WILSON MAY REPLY TO LOBBYING CHARGE

Says He May Cast Aside Official Title to Defend Himself Against Attack.

WASHINGTON, June 7.—As a result of the attack of Senator Townsend, of Michigan, on the "lobbying" of President Wilson, the Chief Executive to-day is considering casting aside his official title and testimony before the senatorial investigation committee as a private citizen, both in order to defend himself from the charges and also to defend himself from the charges of the lobbyist.

Senator Townsend's charges that the President himself is lobbying for the passage of the Underwood tariff bill have aroused great resentment at the White House. Secretary of War Wood has said that he did not consider the Townsend charges specific enough to warrant an official reply from the President of the United States, he thought it likely that the President will testify as a private citizen.

Before deciding on such a step, however, the President will consult with several of his Senatorial advisers, and it is considered probable at the White House that he will appear before the lobby committee openly and without warning. It is admitted that his testimony would be sensational in the extreme because he made a number of careful investigations of the lobby activity before leaving his denunciation of the lobbyists, which started the Congressional investigation.

Official's Defend President
White House officials deny without reservation the charge that the President has used the "big stick of patronage" to force the adoption of his views or to obtain votes for the tariff bill. If this charge be proved the White House is prepared to produce a list of the patronage already granted, which will show that Senators who have announced that they intend to vote against the bill have received exactly the same treatment in the matter of appointments as have those who intend to support the measure.

Committee Against Recalling Senators.
WASHINGTON, June 7.—Democratic Senators on the Overman lobby investigating committee today expressed the opinion that the administration of Senator Townsend that he had no specific information on which to base his accusation of lobbying against President Wilson has made it unnecessary to recall Senators who have testified.

"I see no reason for recalling those Senators who have testified," said Wood, who is acting chairman of the investigating committee. "Senator Townsend's charge was based almost entirely on the interest of the administration in the tariff bill. He has admitted that his interest was natural and that the act of the administration merely followed precedents established by the parties in power since the creation of republican government. Personally, I shall not request any Senator to again testify on this matter."

Snow After Record Hot Day in Chicago

CHICAGO, June 7.—Snow fell in Chicago to-day, fourteen hours after the season's warmest temperature, 84 degrees was registered. The falling of snow here last ten minutes in Austin, of Albany, and Mrs. J. J. Talley, of Columbia, S. C., was general agent of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, which issued policies on Painters' life totaling $100,000, and which refused him $50,000 additional on the ground that he was overinsured. These applications had gone through the Jacksonville office. The Equitable was one of those active in investigating Painter's death. This company ranked next to the Mutual in the amount of insurance on Painter.

His Death a Surprise.
Coles had been in bad health for several months. The Painter mystery caused him much worry, as it did the agents of other companies interested. A few days ago, while the Painter investigation was in progress, he was forced to take his bed, but his illness was not considered serious, and it was stated at his office only Friday afternoon that he was expected at his desk within a few days. However, before the day was over, he was stricken with a heart attack and died almost immediately.

NEW VICTIM IS CLAIMED IN PAINTER TRAGEDY

Death of J. S. Coles, Insurance Man, Traced to Worry Caused by Millionaire's Fate.

By COLE E. MORGAN.
JACKSONVILLE, FLA., June 7.—While no new light has been shed on the mystery in the death of J. S. Coles, Painter immediately after he had taken out a $100,000 life insurance, that case has a tragic result in the death of John Bricker Coles, which is attributed directly to worry over the affair.

Mr. Coles, a brother of A. P. Coles, the Atlanta banker; Mrs. B. W. Phillips, of Augusta; Mrs. J. D. Twigg, of Albany, and Mrs. J. J. Talley, of Columbia, S. C., was general agent of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, which issued policies on Painters' life totaling $100,000, and which refused him $50,000 additional on the ground that he was overinsured. PENDLETON SAYS BEAVERS MIGHT BE IMPEACHED

Superior Court Judge Defends Order Which Was Attacked by Chief of Police.

That Chief of Police James L. Beavers and Policeman James H. Kirke are subject to impeachment if the facts in the temporary restraining order of Mrs. N. P. Powell, who has been sentenced to four months in jail, are substantiated in court, was the startling declaration of Superior Court Judge John T. Pendleton in discussing the case Saturday morning.

What Mrs. Powell Claims.
"In the petition for an injunction the woman said Kirke made an improper proposal to her," said Judge Pendleton. "She alleged that when she refused him she was threatened with violence."

Injunction Case Up Soon.
"A judge can not overstate that he believes the sworn statement. The law demands that protection be granted where there is a wide difference between a temporary and a permanent injunction, and it is more than likely the permanent injunction would not be granted."

Southerner Wins Columbia Degree

SCOPES READINESS TO TAKE 'EVIDENCE' FROM ANY SOURCE

Mrs. Leo M. Frank made public on Saturday the following letter, which explains itself:

Atlanta Ga., June 7, 1913.
Editor Atlanta Georgian:
I think fairness to Mr. Frank requires that the public should clearly understand Mr. Frank's position as stated by him in his card in the Constitution of June 6, and repeated in the papers yesterday, in reply to my statement that he proposes to use testimony which comes from witnesses as the result of torture.

No Charge Against Woman
The Journal and The Constitution stated that he had my cook arrested and carried to his office and quizzed to such an extent as to drive her into hysterics, and that after this he sent her screaming to the Police Station, in the patrol wagon. After she left his office she was taken to the detective's Torture Chamber, and according to The Atlanta Constitution she there had the third degree applied to her to the point of exhaustion, after which she made an affidavit, which the detective, or some one, immediately gave out to the papers.

Thinks Public Is Opposed
While Mr. Dorey thinks all this is entirely proper, it is the next thing to an impossibility to believe that many persons in the community will agree with him. Indeed, I would agree with him that he should use, even in the newspapers, torture chamber testimony to take away a man's life.

Know She Can Not Testify
Mr. Dorey and the detective know that I can not go on the witness stand and deny the affidavits they have published in the newspapers, owing from my cook in the torture chamber by the third-degree process, because I am informed that under the law a wife will not be permitted to testify either for or against her husband. The law puts this absolute seal upon my lips, and my only recourse is in letting the community know the facts through the newspapers as far as I can.

Defense Bends Efforts To Prove Conley Slayer
The charge of Leo Frank against the charge of murdering Mary Phagan will now be the matter to be taken to clear Frank's skirts. It will seek directly to fix upon James Conley, negro, full and complete responsibility for the crime.

FRANK DEFENSE TO MAKE FIGHT ON CONLEY

Continued From Page 1. very busy, while the State's officers have been talking. Reti-ent and silent as the grave as to the theory of the crime to be advanced in defense of Frank, it now is known that it will be sweeping, sensational and complete.

State Faces Strong Defense. Whether it will come as a tremendous surprise to the prosecution, or whether something of the magnitude and scope of it has leaked through to the public and the police within the past 24 hours, is problematical.

The same elements of the State at detective headquarters and the announcement that no more indictments would be done there, either for the State or anybody else, it is now shown that the State is in a position to a full realization of the fact that Frank's defense will be thorough and complete in detail.

Whereas up to yesterday any one of an interview might be justified for the making of the detective, to-day nothing is known of the defense now being advanced as the defense has been, it has nothing by way of allusion on the State to-day.

Frank's Character. Frank's previous good character, his family relations, his ordinary habits of life and his everyday methods of conducting himself will be shown fearfully into the scales.

It has been determined for him to leave nothing unsaid and to leave nothing unexplained, and to do so fully and completely and to free him from all charges and to free him from all charges of any kind of crime.

Conley's Admits. Conley's admits will be shown to be a man of high character and of high standing in the community. He is not only a man of high character and of high standing in the community, but he is also a man of high character and of high standing in the community.

To Attack Conley. His general character will be put in evidence, the defendant's character will be shown, and his opportunity to have killed Mrs. Frank's counsel will be demonstrated.

CHICAGO, June 7.—Shortening of the grammar school, high school and college courses in order to put young men and women into business and other activities at an early age was advocated today by Harry Pratt Judson, president of the University of Chicago, the only witness summoned before the Illinois Senate White Slave Committee hearings today.

"How long is it after a young man leaves college before he is financially able to marry?" "About three or four years," replied President Judson.

"Do you think the shortening of the courses in schools would make the young man earlier efficient?" "Yes, especially in the case of the young man who is going into business, I believe a boy or girl should spend about seven years gone through the grades and high school, I believe it will ultimately be made easier to attend twelve, as at present. There are too many things taught in a year's repetition of high school work."

WILSON, TOO, A LOBBYIST, CHARGE OF SENATOR

Townsend Attacks the President for Using "Undue Influence" on Legislators

WASHINGTON, June 7.—President Wilson was branded a lobbyist by Senator Townsend of Michigan, Republican, at the Overman lobby inquiry yesterday.

"The actions of President Wilson come nearest my definition of a lobbyist," said Townsend, "if an act is defined as the use of influence to secure the passage of legislation for the benefit of a particular individual or a particular class of individuals."

Letters and telegrams alleged to prove that a sugar and wool lobby has succeeded in influencing the Senators were shown by Senator Thomas of Colorado.

Thomas said he has received thousands of communications, some of them threatening him with political extinction should he oppose their interests in his State.

Senator Townsend criticized the committee for not having asked members of the Senate whether the President has sought to influence them and declared that even though the President had not intended his recent denunciation of "lobbies" working in support of classes in the tariff would force certain Senators to vote against amendments they knew to be just.

"Who are these Senators?" demanded Senator Read.

"I don't care to name anyone," retorted Senator Townsend, "but the two Democratic members of the committee present, Read and Walsh, resented any intimation that President Wilson had used patronage or threats to force anyone to support a sugar or wool tariff. They opposed the bill as a whole. Senator Townsend insisted the committee had not asked any Senator thus far whether the President had tried to influence him."

Senator Townsend interrupted Senator Walsh, "in view of the serious statements touching the Executive that any Senator who has already testified may be recalled and interrogated in reference thereto."

Senator Walsh said Senator Nelson and every member of the committee agreed.

NEW YORK, June 7.—Indications that local diamond importers are making large quantities of gems for the country in the expectation of an increase in the tariff is given in figures compiled by W. H. Treves, vice president, jewelry examiner at the Appraiser's Office. According to his report the total value of the gems imported through the port of New York for the month of May reached $4,142,000.

NEW VICTIM CLAIMED IN PAINTER TRAGEDY

Death of J. S. Coles, Insurance Man, Traced to Worry Caused by Millionaire's Death.

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 7.—While no new light has been shed on the mystery in the death of E. O. Painter immediately after he had taken out $100,000 life insurance, that case has a tragic result in the death of John Strickley Coles, which is attributed directly to worry over the affair.

Mr. Coles, a brother of A. P. Coles, the Atlanta banker; Mr. Stewart Smith of Atlanta; Mr. J. D. Twigg, of Albany, and Mr. D. S. Taylor, of Columbia, S. C., was a distinguished member of the Equitable Life Assurance Society, which issued policies on Painter's life totaling $100,000, and which refused to pay $100,000 additional on the ground that he was overinsured. These applications had gone through the Jacksonville office. The Equitable was one of those active in investigating Painter's death. This company's investigation was in progress in the amount of insurance on Painter.

His Death a Surprise.

Coles had been ill in health for several months. The painter mystery caused him much worry, as did the agents of other companies interested. A few days ago, while the painter was in Jacksonville, he was forced to take his bed, but was not considered seriously ill. He died at 10:30 p. m. on the afternoon that he was expected at his desk within a few days. However, the day was so hot he was forced to take his bed, but was not considered seriously ill. He died at 10:30 p. m. on the afternoon that he was expected at his desk within a few days. However, the day was so hot he was forced to take his bed, but was not considered seriously ill.

The mutual, Equitable and New York life companies have been most active in the investigation of Painter's death. Each of these companies has representatives here directly representing the home offices.

Each of the companies has had inspectors in Jacksonville, and they are all working hard to get their reports on the autopsy and chemical examination of Painter's organs reaches the coroner's jury. They fear to disclose any of their information lest it prejudice their case in the anticipated court contest over the payment of the policies.

A committee of insurance men is acting in an advisory capacity for the interested companies, and the general agents are acquiring their home offices with developments that have come out since the adjuring and inspectors left Jacksonville. These agents are eagerly awaiting the announcement of the Baltimore report. Little additional information can be expected until that report is published, as the whole case seems to hinge on what the Baltimore chemist found.

Elopes With Georgia Girl on Motorcycle

AUGUSTA, Ga., June 7.—Miss Elizabeth McMurray, a pretty sixteen-year-old Waynesboro girl, eloped Thursday with Edwin Fulcher on young Fulcher's motorcycle. After proceeding a few miles, the motorcycle broke down and they secured either an automobile or a horse and went on. It is believed they went to Aiken. Helixes searched in vain for them all night.

The families of Miss McMurray and young Fulcher are both wealthy and socially prominent. Fulcher is about the same age as the girl.

Clubwomen Plan City Beautiful Speaker Calls Atlanta Dirty Other Civic Movements Advocated

Federation Will Petition Legisla- ture to Establish Home for Wayward Girls.

Atlanta clubwomen have inaugurated a movement for a city beautiful, following an address by Mrs. W. P. Pattillo to the City Federation of Women's Clubs.

Having just returned from a trip abroad, Mrs. Pattillo discussed European methods of beautifying municipalities, to which she devoted considerable time and study, and gave vivid descriptions of results as she saw them. She selected for her subject, "How Other Cities Are Made Beautiful and Attractive," and sought to interest the clubwomen in Atlanta in co-operative measures which have transformed continental cities into veritable gardens.

"Atlanta is one of the dirtiest places I have seen," Mrs. Pattillo said, as she contrasted the city with other places she had visited in Europe and America. She then described the city's natural advantages and asked the clubwomen to concentrate their efforts toward developing them. Her auditors, representing 41 clubs with 8,000 members, expressed pleasure at her remarks and pledged themselves to work together to carry out her suggestions. It was evident to all present that Atlanta will be made a city beautiful if her clubwomen have the necessary influence.

Industrial Hygiene Suggested.

Civic movements received most attention at the hands of the Federation members. Prominent among them was a report of the committee on resolutions, made by Mrs. James Jackson, containing a recommendation for the establishment of an industrial home for wayward girls. The Federation endorsed the resolution and announced its intention of petitioning the Georgia Legislature to establish the home. Atlanta will be made a city beautiful if her clubwomen have the necessary influence.

Peary Tells Paris Of South Pole

PARIS, June 7.—All Paris newspapers to-day agree that the Parisian public has been treated to a most interesting and triumphant reception that few living personalities have ever received. Admiral Peary said his future plans were rather unsettled, but indicated that he hopes to be able to outfit an American expedition for a trip to the South Pole.

"I believe the expedition should proceed to the pole from an opposite direction to that taken by Scott and Amundsen," said the explorer. "The result of my expedition will be to draw up a map of the South Pole."

DEFENSE DIGS DEEP TO SHOW CONLEY'S PHAGAN GIRL SLAYER

Getting New Evidence to Show Negro Was Located in Factory--Theory Explains Mystery of Staple Pulled From Back Door of Basement.

The defense of Leo Frank against the charge of murdering Mary Phagan will be more than a mere attempt to clear Frank's name of the crime. It will seek directly to fix upon James Conley, negro, full and complete responsibility for the crime.

Despite the secretiveness and the silence of Frank's attorneys, it has been ascertained with a reasonable degree of authority that the foregoing is the program of the defense, and that the defense believes itself abundantly prepared to take care of itself along this line.

An ironical alibi, covering all the time cited in the Conley statement with a substantial margin of time to spare, will be set up by Frank.

In addition to this, it will be shown that Conley was in the factory at the time he himself says Frank committed the murder, and for a long time before.

It is further shown that Conley had ample opportunity to accomplish the murder, and that every circumstance of it shows that he did do so.

It will be contended that the murder was committed in the first floor, and that after it was performed the girl's body was thrown down the stairs from the balcony, either by Mary Phagan or by Frank. It was followed by Conley, who then hid it in the rear.

Whereas it is said to be the party who drew the staple from the back door and thereby made his escape from the building, either by way of Madison Avenue or Fourth Street.

The missing piece that Mary Phagan is known to have had in her hand when she left home, and in which she is supposed to have put her signature, delivered from Frank, has never been found, although Conley has been careful enough to account for her having her shoe.

Undoubtedly, the defense has been very busy, while the State's officers have been talking of the magnitude and scope of the crime to the jury.

Retired and silent as the grave as to the theory of the crime to the past 24 hours, is prophetic.

The sudden clamping down of the lid at detective headquarters and the announcement that no more talking would be done there, either for the State or anybody else, has been very much to the surprise of the public.

Whether it will come as a tremendous surprise to the prosecution, or whether something of the magnitude and scope of it has leaked through to the public, is not known.

Heaves. He not only will be thrown out of court upon a strict legal showing, but he will be firmly lauded out.

To Attack Conley.

His general character will be put in evidence, his drinking habits established, and his opportunity to have committed the crime completely demonstrated.

Attorney Ross is known, despite his efforts, to have determined not only upon Frank's complete acquittal, but upon Conley's future conviction.

The foregoing is in brief outline, is the defense of Leo Frank now being framed up in surprising detail.

It is the defense can establish what it has fully and completely and to free him for all time from responsibility for the crime or any knowledge of it.

Besides the technical correctness of Frank's defense, his lawyers will undoubtedly show how impossible it would have been for him to have done what the negro accuses him of, under the negro's own statement.

Conley's advocates will be reduced to absurdity, so the defense now be defended accordingly.

KANSAS GOVERNOR AND AIDS HERE

Hodges, on Trip to Find Marble

Equal Suffrage.

Talking Kansas and woman suffrage, Governor George H. Hodges, Lieutenant Governor Sheffield Ingham and a delegation of State House officials of Kansas, spent last night in Atlanta. This morning they departed for Tate, Ga., where they will inspect the Georgia marble to be used in the building of the State House Memorial to be erected in Topeka.

Governor Hodges was especially pleased to discuss woman's suffrage, and of how it had succeeded in Kansas. "Why, the women are running things the way they should be run out in Kansas," he declared.

"We have the strict moral laws of any State in the Union, and we have almost completely eliminated our white slavery law. It is the strictest to be found. Why, in Topeka we even have feminine policemen—regular policemen with a regular beat. They do splendid work and have proved wonderful factors in eliminating vice conditions."

"Why, I believe a woman police chief is the very thing. That it would work right here in Atlanta to the end of absolutely freeing you of vice in my belief. Chief Beavers is a great chief and his war against vice has attracted world-wide attention, but I am for women chiefs of police."

That the probe will be continued is practically an established fact Saturday.

CHIEF SAYS LAW BALKS HIS WAR ON VICE

Resort in Spring Street Flourishes While Injunction Prevents Police Interference.

It became known Friday that Chief of Police James L. Beavers made the startling charge before the vice investigating grand jury that the courts of the State of Georgia made it impossible for him to close the most notorious resort that had ever operated in Atlanta.

Mr. Beavers made the emphatic statement that conditions were worse than they were before the restricted district was closed and that it was up to the jury to do something to relieve the situation.

The house in question is in Spring Street. The place was raided several months ago. Recorder Broyles ordered the woman held for the city court and asked Chief Beavers to have her moved from that locality.

The case of Mrs. N. F. Powell, of 85 Spring Street, was on trial before Judge Andrew Calhoun, in the city court, Friday. Chief Beavers, who appeared against her, stated that the house was still being operated in violation of the law, but that he was powerless to act.

It found guilty, would pay a fine and go back and he could do nothing but make a new case, which, he said, would be several weeks in getting to court.

W. R. Daley, Speaking at Commencement Exercises, Calls Buildings Fire Traps.

Declaring that Atlanta school buildings are inadequate, Colonel William R. Daley, president of the Board of Education, speaking before the forty-first graduating class of the City High School, the third graduating class of the English-Commercial High School, at commencement exercises Thursday night, advocated a special tax to maintain the public schools.

Colonel Daley called the City High School building a "dark and gloomy structure, and a veritable fire-trap, endangering the lives of the children of Atlanta." He characterized the English-Commercial High School as a "homeless orphan, housed in a ramshackle old residence," and declared that an explosion blowing the present high school building to atoms would be a blessing to the city.

The class was the largest ever graduated from a high school in the State of Georgia, and numbered 137 girls. Each girl wore a pretty white dress and carried a huge bunch of pink Killarney roses. The dresses were all exactly alike, and all made the same length from the floor. After repeating the Lord's prayer in unison, the class was led in the rows of chairs at the rear of the stage. Next came a chorus, "Carmen's Waltz," followed by a speech of greeting by Miss Gertrude Gates. An essay, "Vocational Schools," was read by Miss Blanche Foster, and after a part of the class sang "The Dance of the Leaves," Miss Floyd Edwards read "Ethical Values at the High School," and the entire class sang "The Beautiful Blue Danube."

A feature of the program was the awarding of the Vivian Marsh cup to Miss Jeannette Victor, who also was winner of the Ames Scott scholarship. The handsome trophy, a loving cup, which is awarded annually by Hon. W. M. Marsh, was presented by Colonel Daley.

The girls were called forward in groups of seven to receive their diplomas, and nearly a hundred guests were present.

The closing number of the program was a march and drill by the class. First came girls with hoops draped with pink roses and green leaves, and then others with pink and green garlands.

Insurance Agents Helped Painter Figure How He Could Pay Premiums.

By COLE E. MORGAN
JACKSONVILLE, Fla., June 6.—The analysis of E. O. Painter's vital organs has been completed in Baltimore and the report is expected to reach the Barnett National Bank on Saturday. It will come under seal and be held by the bank until Dr. C. O. Conner, C. D. Abbott and Judge O. C. Hamlin, who was Painter's attorney for 21 years.

Dr. E. Boyd and Dr. P. C. Perry, the physician who performed the autopsy on Painter's body and went to the body and "plait" himself, the Baltimore last night, are due in Jacksonville to-night. Dr. Boyd and Dr. Perry have been acting in this case for the family.

The explanation offered by Judge Hamlin for the hasty autopsy was that because of the large amount of insurance carried by Painter, it was considered essential, from a legal standpoint, to have a man of legal acumen present, established and prepared, should the insurance company resist payment on the policy.

When Judge Broyles asked the women if they would like to go to the Martha Home, the Barrett woman cried: "Send me to the stockade. I do not want to be reformed." Each was given a sentence of 23 days in the city penitentiary.

Hotels Rank Caesar Below Beavers
Recorder Declares Crossing the Rubicon Not in It With Closing the Tenderloin.

In an address at the Inman Park Presbyterian Church Thursday night, Judge Nash Broyles declared that Chief Beavers was a greater man than Julius Caesar. The subject of Judge Broyles' address was "Citizenship." Referring to the closing of the tenderloin by Chief Beavers, he said:

"It was a more patriotic act for when Caesar crossed the Rubicon, he did so against the command of the Roman Senate, and thereby became a lawbreaker. Chief Beavers, by his act, became a defender of the law. He placed his life in jeopardy and he became a man of supreme moral and physical courage to so ahead."

Referring to the recent crime wave throughout the United States, Judge Broyles attributed it to the lack of respect for the law caused by failure to enforce it.

South is Chief Officer.
"The laws are not properly enforced in the United States, and especially in the South. The courts are held in contempt, and punishment is seldom meted out to evildoers. There is no respect for the law. In Birmingham, Ala., with only 140,000 people, there were in the year 1912, 100 murders in the city. In London, with a population of 7,000,000 people, there were only 20 murders in the year 1912."

Records show that in Great Britain and Canada, 10 per cent of the murderers are convicted, whereas in the United States only 20 per cent are convicted.

Call's Enslaved a Whore.
"The laws are enforced speedily and with certainty in Great Britain, and until we follow the example of our mother country we need expect nothing but crime and criminals."

The day is speedily coming when it will be the same standard of morals for men as for women. The immoral man who is a disgrace to his race is all busy with the Great Jury investigation.

Parcel Post Clerks Eat Big Cake Down To 11-Pound Limit
Here is the latest "trickle" in the parcel post office as told by Postmaster Huntley Friday.
"A prominent Atlanta woman brought in a bulky package Thursday and handed it to the parcel post clerk to be weighed.
"It's a cake," said the woman smilingly, and I want to send it to Cuba to a relative. I baked it myself."
"Sorry," said the clerk, but the parcel post is 11 pounds. The law provides for shipment of not more than 11-pound packages by parcel post.
"The woman asked for a knife, she unwrapped her package and proceeded to cut a large, toothsome slice from the cake and invited the boy to partake of it. Before she was through with her hospitality she had given away a big part of her cake. The rest of it she mailed."

Denial of Existence of Any New Affidavits, as Charged Before Jury, Borne Out---Lanford Again Charges Felder Is Trying to Foil Justice.

Strenuous denials of any knowledge of the mysterious affidavit reported to have been made by Jim Conley, in which he was said to have confessed to A. S. Colyer that he murdered Mary Phagan, was made to Chief of Detectives Lanford Friday by both men.

Conley, on the grill, declared that he had never heard of Colyer until he read his name in the newspapers in connection with the diagraph controversy. The negro said he had never either talked with him or seen him, and that he had at no time made an affidavit other than the ones given to the police.

Colyer made a similar denial. Following the examination, Lanford declared that the whole report was wholly without foundation. He also stated that Conley had reiterated the truth of his former affidavit and that there was nothing further to add to it.

"I attribute this report to Colonel Felder's work," said the chief. "It merely shows again that Felder is in league with the defense of Frank; that the money is being used to muddy the waters of this investigation to shield Frank and throw the blame on Colyer."

Mystery in Notes.
Another weird feature is contained in one of Conley's stories of the note written by him, in which he said that he was of the note and that Frank wrote another. Yet the two notes are admitted to be identical in the same handwriting.

After this is explained, those interested in the case will ask how Frank could have been satisfied with these incoherent notes, in the first place. It will be represented that the notes actually had been dictated, as the negro says they were, there would have been some intelligibility and evident accuracy to the notes. Instead, they are the notes of an admitted drunk and ignorant person.

Darley's Contradiction.
No question ever has been given of the wide discrepancies in the time of different events on the day of the murder. It was stated by Miss Smith and as described by others who were actual participants in the events. One of the most glaring is that of the conversation which Conley says he overheard between Foreman, Darley and Miss Mattie Smith. Conley has declared that he heard this between 11 and 12 o'clock. Darley insists that he left the factory with Miss Smith at 3:30 in the morning. At this time Conley says he was not in the factory, but that he came later at the lavation of Frank.

Conley may not be able to explain these discrepancies in his story at this time, but he surely will be asked to explain them satisfactorily when he is called as a witness in the trial of Frank.

My Duty, Says Darley.
Stating that the wife of a man accused of a crime would be his last person to learn of, or admit, his guilt, and that the most unpleasant feature of a prosecuting attorney's duty was the suffering that must necessarily fall to the lot of innocent bystanders, J. M. Darley replied Friday to the letter of Mr. Leo M. Frank bitterly criticizing his alleged methods of obtaining evidence.

In speaking of the Phagan case, the Solicitor said that Frank had been indicted by the grand jury, and was he inclined to believe otherwise than in his guilt. It was his sworn duty to prosecute the case against the man under indictment and no other.

The police and the detectives, who were obtaining the evidence, had no right to do so.

Did you find any cord there?
The officer asked.
"No," said Conley, and then answered that he had, and said that the cord was right by the girl's body, and that he did not know that it had been used to strangle her.

Conley's story also avoided mention of the fact that Frank had been indicted by the grand jury, and was he inclined to believe otherwise than in his guilt. It was his sworn duty to prosecute the case against the man under indictment and no other.

The police and the detectives, who were obtaining the evidence, had no right to do so.
