

Atlanta Edition of The American
Consists of the Following Sections
—Late News.
—Editorial, State and Wants.
—Extra News.
—Sports, Amusements.
—Society and Foreign.
—Fiction Magazine.
—Comics.
—Puzzles.
—Answers.
—Puzzles.
—Answers.
—Puzzles.
—Answers.

HEARST'S SUNDAY AMERICAN

FREE THEATER TICKET COUPON
No. 4 THE GEORGIAN-AMERICAN
Name _____
Address _____
A FREE printed seat ticket to the Atlanta Theater
(WRITE ONLY)
PRICE FIVE CENTS.

VOL. I, NO. 5.

Copyright, 1913, by The Hearst Company.

ATLANTA, GA., SUNDAY, MAY 4, 1913.

WEATHER—Fair to-day.

★★★

PRICE FIVE CENTS.

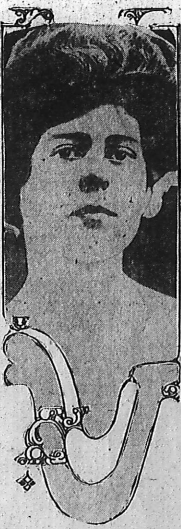

WILSON ASKS U.S. SUPREME COURT RULING ON LAND BILL

President, Bryan, Moore, McReynolds, Sen. Bacon and Rep. Flood Will Hold Conferences as to Government's Next Step.

Japanese Will Either Send Ultimatum to Washington or Else They Will 'Save Face' Behind Ineligible Clause in the Law.

Empty War Chest Precludes Any Danger of Hostilities Being Declared by Yellow Nation at Present—Agreement Probable.

MRS. RICHARD BURLISON, wife of the Postmaster General, and Grand Marshal of the suffrage parade in New York.

German Diplomat Wears Fancy Rig

Cheeks and Loud Stripes Prominent in Costume of Count Bernstorff at Horse Show.

WASHINGTON, May 3.—There was one costume no one at the horse show failed to see to-day. And it was not worn by a woman, either. It bedecked the form of Count von Bernstorff, the ambassador who represents Kaiser Bill. Here are the details of the costume.

Carnegie Rescues Bankrupt Golf Club

Millionaire Sends St. Andrew's Organization $50,000 To Pay Off All Its Debts.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Andrew Carnegie has come to the rescue of St. Andrew's Golf Club, at Mount Hope, near Yonkers, with a loan of $50,000 to remodel the club house.

Pope in Bed Again From Overexertion

His Condition Not Alarming, Physicians Say, but Quiet for a Time Is Necessary.

Special Cable to The American.—ROME, May 3.—The Vatican doctors have ordered the Pope to bed again as a result of overexertion when he received two cardinals early to-day.

EX-KING MANUEL WEDS PRINCESS IN AUGUST

Special Cable to The American.—LISBON, May 3.—The wedding of ex-king Manuel of Portugal to Princess Leopoldine Hohenzollern will take place in August.

10,000 WOMEN AND BOYS ADMITS LITTLE BOY IS HER SON

Nearly Every State in Union Represented in Huge Parade on Fifth Avenue.

EVERYTHING IN ORDERLY

Policewoman Heads One Delegation Jauntily Swinging a Nightstick.

NEW YORK, May 3.—Ten thousand persons—mostly women, of course—marched up Fifth Avenue to-day to make the most effective and orderly demonstration that America has ever seen.

Men of Note in Line

State Senators and Assemblymen, Judges of the high courts, prominent members of the bar and the ministry, and with the exception of the police, most of the parade on the grandstand, but exclusively at their disposal.

Keep Step

Head erect and shoulders back. No talking or laughing. Keep step. It was an average of ten policemen on each of the 230 floats.

Mrs. Burlison Starts Parade

Shortly after the 2:30 o'clock Mrs. Richard Burlison, general marshal, gave a lusty "forward march," and amid ringing cheers the great army swept forward.

AVIATOR PLANS FLIGHT FROM ENGLAND TO INDIA

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.—LONDON, May 3.—G. M. D'Yon, a well-known aviator, is planning to fly from England to India in October.

EVERYTHING IN ORDERLY

Policewoman Heads One Delegation Jauntily Swinging a Nightstick.

Men of Note in Line

State Senators and Assemblymen, Judges of the high courts, prominent members of the bar and the ministry, and with the exception of the police, most of the parade on the grandstand, but exclusively at their disposal.

Keep Step

Head erect and shoulders back. No talking or laughing. Keep step.

Mrs. Burlison Starts Parade

Shortly after the 2:30 o'clock Mrs. Richard Burlison, general marshal, gave a lusty "forward march," and amid ringing cheers the great army swept forward.

AVIATOR PLANS FLIGHT FROM ENGLAND TO INDIA

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.—LONDON, May 3.—G. M. D'Yon, a well-known aviator, is planning to fly from England to India in October.

GOV. BROWN ON THE PHAGAN CASE

Let the Law Take Its Course, He Says 'Guilty Will Be Punished, Innocent Freed'

I desire to commend, with all the emphasis at my command, the Hearst newspapers' timely suggestion to the people of Atlanta and Georgia that they remember the sanctity and majesty of the law of the land, and the sure operation of justice through the courts, in contemplating a recent horrible and unspeakable murder in our midst. I desire to offer the Hearst newspapers a word of praise in that they—leading newspapers of the South—while being brave enough to print the news as it developed from day to day, still were brave enough to caution their constituency that it was, after all, merely the news of the day, and not evidence that might be considered competent in a court of law.—GOVERNOR JOSEPH M. BROWN.

Georgia's Executive Gives High Praise to Hearst Newspapers for Their Stand for Law and Order and Fair Trial for Accused.

Joseph M. Brown, Governor of Georgia, last night gave to Hearst's Sunday American the following ringing and significant interview, in respect of the Phagan murder mystery:

By GOVERNOR JOSEPH M. BROWN.

I DESIRE to commend, with all the emphasis at my command, the Hearst newspapers' suggestion to the people of Atlanta and Georgia that they remember the sanctity and majesty of the law of the land, and the sure operation of justice through the courts, in contemplating a recent horrible and unspeakable crime committed in our midst.

I commend all newspapers, and persons, and influences, and things that hold fast to the law in times of anxious suspense, and when wild and irresponsible rumor runs riot in a community.

We must hold ever in mind that the people have established the processes of law, and that those processes work through the courts, with judges and juries.

Trials of criminals must not be conducted in the newspapers, on the street corners, in the cafes—not even in the homes.

Trials must be conducted in the authorized temples of justice, and not elsewhere. They must not be based upon suspicion or hearsay, but upon competent evidence, sworn to by the mouths of credible witnesses, or established upon such combinations of circumstances as legally prove the guilt or innocence of the accused.

No elements of class favoritism or race prejudice should operate either for or against a defendant or suspect. The law requires, and jealously, the conviction of a criminal beyond a reasonable doubt, and neither disconnected nor fragmentary evidence will do in cases involving the life and liberty of persons charged with infractions of the law.

A recent dreadful crime in Atlanta has shocked the entire State beyond expression.

It is known that a young girl, fresh in the flower of youth, has been foully murdered. That fact, and the place and some of the primary circumstances of the crime are settled, beyond dispute—but no more.

Certain suspects are in jail—within the State's custody, safe and secure. As yet no one has been indicted by a Grand Jury.

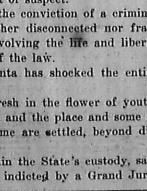

Georgia Takes Part in Ghent Centenary

General Medtrid Goes to New York to Attend Treaty Celebration.

SAVANNAH, Ga., May 3.—General Peter W. Medtrid left to-night for New York to attend a centenary of the Treaty of Ghent, or 100 years of peace among the English-speaking people. General Medtrid was appointed by Governor Joseph M. Brown to represent Georgia. The conference opens on Monday.

After the five-day session in New York, the delegates will visit Philadelphia, Washington, Chicago and Detroit. In Washington they will be given a reception by President Woodrow Wilson. England, Ghent, Canada and Australia will be represented, several noblemen attending.

GOV. J. M. BROWN

Grand Jury to Take Up Phagan Case To-morrow

The uncertainty that has marked every phase in the case of Mary Phagan probably will be somewhat removed when the new Fulton County Grand Jury for the May term of the Superior Court meets to-morrow. The late action by that body is anticipated after the coroner's jury, which also resumes its sessions to-morrow, has reached a decision.

It was for this reason that a conviction could not be determined, but it is believed that the grand jury will be able to reach a decision on the case of Mary Phagan.

Joseph M. Brown

SACRAMENTO, CAL., May 3. The measure was finally passed by an overwhelming majority.

The Senate early to-day passed the bill by a vote of 35 to 2.

By JOHN TEMPLE GRAVES. (Editorial Correspondent of The Sunday American.)

WASHINGTON, May 3.—Now that Secretary Bryan's mission to California has failed, and the California Legislature has passed the anti-land bill, the President is inclined to test in the Supreme Court by some action instituted or backed by the Government.

A conference will be called to map out the future course of this international controversy. The conference will include President Wilson, Secretary Bryan (if he returns in time), Assistant Secretary John Bassett Moore, Attorney General McHugh, Senator Bacon, chairman of the Senate Committee on Foreign Relations, and Representative Ford, chairman of the House Committee on Foreign Affairs.

Washington, May 3.—There was one costume no one at the horse show failed to see to-day. And it was not worn by a woman, either. It bedecked the form of Count von Bernstorff, the ambassador who represents Kaiser Bill.

Washington, May 3.—Andrew Carnegie has come to the rescue of St. Andrew's Golf Club, at Mount Hope, near Yonkers, with a loan of $50,000 to remodel the club house.

Washington, May 3.—The Vatican doctors have ordered the Pope to bed again as a result of overexertion when he received two cardinals early to-day.

Washington, May 3.—The wedding of ex-king Manuel of Portugal to Princess Leopoldine Hohenzollern will take place in August.

Washington, May 3.—The wedding of ex-king Manuel of Portugal to Princess Leopoldine Hohenzollern will take place in August.

Washington, May 3.—The wedding of ex-king Manuel of Portugal to Princess Leopoldine Hohenzollern will take place in August.

Washington, May 3.—The wedding of ex-king Manuel of Portugal to Princess Leopoldine Hohenzollern will take place in August.

Washington, May 3.—The wedding of ex-king Manuel of Portugal to Princess Leopoldine Hohenzollern will take place in August.

Washington, May 3.—The wedding of ex-king Manuel of Portugal to Princess Leopoldine Hohenzollern will take place in August.

Washington, May 3.—The wedding of ex-king Manuel of Portugal to Princess Leopoldine Hohenzollern will take place in August.

Washington, May 3.—The wedding of ex-king Manuel of Portugal to Princess Leopoldine Hohenzollern will take place in August.

PHAGAN CASE ENTERS ON SECOND WEEK OF INVESTIGATION

Continued From Page 1.

course of the conference two witnesses examined were Dr. J. W. Hart, County Physician, and M. B. Dorsey, general foreman of the pencil factory where Mary Phagan was employed. No details of the conference were revealed, although it was known that two girls who worked at the factory with Mary Phagan also had been summoned.

Girls as Witnesses.
These girls, and probably others, will be witnesses before the Grand Jury after it convenes. Three young women who were intimate with the slain girl at the factory also will be called. Lee is expected to call the coroner's jury that has been made public, and Frank probably will be heard.

Besides the private detectives, the powers of the State and county courts have obtained the review of records in medicine, handwriting and even in certain forms of insanity, and the most capable detectives of the investigation into the case are being used to investigate the case in the most complete manner possible.

Among the expert whose efforts were solicited by Dr. Claude Smith, city bacteriologist, were those requested to analyze the blood stains on the shirt found in the yard of Mrs. Lee, the supposed murderer. This analysis was requested that the officials might determine the responsibility of the shirt, that the shirt was put in the yard of the negro by other persons as a "plant" to convict him.

It is said that an effort will be made to have the County appropriate $1,000 to delay the cost of a private investigation into the case. The determination of the State and of the County to probe the matter is certain.

That definite action will be taken by the grand jury and that definite evidence may be in hand for presentation to that body is borne out by the fact that the suspicions of officers are narrowing rapidly. Investigations and hints have been released. It is understood that further investigation will be made.

Slayer of Mary Phagan Still May Be at Large

The mystery of the death of Mary Phagan enters upon its second week today with the police officers admitting that they are still without a conclusive solution. So far as the public has been permitted to learn, the detectives are not certain that they have in custody the person or persons responsible for her death.

In the light of present evidence, the police believe that no more arrests will be made, but they admit that the entrance of evidence might entirely change the aspect of the case. The detectives base their present belief that they have in custody the guilty man or men on the well-supported theory that Mary Phagan entered the National Pencil Factory from the time she received her pay envelope on Saturday noon until her body was found from the basement of the building.

It is this position is correct, it will mean that the murderer of the girl who was killed in the factory Saturday afternoon or night, most of the employees have been absent because of the Memorial Day parade.

These five were Leo M. Frank, a former employee who returned for a few minutes on Saturday evening to obtain a pair of shoes he had left in the building. Of these he it is supposed he was only two to have had any knowledge of their crime. These two, Leo M. Frank and Newt Lee, are in custody.

Tragedy That Grips People.
Atlanta for a week has been shocked with the horror and brutality of the deed. That everyone was following with intense interest the developments of the case was manifested by the eagerness with which the newspapers were bought up in the streets. It was a story that gripped the people's hearts and aroused an interest that will not die until the guilty crime is apprehended.

The sensational details of the case as developed through the work of investigation also have been followed with interest by the 13-year-old daughter of Mrs. W. J. Coleman, of 14 Lindsay street, who was attacked and killed some time between 10 and 11 o'clock Saturday night, April 26. Signs of a struggle on the second floor of the National Pencil Factory, 37-39 Forsyth street, indicated that this is the place she met her death.

The girl fell in her home Saturday forenoon to draw her bag at the factory. She arrived at the factory about 12:30 o'clock Saturday noon. It was said that she was her pay envelope at this time. "She detests me," she had been told by her father. "I have told you that you are my daughter," she had said to her father.

Old Police Reporter Analyzes Mystery Phagan Case Solution Far Off, He Says

Problem of Slaying in Pencil Factory One That Never May Be Cleared, Declares Crime Expert.

BY AN OLD POLICE REPORTER.

One week ago today a pretty fourteen-year-old girl, Mary Phagan, was found dead in the basement of the National Pencil Company, at 39 South Forsyth street.

In the week that has elapsed, little, if anything, has been discovered tending to show who committed the crime. I say this without reserve, but without knowing what information the detectives and police force may have that has not yet been made public.

What has been made public is far from convincing. And in an attempt to consider this most mysterious case in a calm and judicial way, we can deal only with such facts as we have before us, not with facts that may come later.

It should be said at once that this statement is not for the purpose of reflecting in the slightest degree upon the ability of the police or detectives, or to attempt to fasten the crime upon an individual, or to give to the public statements that are not true, or to incite or exculpate any person now under suspicion.

I am simply trying to set forth here a plain statement of the case as it is unraveled during the past week without adding anything to, or taking anything from, a mystery that is still as dark and deep as any mystery that has ever puzzled detectives anywhere.

POLICE WORK IN A CIRCLE.

The police and detectives have acted just as police and detectives always act in criminal cases. They have arrested and held the persons last seen or known to be on the premises; have held them pending an investigation and sifting of testimony by the coroner's jury.

Police and detectives always work in a circle. Now and then some pioneer, a braver man with imagination, breaks out of the circle and takes a straight line, pursues a clew not before considered seriously, and really solves the mystery.

It was the most natural thing in the world, therefore, for the police and detectives to hold Frank and Lee. Lee's testimony has been heard. What he has told would not be considered very strong legal evidence in the courts, if, indeed, it would be considered seriously at all.

I am assuming that Lee has told nothing that had not been made public, and it is upon this belief that the worthlessness of his statements is founded.

Frank has been questioned by detectives and police, but so far as the public knows, has said nothing, has given no clew, and has maintained a calm attitude in the face of all cross-questioning. He stoutly maintains his innocence.

In request to be remanded on Monday may clear the whole mystery and again it may not. Without in any way desiring to seem to anticipate the action of the coroner's jury, it would seem likely that the police will hold both Lee and Frank for the grand jury, where there will be a final sifting of all facts brought out, under the masterful hand of Solicitor General Hugh M. Dorsey, and if sufficient evidence is produced, indictments will follow.

EVIDENCE NOT AT HAND.

At present, on the evidence now before the public, there is little or nothing to lead to the belief that the mystery has been solved. Will it ever be solved? My own guess is that it will not.

Please remember that I am speaking forth my own views and they may be utterly valueless, and I may be entirely mistaken. When I am writing is based upon what is known of the case.

And I may say, too, that never in all my experience as an old police reporter in many cities have I ever known of a mystery that is so many-sided, and so difficult for the public to understand.

Usually, in cases like the one under consideration, the newspapers publish all the rumors, true or untrue, all the deductions of police officials, valuable or valueless as the case may be, and an effort is made to lay before the public everything, column upon column.

Perhaps as many of the great murder mysteries of history have been solved through the efforts of police reporters—men assigned by newspapers to "cover" criminal cases—as have been solved by detectives. At any rate the police will always admit that police reporters have had a large part in unravelling the knotty problems. In a case of this sort the police reporter's analysis is particularly good, for he is simply seeking the truth. He, unlike the police, is not held responsible for the production of the criminal, and therefore whatever line of thought he pursues is solely in the interests of clearing up a baffling mystery. As such the accompanying article is presented.

column is written, so that the public may know as much as the newspapers know, and thus be able to form an opinion for themselves.

While it is true that no newspaper in Atlanta has suppressed a single fact in this case, it is also true that what has been published has been most carefully considered and scrutinized until there has been eliminated every statement that did not bear the name of the person making it. Statements that were valueless because of prima facie absurdity were not published.

PUBLIC SUSPECTED NEGRO.
It was perfectly clear on Sunday and Monday last that the public was willing to put the extraordinary act in the category known as "negro crimes," and the sentiment of the streets was that Lee was guilty or knew the guilty man.

But a second turn of the key disclosed, and it was easily seen that while it might be claimed as "negro crime," nevertheless Lee's story was unshaken; it was clear and circumstantial and he did not act in a guilty manner, for it was he who notified the police instead of running away, as a scared rabbit, as nearly every negro does when his guilty or even accused of crime.

This, of course, does not eliminate Lee from the case. But the fact that he has told the same story so far as the public knows and that he did not run away, has shifted some of the suspicion from him.

The Phagan case is not a "white man's crime," or if it is a white man's crime, it is extraordinary and most unusual. What is known of Frank's past is in his favor. There may be pages in his life that the police and public know nothing of. But the facts as they have been given through the newspapers, his connection directly with the crime is not yet sufficiently placed.

DID FRANK PLAY PART?
The public will have a better idea, after hearing his story at the inquest, what, if any, part he had in the crime, or what, if any knowledge he had of it.

In the meanwhile, the spirit of fair play and the spirit of justice that is inherent in everybody should lead to the withholding of any opinion as to the guilt or innocence of either Frank or Lee.

Nobody knows. But we do know, all of us, that the law is supreme; that tried and faithful police officials and detectives are working on the case, and that every effort is being made to solve the mystery. Will it ever be solved?

That is the question many people are asking themselves today, for after all the crime does not seem to be either a "negro crime" nor a "white man's crime," nor the crime that a young man, in the flush of vigorous manhood, would stoop to.

It seems to be more the act of a "Jack-the-Ripper"—a page taken from the East End of London, from Whitechapel. But whatever it is, may we not wait with calmness for the law to take its course? May we not consider carefully the facts as they are brought out by investigation, and not condemn the police and detectives, not condemn men under suspicion until they have been tried, not condemn the newspapers, on the one hand, for "suppressing the news," when, as a matter of fact, no newspaper has suppressed anything; and the police and detectives have worked faithfully and earnestly in a mystery that would puzzle even a Sherlock Holmes?

soon after the adjournment Wednesday. The inquest was to have been held on Thursday, but was halted by the desire of the authorities to obtain more clearly defined evidence before they continued the presentation of the case.

The next day Solicitor General Dorsey announced that he had engaged private detectives to run down clues which he thought had been neglected or not sufficiently developed.

Prima Donna Wails As She Misses Liner
Alice Everman Vainly Offers $500 To Be Put Aboard Ship Disappearing Down the Bay.
NEW YORK, May 3.—Despite her frantic offers of $500 to any one who would get her aboard the Olympic liner after that liner had left the dock, Miss Alice Everman, soprano of the Chicago Opera Company, was forced to stand on the harbor-day and watch the vessel disappear down the bay.

"I want a boat, a tug, anything, I must get aboard," declared the artist. "Thousands of dollars depend on my reaching the ship. All my engagements will be missed," she wailed.

DR. JOHN E. WHITE Writes on the Phagan Case

Draws a Lesson From the Shocking Occurrence of a Week Ago, and Urges Confidence in the Courage of the Law.

By DR. JOHN E. WHITE, Pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Atlanta.

The proper study of mankind is man, but the conditions for this study are only occasionally favorable. I am pressed up in his ordinary-day clothes, thinking his ordinary thoughts, and his human impulses suppressed to the requirements of conventional life, a man throws very little light on the problem of humanity. The individual exhibits manifold nature at its best not at its worst, and never at its individual. The interesting things about folks are not the things that individualize and separate them in their needs and problems of humanity, but the things that unite them in their common spirit of unity.

Whenever something occurs to attract our eyes, even to a whole community at a stroke, there is the opportunity to study and understand human nature. The artist with his picture, the poet with his poem and the author with his book, may be said to be striving to express emotions and awaken sentiments which universalize them, and thus to make the human nature that sounds a bell in the hearts of all men.

It is the murderer who dominates the stage in this drama. Somewhere in this community there is a man who did this deed. Upon the retina of every eye and in the mind of every heart, there is looking at one thing, a hundred tongues are listening at it, a hundred tongues questioning upon one issue—here is a spectacle worth watching.

It is the murderer who dominates the stage in this drama. Somewhere in this community there is a man who did this deed. Upon the retina of every eye and in the mind of every heart, there is looking at one thing, a hundred tongues are listening at it, a hundred tongues questioning upon one issue—here is a spectacle worth watching.

It is the murderer who dominates the stage in this drama. Somewhere in this community there is a man who did this deed. Upon the retina of every eye and in the mind of every heart, there is looking at one thing, a hundred tongues are listening at it, a hundred tongues questioning upon one issue—here is a spectacle worth watching.

It is the murderer who dominates the stage in this drama. Somewhere in this community there is a man who did this deed. Upon the retina of every eye and in the mind of every heart, there is looking at one thing, a hundred tongues are listening at it, a hundred tongues questioning upon one issue—here is a spectacle worth watching.

It is the murderer who dominates the stage in this drama. Somewhere in this community there is a man who did this deed. Upon the retina of every eye and in the mind of every heart, there is looking at one thing, a hundred tongues are listening at it, a hundred tongues questioning upon one issue—here is a spectacle worth watching.

It is the murderer who dominates the stage in this drama. Somewhere in this community there is a man who did this deed. Upon the retina of every eye and in the mind of every heart, there is looking at one thing, a hundred tongues are listening at it, a hundred tongues questioning upon one issue—here is a spectacle worth watching.

It is the murderer who dominates the stage in this drama. Somewhere in this community there is a man who did this deed. Upon the retina of every eye and in the mind of every heart, there is looking at one thing, a hundred tongues are listening at it, a hundred tongues questioning upon one issue—here is a spectacle worth watching.

It is the murderer who dominates the stage in this drama. Somewhere in this community there is a man who did this deed. Upon the retina of every eye and in the mind of every heart, there is looking at one thing, a hundred tongues are listening at it, a hundred tongues questioning upon one issue—here is a spectacle worth watching.

It is the murderer who dominates the stage in this drama. Somewhere in this community there is a man who did this deed. Upon the retina of every eye and in the mind of every heart, there is looking at one thing, a hundred tongues are listening at it, a hundred tongues questioning upon one issue—here is a spectacle worth watching.

It is the murderer who dominates the stage in this drama. Somewhere in this community there is a man who did this deed. Upon the retina of every eye and in the mind of every heart, there is looking at one thing, a hundred tongues are listening at it, a hundred tongues questioning upon one issue—here is a spectacle worth watching.

It is the murderer who dominates the stage in this drama. Somewhere in this community there is a man who did this deed. Upon the retina of every eye and in the mind of every heart, there is looking at one thing, a hundred tongues are listening at it, a hundred tongues questioning upon one issue—here is a spectacle worth watching.

It is the murderer who dominates the stage in this drama. Somewhere in this community there is a man who did this deed. Upon the retina of every eye and in the mind of every heart, there is looking at one thing, a hundred tongues are listening at it, a hundred tongues questioning upon one issue—here is a spectacle worth watching.

DR. JOHN E. WHITE, Pastor of the Second Baptist Church of Atlanta.

ger at the source of crime. The murderer fulfills the role of the villain who is made for society to see, suddenly and in a moment, the judgment of a civilization that will focus stern eyes on all the murderous forces at work within.

The statement has been made that there are ten million white people in the South who are to be described as "unusually civilized." It is not a hundred years from the corner jury and the judgment of a civilization that will focus stern eyes on all the murderous forces at work within.

Who are the "unusually civilized" men who do not sufficiently appreciate the necessity of personal restraint and social confidence to support the ordinary Southern people must increase their influence and support of civilization as rapidly as possible.

Who are the "unusually civilized" men who do not sufficiently appreciate the necessity of personal restraint and social confidence to support the ordinary Southern people must increase their influence and support of civilization as rapidly as possible.

Who are the "unusually civilized" men who do not sufficiently appreciate the necessity of personal restraint and social confidence to support the ordinary Southern people must increase their influence and support of civilization as rapidly as possible.

Who are the "unusually civilized" men who do not sufficiently appreciate the necessity of personal restraint and social confidence to support the ordinary Southern people must increase their influence and support of civilization as rapidly as possible.

Who are the "unusually civilized" men who do not sufficiently appreciate the necessity of personal restraint and social confidence to support the ordinary Southern people must increase their influence and support of civilization as rapidly as possible.

Who are the "unusually civilized" men who do not sufficiently appreciate the necessity of personal restraint and social confidence to support the ordinary Southern people must increase their influence and support of civilization as rapidly as possible.

Who are the "unusually civilized" men who do not sufficiently appreciate the necessity of personal restraint and social confidence to support the ordinary Southern people must increase their influence and support of civilization as rapidly as possible.

Who are the "unusually civilized" men who do not sufficiently appreciate the necessity of personal restraint and social confidence to support the ordinary Southern people must increase their influence and support of civilization as rapidly as possible.

Who are the "unusually civilized" men who do not sufficiently appreciate the necessity of personal restraint and social confidence to support the ordinary Southern people must increase their influence and support of civilization as rapidly as possible.

Who are the "unusually civilized" men who do not sufficiently appreciate the necessity of personal restraint and social confidence to support the ordinary Southern people must increase their influence and support of civilization as rapidly as possible.

Waitress' Art Wins Her Rich Husband

Wealthy Lumberman Marries Girl Whose Service in Hotel Cafe Pleased Him.

ANCHORAGE, KANS., May 3.—Because she liked the way dainty Stella Warden, 30 years old, dusted his plates and arranged his food in the Bryan Hotel Cafe here last week, H. P. Vernon, 46 years old, a wealthy lumberman, of Memphis, Tenn., sought her acquaintance and proposed to her.

BATHUB MAKER SET TO JAIL ON U. S. CHARGE
CINCINNATI, May 2.—Albert W. McKinstry and treasurer of the Louis Lipp Company, bath tub manufacturer, was sentenced to 60 days in prison today.

A fine of $2,000 was imposed upon the company after it pleaded guilty to violating the interstate commerce law by underbidding goods shipped from the state.

White City Park Now Open

The grand opening of the new White City Park in Atlanta was held yesterday afternoon. The park, which covers an area of 100 acres, is now open to the public. It features a large swimming pool, a playground, and a variety of other recreational facilities. The opening ceremony was attended by thousands of people, and the park is expected to become a popular destination for families and individuals alike.