous day, carried off the prize from all the best-lances in the kingdom.

Through Europe wandered the youth, one moment fighting, the next day lecturing and the next debating. As one of the sixteenth century writers put it: "He filled us with awe, for he knew more than any man should know." His very greatest accomplishment is said to have taken place at the University of Padua, where he presented himself as willing to answer any question put to him by the learned men in any language they might suggest, but would even go further and give his answer in "any one of the hundred different species of verse."

He finally drifted into Mantua, where he was engaged by the duke as instructor to his son. It appears that both teacher and pupil were in love with the same girl, and as she preferred the handsome Scotchman there grew up at once an unfriendliness on the part of the pupil, and Crichton, returning home one evening was attacked by a band of assassins, and having killed or disabled all of them but one, and curious to know who had inspired the assault, Crichton merely disarmed the man and tore off his mask. To his amazement he recognized his pupil. Under the circumstances Crichton offered his own sword, and the youth snatched it, and upon and drove it through Crichton's heart. Thus at twenty-three died a genius, who, if half the tales told of him be true, has had no equal in the world.

A Story of the Moment

By WALT MASON. The Famous Prose Poet

READY LETTER WRITER.

"I desire to call your attention, madam," began the tall stranger, "to a work compiled by the combined faculties of Yale and Harvard, with the assistance of several Vassar professors. It is entitled 'The Manual of Social Forms,' and it shows how to write letters of every description—"

"Don't mention such a book in my presence," said Mrs. Curfew, indignantly. "I can stand things made of barks and buds and healing herbs, and things indorsed by distinguished prelates, but when a man comes to this door talking of a manual of social forms, I reach for the broomstick and urge him to avault while the avaulting is good."

"Mr. Turpentine, who lives next door, bought that same book from an agent who was around here last spring, and I have no doubt you are the same man, for Mrs. Turpentine said he looked more like a ten-pointed lightning rod than a human being, and I can't imagine why a man of your long-titude should waste the precious hours trying to sell a silly book, when you might be digging sweet potatoes or doing something else that would contribute to the public weal."

"Mrs. Turpentine says that since getting that book her husband has been worse than useless. She has to do all the chores around the place, while he sits in the house with a fountain pen, dashing off model letters to John Wansmaker and Andrew Carpegate and everybody he can think of."

"One day when I wasn't watching Mr. Curfew went over and borrowed that book and read it day after day, and then it affected him just as it did Mr. Turpentine. He went to the book-store and bought a bushel of note paper and pens and ink, and then he sat up till after midnight every night writing letters to total strangers and imaginary people."

"It was impossible to get him to do anything useful. I had to carry in water from the well, and coal from the shed, and all the time he sat around writing to people nobody ever heard of, and then saving his letters for future reference. It was no use trying to argue with him. He said that correspondence was a branch of our education which was sadly neglected, and he proposed to make up for lost time, so that if he ever did have to write an important letter to the president of the United States he'd know how to do it."

"One night he wrote a love letter addressed to Miss Bridget Poolaway. That was one of the names he found in that tripping book. He said that he had long observed her with respectful admiration, and her charms had kindled in his bosom a fire which could not be extinguished. He could control his passion no longer, so he begged her to be his bride. Of course it was almost a duplicate of a letter he found in the book. "When he went to bed he left that letter lying on the table. My married daughter was visiting us at the time, and she happened to be the first one up in the morning. Seeing that letter lying on the table, she glanced at the address at the head of it, and then put it in an envelope and mailed it."

"You wouldn't believe that there was such a woman in the world as Bridget Poolaway, would you? It doesn't sound reasonable, yet there was such a woman, and she had just moved into this town, and she got that letter. A day or two later Mr. Curfew was sitting out by the front gate with a shotgun, hoping to get sight of an agent who had sold him a celluloid shirt which caught fire and nearly cremated him, when a tall, gangling woman, about seven feet high, with falling teeth and a crooked nose, rushed up and threw her arms around his neck and called him her own dear tootsy-wootsy."

"I'm your own little Bridget," said she, and then I took the broom and went out and bridged her over the head and chased her away. But she came back with a lawyer, and now she is suing Mr. Curfew for breach of promise and bigamy and I don't know what else, and if you want to see ructions around this place, just mention your manual of social forms to Mr. Curfew, who will be here in a minute or two."

Telescopes

BY GEORGE FITCH. Author of "At Good Old Vassar"

A telescope is an invention which enables a man to see as far as he could with an eye as big as a wash tub.

In fact, the telescope is an enormous glass eye. It is worn by the astronomer while peering into the star-spangled universe in search of newly organized solar systems and comets which are proceeding without train orders.

The telescope consists of a long muzzle loading brass tube with lens in one end and an eye piece at the other. When the astronomer has screwed the small end into his eye like a monocle he can roam at will through the depths of the sky, counting asteroids, measuring sun dogs and plotting corn lots on Mars.

A planet is only a speck of light when viewed by the casual citizen going home at midnight. But when the astronomer "tins his telescope on a neighboring planet he can not only discover its topography and complexion but can publish bulletins regarding the rate of excoavation in its canal prim. Many an astronomer has watched two stars try to pass on a single track several billion miles away and has wept tears over a tragedy which isn't as important to the rest of the world as the swat-the-fly problem.

In fact, when an astronomer has spent a few years spying on the universe with a telescope he becomes oblivious to mundane affairs and would not leave off counting the rings of Saturn or the dents in the moon long enough to watch an oil refinery burn in the next block.

The telescope has done the world a great deal of good. It has enabled man to produce that fascinating serial entitled the almanac, to weigh the sun regularly with a view to regulating its diet if necessary and to discover on-rushing comets in time to repair the old cyclone cellar and get out of range. If it were not for the telescope we would not know where we were going on this earth when we would arrive. But thanks to the telescope, astronomers are able to call the stations in years in advance and to calculate the dark of the moon in time to entertain a party.

"He becomes oblivious to mundane affairs," able the farmer to buy his seed potatoes at the lowest price.

In fact, the telescope has become so highly developed that astronomers hope before long to discover large missing bodies, such as ex-president Taft, the Free Trade League of America and the Chicago Cub machine. Science halts at nothing.

Church Bell Passing.

(From The Dawson News.) A quarter of a century or even a shorter time ago people seemed to have the idea that churches must have great tall spires and a bell. The present-day sees a remarkable change in this respect. Church steeples and great tall towers are being discarded. In former years the tolling of church bells for funerals was quite common, but even this practice is passing away. The church bell is also rapidly disappearing.

Georgia Is Waking Up.

(From The Montezuma Georgian.) The raising of alfalfa is going to be given a thorough trial all over Georgia the next year. Reports from all sections of the state tell of the "interest aroused" in the raising of this pedistruit.

BATTLE IS JOINED OVER FREE SUGAR

Schedule Taken Up in Senate. Republicans Say Free Sugar Will Ruin Industry and Aid the Trust.

Washington August 18—Free sugar was the text of the tariff debate in the senate today. Republican members are attacking the democratic proposal to put sugar on the free list on the 116th day of the session of the Louisiana sugar industry and the shipping up by the trust of the domestic beet sugar industry of the country.

Senators Blawie, Smith of Michigan, Sterling, and Lodge and Cummins led in the attack on the sugar schedule which is to be held in the senate for several days. No time has been fixed for a vote on the democratic ratification amendments proposed today. Senator Blawie, which would provide for a gradual reduction of the tariff on refined sugar until the figure would reach $1.26 a hundred pounds in 1919.

Amendments Will Be Beaten. Democratic leaders asserted tonight that the ratification amendments would be voted down and that there would be no democratic votes to be cast against the majority except those of the Louisiana senators Thornton and Handell who gave notice of their purpose to the democratic caucus.

Senator William Alden Smith vigorously supporting the Blawie amendments declared that the American sugar refining company nor any of its owners has not purchased any beet sugar stock since the democratic party came into power and will not buy any until it have passed your bill and your three ratification amendments have been passed.

A Prophet of Evil. Senator William Alden Smith vigorously supporting the Blawie amendments declared that the American sugar refining company nor any of its owners has not purchased any beet sugar stock since the democratic party came into power and will not buy any until it have passed your bill and your three ratification amendments have been passed.

Few Democrats Present. Senator Bristow said he did not find language strong enough to denounce the manner in which the tariff bill was considered and passed upon in the senate.

MURDERED HIS FAMILY AND THEN KILLED SELF

Henry Lake Quoted Philosophers and Poets to Justify His Deed

New York August 18—Leaving for the coroner a letter in which he apparently sought through quotations from the Bible and poets to justify the taking of the life of Henry W. Lake of a restaurant, and shot himself dying this afternoon in a hospital.

"I am tired of living," Lake wrote in the letter. "My wife is steadily and our four children are small and I do not know how to get them out of the struggle of life. It is best for them to die to unconscious dust with their parents (see Job's lamentation, 'Esau and Jacob' and 'The Sufferings of the World')."

Lake was found faintly breathing beside him were a revolver and an automatic magazine gun in a bed with a daughter Dorothy 13 years old. Mrs. Lake was a sufferer from insanity. Estelle 14 was on the floor in another room. All had been shot to death. Lake did not regain consciousness after reaching the hospital.

Left Property to Sister. In his letter Lake willed insurance money and jewelry to a sister Mrs. Blanche DeMar of Saratoga Lake N. Y. whom he requested to have the bodies cremated. A few of the quotations which concluded the letter were: "It is his most admirable invention," "There are preachers of death and the earth is full of those to whom it is necessary to preach the abandonment of life," "I praise unto you my death which cometh because I will—Nietzsche."

at his Chit N. Williams Sheppard and Thomas remained. That caused a protest by Senator Smith of Michigan.

FIGHT TO SEAT CLAYTON BEGINS IN THE SENATE. Washington August 18—The fight to seat Henry D. Clayton as senator from Alabama began in the senate today. A statement by Senator Robinson of Arkansas unopposedly governing O'Neal in appointing a successor to the late Senator Johnston became public today and at the close of the session Clayton asked permission of the public printing of the bill.

LINED UP FIVE PERSONS AND FIRED ON THEM. Everett Wash August 18—Erwin Tungren a stationary engineer at Inglewood lined up five persons against the wall of the Cray hotel today and after firing them fired the ammunition from two pistols killing Miss Dorothy Dunbar proprietor of the hotel and wounding two others. Tungren escaped. He had refused to leave the hotel when Miss Dunbar asked him to do so. Instead he drew two pistols and ordered her to stand against the wall. Five men in an adjoining room were called out and lined up with her. After firing the men Tungren called on the woman to go to her trunk and get $50. Then he began firing. Miss Dunbar started to run. Tungren shot her in the hip and head killing her instantly.

SOCIETY NIGHT AT MOTORDROME

Plain Clothes Men Will Guard Autos and Jewelry—R. F. Maddox Sweepstakes Feature Event

Tonight will be society night at the local motor-drome. Society is sure to be out in force to witness the attractive program that the management has arranged for the evening.

And to assist them that they can witness the races without fear and trembling and with peace of mind the management has engaged fifty plain clothes men to watch the automobiles that will be raced outside the stadium and to mingle with the crowd to prevent any of the nimble fingered gentry from walking away with hand some jewelry.

This move on the part of the management was made after Saturday night's race when a well known business man had a pair of diamond mounted watch and a pair of automobile tires stolen from his machine while he was inside watching the race.

The Robert F. Maddox Sweepstakes run in three heats on the French point system. The first heat will be for second and third with six riders in each heat and the heats 2, 3 and 4 will be the feature event of the evening.

The match race between Harry Glenn and Harry Swartz best two out of three 1 1/2 and 3 mile heats should also be very interesting.

Beginning tonight the Motor-drome purse which is the first event on the program each week will be as a 2 mile match race system for the riders that will participate in the all southern championships which will be run on Monday.

The winners at each meet will be given points and the ones with the greatest number of points will be declared the local champion to represent Atlanta in the meets with the eastern and western riders that are to be held in the city on September and October.

This will all be a first and incentive to the riders to be in the best in the city in the next month with the first and second place in the first and second place.

Here's tonight's complete program in brief: A 1 1/2 mile heat will be run off.

LOCAL DIXIE LEAGUE TEAM INCORPORATED

Application for Charter Filed Monday Morning—Capital Stock Will Be $20,000

Charters for a new baseball league in the south which will open its season next year in opposition to the southern league were filed in eight southern cities at 10 o'clock yesterday.

This new venture will be known as the Dixie Baseball League and the cities included in its membership are Atlanta, Memphis, Chattanooga, New Orleans, Birmingham, Nashville, Little Rock and New York.

The cities composing the new league are the same as the southern with the exception of Little Rock and New York, which formerly held franchises in the southern.

The main features of the new league will be a lower cost of admission, increased activity in southern ball circles and a southern series to be played off by the permanent winners of the southern and Dixie leagues for the southern states championship.

The local club will be incorporated for $20,000 with the privilege of increasing the capitalization to $50,000 if necessary. The incorporators of the Atlanta club are M. C. Asner, G. H. Holcomb and Carl Camp of Atlanta; Judge W. J. Bacon and H. V. Pharr of Memphis; J. P. Pomeroy and W. H. Hood of Birmingham; and the following statement yesterday.

The league is backed by ample capital but it is thought best to allow local fans in each city to enjoy the profits of such an undertaking. There will be no stock in the league and the understanding of course that the incorporators shall have a controlling interest in the club.

The incorporators in the respective clubs are the leading men who are not in league with the southern league, but who desire to see baseball in the south developed to the extent that it should be considering the fact that the southern league stands for high class clean sport. They feel that this league will place the sport on a higher plane in the south.

J. P. Pharr, Memphis, president; J. L. Rhodes, New Orleans, vice president; J. G. Gollan, New Orleans, secretary and treasurer; and the officers of the league. These officers with W. J. Bacon and C. B. Westfield compose the board of directors.

TILLMAN PITCHFORKS BALLOTS FOR WOMEN

The Senator Also Thrusts His Weapon Into the Divorce Laws of Georgia

Washington, August 18.—(Special)—Senator Tillman, of South Carolina, during a spirited attack on woman suffrage in the senate today, deprecated the existence of divorce laws in Georgia.

The divorce law does not directly affect South Carolina, he said, but our state is the only one that does not permit divorce in some form. North Carolina and Georgia states on our borders both grant them and on increasingly trivial grounds if report be true.

Senator Bacon interrupted. Divorce is not respectable in Georgia, he declared.

The senator means divorced people are not respectable interrupted Senator Tillman.

I mean the institution of divorce is not anything the legislature of Georgia has done was not respectable.

South Carolina a Lonely Isle

Mr. Tillman is a lonely isle he continued surrounded on all sides by a turbid flood of raging maddened waters and lest we too, be submerged, I would see the waters subside and the dry land appear under the blessed rays of God's moral sunshine would behold once again over our whole country the fruits and flowers of domestic peace love and affection, confidence joy and contentment.

It is a beautiful dream, said he, that female suffrage and politics. The important thing for us to consider is the effect on women themselves. We have better under the rule of corruption in politics and debauchery on our government rather than bring about a condition which will ruin the character of our women.

The injured survivors crew and passengers are being taken to Seattle on the steamer Jefferson and will arrive there Thursday.

Great Hole Torn in Steamer

A great hole was torn in the bottom of the State of California. The vessel was large mail and express vessel and a total loss. The ship was valued at $400,000.

The steamer Jefferson of the Alaska Steamship line southbound heard the wireless call of the sinking vessel and turned back to rescue the survivors who had taken to small boats and life rafts. Ten of the passengers had suffered several injuries, but it was necessary to take them to a hospital in Seattle for treatment.

The vessel was in Seattle at 10 o'clock on her last trip from Seattle to San Francisco and was transferred to another steamer when the Valencia reached that port this morning. The steamer was missing being on that ship when she went ashore at Cape Beale, California, on August 17, 1913 with a loss of 17 lives.

Death of Diggs and Caminetti

Senator Tillman included in his speech a vigorous attack upon the Diggs and Caminetti white slave cases in California.

If the California men had our customs he cried "Diggs and Caminetti would not be alive now because they would have been shot like dogs, and the fathers of the girls they have ruined would be acquitted almost with out the jury leaving the box. The unwritten law is the best law to protect woman's virtue that I have heard of. The danger from woman suffrage said senator Tillman was increased by the cowardice of public opinion here.

OTIS CRANDALL GOES BACK TO THE GIANTS

New York, August 18.—Otis Crandall pitcher who Manager McGraw of the New York National League club traded to the St. Louis team was taken back tonight by McGraw.

St. Louis in return received a cash consideration amounting to $25,000. A player also unnamed whose details will be made as soon as the purchase price is settled.

McGraw early this month gave Crandall for Larry McLean a pitcher. The exchange was said to have made several of the Giants so incoherent they engaged in a fight with their manager as Crandall had been with the local club for a number of years and had very little to do with his new berth.

EXCHANGE PROPOSITIONS

WE HAVE a number of fine farms of all sizes, as well as large acreage tracts, which we can exchange for city property. THIS IS THE TIME to get control of country lands, which are bound to increase in value, since high-priced Northern and Western lands are being exhausted and the tide of immigration is turning toward the South. Bring us a list of property you have for exchange, and you will be SURPRISED at some opportunities we can give you for WISE INVESTMENT. Call for DR. DAVES or MR. MADDOX.

A RARE OPPORTUNITY

IT IS VERY seldom that you can buy a centrally located corner on the north side, and when you can, it's best to pick it up. Here we offer one, a lot 25x50 feet, that will double in value within two years. Looks like a wild prediction, does it not? But it's sure to come true. Price is $10,750; $2,500 cash, balance easy. Let us show it to you and you look at the adjoining property. We honestly believe you will buy it. See
