SUSPICION TURNED TO CONLEY; ACCUSED BY FACTORY FOREMAN

Negro, Whose Story That He Wrote Notes at Frank's Dictation Is Generally Disbelieved, Was Often Drunk, Mrs. White Can Not Identify Him.

Suspicion in the Phagan case was Tuesday morning turned full force upon James Conley, the negro whose unexpected admission last week that he had written the notes found behind the body of Mary Phagan, at the dictation of Leo M. Frank, was followed by a speedy indictment of the pencil factory superintendent.

Careful study of the negro's story has revealed many absurdities in its structure, wherein evidences of childish cunning are rife in an effort to throw the blame onto Frank. It is this which has served to bring the deed to Conley's door.

However, Mrs. Arthur White, wife of a machanic at the factory, who testified that she saw a negro lurking in the building between 12 noon and 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the murder, denied the published report in an afternoon paper that she had identified Conley as the one. Mrs. White stated Tuesday morning that she had secured only a glimpse of the man. It may have been Conley, or another negro. Mrs. White was asked to pick Conley out of a crowd of twelve negroes some time ago, but her identification was a second choice.

The police, in spite of bending every effort to show that Frank is guilty, therefore, have resorted to a dissection of Conley's story. One of its weakest links, they believe, is the negro's quotation of Frank's statement to him "Why should I hang?" That the superintendent should place this confidence in the negro sweeper appears absurd.

Another damaging point against Conley lies in the declaration of Holloway, tinsmith of the factory, that the negro had appeared for duty in connection on several occasions; that his duties as sweeper brought him in contact with the girls, who feared him.

Where Was Conley? According to Conley's story, he was on Peters Street from 10 o'clock until 1 in the afternoon of the murder. Police investigation of this has failed to prove the statement. Conley admits that he can not remember any when he saw during that time to hear up his statement. From 2 o'clock until 5 Conley was at his home. This has been proven. Conley declares that from 5 until 8 o'clock that night he was down town; this also has not been established. Conley states he stayed there the remainder of the night.

SESSION TURNED TO CONLEY; ACCUSED BY FACTORY FOREMAN

Negro, Whose Story That He Wrote Notes at Frank's Dictation Is Generally Disbelieved, Was Often Drunk, Mrs. White Can't Identify Him.

Suspicion in the Phagan case was Tuesday morning turned full-blown when James Conley, the negro whose unexpected assertion last week that he had written the notes found beside the body of Miss Phagan, at the dictation of Low M. Frank, was followed by a speedy indictment of the pencil factory superintendent.

In the opinion of E. F. Hollaway, timekeeper and foreman in the factory, Conley is the guilty man.

Careful study of the negro's story has revealed many absurdities in its structure, wherein evidences of childish cunning are rife in an effort to throw the blame onto Frank. It is this which has served to bring the case to Conley's door.

However, Mrs. Arthur White, wife of a machinist at the factory, who testified that she saw a negro lurking in the building between 12 noon and 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the murder, denied the published report in an afternoon paper that she had identified Conley as the one. Mrs. White stated Tuesday morning that she had seen only a glimpse of the man. It may have been Conley, or another negro. Mrs. White was asked to pick Conley out of a crowd of twelve negroes some time ago, but her identification was a second choice.

The police, in spite of honoring every effort to show that Frank is guilty, therefore, have resorted to a dissection of Conley's story. One of its weakest links, they believe, is the negro's quotation of Frank's statement to him: "Why should I hang?" That the superintendent should place this confidence in the negro sweeper appears absurd.

Another damning point against Conley lies in the declaration of Hollaway, timekeeper of the factory, that the negro had appeared for duty in the factory on several occasions, that he had been absent on one day, in contact with the girls, who feared him.

Where Was Conley?

According to Conley's story, he was on Perez Street from 9 o'clock until 2 in the afternoon of the murder. Police investigation of this has failed to locate the statement. Conley admits that he can't remember anyone whom he saw during that time to bear up his statement. From 2 o'clock until 5 Conley was at his home. This had been proven. Conley declares that he saw a man who he thought was Frank at his home. Conley's delay in making this confession until Frank's indictment seems thick, is another link against him.

His detailed account of the incident.

Flagler's Son Gets $5,000,000; Bulk of Big Estate to Widow

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 27.—Henry M. Flagler's will was filed for probate at St. Augustine today, and disclosed an estate valued at $50,000,000. His son Henry, Jr., is given 40 percent of Standard Oil of New Jersey stock, valued at $5,000,000.

Children, churches and other organizations and a number of persons are named as beneficiaries.

It is reported that the estate is valued at $50,000,000.

State Faces Big Task in Trial of Frank as Slayer

What will be the defense of Leo M. Frank will be the question that will be asked in the trial of the man charged with the murder of a young girl. The state faces a big task in the trial of Frank as slayer of a young girl.

The first floor of the factory as I left there about 1 o'clock in the afternoon of the murder. I did not get a good look of his face. I got just a general impression of his clothes and his build.

The police possibly would never have known that Frank was the last person to see Mary Phagan alive if it were not for the fact that he had been seen by the girl's own father.

small amount might prove an incentive to some persons, the defense very likely will argue. And it is not at all certain that the robber if robbed of the motive, had any idea that the amount he would obtain would be so small.

It is probable that Frank would have taken the trouble to hide the girl's purse when it could not have been hidden in any way any other particular person had it been lying near her body?" is a question that can be put to the jurors in this connection.

SUSPICION TURNED TO CONLEY; ACCUSED BY FACTORY FOREMAN

Negro, Whose Story That He Wrote Notes at Frank's Dictation Is Generally Disbelieved, Was Often Drunk, Mrs. White Can Not Identify Him.

Suspicion in the Phagan case was Tuesday morning turned full-bore upon James Conley, the negro whose unexpected assertion last week that he had written the notes found beside the body of Mary Phagan, at the dictation of Leo M. Frank, was followed by a speedy indictment of the pencil factory superintendent.

In the opinion of E. F. Holloway, time-keeper and foreman in the factory, Conley is the guilty man.

Careful study of the negro's story has revealed many absurdities in its structure, wherein evidences of childish cunning are rife in an effort to throw the blame onto Frank. It is this which has served to bring the deed to Conley's door.

However, Mrs. Arthur White, wife of a machinist at the factory, who testified that she saw a negro lurking in the building between 12 noon and 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the murder, denied the published report in an afternoon paper that she had identified Conley as the one.

Mrs. White stated Tuesday morning that she had secured only a glimpse of the man. It may have been Conley, or another negro. Mrs. White was asked to pick Conley out of a crowd of twelve negroes some time ago, but her identification was a second choice.

The police, in spite of bedding every effort to show that Frank is guilty, therefore, have resorted to a dissection of Conley's story. One of its weakest links, they believe, is the negro's quotation of Frank's statement to him: "Why should I hang?"

The superintendent should place this confidence in the negro sweeper appears absurd.

Another damaging point against Conley lies in the declaration of Holloway, time-keeper of the factory, that the negro had appeared for duty in the afternoon on several occasions; that the duties as sweeper brought him in contact with the girls, who feared him.

Where Was Conley?

According to Conley's story, he was on Peters Street from 10 o'clock until 2 in the afternoon of the murder. Police investigation of this has failed to prove the statement. Conley admits that he can not remember any one whom he saw during that time to bear up his statement. From 2 o'clock until 4 Conley was at his home. This has been proven. Conley declares that from 5 until 8 o'clock that night he was down town; this also has not been established. Conley states he stayed there the remainder of the night.

According to the new theory of Conley's implication, the negro wrote the notes on Saturday instead of Friday, as he claims, and not on any body's dictation. It is further argued that, in order to ingratiate himself with the law, he made his confession when he thought that the case against Frank was about to close. Conley's story was the product of his own imagination.

Conley's delay in making this confession until after Frank's indictment seemed likely to another link against him.

Florida Mob Tries To Lynch Head of Negro Pythians

PENSACOLA, Fla., May 27.—When a Jacksonville-New Orleans train pulled into Milton, 20 miles east of here, last night, a mob of 75 whites met the train and demanded S. W. Green, of New Orleans, chancellor of the negro Knights of Pythias, who was occupying a Pullman drawing room. He was only saved by the interference of Sheriff Harrell and deputies of Santa Rosa County.

Green bought a Pullman ticket from Jacksonville, N. C. He will arrive here tomorrow night, but did not find him. At Milton, Green, seeing the mob, attempted to escape. Green is now in jail at Milton for safe keeping and charged with violating the Jim Crow law.

He barely escaped a mob at the Junction on May 18 while going from New Orleans to Jacksonville.

SIXTH HITS SEVEN IN SECOND INNING

Crackers and Pelicans Clash in Second Game of Series at Ponce DeLeon Park.

FINISH OF THE LEON BALL PARK, May 27.—Frank Birds was in the game here this afternoon to seek revenge from the walling; they received it in the shape of five runs in the first inning.

In the second inning Willie Smith, Atlanta's third center, opened up with a home run to deep center field and the birds registered two in the fourth on Spencer's homer.

"That is all," declared Bird and Adams to do the battery work for New Orleans, while Bill Smith designated Chapman for Atlanta.

Slagler's Son Gets $5,000,000; Bulk of Big Estate to Widow

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 27.—Henry M. Slagler was filed for probate at St. Augustine to-day. It appears that an estate valued at $5,000,000. His son Harry, is given 5000 shares of Standard Oil of New Jersey stock, valued at $5,000,000.

College churches and other organizations and a number of personal friends request.

It was very sad to remain at the head of the Florida East Coast as long as he lived.

Shouts Denial That Bull Moose Party Is Paying Cost Of His $10,000 Libel Suit.

MARQUETTE, Mich., May 27.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt to-day took the stand in his suit against George Swartz, editor of The Ishpeming Iron Ore. Colonel Roosevelt denied emphatically that he ever denied indicating to Swartz to be charged with the editorial that he published in his $10,000 libel suit.

He said he did not drink beer or whisky, except under the direction of a doctor, but admitted that he sometimes drank light wine.

He related briefly his career up to the time the editorial from The Iron Ore was brought to him as he lay in a hospital in Chicago, after having been wounded by a would-be assassin in Milwaukee.

Says Editorial Angered Him.
 "It was very sad to remain at the head of the Florida East Coast as long as he lived," said the editorial which was shown him.

The former President mounted the stand after a stormy few minutes during the hearing of the libel suit, representing the plaintiff, was interrupted frequently by Attorney Holden while making his opening statement. Attorney Holden, Swartz's counsel, declined to make his statement until after the testimony was taken.

Colonel Roosevelt took the stand at 2:30 o'clock this morning.

Replying to questions regarding his life and career, he said he was born in New York City, completed his studies at Harvard in 1886, was elected to the New York Legislature in 1881, appointed New York civil service commissioner in 1887, police commissioner of New York City in 1890, elected Lieutenant Governor in 1894, resigning in 1895 to become Vice President of the United States in 1900, a Spanish-American war, being promoted to colonel after the battle of Santiago.

Tells of War Service.
 Strenuous objection was made by the defense to Roosevelt's reply to the question of the number of times he was under fire in the Spanish-American war, but the court sustained his answer. President continued his story, declaring he was under fire many times, more particularly at San Juan Hill.

He told of his election as Governor of New York in 1898, as Vice President of the United States in 1900, his accession to the White House in 1901 and his resignation in 1909.

When President McKinley was assassinated and his election to the Presidency in 1901.

Colonel Roosevelt then testified as follows:
 "Q. What did you do on the expiration of your term in 1907? A. I went to Africa as special curator for the Smithsonian Institution and spent several months there in research work. Returning home, I became connected with the 'Outlook'.
 "Q. Where were you in October, 1912? A. What part of that month? Cite an instance to remind me.
 "Q. Have you ever seen this paper? A. The editorial was shown a copy of The Ishpeming Iron Ore. A. Yes, in October, 1912.
 Copy of Paper Admitted.
 "Q. Where were you? A. In Marquette, Michigan.
 "Q. What city? (Attorney Holden objected to the question.) A. In Chicago.
 "Q. How did you get there? A. I had been shot.
 "Q. In what city were you in Milwaukee? A. In Milwaukee.
 "Q. How did you find out about the publication of the paper in evidence and it was admitted without objection from and by me?
 "Q. How did you feel when you read the editorial? A. The 'Outlook' was a very bad paper.
 "A. At this point Attorney Donald read the editorial stating that copy of The Ishpeming Iron Ore was shown to me based on the following:
 "Theodore Roosevelt is the only one that can fall beside him, parade his name and accompany the remains."

"The month's monitoring" Chief Beavers declared Attorney Thomas B. Felder has no evidence of public corruption...

Mr. Hutchison formerly was a newspaper man. Shortly after taking up the practice of law he achieved State-wide reputation...

Following is Mr. Hutchison's open letter to Chief B. Beavers:

The Duty of the Grand Jury-- Investigate All the Charges of Graft and Bribery!

The Georgian repeats its suggestion that the Grand Jury MUST TAKE UP AND INVESTIGATE THOROUGHLY the charges of graft and bribery that have been made in the newspapers during the past few days.

And the matter should not end with the Grand Jury. It should be taken into a court of law.

Colonel Thomas B. Felder has made some accusations that merit immediate attention.

If there is graft in the police department or bribery anywhere, the public has a right to know about it; and if Colonel Felder or anyone else can establish that, he will receive the thanks of the entire community, and there will be a speedy turning out of the guilty men.

The matter is too serious to begin and end in a newspaper war. The good name of the city is involved. The good name of public servants is involved.

Trials in newspapers are never effective. They lead nowhere. The public is still unconvinced.

Trials by judges and juries are final and conclusive. THE PUBLIC WANTS FACTS.

There is no reason to believe that the charges against Beavers are true. Even the bitterest enemies of Beavers admit his honesty.

Whether Beavers' attitude is right in putting an end to the segregated district is not an issue. The law does not permit any choice in the matter.

It is not improbable that a little more liberality in some of the laws would be a good thing for the city and all concerned. But the way to get that liberality is to change the present statutes.

Beavers has no alternative but to enforce the law as he sees it, and he has no alternative but to compel those who accuse his department to go into court and try the case there instead of in the columns of the newspaper.

FOREMAN OF FACTORY ACCUSES NEGRO CONVICT

Continued From Page 1. ...half drunk. ...I'll go further and say that the last three months that Conley was here I was suspicious of him and tried to watch him as closely as possible.

Mrs. White Denies Identification. ...Mrs. J. Arthur White, of 59 Bonnie Rose Avenue, made positive denial to the Solicitor General's office Tuesday that she ever had made any identification of James Conley, the negro slayer, as published in an afternoon paper.

I can not understand why such a charge has been made against me and published," she said to a reporter. "I was just called by the Solicitor General to confirm what I told him, as I had told him before, that I never had identified the negro."

State Faces Big Task in Trial of Frank as Slayer

What will be the defense of Leo M. Frank when he is called upon next month to answer the charges of strangling little Mary Phagan? With the confident announcement of the police Monday that they had completed a case against the superintendent that was as conclusive as it possibly could be, the state is being asked to-day by everyone who has any interest in the mystery, and that means practically every man in Atlanta.

The people will not get their answer from Luther Z. Rosser, the convicted and state, who is now in the trial actually begins. But even at this early date, when the vaguest of hints have been given as to the course that will be followed in the battle to free Frank from all suspicion, it is estimated that there are many openings offered the defense for attacks upon the theory of the State.

Burden of Proof on State. ...These who are active developments in Atlanta's baffling murder mystery and who were to profit the line of defense that will be offered are hoping in that the first place, the great burden of proof is on the prosecution and not upon the defense.

It is absolutely necessary, due to the fact that the law has suggested everyone under some manner, that the State in any manner, by some piece of evidence, connect Frank directly with the crime, establish his connection beyond a reasonable doubt.

Until the State is able to do this, Luther Z. Rosser may rest on his laurels if he so desires. Leo Frank is innocent this moment in the eyes of the law. His innocence does not need to be proved. If it is necessary, it immediately becomes a question, therefore, as to how the State can really make out a case against Frank, as he is now judged from the evidence in the hands of the public.

Frank's Friends Deny Connection. ...Those interested in the defense of Frank move, both questions, emphatically in the negative. Not one thing has been found, they declare, that connects Frank directly with the mysterious strangling. None do they regard the circumstantial evidence seriously.

The law will not permit Frank's conviction for the crime until the state has proved to the satisfaction of the jury that he had the opportunity. It will not permit his conviction, if no convincing evidence is found against him, merely because he is unable to put his hands on another man and say, "This is the man you want to be the guilty person."

It is not the intention of the law to hang one man simply because he is unable to find who is the guilty person. It is the intention of the law to hang the guilty person.

Mrs. State has presented its reasons for believing in the guilt of Frank, it is regarded as likely that the defense will claim first of all that the State has failed to establish Frank's connection with the crime beyond a reasonable doubt. The defense will represent that the most the State has done is to establish that he had the opportunity to commit the murder.

Frank never was seen with the girl before the day of the strangling or before. It is not known that he ever spoke to her except in connection with her work. Nothing was found to point the finger of accusation directly at Frank, so far as the public has been informed. Some of the State's clothing has been found with blood stains upon it. No finger prints upon the girl's body or her clothes were identified as his. None of his personal belongings were found near the girl's body. Absolutely nothing was discovered that connected the defense with the crime.

small amount might prove an incriminating one person, the defense very likely will argue. And it is not at all certain that the robbery, if robbery was the motive, had any idea that the amount he would obtain would be so small.

It is probable that Frank would have taken the trouble to hide the money where it could not have been discovered. It is a question that can be put to the jury. The prosecution will argue that the money was hidden in the room of the murder. The defense also will fight against the introduction of most of the clothes and identification of Frank made by Officer House, of Trout Hills Park, on the grounds of its utter improbability.

Will Attack Officer. ...They will question the ability of Officer House to identify a man he has seen only once and after a lapse of two years. They will attack the probability of a man of Frank's attitude permitting himself to be seen in company with a girl in Short Street.

They will question the probability of his admitting his identity to the superintendent of the National Penitentiary, when his main concern naturally would have been to keep the identity secret. Probabilities are to play a large part in the trial, declare those interested in the mystery. For it is very much a sequence of probabilities that the police are basing their expectations of convicting Frank.

Even should the State be able to prove beyond a doubt that it was Frank whom the park guard discovered in company with a young girl two years ago, the defense will still be able to say that this fact no more connects Frank with the murder than it does hundreds of other persons.

The announcement of the detectives themselves that they do not believe in the guilt of Frank, makes it unlikely that the trial will have anything to do with the identification of Frank the day before the murder.

Sentinel May Yet Be Witness. ...Laying aside the possibility of a premeditated murder, which no one had even suggested up to the time of the alleged confession, the friends of Frank, and those who are without personal interest as well, counted the night of the murder. Sentinel May Phagan from infancy. He said that he could not be mistaken and do everything but tell him that he was going to commit a murder on the next day.

It is rumored that E. I. Sentinel may yet figure in the case again. Sentinel is the man who declared positively before the coroner's jury that he saw Mary Phagan shortly before midnight the night of the murder. He knew Mary Phagan from infancy. He testified that he met her on the street in company with some man and that he said, "Hello, Mary" and that she replied, "Hello, Mary."

This testimony would appear quite conclusive were it not for the statement that he made on the stand. It may have been dead at least six hours when found. It is known, however, that some confessions is still being placed in his statements.

Suspicion Turned to Conley; Accused by Factory Foreman

NEGRO, WHOSE STORY THAT HE WROTE NOTES AT FRANK'S DICTATION IS GENERALLY DISBELIEVED, WAS OFTEN DRUNK. MRS. WHITE CAN NOT IDENTIFY HIM.

Suspicion in the Phagan case was Tuesday morning turned full force upon James Conley, the negro whose unexpected assertion last week that he had written the notes found by the body of Mary Phagan, at the dictation of Leo M. Frank, brought a speedy indictment of the pencil factory superintendent.

In the opinion of E. P. Holloway, timekeeper and foreman in the factory, Conley is the guilty man.

Careful study of the negro's story has revealed many absurdities in its structure, wherein evidence of childish cunning arose in an effort to throw the blame on to Frank. It is this which has served to bring the deed to Conley's door.

However, Mrs. Arthur White, wife of a machinist at the factory, who testified that she saw a negro lurking in the building between 12 noon and 2 o'clock on the afternoon of the murder, denied the published report in an afternoon paper that she had identified Conley as the one. Mrs. White stated Tuesday morning that she had secured only a glimpse of the man. It may have been Conley, or another negro. Mrs. White was asked to pick Conley out of a crowd of twenty negroes some time ago, but her identification was a second choice.

The police, in spite of bending every effort to show that Frank is guilty, therefore, have resorted to a dissection of Conley's story. One of its weakest links, they believe, is the quotation of Frank's statement that "Who should I hang?" That the superintendent should place this condition in the negro's story appears absurd.

Another damning point against Conley lies in the declaration of Holloway, timekeeper of the factory, that the negro had appeared for duty indicated on several occasions; that the duties as receiver brought him in contact with the girls, who feared him.

Where Was Conley? According to Conley's story, he was on Peach Street from 10 o'clock until 2 in the afternoon of the murder. Police investigation of this has failed to locate the statement. Conley admits that he can not remember any one whom he saw during that time to support his statement. From 2 o'clock until 4 o'clock was, at his home. This has been proven. Conley declares that from 6 until 8 o'clock that night he was never home. This also has not been established. Conley states he stayed there the remainder of the night.

According to the new theory of Conley's implication, the negro wrote the notes on Saturday instead of Friday, as he claims, and not on anybody's dictation. It is further argued that in order to create a link with the law, he made his confession when he thought that the case against Frank was fastened.

Conley's delay in making this confession seemed likely is another link against him.

His detailed account of the incident of the note writing, in which he even went so far as to attempt a quotation of what Frank said to him, has been commended on the negro's part. It is believed further that the story was concocted by Conley while he was in prison. However, the negro's child brain was not capable of making a strong enough to withstand rigid investigation.

What will be the defense of Leo M. Frank when he is called upon next month to answer to the charge of strangling little Mary Phagan? With the confident announcement of the police Monday that they had completed a case against the factory superintendent that was as conclusive as it possibly could be without the testimony of actual eyewitnesses of the crime, this question naturally is being asked today by everyone who has any interest in the mystery, and that means practically every citizen in Atlanta.

The people will not get their answer from Luther Z. Rosser, the close friend and able attorney of Frank until the trial actually begins. But over at this early date, when only the vagaries of hints have been given to the course that will be followed in the battle to free Frank from all suspicion, it is patent that there are many openings offered the defense for attacks upon the theory of the State.

Garden of Phors on State. The negro who has been the chief development in Atlanta's baffling murder mystery and who venture to predict the line of defense that will be offered are bearing in mind that in the first place, the great bulk of proof is upon the prosecution and not upon the defense.

It is absolutely necessary, due to the prosecution, upon which the law has been merely because he is unable to put his hands on another man and say "This is the man you want. He is the guilty person."

It is not the intention of the law to

STATE FACES BIG TASK IN TRIAL OF FRANK

Burden of Proof Will Rest on Prosecution in the Phagan Slaying Case.

After the State has presented its reasons for believing in the guilt of Frank, it is regarded as likely that the defense will claim first of all that the State has failed to establish Frank's connection with the crime beyond a reasonable doubt. The defense will represent that the State has done to establish that he had the opportunity to commit the murder.

Frank never was seen with the girl, either on the day of the strangling or before. It is not known if he ever spoke to her except in connection with her work. Nothing was found to point the finger of accusation directly at Frank, so far as the public has been informed. None of Frank's clothing has been found with blood stains upon it. No fingerprints upon the girl's body or her clothes were identified as his. None of his personal belongings were found near the girl's body. Absolutely nothing was discovered in the search of the detectives that tended the crime on him.

Own Admission Covered Arrest.
The police possibly would never have known of the murder if it had not been for the fact that Mary Phagan, so far as is known, had not been for his own free admission. The officers the moment he identified the body that was the girl, he paid at noon the day before. No one else knew that Mary Phagan was in the building at that time, so far as the evidence reveals. Frank did not have to tell if he had desired to conceal the fact.

The defense, therefore, will be in a position to say, "Should not this admission, given freely and voluntarily, be regarded as an indication of the guilt of the defendant?"

Prisoners Shown Favors, Says Judge.
SAVANNAH, Ga., May 27.—Recorder John E. Schwarz, in his opinion today announced that he had not been convinced by the evidence presented in the case of the girl's body, that the girl was the body that was the girl, he paid at noon the day before. No one else knew that Mary Phagan was in the building at that time, so far as the evidence reveals. Frank did not have to tell if he had desired to conceal the fact.

Will Ask Officer.
They will question the ability of the officers to identify the girl as the body that was the girl, he paid at noon the day before. No one else knew that Mary Phagan was in the building at that time, so far as the evidence reveals. Frank did not have to tell if he had desired to conceal the fact.

Even Should the State be able to prove beyond a doubt that it was Frank who committed the murder, the State will be able to establish that this fact has no bearing on the guilt of the defendant.

Should the State be able to prove that the murder was committed in the presence of the girl, the State will be able to establish that this fact has no bearing on the guilt of the defendant.

Should the State be able to prove that the murder was committed in the presence of the girl, the State will be able to establish that this fact has no bearing on the guilt of the defendant.

Minister Nabs 'Tiger' Then Rides With Him

KANSAS CITY, Mo., May 27.—After he had arrested Heron Snyder, driver for a wholesale liquor company, on a charge of violating the prohibition laws, the Rev. J. M. Dunlap, welfare officer of Kansas City, Kan., climbed into Snyder's wagon and accompanied him as he delivered beer to his various customers.

The minister remained with the driver until he made his deliveries and then took him to the police station, where the man was released on bond.

Morgan Firm Denies Attack on President

WASHINGTON, May 27.—A prompt repudiation of the anti-administration interview attributed to Henry P. Morgan, of the firm of J. P. Morgan & Co. in Paris, has been received at the State Department.

This interview, attacking both President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan, was cabled to a New York newspaper and was widely reprinted as alleged to represent the ultimatum of the drive until the United States Government.

STATE FACES BIG TASK IN TRIAL OF FRANK

Prosecution in Evidence Made Public, Has Not Directly Connected Him With Slaying.

What will be the defense of Leo M. Frank when he is called upon next month to answer to the charge of strangling little Mary Phagan? With the confident announcement of the police Monday that they had completed a case against the factory superintendent that was as conclusive as it possibly could be without the testimony of actual witnesses of the crime, this question naturally being asked to-day by everyone who has any interest in the mystery, and that means practically every person in Atlanta.

The people will not get their answer from Luther Z. Rosser, the distinguished and able attorney of Frank, until the trial actually begins. But even this, each date, when only the vaguest of hints have been given as to the course that will be followed, is the battle to free Frank from all suspicion, it is felt that there are many agencies for the defense for attacks upon the theories of the State.

Burden of Proof on State. "Those who are close to the daily workings in Atlanta's baffling murder mystery and who venture to predict the line of defense that will appear in the trial are of the opinion that in the first place, the great burden of proof is upon the prosecution and not upon the defense.

It is absolutely necessary, due to the protection with which the law is hedged under suspicion of crime, that the State in some manner, by some piece of evidence, connect Frank directly with the crime, establish his connection beyond a reasonable doubt.

Frank's Friends Deny Connection. Those interested in the defense of Frank answer both questions emphatically in the negative. Not one thing has been found, they declare, that connects Frank directly with the mysterious strangling. Nor do they regard the circumstantial evidence as serious.

The law will not permit Frank's conviction for the crime merely because the detectives have discovered that he had the opportunity. It will permit his conviction, if no convincing evidence is found against him, merely because he is unable to put his hands on another man and say, "This is the man you want. He is the guilty person."

GAMBLER'S PLOT, SAYS LANFORD IN DEFY

Detective Chief Accuses 'Ring' of Trying to Fix Charge of Bribery Against Him.

Chief of Detectives Newport A. Lanford gave out a sensational statement Tuesday morning in which he charged that the efforts to fix accusations of bribery and malfeasance upon him were inspired by a "gambling ring" of which C. C. Jones was the head.

The cause of the fight against Lanford had been something of a mystery. Beavers readily explained the effort to dispossess him from the office of chief of police by his war on vice in the city of Atlanta. Lanford's explanation reveals another angle of the crusade against the vice-open town.

ELDER ADE OFFERS ICE LIST TO CHIEF

Attorney Carl Hutcheson Accuses Beavers of Permitting Unlawful Houses to Operate.

Carl Hutcheson, a young lawyer connected with the firm of Polder, Anderson, Whitman & Polder, has written an open letter to Chief of Police Beavers, charging him with permitting only fall houses to operate on certain city streets and promising to give addresses if the Chief asks personally for them within three days.

On Monday morning Chief Beavers declared Attorney Thomas B. Polder had no evidence of police violation of municipal orders, that he never had had any, and that he was only blaming Beavers, Colonel Polder announced he would make no more statements in writing, and that he had nothing to say then.

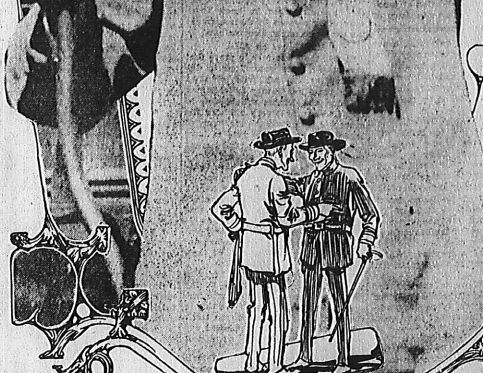

T. R. IS READY TO DENY DRINKING ON STAND

Marquette, Mich., May 27.—Colonel Theodore Roosevelt was urged to take the stand to-day as the first witness in support of the charge of libel against George A. Newell, publisher of Iron Ore, a weekly paper at Marquette, Mich., for which the former President is demanding $10,000 damages. The jury is composed of four farmers, two teamsters, two miners, one woodman, one blacksmith, one locomotive fireman and one chef for delirium of duty.

The twelve men last night were locked in a large sample room of the Marquette Hotel, guarded by bailiffs. They will be closely watched during the trial. Opinion here to-day was that the jury slightly favors Colonel Roosevelt. A few of the twelve are out and out admirers of the ex-President and most of them are known to have Progressive inclinations. One of the 12 witnesses examined was that he was acquitted as a juror when Roosevelt was in office.

BURNS'S SLEUTH QUITS; SAYS HE IS OPPOSED TO STATE FACES BIG TASK IN TRIAL OF FRANK

Tobie Gives Out Statement Intimating Frank's Guilt—Has No Quarrel With Police.

C. W. Tobie, chief criminal investigator for the Burns Detective Agency, formally withdrew from the investigation Tuesday morning.

Colonel Thomas H. Feltner, who brought the Burns detectives into the Phagan case, would make no statement relative to their withdrawal.

"I shall continue my personal investigation as in the past," he said, "and have no other statement to make."

Tobie issued a statement in which he denied that any of his time had been used in a police investigation.

"We have nothing whatever to do with the Phagan case," said Mr. Tobie. "When the letters charges were published I immediately notified Mr. Lebon, superintendent of the South City branch. He came to Atlanta Monday morning. After a conference with myself and some officials he decided he would be advisable to give up the case and return to Chicago."

"Open Opposition to Burns." "Our decision was reached because we found open opposition to our work and we could not render service proportionate to the money we were being paid."

"Nothing has ever been said in my position to the effect that we are striving to shield Frank is absurd. From what developed in my investigation I am convinced Frank is the guilty man. We are working on the theory that he was the murderer. In that case, at the conference with Colonel Feltner he was told he believed Frank was the murderer."

In Lebon's conference with Tobias Feltner he told Mr. Lebon he had evidence sufficient to convict Frank and he did not see that the Burns detectives could be of any great benefit in the case, hampered as they were. He said our work had been entirely satisfactory to him and he had been advised to discontinue it.

Several of the names connected by Tobias Feltner with the Phagan case were given Tobias Feltner in my circles, particularly by those whose names were connected by Tobias Feltner with the Phagan case.

Chief Landford authorized the following statement on the departure of Tobias:

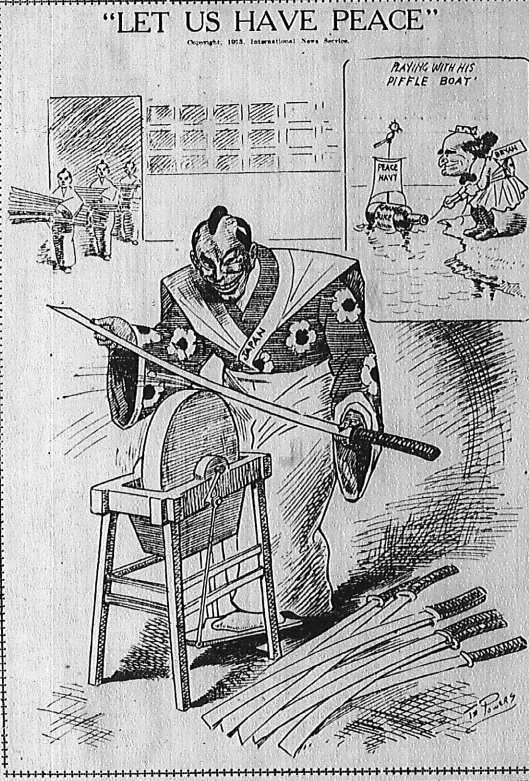

Tobie, I believe, is straight and honest. He was victimized by Feltner. I am convinced Mr. Tobias was fed toward the interest of those seeking to clear the mystery."

A girl employee of the post office has written the following statement, which upholds the working conditions of the factory and emphasizes the character of the imprisoned superintendent:

"Nothing has ever been said in my position to the effect that we are striving to shield Frank is absurd. From what developed in my investigation I am convinced Frank is the guilty man. We are working on the theory that he was the murderer. In that case, at the conference with Colonel Feltner he was told he believed Frank was the murderer."

"It looks highly bad that we have to work in the place where our little friend was so horribly murdered. But we are only poor working girls, trying to make a honest living and we try not to think of the tragedy any more than is possible, and we have the same use of the factory and we try to heart to heart, in times of trouble."

"We all hope and trust the guilty will be punished and the innocent given freedom, for we all think our superintendent has a soul himself and that he would not care think of such a thing, much less commit such a horrible crime."

gull, as the detectives have conducted it up to this time." It is a question that he will be asked as soon as he is approached that he saw the girl and talked with her, when there was no need of such an admission.

If the State attorney to show that the murder was committed between 2 and 3 o'clock Saturday afternoon, as one of the theories contends, the defense will be able to argue that there were several other people in the factory at the time, this fact opening the way to the argument that if the crime was committed at this time it must not have been Frank who did it, and to another argument that Frank would have been very unlikely to attract the girl when he knew there were other persons in the factory at the time who might discover him.

Should the State seek to prove that the murder was committed in the factory, as the affidavits obtained from Mrs. Alma Fombly indicate may be done, the defense will be able to establish a very strong alibi for the suspected man from the testimony of seven persons who are said to have been at Frank's house Saturday evening playing a game of cards.

Several of them already have testified before the coroner's jury, and all of them are said to be willing to give their testimony in court to the effect that they saw Frank come home that evening about the time he said in his statement to the coroner's jury, and that he remained home the remainder of the evening in the best of their knowledge.

This will bring it to an issue of veracity between Mrs. Alma Fombly and these seven persons, who are persons of reputation and standing in the community. If, indeed, the testimony of Mrs. Fombly is allowed admission, which appears very doubtful.

Mrs. Fombly swore in her affidavit that Frank called her on the telephone several times during the night of the murder, asking her for permission to come to her place, she testified that she denied his request. It is between these hours that Frank has a very well established alibi in all appearances.

Another Motive Possible. The defense also will be in a position to suggest that there might have been another motive for the crime than the one generally accepted. No one has stated positively that he was certain of any conclusions from his examination of the body other immediately after the crime or at the times the body was exhumed.

Added to this fact is the unexplained circumstance that the girl's purse never has been found. It contained only the wages she had drawn that day, it is sure, but even this small amount might prove an incentive to some persons, the defense very likely will argue. And it is not at all certain that the robber, if robbery should be the motive, would have a small amount.

It is possible that Frank would have been in a position to suggest that the girl's purse when it could not have been found.

interminated in any way any particular person had it been lying near her body? It is a question that can be put to the juror in this connection. The defense also will fight against the introduction of much of the character testimony that was permitted to go before the coroner's jury. Frank's attorneys will attack the identification of Frank made by Or. Ford House of Druid Hills Park, on the grounds of its utter improbability.

Will Attack Officer. They will question the ability of House to identify a man he has seen only once and after a lapse of two years. They will attack the probability of a man of Frank's standing permitting himself to be seen in company with a girl in short skirts.

They will question the probability of his admitting his identity to the officer and saying, "I am Leo Frank, superintendent of the National Penitentiary," when his main concern naturally would be to keep his identity secret. Probabilities are bound to play a large part in the trial, declare those interested in the mystery, for it is very much of a question of probabilities that the police are basing their expectations of convicting Frank.

Even should the State be able to prove beyond a doubt that it was Frank who the park guard discovered in company with a young girl two years ago, the defense will still be able to say that this fact no more connects Frank with the murder than it does hundreds of other persons.

The announcement of the detectives themselves that they do not place implicit confidence in the so-called confession of the negro, James Conley, makes it unlikely that the trial will have anything to do with his statement that he wrote notes at the dictation of Frank the day before the murder.

Sentinel May Yet Be Witness. Laying aside the possibility of a premeditated murder, which was not even suggested up to the time of the negro's alleged confession, the friends of Frank, and those who are without personal interest, as well as the intelligent and shrewd man, would take an ignorant negro into his confidence and do everything but tell him that he was going to commit a murder on the next day.

It is rumored that E. L. Sentinel may yet figure in the case again. Sentinel is the man who declared positively before the coroner's jury that he saw Mary Phagan arrive before midnight the night of the murder. Sentinel knew Mary Phagan from infancy. He said that he could not be mistaken in her identification. He testified that he met her on the street in company with some man and that he said, "Hello, Mary," and that she replied, "Hello, Ed."

This testimony would appear quite suspicious, were it not for the statements of the physicians that the girl must have been dead at least six hours before her identification. It is known that she was the Sunday American is "The Market Place of the South." The Sunday American is the best advertising medium.

WHO ARE THE BRIBERS AND GRAFTERS? FELDER MUST PROVE CHARGES

The charges of bribery and graft made by Thomas B. Felder are so important they can not be ignored. Statements by Chief Beavers and Chief of Detectives Lanford make it clear that some persons of influence are trying to use their "pull" to bring about a condition of affairs in the city that the majority of people are opposed to.

Jury is now in session, and the investigation should be started at once. The public is entitled to know all the facts, know the names of those giving or receiving bribes, and if Felder has seen a "graft list," as he says he has, he should be made to tell about it. The public is not willing to believe anything against Beavers. He is regarded as honest and efficient. Felder must be made to prove his charges!
