BITTER FIGHT CERTAIN IN TRIAL OF FRANK

Defense Prepares to Show Glaring Discrepancies in Affidavit of James Conley.

"Developments of a startling nature may be expected from day to day in the Phagan case," said Chief of Detectives Lanford Tuesday morning. "They may be expected right up to the date that the trial of Leo Frank begins.

"That we feel we practically have a conclusive case against the factory superintendent does not mean that we are resting in our labors to the slightest extent. We are a little more at rest in our minds, that is all.

"The detectives are working constantly on new clews that present themselves and are investigating every story that is heard, whether it is told by a witness favorable to Frank or against him. We wish to go into court prepared to establish our case against Frank, so that not a doubt of his guilt will be possible. That is, of course, if it still appears at that time as certain to us that he is the guilty man as it does now.

With the continued activity of the detectives, it has become noticeable in the last few days that the defense is at work on its case. Both sides are preparing for a titanic battle when Frank is put on trial for his life the third week in this month. Frank's cook is still held at police headquarters.

To Cite Time Differences.

Differences in the time given by Jim Conley in his affidavit and the testimony of Coroner's jury witnesses will be pointed out in the defense of Leo M. Frank against the charge of killing little Mary Phagan, it was revealed Tuesday. They will be used as indications of the superintendent's innocence because of their many seeming deviations from fact.

One of the most glaring was the negro's declaration that while he was in Frank's office to write the notes Miss Corinthia Hall and Mrs. Emma Clark entered. Conley said that this was 1 o'clock or a few minutes after. But Miss Hall had left the building more than an hour before, according to her own testimony before the Coroner's jury.

"What time was it when you left the factory?" Coroner Donehoo asked Miss Hall when she was on the stand at the inquest.

"A quarter to twelve," she replied. "I looked at the clock when I came down."

The negro said that he looked at the clock when he went in the office and that it was just four minutes of 1 o'clock. He had been in there a few minutes, he asserted, when the voices of Miss Hall and Mrs. Clark were heard.

Another statement which will be refuted is Conley's declaration that he assisted in taking the body from the second floor down to the basement on the elevator.

To Testify Elevator Didn't Run.

Two witnesses will be called to prove that the elevator did not run that day at the time the body is said to have been disposed of.

These two witnesses are Harry Denham and Arthur White. They were on the fourth floor from early in the forenoon until after 3 o'clock in the afternoon. If the elevator had been run they say they would have known it. The experiment of running the elevator has been tried since the murder. It is said that it can not be run without the persons on the fourth floor being aware of it.

The theory that will be presented by the defense is that Mary Phagan was the victim of drink-crazed Conley. From his hiding place near the stairs he saw her descending from the sec-

Bryan Lands Good Job for Publisher Of the Commoner

WASHINGTON, June 3.—President Wilson, after a conference with Secretary of War Garrison, to-day decided to appoint Richard L. Metcalf, of Nebraska, editor of William J. Bryan's paper, The Commoner, to be Civil Governor of the Panama Canal Zone.

Metcalf will succeed Maurice H. Thatcher, of Kentucky. It is expected the nomination will go to the Senate within a short time.

Militants Set Fire To Boats and House

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 3.—Militant suffragettes set fire to the Long Bridge Boat Club house early today, destroying the house and about 50 boats. Most of the boats were of special design. The damage is estimated at about $5,000.

Mrs. Flora ("General") Drummond, the famous militant leader, and lieutenant of Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, who was operated on yesterday for an illness induced by a hunger strike, was reported improved to-day.

Other militants fired a building at Eaton College, doing $15,000 damage.

Impure Water Said To Cause Pellagra

Special Cable to The American.

ROME, June 3.—Drs. Scala and Alessandrini announce that they have discovered that pellagra is a "chronic infection due to silex found as a colloidal solution in certain drinking waters." Their theory explains the peculiar topographical distribution of the disease, which is limited to the foreland of mountain ranges, more particularly valleys.

The Medical Academy of Rome has accepted the theory and will shortly apply preventive method.

Mercer Frats Get New Lease on Life

MACON, GA., June 3.—Trustees of Mercer University have indefinitely "tabled" a resolution to abolish Greek letter fraternities at the school.

The proposal to eliminate fraternities at Mercer brought a number of prominent fraternity men from all parts of the State here, but none were permitted to appear before the board.

Although he is a member of the S. A. E. fraternity, Dr. Jameson is leading the movement to do away with chapters.

Presbyterians Write Praise of Atlanta

The executive committee of the Presbyterian Assemblies, of which J. K. Orr is chairman, has finished up its work and formally disbanded.

The committee received letters from all parts of the country from Assembly delegates, loud in their praise of Atlanta.

After paying the expenses incurred by the General Assemblies, the committee found a good balance in the treasury.

$50,000 Gem Theft Stirs Maiden Lane

NEW YORK, June 3.—Daring jewel robbers to-day robbed the office of J. B. Theise, on the eleventh floor of 47-49 Maiden Lane, in the heart of the richest jewelry center of America, of a satchel of uncut diamonds worth $50,000.

The gems had just been brought from safe-deposit vaults where they had been kept after business hours.

GRAND JURY GIVEN VICE FACTS BY FELDER

Attorney Boldly Declares That Police Are Protecting 'Houses in Our Midst.'

Accusations that Atlanta is honeycombed with vice and that the police and detective departments deliberately protect and encourage these conditions were made before the Grand Jury of Fulton County by Colonel Thomas B. Felder and Carl Hutcheson Wednesday morning.

Both men declared they had conclusive proof to establish the truth of their charges, and that they had submitted sufficient evidence to the Grand Jury to indict every one of the 30 or more proprietors of disorderly houses whose names and addresses they had left with the members of the Grand Jury.

Felder Boldly Charges Graft.

Colonel Felder came out boldly and charged graft of the worst sort and he asserted that he had given the Grand Jury affidavits showing the alleged connections between the police department and the houses of disrepute sworn to by the keepers of the houses themselves, as well as by reputable citizens who were aware of the conditions.

It was announced at the outset of the Grand Jury probe that the vice conditions of the city would be the only matter taken up at this time. Foreman Beck said that the jury was following the charge delivered by Judge W. D. Ellis, who urged the Grand Jury, in view of the Mary Phagan tragedy, thoroughly to investigate the reported spread of vice in the city since the wiping out of the restricted district.

Jury After the Real Truth.

"We have resolved ourselves into a committee of the whole to follow the instructions of Judge Ellis," said Mr. Beck. "We propose to sift the mass of charges and counter-charges that have been made and get at the real truth, if it is possible. We want to know if vice is protected and if we find that it is, we propose to indict those involved in the disgrace."

Besides Colonel Felder and Mr. Hutcheson, Mayor Woodward, who long has disagreed with Chief Beavers' vice policy, and C. C. Jones, owner of the Rex Saloon, were called before the Grand Jury. The Mayor and Mr. Hutcheson were before the jury about an hour each. The Mayor is said to have given the Grand Jury a great amount of information in his possession, much of which has been published in connection with his controversy with Chief Beavers.

The Mayor was questioned closely as to his knowledge of existing vice

Catch Tarpon and Pelican? We Know Darn Well We Can

Atlantans are figuring conspicuously this year in fine tarpon fishing off the west coast of Florida. The St. Petersburg Independent, in a current issue, tells how H. W. Brown, of Atlanta, who was fishing off Pass-a-Grille with George Lizotte, landed four big ones in one day.

Mr. Lizotte, the genial Frenchman who makes two stone-crabs grow where only one grew before, is well known to Atlantans. The only thing more plentiful than tarpon this year on the west coast are pelican. Mr. Brown has sent to Atlanta a copy of a limerick just composed by Lizotte, in which the latter thus epitomizes the noble fowl. The limerick follows:

"There's a curious bird called the Pelican,
Whose mouth holds more than his belican.
He stuffs into his beak
Enough grub for a week,
Though I don't see how in helican."

Cattle and Wheat To Go on Free List

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The free list of the Underwood tariff bill will be augmented by the addition of cattle and wheat, according to a statement of Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, after a conference with President Wilson to-day.

Senator Simmons to-day said the chief executive had signified his willingness to have the duty removed from both.

It is not expected that President Wilson will sanction any further changes in the measure.

Clark Picks Oct. 1 as Adjournment Date

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Speaker Clark's prediction that Congress will be in session until October 1 is believed to forecast a long wrangle over currency reform and a record-breaking debate on the tariff in the Senate.

While the Democratic caucus was adopting a resolution to limit the legislative program in the House, Speaker Clark observed that, with the work already cut out for it, Congress "will be here until about October 1." Congress has been in almost continuous session for five years.

Atlantan Says U. S. Sailors Robbed Him

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—Losing his way in Audobon Park here, W. E. Shiflet, of Atlanta, approached four sailors. He asked the way to the Westwego ferry and as soon as he turned his back he was beaten to the ground and robbed of $103, his watch and stickpin.

Charging that the sailors wore caps on which was "U. S. S. Amphitrite," Shiflet and a policeman had the gunboat captain line up the entire crew. He couldn't identify any as his assailants.

Bathing at Piedmont All the Rage

Fair Swimmers Come in Shoals

Miss Mattie Keisling, one of the fair mermaids of Piedmont Park, and her human springboard—Messrs. McKinney (on the left) and Kelly.

2,000 Daily, Present Mark, Expected To Be Increased to 3,000 This Month.

Bathing at Piedmont Park has become the rage.

From the moment the life-saver gets on his job in the morning until the closing time at night the beautiful pond is literally alive with bathers.

The daily average thus far has been something above 2,000, but Superintendent Dan Carey, of the Park Commission, expects the number to go well above 3,000 before the end of June—and then some.

Attendance Records Broken.

Never, says Mr. Carey, has the sport been so popular. For the early season—winter is still far, far away—all records are smashed higher than a kite, and there is some talk of keeping a lower level in the pond for fear that an unexpected excess in the number of bathers would make it rise above the banks.

Such things as aquatic records are yet to be established and smashed for the season. Right now there are some likely contenders for each and every one of the swimming and diving events, and they are not necessarily of the stronger sex.

Pond Is Making Good.

But most important of all is the fact the pond is making good. The water is just delightful and the most timid bather will dive in head first without the customary taking of temperature with the big toe as a thermometer.

Women go to Piedmont Park in as large numbers as the men. In fact, says Mr. Carey, the women and girls hold the attendance records thus far, and, unless something entirely unforeseen happens, they will come very near capturing the aquatic records when the meet is held later in the year.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., June 3.—Did E. O. Painter commit suicide?

That is the question everybody here is asking.

Painter carried $1,178,000—perhaps more—on his life, most of which was taken out in the past four months.

His death was unexpected and mysterious. One more mystery has been added to it by the disappearance of the dead man's heart, stomach and kidneys, forwarded from this city to the Johns Hopkins University for analysis.

Painter's death, so the life insurance companies suspect, was produced by an overdose of chloral, which overwhelmed him when he toppled over from a ferryboat ostensibly on the way to his factory.

Those most free to talk of his death seem inclined to one of two theories, suicide or insanity, and the suicide theorists seem to be in the majority. But there are many who scout at either of these opinions and steadfastly maintain that his death was purely accidental.

Inquest Awaits Analysis

In the meantime expert physicians and chemists in Baltimore are ready to analyze the brain, heart, liver, lungs, stomach, and other organs of the dead man to determine whether they contain evidence of poison or disclose any other condition to explain his death.

Coroner C. D. Abbott, of Duval County, is holding in abeyance an inquest over the dead man. A jury has been impaneled, but has gone no further than to view Painter's body.

An autopsy was performed by four physicians, two of whom were acting at the instance of the Painter family, one for the State and the fourth called in by the others. But the body was dissected before the Coroner had seen it and had an opportunity to subpena a jury.

Painter met his death in the river at 9:30 o'clock in the morning. His body was recovered and in an undertaker's morgue by 1 o'clock that afternoon and the autopsy was performed. The removed organs were sealed in a conveyor in the express office and billed to Baltimore before night. The two physicians representing the family, Drs. P. C. Perry and John Cay Boyd, went to Baltimore at the same time to be present at the analysis.

The shipment was made to Dr. Charles Simon, of Baltimore, but he is in Nova Scotia, and his assistant, Dr. C. E. Haas, notified the Jacksonville authorities that he was instructed to turn the shipment over to Dr. Charles Glazer, of Johns Hopkins Hospital, who refused to undertake the analysis until Coroner Abbott had a representative present. The Coroner designated a Baltimore attorney to represent him.

The beneficiaries named in the policies were either some member of his immediate family—his wife or daughter—or his firm. The total amount was divided about equally between them.

Some two or three months ago, it has been reported to the life insurance companies concerned, Painter began taking chloral, perhaps for nervousness. It is charged that shortly before his death, he became a very heavy user of the drug.

When his body was recovered from the St. Johns River, and the suspicion that all was not right became fixed in the minds of the insurance companies, it was determined to set on foot a rigid probe of his death, and its cause, also all the circumstances bearing upon it.

Paid No Heed to Rescuers.

Although Painter was an expert swimmer, when he fell from the ferryboat, he is said to have sunk like a log. A rope was thrown to him, but he paid no attention to it.

He had been coughing violently just before he fell into the water, and it was to relieve this cough that he is supposed to have taken chloral. Apparently, so those on the boat say, the man was dead before he struck the water.

It is theorized that his system had been overwhelmed with chloral, and that his death was directly due to that drug, rather than to drowning.

These initial circumstances were suspicious enough in the eyes of the insurance companies, and they proceeded to a calm and deliberate investigation, before authorizing the payment of the policies.

Their decision to have the dead man's vital organs analyzed for the purpose of determining just how much chloral there likely was in his system at the time of his death was in line with the advice of their medical and legal advisers. Now that the dead man's organs seem to have disappeared, however, it appears more than ever to the companies that there was something queer about Painter's end.

Insurance Inspectors Active.

The medical report is not expected here for another two days and the Coroner nor others interested will take any further action until it is received.

A certified copy of this report will be placed in a safety deposit box at the Barnett National Bank, so that those who have valid reasons to examine it may do so when proper authority is secured from the Coroner.

No sooner had the sudden and mysterious death of Painter become known than inspectors and special agents of the insurance companies carrying policies on his life began to arrive in Jacksonville. There were a dozen or more here and they made individual and collective investigations. But they, like the Coroner, are awaiting the Baltimore report before taking any action to contest or pay the policies.

The general impression in insurance circles is that the Mutual Life will make the first move, Painter having secured $502,000 insurance in that company. Those with smaller policies will look to the Mutual to determine their course of action.

Indications are, however, that the insurance companies will contest under the first-year suicide clause incorporated in most policies. If this is done it promises to be the biggest piece of insurance litigation ever fought out in the South and one of the biggest in the whole country.

Dead Man Was 52 Years of Age.

Painter was 52 years and 6 months of age when he died. He was a native of New York State, but had been in business in Jacksonville about fifteen years. As editor of a farm journal he became interested in the fertilizer business and established the E. O. Painter Fertilizer Company, becoming its president. This company is capitalized at about $300,000, though its actual value is said to be about $100,000.

With Painter's stock in the company, his handsome Riverside Drive home and other interests, his estate is valued at about $150,000 and his income at $25,000 a year. In striking contrast to this income is the fact that the combined annual premiums on the insurance he carried at the time of death amount to about $60,000.

The first year's premiums on the million dollars new insurance were paid almost altogether in notes not yet matured and in stock in his fertilizer company. The policies were made payable to his wife, daughter, estate and the fertilizer company.

Much of the stock has been resold by the insurance agents and the notes discounted by Jacksonville banks, practically every financial institution here holding some of the paper. The effect of his death in business circles can therefore be readily seen.

Real Conditions Kept Secret.

The Jacksonville papers have given but scant publicity to the case, for fear of creating a panic and injuring business conditions.

Painter was considered a perfect or nearly perfect physical specimen. He was a pillar in the most fashionable Baptist Church, a leader in the Y. M. C. A., and active in Board of Trade circles. He was considered a most exemplary citizen and was looked upon with the utmost confidence in business circles. When Painter met his death he was aboard a ferryboat crossing the river to his fertilizer plant. He stepped to the edge of the boat and went over in midstream. A lifeline was thrown to him, but he apparently made no effort to grasp it, sinking, with the rope grazing his arms. The first theory was accident. Suicide suspicions were aroused when the insurance men became active.

$50,000, Fraternal organizations and in small policies generally distributed.

Accident Insurance.

$5,000, Travelers; date, June 2, 1905; payable to Martha S. Painter, wife. This policy has fully accumulated, bringing it up to $7,500, the doubling clause rendering the maximum benefits thereunder of $15,000.

$15,000, Travelers; date, April 28, 1913; payable to Martha S. Painter, wife. Note for premium was given broker. Note due June 15, 1913. The doubling clause renders the maximum benefits under this policy $30,000.

$10,000, U. S. Fidelity and Guarantee Company; date, April 21, 1913; payable to Okle Painter, daughter. Premium not paid to company. Presume that insured gave the broker a note. The doubling clause on this policy places the maximum benefits thereunder at $20,000.

$5,000, Preferred Accident; date, October 26, 1905. The doubling clause on this policy renders the maximum benefits thereunder $10,000, or more.

$15,000, Employees' Liability; date, April 23, 1913; payable to Martha S. Painter, wife. The doubling clause on this policy raises the maximum benefits to $30,000. The insured applied for $30,000, doubling to $60,000. The company declined half of the amount applied for. The premium has not been paid, the broker requesting credit until early in June. (General agent granted). Broker stating that the insured asked him for credit until then.

$5,000, Illinois Commercial Men's Association.

$5,000, Travelers' Protective Association.

Painter Policies All Taken Out Recently

At a meeting of insurance men in Jacksonville to consider the policies held by Painter in the sum of $1,178,000, the following schedule of risks was submitted, showing that nearly all the policies were taken out within the past five months:

$50,000, Union Central; ordinary life, dated April 5, 1913, payable to estate. Policy delivered May 14, 1913. Some delay in issue. Mr. Painter applied for $92,000, which is the company's limit at his age, 53. Only $50,000 was issued. He gave a note due April, 1914, in payment of the premium.

$50,000, Penn Mutual; fifteen-year term, issued February 24, 1913, payable to Martha S. Painter wife. A note was given for part of premium, and an amount supposedly equal to the agent's commission in stock of the E. O. Painter Fertilizer Company for the balance.

$47,000, Penn Mutual; ordinary life, issued April 18, 1913; payable to estate. Note due August 23, 1913, given for the premium.

$12,000, Prudential; continuous installment, date May 3, 1910; payable to Okle Painter, daughter, $50 per month. The third premium was due on this policy May 3, 1913. Premium was not paid and was on grace period at the time of insured's death, May 22, 1913.

$10,000, New York Life; an old policy, in force for some years.

No Analysis Made Yet, as Vital Organs Are Missing

BALTIMORE, MD., June 3.—A heart, a stomach and two kidneys, once the vital organs of E. O. Painter, the fertilizer man of Jacksonville, Fla., are missing somewhere between Jacksonville and Baltimore.

They were supposed to have arrived at the Johns Hopkins Hospital Saturday for the purpose of analysis. That day the physicians of the hospital received word that they had arrived in the city, but when they were not delivered at the hospital some hours later a search for them was instituted which, to date, has proved vain.

Arrangements for the analyzing of the organs were made at the Hopkins early last week by a Redmond C. Stewart, who said, according to the hospital authorities, that he represented the Prudential Life Insurance Company.

Stewart said at the hospital that Painter had died suddenly and under rather unusual conditions and held the theory that he might have committed suicide. The insurance company had demanded an analysis of the organs, he said, before entering negotiations for the payment of the policy which the deceased held in that company.

Johns Hopkins authorities agreed to make the analysis, and Saturday being the date set for examination, everything was placed in readiness for the analysis. They are still waiting.

At the offices of the Prudential company in this city absolute ignorance of the shipment to this city of the organs is professed. They say, however, that the arrangements for the analysis might have been made by a representative from the home office of the company at Newark, N. J.

Rival of Weston on Long Race With Him

NEW YORK, June 3.—Cheered by a big crowd, John Ennis, aged 71, of Stamford, Conn., set out at noon today to walk the 1,446 miles to Minneapolis.

Ennis made the start one day later than did Edward Payson Weston, his ancient pedestrian enemy. He hopes, giving Weston a 24-hour handicap, to beat him into Minneapolis, which is also Weston's goal.

Baby's Body Found; Police Investigate

Wrapped in an old skirt, the body of a six or seven months old baby was discovered in a gully at the Williams street rock quarry, near Third Street, by R. B. Wood, a driver for the city, Tuesday morning.

It is believed to have been an infanticide. Detectives are investigating.

Florida Assembly Ignores Constitution

TALLAHASSEE, FLA., June 3.—Both houses of the Florida Legislature have adopted a resolution to adjourn the session sine die Friday noon, one day earlier than the constitution allows.

The resolution which abolishes the assembly for State commission rule did not reach a vote to-day.

Hellfire Only Myth, Say Bible Students

HOT SPRINGS, ARK., June 3.—Hell and hellfire are myths, in the opinion of members of the International Bible Students Association who are holding a convention here.

They ask ministers to discard the "offending words."

Laughs Himself Sick At Vaudeville Joke

MILWAUKEE, WIS., June 3.—A veteran vaudeville joke heard for the first time by Julius Jeswein, aged 34, made him to laugh so loud and so long that the show was interrupted until he was helped out to the sidewalk.

He continued laughing until at the end of sixteen hours he became so weak he lost consciousness. Physicians to-day fear the violent laughter will cause his death.

Broyles Finds Way To Forestall Mayor

Blind tiger operators in future will get a twenty-nine-day sentence instead of thirty days. Recorder Broyles has found a way to circumvent Mayor Woodward, who, the Recorder alleges, has interfered with cases in the Recorder's jurisdiction.

The Mayor can pardon prisoners sentenced on a blind tiger charge to thirty days or more, but in cases where the sentence is less he can not interfere.

Recorder Broyles Monday afternoon sentenced T. R. Preston to twenty-nine days in the stockade on a charge of selling liquor.

Memphis Grand Jury Probes Martin Case

MEMPHIS, TENN., June 3.—Attorney General Estes to-day admitted that the Grand Jury was examining witnesses with a view to finding an indictment against Joseph W. Martin, former president of the Martin-Phillips Cotton Company, of Memphis, which went into the hands of a receiver after Martin's disappearance in London.

Estes would not say for what offense the indictments might be found.

The home of T. H. Knox, 23 Kuhns Street, was robbed late Monday night. The thief got a gold watch. Clifford Howell, a negro, is held.

TECH'S GROWTH AMAZES OLD GRADUATES

Alumni, Arriving for Commencement, Startled by Progress Made in 25 Years.

Alumni of Tech are drifting into town for the great commencement and quarter-centennial celebration to be held June 6 to June 11. Some of them recall that 25 years ago was nothing more than a log cabin with a modest workshop and are amazed at the magnificent and imposing college confronting them to-day, covering 25 acres, with sixteen buildings, valued at approximately $800,000.

The commencement exercises will open with a society debate by the Henry W. Grady Literary Society, June 6 at 8:15 o'clock, in the Tech Y. M. C. A. Auditorium. On June 7 the Freshmen oratorical contest is scheduled to occur in the same building. Sunday, June 8, at 11 o'clock, in St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Dr. Thomas E. Green, of Chicago, will deliver the baccalaureate sermon, "A Veiled Vision."

Claxton to Give Address.

At 10 o'clock Monday, June 9, there will be a meeting of the school trustees. At 3 p. m., in the Tech Y. M. C. A., Dr. P. P. Claxton, United States Commissioner of Education, will deliver a literary address. From 5 p. m. to 7 p. m. President K. G. Matheson will hold a reception. At 8 p. m. one of the features of the commencement, the Junior prom, will be held on the campus.

Tuesday, June 10, is "Founders' Day." At 9 a. m. there will be a meeting of the alumni in the Tech Y. M. C. A. Auditorium. At 10:30 Founders' Day exercises are scheduled in the Auditorium; at 3:30 Class Day exercises and pageant on the campus; at 8:15 C. Alphonzo Smith, Ph. D., LL. D., will deliver the Founders' Day oration in the Grand Opera House; at 9:30 p. m. there will be a reception by Governor and Mrs. Joseph M. Brown at the mansion.

Shop Exhibit June 11.

Wednesday, June 11, the boys will be given a chance to show what they have accomplished. From 8:30 to 10 a. m. a shop exhibit will be held. At 10:30 graduating exercises will be held in the Grand Opera House. Dr. Herbert S. Bigelow, of Cincinnati, as commencement orator, will deliver an address on "Old Institutions and New Ideas." At 1:30 delegates, trustees, faculty, alumni and graduation class will attend the Chamber of Commerce luncheon.

Since 1905, when Dr. Matheson assumed the presidency, approximately thirteen acres of land have been added to the campus; the income of the school has been nearly doubled; the Carnegie Library has been built and its support provided for. A night school has been established, which gives industrial education to a large number of Atlanta artisans and employees generally. A large and flourishing Summer School has been established. The Joseph Brown Memorial Hospital has been built. The beautiful Rockefeller Y. M. C. A. building has been erected. Three of the five units of the handsome fireproof mechanical engineering buildings have been erected.

The finest athletic field in the South has been secured, providing two complete gridirons and baseball fields, tennis courts, a quarter-mile track and other athletic equipment. A reinforced concrete stadium will be built this summer.

Enrollment Is Doubled.

A number of scholarships paying from $150 to $200 per year to needy young students have been secured. The enrollment of the school has been practically doubled, and large additions have been made to the faculty and all courses have been raised in standard of efficiency. Decided improvements have been made on the campus so that it is rapidly becoming an attractive park.

Through the will of Julius L. Brown, two-thirds of his estate was left to the school. Tentative donations in equipment for a new heating, power and lighting station amounting to more than $100,000 have been secured. A course in architecture has been added and, generally speaking, large additions of equipment have been made to the various departments of the school. The reputation of the school for work of the highest order has been extended throughout the country.

Atlanta Rail Mail Division Advanced

The Atlanta and Montgomery division of the Railway Mail Department, one of the most important between New York and San Francisco, was placed in Class "C" following a long conference with Postmaster General Burleson in which John Hogan, national auditor of the Railway Mail Association; Senator Hoke Smith, Representative Schley Howard, P. J. Schardt and H. G. Swanson participated.

The committe was in session nearly a week. Eleven Congressmen and four Senators supported the contention that the line should be classed as a "C" division.

Woman Sees Her 2 Grandsons Drown

ORLANDO, FLA., June 3.—Frank Pounds, Jr., and Fred Wilmott, Jr., 5 and 6 years of age, were drowned in Lake Lucerne here yesterday while the grandmother of the Wilmott child looked on in horror.

The boys were playing in a boat which floated out into the lake where the water is ten feet deep. Thinking it shallow, both jumped out of the boat. The bodies were soon recovered, but efforts to resuscitate them were unavailing.

SETS ALTITUDE RECORD.

VERSAILLES, FRANCE, June 3.—A new altitude record for an aeroplane carrying two persons was made here to-day by Aviator Perri, who ascended 16,832 feet in a monoplane with a woman passenger.

DIVORCE NEAR, MRS. GRACE IS REJOICING

"Woman With Money Mark for Designing Men," She Says. "I've Learned a Lesson."

NEWNAN, GA., June 3.—Though Eugene Grace declined to discuss the divorce suit of his wife, Mrs. Daisy Opie Grace, in Philadelphia, members of his family stated positively Tuesday afternoon that the suit will not be contested by Mr. Grace. The statement was made by S. L. Hill, Mr. Grace's stepfather, who declared that "Eugene would be very glad for her to secure the divorce."

PHILADELPHIA, June 3.—The appointment of a master to take testimony in the case of Mrs. Daisy Opie Grace, who, in September of last year, filed suit for divorce from her husband, Eugene Grace, will be asked for by Mrs. Grace's counsel some time this week.

Grace failed to reply to notice of the action and a verdict for the plaintiff virtually is assured.

If Grace fails to appear at the hearing before a master Mrs. Grace will be called to the stand, her libel in divorce read, and, after she has been sworn, the decree likely will be awarded her by default.

Personal service was not obtainable, because the respondent failed to come within the jurisdiction of the county courts here, and, under the law, it was necessary to advertise the suit by legal notices in the newspapers.

Take Testimony Next.

This advertising was made returnable yesterday, and the next move will be for the courts to appoint a lawyer to take testimony on the charges of cruel and barbarous treatment, on which the woman, who figured in one of the most sensational trials in recent years, bases her suit.

Mrs. Grace said to-day:

"I do hope to be free from that man forever. The world has never known what I had to endure from him, and now that I shall have the opportunity to tell what he did to me, I know that opinion will change. It is true that sentiment was all against me, because of the part that I was assumed to have taken in the shooting.

Won't Wed Again, She Says.

"I have had enough of men like him. Since my acquittal I have been more careful than ever of my associates, and I tell you that the costly lesson I have learned has taught me to beware.

"When a woman has a little money, she is a mark for designing men, and the race is predisposed to that sort of thing.

"Once I am free again, I tell you it will be a long time before any man can court me."

STEVENS TRAGEDY NOW IS CALLED AN ACCIDENT

Clews, First Taken as Slaying Evidence, Believed to Strengthen New Theory--Negroes Have Alibi.

With an alibi practically proved by Walter Wilkes and Ernest Maynard, negroes held on suspicion in the Stevens case, detectives who are investigating the mystery are inclining to an accident theory to account for the burning of the Stevens home and the death of Mrs. Sarah C. Stevens and her daughter, Nellie.

Detective Rosser, Sheriff McCurdy and Deputy Sheriff Livsey, of DeKalb County, working on the case, have finally learned the truth of the finding of the ax, hoe, revolver cartridge, the discharged shotgun shell and other evidence, which it is claimed sustains the theory of accidental death more than it does the theory of murder.

The investigations of the officers, according to one of them, has developed the following facts:

The ax was found 60 feet from where the bodies lay, and the blade was imbedded in the ground. It was later carried into the ruins where the bodies lay.

The door—there was but one—leading from the hallway into Mrs. Stevens' room was locked.

The hoe was found in the hallway, nearer Mr. Stevens' room than the room where the bodies were found.

The exploded shotgun cartridge was found more than a hundred yards from the house, at a spot where it is said Mrs. Stevens had been shooting at birds.

The exploded revolver cartridge was found a hundred yards from the house, at the edge of the road. It had not been in the fire at all.

There was no truth in the report that an exploded shell was found in the shotgun discovered in the bedroom. There was a shell in the gun, but the brass had melted and run into the barrel. It was impossible to tell whether it had been fired or discharged by the heat.

Thinks Fire Cracked Skulls.

F. W. Patterson, of the firm of H. M. Patterson & Son, the undertakers who prepared the bodies for burial, told a Georgian reporter Tuesday morning that he does not think the skulls were crushed. He said it was impossible, owing to the condition of the bodies, to tell how Mrs. Stevens and her daughter were killed. He declared that the skulls of the women looked more like they had been cracked open by the heat than crushed.

Mr. Patterson said it is not an unusual thing for the bones of human beings to be cracked by the heat when caught in a fire. He said he could find, in a minute examination of the bodies, no traces of foul play. Neither of the bodies were examined by a physician.

One of the officers declared to-day that the hoe, supposed to be one of the weapons with which the murder—if there were a murder—was committed, was an old implement that had been under the house for several years. Sheriff McCurdy said that the hoe did not look as though it had recently had a handle in it. The band of steel which holds the handle in place was missing when the hoe was found, and has not been located.

Theory of the Tragedy.

Detectives declare that Mrs. Stevens' revolver—the one Wade Stevens took to Chattanooga—was .38 caliber instead of a .32, and that the cartridge found near the road had been fired by Mrs. Stevens some time previous to the burning of their home.

The accident theory, based on the new developments, is that Mrs. Stevens and her daughter, being frightened because they were alone, had locked the door of their room when they retired; that about midnight, when they were sound asleep, the house caught fire; that with the door locked they knew nothing of the blaze until it had gained considerable headway; that they arose from their beds, and, half-suffocated with smoke, staggered to the door, forgetting that it was locked; that they had reached the door and couldn't get it open; that they then started for the windows and were overcome before they could reach them.

Sheriff McCurdy declared to-day that, in the light of recent developments in the case, the only circumstance that points to murder is the position in which the shotgun was lying when found. It was as though it had fallen from Mrs. Stevens' hand. It has been learned, however, that the gun habitually stood in a corner of the bed room, and the theory is advanced that when the flames exploded the shell the recoil threw the gun into the middle of the room.

Police to Sift Evidence.

Though all indications now point to accidental burning as the solution of the mystery, Sheriff McCurdy and Detective Rosser said to-day they will continue to work on the murder theory until it is exhausted or evidence obtained to determine whether there was a murder or whether the women were caught in the burning of their home.

Detective Rosser practically admitted on Tuesday that the two negroes held under suspicion, Walter Wilkes and Ernest Maynard, had proven alibis. He is not yet through with his investigation, however, and the negroes will not be released until after their alibi is proven beyond the shadow of a doubt. Both men are now locked up in the DeKalb County jail at Decatur.

Because not all of the crowd of farmers who gathered at the scene of the crime Monday afternoon were let in on the secret, a dramatic, "third degree" to obtain a confession from Wilkes and Maynard not only failed of its purpose, but almost developed into a real lynching. The lives of the negroes were saved, it is reported, only when Chief of Detectives Lanford appeared on the scene with drawn revolver, backed up by Sheriff McCurdy.

According to a statement made on Tuesday by one of the members of the "mob," the lynching bee was framed by Chief Lanford, with the knowledge and consent of Sheriff McCurdy and a number of farmers.

Ruse to Get Confession Denied.

"The plan," declared the "mob" member, "was this: Sheriff McCurdy and Detective Rosser brought the negroes out to the Stevens farm, and after tying them to a tree, stepped behind the barn. Then the farmers who were in on the deal began threatening the negroes, and the original plan was to get a rope and advance upon them, yelling that we were going to lynch them. Then Chief Lanford was to rush up and rescue the negroes. It was hoped to get a confession out of them while they were frightened.

"But a number of farmers came out who were not in on the frame-up, and they were in dead earnest. The crowd carried the men to the barn and started to put a rope over a rafter when Lanford appeared. It is very probable that the negroes would have been hanged if he had not shown up."

Chief Lanford declared this morning that the lynching was not a frame-up, but declared a moment later that he thought the farmers were only going to frighten the negroes. Detective Rosser declined to comment on the affair at all. He said he had not seen it and didn't know anything about it.

U. S. Biggest Market Place for Canada

WASHINGTON, June 3.—According to a report made public to-day by the Department of Commerce, the United States ranks second as a customer for Canadian products and first as a supplier of Canadian needs.

Canada buys more from the United States than from all other nations combined. We also would take the bulk of the exports except that Canada has little to sell that is not produced also in our own country.

The larger takings of Canadian wheat constitute the principal factor that makes England loom larger in the export trade.

Pushes Bet Winner 30 Miles in Barrow

SPOKANE, WASH., June 3.—Roy McCampbell, of Okanogan, Wash., escorted by a drum corps, made a thirty-mile hike from Okanogan to Tonasket, trundling a gorgeously trimmed and canopied wheelbarrow in which sat George Hopkins, the man who won the bet as to the probable date of entrance into Okanogan of the New Croville-Wenatchee branch of the Great Northern Railway.

If the line had reached Okanogan by April 10 Hopkins would have been the motive power, with McCampbell his passenger.

Record Graduation Class at Normal

MILLEDGEVILLE, GA., June 3.—The Georgia Normal and Industrial College closed here yesterday with the largest graduating class in the history of the institution.

The baccalaureate sermon was preached by Bishop Warren Candler to a congregation of 1,500.

The board of trustees to-day changed the name of Lamar Hall, which was named in honor of the late Richard N. Lamar, to Terrell Hall, in honor of the late Joe Terrell. The name of Science Hall was changed to Parks Hall, in honor of President M. M. Parks.

Babes, Buried Alive By Maniac, Still Live

ATLANTIC CITY, June 3.—Two of the three young children of George Walls, proprietor of the Chelsea baths, who were buried alive by a maniac yesterday, were to-day believed to be dying.

The lunatic, said to be the wayward son of a prominent Philadelphia family, is under constant guard in the jail.

POLICEMAN DROPS DEAD.

STATE OFFICERS WOULD REVISE CONSTITUTION

Stand Taken by Bar Association Does Not Meet With Favor. Simplification Wanted.

Subdued expressions around the State Capitol indicate a general desire among officeholders for a revision of the Georgia Constitution of 1877. The action of the Bar Association at Warm Springs last week in unanimously opposing the movement is commented on with no great favor.

W. R. Power, warrant secretary to the Governor, was outright in his advocacy of a constitutional convention. Referring to the opinion of the Bar Association, he admitted the time might not be quite ripe, but said it was coming, and coming soon.

Phil Cook, Secretary of State, said some parts of the Constitution undoubtedly needed changing, but efforts in that direction would meet with opposition.

"The great fear of revision is that the bars might be let down to the State treasury," he said, "and restrictions placed around the expenditure of money by the wisdom of Bob Toombs might be withdrawn."

One objection to the Constitution pointed out by the Secretary of State was its lack of simplicity, because of numerous amendments. The Legislature proposes amendments each year, which are invariably ratified, he said.

A State treasury official said the State was twenty years behind in its fiscal policies, and a constitutional revision was the only possible corrective. "In handling State funds," he pointed out, "we are hampered by laws enacted 35 years ago. Constitutional revision is necessary to correct these evils."

Other "evils" indicated were the creation of new counties and new city courts, the multiplication of judicial circuits and the present method of amending the Constitution.

How Would You Like To Have 'Caroan–etc.'

NEW YORK, June 3.—Felix M. Rosenstick, a senior at Columbia University here, is suffering from caroanserinusabmetu, in the opinion of Dr. G. L. Meyland, physical director of the university.

Rosenstick, who feared a test in the swimming pool, which is one of the requirements for graduation, will not get his diploma unless he complies.

NOTED ALABAMA RATE CASE IS REOPENED

Famous Rail Heads and Lawyers Attend L. & N. Suit in the Federal Court Here.

The Louisville and Nashville Railroad Company's fight against the enforcement of the 2½-cent fare ordered by the Alabama Railroad Commission was reopened in the Federal Court [illegible] Tuesday morning. Judge William I. Grubb, of Birmingham, is presiding in the case, while Judge Don Pardee and Judge David D. Shelby, of the Court of Appeals, are sitting with him at his request. The hearing is on the petition of the railroad company for a permanent injunction against enforcing the rate.

Court convened at 10 o'clock, but a recess was taken shortly afterward to allow counsel on both sides to inspect affidavits filed by agreement, and headway in the case is not expected to be made until afternoon. The hearing is expected to last three or four days.

Notables Are in Attendance.

Among those who arrived in Atlanta this morning to attend the hearing is Milton H. Smith, president of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, one of the most aggressive and picturesque of great railroad men of America. With him are H. L. Stone, general counsel; W. A. Colston, general solicitor, both from Louisville, and former Congressman Sidney J. Bowie, of Birmingham, special counsel for the Louisville and Nashville, the man who has led the fight of the railroad company during five years' litigation.

Other officials of the railroad company are W. A. Russell, general passenger traffic manager, and A. R. Smith, third vice president, who is in direct charge of the passenger traffic of the road.

Noted Jurists for State.

Representing the State of Alabama are Samuel D. Weakley, former Chief Justice of the Alabama Supreme Court, and H. C. Selheimer, both from Birmingham, who have been in charge of the State's case since the beginning of the litigation; Charles Henderson, president of the Alabama Railroad Commission, and R. C. Brickell, Attorney General for Alabama.

Alabama's fight for a lower passenger rate was started by former Governor B. B. Comer. It brought on one of the most sensational cases the Federal Court has ever handled in the South, and there was sharp conflict between Governor Comer and Federal Judge Jones and Milton H. Smith.

The railroad company's argument was opened by Sidney J. Bowie, the plea being made that the enforcement of the 2½-cent rate by the State of Alabama, under orders of the Alabama Railroad Commission, is unconstitutional in that it affects interstate commerce over which the State commission has no control.

RATE RAISE PLEA HEARD.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The Interstate Commerce Commission today heard the petition of 52 Eastern railroads north of the Potomac and Ohio for a 5 per cent increase in freight rates.

UNVEIL MONUMENT TO GOV. CANDLER

State Officials and Large Party From Atlanta Go to Gainesville for Ceremonies.

The unveiling of the monument to Allen D. Candler, Governor of Georgia from 1898 to 1904, takes place at Gainesville Tuesday, the birthday anniversary of Jefferson Davis. J. W. Lindsey, Commissioner of Pensions, has been named chairman of the committee in charge of the ceremony.

Governor Joseph M. Brown, Governor-elect John M. Slaton and a large party went from Atlanta to attend the event. The City Council of Gainesville and the local camp of Confederate Veterans and other organizations will take part.

The monument was purchased by State officials who served in Governor Candler's two terms. They are:

3 Atlanta Girls Get Degrees in Virginia

LYNCHBURG, VA., June 3.—Three Atlanta girls will graduate this week from Randolph-Macon Woman's College. They are Miss Ruth Ansley, Miss Louise Berrien Hamilton and Miss Lillian Dorothea Lupo. Other members of the graduating class from Georgia are Miss Emily Laura Moody, of Cuthbert, and Miss Virginia Hamilton Peed, of Oxford.

Those from Alabama who will graduate are as follows: Miss Olivia Nelson Dorman, Birmingham; Miss Susie Garner, Ozark; Miss Eunice Gay, Lineville, and Miss Katchelle Kilby, Anniston.

COL. C. W. SEIDELL, WAR VETERAN, DIES

Aged Atlanta Attorney Served as Secretary to Alex Stephens When Governor.

Colonel Charles W. Seidell, one of Atlanta's best known citizens, died at 8:30 o'clock Tuesday morning at his apartments in the Grand Opera House building.

Colonel Seidell was born at Bethlehem, Pa., 70 years ago. He came to Georgia early in life, later serving the Confederate Army, where he rose to the rank of colonel.

After the war, Colonel Seidell was the private secretary to Governor Alex Stephens, Vice President of the Confederacy. He was with Joseph E. Brown as claim agent of the A. and W. P. Railroad for eleven years, and practiced law until he retired a few years ago.

Colonel Seidell is survived by two sons, Stafford Seidell, of Atlanta, and Atherton Seidell, of Washington, who will reach here Wednesday morning. He was a prominent Mason and a member of Atlanta Camp 159, Confederate Veterans.

Funeral arrangements will be announced later. Burial will be in the family vault at Oakland Cemetery.

SHOT BY A POLICEMAN.

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., June 3.—J. W. Gibson, of West Huntsville, after shooting a negro, was shot and seriously wounded by Policeman Wheeler Mitchell.

'Peace Envoys' to Reach Atlanta Wednesday via Savannah.

With the return to Atlanta Wednesday of members of the Old Guard battalion, the most memorable event in the history of that organization—its second peace mission—will be brought to a close.

Dispatches from Washington, D. C., Baltimore, Philadelphia, New York, Boston and other points which were included in the Old Guard's tour rang with the plaudits given them by their Northern entertainers during the two weeks of their visit.

Perhaps the most memorable of their receptions was that accorded the travelers in Boston at the Memorial Day celebration in that city. The gray-coated veterans were prominent in the ceremonies which were held at the soldiers' and sailors' monument. They marched with the Edward W. Kingsley Post, G. A. R., and with the Kearsarge naval veterans. In the afternoon the Gate City Guard was present at the annual banquet held at the American House.

From Boston the Old Guard went to Philadelphia, where they reviewed 3,000 high school cadets on parade and were the guests at numerous other entertainments.

The battalion returned South via steamship to Savannah. While in that city they are the guests of the Georgia Hussars.

Says No Meat Diet Weakens Will Power

PARIS, June 3.—A vigorous attack on vegetarianism has just been made by Prof. Gautier in a Sorbonne lecture on the value of various foodstuffs.

"Vegetarianism," he declared, reduces the energy, weakens the will power, and lessens the capacity for prompt decision."

Wine Prof. Gautier considered to be a good instead of a harmful drink.

LONDON, June 2.—Miss Edna Goodrich intends to star next season in a version of Longfellow's "Evangeline," dramatized by Tom Broadhurst, which Arthur Hopkins will produce in New York. Miss Goodrich will visit Normandy and Nova Scotia to get local color.

Sewell Collins has arranged with the Hippodrome to produce a sketch on the suffragette question a fortnight from now.

Fulton Legislator Wants Code Revised

John Y. Smith, Representative-elect from Fulton County, favors a bill providing a special commission to go into the question of improving the Georgia penal code and reforming prison conditions.

"I think that a commission should have the power," Mr. Smith said Tuesday, "to subpena witnesses. It should go thoroughly into the penal laws and the Georgia criminal code, and should make a report on which a succeeding Legislature would be able to base changes and reforms."

Jury Alters Verdict Style to Fit Evidence

SAVANNAH, GA., June 3.—"We find no verdict for want of sufficient evidence," was the verdict of a jury in Superior Court in the divorce suit of Mrs. E. Clair Singletary against C. R. Singletary, the wife charging habitual intoxication and undertaking to make out a case on this ground.

The jury didn't think the evidence justified a legal parting of the couple and so the unusual verdict was framed up. Counsel for the wife withdrew the proceedings, as that form of verdict was not effective.

Turks to Give Allies 60,000 Square Miles

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

CONSTANTINOPLE, June 3.—Turkey has begun the evacuation of the 60,000 square miles of territory in Europe which she lost to the Balkan allies. A dozen transports left Rodesto, on the Sea of Marmora, today, bearing Turkish troops into Asiatic ports.

Rodesto is at the western end of the little strip of land Turkey has been allowed to retain in Europe.

RESINOL HEALS ITCHING ECZEMA

Don't stand that itching eczema torment one day longer. Go to the nearest druggist and get a jar of Resinol Ointment and a cake of Resinol Soap. Bathe the eczema patches with Resinol Soap and hot water, dry, and apply a little Resinol Ointment. The torturing itching and burning stop instantly, you no longer have to dig and scratch, sleep becomes possible, and healing begins. Soon the ugly, tormenting eruptions disappear completely and for good.

Resinol is not an experiment. It is a doctor's prescription which proved so wonderfully successful for skin troubles that it has been used by other doctors all over the country for eighteen years. No other treatment for the skin now before the public can show such a record of professional approval. Every druggist sells Resinol Ointment and Resinol Soap, but you can test them at our expense. Just write to Dept. 41-S, Resinol, Baltimore, Md., and we will send you a generous trial by parcel post.

DRAWS BILL TO CHECK SALES OF POISON

Death of Sanders Walker Spurs Chatham Legislator—Special Bottles Proposed.

B. JAMES B. NEVIN.

One of the members from Chatham proposes to introduce in the next Legislature a bill rigidly regulating the sale and labeling of narcotic drugs in Georgia.

Provision will be made for levying a general tax on every proprietor or clerk dispensing morphine, cocaine and other drugs of like character, to the extent of $5 a year, and with the sum thus raised it will be proposed to pay the expenses of a State drug inspector, whose duty it shall be to keep track of all drug dispensations in general, and of deadly drugs in particular.

The bill has not been worked out in all of its provisions, but it likely will undertake to regulate the manner in which narcotic drugs shall be sold, perhaps prescribing not only bright red labels for all drugs of this character, but some unusual form of package. It is suggested that it might help to require all deadly drugs to be sold in triangular-shaped bottles, with especially prepared screw tops.

However this may be shaped up eventually, it is the purpose of the member having the matter under consideration to regulate the sale of narcotic drugs in such manner as to render their accidental use as improbable as possible, in any and all circumstances.

The fatal mistake of young Sanders Walker in Macon unquestionably has stirred the State in the matter of narcotic and deadly drug dispensation, and the proposed bill to regulate their sale hereafter, even more rigidly than ever before, likely will receive strong support in the Legislature, and has more than a good chance to pass.

Representative Anderson Roddenbery, who has been far from well of late, is spending a few days at Hampton Springs, Fla., recuperating.

He hopes to get back to Washington within the week, however, to resume his congressional duties.

Judge Carl Vinson, former Speaker Pro Tem of the House, now Judge of the City Court of Milledgeville, likely will be a candidate for Congress in the next primaries, to succeed Mr. Thomas W. Hardwick.

It is very well known that Mr. Hardwick does not aspire to succeed himself, and has given his more intimate friends to understand as much clearly. He has served ten years in the House, achieved a high standing and reputation during that time, and now desires to retire to the practice of law. Mr. Hardwick has remained in Congress at great financial sacrifice, as it is.

Judge Vinson unquestionably will be a strong candidate for the succession. He is a fine campaigner, an eloquent speaker and knows his way around very well, indeed, in the matters of parliamentary practice and the paths of legislative endeavor. He is immensely popular in his home county of Baldwin and is well known throughout the Tenth District.

Judge Vinson does not say positively that he will be a candidate to succeed Mr. Hardwick, but he very pointedly refrains from denying that he will.

A Municipal Ownership Club has been organized in Columbus, with T. E. Golden, a well-known manufacturer, as president, and J. P. Illges, another manufacturer, as secretary, having as its object the creation of sentiment and working for the adoption of waterworks bonds, which are to be put before the people of Columbus.

At present the Columbus water supply is owned by a private corporation, and Mayor Chappell and others are now at the head of a movement to hold a bond election for the purpose of floating bonds to be used in building a waterworks system to be owned by the city.

Judge Augustus Warwick Fite, the fighting magistrate of the Cherokee circuit, has made a remarkable discovery—one that fills his heart with exceeding great joy, moreover!

The Judge has found a decision of the State Court of Appeals that pleases him immensely, and that he unqualifiedly approves, even if he does hold that he beat the court to it.

The Judge expresses himself as much gratified at the recent decision of the Supreme Court sustaining his views as to blind tigers, to the effect that all places where whisky is sold either secretly or openly are blind tigers and can be abated as nuisances at the instance of any citizen, and also at the decision of the Court of Appeals, holding that when a steward of a social club sells to the members of the club or anyone else intoxicating liquors, he is guilty of violating the State prohibition laws, thereby holding that all social clubs selling whisky are blind tigers.

Judge Fite says he has always held this as the law, but this is the first time it has been so held by the higher courts.

The first indictments under the new law requiring all manufactories to provide seats for female operatives were returned the other day by the Muscogee Grand Jury.

C. L. Perkins and J. K. King, president and superintendent, respectively, of the Massey-Perkins Hosiery Mill in Columbus, have been held to a misdemeanor charge for failure to provide seats for female operatives in their factory, as is required by law, in certain circumstances.

Whether the cases will be settled or carried to the courts of review as a test of the new law is not certain, but the impression is that the cases will not get beyond the lower courts.

1 Saving of $161.50 If you bought this Club Player-Piano in the open market, you would pay $650.00 for it. By my Gigantic Club Plan of 400 members co-operating together, I am able to offer this Player at $488.50. But this is only the first saving.

2 One Year's Trial If I were not interested in the club members, I could unload a cheap player and then try and forget it. That is not the Weatherholt way of doing business. Try it a year. Then, if you want something else, you may exchange it and get credit for amount paid.

3 Ten-Year Guarantee There are lots of Player-Pianos I could sell for considerably less money and make more profit. But I wouldn't guarantee them for ten days, to say nothing of ten years. I KNOW the Weatherholt Club Player and the people who have been making it for years. That's why I GUARANTEE IT FOR TEN YEARS.

4 Free Life Insurance I know that if those who purchase my Club Players live, they will pay for them. I want their families to have them in case of death. So I guarantee that every purchaser will live to pay for it. If he dies, I will give a receipt in full to his beneficiaries.

5 Terms of Payment, $2.50 Per Week These terms are cheaper than renting an ordinary Player. Why rent an inferior Player when you can OWN a high-class one for less money? These terms place the Weatherholt Club Player-Piano WITHIN THE REACH OF EVERYBODY. There is no excuse for not having a Player-Piano now. Monthly payments can be arranged.

6 A 25c Rebate on All Weekly Payments Made Before Due Under this feature the cost of the Player may be reduced almost $50 more. I want to make the Club Plan as attractive as possible, and so I added this feature to encourage those who should be rewarded for promptness.

7 No Interest Only those who have had experience with paying interest on deferred payments can appreciate this feature. The last payment is no more than the first under my plan. When interest is charged the last payment is a third more. In other words, I save each member $78 on each Player.

8 Two-Year Conservatory Course For those who do not play the ordinary piano, but who want to learn, I have added this feature. I have arranged with a successful conservatory for these scholarships. The regular price is $80. Inasmuch as the Club Player is a Piano and Player-Piano combined, many like to understand music.

9 Free Music Exchange Library This is one of the greatest features ever offered. It means that I give each Club Member $10.50 worth of music every day. I give 12 rolls of music worth that with each Player free. Then these may be exchanged every day if desired for other music in my 5,000-roll library.

10 Selected Bench to Match Player and 12 Rolls of Music This feature amounts to $15. The benches cost $4.50 each, and the 12 rolls of music are worth $10.50. What good is a Player-Piano without a bench or music? I want each Club Member to get the Player fully equipped.

MY CLUB PLAN SAVES

$650.00	Player-Piano
78.00	Interest Saved
80.00	2-year Conservatory Course
4.50	Selected Bench
10.50	12 Rolls of Selected Music
$823.00
488.50	CLUB PRICE
$334.50	SAVING

THESE Player-Pianos are just the kind I say they are. They are worth $650.00 each, and are usually sold for that price. I have sold many of them at that figure. But because of the large number to be sold to club members, I am able to offer them at $488.50, on terms of $10.00 down, and $2.50 a week. This is what the great purchasing power of the 400 club members co-operating together accomplishes. The club price is cheaper than many dealers can buy players for. That's because they won't sell in several years what the Weatherholt Player-Piano Club will take in a few weeks.

Club Price $267.50

Terms: $5 Cash, $1.25 Per Week

CONDITIONS: No interest, one year's trial and exchange privilege, 15c rebate on payments made before due, free life insurance feature, ten-year guarantee.

All of which accompany in writing the sale of every Club Piano.

Notice to All Owners of Player-Pianos

During our Player Club Membership Campaign, we will extend—without charge—our exchange privilege to any one purchasing 12 rolls of Player Music from us. This gives the purchaser free access to our 5,000-roll library.

I WANT every lover of music to read the club features. Every one of them tells a story of money-saving. Never before in the musical history of the South has such an offer been made. The offer means that I save each club member $334.50 on every player. I don't unload a Player-Piano on club members with nothing to go with it. I want every Player-Piano to go to members complete. You get one into your home for $10.00, and it is all ready to turn out music. There are no extras to pay for. There is no interest on deferred payments and every player is GUARANTEED FOR TEN YEARS.

CASH BASIS FOR CITY BUSINESS IN FUTURE

Council Accepts Crematory Ruling of Supreme Court—Street Work Will Suffer.

Public business in Atlanta hereafter will be done on a cash basis. It matters not whether the project involves the purchase of a new administration building, the remodelling of an old one or the repairing of a street—it must be paid for within the year.

The crematory controversy resulted in a ruling to this effect by the Supreme Court and Council has taken the edict as final.

The only exception to the cash program is found in the issuance of bonds and bond issues are so hedged about with constitutional limitations that they will be few. Except cases of bond issue, every contract Atlanta makes for purchasing or improving must be paid for out of the revenues of the year in which the contract and appropriations are made.

Recognition of this principle actuated members of Council in contracting for the crematory and appropriating the whole of the $260,000 purchase money out of the revenues of 1913. Alderman John S. Candler, once a member of the Supreme Court, said to Council:

"The question has been put squarely up to the courts, and the courts have decided that public improvements must be paid for out of the revenues of the current year. A bond issue is almost impossible, and we might as well make up our minds right now that hereafter Atlanta will do business on a cash basis."

Mayor Well Pleased.

Mayor Woodward was jubilant over Council's realization of the cash rule necessity. "I hope this will be the last of purchasing by moral obligation," he said. "With the income she has, Atlanta can live on a cash basis, just like other business institutions, and not stand still."

Judge Candler expressed doubt about the ability of the city to proceed with public improvements indefinitely on money actually in hand.

"Few business houses operate on cash alone," he said. "But we've got to do it, and we might as well make up our minds."

Despite the difficulty of getting a bond issue approved, leaders are preparing to raise money by that method. Judge Candler himself, fully cognizant of the legal difficulties to be encountered, is one of the advocates of a bond issue.

The crematory will cost $260,000, and contemplated improvements will have to be neglected to make the purchase. It is the only way to get the money. The last budget of the General Council appropriated $125,000 for the crematory. The new budget, it is expected, will show a surplus revenue of approximately $75,000. This will help some toward the crematory purchase, but even then there are other improvements dependent on this estimated surplus, and these undoubtedly will have to go by the board.

The remaining $60,000 for the crematory, every bit of it, must be withheld from various city departments. Roads and streets will suffer in the opinion of many. The street committee had perfected plans with Fulton County to break all records for road work. The city was to furnish the material and the county do the work. Orville H. Hall, chairman of the Street Committee, announced that the purchase of the crematory would obstruct this program, because the city could not buy the materials and the county therefore could not do the work. Atlanta's most ambitious street and road improvement project must go by the boards.

Other Projects Abandoned.

Small amounts will be withheld from the following projects: Whitehall Street regrading, calling for $30,000; Dargan Place Park, $7,500; widening Peachtree, $5,000; three new schools, $125,000; repairing Ninth Ward schools, $10,000; Forsyth and Hunter streets grading, $6,500. Some of these contemplated public works will be entirely abandoned; estimates for practically all the others will be cut.

"But," said Chairman Hall, of the Streets Committee, "we must get the crematory. I opposed it, and I opposed tearing down the old one; but now the lives of our people must be safeguarded. Some of the work I expected last year was passed over, and I know I must give up hope for other work this year. But it can't be helped. We must have the crematory, and it must be paid for, and this is the only way to get it."

Hotel Men Seeking 1914 Bankers' Meet

A campaign to secure the 1914 convention of the American Bankers' Association for Atlanta was inaugurated at the monthly meeting of the Atlanta Hotel Men's Association Monday night at the Georgian Terrace.

Present were a number of bankers who will attend the bankers' convention in Boston in October. A guarantee of 2,000 rooms, necessary should the 1914 convention come to the Gate City, was declared an easy arrangement by the hotel men, and a committee was appointed to find these accommodations.

LONDON, June 3.—King George celebrated his forty-eighth birthday to-day.

To-morrow he will go to Epsom Downs to see the derby. He will be accompanied by Queen Mary.

AUGUSTA TO VOTE ON COMMISSION

AUGUSTA, GA., June 3.—Augusta will have a commission government election within the next three weeks, put on by the city white primary committee. The charter will be practically the same as the one which was defeated last year, with the recall added. It is recognized that it would be impossible to win without the recall being in the charter and last year it lost primarily because the recall was not in it.

Last year the people who supported Hayne for Mayor were almost a unit in favor of commission government, and those voting for Littleton were largely against it. This year the conditions are reversed.

The Hayne people are on the inside looking out and do not want commission government, while the Littleton people are on the outside looking in and wish to apply, in effect, the recall to Mr. Hayne.

If commission government wins it will go into effect July 1, 1914.

Macon Again Ready For Capital Fight

MACON, GA., June 3.—The capital removal campaign will be renewed shortly by the people of Macon, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce and the Mayor and Council.

Both will this week appropriate $500 to defray the expenses of a lobby in the Legislature. Colonel C. R. Pendleton, editor of The Telegraph, is chairman.

The lobby will seek to have the question submitted to voters of the State.

Prefers Old South To 'Commercial Era'

CHATTANOOGA, June 3.—Eulogizing the old South with its chivalry and gentility as a stage of its development preferable to the commercialized era of to-day, Dr. W. E. Thompson, D. D., of Tampa, Fla., delivered the principal address at the Memorial Day exercises at the Confederate cemetery this afternoon.

Dr. Thompson told of the inception and workings of the Kuklux Klan, and paid tribute to its members.

Noted Franciscan to Preach at Novena

The public novena in honor of St. Anthony will open Wednesday in St. Anthony's Church, West End, under the direction of Father Flavian Larbee, of Cincinnati, a distinguished Franciscan.

Father Flavian will preach twice a day during the novena, which continues for two weeks. His first sermon will be at 8 o'clock Wednesday morning, to be followed by another at 8 o'clock that evening. These hours will be followed throughout the novena.

Father Flavian is the guest of Father Jackson, of the parish.

FRANK DEFENSE BUILDING UP STRONG ALIBI

Affidavits of Negro Conley Will Be Attacked and Discrepancies Pointed Out.

ond floor. She was alone. He quickly stunned her with a blow over the head, the defense will suggest, and toppled her down the elevator shaft, taking her purse and later disposing of her body.

The alibis which the defense will seek to establish are, of course, the weapons on which reliance will be placed to complete the riddling of Conley's testimony and affidavits. Frank had arrived home in the afternoon at the time Conley says the superintendent was dictating notes in his office, according to five witnesses the defense will be able to call.

Conley described at length his alleged conversation with Frank in the factory office after 1 o'clock. Frank says that he arrived home for luncheon at 1:20 o'clock and he is supported in his statement by five witnesses.

Seven witnesses are prepared to testify that Frank was home in the evening at the time he is said to have been telephoning to Mrs. Mima Fomby, asking her for permission to bring a girl to her house. If the State's theory is accepted that Mary Phagan was killed in the afternoon, the defense will hold that the Fomby affidavit is ridiculous on its face. It will be pointed out that any man, whether he be ignorant or intelligent, would not in the first place confide his crime to a negro or any other person by asking their assistance in disposing of the body.

After this he would not take a cab driver, a woman and any others who happened to observe his movements into his confidence by removing the dead body to a semi-public house like that of Mrs. Fomby's.

Police to Combat Them.

The element of time will enter into several other phases of the defense to show that the negro has been lying in all his affidavits. He repeated a conversation which took place between Foreman Darley and Miss Mattie Smith. He said that it took place a few minutes before 12 o'clock.

The defense will claim that, as a matter of fact, the conversation took place at about 9:30 o'clock in the morning and that the negro must have been there at that time in order to hear the conversation, although he testified that he did not come there until he met Frank on the street at 11 o'clock. The police, however, are ready to combat testimony along this line.

That Frank would have been satisfied with the incoherent, almost unintelligible, notes found beside the girl's body, if he had been dictating them, will be represented as most unreasonable. The notes were more probably the sole work of a half-intoxicated negro, as Conley has admitted he was, the defense will maintain.

Judge W. R. Daley Delivers Diplomas to White-gowned Graduates.

Much chatter and gayety marked the transition of 21 girls from pupils to teachers Monday afternoon when the normal class of the Girls' High School held its commencement exercises in Browning Hall.

Dressed all in white, each with a bouquet of white flowers at her corsage, the bevy of young women presented one of the liveliest graduation classes which has been seen in Atlanta in some time, when they stepped down from the platform with their diplomas in hand, prepared to face the knotty problems of drilling knowledge into the minds of young America.

The certificates were delivered by Judge W. R. Daley at the close of an interesting program of music and oratory. The principal address of the occasion was made by Major Robert J. Guinn.

The young ladies who graduated are Misses Lillian Bloodworth, Caroline Campbell, Willie Carmichael, Sally DeSaussure, Annie Ruth Estes, Clara May Fowler, Irene Hancock, Fannie Henley, Annie Whitefoord Hill, Sarah Holmes, Louise Leiper, Fannie Marshall, Ruth Miller, Lida Moore, Hortense Moran, Lillian Reeves, Mattie Lou Richardson, Ethel Rodgers, Frances Smith, Virginia Stanard and Vivian Winslow.

South Celebrates Davis' Birthday

MOBILE, ALA., June 3.—The birthday of Jefferson Davis was observed by the Daughters of the Confederacy and Raphael Semmes Camp, Confederate Veterans, with appropriate exercises here to-day. All banks, public buildings and courts were closed. Two nieces of Jefferson Davis live in Mobile. They are Mrs. Harvey E. Jones, Jr., and Mrs. Mary Howell.

ALEXANDRIA, VA., June 3.—"The Stars and Bars" are fluttering from scores of flagstaffs in this city today, for it is the anniversary of the birth of Jefferson Davis, President of the Confederacy. Elaborate preparations have been made for a general celebration to-night by the various Confederate organizations.

AUGUSTA, GA., June 3.—To-day is being observed as a holiday here in honor of the birth of Jefferson Davis. Augusta veterans will meet in honor of their former leader to-morrow night at the First Baptist Church, when Dr. M. Ashby Jones, son of Dr. J. William Jones, the chaplain of the General R. E. Lee's army, will deliver an address.

Baby Farm Trade in Illinois Unearthed

SPRINGFIELD, ILL., June 3.—The Curran committee, investigating "baby farming" conditions in Illinois, to-day reported to the Legislature with recommendations for State regulation of all charitable societies, maternity homes and foundling asylums.

The committee found, according to the report, that a veritable "baby farm" commerce exists in Illinois.

PROBE BEGUN OF REPORTS THAT VICE EXISTS

conditions. He is said to have informed the grand jurors that his information was only hearsay. However, he gave out what he had heard in full. The Mayor also pointed out to the jurymen possibilities for the existence of such practices. The examination of Mr. Woodward continued for more than an hour.

Colonel Felder was before the Grand Jury for ten minutes. The attorney was not subpenaed to appear at the hearing, but presented himself voluntarily. He is said to have outlined his own position in reference to the bribery charges and also the wholesale charges of corruption which have been made against the police.

Felder Offers Evidence.

In connection with the latter accusations, Mr. Felder declared to the investigating body that he would submit documentary evidence showing the existence of vice in Atlanta to prove his previous assertions.

It is believed that Carl Hutcheson, the young attorney in Felder's office, is counted upon to supply this evidence. Mr. Hutcheson was called before the Grand Jury shortly before noon. While he did not carry in with him the list of resorts said to be operating now in this city, which he has compiled, he declared that if this document were asked for by the jurymen he would hand it over to them.

That the Grand Jury was in possession of sufficient information to indict the keepers and proprietors of at least 30 houses of disreputable character was the announcement made by Mr. Hutcheson when he emerged from the session chamber after he had been before the jurors for more than an hour.

Says He Furnished Proof.

He said that he had furnished positive evidence that these resorts and houses of assignation existed and that the policemen on the beats knew of their existence.

"But did you give them positive information that Chief Beavers and Chief Lanford knew of their existence?" he was asked.

"I told them enough so that they must draw the conclusion that Beavers and Lanford could hardly help but know," he replied. "The heads of departments always are responsible for the workings of the men under them."

Mrs. Fomby in City.

The fact that Mrs. Fomby, a witness in the Phagan case, has been summoned, gave the meeting an air of mystery. It was stated on reliable information, however, that her testimony would have nothing to do with the Phagan case. It is understood that her name was one on the list that was to be furnished the police department by Carl Hutcheson, in which the attorney alleged she was receiving police protection. It was also said that the woman was not out of the city, as hinted a few days ago, but had merely changed her address and given the new location to the Solicitor.

Chief Beavers, Chief Lanford and G. C. Febuary, Lanford's secretary, were served Tuesday morning. Febuary's subpena demanded that he bring the dictograph and documentary evidence he had taken in the affair. A. S. Colyar, Jr., had not been served, but Deputy Piennie Minor stated he would locate him during the morning.

Before going into the Grand Jury room Chief Beavers made the following statement:

"I want the truth of this whole affair to be known. If there is rottenness in the department I certainly want to find out about it and get it out. I want the jury to hew close to the line and let the chips fall where they may."

Gives All Details.

It is understood that Mr. Hutcheson gave names and addresses and withheld nothing. He went so far as to display keys of rooms in the alleged disorderly houses that had been obtained by himself and others who assisted him in his investigations.

Mr. Hutcheson's investigations are said to have extended over a period of weeks. He said that he had several assistants and that the investigation was made with an idea of furnishing evidence that would indict everyone against whom it was procured.

"I do not care to go into any detail concerning my testimony before the Grand Jury," he said. "They did not grill me. They simply 'turned me loose' and permitted me to give the information in my possession. All that I care to say is that I gave them all that I indicated I could furnish to Chief Beavers, and there is much more that can be divulged when I get it into shape. I did not charge graft. I simply showed that these places were being protected and let the jurors draw their own conclusions as to why."

More to Come, Says Felder.

Mr. Hutcheson's revelations of alleged protection are a part of Colonel Felder's announced plan of "turning things upside down" in Atlanta's police department.

"This is only a part," said Colonel Felder. "There is a mountain of evidence to follow."

C. C. Jones, owner of the Rex saloon and at one time a property owner in Atlanta's restricted district, was called after Mr. Hutcheson was excused and was questioned by the Grand Jury for only a few minutes. The Grand Jury then adjourned, notifying the other witnesses to be on hand Wednesday at 10 o'clock.

List Given Jury Explicit.

Colonel Felder, in explaining the nature of his testimony and that of Mr. Hutcheson, said that the tentative list furnished the Grand Jury had been very explicit and complete so far as it went.

It contained, he said:

The names of more than 30 landladies, or proprietors, of disorderly houses, together with their street addresses.

Their statements of the alleged connections of these places and the Police Department.

Affidavits from the landladies and the inmates, as well as from reputable persons, that members of the police and detective forces had been in these resorts intoxicated and had remained all night at the orgies and were fully aware of the conditions.

Affidavits from reputable citizens that they had notified the Police Department of the disgraceful conditions and that no cognizance had been taken of their complaints.

"We will be prepared to go much deeper into the question when the Grand Jury reconvenes to-morrow," asserted Colonel Felder.

Mayor, Chief and Felder Engage in Verbal Tilt.

A lively clash between Mayor Woodward, Attorney Felder and Chief Beavers marked the opening of the probe when the three met in an anteroom where the Grand Jury was in session.

Said Mr. Beavers to Mr. Felder: "Somebody said that you said that I had been seen down on Garnett Street with a woman of questionable character."

"I never did," declared the attorney. "Just the same, there are enough of that kind of women down there for everybody who wants to go there," interjected Mayor Woodward.

"You charged me with graft," continued Beavers to Felder, ignoring the Mayor's interruption.

"I have charged some of the police with it, and I will prove it," answered Mr. Felder.

Beavers—"What kind of a machine is this dictograph, Colonel?"

Felder—In the hands of honest people it is a pretty accurate one. I have used it several times to catch criminals in South Carolina and I have used it some more for that purpose in Atlanta.

Woodward—Whatever I said to you, Mr. Beavers, or Lanford, I will say to your faces. You can't put a matter of this kind in the hands of a fellow like Colyar when you want to get at the truth. You ought to be taken to task for letting such crooks as Colyar and Febuary take a hand in this matter.

Poet in 250-Mile Hike In Pursuit of Ideas

NEW YORK, June 3.—Arriving on the White Star liner Cedric from Liverpool was Richard Le Gallienne, the poet, with his wife and daughter, after a three months' trip through the "troubadour district" in the South of France, where he went to get ideas.

During the trip, Mr. Le Gallienne said, they wore peasants' costumes, and visited the notable people, including Frederick Mistral, who is called the King of Provence. They walked altogether about 250 miles.

Ashurst Denies He Seeks $3,600,000 Fee

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Senator Ashurst, of Arizona, to-day denied a statement in a local newspaper that he "expects to make $3,600,000 legal fee by preventing cancellation of certain Indian contracts held by himself."

The contracts in question are held by J. F. McMurray, of South McAlester, Okla., whom Senator Ashurst, in his testimony before the judiciary sub-committee, charged with being a lobbyist.

SENATE FAILS TO FIND WILSON'S LOBBYISTS

President Himself May Have to Prove His Charges to Investigating Committee.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The Overman lobby sub-committee to-day resumed its search for a "numerous, industrious and insidious lobby" in Washington. The questions asked persistently by various members of the sub-committee so far indicate that the President may be left single-handed to prove his charges.

Senator McLean, of Connecticut, said he owned 300 shares of General Electric stock. Howard D. Cheney, of South Manchester, Conn., talked to him about increasing the rates on silk.

When Senator McLean began to define a lobbyist, Senator Nelson, a member of the sub-committee, broke in with: "We've had enough of this stuff."

Senator Dillingham has no financial interest in the bill and said that Samuel Ullman, of New York, talked to him about the duty on furs.

Senator Fletcher said C. E. Berlman, of Chicago, talked to him about the tariff on tobacco, and G. Harold Powell, of California, on fruit tariff.

Senator Fall, of New Mexico, admitted he is interested in industries affected by tariff revision.

LITTLE STORIES of the TOWN

Where Some Former Atlantans Are Now.

"I've been wondering," said a former Atlantan, who is in town on a visit, "where all the young fellows that I used to know here have gone. I feel sort of lonesome; don't seem to know many folks here now, although before I left to take a job out in Los Angeles I used to be on speaking terms with a whole lot of people."

Then he called the names of some of those he wanted to hear about and his companion—they were at one of the clubs—gave him this information:

"Jakie" Harris, who used to represent Uncle Remus' Magazine as an advertising solicitor, is the editor and proprietor of a paper, The Loudoun Mirror, published at Leesburg, Va. His name, appearing at the masthead of the paper, reads: Joel C. Harris.

"Bob" Dean, creator of the "Zotwots" and other art fancies, is in New York, where he is connected with the art department of one of the big papers; Don Marquis is in charge of a feature department on The Evening Sun in New York; George McDaniel, the singer, is on the Pacific Coast; Heber McDonald, press agent and advertising man, is in the theatrical business in New York; Tilden Adamson, former journalist, has an important position in the comptroller's office in New York; Grattan Colvin is connected with a big law office in New York; Tristram Tupper has established a law office of his own in New York, and Marshall Lane is connected with an advertising agency in Cleveland, Ohio.

"Well," said the former Atlantan when he had absorbed all this information, "it beats me how those fellows scatter about the country. But I guess I needn't say a word. I'm in the same boat."

New Crop of Fishing Stories Is About Due.

"I'll bet," said the business man, "that stores in Atlanta which sell fishing tackle are doing a great trade at the present time. I've seen more people 'going fishing' in the last few days than I ever saw before. It looks to me that every fellow who can get off for a day and who can find a rod, line, hook and sinker is hiking out to river, creek or lake for the sole purpose of landing a minnow or two.

"A fellow passed my place of business yesterday and he had a fishing pole about fifteen feet long. And, believe me, he was having some trouble navigating with that pole. It was so long it was constantly getting tangled up in signs along the sidewalk, and when he wanted to get on a street car the conductor said he'd have to leave the stick. Well, you know he'd have left his head in preference to deserting that precious fishing pole, so the last I saw of him he was beating it up Peachtree Street, pole in hand and dodging signs and people like a good fellow.

"And speaking of fishing reminds me that several days ago I met a freak—a positive freak. It was a man who had gone fishing and admitted he hadn't caught a fish ten feet long and that weighed 100 pounds. You may say what you like about exaggeration being the besetting sin of fishermen. They do exaggerate—at least, all I ever had dealings with. They'll be perfectly sane on any other subject, but when they get started telling about their exploits as fishermen it's all off. You can't hold 'em down to earth, not for a minute. They are just bound to tell you about that big one they hooked and came very near landing, etc., etc.

"This is no comic page steer; it's the truth. These Izaak Waltons sure can pull a long bow. I know some of 'em."

Slaton School Children Wed Just Like Grown-ups

Bride Wears Real Train and Orange Blossoms

Helen Moncrief and James Smith, bride and bridegroom, in costume for "wedding" at William F. Slaton School.

Big Crowd Sees Lilliputian Ceremony Go Through Without a Single Hitch.

Almost as real as the real thing was the Lilliputian wedding given by the first grade A of the William F. Slaton School Monday afternoon.

From the entry of the bride and bridegroom, treading with stately step to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march, to the solemn pronouncement by the emoryo clergyman of the diminutive couple as man and wife, the ceremony was flawless.

The large auditorium was crowded with round-eyed, open-mouthed children, witnesses of the occasion.

Dainty little Helen Moncrief was the bride, and she was gowned just as a bride should be gowned, even to the flowing train and orange blossom wreath. The way in which she rested on the arm of the bridegroom served as a good object lesson for brides. James Smith enacted the role of bridegroom, and his air of proprietorship was complete. He was attired in a full dress suit.

Vernon Austin and Evelyn Coppedge were best man and honored maid, while Helen Snow and Mildred Smith were flower girls. Bridesmaids were Emily Peebles, Marie Garden, Frances Clement and Frances Runyon, while Charlie Dodge, James Grogan, Edwin McGee and John Stephens were groomsmen. Ray Richards enacted the minister's role, appearing in the garb of an Episcopal clergyman.

The Lilliputian wedding was witnessed by an unusually large crowd.

Effects of Failure Felt in Many Lines

SAVANNAH, GA., June 3.—The disastrous effects of the recent failure of the American Naval Stores Company are just beginning to be felt. The resultant embarrassment is permeating all lines of industry.

Money stringency is becoming acute among all dealers in naval stores products. It is felt even among the laborers in the turpentine camps, whose employers are facing a problem in meeting their weekly payrolls.

The producers are calling on their factors for assistance. The factors, with the output of the producers on their hands, and no market for the product, with insurance to carry on vast and daily increasing receipts, and storage and demurrage charges to in view of the unsatisfactory condition of the market, are unwilling to pay, are themselves being forced to call on the banks for aid. The banks lend. Business, therefore, is measured in large proportion by the amount of money in sight.

'Lazy Lovin' Man,' Favored as Husband

WASHINGTON, IND., June 3.—The female contingent of the negro Baptist congregation here has shown its weakness for a lovable nature in the opposite sex and prefers a lazy, loving husband to a mean, industrious mate.

The women of the congregation held a debate on the subject: "Which is of the most benefit to a wife—a lazy, loving husband or a mean, industrious one?" The "lazy, loving husband" won.

Japan Not Joining in Pact to Abolish War

WASHINGTON, June 3.—Secretary of State Bryan, after a conference with President Wilson to-day, announced that Japan has not fully accepted the United States universal overtures, as reported.

The Japanese Government, the Secretary of State said, has expressed itself as being interested in the general peace movement, but it has not yet indicated that it will ally itself with the United States in an attempt to secure the abolition of war.

Silks at Splendid Savings

Crepe de Chines, Crepe Meteors, Shirtings and Chiffons at Clearaway Prices

Read the list again—crepe de chines that have been hard to get all season are included and crepe meteors, aristocrats among silks and the wanted and washable and seasonable silk shirtings and exquisite chiffons for evening dresses. Hard to gather a more representative and likable lot.

Still they are reduced—reduced is hardly the word for it. Prices are cut to the very quick—in this fashion:

$1.00 Silk Shirtings 79c

33 inches wide, white grounds striped with black, navy and heliotrope stripes of various widths—a fine assortment. The quality is splendid, heavy, with pure silk, the kind that makes many trips to the laundry. And the vogue for silk shirts is great.

$1.50 Crepe de Chines & $2.00 Chiffons at 83c

Figured crepe de chines, 24 inches wide—splendid for summer dresses. Patterns show little flowers spread across surfaces of navy, Alice, taupe and brown. Also at this price are figured chiffons that were $2.00 a yard and plain and two-toned taffetas and striped silk and wool eoliennes in cream.

$2.50 & $3.00 Crepe de Chines & Crepe Meteors $1.69

They are 44 inches wide. The crepe de chine, a beautiful quality, heavy, softly draping in a rich shade of navy. The crepe meteors are in lilac, light blue, apricot, brown and palm green.

$2.50 to $4.00 Crepes & Embroidered Chiffons $1.79

They are 44 inches wide. In colors and designs for evening dresses—pink and light blue embroidered over with silver, mais and white; chiffon crepes in delicate shades with deep borders. All exquisite materials; not to be confused because of the low prices with odds and ends—but this you will note the moment you clap eyes on them.

Now For the Quick Disposal of Untrimmed Hats

Shapes That Were $2.50 to $10.00 Are 95c

There are two hundred forty-nine of them.

Milan, split Belgian, hemp, imitation hemp.

Red, green, brown, tan, taupe, gray and a few black.

Medium and small shapes—but what a variety the words medium and small cover. They are all shapes that this season has brought out, which tells worlds about little upturned brims, small rounded crowns, bent-over brims, and others and others, including the one that you will want.

And they are all now marked at 95c, which, with a bit of ribbon or a wing or feathers or flowers and a new hat has cost very, very little.

Will you be your own milliner?

The selling starts with the opening of the store at eight o'clock.

Ready With All the Cotton Crepes and Voiles Now In the Height of Women's Favor

As the buyer puts it, "cotton crepes and voiles are strong."

And here they are, a seemingly endless variety! Such a variety that completely sets a woman at rest, she knows in a moment that here she will find just what she wants without a shading one way or the other.

Certainly that is satisfying; and what cool, charming dresses it means for the warm weather season.

There are plain crepes in white and colors, there are crepes with embroidered dots, crepes with ratine stripes, stripes sometimes in colors, sometimes all white; there are crepes with ratine checks, then there are voiles—one kind after another of just plain voiles, ratine striped voiles that look much heavier than they are and voiles with borders of ratine—but the list would grow much larger than space permits and then the pleasure of it all is seeing this splendid display and the wide price range and choosing just the color and quality and pattern and all you like best.

To-morrow will be the best opportunity.

GIRL DE MUMM JILTED PLANS SUICIDE

Friend Hurries to Paris to Prevent Former American Waitress Ending Her Life.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

PARIS, June 3.—Hurrying on a mission of life or death, Miss Josephine Howard, an English actress, arrived in Paris from London early to-day in response to a note from Mrs. Marie VanRansaimer Barnes, an American woman, who threatened to commit suicide because of the marriage of Walter DeMumm, the rich vintner, to Miss Florence Scoville, daughter of a Seneca, Kahs., banker.

"Mrs. Barnes is infatuated with Mr. DeMumm, and I am afraid she will carry out her threat," said Miss Howard. "She sent me a packet containing a few personal trinkets and a letter, and in the letter she told me of her intention to take her life. I hastened here at once to prevent her from carrying out her threat.

"I believe she is lonely, but with companionship she may arise from her despondency. Mr. DeMumm once cared very much for Mrs. Barnes, and they were together often, but his marriage to Miss Scoville shows that this love on his part is dead."

Mrs. Barnes was accused last December of shooting Walter DeMumm in her apartments following his declaration that their friendship must end. Mrs. Barnes went to London, although no criminal charge was lodged against her, the DeMumm family desiring to keep the affair as secret as possible. Mr. DeMumm spent some time in a private hospital.

Mrs. Barnes has lived in Paris for some time and has attracted considerable attention by her dashing style and her disregard of money. She was born near Easton, Pa., and in her girlhood was a restaurant waitress.

Translates Bible Into New Spelling

CLEVELAND, MINN., June 3.—Judson Jones, of Cleveland, has completed a translation of the Bible, according to a system of phonetic spelling, which he devised himself. Most of the manuscript is being kept in a safe deposit vault, while the four books of the Gospels and the book of Acts are being put into type.

Mr. Jones began his work twenty-one years ago, when he was sixty years old, and he has devoted most of his time since to the translation.

Famous Pink Whiskers Doomed

J. Hamilton Lewis Going to Shave

Just as Soon as It Gets Real Hot

Junior Illinois Senator to Separate Himself From One of His Claims to Fame.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—James Hamilton Lewis, former Georgian, has so startled Washington that the capital is now in that extreme condition which is most aptly called agog.

The junior Senator from Illinois has threatened to shave off his whiskers—"just as soon as the weather gets settled to its summer heat," he says.

"I have accomplished something in two much alive and widely separated States," he said, "but I am pictured as being composed principally of whiskers, manners and clothes. My eccentricities are exaggerated."

"What are your eccentricities?" he was asked.

Colonel Not Just "Frippery."

"I don't know," he replied. "That is the strange part of it. But to read the newspapers one would think that my personality is all on the surface—that I am mostly bows, smiles, spats, canes and whiskers.

"I have let my whiskers grow ever since I first went to Seattle," Senator Lewis continued. "I was 20 years old, meant to practice law and desired to look experienced and competent. I wooed the aspect of maturity for business purposes. The custom of many young physicians justified me in doing so.

How He Formed the Habit.

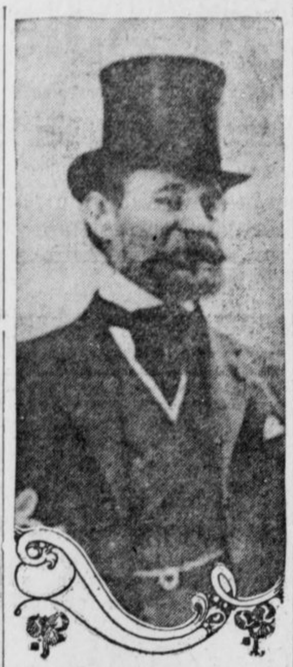

"Then I was ill a great deal and my whiskers concealed unhappy hollows and angularities. Finally, whiskers became a part of my outward individuality. I formed, in short, the habit of wearing them.

"But I have determined to try an experiment. This summer I shall shave off my whiskers and deprive journalism of one of its favorite sources of originality and humor."

His Radiant "Glad Rags."

So speaking Senator Lewis tapped the toe of his shoe with his cane and twiddled a pair of mauve gloves with his left hand. He wore a pink shirt, blue cuff buttons, a dark suit of clothing—with white facing on the waistcoat—an indigo necktie, a large sky colored stickpin and heavy rings on his little fingers.

In his scrimping days, it is said, he held that it was more artistic and impressive to expend $36 for three suits of clothes than to wear a $40 suit right through the summer or winter.

Pine and Cypress Business Picks Up

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—More cheerful news came from the yellow pine and cypress operators this week as to business conditions, car service and demand. From points west of the Mississippi River the movement seemed distinctly on the rise and with the increased demand a firmer tone in prices was noted. Inquiries were being received by all mills of reputation and the orders asked were of considerable proportions. Stocks in the retailers' hands are believed to be generally depleted and as buyers are of the opinion that the market has reached its lowest point they are eager to get in with their orders before prices make upward jumps.

ENRICO CARUSO IS REBUKED BY ANGRY ESCORT

American Accuses Noted Singer of Ogling a Woman in a London Hotel.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 3.—Enrico Caruso was one of the actors in a scene which has stirred the Savoy Hotel. There was no sequel in a police court, though fisticuffs barely were avoided. The foyer of the hotel at the moment was filled with departing supper guests.

It appears that Caruso annoyed an American, who has been a resident of London for the last few years, by ogling a woman whom the American was escorting. Caruso is said to have called the attention of his secretary, Weber, to the woman in such fashion as to make his notice of her conspicuous. In any case, the American took umbrage, and, stepping up to the tenor, told him in a voice heard all over the foyer that he should be ashamed of himself so to direct attention to any gentlewoman.

"I am Caruso," replied the tenor. "I do what I like."

The American thereupon advanced on Caruso threateningly. The tenor beat a hasty retreat, taking refuge in an elevator.

Secretary Weber, being more pugnacious, took the American by the shoulder and said:

"If you weren't an old man I would knock your head off!"

This insult enraged the American, who rushed at Weber. However, a big bystander quietly interfered, taking Weber by the arm and leading him away, despite the secretary's struggles.

The upshot of the affair was that the manager of the hotel took the American into his private office, where he heard the story and proffered an apology. Caruso is still on the hotel list.

Wife, Forced to Sell Jewels, Asks Divorce

Forced by want, she alleges, to sell her engagement ring, Mrs. Aggie Dean Rader Monday entered suit against Frank N. Rader for absolute divorce and custody of their 2-year-old boy, Dean Rader. She charges non-support.

Rader is a civil engineer. They were married August 31, 1910.

The suit was filed by Attorneys H. B. Troutman and H. L. Graves.

Band of Bay Pirates Prey on N. Y. Women

NEW YORK, June 3.—In the discovery to-day of the existence of a murderous band of "bay pirates," infesting the fens and bogs of Sheepshead and adjacent bays, preying upon lonely and defenseless women, is believed to lie the solution of the disappearance of Mrs. Olga Housman, a pretty young Brooklyn dressmaker, who was last seen canoeing in Sheepshead Bay.

Mrs. Housman had $300 with her when she disappeared.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

Entertaining Bill at Forsyth.

"Pop" Ward & Curran, Lillian Shaw, Jack Hazard, Seldom's Models—these are four of the old favorites at the Forsyth this week, enough in themselves to assure a very nifty little bill. Of course they are reinforced by the usual dancing act, the acrobatic number, etc., etc. The program as a whole is one of the best of the summer season.

Old "Pop" Ward has a splendid act which for some reason or other did not go as big as it might on the opening night. As Ward said: "There seemed to be some doubt as to what he was doing." He gets many a laugh, however, and his partner in character parts adds greatly to the number.

Lillian Shaw in her usual repertoire of Hebrew and German songs scores a big hit. Her baseball song is especially good and her "Marriage" number is capital.

Jack Hazard tells a good many old stories and a lot of new ones. He is a clever entertainer and his number goes big.

Seldom's Models, beautiful artistic poses, in which two men and a woman reproduce famous groups of stautary and paintings, are splendid.

Others on the bill are Wright & Dittrich, singers; the Three Alex, novelty equilibrists; Caits Brothers, dancers, and the Patheplay.

"College Girls" Is Good Show.

"The College Girls," the musical comedy tabloid at the Bijou, is about the sort of show that appeals in this sort of weather, because there isn't a blessed thing to worry about. It is just one big 'rah 'rah after another, all for fun and fun for all.

The company started a week's engagement at the Marietta Street playhouse with two matinees and two night performances on Monday and the theater was crowded at each performance. Incidentally the place was as comfortable as a good battery of whirling noiseless fans and a perfect exhaust system could make it.

In "The College Girls" there are a dozen girls and every one pretty and qualified to sing and dance and wear pretty clothes becomingly. The comedians are fun-makers.

There will be daily matinee performances all the rest of the week, two on Saturday, and two night performances will be recorded each day.

$5.00 Rugs at $3.65---6x9-foot Size

If You Rightly Appreciate Good Health

You can not place too high a value upon comfort. And no one can fail to appreciate the relationship of summer home furnishings to comfort.

The difference between those who live through the summer and those who laugh through it is more often a matter of forethought than of mere opportunity.

Cool Willow Grass Rugs Contribute to Summer Comfort

Each year people appreciate more and more the importance of changing their floor coverings. Cool, fresh Summer Rugs are a delight to the eye, and they double the life of winter coverings. Choice will not be better this season than right now.

Artistic, Sanitary, Economical, Popular Floor Coverings

Willow Grass Rugs are soft and pliable—they can be used the year 'round for every room in the house, but for the summer they are a decidedly practical and desirable floor covering for cottages and porches.

They are real works of art, and carry beauty and attractiveness to any home.

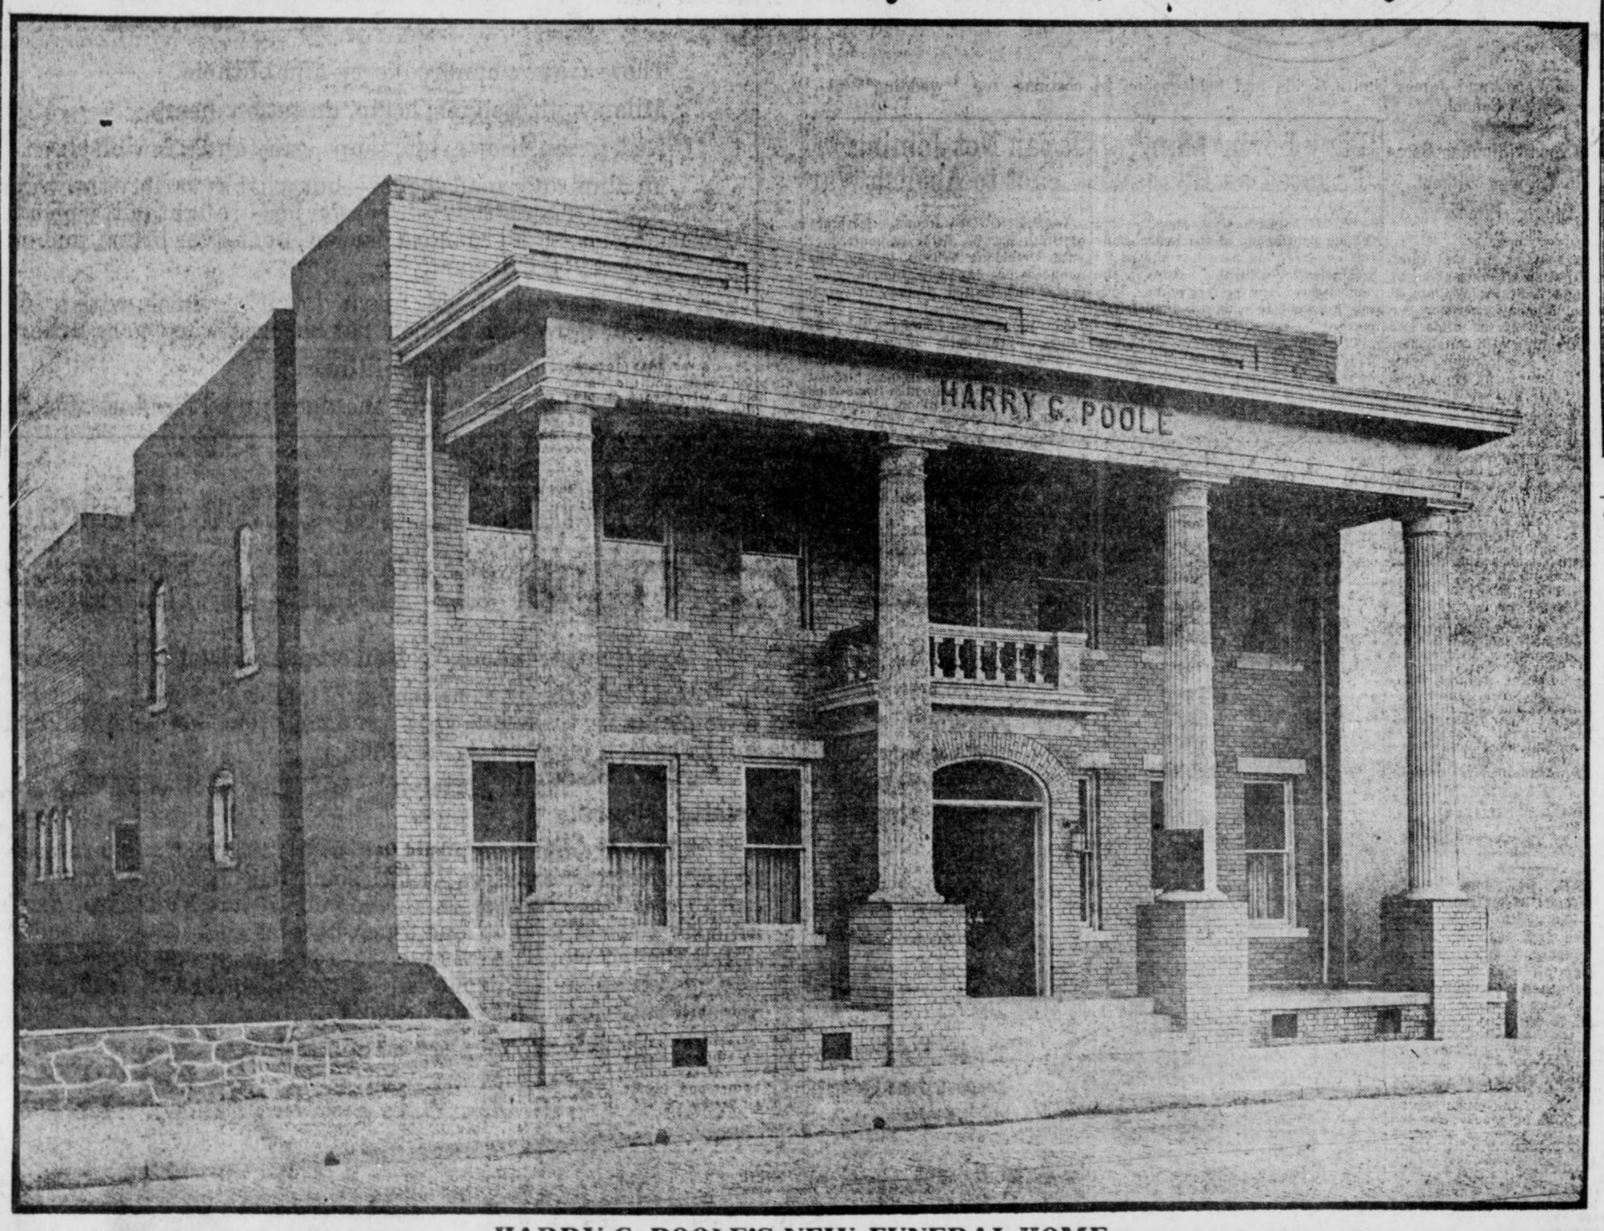

They wear like iron—and ought to, for they are made of genuine grass—a nature product, transported and utilized to adorn the home.

The color tones are exceptionally pretty and inviting—greens, blues, browns and various other shades.

New and Handsome Funeral Home of Harry G. Poole, 96 South Pryor Street

HARRY G. POOLE.

HARRY G. POOLE'S NEW FUNERAL HOME

GROVER C. BODEN, Manager.

A Modern Establishment Where Every Homelike Convenience Is Afforded

The friends of Harry G. Poole, the well known funeral director, are congratulating him upon the splendid success he has achieved since, a few years ago, he began his present line of work.

Mr. Poole has just moved into his own building at 96 South Pryor Street. In convenience and beauty of arrangement for its purpose it is, perhaps, the most modern in the entire South.

Mr. Poole designates it as his Funeral Home—and rightly so. Bright, airy—built upon the lines of a modern private home—and furnished with elegant, cheery fittings, its interior presents at once an appearance which helps to dispel the gloom so naturally attendant upon those who have occasion to visit an establishment of this kind. There is no suggestion of the gloomy, melancholy air which so frequently encircles the business house of the undertaker.

Two Large, Airy Parlors Take the Place of Commonly Designated Chapels

In the place of what is commonly termed as the "chapel" in most undertaking establishments, Mr. Poole has provided two large, airy parlors, which are homelike in their appointments. These are so arranged that two funeral services can be held at the same time, should occasion arise, without conflict of any kind. Every convenience is provided, and a funeral conducted in one of these parlors is similar in every detail to a home service.

In addition, a new, and what will doubtless prove a most desirable feature, is the furnishing of special bedrooms on the second floor, where strangers passing through the city with the bodies of loved ones can spend the night in quiet, free of charge, of course, and be near their deceased members.

In fact, the new Funeral Home of Mr. Poole is homelike in its every appearance, and his friends are invited to drop in and inspect for themselves his model, new and handsome business house.

The World of Society

THE marriage of Miss Courtney Harrison and Mr. Loring Raoul was solemnized Monday evening at 6:30 o'clock at "Fernbank," the suburban home of the bride's parents, Colonel and Mrs. Z. D. Harrison. While quietly observed on account of the recent death of the bridegroom's father, the wedding was marked by unusual and beautiful details.

The bridal party were grouped for the ceremony at twilight on the uncovered porch, where the trailing Dorothy Perkins rose made a beautiful decoration, and the trees surrounding the gray-stone residence formed a striking background.

Miss Tinsley Harrison and Miss Eleanor Raoul were bridesmaids, and the bridegroom's brother, Mr. Norman Raoul, was best man. The bride's brother, the Rev. Hendree Harrison, of Jacksonville, Fla., officiated.

The bride wore white lace and chiffon, with the conventional tulle veil, and a shower bouquet of valley lilies. The bridesmaids wore lavender chiffon and carried pink roses and valley lilies.

An informal reception followed the ceremony. Mrs. Harrison was assisted in receiving by her daughters, Mrs Michael Hoke, Miss Emily Harrison and Miss Fanneal Harrison. Mrs Harrison wore gray crepe de chine and point lace. Mrs. Raoul wore black crepe meteor. Mrs. Hoke and the Misses Harrison wore white lingerie.

Following the reception, Mr. Raoul and his bride left for a wedding trip to the mountains of North Carolina, and on their return they will be at home at Smyrna, Ga.

Miss Blackmon's Bridge.

Miss Edna Blackmon gave an informal bridge party Tuesday afternoon at her home on West Peachtree Street for Mrs. Walter Keenan, of Columbia, S. C., the guest of Mrs. J. T. Daniel. The house was artistically decorated in daisies and the prizes were a gold hatpin, a thimble and a picture. Miss Blackmon wore a white marquisette, embroidered in pink, with a sash of pink satin.

Her twelve guests were the members of her bridge club.

For Miss Boyd.

Miss Emily Winship gave a bridge party Tuesday afternoon for Miss Elizabeth Boyd, the guest of Miss Carolyn King. The card tables were placed in the sun parlor, where garden flowers and ferns formed the decoration. The prizes were dainty specimens of the hostess' handiwork. The guests were Misses Carolyn King, Elizabeth Boyd, Annie Lee McKenzie, Caroline Muse, Sarah Rawson and her guest, Rosalie Hutcheson, of Houston, Tex.; Emma Kate Amorous, Alice May Freeman, Nancy Prince, Laura Ansley, Marjorie Brown and Mrs. Charles Shelton.

For Miss Ripley.

Mrs. T. S. Wilkins gave a lovely bridge party Tuesday morning for Miss Louise Ripley, a bride-elect. A large basket of sweetpeas graced the luncheon table, and elsewhere were pink poppies. The prizes were silk hose, and to the honor guest was given a piece of crepe de chine lingerie. Mrs. Wilkins received her guests wearing a pale blue crepe with a sash of black velvet. Miss Ripley wore a white embroidered crepe, with a leghorn hat trimmed in blue ribbon and pink roses. Mrs. Wilkins was assisted in entertaining by Mrs. T. P. Ripley and her little daughters, Rebie and Charlotte Wilkins.

Kirk-Bethune.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Manning Kirk announce the marriage of their daughter, Gladys, to Mr. George Royal Bethune, at their home, 348 North Jackson Street, Atlanta, on Monday, June 2. After the wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Bethune will be at home at 421 Second Avenue, Rome, Ga.

Taylor-Fewell.

Miss Ollie Fewell and Mr. Jere Hampton Taylor were married Monday evening at the Inman Park Presbyterian Church. Ferns and daisies were used for decorating the church. Attendants were Mrs. B. H. Austin, matron of honor; Misses Jonella Taylor and Lucile Fewell, flower girls; Mr. Robert Taylor, best man. Miss Lina Andrews played the wedding music.

The bride wore a traveling suit of French blue serge with hat to match. She carried bride roses. The matron of honor wore white lingerie with a picture hat of white. Fifteen young girls, members of the bride's music class, were ribbon bearers, wearing white lingerie. They carried festoons of smilax and white tulle, which formed an aisle for the bridal party.

Mr. and Mrs. Taylor went to Florida. They will be at home at 330 Euclid Avenue.

For Miss Callaway.

Miss Olive Shropshire was hostess at a sewing party Tuesday morning at her home on Myrtle Street for her guest, Miss Camilla Callaway, of Madison. Daisies in large jardinieres decorated the porch, where the guests enjoyed a delightful morning. Miss Shropshire wore a becoming toilet of blue linen, and Miss Callaway wore an exquisite hand-embroidered lingerie gown. The guests were Misses Sarah Lee Evans, Maude Kirkpatrick, Adrienne Battey, Martha Duncan and her guest, Susie Hayes, of West Point, Ruth Northen, Virginia Ribble, Katherine Lovette, Mrs. Sanford Gay and Mrs. Luther Rosser, Jr.

Miss Wikle's Recital.

Miss Mabel Wikle, a pupil of Miss Evelyn Jackson, will give a piano recital at Miss Jackson's studio Tuesday evening at 8:30.

Bernhardt Calls the Tango an Abomination

Actress Talks on Americans and Their Ways

Thinks Rockefeller, Jr., Might Do a Great Work

Sailing, After Her Fifth Farewell Tour, the Tragedienne Makes Some Pointed Observations.

SARAH BERNHARDT, sixty-seven, who has made $170,000 profit from her tour of this country just ended.

Sarah Bernhardt, quee nof the stage, who is now on her way back to her native France after a series of appearnces in this country, gave before sailing her ideas on America and Americans in a piquant and instructive ways

Although sixty-seven, her popularity was attested here by the fact that thousands were unable to secure admission to the theaters where she played.

Here are a few of her observations:

"Since traveling in America I have greatly admired the honesty of Americans in the way they respect each other's property.

"In France, our homes and our windows are barricaded, and we nearly always have a watchdog and a loaded revolver close at hand. Our windows have iron shutters, while our doors have patent locks and chains.

"But what is more surprising than anything is the abandonment during hours and hours of bicycles, motorcycles and automobiles.

"This is very interesting and very curious. In our country they steal everything. I know, of course, that there are the famous 'Hands Up' bands, but even this has a certain romance attached to it which in no way resembles the petty thefts of some other countries.

"I have a great admiration for this American honesty.

Her Ideas on the Moving Picture.

"I am asked if I think moving pictures prejudice the interests of the theater and if it is my opinion that they will be still more popular?

"My very sincere opinion is that moving pictures are a rather ordinary and cheap demonstration of pictorial art associated with the dramatic art. The pictures are like indifferent stories illustrated by bad pictures. The show is amusing for five minutes, but in no way does it take the place of art.

"I think moving pictures will be very prosperous, but they will ever remain second class."

Asked her views on the latest dances, the Tango and the Turkey Trot, she said:

"These dances are abominable, revolting and improper. I can not understand how any one could permit such insanities to take place in their drawing rooms, yet not only do they permit them, but young girls of respectable families assemble together to learn those dances.

"The mothers are at fault. They should never permit such exhibitions. And why do they do it? They keep a young girl away from immoral surroundings, choose her books, hide from her newspapers reporting questionable divorces or passionate crimes.

"They keep a watch on her friendships, they do everything in the world to keep her mind from being sullied, yet they let her, not only see, but actually take part in, a spectacle which is, more than any other, stripped bare of all modesty and decency.

"I have heard particular people severely condemn the waltz when I was a girl. What would they say to-day?"

What Rockefeller, Jr., Might Do.

Of Rockefeller she said:

"Monsieur Rockefeller, Jr., thinks that even if one does try to protect poor girls there are many who would still become of questionable character through idleness.

"I do not agree with Monsieur Rockefeller, Jr. I really think that unhappiness and poverty drive many wretched girls to vice. But I am persuaded that, if means to earn a livelihood were procured for poor girls, all of them would joyfully accept work.

"And yet, one can not complain in America, for there are many less such women here than in France. Work is well rewarded, and the hours of work are ten times less heavy than in my country. Here the shops open late and close early. The girls in the stores take things easily; they chat among themselves and reply to customers when it suits them. In France the poor shopgirls are treated like slaves.

"Oh! if Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., could but find the right way to assist poor young girls as they venture out on life, humanity would not know how to thank him. But he will do nothing; neither he nor any other rich millionaire who lives in this country. They do a great many things, but not splendid humanitarian things; not grand actions of this sort."

The lack of taste displayed by some of our women called forth the following remarks:

"Really, I am sometimes amazed at the want of tact exhibited by some American women.

"At the opening of the Los Angeles opera, the public came in crowds to hear for the first time the delightful and great artist, Mary Garden.

"The women had arrayed themselves in their most beautiful gowns and literally covered themselves with jewels. So far there was no harm, for all society women all over the world, whether European, American or savage, love to appear in public with the best they have in gowns, jewels and feathers.

"One of the ladies, when getting out of her carriage, pulled up her dress very high to allow admiration to expend itself—not on her leg, but her stockings, upon which diamonds and pearls were embroidered.

"I really considered this most doubtful taste and vulgar. But it was still worse than that. The lady stopped, gathered her dress up carefully and held it with two fingers and remained so, posing before the photographers in profile, then full face and always with the toe advanced and the limb uncovered.

"I cast my eyes around to find her husband. I do not know if it was he who quietly stood behind her until the operation was finished, but I said to myself, In France, in Paris, that woman would have been hooted and jeered by the crowd witnessing the scene, and next day her husband would have had two or three duels on his hands for permitting it.

"Now, although Paris women are considered in America to have little prudery and to be barefaced, I declare that no society woman would ever have done such a thing as this.

"But perhaps this woman was not a society lady, but only a millionairess!"

DANIEL O'NEILL, a powerful, self-made man, forces his only daughter, Mary, into a loveless marriage with the impecunious and profligate Lord Raa, so that his ambition to have his descendants the rightful heirs of the one earldom in Ellam may be realized. Mary, a convent-raised young woman, whose happiness is supposed to follow her father's dictates, dares to hope that her loveless union with this ungodly man may be purged of all its sordidness by the sacred sacrament through which she and her husband have just passed. That this hope is unfounded the events of their first evening together soon prove to her. Shocked to discover his lordship to be a man of sordid, sensual passions, Lady Raa refuses utterly to have anything to do with her husband until such time as he can prove himself worthy of her love. During the honeymoon abroad Alma Lier, a divorcee who had been expelled from the convent Mary attended in Rome, attaches herself to the party, and makes the "honeymoon trip" a long series of slights and insults for Lady Raa.

At last Lady Raa becomes certain of the infidelity of her husband and of his misconduct with Alma Lier. On her return to London Mary encounters her old play-fellow, Martin Conrad, who has returned from his triumphant expedition to the Antarctic. Drawn into ever-closer relations with the only man for whose friendship she had ever cared, Mary finally awakes to the fact that she is hopelessly in love with Martin. Terrified by this knowledge, and finding herself more and more in love with Martin, she determines to run away from the cause of her distress, and go home.

Mary's home-coming to Castle Raa is a sad affair. Her husband fills the tumble-down old mansion with his fast friends from London, including Alma Lier, who assumes control of the household. Ultimately the illness of her father offers Mary excuse for escape from the intolerable environment. But before visiting her old home Mary appeals in turn to her Bishop and to he father's lawyer, only to be told that neither Church nor State can offer any relief from her false position. Eventually she consults Father Dan, telling him that she can no longer live with her unfaithful husband, but his counsel is that she cleave to the Church and give up Martin Conrad. She returns next day to Castle Raa to find that Martin is arriving for a farewell visit, and that by Alma Lier's deceitful scheming the whole house party has gone off for a few days' cruise.

During her three days alone with her lover Mary fights a grim battle with temptation, only to find on the last night that her faith in renunciation and the laws of the Church is a fragile thing compared with her overwhelming love for this pure-hearted man. With Martin's passionate words, "You are my real life, I am your real husband," ringing in her brain she forgets everything else, and with strong steps walks across the corridor to Martin's bedroom. This is the action which Martin has advised as being the only course open to them which is sure to bring the one result they are determined to attain—Mary's divorce from Lord Raa.

Mary determines, after the departure of Martin Conrad, to sink her identity in the whirlpool of London. She is driven by fear of Lord Raa's discovery of her unfaithfulness to him; she is equally afraid of the venomous tongue of Alma Lier. Mary books passage for Liverpool on the midnight "teamer, traveling in the steering to further guard her flight.

Alone in London.

AT eight o'clock next morning I was in the train leaving Liverpool for London. I had seleeted a second-class compartment labelled: "For Ladies," and my only traveling companion was a tall, fair woman, in a seal skin coat and a very large black hat. She had filled the carriage with the warm odor of eau-de-cologne and the racks on both sides with her luggage, which chiefly consisted of ladies' hat boxes of various shapes and sizes.

Hardly had we started when I realized that she was a very loquacious and expensive person.

Was I going all the way? Yes? Did I live in Liverpool? No? In London, perhaps? No? Probably I lived in the ountry? Yes? That was charming, the country being so lovely.

"Any friends in London?"

"No."

"None whatever?"

"None whatever."

"But won't you be lonely by yourself in London?"

"A little lonely, perhaps."

Being satisfied with what she had found out about me, my traveling companion (probably from the mere love of talking) told me something about herself.

She was a fashionable milliner and had a shop in the West End of London. Occasionally she made personal visits to the provinces to take orders from the leading shopkeepers, but during the season she found it more profitable to remain in town, where her connection was large, among people who could pay the highest prices.

By this time we had reached Crewe, and as there was some delay in getting into the station, my traveling companion put her head out of the window to inquire the cause.

"I see what it is," she said. "The shooting season is over, and the society people are coming down from the moors. I know lots and lots of them. They are my best customers—the gentlemen at all events."

"The gentlemen?"

"Why, yes," she said with a little laugh.

After some shunting our Liverpool carriages were coupled to the Scotch train and run into the station, where a number of gentlemen in knickerbockers and cloth caps were strolling about the platform.

My companion seemed to know them all, and gave them their names, generally their Christian names, and often their familiar ones.

She Dodges Her Husband's Friend.

Suddenly I had a shock. A tall man, whose figure I recognized, passed close by our carriage, and I had only time to conceal myself from observation behind the curtain of the window.

"Hello!" cried my companion. "There's Teddy Eastcliff. He married Camilla, the Russian dancer. They first met in my shop, I may tell you."

I was feeling hot and cold by turns, but a thick veil must have hidden my confusion, for after we left Crewe my companion, becoming still more confidential, talked for a long time about her aristocratic customers, and I caught a glimpse of a life that was on the verge of a kind of fashionable Bohemia.

More than once I recognized my husband's friends among the number of her clients, and trembling lest my husband himself should become a subject of discussion, I made the excuse of a headache to close my eyes and be silent.

My companion thereupon slept, very soundly and rather audibly, from Rugby to Willesden, where, awakening with a start while the tickets were being collected, she first powdered her face by her fashionglass, and then interested herself afresh in my own affairs.

"Did you say, my dear, that you have no friends in London?"

I repeated that I had none.

"Then you will go to a hotel, I suppose?"

I answered that I should have to look for something less expensive.

"In that case," she said, "I think I know something that will suit you exactly."

It was a quiet boarding establishment in Bloomsbury—comfortable house, reasonable terms, and, above all, perfectly respectable. In fact, it was kept by her own sister, and if I liked she would take me along in her cab and drop me at the door. Should she?

Looking back at that moment I cannot but wonder that after what I had heard I did not fear discovery. But during the silence of the last hour I had been feeling more than ever weak and helpless, so that when my companion offered me a shelter in that great, noisy, bewildering city in which I had intended to hide myself, but now feared I might be submerged and lost, with a willing, if not a cheerful heart, I accepted.

She Arrives at Her New Home.

Half an hour afterward our cab drew up in a street off Russell Square at a rather grimy looking house which stood at the corner of another and smaller square that was shut off by an iron railing.

The door was opened by a young waiter of 16 or 17 years, who was wearing a greasy dress suit and a solid shirt front.

My companion pushed into the hall, I followed her, and almost at the same moment a still larger and perhaps grosser woman than my friend, with the same features and complexion, came out of a room to the left with a serviette in her hand.

"Sophie!"

"Jane," cried my companion, and pointing to me she said, "I've brought you a new boarder."

Then followed a rapid account of where she had met me, who and what I was, and why I had come up to London.

"I've promised you'll take her in and not charge her too much, you know."

"Why, no, certainly not," said the sister.

At the next moment the boy waiter was bringing my trunk into the house on his shoulder, and my traveling companion was bidding me goodbye and saying she would look me up later.

When the door was closed I found the house full of the smell of hot food, chiefly roast beef and green vegetables, and I could hear the clink of knives and forks and the clatter of dishes in the room the landlady had come from.

The Grotesque Set of Fellow Boarders.

"You'd like to go to your bedroom at once, wouldn't you?" she said.

We went up two flights of stairs covered with rather dirty druggeting, along a corridor that had a thin strip of linoleum, and finally up a third flight that was bare to the boards, until we came to a room which seemed to be at the top of the house and situated in its remotest corner.

"I dare say this will do for the present," said the landlady, and though my heart was in my mouth I compelled myself to agree.

"My terms, including meals and all extras, will be a pound a week," she added, and to that also, with a lump in my throat, I assented, whereupon my landlady left me, saying lunch was just on, and I could come down stairs when I was ready.

A talkative, cockney chambermaid with a good little face brought me a fat, blue jug of hot water, and after I had washed and combed I found my way down to the dining room.

The company, who were of both sexes and chiefly elderly, seemed to me at that first sight to be dressed in every variety of out-of-date clothes, many of them rather shabby and some almost grotesque.

Raising their faces from their plates they looked at me as I entered, and I was so confused that I stood hesitating near the door until the landlady called to me.

"Come up here," she said, and when I had done so, and taken the seat by her side, which had evidently been reserved for me, she whispered, "I don't think my sister mentioned your name, my dear. What is it?"

I had no time to deliberate.

"O'Neill," I whispered back, and thereupon my landlady, raising her voice, and addressing the company as if they had been members of her family, said, "Mrs. O'Neill, my dears."

Then the ladies at the table inclined their heads at me and smiled, while the men (especially those who were the most strangely dressed) rose from their seats and bowed deeply.

The Missing Peeress.

OF all houses in London this, I thought, was the least suitable to me.

Looking down the table I told myself that it must be the very home of idle gossip and the hotbed of tittle-tattle.

I was wrong. Hardly had I been in the house when I realized that my fellow-guests were the most reserved and self-centered of all possible people.

One old gentleman who wore a heavy mustache, and had been a colonel in the Indian army, was understood to be a student of Biblical prophecy, having collected some thousands of texts which established the identity of the British nation with the lost tribe of Israel.

Another old gentleman, who wore a patriarchal beard and had taken "orders" without securing a living, was believed to be writing a history of the world, and (after forty years of continuous labor) to have reached the century before Christ.

An elderly lady with a benign expression was said to be a tragic actress who was studying in secret for a season at the National Theater.

Such, and of such kind, were my housemates, and I have since been told that every great city has many such groups of people, the great prophets, the great historians, the great authors, the great actors—those the world does not know, the odds and ends of humanity—thrown aside by the rushing river of life into the gulleyways that line its banks, the odd brothers, the odd sisters, the odd uncles, the odd aunts, for whom there is no place in the family, in society, or in the business of the world.

It was all very curious and pathetic, yet I should have been safe, for a time at all events, in this little corner of London into which chance had so strangely thrown me but for one unfortunate happening.

That was the arrival of the daily newspaper.

There was never more than a single copy. It came at 8 in the morning and was laid on the dining room mantelpiece, from which (by an unwritten law of the house) it was the duty as well as the honor of the person who had first finished breakfast to take it up and read the most startling part of the news to the rest of the company.

She Hears the Story of Her Disappearance.

Thus it occurred that on the third morning after my arrival I was startled by the voice of the old colonel who, standing back to the fire, with the newspaper in his hand, cried: "Mysterious disappearance of a peeress."

"Read it," said the old clergyman.

The teacup which I was raising to my mouth trembled in my hand, and when I set it down it rattled against the saucer. I knew what was coming, and it came.

The old Colonel read:

"A telegram from Blackwater announces the mysterious disappearance of the young wife of Lord Raa, which appears to have taken place late on Thursday night or in the early hours of Friday morning.

"It will be remembered that the missing lady was married a little more than a year ago, and her disappearance is the more unaccountable from the fact that during the past month she has been actively occupied in preparing for a fete in honor of her return home after a long and happy honeymoon.

"The pavilion in which the fete was to have been held had been erected on a headland between Castle Raa and a precipitous declivity to the sea, and the only reasonable conjecture is that the unhappy lady, going out on Thursday night to superintend the last preparations, lost her way in the darkness, and fell over the cliffs.

"The fact that the hostess was missing was not generally known in Ellan until the guests had begun to arrive for the reception on Friday evening, when the large assembly broke up in great confusion.

"Naturally much sympathy is felt for the grief stricken husband."

After the colonel had finished reading I had an almost irresistible impulse to scream, feeling sure that the moment my housemates looked into my face they must see that I was the person indicated.

They did not look, and after a chorus of exclamations ("Most mysterious!" "What can have become of her?" "On the eve of her fete, too!") they began to discuss the disappearance in general, each illustrating his point by reference to the subject of his own study.

It would take long to tell of the feverish days that followed—how newspaper correspondents were sent from London to Ellan to inquire into the circumstances of my disappearance; how the theory of accident gave place to the theory of suicide, and the theory of suicide to the theory of flight; how a porter on the pier at Blackwater said he had carried my trunk to the steamer that sailed on Thursday midnight, thinking I was a maid from the great house until I had given him half a crown (his proper fee being three pence); how two female passengers had declared that a person answering to my description had sailed with them to Liverpool; how these clews had been followed up and had led to nothing, and now, finally, the correspondents had concluded the whole incident of my disappearance could not be more mysterious if I had dropped from midair into the middle of the Irish Sea.

Reward of 500 Pounds Offered for Information.

But then came another development.

My father, who was reported to have received the news of my departure in a way that suggested that he had lost control of his senses (raging and storming at my husband like a man demented), having come to the sudden conclusion that I, being in a peculiarly sensitive condition, had received a serious shock resulting in a loss of memory, offered five hundred pounds reward for information that would lead to my discovery, which was not only desirable to allay the distress of my heart broken family but urgently necessary to settle important questions of title and inheritance.

With this offer of a reward came a description of my personal appearance.

"Age twenty; a little under the medium height; slight; very black hair; lustrous dark eyes; regular features; pale face; grave expression; unusually sunny smile."

It would be impossible for me to say with what perturbation I heard these reports read out by the old colonel and the old clergyman. Even the nervous stirring of my spoon and fork made me wonder that my housemates did not realize the truth, which must, I thought, be plainly evident to all eyes.

They never did, being so utterly immersed in their own theories, but all the same I sometimes felt as if my fellow guests in that dingy house in Bloomsbury were my judges and jury, and more than once, in my great agitation, when the reports came near to the truth, I wanted to say, "Stop, stop, don't you see it is I?"

That I never did so was due to the fact that not knowing what legal powers my father would have had to compel my return to Ellan, the terror that sat on me like a nightmare was that of being made the subject of a public quarrel between my father and my husband, concerning the legitimacy of my unborn child, with the shame and disgrace which that would bring not only upon me but upon Martin.

I had some reason for this fear.

After my father's offer of a reward there came various spiteful paragraphs (inspired, as I thought, by Alma, and written by the clumsier hand of my husband) saying it was reported in Ellan that if my disappearance was to be accounted for on the basis of flight, the only "shock" I could have experienced must be a shock of conscience, rumor having for some time associated my name with that of a person who was not unknown in connection with Antarctic exploration.

It was terrible.

After awhile I realized that not only my housemates, but all London, was discussing my disappearance.

It was a rule of our boarding house that during certain hours of every day everybody should go out as if he had business to go to, and having nothing else to do, I used to walk up and down the streets. In doing so I was compelled to pass certain news venders' stalls, and I saw for several days that nearly every placard had something about "the missing peeress."

When this occurred I would walk quickly along the thoroughfare with a sense of being pursued and the feeling which a nervous woman has when she is going down a dark corridor at night—that noiseless footsteps are coming behind, and a hand may at any moment be laid on her shoulder.

But nobody troubled me in the streets, and the only person in our boarding house who seemed to suspect me was our landlady. She said nothing, but when my lip was quivering to the old colonel read that cruel word about Martin, I caught her little gray eyes looking aslant at me.

One afternoon, her sister, the milliner, came to see me according to her promise, and thought she, too, said nothing, I saw that while the old colonel and the old clergyman were disputing on the hearth rug about some disappearance which occurred thousands of years ago, she was looking fixedly at the fingers with which, in my nervousness, I was ruckling up the discolored chintz in my chair.

Then in a moment—I don't know why—it flashed upon me that my traveling companion was in correspondence with my father.

That idea became so insistent toward dinner time that I made pretense of being ill (which was not very difficult) to retire to my room, where the cockney chambermaid wrung handkerchiefs out of vinegar and laid them on my forehead to relieve my headache—though she increased it, poor thing, by talking perpetually.

Next morning my landlady came up to say that if, as she assumed from my name, I was Irish and a Catholic, I might like to receive a visit from a Sister of Mercy who called to the house at intervals to attend to the sick.

I thought I saw in a moment that this was a subterfuge, but feeling that my identity was suspected, I dare not give cause for further suspicion, so I compelled myself to agree.

A few minutes later, having got up and dressed, I was standing with my back to the window, feeling like one who would soon have to face an attack, when a soft footstep came up my corridor and a gentle hand knocked at my door.

"Come in," I cried, trembling like the last leaf at the end of a swinging bough.

And then an astonishing thing happened.

A young woman stepped quietly into the room and closed the door behind her. She was wearing the blue and white habit of the Little Sisters of the Poor, but I knew her long, pale, pain-featured face in an instant.

A flood of shame and at the same time a flood of joy swept over me at the sight of her.

It was Mildred Bankes.

Identified.

"MARY," said Mildred, "speak low and tell me everything."

She sat in my chair, I knelt by her side, took one of her hands in both of mine, and told her.

I told her that I had fled from my husband's house because I could not bear to remain there any longer.

I told her that my father had married me against my will, in spite of my protests, when I was a child, and did not know that I had any right to resist him.

I told her that my father—God forgive me if I did him a wrong—did not love me, that he had sacrificed my happiness to his lust of power, and that if he were searching for me now it was only because my absence disturbed his plans and hurt his pride.

I told her that my husband did not love me either, and that he had married me from the basest motives, merely to pay his debts and secure an income.

I told her, too, that not only did my husband not love me, but he loved somebody else, that he had been cruel and brutal to me, and therefore (for these and other reasons) I could not return to him under any circumstances.

While I was speaking I felt Mildred's hand twitching betwen mine, and when I had finished she said, "But, my dear child, they told me your friends were broken-hearted about you; that you had lost your memory and perhaps your reason, and therefore it would be a good act to help them to send you home."

"It's not true, it's not true," I said.

She Told Me How She Came To Be There.

And then in a low voice, as if afraid of being overheard, she told me how she came to be there—that the woman who had traveled with me in the train from Liverpool, seeing my father's offer of a reward, had written to him to say that she knew where I was and only needed somebody to establish my identity; that my father wished to come to London for this purpose, but had been forbidden by his doctor; that our parish priest, Father Donovan, had volunteered to come instead but had been prohibited by his bishop, and finally that my father had written to his lawyers in London, and Father Dan to her, knowing that she and I had been together at the Sacred Heart in Rome, and that it was her work now to look after lost ones and send them safely back to their people.

"And now the lawyer and the doctors are downstairs," she said in a whisper, "and they are only waiting for me to say who you are that they may apply for an order to send you home."

This terrified me so much that I made a fervent appeal to Mildred to save me.

"Oh, Mildred, save me, save me," I cried.

"But how can I? How can I?" she asked.

I saw what she meant, and thinking to touch her still more deeply I told her the rest of my story.

I told her that if I had fled from my husband's house it was not merely because he had been cruel and brutal to me, but because, I too, loved somebody else—somebody who was far away but was coming back, and there was nothing I could not bear for him in the meantime, no pain or suffering or loneliness, and when he returned he would protect me from every danger, and we should love each other eternally.

Mary O'Neill, the heroine of this great story. In "The Woman Thou Gavest Me" is contained the true story of Mary O'Neill, told by herself and written from her memoranda. Forced into a loveless marriage with the profligate Lord Raa, Mary is despondent and later terrified to find that she has fallen desperately in love with an old play-fellow. Read how she fights against temptation, only to be overcome with her overwhelming love for this man. This is the story you have been hearing about and the one that has created such a sensation throughout the country. Mr. Caine has not minced words in discussing the true-to-life situations that continually occur in his novel, but paints word-pictures of living truths that drive their lessons home.

"I passed through the streets stunned, stupefied, feeling as if I were running away from some malignant curse, the newsmen pursuing me, darting out from every street crying "Paper—third e'shen—loss of the Schosha!"

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

WE must go & call on the Sternbecks tonite, sed Ma. You know how much I think of Missus Sternbeck. She is a deer littel lady, Ma sed, eeven if her taste in dress is a littel wobbly. I know you will not not the kind of a man to worship like her husband, beekaus you are welth, sed Ma, & that is about all Mister Sternbeck has. He is worth a hogs-hed of munny. He cud buy the Panama canal after it is finished, Ma sed, & make a private pickrel pond out of it.

I wish we dident have to go, Pa sed. I hate to set & listen to sum fat rich man telling how he started on a shoe string & beecaim the coupon-clipping kid. I have offen had to set & hear that kind of guff, Pa sed, wen all I had in my pocket was a hard, thin dollar. Isent thare sum way we cud git out of all this visiting rich folks?

I wuddent think of disappointing Missus Sternbeck tonite, sed Ma. So we went.

A Fine Home.

The Sternbecks live in a very fine hoam It is a lot bigger than our flat, but it isent so nice looking, thare is too much furniture in it & gold fraims, etc. I toald Ma that & she sed I shud be vary careful what I sed. Missus Sternbeck was a deer littel lady, like Ma sed, but Mister Sternbeck was fat & common. He started rite in telling how much wine he had in his wine cellar. I marked down all the amounts in a littel book & wen he saw me doing it he asked me why I was marking down the prices he menshuned. I toald him that wen he got all thru I was going to add the figgers up & find out how much munny it wud cost me to keep house wen I got to be a self made man. Then everybody laffed excep him.

I cud see that Pa had an awful grouch on, beekaus he grinned all the time the way he grins at me wen he stands neer the door with a slipper & says "Bobbie, see here a minnit." But the rest of the peepul thot he seemd to be having a good time.

We had a very fine dinner & after the dinner Missus Sternbeck & Ma started to look at sum fashun magazeens & us men went into the smoking room.

Here are some very expensive cigars, sed Mister Sternbeck. Thay cost me one thousand dollars a thousand. I am glad yure littel son doesnt smoak, he sed. It wud seem a shaim to waste a dollar cigar on him. Try one of these, he sed to Pa. Stiuk one in yure pocket for later in the eevning, he sed. Or if you wud prefer cigarettes, I have sum choice Turkish cigarettes. They cost me one hundred dollars a hundred boxes, he sed.

Wile I was putting down the amounts in my littel book Pa & Mistern Sternbeck started to play a gaim of bilyards & smoak. This is a fine tabel, sed Mister Sternbeck. It cost me one thousand dollars & Willie Hoope played on it onst & sed it was one of the best tabels on wich he had evver played. Isent that a fine cue you are using? he asked Pa. It is, sed Pa. I cud see that Pa was gitting colder & colder all the time to thaw out, but after awile he did, you get.

Try sum of this Rhine wine, sed Mister Sternbeck. It is very rare. It cost me twenty dollars a quart. Smack yure lips over a glass of it, he sed. Pa drank sum & he did smack his lips. Have another, sed Mister Sternbeck. Expense is nothing to me when I entertain.

Pa Starts In.

So Pa had a other drink & a other, & then he sed How noabel is welth. How I admire a man wich can, by the sheer force of his geenyus, carve a career to Welth & Prosperity. Long may you live & wax wealthier, good friend Sternbeck, sed Pa. If thare is ever anything I can do for you, call me up or wire me & I will be glad to fly to yure aid. Doant hesitate to call on me, Pa sed. I wud do anything for you.

Then thay had two more glasses of wine & Pa sed Well, well, I can't seem to maik a singel shot, but I am proud to be beat by a scholar & a gentelman like you. Hevings bless you & all yure honestly ac-quired welth, sed Pa. I wish you was worth abilyun, sed Pa. I wish you the saim, sed Mister Sternbeck.

On the way hoam Pa kep telling Ma what a noble man Mister Sternbeck was. Thare is one man in a milyun, sed Pa.

I guess munny talks, all rite, & rhine wine, too.

A Difference.

"Say," remarked Harry, "how d'ye teach a gurl t' swim?"

"O-oh, that's easy!" replied his chum. "You take her vurry gently down t' the water; an' you put an arm aroun' her waist; an' you whisper: 'De-ar, don't be fri——'"

"Come off yer perch! It's my sister!"

"Oh, yer sister! Shove 'er in!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

How to Have and Keep a Clear Complexion, Told by Isabell D'Armond

By LILIAN LAUFERTY.

HAVE you begun to wonder what has become of the girl who is petite and dainty and sweet, who is not an undulating giantess of snaky figure, but who represents lovely girlhood of the kind that has charmed the world for ages?

Be of good cheer. "Girl—real girl" exists in spite of all the cut-off-the-same pattern evidence to the contrary. She exists, for I have seen and talked to her. Isabell D'Armond—one of B. F. Keith's charming Lights o' Vaudeville, and who is well known in Atlanta, having appeared on several occasion at the Forsyth—is petite and dainty and sweet, and very, very clever—clever enough to understand her type and not depart therefrom, and sweet enough to flit through your brain to the tune of the dear old refrain:

"Dainty little dimpled darling,
Fairer than the new-blown rose,
Pure and modest as the buds of spring-time,
Sweetest flower that blows;
Laughter like the softest music,
Roguish, smiling eyes of blue—
Ah, to know you is to love you, sweet-heart,
Dainty little ingenue."

All of which applies to dainty Miss D'Armond except that her eyes are softly brown with the pure blue-whites that betoken clean, sane, good health.

A Clear Skin.

Even under the make-up, Miss D'Armond's skin showed clear and blemishless; her facial contours were firm and rounded, with no sagging lines at chin or throat or eyes. No athlete in the prime of condition ever had firmer flesh and more satiny skin. And this is not the result of chance, for Miss D'Armond knows just how to achieve these results.

"I do not believe in soap or even water for the face," said she. "Water makes wrinkles, especially when its use is followed by that of a linen or damask towel. I use a bath towel to dry my face when I wash it once a week. Are you shocked at that? Please don't be, for I am sure I keep my face clean! Cold cream and plenty of it—that is my means for cleansing and keeping the flesh firm; and then I always rub up—up under the chin, up from the sagging wrinkles that like to cut a path from nostril to lip corners, and up under the eyes with light strokes. Cold cream packed firmly under the eyes at night keeps away the tiny network of wrinkles that it is so hard to avoid. And tiny strips of court-plaster at the outer corners of the eyes and across the furrows that come between the eyes smooth them out.

"And now, listen to the party I have with myself once a week: On Sundays, generally, I wash my face, and it is quite a process, for only on one day of the week do I use water on my face. First a good washing with warm water and castile soap, then a thorough steaming, followed by a witch hazel rub, next a dash or two of cold water, and finally my old friend, cold cream, again."

With Miss D'Armond's firm, satiny skin and clear facial contours to recommend her treatment, I add my indorsement for her theory; and if the girl whose face is too fat, or whose skin shows a tendency to sag or wrinkle, will try it, surely she will bless pretty Isabell D'Armond, as double chins and sallow skin vanish and clear skin and firm flesh take their place.

Our Girls Prettiest.

"You go abroad so much," said I, "with a London season only a few weeks ahead, tell me just how you think our girls compare with those of other countries, won't you?"

"Oh, American girls are the prettiest of all," said this dainty American with the glowing enthusiasm she brings to whatever demands her attention. "American girls are well groomed, well bred and have a fine outdoor swing when they walk—that is, if they walk naturally and not just a la mode. But fat does threaten us—sweets and comfort and petting and pampering do that. I am very careful about not getting fat—and I take simple precautions besides plenty of exercise in the walking line.

"Let me tell you about my anti-fat methods—a glass of hot water the first thing on getting up in the morning and then a simple breakfast beginning with acid fruit. Plenty of hot water and acid fruit keep the system clean and sweet. No potatoes, no bread—though unbuttered toast is harmless—few sweets, no fats and no water at meals—that is a diet that it is not a hardship to endure. And then always stand after meals. That is not a fad—it is a fact in the thinning process. I am not recommending anything that I have not tried out myself, and I am glad to help any girl who is determined not to be a victim of the 'white woman's burden'—fat."

The great brown eyes looked at me earnestly, the merry mouth was ready to tremble into its infectious little crooked smile—one of the gayest, most heart-reaching smiles imaginable—and suddenly one of dainty Isabell D'Armond's greatest beauty secrets revealed itself to me; it is this—her unselfish interest in all that goes on around her—her genuine admiration of other women, her sweet, sane oneness with all of life.

Up-to-Date Jokes

A certain witty judge was trying a case recently where a dealer sued a steamship company for the loss of some pigs in a fire on board a cross channel boat. It came out in evidence that the steamer had a large deckload, and here the damage was greatest.

The judge thus began his charge to the jury:

"Gentlemen, to put those pigs on deck was a rash act, but to fry them was a rasher."

.:. Some Don'ts for Girls .:.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DON'T compare the criticisms of your parents with the compliments paid you by a young man to the detriment of the former. The criticisms are at least based on sincerity.

Don't regard every compliment paid you as a reason why you should have your photograph taken. Frequent visits to a photographer are signs of a vain mind.

Don't seek information from a dream book. No one expects much from the girl who seeks information from a dream book instead of from an encyclopedia.

Don't get the prevalent notion that the young man who spends a month's salary in giving you a good time thinks more of you than the man who refuses to spend a week's. The latter loves more sanely.

Don't overlook the importance of a love affair with your father. That is the best investment in the love of man that any girl can make.

Don't forget that mother is a human being, and sometimes gets tired.

Don't feel the third time a young man has called on you that it is time for you to take possession and demand that he account for the evenings he spent somewhere else.

Don't accept attentions from the wrong kind of a man, excusing yourself because they mean nothing and are trivial. Remember that the girl who walks only as far as the corner with the wrong kind of man will meet every one she knows on the way.

Don't resent the desire of your parents to know something of the young man who calls on you. They fail in their duty to you if they lack this desire, or fail to act upon it.

Don't give your heart to a man who refers to his parents as "the old lady" and "the old man."

Don't ever outgrow the habit of your childhood of telling your mother when you get home all that happened at the party. It is more important that you tell her what happens now you are grown than that you told her when you were little.

Don't forget, if you have a little, that you have more than your parents had in their youth, and that they have struggled every day since you came into the world with that unselfish ambition in view.

Quite So.

"What became of that little kitten you had?" inquired the visitor of the small boy of the house.

"Why, haven't you heard?"

"No; was it drowned?"

"No."

"Lost?"

"No."

"Poisoned?"

"No."

"Did you give it away?"

"No."

"Then whatever did become of it?"

"It growed up into a cat."

But, with a movement of great swiftness Garson got in front of her and barred her going. For a few seconds the two stared at each other searchingly as if learning new and strange things, each of the other. In the girl's expression was an outraged wonder and a great terror. In the man's was a half-shamed pride, as if he exulted in the strength with which he had been able to maintain his will against her supreme effort to overthrow it.

"You can't go," Garson said sharply. "You might be caught."

"And if I were," Mary demanded in a flash of indignation, "do you think I'd tell?"

There came an abrupt change in the hard face of the man. Into the piercing eyes flamed a softer fire of tenderness. The firm mouth grew strangely gentle as he replied, and his voice was overtoned with faith.

"Of course not, Mary," he said. "I know you. You would go up for life first."

Then again his expression became resolute, and he spoke imperiously.

"Just the same, you can't take any chances. We'll all get away in a minute, and you'll come with us." He turned to the men and spoke with swift authority.

"Come," he said to Dacey, "you get to the light switch there by the hall door. If you hear me snap my fingers turn 'em off. Understand?"

Went to His Station.

With instant obedience the man addressed went to his station by the hall door, and stood ready to control the electric current.

The distracted girl essayed one last plea. The momentary softening of Garson had given her new courage.

"Joe, don't do this."

"You can't stop it now, Mary," came the brisk retort. "Too late. You're only wasting time, making it dangerous for all of us."

Again he gave his attention to carrying on the robbery.

"Red," he ordered, "you go to that door." He pointed to the one that gave on the passageway against which he had set the chair tilted. As the man obeyed Garson gave further instructions.

"If any one comes in that way get him quick. You understand? Don't let him cry out."

Chicago Red grinned with cheerful acceptance of the issue in such an encounter. He held up his huge hand widely open.

"Not a chance," he declared, proudly, "with that over his mug." To avoid possible interruption of his movements in an emergency he removed the chair Garson had placed and set it to one side, out of the way.

"Now, let's get to work," Garson continued eagerly.

Mary spoke with the bitterness of defeat.

"Listen, Joe! If you do this I'm through with you. I quit."

Garson was undismayed by the threat.

"'If this goes through,' he countered, 'we'll all quit. That's why I'm doing it. I'm sick of the game.'"

He turned to the work in hand with increased energy.

"Come, you, Griggs and Red, and push that desk down a bit so that I can stand on it." The two men bent to the task heedless of Mary's frantic protest.

"No! no! no! no! no! Joe!"

Red, however, suddenly straightened from the desk and stood motionless, listening. He made a slight hissing noise that arrested the attention of the others and held them in moveless silence.

"I hear something," he whispered. He went to the keyhole of the door leading into the passage. Then he whispered again, "And it's coming this way."

At the words Garson snapped his fingers. The room was plunged in darkness.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Noiseless Death.

There was absolute silence in the library after the turning of the switch that brought the pall of darkness. Long seconds passed, then a little noise—the knob of the passage door turning. As the door swung open there came a gasping breath from Mary, for she saw framed in the faint light that came from the single burner in the corridor the slender form of her husband, Dick Gilder. In the next instant he had stepped within the room and pulled to the door behind him. And in that same instant Chicago Red had pounced on his victim, the huge hand clapped tight over the young man's mouth. Even as his powerful arm held the newcomer in an inescapable embrace there came a sound of scuffling feet and that was all. Finally the big man's voice came triumphantly.

"I've got him."

"It's Dick!" The cry came as a wail of despair from the girl.

THE TRIPLE TIE

A Story for Baseball Fans That Will Interest Every Lover of the National Game

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"I've simply got to," replied Farrell. "Chance got a telegram from Long Tom Morrissey saying that Kelly had Cobb and Speaker and all the others beaten to death. I rushed a man down there to buy him, but you see he's up against it. Chance says we've got to have him, so I'm going down to get him; that's all. Say," he exclaimed suddenly, "What's the matter with your going down there with me? You could help a lot."

"Maybe I'd better go with you. The American League must have that fellow," replied Johnson, after a thoughtful pause. "What time can we get a train?"

Johnson and Farrell boarded the Seaboard Fast Mail that pulled out of the Pennsylvania Terminal at half after midnight and the first persons they bumped into were President James R. McAleer and Vice President John I. Taylor, of the Boston American League club, owners of the Red Sox, champions of the world. Taylor broke into a hearty laugh.

"Lemme see your ticket," he said to Farrell and Johnson.

"Lemme see yours," replied Farrell.

They produced long strips of green paper for mutual inspection, and there was another hearty laugh all around.

"Atlanta, eh? I thought so," said Taylor. "You must mean business, Frank, to take Ban along with you."

"Oh, I don't know, John, I see you're going along with Mac to make sure of this fellow, Gordon Kelly," retorted the New Yorker.

"I received a telegram a yard long from Patsy Donovan this noon," said McAleer, "and I decided that if we wanted this fellow we better take the bull by the horns, so I phoned John and asked him to go to Atlanta with me, and here we are. Say, there's going to be some fun down there, by the looks of things."

Whole City Excited.

When the party reached Atlanta they found the city in the greatest state of excitement over the impending baseball deal which involved Gordon Kelly. The newspapers were full of news concerning the arrival of the magnates. There were long interviews with the big club owners from the North. The magnates would say little in regard to Kelly, beyond the statement that they had heard he was a fine ball player, and they would not acknowledge they were in Atlanta for the purpose of buying his release from the Atlanta club. They were willing to talk on general baseball topics, however. The gathering of the magnates took on the aspect of a great political convention and the newspapers handled it that way. Columns and columns of space were devoted to it.

By noon that day fifteen out of the sixteen big league clubs were represented in the persons of their presidents and Atlanta became, politically, the baseball center of the world.

As yet no definite move had been made by any of the club owners to bring the Gordon Kelly matter to a show down with the officials of the Atlanta club. The affair had assumed such an importance that each visiting magnate hesitated about making the first approach. President Johnson, of the American League, of whom no more clever baseball diplomat exists, sized the situation correctly before he had been in Atlanta three hours. He thought it all out in his room in his hotel and then brought his fist down on the table with a bang.

"The American League positively must land Gordon Kelly," he said aloud, although no one was with him in his room. "It's got to be done and I'm going to do it."

CHAPTER XVI.

AUGUST HERRMANN, President of the Cincinnati National League Baseball Club, and chairman of the National Commission, the "Supreme Court of Baseball," was the first of the magnates to make a determined effort to buy the release of Gordon Kelly from the Atlanta Club. He sought and obtained a personal conference with President Callaway of the Atlanta Club and got right down to business without wasting words. He explained that in his capacity as President of the Cincinnati Club he had come to Atlanta to make an offer for Kelly's services, that he understood that previous offers had been of a more or less vague sort, and wound up by making a flat proposition to buy Kelly's release for $15,000 cash.

"But, Mr. Herrmann," expostulated Callaway, "the Atlanta Club does not want to dispose of Gordon Kelly. We all appreciate the significance of all you owners of the big clubs coming to Atlanta at this time, but we really don't care to talk business."

To this Herrmann replied:

"Speaking now as chairman of the National Commission, I would say that one of the fundamental rules of the commission is that a ball player must be allowed to improve his condition when ever the opportunity presents itself. The Southern League is hampered by a salary limit, while there is no limit to the salary a major league club may pay a player. There is nothing in the laws of the State or nation that can compel you to dispose of Kelly's services, but the Atlanta Club, which could not exist as a financial proposition except for organized baseball, owes it to baseball that this player's services should be disposed of to some major league club. The Cincinnati Club may not be the successful bidder, but the facts remain the same."

"This puts the Atlanta Club in a very embarrassing position. Mr. Herrmann," returned Callaway, "and without accepting or rejecting your offer I must call a meeting of our directors and take a vote on the matter."

Before the directors could get together, however, several other magnates called on the Atlanta Club's President, or had him on the telephone, the result being that within half an hour an offer of $25,000 cash was made by one of them.

The directors of the club were in session a full hour, after which President Callaway announced that the Atlanta Club, while disposed to reject all offers, felt the necessity, aside from all financial considerations, of living up to the obligations of organized baseball and that, such being the case, they would 'sell Gordon Kelly's release' to the best advantage of the stockholders of the club.

There was general rejoicing among the magnates over this declaration and corresponding gloom among the "fans" of Atlanta, who were promptly informed of the decision through "extras" issued by the afternoon newspapers. The moguls were about to gird on their armor to renew the battle for Gordon Kelly, when Callaway suggested that all business be put aside for the moment in order that all hands might attend the game at Ponce DeLeon Park and see the player who had set the baseball world on fire.

It had been raining most of the night before and part of the morning. The afternoon was dark and murky and the conditions were very unfavorable for a ball game. What with the dreary, dun-colored clouds trailing their dim regiments overhead, the drearier rain soaking the field into a swamp and the ghoulish-looking players ranting around in the mud like a squad of Kirulfy's high kickers, the spectacle was anything but edifying to the assembled crowd. But any sort of a day was good enough to see Gordon Kelly play and there was a surprisingly large crowd on hand when the game began.

The game itself was not calculated to promulgate heart disease. Gordon Kelly had no opportunity to distinguish himself in the field. One very easy fly ball was all that came in his direction. At bat, however, he knocked out two singles and a three-bagger, but attempted no base stealing, as the condition of the diamond made it dangerous.

That evening the visiting magnates were dined at the gorgeous Capital City Club by the directors of the Atlanta Baseball Club. After the solids were disposed of Herrmann, of Cincinnati, arose and after apologizing for intruding business on pleasure, remarked that he, for one, must hurry back to his home on an urgent matter and suggested that the matter of Gordon Kelly be settled then and for all.

At that President Johnson of the American League called his club owners to a corner of the room and addressed a few earnest remarks to them. It quickly developed that the price already offered for Gordon Kelly was as high as most of them cared to go. It was something unprecedented in the history of baseball that a player who had been in the game only a few days should command such a figure, and many of the club Presidents were already alarmed at the turn affairs had taken.

$250 in Prizes for Best Solution of "The Triple Tie"

YOU read the first fourteen installments of the great baseball mystery story of "The Triple Tie" and now you have a fair idea of the simplicity of the offer The Georgian makes—how you may win $100 by working out the solution of the mystery as nearly as its author, A. H. C. Mitchell, has done as you can.

Mr. Mitchell has written the last chapter, but his copy is sealed up in a vault at the American National Bank. When all but this final chapter has been printed, The Georgian readers will be asked to submit to three competent judges, none of them connected with this newspaper, their version of what the grand denouement should be.

To the person who most closely approximates Mr. Mitchell's final chapter $100 will be awarded. Other prizes, making the total prize list $250, also will be distributed.

Here is the list of the awards:

No. 1	$100
No. 2	$50
No. 3	$25
No. 4	$15
Nos. 5 to 16, each	5

Read the fifteenth installment of the great mystery story and you will not need to be urged to read the succeeding chapters. The story will grip you. As you read, try to follow the author's channel of thought and when the time comes for you to sit down and write that final chapter, be ready to win one of the big cash prizes in The Georgian's great offer.

QUAKER HERB EXTRACT DOES THE WORK

Mrs. R. T. Bartlett, of Lakewood Heights, Was Immediately Relieved of Acute Indigestion

My kind friends, there is a cure for indigestion or sour bloating stomach, not something that you have to take after or before you eat as long as you live, but a remedy that cleanses and heals that mucous lining, puts the stomach and bowels in good, healthy condition, builds up the entire system so you don't have to keep suffering with that misery. Quaker Herb Extract is a complete cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness or any form of stomach trouble, it will cure catarrh in any form, rheumatism, liver, kidney or bladder troubles.

Here is a report of a lady, Mrs. R. T. Bartlett, who resides at Lakewood Heights, Route No. 2, Box 144, was troubled with Acute Indigestion: "No matter what I ate seemed gas would form from it, causing me much misery. This gas would cause my stomach to bloat, my heart to palpitate, my breath to get short and would give me dizzy spells. It seemed my food would not digest properly, causing me distress. I used doctors' treatments and different kinds of medicines, but nothing helped me. I seemed to be getting worse, and, as I realized something had to be done, I concluded to try once more, and therefore, I called at Coursey & Munn's Drug Store for a treatment of Quaker, which was six bottles. I simply can not tell how quickly this great remedy helped me. People will not believe it if I tell them, but it is so. I eat heartily without any stomach distress following. I simply beg and hope that any and all persons who might be suffering like I did, to at least try the wonderful Quaker Herb Extract." $1.00 per bottle, three for $2.50, or six for $5.00. Oil of Balm, 25c, or five for $1.00. Call to-day at Coursey & Munn's Drug Store, 29 Marietta Street, and obtain these wonderful Quaker Herb Remedies. We prepay express charges on all orders of $3.00 or over.

FINE REMEDY FOR ECZEMA

Also for Salt Rheum, Tetter, Psoriasis, Lupus, and All Skin Afflictions.

Even a Microscope Won't Find a Blemish After S. S. S. Gets Through.

All skin troubles should be attacked from within by giving the blood circulation a good daily bath. This is accomplished with S. S. S., the best known and most highly recommended blood purifier ever discovered. Its action is very rapid. Its vegetable nature is such that it naturally goes right into the blood, saturates the entire circulation, bathes the tissues with an influence that enables the skin to heal quickly. The action of S. S. S. is that of an antidote, and this fact has been demonstrated time and time again in the most severe forms of weeping eczema.

Its influence in the tissues where the tiny arteries transfer the red blood for the worn-out blood to the veins is quite remarkable and goes on constantly with every tick of the clock—the beat of the heart.

And new skin is thus caused to form, while the germs of irritating influences that cause eczema are scattered and their harmful nature entirely suspended.

S. S. S. has a wonderful tonic influence in the blood because it contains no "dope," is not a "physic," is entirely free of any mineral drugs or any other drugs except the remarkable medicinal effect of the pure vegetable products of which it is made.

Few people realize how harmful are many of the strong, crude ointments that used to be in favor before they learned that S. S. S. is safe, speedy and sure. Ask at any drug store for a bottle of S. S. S. Give it a good trial and you will soon see a decided improvement in any form of skin trouble. Write to The Swift Specific Co., 137 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for special free advice on eczema and any other form of skin or blood trouble.

NEW BATTERY MEN COMING FOR CRACKERS

By Percy H. Whiting.

THE Crackers are going to have some new battery men within the next few days. Deals are considered, pending, hanging fire or otherwise in the air for Catcher Roth of Louisville, and Pitcher Robertson, of Savannah, while Pitcher Conzelman, of the Pittsburg club, was purchased yesterday.

A real shake-up in the battery department is threatened. The fact that a new catcher is sought seems to sound the doom of Catcher Joe Dunn. Catcher Chapman is making good all right and Dunn's work has fallen a bit short of perfection at times, though at that he has proved to be a satisfactory second catcher.

The Robertson deal has not progressed very far, but the local club is decidedly interested. Robertson has been in Savannah for several years. Owing to his comparatively small size he has been overlooked by big league scouts, despite his excellent showing.

Under ordinary circumstances Savannah would not be keen to sell in midseason a pitcher of the ability of Robertson. It happens, however, that the Savannah club has got the Sally League pennant and gone with it so absolutely that it is a fright. In consequence the Savannah club would not in the least mind letting a couple of men go. That might slow down their club a little and make it more interesting.

Jim Fox tipped the local club off to Robertson.

"I think," Jim told Director Gus Ryan, "that this man can win two-thirds of his games for you. He's a pitcher like Russ Ford was in his best days, with all of Ford's speed and a spitter that is about as good. I don't believe he will ever go to the big leagues. He isn't big enough. But he's big enough to win in the Southern League—or I don't know the league."

THE fact that booze and baseball don't mix for beans is being exemplified again right here in Atlanta. We had some high old booze boxers when the season started. They're about gone now. The rest are going.

It might be libelous to go into particulars about the various men—but it would be illuminating.

Incidentally don't put two and two together and infer that Joe Dunn will leave, if he does, for any such reason. Joe's habits are perfection and if he is ever dropped it will be because advancing age and weight have begun to slow him down.

THIS Southern League is an especially bad one for the boozers. Owing to the extreme heat and the strenuous schedule a boozer burns right out. He doesn't have to cultivate any thirst down here. It comes easy. Of course the more he drinks the more he wants. And the hotter it gets the worse his condition.

IT has long been an opinion of mine that a lot of the players who "couldn't stand the heat" down in the Southern League were men who couldn't stand the combination of "heat and booze." They have come to the Southern, played ball, fought booze, burned out and returned home. Of course the real truth didn't suit them. So they told about the "fever" in the South.

A lot of the "fever" comes out of bottles.

THE boozers are passing from baseball. The managers will not fool with them. They ruin themselves and they ruin a club.

One or two joy riders put the Crackers on the blink last year. Players who would ordinarily have drunk little or not at all were led to saloons by older and thirstier players. And you know what happened.

Bill Smith hasn't a bit of patience with drunkards. Bill doesn't mind licking up a bit of beer now and then after a game but he is always stronger than the drink and was never known to go to excess with it.

Being able to master the stuff himself Smith has no earthly patience with the boozers. He is out to win a pennant. Anything that stands in the way must go. He knows that a hard drinker on the club means ruin to his pennant chances.

THE temperance societies ought to get up a list of the marvelous players whose baseball careers have been wrecked by booze. It would be highly illuminating. It would help the cause, too.

College baseball has helped the cause of temperance a good bit. Boys who might have taken too much have been kept away by the desire to "make the team." In fact, college athletics of all sorts have done more to keep young college men away from drink than all the tracts ever printed.

BENYON WINS ENGLISH BANTAMWEIGHT CROWN

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 3.—Bill Benyon was substituted for Eddie Morgan, the champion of Wales, at the last moment last night and won the English bantamweight championship from Digger Stanley in twenty rounds at the National Sporting Club. Benyon won on the referee's decision. The bout was for $2,500 and the Lord Lonsdale belt.

EDDIE CLABBY IN GREAT FINISH AGAINST DENNY

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—Eddie Clabby, of Hammond, brother of Jimmy, after being almost knocked out in the fourth round, came back and made a sensational fighting finish, punching Young Denny all over the ring. Clabby was outweighed, but Denny showed a remarkable boxing ability.

Youth Takes Things So Lightly

OLD JINX AGAIN BREAKS LOOSE IN CAMP OF VOLS

NASHVILLE, TENN, June 3.—The old jinx which had apparently fallen out with the Vols, all of a sudden bustled into camp, kicked over the big keg of horseshoes, trampled all over the four-leaf clover bed and announced its arrival by laying out Eddie Noyes and Judson Harmon Daley from the line-up.

It came at a most unwelcome time to boot, just when the Schwartzmen were in a death grapple with the league leaders and it completely upset the boy manager. Noyes took the count with a case of lumbago or something like that, while Jud is much too busy nursing a charley horse to think about left field. Jud's demise gave Mr. Nicholson the chance he has been yelping for, but after the former Colonel had allowed an easy out to go for a triple and fanned weakly a trio of attempts, Schwartz yanked him in disgust and shifted Dell Young over to left and gave "Norfolk" Summers the job on the dump.

Summers did produce a wallop that beat the Gulls out of the first affair, but as an Alpine guide Johnny will never get any medals. Schwartz figured that Nicholson was attacked by stage fright and tried him again in right field, where he was fortunate in not having any difficult chances. The few times Nick managed to reach first he looked like a million dollars, running like a greyhound and working the hookslide to perfection. With proper coaching in fielding and using a less heavy stick this boy should come with a rush for he has all the earmarks of a brilliant base runner, although he has worlds of stuff to learn about the game's fine points.

"Brick" Gibson's playing is little short of wonderful and the bugs are mystified that Jennings ever let this boy get away from him. He has a deadly whip and, while he is no slugger, his hits come when they drive in runs, which is lots better sometimes than being up in the .300 class. Noyes is back on the bench, but the scrappy little catcher has lost lots of weight and is still too weak to stand the pace this hot weather.

Daley's absence from the line-up weakens the Vols' play, both offensively and defensively, for even if the left gardener was not playing up to his 1912 form, he was miles better than Nicholson and was pulling down everything in his territory.

Schwartz is badly worried over the club's crippled condition, for the slabmen have never gotten to going right, Fleharty and McManus being of little or no use to the team and one of the pair is almost certain to get the ax, now that Dye and Chick Smith are on hand.

NEBRASKANS TO ENTER MEET.

LINCOLN, NEBR., June 3.—A team of at least four University of Nebraska athletes will be entered in the athletic meet to be held in Chicago in July.

SPEED.

I remember, I remember
When people rode the bike
They humped their backs and plugged away
Like demons down the pike.
We kids with open mouths stood by
And watched them whizzing past,
And longed to see that blessed day
When we could whiz as fast.

To-day we watch a flock of cars
That spin around a track.
One moment hence we saw them pass,
And now we see them back.
The scorcher was a thing of fear
A few short years ago,
But if he blocked the traffic now,
Oh!

Reports of the alleged conflict between Messrs. Dillon and Klaus remind us that the game of pugilism is minus one middleweight champion.

One learns from books that there is honor among thieves, and yet we hear that fight promoters in the West have started a civil war.

We note that Jack Britton whipped Jimmy Duffy, fought a draw and lost on a foul. All of which shows the versatility of the press.

Reading various criticisms on the management of one Matty McCue, pugilist, one is led to believe that various persons in our fair city crave a meal ticket.

Obtaining money under false pretenses is becoming common in these United States. Still we do not refer to the fact that the Brooklyn team has been insured for $410,000.

The reported clash over the estate of Luther McCarty reminds us that all vultures are not equipped with wings.

One is forced to admit that the gent who picked Memorial Day for the automobile soiree had his own little sense of humor.

Joe Birmingham has ordered his athletes to treat the umpires with respect, thus making baseball a hardship.

Being as baseball players burst into print with their masterpieces, Mr. Klem might add to his earnings by writing a dissertation on "Wild Managers I Have Met." Or Mr. Ferguson might indite a brochure entitled "Showers."

"RIP" MAJOR TURNS "PRO;" WILL PLAY WITH JACKSON

JACKSON, MISS., June 3.—"Rip" Major, captain of the football and baseball teams of Auburn, has placed his signature to a contract with the Jackson ball team of the Cotton States, and will make his debut in professional company with the local team this week.

Major will be used in the outfield and will join the Jackson team at Columbus on Thursday. He was one of the star football men at Auburn during the past few years and was one of the leading lights on the ball team at the Alabama Polytechnic institute.

CHRISTY MATHEWSON'S BIG LEAGUE GOSSIP

CINCINNATI, June 3.—When in Boston last week I ran into Jimmy McAleer, the president of the Boston Red Sox. "The Cleveland club is going immense," declared McAleer. "It is the surprise of our show. The team looked like a very bad one when it was getting beaten by a lot of bush league bunches before the season opened, but the pitchers have worked out in fine style, and the men are playing ball behind them. I expect to see the Naps drop on their impending Eastern trip, because they have always been a better team on their home grounds than on the road, but Birmingham has evidently done a lot for the club, and has put fight into them."

"So I read," I suggested. "There was some misunderstanding behind the grandstand between the Naps and Red Sox, was there not?"

But McAleer would go no further than to indulge in a smile. He refused to say.

"It's a cinch we are going to do our best to beat the team when it comes here," said McAleer, "and there should be some great battles."

"What's happened to your club?" I asked him.

"Seems to have the same ailment as the Giants—can't win ball games," answered Jimmy. "That's the strange part about it, too. Never saw a team look to be in better shape when I brought it back from Hot Springs. I thought the boys would make a runaway race of it. All the pitchers were going like a house afire, especially Joe Wood."

"It was the same with the Giants," I told him.

"The way I figure it," remarked McAleer, who is a pretty sharp observer of events and things in baseball, "is this: Some clubs came back from the South this spring in such pink condition that they could not stand the trying weather that was encountered at the beginning of the season. Whereas the boys who had not put in very good spring work were still rough, and rounded into form better under the bad conditions than those who had been baking under a hot sun like the Giants and my club."

"Maybe that's it," I observed. "It sounds to me like as good an alibi as any other."

"But it has worked out that way. The Athletics are an example. They had to miss a lot of practice on account of the floods and jumped home. They burned up the league during the first few weeks. Mack's greatest weakness is his pitching staff. If that bunch of twirlers that belong to me once gets going, we might catch them yet. That is my biggest chance."

And there you are.

KENOSHA PROMOTERS SEEK WHITE-BRITTON SCRAP

CHICAGO, June 3.—If Jack Britton will do 133 pounds at 6 o'clock he can have Charlie White as his opponent on June 13 at Kenosha. Britton is in town and efforts to get him to consent to such a weight are now under way.

FODDER FOR FANS

In Boston the fans are still hopeful that the Red Sox will overhaul the league-leading Athletics, but those conversant with the antics of baseball declare it almost an impossible task for the Red Sox to cut down the twelve-game lead of the Philadelphia players and still have enough power left to hit the tape ahead of the parade.

Walter Johnson, the pitching wonder of the Senators, faced the Athletics yesterday and lost—his third defeat of the season. Johnson already has won eleven games—just one-half the total number won by his team.

The slugging powers of the Athletics enabled them to win the double-header from the Senators.

The Senators in the American and the Dodgers in the National, who were runners-up early in the season, have been skidding lately and some there are who are already counting them out of the races.

The Red Sox took a double-header from the Yankees yesterday, winning the second game in rather easy fashion, but they had to fight right through the ninth inning to grab off the first 4 to 3.

The Western teams of the American League to-day began their first invasion of the East, while the Eastern clubs in the old league are grappling with the Western teams in the same section of the continent.

The Pirates yesterday transformed a dozen hits and three bases on balls into seven runs, which were enough to defeat the Braves.

A gentleman named Magee, well known as a murderer of baseballs, stepped to the plate in the first inning of the Phillies-Dodgers game yesterday, noticed that two men were on bases and promptly batted out a home run, thereby ending the day's pastime in the Phillies' favor almost before the game started.

Peckinpaugh, the Yankee shortstop, who came from the Naps a week ago with the reputation of being a weak sticker, refuses to live up to it and manages to punch from one to three safeties each game.

Honus Wagner made two hits, scored two runs and accepted four chances in yesterday's game.

• • •

"Goodnight" Baker showed his liking for Walter Johnson's cannon ball shoots by passing one over the fence yesterday.

WOLGAST AGREES TO MEET WATSON IN COAST BOUT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 3.—Red Watson, who some time hopes to wear Willie Ritchie's crown of champion, will be given his first real chance to show that he possesses championship ability when he will meet Ad Wolgast on June 20 before the Humboldt Athletic Club, of which Jim Griffin is promoter. This was formally agreed upon by Watson. Wolgast gave Griffin his word before leaving for Los Angeles.

Watson is an aggressive boxer, and with Wolgast as an opponent a great battle should result. Willie Ritchie and his manager, Billy Nolan, will arrive here from Portland this afternoon.

Joe Levy, manager of Joe Rivers, got in this morning from Los Angeles, and some time this afternoon the parties concerned will sit down with Promoter Graney and talk over everything that concerns the championship match scheduled for July 4.

COMISKEY DENIES TRADE BETWEEN SOX AND TIGERS

CHICAGO, June 3.—President Comiskey, of the White Sox, to-day branded as "ridiculous" the report that he expected to trade Hal Chase to the Detroit Tigers for Ty Cobb. While he admitted that he would be highly pleased to get hold of Navin's hitting wonder, he declared the Detroit owner would be little short of insane to think of parting with his greatest drawing card. Navin also brands this story as ridiculous.

Illinois Boxing Bill Almost Sure to Pass

CHICAGO, June 3.—Whether this State is to have legalized boxing such as is conducted in New York or not will likely be known before the close of the week. Senator Carroll, "father" of the bill calling for ten rounds, no-decision boxing, is still pushing the measure and declares it will come up for final vote Thursday. Carroll firmly believes it will pass. He says the members of both houses have carefully gone into the bill and its purpose and that the majority feel it should pass.

The recent death of Luther McCarty in the ring, Carroll intimates, hasn't left a bad effect. He declared that most of the legislators realize that the fatality was one of those accidents that might happen to any branch of sport and that it won't be taken up in any other light. He points to the fact that four persons were killed either in or during baseball games in less than a week, and says no cry to stop the game has been issued.

"Fatalities occur in all branches of sport, but unfortunately in boxing blows are struck and on that end the cry is raised that the game is brutal. Is football, automobile racing and airship sport brutal? More persons are killed and maimed for life in football in one year than in the ring in five years. The dropping dead of McCarty in Calgary was an unfortunate instance, but it had to happen, just as the burning of the steamer General Slocum, the Iroquois fire and the sinking of the Titanic. Because of these disasters it is taken that theaters must close and ships must cease sailing," said Carroll, and this is the view of many of the Representatives here.

Carroll, Hilton and McNichols seem to favor the commission bill, which calls for two commissions, one appointed by the Mayor, another by the Governor.

ZEIDER AS CAPTAIN.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Rollie Zeider, the infielder secured from the White Sox by the Yankees in trade, will be made field captain of the New Yorkers, according to an announcement made by Manager Chance to-day.

JIM FLYNN AND SMITH MAY MIX IN TITLE BATTLE

TOM M'CAREY, at present the greatest promoter of boxing matches in the country, is dickering for a bout between Jim Flynn and Gunboat Smith. "Uncle Tom" believes that the winner of this mill would be the white heavyweight champion of the world.

And it is just possible that McCarey will come on here from Los Angeles to witness Flynn in action against Jim Savage at the Auditorium-Armory on June 13. If Flynn wins that scrap McCarey will endeavor to sign the "Fireman" for a go with Smith.

But Flynn will have to travel a mighty fast gait to beat Savage. The latter has a good strong hunch that he is the best heavyweight in the world and he intends to prove it against Flynn.

Both Flynn and Savage will arrive in Atlanta the latter part of this week to finish out the long training period. Reports from their camps in New York are to the effect that both are already in tiptop condition.

And the other boxers who are going to show their wares on "Friday the Thirteenth" are hard at work. Mike Saul has started in on a strenuous campaign. His opponent, Terry Nelson, is training in Chattanooga and says he will surely beat "Knockemoffsky."

LEADER IN GREAT PONY CONTEST, A GIRL, HAS CLIMBED TO 100,000

Miss Fannie Mae Cook, of District Four in The Georgian and American Pony Contest, has earned the distinction of being the first contestant to reach the 100,000 mark. Her vote to-day stands at just this figure, leaving a wide, but not hopeless, breach of 39,760 votes between her and her nearest rival, Miss Florence Greene.

Charles L. Stevens, in District Three, has passed the 80,000 mark. So has Miss Robert Harbour, in District Two. Many other contestants have increased their strength greatly within the past few days.

Mr. Whiteside, the man who picked out the ponies and brought them here from Tennessee, says that any boy or girl in the contest who comes to the stockyards now can be pretty sure of a ride.

The ponies are being exercised daily, hitched to the pretty buggies. All that will be necessary will be for the contestants to ask to see The Georgian and American ponies. Their whereabouts is so well known now to all the attendants at the stockyards that the child will be directed without hesitation to the stables, and while Mr. Whiteside does not guarantee that every one will get a ride, he does say there's an excellent chance.

$2,000,000,000 Gold Reserve Considered

WASHINGTON, June 3.—For the Treasury to build up a $2,000,000,000 gold reserve, exercise absolute control over the currency and retire gold certificates, greenbacks and national bank notes is the plan now receiving careful consideration from members of the committees on banking currency of both Houses.

Instead of a central association having control of the currency, as proposed by the National Monetary Commission, a national reserve division is established under exclusive control of the Treasury.

Brands Income Tax As Sign of Anarchy

PARIS, June 3.—"It is a sign of anarchy in any country when one class of taxpayers are required to pay an impost from which the others are exonerated. The generous ambition of the revolution of 1789 was to destroy all privileges."

In these words M. Yves Guyot crystallizes the wide protests against the Government's action this week in embarking on a policy of income tax legislation to meet the expenditure occasioned by the new army measures.

CLOSE SCHOOL TO PICK BERRIES

NORTH YAKIMA, WASH., June 3.—Practically all the rural schools and many in the smaller towns have closed on an enforced vacation because of the berry crop.

COTTON RECEDES ON FINE WEATHER

Bears Ignore Bullish Figures and Firm Cables and Hammer Heavily Entire Day.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Firm cables had a little bearing on the cotton market at the opening to-day and first prices ranged from unchanged to 5 points higher than Monday's close. Traders here appeared to be guided more by the weather reports from the belt rather than by the cables. Weather conditions over night were as nice as any one could desire.

The market held rather steady before the call, but immediately displayed considerable weakness when the South turned a seller and from many points came advices claiming that conditions were not so bad as indicated by the Government report.

A Liverpool cable read: "Bureau discredited, but many have temporary effect. Market will be lower if crop accounts continue favorable."

July seemed in active demand during the first fifteen minutes, but quickly showed depression through heavy offerings, dropping 10 points to 11.44, against an opening of 11.54. August declined 4 points from the opening, while new crop positions were under pressure and receded some 4 to 7 points from the initial range.

Sentiment continues bearish and the ring inclined to supply the market with plenty of cotton. Offerings were absorbed mainly by brokers with spot house connection.

Regardless of the low percentage the Government gave the crop yesterday, the ring continued to liquidate. The average trader expressed the belief that there has been considerable improvement in the condition since May 25, which private reports confirm.

During the afternoon session, July increased its decline to 11.41, a net decline of 13 points from the opening; other positions followed the decline moderately. About the only buying in evidence was attributed to some trade absorption and scattered short covering, which prevented a more serious break. The talent, however, is not inclined to take on any large lines, and in the absence of outside business and the holiday in New Orleasn, business was only moderate.

At the close the market was barely steady with prices showing a net decline of 9 to 10 points from the final quotations of Monday.

THE WEATHER.

Conditions.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—There will be local thunder showers to-night or Wednesday in the lower Mississippi Valley, the East Gulf and South Atlantic States, and mostly fair weather elsewhere east of the Mississippi River to-night and Wednesday. Temperotures will be somewhat lower to-night and Wednesday in the southern portion of the Lake region, the Ohio and middle Mississippi Valley.

General Forecast.

Following is the general forecast until 7 p. m. Wednesday:

Georgia—Local thunder showers to-night or Wednesday.

Virginia—Generally fair, except showers in southeast portion to-night or Wednesday.

North Carolina and South Carolina, Alabama, Mississippi and Tennessee—Local thunder showers to-night or Wednesday.

Florida—Generally fair, except showers in northeast portion to-night or Wednesday.

Louisiana and Texas—Fair to-night and Wednesday.

BAR SILVER.

LONDON, June 3.—Bar silver steady at 27⅝.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Commercial bar silver 59⅝c. Mexican dollars 48c.

COTTON GOSSIP

NEW YORK, June 3.—The ring crowd is inclined to sell the market at the outset on favorable weather conditions. Munds, Waters, Cone, Parrott and Riordan were the principal buyers. Schill, Rait, Hentz, Royce and Flinn were the leading sellers. Sentiment was against the market.

Riordan purchased 5,000 bales of October at 1.13.

July was in fair demand at the opening, but failed to advance from the initial level, which was 11.54.

Warehouse stocks in New York to-day were 65,945 bales; certificated, 56,531 bales.

Liverpool cables: "American middling fair, 7.22d; good middling, 6.88d; middling, 6.68d; low middling, 6.52d; good ordinary, 6.16d; ordinary, 5.62d."

Brown, Drakeford & Co., Liverpool, cable: "The market feels the influence of the bureau report; continent covering."

Dallas wires: "Texas, Amarillo, cloudy, balance clear and hot; no rain. Oklahoma—Part cloudy; few points threatening."

NEW ORLEANS, June 3.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map is favorable; shows fair in south central States. Part cloudy, elsewhere fine warm weather. General showers in north Alabama and Atlantics. No rain elsewhere. Indications are for part cloudy to fair, except in north central and northeastern States, where it will be cloudy, showery and cooler.

Memphis wires: Cooler weather is indicated for western and central cotton States during the next 24 to 36 hours, possibly attended by local showers. Over the Southwest yesterday scattered local rains fell with probably more to-day. Very favorable conditions.

The New Orleans Cotton Exchange was closed to-day on account of Jeff Davis' birthday.

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "The government confounded them all. Prior to the promulgation of the condition report, when the bear talent expected 83 and the bull talent feared 82, room traders generally, but in a small way, sold contracts short and then advised their friends to do likewise. The government figure, 79.1, indicating the condition of the crop on May 25, spread momentary consternation among shorts, and thereafter, most of them attended strictly to their own business, which, in the main, related to the covering up of outstanding interest. The Government's idea of the condition of the crop ten days ago certainly does not harmonize with the talent's idea to-day.

"On May 25 a lengthy period of dry weather had not fully come to an end. Many sections were complaining of retarded germination, of the necessity for repeated replanting, of a prospective early start changed into a late start. The talent knew all this, as the facts had been exploited day after day. Then the rains came and big crop expectations took on renewed life. Recently most excellent reports have come in from Texas and Oklahoma particularly and from other sections as well. Under the circumstances, the wish being father to the thought and current advices having inspired increasingly optimistic crop views, the ring began to count on a bureau figure of between 82 and 83. Consequently, most operators were sharply disappointed when the figures came 79.1.

WEEKLY WEATHER REPORT.

WASHINGTON, June 3.—The greatest excess in mean temperature was over northwestern Texas. The mean temperatures ranged from 68 to 78 degrees over the eastern, frim 72 to 78 over the central and from 78 to 82 over the western portion of the cotton-growing States. The lowest mean temperature, 68 degrees, occurred at Asheville, N. C., and the highest, 82, at Del Rio, Texas.

Precipitation occurred generally over the eastern and north central portions of the cotton region, but the amounts were generally light, except that more than an inch occurred in parts of North Carolina, extreme eastern Tennessee and the northern portion of South Carolina. Elsewhere over the cotton-growing States there was no raon, except that a few light, scattered showers occurred over the northwestern portion of Texas and in Oklahoma.

The greatest weekly amount, 2 inches occurred at Wilmington, N. C. Mean temperatures were from 1 to 7 above normal, except that they were normal or slightly below over northern Mississippi and north central and northwestern Alabama.

COTTON MARKET OPINIONS.

Logan & Bryan: We think conservative policy in making purchases on reactions will prove profitable eventually.

Atwood, Violett & Co.: We think cotton can be bought cheaper.

Sternberger, Sinn & Co.: We look for higher prices.

Norden & Co.: We think sales on bulges should be profitable.

COTTON SEED OIL.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The cotton seed oil market was steady on the opening, but the list soon turned easy under scattered liquidation on lard weakness and lack of outside trade.

MILLER-CARTER COTTON LETTER.

MEMPHIS, June 3.—Sufficient buying developed in Liverpool as result of low condition report to cause moderate advance, but as a whole the demand there was disappointing, and it does not appear that spinners are eager takers. In New York the ring crowd sold after Liverpool closed, bringing about a decline. Sentiment is bearish. Government figures are not accepted and with the weather favorable crop is making steady advancement.

STANDARD OIL DIVIDEND.

NEW YORK, June 3.—The Standard Oil Company of Kentucky declared the initial dividend of $5 per share.

This School To Give No Diplomas to Sick

INDIANA, PENN.—Dr. James E. Ament, principal of the State Normal School, has issued orders that all of the 300 students in the school must obtain certificates of perfect health before diplomas will be awarded.

The school code provides that all applicants for diplomas to teach in Pennsylvania must be examined by a reputable physician and must produce certificates of health before they are eligible for diplomas.

Hot Wave Withers Kansas Wheat Crop

WICHITA, KANS., June 3.—Farmers and grain buyers in Southern Kansas estimate that the growing wheat has been set back 25 per cent by the hot and dry weather of this week. Each succeeding day is adding to the loss.

It is feared that unless a general rain comes within a few days the 1913 crop will be 50 per cent short of predictions made ten days ago.

STOCKS WEAKEN IN CLOSING HOUR

Early Strength Followed by General Liquidation—Tight Money Abroad Factor.

By CHARLES W. STORM.

NEW YORK, June 3.—Strength in London gave Canadian Pacific a gain of 2⅞ at the opening of the New York stock market to-day, although afterward this issue lost part of its advance. However, it continued as a leader and practically dominated the sentiment felt toward all active securities.

The tone was nervous and uncertain. Reports that the slump in Canadian Pacific, which sent it to a new low level, nearly 70 points below its high record of last summer, was caused by the constant calling of loans abroad, gave way to the belief that, now that the Balkan war is over, the situation will steadily improve.

Among the declines here were Anaconda Copper, ⅜; United States Steel common, ⅛; Utah Copper, ¼; Southern Pacific, ⅛; Missouri Pacific, ⅜; Great Northern preferred, ¼; American Smelting, ¼. Union Pacific advanced ⅜. Southern Pacific recovered its loss and advanced. Fractional gains were also scored by Amalgamated Copper and St. Paul. Steel sold fractionally above its low of yesterday, which was the furtherest down its price had been for many months.

The curb market was irregular.

Americans in London were improved, with the Harrimans the most active.

Continued strength prevailed in the market during the forenoon, with the majority of the issues making gains. Southern Pacific, Steel and Copper were up ¼. Reading advanced ⅜ to 159⅛. Canadian Pacific rose 3⅜ to 219. Smelter declined 1Z to 62¾. Lehigh and Pennsylvania up ⅝.

Northern Pacific was one of the most prominent issues in the last hour's trading, declining over 2 points to 111¼. Nearly all stocks fell below their midday range. Canadian Pacific dropped to 217, for the loss of over a point and the same amount of loss was sustained by Reading. Other stocks which shaded were Amalgamated Copper, Steel and American Can. Lehigh Valley dropped 2 points on heavy selling. A great deal of stock was supplied by London. The tone was heavy and weak.

The market closed weak.

Government bonds unchanged; other bonds firm.

ST. LOUIS CASH QUOTATIONS.

Wheat—No. 2 red ....100 @106
Corn—No. 2 .... 58½
Oats—No. 2 39

CHICAGO, June 3.—There was heavy buying of wheat during the last half hour by the big short of LaSalle Street, who has been on the selling side for some time past and who seemed anxious to secure a bundle of money that was within easy reach in the way of profits. The day's closing showed net gains of ¼@½c as compared with the resting spots of last night. When the big short inaugurated a buying movement it found a large number of professionals on the short side and the demand became persistent and quite general.

There was no export business. One of the larger exporters here claimed that the bids on spring wheat were considerably out of line and there were no reported transactions in the winter description.

Coarse grains were higher and strong with gains of ⅞@1c in corn and ¼@⅝c in oats.

Provisions were lower all around.

LIVERPOOL GRAIN MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, June 3.—Wheat opened ⅛d lower. At 1:30 p. m. the market was ⅛ to ¾d lower. Closed ½ to ⅞d lower.

Corn opened ¼d lower. At 1:30 p. m. the market was ¼ to ⅝d lower. Closed ⅛ to ⅝d lower.

OPINION ON GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 3.—Bartlett, Frazier & Co.: Wheat—The map shows generally clear in Northwest; some rain in Nebraska and showers in Iowa. In Kansas precipitation rather general, but chiefly of a showery character. Local sentiment has become extremely bearish again and may force prices lower, but we do not care to follow the decline.

Corn—Weather conditions over the belt perfect. Speculative holders seem firm in their views and there is apparently very little long corn on the market.

Oats—As for some time past offerings continue to be absorbed by commission houses with local professionals the best sellers. We look for a steady market.

Provisions—The undertone to the market is one of strength.

WHEAT PRICES WILL SOAR UNLESS GOOD RAINS FALL

CHICAGO, June 3.—The Inter-Ocean says: "The bulls in wheat said that unless the weather map to-day showed heavier and more general rains than were reported yesterday higher prices are likely, although they admit that they are not getting much help from the outside public to bull the market.

"Most of the local trade were out of their wheat last night and a fair-sized short interest created. To have the smallest visible supply of corn for June 1 in over 34 years with the crop the largest on record, is the most surprising feature of the corn trade. The bulls argue that it is greatly in their favor, while the bears said it cut little figure, as they believe that there are larger reserves back in the country."

WAVE OF SUICIDE BY BICHLORIDE SWEEPS U. S.

Each Day Adds to List Seeking Painless End After Reading of Walker's Death.

A wave of mercurial poisoning, declared by psychologists to be the result of the publicity given to the case of B. Sanders Walker, the Macon, Ga., banker who died after swallowing bichloride of mercury tablets, seems to be sweeping the country.

More than 20 cases have been reported since Mr. Walker's death, and each day adds to the list. The number of suicides from the ordinary methods of carbolic acid and shooting has fallen off to a noticeable extent since the fact that bichloride of mercury is deadly poison became general knowledge.

Four cases of mercurial poisoning—three of them with suicidal intent—are reported in Tuesday's press dispatches. In Baltimore, Md., Earl Wolverton, the 2-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wolverton, got two tablets of bichloride of mercury from the mantel in his home late Monday evening and, taking them to the front steps, ate part of the poison. Doctors say the child will be in real danger for ten days.

At Thomasville, Ga., after taking three tablets of bichloride of mercury of 7 1-2 grains each, Mrs. George King is still alive, though growing weaker. The poison was taken Sunday, with suicidal intent. Physicians do not think Mrs. King has any chance for recovery.

After swallowing two bichloride of mercury tablets in an effort to commit suicide late Monday night, Ruby White, of Savannah, was hurried to a hospital before the deadly poison could get it in its work. She is expected to recover.

In San Francisco, Mrs. Agnes Spalding, prominent in San Francisco society, swallowed 20 mercury tablets when she learned that her former husband, Dr. Otis B. Spalding, from whom she was divorced, was about to wed again. She was reported to be dying to-day.

WANTS ATLANTA PRODUCTS EXHIBIT

J. P. Stevens Shows Where Chattanooga and Other Towns Are More Progressive.

J. P. Stevens, who was president of the association that gave the first exhibition of Atlanta-made products at the State Fair in 1902, was one of the party from the Atlanta Chamber of Commerce that visited Chattanooga to study the permanent exhibit of the Manufacturers' Association there. He came away impressed with the benefit the institution has conferred upon Chattanooga.

He has, at the request of the Chamber of Commerce, written the following statement in regard to the exhibit:

"As a member of the Chamber of Commerce committee to inspect the permanent exhibition in Chattanooga, I desire to express the hope that there will be put into effect at once a movement to carry out upon a larger scale the installation of a permanent exhibition of articles manufactured in Atlanta.

"Chattanooga's success in this direction should serve as an inspiration to us. I was amazed at the variety and merit of the products shown there. In no other way could Chattanooga have so effectively placed before the world her claims and her accomplishments as a manufacturing center.

"This is an age of competition between cities as well as individuals, and Atlanta can not afford to be left behind in this contest. The wonderful growth of California cities is an object lesson to the world in the march of municipal progress, and in each of the principal ones we find permanent exhibitions.

"The census reports show that 30 years ago Los Angeles and Atlanta had about the same population; today Los Angeles' population is more than twice that of Atlanta, and no one who sees her great permanent exhibition can doubt for a moment what a potent factor it has been in accomplishing this result.

"Atlanta should display her resources; her own citizens would be astonished if the manufacturers would all come forward and show what they are doing.

"Let us get together and give an exhibition that will put into concrete form a true interpretation of the 'Atlanta spirit.'"

Rebels Lack 'Nerve' For Aerial Attack

DOUGLAS, ARZ., June 3.—The plan of the Sonora rebels to drop bombs from an aeroplane upon the Mexican Federals intrenched in and around Guayamas has been abandoned.

It was found that the aeroplane, which is an antiquated machine, has not enough plane surface to rise beyond the danger zone of 3,500 feet. In addition, no Mexican has been found with sufficient courage to ascend in the aircraft.

Boy, 14, Begins Life Term for Slaying

GENEVA, ILL., June 3.—Henry Koppage, aged 14, today left for Joliet, Ill., to begin serving a life sentence for the murder of Mrs. Maud Sleep and her two children, aged 2 and 6. The lad appeared unconcerned when sentenced.

SAVANT PRAISES OUR PROGRESS IN MEDICINE

Vienna Professor So Impressed That He Is Sending His Son Here to Study.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

VIENNA, June 3.—Carl VonNoorden, an eminent professor of the medical faculty of Vienna University, who has lectured several times in America, is paying the United States the compliment of sending his son to Johns Hopkins University, at Baltimore. Prof. VonNoorden says:

"I have repeatedly, during the last ten years, availed myself of the welcome opportunity afforded me of visiting the United States, and in the course of these trips I have devoted myself to the study of the medical situation in America.

"I am bound to say that during my last year's lecture trip I noticed a truly remarkable, nay, enormous, progress in some branches of medical science and practice, as compared with 1907, the year of my preceding visit.

"While in 1907 the faculties and hospitals were lacking essential requisites in the men and institutions, the progress made in the few years since that time must be accounted marvelous. In some branches America has even attained the top of the ladder and is fully equal to Germany, which, in some respects, it has even outdistanced. I refer in this regard to experimental medicine and questions of nutrition, diabetes, kidney troubles, etc.

"Most remarkable in this respect is the work in New York, Boston, New Haven, Baltimore and Philadelphia; and the post-graduate work of young doctors in these cities is worthy of the highest praise and recognition. It finds a counterpart only in Germany, where, by the way, post-graduate practice is compulsory.

"Personally, I am bound to pay my respects to this state of affairs by sending my son to Baltimore, where he will be an assistant to Prof. Barker at Johns Hopkins University, and I hope that my example will be followed by others to their advantage."

Charles D. Barker, Journalist, Is Dead

Charles D. Barker, one of Atlanta's oldest newspaper men, died at 8:45 o'clock Tuesday morning at his home, 112 Oglethorpe Avenue. Mr. Barker was injured in a street car accident on November 23 and had been in ill health since. In an effort to regain his health he spent several months in Florida, but had been rapidly sinking since his return home two months ago. Mr. Barker for twenty-six years was editor of The Southern Star, a weekly paper published in Atlanta. He is survived by a wife and two sons, William Leonard and Charles D. Barker, Jr., of Atlanta. Funeral services will be held at 4 o'clock Wednesday afternoon from the Barclay & Brandon Chapel. Interment will be at Oakland.

Sam Saloshin, formerly of Atlanta, died at Denver, Colo., Sunday morning. The body will arrive here Wednesday afternoon. The funeral will be from Greenberg & Bond's Chapel at 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon. Mr. Saloshin was twenty-three years old. He is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Louis Saloshin, of 198 Capitol Avenue. Interment will be at Oakland.

Mrs. Nancy Adeline Hendrix, sixty-five years old, of 190 West Fourteenth Street, died at a private sanitarium Tuesday morning. She is survived by a son, Jeff Hendrix, and a daughter, Mrs. Frances Franklin. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

G. G. Hall, fifty-four years old, died at 7 o'clock Tuesday morning at the residence in Oak Grove Park. He was a member of the Car Repairers' Union and is survived by a wife and four children. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Labor Unrest Adds To Strife in Mexico

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

MEXICO CITY, June 3.—Labor conditions are becoming serious in Mexico and are adding menacing complications to the revolutionary situation throughout the republic.

Many Americans are leaving because of business and industrial stagnation. Several cotton goods factories in this State closed down unexpectedly to-day, throwing 1,500 persons out of work.

POET RILEY'S FRIEND DIES.

ANDERSON, IND., June 3.—Theodore (Dory) Biddle, 62, former publisher of The Anderson Bulletin, died to-day. Biddle was an intimate friend of James Whitcomb Riley.

POULTRY, PET AND LIVE STOCK

Items of Interest To the Poultryman

Little Things in the Poultry Business That Mean Success or Failure.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

The comb is the fowl's barometer of health. A bright red comb means health and vigor, while a dark or purple comb means congestion of some kind, and as the disease goes on, the comb turns sickly pale to almost white. So let your endeavors be to maintain red combs on all your chickens.

You may not think it pays to go to any trouble to prepare your poultry for market, just so you get it there before it is spoiled. No greater mistaken idea was ever entertained. If you take extra care and pains in the preparation you will soon be able to command the extra price such merit demands, which will well repay for all the extra trouble. On the other hand, carelessness in preparation simply puts your product into the hands of the huckster at his prices. Which class do you care to be found in?

The question is often asked, Which color of eggs will command the best prices in the average city market, white or brown? Ordinarily there is but little difference. Where extreme care in handling is given the white ones look mighty nice, but they show soil much quicker than the brown ones, so that with ordinary care the brown ones would look the best. Where one is willing to take the extra care to keep them in condition and place them on the market to private customers the white ones will bring a little better price.

The hen enjoys her bath just as much as a man does, and better than some men do, but it is not the water bath we have reference to, but the much-talked-of dust bath. It is so essential to the health of the hen. No wise poultryman will neglect to provide the spacious, liberally supplied dust box.

It should be the poultryman's aim to get all the early hatched pullets and the hens through moult to laying before bad weather sets in, when it is but little trouble to keep them in condition for laying all winter, when eggs are high, but if you do not get them started before the cold weather comes on, the task is not an easy one. See that they moult promptly by right feeding.

The roosts of your poultry house should be all upon a level and not running higher and higher, as was the custom in olden times, for every chicken in the house will very naturally decide to roost on the top roost, where there will be weeping and wailing and—— Put them all on a level and not very high from the floor, except for the lightweight breeds, and they will soon learn that they can roost just as well at a moderate height as they can in the top of the house. The roosts should all be movable, so they can be taken out and cleaned when necessary.

Of all the feeds and kinds of feed, look out for musty feed and cut it out at all times. It is the poorest kind of economy to try to work it in, perhaps because you can buy it at a low price. It will prove disastrous in the end.

Poultry Shows.

There is no one thing that is of as much advantage to the poultry industry of this country as the local poultry show. Those who do not stop to consider these little things in regard to the poultry business have no idea of the influence that is exerted upon the community by the holding of a good poultry show in the country town. The whole community becomes enthused and wakes up to the fact that there is really such a thing as a good stock of poultry, and by talking with the exhibitors they find that such stock will lay more eggs and give a great deal more meat for the food consumed than will the high-flying scrub stock of the farm.

They get it all down the line. They become enthused so that there is really something doing on the old farm. Things are stirred over, and it is not long until some of the old stock is marketed and new stock takes its place. For these reasons we like to see the local poultry show flourish. It is a working factor for better poultry, which means more and better eggs for the consumer at a reduced price.

We want to get in touch with all these associations that are getting things in shape for a fall show. Write us, giving the date and the particulars about it. We shall be glad to publish all such, which will help you to get it before the public, letting them know what you intend to do. Write us.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Court House Sales Draw Large Throng

Barbecue Committee Meets—Petition for Automobile Line—One-story Houses Building.

A representative crowd of citizens gathered at the court house Tuesday morning to witness the various legal sales. Among those present were Forrest Adair, Forrest Adair, Jr., John Y. Smith, Gid Hanna, C. P. Goree, Steve R. Johnston, J. N. Landers, M. M. Anderson, J. B. Chamlee, Lamar Hill, H. W. Dews, Courtland S. Winn, George B. Powell, George H. Bonnell, W. S. Thomson, Ulysses Lewis, John D. Baddage, Charles H. Black, Sam Green, T. J. Lockhart, Alex W. Smith, Jr., Nathan Coplan, Phil Cleveland, of Griffin; Charles H. Cox, Morris Macks, J. A. Branch, William J. Davis and W. W. Warren.

Forrest Adair sold for the estate of Mrs. Ermie Pope, 14 and 18 Ponders Avenue, 75 by 100 feet, with two houses renting for a total of $57 a month, to Jake H. Hirsch for $4,100. Mr. Adair also sold a 43 by 209-foot lot on Capitol Avenue, between Glenn Street and Georgia Avenue, to W. J. Davis for $2,225; three small lots on Elizabeth Street to Mr. Davis for $750, and three on Wilson Street to C. P. Goree for $475. A lot on Richmond Street was withdrawn.

W. S. Thomson sold 89 Copenhill Avenue, 75 by 200 feet, to H. W. Dillin, for $3,050. This contains a three-room house.

Steve R. Johnston sold for the estate of Daniel A. Green to C. A. Upchurch, for $975, a Woodward Avenue lot; to R. G. Seagraves, for $810, a lot on Gordon Street; to William Nichols and R. H. Gower, for $670, two lots on Joe Johnson Avenue, and to George B. Powell, for $300, two lots on Florida Avenue. Sheriff Mangum's sales interrupted the sale of ten additional lots of this estate.

Barbecue Committee Meeting.

The barbecue committee of the Atlanta Real Estate Board met Tuesday afternoon in the offices of Charles P. Glover, president of the board, for the purpose of discussing some features of the barbecue which the real estate men will give June 14 at Cold Springs. The various members of the committee have been given tickets to sell for the occasion, and they report a great many sales.

To Start Transit Line.

The South Side Transit Company is the name of a new automobile concern which will soon start operations on the Brown Mill Road. People living along this thoroughfare have long felt the need of conveyances leading to the car lines, and a number of them have decided to petition the Superior Court for a charter to do business. The petitioners are T. C. Waters, M. O. Jackson, Leonard W. and W. R. Brown, C. H. Conoley, Harvey Hatcher and W. E. Taliaferro. Mr. Brown and Mr. Hatcher filed the petition as attorneys.

This line will be similar to the 'bus lines operating at Buckhead to surrounding points, like Roswell and Powers Ferry.

Many One-Story Houses.

Seven one-story houses featured the building permits in Inspector Hays' office Tuesday morning at the city hall. The taller structures took a rest for the day. Outside of residences, there was application for a furnace by A. W. Farlinger at 34 Arizona Avenue.

Lots and Cottage Sold.

Mrs. H. J. Klink, of Olean, N. Y., has sold to a client of the A. J. & H. F. West Real Estate Agency a new five-room house and a 100 by 190-foot lot on the east side of Lena Street, near the Ashby Street School, for $1,600.

W. N. Bullock and others have bought from W. J. Dowling, of New York, through the West Agency, eight vacant lots on Dahlgren Street, Decatur, for $1,500. The latter property is on the Decatur car line.

Plan to Push Regrading.

There was a unanimous expression among certain property owners Tuesday over the eleventh-hour decision of Council to appropriate all the available city funds for the purchase of the crematory, to the present exclusion of Peachtree and Whitehall regrading and other important works. It was "Curses!" There was seemingly nothing in the way of these improvements until the decision of the State Supreme Court in the crematory matter upset all calculations.

People who have worked a year or more to have Whitehall regraded, and citizens who realize the necessity of widening Peachtree from Carnegie Way to Harris Street, however, are not discouraged. They are holding conferences Tuesday to devise a way of proceeding in spite of the interruption. Charles H. Black, speaking for the Whitehall property owners, declared that the matter of Whitehall regrading would not be dropped, but that some provision would be made. Peachtree owners and people interested in other regrading projects are just as determined.

Since only $30,000 has been asked for the Whitehall work and $5,000 for the Peachtree work, it is believed that leading citizens will guarantee enough of the amounts to go ahead until a permanent arrangement as to funds can be made.

North Avenue Home Sold.

Mrs. J. K. Barcroft has bought from Mrs. Lillian D. Skinner through Harris G. White a residence property on North Avenue, Highland Avenue and Williams Mill Road for $12,500. The lot is 273 feet on Williams Mill Road, 111 feet on Highland Avenue and 240 feet on North Avenue.

To Widen Ivy Street.

A number of Ivy Street property owners assured Joel Hurt Tuesday that they would give enough land to insure the conversion of Ivy Street into a 65-foot thoroughfare, before regrading is completed. Mr. Hurt made this proposition to the owners in a letter, and he is gratified over the responses.

The idea is to make a retail street out of Ivy and to keep it free of garages and other wholesale establishments. This sentiment must be created at once if the idea is to be carried out, since several wholesalers have had their eyes on locations.

Mr. Hurt wants to relieve Peachtree congestion as much as possible, and in this connection it will be recalled that there will be a movement to keep heavy vehicles on Ivy Street rather than on Peachtree, and to dispense with car tracks. The street car company expects to run a double track on Ivy Street between Auburn Avenue and Edgewood Avenue, however.

At the proper time real estate men expect to introduce an ordinance in Council prohibiting the use of Peachtree from Ivy Street southward for heavy vehicles like wagons and trucks. This is the kind of traffic, they contend, that cuts up paving and causes congestion.

FOR SALE AT AUCTION!

SIX UP-TO-DATE HOMES

And 19 Ready-to-Build-On Lots

SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1913

At 3 P. M., on the Premises

THESE are 5 and 6-room houses, with every city convenience and connection, including furnace in several of the houses, but no gas as yet. These houses were built of the best material, under the personal direction of Colonel I. N. Ragsdale, who could not be induced to build a shoddy house.

These houses are real city homes, located in the social center of the Tenth Ward, and only a step from the best car service in Atlanta.

We urge you to go out and inspect this property. Each house will be plainly placarded, showing cash payment and monthly payments; also the amount of the loan to be assumed.

THESE HOUSES ARE NOW RENTED, and bring in from $18.50 to $30.00 per month. Think of what a help that will be to you, in meeting your payments, should you not be ready to occupy the house.

The houses and lots front on the following streets:

Arlington Avenue, Princess Avenue and LaRosa Terrace.

Arlington Avenue runs off Lee Street, right at Colonel Ragsdale's handsome home. Princess Avenue runs off of Avon (Oakland) Avenue, between the Baptist Church and Captain E. P. Ryan's fine home, giving the property two approaches, each of which is a prominent street.

THIS SECTION HAS NO OBJECTIONABLE FEATURE

It is logically the place for the people to live who are engaged in business, or who are employed among the many industrial and manufacturing and railroad enterprises around the Terminal Station, Whitehall Street, Mitchell Street, and the Central and West Point Railroads, and the adjacent territory. The car service and the way the streets run prove these statements to be true. Think about it, and you'll see it as we do.

THE LOTS ARE READY TO BUILD ON

These are the lots to buy, either for home sites or for speculation, because they are ready to build on. In addition to this, every lot is a beauty, with nice young oak shade trees scattered over them. Also, because their location is excellent. They are only a short distance from the business center of Oakland City. Only two blocks from the City School, and near the churches; and the farthest lot is only two blocks from the car line; and, best of all, they are socially in the swim, and will range from $150 to $260 cash, and the payments will range from $22.50 per month to $32.50 per month, with 6 per cent simple interest. Small loan on five of the houses, to be assumed by the purchaser.

ALL CITY IMPROVEMENTS DOWN AND PAID FOR.

THE TERMS ON THE HOUSES

THE TERMS ON THE LOTS

are right. Every lot will be sold on terms of $50 cash, and the balance $15 per month, with only 6 per cent simple interest on the deferred payments.

HOW TO GET THERE—Take cars at the corner of Forsyth and Alabama Streets, marked "East Point," "Hapeville" or "College Park." Get off at the corner of Avon (Oakland Avenue). You will then be only a step from this property.

COME AND BE SURE TO BUY—You will never regret it if you do, and you will be sorry if you don't. Get plans from

We Get Ideals Easily from Pictures

So Please Look at the Picture on This Page of the Cheapest Working Animal in the World. It May Help You to Think.

Copyright, 1913.

What was the first animal tamed, conquered and made into a slave by man? Men had to work a long time, probably, before they got into their heads the idea of slavery for others—an idea that has meant so much to the comfort of a few and the misery of the rest for centuries.

As a guess, we should say that the first tamed animal was some kind of a deer or female buffalo. Some savage woman found it wounded, perhaps broken-legged in a pit, the young one standing near it. The young one was killed and eaten. The mother was hobbled and kept alive as long as possible for her milk, given to the wild woman's children. And when the milk gave out the mother probably was eaten by the wild woman and her children.

After that experiment that same wild woman, or some other, decided that the captured animal could be kept permanently, made gentle and used to carry a load. The women, of course, carried all the loads at first, as they do now among the red Indians. Probably the first domestic scene was a woman milking by force and violence some half-wild animal in order to get milk for her young ones.

The first animal tamed by man was probably a wolf, the father of our present tribe of dogs, the tame wolf being used by the man to help him hunt animals or hunt other men.

However, speculation about the first animal tamed is not the purpose of this particular article.

We want to call your attention to the most valuable animal that men use in their slavery, AND THE CHEAPEST ANIMAL.

That animal is a woman, working in the factory or a sweatshop.

Since the days when the first buffalo or wolf or elephant was tamed, there has been nothing as cheap as the woman worker, nothing so easily obtainable, so easily kept in slavery, so easily replaced when worked to death.

You can see in the picture on this page some of man's accomplishments. He teaches elephants to lift logs. He uses little donkeys, powerful horses, oxen with big horns, but he uses, above all THE POVERTY-STRICKEN WOMAN AND HER CHILDREN AS SOON AS THEY ARE OLD ENOUGH TO WORK.

Isn't that a proud achievement of civilization, to find the cheapest of all animal labor and the cheapest of all working animals IN THE FEMALE HUMAN BEING?

The wise and great Moses, when he was teaching the Jews to keep house without an ice-box and laying down laws that make of the Jewish people the healthiest in the world to-day, that wise Moses issued this order, on the authority of the Almighty:

"Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mother's milk."—Exodus 34:26.

Why Moses gave the order we don't know. Possibly because he thought it was bad enough to kill the mother and eat it, but a little too bad and too heartless to take the mother's milk and boil her own child in that milk. Or probably Moses issued the order because of his general opinion that meat and milk should not be used at the same meal.

What would Moses think, if he came along now and found a miserable, half-starved, under-paid woman, working in a factory and found her own "kid," the child of her body, tied to some machine in the factory with her, or sitting at her feet in a sweatshop working before it was six years of age?

Would not the old Lawgiver say, "I thought it was bad enough in my day to boil a kid in the milk of its own mother.

"But to take a child and work it to death in the same factory that worked its mother to death is going a little farther along the road of deviltry than I ever imagined human beings could go."

Yet that is what we do.

Our system of industry takes these "cheapest of working animals," the women, and takes their cheap children, and boils them all down into profits in the same factory—and that is "civilization."

You are tired, readers, of hearing about low pay for women and girls—tired, perhaps, even of the suggestion that laws should be passed compelling employers to pay to the cheapest working animal at least enough to keep clothes on her back and food in her stomach.

What follows, however, you will read with interest. It is a brilliant Frenchman's description of woman as she lived ages ago. He calls it, "The First Tears."

It is, perhaps, as good a description as has been written of the appearance of the first woman, in the days when she drank from the horn of a bison, and kept her rainwater in the skull of an elephant. It is the woman of the days before men had learned to conquer fire. It is worth reading:

"On the crest of the cliff the branches of a thicket parted and an arm, a shoulder, then the entire form of a living being, veiled with tawny hair, appeared, came forth, and stood like a hunted animal, glancing to right and left—a primitive woman, with arched shelving brows, broad flanks, short solid legs, splayfeet and thick fat hands.

"A mass of falling hair, starting from the crown of her long skull, framed her face with a somber red-brown aureole. A short, loose neck rose from her full shoulders, strong teeth glittered in her red jaws, and a double furrow ran from jaw to brow to divide the formless nose from the cheek bones.

"As the creature breathed her mobile nostrils drew back to take the revelations of the wind. Sheltered by the low retreating forehead, two jutting arcades fell to form caverns for the restless eyes. At times the wrinkled eyelids straightened, the eyes widened, and an expression of appealing softness appeared, then vanished to give place to the look of a worried beast.

"The time was the dawn of humanity, when Man was an animal in all but shape before the rigors of the season forced Earth's population to hide from the cold in caves. The skeletons of giant saurians were petrifying in the upper strata of the crust, and mammals were moving in to the valleys to take their places. Great pachyderms and long-haired ruminants waded in the mire of the valleys, and beasts of prey dogged their steps. Among the animals rare beings foreshadowing Man crept naked, timid, feeling their way, hiding from the beasts of prey.

"In the low light of the primeval springtime, in silence broken only by the tramp of padded hoofs and by the lap of water against the mire, a man searching for berries saw a woman running to escape him, ran after her, caught her and carried her away.

"The man vanished, and for the first time in her hunted life the woman felt the loneliness of the solitude that had been her best condition, and a pang like the yearning of hunger awoke in her.

"She wandered along the hedges, through the wet fields, under the dark sky, searching for the one who had mastered her; and when after long quest, she saw him, she ran to him with inarticulate cries. He gave no answering sign; but, when he sat down to eat his fistful of acorns, she sat down beside him, and when he lay down to sleep she, too, lay down. So the law of life gave the woman to the man.

"At first he tolerated her; then, when she served him and was useful to him, he made her his habit. Her relative weakness gave her quick premonitions of their need of food. His indifference to her and her dependence upon him gave him superiority. His silent acceptance of her presence aroused in her dull brain a feeling akin to tenderness, and in that feeling, humble and submissive, she withdrew when he had beaten her."

That description was written by Edmond Haraucourt.

It goes on to say that the primitive man called the woman "Hock." And the woman called him "Daah," a name which the French gentleman thinks was "an appeal soft as a caress." This primitive married couple had two other words, one for hunger, "Mah," and another for danger, "Heugh." Whatever else they had to say they told in gestures.

Primitive times were they not—those days of three or four hundred thousand years ago?

But how much worse was that primitive woman, short-legged and ugly and beaten by the brute that she liked, than the woman of to-day?

The woman of to-day is better made, she has a forehead where the other had none. She has feelings of which the other never dreamed.

Is she any better off—SHE, THE CHEAPEST WORKING MACHINE THAT MAN EMPLOYS; SHE, THE LOWEST-PRICED ANIMAL, THE CHIEF BEAST OF BURDEN OF THE WORLD, CHEATED OF HER RIGHTS FROM BEGINNING TO END, CHEATED AS WAS THIS WOMAN OF NEARLY HALF A MILLION YEARS AGO?

The so-called educated and superior classes have the impertinence to laugh at the women who at last have had the courage and the intelligence to make a stand for their rights, to demand a share in the making of laws that will protect them against the brutality that has lasted a half-million years.

The Cheapest Working Animal

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Writes on This World

It Is Getting Better All the Time, She Declares, So Do Not Worry and Fret, but Improve Yourself and Push Ahead.

Written For The Atlanta Georgian

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

THERE are hundreds of otherwise sensible and good men and women in the land today who are wasting precious vital force, and losing great opportunities for achievement, in a useless and foolish worry and despondency over the industrial situation of the country.

Food is high; rents are high; fuel is high, and the trusts and monopolies are carrying things from bad to worse.

YET ALL THE TIME THE WORLD IS IMPROVING. And all the time we are going toward a better era.

Work for Improvement.

Great men and great women are thinking and working to bring about an improved system of life and labor; and more work is being done for the uplifting and enlightenment of the race than ever before since the earth came out of chaos.

So do not dwell too much on the troubled social conditions of the day and grow bitter and pessimistic over them.

The situation is one which calls for all your optimism and cheerfulness.

The world has been wagging on for millions of years, and will continue to wag, and humanity has been slowly improving and will continue to improve slowly for many millions of years.

The first important thing for you to do is to improve yourself, and that you can not do if you grow bitter and despondent and harp continually upon the evil of the world.

If you allow your mind to dwell upon the scarcity of fuel and its high price, you will not increase the supply of fuel or lower the price, and you will exhaust your own vital forces, which might, properly conserved, fire you with ambition enough to go forth and invent some new fuel.

Help by Example.

Try in the moments of greatest gloom to realize that out of such strife and chaos as exist just now new conditions are formulated and in time are materialized. Be ready to meet these new conditions and be worthy of them.

It is useless to ask for a better social system unless the people who form it are better.

A government is made by the people. If it is faulty, it is because the people are faulty.

If it is to be bettered, the people must become better.

Begin with yourself. Keep wholesome, and hopeful, and reasonable, and industrious, and economical.

Help others to do so—not entirely by advice, but by example.

Try to save a little of what you earn to meet the emergency that may come. You think you can not, but if you once realize how little you really need to sustain life and keep well and strong you will find you can economize.

Half the food we now consume is more than enough! And the things which cost more are almost invariably the things we need least.

Consume fresh air, breathe deep and develop your muscles with outdoor exercises or room calisthenics. Look on the philosophical side of life and think cheerfully. Believe progress is back of all this chaos, just as you know the torn-up conditions of the city streets indicate future comfort and convenience for the people.

Everything will settle down by and by. Be ready to settle down with it, a healthy, hopeful, useful citizen.

It's Not a Theory.

Do not allow yourself to go to pieces with old conditions.

If you want to know some very interesting things which are being done for humanity get some leaflets and pamphlets describing the Single Tax propaganda.

There is something in the movement and the work being done for the whole world of thinking people.

The soul of Henry George is marching on, after his body is mouldering in the grave.

It will convince you that Single Tax is not a theory, but a great and wonderful Fact—and that in its principles lies the lifting of the race from slavery to independence.

.:. Saving Humanity's "Seed Corn" .:.

By REV. T. B. GREGORY.

THE foundation of the first real reform school, at Mettray, France, seventy-four years ago, marks the beginning of one of the most vitally important institutions that are at work among us at this time for the uplift of the race.

The honor of starting this most effective propaganda for the salvation of the young, who may well be called the "seed-corn" of humanity, belongs to M. de Metz, at one time a great lawyer in Paris.

Dangers to Youth.

In the Gay City Metz witnessed the temptations and dangers to which young boys and girls were exposed; he saw them falling by multitudes into the way of evil; and, what was more to the point, he observed that even the worst of the delinquents never quite succeeded in totally demoralizing themselves, and that most of them were redeemable if approached in the right spirit and assisted by the proper environment.

Set Himself the Task.

With this conviction deep set in his mind the ex-councillor set himself to the task of putting his faith to the test of actual experiment. Putting his hands into his own pockets, and into the pockets of as many of his friends as would allow it, he soon had a considerable amount of cash, and upon ground given by the Vicomte de Courcelles the Reform School was built and put into operation.

The results more than justified the good man's dream; and when, some years later, M. de Metz lay upon his deathbed, he was comforted with the happy consciousness that he had wrought nobly and permanently for the Humanity he loved so well.

The Mettray School set the world a-thinking, and it was not long before other countries were establishing similar institutions. Great Britain, Germany, Austria, Italy, the United States fell into line, and the idea of saving the boys and girls from becoming hardened criminals became almost a passion.

To-day—less than a century after the foundation of the school at Mettray—the institutions for the moral uplift of juvenile delinquents are to be numbered by the thousands. They have ramified not only throughout Christendom, but are to be found in the so-called "Pagan" lands of the earth, where Christianity, as an organization, is but little known.

Wherever humanity is found there in the midst of it is the spirit of the Paris lawyer—which is, of course, but a reflection of the spirit of the Great Brother of us all—working to save the youth of the race, to redeem fallen boys and girls from the grip of the destroyer and to restore them to the ways of decency and peace.

If all the youth who have been reached and lifted up to a sense of self-respect and happiness by these reform schools could be got together what a procession they would make!

Needs No Monument.

The temptation is strong to ask the question: Has M. de Metz a monument? But how foolish, after all, the question would be. He needs no monument. This same mighty army of redeemed youth is his monument and he requires no other.

"$2,500 per annum for clothes is sufficient."—NEWS ITEM.

TWENTY-FIVE HUNDRED a year for clothes!
Gee, Bill, just think of that—
Twenty-five hundred for nothing but clothes!
I wonder how much for a hat?

Why, Daddy works like a slave,
An' he can't get no such clothes, he can't.
An' those 'at he does get are all worn out,
An' come as a gift from my aunt.

Twenty-five hundred! Whew, what a pile!
An' figurin' on ten bones a suit—
Why, two hundred and fifty new suits each year—
Gosh, that gink must be a beaut'!

Dad brings in six hundred a year,
An' on that we live an' pay rent.
Why can't my daddy have plenty of dough?
Ain't he as good as that gent?

Twenty-five hundred a year for clothes!
Gee, Bill, just think of that!
Twenty-five hundred for nothing but clothes!

COOK'S SENSATIONAL AFFIDAVIT

FAIN NAMED IN VICE QUIZ AS RESORT VISITOR

Police Commissioner Accused Before Grand Jury of Brawl in Disorderly House.

As a climax of revelations made before the Grand Jury in its probe of vice conditions in Atlanta, Police Commissioner William F. Fain was named as the central figure in a carousal said to have been held in a house on Ivy Street some months ago, according to evidence presented at the Wednesday afternoon session.

Mr. Fain was also accused of brutally treating one of the women in the party. When the police answered the woman's screams and raided the place, it was said that Fain was arrested, but was immediately released by order of a man high up in police circles.

This startling information was given the Grand Jury by a real estate operator and friend of Fain's who was summoned by the tribunal to give testimony.

Whisky For Resorts.

Before the witness left the hearing, it is declared that he laid bare one of the most sensational stories of vice ever brought to light in this city. That the Grand Jury will probably probe to the bottom of it, and that its veracity will be given the acid test before any action is taken is assured.

Another witness at the afternoon hearing was J. E. Skags, agent for the Southern Express Company. Mr. Skags was asked to testify as to shipments of whisky and other liquors into Atlanta to places of ill-fame.

Chief Beavers also was called before the Grand Jury during the afternoon session. The police official is declared to have told the jurors that to his knowledge Atlanta was better morally at this time than ever before. The chief will be called again later in the investigation.

Chief Beavers Cleared.

Elimination of Chief of Police Beavers from all charges of graft and corruption in the Police Department, made by Colonel Thomas B. Felder, marked the second day's probe by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

Colonel Felder made this distinction to Chief Beavers personally, and in so doing renewed his accusations against Chief of Detectives Newport A. Lanford.

At the same time it was said evidence of corruption money being paid to the police had been given the Grand Jury.

There was a dramatic situation in the ante-room to the Grand Jury room when Felder, Beavers and Lanford confronted each other. Many hot words were flung back and forth.

"I want to say to you right here," declared Felder to the police chief, "that I have never made one single charge of graft against you. I do accuse the other chief at the police station of protecting vice, and I have a superabundance of evidence to prove it. I will prove it."

Bribery To Be Probed.

Another unexpected turn in the investigation was revealed at the morning session when it became known that the Grand Jury will take up immediately the bribery charges made against Colonel Felder by the Police Department and counter-accusations growing out of their dictograph episode.

Colonel Felder appeared before the tribunal at its morning session and demanded that the dictograph conspiracy be probed to bed rock. The attorney based his demand upon his own desire for exoneration of the sensational accusations. He declared to the jurymen that the charges were absolutely false and the result of an

County Gets Bill For Phagan Burial

A bill for the burial of Mary Phagan provoked considerable debate at the meeting of the County Commissioners Wednesday. The bill was for $45 and was submitted by Undertaker W. J. Black.

Commissioner Clifford Anderson said that he believed Coroner Donehoo should be censured for approving the bill before it had been submitted to the Commission. Mr. Anderson admitted that the circumstances were exceptional and said that he did not take the stand that the bill should not be allowed, only that it should have come before the Commission before it was approved by the Coroner.

J. GILLESPIE, "BEANED," WILL PROBABLY RECOVER

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 4.—A slight improvement was noted this afternoon in the condition of Third Baseman Jimmy Gillespie, of the Chattanooga Club, whose skull was fractured by a pitched ball yesterday.

It is almost certain he will recover.

JACOBSON WILL BE OUT OF GAME FOR TEN DAYS

MOBILE, ALA., June 4.—William Jacobson, center fielder of the Mobile club, one of the leading hitters of the league, will be confined here to an infirmary on account of fever and an injury to his side. He will be out of the game for at least ten days.

WALKER HITS HOME RUN IN FIRST INNING

PONCE DE LEON BALL PARK, June 4.—The Crackers and Billikens met here this afternoon in a benefit game for the Grocers and Butchers.

The umpires failed to show up at the grounds and Rohe and Bagby were selected to handle the indicators.

Bill Smith sent Dent and Chapman in for Atlanta, while Dobbs selected Case and Gribbens for Atlanta.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

Walker opened the game for the Billikens by lacing the ball to left center and made a home run on the drive. Wares bounded one to Alperman and was out to Agler. Manning smashed a hard grounder to Alperman and was out to Agler. Sloan went out the same way. ONE RUN, ONE HIT.

Long grounded to Manning, who fumbled the ball for an error and Tommy was safe at first. Welchonce tried to sacrifice with a bunt to Manning. The latter threw wild to first and Long raced to third. On the hit and run Alperman laced a single to left and Long scored, while Welchonce took second. Bailey sacrificed, Manning to Kutina. Welchonce went to third and Alperman to second on the play. Smith was called out on strikes. Bisland grounded out, Case to Kutina. ONE RUN, ONE HIT.

Painter Was Refused Policies Business Plans Suffered Check

E. O. PAINTER, Jacksonville fertilizer man, whose death in the St. Johns River is being investigated by insurance companies because of the fact that he had taken out over $1,000,000 life insurance in four months preceding his death.

Theory Offered That He Needed More Insurance to Protect Stockholders.

By COLE E. MORGAN.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., June 4.—Edward Okie Painter's family and intimate friends positively state their belief that his death in the St. Johns River on May 22 was accidental and not premeditated or due to mental aberration, as is talked in Jacksonville.

They declare his business was in excellent condition, his home life ideal and that he had no cause to seek self-destruction.

The insistence of insurance salesmen to write policies, because he was considered an excellent risk, and because a spirited competition among insurance rivals had ensued this spring, are the explanations offered for his taking out a million dollars of new insurance since February 1.

A persistent report in insurance and business circles to-day, explaining the probable motive for suicide, is that Painter had been checked in financial plans he had under way when insurance companies refused to issue additional policies on his life within a week before his death.

Planned to Increase Holdings.

According to this report, Painter had launched plans to double the $350,000 book value capital stock and surplus of the E. O. Painter Fertilizer Company to $700,000 by the sale of a new stock issue. It is said he proposed with these funds to enlarge the company's operations, not only in the United States, but in the West Indian Islands and South America, where the company already has holdings, to be prepared to extend operations upon the completion of the Panama Canal.

An explanation of the million dollars' new insurance, much of which was made payable to the company and the rest to his estate and family, is suggested in that this would give an added security to the company's stock as a protection to stockholders in the event of his death and therefore would prove an asset of negotiable value.

It was planned to declare a 15 per cent dividend on the outstanding stock at a stockholders' meeting yesterday afternoon, but this was not done, the meeting adjourning with practically no business transacted.

This dividend, it is pointed out, would have established the utmost confidence in the minds of investors coupled with Painter's high standing in business circles.

Such a dividend would have made the sale of additional stock a comparatively easy matter. Many planters, particularly in Florida and South Georgia, it is stated, were ready to purchase blocks of the new stock, whereby they would be enabled to reduce their fertilizer bills by buying from a company in which they held stock and received dividends.

Organs at John Hopkins.

Coroner Abbott stated this afternoon that all of Painter's vital organs sent to Baltimore are in the hands of chemists there. He said he had received a message to-day that Dr. Charles Glaser, of Johns Hopkins, had completed the chemical analysis of the heart, stomach and other functional organs and that Dr. McLeary this afternoon would complete a pathological examination of Painter's brain.

The reports of these chemists are expected in Jacksonville by the Coroner on Friday afternoon, whereupon he will summon the jury and witnesses for a complete investigation into Painter's death early next week.

He declared the whole story of

SAYS SHE HEARD FRANK'S WIFE TELL MOTHER FRANK HAD THREATENED SUICIDE

Incoherent Statement by Employee of Frank Household That Must Not Be Taken as Legal Evidence Until Heard and Corroborated in Court.

Another sensational but strangely incoherent affidavit in the Mary Phagan mystery was made public this afternoon when the police gave out what purports to be a startling statement sworn to by Minola McKnight, negro cook in the Frank household, who was grilled for two hours at police headquarters Tuesday.

The statement quotes the McKnight woman as declaring that she overheard Mrs. Leo Frank tell her mother that Frank had talked of murder and had threatened to get a gun and shoot himself.

The Georgian informs its readers once again that police affidavits are not evidence until they have been accepted in court, and that judgment as to their reliability should be withheld until then.

Statement of Negroes in Full

The McKnight woman's statement is given for what it is worth as follows:

STATE OF GEORGIA—County of Fulton:

Personally appeared before me, a Notary Public in and for the above State and County, Minola McKnight, who lives in the rear of 351 Pulliam Street, Atlanta, Ga., who, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

Saturday morning, April 26, 1913, Mr. Frank left home about 8 o'clock, and Albert, my husband, was there Saturday too; Albert got there I guess aboht a quarter after 1, and was there when Mr. Frank come for dinner, which was about half past one, but Mr. Frank did not eat any dinner and he left in about ten minutes after he got there.

Mr. Frank come back to the house at 7 o'clock that night, and Albert was there when he got there. Albert had gone home that evening but he come back, but I don't know what time he got there, but he come sometime before Mr. Frank did, and Mr. Frank eat supper that night about 7 o'clock, and when I left about 8 o'clock I left Mr. Frank there.

Sunday morning I got there about 8 o'clock, and there was an automobile standing in front of the house, but I didn't pay any attention to it, but I saw a man in the automobile get a bucket of water and pour into it. Miss Lucile (Mr. Frank's wife) was downstairs, and Mr. and Mrs. Selig were upstairs. Albert was there Sunday morning, but I don't remember what time he got there. When I called them down to breakfast about half-past 8 I found that Mr. Frank was gone. Mr. and Mrs. Selig eat breakfast and Miss Lucile didn't eat until Mr. Frank came back and they eat breakfast together. I didn't hear them say anything at the breakfast table, but after dinner I understood them to say that a girl and Mr. Frank were caught at the office Saturday. I don't know who said it, but Miss Lucile and Mr. and Mrs. Selig and Mr. Frank were standing there talking after dinner. I didn't know the girl was killed until Monday evening. I understood them to say it was a Jew girl, and I asked Miss Lucile and she said it was a Gentile.

Frank Said: "It's Mighty Bad."

On Tuesday Mr. Frank says to me: "It is mighty bad, Minola; I might have to go to jail about this girl and I don't know anything about it."

I heard Mrs. Rauzin, Mrs. Frank's sister, tell Miss Lucile that it was mighty bad, and Miss Lucile said, "Yes, it is; I am going to get after her about it." I don't know what they were talking about.

Sunday Miss Lucile said to Mr. Selig that Mr. Frank didn't sleep so good Saturday night. She said he was drunk and wouldn't let her sleep with him, and she said she slept on the floor on the rug by the bed because he was drinking. Miss Lucile said Sunday that Mr. Frank told her Saturday night that he was in trouble; that he didn't know the reason why he would murder, and he told his wife to get his pistol and let him kill himself. I heard Miss Lucile say that to Mrs. Selig. It got away with Mrs. Selig mighty bad, she didn't know what to think. I haven't heard Miss Lucile say whether she believed it or not. I don't know why Mrs. Frank didn't come to see her husband, but it was a pretty good while before she come to see him, maybe two weeks. She would tell me, "Wasn't it mighty bad that he was locked up?" and she said: "Minola, I don't know what I am going to do."

When I left home to go to the Solicitor General's office they told me to mind how I talked. They pay me $3.50 a week, but last week she paid me $4, and one week she paid me $6.50. Up to the time of the murder I was getting $3.50 a week, and the week right after the murder I don't remember how much they paid me, and the next week they paid me $3.50, and the next week they paid me $6.50, and the next week they paid me $4, and the next week $4.

One week Mrs. Selig give me $5, but it wasn't for my work, and they didn't tell me what it was for.

They just said, "Here is $5, Minola," but, of course, I understood what they meant, but they didn't tell me anything at the

DANIEL O'NEILL, a powerful, self-made man, forces his only daughter, Mary, into a loveless marriage with the impecunious and profligate Lord Raa, so that his ambition to have his descendants the rightful heirs of the one earldom in Ellam may be realized. Mary, a convent-raised young woman, whose happiness is supposed to follow her father's dictates, dares to hope that her loveless union with this ungodly man may be purged of all its sordidness by the sacred sacrament through which she and her husband have just passed. That this hope is unfounded the events of their first evening together soon prove to her. Shocked to discover his lordship to be a man of sordid, sensual passions, Lady Raa refuses utterly to have anything to do with her husband until such time as he can prove himself worthy of her love. During the honeymoon abroad Alma Lier, a divorcee who had been expelled from the convent Mary attended in Rome, attaches herself to the party, and makes the "honeymoon trip" a long series of slights and insults for Lady Raa.

At last Lady Raa becomes certain of the infidelity of her husband and of his misconduct with Alma Lier. On her return to London Mary encounters her old play-fellow, Martin Conrad, who has returned from his triumphant expedition to the Antarctic. Drawn into ever-closer relations with the only man for whose friendship she had ever cared, Mary finally awakes to the fact that she is hopelessly in love with Martin. Terrified by this knowledge, and finding herself more and more in love with Martin, she determines to run away from the cause of her distress, and go home.

Mary's home-coming to Castle Raa is a sad affair. Her husband fills the tumble-down old mansion with his fast friends from London, including Alma Lier, who assumes control of the household. Ultimately the illness of her father offers Mary excuse for escape from the intolerable environment. But before visiting her old home Mary appeals in turn to her Bishop and to he father's lawyer, only to be told that neither Church nor State can offer any relief from her false position. Eventually she consults Father Dan, telling him that she can no longer live with her unfaithful husband, but his counsel is that she cleave to the Church and give up Martin Conrad. She returns next day to Castle Raa to find that Martin is arriving for a farewell visit, and that by Alma Lier's deceitful scheming the whole house party has gone off for a few days' cruise.

During her three days alone with her lover Mary fights a grim battle with temptation, only to find on the last night that her faith in renuncia Don, and the laws of the Church is a fragile thing compared with her overwhelming love for this pure-hearted man. With Martin's passionate words, "You are my real life, I am your real husband," ringing in her brain she forgets everything else, and with strong steps walks across the corridor to Martin's bedroom. This is the action which Martin has advised as being the only course open to them which is sure to bring the one result they are determined to attain—Mary's divorce from Lord Raa.

Mary determines, after the departure of Martin Conrad, to sink her identity in the whirlpool of London. She is driven by fear of Lord Raa's discovery of her unfaithfulness to him; she is equally afraid of the venomous tongue of Alma Lier. Mary books passage for Liverpool on the midnight steamer, travelling in the steering to further guard her flight.

Alone in London.

AT eight o'clock next morning I was in the train leaving Liverpool for London.

I had selected a second-class compartment labelled: "For Ladies," and my only traveling companion was a tall, fair woman, in a seal skin coat and a very large black hat. She had filled the carriage with the warm odor of eau-de-cologne and the racks on both sides with her luggage, which chiefly consisted of ladies' hat boxes of various shapes and sizes.

Hardly had we started when I realized that she was a very loquacious and expensive person.

Was I going all the way? Yes? Did I live in Liverpool? No? In London, perhaps? No? Probably I lived in the country? Yes? That was charming, the country being so lovely.

"Any friends in London?"

"No."

"None whatever?"

"None whatever.

"But won't you be lonely by yourself in London?"

"A little lonely, perhaps."

Being satisfied with what she had found out about me, my traveling companion (probably from the mere love of talking) told me something about herself.

She was a fashionable milliner and had a shop in the West End of London. Occasionally she made personal visits to the provinces to take orders from the leading shopkeepers, but during the season she found it more profitable to remain in town, where her connection was large, among people who could pay the highest prices.

By this time we had reached Crewe, and as there was some delay in getting into the station, my traveling companion put her head out of the window to inquire the cause.

"I see what it is," she said. "The shooting season is over, and the society people are coming down from the moors. I know lots and lots of them. They are my best customers—the gentlemen at all events."

"The gentlemen?"

"Why, yes," she said with a little laugh.

After some shunting our Liverpool carriages were coupled to the Scotch train and run into the station, where a number of gentlemen in knickerbockers and cloth caps were strolling about the platform.

My companion seemed to know them all, and gave them their names, generally their Christian names, and often their familiar ones.

She Dodges Her Husband's Friend.

Suddenly I had a shock. A tall man, whose figure I recognized, passed close by our carriage, and I had only time to conceal myself from observation behind the curtain of the window.

"Hello!" cried my companion. "There's Teddy Eastcliff. He married Camilla, the Russian dancer. They first met in my shop, I may tell you."

I was feeling hot and cold by turns, but a thick veil must have hidden my confusion, for after we left Crewe my companion, becoming still more confidential, talked for a long time about her aristocratic customers, and I caught a glimpse of a life that was on the verge of a kind of fashionable Bohemia.

More than once I recognized my husband's friends among the number of her clients, and trembling lest my husband himself should become a subject of discussion, I made the excuse of a headache to close my eyes and be silent.

My companion thereupon slept, very soundly and rather audibly, from Rugby to Willesden, where, awakening with a start while the tickets were being collected, she first powdered her face by her fashionglass, and then interested herself afresh in my own affairs.

"Did you say, my dear, that you have no friends in London?"

I repeated that I had none.

"Then you will go to a hotel, I suppose?"

I answered that I should have to look for something less expensive.

"In that case," she said, "I think I know something that will suit you exactly."

It was a quiet boarding establishment in Bloomsbury—comfortable house, reasonable terms, and, above all, perfectly respectable. In fact, it was kept by her own sister, and if I liked she would take me along in her cab and drop me at the door. Should she?

Looking back at that moment I cannot but wonder that after what I had heard I did not fear discovery. But during the silence of the last hour I had been feeling more than ever weak and helpless, so that when my companion offered me a shelter in that great, noisy, bewildering city in which I had intended to hide myself, but now feared I might be submerged and lost, with a willing, if not a cheerful heart, I accepted.

She Arrives at Her New Home.

Half an hour afterward our cab drew up in a street off Russell Square at a rather grimy looking house which stood at the corner of another and smaller square that was shut off by an iron railing.

The door was opened by a young waiter of 16 or 17 years, who was wearing a greasy dress suit and a solid shirt front.

My companion pushed into the hall, I followed her, and almost at the same moment a still larger and perhaps grosser woman than my friend, with the same features and complexion, came out of a room to the left with a serviette in her hand.

"Sophie!"

"Jane," cried my companion, and pointing to me she said, "I've brought you a new boarder."

Then followed a rapid account of where she had met me, who and what I was, and why I had come up to London.

"I've promised you'll take her in and not charge her too much, you know."

"Why, no, certainly not," said the sister.

At the next moment the boy waiter was bringing my trunk into the house on his shoulder, and my traveling companion was bidding me goodbye and saying she would look me up later.

When the door was closed I found the house full of the smell of hot food, chiefly roast beef and green vegetables, and I could hear the clink of knives and forks and the clatter of dishes in the room the landlady had come from.

The Grotesque Set of Fellow Boarders.

"You'd like to go to your bedroom at once, wouldn't you?" she said.

We went up two flights of stairs covered with rather dirty druggeting, along a corridor that had a thin strip of linoleum, and finally up a third flight that was bare to the boards, until we came to a room which seemed to be at the top of the house and situated in its remotest corner.

"I dare say this will do for the present," said the landlady, and though my heart was in my mouth I compelled myself to agree.

"My terms, including meals and all extras, will be a pound a week," she added, and to that also, with a lump in my throat, I assented, whereupon my landlady left me, saying lunch was just on, and I could come down stairs when I was ready.

A talkative, cockney chambermaid with a good little face brought me a fat, blue jug of hot water, and after I had washed and combed I found my way down to the dining room.

The company, who were of both sexes and chiefly elderly, seemed to me at that first sight to be dressed in every variety of out-of-date clothes, many of them rather shabby and some almost grotesque.

Raising their faces from their plates they looked at me as I entered, and I was so confused that I stood hesitating near the door until the landlady called to me.

"Come up here," she said, and when I had done so, and taken the seat by her side, which had evidently been reserved for me, she whispered, "I don't think my sister mentioned your name, my dear. What is it?"

I had no time to deliberate.

"O'Neill," I whispered back, and thereupon my landlady, raising her voice, and addressing the company as if they had been members of her family, said, "Mrs. O'Neill, my dears."

Then the ladies at the table inclined their heads at me and smiled, while the men (especially those who were the most strangely dressed) rose from their seats and bowed deeply.

The Missing Peeress.

OF all houses in London this, I thought, was the least suitable to me.

Looking down the table I told myself that it must be the very home of idle gossip and the hotbed of tittle-tattle.

I was wrong. Hardly had I been in the house when I realized that my fellow-guests were the most reserved and self-centered of all possible people.

One old gentleman who wore a heavy mustache, and had been a colonel in the Indian army, was understood to be a student of Biblical prophecy, having collected some thousands of texts which established the identity of the British nation with the lost tribe of Israel.

Another old gentleman, who wore a patriarchal beard and had taken "orders" without securing a living, was believed to be writing a history of the world, and (after forty years of continuous labor) to have reached the century before Christ.

An elderly lady with a benign expression was said to be a tragic actress who was studying in secret for a season at the National Theater.

Such, and of such kind, were my housemates, and I have since been told that every great city has many such groups of people, the great prophets, the great historians, the great authors, the great actors—those the world does not know, the odds and ends of humanity—thrown aside by the rushing river of life into the gulleyways that line its banks, the odd brothers, the odd sisters, the odd uncles, the odd aunts, for whom there is no place in the family, in society, or in the business of the world.

It was all very curious and pathetic, yet I should have been safe, for a time at all events, in this little corner of London into which chance had so strangely thrown me but for one unfortunate happening.

That was the arrival of the daily newspaper.

There was never more than a single copy. It came at 8 in the morning and was laid on the dining room mantelpiece, from which (by an unwritten law of the house) it was the duty as well as the honor of the person who had first finished breakfast to take it up and read the most startling part of the news to the rest of the company.

She Hears the Story of Her Disappearance.

Thus it occurred that on the third morning after my arrival I was startled by the voice of the old colonel who, standing back to the fire, with the newspaper in his hand, cried: "Mysterious disappearance of a peeress."

"Read it," said the old clergyman.

The teacup which I was raising to my mouth trembled in my hand, and when I set it down it rattled against the saucer. I knew what was coming, and it came.

The old Colonel read:

"A telegram from Blackwater announces the mysterious disappearance of the young wife of Lord Raa, which appears to have taken place late on Thursday night or in the early hours of Friday morning.

"It will be remembered that the missing lady was married a little more than a year ago, and her disappearance is the more unaccountable from the fact that during the past month she has been actively occupied in preparing for a fete in honor of her return home after a long and happy honeymoon.

"The pavilion in which the fete was to have been held had been erected on a headland between Castle Raa and a precipitous declivity to the sea, and the only reasonable conjecture is that the unhappy lady, going out on Thursday night to superintend the last preparations, lost her way in the darkness, and fell over the cliffs.

"The fact that the hostess was missing was not generally known in Ellan until the guests had begun to arrive for the reception on Friday evening, when the large assembly broke up in great confusion.

"Naturally much sympathy is felt for the grief stricken husband."

After the colonel had finished reading I had an almost irresistible impulse to scream, feeling sure that the moment my housemates looked into my face they must see that I was the person indicated.

They did not look, and after a chorus of exclamations ("Most mysterious!" "What can have become of her?" "On the eve of her fete, too!") they began to discuss the disappearance in general, each illustrating his point by reference to the subject of his own study.

It would take long to tell of the feverish days that followed—how newspaper correspondents were sent from London to Ellan to inquire into the circumstances of my disappearance; how the theory of accident gave place to the theory of suicide, and the theory of suicide to the theory of flight; how a porter on the pier at Blackwater said he had carried my trunk to the steamer that sailed on Thursday midnight, thinking I was a maid from the great house until I had given him half a crown (his proper fee being three pence); how two female passengers had declared that a person answering to my description had sailed with them to Liverpool; how these clews had been followed up and had led to nothing, and now, finally, the correspondents had concluded the whole incident of my disappearance could not be more mysterious if I had dropped from midair into the middle of the Irish Sea.

Reward of 500 Pounds Offered for Information.

But then came another development.

My father, who was reported to have received the news of my departure in a way that suggested that he had lost control of his senses (raging and storming at my husband like a man demented), having come to the sudden conclusion that I, being in a peculiarly sensitive condition, had received a serious shock resulting in a loss of memory, offered five hundred pounds reward for information that would lead to my discovery, which was not only desirable to allay the distress of my heart broken family but urgently necessary to settle important questions of title and inheritance.

With this offer of a reward came a description of my personal appearance.

"Age twenty; a little under the medium height; slight; very black hair; lustrous dark eyes; regular features; pale face; grave expression; unusually sunny smile."

It would be impossible for me to say with what perturbation I heard these reports read out by the old colonel and the old clergyman. Even the nervous stirring of my spoon and fork made me wonder that my housemates did not realize the truth, which must, I thought, be plainly evident to all eyes.

They never did, being so utterly immersed in their own theories, but all the same I sometimes felt as if my fellow guests in that dingy house in Bloomsbury were my judges and jury, and more than once, in my great agitation, when the reports came near to the truth, I wanted to say, "Stop, stop, don't you see it is I?"

That I never did so was due to the fact that not knowing what legal powers my father would have had to compel my return to Ellan, the terror that sat on me like a nightmare was that of being made the subject of a public quarrel between my father and my husband, concerning the legitimacy of my unborn child, with the shame and disgrace which that would bring not only upon me but upon Martin.

I had some reason for this fear.

After my father's offer of a reward there came various spiteful paragraphs (inspired, as I thought, by Alma, and written by the clumsier hand of my husband) saying it was reported in Ellan that if my disappearance was to be accounted for on the basis of flight, the only "shock" I could have experienced must be a shock of conscience, rumor having for some time associated my name with that of a person who was not unknown in connection with Antarctic exploration.

It was terrible.

After awhile I realized that not only my housemates, but all London, was discussing my disappearance.

It was a rule of our boarding house that during certain hours of every day everybody should go out as if he had business to go to, and having nothing else to do, I used to walk up and down the streets. In doing so I was compelled to pass certain news venders' stalls, and I saw for several days that nearly every placard had something about "the missing peeress."

When this occurred I would walk quickly along the thoroughfare with a sense of being pursued and the feeling which a nervous woman has when she is going down a dark corridor at night—that noiseless footsteps are coming behind, and a hand may at any moment be laid on her shoulder.

But nobody troubled me in the streets, and the only person in our boarding house who seemed to suspect me was our landlady. She said nothing, but when my lip was quivering to the old colonel read that cruel word about Martin, I caught her little gray eyes looking aslant at me.

One afternoon, her sister, the milliner, came to see me according to her promise, and thought she, too, said nothing, I saw that while the old colonel and the old clergyman were disputing on the hearth rug about some disappearance which occurred thousands of years ago, she was looking fixedly at the fingers with which, in my nervousness, I was ruckling up the discolored chintz in my chair.

Then in a moment—I don't know why—it flashed upon me that my traveling companion was in correspondence with my father.

That idea became so insistent toward dinner time that I made pretense of being ill (which was not very difficult) to retire to my room, where the cockney chambermaid wrung handkerchiefs out of vinegar and laid them on my forehead to relieve my headache—though she increased it, poor thing, by talking perpetually.

Next morning my landlady came up to say that if, as she assumed from my name, I was Irish and a Catholic, I might like to receive a visit from a Sister of Mercy who called to the house at intervals to attend to the sick.

I thought I saw in a moment that this was a subterfuge, but feeling that my identity was suspected, I dare not give cause for further suspicion, so I compelled myself to agree.

A few minutes later, having got up and dressed, I was standing with my back to the window, feeling like one who would soon have to face an attack, when a soft footstep came up my corridor and a gentle hand knocked at my door.

"Come in," I cried, trembling like the last leaf at the end of a swinging bough.

And then an astonishing thing happened.

A young woman stepped quietly into the room and closed the door behind her. She was wearing the blue and white habit of the Little Sisters of the Poor, but I knew her long, pale, pain-featured face in an instant.

A flood of shame and at the same time a flood of joy swept over me at the sight of her.

It was Mildred Bankes.

Identified.

"MARY," said Mildred, "speak low and tell me everything."

She sat in my chair, I knelt by her side, took one of her hands in both of mine, and told her.

I told her that I had fled from my husband's house because I could not bear to remain there any longer.

I told her that my father had married me against my will, in spite of my protests, when I was a child, and did not know that I had any right to resist him.

I told her that my father—God forgive me if I did him a wrong—did not love me, that he had sacrificed my happiness to his lust of power, and that if he were searching for me now it was only because my absence disturbed his plans and hurt his pride.

I told her that my husband did not love me either, and that he had married me from the basest motives, merely to pay his debts and secure an income.

I told her, too, that not only did my husband not love me, but he loved somebody else, that he had been cruel and brutal to me, and therefore (for these and other reasons) I could not return to him under any circumstances.

While I was speaking I felt Mildred's hand twitching betwen mine, and when I had finished she said, "But, my dear child, they told me your friends were broken-hearted about you; that you had lost your memory and perhaps your reason, and therefore it would be a good act to help them to send you home."

"It's not true, it's not true," I said.

She Told Me How She Came To Be There.

And then in a low voice, as if afraid of being overheard, she told me how she came to be there—that the woman who had traveled with me in the train from Liverpool, seeing my father's offer of a reward, had written to him to say that she knew where I was and only needed somebody to establish my identity; that my father wished to come to London for this purpose, but had been forbidden by his doctor; that our parish priest, Father Donovan, had volunteered to come instead but had been prohibited by his bishop, and finally that my father had written to his lawyers in London, and Father Dan to her, knowing that she and I had been together at the Sacred Heart in Rome, and that it was her work now to look after lost ones and send them safely back to their people.

"And now the lawyer and the doctors are downstairs," she said in a whisper, "and they are only waiting for me to say who you are that they may apply for an order to send you home."

This terrified me so much that I made a fervent appeal to Mildred to save me.

"Oh, Mildred, save me, save me," I cried.

"But how can I? How can I?" she asked.

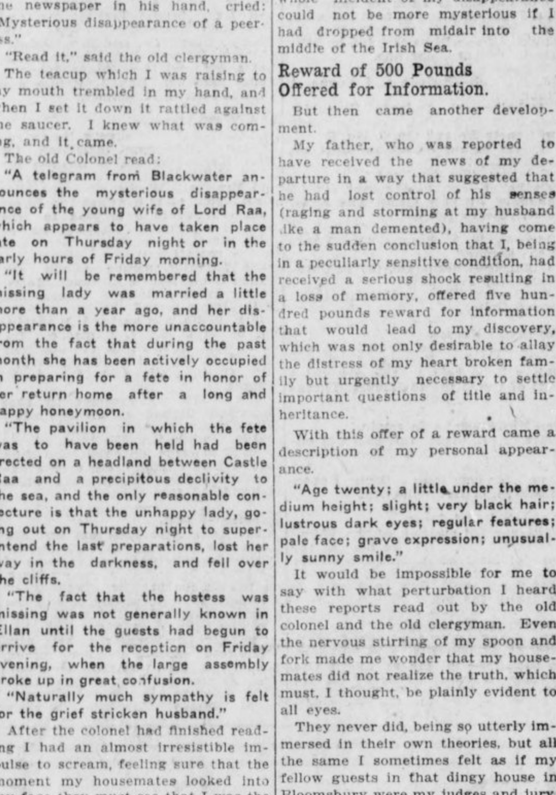

I saw what she meant, and thinking to touch her still more deeply I told her the rest of my story.

I told her that if I had fled from my husband's house it was not merely because he had been cruel and brutal to me, but because, I too, loved somebody else—somebody who was far away but was coming back, and there was nothing I could not bear for him in the meantime, no pain or suffering or loneliness, and when he returned he would protect me from every danger, and we should love each other eternally.

Mary O'Neill, the heroine of this great story. In "The Woman Thou Gavest Me" is contained the true story of Mary O'Neill, told by herself and written from her memoranda. Forced into a loveless marriage with the profligate Lord Raa, Mary is despondent and later terrified to find that she has fallen desperately in love with an old play-fellow. Read how she fights against temptation, only to be overcome with her overwhelming love for this man. This is the story you have been hearing about and the one that has created such a sensation throughout the country. Mr. Caine has not minced words in discussing the true-to-life situations that continually occur in his novel, but paints word-pictures of living truths that drive their lessons home.

"I passed through the streets stunned, stupefied, feeling as if I were running away from some malignant curse, the newsmen pursuing me, darting out from every street crying "Paper—third e'shen—loss of the Schosha!"

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

WE must go & call on the Sternbecks tonite, sed Ma. You know how much I think of Missus Sternbeck. She is a deer littel lady, Ma sed, eeven if her taste in dress is a littel wobbly. I know you will not not the kind of a man to worship like her husband, beekaus you are welth, sed Ma, & that is about all Mister Sternbeck has. He is worth a hogs-hed of munny. He cud buy the Panama canal after it is finished, Ma sed, & make a private pickrel pond out of it.

I wish we dident have to go, Pa sed. I hate to set & listen to sum fat rich man telling how he started on a shoe string & beecalm the coupon-clipping kid. I have offen had to set & hear that kind of guff, Pa sed, wen all I had in my pocket was a hard, thin dollar. Isent thare sum way we cud git out of all this visiting rich folks?

I wuddent think of disappointing Missus Sternbeck tonite, sed Ma. So we went.

A Fine Home.

The Sternbecks live in a very fine hoam. It is a lot bigger than our flat, but it isent so nice looking, thare is too much furniture in it & gold fraims, etc. I toald Ma that & she sed I shud be vary careful what I sed. Missus Sternbeck was a deer littel lady, like Ma sed, but Mister Sternbeck was fat & common. He started rite in telling how much wine he had in his wine cellar. I marked down all the amounts in a littel book & wen he saw me doing it he asked me why I was marking down the prices he menshuned. I toald him that wen he got all thru I was going to add the figgers up & find out how much munny it wud cost me to keep house wen I got to be a self made man. Then everybody laffed excep him.

I cud see that Pa had an awful grouch on, beekaus he grinned all the time the way he grins at me wen he stands neer the door with a slipper & says "Bobble, see here a minnit." But the rest of the peepul thot he seemd to be having a good time.

We had a very fine dinner & after the dinner Missus Sternbeck & Ma started to look at sum fashun magazeens & us men went into the smoking room.

Here are some very expensive cigars, sed Mister Sternbeck. Thay cost me one thousand dollars a thousand. I am glad yure littel son doesnt smoak, he sed. It wud seem a shaim to waste a dollar cigar on him. Try one of these, he sed to Pa. Stick one in yure pocket for later in the eevning, he sed. Or if you wud prefer cigarettes, I have sum choice Turkish cigarettes. They cost me one hundred dollars a hundred boxes, he sed.

Wile I was putting down the amounts in my littel book Pa & Mistern Sternbeck started to play a gaim of bilyards & smoak. This is a fine tabel, sed Mister Sternbeck. It cost me one thousand dollars & Willie Hoope played on it onst & sed it was one of the best tabels on wich he had evver played. Isent that a fine cue you are using? he asked Pa. It is, sed Pa. I cud see that Pa was gitting colder & colder all the time to thaw out, but after awile he did, you get.

Try sum of this Rhine wine, sed Mister Sternbeck. It is very rare. It cost me twenty dollars a quart. Smack yure lips over a glass of it, he sed. Pa drank sum & he did smack his lips. Have another, sed Mister Sternbeck. Expense is nothing to me when I entertain.

Pa Starts In.

So Pa had a other drink & a other, & then he sed How noabel is welth. How I admire a man wich can, by the sheer force of his geenyus, carve a career to Welth & Prosperity. Long may you live & wax wealthier, good friend Sternbeck, sed Pa. If thare is ever anything I can do for you, call me up or wire me & I will be glad to fly to yure aid. Doant hesitate to call on me, Pa sed. I wud do anything for you.

Then thay had two more glasses of wine & Pa sed Well, well, I can't seem to maik a singel shot, but I am proud to be beat by a scholar & a gentelman like you. Hevings bless you & all yure honestly ac-quired welth, sed Pa. I wish you was worth abilyun, sed Pa. I wish you the saim, sed Mister Sternbeck.

On the way hoam Pa kep telling Ma what a noble man Mister Sternbeck was. Thare is one man in a milyun, sed Pa.

I guess munny talks, all rite, & rhine wine, too.

A Difference.

"Say," remarked Harry, "how d'ye teach a gurl t' swim?"

"O-oh, that's easy!" replied his chum. "You take her vurry gently down t' the water; an' you put an arm aroun' her waist; an' you whisper: 'De-ar, don't be fri——' "

"Come off yer perch! It's my sister!"

"Oh, yer sister! Shove 'er in!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

By LILIAN LAUFERTY.

HAVE you begun to wonder what has become of the girl who is petite and dainty and sweet, who is not an undulating giantess of snaky figure, but who represents lovely girlhood of the kind that has charmed the world for ages?

Be of good cheer. "Girl—real girl" exists in spite of all the cut-off-the-same pattern evidence to the contrary. She exists, for I have seen and talked to her. Isabell D'Armond—one of B. F. Keith's charming Lights o' Vaudeville, and who is well known in Atlanta, having appeared on several occasion at the Forsyth—is petite and dainty and sweet, and very, very clever—clever enough to understand her type and not depart therefrom, and sweet enough to flit through your brain to the tune of the dear old refrain:

"Dainty little dimpled darling,
Fairer than the new-blown rose,
Pure and modest as the buds of spring-time,
Sweetest flower that blows;
Laughter like the softest music,
Roguish, smiling eyes of blue—
Ah, to know you is to love you, sweetheart,
Dainty little ingenue."

All of which applies to dainty Miss D'Armond except that her eyes are softly brown with the pure blue-whites that betoken clean, sane, good health.

A Clear Skin.

Even under the make-up, Miss D'Armond's skin showed clear and blemishless; her facial contours were firm and rounded, with no sagging lines at chin or throat or eyes. No athlete in the prime of condition ever had firmer flesh and more satiny skin. And this is not the result of chance, for Miss D'Armond knows just how to achieve these results.

"I do not believe in soap or even water for the face," said she. "Water makes wrinkles, especially when its use is followed by that of a linen or damask towel. I use a bath towel to dry my face when I wash it once a week. Are you shocked at that? Please don't be, for I am sure I keep my face clean! Cold cream and plenty of it—that is my means for cleansing and keeping the flesh firm; and then I always rub up—up under the chin, up from the sagging wrinkles that like to cut a path from nostril to lip corners, and up under the eyes with light strokes. Cold cream packed firmly under the eyes at night keeps away the tiny network of wrinkles that it is so hard to avoid. And tiny strips of court-plaster at the outer corners of the eyes and across the furrows that come between the eyes smooth them out.

"And now, listen to the party I have with myself once a week: On Sundays, generally, I wash my face, and it is quite a process, for only on one day of the week do I use water on my face. First a good washing with warm water and castile soap, then a thorough steaming, followed by a witch hazel rub, next a dash or two of cold water, and finally my old friend, cold cream, again."

With Miss D'Armond's firm, satiny skin and clear facial contours to recommend her treatment, I add my indorsement for her theory; and if the girl whose face is too fat, or whose skin shows a tendency to sag or wrinkle, will try it, surely she will bless pretty Isabell D'Armond, as double chins and sallow skin vanish and clear skin and firm flesh take their place.

Our Girls Prettiest.

"You go abroad so much," said I, "with a London season only a few weeks ahead, tell me just how you think our girls compare with those of other countries, won't you?"

"Oh, American girls are the prettiest of all," said this dainty American with the glowing enthusiasm she brings to whatever demands her attention. "American girls are well groomed, well bred and have a fine outdoor swing when they walk—that is, if they walk naturally and not just a la mode. But fat does threaten us—sweets and comfort and petting and pampering do that. I am very careful about not getting fat—and I take simple precautions besides plenty of exercise in the walking line.

"Let me tell you about my anti-fat methods—a glass of hot water the first thing on getting up in the morning and then a simple breakfast beginning with acid fruit. Plenty of hot water and acid fruit keep the system clean and sweet. No potatoes, no bread—though unbuttered toast is harmless—few sweets, no fats and no water at meals—that is a diet that it is not a hardship to endure. And then always stand after meals. That is not a fad—it is a fact in the thinning process. I am not recommending anything that I have not tried out myself, and I am glad to help any girl who is determined not to be a victim of the 'white woman's burden'—fat."

The great brown eyes looked at me earnestly, the merry mouth was ready to tremble into its infectious little crooked smile—one of the gayest, most heart-reaching smiles imaginable—and suddenly one of dainty Isabell D'Armond's greatest beauty secrets revealed itself to me; it is this—her unselfish interest in all that goes on around her—her genuine admiration of other women, her sweet, sane oneness with all of life.

Up-to-Date Jokes

A certain witty judge was trying a case recently where a dealer sued a steamship company for the loss of some pigs in a fire on board a cross channel boat. It came out in evidence that the steamer had a large deckload, and here the damage was greatest.

The judge thus began his charge to the jury:

"Gentlemen, to put those pigs on deck was a rash act, but to fry them was a rasher."

.:. Some Don'ts for Girls .:.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DON'T compare the criticisms of your parents with the compliments paid you by a young man to the detriment of the former. The criticisms are at least based on sincerity.

Don't regard every compliment paid you as a reason why you should have your photograph taken. Frequent visits to a photographer are signs of a vain mind.

Don't seek information from a dream book. No one expects much from the girl who seeks information from a dream book instead of from an encyclopedia.

Don't get the prevalent notion that the young man who spends a month's salary in giving you a good time thinks more of you than the man who refuses to spend a week's. The latter loves more sanely.

Don't overlook the importance of a love affair with your father. That is the best investment in the love of man that any girl can make.

Don't forget that mother is a human being, and sometimes gets tired.

Don't feel the third time a young man has called on you that it is time for you to take possession and demand that he account for the evenings he spent somewhere else.

Don't accept attentions from the wrong kind of a man, excusing yourself because they mean nothing and are trivial. Remember that the girl who walks only as far as the corner with the wrong kind of man will meet every one she knows on the way.

Don't resent the desire of your parents to know something of the young man who calls on you. They fail in their duty to you if they lack this desire, or fail to act upon it.

Don't give your heart to a man who refers to his parents as "the old lady" and "the old man."

Don't ever outgrow the habit of your childhood of telling your mother when you get home all that happened at the party. It is more important that you tell her what happens now you are grown than that you told her when you were little.

Don't forget, if you have a little, that you have more than your parents had in their youth, and that they have struggled every day since you came into the world with that unselfish ambition in view.

Quite So.

"What became of that little kitten you had?" inquired the visitor of the small boy of the house.

"Why, haven't you heard?"

"No; was it drowned?"

"No."

"Lost?"

"No."

"Poisoned?"

"No."

"Did you give it away?"

"No."

"Then whatever did become of it?"

"It growed up into a cat."

But, with a movement of great swiftness Garson got in front of her, and barred her going. For a few seconds the two stared at each other searchingly as if learning new and strange things, each of the other. In the girl's expression was an outraged wonder and a great terror. In the man's was a half-shamed pride, as if he exulted in the strength with which he had been able to maintain his will against her supreme effort to overthrow it.

"You can't go," Garson said sharply. "You might be caught."

"And if I were," Mary demanded in a flash of indignation, "do you think I'd tell?"

There came an abrupt change in the hard face of the man. Into the piercing eyes flamed a softer fire of tenderness. The firm mouth grew strangely gentle as he replied, and his voice was overtoned with faith.

"Of course not, Mary," he said. "I know you. You would go up for life first."

Then again his expression became resolute, and he spoke imperiously.

"Just the same, you can't take any chances. We'll all get away in a minute, and you'll come with us." He turned to the men and spoke with swift authority.

"Come," he said to Dacey, "you get to the light switch there by the hall door. If you hear me snap my fingers turn 'em off. Understand?"

Went to His Station.

With instant obedience the man addressed went to his station by the hall door, and stood ready to control the electric current.

The distracted girl essayed one last plea. The momentary softening of Garson had given her new courage.

"Joe, don't do this."

"You can't stop it now, Mary," came the brisk retort. "Too late. You're only wasting time, making it dangerous for all of us."

Again he gave his attention to carrying on the robbery.

"Red," he ordered, "you go to that door." He pointed to the one that gave on the passageway against which he had set the chair tilted. As the man obeyed Garson gave further instructions.

"If any one comes in that way get him quick. You understand? Don't let him cry out."

Chicago Red grinned with cheerful acceptance of the issue in such an encounter. He held up his huge hand widely open.

"Not a chance," he declared, proudly, "with that over his mug." To avoid possible interruption of his movements in an emergency he removed the chair Garson had placed and set it to one side, out of the way.

"Now, let's get to work," Garson continued eagerly.

Mary spoke with the bitterness of defeat.

"Listen, Joe! If you do this I'm through with you. I quit."

Garson was undismayed by the threat.

"If this goes through," he countered, "we'll all quit. That's why I'm doing it. I'm sick of the game."

He turned to the work in hand with increased energy.

"Come, you, Griggs and Red, and push that desk down a bit so that I can stand on it." The two men bent to the task heedless of Mary's frantic protest.

"No! no! no! no! no! Joe!"

Red, however, suddenly straightened from the desk and stood motionless, listening. He made a slight hissing noise that arrested the attention of the others and held them in moveless silence.

"I hear something," he whispered. He went to the keyhole of the door leading into the passage. Then he whispered again, "And it's coming this way."

At the words Garson snapped his fingers. The room was plunged in darkness.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Noiseless Death.

There was absolute silence in the library after the turning of the switch that brought the pall of darkness. Long seconds passed, then a little noise—the knob of the passage door turning. As the door swung open there came a gasping breath from Mary, for she saw framed in the faint light that came from the single burner in the corridor the slender form of her husband, Dick Gilder. In the next instant he had stepped within the room and pulled to the door behind him. And in that same instant Chicago Red had pounced on his victim, the huge hand clapped tight over the young man's mouth. Even as his powerful arm held the newcomer in an inescapable embrace there came a sound of scuffling feet and that was all. Finally the big man's voice came triumphantly.

"I've got him."

"It's Dick!" The cry came as a wail of despair from the girl.

THE TRIPLE TIE

A Story for Baseball Fans That Will Interest Every Lover of the National Game

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Copyright, 1913, by International News Service.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"I've simply got to," replied Farrell. "Chance got a telegram from Long Tom Morrissey saying that Kelly had Cobb and Speaker and all the others beaten to death. I rushed a man down there to buy him, but you see he's up against it. Chance says we've got to have him, so I'm going down to get him; that's all. Say," he exclaimed suddenly, "What's the matter with your going down there with me? You could help a lot."

"Maybe I'd better go with you. The American League must have that fellow," replied Johnson, after a thoughtful pause. "What time can we get a train?"

Johnson and Farrell boarded the Seaboard Fast Mail that pulled out of the Pennsylvania Terminal at half after midnight and the first persons they bumped into were President James R. McAleer and Vice President John I. Taylor, of the Boston American League club, owners of the Red Sox, champions of the world. Taylor broke into a hearty laugh.

"Lemme see your ticket," he said to Farrell and Johnson.

"Lemme see yours," replied Farrell.

They produced long strips of green paper for mutual inspection, and there was another hearty laugh all around.

"Atlanta, eh? I thought so," said Taylor. "You must mean business, Frank, to take Ban along with you."

"Oh, I don't know, John. I see you're going along with Mac to make sure of this fellow, Gordon Kelly," retorted the New Yorker.

"I received a telegram a yard long from Patsy Donovan this noon," said McAleer, "and I decided that if we wanted this fellow we better take the bull by the horns, so I phoned John and asked him to go to Atlanta with me, and here we are. Say, there's going to be some fun down there, by the looks of things."

Whole City Excited.

When the party reached Atlanta they found the city in the greatest state of excitement over the impending baseball deal which involved Gordon Kelly. The newspapers were full of news concerning the arrival of the magnates. There were long interviews with the big club owners from the North. The magnates would say little in regard to Kelly, beyond the statement that they had heard he was a fine ball player, and they would not acknowledge they were in Atlanta for the purpose of buying his release from the Atlanta club. They were willing to talk on general baseball topics, however. The gathering of the magnates took on the aspect of a great political convention and the newspapers handled it that way. Columns and columns of space were devoted to it.

By noon that day fifteen out of the sixteen big league clubs were represented in the persons of their presidents and Atlanta became, politically, the baseball center of the world.

As yet no definite move had been made by any of the club owners to bring the Gordon Kelly matter to a show down with the officials of the Atlanta club. The affair had assumed such an importance that each visiting magnate hesitated about making the first approach. President Johnson, of the American League, of whom no more clever baseball diplomat exists, sized the situation correctly before he had been in Atlanta three hours. He thought it all out in his room in his hotel and then brought his fist down on the table with a bang.

"The American League positively must land Gordon Kelly," he said aloud, although no one was with him in his room. "It's got to be done and I'm going to do it."

CHAPTER XVI.

AUGUST HERRMANN, President of the Cincinnati National League Baseball Club, and chairman of the National Commission, the "Supreme Court of Baseball," was the first of the magnates to make a determined effort to buy the release of Gordon Kelly from the Atlanta Club. He sought and obtained a personal conference with President Callaway of the Atlanta Club and got right down to business without wasting words. He explained that in his capacity as President of the Cincinnati Club he had come to Atlanta to make an offer for Kelly's services, that he understood that previous offers had been of a more or less vague sort, and wound up by making a flat proposition to buy Kelly's release for $15,000 cash.

"But, Mr. Herrmann," expostulated Callaway, "the Atlanta Club does not want to dispose of Gordon Kelly. We all appreciate the significance of all you owners of the big clubs coming to Atlanta at this time, but we really don't care to talk business."

To this Herrmann replied:

"Speaking now as chairman of the National Commission, I would say that one of the fundamental rules of the commission is that a ball player must be allowed to improve his condition when ever the opportunity presents itself. The Southern League is hampered by a salary limit, while there is no limit to the salary a major league club may pay a player. There is nothing in the laws of the State or nation that can compel you to dispose of Kelly's services, but the Atlanta Club, which could not exist as a financial proposition except for organized baseball, owes it to baseball that this player's services should be disposed of to some major league club. The Cincinnati Club may not be the successful bidder, but the facts remain the same."

"This puts the Atlanta Club in a very embarrassing position, Mr. Herrmann," returned Callaway, "and without accepting or rejecting your offer I must call a meeting of our directors and take a vote on the matter."

Before the directors could get together, however, several other magnates called on the Atlanta Club's President, or had him on the telephone, the result being that within half an hour an offer of $25,000 cash was made by one of them.

The directors of the club were in session a full hour, after which President Callaway announced that the Atlanta Club, while disposed to reject all offers, felt the necessity, aside from all financial considerations, of living up to the obligations of organized baseball and that, such being the case, they would sell Gordon Kelly's release to the best advantage of the stockholders of the club.

There was general rejoicing among the magnates over this declaration and corresponding gloom among the "fans" of Atlanta, who were promptly informed of the decision through "extras" issued by the afternoon newspapers. The moguls were about to gird on their armor to renew the battle for Gordon Kelly, when Callaway suggested that all business be put aside for the moment in order that all hands might attend the game at Ponce DeLeon Park and see the player who had set the baseball world on fire.

It had been raining most of the night before and part of the morning. The afternoon was dark and murky and the conditions were very unfavorable for a ball game. What with the dreary, dun-colored clouds trailing their dim regiments overhead, the drearier rain soaking the field into a swamp and the ghoulish-looking players ranting around in the mud like a squad of Kiraify's high kickers, the spectacle was anything but edifying to the assembled crowd. But any sort of a day was good enough to see Gordon Kelly play and there was a surprisingly large crowd on hand when the game began.

The game itself was not calculated to promulgate heart disease. Gordon Kelly had no opportunity to distinguish himself in the field. One very easy fly ball was all that came in his direction. At bat, however, he knocked out two singles and a three-bagger, but attempted no base stealing, as the condition of the diamond made it dangerous.

That evening the visiting magnates were dined at the gorgeous Capital City Club by the directors of the Atlanta Baseball Club. After the solids were disposed of Herrmann, of Cincinnati, arose and after apologizing for intruding business on pleasure, remarked that he, for one, must hurry back to his home on an urgent matter and suggested that the matter of Gordon Kelly be settled then and for all.

At that President Johnson of the American League called his club owners to a corner of the room and addressed a few earnest remarks to them. It quickly developed that the price already offered for Gordon Kelly was as high as most of them cared to go. It was something unprecedented in the history of baseball that a player who had been in the game only a few days should command such a figure, and many of the club Presidents were already alarmed at the turn affairs had taken.

$250 in Prizes for Best Solution of "The Triple Tie"

YOU read the first fourteen installments of the great baseball mystery story of "The Triple Tie" and now you have a fair idea of the simplicity of the offer The Georgian makes—how you may win $100 by working out the solution of the mystery as nearly as its author, A. H. C. Mitchell, has done as you can.

Mr. Mitchell has written the last chapter, but his copy is sealed up in a vault at the American National Bank. When all but this final chapter has been printed, The Georgian readers will be asked to submit to three competent judges, none of them connected with this newspaper, their version of what the grand denouement should be.

To the person who most closely approximates Mr. Mitchell's final chapter $100 will be awarded. Other prizes, making the total prize list $250, also will be distributed.

Here is the list of the awards:

No. 1	$100
No. 2	$50
No. 3	$25
No. 4	$15
Nos. 5 to 16, each	5

Read the fifteenth installment of the great mystery story and you will not need to be urged to read the succeeding chapters. The story will grip you. As you read, try to follow the author's channel of thought and when the time comes for you to sit down and write that final chapter, be ready to win one of the big cash prizes in The Georgian's great offer.

QUAKER HERB EXTRACT DOES THE WORK

Mrs. R. T. Bartlett, of Lakewood Heights, Was Immediately Relieved of Acute Indigestion

My kind friends, there is a cure for indigestion or sour bloating stomach, not something that you have to take after or before you eat as long as you live, but a remedy that cleanses and heals that mucous lining, puts the stomach and bowels in good, healthy condition, builds up the entire system so you don't have to keep suffering with that misery. Quaker Herb Extract is a complete cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness or any form of stomach trouble, it will cure catarrh in any form, rheumatism, liver, kidney or bladder troubles.

Here is a report of a lady, Mrs. R. T. Bartlett, who resides at Lakewood Heights, Route No. 2, Box 144, was troubled with Acute Indigestion: "No matter what I ate seemed gas would form from it, causing me much misery. This gas would cause my stomach to bloat, my heart to palpitate, my breath to get short and would give me dizzy spells. It seemed my food would not digest properly, causing me distress. I used doctors' treatments and different kinds of medicines, but nothing helped me. I seemed to be getting worse, and, as I realized something had to be done, I concluded to try once more, and therefore, I called at Coursey & Munn's Drug Store for a treatment of Quaker, which was six bottles. I simply can not tell how quickly this great remedy helped me. People will not believe it if I tell them, but it is so. I eat heartily without any stomach distress following. I simply beg and hope that any and all persons who might be suffering like I did, to at least try the wonderful Quaker Herb Extract." $1.00 per bottle, three for $2.50, or six for $5.00. Oil of Balm, 25c, or five for $1.00. Call to-day at Coursey & Munn's Drug Store, 29 Marietta Street, and obtain these wonderful Quaker Herb Remedies. We prepay express charges on all orders of $3.00 or over.

GROCERS' DAY CROWD TO GIVE RECORD A TILT

By Percy H. Whiting.

IF the weather at game time this afternoon is sufficiently salubrious (Noah Webster please write) we are likely to give Birmingham something more to think about in the matter of attendance. It wouldn't be surprising if the mid-week record got a jar.

For there will certainly be some few enthusiasts at Ponce DeLeon ball park.

This is Grocers' and Butchers' Day.

The grocers, butchers and a lot of wholesalers will close this afternoon for the first time and are going to celebrate in various ways, but chiefly by going to the ball park.

The local team has gone to considerable expense in getting the Montgomery club here and expects a big crowd for the occasion.

RIGHT now, while the local crowds are standing up close around the high water mark and the league is more prosperous than ever before in its career it might be well to propound the question:

"Are Southern League clubs being run on a business basis and if they aren't what's going to become of them?"

Carleton Molesworth sounded a note of warning the other day in the following statement:

The managers in this league are spending too much money for the receipts they get. The attendance does not justify the disbursements now being made. Three cities in the league are drawing well and they are Mobile, Atlanta and Birmingham. Others are hardly paying the guarantee except on holidays.

The next big change in the league is bound to be a curtailment of expenses and it may come quicker than we expect. I have no kick to offer in Birmingham because the people there certainly support a ball club superbly. Whether you are winning or losing, they attend the game. It's a big place and we have a great population to draw from.

OF course here in Atlanta we haven't sprung any worry-wrinkles nor will we for the next 50 years. The local club is well backed. And Atlanta is a real baseball town.

That is more than can be said of some of the other cities in the league, including at least one—Memphis—which has size enough to turn out any old crowd.

YEAR in and year out the average Southern League clubs spend too much for their teams. Year in and year out the Southern League loses money—that is, the total of profits of all clubs is less than the total of losses.

Either the league cities have got to grow mighty fast to catch up with the salary limit or else the league will come a cropper some day.

In the meantime, I guess we should not lose sleep over it.

WITH new pitchers coming Cracker prospects are looking up again. Not in years, if ever, has a Southern club bought as many and as high-priced pitchers and secured such a weak staff. Look at the slather of them that Bill Smith had at the first of the year and how well they were recommended. And look at what's left now and what they have been doing.

It would be extremely helpful if this guy Counzelman turned out to be a bear. The other man Pittsburg sent down here, under optional agreement—Bisland—turned out to be a corker. Maybe Counzelman will do equally well.

While the Crackers were disappointed not to get the unrestricted ownership of Counzelman's services it is an encouraging sign that Barney Dreyfuss would not sell him outright. It was apparent that he expected the man to make a real pitcher some day. Otherwise he would have preferred money to his services.

MAYBE the blight of punk pitchers inflicted on Atlanta by the fates was a blessing in disguise and designed to keep up the interest in baseball.

Even without pitchers Bill Smith has been able to keep his club right up in the race. The Crackers are in such a position that with a little hurling help they can set sail for the Gulfs, with every chance in the world of overtaking them.

I'm looking for a close finish this year.

The Crackers are going to get their stride after a bit and start winning. Their slump has to end after a bit. They are in a good position to make the race. Give them the pitchers and watch them fly!

HAL CHASE MAY NOT REPORT TO WHITE SOX

NEW YORK, June 4.—Hal Chase, traded by the Yankees to the White Sox, refused to report to his new club yesterday. When seen in the grandstand at the Yankees-Naps game and asked why he wasn't in Chicago with the White Sox, chase intimated that it was nobody's business but his own. He would make no answer to the question as to whether he would refuse to report to-day.

Coach Heisman on Amateurism

College Players and Summer Ball

By J. W. Heisman.

THIS is the time of the year when the college player gets out a copy of the rules of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, and reviews them all carefully. Either he does this with the idea of refreshing his mind regarding the things he must not do if he wishes to be eligible for college playing again next spring, or to see if he cannot work out a way to go and play where and how he pleases, this summer, and yet not violate the letter of the laws.

For years the college players all over the country have been straining at the leash and trying to get away from the hard and fast rules that all colleges now lay down regarding summer baseball by their students; but thus far there has been no lengthening of the chain anywhere. In fact at every meeting of the S. I. A. A. some new law is passed which only shortens the restraining rope still more.

IT is a well understood rule all over the country that one who takes money for participation in any athletic event whatsoever above his necessary expenses thereby professionalises himself, for which reason he is debarred from further athletic association with amateurs. In England they go very much further still. There only "gentlemen" can be amateurs; and a gentleman, in this sense, is defined to be one who has never worked for a living—that is, one who has never earned money by work, no matter what kind of work. This strikes us as the height of absurdity, and it is safe to say that such a definition of the amateur will never take foothold in America.

But while young Americans in this day and time understand full well that it is against the rules of amateur sport to accept money for work of this kind, there are many each year who do accept it, and who still expect to engage or continue in amateur sports, and in college sports as well. Sometimes they just baldly lie about it when it comes to filling out blanks regarding these points.

But generally, they salve and save their consciences by making a sale of an old pair of suspenders, or a cigar, or a pocket knife to some officer of the summer team with which they are playing for the trifling sum of $50 or $100, as the case may require. Or they will sit in a little poker game for ten minutes and have such a run of luck (?) as will net them, say $50.15 or $100.30. Or the stipulated remuneration is sent by the manager of the club to the boy's brother, father or friend, and so neither he nor any other official of the summer team has given him a cent; it is the relative or friend who has given it to him.

THEN there is another rule that gives the boys even more trouble. This provides that after a boy has once entered college he shall not thereafter during the summer vacation play upon or with any but his "home" team; and his home team is defined to be one that is in, or belongs to, the county in which that boy has legal residence, and has had that legal residence for at least one year before the playing of said summer ball (not one year before playing college ball with his college team the spring following his playing with the summer team).

Well, some of the boys happen to live in towns or counties where they don't have a team of any kind. That's a tough proposition, and formerly it was covered by the vice president giving a boy permission under such conditions to play with some other nearby team. But of late years the tendency has more and more been for the vice president to refuse such permits, and that leaves such boys high and dry.

But in any case most every boy gets a chance, yes, several chances, to play with some team outside his own county during the summer, and generally he wants to take the chance.

Why? Because often enough there's money in it. But whether there is or not, show me the baseball boy who won't miss even his meals to get into a game of ball most anywhere whether in the Amazonian jungles or on Spitzbergen. Then when he comes back to college and wants to play the following spring he has either to lie about it or automatically rule himself out of college ball for that spring by declining to answer every question and to sign his blank.

Some boys go off to play with a team not from their home county and change their true names for that game. But this has also now been covered by express and adverse legislation. Sometimes they strike a compact with players from other colleges whom they find with their own or the opposition team, and all agree to "keep mum" about it; and sometimes these packs are kept, while again they are not.

Of course before a boy goes to college at all he can play with any team he pleases, whether it comes from or belongs in his home county or not. This is a point not always understood by the prep players, and for their benefit I state it.

ANOTHER rule is that one must never have played even for so much as a single inning with a team that is a member of an organized professional league; and this applies to the boy who has not yet gone to college as well as to the one who has already been to college a session or two. Nor does it make any difference that he was "only trying out" with the professionals and failed to make good, or that he received no money whatever for such playing. Any PROFESSIONAL LEAGUE playing knocks him out for all time and without further ado.

But it is all right to play against a professional team or professional players on the same team with the amateur, so long as it is not a professional league. But competing against a professional in other sports, like foot racing, would knock the amateur out.

THE foregoing is merely an outline of the college rules written for the information and benefit of those who do not happen to be familiar with them.

In a future article I will have more to say regarding the ethical side of these rules, and what changes, if any, might with profit be made.

RINGSIDE NOTES

Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, who battles Jim Savage at the Auditorium-Armory here on June 13, is the most sought after heavyweight in the game to-day. New York wants Flynn to meet Gunboat Smith; Boston is after the Pueblo heavyweight to take on Frank Moran, while McCarey would match Flynn against either Willard or Smith.

• • •

Although Flynn has been before the public for many years he is still one of the greatest drawing cards among the boxers of to-day. His style of fighting closely resembles that of Battling Nelson. He is always on top of his opponent and gives the fans some real milling.

• • •

When Battling Nelson coined the term "cheese champion" and hung it on Willie Ritchie, he said a mouthful and one that is enduring. In fact, quite a lot of our present champions are falling all over themselves in their effort to grab a similar title.

Emil Thiry, manager of Packey McFarland, has accepted the management of Ernie Zanders, the Chicago welterweight. Already Emil is busy trying to close a match with Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul sensation.

• • •

Young Shrugrue and Sam Robideau will don the gloves for a scheduled 10-round battle in Madison Square Garden, New York, Thursday night. Both boys are lightweights.

Leach Cross' last fight before he meets Bud Anderson at Vernon, Cal., on July 4, will most likely be with Harry Trendall, the crack lightweight of St. Louis.

Leach made such a good showing in his bout with Trendall at the St. Louis A. C. a few weeks ago that the officials of the club have wired an offer to Sam Wallach to let Leach fight Trendall a return battle of eight rounds on June 11.

Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion, will take on Frankie Burns at New York Thursday night. It was this same Frankie who gave Johnny the battle of his life a few years ago at New Orleans.

After the Burns set-to Coulon may close for a bout with Kid Williams. Baltimore has offered $3,000 for the go and New Orleans and Los Angeles raised it to $5,000.

• • •

Boston fight fans declare Mike Gibbons the cleverest boxer that has ever appeared in their city. Jimmy Perry probably agrees with the "Beantown" boxing followers.

• • •

The matter of two pounds in weight is all that is keeping Jack Britton and Charlie White from meeting in a 10-round engagement at Kenosha, Wis. White is holding out for 133 pounds at 6 o'clock, while Britton wants to come in at 135 pounds at the same time.

ONE SOUTHPAW ALL LOOKOUTS NEED, SAYS KID

CHATTANOOGA, June 4.—"Give me three good left handers," said Kid Elberfeld as soon as he had analyzed the permanent lineups of his leading rivals, "and I'll capture the rag." The Kid said this two months ago, and he says it now.

To be more exact Elberfeld needs at present but one southpaw to have his wish fulfilled. He has already Summers and Coveleskie. If Kroh, who has just been secured from the Turtles, lives up to expectations, the Kid will have no alibi if he fails to annex the 1913 gonfalon, for the three southpaws asked will be at his disposal.

THE acquisition of Kroh did not occasion any great amount of surprise locally as both Andrews and Elberfeld had had their eyes on the Turtle hurler since first he was seen in action. The Kid believes that he is a corking good man. Coveleskie and Summers can't be surpassed, and if the latest addition does 75 per cent as well as his brother portsiders the Kid will be eminently satisfied.

The sensational winning streaks of Coveleskie, who has won 10 and lost 3 and Summers, who has won 7 and lost 2 seem to substantiate absolutely the assertion of Elberfeld that the Southern this year is a southpaw's league.

Rube Bush Wins Low Score Prize

Atlantans Star in Golf Tourney

By W. R. Tichenor.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., June 4.—The twelfth annual tournament of the Southern Golf Association began here yesterday with an entry of 180 players. Early in the day Louis Jacoby, of Dallas, Texas, turned in a card of 74. Later this was tied by Nelson Whitney, a former champion, whose qualifying round was the first he had ever played over the course. For almost all day it looked as if Whitney and Jacoby would have to play off the tie for the low qualifying score prize, but in the afternoon, when nearly all of the cards were in, R. G. Bush, of New Orleans, finished his round with a 75, which was the lowest score in the tournament.

R. R. Brooke had a fine chance to beat Bush's score when he got "out" in 36, but he went bad on the last four holes coming home, taking three punts to each of the greens and finished with 77.

Audubon Team Wins.

In the team match the Audubon Club, of New Orleans, was again the winner, with a total of 310; the Dallas Country Club was second with 317; Atlanta was third with 328.

Seven Atlanta players qualified in the championship division. Of this number W. R. Tichenor led with 80 and W. H. Rowan was second with 81. The other scores made by Atlantans were: G. W. Adair, 83; Dowdell Brown, 84; R. G. Blanton, 84; C. E. Cowan, 85; H. Block, 86.

The Atlanta players who qualified in the second division were W. Griffith, 89; C. V. Rainwater, 89; D. E. Root, 88; R. P. Jones, 91; W. P. Hazelwood, 91. Captain E. T. Winston, T. B. Paine, Ormond Smith, C. E. Rose and Dr. Joe Eby failed to qualify.

The going in the tournament is faster than it has ever been in any former Southern championship. A difference of only sixteen strokes was shown between the first and the ninety-sixth man.

It took as good as an 87 to get into the championship division, which will contain 64 players this year. It required 91 to get into the second division, which is composed of 32 players.

The surprise of the tournament was the failure of Whitney Bouden, J. W. S. Rhea and Albert Mallory to get into the championship flight.

How Atlantans Are Matched.

In the first round of the match play which began this morning the Atlanta players were matched as follows: H. B. Lock vs. R. G. Bush, Dowdell Brown v. R. H. Baugh, G. W. Adair vs. Gunter Watkins, W. R. Tichenor vs. S. J. Jernigan, W. H Rowan vs. O. H. R. Nicholson, C. E. Corwin vs. J. B. Bush, R. G. Blanton vs. J. B. Cobb. In the second division the Atlanta men are paired as follows: W. Griffith vs. G. B. Edgar, W. P. Hazlewood vs. A. J. Mapes, D. E. Root vs. W. A. Gunter, R. P. Jones vs. Whitney Bouden, C. V. Rainwater vs. R. P. Hagan.

The course is in fine condition, but is lightning fast.

It is regretted that F. G. Byrd and W. P. Stewart, former champions, are missing their first Southern championship.

In a practice round yesterday afternoon Louis Jacoby broke the record of the course when he made a 68.

Savage Knocks Out Allen in 2 Rounds

NEW YORK, June 4.—Jim Savage, the New Jersey heavyweight, who is to fight Jim Flynn at Atlanta on June 13, stopped Whitey Allen, of this city, in the second round of a bout here last night.

Savage put up a great fight and handed his opponent a severe lacing. His cleverness completely dazzled Allen, who was unable to lay a glove on him.

Savage also showed that he possesses a wallop. He used a right-hand uppercut with telling effect and displayed good use of his left hand when it came to jabbing.

After the bout Savage stated that he expected to defeat Flynn when the two came together. He is already in good shape.

JOE CONZELMAN REPORTS.

Pitcher Joe Conzelman, farmed in Atlanta by the Pittsburg team, has reported and will be worked within the next few days.

Conzelman was formerly with the Brown University team and pitched wonderful ball with that club. Fred Clarke, of the Pirates, believes he will be a wonder and has kept a string tied to him.

Pitcher-President Hands Himself Own Release

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., June 4.—To hand your own release to yourself is an unusual occurrence. Yet this is what took place here when Pitcher William E. Essick was released by the Grand Rapids Central League club. He was the only member of the pitching staff not yet in condition, and as it was necessary to reduce the number of players to conform with the league limit, Essick was the victim.

The release was drawn up by President William E. Essick, of the Grand Rapids club, with all the customary details. President Essick then placed himself before a mirror and made a speech in which he expressed his regret that the league rules made it necessary for him to release his favorite pitcher.

The document was tendered by the president's right hand and accepted by his left. Thus President Essick released himself as a pitcher of the team of which he is president and majority stockholder.

Essick is a warm weather pitcher and says he probably will sign himself again in midseason.

THE
Ice-Kist Crankless Freezer

Just pack it—that's all! The freezer will do the rest. No crank to turn—no hard work—no dasher to clean—no glass to break—no hoops to fall off.

Be Wise! Make Your Own Ice Cream

Of course, you know that home-made ice creams, sherbets or ices are superior from every viewpoint. They are always sweet, pure and wholesome; there is a flavor and genuine goodness about them that is not found in the general run of factory products. Besides that, when you make your own preparations you know that the ingredients are always pure, and that the can is clean and sanitary. The main reason why ice cream is made in but comparatively few homes, is the work and bother connected with the old-fashioned crank freezer. That is one reason why the arrival of

will be hailed with delight by every one who is fond of ice creams, etc., because it eliminates the tedious turning of the crank entirely, and produces creams, sherbets and ices that will make your mouth water. That is one reason, but there are many others.

DON'T YOU KNOW that the enjoyment of a dish largely depends upon the manner in which it is served? Could you imagine a daintier and more appetizing manner of serving ice creams than provided for by the "Ice-Kist?"

Write us to-day for our beautifully illustrated booklet, telling all about the freezer; it is ABSOLUTELY FREE—and receive our free trial offer.

PROGRAM OUT FOR RACES AT BOARD TRACK

THE program is out at last for the first motorcycle racing meet over the Atlanta Motordrome. It contains nine races, split up into three events. The first will be the Atlanta Sweepstakes, with three heats and a final. The next will be the Motordrome Purse, with three heats and a final. The last number will be a "triangular" match race, which will be framed up later. It is probable that the Atlanta lad, "Smiling Harry" Glenn, will be one of the riders in this event.

The races will be called Friday night at 8:30. The doors will be opened at 7, and the riders will be on the track warming up a half hour or so later.

The races will all be run at short intervals and the program will go through with no lagging.

Tickets for the meet are on sale at Shepherd's Segar Shop, Edgewood Avenue and Pryor Street. Each is provided with a rain check and they will be handled just as baseball rain checks are. If any meet is "rained out" the rain checks will be good for admission at any subsequent meet this year.

Here Is the Program.

The program follows:

First event, Atlanta Sweepstakes, one-mile heats, first man in each heat and second man in fastest heat to qualify for finals.

Race 1—First heat, No. 1, Marty Graves, of Los Angeles; No. 2, Harry Swartz, of Denver; No. 3, Willie Shields, of Brooklyn.

Race 2—Second heat, No. 4, George Lockner, of Syracuse; No. 5, "Tex" Richards, of Dallas; No. 6, Freddie Luther, of Fort Worth.

Race 3—Third heat, No. 7, Georges Renel, of Paris; No. 8, Jock McNeil, of Edinborough; No. 9, Henry Lewis, of Springfield, Mass.

Race 4—Final heat in Atlanta Sweepstakes, five miles. First prize, $40; second prize, $30; third prize, $20.

Second event, Motordrome purse, two-mile heats, first man in each heat and second man in fastest heat to qualify.

Race 5—First heat, "Tex" Richards, Willie Shields, Georges Renel.

Race 6—Second heat, Marty Graves, Henry Lewis, George Lockner.

Race 7—Third heat, Jock McNeil, Harry Swartz, Fred Luther.

Race 8—Final heat in Motordrome purse, three miles. First prize, $35; second prize, $20; third prize, $10.

Race 9—Special three-cornered match race, the riders to be announced Friday night. First prize, $25; second prize, $20; third prize, $15.

Rain Spoils Sport.

The newspaper men's meet, set for Tuesday afternoon, was pretty well smashed up by the rain. A good crowd of Fourth Estaters was present, but scattering showers in the afternoon made any fancy riding impossible. The track was very slippery and at high speed the machines skidded frightfully.

"Tex" Richards and Harry Glenn furnished most of the excitement. The former star rode several miles through the misting rain at express train speed and came back on two wheels, which was more than was expected by those who watched him ride.

Seats went on sale Tuesday at Tumlin's cigar stands, as well as at Shepherd's Segar Shop. The advance demand is heavy.

TIGERS PAY $4,000 FOR PITCHER AND INFIELDER

OTTUMWA, IOWA, June 4.—Detroit has purchased Pitcher Grimes and First Baseman Burns for $4,000, subject to immediate delivery. The deal was made by Manager E. F. Egan, who secured Grimes from Austin, Minn. Burns recently was purchased for $300 from Burlington. Grimes has won eleven straight victories and has not been scored on for thirty consecutive innings. Burns is hitting close to .500.

BALL PLAYER DYING.

RICHMOND, VA., June 4.—Selden N. Mitchell, one of nine brothers who comprised a baseball team in Southside Virginia some years ago, is dying with peritonitis in this city.

YALE ELECTS TRACK CAPTAIN.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., June 4.—George Estabrook Brown, of Philadelphia, a junior in the Sheffield Scientific School, at Yale, last night was elected captain of the Yale track team for next year.

CHANCE AFTER SHORTSTOP.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., June 4.—Manager Frank Chance, of the New York Americans, has offered $5,000 for the immediate release of Frank Host, shortstop of the Venice team, of the Pacific Coast League, according to an announcement made here to-day.

3 Champs Unpopular With Fans

Coulon, Kilbane, Ritchie Disliked

By Left Hook.

NEVER since there were boxers have there been three finer little fellows in the ring than Johnny Coulon, Johnny Kilbane and Willie Ritchie.

Never since there were boxers have there been three more unpopular champions than Johnny Coulon, Johnny Kilbane and Willie Ritchie.

The only thing that could happen to them now to complete the picture would be for them to turn baseball umpires.

The case of Johnny Coulon is a special one, different from the other two. A sick boy, he refuses either to defend the title or to give it up. Every challenge brings from him a wail that his tum tum hurts him and he is going on a long hunting trip.

This has gradually turned a popular little fighter into a very unpopular one. Coulon is disliked because he has practically tied up the entire bantamweight division and blighted the hopes of every boy in it.

Sport World Resentful.

The sporting world seems to feel a just resentment against Coulon for having dived down a hole and dragged the hole in after him.

It is not easy to say just why Kilbane and Ritchie are unpopular. The attitude of the sporting public toward Kilbane is this—they know he got the worst of the decision with Dundee and they are glad he did.

The same would have been true of Ritchie.

The cause of the public grouch against these two fine little fellows seems to be that Ritchie and Kilbane are both "in" the boxing world, but not "of" boxing.

They are too obviously there for money to suit the tastes of the sporting fans. In a rather cool and indifferent way, Kilbane makes this plain. His attitude toward the sporting public strikes one as being somewhat like contempt. He cares nothing for fighting and very little for fight fans.

Is Timid About Capital.

He feels about as much of the hot glow of battle as a turtle. It is believed that Kilbane has courage of the very highest type. In a scrap out at a picnic, merely for the fun of the thing, Kilbane could probably fight like a fiend. But, in the ring, he can't get over the idea that he has placed $50,000 worth of capital in a perilous position. Kilbane is timid only because capital is timid, and Johnny is a capitalist.

Although it may sound paradoxical, Kilbane is one of the most brilliant boxers that ever lived; and he never should have gone into the ring. It is a life he does not belong in. He doesn't know how to act there. He isn't in sympathy with boxing and boxers. He hasn't made a great deal of money; but he is a smart boy and he will be able to invest what he has in some business where he will probably shine.

It is not likely he will be in the ring very long. His passing into business life will end one of the most peculiar careers in boxing annals—a boxing genius who didn't like to box.

Ritchie Reverse of Idol.

Ritchie is the reverse English of a boxing idol because the boxing public resents his luck. Every man who has worked hard all his life and has saved by self-denial has a secret and savage hatred for every one who has made an easy killing.

Billy Nolan added to this feeling by giving the impression that he didn't consider Willie any world beater, but thought it safer to swoop up all the money they possibly could in the stage business before giving any one a chance at the title.

Ritchie is very likely to live down his unpopularity. He will leave the stage very soon and Nolan says he will fight anybody who can show the coin. He is likely to put up a fight that will surprise everybody.

Fight fans seem to forget the pluck and courage with which he faced Ad Wolgast, and the fortitude with which he took one of the most savage beatings imaginable until the lucky blow at the end.

DENT OR PRICE SLATED TO GO AGAINST BILLS

By Joe Agler.

BILL SMITH is figuring on working Dent or Price against the Billikens in to-day's festivities. Chapman will do the receiving. The rest of the line-up will be as usual.

We got in from Nashville in good order this morning.

Our game Tuesday came about as easily as the one of the day before. It took longer, but there was never any more doubt about the one than the other.

"King" Brady twirled his usual game against the Vols—and that means victory about every time. He seems to have something on them.

The Crackers hit the ball, ran bases well and took advantage of the Vols' errors. The score was 8 to 3.

We put another awful dent in Beck's record. They say he is going to the big league with an awful flourish before long, but if he pitched against us every day I'm not so sure about it.

When they stuck in Fleharty he held us, but by that time it didn't make any difference.

The Crackers sure played jam-up ball yesterday. Every man fielded his position in great style and we looked like a real ball club.

I believe we should win today's ball game. I think Dent will be the man worked, and I think he will fool the Bills. If we hit the way we are capable of there will be nothing to it.

BASEBALL

Diamond News and Gossip

Eddie Collins, of the Athletics, got a triple and a homer out of four times at bat yesterday.

Five errors made by the Tigers enabled the Athletics to score a 7 to 3 victory.

Ty Cobb made one hit yesterday out of three times up. Joe Jackson, his batting rival, did ditto.

Leon Ames, traded by the Giants to the Reds about two weeks ago, pitched a three-hit shut-out victory yesterday against the Dodgers.

The Giants' victory yesterday and the Dodgers defeat broke the tie for second place and sent the Giants into the runner-up position, just 97 points back of the Phillies.

The Yankees to date have established a record that is without equal and one which will no doubt stand for all time. They have failed to win a game on their home grounds. They have lost fifteen straight at home since the season opened.

* * *

Sweeney's failure to play for a runner at home in the seventh inning of the Yankees-Naps game turned the tide of battle and enabled the Clevelanders to romp home an easy winner.

* * *

Eddie Ainsmith, Washington catcher, has drawn an indefinite suspension for heaving a handful of sand at an umpire on Monday.

GILLESPIE BEANED; IS IN SERIOUS CONDITION

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 4.—Jimmy Gillespie, third baseman of the local club, was struck on the head by Pitcher Hardgrove, of the Birmingham club, yesterday and to-day is in the hospital in an extremely critical condition. His skull is badly fractured and recovery is doubtful. Gillespie played last year with the Providence club, in the International League.

BROWNS PURCHASE INFIELDER.

SAN DIEGO, CAL., June 4.—Charles Flanagan, shortstop of the San Diego team of the Southern California League, has been sold to the St. Louis Americans. Flanagan will report July 1. The consideration is said to have been $3,500.

PHILLIES AND REDS IN TRADE.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—Manager Dooin, of the Philadelphia National ball team, announced before leaving with his team for Pittsburg that he had secured Beals Becker from the Cincinnati club in exchange for Dodge, a utility infielder.

FOOD FOR SPORT FANS

By GEORGE E. PHAIR.

AUTO POLO.

Auto polo is a cross between two of our most popular institutions—namely, sport and manslaughter.

Its chief object, aside from abusing an innocent ball, is to contribute to the support of deserving morticians and funeral directors.

Its press agent tells us that it "combines all the risks of a bullfight, a football game and a ride in an airship." We fail to see its connection with bullfighting except that the press agent is an adept at throwing the bull. He might have added, however, that it combines all the inspiring features of mayhem and assault with intent to kill.

One of the beauties of auto polo is the training it affords a motorist. An expert auto polo'st can hit a pedestrian at a distance of twenty yards without even taking aim and may always be depended upon to hit .300 on a crowded thoroughfare.

The headquarters of the Auto Polo Association of America is at Floral Park, Long Island, making it easy to obtain flowers for the remains of the losers.

As an athletic exercise auto polo is indorsed by all physicians, especially by those who need the practice.

The origin of auto polo is enshrouded in mystery. As a result its inventor has escaped without his just deserts.

It may be true, as Tim Murnane says, that education does not help a ball player, but it often prevents him from injuring himself with his table knife.

Jules Goux, the gent who won the race at Indianapolis, was kissed by his mechanic. But such is the penalty of success.

Critics on the coast inform us that Jess Willard is a promising heavyweight, but up to date he has been committing breach of promise.

Among other things, Connie Mack is sustained and soothed by the knowledge that he never will be prosecuted for unnecessary noise.

Mr. Cobb avers that he never hears the shouts of the populace, but it will be hard to convince the innocent bystander whom he clouted on the features.

Possibly Mr. Cobb does not hear the hoi polloi, but if he fails to hear the stentorian strains of the popcorn merchants he is deaf and dumb.

NO PLACE FOR AN UMP.

An umpire entered Heaven's gate,
but turned around and fled.
"Why beat it thusly from our midst?"
the good St. Peter said.
"I walked right in," the ump replied;
"I walked right in, and then—
I saw John Evers standing there, and walked right out again."

The savant, or whatever it was, who averred that two heads are better than one, never tried to manage a ball team on that system.

Leland Stanford having whipped the Jap ball team twice in the same place, Mr. Bryan will now come across with an apology.

One is not surprised to hear that the French Government contemplates a Secretary of Athletics, although most politicians are Spanish athletes.

Punishing a ticket scalper by putting his name in the paper is much like sentencing an actor to a column on the first page.

Davy Jones says he will quit baseball rather than play in Toledo, leading one to suspect that somewhere in the dim past he has visited Toledo.

Still, how could Wisconsin expect to win a ball game with a pitcher who labors under the name of Isabella?

Mike Donlin finished among the also rans at Coeur d'Alene, demonstrating that there is something in a name.

The Navy crew having beaten Columbia by a nose, we may expect to see a steed win the Derby by a stroke.

While some may consider polo a parlor game, we fail to see anything particularly effeminate in acting as a doormat for an able-bodied horse.

TOUX TROUX.

There was a young driver named Goux
Who turned on the power and floux.
His machine, the Peugeot,
Showed them all how to geot,
And he shattered a record or twoux.

JOE RIVERS AND RITCHIE FAIL TO AGREE ON WEIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4.—Billy Nolan and Joe Levy could not agree on the weight question to-day and the Willie Ritchie-Joe Rivers match may not take place on July 4.

Nolan insisted on the weight being at 124 at 9 o'clock in the morning and that the fight take place at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Levy is willing to accept 134 pounds ringside, but would not agree to the weight and time named by Nolan.

The matter has been laid over until Thursday, when another discussion will be started.

ROBIDEAU READY FOR GO WITH SHUGRUE THURSDAY

NEW YORK, June 4.—Sam Robideau, the lightweight boxer who is trying to fight his way to the world's title, has arrived from Philadelphia in fine condition for the ten-round battle with "Young Joe" Shugrue, of Jersey City, in Madison Square Garden to-morrow night.

Gus Platts will face Dave Kurtz in the semi-final.

BALL PLAYERS "FRAT" SUES BOSTON AMERICANS

NEW YORK, June 4.—The baseball players' union, known as "The Fraternity," which was organized to protect the interests of the players, yesterday filed a suit against the Boston American League baseball team in the Supreme Court of this city to collect $1,480 damages for Kurt M. Hageman, known as "Casey."

The complainant says he suffered the damages by reason of the club not permitting him to discharge his duties under a contract he signed after June 23, 1912. He was also refused his release when he demanded it. This is one of the first suits brought by the union.

Hageman was a pitcher taken by the Red Sox from Denver in the fall of 1911. He was let out early in 1912 and claims that the Red Sox violated his contract.

HARVARD SHOWS PROFIT OF $27,928 IN ATHLETICS

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., June 4.—Harvard athletics showed a profit of $27,928 for the year ended July 31, 1912, as against a loss of $10,822 for the previous year, according to the report of Graduate Manager W. D. Puttey.

The total receipts from athletic contests amounted to $157,359, and the expenses fere $125,431. The previous year the receipts were $112,097.

GIBBONS DEFEATS WHITE IN TWELVE-ROUND BOUT

BOSTON, June 4.—Mike Gibbons, St. Paul welterweight, put a temporary stop to the title aspirations of Joe White, of Boston, in a twelve-round bout here last night. Gibbons had a big shade in the majority of rounds.

Picking of Ducks Reduces Egg Product

Excitement and Strain Upon System In Producing New Feathers Too Great.

We are so often asked the questions as to picking Runner ducks, feeding, etc., that we wish to express our views upon the subject for the benefit of our readers in general.

The picking of a large, heavily feathered duck like the Pekin or Aylesbury, is a matter of some profit, we presume, for they are not of an excitable or nervous temperament like the Runner.

We believe that the Runner should not be picked at all. There is no question but what the excitement of picking, together with the strain upon the system in producing a new coat of feathers, would greatly reduce the egg product for a considerable period. And you know it would take but a few eggs to amount to more than the amount of feathers secured from the duck at a picking, so we say, Don't.

The feed for laying ducks should be of a good mash, composed as follows: Equal parts of corn meal, wheat bran and middlings, to which add about one-fourth part of good, freshly made beef scraps. At times when other green stuff is scarce, about an equal part of alfalfa or clover meal should be added. This mash should be made up soft—in fact, if it is almost sloppy, all the better. This should be fed every morning and about three nights out of the week, the rest of the time feed cracked corn, wheat, rye, kaffir corn—in fact, any of the good, wholesome grains—for the desired changes they make.

Give Ginger.

Where a flock is being pushed for eggs alone and not to be used as breeders, a little ginger may be given advantageously twice a week, at the rate of a teaspoonful to a flock of 20 to 25.

This is mentioned for the benefit of those who are keeping a lot of Runners for market eggs, expecting to market the ducks also later on.

Young ducks should be started much as chickens are by feeding small mixed chicken feed dry and then a feed of dry bread soaked in milk or cracker crumbs moistened with milk. Rolled oats makes a good addition to the rations, just fed dry. As the ducklings grow older they can gradually be switched to the food used for the grown ducks, bearing in mind at all times that they need a good lot of green stuff in some shape and a lot of grit. It is a good plan to mix the grit right in with their mash, in the shape of sand for the right little ones and coarser grit as they get older. For the first two weeks they must be supplied with a water fountain of some kind, so arranged that they can not get themselves wet. Young and growing ducks should have all the food they will clean up at a time and never allowed to go to bed hungry, it you want good and rapid growth.

Questions and Answers.

Judge Marshall: I would like to know the trouble with some of our chickens.

They appear well and hearty, but stagger and fall over, and will sometimes live for months and eat hearty all the time. If we scare one of them suddenly as they start to run off they will fall and roll over. We have a fine flock of Rhode Island Reds and have lost six or seven in this way. They don't seem to lose much in weight until they get to falling about and until they can't well eat. The comb and gills stay red and indicate good health.

The first sign is they will reel or stagger if frightened and gradually grow worse until they just fall over and reel every time they get up. Two or three were this way for five or six months and seemed hungry all the time. Let me know the trouble and the remedy. P. M.

Townville, S. C.

Answer: It looks to us a good deal like general debility or tuberculosis. We can not tell which, just from the description you have given. Then that other everlasting enemy to the chicken raiser, the mite. The tubercular condition is being found in a good many cases during the past twenty years, and seems to be on the increase, for that reason if you have an idea that that is the trouble you better kill and burn right away and get them out of the company of other good fowls. The general debility phase is a result of carelessness and in-breeding. I say both, because it is usually the result of both. Poultry raisers who have not made a study of the best phases and methods commonly breed from anything that looks like the variety they are raising, often letting color run away with everything else, breeding to specimens that are too small or not developed in breast and body as they should be, or have had some very debilitating disease like roup or canker, and then getting apparently over it, but are very much weakened from its ill effects. This course of breeding through carelessness or lack of knowledge of the matter will, in the course of a few years, produce a strain of fowls that are utterly lacking in stamina or vitality and there will be some of the flock that will go just as you have described—tumbling over from sheer weakness.

Such weaklings are just fit subjects for the tubercular germs to thrive and develop in, so that it is a combination of ailments. However, you had best look well to the mite problem, the least yet often the most disastrous in its results. If your chickens have them get after them and do not let up until you have really conquered the situation.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

$100,000 Wednesday In Real Estate Buys

Peachtree, Luckie, Piedmont, Washington, Buckhead and Railroad Transfers Wake Market.

The local real estate market woke up with a start Wednesday with announcements of more than $100,000 in sales of all kinds, from a semi-central lot sale at $22,000 to a residence lot sale at $175. The Fulton County Daily Report was full of transactions and the real estate men declare that property is now moving more steadily than at any time during the past month.

The George P. Moore Real Estate Agency has announced the following, totaling $88,500, all of which are now on sale:

The southwest corner of Cone and Luckie Streets, part of the Dr. John D. Turner home place, to James E. Hickey for $22,000, or at the rate of $1,100 a front foot. This lot is 20 by 60 feet.

For George P. Moore to a client, Mr. Moore's two-story, nine-room residence at 855 Peachtree Street, between Tenth and Eleventh, for $17,500, or at the rate of $388 a front foot. The lot is 45 by 190 feet.

For John G. Burckhardt to D. H. Lopez the Burckhardt home at the northwest corner of Washington and Glenn Streets for $20,000. Mr. Lopez will subdivide this property, putting a handsome apartment house on the corner and erecting four homes on the Glenn Street side. The frontage on Washington is 121 feet, on Glenn, 409, and there is also a frontage of 123 on Crew Street.

For W. D. Newsom and F. B. Herin, to a client, twelve negro houses fronting 576 feet on the Southern Railway, 470 feet on Hollins Street and cornering on Wells Street, for $15,000.

For Mrs. Lena Swift Hunley to Mrs. Lee Lewman, a 43-by-50-foot lot west of and adjoining the Belle Isle Garage, on the south side of East Third Street, and in the Georgian Terrace block, for $7,000, or at the rate of $163 a front foot, and for Mrs. Huntley to B. Frank and John G. Bell the lot to the west of this, 22 by 50, 75 feet from Peachtree, $3,500. These two lots are in the George Adair subdivision.

Louis M. Johnson, of the Moore agency, sold two lots on Peachtree Road, just north of Roswell Road, to R. G. Brightwell for $3,150. These are in the Huntley subdivision and are 48 feet front each.

Mr. Moore has made two smaller sales: A 25-by-100-foot lot in the Continental Land Company's subdivision on South Avenue to George C. Winters for $175 and to William Beckman a lot in the same subdivision for the same price.

Piedmont and Other Sales.

Robert E. Riley has bought another high-class residence lot and is expected to build a fine home on it. Mrs. Mary Raoul, Gaston C. Raoul and Thomas K. Glenn, executors for the late Captain W. G. Raoul, have conveyed a lot on the west side of Piedmont Avenue, 115 feet north of Fourteenth Street for $10,300. The lot is 70 by 251 feet.

Mr. Riley has built and sold a number of homes. Among them was the stucco house at the northwest corner of West Peachtree Street and West Peachtree Place, where the Connerat Apartments now stand, and the last was on East Fifteenth Street, which Mr. Riley sold a few weeks ago.

Bonds have gone to record in the sale some time ago of Buckhead lots in the Huntley subdivision, through the George P. Moore Agency, and also in several other sales. William J. Davis and James B. Daniel, for instance, have sold for $5,500 to H. Milton Smith a 45 by 240-foot lot on Rice Street, near Angier Avenue, and Mr. Smith has transferred it to Rose G. Smith for a consideration which is withheld.

Small Sales Total $6,500.

The Charles P. Glover Realty Company reports the following small sales in the Brookhaven section:

To Alice A. Gillespie, lot on the east side of Fernwood Drive, 100 by 270, $1,000; to Arthur Kent, north side Fernwood Circle, 100 by 325, $900; to same, south side Fernwood Circle, 100 by 285, $1,000; to J. Douglas Eubanks, east side of Sylvan Drive, 50 by 240, $500; to same, adjoining lot, $500; to Willie Thornburg, north side of Stewart Drive, 50 by 250, $500; to Catherine Ross Wright, north side of Stewart Drive, 50 by 250, $500; to Lillian Hix, same location and size, $500.

Also a 200 by 266-foot lot on the west side of Ashburton Avenue, East Lake, to Mrs. Virginia Howard Logan, for $600.

Night Work on Hurt Building.

So anxious are the contractors that the Hurt Building be completed in schedule time—by October 1—that they have ordered a large part of the work to be done at night. To passersby the sight of bright lights burning off the ends of steel girders and welding the various metal parts has been a revelation. Demands for space in the Hurt Building have continued to come in, and Mr. Hurt expects to rent every office before the formal opening of the structure.

Enthusiasm Over Decatur.

Real estate prospects were generous in their praise Wednesday of the things which they saw on a tour of inspection in Decatur Tuesday. The occasion being "home-coming day," hundreds were in attendance. Realty men used the day to show property, and they report a great deal of enthusiasm over the evidences of progress found by the visitors. A land boom is on at Decatur and announcement of some interesting sales is expected soon.

FOR SALE AT AUCTION!

SIX UP-TO-DATE HOMES
And 19 Ready-to-Build-On Lots
SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1913
At 3 P. M., on the Premises

THESE are 5 and 6-room houses, with every city convenience and connection, including furnace in several of the houses, but no gas as yet. These houses were built of the best material, under the personal direction of Colonel I. N. Ragsdale, who could not be induced to build a shoddy house.

These houses are real city homes, located in the social center of the Tenth Ward, and only a step from the best car service in Atlanta.

We urge you to go out and inspect this property. Each house will be plainly placarded, showing cash payment and monthly payments; also the amount of the loan to be assumed.

THESE HOUSES ARE NOW RENTED, and bring in from $18.50 to $30.00 per month. Think of what a help that will be to you, in meeting your payments, should you not be ready to occupy the house.

The houses and lots front on the following streets:

Arlington Avenue, Princess Avenue and LaRosa Terrace.

Arlington Avenue runs off Lee Street, right at Colonel Ragsdale's handsome home. Princess Avenue runs off of Avon (Oakland) Avenue, between the Baptist Church and Captain E. P. Ryan's fine home, giving the property two approaches, each of which is a prominent street.

THIS SECTION HAS NO OBJECTIONABLE FEATURE

It is logically the place for the people to live who are engaged in business, or who are employed among the many industrial and manufacturing and railroad enterprises around the Terminal Station, Whitehall Street, Mitchell Street, and the Central and West Point Railroads, and the adjacent territory. The car service and the way the streets run prove these statements to be true. Think about it, and you'll see it as we do.

THE LOTS ARE READY TO BUILD ON

These are the lots to buy, either for home sites or for speculation, because they are ready to build on. In addition to this, every lot is a beauty, with nice young oak shade trees scattered over them. Also, because their location is excellent. They are only a short distance from the business center of Oakland City. Only two blocks from the City School, and near the churches; and the farthest lot is only two blocks from the car line; and, best of all, they are socially in the swim, and will range from $150 to $250 cash, and the payments will range from $22.50 per month to $32.50 per month, with 6 per cent simple interest. Small loan on five of the houses, to be assumed by the purchaser.

ALL CITY IMPROVEMENTS DOWN AND PAID FOR.

THE TERMS ON THE HOUSES

THE TERMS ON THE LOTS

are right. Every lot will be sold on terms of $50 cash, and the balance $15 per month, with only 6 per cent simple interest on the deferred payments.

HOW TO GET THERE—Take cars at the corner of Forsyth and Alabama Streets, marked "East Point," "Hapeville" or "College Park." Get off at the corner of Avon (Oakland Avenue). You will then be only a step from this property.

COME AND BE SURE TO BUY—You will never regret it if you do, and you will be sorry if you don't. Get plans from Key at our office or we will be glad to show you through. Price, $8,500, on terms.

BEST APARTMENT SITE IN THE CITY.

AT THE corner of two main thoroughfares, with two car lines, park frontage, and several other attractive features, we have a lot 50x150 feet. This is absolutely the best location on the North Side for an apartment site. $200 per front foot on easy terms. Let us tell you more about this. Also two smaller lots for $6,000 and $5,000 each. Both good for smaller apartments.

ANSLEY PARK, 8-ROOM HOME—$6,500.

FACING the proposed Golf Links, near the Piedmont Avenue car line, we have this 2-story brand new house of 8 rooms; lot is 60x240, or larger if desired. All conveniences and attractive. $6,500, on easy terms to you.

FIVE-ROOM COTTAGE, $2,500—NEAR GRANT PARK.

HERE is a nice little home of 5 large rooms and bath, gas, water and sewer, and in good neighborhood, within 3 blocks of the park. We can make you terms of about $250 cash, assume small loan and the balance, say $25 per month. You will like this on investigation and the terms are BETTER THAN RENT.

10,000 MARCH IN HALF-HOLIDAY PARADE

Bands, Vehicles of Trade and Happy Clerks in Five-Mile 'Emancipation' Pageant.

The mammoth parade of the retail grocers and market men, marking the beginning of the Wednesday afternoon holidays for the employees of the members of the Retail Grocers' and Butchers' Association, started with a blare of trumpets Wednesday afternoon. Over 900 retail grocers and market men of Atlanta closed their doors for the afternoon, and the holiday spirit is rife among the 10,000 participants in the big event.

The parade began to form at 1:30 p. m. at the corner of Washington and East Mitchell Streets, and at 2 o'clock the march began down Washington Street to East Fair, where it turned into Brotherton Street to Whitehall and down Whitehall and Peachtree to North Avenue.

Turning at North Avenue, the paraders marched into West Peachtree and back up to West Baker Street, where they were reviewed by the grand marshals, assistant grand marshals and aides. After the review the line of march was to Five Points, where the parade disbanded.

Mayor Rides Behind Band.

At the head of the parade came the city policemen, followed by the grand marshals of the day, Harry L. Schlesinger and D. N. McCullough. They were followed by an auto truck carrying the Fifth Regiment Band, playing popular airs. Behind the band were Mayor Woodward and the members of last year's holiday committee in automobiles.

Next came the wagons of this year's holiday committee, escorted by Aides Cowan and Mosley and their assistants, Messers. Phillips, J. A. Word, H. A. Bishop and Ed R. Buchanan, on horseback and wearing red sashes and uniforms. The Marist College band, followed by H. Weinberg and his aides, heading the retail grocers and marketmen's wagons, was next in line.

Others in the march were packing house representatives, escorted by Chief Aide M. J. Burton and his corps of aides, the Greater Atlanta Boys' Club Band, handsome floats of the commission men and jobbers, under the escort of Chief Aide J. F. McNair, and Aides J. J. McCarthy, D. C. McNair, J. H. Walker, Willie Reisman and Miller M. White and Weidemeyer's Band, heading the wagons of the bakery and cracker manufacturers, which were under the escort of Chief Aide J. H. Merritt and Assistants J. N. Willis, L. C. Thompson and W. E. Baldwin.

Ice Wagons Come Next.

Next in the line of march came the ice wagons and ice manufacturers' wagons, escorted by Chief Aides C. J. McCoy and R. H. Comer and their ten assistants. The line was brought up by another band and a number of wagons of various trades—manufacturers, retail wagons, laundry wagons and others.

Candies, chewing gum, sandwiches and samples of various food products were distributed from the wagons along the line of march by the merchants and manufacturers. The thousands of people who turned out to see the parade were in no way disappointed. The various floats and unique costumes won many words of approval.

The parade was more than five miles long and more than 10,000 people took part in it. It was under the supervision of F. E. Kamper, chairman of the committee. The parade originated at a luncheon at the Piedmont Hotel last year, given to the members of the 1912 holiday committee of the Retail Grocers' Association. It was first suggested by Harry Schlesinger, and a movement for a Wednesday half-holiday during the months of June, July and August was launched.

Get 400 Signatures.

O. T. Camp, then chairman of the holiday committee, now president of the association, assisted by the city salesmen of the commission and jobbing houses of Atlanta, secured more than 400 signatures to an agreement to close at noon on Wednesdays during the summer months. All the local jobbing houses, commission men and meat packers have agreed to make no deliveries on Wednesday afternoons, and loaned their wagons and city salesmen to this week's parade.

The Atlanta and Montgomery ball teams were brought to Atlanta especially for to-day. The game was not to begin until 4 o'clock. The ball club made a flat donation toward the entertainment, and the association will get a percentage of the gate receipts on June 11.

STRANGE AFFIDAVIT IS MADK BY FRANK'S COOK

time. I understood that it was a tip for me to keep quiet. They would tell me to mind how I talked, and Miss Lucile give me a hat.

Q. Is that the reason you didn't tell the Solicitor yesterday all about this, that Miss Lucile and the others had told you not to say anything about what had happened at home there?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that true?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is the reason why you would rather have been locked up last night than tell this?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. Has Mr. Pickett or Mr. Cravens or Mr. Campbell or myself (Detective Starnes) influenced you in any way or threatened you in any way to make this statement?—A. No, sir.

Q. You make it of your own free will and accord in their presence and in the presence of Mr. Gordon, your attorney?—A. Yes, sir.

Frank's Cook Was Counted Upon As Defense Witness

While police activities have been turned to this line of investigation, the negro sweeper, Jim Conley, has been given a rest. Chief of Detectives Lanford stated that the negro would be quizzed no more.

Cook Counted on by Defense.

"If he has not told the whole truth," said the Chief, "he will send for me within the next few days, I believe."

The cook is one of the five witnesses upon whom the defense has relied to prove that Frank returned home for luncheon at 1:20 o'clock the Saturday afternoon of the murder and that he therefore could not have been in the office dictating the notes at the time James Conley, the negro sweeper, set in his affidavit.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Selig and Mrs. Frank will be three of the other witnesses called by the defense to prove the time Frank arrived home from the factory on the fatal day. An acquaintance will tell of seeing Frank on the street car that day, and another will relate riding back to town with Frank.

The detectives attached the greatest importance to her affidavit. In the hope of breaking her down, Ernest H. Pickett, of 295 Rawson Street, and Roy L. Craven, 11 Campbell Street, both employees at the Beck & Gregg hardware store, were sent into the room with her to fire questions at her.

Albert McKnight, husband of Minola, also works for the Beck & Gregg concern, and is said to have told Pickett and Craven that his wife had confided to him that Frank did not arrive home at the time he testified before the Coroner's jury. The two men informed the officers of McKnight's statement, and as a result the woman was arrested. She was taken first before Solicitor Dorsey, where she hysterically denied that she ever had made such remarks to her husband. She declared that she had had a "fuss" with her husband, and that he was taking this means to get her into trouble.

Alibi Big Obstacle.

Unless the State is able to break down the alibis furnished by Frank in the manner attempted on the McKnight woman, the factory superintendent's movements will be accounted for practically every moment on the day of the tragedy.

Mary Phagan entered the factory at about 12:05 in the afternoon. It is to be presumed that it was about 12:10 by the time she had received her pay envelope and had made the inquiries about the metal. Five minutes later Lemmie Quinn came in the building. He went to the second floor, walked into the office and talked to Frank. This circumstance, the defense will be able to maintain, precludes the possibility that Frank could have committed the crime up to this time. Mary Phagan was not in the office at the time and the natural presumption would be that he had left and had gone downstairs.

Quinn left about 12:20. Half an hour later Frank was on the fourth floor talking to Harry Denham and Arthur White. This half hour is the only time of length that is unaccounted for in the movements of Frank during the time it is the theory that Mary Phagan was killed. And if Frank committed the deed at this time it would have been necessary for him to have her in hiding meantime.

After letting Mrs. White out of the building at a few minutes of 1 o'clock, Frank's testimony is that he left the building himself at 1 o'clock, locking the door behind him. At 1:20 he was at home, according to the testimony of witnesses.

Mystery in Staple.

The theory of the defense, as outlined previously, is that Conley, lying in wait on the first floor, saw Mary Phagan coming down the stairs alone and attacked her. He is believed by those interested in the defense of Frank to have dropped the body of the stunned girl down the elevator shaft to the basement, where he completed his crime.

By the time he had disposed of the body and came back upstairs Frank had gone and locked the door, the contention will be. The negro was locked in the building with his crime if this theory is correct. His natural course would have been to run down into the basement again, pull the staple from the rear door and make his escape.

No plausible explanation has been offered for the removal of the staple from the basement door in any of the affidavits of the negro. By his own story, he and Frank returned to the second floor, wrote the notes and departed, Frank going out, so far as he knew, by the front door. There was no reason for him to go out any other way, if the negro's story is true.

Accepting the affidavits of Conley, the detectives were at loss for a time to explain the pulling of the staple. Then came the affidavit of the woman, Mrs. Mima Fomby, and the theory soon was evolved that Frank had pulled the staple later in the day so that he might remove the dead body from the building, place it in a cab and take it to the house of Mrs. Fomby, so that suspicion might be directed away from him.

Counsel Obtained.

The theory of the police is made to appear improbable by the fact that such an action, if Frank was guilty of the crime, would only have served to direct suspicion more certainly at him. The theory presumes that Frank first virtually took Conley into his confidence by getting Conley's aid in disposing of the body when there was no reason he could not have done it alone. Then it presumes that Frank proposed to run the risk of discovery by Newt Lee, who would have been aware, at least, of the damaging circumstances that Frank was in the factory after 6:30 o'clock in the evening at the time Frank swore he was home. On top of all this Frank would have had to taken a cab driver into his confidence, then Mrs. Fomby and any others who happened to be at her house, where they could observe the bringing of the dead body.

Both Conley and Minola McKnight, the servant girl, have obtained counsel. William M. Smith is acting in behalf of Conley, and George Gordon has been selected to represent the negress.

It became known Wednesday that Leo M. Frank would be placed on trial during the week beginning June 30, for several days Solicitor Dorsey has been busy preparing the State's case against the pencil factory superintendent and it is understood now that he will be ready for trial at that time.

The case was expected to go to trial during the week of June 23, however developments have sprung up so rapidly of late that the postponement was made. If the defense is ready when the case is called, there is little doubt but that Frank will go into court before the end of the current month.

MACON FLAGMAN KILLED.

VALDOSTA, GA., June 4.—W. A. Day, of Macon, a flagman on the Georgia Southern and Florida Railway, was killed here to-day when he fell under a car.

HEAD OF MERCER QUITS SCHOOL BY REQUEST

MACON, GA., June 4.—Following the demand of the board of trustees for his resignation, the Rev. S. Y. Jameson, president of Mercer University, will resign. His contract calls for one more year.

Three members of the prudential committee—E. Y. Mallary, Andrew W. Lane and A. L. Adams, of Macon—have tendered their resignations. They, too, were asked to resign.

A special committee reported that there was an entire lack of harmony at Mercer, and that especially was there friction between President Jameson and the prudential committee. The Rev. E. C. Dargan, chairman of the board and prominent in the fight to oust Dr. Jameson, last night introduced a resolution calling for the resignation of the conflicting parties, and it was passed 19 to 3.

The commencement exercises of Mercer were held this morning, and diplomas presented to 70 young men.

Mysterious Slaying Of Two Years Ago Is Revealed by Woman

A remarkable story of the alleged murder of a young man on the Chapel Road two years ago that never has been investigated, and of which no details ever became known, was told to Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford Wednesday morning by C. C. Daniels, once a railroad detective and now a contractor.

So great an impression did Daniels' story make on Chief Lanford that he has prepared to start an investigation.

Daniels said he got his information when he heard several women, guests of Mrs. Daniels, talking. He heard one of the women remark that there had been a murder on the Chapel Road two years ago that was never heard of.

According to the story she told, a young man was murdered by a man and his son in a row over a girl, and the body was buried in the woods just off the road. Later the murderers, so the story goes, exhumed the body and tried to burn it, and, failing in that, removed it elsewhere.

Daniels declares he did not learn the name of the man who is supposed to have been murdered, or the names of the murderers. Mrs. Lillian Flournoy, of Atlanta, he said, knows something of the affair. She will be questioned by the officers.

Tobacco Magnate's Donations to Trinity Pass Million Mark

DURHAM, N. C., June 4.—W. P. Few, president of Trinity College, at commencement exercises to-day announced new gifts to the college that will make the total endowment fund $1,108,000.

This places Trinity on an equal footing with any college in the South. The endowment is due in the main to the generosity of Benjamin N. Duke and James B. Duke, the tobacco kings, who have given to Trinity a total of $1,149,300.

The general education board of New York City gave $150,000, and the remainder was raised from small contributions of many people in all parts of the State, mainly coming from Methodist churches.

The late Washington Duke, who developed the cigarette industry, was the staunchest supporter the college ever had.

Financial Morals of U. S. Scored in Paris

Special Cable to The American.

PARIS, June 4.—The bitterness against American securities is far from abating. The Journal des Debats, after reviewing the series of disappointments Paris investors have suffered, says:

"American financial morals make operations in securities depending upon New York particularly dangerous. American bankers have the idea, accepted as perfectly legitimate there, that ability only counts in business."

Widow of Diplomat Held as Auto Slayer

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., June 4.—Coroner Phelan, of Fairfield County, to-day began an official investigation of the death of William Stanhouser, a laborer, who was run down and killed by an automobile driven by Mrs. Stewart L. Woodford, widow of a former United States Minister to Spain.

Mrs. Woodford, who was arrested subsequently on a manslaughter charge, is ill from the nervous shock.

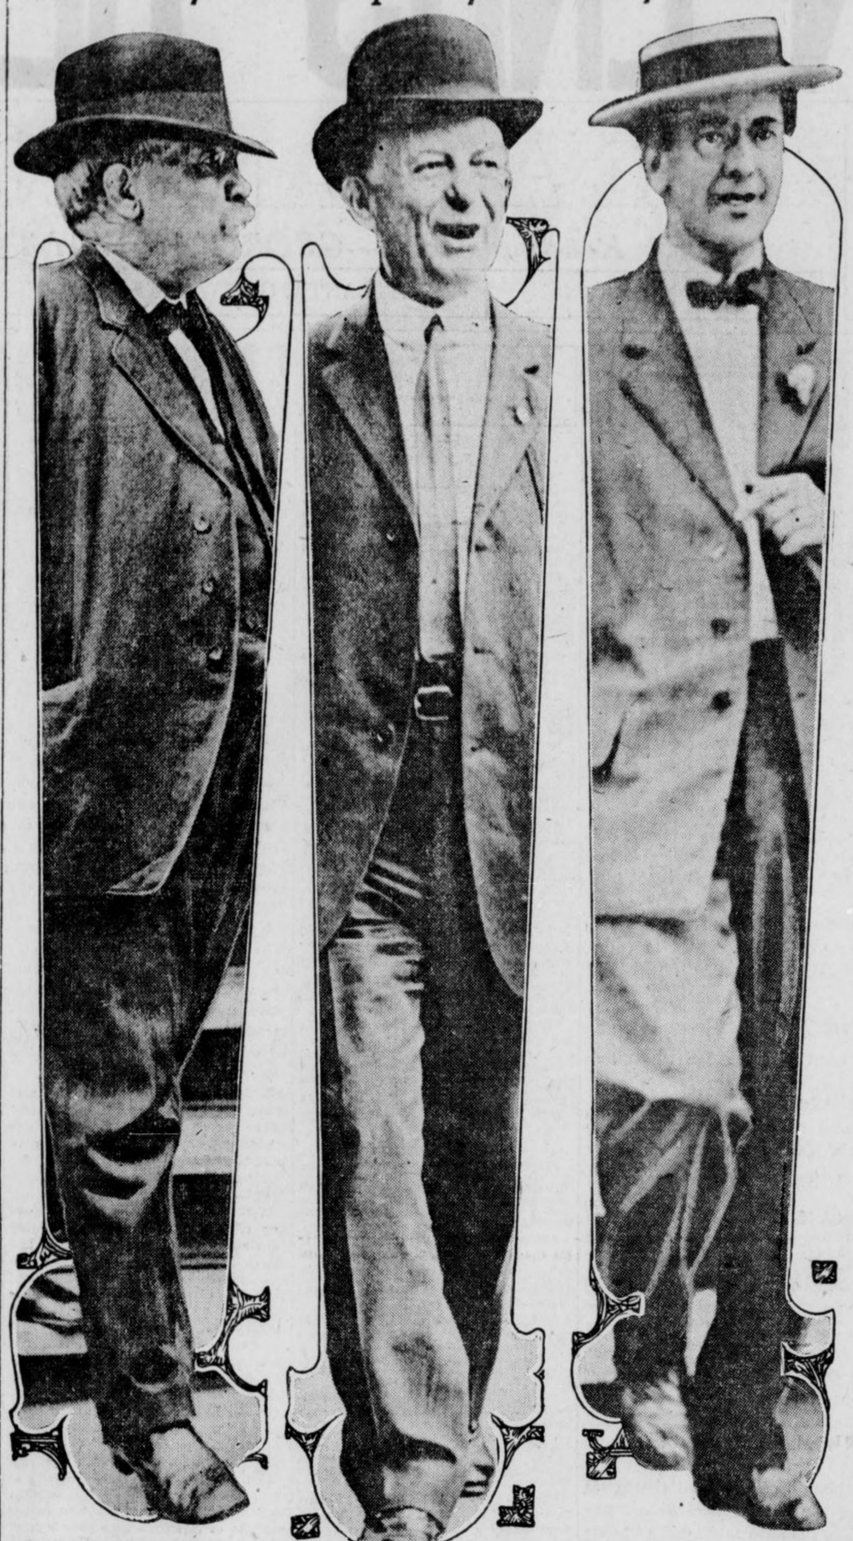

Collapse of Trestle Kills Bridgeworker

W. B. Tate, a bridgeworker, was crushed in the collapse of a trestle at Liddell's Crossing, near Atlanta, Wednesday morning. He died as he was being taken to Grady Hospital in an automobile. Tate's home was in Greenville, Ga.

The men had been working only a short time Wednesday when one of the sections of the trestle gave way. Tate was hurled to the ground and a mass of steel fell on him.

Felder Exonerates Beavers of Graft Charge

Grand Jury Takes Up Colyar Bribery Accusation

Mayor James G. Woodward, leaving Grand Jury room after testifying in vice probe.

attempt to blacken his reputation; that justice to himself called for a speedy investigation; that participants in the affair be summoned and the matter settled.

Mr. Felder declared that the investigation Thursday would follow his own charges that the police had altered the dictograph record alleged to have been taken of his conversation with Colyar and Febuary at the Williams House.

The attorney has made the assertion that the record was elaborated by police officials from the chief of detectives' office and that in swearing to the truth of the conversation perjury had been committed. Mr. Felder averred that strenuous prosecution of this phase of the controversy would be made.

Call Colyar and Febuary.

As a result of the attorney's demands, the Grand Jury issued summonses for A. S. Colyar, Jr., author of the dictograph conspiracy, and G. C. Febuary, secretary to Detective Chief Lanford, who was alleged to have been offered bribe money by Felder, to appear Thursday.

Also to be heard on this subject at that time will be Chief Beavers and Chief Lanford. Documentary evidence will be introduced by the disputants and the matter of bribery decided upon by the Grand Jury before the vice investigation shall continue.

At Wednesday morning's session Colonel Felder was the only witness. Mr. Felder appeared before the Grand Jury with a large portfolio of papers pertaining to his allegations of corruption.

Felder Before Jury an Hour.

He went over the situation thoroughly before the Grand Jury, taking more than an hour in which to present his case. While the evidence which he placed before the hearing was not revealed, Colonel Felder intimated that it included affidavits from persons who have paid corruption money to the police in substantiation of the Hutcheson list of resorts now in operation.

Just preceding the opening of the morning session of the Grand Jury, Chief Beavers, Solicitor Dorsey and Detective Chief Lanford were closeted in conference. It was at the beginning of this that Mr. Felder declared himself regarding his charges. The attorney intercepted Chief Beavers as he was entering the Solicitor's private office.

"My accusations do not touch you, chief," said Mr. Felder. "I know that you are not mixed up in the shameful conditions which exist in Atlanta.

"My evidence points at another man the other chief at the police station. I have the proof against him and I am going to lay it bare at this investigation."

Near Open Clash.

At this moment Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford, the other chief at the police station, entered the room.

A silence pregnant with expectancy fell upon those present. Lanford walked directly over to where Felder was standing and took his seat. He was accompanied by Detective Black.

An encounter seemed imminent. Friends of both men declared later that they were keyed up to a dangerous pitch. Then the situation was relieved by the sudden appearance of Solicitor Dorsey and the conference between himself and the two chiefs was called.

A great many of the women whose names appeared as conducting the "houses in our midst," or hotel proprietors whom the young attorney alleged were paying for police protection, were served with subpenas as soon as Foreman L. H. Beck could arrange with the Solicitor's office for the service.

The list still is in the hands of the foreman. On it also are the names of persons whom it is alleged will make affidavits, or testify, that the allegations of the attorney are true. These, it is understood, may be summoned during the day.

Promises Thorough Probe.

Foreman Beck, who is conducting the probe independently of the State's prosecuting attorney, intimated before going into the executive session Wednesday morning that the probe would be one of the most extensive a Fulton grand jury ever has conducted.

He said the true conditions would be found out and the public acquainted with them at the proper time. He would not say whether the probe had progressed sufficiently to warrant returning indictments, but made it pretty plain that the jury would conclude its work when it completed the investigation and that the indictments, if any, would be brought at the request of the Solicitor, who would be made acquainted with the conditions.

"More than likely," he said, "we will embody the result of our investigation in the presentment and return it to Judge W. D. Ellis, who charged us so specifically to investigate vice conditions. Then if the people, or the officers, want to carry the matter further, it can take the customary course through the police or State officers."

Chief Lanford, Chief Beavers, Detective Black and Febuary were among the first arrivals Wednesday. Chief Beavers was anxious to go before the jury and tell what he knew of the vice conditions.

"Conditions are better in Atlanta to-day than they have ever been," he said, "and I am quite sure the Grand Jury will find it out. But if I am mistaken about it, I want to put my men to work. I am quite sure, however, it will be found the condition has been exaggerated. Of course nothing will come of the charges of corruption in my department."

Mrs. Nina Fomby, the only witness wanted for the Grand Jury Tuesday, it is understood, was telephoned and told to remain away until Wednesday. The idea of her having left the city was ridiculed by the Solicitor's office.

MRS. GRACE AND OLDHAM SHOCK COATESVILLE

Hotel Keeper Asks for Room When He Finds They Are Not Married.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—Mrs. Daisy Opie Grace, who was acquitted in Atlanta of attempting to kill her husband, furnished the gossips two spicy morsels by announcing, first, that she was not the wife of Charles H. Oldham, and, second, that they expected to marry as soon as she gets her divorce.

Mrs. Grace made the announcements immediately following receipt of a request from David Martin that she vacate her apartments in the Swan Hotel, at Coatesville, of which Martin is proprietor. Oldham some time ago told acquaintances that Mrs. Grace had become his wife, and society matrons at Coatesville, believing that they were occupying the same apartments, were shocked beyond expression yesterday when they heard the ceremony was still in contemplation.

Mrs. Grace expressed amusement at the whole affair. She said she and Mr. Oldham went to Coatesville that she might avoid publicity attendant upon her divorce decree, which she expects any day, but that they occupied separate apartments. When the divorce is granted, she said, she and Mr. Oldham intend to marry.

"This is just a prying woman's work," said Mrs. Grace. "I am being watched by detectives, I know, and I was foolish to take on so many friends. Mr. Oldham and I are occupying separate apartments. I thought it was funny when he told some of his friends I was his wife. We will be married as soon as I get my divorce, which I am expecting any day now."

Just because the unfounded scandal talk was hurting Mr. Oldham's business, Mrs. Grace said, they intended to leave and go in different directions—she to the mountains and he somewhere else. Then when her divorce is granted they will be married, surely, and the gossips will have nothing to talk about.

10,215,000 Microbes Found in One Mud Pie

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LYONS, FRANCE, June 4.—A noted basteriologist of this city astonished his little son, whom a few days ago he found making mud pies. Curiosity led the father to take a pie home for examination.

He found 10,215,000 dangerous microbes in the few cubic inches of earth, classified as follows:

Diphtheria, 1,800,000; measles, $2,450,000; smallpox, 900,000; tetanus, 3,000,000; dysentery, 900,000; pneumonia, 575,000; tuberculosis, 620,000.

Friedmann Cure Is Given First Patient In South at Atlanta

The first patient to take the Friedmann tuberculosis treatment in the South, Mrs. J. G. Carpenter, of Lockhart, Ala., is awaiting in Atlanta Wednesday the result of an injection of the serum given by Dr. Julius Meyer, of the Friedmann institute, at the Kimball House.

The form of tuberculosis treated was spinal. It was understood that Mrs. Lockhart, who came to Atlanta with her husband, paid the physician a fee of $1,000 for the one injection.

Mr. Carpenter stated that he and his wife would return to Alabama at once and had not decided whether or not a second course of the treatment would be taken.

Germany and Prussia Floating New Loans

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

BERLIN, June 4.—Announcement that the Imperial and Prussian Governments are floating two more large public loans caused dismay in financial circles. The empire is borrowing $12,500,000 and Prussia $42,750,000 with interest at 4 per cent.

The loans redeemable in 1935 will both be issued June 12. The money is wanted for the extension of state railroads, particularly military strategic lines.

Shirley Kellogg a Bride in London

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 4.—Miss Shirley Kellogg, an Americus chorus girl, who at one time was reported engaged to "Diamond Jim" Brady, of New York, was quietly married to-day to Albert Pierrade Courville.

Miss Kellogg is a member of the chorus of a musical review at the Hippodrome, and her place may be taken by Evelyn Thaw, wife of Harry K. Thaw, who has been engaged to sing and dance there.

New Dances Require Rubber Sole Pomps

BOSTON, June 4.—The bunny hug and other dances, names too numerous to mention, have brought to manufacturers of pomps a demand for specialized designs.

To master this new art in the dancing world the smooth bottom slipper will not fill the bill; therefore several factories are working on a pomp with a leather bottom and a patch of rubber triangular or otherwise shaped.

John D. Defendant In $99,250,000 Suit

CORSICANA, TEXAS, June 4.—Attorneys for the Magnolia Petroleum Company admit that John D. Rockefeller and H. C. Folger, of New York, are large stockholders. The attorneys asserted that these men hold stock only as individuals.

The Magnolia and Standard Oil Companies and their subsidiaries and officials are sued for total penalties of $99,250,000.

I. W. W. Prisoners On Hunger Strike

PEORIA, ILL., June 4.—Ten members of the Industrial Workers of the World, in jail here awaiting trial on charges of conspiracy and rioting, were on a "hunger strike" in the county jail to-day.

For 72 hours none of the prisoners has touched food. Several of the "strikers" have fainted from weakness.

PLAN BILL GIVING INDEPENDENCE TO FILIPINOS

Measure, Expected To Be Presented First of Next Session, Approved by President.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Chairman Jones, of the House Insular Affairs Committee, announced to-day he would call his committee together next week to frame a bill, to be reported on the first day of the next session, to grant independence to the Philippine Islands. President Wilson still believes early action on this is necessary.

Jones declared to-day it was possible that the bill might pass the House at the present session, the Democratic caucus rule which restricts general legislation of the session to currency and tariff being subject to amendment at a separate caucus.

He declined to disclose the result of a conference he had with the President on this subject several days ago, but it was learned that the President asserted he was fully in sympathy with the principles of the Philippine bill which passed the house some time ago and which granted full independence to the Philippines after a period of eight years and qualified independence in the interim.

Sees Bar to Jap War.

"Independence for the Philippines," said Jones to-day, "would eliminate the chance of war between the United States and Japan. With the Philippines neutral territory, the Japanese would be less liable to rush into combat. They know that as long as the Philippines are in the possession of the United States, we would be under a handicap."

It was declared, however, that House Republicans would fight the Philippine measure.

"It would be a crime to surrender the islands," said Representative Kahn, of California. "The Filipinos who assisted us in the war with the revolutionists might meet a terrible fate. It is not long ago that they buried men alive in the Philippines."

Representative Shirley, of Kentucky, is one of the Democrats of the House who is opposed to early freedom for the islands. He argued against hasty and ill-advised action on this question.

"I am in favor of Filipino independence," Representative Kinkead, of New Jersey, Democrat, said, "but I am not prepared to indorse all of the features of the Jones bill."

Urges Careful Consideration.

"This is a very grave matter," said Senator Hitchcock, chairman of the Senate Philippine Committee, "and one which we must consider carefully before legislation giving the islanders independence is enacted."

Senator Lane, also a Democrat, stated: "I am for giving the Filipinos their liberty and I am willing to vote upon the matter at any time my colleagues get together."

"Although I have not talked the matter over with Chairman Hitchcock," said Senator Fletcher, ranking Democratic member of the committee, "it seems more than probable that extended hearings will be held on this question. We have assumed the guardianship of the Filipinos and we must look out for the future welfare of the islands."

U. S. Boys Touring World Stranded

LONDON, June 4.—The forty-seven California boys who are being sent around the world by the Columbia Park Boys' Club of San Francisco, and who have been stranded here for a week, raised enough money to-day to continue their journey to-morrow.

Funds were raised through the efforts of Wallace Crismore, one of the boys who has unusual histrionic ability.

Painter Was Refused Policies Business Plans Suffered Check

Theory Offered That He Needed More Insurance to Protect Stockholders.

By COLE E. MORGAN.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA. June 4.—Edward Okie Painter's family and intimate friends positively state their belief that his death in the St. Johns River on May 22 was accidental and not premeditated or due to mental aberration, as is talked in Jacksonville.

They declare his business was in excellent condition, his home life ideal and that he had no cause to seek self-destruction.

The insistence of insurance salesmen to write policies, because he was considered an excellent risk, and because a spirited competition among insurance rivals had ensued this spring, are the explanations offered for his taking out a million dollars of new insurance since February 1.

A persistent report in insurance and business circles to-day, explaining the probable motive for suicide, is thot Painter had been checked in financial plans he had under way when insurance companies refused to issue additional policies on his life within a week before his death.

Planned to Increase Holdings.

According to this report, Painter had launched plans to double the $350,000 book value capital stock and surplus of the E. O. Painter Fertilizer Company to $700,000 by the sale of a new stock issue. It is said he proposed with these funds to enlarge the company's operations, not only in the United States, but in the West Indian Islands and South America, where the company already has holdings, to be prepared to extend operations upon the completion of the Panama Canal.

An explanation of the million dollars' new insurance, much of which was made payable to the company and the rest to his estate and family, is suggested in that this would give an added security to the company's stock as a protection to stockholders in the event of his death and therefore would prove an asset of negotiable value.

It was planned to declare a 15 per cent dividend on the outstanding stock at a stockholders' meeting yesterday afternoon, but this was not done, the meeting adjourning with practically no business transacted.

This dividend, it is pointed out, would have established the utmost confidence in the minds of investors coupled with Painter's high standing in business circles.

Such a dividend would have made the sale of additional stock a comparatively easy matter. Many planters, particularly in Florida and South Georgia, it is stated, were ready to purchase blocks of the new stock, whereby they would be enabled to reduce their fertilizer bills by buying from a company in which they held stock and received dividends.

Organs at John Hopkins.

Coroner Abbott stated this afternoon that all of Painter's vital organs sent to Baltimore are in the hands of chemists there. He said he had received a message to-day that Dr. Charles Glaser, of Johns Hopkins, had completed the chemical analysis of the heart, stomach and other functional organs and that Dr. McLeary this afternoon would complete a pathological examination of Painter's brain.

The reports of these chemists are expected in Jacksonville by the Coroner on Friday afternoon, whereupon he will summon the jury and witnesses for a complete investigation into Painter's death early next week.

He declared the whole story of Painter's death and affairs bearing on it will be brought out then.

In addition to the $1,178,000 insurance carried by Painter, it is known that he sought $125,000 additional that he did not secure. A $50,000 policy was issued by the Equitable Life, but before it was delivered the agent here was instructed to hold it because Painter was over insured. This policy was taken to Painter the Saturday before his death, but he told the agent to hold it until Monday, when he would give a check for the premium and accept it. Before it could be delivered on Monday a telegram came from the home office that it must not be delivered.

On April 12 a $50,000 application was made with the Travelers. On May 15 the company postponed the applicant for six months.

On May 14, Painter applied to the Florida Life for $25,000 insurance, the application was rejected by the company's medical director the very morning Painter was drowned, because he was over weight. His blood pressure showed 160 in the medical examination.

On May 17 Painter asked the company to give him a receipt for premium notes that had accompanied his application. This was done. After his death the company offered to return the notes, requesting that the company's receipt be given back. This was refused at Painter's office.

Miss Okie Painter, the dead man's only daughter and his namesake, has for several years occupied a position in his office, and has been one of the directing spirits in the E. O. Painter Fertilizer Company. She is authority for the statement, speaking for the family, that he had no reason to want to die. She is typically a business woman.

She discusses the affair calmly and deliberately, with little of the emotion typical of her sex.

State Senator J. B. Conrad, of Glenwood, a wealthy banker, has been named acting president of the fertilizer company, but has not taken charge, being engaged in the legislative session at Tallahassee. In the meantime D. A. Morrison, Jr., secretary, is directing the company's affairs, advising with Miss Painter upon matters concerning the family's interest.

A secret meeting of the stockholders was held yesterday afternoon. It is said a 15 per cent dividend planned at this time was not declared because of Painter's death.

Painted a Self-made Man.

Painter was a self-made man, starting in business with a very limited education. As his daughter grew up he gave her a splendid education and depended on her where he was deficient. Painter was a real leader in Florida and Jacksonville. His word was accepted without question. As an evidence of his popularity he was elected one of the Jacksonville port commissioners in a recent election, receiving the third highest vote among fifteen candidates. This was his first political contest. He headed the Board of Trade's foreign committee. Last December he represented Jacksonville at the Panama Trade Conference held in Atlanta. He was active in charity enterprises, his favorite being the Children's Home Society.

It is said that one condition he exacted of the insurance agents who wrote his recent policies was that a percentage of the premiums go to this society, of which he was secretary.

The Painter case has brought to light a peculiar phase of Florida law. There is practically no penalty prescribed for the mutilation of a dead body before it is in the custody of the Coroner. The only punishment imposed is a misdemeanor for interfering with an officer in the discharge of his duties. Consequently, those who performed or instigated the hasty autopsy on Painter's body before the Coroner's jury had seen it were to all intents within the law, and no legal question as to their action is anticipated.

No Word From Baltimore.

Thus far Coroner C. D. Abbott has heard nothing of the results of the analysis ordered in Baltimore. He has directed that the report be sent to him through the Barnet National Bank, while Dr. P. C. Perry, representing the family, has contended that he is the proper one to receive it. He is now in Baltimore.

Coroner Abbott's authority in this case has been questioned because the body was recovered on the South Jacksonville side of the river and another coroner has jurisdiction there.

But it was landed on the Jacksonville side, and for that reason Coroner Abbott was notified. The Coroner's jury that viewed the remains of the body only after the autopsy was performed has had but one meeting since the day of the death, and is awaiting the report from Baltimore.

The investigation here is at a standstill. The insurance companies are now doing practically nothing pending the inquest verdict. No adjuster here professes to know what his company plans to do and the mystery is as unsolved to-day as it was a week or more ago.

Bacon for Pact To Guard Canal

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The pending treaty between the United States and Nicaragua, which will prevent any foreign nation from building a rival to the Panama Canal in that country and give the United States an excellent harbor and coaling station on the coast of Nicaragua, was discussed at a conference to-day by Secretary of State Bryan and Senator Bacon, of Georgia, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Bacon is said to be strongly in favor of the pact. Terms now are being drawn up by representatives of the two Governments.

The treaty may be brought up for ratification in the Senate during the present extra session.

$425 Paid for Lee's Appomattox Speech

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—The original copy of General Robert E. Lee's farewell address to his army at Appomattox was sold for $425 yesterday at the sale of the collection of autographs and manuscripts of the late John Mills Hale, of Phillipsburg, Pa.

Among other autographs sold were those of Napoleon Bonaparte, $31; Marie Antoinette, $42, and Cardinal Richelieu, $50.

Marie Corelli Sues Actor as Plagiarist

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 4.—Marie Corelli, the famous English novelist, to-day secured an injunction against George Gray, a vaudeville artist, preventing him from presenting his sketch, "The People's King."

The complaint is that it is plagiarized from Miss Corelli's novel, "Temporal Power."

Diploma Costs Girl Student Her Eyes

CHICAGO, June 4.—Threatened with total blindness because of overstudy, Miss Maude Cooke, of Arkadelphia, Ark., a student at Northwestern University, to-day was excused from the final examinations.

Miss Cooke was in her junior year. She has been a zealous student and as the result the sight of one of her eyes is entirely gone and the other is affected.

Deaf-Mutes to Give Playlet in Sign Talk

MACON, GA., June 4.—Delegates to the annual convention of the Georgia Association for the Deaf and Dumb here to-morrow and Friday will visit the Georgia Academy for the Blind, under the ciceronage of Joe Hill Hall and T. D. Tinsley, and Friday night will attend a playlet, all the lines of which will be "spoken" in the sign language.

About 200 delegates are expected.

4 of Leavenworth's Banker Colony Out

LEAVENWORTH, KANS., June 4. Max P. Emerich, Paul C. Gall and Harry C. Prinzler, of Indianapolis, and W. J. Hogue, of San Angelo, Texas, members of the "Bankers' Colony" of the Federal Prison here, were released on parole to-day.

Emerich, Gall and Prinzler were sentenced to serve five years each in 1909.

TWO HELD AS SLAVERS.

ANNISTON, ALA., June 4.—Bert Rose and Carl Garrett, Anniston youths, have been arrested at Louisville, Ky., on a charge of violating the Mann act by taking Lillie Mae Gladden and Alice McElreath to that city for immoral purposes.

SENATOR POINTS OUT LOBBYIST AT INQUIRY

Lane Had Forgotten Name, but Wool Interests' Agent Supplies It Himself.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—S. W. McClure, who represents wool interests in Washington, was identified in person to-day as a lobbyist by Senator Lane, of Oregon, who was the first witness called to-day. He said that few men had called on him regarding the tariff except "the very handsome man sitting back there."

Senator Lane could not recall his name and, turning to McClure, said: "What is your name?" McClure laughed and gave his name.

Senator Lane observed that each of the interests seeking protection is out for itself.

"It's a case of the devil take the hindmost," he said. Senator McCumber said that he was interested in farming 1,600 acres of North Dakota land, which will be "seriously, almost disastrously affected by the pending bill."

Admits His Vote Activity.

He was the first Senator to admit that he had attempted to influence the votes of others.

"If there was anyone I thought I could influence on this bill I would do it just as quickly as I leave the witness stand," he said.

Senator MacCumber said he could not find a buyer for his farm since the Underwood bill was published. Senator Reed asked him to give his loss in dollars, but the witness could not.

Spreckels for Free Sugar.

Senator Newlands said that Claus Spreckels, of the National Refining Company, had talked to him about sugar. Spreckels favors free sugar, but admitted, said Senator Newlands, that the fairest thing was to reduce the duty to about one-half cent a pound.

The Senator said that Sidney Ballou, A. B. Baldwin, Henry T. Oxnard and Truman G. Palmer had talked to him about the same schedule. Senator Newlands declared sugar, wool, citrus fruits and raisins to be productions from which protection should be gradually removed.

Heflin, in Speech, Scores Suffrage

By HUGH S. MILLER.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—In a speech at the celebration of the birthday anniversary of Jefferson Davis last night, Representative Thomas Heflin, of Alabama, made the prayer that "our women may be kept in the strait and narrow path and far from the ballot box." It would mean, he said, repudiation of the men. His remarks were applauded.

Mr. Heflin traced the prominent part played by the South in Revolutionary times, in the formation of the Republic and in its growth. He told how the Southern women had inspired the soldier in battle, ministered to him when he returned bleeding to his desolated home, and how she helped him to build up his shattered fortune.

It was at this point that Mr. Heflin, expressing confidence of the future of the country, said he much preferred to think of the women helping as they had so truly helped in the past, rather than to picture her making speeches from dry goods boxes.

Bank Employees Go On Holiday Outing

Uneasy are the arms that work the adding machines, and the jovial slap on the back is a thing of the past in the banks, for Tuesday the Atlanta Chapter, American Institute of Banking, held its annual outing at Indian Springs. Bathing was the favorite amusement, and the sun got in its usual work—hence the sore arms in the bronze cages.

Music, dancing and dinner at the Wigwam, together with more or less "scrub" baseball, filled the day for the 95 bank employees and their guests, who went early Tuesday morning and returned at 8 o'clock in the evening. Special equipment was provided by the railroad.

Judge Finds "Most Dangerous Woman"

NEW YORK, June 4.—A big crowd of curious persons flocked to Judge Swann's room in criminal court to see Miss Geraldine Wingate, called by Judge Swann "The Most Dangerous Woman in New York," who it is charged used wayward girls to trap wealthy men for her own profit.

A subpena had been issued for Miss Wingate to come into court and explain why she caused the arrest of Joseph Rahoon May 7.

BILL FRAMED TO HALT CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

Measure, Modeled After Successful Law, Gives Society Officers Power to Arrest.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

After weeks of revision and study, a bill for the prevention of cruelty to animals in Georgia has been framed by a well known member of the incoming Legislature, and will be introduced in the House soon after the General Assembly meets this month.

W. B. Barton, G. Noble Jones and Thomas Lynch, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in Georgia, compose the committee having the bill in hand for the Society. They will see that it is given attention in the early part of the coming session. No great opposition is anticipated.

Mr. Barton says that the new bill covers the field thoroughly and leaves no loophole through which possible offenders may escape. It is modeled after similar laws now in operation in New York and Virginia, and gives agents of the society full authority to make arrests, which Georgia's present law relating to this subject does not do. The S. P. C. A. in Georgia has been handicapped in its work thus far because of this omission in the present law.

"There is plenty of work for the society to do," said President Barton, discussing the matter in Atlanta today, "but the present law on the subject is very meager. The reasons why the societies of other states are so successful is that they have the proper laws back of them. Under the bill which we have framed, our agents will be authorized to make arrests and wear the uniform and badge of the society.

"I have no doubt that the law will be enacted this year. There was no objection to the bill we had before the legislature last year, which was very similar to this one. It was favorably reported by the judiciary committee of both houses, but it was so near the end of the session that the bill was lost in the rush of business, and did not come up for a vote. The bill has already been passed upon and interpreted by the courts of the State and we are not looking for any opposition from that source, or any other."

What promises to constitute the most fruitful branch of the S. P. C. A.'s Georgia work are the four bands of mercy recently organized by President Barton, among the school children of the State. These children are taught humane treatment of all dumb beasts, and are entering enthusiastically into the work. The bands now number 156 members, and are under the supervision of Mrs. Josephine Freeland, of Savannah.

Representative Frank Rhodes, of Clark County, near neighbor to all the territory concerned, is enthusiastically in favor of creating the proposed new county of Barrow, and speaks interestingly of the necessity thereof.

"Winder, which is one of the very best cities in all Georgia," said Mr. Rhodes, discussing the proposition today, "is now most unfortunately situated.

"Three counties corner in the town, and yet it is twenty good miles and more from the county seat of any one of the three. A big rock in the middle of the main street of Winder shows where the three counties—Gwinnett, Jackson and Walton—come together.

It frequently happens, as an example to the disadvantages Winder labors under, that an administrator having property to dispose of and handle in Winder, has to take out papers of administration in three counties in order to be able to meet the requirements of the law.

"The people of Winder are a unit practically for the new county, and there is little real opposition to the project anywhere. I know the conditions in Winder, and the surrounding territory, and I know the people need relief from a situation that is almost unendurable. I have talked with a number of members of the incoming house, moreover, and I believe the new county will be created.

"I am not a crank on the subject of new counties, but I expect to give my hearty support to Barrow, for I know it is a most deserving proposition. Indeed, I believe the Legislature would be doing a positive wrong not to create it.

"Territorially, and according to population and necessity, Barrow county has every claim to favorable legislative consideration."

Anticipating the coming of the Legislature within three weeks, Colonel Pierce Latimer, Keeper of Buildings and Grounds, is busy as he can be nowadays renovating and cleaning up the State Capitol.

During legislative recesses, the chambers of the two houses are visited only by occasional sightseers, and are about as lonesome as any place around the Capitol, if not more so. Consequently, it generally takes quite a good deal of brushing, sweeping, painting and fixing around in one way and another to get things in shape for the fifty days each year when the chambers serve a real purpose to the State.

When the gavels fall on the 25th day of this month, however, Mr. Latimer will have the houses fixed up after the fashion of Spotless Town, all right.

Governor-elect John M. Slaton is hard at work on his inaugural address and first message to the General Assembly.

Mr. Slaton is not giving out any idea of what subjects he will treat of in either utterance, however, and contents himself with informing inquirers that they will enjoy his messages more if they will await their official delivery.

The Governor-elect keeps regular hours at his offices in the Grant Building in Atlanta, and such time as he devotes to state documents is snatched from the time he spends at home.

After his inauguration, of course, the Governor-elect will abandon his law practice.

NOW WE'LL HAVE A WHISTLE WHERE WE USED TO HAVE CROW

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Dr. B. V. Calloway will shortly make experiments to try to put the "soft pedal" on the crowing of roosters. It is said it can be done by a simple operation of removing one of the fowl's vocal chords.—News Item.

Oh, I'm the guy that put the "sell in selzer.
And I put the "whiz" in whisky, too.
But when I took the "lick" from liquor
Everybody said that I was through.

But next I put the "sin" in Cincinnati;
("Oh, yes, I'm quite a booster)
And now that I'm a wee bit batty,
I'll take the crow from out the rooster.

Baby Girl Becomes Masonic Order Ward

BUFFALO, June 4.—With ceremonies used in this country for the first time since 1771, Ruth Katharine Daggett, baby daughter of Byron B. Daggett, was baptized at the Scottish Rite Cathedral here.

The ceremony made the baby a ward of the Lodge of Perfection and entitled her to the guardianship and protection of the Masonic fraternity in every part of the world.

"Gary Dinner" Held To Help Stem Panic

NEW YORK, June 4.—An explanation of the reasons for the famous "Gary dinner" during the 1907 panic was given by Judge Elbert H. Gary when he resumed testimony in the Government's dissolution suit.

Gary testified it was realized the price of steel was a barometer of business conditions. To prevent any demoralization of steel prices and forestall any further panic, Gary said, the dinners were given, after which steel manufacturers were exhorted to hold up the price of steel.

Germans Send Arms To English Loyalists

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

BELFAST, ENGLAND, June 4.—Government secret service agents, investigating the shipment of arms to Ulster loyalists which was seized yesterday, to-day discovered that the munitions had been sent from Germany.

They were consigned to a firm of linen drapers in Tyrone.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

Keith Vaudeville at Forsyth.

It is mighty near a case of picking your own hit at the Forsyth this week. Of course Lillian Shaw is the headliner. And she makes good in that position. Jack Hazard was an unknown until Monday afternoon. He stated at the beginning that he was going to tell some stories. The audience was a bit restless, but pretty soon Hazard had the attention of everybody and when he bowed off after twenty minutes of talking he carried with him the biggest hit that has been registered by any monologist in the history of Atlanta.

Seldom's Models score a great big hit with their "Poems in Marble." There are two fine looking men and a beautiful woman in this act. They are made up in white and pose in living reproductions of statues. The Three Alex who close the show present the most sensational act that has been seen on a local stage, and Wright and Dietrich score well in a singing and talking oddity that is very pleasing.

Tabloid Comedy at Bijou.

"The College Girls" at the Bijou promise to break the tabloid musical comedy record for attendance at the family theater. The show is a combination of pretty girls, good music and funny fellows.

The Bijou has come right to the front with its new policy and the house is being crowded at all performances.

OLD GUARD BACK FROM PEACE TOUR

Declare Last "Invasion" of North Most Successful in History of Organization.

Early trains from Savannah brought in the members of the Old Guard battalion, returning from their peace mission to Eastern cities.

The Old Guard's last entertainment of the tour was accorded them in Savannah by the Georgia Hussars. The company, upon its arrival from the North by steamship Tuesday, was met by the Hussars in full dress uniform and escorted to the DeSoto Hotel. During the afternoon they were driven about the city and county in automobiles.

A reception was tendered them in the evening at the Hussars' Club, when the Old Guard was received by the Mayor and Aldermen, the Chamber of Commerce, the Board of Trade, the Cotton Exchange, the First Regiment, the Savannah Volunteer Guards and the Chatham Artillery and a number of prominent citizens.

Members interviewed Wednesday morning upon their arrival in Atlanta declared the trip had been the most successful in the history of the organization.

Mrs. Wilcox Highly Honored in England

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

SOUTHAMPTON, ENGLAND, June 4.—Honors rarely accorded an American tourist were given here today to Ella Wheeler Wilcox, the American poetess, when she sailed for New York on the Olympic.

Prominent residents of the city gave a reception for her, to which a number of officials were invited. During her stay in London, Mrs. Wilcox was presented at court.

Couple Arrange by Wireless to Wed

BOSTON, June 4.—R. W. Pillsbury, proprietor of the Manchester, N. H., Union, arrived on the steamer Cincinnati from Europe yesterday with his bride, whom he met while making a tour of the world on the Cleveland, and whom he married at Yokohama, a few months ago after arrangements for the marriage had been made by wireless when the steamer was 1,500 miles from that port.

Peary and Son 48 Hrs. In Alpine Snowstorm

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

GENEVA, June 4.—Rear Admiral Peary, accompanied by his 9-year-old son and a Swiss guide, ascended Jungfrau by the funicular railroad to the station, at an altitude of 11,090 feet, intending to reach the Monch, 13,465 feet up, when the party was caught in a furious Alpine snowstorm which lasted for 48 hours.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Eliza Boyd, aged 73 years, died at her home, 33 Inman Avenue, Tuesday night. She is survived by her husband, B. C. Boyd; a son, John Reynolds, and a daughter, Mrs. J. C. DeFoore, of Augusta, Ga. The body will be sent to Augusta for burial.

Mother's Advice To Her Daughter

A Real Live Doll to Fondle is Woman's Greatest Happiness.

One of the most important matters about which women concern themselves is their future status as a grandmother. And she is wisdom itself who knows of or learns of that famous remedy, Mother's Friend. This is an external application for the abdominal muscles and breasts. It certainly has a wonderful influence, allays all fear, banishes all pain, is a most grateful encouragement to the young, expectant mother, and permits her to go through the period happy in mind, free in body and thus destined to anticipate woman's greatest happiness as nature intended she should.

The action of Mother's Friend makes the muscles free, pliant and responsive to expansion. Thus all strain and tension upon the nerves and ligaments is avoided, and, in place of a period of discomfort and consequent dread, it is a season of calm repose and joyful expectation.

There is no nausea, no morning sickness, no nervous twitching, none of that constant strain known to so many women, hence Mother's Friend is really one of the greatest blessings that could be devised.

This splendid and certain remedy can be had of any druggist at $1.00 a bottle, and is sure to prove of inestimable value, not only upon the mother, but upon the health and future of the child. Write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 132 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their book to expectant mothers.

American Corporations Able Only to Float $123,140,000 of New Securities in May.

By B. C. FORBES.

Only $123,140,00 of new securities were issued by American corporations during May. This is $81,577,000 short of the total for May, 1912.

Since January 1 the total output of bonds, notes and stocks by railroads, traction, industrial, mining and miscellaneous companies has been $766,913,000, a decrease of $465,357,000 as compared with the figure for the first five months of 1912.

Not one dollar's worth of railroad stock was floated during the whole of last month, a fact heavy with significance.

Five Months' Record.

The year's record of new issues, and comparisons with last year, reads as follows:

	Output.	Decrease.
January	$198,105,000	$142,895,000
February	132,362,000	185,470,000
March	148,829,000	1,621,000
April	164,477,000	53,788,000
May	123,140,000	81,577,000
	$776,913,000	$465,357,000

Financing is being postponed wherever possible. An unusually large proportion of the 1913 output has been for refunding operations or to pay off maturing obligations. The net addition to railroad and industrial capital outstanding has been much less than the total flotations of $766,913,000 would suggest.

And let me here state very emphatically that the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad receivership will render the raising of new capital doubly difficult, for security holders have had their faith gravely shaken. The European Market has been shocked by the extraordinary episode and threatens to boycott American issues unless foreign investors receive the fullest redress.

During May two-thirds of the country's new capital issues took the form of short date noes. This is a most unhealthy sign.

The railroads could find a market for less than $14,000,000 bonds, as contrasted with more than $55,000,000 in the corresponding month of last year. Notes were resorted to with such freedom that their total flotations reached $58,600,000.

Industrial corporations put out eight times as many notes and bonds and $20,000,000 more than a year ago.

The world's money markets are still uncomfortable at bottom. Superficial ease here and abroad may mislead those who are not familiar with what is going on under the surface.

Thos who try to raise capital—as distinct from temporary loans amply secured by Stock Exchange collateral—find how hard it is to obtain even moderate sums.

Dawn Still Delayed.

I have been calling attention for nine months to the basic monetary conditions throughout the world and urging extreme prudence in running into debt and in assuming avoidable obligations. Unfortunately, daylight cannot yet be descried.

It is to be hoped very fervently that Congress will take up currency legislation in earnest and provide, with all possible speed consistent with conservatism, the machinery for avoiding monetary stringency.

Meanwhile, a further decline in new capital issues and quieter trade should afford some relief preparatory to the fall demands for crop moving.

Before then, however, there may be a mild flurry abroad and at home before the enormous July 1 requirements can be financed.

The following is a detailed list of the new offerings in May:

LITTLE STORIES of the TOWN

But This Cat Didn't Have Nine Lives.

The tragic death of a cat has caused some very hard feelings in a prominent neighborhood of Atlanta. Also it has brought out in harsh contrast man's innate antipathy and woman's deep love for the little animals of the velvet paws. And while the cat has failed to reveal the proverbial nine lives, the incident of his death has immortalized him in the annals of gossip.

His history began at the recent pure food show when he won the blue ribbon. He was a blooded Persian and the property of one of Atlanta's most popular young women. His prize greatly endeared him to his mistress but when she sent a collect telegram to her father in New York telling nim of the wonderful event the father winced and said, "Scat."

Innocent of his cunning neighbor, a blue jay built a nest in a tree in an adjoining back yard. The spoiled feline thought the birds his just prey, and they would have been except for the noise. Those birds fought a battle royal to protect their home early each day. And the fight grew more and more intolerable to the sleeping neighbors of the owners of the cat.

When sticks, old shoes and garden hose failed to dislodge the proud Persian from the tree of the bird nest one of the neighbors applied a parlor rifle.

He thought he had killed just an ordinary old alley Tom. But when he returned at lunch and found the beautiful young girl weeping over the dead body in the alley he knew that trouble was ahead. All that saved the situation was the father of the pet lover. He laughed in his sleeve that the purring beast was gone.

The names? Well, the neighborhood feeling is too acute. Gossip will have to give you that.

They All Asked Pay For Pulling Him Out.

A young Atlantan, whom his friends all envy because he owns an automobile, declares he should be pitied.

A few nights ago he went calling in Inman Park. Some boys found his car in the street and when the young man started to leave he was horrified to find his seat filled with horizontal pins.

On his way to town he rolled into one of the "rare" mud holes in Atlanta's streets and found himself securely stuck. He called a half-dozen loafing negroes to his rescue and when they had pulled him out he very nonchalantly requested them to call at his office next morning and he would pay them.

Congratulating himself that his experiences of the night before were things of the dead past he threw his feet over his desk next morning and lighted a cigar. A gentle knock at the door did not disturb him but when he looked around he threw up his hands.

The six big negroes had just filed in.

Jacobs' Liver Salt On Arising

and You'll Enjoy Your Breakfast

No appetite in the morning? Bilious? Headache? Best thing in the world for you is Jacobs' Liver Salt. Bad breath, biliousness, constipation, flatulence, daytime drowsiness, wakefulness at night, mean FOOD-POISONING. Undigested food, fermented, is doling out poison to the system.

Jacobs' Liver Salt instantly flushes the alimentary tract with water, sending a cleansing stream through it from all parts of the system. Packed, clogging matter is loosened and with the fermentation washed away, pressure is removed, liver and kidneys resume their natural cleansing processes of elimination. No forced action, as with calomel and severe purgatives; never a griping pain or nausea.

Take Jacobs' Liver Salt on arising. It is effervescent and stimulating. You feel better at once, good appetite for breakfast and good digestion; that dull heaviness vanishes and your brain is clear and quick. Keeps one up to the top notch.

Jacobs' Liver Salt is the business man's best stimulant. 25c, delivered anywhere.

SOCIETY LOUD IN ITS PRAISE OF PLAYERS

To the Players' Club Atlanta society is doffing its hat—and its bonnet.

In boudoir and in club, the topic of conversation was never swollen to such extremity of delight as that inspired by the presentation of "The Importance of Being Ernest" Tuesday evening by the Players' Club.

En masse the social world of Atlanta gathered at the Grand to view, be it said, with a critical eye its Thespian element in Oscar Wilde's excruciating farce.

The production was a splendid success.

Perhaps no greater compliment could be paid the Players' Club than that accorded by Miss Gladys Hanson, the Belasco star.

"It was wonderful," Miss Hanson exclaimed as she left the Grand. "I enjoyed every moment."

The play had to do with the infatuation of two young English girls, the Hon. Gwendolyn Fairfax and Cecily Cardew, for the name of Ernest. Yet, while each was vowing she would marry no man of another name, the first fell in love with John Worthington, J. P., and the other with Algernon Moncrief. Many complications ensued.

No dowager from "dear old London" could have wielded her lorgnette or English with more hauteur than did Mrs. John Marshall Slaton. As Lady Bracknell, whose dignity bowed only before Croesus, Mrs. Slaton proved herself more than an amateur before the footlights.

Mrs. William E. Owens, as Cecily Cardew, drew much praise. Her dainty, whimsical personality seemed to fall readily into line with her part.

Tall and stately, with not a whit less English appearance than the others, was Miss Hildreth Burton-Smith, who essayed the role of the Hon. Gwendolyn Fairfax. Miss Smith upheld with her statuesque presence the title which she bore and portrayed.

For love of the Hon. Gwendolyn, Marsh Adair, in the role of John Worthington, J. P., upheld the heavy part of the male cast of the play. In the trying situations into which the embroglio threw the drama, he forged great wreaths of excitement about him and threw them across the footlights into the audience.

Lamar Hill's juvenile role was well presented. He affected to a science the English attitude of calm and deliberation.

No less perfect than their masters and mistresses of the night were the underlings of the Manor House, Miss Prism, the governess, enacted by Mrs. Henry Bernard Scott; Merriman, the butler, by Tom Donaldson, and Lane, the manservant, by Frank Taylor. Hamilton Douglas, Jr., as the Rev. Cannon Chausuble, D. D., brought forth many laughs by his ecclesiastic timidity under the strain of events.

Judge Speer Speaks at Gordon Exercises

BARNESVILLE, GA., June 4.—Gordon commencemtn exercises are being attended by many visitors. Dr. R. E. Douglas preached the commencement sermon. Contestants in the sophomore declamation contest were: D. L. Stockbridge, Atlanta; G. H. Ridley, Ridley; Miss Clarice Wood, Barnesville; R. E. Hamilton, Aribi; J. H. Donaldson, Blackshear; Howard Collier, Barnesville; Miss Albee Overstreet, Barnesville; Miss Louise English, Barnesville.

Judge Emory Speer will deliver an address Wednesday morning. Graduation exercises will be held Wednesday.

Favorite, Finishing First by Head, Disqualified and Race Goes to Rank Outsider.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

EPSOM, ENGLAND, June 4.—By the disqualification to-day of Craganour, after he had finished ahead of a field of sixteen in the classic Derby, the blue ribbon event of the British turf went to a 100 to 1 shot by the name of Aboyeur. This horse, which was regarded as a rank outsider, is owned by A. P. Cunliffe.

Louvois, owned by W. Raphael, got second place and Great Sport third. Nimbus was given fourth place. Craganour was a hot favorite at 6 to 4 and more than $1,000,000 had been wagered on him. The odds on Louvois were 10 to 1; on Nimbus, 9 to 1.

Craganour came in first by a head, while Aboyeur finished a neck in front of Louvois.

Reiff Guilty of Blocking.

Protest was lodged against Craganour for bumping. The stewards investigated and found Johnny Reiff, the American jockey, who rode Craganour, guilty of blocking the field.

Craganour is owned by C. Bowers Ismay. The disqualification of Craganour and the rearrangement of the show position in the summary caused great confusion in the betting ring.

This was the 133d Derby and it was witnessed by a record crowd. The King and Queen and a number of officials of the Court of St. James attended.

Daring Split Gowns Worn.

Daring French styles of dresses, which have become common at Longchamps and other French race courses, were seen, although it was noticed that the Queen's frock was simple almost to the point of being old-fashioned. Some of the women of the swagger set, however, wore split skirts that nearly revealed the wearers' knees.

Although there were no American horses running this absence was partly countered by the fact that four American jockeys rode in the race. They were Danny Maher, J. Reiff, M. Henry and W. O'Neill.

Extraordinary precautions have been taken to guard the Derby candidates on account of threats made by militant suffragettes to poison blooded horses. Special guards have been employed for weeks to guard the stables.

August Belmont had entered Vulcan VI, but did not arrive from France in time to take part. H. P. Whitney, Herman Duryea and other American turfmen had entered horses, but all scratched them for one reason or another. The Derby is worth approximately $50,000 to the winner. The distance is about a mile and a half. W. Raphael's Tagalis won the event last June.

Output of Pig Iron Sets a New Record

NEW YORK, June 4.—A new high record in pig iron output was registered in May—close to 6,500 tons a day. Merchant furnaces' production probably averaged 28,000 tons a day. This indicates that the country is now producing pig metal at the rate of $34,000,000 tons a year.

Steel ingot output, too, next to the October, 1912, production, was the largest in the history of the industry. The United States Steel Corporation alone produced approximately 1,600,000 tons.

FACE POWDER IS TABOO AT FETE BY ROYALTY

American Women to Take Prominent Part in Gorgeous Costume Ball in London.

LONDON, June 4.—Exclamations of dismay were heard in society circles here to-day when it became known that it will be considered incorrect for ladies attending the great historical costume ball, "A Fete at Versailles," to wear face powder. Inasmuch as representatives of most of the royal courts of Europe are to be present, and the event to be held at Albert Hall to-morrow is under the direct patronage of Queen Mary and the Queen Mother, society was forced to smile away its annoyance and comply.

The reason for taboo is that the use of powder as part of a lady's toilette did not come into fashion until after the periods of Louis XIV and the costume ball is supposed to be a reception by that monarch at Versailles. The fete is conducted in aid of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Society, and will be one of the most gorgeous balls ever given in London.

Lady Paget a Leader.

Lady Paget, an American, will have charge of the arrangements for the French Court, which is to receive all of the visiting royalty. Count Saumarakoff Elston will portray Louis XIV. Marie Therese, his Queen, who was the daughter of Philip IV of Spain, will be represented by the Countess of Dudley. Prince Paul of Servia will take the part of the Dauphine of France. Albert Paget will be the officer of the guard in close attendance upon Louis XIV.

Among the women in the Court of France will be Ladies Crewe, Desborough, Islington, Helen Vincent, Diana Manners, Castlereagh and Ingestre, the Baroness E. De Rothschild, Mrs. Cecil Bingham and Mrs. W. B. Leeds, the last two Americans. Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, famous English actor, will represent one of the cardinals.

Other American Women.

Other American women who will appear in costume are the Duchess of Marlborough, Lady Newborough, Mrs. Schwab and Mrs. James McDonald.

The costumes for the French Court will be most elaborate. Masculine attire reached the highwater mark of magnificence during 1680. The men in the Court will wear embroidered brocades, silks and satins, and in the seams of their coats will be sewn pearls and other jewels, all surmounted by enormous periwigs.

Georgians Feast on 500-Pound Turtle

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 4.—A sea turtle weighing nearly 500 pounds and measuring 5 feet 6 inches from tip to tip was caught off the Isle of Palms by fishermen.

The huge creature ended its career in the Isle of Palms soup kettle, feeding many Georgians who came over for the feast. It was the largest turtle ever captured here.

Hail Destroys Crops In Eastern Alabama

GADSDEN, ALA., June 4.—Hail in different parts of Etowah County in the last 48 hours has caused heavy damage. In no place, though, was the path of the storm wide.

Near Gallant, Ala., after the storm had passed there was not a sign of vegetation on the ground where fields of cotton had flourished only a few minutes before.

BUYERS WELCOME PIANO CLUB PLAN

Georgian Advertising Campaign Proves Foresight of the Weatherholt Company.

That the player-piano is popular with people of Atlanta and the South is being demonstrated by T. E. Weatherholt, of the Weatherholt Piano Company, as a result of the big advertising campaign now being conducted in The Georgian and Hearst's Sunday American.

Before beginning the campaign, Mr. Weatherholt became convinced that the day of the ordinary piano was rapidly drawing to a close and that the time was not far distant when every lover of music would insist upon the player-piano. He said such an instrument was not only a player-piano, but a piano as well, and that with one of these in the home any member of the family could play.

He realized, though, the objection by many in the past had been the price. To overcome this objection, Mr. Weatherholt arranged his club plan, where 400 members co-operating together would have a tremendous purchasing power. In this way, he pointed out, he would be able to give a player-piano worth $650 for $488.50, on terms of $10 down and $2.50 per week.

To make the club plan more attractive, Mr. Weatherholt has arranged ten features, which include no interest on deferred payments, a ten-year guarantee, free life insurance, two-year conservatory course, selected bench, twelve rolls of music and the privilege of exchanging music as often as desired for other music in the Weatherholt free library of 5,000 rolls.

Hungarian Cabinet Quits; Deputies Riot

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

BUDAPEST, June 4.—A riot broke out to-day in the Lower Chamber of the Hungarian Parliament when the Premier announced the resignation of the Cabinet.

Members began fighting among themselves and the police had to be called in to eject the unruly ones.

L. & N. BRANDED AS INCONSISTENT

Alabama Counsel Declares Intra-State Business Is Exploited to Aid Long Hauls.

Since the Louisville and Nashville Railroad is carrying 80 per cent of its Alabama intrastate freight tonnage at a loss, it is not in position to come into court and demand that the remaining 20 per cent of freight and the passenger traffic shall yield profit on 100 per cent of its investment in Alabama.

This is one of the most important arguments advanced to-day by H. C. Selheimer, of Birmingham, arguing for Alabama in its fight to make the 2 1-2-cent passenger rate obligatory on the Louisville and Nashville.

He pointed out that 80 per cent of the freight traffic of the Louisville and Nashville inside the borders of the State consists of raw materials hauled from the mines and coke ovens to the Birmingham steel plants.

This business is done at a loss, when only intrastate traffic is considered. It is not a loss to the railroad as a whole, because the raw material issues from the Birmingham mills as finished steel, taking a much higher rate for long hauls in interstate business.

Mr. Selheimer declared it inconsistent to exploit intrastate business on one hand to fatten long-haul business; then on the other hand to demand that a fraction of intrastate business pay profits on the whole.

He also pointed out that the Atlantic Coast Line, Frisco, Illinois Central, Southern, Mobile and Ohio, Seaboard and Alabama Great Southern voluntarily put in a 2 1-2 cent fare. The Louisville and Nashville, the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, the Central of Georgia, and the Western of Alabama are fighting it. The roads contesting the cut are owned by the Louisville and Nashville virtually, while the Louisville and Nashville itself is owned by the Atlantic Coast Line.

Milton H. Smith Here for Famous Rate Battle

Shuns Reporters, but Photographer 'Gets Him'

Milton H. Smith, the veteran president of the L. and N. Railroad, who is in Atlanta.

This is the first picture of the noted railway head published in many years.

Veteran Head of L. & N. Bitterly Opposes State Interference in Railroad Affairs.

Milton H. Smith, the veteran president of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, is in Atlanta taking a leading part in the Alabama 2½-cent passenger rate fight in the Federal Court here.

While Mr. Smith is known to be bitterly opposed to State interference with the operation of railroads, he refused to make comment upon his own case.

Also, he showed his usual very decided antipathy for newspaper reporters and photographers. A picture was snapped of him in the lobby of the Piedmont Hotel. It is the first one published in many years.

"It generally costs money to get in the newspapers just what I want to say," said Mr. Smith, declining to be interviewed.

"Once in a while I send a statement to a paper, which, as a rule, is the answer to statements made by a public official. But mine generally come back with a nice little letter saying they will be glad to publish it at regular advertising rates. I can't see the fairness in it, but suppose it is because the other fellow happens to be a public official."

Mr. Smith merely smiled about the probable outcome of the injunction suit; he thought the country was in good condition; he smiled over what be thought of State Legislatures and Railroad Commissions generally; he smiled over the question of his opinion of Atlanta.

No more interesting figure in railroad circles can be found than Milton H. Smith. As head of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad he has developed it into one of the strongest systems in the United States.

ODDITIES —in the— DAY'S NEWS

STUBBORNNESS COSTS HIM $10,000.—Rather than retract his vow not to pay a cow tax of $75, an Asheville, N. C., dairyman sold his $25,000 farm for $15,000.

RESTORATION OF MEAT SUPPLY UP TO DIXIE

Cattle Tick Must Be Exterminated First, However, Says Department of Agriculture.

BY HUGH S. MILLER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4.—It is to the South that the nation must look for restoration of its meat supply, according to the department of agriculture.

"The South has great possibilities for the future as a cattle raising country, "says a bulletin issued by the department.

"Development of the cattle raising industry in the South, however, must await the extermination of the cattle tick. Fortunately this is being rapidly accomplished by the joint efforts of the Government and the States. The time has come when we must conserve our meat supply and take steps to increase it, and at the present remunerative prices for food animals it is probable that this will be gradually accomplished.

"The shortage in the supply of meat producing animals in the United States is steadily becoming more pronounced, and it is evident that the country is facing an era of short production of meat. In the last six years there has been a decline of over thirty per cent. in the number of beef cattle in the country, while the population and the consequent demand for meat has increased.

"The beef cattle in the country on Jan. 1, 1907, numbered 51,566,000; at the beginning of the present year the number was only 36,030,000. High prices were paid last year. For instance native steers brought $7.95 in Chicago, as against $6.50 the year before. We no longer have cattle for export and for the first time in our history the United States imported more in 1912 than it exported."

AUGUSTA, GA., June 4.—The monument to Patrick Walsh, late Mayor of Augusta and United States Senator from Georgia and a well-known editor and publisher of the South, will be unveiled on June 20. Addresses will be made at the unveiling by Pleasant A. Stovall, of Savannah, and Clark Howell, of Atlanta.

The monument will stand on Barrett Plaza, immediately in front of the Union Depot.

DECATUR HAS ITS RECORD 'BIG DAY'

Home-Coming Celebration Draws Hundreds to See Cornerstone Laying and Ceremonies.

Decatur Wednesday is recovering from the biggest celebration in its history. Tuesday was "Homecoming Day" and the anniversary of the birth of Jefferson Davis. Both were observed with ceremonies. The city presented a gala attire and one round of entertainment followed another.

Many civic and patriotic organizations took part in a parade which followed the crowning feature of the day, the laying of the cornerstone of a new $25,000 school building. George W. Napier, past grand master of the Georgia Masons, presided. Orators were J. Howell Green, John A. Montgomery and Hooper Alexander.

Children of the Decatur public schools and Boy Scouts took an active part in the celebration. The Confederate monument on the South Court Square was the rallying place for the Pythagoras Masons and the Board of Trade.

Dr. A. M. Soule, of the State Agricultural College, opened the day's program at 10 o'clock, when he addressed a large crowd at the courthouse.

A patriotic address by C. M. Chandler on the life and work of Jefferson Davis struck a responsive chord.

Representative-elect R. M. Smith urged the Fifth District Agricultural School for DeKalb County.

A smoker at the courthouse at 6:30 o'clock gave Atlantans an opportunity to speak. Wilmer L. Moore, C. J. Haden, Walter G. Cooper, Forrest Adair, Alonzo M. Field, R. F. Gilliam, R. W. Parker and Mayor John A. Montgomery were the speakers.

Railroad Men Guests At the White House

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Fifteen hundred members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, in convention here, to-day were received by the President and Mrs. Wilson at the White House.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Mrs. Louise Van Keuren to-day shot and killed her husband, John B. Van Keuren, mistaking him for a burglar.

Her Doctor Recommended NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

While there are no thrills in the narration of Mrs. P. T. Nichols, 623 Broad Street, Beloit, Wis., her story is nevertheless one of amazing interest. "Stricken with neuralgia and erysipelas, I lost all my hair. My doctor recommended Newbro's Herpicide. I used six or eight bottles and now have a fine head of slightly curly brown hair. Not a gray hair in my head. This is the more remarkable as I am middle-aged."

While the results which follow the use of Newbro's Herpicide are always more or less astonishing, they are always natural. Herpicide destroys the dandruff, stimulates the flow of blood to the hair follicles and keeps the scalp perfectly healthy. It makes possible a natural and luxuriant growth of hair, except in cases of chronic baldness.

While remedies said to be "every bit as good" as Newbro's Herpicide are frequently offered, one should insist upon having "the original germ destroyer," Herpicide. This is genuine. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1 sizes is sold by all dealers, who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications may be obtained at good barber shops. Send 10c in postage for sample to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

King of Italy Hurls Bombs From Airship

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ROME, June 4.—King Victor Emmanuel of Italy made a 45-minute flight to-day in a military dirigible balloon. During the flight bomb-throwing tests were made and the King insisted on hurling a number of dummy bombs at targets on the earth below.

Upon alighting, he said it was one of the most exhilirating experiences he ever had.

Piano Makers Fight Advertising Frauds

CLEVELAND, June 4.—Members of the National Piano Manufacturers' Association, holding a convention here, plan to place in every city of the United States an advertising referee.

The referee will pass on the merits of advertising offered to publications so that reputable piano dealers and the public will be protected from fraud.

Atlanta & Carolina Rail Plans Revised

AUGUSTA, GA., June 4.—A petition was filed with the City Council of Augusta at its meeting last night by the Atlanta and Carolina Railway Company asking for a franchise to use the streets of this city.

The road projected will be built from Atlanta via Athens to this city and will be operated by electricity. Power generated at Stevens Creek, above Augusta, and at Tallulah will be used. English money is backing the enterprise.

SLAIN BY POLICEMAN.

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., June 4.—Will Gibson, a cotton mill operative, who was shot by Policeman Mitchell Monday while resisting arrest, died last night.

Wife and I Are Friends of INSTANT POSTUM

"There's a Reason"

"I used to drink coffee—was nervous and irritable. Wife said so.

"So when the new food-drink, Instant Postum, came along she said to herself: 'Here's where I break Jack of the coffee habit.'

"Instant Postum is good stuff. I sleep better, smile more, and miss my indigestion."

A level teaspoonful of Instant Postum in an ordinary cup of hot water dissolves instantly and makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum (must be boiled).

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water.

Oriental Wares and Art Objects in a Sale

Baskets, Lamps, Jardinieres, Vases and Other Novelties at Next-to-Nothing Prices

At next-to-nothing prices, such as these---$2.50 table covers are 50c, $5.00 Japanese curtains are $1.00, a $22.50 Japanese vase is $5.00, a $6.50 enameled jardiniere is $1.50! And the list of like reductions could be carried to even greater length than it is below.

Such a sale as this out-bazaars the bazaars of the far Orient, in the scope and magnitude of the stocks, in the prices. It amounts to a very positive command to the housekeeper who has a little nook or corner or a whole room that would be brighter for some one or a few Oriental pieces that are now so rigorously reduced.

To miss such a sale would be to disregard an opportunity that one could hardly expect again.

Read the list below; the articles are all good-taste articles, serviceable and artistic---indeed it is a windfall of good fortune!

MILITANT DYING IN ATTEMPT TO STOP DERBY

Woman Leaps and Grabs Bridle of King George's Racing Horse. Trampled Fatally.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

EPSOM, ENGLAND, June 4.—A militant suffragette attempted to break up the great Derby at Epsom Downs to-day and nearly succeeded, with a tragical result.

Just as the horses were rounding Tattenheim corner a woman rushed from the side lines and seized the bridle of Anmer, a horse owned by King George. Anmer crashed heavily to the ground, hurling the jockey over his head. The woman was thrown beneath the hoofs of the plunging animal and was trampled fatally.

The thousands who saw the mishap were thrilled and shocked. It happened with lightning suddenness.

The woman spectator had crowded to a point as near the horses as she could possibly get. Several of the runners had flashed by, when she darted from the crowd. Anmer swerved as she jumped for the reins, but she managed to secure a firm grasp upon them.

As she fell a mighty shout went up from the grandstand and paddock. When the horse staggered to its feet women near the scene fainted at the sight of the two still forms.

The woman was identified as Emily Wilding Davidson, B. A., of London University, who has a police record in connection with suffrage violence. It was she who assaulted and seriously injured an aged clergyman last year when she mistook him for David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the British Exchequer.

The woman was taken to the hospital in a dying condition. It was first reported that she was dead. When doctors reached her side she was apparently lifeless, but strong restoratives were supplied and she rallied. It was said, however, that she could hardly survive the injuries.

Child, Given Choice, To Live With Bishop

NEW YORK, June 4.—Pretty Muriel Bishop, whose mother, Abigail Hancock Bishop, secured a divorce from her millionaire banker husband, James Cunningham Bishop, last week, to-day was awarded to the custody of her father.

Mrs. Bishop, fearful that the child would renounce her in favor of Mr. Bishop, did not attend the conference of lawyers in Justice Goff's chambers and sent word that she would consent to Muriel being in custody of her father if she (Mrs. Bishop) might be allowed to see her often.

Young Girl Favorite In Title Golf Play

GLENCOVE, N. Y., June 4.—When the second round of match play began this morning in the Woman's Fourteenth Metropolitan Golf Championship, the title was declared to be in as much doubt as before the qualifying round started.

The one best bet was thought to be Miss Marion Hollins, of New York, hardly more than a schoolgirl, who last year proved Metropolitan runner-up.

Atlanta Invites Baptists of U. S.

MUSKOGEE, OKLA., June 4.—The eighth annual session of the Sunday School Congress of the National Baptist Convention opened here to-day. Delegates came from every part of the United States.

Notable among those to arrive in Muskogee was the train bearing the officials of the Sunday School Congress with the Tennessee, Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia, New York, Florida and Mississippi delegations. It was known as the "Official Sunday School Congress Train."

Arrayed in Congress caps, a chorus consisting of 252 voices sang "Hail the Baptist Congress" as the train pulled in.

The first subject under discussion was "Interdenominational Sunday School, Organizations, National and International, Their Theoretical and Practical Value." There were a half-dozen papers read taking up this in detail. The next subject was "Why Should the Pastor and Church Urge the Organization of Teacher-Training Classes?"

Officers have labored to make the Congress the most brilliant Sunday school gathering in the history of the interdenomination.

It is not known just how many cities are clamoring for the next session, but it was learned from Henry A. Boyd, secretary, that invitations had been received from St. Louis, Atlanta, New York City, Atlantic City and Memphis.

Society Notes

LIBERTY NEAR FOR STEVENS SUSPECTS

Sheriff Says Negroes Will Be Freed Next Week Unless Alibis Are Broken.

Sheriff J. A. McCurdy, of DeKalb County, stated Wednesday morning that unless additional evidence is unearthed soon, Walter Wilkes and Ernest Maynard, negroes, held on suspicion in the Stevens case, will be released by the first of next week.

"I have about concluded," said the Sheriff, "that the negroes know nothing of the murder, and that they are telling the truth. We have investigated carefully their stories of their whereabouts on the day and night of the murder, and have found evidence that induces the belief that they are telling the truth. Three witnesses have been found who swear that Wilkes stayed in Atlanta all Tuesday night, and the same number will swear the same about Maynard. It begins to look as though they had proved a complete alibi."

The investigations of Sheriff McCurdy and Detective Roaser, however, are by no means complete. Until the negroes are released they will spend their time trying to find a weak link in the alibis.

The theory of accident to account for the death of the two women is gaining ground steadily. Sheriff McCurdy declared to-day that the affair looks more like an accident all the time.

Health Aid Found in Trades by Experts

WASHINGTON, June '.—But few people are aware that there are occupations that bring health, just as there are others that bring disease in their train. There is, for instance, the coal tar occupation.

Tar, with its strong, clean odor, acts as an antiseptic, and those who work in tar are immune to epidemic diseases. They are also robust. The feeble and anemic, taking up this trade in its various forms—the making of dyes, the preparation of disinfectant—soon become strong.

Steel workers also profit in health from their occupation. The molten steel gives off certain gases that have a beneficial effect on the lungs and nasal passages. Though subjected to extremes of heat, steel workers practically never get consumption or catarrh.

Bakers, if their bakeries are clean and airy follow a trade that fattens the veriest skeletons. Butchers are noted for their ruddy, robust build, they, like the bakers, seeming to absorb through their pores the nutriment they work in. Chocolate and cocoa makers in like manner are stout, healthy folk.

STEWART MAIDEN LEAVES FOR TRIP TO SCOTLAND

Stewart Maiden, professional golfer of the Atlanta Athletic Club, will leave Sunday afternoon for New York, from where he will sail for England. He plans to go direct to his old home in Scotland and will visit there for a month. He will then return to take up his work at East Lake.

While Maiden is away Willie Mann will act as professional at the A. A. C.

Auto Victim Lives With Broken Back

KOKOMO, IND., June 7.—The condition of Russell Gifford, whose back was broken in an automobile accident near this city, 18 days ago, is puzzling the physicians. Immediately after Gifford was taken to the hospital, it was announced that he had practically no chance to live longer than a few hours.

The fifth, seventh and ninth vertebrae were crushed and dislocated. It seemed certain the spinal cord had been injured and that death would come in a little while. Gifford is paralyzed from his chest down and has only the slightest use of his arms.

It is said that there is no similar case on record where the person injured lived more than 14 days. The physicians are beginning to think that Gifford's spinal cord escaped serious injury, and they say that if they can keep him nourished a little while longer, they have hopes he will live and recover, in part at least, the use of his body.

$3,000,000 Is Left To Girl Bookkeeper

Beneficiary Deplores Fact That Good Fortune Was Made Public Before She Actually Received Money.

READING, PA., June 7.—Miss Nora Wade, aged twenty-three, who is employed as a bookkeeper in a box factory here, and her mother, residing at Wilmington, Del., have fallen heirs to a large fortune bequeathed to them by the father of the latter, who died in England two years ago, leaving an estate said to be valued at $3,000,000.

Admitting that she and her mother had been made legatees in the will of her grandfather, Miss Wade refused to discuss the matter further when interviewed here. She deplored the fast that the story had leaked out, declaring that she preferred that final settlement be made before the public was apprised of her good fortune. She has a sister in Wilmington, Del., and a brother whose whereabouts are unknown.

FORTY WHITEHALL

The World of Society

Mrs. Charles T. Hopkins, Jr., whose marriage was a recent notable event and who is being tendered a series of parties since her return from her wedding journey, was given a luncheon Wednesday by Miss Annie Lee McKenzie at "The Pines," the residence of Miss McKenzie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George M. McKenzie, at Brookwood. Twelve young matrons were present.

The decorations throughout the house were of sweetpeas, and the luncheon table had a large plateau of lavender sweetpeas, with large silver candelabra rising from the center. At either end of the table stood Marie Antoinette baskets filled with lavender sweetpeas, and the place cards were hand-painted in graceful minuet dancers, gowned in lavender. A cloth of fillet lace and embroidery covered the table, and the minor details were lavender and white.

Miss McKenzie wore a beautiful toilet of white embroidered net over white satin, combined with linene lace and finished with a blue sash caught in front with a large bow.

Mrs. Hopkins wore a suit of blue linen, the short cutaway coat opening over a blouse of embroidered cotton crepe. The collar and cuffs were of black satin, which also formed the girdle, and the toilet was completed by a hat of black straw, adorned with peacock feathers.

Mrs. Carpenter Entertains.

Mrs. Guy Carpenter entertained eight guests at a bridge luncheon Wednesday for Mrs. Paul Seydel, of New York, and Mrs. Edmund Berkely of Richmond, Va. Pink sweetpeas formed the decorations and hand-embroidered handkerchiefs were prizes.

Mrs. Keppel Regains Prestige

London's Most Popular Woman

Edward's Friend Wins Test Vote

Mrs. George Keppel.

King George and Queen Mary Ask Society Favorite to Remain in London.

LONDON, June 4.—Mrs. George Keppel, who was practically banished from London after the death of King Edward, it was learned to-day, has again been declared the most popular woman in London society. During a restaurant dinner "paper games," which are now the rage in London, were started. In one of the games the question was asked:

"Who is the most popular woman in London?"

When the answers were opened and counted 19 out of the 22 guests had written the name of Mrs. George Keppel.

It is said to be the wish of King George and Queen Mary that Mr. and Mrs. Keppel, who had planned to spend the summer on the Continent, remain in London.

Pardee and Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Wilmer.

Mrs. Webb Hostess.

Mrs. Guy Webb gave a lovely reception Wednesday afternoon for Miss Marie Wright, a bride-elect; Miss Willie Knox, of Social Circle, and Mrs. Paul Weeks, who was Miss Ruth Knox before her recent wedding. Pink and white sweetpeas in the form of a pyramid decorated the tea table and roses and daisies were used in the reception rooms. Miss Margaret Brantly served punch and Misses Lucile Moore, Elizabeth Moore, Corrie Weeks, Georgia Weeks and Ruth Harris served the ices.

Mrs. Webb was assisted in receiving by Mrs. H. W. Cantrelle, Mrs. H. F. Cole, Mrs. W. H. F. Hamilton, Mrs. T. O. Poole, Mrs. C. M. Trippe, Mrs. O. G. Kelly and Mrs. J. M. Wright.

Mrs Webb was gowned in blue charmeuse draped with marquisette; Miss Knox wore white crepe de chine and lace, while Mrs. Weeks was lovely in blue crepe de chine, the skirt draped with chiffon crepe over shadow lace. Miss Wright wore white embroidered marquisette.

Robinson-Steele.

Mrs. Dale Neer Robinson and Mr. Alvin Steele were married quietly Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Homer Neer, on Eighth Street. Dr. Hughlett, of St. Mark Church, officiated, and the attendants included the bride's sister, Miss Lelia Neer, as maid of honor, and Mr. Leo Spencer, as best man.

The bride entered with her brother, Mr. Homer Neer, who gave her away. She was preceded by a group of little ribbon-bearers in dainty lingerie frocks—Misses Charlotte Meador, Doris Starnes, Sara Schane and Mary Ingram, of Apalachicola, Fla.

Palms and ferns with vases of pink roses adorned the apartments, the bridal party being grouped before a bank of palms in the living room. The bride wore a traveling costume of wine-colored rep, embroidered in blue and orange, worn with a blouse of white lace, and hat to match, laden with shaded roses. She carried an arm bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies.

The maid of honor wore white lingerie with pink sash and girdle, with a leghorn hat adorned with roses. Her flowers were pink roses.

An informal reception followed the ceremony, when the relatives and close friends were entertained.

After June 15 Mr. and Mrs. Steele will be at home at 24 East Eighth Street.

City Federation to Meet.

The part Atlanta women are playing in the crystallization of a higher civic ideal here will be still more fully demonsfrated at the annual meeting of the City Federation Friday at the Woman's Club House in Baker Street.

An all-day session, beginning at 10 o'clock, will be devoted to philanthropic, ethical and civic movements fostered by the City Federation. The meeting will be full of interest. Anyone wishing to introduce resolutions will communicate with Mrs. James Jackson, chairman of the resolutions committee. Matters of public welfare can be arranged for by telephoning the president, Mrs. Charles Haden.

The executive board, composed of the presidents of all the clubs, chairman of all committees and officers of the federation, will meet at 9:45 o'clock.

Lawn Fete at Nobles Home.

The members of St. Mary's Guild of St. Philip's Cathedral will give a lawn festival at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. George H. Noble, 980 Peachtree Street, Friday, from 4 to 9 p. m., when home-made cakes and candies will be for sale. There will be fortune telling, a grab bag and other attractions. Among the members of the guild are Misses Emma Sharpe, Annie Barnwell, Ethel Noble, Mildred Noble, Mary King and Abigail Stockbridge.

Miss Hay to Entertain.

Miss Minnie Lee Hay will entertain at the first of a series of auction bridge parties Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Warren White entertained at a reception Wednesday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Daniel Glasgow, of Tyrone, Pa.; her sister, Mrs. Robert Hall, Washington, and Miss Lina Andrews, a bride-elect. Palms, ferns and Killarney roses were used in the decorations. A large basket of the roses graced the tea table, where the details were in pink. Pink sweetpeas were effectively used in the reception rooms.

Mrs. White was assisted by Mrs. George Andrews, Mrs. Frank Markel, Mrs. John R. Wilkinson, Mrs. S. C. Dobbs, Mrs. W. A. Candler, Mrs. John R. Dickey, Mrs. Fay Wilson, Mrs. W. M. Fain, Mrs. R. C. Turner, Misses Kate Baker, Pauline Norman, Jennie Sue Bell and Annie Mae Patterson. Punch was served by Misses Mildred Harris and Lois Pattillo.

Mrs. White was gowned in lavender crepe de chine. Mrs. Glasgow wore caracmacross lace over white satin. Mrs. Hall was in a white crepe meteor draped in princess lace, and Miss Andrews wore a Nell rose charmeuse, effectively combined with lace.

Young People's Party.

Mrs. Eugene Mitchell will entertain 40 young people at a heart dice party Friday afternoon for her young daughter, Miss Margaret Mitchell.

Scott-MacIntyre.

The marriage of Miss Marie MacIntyre and Mr. John Scott was solemnized Wednesday at noon, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. I. MacIntyre, "Glenn O," on Peachtree Road. Attendants were the bride's sister, Miss Julia MacIntyre, as maid of honor, and Mr. Robert Scott as best man. Dr. Hughlett of St. Mark Church officiated.

The bridal party stood before a bank of palms, the bride wearing a smart costume of blue crepe de chine, the coat opening over a blouse of the same material, embroidered in shades of brown. Brown shoes, a brown hat and gloves completed the toilet. A shower bouquet of valley lilies was carried.

The maid of honor wore white embroidered crepe, with a leghorn hat adorned with pink roses. She carried pink roses. Misses Lois and Margaret MacIntyre, the bride's sisters, were ribbon-bearers. They wore lacy white frocks.

A wedding breakfast was served. The decorations throughout the house were of sweetpeas and greenery. Misses Effie Roberts and Nell Candler served punch.

Mr. Scott and his bride went on a wedding trip East. They will go to housekeeping in the bridegroom's home in Decatur.

The bride's traveling suit was of blue serge, with hat to match.

Matthews-Sisson.

A quiet wedding was that of Miss Mary Sisson to Dr. O. H. Matthews Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the Jackson Hill Baptist Church. Only a few intimate friends were present. Dr. and Mrs. Matthews left for a journey to the mountains of North Carolina. They will be at home at 500 North Jackson Street.

PERSONALS

Miss Elizabeth Dunson and Miss Van McKinnon have returned from Chattanooga, where they have been entertained as guests of Mrs. Walter Bishop Davis. Several affairs were given in their honor. Mrs. Davis entertained at a dinner-dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Corydon Lyle have issued invitations to the marriage of their sister, Miss Anne Elizabeth Lyle, to Mr. Marion S. Harper, Wednesday, June 18, at 8:30 o'clock, at St. Mark Church. A reception at 309 West Peachtree Street will follow the ceremony.

Mrs. Rees Marshall and young son will go for a month's visit to Miss Madge Bannigan at her summer home at Narragansett Pier.

Miss Harrie Stockdell has returned to Athens, after visiting Mrs. C. A. Wood and Mrs. Harry English.

Mrs. R. M. Bennett, of Marion, N. C., is visiting Mrs. Enos Hartman in Ansley Park. Mrs. Hartman is convalescent after a severe illness.

MAYOR ASSERTS SIGNAL SUIT IS NEEDLESS

Declares He Can Block Payment for Alarm System Without an Injunction.

"I've got the upper hand and can protect the city's rights without any injunction," said Mayor James G. Woodward this morning regarding the application of W. W. Lowe for an order stopping the payment of money on the contract between the city of Atlanta and the Okonite Company.

W. W. Lowe filed application in the Superior Court yesterday. His petition will be heard June 14. Lowe alleges that a contract entered into October 21, 1912, for the installation of Gamewell signal stations, laying of cable and rehabilitation of the exchange, was illegal because the purchase price was to be paid during a period of years.

The allegations in most respects are similar to those set out in the recent crematory suit. The contract price for the signal system was $106,317.73.

"We Have Upper Hand."

"If they had asked me anything about it I would have advised them not to bring this injunction suit," said the Mayor. "The crematory suit settled the question. We have the upper hand. We want to do what is right and correct all wrongs. I could take care of the city's interests right in my office here."

Mayor Woodward said the contract called for the installation of about 50 signal boxes at $125 each, but that he had ascertained the patent had run out and these boxes were selling for $50 less.

"If that's the case," he said, "we won't pay but $75 apiece—just what they are selling for everywhere else.

"I didn't like the contract or the way it was written," the Mayor continued. "The Okonite people laid cables and the Gamewell people put in signal boxes, but which of them got the contract the other was certain to get its particular kind of work out of the job. It was a lump sum bid, as I understand.

Called for Lump Sum.

"The bid should have specified so many feet of cable, so much; overhauling the old exchange, so much; so many new boxes at so much apiece, so much; and so many feet of wire at so much per foot, so much.

"But it didn't do that. It merely called for payment of a lump sum. Now, I want to know what the work is worth. I have the upper hand. The crematory suit settled that question, and I can take care of this without any injunction."

Actual work on the contract is nearly finished. Payment was contemplate through several years, on the "honor" plan, which the Supreme Court recently said was illegal.

'Fewer Clothes to Improve Morals'

ST. LOUIS, June 4.—Men were far more beautiful than women until fine feathers and fine clothes became a commercial factor in life, according to the belief of Mrs. Lillian Stuart, who testified before the Missouri Senate wage investigating committee.

"Clothes are responsible for the shallow life of to-day," she said. "People soon will wear fewer clothes, however, and they then will improve morally and physically."

A., B. & A. Injures 1 In 2 Train Wrecks

Two small wrecks were reported Wednesday morning by officials of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad.

Near Olersfield, Ga., 226 miles from Atlanta, a negro fireman, Henry Wright, was slightly injured when train No. 93 struck a fallen tree and was derailed. The train was delayed several hours.

At Wadley, Ga., passenger train No. 23 ran into the rear end of freight train No. 95.

No one was injured.

YOUTHS IN COUNTRY TOWNS WORKING HARD TO LAND SHETLANDS

I nominate, as a candidate in The Hearst's Sunday American and Atlanta Georgian Pony Outfit Contest:

Name .....

Address .....

Nominated by .....

Address .....

GOOD FOR 1,000 VOTES.

Only One Nomination Blank Can be Voted for Any Contestant.

Not only is a little candidate in Jefferson, Ga., working hard for one of the pony outfits The Georgian and American are offering, but also he is planning far into the future.

He writes:

"I am working as hard as I can. If you will help me get the pony and cart, I will sell papers for you as long as the pony lasts, and will give you all the money I make a week and will get some customers in the country and will bring it to them."

Evidently he wants a pony.

The Georgian and American can not give him help, though, any more than is given other contestants. The contest is strictly impartial.

There is a hustler in Cartersville. He writes in for six books. "Sure, for I am doing big business and need them badly."

Vote totals are growing all along the line. No boy or girl will have a pony in a "walkaway."

TABERNACLE CALL WINS M'CONNELL

New Pastor Once Was Member of the Detective Force of the City of Atlanta.

The Rev. Lincoln McConnell, noted lecturer and revivalist, who recently was called to the pastorate of the Tabernacle Baptist Church, has accepted. A. C. Boatman, a prominent member of the Tabernacle congregation, received the following telegram from Dr. McConnell Wednesday morning:

A. C. Boatman, Atlanta, Ga.

I have arranged Lyceum contract to suit, and am pleased to say I can accept the Tabernacle pastorate. I can not reach Atlanta till September 1, but will arrange to take charge at that time.

LINCOLN McCONNELL.

Dr. McConnell is 46 years old and a native of Tennessee. Before his conversion he was a member of the Atlanta detective force for a number of years. Becoming converted, he decided to enter the ministry, and was instrumental in organizing the Wesley Memorial Church here.

He was pastor of that church for about three years, and then left Atlanta to enter the evangelistic field.

After leaving here he joined the Baptist Church at Kansas City, Mo., and has been an active worker for that denomination since. At present Dr. McConnell is conducting a successful revival at Cape Girardeau, Mo.

EX-CONVICT SUES WARDEN OF CAMP

John Birt Asks $10,000 for Alleged Cruel Flogging—State Inquiry Probable.

Suit for $10,000 damages has been filed against Oscar F. Jones, Warden of the Bellwood convict camp, by John Birt, who says he was cruelly beaten on July 2, the day he was sent as a prisoner to the camp, with the result that he spent several weeks in the convict hospital.

In his petition, filed by Attorney C. G. Battle, Birt charges he was given 72 lashes and kicked and beaten. He lost 40 pounds in weight, he alleges, and his earning capacity was decreased three-fourths. He affirms he was told his punishment was inflicted because he cursed on the way to the camp.

Attorney Battle said the circumstances of Birt's treatment were so flagrantly inhuman that the Prison Commission began an investigation, which will be taken up again July 1. Birt was sick and unable to work at the time, Battle says, and was chained and maltreated by another convict camp official, against whom an additional damage suit will be brought.

Jim's Lodge Woes Something Fierce

Alderman and Mayor Pro Tem James E. Warren has gained a unique law client in the person of Jim Washington, an ante-bellum darky who came to him the other day with a tale of woe.

For a long time Jim had been paying his Darktown lodge a sum of money each month as a sort of "death benefit." When a member of his family died the lodge brethren told him he or she would be buried by the lodge. Jim's mother died and Jim and his sister set the date of the funeral. When the time came they learned that the obsequies had been held the day before.

Then Jim got a notice that charges had been preferred against him in the lodge for failure to attend. That was the last straw. He sought out Lawyer Warren and told his tale.

TRAFFIC BAR TO VIADUCT CLOSING

Committee Meets Railway Men Thursday to Work Out Plans for Forsyth St. Project.

The committee in charge of plans for closing the Forsyth Street viaduct underpass expects to meet at 10 o'clock Thursday morning with W. A. Winburn, president of the Central of Georgia Railway, and Major J. L. McCollum, of the Western and Atlantic. The meeting was scheduled for Tuesday, but the railroad officials were detained in other cities.

Chief among the obstacles the committee seeks to surmount is the problem of caring for traffic in case the underpass is closed. Three plans have been proposed. One is to induce the Central of Georgia to give a right-of-way along the tracks to the Alabama Street depot. It is understood, though, that the railroad plans eventually to extend the depot to Forsyth Street, which would make this plan impossible.

Another plan is to induce the Western and Atlantic to provide a right-of-way along its tracks from Forsyth Street to South Pryor Street. The committee anticipates trouble with this plan also, in that it would involve the surrender of trackage facilities by wholesale houses. The third plan is to build an incline from the Forsyth Street viaduct.

If the committee arrives at a decision, its recommendations then must be approved by the Governor and the State Railroad Commission. Should the desired approval be forthcoming the committee then will be confronted with still another problem—that of getting the money.

"And that," said Councilman Ashley Wednesday, "is quite a problem all by itself, considering Atlanta's present financial straits."

The committee comprises James R. Gray, Clark Howell, Robert F. Maddox, W. F. Winecoff and Councilmen Mason, Ragsdale, Everett and Thomson.

SHORT COVERING SENDS COTTON UP

Spot Houses Buy, Helping the Advance—Weather and Crop News Very Bearish.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Influenced by firm cables the cotton market opened quiet to-day with first prices net unchanged to 2 points lower than last night's closing quotations. The poor response to firm cables was explained by the continued decline in the stock market.

Weather conditions overnight were favorable, showing further rains in the eastern belt. During the forenoon the market was under heavy buying, which was credited chiefly to shorts covering and brokers identified with the spot interests. Spot houses were said to have sold July on the opening. There was a demand for near crops and a rally followed. July and August advanced 10 points over the initial level. New crop positions were under active demand and followed the advance moderately.

The interest seemed to center in the summer option, but there was a good demand for new crops around 11 cents. Habersham King's report on conditions was very bearish and had a depressing effect. Prices, however, held rather steady and only declined a few points from the high point. Outside speculation continues so small that it is hard to bring about any material change in prices. The feeling, however, continues extremely bearish and the local traders are inclined to sell on all favorable news.

During the late forenoon and afternoon session the market continued on the upward trend. The ring crowd seemed to have gone short during the early trading. The early decline was quickly retrieved. The trade purchased July, which started a renewal of short covering, resulting in prices rallying back to the early best.

At the close the market was steady with prices at a net gain of 3 to 9 points from the final quotations of Tuesday.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, June 4.—Liverpool spot continues large; sales 10,000 bales during the past two days, but spot quotations show no corresponding strength and suggest a willingness to liquidate stock holdings. Futures readily follow any easiness on our side. Letters from Liverpool all report consumers as buying futures freely around 6 pence, showing the education to fixed price ideas.

Weather conditions continue very favorable. Fair weather prevails in the south central States. Mostly cloudy elsewhere. A little cooler in the northern part of the belt. Light rains in northwest Texas and southwest Texas. Light to moderate scattered showers in Arkansas. Tennessee, the Atlantics and parts of Alabama.

Our market opened about 10 points lower, but steadied on the resistance shown by New York. The intention of professionals to make the usual summer operations against technical conditions is responsible for the present support and steadiness. Some reverse, even if immaterial in the end but sufficient to serve as the basis of a short scare, is expected by present bull operators to come along and cause an upturn, and their buying is on this ground. Meanwhile, the general economic outlook as reflected by the continued decline in the stock markets is becoming less encouraging, and uncertainty, together with the proposed or supposed radical change coming from a new administration, is telling in its paralyzing effect.

COTTON GOSSIP

The feature of the trading yesterday afternoon was the selling of July by spot interests, and Liverpool is said to be a seller of this option in this market. Several 5,000-bale blocks were offered around 11.40, but found no takers. The decline in the afternoon started with selling by Shearson, which was said to be for Wall Street, followed by Mitchell and Schill. Some of Mitchell's selling was thought to be for Liverpool. There was some buying by those bullishly inclined, on the theory that there is a short interest existing and the condition report Monday justifies higher prices.

Liverpool cables: "American middling fair, 7.16d; good middling, 6.82d; middling, 6.62d; low middling, 6.46d; good ordinary, 6.10d; ordinary, 5.76d."

NEW ORLEANS, June 4.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map is very favorable. It shows fair in the south central belt, cloudy elsewhere; cooler in the northern part of the belt. There were nice rains in the Panhandle. Good rains in far Western Texas. Light in Southwest Texas. Moderate showers in Arkansas. Light to moderate scattered showers in Alabama and the Atlantics. Indications are for more or less showery weather over the entire belt and cooler in the northern half.

Rainfall: Roswell, N. Mex., .52; Amarillo, .10; Fort Worth, Atlanta, Del Rio, .02; Little Rock, .38; Memphis, .01; Montgomery, .18; Knoxville, .22; Jacksonville, Wilmington, Anniston, .04; Birmingham, .24.

Memphis wires: "Conditions are favorable for scattered showers over the northern parts of the western cotton States and in the Southeast. Yesterday light rains fell throughout Alabama and in Western Texas and parts of Arkansas."

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "With New Orleans holiday, there was very little interest taken locally in the cotton market. The New York session reflected narrow trading, and the talent there explained the decline as due to rains in Texas. Dallas, however, advised that a light sprinkle at Paris was the only vestige of rain in the State.

"Meanwhile, the spot markets of the South continue to hold the market down in spite of the fact that the new crop movement is little more than two months away. The interior holds a good deal of cotton, but holders do not seem in the least worried and not at all anxious to liquidate.

"Light rains continue to fall in the eastern States and unsettled weather was predicted for Arkansas. In Texas, hot dry weather exists, but as yet no serious complaints of high temperatures have been heard. On the contrary, Texas is now sending in many very favorable crop reports. The talent can not reconcile the Government's very low percentage figures for the Atlantic States with the private crop advices, consequently, bearish confidence began to return after some overnight contemplation."

Habersham King, in his latest report, says: "Reviewing weather conditions from preparation to planting and chopping out, I am convinced that this crop is earlier than normal by at least two weeks. Stands perfect, crop clean and in condition to withstand unfavorable developments with minimum damage. Unless the last half of August be so wet as to prevent picking and ginning, the movement this fall will be the earliest on record and from all sections of the belt."

The next Government report to be issued will be the acreage report, which will be made public July 3, at noon. It may be that the Government will issue its second condition figures at that time.

* * *

Thomasville, Ga., wires: "Government report a farce. Conditions in Georgia were never better."

MILLER-CARTER COTTON LETTER.

MEMPHIS, June 4.—It appears that sufficient shorts covering developed on early decline to check it, since which time trading has been limited and fluctuations narrow. Foreign advices indicate a disposition on the part of European spinners to buy moderately at present prices, but American trade is quite bearish on good crop accounts and prospects give legislation. We anticipate that foreign demand will subside if crop does well for a while longer, leaving prices at mercy of bearish domestic speculators, among whom are numbered those of the South.

ENORMOUS SALES PUT STOCKS DOWN

Every Issue on List Liquidated Mercilessly — No Principal Cause for Decline.

By C. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Heavy selling of active issues by the speculative element featured the opening of the stock market to-day. Many selling orders were cabled from London and Paris. Some of the Paris selling, it was reported, resulted from the St. Louis and San Francisco smash, a Frisco bond issue having been placed in France just before the road went into a receivership.

Union Pacific was one of the weakest, declining 1¾ to 143¾.

United States Steel common was supplied in bulk, selling down to 56 for a loss of 1¼. Reading lost 1¾ in the first half hour, going to 156⅛.

Great Northern preferred went to 122¼ for a loss of 1⅜.

Among the other declines were Amalgamated Copper 1⅛, American Smelting 1, American Telegraph and Telephone ¾, Southern Pacific ⅜, Pennsylvania ⅜, Missouri Pacific ¼, Erie 1, Canadian Pacific ½. Pennsylvania sold around 107½ and Canadian Pacific around 216½.

The curb was weak.

Americans in London were hammered.

The market continued on its downward slump during the forenoon and indications showed very little signs of relief. Canadian Pacific again was the heavy loser, dropping 1⅝ to 215¼. Steel dropped 2⅛ and Union Pacific was off 2⅛. Pennsylvania was off ⅞ and at 155¼ Reading showed a loss of 2⅝.

Lehigh Valley was off 2 points at 151. All the other issues were off from 1 to 3 points.

Call money loaning at 2¾ per cent.

It was estimated at noon that the transactions to-day would aggregate at least 600,000 shares, or twice as much as changed hands yesterday. The bulk of the selling came from Europe, although traders suspected that many of the orders had first been cabled from New York and then cabled back, to hide the identity of the real sellers

Canadian Pacific and Steel were the storm centers. Both were hammered hard. Some stocks, notably Pennsylvania, reached within a few points of the 1907 panic price.

The selling movement continued in the afternoon up to the final hour when important interests set in to stem the tide. By 2 o'clock the sales for the day reached 750,328 shares against 338,382 for the entire day Tuesday. Over 50 new low point records for the year were established. Many investors joined the bears.

In the last half hour a number of issues rallied and made gains. Amalgamated Copper held steady at 68¾ while Canadian Pacific sold up to 27¾ for a gain of 2½. Other gains over the midday prices increased Steel ½, Union Pacific 1¼, Southern Pacific 1¼, Reading 1¼, Pennsylvania ¾, Northern Pacific 1⅜, Lehigh Valley 1½, St. Paul ¾. The market closed steady. Governments unchanged; other bonds firm.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Commercial bar silver, 60⅛; Mexican dollars, 48c.

Hester's Monthly Cotton Statement

Secretary Hester's New Orleans Cotton Exchange statement of the movement of cotton issued Friday covers the monthly movement to the close of May.

Compared with last year, it shows a decrease for the month in round figures of 41,000 bales, compared with year before last an increase of 46,000 bales and with 1910 a decrease of 21,000.

The total for May was 323,267, against 363,995 last year, 277,240 year before last and 434,971 same time in 1910.

The movement from September inclusive shows receipts at all United States ports 9,560,612, against 11,769,374 last year, 8,443,621 year before last and 7,044,891 same time in 1910; overland across the Mississippi, Ohio and Potomac Rivers to Northern mills and Canada 933,365, 1,207,470 last year, 889,343 year before last and 753,199 same time in 1910; Southern mills' takings, exclusive of quantity consumed at Southern outposts 2,532,000, against 2,301,000 last year, 2,040,000 year before last and 1,978,000 same time in 1910; and interior stocks in excess of those held at the commencement of the season 216,992, against 129,236 last year, 120,236 year before last and 162,204 same time in 1910.

These make the total movement of the cotton crop brought into sight during the nine months ending close of May, 13,242,969, against 15,402,080 last year, 11,509,100 year before last and 9,938,294 same time in 1910.

Northern spinners took during May, 85,718 bales, against 181,608 last year and 88,417 year before last, increasing the total for the nine months to 2,240,681, against 2,607,605 last year and 2,004,498 the year before. This makes their average weekly takings for the season 57,453, against 66,618 last year and 51,591 the year before.

Foreign exports for the nine months of the season have been 8,097,687 bales, showing a decrease under last season of 1,984,659 and an increase over the same period year before last of 918,648.

Stocks at the seaboard and the twenty-nine leading Southern interior markets at the close of May 664,661, against 654,113 the same date last year, and 494,071 the year before.

Including port and interior stocks left over from the previous season and the number of bales of the current crop brought into sight during the nine months, the supply has been 13,607,682, against 15,689,054 last year and 11,157,- the year before.

Up to the close of May 94.44 per cent of the cotton crop had been marketed and nine months in 1911, the percentage of the crop brought into sight was 94.96 per cent and for the same time in 1910 the percentage marketed was 93.67.

The amount of the crou brought into sight for the nine months from September to May, inclusive, is 2,159,111 behind last year, 1,734,000 ahead of the year before last and 3,305,000 ahead of 1910.

BULLISH WHEAT TRADERS SAY BIG SHORT INTEREST EXISTS

CHICAGO, June 4.—The Inter Ocean says: "Those who are bullish on wheat said last night that they believed the market was sold out and that a good short interest existed, which should it become alarmed over the Northwestern crop prospects and start to cover, prices will go higher.

"Corn prices yesterday were the highest of the season. Bulls are talking 60 cents and most of the local trade are long.

"The theory of the bulls is that unless a good supply in accumulated this month to carry the trade into September prices are to go higher.

"The most important point noticeable in the market in the last few days has been the limited selling pressure, making it easy for the bulls to advance prices."

OPINIONS ON GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Bartlett, Frazier & Co.:

Wheat—The course of prices to-day depends largely on the attitude of the shorts, some of which covered on yesterday's late rally. There is no pressure on the market except from this class of sellers.

Corn—There was considerable covering yesterday by shorts and should the country start to sell again in any volume prices may ease off some. The supply and demand situation controls the market now.

Oats—We continue to feel friendly to oats for the long pull.

Provisions—We are inclined to look for a higher market to-day.

B. W. SNOW BULLISH ON WHEAT.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Snow makes the condition of winter wheat 85.9 per cent against 90.5 to May 1; spring wheat 93 against 95.3 last year; oats 87.3, or a little below normal.

LIVERPOOL GRAIN MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, June 4.—Wheat opened ⅛d higher; at 1:30 p. m. the market was ⅛d to ¼d higher. Closed unchanged to ⅛d higher.

Corn opened ⅛d higher; at 1:30 p. m. the market was ⅛d to ¼d higher. Closed ¼d higher.

ST. LOUIS CASH QUOTATIONS.

Wheat—No. 2 red ....100 @107
Corn—No. 2 .... 58¾
Oats—No. 2 40

CHICAGO, June 4.—There were losses of ⅞@1½c in the price of wheat to-day and resting spots were rather close to the lowest levels reached. The crop news from Kansas was more favorable with a few exceptions and wheat was sold on this. The official report of the amount of wheat seeded in the western provinces of Canada shows an increase of 4 per cent and the area 10,300,000 acres.

Corn closed with losses of ¼@⅜ for the July and December, while September was the strongest of the list.

Oats were off ¼@⅝c with longs the principal sellers. There was considerable discussion as to the result of the admission of oats from Canada free of duty and there was heavy selling on this.

Provisions were practically unchanged.

Vacation Peace

DURING THE SUMMER YOU will spend considerable money seeking mental and physical rest; but you cannot enjoy perfect peace of mind if you carry your troubles about with you for the sake of a few dollars.

Don't carry your silver, jewelry and valuable papers wherever you go, or leave them at home unprotected, when, for a few dollars, you could put them in one of our Safe Deposit Boxes, where they will be proof against fire and burglary. Do this, and you can start your vacation trip with a light heart.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

Picking of Ducks Reduces Egg Product

Excitement and Strain Upon System in Producing New Feathers Too Great.

We are so often asked the questions as to picking Runner ducks, feeding, etc., that we wish to express our views upon the subject for the benefit of our readers in general.

The picking of a large, heavily feathered duck like the Pekin or Aylesbury, is a matter of some profit, we presume, for they are not of an excitable or nervous temperament like the Runner.

We believe that the Runner should not be picked at all. There is no question but what the excitement of picking, together with the strain upon the system in producing a new coat of feathers, would greatly reduce the egg product for a considerable period. And you know it would take but a few eggs to amount to more than the amount of feathers secured from the duck at a picking, so we say, Don't.

The feed for laying ducks should be of a good mash, composed as follows: Equal parts of corn meal, wheat bran and middlings, to which add about one-fourth part of good, freshly made beef scraps. At times when other green stuff is scarce, about an equal part of alfalfa or clover meal should be added. This mash should be made up soft—in fact, if it is almost sloppy, all the better. This should be fed every morning and about three nights out of the week, the rest of the time feed cracked corn, wheat, rye, kaffir corn—in fact, any of the good, wholesome grains—for the desired changes they make.

Give Ginger.

Where a flock is being pushed for eggs alone and not to be used as breeders, a little ginger may be given advantageously twice a week, at the rate of a teaspoonful to a flock of 20 to 25.

This is mentioned for the benefit of those who are keeping a lot of Runners for market eggs, expecting to market the ducks also later on.

Young ducks should be started much as chickens are by feeding small mixed chicken feed dry and then a feed of dry bread soaked in milk or cracker crumbs moistened with milk. Rolled oats makes a good addition to the rations, just fed dry. As the ducklings grow older they can gradually be switched to the food used for the grown ducks, bearing in mind at all times that they need a good lot of green stuff in some shape and a lot of grit. It is a good plan to mix the grit right in with their mash, in the shape of sand for the right little ones and coarser grit as they get older. For the first two weeks they must be supplied with a water fountain of some kind, so arranged that they can not get themselves wet. Young and growing ducks should have all the food they will clean up at a time and never allowed to go to bed hungry, it you want good and rapid growth.

Questions and Answers.

Judge Marshall: I would like to know the trouble with some of our chickens.

They appear well and hearty, but stagger and fall over, and will sometimes live for months and eat hearty all the time. If we scare one of them suddenly as they start to run off they will fall and roll over. We have a fine flock of Rhode Island Reds and have lost six or seven in this way. They don't seem to lose much in weight until they get to falling about and until they can't well eat. The comb and gills stay red and indicate good health.

The first sign is they will reel or stagger if frightened and gradually grow worse until they just fall over and reel every time they get up. Two or three were this way for five or six months and seemed hungry all the time. Let me know the trouble and the remedy. P. M.

Townville, S. C.

Answer: It looks to us a good deal like general debility or tuberculosis. We can not tell which, just from the description you have given. Then that other everlasting enemy to the chicken raiser, the mite. The tubercular condition is being found in a good many cases during the past twenty years, and seems to be on the increase, for that reason if you have an idea that that is the trouble you better kill and burn right away and get them out of the company of other good fowls. The general debility phase is a result of carelessness and in-breeding. I say both, because it is usually the result of both. Poultry raisers who have not made a study of the best phases and methods commonly breed from anything that looks like the variety they are raising, often letting color run away with everything else, breeding to specimens that are too small or not developed in breast and body as they should be, or have had some very debilitating disease like roup or canker, and then getting apparently over it, but are very much weakened from its ill effects. This course of breeding through carelessness or lack of knowledge of the matter will, in the course of a few years, produce a strain of fowls that are utterly lacking in stamina or vitality and there will be some of the flock that will go just as you have described—tumbling over from sheer weakness.

Such weaklings are just fit subjects for the tubercular germs to thrive and develop in, so that it is a combination of ailments. However, you had best look well to the mite problem, the least yet often the most disastrous in its results. If your chickens have them get after them and do not let up until you have really conquered the situation.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

$100,000 Wednesday In Real Estate Buys

Peachtree, Luckie, Piedmont, Washington, Buckhead and Railroad Transfers Wake Market.

The local real estate market woke up with a start Wednesday with announcements of more than $100,000 in sales of all kinds, from a semi-central lot sale at $22,000 to a residence lot sale at $175. The Fulton County Daily Report was full of transactions and the real estate men declare that property is now moving more steadily than at any time during the past month.

The George P. Moore Real Estate Agency has announced the following, totaling $88,500, all of which are now on sale:

The southwest corner of Cone and Luckie Streets, part of the Dr. John D. Turner home place, to James E. Hickey for $22,000, or at the rate of $1,100 a front foot. This lot is 20 by 60 feet.

For George P. Moore to a client, Mr. Moore's two-story, nine-room residence at 855 Peachtree Street, between Tenth and Eleventh, for $17,500, or at the rate of $388 a front foot. The lot is 45 by 190 feet.

For John G. Burckhardt to D. H. Lopez the Burckhardt home at the northwest corner of Washington and Glenn Streets for $20,000. Mr. Lopez will subdivide this property, putting a handsome apartment house on the corner and erecting four homes on the Glenn Street side. The frontage on Washington is 121 feet, on Glenn, 409, and there is also a frontage of 123 on Crew Street.

For W. D. Newsom and F. B. Herin, to a client, twelve negro houses fronting 576 feet on the Southern Railway, 470 feet on Hollins Street and cornering on Wells Street, for $15,000.

For Mrs. Lena Swift Hunley to Mrs. Lee Lewman, a 43-by-50-foot lot west of and adjoining the Belle Isle Garage, on the south side of East Third Street, and in the Georgian Terrace block, for $7,000, or at the rate of $163 a front foot, and for Mrs. Huntley to B. Frank and John G. Bell the lot to the west of this, 22 by 50, 75 feet from Peachtree, $3,500. These two lots are in the George Adair subdivision.

Louis M. Johnson, of the Moore agency, sold two lots on Peachtree Road, just north of Roswell Road, to R. G. Brightwell for $3,150. These are in the Huntley subdivision and are 48 feet front each.

Mr. Moore has made two smaller sales: A 25-by-100-foot lot in the Continental Land Company's subdivision on South Avenue to George C. Winters for $175 and to William Beckman a lot in the same subdivision for the same price.

Piedmont and Other Sales.

Robert E. Riley has bought another high-class residence lot and is expected to build a fine home on it. Mrs. Mary Raoul, Gaston C. Raoul and Thomas K. Glenn, executors for the late Captain W. G. Raoul, have conveyed a lot on the west side of Piedmont Avenue, 115 feet north of Fourteenth Street for $10,300. The lot is 70 by 251 feet.

Mr. Riley has built and sold a number of homes. Among them was the stucco house at the northwest corner of West Peachtree Street and West Peachtree Place, where the Connerat Apartments now stand, and the last was on East Fifteenth Street, which Mr. Riley sold a few weeks ago.

Bonds have gone to record in the sale some time ago of Buckhead lots in the Huntley subdivision, through the George P. Moore Agency, and also in several other sales. William J. Davis and James B. Daniel, for instance, have sold for $5,500 to H. Milton Smith a 45 by 240-foot lot on Rice Street, near Angier Avenue, and Mr. Smith has transferred it to Rose G. Smith for a consideration which is withheld.

Small Sales Total $6,500.

The Charles P. Glover Realty Company reports the following small sales in the Brookhaven section:

To Alice A. Gillespie, lot on the east side of Fernwood Drive, 100 by 270, $1,000; to Arthur Kent, north side Fernwood Circle, 100 by 325, $900; to same, south side Fernwood Circle, 100 by 285, $1,000; to J. Douglas Eubanks, east side of Sylvan Drive, 50 by 240, $500; to same, adjoining lot, $500; to Willie Thornburg, north side of Stewart Drive, 50 by 250, $500; to Catherine Ross Wright, north side of Stewart Drive, 50 by 250, $500; to Lillian Hix, same location and size, $500.

Also a 200 by 286-foot lot on the west side of Ashburton Avenue, East Lake, to Mrs. Virginia Howard Logan, for $600.

Night Work on Hurt Building.

So anxious are the contractors that the Hurt Building be completed in schedule time—by October 1—that they have ordered a large part of the work to be done at night. To passersby the sight of bright lights burning off the ends of steel girders and welding the various metal parts has been a revelation. Demands for space in the Hurt Building have continued to come in, and Mr. Hurt expects to rent every office before the formal opening of the structure.

Enthuiasm Over Decatur.

Real estate prospects were generous in their praise Wednesday of the things which they saw on a tour of inspection in Decatur Tuesday. The occasion being "home-coming day," hundreds were in attendance. Realty men used the day to show property, and they report a great deal of enthusiasm over the evidences of progress found by the visitors. A land boom is on at Decatur and announcement of some interesting sales is expected soon.

REAL ESTATE, RENTING AND LOANS.

FOR SALE.

ON NEXT Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, we will sell at auction in Oakland City a subdivision of choice residence lots; also 6 modern homes, all on easy terms. Get plats giving full particulars from our office.

ON VAUGHN STREET, between the East Lake car line and Fair Street, and near Whitefoord Avenue, a 5-room bungalow on a large lot, which we are instructed by the owner to trade. If you have a lot, auto, or anything else of value that you wish to trade in on a good home, this is your opportunity. See Mr. Bradshaw.

SUBURBAN BUNGALOWS, with city conveniences; 15-minute car service. In good established neighborhood. Brand new, 6 rooms each. Have bath, hot and cold water, tile sidewalks; big lots. Nice mantels; electric fixtures, etc. This is your opportunity to buy a home on easy terms and at bargain prices, as we are instructed to sell them, and we will. Simply ask for a salesman; all are posted.

ON DARGAN STREET, convenient to the Lucile Avenue cars, a new 6-room bungalow with all conveniences, tinted walls, stone foundation, brick mantels, furnace heat, beam ceilings. Everything first-class. Lot 47x150 feet. Price $4,150; $650 cash, balance easy. See Mr. Cohen.

6-ROOM house within one block of the Kirkwood car line, on lot 100x225, for $1,200 cash; forced sale. See Mr. White.

FOR RENT.

INMAN PARK.

IN BEAUTIFUL Inman Park we can offer two lovely homes of seven and eight rooms, large lots and all conveniences. Just the kind of place you could think of as a HOME location; lots of neighbors, schools, churches, etc. Would measure up to the severest requirements. Just think of these places at $37.50 and $40 to good lease tenants.

BUNGALOWS.

ON MANSFIELD, Highland, St. Clair and DeKalb Avenues we can offer you four of the most modern and up-to-date bungalows, on nice lots, with all conveniences, paved streets and sidewalks, and the streets themselves speak for the fine location. These are ideal homes, and at the reasonable rentals of from $25 to $35. Come in and let us talk to you about these and get our list.

COTTAGES AND BUNGALOWS.

ON ORME, near Fifth, just a little 5-room beauty, $30. On Bedford, near Forrest; on Bedford, near Pine; on Atwood, near Sells; on Sells Avenue, on East Georgia and on Grant; in fact, in almost any of the prettiest sections of our city, we can give you a choice little home. You must ask about our suburban homes. Some pretty cottages in Kirkwood, Edgewood and Decatur.

IF YOU HAVE MONEY to lend, we can place it safely.

FOR RENT—APARTMENTS.

TWO ELEGANT South Side apartments of five rooms, with every convenience. Will make special price during summer. For particulars, see our Mr. Girardeau.

WE PUBLISH A WEEKLY RENT BULLETIN, giving a good description of everything we have for rent. Get a copy.

FOR SALE AT AUCTION!

SIX UP-TO-DATE HOMES

And 19 Ready-to-Build-On Lots

SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1913

At 3 P. M., on the Premises

THESE are 5 and 6-room houses, with every city convenience and connection, including furnace in several of the houses, but no gas as yet. These houses were built of the best material, under the personal direction of Colonel I. N. Ragsdale, who could not be induced to build a shoddy house.

These houses are real city homes, located in the social center of the Tenth Ward, and only a step from the best car service in Atlanta.

We urge you to go out and inspect this property. Each house will be plainly placarded, showing cash payment and monthly payments; also the amount of the loan to be assumed.

THESE HOUSES ARE NOW RENTED, and bring in from $18.50 to $30.00 per month. Think of what a help that will be to you, in meeting your payments, should you not be ready to occupy the house.

The houses and lots front on the following streets:

Arlington Avenue, Princess Avenue and LaRosa Terrace.

Arlington Avenue runs off Lee Street, right at Colonel Ragsdale's handsome home. Princess Avenue runs off of Avon (Oakland) Avenue, between the Baptist Church and Captain E. P. Ryan's fine home, giving the property two approaches, each of which is a prominent street.

THIS SECTION HAS NO OBJECTIONABLE FEATURE

It is logically the place for the people to live who are engaged in business, or who are employed among the many industrial and manufacturing and railroad enterprises around the Terminal Station, Whitehall Street, Mitchell Street, and the Central and West Point Railroads, and the adjacent territory. The car service and the way the streets run prove these statements to be true. Think about it, and you'll see it as we do.

THE LOTS ARE READY TO BUILD ON

These are the lots to buy, either for home sites or for speculation, because they are ready to build on. In addition to this, every lot is a beauty, with nice young oak shade trees scattered over them. Also, because their location is excellent. They are only a short distance from the business center of Oakland City. Only two blocks from the City School, and near the churches; and the farthest lot is only two blocks from the car line; and, best of all, they are socially in the swim, and will range from $150 to $250 cash, and the payments will range from $22.50 per month to $32.50 per month, with 6 per cent simple interest. Small loan on five of the houses, to be assumed by the purchaser.

ALL CITY IMPROVEMENTS DOWN AND PAID FOR.

THE TERMS ON THE HOUSES

THE TERMS ON THE LOTS

are right. Every lot will be sold on terms of $50 cash, and the balance $15 per month, with only 6 per cent simple interest on the deferred payments.

HOW TO GET THERE—Take cars at the corner of Forsyth and Alabama Streets, marked "East Point," "Hapeville" or "College Park." Get off at the corner of Avon (Oakland Avenue). You will then be only a step from this property.

COME AND BE SURE TO BUY—You will never regret it if you do, and you will be sorry if you don't. Get plans from

Piedmont Ave., Brand-New Home, 8 Rooms---Lot 75x175 Feet

THIS is something CHOICE. 2 stories, 8 ROOMS, all well arranged with every modern convenience, including furnace heat, hardwood floors, beautiful electric fixtures. Elevated east front lot, 75x175 feet, with a splendid view from the front porch. The house itself is double floored and storm sheathed. You must see this to appreciate it. Key at our office or we will be glad to show you through. Price, $8,500, on terms.

BEST APARTMENT SITE IN THE CITY.

AT THE corner of two main thoroughfares, with two car lines, park frontage, and several other attractive features, we have a lot 50x150 feet. This is absolutely the best location on the North Side for an apartment site. $200 per front foot on easy terms. Let us tell you more about this. Also two smaller lots for $6,000 and $5,000 each. Both good for smaller apartments.

ANSLEY PARK, 8-ROOM HOME—$6,500.

FACING the proposed Golf Links, near the Piedmont Avenue car line, we have this 2-story brand new house of 8 rooms; lot is 60x240, or larger if desired. All conveniences and attractive. $6,500, on easy terms to you.

FIVE-ROOM COTTAGE, $2,500—NEAR GRANT PARK.

HERE is a nice little home of 5 large rooms and bath, gas, water and sewer, and in good neighborhood, within 3 blocks of the park. We can make you terms of about $250 cash, assume small loan and the balance, say $25 per month. You will like this on investigation and the terms are BETTER THAN RENT.

We Get Ideals Easily from Pictures

So Please Look at the Picture on This Page of the Cheapest Working Animal in the World. It May Help You to Think.

Copyright, 1913.

What was the first animal tamed, conquered and made into a slave by man? Men had to work a long time, probably, before they got into their heads the idea of slavery for others—an idea that has meant so much to the comfort of a few and the misery of the rest for centuries.

As a guess, we should say that the first tamed animal was some kind of a deer or female buffalo. Some savage woman found it wounded, perhaps broken-legged in a pit, the young one standing near it. The young one was killed and eaten. The mother was hobbled and kept alive as long as possible for her milk, given to the wild woman's children. And when the milk gave out the mother probably was eaten by the wild woman and her children.

After that experiment that same wild woman, or some other, decided that the captured animal could be kept permanently, made gentle and used to carry a load. The women, of course, carried all the loads at first, as they do now among the red Indians. Probably the first domestic scene was a woman milking by force and violence some half-wild animal in order to get milk for her young ones.

The first animal tamed by man was probably a wolf, the father of our present tribe of dogs, the tame wolf being used by the man to help him hunt animals or hunt other men.

However, speculation about the first animal tamed is not the purpose of this particular article.

We want to call your attention to the most valuable animal that men use in their slavery, AND THE CHEAPEST ANIMAL.

That animal is a woman, working in the factory or a sweatshop.

Since the days when the first buffalo or wolf or elephant was tamed, there has been nothing as cheap as the woman worker, nothing so easily obtainable, so easily kept in slavery, so easily replaced when worked to death.

You can see in the picture on this page some of man's accomplishments. He teaches elephants to lift logs. He uses little donkeys, powerful horses, oxen with big horns, but he uses, above all THE POVERTY-STRICKEN WOMAN AND HER CHILDREN AS SOON AS THEY ARE OLD ENOUGH TO WORK.

Isn't that a proud achievement of civilization, to find the cheapest of all animal labor and the cheapest of all working animals IN THE FEMALE HUMAN BEING?

The wise and great Moses, when he was teaching the Jews to keep house without an ice-box and laying down laws that make of the Jewish people the healthiest in the world to-day, that wise Moses issued this order, on the authority of the Almighty:

"Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mother's milk."—Exodus 34:26.

Why Moses gave the order we don't know. Possibly because he thought it was bad enough to kill the mother and eat it, but a little too bad and too heartless to take the mother's milk and boil her own child in that milk. Or probably Moses issued the order because of his general opinion that meat and milk should not be used at the same meal.

What would Moses think, if he came along now and found a miserable, half-starved, under-paid woman, working in a factory, and found her own "kid," the child of her body, tied to some machine in the factory with her, or sitting at her feet in a sweatshop working before it was six years of age?

Would not the old Lawgiver say, "I thought it was bad enough in my day to boil a kid in the milk of its own mother.

"But to take a child and work it to death in the same factory that worked its mother to death is going a little farther along the road of deviltry than I ever imagined human beings could go."

Yet that is what we do.

Our system of industry takes these "cheapest of working animals," the women, and takes their cheap children, and boils them all down into profits in the same factory—and that is "civilization."

You are tired, readers, of hearing about low pay for women and girls—tired, perhaps, even of the suggestion that laws should be passed compelling employers to pay to the cheapest working animal at least enough to keep clothes on her back and food in her stomach.

What follows, however, you will read with interest. It is a brilliant Frenchman's description of woman as she lived ages ago. He calls it, "The First Tears."

It is, perhaps, as good a description as has been written of the appearance of the first woman, in the days when she drank from the horn of a bison, and kept her rainwater in the skull of an elephant. It is the woman of the days before men had learned to conquer fire. It is worth reading:

"On the crest of the cliff the branches of a thicket parted and an arm, a shoulder, then the entire form of a living being, veiled with tawny hair, appeared, came forth, and stood like a hunted animal, glancing to right and left—a primitive woman, with arched shelving brows, broad flanks, short solid legs, splayfeet and thick fat hands.

"A mass of falling hair, starting from the crown of her long skull, framed her face with a somber red-brown aureole. A short, loose neck rose from her full shoulders, strong teeth glittered in her red jaws, and a double furrow ran from jaw to brow to divide the formless nose from the cheek bones.

"As the creature breathed her mobile nostrils drew back to take the revelations of the wind. Sheltered by the low retreating forehead, two jutting arcades fell to form caverns for the restless eyes. At times the wrinkled eyelids straightened, the eyes widened, and an expression of appealing softness appeared, then vanished to give place to the look of a worried beast.

"The time was the dawn of humanity, when Man was an animal in shape but shape before the rigors of the season forced Earth's population to hide from the cold in caves. The skeletons of giant saurians were petrifying in the upper strata of the crust, and mammals were moving in to the valleys to take their places. Great pachyderms and long-haired ruminants waded in the mire of the valleys, and beasts of prey dogged their steps. Among the animals rare beings foreshadowing Man crept naked, timid, feeling their way, hiding from the beasts of prey.

"In the low light of the primeval springtime, in silence broken only by the tramp of padded hoofs and by the lap of water against the mire, a man searching for berries saw a woman running to escape him, ran after her, caught her and carried her away.

"The man vanished, and for the first time in her hunted life the woman felt the loneliness of the solitude that had been her best condition, and a pang like the yearning of hunger awoke in her.

"She wandered along the hedges, through the wet fields, under the dark sky, searching for the one who had mastered her; and when after long quest, she saw him, she ran to him with inarticulate cries. He gave no answering sign; but, when he sat down to eat his fistful of acorns, she sat down beside him, and when he lay down to sleep she, too, lay down. So the law of life gave the woman to the man.

"At first he tolerated her; then, when she served him and was useful to him, he made her his habit. Her relative weakness gave her quick premonitions of their need of food. His indifference to her and her dependence upon him gave him superiority. His silent acceptance of her presence aroused in her dull brain a feeling akin to tenderness; and in that feeling, humble and submissive, she withdrew when he had beaten her."

That description was written by Edmond Haraucourt.

It goes on to say that the primitive man called the woman "Hock." And the woman called him "Daah," a name which the French gentleman thinks was "an appeal soft as a caress." This primitive married couple had two other words, one for hunger, "Mah," and another for danger, "Heugh." Whatever else they had to say they told in gestures.

Primitive times were they not—those days of three or four hundred thousand years ago?

But how much worse was that primitive woman, short-legged and ugly and beaten by the brute that she liked, than the woman of to-day?

The woman of to-day is better made, she has a forehead where the other had none. She has feelings of which the other never dreamed.

Is she any better off—SHE, THE CHEAPEST WORKING MACHINE THAT MAN EMPLOYS; SHE, THE LOWEST-PRICED ANIMAL, THE CHIEF BEAST OF BURDEN OF THE WORLD, CHEATED OF HER RIGHTS FROM BEGINNING TO END, CHEATED AS WAS THIS WOMAN OF NEARLY HALF A MILLION YEARS AGO?

The so-called educated and superior classes have the impertinence to laugh at the women who at last have had the courage and the intelligence to make a stand for their rights, to demand a share in the making of laws that will protect them against the brutality that has lasted a half-million years.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Writes on This World

It Is Getting Better All the Time, She Declares, So Do Not Worry and Fret, but Improve Yourself and Push Ahead.

Written For The Atlanta Georgian

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

THERE are hundreds of otherwise sensible and good men and women in the land today who are wasting precious vital force, and losing great opportunities for achievement, in a useless and foolish worry and despondency over the industrial situation of the country.

Food is high; rents are high; fuel is high, and the trusts and monopolies are carrying things from bad to worse.

YET ALL THE TIME THE WORLD IS IMPROVING. And all the time we are going toward a better era.

Work for Improvement.

Great men and great women are thinking and working to bring about an improved system of life and labor; and more work is being done for the uplifting and enlightenment of the race than ever before since the earth came out of chaos.

So do not dwell too much on the troubled social conditions of the day and grow bitter and pessimistic over them.

The situation is one which calls for all your optimism and cheerfulness.

The world has been wagging on for millions of years, and will continue to wag, and humanity has been slowly improving and will continue to improve slowly for many millions of years.

The first important thing for you to do is to improve yourself, and that you can not do if you grow bitter and despondent and harp continually upon the evil of the world.

If you allow your mind to dwell upon the scarcity of fuel and its high price, you will not increase the supply of fuel or lower the price, and you will exhaust your own vital forces, which might, properly conserved, fire you with ambition enough to go forth and invent some new fuel.

Help by Example.

Try in the moments of greatest gloom to realize that out of such strife and chaos as exist just now new conditions are formulated and in time are materialized. Be ready to meet these new conditions and be worthy of them.

It is useless to ask for a better social system unless the people who form it are better.

A government is made by the people. If it is faulty, it is because the people are faulty.

If it is to be bettered, the people must become better.

Begin with yourself. Keep wholesome, and hopeful, and reasonable, and industrious, and economical.

Help others to do so—not entirely by advice, but by example.

Try to save a little of what you earn to meet the emergency that may come. You think you can not, but if you once realize how little you really need to sustain life and keep well and strong you will find you can economize.

Half the food we now consume is more than enough! And the things which cost more are almost invariably the things we need least.

Consume fresh air, breathe deep and develop your muscles with outdoor exercises or room calisthenics. Look on the philosophical side of life and think cheerfully. Believe progress is back of all this chaos, just as you know the torn-up conditions of the city streets indicate future comfort and convenience for the people.

Everything will settle down by and by. Be ready to settle down with it, a healthy, hopeful, useful citizen.

It's Not a Theory.

Do not allow yourself to go to pieces with old conditions.

If you want to know some very interesting things which are being done for humanity get some leaflets and pamphlets describing the Single Tax propaganda.

There is something in the movement and the work being done for the whole world of thinking people.

The soul of Henry George is marching on, after his body is mouldering in the grave.

It will convince you that Single Tax is not a theory, but a great and wonderful Fact—and that in its principles lies the lifting of the race from slavery to independence.

.:. Saving Humanity's "Seed Corn" .:.

By REV. T. B. GREGORY.

THE foundation of the first real reform school, at Mettray, France, seventy-four years ago, marks the beginning of one of the most vitally important institutions that are at work among us at this time for the uplift of the race.

The honor of starting this most effective propaganda for the salvation of the young, who may well be called the "seed-corn" of humanity, belongs to M. de Metz, at one time a great lawyer in Paris.

Dangers to Youth.

In the Gay City Metz witnessed the temptations and dangers to which young boys and girls were exposed; he saw them falling by multitudes into the way of evil; and, what was more to the point, he observed that even the worst of the delinquents never quite succeeded in totally demoralizing themselves, and that most of them were redeemable if approached in the right spirit and assisted by the proper environment.

Set Himself the Task.

With this conviction deep set in his mind the ex-councillor set himself to the task of putting his faith to the test of actual experiment. Putting his hands into his own pockets, and into the pockets of as many of his friends as would allow it, he soon had a considerable amount of cash, and upon ground given by the Vicomte de Courcelles the Reform School was built and put into operation.

The results more than justified the good man's dream; and when, some years later, M. de Metz lay upon his deathbed, he was comforted with the happy consciousness that he had wrought nobly and permanently for the Humanity he loved so well.

The Mettray School set the world a-thinking, and it was not long before other countries were establishing similar institutions. Great Britain, Germany, Austria, Italy, the United States fell into line, and the idea of saving the boys and girls from becoming hardened criminals became almost a passion.

To-day—less than a century after the foundation of the school at Mettray—the institutions for the moral uplift of juvenile delinquents are to be numbered by the thousands. They have ramified not only throughout Christendom, but are to be found in the so-called "Pagan" lands of the earth, where Christianity, as an organization, is but little known.

Wherever humanity is found there in the midst of it is the spirit of the Paris lawyer—which is, of course, but a reflection of the spirit of the Great Brother of us all—working to save the youth of the race, to redeem fallen boys and girls from the grip of the destroyer and to restore them to the ways of decency and peace.

If all the youth who have been reached and lifted up to a sense of self-respect and happiness by these reform schools could be got together what a procession they would make!

Needs No Monument.

The temptation is strong to ask the question: Has M. de Metz a monument? But how foolish, after all, the question would be. He needs no monument. This same mighty army of redeemed youth is his monument and he requires no other.

TWENTY-FIVE HUNDRED a year for clothes!
Gee, Bill, just think of that—
Twenty-five hundred for nothing but clothes!
I wonder how much for a hat?

Why, Daddy works like a slave,
An' he can't get no such clothes, he can't.
An' those 'at he does get are all worn out,
An' come as a gift from my aunt.

Twenty-five hundred! Whew, what a pile!
An' figurin' on ten bones a suit—
Why, two hundred and fifty new suits each year—
Gosh, that gink must be a beaut'!

Dad brings in six hundred a year,
An' on that we live an' pay rent.
Why can't my daddy have plenty of dough?
Ain't he as good as that gent?

STARTLING AFFIDAVIT IS MADE BY FRANK'S COOK; HEARD TALK OF SUICIDE

Another sensational but strangely incoherent affidavit in the Mary Phagan mystery was made public this afternoon when the police gave out what purports to be a startling statement sworn to by Minola McKnight, negro cook in the Frank household, who was grilled for two hours at police headquarters Tuesday.

The statement quotes the McKnight woman as declaring that she overheard Mrs. Leo Frank tell her mother that Frank had talked of murder and had threatened to get a gun and shoot himself.

The Georgian informs its readers once again that police affidavits are not evidence until they have been accepted in court, and that judgment as to their reliability should be withheld until then.

Statement of Negroes in Full

The McKnight woman's statement is given for what it is worth as follows:

STATE OF GEORGIA—County of Fulton:

Personally appeared before me, a Notary Public in and for the above State and County, Minola McKnight, who lives in the rear of 351 Pulliam Street, Atlanta, Ga., who, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

Saturday morning, April 26, 1913, Mr. Frank left home about 8 o'clock, and Albert, my husband, was there Saturday too; Albert got there I guess aboht a quarter after 1, and was there when Mr. Frank come for dinner, which was about half past one, but Mr. Frank did not eat any dinner and he left in about ten minutes after he got there.

Mr. Frank come back to the house at 7 o'clock that night, and Albert was there when he got there. Albert had gone home that evening but he come back, but I don't know what time he got there, but he come sometime before Mr. Frank did, and Mr. Frank eat supper that night about 7 o'clock, and when I left about 8 o'clock I left Mr. Frank there.

Sunday morning I got there about 8 o'clock, and there was an automobile standing in front of the house, but I didn't pay any attention to it, but I saw a man in the automobile get a bucket of water and pour into it. Miss Lucile (Mr. Frank's wife) was downstairs, and Mr. and Mrs. Selig were upstairs. Albert was there Sunday morning, but I don't remember what time he got there. When I called them down to breakfast about half-past 8 I found that Mr. Frank was gone. Mr. and Mrs. Selig eat breakfast and Miss Lucile didn't eat until Mr. Frank came back and they eat breakfast together. I didn't hear them say anything at the breakfast table, but after dinner I understood them to say that a girl and Mr. Frank were caught at the office Saturday. I don't know who said it, but Miss Lucile and Mr. and Mrs. Selig and Mr. Frank were standing there talking after dinner. I didn't know the girl was killed until Monday evening. I understood them to say it was a Jew girl, and I asked Miss Lucile and she said it was a Gentile.

Frank Said: "It's Mighty Bad."

On Tuesday Mr. Frank says to me: "It is mighty bad, Minola; I might have to go to jail about this girl and I don't know anything about it."

I heard Mrs. Rauzin, Mrs. Frank's sister, tell Miss Lucile that it was mighty bad, and Miss Lucile said, "Yes, it is; I am going to get after her about it." I don't know what they were talking about.

Sunday Miss Lucile said to Mr. Selig that Mr. Frank didn't sleep so good Saturday night. She said he was drunk and wouldn't let her sleep with him, and she said she slept on the floor on the rug by the bed because he was drinking. Miss Lucile said Sunday that Mr. Frank told her Saturday night that he was in trouble; that he didn't know the reason why he would murder, and he told his wife to get his pistol and let him kill himself. I heard Miss Lucile say that to Mrs. Selig. It got away with Mrs. Selig mighty bad, she didn't know what to think. I haven't heard Miss Lucile say whether she believed it or not. I don't know why Mrs. Frank didn't come to see her husband, but it was a pretty good while before she come to see him, maybe two weeks. She would tell me, "Wasn't it mighty bad that he was locked up?" and she said: "Minola, I don't know what I am going to do."

When I left home to go to the Solicitor General's office they told me to mind how I talked. They pay me $3.50 a week, but last week she paid me $4, and one week she paid me $6.50. Up to the time of the murder I was getting $3.50 a week, and the week right after the murder I don't remember how much they paid me, and the next week they paid me $3.50, and the next week they paid me $6.50, and the next week they paid me $4, and the next week $4.

One week Mrs. Selig give me $5, but it wasn't for my work, and they didn't tell me what it was for.

They just said, "Here is $5, Minola," but, of course, I understood what they meant, but they didn't tell me anything at the

FAIN NAMED IN VICE QUIZ AS RESORT VISITOR

As a climax of revelations made before the Grand Jury in its probe of vice conditions in Atlanta, Police Commissioner William F. Fain was named as the central figure in a carousal said to have been held in a house on Ivy Street some months ago, according to evidence presented at the Wednesday afternoon session.

Mr. Fain was also accused of brutally treating one of the women in the party. When the police answered the woman's screams and raided the place, it was said that Fain was arrested, but was immediately released by order of a man high up in police circles.

This startling information was given the Grand Jury by a real estate operator and friend of Fain's who was summoned by the tribunal to give testimony.

Whisky For Resorts.

Before the witness left the hearing, it is declared that he laid bare one of the most sensational stories of vice ever brought to light in this city. That the Grand Jury will probably probe to the bottom of it, and that its veracity will be given the acid test before any action is taken is assured.

Another witness at the afternoon hearing was J. E. Skags, agent for the Southern Express Company. Mr. Skags was asked to testify as to shipments of whisky and other liquors into Atlanta to places of ill-fame.

Chief Beavers also was called before the Grand Jury during the afternoon session. The police official is declared to have told the jurors that to his knowledge Atlanta was better morally at this time than ever before. The chief will be called again later in the investigation.

Chief Beavers Cleared.

Elimination of Chief of Police Beavers from all charges of graft and corruption in the Police Department, made by Colonel Thomas B. Felder, marked the second day's probe by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

Colonel Felder made this distinction to Chief Beavers personally, and in so doing renewed his accusations against Chief of Detectives Newport A. Lanford.

At the same time it was said evidence of corruption money being paid to the police had been given the Grand Jury.

There was a dramatic situation in the ante-room to the Grand Jury room when Felder, Beavers and Lanford confronted each other. Many hot words were flung back and forth.

"I want to say to you right here," declared Felder to the police chief, "that I have never made one single charge of graft against you. I do accuse the other chief at the police station of protecting vice, and I have a superabundance of evidence to prove it. I will prove it."

Bribery To Be Probed.

Another unexpected turn in the investigation was revealed at the morning session when it became known that the Grand Jury will take up immediately the bribery charges made against Colonel Felder by the Police Department and counter-accusations growing out of their dictograph episode.

Colonel Felder appeared before the tribunal at its morning session and demanded that the dictograph conspiracy be probed to bed rock. The attorney based his demand upon his own desire for exoneration of the sensational accusations. He declared to the jurymen that the charges were absolutely false and the result of an

BILLIES AND CRACKERS IN TIE GAME

PONCE DE LEON BALL PARK, June 4.—The Crackers and Billikens were rained out in the last half of the eighth inning here this afternoon. The score stood 2 to 2 when the umpire called the game.

THE GAME.

FIRST INNING.

Walker opened the game for the Billikens by lacing the ball to left center and made a home run on the drive. Wares bounded one to Alperman and was out to Agler. Manning smashed a hard grounder to Alperman and was out to Agler. Sloan went out the same way. ONE RUN, ONE HIT

Long grounded to Manning, who fumbled the ball for an error and Tommy was safe at first. Welchonce tried to sacrifice with a bunt to Manning. The latter threw wild to first and Long raced to third. On the hit and run Alperman laced a single to left and Long scored, while Welchonce took second. Bailey sacrificed, Manning to Kutina. Welchonce went to third and Alperman to second on the play. Smith was called out on strikes Bisland grounded out, Case to Kutina. ONE RUN, ONE HIT.

SECOND INNING.

Kutina singled to center. Jantzen grounded to Bisland, who touched second, forcing Kutina, and retired Jantzen at first for a fast double play. Knaupp fouled out to Agler. ONE HIT, NO RUNS.

Agler's bounder took a bad hop and smashed Wares in the wishbone. Joe was safe at first. Chapman hit into a double play, Knaupp to Kutina. Manning made a fine stop of Dent's grounder and retired him to Kutina. ONE HIT, NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING.

Gribbens hit a lucky single through the pitchers' box. Case fanned. Walker grounded to Bisland and Gribbens was forced at second to Alperman. Wares grounded out, Bisland to Agler. NO RUNS, ONE HIT.

Long filed to Walker. Welchonce singled to right. Alperman grounded to Knaupp, who fumbled, and all hands were safe. Bailey lifted a fly to Sloan. Smith popped a high fly to Wares. NO RUNS, ONE HIT.

FOURTH INNING.

Manning singled to center. Sloan filed to Long. Manning stole second. Kutina fouled to Agler. Jantzen out, Dent to Agler. NO RUNS, ONE HIT.

Bisland singled to left. On a wild pitch Bisland raced to third. Agler filed to Sloan. Bisland was held on third. Chapman grounded to Wares, who threw too late to the plate to catch Bisland. Dent grounded to Knaupp and Chapman was forced at second to Wares. Long grounded to Wares and Dent was forced at second to Wares. ONE RUN, TWO HITS.

FIFTH INNING.

Knaupp filed to Welchonce. Gribbens singled to center and was caught napping off first. Dent to Agler. Case fanned. NO RUNS, ONE HIT.

Welchonce popped to Wares. Alperman out, Knaupp to Kutina. Bailey singled to right. Smith singled to left and Bailey was caught trying to reach third, Jantzen to Manning. NO RUNS, TWO HITS.

SIXTH INNING.

Walker popped out to Bisland. Wares walked. Manning filed to Bailey. Wares went out trying to steal, Chapman to Alperman. NO RUNS, NO HITS.

Bisland out, Manning to Kutina. Agler grounded to Knaupp and was out to Kutina. Chapman filed to Jantzen. NO RUNS, NO HITS.

SEVENTH INNING.

Sloan lifted a long fly to the scoreboard, but Bailey killed it with a fine running catch. Kutina walked. Jantzen hit one in front of the plate and on Chapman's wild throw Kutina scored and Jantzen went to third. Knaupp tried to squeeze in Jantzen, but the ball rolled foul. A long argument followed Rohe's decision. After it was settled another row ensued on the number of balls and strikes on Knaupp. Knaupp then went out, Dent to Agler. Jantzen tried to steal home, but was out, Dent to Chapman. ONE RUN, NO HITS.

Dent filed to Knaupp. Long filed to Sloan. Welchonce out, Wares to Kutina. NO RUNS, NO HITS.

EIGHTH INNING.

Dunn replaced Chapman, who has injured while tagging Jantzen at the plate. Gribbens out, Bisland to Agler. Case popped to Smith. Walker lined to Smith. NO RUNS, NO HITS.

JACOBSON WILL BE OUT OF GAME FOR TEN DAYS

MOBILE, ALA., June 4.—William Jacobson, center fielder of the Mobile club, one of the leading hitters of the league, will be confined here to an infirmary on account of fever and an injury to his side. He will be out of the game for at least ten days.

BILL FRAMED TO HALT CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

Measure, Modeled After Successful Law, Gives Society Officers Power to Arrest.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

After weeks of revision and study, a bill for the prevention of cruelty to animals in Georgia has been framed by a well known member of the incoming Legislature, and will be introduced in the House soon after the General Assembly meets this month.

W. B. Barton, G. Noble Jones and Thomas Lynch, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in Georgia, compose the committee having the bill in hand for the Society. They will see that it is given attention in the early part of the coming session. No great opposition is anticipated.

Mr. Barton says that the new bill covers the field thoroughly and leaves no loophole through which possible offenders may escape. It is modeled after similar laws now in operation in New York and Virginia, and gives agents of the society full authority to make arrests, which Georgia's present law relating to this subject does not do. The S. P. C. A. in Georgia has been handicapped in its work thus far because of this omission in the present law.

"There is plenty of work for the society to do," said President Barton, discussing the matter in Atlanta today, "but the present law on the subject is very meager. The reasons why the societies of other states are so successful is that they have the proper laws back of them. Under the bill which we have framed, our agents will be authorized to make arrests and wear the uniform and badge of the society.

"I have no doubt that the law will be enacted this year. There was no objection to the bill we had before the legislature last year, which was very similar to this one. It was favorably reported by the judiciary committee of both houses, but it was so near the end of the session that the bill was lost in the rush of business, and did not come up for a vote. The bill has already been passed upon and interpreted by the courts of the State and we are not looking for any opposition from that source, or any other."

What promises to constitute the most fruitful branch of the S. P. C. A.'s Georgia work are the four bands of mercy recently organized by President Barton, among the school children of the State. These children are taught humane treatment of all dumb beasts, and are entering enthusiastically into the work. The bands now number 150 members, and are under the supervision of Mrs. Josephine Freeland, of Savannah.

Representative Frank Rhodes, of Clark County, near neighbor to all the territory concerned, is enthusiastically in favor of creating the proposed new county of Barrow, and speaks interestingly of the necessity thereof.

"Winder, which is one of the very best cities in all Georgia," said Mr. Rhodes, discussing the proposition today, "is now most unfortunately situated.

"Three counties corner in the town, and yet it is twenty good miles and more from the county seat of any one of the three. A big rock in the middle of the main street of Winder shows where the three counties—Gwinnett, Jackson and Walton—come together.

It frequently happens, as an example to the disadvantages Winder labors under, that an administrator having property to dispose of and handle in Winder, has to take out papers of administration in three counties in order to be able to meet the requirements of the law.

"The people of Winder are a unit practically for the new county, and there is little real opposition to the project anywhere. I know the conditions in Winder, and the surrounding territory, and I know the people need relief from a situation that is almost unendurable. I have talked with a number of members of the incoming house, moreover, and I believe the new county will be created.

"I am not a crank on the subject of new counties, but I expect to give my hearty support to Barrow, for I know it is a most deserving proposition. Indeed, I believe the Legislature would be doing a positive wrong not to create it.

"Territorially, and according to population and necessity, Barrow county has every claim to favorable legislative consideration."

Anticipating the coming of the Legislature within three weeks, Colonel Pierce Latimer, Keeper of Buildings and Grounds, is busy as he can be nowadays renovating and cleaning up the State Capitol.

During legislative recesses, the chambers of the two houses are visited only by occasional sightseers, and are about as lonesome as any place around the Capitol, if not more so. Consequently, it generally takes quite a good deal of brushing, sweeping, painting and fixing around in one way and another to get things in shape for the fifty days each year when the chambers serve a real purpose to the State.

When the gavels fall on the 25th day of this month, however, Mr. Latimer will have the houses fixed up after the fashion of Spotless Town, all right.

Governor-elect John M. Slaton is hard at work on his inaugural address and first message to the General Assembly.

Mr. Slaton is not giving out any idea of what subjects he will treat of in either utterance, however, and contents himself with informing inquirers that they will enjoy his messages more if they will await their official delivery.

The Governor-elect keeps regular hours at his offices in the Grant Building in Atlanta, and such time as he devotes to state documents is snatched from the time he spends at home.

After his inauguration, of course, the Governor-elect will abandon his law practice.

NOW WE'LL HAVE A WHISTLE WHERE WE USED TO HAVE CROW

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Dr. B. V. Calloway will shortly make experiments to try to put the "soft pedal" on the crowing of roosters. It is said it can be done by a simple operation of removing one of the fowl's vocal chords.—News Item.

Oh, I'm the guy that put the "sell in selzer.
And I put the "whiz" in whisky, too.
But when I took the "lick" from liquor
Everybody said that I was through.

But next I put the "sin" in Cincinnati;
("Oh, yes, I'm quite a booster)
And now that I'm a wee bit batty,
I'll take the crow from out the rooster.

Baby Girl Becomes Masonic Order Ward

BUFFALO, June 4.—With ceremonies used in this country for the first time since 1771, Ruth Katharine Daggett, baby daughter of Byron B. Daggett, was baptized at the Scottish Rite Cathedral here.

The ceremony made the baby a ward of the Lodge of Perfection and entitled her to the guardianship and protection of the Masonic fraternity in every part of the world.

"Gary Dinner" Held To Help Stem Panic

NEW YORK, June 4.—An explanation of the reasons for the famous "Gary dinner" during the 1907 panic was given by Judge Elbert H. Gary when he resumed testimony in the Government's dissolution suit.

Gary testified it was realized the price of steel was a barometer of business conditions. To prevent any demoralization of steel prices and forestall any further panic, Gary said, the dinners were given, after which steel manufacturers were exhorted to hold up the price of steel.

Germans Send Arms To English Loyalists

BELFAST, ENGLAND, June 4.—Government secret service agents, investigating the shipment of arms to Ulster loyalists which was seized yesterday, to-day discovered that the munitions had been sent from Germany.

They were consigned to a firm of linen drapers in Tyrone.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

Keith Vaudeville at Forsyth.

It is mighty near a case of picking your own hit at the Forsyth this week. Of course Lillian Shaw is the headliner. And she makes good in that position. Jack Hazard was an unknown until Monday afternoon. He stated at the beginning that he was going to tell some stories. The audience was a bit restless, but pretty soon Hazard had the attention of everybody and when he bowed off after twenty minutes of talking he carried with him the biggest hit that has been registered by any monologist in the history of Atlanta.

Seldom's Models score a great big hit with their "Poems in Marble." There are two fine looking men and a beautiful woman in this act. They are made up in white and pose in living reproductions of statues. The Three Alex who close the show present the most sensational act that has been seen on a local stage, and Wright and Dietrich score well in a singing and talking oddity that is very pleasing.

Tabloid Comedy at Bijou.

"The College Girls" at the Bijou promise to break the tabloid musical comedy record for attendance at the family theater. The show is a combination of pretty girls, good music and funny fellows.

The Bijou has come right to the front with its new policy and the house is being crowded at all performances.

OLD GUARD BACK FROM PEACE TOUR

Declare Last "Invasion" of North Most Successful in History of Organization.

Early trains from Savannah brought in the members of the Old Guard battalion, returning from their peace mission to Eastern cities.

The Old Guard's last entertainment of the tour was accorded them in Savannah by the Georgia Hussars. The company, upon its arrival from the North by steamship Tuesday, was met by the Hussars in full dress uniform and escorted to the DeSoto Hotel. During the afternoon they were driven about the city and county in automobiles.

A reception was tendered them in the evening at the Hussars' Club, when the Old Guard was received by the Mayor and Aldermen, the Chamber of Commerce, the Board of Trade, the Cotton Exchange, the First Regiment, the Savannah Volunteer Guards and the Chatham Artillery and a number of prominent citizens.

Members interviewed Wednesday morning upon their arrival in Atlanta declared the trip had been the most successful in the history of the organization.

Mother's Advice To Her Daughter

A Real Live Doll to Fondle Is Woman's Greatest Happiness.

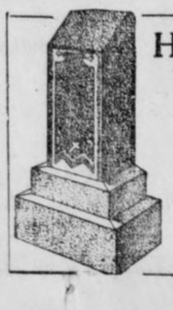

One of the most important matters about which women concern themselves is their future status as a grandmother. And she is wisdom itself who knows of or learns of that famous remedy, Mother's Friend. This is an external application for the abdominal muscles and breasts. It certainly has a wonderful influence, allays all fear, banishes all pain, is a most grateful encouragement to the young, expectant mother, and permits her to go through the period happy in mind, free in body and thus destined to anticipate woman's greatest happiness as nature intended she should.

The action of Mother's Friend makes the muscles free, pliant and responsive to expansion. Thus all strain and tension upon the nerves and ligaments is avoided, and, in place of a period of discomfort and consequent dread, it is a season of calm repose and joyful expectation.

There is no nausea, no morning sickness, no nervous twitching, none of that constant strain known to so many women, hence Mother's Friend is really one of the greatest blessings that could be devised.

This splendid and certain remedy can be had of any druggist at $1.00 a bottle, and is sure to prove of inestimable value, not only upon the mother, but upon the health and future of the child. Write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 183 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their book to expectant mothers.

PURSESTRING OF WORLD DRAWS TIGHTER

American Corporations Able Only to Float $123,140,000 of New Securities in May.

By B. C. FORBES.

Only $123,140,00 of new securities were issued by American corporations during May. This is $81,577,000 short of the total for May, 1912.

Since January 1 the total output of bonds, notes and stocks by railroads, traction, industrial, mining and miscellaneous companies has been $766,913,000, a decrease of $465,357,000 as compared with the figure for the first five months of 1912.

Not one dollar's worth of railroad stock was floated during the whole of last month, a fact heavy with significance.

Five Months' Record.

The year's record of new issues, and comparisons with last year, reads as follows:

	Output.	Decrease.
January	$198,105,000	$142,895,000
February	132,362,000	185,470,000
March	148,829,000	1,621,000
April	164,477,000	53,788,000
May	123,140,000	81,577,000
	$776,913,000	$465,357,000

Financing is being postponed wherever possible. An unusually large proportion of the 1913 output has been for refunding operations or to pay off maturing obligations. The net addition to railroad and industrial capital outstanding has been much less than the total flotations of $766,913,000 would suggest.

And let me here state very emphatically that the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad receivership will render the raising of new capital doubly difficult, for security holders have had their faith gravely shaken. The European Market has been shocked by the extraordinary episode and threatens to boycott American issues unless foreign investors receive the fullest redress.

During May two-thirds of the country's new capital issues took the form of short date noes. This is a most unhealthy sign.

The railroads could find a market for less than $14,000,000 bonds, as contrasted with more than $55,000,000 in the corresponding month of last year. Notes were resorted to with such freedom that their total flotations reached $58,600,000.

Industrial corporations put out eight times as many notes and bonds and $20,000,000 more than a year ago.

The world's money markets are still uncomfortable at bottom. Superficial ease here and abroad may mislead those who are not familiar with what is going on under the surface.

Thos who try to raise capital—as distinct from temporary loans amply secured by Stock Exchange collateral—find how hard it is to obtain even moderate sums.

Dawn Still Delayed.

I have been calling attention for nine months to the basic monetary conditions throughout the world and urging extreme prudence in running into debt and in assuming avoidable obligations. Unfortunately, daylight cannot yet be descried.

It is to be hoped very fervently that Congress will take up currency legislation in earnest and provide, with all possible speed consistent with conservatism, the machinery for avoiding monetary stringency.

Meanwhile, a further decline in new capital issues and quieter trade should afford some relief preparatory to the fall demands for crop moving.

Before then, however, there may be a mild flurry abroad and at home before the enormous July 1 requirements can be financed.

LITTLE STORIES of the TOWN

But This Cat Didn't Have Nine Lives.

The tragic death of a cat has caused some very hard feelings in a prominent neighborhood of Atlanta. Also it has brought out in harsh contrast man's innate antipathy and woman's deep love for the little animals of the velvet paws. And while the cat has failed to reveal the proverbial nine lives, the incident of his death has immortalized him in the annals of gossip.

His history began at the recent pure food show when he won the blue ribbon. He was a blooded Persian and the property of one of Atlanta's most popular young women. His prize greatly endeared him to his mistress but when she sent a collect telegram to her father in New York telling him of the wonderful event the father winced and said, "Scat."

Innocent of his cunning neighbor, a blue jay built a nest in a tree in an adjoining back yard. The spoiled feline thought the birds his just prey, and they would have been except for the noise. Those birds fought a battle royal to protect their home early each day. And the fight grew more and more intolerable to the sleeping neighbors of the owners of the cat.

When sticks, old shoes and garden hose failed to dislodge the proud Persian from the tree of the bird nest one of the neighbors applied a parlor rifle.

He thought he had killed just an ordinary old alley Tom. But when he returned at lunch and found the beautiful young girl weeping over the dead body in the alley he knew that trouble was ahead. All that saved the situation was the father of the pet lover. He laughed in his sleeve that the purring beast was gone.

The names? Well, the neighborhood feeling is too acute. Gossip will have to give you that.

They All Asked Pay For Pulling Him Out.

A young Atlantan, whom his friends all envy because he owns an automobile, declares he should be pitied.

A few nights ago he went calling in Inman Park. Some boys found his car in the street and when the young man started to leave he was horrified to find his seat filled with horizontal pins.

On his way to town he rolled into one of the "rare" mud holes in Atlanta's streets and found himself securely stuck. He called a half-dozen loafing negroes to his rescue and when they had pulled him out he very nonchalantly requested them to call at his office next morning and he would pay them.

Congratulating himself that his experiences of the night before were things of the dead past he threw his feet over his desk next morning and lighted a cigar. A gentle knock at the door did not disturb him but when he looked around he threw up his hands.

The six big negroes had just filed in.

Jacobs' Liver Salt On Arising

and You'll Enjoy Your Breakfast

No appetite in the morning? Bilious? Headache? Best thing in the world for you is Jacobs' Liver Salt.

Bad breath, biliousness, constipation, flatulence, daytime drowsiness, wakefulness at night, mean FOOD-POISONING. Undigested food, fermented, is doling out poison to the system.

Jacobs' Liver Salt instantly flushes the alimentary tract with water, sending a cleansing stream through it from all parts of the system. Packed, clogging matter is loosened and with the fermentation washed away, pressure is removed, liver and kidneys resume their natural cleansing processes of elimination. No forced action, as with calomel and severe purgatives; never a griping pain or nausea.

Take Jacobs' Liver Salt on arising. It is effervescent and stimulating. You feel better at once, good appetite for breakfast and good digestion; that dull heaviness vanishes and your brain is clear and quick. Keeps one up to the top notch.

Jacobs' Liver Salt is the business man's best stimulant. 25c, delivered anywhere.

SOCIETY LOUD IN ITS PRAISE OF PLAYERS

To the Players' Club Atlanta society is doffing its hat—and its bonnet.

In boudoir and in club, the topic of conversation was never swollen to such extremity of delight as that inspired by the presentation of "The Importance of Being Ernest" Tuesday evening by the Players' Club.

En masse the social world of Atlanta gathered at the Grand to view, be it said, with a critical eye its Thespian element in Oscar Wilde's excruciating farce.

The production was a splendid success.

Perhaps no greater compliment could be paid the Players' Club than that accorded by Miss Gladys Hanson, the Belasco star.

"It was wonderful," Miss Hanson exclaimed as she left the Grand. "I enjoyed every moment."

The play had to do with the infatuation of two young English girls, the Hon. Gwendolyn Fairfax and Cecily Cardew, for the name of Ernest. Yet, while each was vowing she would marry no man of another name, the first fell in love with John Worthington, J. P., and the other with Algernon Moncrief. Many complications ensued.

No dowager from "dear old London" could have wielded her lorgnette or English with more hauteur than did Mrs. John Marshall Slaton. As Lady Bracknell, whose dignity bowed only before Croesus, Mrs. Slaton proved herself more than an amateur before the footlights.

Mrs. William E. Owens, as Cecily Cardew, drew much praise. Her dainty, whimsical personality seemed to fall readily into line with her part.

Tall and stately, with not a whit less English appearance than the others, was Miss Hildreth Burton-Smith, who essayed the role of the Hon. Gwendolyn Fairfax. Miss Smith upheld with her statuesque presence the title which she bore and portrayed.

For love of the Hon. Gwendolyn, Marsh Adair, in the role of John Worthington, J. P., upheld the heavy part of the male cast of the play. In the trying situations into which the embroglio threw the drama, he forged great wreaths of excitement about him and threw them across the footlights into the audience.

Lamar Hill's juvenile role was well presented. He affected to a science the English attitude of calm and deliberation.

No less perfect than their masters and mistresses of the night were the underlings of the Manor House, Miss Prism, the governess, enacted by Mrs. Henry Bernard Scott; Merriman, the butler, by Tom Donaldson, and Lane, the manservant, by Frank Taylor. Hamilton Douglas, Jr., as the Rev. Cannon Chausuble, D. D., brought forth many laughs by his ecclesiastic timidity under the strain of events.

KING AND QUEEN SEE LONG SHOT WIN DERBY

Favorite, Finishing First by Head, Disqualified and Race Goes to Rank Outsider.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

EPSOM, ENGLAND, June 4.—By the disqualification to-day of Craganour, after he had finished ahead of a field of sixteen in the classic Derby, the blue ribbon event of the British turf went to a 100 to 1 shot by the name of Aboyeur. This horse, which was regarded as a rank outsider, is owned by A. P. Cunliffe.

Louvois, owned by W. Raphael, got second place and Great Sport third. Nimbus was given fourth place. Craganour was a hot favorite at 6 to 4 and more than $1,000,000 had been wagered on him. The odds on Louvois were 10 to 1; on Nimbus, 9 to 1.

Craganour came in first by a head, while Aboyeur finished a neck in front of Louvois.

Reiff Guilty of Blocking.

Protest was lodged against Craganour for bumping. The stewards investigated and found Johnny Reiff, the American jockey, who rode Craganour, guilty of blocking the field.

Craganour is owned by C. Bowers Ismay. The disqualification of Craganour and the rearrangement of the show position in the summary caused great confusion in the betting ring.

This was the 133d Derby and it was witnessed by a record crowd. The King and Queen and a number of officials of the Court of St. James attended.

Daring Split Gowns Worn.

Daring French styles of dresses, which have become common at Longchamps and other French race courses, were seen, although it was noticed that the Queen's frock was simple almost to the point of being old-fashioned. Some of the women of the swagger set, however, wore split skirts that nearly revealed the wearers' knees.

Although there were no American horses running this absence was partly countered by the fact that four American jockeys rode in the race. They were Danny Maher, J. Reiff, M. Henry and W. O'Neill.

Extraordinary precautions have been taken to guard the Derby candidates on account of threats made by militant suffragettes to poison blooded horses. Special guards have been employed for weeks to guard the stables.

August Belmont had entered Vulcan VI, but did not arrive from France in time to take part. H. P. Whitney, Herman Duryea and other American turfmen had entered horses, but all scratched them for one reason or another. The Derby is worth approximately $50,000 to the winner. The distance is about a mile and a half. W. Raphael's Tagalis won the event last June.

FACE POWDER IS TABOO AT FETE BY ROYALTY

American Women to Take Prominent Part in Gorgeous Costume Ball in London.

LONDON, June 4.—Exclamations of dismay were heard in society circles here to-day when it became known that it will be considered incorrect for ladies attending the great historical costume ball, "A Fete at Versailles," to wear face powder. Inasmuch as representatives of most of the royal courts of Europe are to be present, and the event to be held at Albert Hall to-morrow is under the direct patronage of Queen Mary and the Queen Mother, society was forced to smile away its annoyance and comply.

The reason for taboo is that the use of powder as part of a lady's toilette did not come into fashion until after the periods of Louis XIV and the costume ball is supposed to be a reception by that monarch at Versailles. The fete is conducted in aid of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Society, and will be one of the most gorgeous balls ever given in London.

Lady Paget a Leader.

Lady Paget, an American, will have charge of the arrangements for the French Court, which is to receive all of the visiting royalty. Count Saumarakoff Elston will portray Louis XIV. Marie Therese, his Queen, who was the daughter of Philip IV of Spain, will be represented by the Countess of Dudley. Prince Paul of Servia will take the part of the Dauphine of France. Albert Paget will be the officer of the guard in close attendance upon Louis XIV.

Among the women in the Court of France will be Ladies Crewe, Desborough, Islington, Helen Vincent, Diana Manners, Castlereagh and Ingestre, the Baroness E. De Rothschild, Mrs. Cecil Bingham and Mrs. W. B. Leeds, the last two Americans. Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, famous English actor, will represent one of the cardinals.

Other American Women.

Other American women who will appear in costume are the Duchess of Marlborough, Lady Newborough, Mrs. Schwab and Mrs. James McDonald.

The costumes for the French Court will be most elaborate. Masculine attire reached the highwater mark of magnificence during 1680. The men in the Court will wear embroidered brocades, silks and satins, and in the seams of their coats will be sewn pearls and other jewels, all surmounted by enormous periwigs.

Wins His Degree in College Though Blind

NEW YORK, June 4.—Among the 2,000 or more students who receive degrees from Columbia University to-day, is Carlton S. Glover, who gets the degree of Bachelor of Arts, though he is totally blind.

He is a native of Kentucky.

Teaching is the career Glover has selected. He was assisted in preparing his lessons by readers provided by the State, which allows $300 to each blind student taking a course in a college.

Capital May Have First Eugenic Law

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Washington may be the first city in the United States to have a law making it necessary for men who wish to marry to produce a medical certificate before they can obtain a license.

Cuno H. Rudolph, Commissioner of the District of Columbia, is working out the plan for such a bill to be introduced in Congress.

Georgians Feast on 500-Pound Turtle

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 4.—A sea turtle weighing nearly 500 pounds and measuring 5 feet 6 inches from tip to tip was caught off the Isle of Palms by fishermen.

The huge creature ended its career in the Isle of Palms soup kettle, feeding many Georgians who came over for the feast. It was the largest turtle ever captured here.

Hail Destroys Crops In Eastern Alabama

GADSDEN, ALA., June 4.—Hail in different parts of Etowah County in the last 48 hours has caused heavy damage. In no place, though, was the path of the storm wide.

Near Gallant, Ala., after the storm had passed there was not a sign of vegetation on the ground where fields of cotton had flourished only a few minutes before.

BUYERS WELCOME PIANO CLUB PLAN

Georgian Advertising Campaign Proves Foresight of the Weatherholt Company.

That the player-piano is popular with people of Atlanta and the South is being demonstrated by T. E. Weatherholt, of the Weatherholt Piano Company, as a result of the big advertising campaign now being conducted in The Georgian and Hearst's Sunday American.

Before beginning the campaign, Mr. Weatherholt became convinced that the day of the ordinary piano was rapidly drawing to a close and that the time was not far distant when every lover of music would insist upon the player-piano. He said such an instrument was not only a player-piano, but a piano as well, and that with one of these in the home any member of the family could play.

He realized, though, the objection by many in the past had been the price. To overcome this objection, Mr. Weatherholt arranged his club plan, where 400 members co-operating together would have a tremendous purchasing power. In this way, he pointed out, he would be able to give a player-piano worth $650 for $488.50, on terms of $10 down and $2.50 per week.

To make the club plan more attractive, Mr. Weatherholt has arranged ten features, which include no interest on deferred payments, a ten-year guarantee, free life insurance, two-year conservatory course, selected bench, twelve rolls of music and the privilege of exchanging music as often as desired for other music in the Weatherholt free library of 5,000 rolls.

Hungarian Cabinet Quits; Deputies Riot

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

BUDAPEST, June 4.—A riot broke out to-day in the Lower Chamber of the Hungarian Parliament when the Premier announced the resignation of the Cabinet.

Members began fighting among themselves and the police had to be called in to eject the unruly ones.

L. & N. BRANDED AS INCONSISTENT

Alabama Counsel Declares Intra-State Business Is Exploited to Aid Long Hauls.

Since the Louisville and Nashville Railroad is carrying 80 per cent of its Alabama intrastate freight tonnage at a loss, it is not in position to come into court and demand that the remaining 20 per cent of freight and the passenger traffic shall yield profit on 100 per cent of its investment in Alabama.

This is one of the most important arguments advanced to-day by H. C. Selheimer, of Birmingham, arguing for Alabama in its fight to make the 2 1-2-cent passenger rate obligatory on the Louisville and Nashville.

He pointed out that 80 per cent of the freight traffic of the Louisville and Nashville inside the borders of the State consists of raw materials hauled from the mines and coke ovens to the Birmingham steel plants.

This business is done at a loss, when only intrastate traffic is considered. It is not a loss to the railroad as a whole, because the raw material issues from the Birmingham mills as finished steel, taking a much higher rate for long hauls in interstate business.

Mr. Selheimer declared it inconsistent to exploit intrastate business on one hand to fatten long-haul business; then on the other hand to demand that a fraction of intrastate business pay profits on the whole.

He also pointed out that the Atlantic Coast Line, Frisco, Illinois Central, Southern, Mobile and Ohio, Seaboard and Alabama Great Southern voluntarily put in a 2 1-2 cent fare. The Louisville and Nashville, the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, the Central of Georgia and the Western of Alabama are fighting it. The roads contesting the cut are owned by the Louisville and Nashville virtually, while the Louisville and Nashville itself is owned by the Atlantic Coast Line.

Output of Pig Iron Sets a New Record

NEW YORK, June 4.—A new high record in pig iron output was registered in May—close to 6,500 tons a day. Merchant furnaces' production probably averaged 28,000 tons a day. This indicates that the country is now producing pig metal at the rate of $34,000,000 tons a year.

Steel ingot output, too, next to the October, 1912, production, was the largest in the history of the industry. The United States Steel Corporation alone produced approximately 1,600,000 tons.

Milton H. Smith Here for Famous Rate Battle

Shuns Reporters, but Photographer 'Gets Him'

Milton H. Smith, the veteran president of the L. and N. Railroad, who is in Atlanta.

This is the first picture of the noted railway head published in many years.

Veteran Head of L. & N. Bitterly Opposes State Interference in Railroad Affairs.

Milton H. Smith, the veteran president of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, is in Atlanta taking a leading part in the Alabama 2½-cent passenger rate fight in the Federal Court here.

While Mr. Smith is known to be bitterly opposed to State interference with the operation of railroads, he refused to make comment upon his own case.

Also, he showed his usual very decided antipathy for newspaper reporters and photographers. A picture was snapped of him in the lobby of the Piedmont Hotel. It is the first one published in many years.

"It generally costs money to get in the newspapers just what I want to say," said Mr. Smith, declining to be interviewed.

"Once in a while I send a statement to a paper, which, as a rule, is the answer to statements made by a public official. But mine generally come back with a nice little letter saying they will be glad to publish it at regular advertising rates. I can't see the fairness in it, but suppose it is because the other fellow happens to be a public official."

Mr. Smith merely smiled about the probable outcome of the injunction suit; he thought the country was in good condition; he smiled over what he thought of State Legislatures and Railroad Commissions generally; he smiled over the question of his opinion of Atlanta.

No more interesting figure in railroad circles can be found than Milton H. Smith. As head of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad he has developed it into one of the strongest systems in the United States.

ODDITIES —in the— DAY'S NEWS

STUBBORNNESS COSTS HIM $10,600.—Rather than retract his vow not to pay a cow tax of $75, an Asheville, N. C., dairyman sold his $25,000 farm for $15,000.

POOR PICKINGS FOR LAWYERS. Penn Yan, N. Y., is no town for a lawyer. There is not a single civil or criminal case in Yale County undisposed of, and there will be no cases to be tried before the semi-annual term of the County Court this month. Yale County has a population of 108,700.

LONG LAUGH MAY COST MIND. Julius Jeswein, of Milwaukee, who had a 16-hour spell of laughing at a stage joke, may lose his mind for life. His doctors say that he imagines he is a magician and humorist.

WINDOW SCREEN SAVES A CHILD.—A window screen served as a parachute when Harry Burges, aged 2, fell against it and tumbled from the third story of his home in Passaic, N. J. He was uninjured.

BABY KILLS INFANT SISTER.—Tomaso Pezzano, 20 months old, of New York, is accused of killing his 2-day-old sister. Doctors declare he beat the infant to death in a fit of jealousy when she was placed in the bed beside him.

RESTORATION OF MEAT SUPPLY UP TO DIXIE

Cattle Tick Must Be Exterminated First, However, Says Department of Agriculture.

BY HUGH S. MILLER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4.—It is to the South that the nation must look for restoration of its meat supply, according to the department of agriculture.

"The South has great possibilities for the future as a cattle raising country," says a bulletin issued by the department.

"Development of the cattle raising industry in the South, however, must await the extermination of the cattle tick. Fortunately this is being rapidly accomplished by the joint efforts of the Government and the States. The time has come when we must conserve our meat supply and take steps to increase it, and at the present remunerative prices for food animals it is probable that this will be gradually accomplished.

"The shortage in the supply of meat producing animals in the United States is steadily becoming more pronounced, and it is evident that the country is facing an era of short production of meat. In the last six years there has been a decline of over thirty per cent. in the number of beef cattle in the country, while the population and the consequent demand for meat has increased.

"The beef cattle in the country on Jan. 1, 1907, numbered 51,566,000; at the beginning of the present year the number was only 36,030,000. High prices were paid last year. For instance native steers brought $7.95 in Chicago, as against $6.50 the year before. We no longer have cattle for export and for the 1st time in our history the United States imported more in 1912 than it exported."

Close Adviser of Pope Pius Deranged

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ROME, June 4.—Cardinal Vives y Tuto, one of the three intimate advisers of Pope Pius X, is seriously ill. It became known to-day the Cardinal's mind has become affected and that he is suffering from a form of religious mania.

He has been taken to a monastery, where he is under the constant care of a physician.

American Students Lose Prize to Jap

CHICAGO, June 4.—Jiu-ji George Kasai, a Japanese member of the senior class of the University of Chicago, to-day received $100, a prize offered by Julius Rosenwald for the best orator in the class.

Kasai won over four American contestants for the prize. His subject was "The Mastery of the Pacific." He said there was no danger of war between the United States and Japan.

Augusta to Unveil Shaft to Walsh

AUGUSTA, GA., June 4.—The monument to Patrick Walsh, late Mayor of Augusta and United States Senator from Georgia and a well-known editor and publisher of the South, will be unveiled on June 20. Addresses will be made at the unveiling by Pleasant A. Stovall, of Savannah, and Clark Howell, of Atlanta.

The monument will stand on Barrett Plaza, immediately in front of the Union Depot.

DECATUR HAS ITS RECORD 'BIG DAY'

Home-Coming Celebration Draws Hundreds to See Cornerstone Laying and Ceremonies.

Decatur Wednesday is recovering from the biggest celebration in its history. Tuesday was "Homecoming Day" and the anniversary of the birth of Jefferson Davis. Both were observed with ceremonies. The city presented a gala attire and one round of entertainment followed another.

Many civic and patriotic organizations took part in a parade which followed the crowning feature of the day, the laying of the cornerstone of a new $25,000 school building. George W. Napier, past grand master of the Georgia Masons, presided. Orators were J. Howell Green, John A. Montgomery and Hooper Alexander.

Children of the Decatur public schools and Boy Scouts took an active part in the celebration. The Confederate monument on the South Court Square was the rallying place for the Pythagoras Masons and the Board of Trade.

Dr. A. M. Soule, of the State Agricultural College, opened the day's program at 10 o'clock, when he addressed a large crowd at the courthouse.

A patriotic address by C. M. Chandler on the life and work of Jefferson Davis struck a responsive chord.

Representative-elect R. M. Smith urged the Fifth District Agricultural School for DeKalb County.

A smoker at the courthouse at 6:30 o'clock gave Atlantans an opportunity to speak. Wilmer L. Moore, C. J. Haden, Walter G. Cooper, Forrest Adair, Alonzo M. Field, R. F. Gilliam, R. W. Parker and Mayor John A. Montgomery were the speakers.

Railroad Men Guests At the White House

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Fifteen hundred members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, in convention here, to-day were received by the President and Mrs. Wilson at the White House.

The President made a short address and the visit was brought to an end by a concert by the Marine band.

Case Against Cox by State Nearing Close

CINCINNATI, June 4.—It is expected that the State to-day will finish its side of the case against George B. Cox and four other former directors of the Cincinnati Trust Company, accused of violation of the State banking laws.

More evidence to support the charge that Cox and his associates canceled a note for $352,000 given by them to the bank before it was in fact paid was produced to-day.

SLAYS HUSBAND AS THIEF.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Mrs. Louise Van Keuren to-day shot and killed her husband, John B. Van Keuren, mistaking him for a burglar.

Her Doctor Recommended NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

While there are no thrills in the narration of Mrs. P. T. Nichols, 623 Broad Street, Beloit, Wis., her story is nevertheless one of amazing interest. "Stricken with neuralgia and erysipelas, I lost all my hair. My doctor recommended Newbro's Herpicide. I used six or eight bottles and now have a fine head of slightly curly brown hair. Not a gray hair in my head. This is the more remarkable as I am middle-aged."

While the results which follow the use of Newbro's Herpicide are always more or less astonishing, they are always natural. Herpicide destroys the dandruff, stimulates the flow of blood to the hair follicles and keeps the scalp perfectly healthy. It makes possible a natural and luxuriant growth of hair, except in cases of chronic baldness.

While remedies said to be "every bit as good" as Newbro's Herpicide are frequently offered, one should insist upon having "the original germ destroyer," Herpicide. This is genuine. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1 sizes is sold by all dealers, who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications may be obtained at good barber shops. Send 10c in postage for sample to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

King of Italy Hurls Bombs From Airship

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ROME, June 4.—King Victor Emmanuel of Italy made a 45-minute flight to-day in a military dirigible balloon. During the flight bomb-throwing tests were made and the King insisted on hurling a number of dummy bombs at targets on the earth below.

Upon alighting, he said it was one of the most exhilirating experiences he ever had.

Piano Makers Fight Advertising Frauds

CLEVELAND, June 4.—Members of the National Piano Manufacturers' Association, holding a convention here, plan to place in every city of the United States an advertising referee.

The referee will pass on the merits of advertising offered to publications so that reputable piano dealers and the public will be protected from fraud.

Atlanta & Carolina Rail Plans Revised

AUGUSTA, GA., June 4.—A petition was filed with the City Council of Augusta at its meeting last night by the Atlanta and Carolina Railway Company asking for a franchise to use the streets of this city.

The road projected will be built from Atlanta via Athens to this city and will be operated by electricity. Power generated at Stevens Creek, above Augusta, and at Tallulah will be used. English money is backing the enterprise.

SLAIN BY POLICEMAN.

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., June 4.—Will Gibbs, a cotton mill operative, who was shot by Policeman Mitchell Monday while resisting arrest, died last night.

Wife and I Are Friends of INSTANT POSTUM

"There's a Reason"

"I used to drink coffee—was nervous and irritable. Wife said so.

"So when the new food-drink, Instant Postum, came along she said to herself: 'Here's where I break Jack of the coffee habit.'

"Instant Postum is good stuff. I sleep better, smile more, and miss my indigestion."

A level teaspoonful of Instant Postum in an ordinary cup of hot water dissolves instantly and makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum (must be boiled).

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water.

MILITANT DYING IN ATTEMPT TO STOP DERBY

Woman Leaps and Grabs Bridle of King George's Racing Horse. Trampled Fatally.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

EPSOM, ENGLAND, June 4.—A militant suffragette attempted to break up the great Derby at Epsom Downs to-day and nearly succeeded, with a tragical result.

Just as the horses were rounding Tattenheim corner a woman rushed from the side lines and seized the bridle of Anmer, a horse owned by King George. Anmer crashed heavily to the ground, hurling the jockey over his head. The woman was thrown beneath the hoofs of the plunging animal and was trampled fatally.

The thousands who saw the mishap were thrilled and shocked. It happened with lightning suddenness.

The woman spectater had crowded to a point as near the horses as she could possibly get. Several of the runners had flashed by, when she darted from the crowd. Anmer swerved as she jumped for the reins, but she managed to secure a firm grasp upon them.

As she fell a mighty shout went up from the grandstand and paddock. When the horse staggered to its feet women near the scene fainted at the sight of the two still forms.

The woman was identified as Emily Wilding Davidson, B. A., of London University, who has a police record in connection with suffrage violence. It was she who assaulted and seriously injured an aged clergyman last year when she mistook him for David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the British Exchequer.

The woman was taken to the hospital in a dying condition. It was first reported that she was dead. When doctors reached her side she was apparently lifeless, but strong restoratives were supplied and she rallied. It was said, however, that she could hardly survive the injuries.

Child, Given Choice, To Live With Bishop

NEW YORK, June 4.—Pretty Muriel Bishop, whose mother, Abigail Hancock Bishop, secured a divorce from her millionaire banker husband, James Cunningham Bishop, last week, to-day was awarded to the custody of her father.

Mrs. Bishop, fearful that the child would renounce her in favor of Mr. Bishop, did not attend the conference of lawyers in Justice Goff's chambers and sent word that she would consent to Muriel being in custody of her father if she (Mrs. Bishop) might be allowed to see her often.

Young Girl Favorite In Title Golf Play

GLENCOVE, N. Y., June 4.—When the second round of match play began this morning in the Woman's Fourteenth Metropolitan Golf Championship, the title was declared to be in as much doubt as before the qualifying round started.

The one best bet was thought to be Miss Marion Hollins, of New York, hardly more than a schoolgirl, who last year proved Metropolitan runner-up.

Atlanta Invites Baptists of U. S.

MUSKOGEE, OKLA., June 4.—The eighth annual session of the Sunday School Congress of the National Baptist Convention opened here to-day. Delegates came from every part of the United States.

Notable among those to arrive in Muskogee was the train bearing the officials of the Sunday School Congress with the Tennessee, Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia, New York, Florida and Mississippi delegations. It was known as the "Official Sunday School Congress Train."

Arrayed in Congress caps, a chorus consisting of 252 voices sang "Hail the Baptist Congress" as the train pulled in.

The first subject under discussion was "Interdenominational Sunday School, Organizations, National and International, Their Theoretical and Practical Value." There were a half-dozen papers read taking up this in detail. The next subject was "Why Should the Pastor and Church Urge the Organization of Teacher-Training Classes?"

Officers have labored to make the Congress the most brilliant Sunday school gathering in the history of the interdenomination.

It is not known just how many cities are clamoring for the next session, but it was learned from Henry A. Boyd, secretary, that invitations had been received from St. Louis, Atlanta, New York City, Atlantic City and Memphis.

Society Notes

LIBERTY NEAR FOR STEVENS SUSPECTS

Sheriff Says Negroes Will Be Freed Next Week Unless Alibis Are Broken.

Sheriff J. A. McCurdy, of DeKalb County, stated Wednesday morning that unless additional evidence is unearthed soon, Walter Wilkes and Ernest Maynard, negroes, held on suspicion in the Stevens case, will be released by the first of next week.

"I have about concluded," said the Sheriff, "that the negroes know nothing of the murder, and that they are telling the truth. We have investigated carefully their stories of their whereabouts on the day and night of the murder, and have found evidence that induces the belief that they are telling the truth. Three witnesses have been found who swear that Wilkes stayed in Atlanta all Tuesday night, and the same number will swear the same about Maynard. It begins to look as though they had proved a complete alibi."

The investigations of Sheriff McCurdy and Detective Rosser, however, are by no means complete. Until the negroes are released they will spend their time trying to find a weak link in the alibis.

The theory of accident to account for the death of the two women is gaining ground steadily. Sheriff McCurdy declared to-day that the affair looks more like an accident all the time.

Health Aid Found in Trades by Experts

WASHINGTON, June '.—But few people are aware that there are occupations that bring health, just as there are others that bring disease in their train. There is, for instance, the coal tar occupation.

Tar, with its strong, clean odor, acts as an antiseptic, and those who work in tar are immune to epidemic diseases. They are also robust. The feeble and anemic, taking up this trade in its various forms—the making of dyes, the preparation of disinfectant—soon become strong.

Steel workers also profit in health from their occupation. The molten steel gives off certain gases that have a beneficial effect on the lungs and nasal passages. Though subjected to extremes of heat, steel workers practically never get consumption or catarrh.

Bakers, if their bakeries are clean and airy follow a trade that fattens the veriest skeletons. Butchers are noted for their ruddy, robust build, they, like the bakers, seeming to absorb through their pores the nutriment they work in. Chocolate and cocoa makers in like manner are stout, healthy folk.

STEWART MAIDEN LEAVES FOR TRIP TO SCOTLAND

Stewart Maiden, professional golfer of the Atlanta Athletic Club, will leave Sunday afternoon for New York, from where he will sail for England. He plans to go direct to his old home in Scotland and will visit there for a month. He will then return to take up his work at East Lake.

While Maiden is away Willie Mann will act as professional at the A. A. C.

Auto Victim Lives With Broken Back

KOKOMO, IND., June 4.—The condition of Russell Gifford, whose back was broken in an automobile accident near this city, 18 days ago, is puzzling the physicians. Immediately after Gifford was taken to the hospital, it was announced that he had practicallly no chance to live longer than a few hours.

The fifth, seventh and ninth vertebrae were crushed and dislocated. It seemed certain the spinal cord had been injured and that death would come in a little while. Gifford is paralyzed from his chest down and has only the slightest use of his arms.

It is said that there is no similar case on record where the person injured lived more than 14 days. The physicians are beginning to think that Gifford's spinal cord escaped serious injury, and they say that if they can keep him nourished a little while longer, they have hopes he will live and recover, in part at least, the use of his body.

$3,000,000 Is Left To Girl Bookkeeper

Beneficiary Deplores Fact That Good Fortune Was Made Public Before She Actually Received Money.

READING, PA., June 2.—Miss Nora Wade, aged twenty-three, who is employed as a bookkeeper in a box factory here, and her mother, residing at Wilmington, Del., have fallen heirs to a large fortune bequeathed to them by the father of the latter, who died in England two years ago, leaving an estate said to be valued at $3,000,000.

Admitting that she and her mother had been made legatees in the will of her grandfather, Miss Wade refused to discuss the matter further when interviewed here. She deplored the fact that the story had leaked out, declaring that she preferred that final settlement be made before the public was apprised of her good fortune. She has a sister in Wilmington, Del., and a brother whose whereabouts are unknown.

Mrs. Keppel Regains Prestige

London's Most Popular Woman

Edward's Friend Wins Test Vote

Mrs. George Keppel.

Mrs. Charles T. Hopkins, Jr., whose marriage was a recent notable event and who is being tendered a series of parties since her return from her wedding journey, was given a luncheon Wednesday by Miss Annie Lee McKenzie at "The Pines," the residence of Miss McKenzie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George M. McKenzie, at Brookwood. Twelve young matrons were present.

The decorations throughout the house were of sweetpeas, and the luncheon table had a large plateau of lavender sweetpeas, with large silver candelabra rising from the center. At either end of the table stood Marie Antoinette baskets filled with lavender sweetpeas, and the place cards were hand-painted in graceful minuet dancers, gowned in lavender. A cloth of fillet lace and embroidery covered the table, and the minor details were lavender and white.

Miss McKenzie wore a beautiful toilet of white embroidered net over white satin, combined with linene lace and finished with a blue sash caught in front with a large bow.

Mrs. Hopkins wore a suit of blue linen, the short cutaway coat opening over a blouse of embroidered cotton crepe. The collar and cuffs were of black satin, which also formed the girdle, and the toilet was completed by a hat of black straw, adorned with peacock feathers.

Mrs. Carpenter Entertains.

Mrs. Guy Carpenter entertained eight guests at a bridge luncheon Wednesday for Mrs. Paul Seydel, of New York, and Mrs. Edmund Berkely of Richmond, Va. Pink sweetpeas formed the decorations and hand-embroidered handkerchiefs were prizes.

King George and Queen Mary Ask Society Favorite to Remain in London.

LONDON, June 4.—Mrs. George Keppel, who was practically banished from London after the death of King Edward, it was learned to-day, has again been declared the most popular woman in London society. During a restaurant dinner "paper games," which are now the rage in London, were started. In one of the games the question was asked:

"Who is the most popular woman in London?"

When the answers were opened and counted 19 out of the 22 guests had written the name of Mrs. George Keppel.

It is said to be the wish of King George and Queen Mary that Mr. and Mrs. Keppel, who had planned to spend the summer on the Continent, remain in London.

Pardee and Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Wilmer.

Mrs. Webb Hostess.

Mrs. Guy Webb gave a lovely reception Wednesday afternoon for Miss Marie Wright, a bride-elect; Miss Willie Knox, of Social Circle, and Mrs. Paul Weeks, who was Miss Ruth Knox before her recent wedding. Pink and white sweetpeas in the form of a pyramid decorated the tea table and roses and daisies were used in the reception rooms. Miss Margaret Brantly served punch and Misses Lucile Moore, Elizabeth Moore, Corrie Weeks, Georgia Weeks and Ruth Harris served the ices.

Mrs. Webb was assisted in receiving by Mrs. H. W. Cantrelle, Mrs. H. F. Cole, Mrs. W. H. F. Hamilton, Mrs. T. O. Poole, Mrs. C. M. Trippe, Mrs. O. G. Kelly and Mrs. J. M. Wright.

Mrs Webb was gowned in blue charmeuse draped with marquisette; Miss Knox wore white crepe de chine and lace, while Mrs. Weeks was lovely in blue crepe de chine, the skirt draped with chiffon crepe over shadow lace. Miss Wright wore white embroidered marquisette.

Robinson-Steele.

Mrs. Dale Neer Robinson and Mr. Alvin Steele were married quietly Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Homer Neer, on Eighth Street. Dr. Hughlett, of St. Mark Church, officiated, and the attendants included the bride's sister, Miss Lelia Neer, as maid of honor, and Mr. Leo Spencer, as best man.

The bride entered with her brother, Mr. Homer Neer, who gave her away. She was preceded by a group of little ribbon-bearers in dainty lingerie frocks—Misses Charlotte Meador, Doris Starnes, Sara Schane and Mary Ingram, of Apalachicola, Fla.

Palms and ferns with vases of pink roses adorned the apartments, the bridal party being grouped before a bank of palms in the living room. The bride wore a traveling costume of wine-colored rep, embroidered in blue and orange, worn with a blouse of white lace, and hat to match, laden with shaded roses. She carried an arm bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies.

The maid of honor wore white lingerie with pink sash and girdle, with a leghorn hat adorned with roses. Her flowers were pink roses.

An informal reception followed the ceremony, when the relatives and close friends were entertained.

After June 15 Mr. and Mrs. Steele will be at home at 24 East Eighth Street.

City Federation to Meet.

The part Atlanta women are playing in the crystallization of a higher civic ideal here will be still more fully demonstrated at the annual meeting of the City Federation Friday at the Woman's Club House in Baker Street.

An all-day session, beginning at 10 o'clock, will be devoted to philanthropic, ethical and civic movements fostered by the City Federation. The meeting will be full of interest. Anyone wishing to introduce resolutions will communicate with Mrs. James Jackson, chairman of the resolutions committee. Matters of public welfare can be arranged for by telephoning the president, Mrs. Charles Haden.

The executive board, composed of the presidents of all the clubs, chairman of all committees and officers of the federation, will meet at 9:45 o'clock.

Lawn Fete at Nobles Home.

The members of St. Mary's Guild of St. Philip's Cathedral will give a lawn festival at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. George H. Noble, 980 Peachtree Street, Friday, from 4 to 9 p. m., when home-made cakes and candies will be for sale. There will be fortune telling, a grab bag and other attractions. Among the members of the guild are Misses Emma Sharpe, Annie Barnwell, Ethel Noble, Mildred Noble, Mary King and Abigail Stockbridge.

Miss Hay to Entertain.

Miss Minnie Lee Hay will entertain at the first of a series of auction bridge parties Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Warren White entertained at a reception Wednesday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Daniel Glasgow, of Tyrone, Pa.; her sister, Mrs. Robert Hall, Washington, and Miss Lina Andrews, a bride-elect. Palms, ferns and Killarney roses were used in the decorations. A large basket of the roses graced the tea table, where the details were in pink. Pink sweetpeas were effectively used in the reception rooms.

Mrs. White was assisted by Mrs. George Andrews, Mrs. Frank Markel, Mrs. John R. Wilkinson, Mrs. S. C. Dobbs, Mrs. W. A. Candler, Mrs. John R. Dickey, Mrs. Fay Wilson, Mrs. W. M. Fain, Mrs. R. C. Turner, Misses Kate Baker, Pauline Norman, Jennie Sue Bell and Annie Mae Patterson. Punch was served by Misses Mildred Harris and Lois Pattillo.

Mrs. White was gowned in lavender crepe de chine. Mrs. Glasgow wore caracmacross lace over white satin. Mrs. Hall was in a white crepe meteor draped in princess lace, and Miss Andrews wore a Nell rose charmeuse, effectively combined with lace.

Young People's Party.

Mrs. Eugene Mitchell will entertain 40 young people at a heart dice party Friday afternoon for her young daughter, Miss Margaret Mitchell.

Scott-MacIntyre.

The marriage of Miss Marie MacIntyre and Mr. John Scott was solemnized Wednesday at noon, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. I. MacIntyre, "Glenn O," on Peachtree Road. Attendants were the bride's sister, Miss Julia MacIntyre, as maid of honor, and Mr. Robert Scott as best man. Dr. Hughlett of St. Mark Church officiated.

The bridal party stood before a bank of palms, the bride wearing a smart costume of blue crepe de chine, the coat opening over a blouse of the same material, embroidered in shades of brown. Brown shoes, a brown hat and gloves completed the toilet. A shower bouquet of valley lilies was carried.

The maid of honor wore white embroidered crepe, with a leghorn hat adorned with pink roses. She carried pink roses. Misses Lois and Margaret MacIntyre, the bride's sisters, were ribbon-bearers. They wore lacy white frocks.

A wedding breakfast was served. The decorations throughout the house were of sweetpeas and greenery. Misses Effie Roberts and Nell Candler served punch.

Mr. Scott and his bride went on a wedding trip East. They will go to housekeeping in the bridegroom's home in Decatur.

The bride's traveling suit was of blue serge, with hat to match.

Matthews-Sisson.

A quiet wedding was that of Miss Mary Sisson to Dr. O. H. Matthews Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the Jackson Hill Baptist Church. Only a few intimate friends were present. Dr. and Mrs. Matthews left for a journey to the mountains of North Carolina. They will be at home at 500 North Jackson Street.

PERSONALS

Miss Elizabeth Dunson and Miss Van McKinnon have returned from Chattanooga, where they have been entertained as guests of Mrs. Walter Bishop Davis. Several affairs were given in their honor. Mrs. Davis entertained at a dinner-dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Corydon Lyle have issued invitations to the marriage of their sister, Miss Anne Elizabeth Lyle, to Mr. Marion S. Harper, Wednesday, June 18, at 8:30 o'clock, at St. Mark Church. A reception at 309 West Peachtree Street will follow the ceremony.

Mrs. Rees Marshall and young son will go for a month's visit to Miss Madge Bannigan at her summer home at Narragansett Pier.

Miss Harrie Stockdell has returned to Athens, after visiting Mrs. C. A. Wood and Mrs. Harry English.

Mrs. R. M. Bennett, of Marion, N. C., is visiting Mrs. Enos Hartman in Ansley Park. Mrs. Hartman is convalescent after a severe illness.

DANIEL O'NEILL, a powerful, self-made man, forces his only daughter, Mary, into a loveless marriage with the impecunious and profligate Lord Raa, so that his ambition to have his descendants the rightful heirs of the one earldom in Ellan may be realized. Mary, a convent-raised young woman, whose happiness is supposed to follow her father's dictates, dares to hope that her loveless union with this ungodly man may be purged of all its sordidness by the sacred sacrament through which she and her husband have just passed. That this hope is unfounded the events of their first evening together soon prove to her. Shocked to discover his lordship to be a man of sordid, sensual passions, Lady Raa refuses utterly to have anything to do with her husband until such time as he can prove himself worthy of her love. During the honeymoon abroad Alma Lier, a divorcee who had been expelled from the convent Mary attended in Rome, attaches herself to the party, and makes the "honeymoon trip" a long series of slights and insults for Lady Raa.

At last Lady Raa becomes certain of the infidelity of her husband and of his misconduct with Alma Lier. On her return to London Mary encounters her old play-fellow, Martin Conrad, who has returned from his triumphant expedition to the Antarctic. Drawn into ever-closer relations with the only man for whose friendship she had ever cared, Mary finally awakes to the fact that she is hopelessly in love with Martin. Terrified by this knowledge, and finding herself more and more in love with Martin, she determines to run away from the cause of her distress, and go home.

Mary's home-coming to Castle Raa is a sad affair. Her husband fills the tumble-down old mansion with his fast friends from London, including Alma Lier, who assumes control of the household. Ultimately the illness of her father offers Mary excuse for escape from the intolerable environment. But before visiting her old home Mary appeals in turn to her Bishop and to he father's lawyer, only to be told that neither Church nor State can offer any relief from her false position. Eventually she consults Father Dan, telling him that she can no longer live with her unfaithful husband, but his counsel is that she cleave to the Church and give up Martin Conrad. She returns next day to Castle Raa to find that Martin is arriving for a farewell visit, and that by Alma Lier's deceitful scheming the whole house party has gone off for a few days' cruise.

During her three days alone with her lover Mary fights a grim battle with temptation, only to find on the last night that her faith in renunciation and the laws of the Church is a fragile thing compared with her overwhelming love for this pure-hearted man. With Martin's passionate words, "You are my real life, I am your real husband," ringing in her brain she forgets everything else, and with strong steps walks across the corridor to Martin's bedroom. This is the action which Martin has advised as being the only course open to them which is sure to bring the one result they are determined to attain—Mary's divorce from Lord Raa.

Mary determines, after the departure of Martin Conrad, to sink her identity in the whirlpool of London. She is driven by fear of Lord Raa's discovery of her unfaithfulness to him; she is equally afraid of the venomous tongue of Alma Lier. Mary books passage for Liverpool on the midnight steamer, traveling in the steering to further guard her flight.

Alone in London.

AT eight o'clock next morning I was in the train leaving Liverpool for London.

I had selected a second-class compartment labelled: "For Ladies," and my only traveling companion was a tall, fair woman, in a seal skin coat and a very large black hat. She had filled the carriage with the warm odor of eau-de-cologne and the racks on both sides with her luggage, which chiefly consisted of ladies' hat boxes of various shapes and sizes.

Hardly had we started when I realized that she was a very loquacious and expensive person.

Was I going all the way? Yes? Did I live in Liverpool? No? In London, perhaps? No? Probably I lived in the country? Yes? That was charming, the country being so lovely.

"Any friends in London?"

"No."

"None whatever?"

"None whatever.

"But won't you be lonely by yourself in London?"

"A little lonely, perhaps."

Being satisfied with what she had found out about me, my traveling companion (probably from the mere love of talking) told me something about herself.

She was a fashionable milliner and had a shop in the West End of London. Occasionally she made personal visits to the provinces to take orders from the leading shopkeepers, but during the season she found it more profitable to remain in town, where her connection was large, among people who could pay the highest prices.

By this time we had reached Crewe, and as there was some delay in getting into the station, my traveling companion put her head out of the window to inquire the cause.

"I see what it is," she said. "The shooting season is over, and the society people are coming down from the moors. I know lots and lots of them. They are my best customers—the gentlemen at all events."

"The gentlemen?"

"Why, yes," she said with a little laugh.

After some shunting our Liverpool carriages were coupled to the Scotch train and run into the station, where a number of gentlemen in knickerbockers and cloth caps were strolling about the platform.

My companion seemed to know them all, and gave them their names, generally their Christian names, and often their familiar ones.

She Dodges Her Husband's Friend.

Suddenly I had a shock. A tall man, whose figure I recognized, passed close by our carriage, and I had only time to conceal myself from observation behind the curtain of the window.

"Hello!" cried my companion. "There's Teddy Eastcliff. He married Camilla, the Russian dancer. They first met in my shop, I may tell you."

I was feeling hot and cold by turns, but a thick veil must have hidden my confusion, for after we left Crewe my companion, becoming still more confidential, talked for a long time about her aristocratic customers, and I caught a glimpse of a life that was on the verge of a kind of fashionable Bohemia.

More than once I recognized my husband's friends among the number of her clients, and trembling lest my husband himself should become a subject of discussion, I made the excuse of a headache to close my eyes and be silent.

My companion thereupon slept, very soundly and rather audibly, from Rugby to Willesden, where, awakening with a start while the sets were being collected, she first ordered her face by her fashionglass, and then interested herself afresh in my own affairs.

"Did you say, my dear, that you have no friends in London?"

I repeated that I had none.

"Then you will go to a hotel, I suppose?"

I answered that I should have to look for something less expensive.

"In that case," she said, "I think I know something that will suit you exactly."

It was a quiet boarding establishment in Bloomsbury—comfortable house, reasonable terms, and, above all, perfectly respectable. In fact, it was kept by her own sister, and if I liked she would take me along in her cab and drop me at the door. Should she?

Looking back at that moment I cannot but wonder that after what I had heard I did not fear discovery. But during the silence of the last hour I had been feeling more than ever weak and helpless, so that when my companion offered me a shelter in that great, noisy, bewildering city in which I had intended to hide myself, but now feared I might be submerged and lost, with a willing, if not a cheerful heart, I accepted.

She Arrives at Her New Home.

Half an hour afterward our cab drew up in a street off Russell Square at a rather grimy looking house which stood at the corner of another and smaller square that was shut off by an iron railing.

The door was opened by a young waiter of 16 or 17 years, who was wearing a greasy dress suit and a solid shirt front.

My companion pushed into the hall, I followed her, and almost at the same moment a still larger and perhaps grosser woman than my friend, with the same features and complexion, came out of a room to the left with a serviette in her hand.

"Sophie!"

"Jane," cried my companion, and pointing to me she said, "I've brought you a new boarder."

Then followed a rapid account of where she had met me, who and what I was, and why I had come up to London.

"I've promised you'll take her in and not charge her too much, you know."

"Why, no, certainly not," said the sister.

At the next moment the boy waiter was bringing my trunk into the house on his shoulder, and my traveling companion was bidding me goodbye and saying she would look me up later.

When the door was closed I found the house full of the smell of hot food, chiefly roast beef and green vegetables, and I could hear the clink of knives and forks and the clatter of dishes in the room the landlady had come from.

The Grotesque Set of Fellow Boarders.

"You'd like to go to your bedroom at once, wouldn't you?" she said.

We went up two flights of stairs covered with rather dirty druggeting, along a corridor that had a thin strip of linoleum, and finally up a third flight that was bare to the boards, until we came to a room which seemed to be at the top of the house and situated in its remotest corner.

"I dare say this will do for the present," said the landlady, and though my heart was in my mouth I compelled myself to agree.

"My terms, including meals and all extras, will be a pound a week," she added, and to that also, with a lump in my throat, I assented, whereupon my landlady left me, saying lunch was just on, and I could come down stairs when I was ready.

A talkative, cockney chambermaid with a good little face brought me a fat, blue jug of hot water, and after I had washed and combed I found my way down to the dining room.

The company, who were of both sexes and chiefly elderly, seemed to me at that first sight to be dressed in every variety of out-of-date clothes, many of them rather shabby and some almost grotesque.

Raising their faces from their plates they looked at me as I entered, and I was so confused that I stood hesitating near the door until the landlady called to me.

"Come up here," she said, and when I had done so, and taken the seat by her side, which had evidently been reserved for me, she whispered, "I don't think my sister mentioned your name, my dear. What is it?"

I had no time to deliberate.

"O'Neill," I whispered back, and thereupon my landlady, raising her voice, and addressing the company as if they had been members of her family, said, "Mrs. O'Neill, my dears."

Then the ladies at the table inclined their heads at me and smiled, while the men (especially those who were the most strangely dressed) rose from their seats and bowed deeply.

The Missing Peeress.

OF all houses in London this, I thought, was the least suitable to me.

Looking down the table I told myself that it must be the very home of idle gossip and the hotbed of tittle-tattle.

I was wrong. Hardly had I been in the house when I realized that my fellow-guests were the most reserved and self-centered of all possible people.

One old gentleman who wore a heavy mustache, and had been a colonel in the Indian army, was understood to be a student of Biblical prophecy, having collected some thousands of texts which established the identity of the British nation with the lost tribe of Israel.

Another old gentleman, who wore a patriarchal beard and had taken "orders" without securing a living, was believed to be writing a history of the world, and (after forty years of continuous labor) to have reached the century before Christ.

An elderly lady with a benign expression was said to be a tragic actress who was studying in secret for a season at the National Theater.

Such, and of such kind, were my housemates, and I have since been told that every great city has many such groups of people, the great prophets, the great historians, the great authors, the great actors—those the world does not know, the odds and ends of humanity—thrown aside by the rushing river of life into the gulleyways that line its banks, the odd brothers, the odd sisters, the odd uncles, the odd aunts, for whom there is no place in the family, in society, or in the business of the world.

It was all very curious and pathetic, yet I should have been safe, for a time at all events, in this little corner of London into which chance had so strangely thrown me but for one unfortunate happening.

That was the arrival of the daily newspaper.

There was never more than a single copy. It came at 8 in the morning and was laid on the dining room mantelpiece, from which (by an unwritten law of the house) it was the duty as well as the honor of the person who had first finished breakfast to take it up and read the most startling part of the news to the rest of the company.

She Hears the Story of Her Disappearance.

Thus it occurred that on the third morning after my arrival I was startled by the voice of the old colonel who, standing back to the fire, with the newspaper in his hand, cried: "Mysterious disappearance of a peeress."

"Read it," said the old clergyman.

The teacup which I was raising to my mouth trembled in my hand, and when I set it down it rattled against the saucer. I knew what was coming, and it came.

The old Colonel read:

"A telegram from Blackwater announces the mysterious disappearance of the young wife of Lord Raa, which appears to have taken place late on Thursday night or in the early hours of Friday morning.

"It will be remembered that the missing lady was married a little more than a year ago, and her disappearance is the more unaccountable from the fact that during the past month she has been actively occupied in preparing for a fete in honor of her return home after a long and happy honeymoon.

"The pavilion in which the fete was to have been held had been erected on a headland between Castle Raa and a precipitous declivity to the sea, and the only reasonable conjecture is that the unhappy lady, going out on Thursday night to superintend the last preparations, lost her way in the darkness, and fell over the cliffs.

"The fact that the hostess was missing was not generally known in Ellan until the guests had begun to arrive for the reception on Friday evening, when the large assembly broke up in great confusion.

"Naturally much sympathy is felt for the grief stricken husband."

After the colonel had finished reading I had an almost irresistible impulse to scream, feeling sure that the moment my housemates looked into my face they must see that I was the person indicated.

They did not look, and after a chorus of exclamations ("Most mysterious!" "What can have become of her?" "On the eve of her fete, too!") they began to discuss the disappearance in general, each illustrating his point by reference to the subject of his own study.

It would take long to tell of the feverish days that followed—how newspaper correspondents were sent from London to Ellan to inquire into the circumstances of my disappearance; how the theory of accident gave place to the theory of suicide, and the theory of suicide to the theory of flight; how a porter on the pier at Blackwater said he had carried my trunk to the steamer that sailed on Thursday midnight, thinking I was a maid from the great house until I had given him half a crown (his proper fee being three pence); how two female passengers had declared that a person answering to my description had sailed with them to Liverpool; how these clews had been followed up and had led to nothing, and now, finally, the correspondents had concluded the whole incident of my disappearance could not be more mysterious if I had dropped from midair into the middle of the Irish Sea.

Reward of 500 Pounds Offered for Information.

But then came another development.

My father, who was reported to have received the news of my departure in a way that suggested that he had lost control of his senses (raging and storming at my husband like a man demented), having come to the sudden conclusion that I, being in a peculiarly sensitive condition, had received a serious shock resulting in a loss of memory, offered five hundred pounds reward for information that would lead to my discovery, which was not only desirable to allay the distress of my heart broken family but urgently necessary to settle important questions of title and inheritance.

With this offer of a reward came a description of my personal appearance.

"Age twenty; a little under the medium height; slight; very black hair; lustrous dark eyes; regular features; pale face; grave expression; unusually sunny smile."

It would be impossible for me to say with what perturbation I heard these reports read out by the old colonel and the old clergyman. Even the nervous stirring of my spoon and fork made me wonder that my housemates did not realize the truth, which must, I thought, be plainly evident to all eyes.

They never did, being so utterly immersed in their own theories, but all the same I sometimes felt as if my fellow guests in that dingy house in Bloomsbury were my judges and jury, and more than once, in my great agitation, when the reports came near to the truth, I wanted to say, "Stop, stop, don't you see it is I?"

That I never did so was due to the fact that not knowing what legal powers my father would have had to compel my return to Ellan, the terror that sat on me like a nightmare was that of being made the subject of a public quarrel between my father and my husband, concerning the legitimacy of my unborn child, with the shame and disgrace which that would bring not only upon me but upon Martin.

I had some reason for this fear.

After my father's offer of a reward there came various spiteful paragraphs (inspired, as I thought, by Alma, and written by the clumsier hand of my husband) saying it was reported in Ellan that if my disappearance was to be accounted for on the basis of flight, the only "shock" I could have experienced must be a shock of conscience, rumor having for some time associated my name with that of a person who was not unknown in connection with Antarctic exploration.

It was terrible.

After awhile I realized that not only my housemates, but all London, was discussing my disappearance.

It was a rule of our boarding house that during certain hours of every day everybody should go out as if he had business to go to, and having nothing else to do, I used to walk up and down the streets. In doing so I was compelled to pass certain news venders' stalls, and I saw for several days that nearly every placard had something about "the missing peeress."

When this occurred I would walk quickly along the thoroughfare with a sense of being pursued and the feeling which a nervous woman has when she is going down a dark corridor at night—that noiseless footsteps are coming behind, and a hand may at any moment be laid on her shoulder.

But nobody troubled me in the streets, and the only person in our boarding house who seemed to suspect me was our landlady. She said nothing, but when my lip was quivering to the old colonel read that cruel word about Martin, I caught her little gray eyes looking aslant at me.

One afternoon, her sister, the milliner, came to see me according to her promise, and thought she, too, said nothing, I saw that while the old colonel and the old clergyman were disputing on the hearth rug about some disappearance which occurred thousands of years ago, she was looking fixedly at the fingers with which, in my nervousness, I was ruckling up the discolored chintz in my chair.

Then in a moment—I don't know why—it flashed upon me that my traveling companion was in correspondence with my father.

That idea became so insistent toward dinner time that I made pretense of being ill (which was not very difficult) to retire to my room, where the cockney chambermaid wrung handkerchiefs out of vinegar and laid them on my forehead to relieve my headache—though she increased it, poor thing, by talking perpetually.

Next morning my landlady came up to say that if, as she assumed from my name, I was Irish and a Catholic, I might like to receive a visit from a Sister of Mercy who called to the house at intervals to attend to the sick.

I thought I saw in a moment that this was a subterfuge, but feeling that my identity was suspected, I dare not give cause for further suspicion, so I compelled myself to agree.

A few minutes later, having got up and dressed, I was standing with my back to the window, feeling like one who would soon have to face an attack, when a soft footstep came up my corridor and a gentle hand knocked at my door.

"Come in," I cried, trembling like the last leaf at the end of a swinging bough.

And then an astonishing thing happened.

A young woman stepped quietly into the room and closed the door behind her. She was wearing the blue and white habit of the Little Sisters of the Poor, but I knew her long, pale, pain-featured face in an instant.

A flood of shame and at the same time a flood of joy swept over me at the sight of her.

It was Mildred Bankes.

Identified.

"MARY," said Mildred, "speak low and tell me everything."

She sat in my chair, I knelt by her side, took one of her hands in both of mine, and told her.

I told her that I had fled from my husband's house because I could not bear to remain there any longer.

I told her that my father had married me against my will, in spite of my protests, when I was a child, and did not know that I had any right to resist him.

I told her that my father—God forgive me if I did him a wrong—did not love me, that he had sacrificed my happiness to his lust of power, and that if he were searching for me now it was only because my absence disturbed his plans and hurt his pride.

I told her that my husband did not love me either, and that he had married me from the basest motives, merely to pay his debts and secure an income.

I told her, too, that not only did my husband not love me, but he loved somebody else, that he had been cruel and brutal to me, and therefore (for these and other reasons) I could not return to him under any circumstances.

While I was speaking I felt Mildred's hand twitching betwen mine, and when I had finished she said, "But, my dear child, they told me your friends were broken-hearted about you; that you had lost your memory and perhaps your reason, and therefore it would be a good act to help them to send you home."

"It's not true, it's not true," I said.

She Told Me How She Came To Be There.

And then in a low voice, as if afraid of being overheard, she told me how she came to be there—that the woman who had traveled with me in the train from Liverpool, seeing my father's offer of a reward, had written to him to say that she knew where I was and only needed somebody to establish my identity; that my father wished to come to London for this purpose, but had been forbidden by his doctor; that our parish priest, Father Donovan, had volunteered to come instead but had been prohibited by his bishop, and finally that my father had written to his lawyers in London, and Father Dan to her, knowing that she and I had been together at the Sacred Heart in Rome, and that it was her work now to look after lost ones and send them safely back to their people.

"And now the lawyer and the doctors are downstairs," she said in a whisper, "and they are only waiting for me to say who you are that they may apply for an order to send you home."

This terrified me so much that I made a fervent appeal to Mildred to save me.

"Oh, Mildred, save me, save me," I cried.

"But how can I? How can I?" she asked.

I saw what she meant, and thinking to touch her still more deeply I told her the rest of my story.

I told her that if I had fled from my husband's house it was not merely because he had been cruel and brutal to me, but because, I too, loved somebody else—somebody who was far away but was coming back, and there was nothing I could not bear for him in the meantime, no pain or suffering or loneliness, and when he returned he would protect me from every danger, and we should love each other eternally.

"I passed through the streets stunned, stupefied, feeling as if I were running away from some malignant curse, the newsmen pursuing me, darting out from every street crying "Paper—third e'shen—loss of the Schosha!"

Mary O'Neill, the heroine of this great story. In "The Woman Thou Gavest Me" is contained the true story of Mary O'Neill, told by herself and written from her memoranda. Forced into a loveless marriage with the profligate Lord Raa, Mary is despondent and later terrified to find that she has fallen desperately in love with an old play-fellow. Read how she fights against temptation, only to be overcome with her overwhelming love for this man. This is the story you have been hearing about and the one that has created such a sensation throughout the country. Mr. Caine has not minced words in discussing the true-to-life situations that continually occur in his novel, but paints word-pictures of living truths that drive their lessons home.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

WE must go & call on the Sternbecks tonite, sed Ma. You know how much I think of Missus Sternbeck. She is a deer littel lady, Ma sed, even if her taste in dress is a littel wobbly. I know you will not not the kind of a man to worship like her husband, beekaus you are welth, sed Ma, & that is about all Mister Sternbeck has. He is worth a hogs-hed of munny. He cud buy the Panama canal after it is finished, Ma sed, & make a private pickrel pond out of it.

I wish we dident have to go, Pa sed. I hate to set & listen to sum fat rich man telling how he started on a shoe string & beecaim the coupon-clipping kid. I have offen had to set & hear that kind of guff, Pa sed, wen all I had in my pocket was a hard, thin dollar. Isent thare sum way we cud git out of all this visiting rich folks?

I wuddent think of disappointing Missus Sternbeck tonite, sed Ma. So we went.

A Fine Home.

The Sternbecks live in a very fine hoam. It is a lot bigger than our flat, but it isent so nice looking, thare is so much furniture in it & gold fraims, etc. I toald Ma that & she sed I shud be vary careful what I sed. Missus Sternbeck was a deer littel lady, like Ma sed, but Mister Sternbeck was fat & common. He started rite in telling how much wine he had in his wine cellar. I marked down all the amounts in a littel book & wen he saw me doing it he asked me why I was marking down the prices he menshuned. I toald him that wen he got all thru I was going to add the figgers up & find out how much munny it wud cost me to keep house wen I got to be a self made man. Then everybody laffed excep him.

I cud see that Pa had an awful grouch on, beekaus he grinned all the time the way he grins at me wen he stands neer the door with a slipper & says "Bobbie, see here a minnit." But the rest of the peepul thot he seemd to be having a good time.

We had a very fine dinner & after the dinner Missus Sternbeck & Ma started to look at sum fashun magazeens & us men went into the smoking room.

Here are some very expensive cigars, sed Mister Sternbeck. They cost me one thousand dollars a thousand. I am glad yure littel son doesnt smoak, he sed. It wud seem a shaim to waste a dollar cigar on him. Try one of these, he sed to Pa. Stick one in yure pocket for later in the eevning, he sed. Or if you wud prefer cigarettes, I have sum choice Turkish cigarettes. They cost me one hundred dollars a hundred boxes, he sed.

Wile I was putting down the amounts in my littel book Pa & Mistern Sternbeck started to play a gaim of billyards & smoak. This is a fine tabel, sed Mister Sternbeck. It cost me one thousand dollars & Willie Hoope played on it onst & sed it was one of the best tabels on wich he had ever played. Isent that a fine cue you are using? he asked Pa. It is, sed Pa. I cud see that Pa was getting colder & colder all the time to leave out, but after awile he did, you bet.

Try sum of this Rhine wine, sed Mister Sternbeck. It is very rare. It cost twenty dollars a quart. Smack yure lips over a glass of it, he sed. Pa drank it & he did smack his lips. Have another, sed Mister Sternbeck. Expense is nothing to me when I entertain.

Pa Starts In.

So Pa had a other drink & a other, & then he sed How noabel is welth. How I admire a man wich can, by the sheer force of his geenyus, carve a career to Welth & Prosperity. Long may you live & wax wealthier, good friend Sternbeck, sed Pa. If thare is ever anything I can do for you, call me up or wire me & I will be glad to fly to yure aid. Doant hesitate to call on me, Pa sed. I wud do anything for you.

Then thay had two more glasses of wine & Pa sed Well, well, I can't seem to maik a singel shot, but I am proud to be beat by a scholar & a gentelman like you. Hevings bless you & all yure honestly ac-quired welth, sed Pa. I wish you was worth abilyun, sed Pa. I wish you the saim, sed Mister Sternbeck.

On the way hoam Pa kep telling Ma what a noble man Mister Sternbeck was. Thare is one man in a milyun, sed Pa.

I guess munny talks, all rite, & rhine wine, too.

A Difference.

"Say," remarked Harry, "how d'ye teach a gurl t' swim?"

"O-oh, that's easy!" replied his chum. "You take her vurry gently down t' the water; an' you put an arm aroun' her waist; an' you whisper: 'De-ar, don't be fri——'"

"Come off yer perch! It's my sister!"

"Oh, yer sister! Shove 'er in!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

How to Have and Keep a Clear Complexion, Told by Isabell D'Armond

By LILIAN LAUFERTY.

HAVE you begun to wonder what has become of the girl who is petite and dainty and sweet, who is not an undulating giantess of snaky figure, but who represents lovely girlhood of the kind that has charmed the world for ages?

Be of good cheer. "Girl—real girl" exists in spite of all the cut-off-the-same pattern evidence to the contrary. She exists, for I have seen and talked to her. Isabell D'Armond—one of B. F. Keith's charming Lights o' Vaudeville, and who is well known in Atlanta, having appeared on several occasion at the Forsyth—is petite and dainty and sweet, and very, very clever—clever enough to understand her type and not depart therefrom, and sweet enough to flit through your brain to the tune of the dear old refrain:

"Dainty little dimpled darling,
Fairer than the new-blown rose,
Pure and modest as the buds of spring-time,
Sweetest flower that blows;
Laughter like the softest music,
Roguish, smiling eyes of blue—
Ah, to know you is to love you, sweetheart,
Dainty little ingenue."

All of which applies to dainty Miss D'Armond except that her eyes are softly brown with the pure blue-whites that betoken clean, sane, good health.

A Clear Skin.

Even under the make-up, Miss D'Armond's skin showed clear and blemishless; her facial contours were firm and rounded, with no sagging lines at chin or throat or eyes. No athlete in the prime of condition ever had firmer flesh and more satiny skin. And this is not the result of chance, for Miss D'Armond knows just how to achieve these results.

"I do not believe in soap or even water for the face," said she. "Water makes wrinkles, especially when its use is followed by that of a linen or damask towel. I use a bath towel to dry my face when I wash it once a week. Are you shocked at that? Please don't be, for I am sure I keep my face clean! Cold cream and plenty of it—that is my means for cleansing and keeping the flesh firm; and then I always rub up—up under the chin, up from the sagging wrinkles that like to cut a path from nostril to lip corners, and up under the eyes with light strokes. Cold cream packed firmly under the eyes at night keeps away the tiny network of wrinkles that it is so hard to avoid. And tiny strips of court-plaster at the outer corners of the eyes and across the furrows that come between the eyes smooth them out.

"And now, listen to the party I have with myself once a week: On Sundays, generally, I wash my face, and it is quite a process, for only on one day of the week do I use water on my face. First a good washing with warm water and castile soap, then a thorough steaming, followed by a witch hazel rub, next a dash or two of cold water, and finally my old friend, cold cream, again."

With Miss D'Armond's firm, satiny skin and clear facial contours to recommend her treatment, I add my indorsement for her theory; and if the girl whose face is too fat, or whose skin shows a tendency to sag or wrinkle, will try it, surely she will bless pretty Isabell D'Armond, as double chins and sallow skin vanish and clear skin and firm flesh take their place.

Our Girls Prettiest.

"You go abroad so much," said I, "with a London season only a few weeks ahead, tell me just how you think our girls compare with those of other countries, won't you?"

"Oh, American girls are the prettiest of all," said this dainty American with the glowing enthusiasm she brings to whatever demands her attention. "American girls are well groomed, well bred and have a fine outdoor swing when they walk—that is, if they walk naturally and not just a la mode. But fat does threaten us—sweets and comfort and petting and pampering do that. I am very careful about not getting fat—and I take simple precautions besides plenty of exercise in the walking line.

"Let me tell you about my anti-fat methods—a glass of hot water the first thing on getting up in the morning and then a simple breakfast beginning with acid fruit. Plenty of hot water and acid fruit keep the system clean and sweet. No potatoes, no bread—though unbuttered toast is harmless—few sweets, no fats and no water at meals—that is a diet that it is not a hardship to endure. And then always stand after meals. That is not a fad—it is a fact in the thinning process. I am not recommending anything that I have not tried out myself, and I am glad to help any girl who is determined not to be a victim of the 'white woman's burden'—fat."

The great brown eyes looked at me earnestly, the merry mouth was ready to tremble into its infectious little crooked smile—one of the gayest, most heart-reaching smiles imaginable—and suddenly one of dainty Isabell D'Armond's greatest beauty secrets revealed itself to me: it is this—her unselfish interest in all that goes on around her—her genuine admiration of other women, her sweet, sane oneness with all of life.

But, with a movement of great swiftness Garson got in front of her, and barred her going. For a few seconds the two stared at each other searchingly as if learning new and strange things; each of the other. In the girl's expression was an outraged wonder and a great terror. In the man's was a half-shamed pride, as if he exulted in the strength with which he had been able to maintain his will against her supreme effort to overthrow it.

"You can't go," Garson said sharply. "You might be caught."

"And if I were," Mary demanded in a flash of indignation, "do you think I'd tell?"

There came an abrupt change in the hard face of the man. Into the piercing eyes flamed a softer fire of tenderness. The firm mouth grew strangely gentle as he replied, and his voice was overtoned with faith.

"Of course not, Mary," he said. "I know you. You would go up for life first."

Then again his expression became resolute, and he spoke imperiously.

"Just the same, you can't take any chances. We'll all get away in a minute, and you'll come with us." He turned to the men and spoke with swift authority.

"Come," he said to Dacey, "you get to the light switch there by the hall door. If you hear me snap my fingers turn 'em off. Understand?"

Went to His Station.

With instant obedience the man addressed went to his station by the hall door, and stood ready to control the electric current.

The distracted girl essayed one last plea. The momentary softening of Garson had given her new courage.

"Joe, don't do this."

"You can't stop it now, Mary," came the brisk retort. "Too late. You're only wasting time, making it dangerous for all of us."

Again he gave his attention to carrying on the robbery.

"Red," he ordered, "you go to that door." He pointed to the one that gave on the passageway against which he had set the chair tilted. As the man obeyed Garson gave further instructions.

"If any one comes in that way get him quick. You understand? Don't let him cry out."

Chicago Red grinned with cheerful acceptance of the issue in such an encounter. He held up his huge hand widely open.

"Not a chance," he declared, proudly, "with that over his mug." To avoid possible interruption of his movements in an emergency he removed the chair Garson had placed and set it to one side, out of the way.

"Now, let's get to work," Garson continued eagerly.

Mary spoke with the bitterness of defeat.

"Listen, Joe! If you do this I'm through with you. I quit."

Garson was undismayed by the threat.

"If this goes through," he countered, "we'll all quit. That's why I'm doing it. I'm sick of the game."

He turned to the work in hand with increased energy.

"Come, you, Griggs and Red, and push that desk down a bit so that I can stand on it." The two men bent to the task heedless of Mary's frantic protest.

"No! no! no! no! no! Joe!"

Red, however, suddenly straightened from the desk and stood motionless, listening. He made a slight hissing noise that arrested the attention of the others and held them in moveless silence.

"I hear something," he whispered. He went to the keyhole of the door leading into the passage. Then he whispered again, "And it's coming this way."

At the words Garson snapped his fingers. The room was plunged in darkness.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Noiseless Death.

There was absolute silence in the library after the turning of the switch that brought the pall of darkness. Long seconds passed, then a little noise—the knob of the passage door turning. As the door swung open there came a gasping breath from Mary, for she saw framed in the faint light that came from the single burner in the corridor the slender form of her husband, Dick Gilder. In the next instant he had stepped within the room and pulled to the door behind him. And in that same instant Chicago Red had pounced on his victim, the huge hand clapped tight over the young man's mouth. Even as his powerful arm held the newcomer in an inescapable embrace there came a sound of scuffling feet and that was all. Finally the big man's voice came triumphantly.

"I've got him."

"It's Dick!" The cry came as a wail of despair from the girl.

THE TRIPLE TIE

A Story for Baseball Fans That Will Interest Every Lover of the National Game

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

Copyright, 1913, by International News Service.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"I've simply got to," replied Farrell. "Chance got a telegram from Long Tom Morrissey saying that Kelly had Cobb and Speaker and all the others beaten to death. I rushed a man down there to buy him, but you see he's up against it. Chance says we've got to have him, so I'm going down to get him; that's all. Say," he exclaimed suddenly, "What's the matter with your going down there with me? You could help a lot."

"Maybe I'd better go with you. The American League must have that fellow," replied Johnson, after a thoughtful pause. "What time can we get a train?"

Johnson and Farrell boarded the Seaboard Fast Mail that pulled out of the Pennsylvania Terminal at half after midnight and the first persons they bumped into were President James R. McAleer and Vice President John I. Taylor, of the Boston American League club, owners of the Red Sox, champions of the world. Taylor broke into a hearty laugh.

"Lemme see your ticket," he said to Farrell and Johnson.

"Lemme see yours," replied Farrell.

They produced long strips of green paper for mutual inspection, and there was another hearty laugh all around.

"Atlanta, eh? I thought so," said Taylor. "You must mean business, Frank, to take Ban along with you."

"Oh, I don't know, John. I see you're going along with Mac to make sure of this fellow, Gordon Kelly," retorted the New Yorker.

"I received a telegram a yard long from Patsy Donovan this noon," said McAleer, "and I decided that if we wanted this fellow we better take the bull by the horns, so I phoned John and asked him to go to Atlanta with me, and here we are. Say, there's going to be some fun down there, by the looks of things."

Whole City Excited.

When the party reached Atlanta they found the city in the greatest state of excitement over the impending baseball deal which involved Gordon Kelly. The newspapers were full of news concerning the arrival of the magnates. There were long interviews with the big club owners from the North. The magnates would say little in regard to Kelly, beyond the statement that they had heard he was a fine ball player, and they would not acknowledge they were in Atlanta for the purpose of buying his release from the Atlanta club. They were willing to talk on general baseball topics, however. The gathering of the magnates took on the aspect of a great political convention and the newspapers handled it that way. Columns and columns of space were devoted to it.

By noon that day fifteen out of the sixteen big league clubs were represented in the persons of their presidents and Atlanta became, politically, the baseball center of the world.

As yet no definite move had been made by any of the club owners to bring the Gordon Kelly matter to a show down with the officials of the Atlanta club. The affair had assumed such an importance that each visiting magnate hesitated about making the first approach. President Johnson, of the American League, of whom no more clever baseball diplomat exists, sized the situation correctly before he had been in Atlanta three hours. He thought it all out in his room in his hotel and then brought his fist down on the table with a bang.

"The American League positively must land Gordon Kelly," he said aloud, although no one was with him in his room. "It's got to be done and I'm going to do it."

CHAPTER XVI.

AUGUST HERRMANN, President of the Cincinnati National League Baseball Club, and chairman of the National Commission, the "Supreme Court of Baseball," was the first of the magnates to make a determined effort to buy the release of Gordon Kelly from the Atlanta Club. He sought and obtained a personal conference with President Callaway of the Atlanta Club and got right down to business without wasting words. He explained that in his capacity as President of the Cincinnati Club he had come to Atlanta to make an offer for Kelly's services, that he understood that previous offers had been of a more or less vague sort, and wound up by making a flat proposition to buy Kelly's release for $15,000 cash.

"But, Mr. Herrmann," expostulated Callaway, "the Atlanta Club does not want to dispose of Gordon Kelly. We all appreciate the significance of all you owners of the big clubs coming to Atlanta at this time, but we really don't care to talk business."

To this Herrmann replied:

"Speaking now as chairman of the National Commission, I would say that one of the fundamental rules of the commission is that a ball player must be allowed to improve his condition when ever the opportunity presents itself. The Southern League is hampered by a salary limit, while there is no limit to the salary a major league club may pay a player. There is nothing in the laws of the State or nation that can compel you to dispose of Kelly's services, but the Atlanta Club, which could not exist as a financial proposition except for organized baseball, owes it to baseball that this player's services should be disposed of to some major league club. The Cincinnati Club may not be the successful bidder, but the facts remain the same."

"This puts the Atlanta Club in a very embarrassing position. Mr. Herrmann," returned Callaway, "and without accepting or rejecting your offer I must call a meeting of our directors and take a vote on the matter."

Before the directors could get together, however, several other magnates called on the Atlanta Club's President, or had him on the telephone, the result being that within half an hour an offer of $25,000 cash was made by one of them.

The directors of the club were in session a full hour, after which President Callaway announced that the Atlanta Club, while disposed to reject all offers, felt the necessity, aside from all financial considerations, of living up to the obligations of organized baseball and that, such being the case, they would sell Gordon Kelly's release to the best advantage of the stockholders of the club.

There was general rejoicing among the magnates over this declaration and corresponding gloom among the "fans" of Atlanta, who were promptly informed of the decision through "extras" issued by the afternoon newspapers. The moguls were about to gird on their armor to renew the battle for Gordon Kelly, when Callaway suggested that all business be put aside for the moment in order that all hands might attend the game at Ponce DeLeon Park and see the player who had set the baseball world on fire.

It had been raining most of the night before and part of the morning. The afternoon was dark and murky and the conditions were very unfavorable for a ball game. What with the dreary, dun-colored clouds trailing their dim regiments overhead, the drearier rain soaking the field into a swamp and the ghoulish-looking players ranting around in the mud like a squad of Kiralfy's high kickers, the spectacle was anything but edifying to the assembled crowd. But any sort of a day was good enough to see Gordon Kelly play and there was a surprisingly large crowd on hand when the game began.

The game itself was not calculated to promulgate heart disease. Gordon Kelly had no opportunity to distinguish himself in the field. One very easy fly ball was all that came in his direction. At bat, however, he knocked out two singles and a three-bagger, but attempted no base stealing, as the condition of the diamond made it dangerous.

That evening the visiting magnates were dined at the gorgeous Capital City Club by the directors of the Atlanta Baseball Club. After the solids were disposed of Herrmann, of Cincinnati, arose and after apologizing for intruding business on pleasure, remarked that he, for one, must hurry back to his home on an urgent matter and suggested that the matter of Gordon Kelly be settled then and for all.

At that President Johnson of the American League called his club owners to a corner of the room and addressed a few earnest remarks to them. It quickly developed that the price already offered for Gordon Kelly was as high as most of them cared to go. It was something unprecedented in the history of baseball that a player who had been in the game only a few days should command such a figure, and many of the club Presidents were already alarmed at the turn affairs had taken.

$250 in Prizes for Best Solution of "The Triple Tie"

YOU read the first fourteen installments of the great baseball mystery story of "The Triple Tie" and now you have a fair idea of the simplicity of the offer The Georgian makes—how you may win $100 by working out the solution of the mystery as nearly as its author, A. H. C. Mitchell, has done as you can.

Mr. Mitchell has written the last chapter, but his copy is sealed up in a vault at the American National Bank. When all but this final chapter has been printed, The Georgian readers will be asked to submit to three competent judges, none of them connected with this newspaper, their version of what the grand denouement should be.

To the person who most closely approximates Mr. Mitchell's final chapter $100 will be awarded. Other prizes, making the total prize list $250, also will be distributed.

Here is the list of the awards:

No. 1	$100
No. 2	$50
No. 3	$25
No. 4	$15
Nos. 5 to 16, each	5

Read the fifteenth installment of the great mystery story and you will not need to be urged to read the succeeding chapters. The story will grip you. As you read, try to follow the author's channel of thought and when the time comes for you to sit down and write that final chapter, be ready to win one of the big cash prizes in The Georgian's great offer.

Up-to-Date Jokes

A certain witty judge was trying a case recently where a dealer sued a steamship company for the loss of some pigs in a fire on board a cross channel boat. It came out in evidence that the steamer had a large deckload, and here the damage was greatest.

The judge thus began his charge to the jury:

"Gentlemen, to put those pigs on deck was a rash act, but to fry them was a rasher."

.:. Some Don'ts for Girls .:.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DON'T compare the criticisms of your parents with the compliments paid you by a young man to the detriment of the former. The criticisms are at least based on sincerity.

Don't regard every compliment paid you as a reason why you should have your photograph taken. Frequent visits to a photographer are signs of a vain mind.

Don't seek information from a dream book. No one expects much from the girl who seeks information from a dream book instead of from an encyclopedia.

Don't get the prevalent notion that the young man who spends a month's salary in giving you a good time thinks more of you than the man who refuses to spend a week's. The latter loves more sanely.

Don't overlook the importance of a love affair with your father. That is the best investment in the love of man that any girl can make.

Don't forget that mother is a human being, and sometimes gets tired.

Don't feel the third time a young man has called on you that it is time for you to take possession and demand that he account for the evenings he spent somewhere else.

Don't accept attentions from the wrong kind of a man, excusing yourself because they mean nothing and are trivial. Remember that the girl who walks only as far as the corner with the wrong kind of man will meet every one she knows on the way.

Don't resent the desire of your parents to know something of the young man who calls on you. They fail in their duty to you if they lack this desire, or fail to act upon it.

Don't give your heart to a man who refers to his parents as "the old lady" and "the old man."

Don't ever outgrow the habit of your childhood of telling your mother when you get home all that happened at the party. It is more important that you tell her what happens now you are grown than that you told her when you were little.

Don't forget, if you have a little, that you have more than your parents had in their youth, and that they have struggled every day since you came into the world with that unselfish ambition in view.

Quite So.

"What became of that little kitten you had?" inquired the visitor of the small boy of the house.

"Why, haven't you heard?"

"No; was it drowned?"

"No."

"Lost?"

"No."

"Poisoned?"

"No."

"Did you give it away?"

"No."

"Then whatever did become of it?"

"It growed up into a cat."

QUAKER HERB EXTRACT DOES THE WORK

Mrs. R. T. Bartlett, of Lakewood Heights, Was Immediately Relieved of Acute Indigestion

My kind friends, there is a cure for indigestion or sour bloating stomach, not something that you have to take after or before you eat as long as you live, but a remedy that cleanses and heals that mucous lining, puts the stomach and bowels in good, healthy condition, builds up the entire system so you don't have to keep suffering with that misery. Quaker Herb Extract is a complete cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness or any form of stomach trouble, it will cure catarrh in any form, rheumatism, liver, kidney or bladder troubles.

Here is a report of a lady, Mrs. R. T. Bartlett, who resides at Lakewood Heights, Route No. 2, Box 144, was troubled with Acute Indigestion: "No matter what I ate seemed gas would form from it, causing me much misery. This gas would cause my stomach to bloat, my heart to palpitate, my breath to get short and would give me dizzy spells. It seemed my food would not digest properly, causing me distress. I used doctors' treatments and different kinds of medicines, but nothing helped me. I seemed to be getting worse, and, as I realized something had to be done, I concluded to try once more, and therefore, I called at Coursey & Munn's Drug Store for a treatment of Quaker, which was six bottles. I simply can not tell how quickly this great remedy helped me. People will not believe it if I tell them, but it is so. I eat heartily without any stomach distress following. I simply beg and hope that any and all persons who might be suffering like I did, to at least try the wonderful Quaker Herb Extract." $1.00 per bottle, three for $2.50, or six for $5.00. Oil of Balm, 25c, or five for $1.00. Call to-day at Coursey & Munn's Drug Store, 29 Marietta Street, and obtain these wonderful Quaker Herb Remedies. We prepay express charges on all orders of $3.00 or over.

GROCERS' DAY CROWD TO GIVE RECORD A TILT

By Percy H. Whiting.

IF the weather at game time this afternoon is sufficiently salubrious (Noah Webster please write) we are likely to give Birmingham something more to think about in the matter of attendance. It wouldn't be surprising if the mid-week record got a jar.

For there will certainly be some few enthusiasts at Ponce DeLeon ball park.

This is Grocers' and Butchers' Day.

The grocers, butchers and a lot of wholesalers will close this afternoon for the first time and are going to celebrate in various ways, but chiefly by going to the ball park.

The local team has gone to considerable expense in getting the Montgomery club here and expects a big crowd for the occasion.

• • •

RIGHT now, while the local crowds are standing up close around the high water mark and the league is more prosperous than ever before in its career it might be well to propound the question:

"Are Southern League clubs being run on a business basis and if they aren't what's going to become of them?"

Carleton Molesworth sounded a note of warning the other day in the following statement:

The managers in this league are spending too much money for the receipts they get. The attendance does not justify the disbursements now being made. Three cities in the league are drawing well and they are Mobile, Atlanta and Birmingham. Others are hardly paying the guarantee except on holidays.

The next big change in the league is bound to be a curtailment of expenses and it may come quicker than we expect. I have no kick to offer in Birmingham because the people there certainly support a ball club superbly. Whether you are winning or losing, they attend the game. It's a big place and we have a great population to draw from.

OF course here in Atlanta we haven't sprung any worry-wrinkles nor will we for the next 50 years. The local club is well backed. And Atlanta is a real baseball town.

That is more than can be said of some of the other cities in the league, including at least one—Memphis—which has size enough to turn out any old crowd.

• • •

YEAR in and year out the average Southern League clubs spend too much for their teams. Year in and year out the Southern League loses money—that is, the total of profits of all clubs is less than the total of losses.

Either the league cities have got to grow mighty fast to catch up with the salary limit or else the league will come a cropper some day.

In the meantime, I guess we should not lose sleep over it.

• • •

WITH new pitchers coming Cracker prospects are looking up again. Not in years, if ever, has a Southern club bought as many and as high-priced pitchers and secured such a weak staff. Look at the slather of them that Bill Smith had at the first of the year and how well they were recommended. And look at what's left now and what they have been doing.

It would be extremely helpful if this guy Counzelman turned out to be a bear. The other man Pittsburg sent down here, under optional agreement—Bisland—turned out to be a corker. Maybe Counzelman will do equally well.

While the Crackers were disappointed not to get the unrestricted ownership of Counzelman's services it is an encouraging sign that Barney Dreyfuss would not sell him outright. It was apparent that he expected the man to make a real pitcher some day. Otherwise he would have preferred money to his services.

• • •

MAYBE the blight of punk pitchers inflicted on Atlanta by the fates was a blessing in disguise and designed to keep up the interest in baseball.

Even without pitchers Bill Smith has been able to keep his club right up in the race. The Crackers are in such a position that with a little hurling help they can get sail for the Gulls, with every chance in the world of overtaking them.

I'm looking for a close finish this year.

The Crackers are going to get their stride after a bit and start winning. Their slump has to end after a bit. They are in a good position to make the race. Give them the pitchers and watch them fly!

HAL CHASE MAY NOT REPORT TO WHITE SOX

NEW YORK, June 4.—Hal Chase, traded by the Yankees to the White Sox, refused to report to his new club yesterday. When seen in the grandstand at the Yankees-Naps game and asked why he wasn't in Chicago with the White Sox, chase intimated that it was nobody's business but his own. He would make no answer to the question as to whether he would refuse to report to-day.

Coach Heisman on Amateurism

College Players and Summer Ball

By J. W. Heisman.

THIS is the time of the year when the college player gets out a copy of the rules of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, and reviews them all carefully. Either he does this with the idea of refreshing his mind regarding the things he must not do if he wishes to be eligible for college playing again next spring, or to see if he cannot work out a way to go and play where and how he pleases, this summer, and yet not violate the letter of the laws.

For years the college players all over the country have been straining at the leash and trying to get away from the hard and fast rules that all colleges now lay down regarding summer baseball by their students; but thus far there has been no lengthening of the chain anywhere. In fact at every meeting of the S. I. A. A. some new law is passed which only shortens the restraining rope still more.

IT is a well understood rule all over the country that one who takes money for participation in any athletic event whatsoever above his necessary expenses thereby professionalizes himself, for which reason he is debarred from further athletic association with amateurs. In England they go very much further still. There only "gentlemen" can be amateurs; and a gentleman, in this sense, is defined to be one who has never worked for a living—that is, one who has never earned money by work, no matter what kind of work. This strikes us as the height of absurdity, and it is safe to say that such a definition of the amateur will never take foothold in America.

But while young Americans in this day and time understand full well that it is against the rules of amateur sport to accept money for work of this kind, there are many each year who do accept it, and who still expect to engage or continue in amateur sports, and in college sports as well. Sometimes they just baldly lie about it when it comes to filling out blanks regarding these points.

But generally they salve and save their consciences by making a sale of an old pair of suspenders, or a cigar, or a pocket knife to some officer of the summer team with which they are playing for the trifling sum of $50 or $100, as the case may require. Or they will sit in a little poker game for ten minutes and have such a run of luck (?) as will net them, say $50.15 or $100.30. Or the stipulated remuneration is sent by the manager of the club to the boy's brother, father or friend, and so neither he nor any other official of the summer team has given him a cent; it is the relative or friend who has given it to him.

THEN there is another rule that gives the boys even more trouble. This provides that after a boy has once entered college he shall not thereafter during the summer vacation play upon or with any but his "home" team; and his home team is defined to be one that is in, or belongs to, the county in which that boy has legal residence, and has had that legal residence for at least one year before the playing of said summer ball (not one year before playing college ball with his college team the spring following his playing with the summer team).

Well, some of the boys happen to live in towns or counties where they don't have a team of any kind. That's a tough proposition, and formerly it was covered by the vice president giving a boy permission under such conditions to play with some other nearby team. But of late years the tendency has more and more been for the vice president to refuse such permits, and that leaves such boys high and dry.

But in any case most every boy gets a chance, yes, several chances, to play with some team outside his own county during the summer, and generally he wants to take the chance.

Why? Because often enough there's money in it. But whether there is or not, show me the baseball boy who won't miss even his meals to get into a game of ball most anywhere whether in the Amazonian jungles or on Spitzbergen. Then when he comes back to college and wants to play the following spring he has either to fib about it or automatically rule himself out of college ball for that spring by declining to answer every question and to sign his blank.

Some boys go off to play with a team not from their home county and change their true names for that game. But this has also now been covered by express and adverse legislation. Sometimes they strike a compact with players from other colleges whom they find with their own or the opposition team, and all agree to "keep mum" about it; and sometimes these packs are kept, while again they are not.

Of course before a boy goes to college at all he can play with any team he pleases, whether it comes from or belongs in his home county or not. This is a point not always understood by the prep players, and for their benefit I state it.

ANOTHER rule is that one must never have played even for so much as a single inning with a team that is a member of an organized professional league; and this applies to the boy who has not yet gone to college as well as to the one who has already been to college a session or two. Nor does it make any difference that he was "only trying out" with the professionals and failed to make good, or that he received no money whatever for such playing. Any PROFESSIONAL LEAGUE playing knocks him out for all time and without further ado.

But it is all right to play against a professional team or professional players on the same team with the amateur, so long as it is not a professional league. But competing against a professional in other sports, like foot racing, would knocw the amateur out.

THE foregoing is merely an outline of the college rules written for the information and benefit of those who do not happen to be familiar with them.

In a future article I will have more to say regarding the ethical side of these rules, and what changes, if any, might with profit be made.

RINGSIDE NOTES

Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, who battles Jim Savage at the Auditorium Armory here on June 13, is the most sought after heavyweight in the game to-day. New York wants Flynn to meet Gunboat Smith; Boston is after the Pueblo heavyweight to take on Frank Moran, while McCarey would match Flynn against either Willard or Smith.

• • •

Although Flynn has been before the public for many years he is still one of the greatest drawing cards among the boxers of to-day. His style of fighting closely resembles that of Battling Nelson. He is always on top of his opponent and gives the fans some real milling.

• • •

When Battling Nelson coined the term "cheese champion" and hung it on Willie Ritchie, he said a mouthful and one that is enduring. In fact, quite a lot of our present champions are falling all over themselves in their effort to grab a similar title.

• • •

Emil Thiry, manager of Packey McFarland, has accepted the management of Ernie Zanders, the Chicago welterweight. Already Emil is busy trying to close a match with Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul sensation.

• • •

Young Shrugrue and Sam Robideau will don the gloves for a scheduled 10-round battle in Madison Square Garden, New York, Thursday night. Both boys are lightweights.

• • •

Leach Cross' last fight before he meets Bud Anderson at Vernon, Cal., on July 4, will most likely be with Harry Trendall, the crack lightweight of St. Louis.

• • •

Leach made such a good showing in his bout with Trendall at the St. Louis A. C. a few weeks ago that the officials of the club have wired an offer to Sam Wallach to let Leach fight Trendall a return battle of eight rounds on June 11.

• • •

Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion, will take on Frankie Burns at New York Thursday night. It was this same Frankie who gave Johnny the battle of his life a few years ago at New Orleans.

• • •

After the Burns set-to Coulon may close for a bout with Kid Williams. Baltimore has offered $3,000 for the go and New Orleans and Los Angeles raised it to $5,000.

• • •

Boston fight fans declare Mike Gibbons the cleverest boxer that has ever appeared in their city. Jimmy Perry probably agrees with the "Beantown" boxing followers.

• • •

The matter of two pounds in weight is all that is keeping Jack Britton and Charlie White from meeting in a 10-round engagement at Kenosha, Wis. White is holding out for 133 pounds at 6 o'clock, while Britton wants to come in at 135 pounds at the same time.

ONE SOUTHPAW ALL LOOKOUTS NEED, SAYS KID

CHATTANOOGA, June 4.—"Give me three good left handers," said Kid Elberfeld as soon as he had analyzed the permanent lineups of his leading rivals, "and I'll capture the rag." The Kid said this two months ago, and he says it now.

To be more exact Elberfeld needs at present but one southpaw to have his wish fulfilled. He has already Summers and Coveleskie. If Kroh, who has just been secured from the Turtles, lives up to expectations, the Kid will have no alibi if he fails to annex the 1913 gonfalon, for the three southpaws asked will be at his disposal.

THE acquisition of Kroh did not occasion any great amount of surprise locally as both Andrews and Elberfeld had had their eyes on the Turtle hurler since first he was seen in action. The Kid believes that he is a corking good man. Coveleskie and Summers can't be surpassed, and if the latest addition does 75 per cent as well as his brother portsiders the Kid will be eminently satisfied.

The sensational winning streaks of Coveleskie who has won 10 and lost 3 and Summers, who has won 7 and lost 2 seem to substantiate absolutely the assertion of Elberfeld that the Southern this year is a southpaw's league.

Rube Bush Wins Low Score Prize

Atlantans Star in Golf Tourney

By W. R. Tichenor.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., June 4.—The twelfth annual tournament of the Southern Golf Association began here yesterday with an entry of 180 players. Early in the day Louis Jacoby, of Dallas, Texas, turned in a card of 76. Later this was tied by Nelson Whitney, a former champion, whose qualifying round was the first he had ever played over the course. For almost all day it looked as if Whitney and Jacoby would have to play off the tie for the low qualifying score prize, but in the afternoon, when nearly all of the cards were in, R. G. Bush, of New Orleans, finished his round with a 75, which was the lowest score in the tournament.

R. R. Brooke had a fine chance to beat Bush's score when he got "out" in 36, but he went bad on the last four holes coming home, taking three punts to each of the greens and finished with 77.

Audubon Team Wins.

In the team match the Audubon Club, of New Orleans, was again the winner, with a total of 310; the Dallas Country Club was second with 317; Atlanta was third with 328.

Seven Atlanta players qualified in the championship division. Of this number W. R. Tichenor led with 80 and W. H. Rowan was second with 81. The other scores made by Atlantans were: G. W. Adair, 83; Dowdell Brown, 84; R. G. Blanton, 84; C. E. Cowan, 85; H. Block, 86.

The Atlanta players who qualified in the second division were W. Griffith, 89; C. V. Rainwater, 89; D. E. Root, 88; R. P. Jones, 91; W. P. Hazelwood, 91. Captain E. T. Winston, T. B. Paine, Ormond Smith, C. E. Rose and Dr. Joe Eby failed to qualify.

The going in the tournament is faster than it has ever been in any former Southern championship. A difference of only sixteen strokes was shown between the first and the ninety-sixth man.

It took as good as an 87 to get into the championship division, which will contain 64 players this year. It required 91 to get into the second division, which is composed of 32 players.

The surprise of the tournament was the failure of Whitney Bouden, J. W. S. Rhea and Albert Mallory to get into the championship flight.

How Atlantans Are Matched.

In the first round of the match play which began this morning the Atlanta players were matched as follows: H. B. Lock vs. R. G. Bush, Dowdell Brown v. R. H. Baugh, G. W. Adair vs. Gunter Watkins, W. R. Tichenor vs. S. J. Jernigan, W. H Rowan vs. O. H. R. Nicholson, C. E. Corwin vs. J. B. Bush, R. G. Blanton vs. J. B. Cobb. In the second division the Atlanta men are paired as follows: W. Griffith vs. G. B. Edgar, W. P. Hazlewood vs. A. J. Mapes, D. E. Root vs. W. A. Gunter, R. P. Jones vs. Whitney Bouden, C. V. Rainwater vs. R. P. Hagan.

The course is in fine condition, but is lightning fast.

It is regretted that F. G. Byrd and W. P. Stewart, former champions, are missing their first Southern championship.

In a practice round yesterday afternoon Louis Jacoby broke the record of the course when he made a 68.

Savage Knocks Out Allen in 2 Rounds

NEW YORK, June 4.—Jim Savage, the New Jersey heavyweight, who is to fight Jim Flynn at Atlanta on June 13, stopped Whitey Allen, of this city, in the second round of a bout here last night.

Savage put up a great fight and handed his opponent a severe lacing. His cleverness completely dazzled Allen, who was unable to lay a glove on him.

Savage also showed that he possesses a wallop. He used a right-hand uppercut with telling effect and displayed good use of his left hand when it came to jabbing.

After the bout Savage stated that he expected to defeat Flynn when the two came togeher. He is already in good shape.

JOE CONZELMAN REPORTS.

Pitcher Joe Conzelman, farmed in Atlanta by the Pittsburg team, has reported and will be worked within the next few days.

Conzelman was formerly with the Brown University team and pitched wonderful ball with that club. Fred Clarke, of the Pirates, believes he will be a wonder and has kept a string tied to him.

Pitcher-President Hands Himself Own Release

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., June 4.—To hand your own release to yourself is an unusual occurrence. Yet this is what took place here when Pitcher William E. Essick was released by the Grand Rapids Central League club. He was the only member of the pitching staff not yet in condition, and as it was necessary to reduce the number of players to conform with the league limit, Essick was the victim.

The release was drawn up by President William E. Essick, of the Grand Rapids club, with all the customary details. President Essick then placed himself before a mirror and made a speech in which he expressed his regret that the league rules made it necessary for him to release his favorite pitcher.

The document was tendered by the president's right hand and accepted by his left. Thus President Essick released himself as a pitcher of the team of which he is president and majority stockholder.

Essick is a warm weather pitcher and says he probably will sign himself again in midseason.

THE
Ice-Kist Crankless Freezer

Just pack it —that's all! The freezer will do the rest. No crank to turn — no hard work — no dasher to clean — no glass to break — no hoops to fall off.

Be Wise! Make Your Own Ice Cream

Of course, you know that home-made ice creams, sherbets or ices are superior from every viewpoint. They are always sweet, pure and wholesome; there is a flavor and genuine goodness about them that is not found in the general run of factory products. Besides that, when you make your own preparations you know that the ingredients are always pure, and that the can is clean and sanitary. The main reason why ice cream is made in but comparatively few homes, is the work and bother connected with the old-fashioned crank freezer. That is one reason why the arrival of

will be hailed with delight by every one who is fond of ice creams, etc., because it eliminates the tedious turning of the crank entirely, and produces creams, sherbets and ices that will make your mouth water. That is one reason, but there are many others.

DON'T YOU KNOW that the enjoyment of a dish largely depends upon the manner in which it is served? Could you imagine a daintier and more appetizing manner of serving ice creams than provided for by the "Ice-Kist?"

PROGRAM OUT FOR RACES AT BOARD TRACK

THE program is out at last for the first motorcycle racing meet over the Atlanta Motordrome. It contains nine races, split up into three events. The first will be the Atlanta Sweepstakes, with three heats and a final. The next will be the Motordrome Purse, with three heats and a final. The last number will be a "triangular" match race, which will be framed up later. It is probable that the Atlanta lad, "Smiling Harry" Glenn, will be one of the riders in this event.

The races will be called Friday night at 8:30. The doors will be opened at 7, and the riders will be on the track warming up a half hour or so later.

The races will all be run at short intervals and the program will go through with no lagging.

Tickets for the meet are on sale at Shepherd's Segar Shop, Edgewood Avenue and Pryor Street. Each is provided with a rain check and they will be handled just as baseball rain checks are. If any meet is "rained out" the rain checks will be good for admission at any subsequent meet this year.

Here Is the Program.

The program follows:

First event, Atlanta Sweepstakes, one-mile heats, first man in each heat and second man in fastest heat to qualify for finals.

Race 1—First heat, No. 1, Marty Graves, of Los Angeles; No. 2, Harry Swartz, of Denver; No. 3, Willie Shields, of Brooklyn.

Race 2—Second heat, No. 4, George Lockner, of Syracuse; No. 5, "Tex" Richards, of Dallas; No. 6, Freddie Luther, of Fort Worth.

Race 3—Third heat, No. 7, Georges Renel, of Paris; No. 8, Jock McNeil, of Edinborough; No. 9, Henry Lewis, of Springfield, Mass.

Race 4—Final heat in Atlanta Sweepstakes, five miles. First prize, $40; second prize, $30; third prize, $20.

Second event, Motordrome purse, two-mile heats, first man in each heat and second man in fastest heat to qualify.

Race 5—First heat, "Tex" Richards, Willie Shields, Georges Renel.

Race 6—Second heat, Marty Graves, Henry Lewis, George Lockner.

Race 7—Third heat, Jock McNeil, Harry Swartz, Fred Luther.

Race 8—Final heat in Motordrome purse, three miles. First prize, $35; second prize, $20; third prize, $10.

Race 9—Special three-cornered match race, the riders to be announced Friday night. First prize, $25; second prize, $20; third prize, $15.

Rain Spoils Sport.

The newspaper men's meet, set for Tuesday afternoon, was pretty well smashed up by the rain. A good crowd of Fourth Estaters was present, but scattering showers in the afternoon made any fancy riding impossible. The track was very slippery and at high speed the machines skidded frightfully.

"Tex" Richards and Harry Glenn furnished most of the excitement. The former star rode several miles through the misting rain at express train speed and came back on two wheels, which was more than was expected by those who watched him ride.

Seats went on sale Tuesday at Tumlin's cigar stands, as well as at Shepherd's Segar Shop. The advance demand is heavy.

TIGERS PAY $4,000 FOR PITCHER AND INFIELDER

OTTUMWA, IOWA, June 4.—Detroit has purchased Pitcher Grimes and First Baseman Burns for $4,000, subject to immediate delivery. The deal was made by Manager E. F. Egan, who secured Grimes from Austin, Minn. Burns recently was purchased for $300 from Burlington. Grimes has won eleven straight victories and has not been scored on for thirty consecutive innings. Burns is hitting close to .500.

BALL PLAYER DYING.

RICHMOND, VA., June 4.—Selden N. Mitchell, one of nine brothers who comprised a baseball team in Southside Virginia some years ago, is dying with peritonitis in this city.

YALE ELECTS TRACK CAPTAIN.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., June 4.—George Estabrook Brown, of Philadelphia, a junior in the Sheffield Scientific School, at Yale, last night was elected captain of the Yale track team for next year.

CHANCE AFTER SHORTSTOP.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., June 4.—Manager Frank Chance, of the New York Americans, has offered $5,000 for the immediate release of Frank Host, shortstop of the Venice team, of the Pacific Coast League, according to an announcement made here to-day.

3 Champs Unpopular With Fans

Coulon, Kilbane, Ritchie Disliked

By Left Hook.

NEVER since there were boxers have there been three finer little fellows in the ring than Johnny Coulon, Johnny Kilbane and Willie Ritchie.

Never since there were boxers have there been three more unpopular champions than Johnny Coulon, Johnny Kilbane and Willie Ritchie.

The only thing that could happen to them now to complete the picture would be for them to turn baseball umpires.

The case of Johnny Coulon is a special one, different from the other two. A sick boy, he refuses either to defend the title or to give it up. Every challenge brings from him a wail that his tum tum hurts him and he is going on a long hunting trip.

This has gradually turned a popular little fighter into a very unpopular one. Coulon is disliked because he has practically tied up the entire bantamweight division and blighted the hopes of every boy in it.

Sport World Resentful.

The sporting world seems to feel a just resentment against Coulon for having dived down a hole and dragged the hole in after him.

It is not easy to say just why Kilbane and Ritchie are unpopular. The attitude of the sporting public toward Kilbane is this—they know he got the worst of the decision with Dundee and they are glad he did.

The same would have been true of Ritchie.

The cause of the public grouch against these two fine little fellows seems to be that Ritchie and Kilbane are both "in" the boxing world, but not "of" boxing.

They are too obviously there for money to suit the tastes of the sporting fans. In a rather cool and indifferent way, Kilbane makes this plain. His attitude toward the sporting public strikes one as being somewhat like contempt. He cares nothing for fighting and very little for fight fans.

Is Timid About Capital.

He feels about as much of the hot glow of battle as a turtle. It is believed that Kilbane has courage of the very highest type. In a scrap out at a picnic, merely for the fun of the thing, Kilbane could probably fight like a fiend. But, in the ring, he can't get over the idea that he has placed $50,000 worth of capital in a perilous position. Kilbane is timid only because capital is timid, and Johnny is a capitalist.

Although it may sound paradoxical, Kilbane is one of the most brilliant boxers that ever lived, and he never should have gone into the ring. It is a life he does not belong in. He doesn't know how to act there. He isn't in sympathy with boxing and boxers. He hasn't made a great deal of money; but he is a smart boy and he will be able to invest what he has in some business where he will probably shine.

It is not likely he will be in the ring very long. His passing into business life will end one of the most peculiar careers in boxing annals—a boxing genius who didn't like to box.

Ritchie Reverse of Idol.

Ritchie is the reverse English of a boxing idol because the boxing public resents his luck. Every man who has worked hard all his life and has saved by self-denial has a secret and savage hatred for every one who has made an easy killing.

Billy Nolan added to this feeling by giving the impression that he didn't consider Willie any world beater, but thought it safer to swoop up all the money they possibly could in the stage business before giving any one a chance at the title.

Ritchie is very likely to live down his unpopularity. He will leave the stage very soon and Nolan says he will fight anybody who can show the coin. He is likely to put up a fight that will surprise everybody.

Fight fans seem to forget the pluck and courage with which he faced Ad Wolgast, and the fortitude with which he took one of the most savage beatings imaginable until the lucky blow at the end.

The Giants' victory yesterday and the Dodgers defeat broke the tie for second place and sent the Giants into the runner-up position, just 97 points back of the Phillies.

The Yankees to date have established a record that is without equal and one which will no doubt stand for all time. They have failed to win a game on their home grounds. They have lost fifteen straight at home since the season opened.

Sweeney's failure to play for a runner at home in the seventh inning of the Yankees-Naps game turned the tide of battle and enabled the Clevelanders to romp home an easy winner.

DENT OR PRICE SLATED TO GO AGAINST BILLS

By Joe Agler.

BILL SMITH is figuring on working Dent or Price against the Billikens in to-day's festivities. Chapman will do the receiving. The rest of the line-up will be as usual.

We got in from Nashville in good order this morning.

Our game Tuesday came about as easily as the one of the day before. It took longer, but there was never any more doubt about the one than the other.

"King" Brady twirled his usual game against the Vols—and that means victory about every time. He seems to have something on them.

The Crackers hit the ball, ran bases well and took advantage of the Vols' errors. The score was 8 to 3.

We put another awful dent in Beck's record. They say he is going to the big league with an awful flourish before long, but if he pitched against us every day I'm not so sure about it.

When they stuck in Fleharty he held us, but by that time it didn't make any difference.

The Crackers sure played jam-up ball yesterday. Every man fielded his position in great style and we looked like a real ball club.

I believe we should win today's ball game. I think Dent will be the man worked, and I think he will fool the Bills. If we hit the way we are capable of there will be nothing to it.

GILLESPIE BEANED; IS IN SERIOUS CONDITION

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 4.—Jimmy Gillespie, third baseman of the local club, was struck on the head by Pitcher Hardgrove, of the Birmingham club, yesterday and to-day is in the hospital in an extremely critical condition. His skull is badly fractured and recovery is doubtful. Gillespie played last year with the Providence club, in the International League.

AUTO POLO.

Auto polo is a cross between two of our most popular institutions—namely, sport and manslaughter.

Its chief object, aside from abusing an innocent ball, is to contribute to the support of deserving morticians and funeral directors.

Its press agent tells us that it "combines all the risks of a bullfight, a football game and a ride in an airship." We fail to see its connection with bullfighting except that the press agent is an adept at throwing the bull. He might have added, however, that it combines all the inspiring features of mayhem and assault with intent to kill.

One of the beauties of auto polo is the training it affords a motorist. An expert auto pololat can hit a pedestrian at a distance of twenty yards without even taking aim and may always be depended upon to hit .300 on a crowded thoroughfare.

The headquarters of the Auto Polo Association of America is at Floral Park, Long Island, making it easy to obtain flowers for the remains of the losers.

As an athletic exercise auto polo is indorsed by all physicians, especially by those who need the practice.

The origin of auto polo is enshrouded in mystery. As a result its inventor has escaped without his just deserts.

It may be true, as Tim Murnane says, that education does not help a ball player, but it often prevents him from injuring himself with his table knife.

Jules Goux, the gent who won the race at Indianapolis, was kissed by his mechanic. But such is the penalty of success.

Critics on the coast inform us that Jess Willard is a promising heavyweight, but up to date he has been committing breach of promise.

Among other things, Connie Mack is sustained and soothed by the knowledge that he never will be prosecuted for unnecessary noise.

Mr. Cobb avers that he never hears the shouts of the populace, but it will be hard to convince the innocent bystander whom he clouted on the features.

Possibly Mr. Cobb does not hear the hoi polloi, but if he fails to hear the stentorian strains of the popcorn merchants he is deaf and dumb.

NO PLACE FOR AN UMP.

An umpire entered Heaven's gate,
but turned around and fled.
"Why beat it thusly from our midst?"
the good St. Peter said.
"I walked right in," the ump replied;
"I walked right in, and then—
I saw John Evers standing there, and
walked right out again."

The savant, or whatever it was, who averred that two heads are better than one, never tried to manage a ball team on that system.

Leland Stanford having whipped the Jap ball team twice in the same place, Mr. Bryan will now come across with an apology.

One is not surprised to hear that the French Government contemplates a Secretary of Athletics, although most politicians are Spanish athletes.

Punishing a ticket scalper by putting his name in the paper is much like sentencing an actor to a column on the first page.

Davy Jones says he will quit baseball rather than play in Toledo, leading one to suspect that somewhere in the dim past he has visited Toledo.

Still, how could Wisconsin expect to win a ball game with a pitcher who labors under the name of Isabella?

Mike Donlin finished among the also rans at Coeur d'Alene, demonstrating that there is something in a name.

The Navy crew having beaten Columbia by a nose, we may expect to see a steed win the Derby by a stroke.

While some may consider polo a parlor game, we fail to see anything particularly effeminate in acting as a doormat for an able-bodied horse.

JOE RIVERS AND RITCHIE FAIL TO AGREE ON WEIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4.—Billy Nolan and Joe Levy could not agree on the weight question to-day and the Willie Ritchie-Joe Rivers match may not take place on July 4.

Nolan insisted on the weight being at 134 at 9 o'clock in the morning and that the fight take place at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Levy is willing to accept 134 pounds ringside, but would not agree to the weight and time named by Nolan.

The matter has been laid over until Thursday, when another discussion will be started.

ROBIDEAU READY FOR GO WITH SHUGRUE THURSDAY

NEW YORK, June 4.—Sam Robideau, the lightweight boxer who is trying to fight his way to the world's title, has arrived from Philadelphia in fine condition for the ten-round battle with "Young Joe" Shugrue, of Jersey City, in Madison Square Garden to-morrow night.

Gus Platts will face Dave Kurtz in the semi-final.

HARVARD SHOWS PROFIT OF $27,928 IN ATHLETICS

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., June 4.—Harvard athletics showed a profit of $27,928 for the year ended July 31, 1912, as against a loss of $10,822 for the previous year, according to the report of Graduate Manager W. D. Puttey.

The total receipts from athletic contests amounted to $157,359, and the expenses fere $125,431. The previous year the receipts were $112,097.

BALL PLAYERS "FRAT" SUES BOSTON AMERICANS

NEW YORK, June 4.—The baseball players' union, known as "The Fraternity," which was organized to protect the interests of the players, yesterday filed a suit against the Boston American League baseball team in the Supreme Court of this city to collect $1,480 damages for Kurt M. Hageman, known as "Casey."

The complainant says he suffered the damages by reason of the club not permitting him to discharge his duties under a contract he signed after June 23, 1912. He was also refused his release when he demanded it. This is one of the first suits brought by the union.

Hageman was a pitcher taken by the Red Sox from Denver in the fall of 1911. He was let out early in 1912 and claims that the Red Sox violated his contract.

PLAY TENNIS

This is one of the best out-door sports. It is not necessary that you have a private court on which to play. The Park Board has amply provided courts to accommodate all who can play. There are seven new ones in Piedmont; five in Grant; one in Mims and one in Howell Park—and all belong to the people—all that is necessary for you to do is get there first. We sell the celebrated Wright and Ditson Tennis Goods.

MAYOR ASSERTS SIGNAL SUIT IS NEEDLESS

Declares He Can Block Payment for Alarm System Without an Injunction.

"I've got the upper hand and can protect the city's rights without any injunction," said Mayor James G. Woodward this morning regarding the application of W. W. Lowe for an order stopping the payment of money on the contract between the city of Atlanta and the Okonite Company.

W. W. Lowe filed application in the Superior Court yesterday. His petition will be heard June 14. Lowe alleges that a contract entered into October 21, 1912, for the installation of Gamewell signal stations, laying of cable and rehabilitation of the exchange, was illegal because the purchase price was to be paid during a period of years.

The allegations in most respects are similar to those set out in the recent crematory suit. The contract price for the signal system was $106,317.73.

"We Have Upper Hand."

"If they had asked me anything about it I would have advised them not to bring this injunction suit," said the Mayor. "The crematory suit settled the question. We have the upper hand. We want to do what is right and correct all wrongs. I could take care of the city's interests right in my office here."

Mayor Woodward said the contract called for the installation of about 50 signal boxes at $125 each, but that he had ascertained the patent had run out and these boxes were selling for $50 less.

"If that's the case," he said, "we won't pay but $75 apiece—just what they are selling for everywhere else.

"I didn't like the contract or the way it was written," the Mayor continued. "The Okonite people laid cables and the Gamewell people put in signal boxes, but which of them got the contract the other was certain to get its particular kind of work out of the job. It was a lump sum bid, as I understand.

Called for Lump Sum.

"The bid should have specified so many feet of cable, so much; overhauling the old exchange, so much; so many new boxes at so much apiece, so much; and so many feet of wire at so much per foot, so much.

"But it didn't do that. It merely called for payment of a lump sum. Now, I want to know what the work is worth. I have the upper hand. The crematory suit settled that question, and I can take care of this without any injunction."

Actual work on the contract is nearly finished. Payment was contemplate through several years, on the "honor" plan, which the Supreme Court recently said was illegal.

'Fewer Clothes to Improve Morals'

ST. LOUIS, June 4.—Men were far more beautiful than women until fine feathers and fine clothes became a commercial factor in life, according to the belief of Mrs. Lillian Stuart, who testified before the Missouri Senate wage investigating committee.

"Clothes are responsible for the shallow life of to-day," she said. "People soon will wear fewer clothes, however, and they then will improve morally and physically."

A., B. & A. Injures 1 In 2 Train Wrecks

Two small wrecks were reported Wednesday morning by officials of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad.

Near Giersfield, Ga., 226 miles from Atlanta, a negro fireman, Henry Wright, was slightly injured when train No. 93 struck a fallen tree and was derailed. The train was delayed several hours.

At Wadley, Ga., passenger train No. 25 ran into the rear end of freight train No. 95.

No one was injured.

OBITUARY.

YOUTHS IN COUNTRY TOWNS WORKING HARD TO LAND SHETLANDS

I nominate, as a candidate in The Hearst's Sunday American and Atlanta Georgian Pony Outfit Contest:

Name .....

Address .....

Nominated by .....

Address .....

GOOD FOR 1,000 VOTES.

Only One Nomination Blank Can be Voted for Any Contestant.

Not only is a little candidate in Jefferson, Ga., working hard for one of the pony outfits The Georgian and American are offering, but also he is planning far into the future.

He writes:

"I am working as hard as I can. If you will help me get the pony and cart, I will sell papers for you as long as the pony lasts, and will give you all the money I make a week and will get some customers in the country and will bring it to them."

Evidently he wants a pony.

The Georgian and American can not give him help, though, any more than is given other contestants. The contest is strictly impartial.

There is a hustler in Cartersville. He writes in for six books. "Sure, for I am doing big business and need them badly."

Vote totals are growing all along the line. No boy or girl will have a pony in a "walkaway."

TABERNACLE CALL WINS M'CONNELL

New Pastor Once Was Member of the Detective Force of the City of Atlanta.

The Rev. Lincoln McConnell, noted lecturer and revivalist, who recently was called to the pastorate of the Tabernacle Baptist Church, has accepted. A. C. Boatman, a prominent member of the Tabernacle congregation, received the following telegram from Dr. McConnell Wednesday morning:

A. C. Boatman, Atlanta, Ga.

I have arranged Lyceum contract to suit, and am pleased to say I can accept the Tabernacle pastorate. I can not reach Atlanta till September 1, but will arrange to take charge at that time.

LINCOLN McCONNELL.

Dr. McConnell is 46 years old and a native of Tennessee. Before his conversion he was a member of the Atlanta detective force for a number of years. Becoming converted, he decided to enter the ministry, and was instrumental in organizing the Wesley Memorial Church here.

He was pastor of that church for about three years, and then left Atlanta to enter the evangelistic field.

After leaving here he joined the Baptist Church at Kansas City, Mo., and has been an active worker for that denomination since. At present Dr. McConnell is conducting a successful revival at Cape Girardeau, Mo.

EX-CONVICT SUES WARDEN OF CAMP

John Birt Asks $10,000 for Alleged Cruel Flogging—State Inquiry Probable.

Suit for $10,000 damages has been filed against Oscar F. Jones, Warden of the Bellwood convict camp, by John Birt, who says he was cruelly beaten on July 2, the day he was sent as a prisoner to the camp, with the result that he spent several weeks in the convict hospital.

In his petition, filed by Attorney C. G. Battle, Birt charges he was given 72 lashes and kicked and beaten. He lost 40 pounds in weight, he alleges, and his earning capacity was decreased three-fourths. He affirms he was told his punishment was inflicted because he cursed on the way to the camp.

Attorney Battle said the circumstances of Birt's treatment were so flagrantly inhuman that the Prison Commission began an investigation, which will be taken up again July 1. Birt was sick and unable to work at the time, Battle says, and was chained and maltreated by another convict camp official, against whom an additional damage suit will be brought.

Jim's Lodge Woes Something Fierce

Alderman and Mayor Pro Tem James E. Warren has gained a unique law client in the person of Jim Washington, an ante-bellum darky who came to him the other day with a tale of woe.

For a long time Jim had been paying his Darktown lodge a sum of money each month as a sort of "death benefit." When a member of his family died the lodge brethren told him he or she would be buried by the lodge. Jim's mother died and Jim and his sister set the date of the funeral. When the time came they learned that the obsequies had been held the day before.

Then Jim got a notice that charges had been preferred against him in the lodge for failure to attend. That was the last straw. He sought out Lawyer Warren and told his tale.

TRAFFIC BAR TO VIADUCT CLOSING

Committee Meets Railway Men Thursday to Work Out Plans for Forsyth St. Project.

The committee in charge of plans for closing the Forsyth Street viaduct underpass expects to meet at 10 o'clock Thursday morning with W. A. Winburn, president of the Central of Georgia Railway, and Major J. L. McCollum, of the Western and Atlantic. The meeting was scheduled for Tuesday, but the railroad officials were detained in other cities.

Chief among the obstacles the committee seeks to surmount is the problem of caring for traffic in case the underpass is closed. Three plans have been proposed. One is to induce the Central of Georgia to give a right-of-way along the tracks to the Alabama Street depot. It is understood, though, that the railroad plans eventually to extend the depot to Forsyth Street, which would make this plan impossible.

Another plan is to induce the Western and Atlantic to provide a right-of-way along its tracks from Forsyth Street to South Pryor Street. The committee anticipates trouble with this plan also, in that it would involve the surrender of trackage facilities by wholesale houses. The third plan is to build an incline from the Forsyth Street viaduct.

If the committee arrives at a decision, its recommendations then must be approved by the Governor and the State Railroad Commission. Should the desired approval be forthcoming the committee then will be confronted with still another problem —that of getting the money.

"And that," said Councilman Ashley Wednesday, "is quite a problem all by itself, considering Atlanta's present financial straits."

The committee comprises James R. Gray, Clark Howell, Robert F. Maddox, W. F. Winecoff and Councilmen Mason, Ragsdale, Everett and Thomson.

SHORT COVERING SENDS COTTON UP

Spot Houses Buy, Helping the Advance—Weather and Crop News Very Bearish.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Influenced by firm cables the cotton market opened quiet to-day with first prices net unchanged to 2 points lower than last night's closing quotations. The poor response to firm cables was explained by the continued decline in the stock market.

Weather conditions overnight were favorable, showing further rains in the eastern belt. During the forenoon the market was under heavy buying, which was credited chiefly to shorts covering and brokers identified with the spot interests. Spot houses were said to have sold July on the opening. There was a demand for near crops and a rally followed. July and August advanced 10 points over the initial level. New crop positions were under active demand and followed the advance moderately.

The interest seemed to center in the summer option, but there was a good demand for new crops around 11 cents. Habersham King's report on conditions was very bearish and had a depressing effect. Prices, however, held rather steady and only declined a few points from the high point. Outside speculation continues so small that it is hard to bring about any material change in prices. The feeling, however, continues extremely bearish and the local traders are inclined to sell on all favorable news.

During the late forenoon and afternoon session the market continued on the upward trend. The ring crowd seemed to have gone short during the early trading. The early decline was quickly retrieved. The trade purchased July, which started a renewal of short covering, resulting in prices rallying back to the early best.

At the close the market was steady with prices at a net gain of 3 to 9 points from the final quotations of Tuesday.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, June 4.—Liverpool spot continues large; sales 10,000 bales during the past two days, but spot quotations show no corresponding strength and suggest a willingness to liquidate stock holdings. Futures readily follow any easiness on our side. Letters from Liverpool all report consumers as buying futures freely around 6 pence, showing the education to fixed price ideas.

Weather conditions continue very favorable. Fair weather prevails in the south central States. Mostly cloudy elsewhere. A little cooler in the northern part of the belt. Light rains in northwest Texas and southwest Texas. Light to moderate scattered showers in Arkansas. Tennessee, the Atlantics and parts of Alabama.

Our market opened about 10 points lower, but steadied on the resistance shown by New York. The intention of professionals to make the usual summer operations against technical conditions is responsible for the present support and steadiness. Some reverse, even if immaterial in the end but sufficient to serve as the basis of a short scare, is expected by present bull operators to come along and cause an upturn, and their buying is on this ground. Meanwhile, the general economic outlook as reflected by the continued decline in the stock markets is becoming less encouraging, and uncertainty, together with the proposed or supposed radical change coming from a new administration, is telling in its paralyzing effect.

COTTON GOSSIP

The feature of the trading yesterday afternoon was the selling of July by spot interests, and Liverpool is said to be a seller of this option in this market. Several 5,000-bale blocks were offered around 11.40, but found no takers. The decline in the afternoon started with selling by Shearson, which was said to be for Wall Street, followed by Mitchell and Schill. Some of Mitchell's selling was thought to be for Liverpool. There was some buying by those bullishly inclined, on the theory that there is a short interest existing and the condition report Monday justifies higher prices.

* * *

Liverpool cables: "American middling fair, 7.16d; good middling, 6.82d; middling, 6.62d; low middling, 6.46d; good ordinary, 6.10d; ordinary, 5.76d."

* * *

NEW ORLEANS, June 4.—Hayward & Clark: The weather map is very favorable. It shows fair in the south central belt, cloudy elsewhere; cooler in the northern part of the belt. There were nice rains in the Panhandle. Good rains in far Western Texas. Light in Southwest Texas. Moderate showers in Arkansas. Light to moderate scattered showers in Alabama and the Atlantics. Indications are for more or less showery weather over the entire belt and cooler in the northern half.

Rainfall: Roswell, N. Mex., .52; Amarillo, .10; Fort Worth, Atlanta, Del Rio, .02; Little Rock, .38; Memphis, .01; Montgomery, .18; Knoxville, .22; Jacksonville, Wilmington, Anniston, .04; Birmingham, .24.

Memphis wires: "Conditions are favorable for scattered showers over the northern parts of the western cotton States and in the Southeast. Yesterday light rains fell throughout Alabama and in Western Texas and parts of Arkansas."

The New Orleans Times-Democrat says: "With New Orleans holiday, there was very little interest taken locally in the cotton market. The New York session reflected narrow trading, and the talent there explained the decline as due to rains in Texas. Dallas, however, advised that a light sprinkle at Paris was the only vestige of rain in the State.

"Meanwhile, the spot markets of the South continue to hold the market down in spite of the fact that the new crop movement is little more than two months away. The interior holds a good deal of cotton, but holders do not seem in the least worried and not at all anxious to liquidate.

"Light rains continue to fall in the eastern States and unsettled weather was predicted for Arkansas. In Texas, hot dry weather exists, but as yet no serious complaints of high temperatures have been heard. On the contrary, Texas is now sending in many very favorable crop reports. The talent can not reconcile the Government's very low percentage figures for the Atlantic States with the private crop advices, consequently, bearish confidence began to return after some overnight contemplation."

Habersham King, in his latest report, says: "Reviewing weather conditions from preparation to planting and chopping out, I am convinced that this crop is earlier than normal by at least two weeks. Stands perfect, crop clean and in condition to withstand unfavorable developments with minimum damage. Unless the last half of August be so wet as to prevent picking and ginning, the movement this fall will be the earliest on record and from all sections of the belt."

* * *

The next Government report to be issued will be the acreage report, which will be made public July 3, at noon. It may be that the Government will issue its second condition figures at that time.

* * *

Thomasville, Ga., wires: "Government report a farce. Conditions in Georgia were never better."

MILLER-CARTER COTTON LETTER.

MEMPHIS, June 4.—It appears that sufficient shorts covering developed on early decline to check it, since which time trading has been limited and fluctuations narrow. Foreign advices indicate a disposition on the part of European spinners to buy moderately at present prices, but American trade is quite bearish on good crop accounts and prospects give legislation. We anticipate that foreign demand will subside if crop does well for a while longer, leaving prices at mercy of bearish domestic speculators, among whom are numbered those of the South.

ENORMOUS SALES PUT STOCKS DOWN

Every Issue on List Liquidated Mercilessly—No Principal Cause for Decline.

By C. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Heavy selling of active issues by the speculative element featured the opening of the stock market to-day. Many selling orders were cabled from London and Paris. Some of the Paris selling, it was reported, resulted from the St. Louis and San Francisco smash, a Frisco bond issue having been placed in France just before the road went into a receivership.

Union Pacific was one of the weakest, declining 1¾ to 143¾.

United States Steel common was supplied in bulk, selling down to 56 for a loss of 1¼. Reading lost 1¾ in the first half hour, going to 156⅛.

Great Northern preferred went to 122⅛ for a loss of 1⅜.

Among the other declines were Amalgamated Copper 1⅛, American Smelting 1, American Telegraph and Telephone ¾, Southern Pacific ⅝, Pennsylvania ⅜, Missouri Pacific ¼, Erie 1, Canadian Pacific ½. Pennsylvania sold around 107½ and Canadian Pacific around 216½.

The curb was weak.

Americans in London were hammered.

The market continued on its downward slump during the forenoon and indications showed very little signs of relief. Canadian Pacific again was the heavy loser, dropping 1⅝ to 215¼. Steel dropped 2⅛ and Union Pacific was off 2½. Pennsylvania was off ⅞ and at 155¼. Reading showed a loss of 2⅝.

Lehigh Valley was off 2 points at 151. All the other issues were off from 1 to 3 points.

Call money loaning at 2¾ per cent.

It was estimated at noon that the transactions to-day would aggregate at least 600,000 shares, or twice as much as changed hands yesterday. The bulk of the selling came from Europe, although traders suspected that many of the orders had first been cabled from New York and then cabled back, to hide the identity of the real sellers.

Canadian Pacific and Steel were the storm centers. Both were hammered hard. Some stocks, notably Pennsylvania, reached within a few points of the 1907 panic price.

The selling movement continued in the afternoon up to the final hour when important interests set in to stem the tide. By 2 o'clock the sales for the day reached 750,328 shares against 338,382 for the entire day Tuesday. Over 50 new low point records for the year were established. Many investors joined the bears.

In the last half hour a number of issues rallied and made gains. Amalgamated Copper held steady at 68¾ while Canadian Pacific sold up to 27¾ for a gain of 2½. Other gains over the midday prices increased Steel ½, Union Pacific 1¼, Southern Pacific 1¼, Reading 1¼, Pennsylvania ¾, Northern Pacific 1⅜, Lehigh Valley 1½, St. Paul ¾. The market closed steady. Governments unchanged; other bonds firm.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Commercial bar silver, 60⅛; Mexican dollars, 48c.

Hester's Monthly Cotton Statement

Secretary Hester's New Orleans Cotton Exchange statement of the movement of cotton issued Friday covers the monthly movement to the close of May.

Compared with last year, it shows a decrease for the month in round figures of 41,000 bales, compared with year before last an increase of 46,000 bales and with 1910 a decrease of 21,000.

The total for May was 323,267, against 363,995 last year, 277,240 year before last and 434,971 same time in 1910.

The movement from September inclusive shows receipts at all United States ports 9,560,612, against 11,769,374 last year, 8,443,621 year before last and 7,044,891 same time in 1910; overland across the Mississippi, Ohio and Potomac Rivers to Northern mills and Canada 933,365, 1,207,470 last year, 889,343 year before last and 753,199 same time in 1910; Southern mills' takings, exclusive of quantity consumed at Southern outposts 2,532,000, against 2,301,000 last year, 2,040,000 year before last and 1,978,000 same time in 1910; and interior stocks in excess of those held at the commencement of the season 216,992, against 129,236 last year, 120,236 year before last and 162,204 same time in 1910.

These make the total movement of the cotton crop brought into sight during the nine months ending close of May, 13,242,969, against 15,402,080 last year, 11,509,100 year before last and 9,938,294 same time in 1910.

Northern spinners took during May, 85,718 bales, against 181,608 last year and 88,417 year before last, increasing the total for the nine months to 2,240,681, against 2,607,605 last year and 2,004,498 the year before. This makes their average weekly takings for the season 57,453, against 66,618 last year and 51,591 the year before.

Foreign exports for the nine months of the season have been 8,097,687 bales, showing a decrease under last season of 1,984,659 and an increase over the same period year before last of 918,648.

Stocks at the seaboard and the twenty-nine leading Southern interior markets at the close of May 664,661, against 654,113 the same date last year, and 494,071 the year before.

Including port and interior stocks left over from the previous season and the number of bales of the current crop brought into sight during the nine months, the supply has been 13,607,682, against 15,689,054 last year and 11,157,- the year before.

Up to the close of May 94.44 per cent of the cotton crop had been marketed and nine months in 1911, the percentage of the crop brought into sight was 94.96 per cent and for the same time in 1910 the percentage marketed was 93.67.

The amount of the crou brought into sight for the nine months from September to May, inclusive, is 2,159,111 behind last year, 1,734,000 ahead of the year before last and 3,305,000 ahead of 1910.

BULLISH WHEAT TRADERS SAY BIG SHORT INTEREST EXISTS

CHICAGO, June 4.—The Inter Ocean says: "Those who are bullish on wheat said last night that they believed the market was sold out and that a good short interest existed, which should it become alarmed over the Northwestern crop prospects and start to cover, prices will go higher.

"Corn prices yesterday were the highest of the season. Bulls are talking 60 cents and most of the local trade are long.

"The theory of the bulls is that unless a good supply in accumulated this month to carry the trade into September prices are to go higher.

"The most important point noticeable in the market in the last few days has been the limited selling pressure, making it easy for the bulls to advance prices."

OPINIONS ON GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Bartlett, Frazier & Co.:

Wheat—The course of prices to-day depends largely on the attitude of the shorts, some of which covered on yesterday's late rally. There is no pressure on the market except from this class of sellers.

Corn—There was considerable covering yesterday by shorts and should the country start to sell again in any volume prices may ease off some. The supply and demand situation controls the market now.

Oats—We continue to feel friendly to oats for the long pull.

Provisions—We are inclined to look for a higher market to-day.

B. W. SNOW BULLISH ON WHEAT.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Snow makes the condition of winter wheat 85.9 per cent against 90.5 to May 1; spring wheat 93 against 95.3 last year; oats 87.3, or a little below normal.

LIVERPOOL GRAIN MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, June 4.—Wheat opened ¼d higher; at 1:30 p. m. the market was ⅛d to ¼d higher. Closed unchanged to ⅛d higher.

Corn opened ⅛d higher; at 1:30 p. m. the market was ⅛d to ¼d higher. Closed ¼d higher.

ST. LOUIS CASH QUOTATIONS.

Wheat—No. 2 red .... 100 @107
Corn—No. 2 .... 58¾
Oats—No. 2 40

CHICAGO, June 4.—There were losses of ⅞@1½c in the price of wheat to-day and resting spots were rather close to the lowest levels reached. The crop news from Kansas was more favorable with a few exceptions and wheat was sold on this. The official report of the amount of wheat seeded in the western provinces of Canada shows an increase of 4 per cent and the area 10,300,000 acres.

Corn closed with losses of ¼@⅜ for the July and December while September was the strongest of the list.

Oats were off ¼@⅝c with longs the principal sellers. There was considerable discussion as to the result of the admission of oats from Canada free of duty and there was heavy selling on this.

Provisions were practically unchanged.

Vacation Peace

DURING THE SUMMER YOU will spend considerable money seeking mental and physical rest; but you cannot enjoy perfect peace of mind if you carry your troubles about with you for the sake of a few dollars.

Don't carry your silver, jewelry and valuable papers wherever you go, or leave them at home unprotected, when, for a few dollars, you could put them in one of our Safe Deposit Boxes, where they will be proof against fire and burglary. Do this, and you can start your vacation trip with a light heart.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

Picking of Ducks Reduces Egg Product

Excitement and Strain Upon System in Producing New Feathers Too Great.

We are so often asked the questions as to picking Runner ducks, feeding, etc., that we wish to express our views upon the subject for the benefit of our readers in general.

The picking of a large, heavily feathered duck like the Pekin or Aylesbury, is a matter of some profit, we presume, for they are not of an excitable or nervous temperament like the Runner.

We believe that the Runner should not be picked at all. There is no question but what the excitement of picking, together with the strain upon the system in producing a new coat of feathers, would greatly reduce the egg product for a considerable period. And you know it would take but a few eggs to amount to more than the amount of feathers secured from the duck at a picking, so we say, Don't.

The feed for laying ducks should be of a good mash, composed as follows: Equal parts of corn meal, wheat bran and middlings, to which add about one-fourth part of good, freshly made beef scraps. At times when other green stuff is scarce, about an equal part of alfalfa or clover meal should be added. This mash should be made up soft—in fact, if it is almost sloppy, all the better. This should be fed every morning and about three nights out of the week, the rest of the time feed cracked corn, wheat, rye, kaffir corn—in fact, any of the good, wholesome grains—for the desired changes they make.

Give Ginger.

Where a flock is being pushed for eggs alone and not to be used as breeders, a little ginger may be given advantageously twice a week, at the rate of a teaspoonful to a flock of 20 to 25.

This is mentioned for the benefit of those who are keeping a lot of Runners for market eggs, expecting to market the ducks also later on.

Young ducks should be started much as chickens are by feeding small mixed chicken feed dry and then a feed of dry bread soaked in milk or cracker crumbs moistened with milk. Rolled oats makes a good addition to the rations, just fed dry. As the ducklings grow older they can gradually be switched to the food used for the grown ducks, bearing in mind at all times that they need a good lot of green stuff in some shape and a lot of grit. It is a good plan to mix the grit right in with their mash, in the shape of sand for the right little ones and coarser grit as they get older. For the first two weeks they must be supplied with a water fountain of some kind, so arranged that they can not get themselves wet. Young and growing ducks should have all the food they will clean up at a time and never allowed to go to bed hungry, if you want good and rapid growth.

Questions and Answers.

Judge Marshall: I would like to know the trouble with some of our chickens.

They appear well and hearty, but stagger and fall over, and will sometimes live for months and eat hearty all the time. If we scare one of them suddenly as they start to run off they will fall and roll over. We have a fine flock of Rhode Island Reds and have lost six or seven in this way. They don't seem to lose much in weight until they get to falling about and until they can't well eat. The comb and gills stay red and indicate good health.

The first sign is they will reel or stagger if frightened and gradually grow worse until they just fall over and reel every time they get up. Two or three were this way for five or six months and seemed hungry all the time. Let me know the trouble and the remedy. P. M.

Townville, S. C.

Answer: It looks to us a good deal like general debility or tuberculosis. We can not tell which, just from the description you have given. Then that other everlasting enemy to the chicken raiser, the mite. The tubercular condition is being found in a good many cases during the past twenty years, and seems to be on the increase, for that reason if you have an idea that that is the trouble you better kill and burn right away and get them out of the company of other good fowls. The general debility phase is a result of carelessness and in-breeding. I say both, because it is usually the result of both. Poultry raisers who have not made a study of the best phases and methods commonly breed from anything that looks like the variety they are raising, often letting color run away with everything else, breeding to specimens that are too small or not developed in breast and body as they should be, or have had some very debilitating disease like roup or canker, and then getting apparently over it, but are very much weakened from its ill effects. This course of breeding through carelessness or lack of knowledge of the matter will, in the course of a few years, produce a strain of fowls that are utterly lacking in stamina or vitality and there will be some of the flock that will go just as you have described—tumbling over from sheer weakness.

Such weaklings are just fit subjects for the tubercular germs to thrive and develop in, so that it is a combination of ailments. However, you had best look well to the mite problem, the least yet often the most disastrous in its results. If your chickens have them get after them and do not let up until you have really conquered the situation.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

$100,000 Wednesday In Real Estate Buys

Peachtree, Luckie, Piedmont, Washington, Buckhead and Railroad Transfers Wake Market.

The local real estate market woke up with a start Wednesday with announcements of more than $100,000 in sales of all kinds, from a semi-central lot sale at $22,000 to a residence lot sale at $175. The Fulton County Daily Report was full of transactions and the real estate men declare that property is now moving more steadily than at any time during the past month.

The George P. Moore Real Estate Agency has announced the following, totaling $88,500, all of which are now on sale:

The southwest corner of Cone and Luckie Streets, part of the Dr. John D. Turner home place, to James E. Hickey for $22,000, or at the rate of $1,100 a front foot. This lot is 20 by 60 feet.

For George P. Moore to a client, Mr. Moore's two-story, nine-room residence at 855 Peachtree Street, between Tenth and Eleventh, for $17,500, or at the rate of $388 a front foot. The lot is 45 by 190 feet.

For John G. Burckhardt to D. H. Lopez the Burckhardt home at the northwest corner of Washington and Glenn Streets for $20,000. Mr. Lopez will subdivide this property, putting a handsome apartment house on the corner and erecting four homes on the Glenn Street side. The frontage on Washington is 121 feet, on Glenn, 409, and there is also a frontage of 123 on Crew Street.

For W. D. Newsom and F. B. Herin, to a client, twelve negro houses fronting 576 feet on the Southern Railway, 470 feet on Hollins Street and cornering on Wells Street, for $15,000.

For Mrs. Lena Swift Hunley to Mrs. Lee Lewman, a 43-by-50-foot lot west of and adjoining the Belle Isle Garage, on the south side of East Third Street, and in the Georgian Terrace block, for $7,000, or at the rate of $163 a front foot, and for Mrs. Huntley to B. Frank and John G. Bell the lot to the west of this, 22 by 50, 75 feet from Peachtree, $3,500. These two lots are in the George Adair subdivision.

Louis M. Johnson, of the Moore agency, sold two lots on Peachtree Road, just north of Roswell Road, to R. G. Brightwell for $3,150. These are in the Huntley subdivision and are 48 feet front each.

Mr. Moore has made two smaller sales: A 25-by-100-foot lot in the Continental Land Company's subdivision on South Avenue to George C. Winters for $175 and to William Beckman a lot in the same subdivision for the same price.

Piedmont and Other Sales.

Robert E. Riley has bought another high-class residence lot and is expected to build a fine home on it. Mrs. Mary Raoul, Gaston C. Raoul and Thomas K. Glenn, executors for the late Captain W. G. Raoul, have conveyed a lot on the west side of Piedmont Avenue, 115 feet north of Fourteenth Street for $10,300. The lot is 70 by 251 feet.

Mr. Riley has built and sold a number of homes. Among them was the stucco house at the northwest corner of West Peachtree Street and West Peachtree Place, where the Connerat Apartments now stand, and the last was on East Fifteenth Street, which Mr. Riley sold a few weeks ago.

Bonds have gone to record in the sale some time ago of Buckhead lots in the Huntley subdivision, through the George P. Moore Agency, and also in several other sales. William J. Davis and James B. Daniel, for instance, have sold for $5,500 to H. Milton Smith a 45 by 240-foot lot on Rice Street, near Angier Avenue, and Mr. Smith has transferred it to Rose G. Smith for a consideration which is withheld.

Small Sales Total $6,500.

The Charles P. Glover Realty Company reports the following small sales in the Brookhaven section:

To Alice A. Gillespie, lot on the east side of Fernwood Drive, 100 by 270, $1,000; to Arthur Kent, north side Fernwood Circle, 100 by 325, $900; to same, south side Fernwood Circle, 100 by 285, $1,000; to J. Douglas Eubanks, east side of Sylvan Drive, 50 by 240, $500; to same, adjoining lot, $500; to Willie Thornburg, north side of Stewart Drive, 50 by 250, $500; to Catherine Ross Wright, north side of Stewart Drive, 50 by 250, $500; to Lillian Hix, same location and size, $500.

Also a 200 by 266-foot lot on the west side of Ashburton Avenue, East Lake, to Mrs. Virginia Howard Logan, for $600.

Night Work on Hurt Building.

So anxious are the contractors that the Hurt Building be completed in schedule time—by October 1—that they have ordered a large part of the work to be done at night. To passersby the sight of bright lights burning off the ends of steel girders and welding the various metal parts has been a revelation. Demands for space in the Hurt Building have continued to come in, and Mr. Hurt expects to rent every office before the formal opening of the structure.

Enthuiasm Over Decatur.

Real estate prospects were generous in their praise Wednesday of the things which they saw on a tour of inspection in Decatur Tuesday. The occasion being "home-coming day," hundreds were in attendance. Realty men used the day to show property, and they report a great deal of enthusiasm over the evidences of progress found by the visitors. A land boom is on at Decatur and announcement of some interesting sales is expected soon.

REAL ESTATE, RENTING AND LOANS.

FOR SALE.

ON NEXT Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, we will sell at auction in Oakland City a subdivision of choice residence lots; also 6 modern homes, all on easy terms. Get plats giving full particulars from our office.

ON VAUGHN STREET, between the East Lake car line and Fair Street, and near Whitefoord Avenue, a 5-room bungalow on a large lot, which we are instructed by the owner to trade. If you have a lot, auto, or anything else of value that you wish to trade in on a good home, this is your opportunity. See Mr. Bradshaw.

SUBURBAN BUNGALOWS, with city conveniences; 15-minute car service. In good established neighborhood. Brand new, 6 rooms each. Have bath, hot and cold water, tile sidewalks; big lots. Nice mantels, electric fixtures, etc. This is your opportunity to buy a home on easy terms and at bargain prices, as we are instructed to sell them, and we will. Simply ask for a salesman; all are posted.

ON DARGAN STREET, convenient to the Lucile Avenue cars, a new 6-room bungalow with all conveniences, tinted walls, stone foundation, brick mantels, furnace heat, beam ceilings. Everything first-class. Lot 47x150 feet. Price $4,150; $650 cash, balance easy. See Mr. Cohen.

6-ROOM house within one block of the Kirkwood car line, on lot 100x225, for $1,200 cash; forced sale. See Mr. White.

FOR RENT.

INMAN PARK.

IN BEAUTIFUL Inman Park we can offer two lovely homes of seven and eight rooms, large lots and all conveniences. Just the kind of place you could think of as a HOME location; lots of neighbors, schools, churches, etc. Would measure up to the severest requirements. Just think of these places at $37.50 and $40 to good lease tenants.

BUNGALOWS.

ON MANSFIELD, Highland, St. Clair and DeKalb Avenues we can offer you four of the most modern and up-to-date bungalows, on nice lots, with all conveniences, paved streets and sidewalks, and the streets themselves speak for the fine location. These are ideal homes, and at the reasonable rentals of from $25 to $35. Come in and let us talk to you about these and get our list.

COTTAGES AND BUNGALOWS.

ON ORME, near Fifth, just a little 5-room beauty, $30. On Bedford, near Forrest; on Bedford, near Pine; on Atwood, near Sells; on Sells Avenue, on East Georgia and on Grant; in fact, in almost any of the prettiest sections of our city, we can give you a choice little home. You must ask about our suburban homes. Some pretty cottages in Kirkwood, Edgewood and Decatur.

IF YOU HAVE MONEY to lend, we can place it safely.

FOR RENT—APARTMENTS.

TWO ELEGANT South Side apartments of five rooms, with every convenience. Will make special price during summer. For particulars, see our Mr. Girardeau.

WE PUBLISH A WEEKLY RENT BULLETIN, giving a good description of everything we have for rent. Get a copy.

FOR SALE AT AUCTION!

SIX UP-TO-DATE HOMES

And 19 Ready-to-Build-On Lots

SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1913

At 3 P. M., on the Premises

THESE are 5 and 6-room houses, with every city convenience and connection, including furnace in several of the houses, but no gas as yet. These houses were built of the best material, under the personal direction of Colonel I. N. Ragsdale, who could not be induced to build a shoddy house.

These houses are real city homes, located in the social center of the Tenth Ward, and only a step from the best car service in Atlanta.

We urge you to go out and inspect this property. Each house will be plainly placarded, showing cash payment and monthly payments; also the amount of the loan to be assumed.

THESE HOUSES ARE NOW RENTED, and bring in from $18.50 to $30.00 per month. Think of what a help that will be to you, in meeting your payments, should you not be ready to occupy the house.

The houses and lots front on the following streets:

Arlington Avenue, Princess Avenue and LaRosa Terrace.

Arlington Avenue runs off Lee Street, right at Colonel Ragsdale's handsome home. Princess Avenue runs off of Avon (Oakland) Avenue, between the Baptist Church and Captain E. P. Ryan's fine home, giving the property two approaches, each of which is a prominent street.

THIS SECTION HAS NO OBJECTIONABLE FEATURE

It is logically the place for the people to live who are engaged in business, or who are employed among the many industrial and manufacturing and railroad enterprises around the Terminal Station, Whitehall Street, Mitchell Street, and the Central and West Point Railroads, and the adjacent territory. The car service and the way the streets run prove these statements to be true. Think about it, and you'll see it as we do.

THE LOTS ARE READY TO BUILD ON

These are the lots to buy, either for home sites or for speculation, because they are ready to build on. In addition to this, every lot is a beauty, with nice young oak shade trees scattered over them. Also, because their location is excellent. They are only a short distance from the business center of Oakland City. Only two blocks from the City School, and near the churches; and the farthest lot is only two blocks from the car line; and, best of all, they are socially in the swim, and

ALL CITY IMPROVEMENTS DOWN AND PAID FOR.

THE TERMS ON THE HOUSES

will range from $150 to $250 cash, and the payments will range from $22.50 per month to $32.50 per month, with 6 per cent simple interest. Small loan on five of the houses, to be assumed by the purchaser.

THE TERMS ON THE LOTS

are right. Every lot will be sold on terms of $50 cash, and the balance $15 per month, with only 6 per cent simple interest on the deferred payments.

HOW TO GET THERE—Take cars at the corner of Forsyth and Alabama Streets, marked "East Point," "Hapeville" or "College Park." Get off at the corner of Avon (Oakland Avenue). You will then be only a step from this property.

COME AND BE SURE TO BUY—You will never regret it if you do, and you will be sorry if you don't. Get plans from

Piedmont Ave., Brand-New Home, 8 Rooms---Lot 75x175 Feet

THIS is something CHOICE. 2 stories, 8 ROOMS, all well arranged with every modern convenience, including furnace heat, hardwood floors, beautiful electric fixtures. Elevated east front lot, 75x175 feet, with a splendid view from the front porch. The house itself is double floored and storm sheathed. You must see this to appreciate it. Key at our office or we will be glad to show you through. Price, $8,500, on terms.

BEST APARTMENT SITE IN THE CITY.

AT THE corner of two main thoroughfares, with two car lines, park frontage, and several other attractive features, we have a lot 50x150 feet. This is absolutely the best location on the North Side for an apartment site. $200 per front foot on easy terms. Let us tell you more about this. Also two smaller lots for $6,000 and $5,000 each. Both good for smaller apartments.

ANSLEY PARK, 8-ROOM HOME—$6,500.

FACING the proposed Golf Links, near the Piedmont Avenue car line, we have this 2-story brand new house of 8 rooms; lot is 60x240, or larger if desired. All conveniences and attractive. $6,500, on easy terms to you.

FIVE-ROOM COTTAGE, $2,500—NEAR GRANT PARK.

HERE is a nice little home of 5 large rooms and bath, gas, water and sewer, and in good neighborhood, within 3 blocks of the park. We can make you terms of about $250 cash, assume small loan and the balance, say $25 per month. You will like this on investigation and the terms are BETTER THAN RENT.

We Get Ideals Easily from Pictures

So Please Look at the Picture on This Page of the Cheapest Working Animal in the World. It May Help You to Think.

Copyright, 1913.

What was the first animal tamed, conquered and made into a slave by man? Men had to work a long time, probably, before they got into their heads the idea of slavery for others—an idea that has meant so much to the comfort of a few and the misery of the rest for centuries.

As a guess, we should say that the first tamed animal was some kind of a deer or female buffalo. Some savage woman found it wounded, perhaps broken-legged in a pit, the young one standing near it. The young one was killed and eaten. The mother was hobbled and kept alive as long as possible for her milk, given to the wild woman's children. And when the milk gave out the mother probably was eaten by the wild woman and her children.

After that experiment that same wild woman, or some other, decided that the captured animal could be kept permanently, made gentle and used to carry a load. The women, of course, carried all the loads at first, as they do now among the red Indians. Probably the first domestic scene was a woman milking by force and violence some half-wild animal in order to get milk for her young ones.

The first animal tamed by man was probably a wolf, the father of our present tribe of dogs, the tame wolf being used by the man to help him hunt animals or hunt other men.

However, speculation about the first animal tamed is not the purpose of this particular article.

We want to call your attention to the most valuable animal that men use in their slavery, AND THE CHEAPEST ANIMAL.

That animal is a woman, working in the factory or a sweatshop.

Since the days when the first buffalo or wolf or elephant was tamed, there has been nothing as cheap as the woman worker, nothing so easily obtainable, so easily kept in slavery, so easily replaced when worked to death.

You can see in the picture on this page some of man's accomplishments. He teaches elephants to lift logs. He uses little donkeys, powerful horses, oxen with big horns, but he uses, above all THE POVERTY-STRICKEN WOMAN AND HER CHILDREN AS SOON AS THEY ARE OLD ENOUGH TO WORK.

Isn't that a proud achievement of civilization, to find the cheapest of all animal labor and the cheapest of all working animals IN THE FEMALE HUMAN BEING?

The wise and great Moses, when he was teaching the Jews to keep house without an ice-box and laying down laws that make of the Jewish people the healthiest in the world to-day, that wise Moses issued this order, on the authority of the Almighty:

"Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mother's milk."—Exodus 34:26.

Why Moses gave the order we don't know. Possibly because he thought it was bad enough to kill the mother and eat it, but a little too bad and too heartless to take the mother's milk and boil her own child in that milk. Or probably Moses issued the order because of his general opinion that meat and milk should not be used at the same meal.

What would Moses think, if he came along now and found a miserable, half-starved, under-paid woman, working in a factory and found her own "kid," the child of her body, tied to some machine in the factory with her, or sitting at her feet in a sweatshop working before it was six years of age?

Would not the old Lawgiver say, "I thought it was bad enough in my day to boil a kid in the milk of its own mother.

"But to take a child and work it to death in the same factory that worked its mother to death is going a little farther along the road of deviltry than I ever imagined human beings could go."

Yet that is what we do.

Our system of industry takes these "cheapest of working animals," the women, and takes their cheap children, and boils them all down into profits in the same factory—and that is "civilization."

You are tired, readers, of hearing about low pay for women and girls—tired, perhaps, even of the suggestion that laws should be passed compelling employers to pay to the cheapest working animal at least enough to keep clothes on her back and food in her stomach.

What follows, however, you will read with interest. It is a brilliant Frenchman's description of woman as she lived ages ago. He calls it, "The First Tears."

It is, perhaps, as good a description as has been written of the appearance of the first woman, in the days when she drank from the horn of a bison, and kept her rainwater in the skull of an elephant. It is the woman of the days before men had learned to conquer fire. It is worth reading:

"On the crest of the cliff the branches of a thicket parted and an arm, a shoulder, then the entire form of a living being, veiled with tawny hair, appeared, came forth, and stood like a hunted animal, glancing to right and left—a primitive woman, with arched shelving brows, broad flanks, short solid legs, splayfeet and thick fat hands.

"A mass of falling hair, starting from the crown of her long skull, framed her face with a somber red-brown aureole. A short, loose neck rose from her full shoulders, strong teeth glittered in her red jaws, and a double furrow ran from jaw to brow to divide the formless nose from the cheek bones.

"As the creature breathed her mobile nostrils drew back to take the revelations of the wind. Sheltered by the low retreating forehead, two jutting arcades fell to form caverns for the restless eyes. At times the wrinkled eyelids straightened, the eyes widened, and an expression of appealing softness appeared, then vanished to give place to the look of a worried beast.

"The time was the dawn of humanity, when Man was an animal in fact but shape before the rigors of the season forced Earth's population to hide from the cold in caves. The skeletons of giant saurians were petrifying in the upper strata of the crust, and mammals were moving in to the valleys to take their places. Great pachyderms and long-haired ruminants waded in the mire of the valleys, and beasts of prey dogged their steps. Among the animals rare beings foreshadowing Man crept naked, timid, feeling their way, hiding from the beasts of prey.

"In the low light of the primeval springtime, in silence broken only by the tramp of padded hoofs and by the lap of water against the mire, a man searching for berries saw a woman running to escape him, ran after her, caught her and carried her away.

"The man vanished, and for the first time in her hunted life the woman felt the loneliness of the solitude that had been her best condition, and a pang like the yearning of hunger awoke in her.

"She wandered along the hedges, through the wet fields, under the dark sky, searching for the one who had mastered her; and when after long quest, she saw him, she ran to him with inarticulate cries. He gave no answering sign; but, when he sat down to eat his fistful of acorns, she sat down beside him, and when he lay down to sleep she, too, lay down. So the law of life gave the woman to the man.

"At first he tolerated her; then, when she served him and was useful to him, he made her his habit. Her relative weakness gave her quick premonitions of their need of food. His indifference to her and her dependence upon him gave him superiority. His silent acceptance of her presence aroused in her dull brain a feeling akin to tenderness, and in that feeling, humble and submissive, she withdrew when he had beaten her."

That description was written by Edmond Haraucourt.

It goes on to say that the primitive man called the woman "Hock." And the woman called him "Daah," a name which the French gentleman thinks was "an appeal soft as a caress." This primitive married couple had two other words, one for hunger, "Mah," and another for danger, "Heugh." Whatever else they had to say they told in gestures.

Primitive times were they not—those days of three or four hundred thousand years ago?

But how much worse was that primitive woman, short-legged and ugly and beaten by the brute that she liked, than the woman of to-day?

The woman of to-day is better made, she has a forehead where the other had none. She has feelings of which the other never dreamed.

Is she any better off—SHE, THE CHEAPEST WORKING MACHINE THAT MAN EMPLOYS; SHE, THE LOWEST-PRICED ANIMAL, THE CHIEF BEAST OF BURDEN OF THE WORLD, CHEATED OF HER RIGHTS FROM BEGINNING TO END, CHEATED AS WAS THIS WOMAN OF NEARLY HALF A MILLION YEARS AGO?

The so-called educated and superior classes have the impertinence to laugh at the women who at last have had the courage and the intelligence to make a stand for their rights, to demand a share in the making of laws that will protect them against the brutality that has lasted a half-million years.

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Writes on This World

It Is Getting Better All the Time, She Declares, So Do Not Worry and Fret, but Improve Yourself and Push Ahead.

Written For The Atlanta Georgian

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

THERE are hundreds of otherwise sensible and good men and women in the land today who are wasting precious vital force, and losing great opportunities for achievement, in a useless and foolish worry and despondency over the industrial situation of the country.

Food is high; rents are high; fuel is high, and the trusts and monopolies are carrying things from bad to worse.

YET ALL THE TIME THE WORLD IS IMPROVING. And all the time we are going toward a better era.

Work for Improvement.

Great men and great women are thinking and working to bring about an improved system of life and labor; and more work is being done for the uplifting and enlightenment of the race than ever before since the earth came out of chaos.

So do not dwell too much on the troubled social conditions of the day and grow bitter and pessimistic over them.

The situation is one which calls for all your optimism and cheerfulness.

The world has been wagging on for millions of years, and will continue to wag, and humanity has been slowly improving and will continue to improve slowly for many millions of years.

The first important thing for you to do is to improve yourself, and that you can not do if you grow bitter and despondent and harp continually upon the evil of the world.

If you allow your mind to dwell upon the scarcity of fuel and its high price, you will not increase the supply of fuel or lower the price, and you will exhaust your own vital forces, which might, properly conserved, fire you with ambition enough to go forth and invent some new fuel.

Help by Example.

Try in the moments of greatest gloom to realize that out of such strife and chaos as exist just now new conditions are formulated and in time are materialized. Be ready to meet these new conditions and be worthy of them.

It is useless to ask for a better social system unless the people who form it are better.

A government is made by the people. If it is faulty, it is because the people are faulty.

If it is to be bettered, the people must become better.

Begin with yourself. Keep wholesome, and hopeful, and reasonable, and industrious, and economical.

Help others to do so—not entirely by advice, but by example.

Try to save a little of what you earn to meet the emergency that may come. You think you can not, but if you once realize how little you really need to sustain life and keep well and strong you will find you can economize.

Half the food we now consume is more than enough! And the things which cost more are almost invariably the things we need least.

Consume fresh air, breathe deep and develop your muscles with outdoor exercises or room calisthenics. Look on the philosophical side of life and think cheerfully. Believe progress is back of all this chaos, just as you know the torn-up conditions of the city streets indicate future comfort and convenience for the people.

Everything will settle down by and by. Be ready to settle down with it, a healthy, hopeful, useful citizen.

It's Not a Theory.

Do not allow yourself to go to pieces with old conditions.

If you want to know some very interesting things which are being done for humanity get some leaflets and pamphlets describing the Single Tax propaganda.

There is something in the movement and the work being done for the whole world of thinking people.

The soul of Henry George is marching on, after his body is mouldering in the grave.

It will convince you that Single Tax is not a theory, but a great and wonderful Fact—and that in its principles lies the lifting of the race from slavery to independence.

"I Wonder How Much for a Hat?"

By George Keller

"$2,500 per annum for clothes is sufficient."—NEWS ITEM.

TWENTY-FIVE HUNDRED a year for clothes!
Gee, Bill, just think of that—
Twenty-five hundred for nothing but clothes!
I wonder how much for a hat?

Why, Daddy works like a slave,
An' he can't get no such clothes, he can't.
An' those 'at he does get are all worn out,
An' come as a gift from my aunt.

Twenty-five hundred! Whew, what a pile!
An' figurin' on ten bones a suit—
Why, two hundred and fifty new suits each year—
Gosh, that gink must be a beaut'!

Dad brings in six hundred a year,
An' on that we live an' pay rent.
Why can't my daddy have plenty of dough?
Ain't he as good as that gent?

Twenty-five hundred a year for clothes!
Gee, Bill, just think of that!
Twenty-five hundred for nothing but clothes!
I wonder how much for a hat?

.:. Saving Humanity's "Seed Corn" .:.

By REV. T. B. GREGORY.

THE foundation of the first real reform school, at Mettray, France, seventy-four years ago, marks the beginning of one of the most vitally important institutions that are at work among us at this time for the uplift of the race.

The honor of starting this most effective propaganda for the salvation of the young, who may well be called the "seed-corn" of humanity, belongs to M. de Metz, at one time a great lawyer in Paris.

Dangers to Youth.

In the Gay City Metz witnessed the temptations and dangers to which young boys and girls were exposed; he saw them falling by multitudes into the way of evil; and, what was more to the point, he observed that even the worst of the delinquents never quite succeeded in totally demoralizing themselves, and that most of them were redeemable if approached in the right spirit and assisted by the proper environment.

Set Himself the Task.

With this conviction deep set in his mind the ex-councillor set himself to the task of putting his faith to the test of actual experiment. Putting his hands into his own pockets, and into the pockets of as many of his friends as would allow it, he soon had a considerable amount of cash, and upon ground given by the Vicomte de Courcelles the Reform School was built and put into operation.

The results more than justified the good man's dream; and when, some years later, M. de Metz lay upon his deathbed, he was comforted with the happy consciousness that he had wrought nobly and permanently for the Humanity he loved so well.

The Mettray School set the world a-thinking, and it was not long before other countries were establishing similar institutions. Great Britain, Germany, Austria, Italy, the United States fell into line, and the idea of saving the boys and girls from becoming hardened criminals became almost a passion.

To-day—less than a century after the foundation of the school at Mettray—the institutions for the moral uplift of juvenile delinquents are to be numbered by the thousands. They have ramified not only throughout Christendom, but are to be found in the so-called "Pagan" lands of the earth, where Christianity, as an organization, is but little known.

Wherever humanity is found there in the midst of it is the spirit of the Paris lawyer—which is, of course, but a reflection of the spirit of the Great Brother of us all—working to save the youth of the race, to redeem fallen boys and girls from the grip of the destroyer and to restore them to the ways of decency and peace.

If all the youth who have been reached and lifted up to a sense of self-respect and happiness by these reform schools could be got together what a procession they would make!

Needs No Monument.

The temptation is strong to ask the question: Has M. de Metz a monument? But how foolish, after all, the question would be. He needs no monument. This same mighty army of redeemed youth is his monument and he requires no other.

FAIN NAMED IN VICE QUIZ AS RESORT VISITOR

Police Commissioner Accused Before Grand Jury of Brawl in Disorderly House.

As a climax of revelations made before the Grand Jury in its probe of vice conditions in Atlanta, Police Commissioner William F. Fain was named as the central figure in a carousal said to have been held in a house on Ivy Street some months ago, according to evidence presented at the Wednesday afternoon session.

Mr. Fain was also accused of brutally treating one of the women in the party. When the police answered the woman's screams and raided the place, it was said that Fain was arrested, but was immediately released by order of a man high up in police circles.

This startling information was given the Grand Jury by a real estate operator and friend of Fain's who was summoned by the tribunal to give testimony.

Whisky For Resorts.

Before the witness left the hearing, it is declared that he laid bare one of the most sensational stories of vice ever brought to light in this city. That the Grand Jury will probably probe to the bottom of it, and that its veracity will be given the acid test before any action is taken is assured.

Another witness at the afternoon hearing was J. E. Skags, agent for the Southern Express Company. Mr. Skags was asked to testify as to shipments of whisky and other liquors into Atlanta to places of ill-fame.

Chief Beavers also was called before the Grand Jury during the afternoon session. The police official is declared to have told the jurors that to his knowledge Atlanta was better morally at this time than ever before. The chief will be called again later in the investigation.

Chief Beavers Cleared.

Elimination of Chief of Police Beavers from all charges of graft and corruption in the Police Department, made by Colonel Thomas B. Felder, marked the second day's probe by the Fulton County Grand Jury.

Colonel Felder made this distinction to Chief Beavers personally, and in so doing renewed his accusations against Chief of Detectives Newport A. Lanford.

At the same time it was said evidence of corruption money being paid to the police had been given the Grand Jury.

There was a dramatic situation in the ante-room to the Grand Jury room when Felder, Beavers and Lanford confronted each other. Many hot words were flung back and forth.

"I want to say to you right here," declared Felder to the police chief, "that I have never made one single charge of graft against you. I do accuse the other chief at the police station of protecting vice, and I have a superabundance of evidence to prove it. I will prove it."

Bribery To Be Probed.

Another unexpected turn in the investigation was revealed at the morning session when it became known that the Grand Jury will take up immediately the bribery charges made against Colonel Felder by the Police Department and counter-accusations growing out of their dictograph episode.

Colonel Felder appeared before the tribunal at its morning session and demanded that the dictograph conspiracy be probed to bed rock. The attorney based his demand upon his own desire for exoneration of the sensational accusations. He declared to the jurymen that the charges were absolutely false and the result of an

DURHAM, N. C., June 4.—W. P. Few, president of Trinity College, at commencement exercises to-day announced new gifts to the college that will make the total endowment fund $1,108,000.

This places Trinity on an equal footing with any college in the South. The endowment is due in the main to the generosity of Benjamin N. Duke and James B. Duke, the tobacco kings, who have given to Trinity a total of $1,149,300.

The general education board of New York City gave $150,000, and the remainder was raised from small contributions of many people in all parts of the State, mainly coming from Methodist churches.

The late Washington Duke, who developed the cigarette industry, was the staunchest supporter the college ever had.

Atlanta Woman in Umbrella Battle

MACON, GA., June 4.—Because Mrs. Leola Collins objected to Mrs. Luella Miller, of Atlanta, one of her boarders, coming in at late hours of the night, and also because she refused Edward C. Barnhill the privilege of seeing Mrs. Miller at midnight, such a lively time resulted in the Vineville Station neighborhood that the police were called.

Barnhill smashed an umbrella over Mrs. Collins' head. In the police court hearing, Mrs. Miller testified that she looked on and laughed during the whole proceeding.

Militants Dynamite, Then Burn, Mansion

TROWBRIDGE, ENGLAND, June 4.—Damage estimated between $75,000 and $100,000 was done at Westwood, a suburb, to-day by militants who burned an unoccupied manor house.

The old mansion, which was one of the historic spots of the neighborhood, evidently was shaken by a powder or dynamite explosion. Residents of the neighborhood heard a loud detonation.

Ask U. S. Control of Cotton Shipments

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Chairman Adamson, of the House Interstate Commerce Committee, will call his committee together this week, he said to-day, to frame a bill for uniform regulations governing the shipment of cotton in interstate commerce.

Losses by the producers in sampling, lack of uniformity in railroad regulations governing baling and lack of uniformity in tare charges are among the abuses which the proposed legislation is designed to correct.

$40,000,000 Urged For Alaskan Roads

WASHINGTON, June 4.—A combination of the Jones and Chamberlain bill providing for a bond issue of $40,000,000 for the construction by the Government of railroads in Alaska, will be urged at the present session of Congress, according to a statement made to-day by Senator Pitman, chairman of the Senate Committee on Territories.

The new measure was framed by a sub-committee composed of Senators Pitman, Chamberlain and Jones.

Financial Morals of U. S. Scored in Paris

PARIS, June 4.—The bitterness against American securities is far from abating. The Journal des Debats, after reviewing the series of disappointments Paris investors have suffered, says:

"American financial morals make operations in securities depending upon New York particularly dangerous. American bankers have the idea, accepted as perfectly legitimate there, that ability only counts in business."

PAINTER MYSTERY DEEP

Disappearance of Organs Unsolved

Family Discredit Suicide Theory

E. O. PAINTER, Jacksonville fertilizer man, whose death in the St. Johns River is being investigated by insurance companies because of the fact that he had taken out over $1,000,000 life insurance in four months preceding his death.

Johns Hopkins Authorities Know Nothing of Loss of Parts of Body; Bonding Concern in Hunt.

BALTIMORE, June 4.—The mystery enshrouding the death of E. O. Painter, the Jacksonville man who was drowned after having in four months taken out one million dollars in life insurance, was heightened Wednesday by the fact that nothing can be learned as to the disposal of the organs which had been hastily removed from Mr. Painter's body.

At the Johns Hopkins Hospital, where the heart, stomach and kidneys of the wealthy Floridan were to have been analyzed Saturday for evidences of poison, it is said that no word of their whereabouts has been received.

On the other hand, Redmond C. Stewart, a local real estate man, who is said to have made the arrangements for the examination at the hospital, refuses to discuss the matter in any way.

FAMILY OF PAINTER SAY HE HAD NO REASON FOR SUICIDE

By COLE E. MORGAN.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., June 4.—Edward Okle Painter's family and intimate friends positively state their belief that his death in the St. Johns River on May 22 was accidental and not premeditated or due to mental aberration, as is talked in Jacksonville.

They declare his business was in excellent condition, his home life ideal and that he had no cause to seek self-destruction.

The insistence of insurance salesmen to write policies, because he was considered an excellent risk, and because a spirited competition among insurance rivals had ensued this spring, are the explanations offered for his taking out a million dollars of new insurance since February 1.

More Insurance Reported.

In addition to the $1,178,000 insurance carried by Painter, it is known that he sought $125,000 additional that he did not secure. A $50,000 policy was issued by the Equitable Life, but before it was delivered the agent here was instructed to hold it because Painter was over insured. This policy was taken to Painter the Saturday before his death, but he told the agent to hold it until Monday, when he would give a check for the premium and accept it. Before it could be delivered on Monday a telegram came from the home office that it must not be delivered.

On April 12 a $50,000 application was made with the Travelers. On May 15 the company postponed the applicant for six months.

On May 14, Painter applied to the Florida Life for $25,000 insurance, the application was rejected by the company's medical director the very morning Painter was drowned, because he was over weight. His blood pressure showed 160 in the medical examination.

On May 17 Painter asked the company to give him a receipt for premium notes that had accompanied his application. This was done. After his death the company offered to return the notes, requesting that the company's receipt be given back. This was refused at Painter's office.

Miss Okle Painter, the dead man's only daughter and his namesake, has for several years occupied a position in his office, and has been one of the directing spirits in the E. O. Painter Fertilizer Company. She is authority for the statement, speaking for the family, that he had no reason to want to die. She is typically a business woman.

She discusses the affair calmly and

HEAD OF MERCER QUITS SCHOOL BY REQUEST

MACON, GA., June 4.—Following the demand of the board of trustees for his resignation, the Rev. S. Y. Jameson, president of Mercer University, will resign. His contract calls for one more year.

Three members of the prudential committee—E. Y. Mallary, Andrew W. Lane and A. L. Adams, of Macon—have tendered their resignations. They, too, were asked to resign.

A special committee reported that there was an entire lack of harmony at Mercer, and that especially was there friction between President Jameson and the prudential committee. The Rev. E. C. Dargan, chairman of the board and prominent in the fight to oust Dr. Jameson, last night introduced a resolution calling for the resignation of the conflicting parties, and it was passed 19 to 3.

The commencement exercises of Mercer were held this morning, and diplomas presented to 70 young men.

Collapse of Trestle Kills Bridgeworker

W. B. Tate, a bridgeworker, was crushed in the collapse of a trestle at Liddell's Crossing, near Atlanta, Wednesday morning. He died as he was being taken to Grady Hospital in an automobile. Tate's home was in Greenville, Ga.

The men had been working only a short time Wednesday when one of the sections of the trestle gave way. Tate was hurled to the ground and a mass of steel fell on him.

Blood Stains Clew to Mysterious Shooting

The police are investigating blood stains in Ponce DeLeon Avenue, near Bonaventure, following a report that an unknown white man was shot during the night in that vicinity.

The trail of blood extended for three blocks. In one place a pool of blood tended to show that the wounded man had fallen to the pavement, or had lain down to regain strength.

A negro woman is said to have made the report of the shooting.

Mysterious Slaying Of Two Years Ago Is Revealed by Woman

A remarkable story of the alleged murder of a young man on the Chapel Road two years ago that never has been investigated, and of which no details ever became known, was told to Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford Wednesday morning by C. C. Daniels, once a railroad detective and now a contractor.

So great an impression did Daniels' story make on Chief Lanford that he has prepared to start an investigation.

Daniels said he got his information when he heard several women, guests of Mrs. Daniels, talking. He heard one of the women remark that there had been a murder on the Chapel Road two years ago that was never heard of.

According to the story she told, a young man was murdered by a man and his son in a row over a girl, and the body was buried in the woods just off the road. Later the murderers, so the story goes, exhumed the body and tried to burn it, and, failing in that, removed it elsewhere.

Daniels declares he did not learn the name of the man who is supposed to have been murdered, or the names of the murderers. Mrs. Lillian Flournoy, of Atlanta, he said, knows something of the affair. She will be questioned by the officers.

New Throat Disease Has Europe Puzzled

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, June 4.—Physicians in many parts of England and France are puzzled by the spread of a mysterious throat complaint, the chief symptom of which is a filmy exudation from the tonsils or at the back of the throat. It has caused several deaths.

The complications include erysipelas, high temperature and weakness of the heart action. Some physicians are inclined to believe that it is a non-typical form of scarlet fever or measles.

"O. K.'d by T. R." Is Liquor Ad Caption

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., June 4.—"O. K.'d by T. R." is the flaring announcement of a local liquor firm in to-day's Springfield papers in offering to the public "milk punch, rare old Madeira wines and mint juleps." The slogan is in type an inch high and extends across five columns.

Under the heading "Milk Punch" the advertisement says:

"T. R. is probably like the rural dominie who was given his first punch by his city host.

"'My dear sir,' he said, 'you ought to thank God every day of your life for having a cow that will give such milk.'"

J. Ham Lewis Fined For Not Paying Tax

CHICAGO, June 4.—The names of two of the State's highest officials were written today upon the list of penalized taxpayers.

Governor Edward F. Dunne and United States Senator James Hamilton Lewis were assessed for personal property estimated by an assessor, and a 50 per cent penalty was added, the same as in the case of ordinary taxpayers who forgot to schedule their personal property.

Governor Dunne's assessment, including the 50 per cent penalty, was fixed at $4,500. Senator Lewis must pay on $6,750. William Lorimer's assessment was fixed at $6,000 and a $3,000 penalty was added.

Money Magnates to Reveal Wage Scales

CHICAGO, June 4.—The powers of finance in Chicago, including a number of bankers, to-day were subpenaed to appear before the Illinois Senate White Slave Committee and tell about the wages of men employed in their institutions. The financiers will appear Friday.

The committee is investigating statements that many men in Chicago don't earn enough to support a family.

SAYS SHE HEARD FRANK'S WIFE TELL MOTHER FRANK HAD THREATENED SUICIDE

Incoherent Statement by Employee of Frank Household That Must Not Be Taken as Legal Evidence Until Heard and Corroborated in Court.

Another sensational but strangely incoherent affidavit in the Mary Phagan mystery was made public this afternoon when the police gave out what purports to be a startling statement sworn to by Minola McKnight, negro cook in the Frank household who was grilled for two hours at police headquarters Tuesday.

The statement quotes the McKnight woman as declaring that she overheard Mrs. Leo Frank tell her mother that Frank had talked of murder and had threatened to get a gun and shoot himself.

The Georgian informs its readers once again that police affidavits are not evidence until they have been accepted in court, and that judgment as to their reliability should be withheld until then.

The McKnight woman's statement is given for what it is worth as follows:

STATE OF GEORGIA—County of Fulton:

Personally appeared before me, a Notary Public in and for the above State and County, Minola McKnight, who lives in the rear of 351 Pulliam Street, Atlanta, Ga., who, being duly sworn, deposes and says:

Saturday morning, April 26, 1913, Mr. Frank left home about 8 o'clock, and Albert, my husband, was there Saturday too; Albert pot there I guess about a quarter after 1, and was there when Mr. Frank come for dinner, which was about half past one, but Mr. Frank did not eat any dinner and he left in about ten minutes after he got there.

Mr. Frank come back to the house at 7 o'clock that night, and Albert was there when he got there. Albert had gone home that evening but he come back, but I don't know what time he got there, but he come sometime before Mr. Frank did, and Mr. Frank eat supper that night about 7 o'clock, and when I left about 8 o'clock I left Mr. Frank there.

Sunday morning I got there about 8 o'clock, and there was an automobile standing in front of the house, but I didn't pay any attention to it, but I saw a man in the automobile get a bucket of water and pour into it. Miss Lucile (Mr. Frank's wife) was downstairs, and Mr, and Mrs. Selig were upstairs. Albert was there Sunday morning, but I don't remember what time he got there. When I called them down to breakfast about half-past 8 I found that Mr. Frank was gone. Mr. and Mrs. Selig eat breakfast and Miss Lucile didn't eat until Mr. Frank came back and they eat breakfast together. I didn't hear them say anything at the breakfast table, but after dinner I understood them to say that a girl and Mr. Frank were caught at the office Saturday. I don't know who said it, but Miss Lucile and Mr. and Mrs. Selig and Mr. Frank were sanding there talking after dinnr. I didn't know the girl was killed until Monday evening. I understood them to say it was a Jew girl, and I asked Miss Lucile and she said it was a Gentile.

On Tuesday Mr. Frank says to me: "It is mighty bad Minola, I might have to go to jail about this girl and I don't know anything about it.

I heard Mrs. Rauzin, Mrs. Frank's sister, tell Miss Lucile that it was mighty bad, and Miss Lucile said, "Yes, it is; I am going to get after her about it." I don't know what they were talking about.

Sunday Miss Lucile said to Mr. Selig that Mr. Frank didn't sleep so good Saturday night. She said he was drunk and wouldn't let her sleep with him, and she said she slept on the floor on the rug by the bed because he was drinking. Miss Lucile said Sunday that Mr. Frank told her Saturday night that he was in trouble; that he didn't know the reason why he would murder, and he told his wife to get his pistol and let him kill himself. I heard Miss Lucile say that to Mrs. Selig. It got away with Mrs. Selig mighty bad, she didn't know what to think. I haven't heard Miss Lucile say whether she believed it or not. I don't know why Mrs. Frank didn't come to see her husband, but it was a pretty good while before she come to see him, maybe two weeks. Sh would tell me, "Wasn't it mighty bad that he was locked up?" and she said: "Minola, I don't know what I am going to do."

When I left home to go to the Solicitor General's office they told me to mind how I talked. They pay me $3.50 a week, but last week she paid me $4, and one week she paid me $6.50. Up to the time of the murder I was getting $3.50 a week, and the week right

Bands, Vehicles of Trade and Happy Clerks in Five-Mile 'Emancipation' Pageant.

The mammoth parade of the retail grocers and market men, marking the beginning of the Wednesday afternoon holidays for the employees of the members of the Retail Grocers' and Butchers' Association, started with a blare of trumpets Wednesday afternoon. Over 900 retail grocers and market men of Atlanta closed their doors for the afternoon, and the holiday spirit is rife among the 10,000 participants in the big event.

The parade began to form at 1:30 p. m. at the corner of Washington and East Mitchell Streets, and at 2 o'clock the march began down Washington Street to East Fair, where it turned into Brotherton Street to Whitehall and down Whitehall and Peachtree to North Avenue.

Turning at North Avenue, the paraders marched into West Peachtree and back up to West Baker Street, where they were reviewed by the grand marshals, assistant grand marshals and aides. After the review the line of march was to Five Points, where the parade disbanded.

Mayor Rides Behind Band.

At the head of the parade came the city policemen, followed by the grand marshals of the day, Harry L. Schlesinger and D. N. McCullough. They were followed by an auto truck carrying the Fifth Regiment Band, playing popular airs. Behind the band were Mayor Woodward and the members of last year's holiday committee in automobiles.

Next came the wagons of this year's holiday committee, escorted by Aides Cowan and Mosley and their assistants, Messers. Phillips, J. A. Word, H. A. Bishop and Ed R. Buchanan, on horseback and wearing red sashes and uniforms. The Marist College band, followed by H. Weinberg and his aides, heading the retail grocers and marketmen's wagons, was next in line.

Others in the march were packing house representatives, escorted by Chief Aide M. J. Burton and his corps of aides, the Greater Atlanta Boys' Club Band, handsome floats of the commission men and jobbers, under the escort of Chief Aide J. F. McNair, and Aides J. J. McCarthy, D. C. McNair, J. H. Walker, Willie Reisman and Miller M. White and Weidemeyer's Band, heading the wagons of the bakery and cracker manufacturers, which were under the escort of Chief Aide J. H. Merritt and Assistants J. N. Willis, L. C. Thompson and W. E. Baldwin.

Ice Wagons Come Next.

Next in the line of march came the ice wagons and ice manufacturers' wagons, escorted by Chief Aides C. J. McCoy and R. H. Comer and their ten assistants. The line was brought up by another band and a number of wagons of various trades—manufacturers, retail wagons, laundry wagons and others.

Candies, chewing gum, sandwiches and samples of various food products were distributed from the wagons along the line of march by the merchants and manufacturers. The thousands of people who turned out to see the parade were in no way disappointed. The various floats and unique costumes won many words of approval.

The parade was more than five miles long and more than 10,000 people took part in it. It was under the supervision of F. E. Kamper, chairman of the committee. The parade originated at a luncheon at the Piedmont Hotel last year, given to the members of the 1912 holiday committee of the Retail Grocers' Association. It was first suggested by Harry Schlesinger, and a movement for a Wednesday half-holiday during the months of June, July and August was launched.

Get 400 Signatures.

O. T. Camp, then chairman of the holiday committee, now president of the association, assisted by the city salesmen of the commission and jobbing houses of Atlanta, secured more than 400 signatures to an agreement to close at noon on Wednesdays during the summer months. All the local jobbing houses, commission men and meat packers have agreed to make no deliveries on Wednesday afternoons, and loaned their wagons and city salesmen to this week's parade.

The Atlanta and Montgomery ball teams were brought to Atlanta especially for to-day. The game was not to begin until 4 o'clock. The ball club made a flat donation toward the entertainment, and the association will get a percentage of the gate receipts on June 11.

Postmaster Dutro Of Memphis Fined

MEMPHIS, TENN., June 4.—Postmaster L. W. Dutro, of Memphis, today was found guilty of soliciting and accepting contributions for campaign funds by a jury in Federal Court.

Judge McCall fined him $1 and costs on each of four counts. Dutro has been postmaster here for fourteen years.

STRANGE AFFIDAVIT IS MADK BY FRANK'S COOK

after the murder I don't remember how much they paid me, and the next week they paid me $3.50, and the next week they paid me $6.50, and the next week they paid me $4, and the next week $4.

One week Mrs. Selig give me $5, but it wasn't for my work, and they didn't tell me what it was for.

They just said, "Here is $5, Minola," but, of course, I understood what they meant, but they didn't tell me anything at the time. I understood that it was a tip for me to keep quiet. They would tell me to mind how I talked, and Miss Lucile give me a hat.

Q. Is that the reason you didn't tell the Solicitor yesterday all about this, that Miss Lucile and the others had told you not to say anything about what had happened at home there? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Is that true? A. Yes, sir.

Q. And that is the reason why you would rather have been locked up last night than tell this? A. Yes, sir.

Q. Has Mr. Pickett or Mr. Cravens or Mr. Campbell or myself (Detective Starnes) influenced you in any way or threatened you in any way to make this statement? A. No, sir.

Q. You make it of your own free will and accord in their presence and in the presence of Mr. Gordon, your attorney? A. Yes, sir.

(Signed) MINOLA M'KNIGHT.

Sworn to and subscribed to before me this 3d day of June, 1913.

G. C. FEBUARY.

While police activities have been turned to this line of investigation, the negro sweeper, Jim Conley, has been given a rest. Chief of Detectives Lanford stated that the negro would be quizzed no more.

Cook Counted on by Defense.

"If he has not told the whole truth," said the Chief, "he will send for me within the next few days, I believe."

The cook is one of the five witnesses upon whom the defense has relied to prove that Frank returned home for luncheon at 1:20 o'clock the Saturday afternoon of the murder and that he therefore could not have been in the office dictating the notes at the time James Conley, the negro sweeper, set in his affidavit.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Selig and Mrs. Frank will be three of the other witnesses called by the defense to prove the time Frank arrived home from the factory on the fatal day. An acquaintance will tell of seeing Frank on the street car that day, and another will relate riding back to town with Frank.

The detectives attached the greatest importance to her affidavit. In the hope of breaking her down, Ernest H. Pickett, of 295 Rawson Street, and Roy L. Craven, 11 Campbell Street, both employees at the Beck & Gregg hardware store, were sent into the room with her to fire questions at her.

Albert McKnight, husband of Minola, also works for the Beck & Gregg concern, and is said to have told Pickett and Craven that his wife had confided to him that Frank did not arrive home at the time he testified before the Coroner's jury. The two men informed the officers of McKnight's statement, and as a result the woman was arrested. She was taken first before Solicitor Dorsey, where she hysterically denied that she ever had made such remarks to her husband. She declared that she had had a "fuss" with her husband, and that he was taking this means to get her into trouble.

Alibi Big Obstacle.

Unless the State is able to break down the alibis furnished by Frank in the manner attempted on the McKnight woman, the factory superintendent's movements will be accounted for practically every moment on the day of the tragedy.

Mary Phagan entered the factory at about 12:05 in the afternoon. It is to be presumed that it was about 12:10 by the time she had received her pay envelope and had made the inquiries about the metal. Five minutes later Lemmie Quinn came in the building. He went to the second floor, walked into the office and talked to Frank. This circumstance, the defense will be able to maintain, precludes the possibility that Frank could have committed the crime up to this time. Mary Phagan was not in the office at the time and the natural presumption would be that he had left and had gone downstairs.

Quinn left about 12:20. Half an hour later Frank was on the fourth floor talking to Harry Denham and Arthur White. This half hour is the only time of length that is unaccounted for in the movements of Frank during the time it is the theory that Mary Phagan was killed. And if Frank committed the deed at this time it would have been necessary for him to have her in hiding meantime. After letting Mrs. White out of the building at a few minutes of 1 o'clock, Frank's testimony is that he left the building himself at 1 o'clock, locking the door behind him. At 1:20 he was at home, according to the testimony of witnesses.

Mystery in Staple.

The theory of the defense, as outlined previously, is that Conley, lying in wait on the first floor, saw Mary Phagan coming down the stairs alone and attacked her. He is believed by those interested in the defense of Frank to have dropped the body of the stunned girl down the elevator shaft to the basement, where he completed his crime.

By the time he had disposed of the body and came back upstairs Frank had gone and locked the door, the contention will be. The negro was locked in the building with his crime if this theory is correct. His natural course would have been to run down into the basement again, pull the staple from the rear door and make his escape.

No plausible explanation has been offered for the removal of the staple from the basement door in any of the affidavits of the negro. By his own story, he and Frank returned to the second floor, wrote the notes and departed, Frank going out, so far as he knew, by the front door. There was no reason for him to go out any other way, if the negro's story is true.

Accepting the affidavits of Conley, the detectives were at loss for a time to explain the pulling of the staple. Then came the affidavit of the woman, Mrs. Mima Fomby, and the theory soon was evolved that Frank had pulled the staple later in the day so that he might remove the dead body from the building, place it in a cab and take it to the house of Mrs. Fomby, so that suspicion might be directed away from him.

Counsel Obtained.

The theory of the police is made to appear improbable by the fact that such an action, if Frank was guilty of the crime, would only have served to direct suspicion more certainly at him. The theory presumes that Frank first virtually took Conley into his confidence by getting Conley's aid in disposing of the body when there was no reason he could not have done it alone. Then it presumes that Frank proposed to run the risk of discovery by Newt Lee, who would have been aware, at least, of the damaging circumstances that Frank was in the factory after 6:30 o'clock in the evening at the time Frank swore he was home. On top of all this Frank would have had to taken a cab driver into his confidence, then Mrs. Fomby and any others who happened to be at her house, where they could observe the bringing of the dead body.

Both Conley and Minola McKnight, the servant girl, have obtained counsel. William M. Smith is acting in behalf of Conley, and George Gordon has been selected to represent the negress.

Widow of Diplomat Held as Auto Slayer

BRIDGEPORT, CONN., June 4.—Coroner Phelan, of Fairfield County, to-day began an official investigation of the death of William Stanhouser, a laborer, who was run down and killed by an automobile driven by Mrs. Stewart L. Woodford, widow of a former United States Minister to Spain.

Mrs. Woodford, who was arrested subsequently on a manslaughter charge, is ill from the nervous shock.

GIRLS WIN PRIZES WRITING ON FLIES

Chamber of Commerce Committee Judges Papers in Contest by Public School Pupils.

The Chamber of Commerce committee on health, appointed to award prizes to public school pupils writing the best compositions on fly prevention, made its report Wednesday awarding all prizes to girl pupils. Prizes were offered in the high school, in the seventh and eighth grades and the fifth and sixth grades; also in the seventh and eighth and in the fifth and sixth grades in the colored schools.

The Girls' High School prize went to Miss Alice Cooper, 155 Peeples Street.

Louise Woodruff, of 34 Cunningham Place, won the first prize in the seventh and eighth grade contest, while Elizabeth Vaughn, of 303 East Pine Street, took second honors.

In the fifth and sixth grades, Josephine Colbert, of 213 Cooper Street, received first award, while Grace Davis got the second honor.

In the colored schools the prizes were not all won by girls. Alice Keebler, 47 Bell Street, was first, and Adalina Ward, 69 Griffin Street, second in the seventh and eighth grade contest. Jimmie LeSueur, 43 Howell Street, was first and Mark Thomas, 452 Auburn Avenue, second in the fifth and sixth grades.

The committee making the awards was composed of L. E. Rogers and the following physicians: Claude A. Smith, Alex W. Stirling, S. W. Foster, A. H. Lindorme and A. F. Quillian.

BROYLES EXPLAINS 29-DAY SENTENCE

Necessary to Circumvent Mayor to Enforce Law Against Blind Tigers, He Says.

Declaring the interests of justice and the enforcement of the law demanded that he forestall Mayor Woodward's policy of pardoning convicted blind tigers, Recorder Nash Broyles Wednesday gave out a statement explaining why he has adopted the course of sentencing blind tigers to a term of 29 days in the stockade, instead of 30 days.

The Mayor can not interfere with a sentence of less than 30 days, Judge Broyles said:

"The views of Mayor Woodward and myself on the punishment of blind tigers seem to be at wide variance, judging by his attitude in pardoning several notorious lawbreakers after they had fought their cases through the courts and lost.

"I am determined to enforce the liquor laws so long as I ac Recorder, and to do this I find it necessary to take such cases out of the hands of the Mayor. Therefore, I have adopted this policy of sentencing blind tigers to terms of 28 days, instead of 30.

"This gives the lawbreaker the advantage of one day on his term, but at the same time it insures the serving of the sentence. It is better for the city and for justice that he serve one day less than the usual term than not to serve at all.

"There is but one sure way to awe lawbreakers, to insure the proper enforcement of law, and to protect society, and that is to make certain the punishment of criminals.

Fear That Aviator Is Lost on Lake Erie

SANDUSKY, OHIO, June 2.—Harry M. Atwood, an aviator, is believed to be lost on Lake Erie. He started to fly across the lake from Amherstburg, Canada, this morning in a hydroplane, and was due at Sandusky at 11:30. He has not arrived at 1:30 p. m.

He started to fly to Amherstburg last week, but met with a mishap and was towed to land after falling into the lake.

Factory Head Denies Plot to Dynamite

BOSTON, June 4.—Frederick E. Atteaux, president of the Atteaux Mills Supplies Company, this afternoon took the stand in his own defense at the trial of William M. Wood, Atteaux and Dennis M. Collins, on a charge of conspiracy to plant dynamite in Lawrence.

He denied John J. Breen's accusation that he suggested the plant and paid Breen $700 for his part in it.

Broyles Fines Six Taken in Vive Raid

Mrs. Lottie Hammond, of 149 Luckie Street, Wednesday is under bond of $500 as the result of a raid on her home by members of the police vice squad.

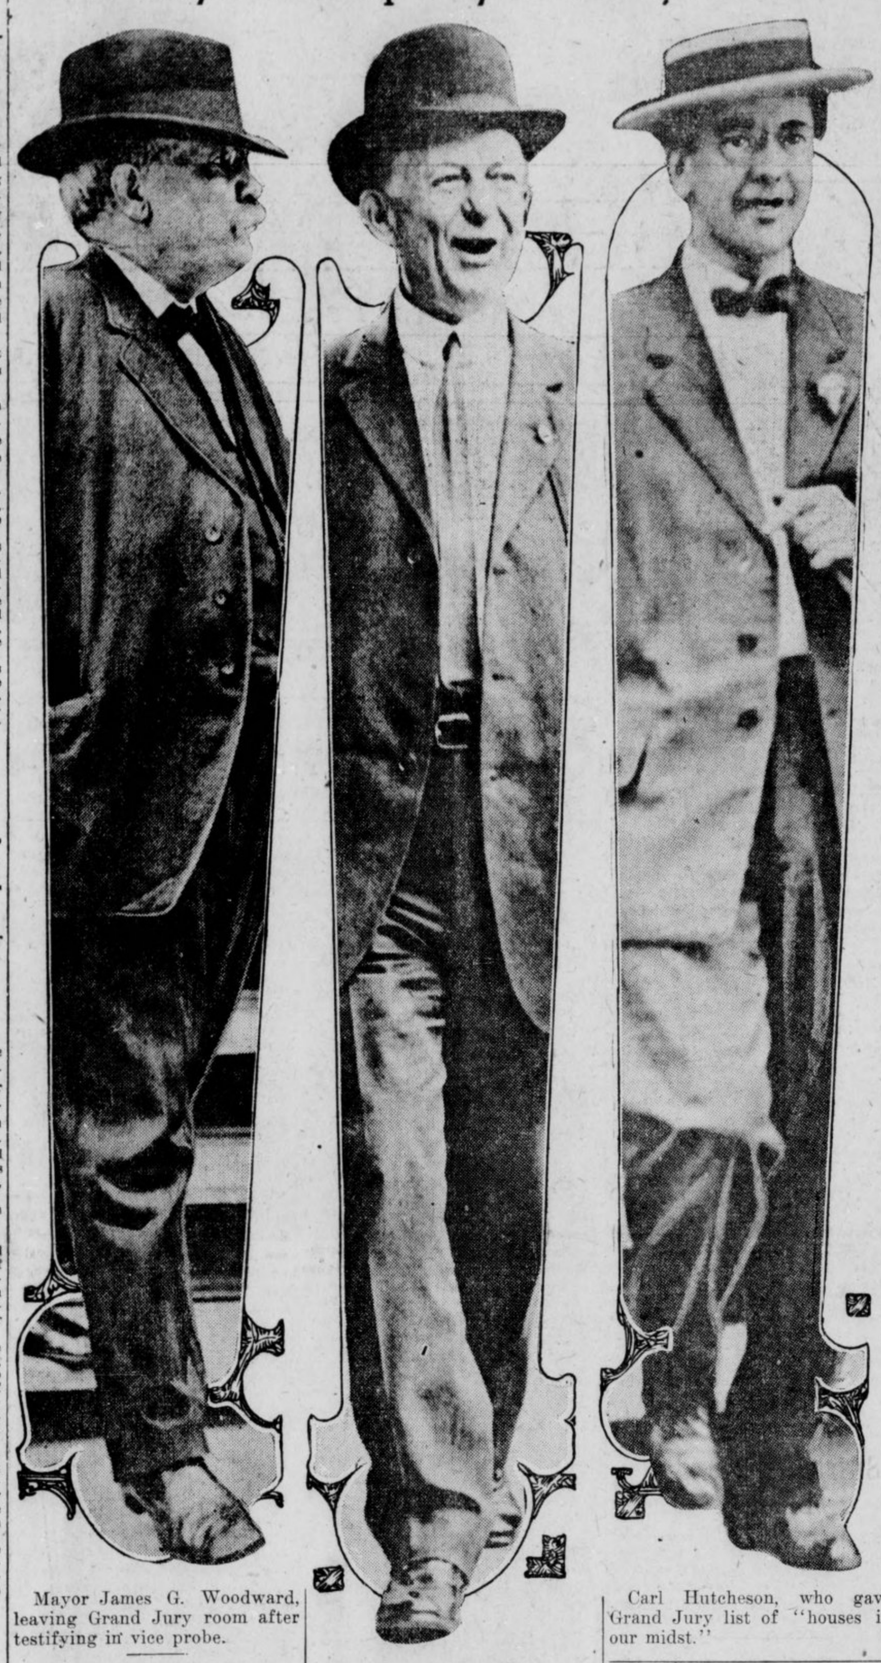

She was bound over by Recorder Broyles. Two other women and three men were arrested in the raid. All were fined $15.75 each.

Buster White, a 16-year-old girl, made a spectacular escape from the house and was chased by several of the officers. Later in the night she returned to the house and was arrested. The other woman gave her name as Bessie Thomas, a waitress.

To discuss the question of public markets for the city committees from the Chamber of Commerce and the Atlanta Improvement League will meet Friday afternoon a 5 o'clock at the Chamber of Commerce.

Felder Exonerates Beavers of Graft Charge

attempt to blacken his reputation; that justice to himself called for a speedy investigation; that participants in the affair be summoned and the matter settled.

Mr. Felder declared that the investigation Thursday would follow his own charges that the police had altered the dictograph record alleged to have been taken of his conversation with Colyar and Febuary at the Williams House.

The attorney has made the assertion that the record was elaborated by police officials from the chief of detectives' office and that in swearing to the truth of the conversation perjury had been committed. Mr. Felder averred that strenuous prosecution of this phase of the controversy would be made.

Call Colyar and Febuary.

As a result of the attorney's demands, the Grand Jury issued summonses for A. S. Colyar, Jr., author of the dictograph conspiracy, and G. C. Febuary, secretary to Detective Chief Lanford, who was alleged to have been offered bribe money by Felder, to appear Thursday.

Also to be heard on this subject at that time will be Chief Beavers and Chief Lanford. Documentary evidence will be introduced by the disputants and the matter of bribery decided upon by the Grand Jury before the vice investigation shall continue.

At Wednesday morning's session Colonel Felder was the only witness. Mr. Felder appeared before the Grand Jury with a large portfolio of papers pertaining to his allegations of corruption.

Felder Before Jury an Hour.

He went over the situation thoroughly before the Grand Jury, taking more than an hour in which to present his case. While the evidence which he placed before the hearing was not revealed, Colonel Felder intimated that it included affidavits from persons who have paid corruption money to the police in substantiation of the Hutcheson list of resorts now in operation.

Just preceding the opening of the morning session of the Grand Jury, Chief Beavers, Solicitor Dorsey and Detective Chief Lanford were closeted in conference. It was at the beginning of this that Mr. Felder declared himself regarding his charges. The attorney intercepted Chief Beavers as he was entering the Solicitor's private office.

"My accusations do not touch you, chief," said Mr. Felder. "I know that you are not mixed up in the shameful conditions which exist in Atlanta.

"My evidence points at another man the other chief at the police station. I have the proof against him and I am going to lay it bare at this investigation."

Near Open Clash.

At this moment Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford, the other chief at the police station, entered the room.

A silence pregnant with expectancy fell upon those present. Lanford walked directly over to where Felder was standing and took his seat. He was accompanied by Detective Black.

An encounter seemed imminent. Friends of both men declared later that they were keyed up to a dangerous pitch. Then the situation was relieved by the sudden appearance of Solicitor Dorsey and the conference between himself and the two chiefs was called.

A great many of the women whose names appeared as conducting the "houses in our midst," or hotel proprietors whom the young attorney alleged were paying for police protection, were served with subpenas as soon as Foreman L. H. Beck could arrange with the Solicitor's office for the service.

The list still is in the hands of the foreman. On it also are the names of persons whom it is alleged will make affidavits, or testify, that the allegations of the attorney are true. These, it is understood, may be summoned during the day.

Promises Thorough Probe.

Foreman Beck, who is conducting the probe independently of the State's prosecuting attorney, intimated before going into the executive session Wednesday morning that the probe would be one of the most extensive a Fulton grand jury ever has conducted.

He said the true conditions would be found out and the public acquainted with them at the proper time. He would not say whether the probe had progressed sufficiently to warrant returning indictments, but made it pretty plain that the jury would conclude its work when it completed the investigation and that the indictments, if any, would be brought at the request of the Solicitor, who would be made acquainted with the conditions.

"More than likely," he said, "we will embody the result of our investigation in the presentment and return it to Judge W. D. Ellis, who charged us so specifically to investigate vice conditions. Then if the people, or the officers, want to carry the matter further, it can take the customary course through the police or State officers."

Chief Lanford, Chief Beavers, Detective Black and Febuary were among the first arrivals Wednesday. Chief Beavers was anxious to go before the jury and tell what he knew of the vice conditions.

"Conditions are better in Atlanta to-day than they have ever been," he said, "and I am quite sure the Grand Jury will find it out. But if I am mistaken about it, I want to put my men to work. I am quite sure, however, it will be found the condition has been exaggerated. Of course nothing will come of the charges of corruption in my department."

Mrs. Nina Fomby, the only witness wanted for the Grand Jury Tuesday, it is understood, was telephoned and told to remain away until Wednesday. The idea of her having left the city was ridiculed by the Solicitor's office.

deliberately, with little of the emotion typical of her sex.

State Senator J. B. Conrad, of Glenwood, a wealthy banker, has been named acting president of the fertilizer company, but has not taken charge, being engaged in the legislative session at Tallahassee. In the meantime D. A. Morrison, Jr., secretary, is directing the company's affairs, advising with Miss Painter upon matters concerning the family's interest.

A secret meeting of the stockholders was held yesterday afternoon. It is said a 15 per cent dividend planned at this time was not declared because of Painter's death.

Painted a Self-made Man.

Painter was a self-made man, starting in business with a very limited education. As his daughter grew up he gave her a splendid education and depended on her where he was deficient. Painter was a real leader in Florida and Jacksonville. His word was accepted without question. As an evidence of his popularity he was elected one of the Jacksonville port commissioners in a recent election, receiving the third highest vote among fifteen candidates. This was his first political contest. He headed the Board of Trade's foreign committee. Last December he represented Jacksonville at the Panama Trade Conference held in Atlanta. He was active in charity enterprises, his favorite being the Children's Home Society.

It is said that one condition he exacted of the insurance agents who wrote his recent policies was that a percentage of the premiums go to this society, of which he was secretary.

The Painter case has brought to light a peculiar phase of Florida law. There is practically no penalty prescribed for the mutilation of a dead body before it is in the custody of the Coroner. The only punishment imposed is a misdemeanor for interfering with an officer in the discharge of his duties. Consequently, those who performed or instigated the hasty autopsy on Painter's body before the Coroner's jury had seen it were to all intents within the law, and no legal question as to their action is anticipated.

No Word From Baltimore.

Thus far Coroner C. D. Abbott has heard nothing of the results of the analysis ordered in Baltimore. He has directed that the report be sent to him through the Barnet National Bank, while Dr. P. C. Perry, representing the family, has contended that he is the proper one to receive it. He is now in Baltimore.

Coroner Abbott's authority in this case has been questioned because the body was recovered on the South Jacksonville side of the river and another coroner has jurisdiction there.

But it was landed on the Jacksonville side, and for that reason Coroner Abbott was notified. The Coroner's jury that viewed the remains of the body only after the autopsy was performed has had but one meeting since the day of the death, and is awaiting the report from Baltimore.

The investigation here is at a standstill. The insurance companies are now doing practically nothing pending the inquest verdict. No adjuster here professes to know what his company plans to do and the mystery is as unsolved to-day as it was a week or more ago.

LaGrange-Wesleyan Union Plan Dropped

LA GRANGE, GA., June 4.—The board of trustees of the LaGrange Female College last night called off negotiations looking to the merger of this institution with Wesleyan, at Macon, expressed their faith in this college and pledged themselves to raise an endowment fund of $100,000.

The LaGrange college has closed one of the most successful years in its history. The proposition of merging with Wesleyan was not looked upon with favor in this city.

MRS. GRACE AND OLDHAM SHOCK COATESVILLE

Hotel Keeper Asks for Room When He Finds They Are Not Married.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—Mrs. Daisy Opie Grace, who was acquitted in Atlanta of attempting to kill her husband, furnished the gossips two spicy morsels by announcing, first, that she was not the wife of Charles H. Oldham, and, second, that they expected to marry as soon as she gets her divorce.

Mrs. Grace made the announcements immediately following receipt of a request from David Martin that she vacate her apartments in the Swan Hotel, at Coatesville, of which Martin is proprietor. Oldham some time ago told acquaintances that Mrs. Grace had become his wife, and society matrons at Coatesville, believing that they were occupying the same apartments, were shocked beyond expression yesterday when they heard the ceremony was still in contemplation.

Mrs. Grace expressed amusement at the whole affair. She said she and Mr. Oldham went to Coatesville that she might avoid publicity attendant upon her divorce decree, which she expects any day, but that they occupied separate apartments. When the divorce is granted, she said, she and Mr. Oldham intend to marry.

"This is just a prying woman's work," said Mrs. Grace. "I am being watched by detectives, I know, and I was foolish to take on so many friends. Mr. Oldham and I are occupying separate apartments. I thought it was funny when he told some of his friends I was his wife. We will be married as soon as I get my divorce, which I am expecting any day now."

Just because the unfounded scandal talk was hurting Mr. Oldham's business, Mrs. Grace said, they intended to leave and go in different directions—she to the mountains and he somewhere else. Then when her divorce is granted they will be married, surely, and the gossips will have nothing to talk about.

10,215,000 Microbes Found in One Mud Pie

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LYONS, FRANCE, June 4.—A noted basteriologist of this city astonished his little son, whom a few days ago he found making mud pies. Curiosity led the father to take a pie home for examination.

He found 10,215,000 dangerous microbes in the few cubic inches of earth, classified as follows:

Diphtheria, 1,800,000; measles, 2,450,000; smallpox, 900,000; tetanus, 3,000,000; dysentery, 900,000; pneumonia, 575,000; tuberculosis, 620,000.

Friedmann Cure Is Given First Patient In South at Atlanta

The first patient to take the Friedmann tuberculosis treatment in the South, Mrs. J. G. Carpenter, of Lockhart, Ala., is awaiting in Atlanta Wednesday the result of an injection of the serum given by Dr. Julius Meyer, of the Friedmann institute, at the Kimball House.

The form of tuberculosis treated was spinal. It was understood that Mrs. Lockhart, who came to Atlanta with her husband, paid the physician a fee of $1,000 for the one injection.

Mr. Carpenter stated that he and his wife would return to Alabama at once and had not decided whether or not a second course of the treatment would be taken.

Germany and Prussia Floating New Loans

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

BERLIN, June 4.—Announcement that the Imperial and Prussian Governments are floating two more large public loans caused dismay in financial circles. The empire is borrowing $12,500,000 and Prussia $42,750,000 with interest at 4 per cent.

The loans redeemable in 1935 will both be issued June 12. The money is wanted for the extension of state railroads, particularly military strategic lines.

Shirley Kellogg a Bride in London

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 4.—Miss Shirley Kellogg, an Americus chorus girl, who at one time was reported engaged to "Diamond Jim" Brady, of New York, was quietly married to-day to Albert Pierrade Courville.

Miss Kellogg is a member of the chorus of a musical review at the Hippodrome, and her place may be taken by Evelyn Thaw, wife of Harry K. Thaw, who has been engaged to sing and dance there.

New Dances Require Rubber Sole Pomps

BOSTON, June 4.—The bunny hug and other dances, names too numerous to mention, have brought to manufacturers of pomps a demand for specialized designs.

To master this new art in the dancing world the smooth bottom slipper will not fill the bill; therefore several factories are working on a pomp with a leather bottom and a patch of rubber triangular or otherwise shaped.

John D. Defendant In $99,250,000 Suit

CORSICANA, TEXAS, June 4.—Attorneys for the Magnolia Petroleum Company admit that John D. Rockefeller and H. C. Folger, of New York, are large stockholders. The attorneys asserted that these men hold stock only as individuals.

The Magnolia and Standard Oil Companies and their subsidiaries and officials are sued for total penalties of $99,250,000.

I. W. W. Prisoners On Hunger Strike

PEORIA, ILL., June 4.—Ten members of the Industrial Workers of the World, in jail here awaiting trial on charges of conspiracy and rioting, were on a "hunger strike" in the county jail to-day.

For 72 hours none of the prisoners has touched food. Several of the "strikers" have fainted from weakness.

PLAN BILL GIVING INDEPENDENCE TO FILIPINOS

Measure, Expected To Be Presented First of Next Session, Approved by President.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Chairman Jones, of the House Insular Affairs Committee, announced to-day he would call his committee together next week to frame a bill, to be reported on the first day of the next session, to grant independence to the Philippine Islands. President Wilson still believes early action on this is necessary.

Jones declared to-day it was possible that the bill might pass the House at the present session, the Democratic caucus rule which restricts general legislation of the session to currency and tariff being subject to amendment at a separate caucus.

He declined to disclose the result of a conference he had with the President on this subject several days ago, but it was learned that the President asserted he was fully in sympathy with the principles of the Philippine bill which passed the house some time ago and which granted full independence to the Philippines after a period of eight years and qualified independence in the interim.

Sees Bar to Jap War.

"Independence for the Philippines," said Jones to-day, "would eliminate the chance of war between the United States and Japan. With the Philippines neutral territory, the Japanese would be less liable to rush into combat. They know that as long as the Philippines are in the possession of the United States, we would be under a handicap."

It was declared, however, that House Republicans would fight the Philippine measure.

"It would be a crime to surrender the islands," said Representative Kahn, of California. "The Filipinos who assisted us in the war with the revolutionists might meet a terrible fate. It is not long ago that they buried men alive in the Philippines."

Representative Shirley, of Kentucky, is one of the Democrats of the House who is opposed to early freedom for the islands. He argued against hasty and ill-advised action on this question.

"I am in favor of Filipino independence," Representative Kinkead, of New Jersey, Democrat, said, "but I am not prepared to indorse all of the features of the Jones bill."

Urges Careful Consideration.

"This is a very grave matter," said Senator Hitchcock, chairman of the Senate Philippine Committee, "and one which we must consider carefully before legislation giving the islanders independence is enacted."

Senator Lane, also a Democrat, stated: "I am for giving the Filipinos their liberty and I am willing to vote upon the matter at any time my colleagues get together."

"Although I have not talked the matter over with Chairman Hitchcock," said Senator Fletcher, ranking Democratic member of the committee, "it seems more than probable that extended hearings will be held on this question. We have assumed the guardianship of the Filipinos and we must look out for the future welfare of the islands."

U. S. Boys Touring World Stranded

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 4.—The forty-seven California boys who are being sent around the world by the Columbia Park Boys' Club of San Francisco, and who have been stranded here for a week, raised enough money to-day to continue their journey to-morrow.

Funds were raised through the efforts of Wallace Crismore, one of the boys who has unusual histrionic ability.

Bank Employees Go On Holiday Outing

Uneasy are the arms that work the adding machines, and the jovial slap on the back is a thing of the past in the banks, for Tuesday the Atlanta Chapter, American Institute of Banking, held its annual outing at Indian Springs. Bathing was the favorite amusement, and the sun got in its usual work—hence the sore arms in the bronze cages.

Music, dancing and dinner at the Wigwam, together with more or less "scrub" baseball, filled the day for the 95 bank employees and their guests, who went early Tuesday morning and returned at 8 o'clock in the evening. Special equipment was provided by the railroad.

Judge Finds "Most Dangerous Woman"

NEW YORK, June 4.—A big crowd of curious persons flocked to Judge Swann's room in criminal court to see Miss Geraldine Wingate, called by Judge Swann "The Most Dangerous Woman in New York," who it is charged used wayward girls to trap wealthy men for her own profit.

A subpena had been issued for Miss Wingate to come into court and explain why she caused the arrest of Joseph Rahoon May 7.

Marie Corelli Sues Actor as Plagiarist

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 4.—Marie Corelli, the famous English novelist, to-day secured an injunction against George Gray, a vaudeville artist, preventing him from presenting his sketch, "The People's King."

The complaint is that it is plagiarized from Miss Corelli's novel, "Temporal Power."

Diploma Costs Girl Student Her Eyes

CHICAGO, June 4.—Threatened with total blindness because of overstudy, Miss Maude Cooke, of Arkadelphia, Ark., a student at Northwestern University, to-day was excused from the final examinations.

Miss Cooke was in her junior year. She has been a zealous student, and as the result the sight of one of her eyes is entirely gone and the other is affected.

Deaf-Mutes to Give Playlet in Sign Talk

MACON, GA., June 4.—Delegates to the annual convention of the Georgia Association for the Deaf and Dumb here to-morrow and Friday will visit the Georgia Academy for the Blind, under the ciceronage of Joe Hill Hall and T. D. Tinsley, and Friday night will attend a playlet, all the lines of which will be "spoken" in the sign language.

About 200 delegates are expected.

4 of Leavenworth's Banker Colony Out

LEAVENWORTH, KANS., June 4.—Max P. Emerich, Paul C. Gall and Harry C. Prinzler, of Indianapolis, and W. J. Hogue, of San Angelo, Texas, members of the "Bankers' Colony" of the Federal Prison here, were released on parole to-day.

Emerich, Gall and Prinzler were sentenced to serve five years each in 1909.

TWO HELD AS SLAVERS.

ANNISTON, ALA., June 4.—Bert Rose and Carl Garrett, Anniston youths, have been arrested at Louisville, Ky., on a charge of violating the Mann act by taking Lillie Mae Gladden and Alice McElreath to that city for immoral purposes.

SENATOR POINTS OUT LOBBYIST AT INQUIRY

Lane Had Forgotten Name, but Wool Interests' Agent Supplies It Himself.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—S. W. McClure, who represents wool interests in Washington, was identified in person to-day as a lobbyist by Senator Lane, of Oregon, who was the first witness called to-day. He said that few men had called on him regarding the tariff except "the very handsome man sitting back there."

Senator Lane could not recall his name and, turning to McClure, said: "What is your name?" McClure laughed and gave his name.

Senator Lane observed that each of the interests seeking protection is out for itself.

"It's a case of the devil take the hindmost," he said. Senator McCumber said that he was interested in farming 1,600 acres of North Dakota land, which will be "seriously, almost disastrously affected by the pending bill."

Admits His Vote Activity.

He was the first Senator to admit that he had attempted to influence the votes of others.

"If there was anyone I thought I could influence on this bill I would do it just as quickly as I leave the witness stand," he said.

Senator MacCumber said he could not find a buyer for his farm since the Underwood bill was published. Senator Reed asked him to give his loss in dollars, but the witness could not.

Spreckels for Free Sugar.

Senator Newlands said that Claus Spreckels, of the National Refining Company, had talked to him about sugar. Spreckels favors free sugar, but admitted, said Senator Newlands, that the fairest thing was to reduce the duty to about one-half cent a pound.

The Senator said that Sidney Ballon, A. B. Baldwin, Henry T. Oxnard and Truman G. Palmer had talked to him about the same schedule. Senator Newlands declared sugar, wool, citrus fruits and raisins to be productions from which protection should be gradually removed.

Heflin, in Speech, Scores Suffrage

By HUGH S. MILLER.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—In a speech at the celebration of the birthday anniversary of Jefferson Davis last night, Representative Thomas Heflin, of Alabama, made the prayer that our women may be kept in the strait and narrow path and far from the ballot box." It would mean, he said, repudiation of the men. His remarks were applauded.

Mr. Heflin traced the prominent part played by the South in Revolutionary times, in the formation of the Republic and in its growth. He told how the Southern women had inspired the soldier in battle, ministered to him when he returned bleeding to his desolated home, and how she helped him to build up his shattered fortune.

It was at this point that Mr. Heflin, expressing confidence of the future of the country, said he much preferred to think of the women helping as they had so truly helped in the past, rather than to picture her making speeches from dry goods boxes.

ANNISTON GRADUATES.

ANNISTON, ALA., June 4.—Arthur Lee, Miss Dorothy Sterne, Miss Julia Blackwell, Miss Jimmie Ledbetter, Miss Cholly May House, Miss Margaret Britton and Miss Corinne Weaver were awarded diplomas from the Anniston High School.

Bacon for Pact To Guard Canal

WASHINGTON, June 4.—The pending treaty between the United States and Nicaragua, which will prevent any foreign nation from building a rival to the Panama Canal in that country and give the United States an excellent harbor and coaling station on the coast of Nicaragua, was discussed at a conference to-day by Secretary of State Bryan and Senator Bacon, of Georgia, chairman of the Committee on Foreign Relations.

Bacon is said to be strongly in favor of the pact. Terms now are being drawn up by representatives of the two Governments.

The treaty may be brought up for ratification in the Senate during the present extra session.

$425 Paid for Lee's Appomattox Speech

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—The original copy of General Robert E. Lee's farewell address to his army at Appomattox was sold for $425 yesterday at the sale of the collection of autographs and manuscripts of the late John Mills Hale, of Phillipsburg, Pa.

Among other autographs sold were those of Napoleon Bonaparte, $31; Marie Antoinette, $42, and Cardinal Richelieu, $50.

Still "put a sign in the window" when they have Rooms to Rent or Want Boarders, but the number of such people is constantly diminishing. In these modern times, when there are Rooms to rent or Boarders wanted, in hundreds of Atlanta Homes, the Want Ad columns of THE ATLANTA GEORGIAN are used. The "Furnished Rooms For Rent," "Rooms For Rent" and "Boarders Wanted" columns of The Georgian offer the best way to bring together those in search of the above.

BILL FRAMED TO HALT CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

Measure, Modeled After Successful Law, Gives Society Officers Power to Arrest.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

After weeks of revision and study, a bill for the prevention of cruelty to animals in Georgia has been framed by a well known member of the incoming Legislature, and will be introduced in the House soon after the General Assembly meets this month.

W. B. Barton, G. Noble Jones and Thomas Lynch, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in Georgia, compose the committee having the bill in hand for the Society. They will see that it is given attention in the early part of the coming session. No great opposition is anticipated.

Mr. Barton says that the new bill covers the field thoroughly and leaves no loophole through which possible offenders may escape. It is modeled after similar laws now in operation in New York and Virginia, and gives agents of the society full authority to make arrests, which Georgia's present law relating to this subject does not do. The S. P. C. A. in Georgia has been handicapped in its work thus far because of this omission in the present law.

"There is plenty of work for the society to do," said President Barton, discussing the matter in Atlanta today, "but the present law on the subject is very meager. The reasons why the societies of other states are so successful is that they have the proper laws back of them. Under the bill which we have framed, our agents will be authorized to make arrests and wear the uniform and badge of the society.

"I have no doubt that the law will be enacted this year. There was no objection to the bill we had before the legislature last year, which was very similar to this one. It was favorably reported by the judiciary committee of both houses, but it was so near the end of the session that the bill was lost in the rush of business, and did not come up for a vote. The bill has already been passed upon and interpreted by the courts of the State and we are not looking for any opposition from that source, or any other."

What promises to constitute the most fruitful branch of the S. P. C. A.'s Georgia work are the four bands of mercy recently organized by President Barton, among the school children of the State. These children are taught humane treatment of all dumb beasts, and are entering enthusiastically into the work. The bands now number 156 members, and are under the supervision of Mrs. Josephine Freeland, of Savannah.

Representative Frank Rhodes, of Clark County, near neighbor to all the territory concerned, is enthusiastically in favor of creating the proposed new county of Barrow, and speaks interestingly of the necessity thereof.

"Winder, which is one of the very best cities in all Georgia," said Mr. Rhodes, discussing the proposition today, "is now most unfortunately situated.

"Three counties corner in the town, and yet it is twenty good miles and more from the county seat of any one of the three. A big rock in the middle of the main street of Winder shows where the three counties—Gwinnett, Jackson and Walton—come together.

It frequently happens, as an example to the disadvantages Winder labors under, that an administrator having property to dispose of and handle in Winder, has to take out papers of administration in three counties in order to be able to meet the requirements of the law.

"The people of Winder are a unit practically for the new county, and there is little real opposition to the project anywhere. I know the conditions in Winder, and the surrounding territory, and I know the people need relief from a situation that is almost unendurable. I have talked with a number of members of the incoming house, moreover, and I believe the new county will be created.

"I am not a crank on the subject of new counties, but I expect to give my hearty support to Barrow, for I know it is a most deserving proposition. Indeed, I believe the Legislature would be doing a positive wrong not to create it.

"Territorially, and according to population and necessity, Barrow county has every claim to favorable legislative consideration."

Anticipating the coming of the Legislature within three weeks, Colonel Pierce Latimer, Keeper of Buildings and Grounds, is busy as he can be nowadays renovating and cleaning up the State Capitol.

During legislative recesses, the chambers of the two houses are visited only by occasional sightseers, and are about as lonesome as any place around the Capitol, if not more so. Consequently, it generally takes quite a good deal of brushing, sweeping, painting and fixing around in one way and another to get things in shape for the fifty days each year when the chambers serve a real purpose to the State.

When the gavels fall on the 25th day of this month, however, Mr. Latimer will have the houses fixed up after the fashion of Spotless Town, all right.

Governor-elect John M. Slaton is hard at work on his inaugural address and first message to the General Assembly.

Mr. Slaton is not giving out any idea of what subjects he will treat of in either utterance, however, and contents himself with informing inquirers that they will enjoy his messages more if they will await their official delivery.

The Governor-elect keeps regular hours at his offices in the Grant Building in Atlanta, and such time as he devotes to state documents is snatched from the time he spends at home.

After his inauguration, of course, the Governor-elect will abandon his law practice.

NOW WE'LL HAVE A WHISTLE WHERE WE USED TO HAVE CROW

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Dr. B. V. Calloway will shortly make experiments to try to put the "soft pedal" on the crowing of roosters. It is said it can be done by a simple operation of removing one of the fowl's vocal chords.—News Item.

Oh, I'm the guy that put the "sell in seizer.
And I put the "whiz" in whisky, too.
But when I took the "lick" from liquor
Everybody said that I was through.

But next I put the "sin" in Cincinnati;
("Oh, yes, I'm quite a booster)
And now that I'm a wee bit batty,
I'll take the crow from out the rooster.

Baby Girl Becomes Masonic Order Ward

BUFFALO, June 4.—With ceremonies used in this country for the first time since 1771, Ruth Katharine Daggett, baby daughter of Byron B. Daggett, was baptized at the Scottish Rite Cathedral here.

The ceremony made the baby a ward of the Lodge of Perfection and entitled her to the guardianship and protection of the Masonic fraternity in every part of the world.

"Gary Dinner" Held To Help Stem Panic

NEW YORK, June 4.—An explanation of the reasons for the famous "Gary dinner" during the 1907 panic was given by Judge Elbert H. Gary when he resumed testimony in the Government's dissolution suit.

Gary testified it was realized the price of steel was a barometer of business conditions. To prevent any demoralization of steel prices and forestall any further panic, Gary said, the dinners were given, after which steel manufacturers were exhorted to hold up the price of steel.

They were consigned to a firm of linen drapers in Tyrone.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

Keith Vaudeville at Forsyth.

It is mighty near a case of picking your own hit at the Forsyth this week. Of course Lillian Shaw is the headliner. And she makes good in that position. Jack Hazard was an unknown until Monday afternoon. He stated at the beginning that he was going to tell some stories. The audience was a bit restless, but pretty soon Hazard had the attention of everybody and when he bowed off after twenty minutes of talking he carried with him the biggest hit that has been registered by any monologist in the history of Atlanta.

Seldom's Models score a great big hit with their "Poems in Marble." There are two fine looking men and a beautiful woman in this act. They are, made up in white and pose in living reproductions of statues. The Three Alex who close the show present the most sensational act that has been seen on a local stage, and Wright and Dietrich score well in a singing and talking oddity that is very pleasing.

Tabloid Comedy at Bijou.

"The College Girls" at the Bijou promise to break the tabloid musical comedy record for attendance at the family theater. The show is a combination of pretty girls, good music and funny fellows.

The Bijou has come right to the front with its new policy and the house is being crowded at all performances.

OLD GUARD BACK FROM PEACE TOUR

Declare Last "Invasion" of North Most Successful in History of Organization.

Early trains from Savannah brought in the members of the Old Guard battalion, returning from their peace mission to Eastern cities.

The Old Guard's last entertainment of the tour was accorded them in Savannah by the Georgia Hussars. The company, upon its arrival from the North by steamship Tuesday, was met by the Hussars in full dress uniform and escorted to the DeSoto Hotel. During the afternoon they were driven about the city and county in automobiles.

A reception was tendered them in the evening at the Hussars' Club, when the Old Guard was received by the Mayor and Aldermen, the Chamber of Commerce, the Board of Trade, the Cotton Exchange, the First Regiment, the Savannah Volunteer Guards and the Chatham Artillery and a number of prominent citizens.

Members interviewed Wednesday morning upon their arrival in Atlanta declared the trip had been the most successful in the history of the organization.

Mrs. Wilcox Highly Honored in England

Mother's Advice To Her Daughter

A Real Live Doll to Fondle is Woman's Greatest Happiness.

One of the most important matters about which women concern themselves is their future status as a grandmother. And she is wisdom itself who knows of or learns of that famous remedy, Mother's Friend. This is an external application for the abdominal muscles and breasts. It certainly has a wonderful influence, allays all fear, banishes all pain, is a most grateful encouragement to the young, expectant mother, and permits her to go through the period happy in mind, free in body and thus destined to anticipate woman's greatest happiness as nature intended she should.

The action of Mother's Friend makes the muscles free, pliant and responsive to expansion. Thus all strain and tension upon the nerves and ligaments is avoided, and, in place of a period of discomfort and consequent dread, it is a season of calm repose and joyful expectation.

There is no nausea, no morning sickness, no nervous twitching, none of that constant strain known to so many women, hence Mother's Friend is really one of the greatest blessings that could be devised.

This splendid and certain remedy can be had of any druggist at $1.00 a bottle, and is sure to prove of inestimable value, not only upon the mother, but upon the health and future of the child. Write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 132 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their book to expectant mothers.

PURSESTRING OF WORLD DRAWS TIGHTER

American Corporations Able Only to Float $123,140,000 of New Securities in May.

By B. C. FORBES.

Only $123,140,00 of new securities were issued by American corporations during May. This is $81,577,000 short of the total for May, 1912.

Since January 1 the total output of bonds, notes and stocks by railroads, traction, industrial, mining and miscellaneous companies has been $766,913,000, a decrease of $465,357,000 as compared with the figure for the first five months of 1912.

Not one dollar's worth of railroad stock was floated during the whole of last month, a fact heavy with significance.

Five Months' Record.

The year's record of new issues, and comparisons with last year, reads as follows:

	Output.	Decrease.
January	$198,105,000	$142,895,000
February	132,362,000	185,470,000
March	148,829,000	1,621,000
April	164,477,000	53,788,000
May	123,140,000	81,577,000
	$776,913,000	$465,357,000

Financing is being postponed wherever possible. An unusually large proportion of the 1913 output has been for refunding operations or to pay off maturing obligations. The net addition to railroad and industrial capital outstanding has been much less than the total flotations of $766,913,000 would suggest.

And let me here state very emphatically that the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad receivership will render the raising of new capital doubly difficult, for security holders have had their faith gravely shaken. The European Market has been shocked by the extraordinary episode and threatens to boycott American issues unless foreign investors receive the fullest redress.

During May two-thirds of the country's new capital issues took the form of short date noes. This is a most unhealthy sign.

The railroads could find a market for less than $14,000,000 bonds, as contrasted with more than $55,000,000 in the corresponding month of last year. Notes were resorted to with such freedom that their total flotations reached $58,600,000.

Industrial corporations put out eight times as many notes and bonds and $20,000,000 more than a year ago.

The world's money markets are still uncomfortable at bottom. Superficial ease here and abroad may mislead those who are not familiar with what is going on under the surface.

Thos who try to raise capital—as distinct from temporary loans amply secured by Stock Exchange collateral—find how hard it is to obtain even moderate sums.

Dawn Still Delayed.

I have been calling attention for nine months to the basic monetary conditions throughout the world and urging extreme prudence in running into debt and in assuming avoidable obligations. Unfortunately, daylight cannot yet be descried.

It is to be hoped very fervently that Congress will take up currency legislation in earnest and provide, with all possible speed consistent with conservatism, the machinery for avoiding monetary stringency.

Meanwhile, a further decline in new capital issues and quieter trade should afford some relief preparatory to the fall demands for crop moving.

Before then, however, there may be a mild flurry abroad and at home before the enormous July 1 requirements can be financed.

The following is a detailed list of the new offerings in May:

LITTLE STORIES of the TOWN

But This Cat Didn't Have Nine Lives.

The tragic death of a cat has caused some very hard feelings in a prominent neighborhood of Atlanta. Also it has brought out in harsh contrast man's innate antipathy and woman's deep love for the little animals of the velvet paws. And while the cat has failed to reveal the proverbial nine lives, the incident of his death has immortalized him in the annals of gossip.

His history began at the recent pure food show when he won the blue ribbon. He was a blooded Persian and the property of one of Atlanta's most popular young women. His prize greatly endeared him to his mistress but when she sent a collect telegram to her father in New York telling him of the wonderful event the father winced and said, "Scat."

Innocent of his cunning neighbor, a blue jay built a nest in a tree in an adjoining back yard. The spoiled feline thought the birds his just prey, and they would have been except for the noise. Those birds fought a battle royal to protect their home early each day. And the fight grew more and more intolerable to the sleeping neighbors of the owners of the cat.

When sticks, old shoes and garden hose failed to dislodge the proud Persian from the tree of the bird nest one of the neighbors applied a parlor rifle.

He thought he had killed just an ordinary old alley Tom. But when he returned at lunch and found the beautiful young girl weeping over the dead body in the alley he knew that trouble was ahead. All that saved the situation was the father of the pet lover. He laughed in his sleeve that the purring beast was gone.

The names? Well, the neighborhood feeling is too acute. Gossip will have to give you that.

They All Asked Pay For Pulling Him Out.

A young Atlantan, whom his friends all envy because he owns an automobile, declares he should be pitied.

A few nights ago he went calling in Inman Park. Some boys found his car in the street and when the young man started to leave he was horrified to find his seat filled with horizontal pins.

On his way to town he rolled into one of the "rare" mud holes in Atlanta's streets and found himself securely stuck. He called a half-dozen loafing negroes to his rescue and when they had pulled him out he very nonchalantly requested them to call at his office next morning and he would pay them.

Congratulating himself that his experiences of the night before were things of the dead past he threw his feet over his desk next morning and lighted a cigar. A gentle knock at the door did not disturb him but when he looked around he threw up his hands.

The six big negroes had just filed in.

Jacobs' Liver Salt On Arising

and You'll Enjoy Your Breakfast

No appetite in the morning? Bilious? Headache? Best thing in the world for you is Jacobs' Liver Salt. Bad breath, biliousness, constipation, flatulence, daytime drowsiness, wakefulness at night, mean FOOD-POISONING. Undigested food, fermented, is doing out poison to the system.

Jacobs' Liver Salt instantly flushes the alimentary tract with water; sending a cleansing stream through it from all parts of the system. Packed, clogging matter is loosened and with the fermentation washed away, pressure is removed, liver and kidneys resume their natural cleansing processes of elimination. No forced action, as with calomel and severe purgatives; never a griping pain or nausea.

Take Jacobs' Liver Salt on arising. It is effervescent and stimulating. You feel better at once, good appetite for breakfast and good digestion; that dull heaviness vanishes and your brain is clear and quick. Keeps one up to the top notch.

Jacobs' Liver Salt is the business man's best stimulant. 25c, delivered anywhere.

SOCIETY LOUD IN ITS PRAISE OF PLAYERS

To the Players' Club Atlanta society is doffing its hat—and its bonnet.

In boudoir and in club, the topic of conversation was never swollen to such extremity of delight as that inspired by the presentation of "The Importance of Being Ernest" Tuesday evening by the Players' Club.

En masse the social world of Atlanta gathered at the Grand to view, be it said, with a critical eye its Thespian element in Oscar Wilde's excruciating farce.

The production was a splendid success.

Perhaps no greater compliment could be paid the Players' Club than that accorded by Miss Gladys Hanson, the Belasco star.

"It was wonderful," Miss Hanson exclaimed as she left the Grand. "I enjoyed every moment."

The play had to do with the infatuation of two young English girls, the Hon. Gwendolyn Fairfax and Cecily Cardew, for the name of Ernest. Yet, while each was vowing she would marry no man of another name, the first fell in love with John Worthington, J. P., and the other with Algernon Moncrief. Many complications ensued.

No dowager from "dear old London" could have wielded her lorgnette or English with more hauteur than did Mrs. John Marshall Slaton. As Lady Bracknell, whose dignity bowed only before Croesus, Mrs. Slaton proved herself more than an amateur before the footlights.

Mrs. William E. Owens, as Cecily Cardew, drew much praise. Her dainty, whimsical personality seemed to fall readily into line with her part.

Tall and stately, with not a whit less English appearance than the others, was Miss Hildreth Burton-Smith, who essayed the role of the Hon. Gwendolyn Fairfax. Miss Smith upheld with her statuesque presence the title which she bore and portrayed.

For love of the Hon. Gwendolyn, Marsh Adair, in the role of John Worthington, J. P., upheld the heavy part of the male cast of the play. In the trying situations into which the embroglio threw the drama, he forged great wreaths of excitement about him and threw them across the footlights into the audience.

Lamar Hill's juvenile role was well presented. He affected to a science the English attitude of calm and deliberation.

No less perfect than their masters and mistresses of the night were the underlings of the Manor House, Miss Prism, the governess, enacted by Mrs. Henry Bernard Scott; Merriman, the butler, by Tom Donaldson, and Lane, the manservant, by Frank Taylor. Hamilton Douglas, Jr., as the Rev. Cannon Chausuble, D. D., brought forth many laughs by his ecclesiastic timidity under the strain of events.

KING AND QUEEN SEE LONG SHOT WIN DERBY

Favorite, Finishing First by Head, Disqualified and Race Goes to Rank Outsider.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

EPSOM, ENGLAND, June 4.—By the disqualification to-day of Craganour, after he had finished ahead of a field of sixteen in the classic Derby, the blue ribbon event of the British turf went to a 100 to 1 shot by the name of Aboyeur. This horse, which was regarded as a rank outsider, is owned by A. P. Cunliffe.

Louvois, owned by W. Raphael, got second place, and Great Sport third. Nimbus was given fourth place. Craganour was a hot favorite at 6 to 4 and more than $1,000,000 had been wagered on him. The odds on Louvois were 10 to 1; on Nimbus, 9 to 1.

Craganour came in first by a head, while Aboyeur finished a neck in front of Louvois.

Reiff Guilty of Blocking.

Protest was lodged against Craganour for bumping. The stewards investigated and found Johnny Reiff, the American jockey, who rode Craganour, guilty of blocking the field.

Craganour is owned by C. Bowers Ismay. The disqualification of Craganour and the rearrangement of the show position in the summary caused great confusion in the betting ring.

This was the 133d Derby and it was witnessed by a record crowd. The King and Queen and a number of officials of the Court of St. James attended.

Daring Split Gowns Worn.

Daring French styles of dresses, which have become common at Longchamps and other French race courses, were seen, although it was noticed that the Queen's frock was simple almost to the point of being old-fashioned. Some of the women of the swagger set, however, wore split skirts that nearly revealed the wearers' knees.

Although there were no American horses running this absence was partly countered by the fact that four American jockeys rode in the race. They were Danny Maher, J. Reiff, M. Henry and W. O'Neill.

Extraordinary precautions have been taken to guard the Derby candidates on account of threats made by militant suffragettes to poison blooded horses. Special guards have been employed for weeks to guard the stables.

August Belmont had entered Vulcan VI, but did not arrive from France in time to take part. H. P. Whitney, Herman Duryea and other American turfmen had entered horses, but all scratched them for one reason or another. The Derby is worth approximately $50,000 to the winner. The distance is about a mile and a half. W. Raphael's Tagalis won the event last June.

FACE POWDER IS TABOO AT FETE BY ROYALTY

American Women to Take Prominent Part in Gorgeous Costume Ball in London.

LONDON, June 4.—Exclamations of dismay were heard in society circles here to-day when it became known that it will be considered incorrect for ladies attending the great historical costume ball, "A Fete at Versailles," to wear face powder. Inasmuch as representatives of most of the royal courts of Europe are to be present, and the event to be held at Albert Hall to-morrow is under the direct patronage of Queen Mary and the Queen Mother, society was forced to smile away its annoyance and comply.

The reason for taboo is that the use of powder as part of a lady's toilette did not come into fashion until after the periods of Louis XIV and the costume ball is supposed to be a reception by that monarch at Versailles. The fete is conducted in aid of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Society, and will be one of the most gorgeous balls ever given in London.

Lady Paget a Leader.

Lady Paget, an American, will have charge of the arrangements for the French Court, which is to receive all of the visiting royalty. Count Saumarakoff Elston will portray Louis XIV. Marie Therese, his Queen, who was the daughter of Philip IV of Spain, will be represented by the Countess of Dudley. Prince Paul of Servia will take the part of the Dauphine of France. Albert Paget will be the officer of the guard in close attendance upon Louis XIV.

Among the women in the Court of France will be Ladies Crewe, Desborough, Islington, Helen Vincent, Diana Manners, Castlereagh and Ingestre, the Baroness E. De Rothschild, Mrs. Cecil Bingham and Mrs. W. B. Leeds, the last two Americans. Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, famous English actor, will represent one of the cardinals.

Other American Women.

Other American women who will appear in costume are the Duchess of Marlborough, Lady Newborough, Mrs. Schwab and Mrs. James McDonald.

The costumes for the French Court will be most elaborate. Masculine attire reached the highwater mark of magnificence during 1680. The men in the Court will wear embroidered brocades, silks and satins, and in the seams of their coats will be sewn pearls and other jewels, all surmounted by enormous periwigs.

Wins His Degree in College Though Blind

Capital May Have First Eugenic Law

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Washington may be the first city in the United States to have a law making it necessary for men who wish to marry to produce a medical certificate before they can obtain a license.

Cuno H. Rudolph, Commissioner of the District of Columbia, is working out the plan for such a bill to be introduced in Congress.

Georgians Feast on 500-Pound Turtle

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 4.—A sea turtle weighing nearly 500 pounds and measuring 5 feet 6 inches from tip to tip was caught off the Isle of Palms by fishermen.

The huge creature ended its career in the Isle of Palms soup kettle, feeding many Georgians who came over for the feast. It was the largest turtle ever captured here.

Hail Destroys Crops In Eastern Alabama

GADSDEN, ALA., June 4.—Hail in different parts of Etowah County in the last 48 hours has caused heavy damage. In no place, though, was the path of the storm wide.

Near Gallant, Ala., after the storm had passed there was not a sign of vegetation on the ground where fields of cotton had flourished only a few minutes before.

BUYERS WELCOME PIANO CLUB PLAN

Georgian Advertising Campaign Proves Foresight of the Weatherholt Company.

That the player-piano is popular with people of Atlanta and the South is being demonstrated by T. E. Weatherholt, of the Weatherholt Piano Company, as a result of the big advertising campaign now being conducted in The Georgian and Hearst's Sunday American.

Before beginning the campaign, Mr. Weatherholt became convinced that the day of the ordinary piano was rapidly drawing to a close and that the time was not far distant when every lover of music would insist upon the player-piano. He said such an instrument was not only a player-piano, but a piano as well, and that with one of these in the home any member of the family could play.

He realized, though, the objection by many in the past had been the price. To overcome this objection, Mr. Weatherholt arranged his club plan, where 400 members co-operating together would have a tremendous purchasing power. In this way, he pointed out, he would be able to give a player-piano worth $650 for $488.50, on terms of $10 down and $2.50 per week.

To make the club plan more attractive, Mr. Weatherholt has arranged ten features, which include no interest on deferred payments, a ten-year guarantee, free life insurance, two-year conservatory course, selected bench, twelve rolls of music and the privilege of exchanging music as often as desired for other music in the Weatherholt free library of 5,000 rolls.

Hungarian Cabinet Quits; Deputies Riot

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

BUDAPEST, June 4.—A riot broke out to-day in the Lower Chamber of the Hungarian Parliament when the Premier announced the resignation of the Cabinet.

Members began fighting among themselves and the police had to be called in to eject the unruly ones.

L. & N. BRANDED AS INCONSISTENT

Alabama Counsel Declares Intra-State Business Is Exploited to Aid Long Hauls.

Since the Louisville and Nashville Railroad is carrying 80 per cent of its Alabama intrastate freight tonnage at a loss, it is not in position to come into court and demand that the remaining 20 per cent of freight and the passenger traffic shall yield profit on 100 per cent of its investment in Alabama.

This is one of the most important arguments advanced to-day by H. C. Selheimer, of Birmingham, arguing for Alabama in its fight to make the 2 1-2-cent passenger rate obligatory on the Louisville and Nashville.

He pointed out that 80 per cent of the freight traffic of the Louisville and Nashville inside the borders of the State consists of raw materials hauled from the mines and coke ovens to the Birmingham steel plants.

This business is done at a loss, when only intrastate traffic is considered. It is not a loss to the railroad as a whole, because the raw material issues from the Birmingham mills as finished steel, taking a much higher rate for long hauls in interstate business.

Mr. Selheimer declared it inconsistent to exploit intrastate business on one hand to fatten long-haul business; then on the other hand to demand that a fraction of intrastate business pay profits on the whole.

He also pointed out that the Atlantic Coast Line, Frisco, Illinois Central, Southern, Mobile and Ohio, Seaboard and Alabama Great Southern voluntarily put in a 2 1-2 cent fare. The Louisville and Nashville, the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis, the Central of Georgia and the Western of Alabama are fighting it. The roads contesting the cut are owned by the Louisville and Nashville virtually, while the Louisville and Nashville itself is owned by the Atlantic Coast Line.

Milton H. Smith Here for Famous Rate Battle

Shuns Reporters, but Photographer 'Gets Him'

Milton H. Smith, the veteran president of the L. and N. Railroad, who is in Atlanta,

This is the first picture of the noted railway head published in many years.

Veteran Head of L. & N. Bitterly Opposes State Interference in Railroad Affairs.

Milton H. Smith, the veteran president of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, is in Atlanta taking a leading part in the Alabama 2½-cent passenger rate fight in the Federal Court here.

While Mr. Smith is known to be bitterly opposed to State interference with the operation of railroads, he refused to make comment upon his own case.

Also, he showed his usual very decided antipathy for newspaper reporters and photographers. A picture was snapped of him in the lobby of the Piedmont Hotel. It is the first one published in many years.

"It generally costs money to get in the newspapers just what I want to say," said Mr. Smith, declining to be interviewed.

"Once in a while I send a statement to a paper, which, as a rule, is the answer to statements made by a public official. But mine generally come back with a nice little letter saying they will be glad to publish it at regular advertising rates. I can't see the fairness in it, but suppose it is because the other fellow happens to be a public official."

Mr. Smith merely smiled about the probable outcome of the injunction suit; he thought the country was in good condition; he smiled over what he thought of State Legislatures and Railroad Commissions generally; he smiled over the question of his opinion of Atlanta.

No more interesting figure in railroad circles can be found than Milton H. Smith. As head of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad he has developed it into one of the strongest systems in the United States.

ODDITIES —in the— DAY'S NEWS.

STUBBORNNESS COSTS HIM $10,000.—Rather than retract his vow not to pay a cow tax of $75, an Asheville, N. C., dairyman sold his $25,000 farm for $15,000.

POOR PICKINGS FOR LAWYERS. Penn Yan, N. Y., is no town for a lawyer. There is not a single civil or criminal case in Yale County undisposed of, and there will be no cases to be tried before the semi-annual term of the County Court this month. Yale County has a population of 108,700.

LONG LAUGH MAY COST MIND. Julius Jeswein, of Milwaukee, who had a 16-hour spell of laughing at a stage joke, may lose his mind for life. His doctors say that he imagines he is a magician and humorist.

WINDOW SCREEN SAVES A CHILD.—A window screen served as a parachute when Harry Burges, aged 2, fell against it and tumbled from the third story of his home in Passaic, N. J. He was uninjured.

BABY KILLS INFANT SISTER.—Tomaso Pezzano, 20 months old, of New York, is accused of killing his 2-day-old sister. Doctors declare he beat the infant to death in a fit of jealousy when she was placed in the bed beside him.

RESTORATION OF MEAT SUPPLY UP TO DIXIE

Cattle Tick Must Be Exterminated First, However, Says Department of Agriculture.

BY HUGH S. MILLER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4.—It is to the South that the nation must look for restoration of its meat supply, according to the department of agriculture.

"The South has great possibilities for the future as a cattle raising country, "says a bulletin issued by the department.

"Development of the cattle raising industry in the South, however, must await the extermination of the cattle tick. Fortunately this is being rapidly accomplished by the joint efforts of the Government and the States. The time has come when we must conserve our meat supply and take steps to increase it, and at the present remunerative prices for food animals it is probable that this will be gradually accomplished.

"The shortage in the supply of meat producing animals in the United States is steadily becoming more pronounced, and it is evident that the country is facing an era of short production of meat. In the last six years there has been a decline of over thirty per cent. in the number of beef cattle in the country, while the population and the consequent demand for meat has increased.

"The beef cattle in the country on Jan. 1, 1907, numbered 51,566,000; at the beginning of the present year the number was only 36,030,000. High prices were paid last year. For instance native steers brought $7.95 in Chicago, as against $6.50 the year before. We no longer have cattle for export and for the first time in our history the United States imported more in 1912 than it exported."

Close Adviser of Pope Pius Deranged

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ROME, June 4.—Cardinal Vives y Tuto, one of the three intimate advisers of Pope Pius X, is seriously ill. It became known to-day the Cardinal's mind has become affected and that he is suffering from a form of religious mania.

He has been taken to a monastery, where he is under the constant care of a physician.

American Students Lose Prize to Jap

CHICAGO, June 4.—Jiu-ji George Kasai, a Japanese member of the senior class of the University of Chicago, to-day received $100, a prize offered by Julius Rosenwald for the best orator in the class.

Kasai won over four American contestants for the prize. His subject was "The Mastery of the Pacific." He said there was no danger of war between the United States and Japan.

Augusta to Unveil Shaft to Walsh

AUGUSTA, GA., June 4.—The monument to Patrick Walsh, late Mayor of Augusta and United States Senator from Georgia and a well-known editor and publisher of the South, will be unveiled on June 20. Addresses will be made at the unveiling by Pleasant A. Stovall, of Savannah, and Clark Howell, of Atlanta.

The monument will stand on Barrett Plaza, immediately in front of the Union Depot.

DECATUR HAS ITS RECORD 'BIG DAY'

Home-Coming Celebration Draws Hundreds to See Cornerstone Laying and Ceremonies.

Decatur Wednesday is recovering from the biggest celebration in its history. Tuesday was "Homecoming Day" and the anniversary of the birth of Jefferson Davis. Both were observed with ceremonies. The city presented a gala attire and one round of entertainment followed another.

Many civic and patriotic organizations took part in a parade which followed the crowning feature of the day, the laying of the cornerstone of a new $25,000 school building. George W. Napier, past grand master of the Georgia Masons, presided. Orators were J. Howell Green, John A. Montgomery and Hooper Alexander.

Children of the Decatur public schools and Boy Scouts took an active part in the celebration. The Confederate monument on the South Court Square was the rallying place for the Pythagoras Masons and the Board of Trade.

Dr. A. M. Soule, of the State Agricultural College, opened the day's program at 10 o'clock, when he addressed a large crowd at the courthouse.

A patriotic address by C. M. Chandler on the life and work of Jefferson Davis struck a responsive chord.

Representative-elect R. M. Smith urged the Fifth District Agricultural School for DeKalb County.

A smoker at the courthouse at 6:30 o'clock gave Atlantans an opportunity to speak. Wilmer L. Moore, C. J. Haden, Walter G. Cooper, Forrest Adair, Alonzo M. Field, R. F. Gilliam, R. W. Parker and Mayor John A. Montgomery were the speakers.

Railroad Men Guests At the White House

WASHINGTON, June 4.—Fifteen hundred members of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Firemen and Engineers, in convention here, to-day were received by the President and Mrs. Wilson at the White House.

The President made a short address and the visit was brought to an end by a concert by the Marine band.

Case Against Cox by State Nearing Close

CINCINNATI, June 4.—It is expected that the State to-day will finish its side of the case against George B. Cox and four other former directors of the Cincinnati Trust Company, accused of violation of the State banking laws.

More evidence to support the charge that Cox and his associates canceled a note for $352,000 given by them to the bank before it was in fact paid was produced to-day.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Mrs. Louise Van Keuren, to-day shot and killed her husband, John B. Van Keuren, mistaking him for a burglar.

Her Doctor Recommended NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

While there are no thrills in the narration of Mrs. P. T. Nichols, 623 Broad Street, Beloit, Wis., her story is nevertheless one of amazing interest. "Stricken with neuralgia and erysipelas, I lost all my hair. My doctor recommended Newbro's Herpicide. I used six or eight bottles and now have a fine head of slightly curly brown hair. Not a gray hair in my head. This is the more remarkable as I am middle-aged."

While the results which follow the use of Newbro's Herpicide are always more or less astonishing, they are always natural. Herpicide destroys the dandruff, stimulates the flow of blood to the hair follicles and keeps the scalp perfectly healthy. It makes possible a natural and luxuriant growth of hair, except in cases of chronic baldness.

While remedies said to be "every bit as good" as Newbro's Herpicide are frequently offered, one should insist upon having "the original germ destroyer," Herpicide. This is genuine. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1 sizes is sold by all dealers, who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications may be obtained at good barber shops. Send 10c in postage for sample to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

King of Italy Hurls Bombs From Airship

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

ROME, June 4.—King Victor Emmanuel of Italy made a 45-minute flight to-day in a military dirigible balloon. During the flight bomb-throwing tests were made and the King insisted on hurling a number of dummy bombs at targets on the earth below.

Upon alighting, he said it was one of the most exhilirating experiences he ever had.

Piano Makers Fight Advertising Frauds

CLEVELAND, June 4.—Members of the National Piano Manufacturers' Association, holding a convention here, plan to place in every city of the United States an advertising referee.

The referee will pass on the merits of advertising offered to publications so that reputable piano dealers and the public will be protected from fraud.

Atlanta & Carolina Rail Plans Revised

AUGUSTA, GA., June 4.—A petition was filed with the City Council of Augusta at its meeting last night by the Atlanta and Carolina Railway Company asking for a franchise to use the streets of this city.

The road projected will be built from Atlanta via Athens to this city and will be operated by electricity. Power generated at Stevens Creek, above Augusta, and at Tallulah will be used. English money is backing the enterprise.

SLAIN BY POLICEMAN.

HUNTSVILLE, ALA., June 4.—Will Gibson, a cotton mill operative, who was shot by Policeman Mitchell Monday while resisting arrest, died last night.

Wife and I Are Friends of INSTANT POSTUM

"There's a Reason"

"I used to drink coffee—was nervous and irritable. Wife said so.

"So when the new food-drink, Instant Postum, came along she said to herself: 'Here's where I break Jack of the coffee habit.'

"Instant Postum is good stuff. I sleep better, smile more, and miss my indigestion."

A level teaspoonful of Instant Postum in an ordinary cup of hot water dissolves instantly and makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum (must be boiled).

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water.

MILITANT DYING IN ATTEMPT TO STOP DERBY

Woman Leaps and Grabs Bridle of King George's Racing Horse. Trampled Fatally.

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

EPSOM, ENGLAND, June 4.—A militant suffragette attempted to break up the great Derby at Epsom Downs to-day and nearly succeeded, with a tragical result.

Just as the horses were rounding Tattenheim corner a woman rushed from the side lines and seized the bridle of Anmer, a horse owned by King George. Anmer crashed heavily to the ground, hurling the jockey over his head. The woman was thrown beneath the hoofs of the plunging animal and was trampled fatally.

The thousands who saw the mishap were thrilled and shocked. It happened with lightning suddenness.

The woman spectator had crowded to a point as near the horses as she could possibly get. Several of the runners had flashed by, when she darted from the crowd. Anmer swerved as she jumped for the reins, but she managed to secure a firm grasp upon them.

As she fell a mighty shout went up from the grandstand and paddock. When the horse staggered to its feet women near the scene fainted at the sight of the two still forms.

The woman was identified as Emily Wilding Davidson, B. A., of London University, who has a police record in connection with suffrage violence. It was she who assaulted and seriously injured an aged clergyman last year when she mistook him for David Lloyd George, Chancellor of the British Exchequer.

The woman was taken to the hospital in a dying condition. It was first reported that she was dead. When doctors reached her side she was apparently lifeless, but strong restoratives were supplied and she rallied. It was said, however, that she could hardly survive the injuries.

Child, Given Choice, To Live With Bishop

NEW YORK, June 4.—Pretty Muriel Bishop, whose mother, Abigail Hancock Bishop, secured a divorce from her millionaire banker husband, James Cunningham Bishop, last week, to-day was awarded to the custody of her father.

Mrs. Bishop, fearful that the child would renounce her in favor of Mr. Bishop, did not attend the conference of lawyers in Justice Goff's chambers and sent word that she would consent to Muriel being in custody of her father if she (Mrs. Bishop) might be allowed to see her often.

Young Girl Favorite In Title Golf Play

GLENCOVE, N. Y., June 4.—When the second round of match play began this morning in the Woman's Fourteenth Metropolitan Golf Championship, the title was declared to be in as much doubt as before the qualifying round started.

The one best bet was thought to be Miss Marion Hollins, of New York, hardly more than a schoolgirl, who last year proved Metropolitan runner-up.

Atlanta Invites Baptists of U. S.

MUSKOGEE, OKLA., June 4.—The eighth annual session of the Sunday School Congress of the National Baptist Convention opened here to-day. Delegates came from every part of the United States.

Notable among those to arrive in Muskogee was the train bearing the officials of the Sunday School Congress with the Tennessee, Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia, New York, Florida and Mississippi delegations. It was known as the "Official Sunday School Congress Train."

Arrayed in Congress caps, a chorus consisting of 252 voices sang "Hail the Baptist Congress" as the train pulled in.

The first subject under discussion was "Interdenominational Sunday School, Organizations, National and International, Their Theoretical and Practical Value." There were a half-dozen papers read taking up this in detail. The next subject was "Why Should the Pastor and Church Urge the Organization of Teacher-Training Classes?"

Officers have labored to make the Congress the most brilliant Sunday school gathering in the history of the interdenomination.

It is not known just how many cities are clamoring for the next session, but it was learned from Henry A. Boyd, secretary, that invitations had been received from St. Louis, Atlanta, New York City, Atlantic City and Memphis.

Family Reunion.

The relatives, friends and descendants of the late Captain William Wright, of DeKalb County, will hold a reunion at Grant Park Friday, June 6, at 10 a. m., in honor of his oldest son and daughter, Frank F. Wright and Mrs. Thorpe, of Hope, Ark., who are guests of Captain and Mrs. James M. Wright, in West End.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis B. Magid and children are at their summer home, Camp Tugaloo, Tallulah Lodge, Ga., for the summer. Mr. and Mrs. Magid will leave September 1 for an extended trip through California and the West.

Miss Kate Baker has returned from a visit to Jacksonville. She is with Mrs. Fay Wilson, 37 Spruce Street.

Mr. S. Y. Tupper has returned from a two weeks' visit to Atlantic City and New York.

LIBERTY NEAR FOR STEVENS SUSPECTS

Sheriff Says Negroes Will Be Freed Next Week Unless Alibis Are Broken.

Sheriff J. A. McCurdy, of DeKalb County, stated Wednesday morning that unless additional evidence is unearthed soon, Walter Wilkes and Ernest Maynard, negroes, held on suspicion in the Stevens case, will be released by the first of next week.

"I have about concluded," said the Sheriff, "that the negroes know nothing of the murder, and that they are telling the truth. We have investigated carefully their stories of their whereabouts on the day and night of the murder, and have found evidence that induces the belief that they are telling the truth. Three witnesses have been found who swear that Wilkes stayed in Atlanta all Tuesday night, and the same number will swear the same about Maynard. It begins to look as though they had proved a complete alibi."

The investigations of Sheriff McCurdy and Detective Rosser, however, are by no means complete. Until the negroes are released they will spend their time trying to find a weak link in the alibis.

The theory of accident to account for the death of the two women is gaining ground steadily. Sheriff McCurdy declared to-day that the affair looks more like an accident all the time.

Health Aid Found in Trades by Experts

WASHINGTON, June 4.—But few people are aware that there are occupations that bring health, just as there are others that bring disease in their train. There is, for instance, the coal tar occupation.

Tar, with its strong, clean odor, acts as an antiseptic, and those who work in tar are immune to epidemic diseases. They are also robust. The feeble and anemic, taking up this trade in its various forms—the making of dyes, the preparation of disinfectant—soon become strong.

Steel workers also profit in health from their occupation. The molten steel gives off certain gases that have a beneficial effect on the lungs and nasal passages. Though subjected to extremes of heat, steel workers practically never get consumption or catarrh.

Bakers, if their bakeries are clean and airy follow a trade that fattens the veriest skeletons. Butchers are noted for their ruddy, robust build, they, like the bakers, seeming to absorb through their pores the nutriment they work in. Chocolate and cocoa makers in like manner are stout, healthy folk.

STEWART MAIDEN LEAVES FOR TRIP TO SCOTLAND

Stewart Maiden, professional golfer of the Atlanta Athletic Club, will leave Sunday afternoon for New York, from where he will sail for England. He plans to go direct to his old home in Scotland and will visit there for a month. He will then return to take up his work at East Lake.

While Maiden is away Willie Mann will act as professional at the A. A. C.

Auto Victim Lives With Broken Back

KOKOMO, IND., June 4.—The condition of Russell Gifford, whose back was broken in an automobile accident near this city, 18 days ago, is puzzling the physicians. Immediately after Gifford was taken to the hospital, it was announced that he had practicallly no chance to live longer than a few hours.

The fifth, seventh and ninth vertebrae were crushed and dislocated. It seemed certain the spinal cord had been injured and that death would come in a little while. Gifford is paralyzed from his chest down and has only the slightest use of his arms.

It is said that there is no similar case on record where the person injured lived more than 14 days. The physicians are beginning to think that Gifford's spinal cord escaped serious injury, and they say that if they can keep him nourished a little while longer, they have hopes he will live and recover, in part at least, the use of his body.

$3,000,000 Is Left To Girl Bookkeeper

Beneficiary Deplores Fact That Good Fortune Was Made Public Before She Actually Received Money.

READING, PA., June 4.—Miss Nora Wade, aged twenty-three, who is employed as a bookkeeper in a box factory here, and her mother, residing at Wilmington, Del., have fallen heirs to a large fortune bequeathed to them by the father of the latter, who died in England two years ago, leaving an estate said to be valued at $3,000,000.

Admitting that she and her mother had been made legatees in the will of her grandfather, Miss Wade refused to discuss the matter further when interviewed here. She deplored the fast that the story had leaked out, declaring that she preferred that final settlement be made before the public was apprised of her good fortune. She has a sister in Wilmington, Del., and a brother whose whereabouts are unknown.

The World of Society

Mrs. Charles T. Hopkins, Jr., whose marriage was a recent notable event and who is being tendered a series of parties since her return from her wedding journey, was given a luncheon Wednesday by Miss Annie Lee McKenzie at "The Pines," the residence of Miss McKenzie's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George M. McKenzie, at Brookwood. Twelve young matrons were present.

The decorations throughout the house were of sweetpeas, and the luncheon table had a large plateau of lavender sweetpeas, with large silver candelabra rising from the center. At either end of the table stood Marie Antoinette baskets filled with lavender sweetpeas, and the place cards were hand-painted in graceful minuet dancers, gowned in lavender. A cloth of fillet lace and embroidery covered the table, and the minor details were lavender and white.

Miss McKenzie wore a beautiful toilet of white embroidered net over white satin, combined with linene lace and finished with a blue sash caught in front with a large bow.

Mrs. Hopkins wore a suit of blue linen, the short cutaway coat opening over a blouse of embroidered cotton crepe. The collar and cuffs were of black satin, which also formed the girdle, and the toilet was completed by a hat of black straw, adorned with peacock feathers.

Mrs. Carpenter Entertains.

Mrs. Guy Carpenter entertained eight guests at a bridge luncheon Wednesday for Mrs. Paul Seydel, of New York, and Mrs. Edmund Berkely of Richmond, Va. Pink sweetpeas formed the decorations and hand-embroidered handkerchiefs were prizes.

Mrs. Keppel Regains Prestige

London's Most Popular Woman

Edward's Friend Wins Test Vote

Mrs. George Keppel.

King George and Queen Mary Ask Society Favorite to Remain in London.

LONDON, June 4.—Mrs. George Keppel, who was practically banished from London after the death of King Edward, it was learned to-day, has again been declared the most popular woman in London society. During a restaurant dinner "paper games," which are now the rage in London, were started. In one of the games the question was asked:

"Who is the most popular woman in London?"

When the answers were opened and counted 19 out of the 22 guests had written the name of Mrs. George Keppel.

It is said to be the wish of King George and Queen Mary that Mr. and Mrs. Keppel, who had planned to spend the summer on the Continent, remain in London.

Mrs. Webb Hostess.

Mrs. Guy Webb gave a lovely reception Wednesday afternoon for Miss Marie Wright, a bride-elect; Miss Willie Knox, of Social Circle, and Mrs. Paul Weeks, who was Miss Ruth Knox before her recent wedding. Pink and white sweetpeas in the form of a pyramid decorated the tea table and roses and daisies were used in the reception rooms. Miss Margaret Brantly served punch and Misses Lucile Moore, Elizabeth Moore, Corrie Weeks, Georgia Weeks and Ruth Harris served the ices.

Mrs. Webb was assisted in receiving by Mrs. H. W. Cantrelle, Mrs. H. F. Cole, Mrs. W. H. F. Hamilton, Mrs. T. O. Poole, Mrs. C. M. Trippe, Mrs. O. G. Kelly and Mrs. J. M. Wright.

Mrs Webb was gowned in blue charmeuse draped with marquisette; Miss Knox wore white crepe de chine and lace, while Mrs. Weeks was lovely in blue crepe de chine, the skirt draped with chiffon crepe over shadow lace. Miss Wright wore white embroidered marquisette.

Robinson-Steele.

Mrs. Dale Neer Robinson and Mr. Alvin Steele were married quietly Wednesday afternoon at the home of the bride's brother, Mr. Homer Neer, on Eighth Street. Dr. Hughlett, of St. Mark Church, officiated, and the attendants included the bride's sister, Miss Lelia Neer, as maid of honor, and Mr. Leo Spencer, as best man.

The bride entered with her brother, Mr. Homer Neer, who gave her away. She was preceded by a group of little ribbon-bearers in dainty lingerie frocks—Misses Charlotte Meador, Doris Starnes, Sara Schane and Mary Ingram, of Apalachicola, Fla.

Palms and ferns with vases of pink roses adorned the apartments, the bridal party being grouped before a bank of palms in the living room. The bride wore a traveling costume of wine-colored rep, embroidered in blue and orange, worn with a blouse of white lace, and hat to match, laden with shaded roses. She carried an arm bouquet of bride roses and valley lilies.

The maid of honor wore white lingerie with pink sash and girdle, with a leghorn hat adorned with roses. Her flowers were pink roses.

An informal reception followed the ceremony, when the relatives and close friends were entertained.

After June 15 Mr. and Mrs. Steele will be at home at 24 East Eighth Street.

City Federation to Meet.

The part Atlanta women are playing in the crystallization of a higher civic ideal here will be still more fully demonstrated at the annual meeting of the City Federation Friday at the Woman's Club House in Baker Street.

An all-day session, beginning at 10 o'clock, will be devoted to philanthropic, ethical and civic movements fostered by the City Federation. The meeting will be full of interest. Anyone wishing to introduce resolutions will communicate with Mrs. James Jackson, chairman of the resolutions committee. Matters of public welfare can be arranged for by telephoning the president, Mrs. Charles Haden.

The executive board, composed of the presidents of all the clubs, chairman of all committees and officers of the federation, will meet at 9:45 o'clock.

Lawn Fete at Nobles Home.

The members of St. Mary's Guild of St. Philip's Cathedral will give a lawn festival at the residence of Dr. and Mrs. George H. Noble, 980 Peachtree Street, Friday, from 4 to 9 p. m., when home-made cakes and candies will be for sale. There will be fortune telling, a grab bag and other attractions. Among the members of the guild are Misses Emma Sharpe, Annie Barnwell, Ethel Noble, Mildred Noble, Mary King and Abigail Stockbridge.

Miss Hay to Entertain.

Miss Minnie Lee Hay will entertain at the first of a series of auction bridge parties Thursday afternoon.

Mrs. Warren White entertained at a reception Wednesday afternoon in honor of her daughter, Mrs. Daniel Glasgow, of Tyrone, Pa.; her sister, Mrs. Robert Hall, Washington, and Miss Lina Andrews, a bride-elect. Palms, ferns and Killarney roses were used in the decorations. A large basket of the roses graced the tea table, where the details were in pink. Pink sweetpeas were effectively used in the reception rooms.

Mrs. White was assisted by Mrs. George Andrews, Mrs. Frank Markel, Mrs. John R. Wilkinson, Mrs. S. C. Dobbs, Mrs. W. A. Candler, Mrs. John R. Dickey, Mrs. Fay Wilson, Mrs. W. M. Fain, Mrs. R. C. Turner, Misses Kate Baker, Pauline Norman, Jennie Sue Bell and Annie Mae Patterson. Punch was served by Misses Mildred Harris and Lois Pattillo.

Mrs. White was gowned in lavender crepe de chine. Mrs. Glasgow wore caracmacross lace over white satin. Mrs. Hall was in a white crepe meteor draped in princess lace, and Miss Andrews wore a Nell rose charmeuse, effectively combined with lace.

Young People's Party.

Mrs. Eugene Mitchell will entertain 40 young people at a heart dice party Friday afternoon for her young daughter, Miss Margaret Mitchell.

Scott-MacIntyre.

The marriage of Miss Marie MacIntyre and Mr. John Scott was solemnized Wednesday at noon, at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. I. MacIntyre, "Glenn O," on Peachtree Road. Attendants were the bride's sister, Miss Julia MacIntyre, as maid of honor, and Mr. Robert Scott as best man. Dr. Hughlett of St. Mark Church officiated.

The bridal party stood before a bank of palms, the bride wearing a smart costume of blue crepe de chine, the coat opening over a blouse of the same material, embroidered in shades of brown. Brown shoes, a brown hat and gloves completed the toilet. A shower bouquet of valley lilies was carried.

The maid of honor wore white embroidered crepe, with a leghorn hat adorned with pink roses. She carried pink roses. Misses Lois and Margaret MacIntyre, the bride's sisters, were ribbon-bearers. They wore lacy white frocks.

A wedding breakfast was served. The decorations throughout the house were of sweetpeas and greenery. Misses Effie Roberts and Nell Candler served punch.

Mr. Scott and his bride went on a wedding trip East. They will go to housekeeping in the bridegroom's home in Decatur.

The bride's traveling suit was of blue serge, with hat to match.

Matthews-Sisson.

A quiet wedding was that of Miss Mary Sisson to Dr. O. H. Matthews Wednesday morning at 10 o'clock at the Jackson Hill Baptist Church. Only a few intimate friends were present. Dr. and Mrs. Matthews left for a journey to the mountains of North Carolina. They will be at home at 500 North Jackson Street.

PERSONALS

Miss Elizabeth Dunson and Miss Van McKinnon have returned from Chattanooga, where they have been entertained as guests of Mrs. Walter Bishop Davis. Several affairs were given in their honor. Mrs. Davis entertained at a dinner-dance.

Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Corydon Lyle have issued invitations to the marriage of their sister, Miss Anne Elizabeth Lyle, to Mr. Marion S. Harper, Wednesday, June 18, at 8:30 o'clock, at St. Mark Church. A reception at 309 West Peachtree Street will follow the ceremony.

Mrs. Rees Marshall and young son will go for a month's visit to Miss Madge Bannigan at her summer home at Narragansett Pier.

Miss Harrie Stockdell has returned to Athens, after visiting Mrs. C. A. Wood and Mrs. Harry English.

THE WOMAN THOU GAVEST ME

An Extract from this great story, now running in Hearst's Magazine, which is the talk of the country---the most virile and daring novel ever penned by this famous author. Read the synopsis and installment, and then continue it in Hearst's Magazine for June, which has just been issued from the press.

Author of "The Christian," "The Prodigal Son," Etc., Etc.

Illustrated by Frank Craig

HALL CAINE.

Copyright, 1913, by Hearst's Magazine—Copyrighted in Great Britain.

Mary O'Neill, the heroine of this great story. In "The Woman Thou Gavest Me" is contained the true story of Mary O'Neill, told by herself and written from her memoranda. Forced into a loveless marriage with the profligate Lord Raa, Mary is despondent and later terrified to find that she has fallen desperately in love with an old play-fellow. Read how she fights against temptation, only to be overcome with her overwhelming love for this man. This is the story you have been hearing about and the one that has created such a sensation throughout the country. Mr. Caine has not minced words in discussing the true-to-life situations that continually occur in his novel, but paints word-pictures of living truths that drive their lessons home.

Full Synopsis of Previous Chapters.

DANIEL O'NEILL, a powerful, self-made man, forces his only daughter, Mary, into a loveless marriage with the impecunious and profligate Lord Raa, so that his ambition to have his descendants the rightful heirs of the one earldom in Ellan may be realized. Mary, a convent-raised young woman, whose happiness is supposed to follow her father's dictates, dares to hope that her loveless union with this ungodly man may be purged of all its sordidness by the sacred sacrament through which she and her husband have just passed. That this hope is unfounded the events of their first evening together soon prove to her. Shocked to discover his lordship to be a man of sordid, sensual passions, Lady Raa refuses utterly to have anything to do with her husband until such time as he can prove himself worthy of her love. During the honeymoon abroad Alma Lier, a divorcee who had been expelled from the convent Mary attended in Rome, attaches herself to the party, and makes the "honeymoon trip" a long series of slights and insults for Lady Raa.

At last Lady Raa becomes certain of the infidelity of her husband and of his misconduct with Alma Lier. On her return to London Mary encounters her old play-fellow, Martin Conrad, who has returned from his triumphant expedition to the Antarctic. Drawn into ever-closer relations with the only man for whose friendship she had ever cared, Mary finally awakes to the fact that she is hopelessly in love with Martin. Terrified by this knowledge, and finding herself more and more in love with Martin, she determines to run away from the cause of her distress, and go home.

Mary's home-coming to Castle Raa is a sad affair. Her husband fills the rumble-down old mansion with his fast friends from London, including Alma Lier, who assumes control of the household. Ultimately the illness of her father offers Mary excuse for escape from the intolerable environment. But before visiting her old home Mary appeals in turn to her Bishop and to he father's lawyer, only to be told that neither Church nor State can offer any relief from her false position. Eventually she consults Father Dan, telling him that she can no longer live with her unfaithful husband, but his counsel is that she cleave to the Church and give up Martin Conrad. She returns next day to Castle Raa to find that Martin is arriving for a farewell visit, and that by Alma Lier's deceitful scheming the whole house party has gone off for a few days' cruise.

During her three days alone with her lover Mary fights a grim battle with temptation, only to find on the last night that her faith in renunciation and the laws of the Church is a fragile thing compared with her overwhelming love for this pure-hearted man. With Martin's passionate words, "You are my real life, I am your real husband," ringing in her brain she forgets everything else, and with strong steps walks across the corridor to Martin's bedroom. This is the action which Martin has advised as being the only course open to them which is sure to bring the one result they are determined to attain—Mary's divorce from Lord Raa.

Mary determines, after the departure of Martin Conrad, to sink her identity in the whirlpool of London. She is driven by fear of Lord Raa's discovery of her unfaithfulness to him; she is equally afraid of the venomous tongue of Alma Lier. Mary books passage for Liverpool on the midnight steamer, traveling in the steering to further guard her flight.

Alone in London.

AT eight o'clock next morning I was in the train leaving Liverpool for London. I had selected a second-class compartment labelled: "For Ladies," and my only traveling companion was a tall, fair woman, in a seal skin coat and a very large black hat. She had filled the carriage with the warm odor of eau-de-cologne and the racks on both sides with her luggage, which chiefly consisted of ladies' hat boxes of various shapes and sizes.

Hardly had we started when I realized that she was a very loquacious and expensive person.

Was I going all the way? Yes? Did I live in Liverpool? No? In London, perhaps? No? Probably I lived in the country? Yes? That was charming, the country being so lovely.

"Any friends in London?"

"No."

"None whatever?"

"None whatever.

"But won't you be lonely by yourself in London?"

"A little lonely, perhaps."

Being satisfied with what she had found out about me, my traveling companion (probably from the mere love of talking) told me something about herself.

She was a fashionable milliner and had a shop in the West End of London. Occasionally she made personal visits to the provinces to take orders from the leading shopkeepers, but during the season she found it more profitable to remain in town, where her connection was large, among people who could pay the highest prices.

By this time we had reached Crewe, and as there was some delay in getting into the station, my traveling companion put her head out of the window to inquire the cause.

"I see what it is," she said. "The shooting season is over, and the society people are coming down from the moors. I know lots and lots of them. They are my best customers—the gentlemen at all events."

"The gentlemen?"

"Why, yes," she said with a little laugh.

After some shunting our Liverpool carriages were coupled to the Scotch train and run into the station, where a number of gentlemen in knickerbockers and cloth caps were strolling about the platform.

My companion seemed to know them all, and gave them their names, generally their Christian names, and often their familiar ones.

She Dodges Her Husband's Friend.

Suddenly I had a shock. A tall man, whose figure I recognized, passed close by our carriage, and I had only time to conceal myself from observation behind the curtain of the window.

"Hello!" cried my companion. "There's Teddy Eastcliff. He married Camilla, the Russian dancer. They first met in my shop, I may tell you."

I was feeling hot and cold by turns, but a thick veil must have hidden my confusion, for after we left Crewe my companion, becoming still more confidential, talked for a long time about her aristocratic customers, and I caught a glimpse of a life that was on the verge of a kind of fashionable Bohemia.

More than once I recognized my husband's friends among the number of her clients, and trembling lest my husband himself should become a subject of discussion, I made the excuse of a headache to close my eyes and be silent.

My companion thereupon slept, very soundly and rather audibly, from Rugby to Willesden, where, awakening with a start while the tickets were being collected, she first covered her face by her fashionglass, and then interested herself afresh in my own affairs.

"Did you say, my dear, that you have no friends in London?"

I repeated that I had none.

"Then you will go to a hotel, I suppose?"

I answered that I should have to look for something less expensive.

"In that case," she said, "I think I know something that will suit you exactly."

It was a quiet boarding establishment in Bloomsbury—comfortable house, reasonable terms, and, above all, perfectly respectable. In fact, it was kept by her own sister, and if I liked she would take me along in her cab and drop me at the door. Should she?

Looking back at that moment I cannot but wonder that after what I had heard I did not fear discovery. But during the silence of the last hour I had been feeling more than ever weak and helpless, so that when my companion offered me a shelter in that great, noisy, bewildering city in which I had intended to hide myself, but now feared I might be submerged and lost, with a willing, if not a cheerful heart, I accepted.

She Arrives at Her New Home.

Half an hour afterward our cab drew up in a street off Russell Square at a rather grimy looking house which stood at the corner of another and smaller square that was shut off by an iron railing.

The door was opened by a young waiter of 16 or 17 years, who was wearing a greasy dress suit and a solid shirt front.

My companion pushed into the hall, I followed her, and almost at the same moment a still larger and perhaps grosser woman than my friend, with the same features and complexion, came out of a room to the left with a serviette in her hand.

"Sophie!"

"Jane," cried my companion, and pointing to me she said, "I've brought you a new boarder."

Then followed a rapid account of where she had met me, who and what I was, and why I had come up to London.

"I've promised you'll take her in and not charge her too much, you know."

"Why, no, certainly not," said the sister.

At the next moment the boy waiter was bringing my trunk into the house on his shoulder, and my traveling companion was bidding me goodbye and saying she would look me up later.

When the door was closed I found the house full of the smell of hot food, chiefly roast beef and green vegetables, and I could hear the clink of knives and forks and the clatter of dishes in the room the landlady had come from.

The Grotesque Set of Fellow Boarders.

"You'd like to go to your bedroom at once, wouldn't you?" she said.

We went up two flights of stairs covered with rather dirty druggeting, along a corridor that had a thin strip of linoleum, and finally up a third flight that was bare to the boards, until we came to a room which seemed to be at the top of the house and situated in its remotest corner.

"I dare say this will do for the present," said the landlady, and though my heart was in my mouth I compelled myself to agree.

"My terms, including meals and all extras, will be a pound a week," she added, and to that also, with a lump in my throat, I assented, whereupon my landlady left me, saying lunch was just on, and I could come down stairs when I was ready.

A talkative, cockney chambermaid with a good little face brought me a fat, blue jug of hot water, and after I had washed and combed I found my way down to the dining room.

The company, who were of both sexes and chiefly elderly, seemed to me at that first sight to be dressed in every variety of out-of-date clothes, many of them rather shabby and some almost grotesque.

Raising their faces from their plates they looked at me as I entered, and I was so confused that I stood hesitating near the door until the landlady called to me.

"Come up here," she said, and when I had done so, and taken the seat by her side, which had evidently been reserved for me, she whispered, "I don't think my sister mentioned your name, my dear. What is it?"

I had no time to deliberate.

"O'Neill," I whispered back, and thereupon my landlady, raising her voice, and addressing the company as if they had been members of her family, said, "Mrs. O'Neill, my dears."

Then the ladies at the table inclined their heads at me and smiled, while the men (especially those who were the most strangely dressed) rose from their seats and bowed deeply.

The Missing Peeress.

OF all houses in London this, I thought, was the least suitable to me.

Looking down the table I told myself that it must be the very home of idle gossip and the hotbed of tittle-tattle.

I was wrong. Hardly had I been in the house when I realized that my fellow-guests were the most reserved and self-centered of all possible people.

One old gentleman who wore a heavy mustache, and had been a colonel in the Indian army, was understood to be a student of Biblical prophecy, having collected some thousands of texts which established the identity of the British nation with the lost tribe of Israel.

Another old gentleman, who wore a patriarchal beard and had taken "orders" without securing a living, was believed to be writing a history of the world, and (after forty years of continuous labor) to have reached the century before Christ.

An elderly lady with a benign expression was said to be a tragic actress who was studying in secret for a season at the National Theater.

Such, and of such kind, were my housemates, and I have since been told that every great city has many such groups of people, the great prophets, the great historians, the great authors, the great actors—those the world does not know, the odds and ends of humanity—thrown aside by the rushing river of life into the gulleyways that line its banks, the odd brothers, the odd sisters, the odd uncles, the odd aunts, for whom there is no place in the family, in society, or in the business of the world.

It was all very curious and pathetic, yet I should have been safe, for a time at all events, in this little corner of London into which chance had so strangely thrown me but for one unfortunate happening.

That was the arrival of the daily newspaper.

There was never more than a single copy. It came at 8 in the morning and was laid on the dining room mantelpiece, from which (by an unwritten law of the house) it was the duty as well as the honor of the person who had first finished breakfast to take it up and read the most startling part of the news to the rest of the company.

She Hears the Story of Her Disappearance.

Thus it occurred that on the third morning after my arrival I was startled by the voice of the old colonel who, standing back to the fire, with the newspaper in his hand, cried: "Mysterious disappearance of a peeress."

"Read it," said the old clergyman.

The teacup which I was raising to my mouth trembled in my hand, and when I set it down it rattled against the saucer. I knew what was coming, and it came.

The old Colonel read:

"A telegram from Blackwater announces the mysterious disappearance of the young wife of Lord Raa, which appears to have taken place late on Thursday night or in the early hours of Friday morning.

"It will be remembered that the missing lady was married a little more than a year ago, and her disappearance is the more unaccountable from the fact that during the past month she has been actively occupied in preparing for a fete in honor of her return home after a long and happy honeymoon.

"The pavilion in which the fete was to have been held had been erected on a headland between Castle Raa and a precipitous declivity to the sea, and the only reasonable conjecture is that the unhappy lady, going out on Thursday night to superintend the last preparations, lost her way in the darkness, and fell over the cliffs.

"The fact that the hostess was missing was not generally known in Ellan until the guests had begun to arrive for the reception on Friday evening, when the large assembly broke up in great confusion.

"Naturally much sympathy is felt for the grief stricken husband."

After the colonel had finished reading I had an almost irresistible impulse to scream, feeling sure that the moment my housemates looked into my face they must see that I was the person indicated.

They did not look, and after a chorus of exclamations ("Most mysterious!" "What can have become of her?" "On the eve of her fete, too!") they began to discuss the disappearance in general, each illustrating his point by reference to the subject of his own study.

It would take long to tell of the feverish days that followed—how newspaper correspondents were sent from London to Ellan to inquire into the circumstances of my disappearance; how the theory of accident gave place to the theory of suicide, and the theory of suicide to the theory of flight; how a porter on the pier at Blackwater said he had carried my trunk to the steamer that sailed on Thursday midnight, thinking I was a maid from the great house until I had given him half a crown (his proper fee being three pence); how two female passengers had declared that a person answering to my description had sailed with them to Liverpool; how these clews had been followed up and had led to nothing, and now, finally, the correspondents had concluded the whole incident of my disappearance could not be more mysterious if I had dropped from midair into the middle of the Irish Sea.

Reward of 500 Pounds Offered for Information.

But then came another development.

My father, who was reported to have received the news of my departure in a way that suggested that he had lost control of his senses (raging and storming at my husband like a man demented), having come to the sudden conclusion that I, being in a peculiarly sensitive condition, had received a serious shock resulting in a loss of memory, offered five hundred pounds reward for information that would lead to my discovery, which was not only desirable to allay the distress of my heart broken family but urgently necessary to settle important questions of title and inheritance.

With this offer of a reward came a description of my personal appearance.

"Age twenty; a little under the medium height; slight; very black hair; lustrous dark eyes; regular features; pale face; grave expression; unusually sunny smile."

It would be impossible for me to say with what perturbation I heard these reports read out by the old colonel and the old clergyman. Even the nervous stirring of my spoon and fork made me wonder that my housemates did not realize the truth, which must, I thought, be plainly evident to all eyes.

They never did, being so utterly immersed in their own theories, but all the same I sometimes felt as if my fellow guests in that dingy house in Bloomsbury were my judges and jury, and more than once, in my great agitation, when the reports came near to the truth, I wanted to say, "Stop, stop, don't you see it is I?"

That I never did so was due to the fact that not knowing what legal powers my father would have had to compel my return to Ellan, the terror that sat on me like a nightmare was that of being made the subject of a public quarrel between my father and my husband, concerning the legitimacy of my unborn child, with the shame and disgrace which that would bring not only upon me but upon Martin.

I had some reason for this fear.

After my father's offer of a reward there came various spiteful paragraphs (inspired, as I thought, by Alma, and written by the clumsier hand of my husband) saying it was reported in Ellan that if my disappearance was to be accounted for on the basis of flight, the only "shock" I could have experienced must be a shock of conscience, rumor having for some time associated my name with that of a person who was not unknown in connection with Antarctic exploration.

It was terrible.

After awhile I realized that not only my housemates, but all London, was discussing my disappearance.

It was a rule of our boarding house that during certain hours of every day everybody should go out as if he had business to go to, and having nothing else to do, I used to walk up and down the streets. In doing so I was compelled to pass certain news venders' stalls, and I saw for several days that nearly every placard had something about "the missing peeress."

When this occurred I would walk quickly along the thoroughfare with a sense of being pursued and the feeling which a nervous woman has when she is going down a dark corridor at night—that noiseless footsteps are coming behind, and a hand may at any moment be laid on her shoulder.

But nobody troubled me in the streets, and the only person in our boarding house who seemed to suspect me was our landlady. She said nothing, but when my lip was quivering to the old colonel read that cruel word about Martin, I caught her little gray eyes looking aslant at me.

One afternoon, her sister, the milliner, came to see me according to her promise, and thought she, too, said nothing, I saw that while the old colonel and the old clergyman were disputing on the hearth rug about some disappearance which occurred thousands of years ago, she was looking fixedly at the fingers with which, in my nervousness, I was ruckling up the discolored chintz in my chair.

Then in a moment—I don't know why—it flashed upon me that my traveling companion was in correspondence with my father.

That idea became so insistent toward dinner time that I made pretense of being ill (which was not very difficult) to retire to my room, where the cockney chambermaid wrung handkerchiefs out of vinegar and laid them on my forehead to relieve my headache—though she increased it, poor thing, by talking perpetually.

Next morning my landlady came up to say that if, as she assumed from my name, I was Irish and a Catholic, I might like to receive a visit from a Sister of Mercy who called to the house at intervals to attend to the sick.

I thought I saw in a moment that this was a subterfuge, but feeling that my identity was suspected, I dare not give cause for further suspicion, so I compelled myself to agree.

A few minutes later, having got up and dressed, I was standing with my back to the window, feeling like one who would soon have to face an attack, when a soft footstep came up my corridor and a gentle hand knocked at my door.

"Come in," I cried, trembling like the last leaf at the end of a swinging bough.

And then an astonishing thing happened.

A young woman stepped quietly into the room and closed the door behind her. She was wearing the blue and white habit of the Little Sisters of the Poor, but I knew her long, pale, pain-featured face in an instant.

A flood of shame and at the same time a flood of joy swept over me at the sight of her.

It was Mildred Bankes.

"I passed through the streets stunned, stupefied, feeling as if I were running away from some malignant curse, the newsmen pursuing me, darting out from every street crying "Paper—third edition—loss of the Schosha!"

Identified.

"MARY," said Mildred, "speak low and tell me everything."

She sat in my chair, I knelt by her side, took one of her hands in both of mine, and told her.

I told her that I had fled from my husband's house because I could not bear to remain there any longer.

I told her that my father had married me against my will, in spite of my protests, when I was a child, and did not know that I had any right to resist him.

I told her that my father—God forgive me if I did him a wrong—did not love me, that he had sacrificed my happiness to his lust of power, and that if he were searching for me now it was only because my absence disturbed his plans and hurt his pride.

I told her that my husband did not love me either, and that he had married me from the basest motives, merely to pay his debts and secure an income.

I told her, too, that not only did my husband not love me, but he loved somebody else, that he had been cruel and brutal to me, and therefore (for these and other reasons) I could not return to him under any circumstances.

While I was speaking I felt Mildred's hand twitching betwen mine, and when I had finished she said, "But, my dear child, they told me your friends were broken-hearted about you; that you had lost your memory and perhaps your reason, and therefore it would be a good act to help them to send you home."

"It's not true, it's not true," I said.

She Told Me How She Came To Be There.

And then in a low voice, as if afraid of being overheard, she told me how she came to be there—that the woman who had traveled with me in the train from Liverpool, seeing my father's offer of a reward, had written to him to say that she knew where I was and only needed somebody to establish my identity; that my father wished to come to London for this purpose, but had been forbidden by his doctor; that our parish priest, Father Donovan, had volunteered to come instead but had been prohibited by his bishop, and finally that my father had written to his lawyers in London, and Father Dan to her, knowing that she and I had been together at the Sacred Heart in Rome, and that it was her work now to look after lost ones and send them safely back to their people.

"And now the lawyer and the doctors are downstairs," she said in a whisper, "and they are only waiting for me to say who you are that they may apply for an order to send you home."

This terrified me so much that I made a fervent appeal to Mildred to save me.

"Oh, Mildred, save me, save me," I cried.

"But how can I? How can I?" she asked.

I saw what she meant, and thinking to touch her still more deeply I told her the rest of my story.

I told her that if I had fled from my husband's house it was not merely because he had been cruel and brutal to me, but because, I too, loved somebody else—somebody who was far away but was coming back, and there was nothing I could not bear for him in the meantime, no pain or suffering or loneliness, and when he returned he would protect me from every danger, and we should love each other eternally.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK.

WE must go & call on the Sternbecks tonite, sed Ma. You know how much I think of Missus Sternbeck. She is a deer littel lady, Ma sed, eeven if her taste in dress is a littel wobbly. I know you will not not the kind of a man to worship like her husband, beekaus you are welth, sed Ma, & that is about all Mister Sternbeck has. He is worth a hogs-hed of munny. He cud buy the Panama canal after it is finished, Ma sed, & make a private pickrel pond out of it.

I wish we dident have to go, Pa sed. I hate to set & listen to sum fat rich man telling how he started on a shoe string & beecaim the coupon-clipping kid. I have offen had to set & hear that kind of guff, Pa sed, wen all I had in my pocket was a hard, thin dollar. Isent thare sum way we cud git out of all this visiting rich folks?

I wuddent think of disappointing Missus Sternbeck tonite, sed Ma. So we went.

A Fine Home.

The Sternbecks live in a very fine hoam. It is a lot bigger than our flat, but it isent so nice looking, thare is too much furniture in it & gold fraims, etc. I toald Ma that & she sed I shud be vary careful what I sed. Missus Sternbeck was a deer littel lady, like Ma sed, but Mister Sternbeck was fat & common. He started rite in telling how much wine he had in his wine cellar. I marked down all the amounts in a littel book & wen he saw me doing it he asked me why I was marking down the prices he menshuned. I toald him that wen he got all thru I was going to add the figgers up & find out how much munny it wud cost me to keep house wen I got to be a self made man. Then everybody laffed excep him.

I cud see that Pa had an awful grouch on, beekaus he grinned all the time the way he grins at me wen he stands neer the door with a slipper & says "Bobbie, see here a minnit." But the rest of the peepul thot he seemd to be having a good time.

We had a very fine dinner & after the dinner Missus Sternbeck & Ma started to look at sum fashun magazeens & us men went into the smoking room.

Here are some very expensive cigars, sed Mister Sternbeck. Thay cost me one thousand dollars a thousand. I am glad yure littel son doesnt smoak, he sed. It wud seem a shaim to waste a dollar cigar on him. Try one of these, he sed to Pa. Stick one in yure pocket for later in the eevning, he sed. Or if you wud prefer cigarettes, I have sum choice Turkish cigarettes. They cost me one hundred dollars a hundred boxes, he sed.

Wile I was putting down the amounts in my littel book Pa & Mistern Sternbeck started to play a gaim of bilyards & smoak. This is a fine tabel, sed Mister Sternbeck. It cost me one thousand dollars & Willie Hoope played on it onst & sed it was one of the best tabels on wich he had evver played. Isent that a fine cue you are using? he asked Pa. It is, sed Pa. I cud see that Pa was gitting colder & colder all the time to thaw out, but after awile he did, you bet.

Try sum of this Rhine wine, sed Mister Sternbeck. It is very rare. It cost me twenty dollars a quart. Smack yure lips over a glass of it, he sed. Pa drank sum & he did smack his lips. Have another, sed Mister Sternbeck. Expense is nothing to me when I entertain.

Pa Starts In.

So Pa had a other drink & a other, & then he sed How noabel is welth. How I admire a man wich can, by the sheer force of his geenyus, carve a career to Welth & Prosperity. Long may you live & wax wealthier, good friend Sternbeck, sed Pa. If thare is ever anything I can do for you, call me up or wire me & I will be glad to fly to yure aid. Doant hesitate to call on me, Pa sed. I wud do anything for you.

Then thay had two more glusses of wine & Pa sed Well, well, I can't seem to maik a singel shot, but I am proud to be beat by a scholar & a gentelman like you. Hevings bless you & all yure honestly ac-quired welth, sed Pa. I wish you was worth abilyun, sed Pa. I wish you the saim, sed Mister Sternbeck.

On the way hoam Pa kep telling Ma what a noble man Mister Sternbeck was. Thare is one man in a milyun, sed Pa.

I guess munny talks, all rite, & rhine wine, too.

A Difference.

"Say," remarked Harry, "how d'ye teach a gurl t' swim?"

"O-oh, that's easy!" replied his chum. "You take her vurry gently down t' the water; an' you put an arm aroun' her waist; an' you whisper: 'De-ar, don't be fri——'"

"Come off yer perch! It's my sister!"

"Oh, yer sister! Shove 'er in!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

How to Have and Keep a Clear Complexion, Told by Isabell D'Armond

By LILIAN LAUFERTY.

HAVE you begun to wonder what has become of the girl who is petite and dainty and sweet, who is not an undulating giantess of snaky figure, but who represents lovely girlhood of the kind that has charmed the world for ages?

Be of good cheer. "Girl—real girl" exists in spite of all the cut-off-the-same pattern evidence to the contrary. She exists, for I have seen and talked to her. Isabell D'Armond—one of B. F. Keith's charming Lights o' Vaudeville, and who is well known in Atlanta, having appeared on several occasion at the Forsyth—is petite and dainty and sweet, and very, very clever—clever enough to understand her type and not depart therefrom, and sweet enough to flit through your brain to the tune of the dear old refrain:

"Dainty little dimpled darling,
Fairer than the new-blown rose,
Pure and modest as the buds of spring-time,
Sweetest flower that blows;
Laughter like the softest music,
Roguish, smiling eyes of blue—
Ah, to know you is to love you, sweetheart,
Dainty little ingenue."

All of which applies to dainty Miss D'Armond except that her eyes are softly brown with the pure blue-whites that betoken clean, sane, good health.

A Clear Skin.

Even under the make-up, Miss D'Armond's skin showed clear and blemishless; her facial contours were firm and rounded, with no sagging lines at chin or throat or eyes. No athlete in the prime of condition ever had firmer flesh and more satiny skin. And this is not the result of chance, for Miss D'Armond knows just how to achieve these results.

"I do not believe in soap or even water for the face," said she. "Water makes wrinkles, especially when its use is followed by that of a linen or damask towel. I use a bath towel to dry my face when I wash it once a week. Are you shocked at that? Please don't be, for I am sure I keep my face clean! Cold cream and plenty of it—that is my means for cleansing and keeping the flesh firm; and then I always rub up—up under the chin, up from the sagging wrinkles that like to cut a path from nostril to lip corners, and up under the eyes with light strokes. Cold cream packed firmly under the eyes at night keeps away the tiny network of wrinkles that it is so hard to avoid. And tiny strips of court-plaster at the outer corners of the eyes and across the furrows that come between the eyes smooth them out.

"And now, listen to the party I have with myself once a week: On Sundays, generally, I wash my face, and it is quite a process, for only on one day of the week do I use water on my face. First a good washing with warm water and castile soap, then a thorough steaming, followed by a witch hazel rub, next a dash or two of cold water, and finally my old friend, cold cream, again."

With Miss D'Armond's firm, satiny skin and clear facial contours to recommend her treatment, I add my indorsement for her theory; and if the girl whose face is too fat, or whose skin shows a tendency to sag or wrinkle, will try it, surely she will bless pretty Isabell D'Armond, as double chins and sallow skin vanish and clear skin and firm flesh take their place.

Our Girls Prettiest.

"You go abroad so much," said I, "with a London season only a few weeks ahead, tell me just how you think our girls compare with those of other countries, won't you?"

"Oh, American girls are the prettiest of all," said this dainty American with the glowing enthusiasm she brings to whatever demands her attention. "American girls are well groomed, well bred and have a fine outdoor swing when they walk—that is, if they walk naturally and not just a la mode. But fat does threaten us—sweets and comfort and petting and pampering do that. I am very careful about not getting fat—and I take simple precautions besides plenty of exercise in the walking line.

"Let me tell you about my anti-fat methods—a glass of hot water the first thing on getting up in the morning and then a simple breakfast beginning with acid fruit. Plenty of hot water and acid fruit keep the system clean and sweet. No potatoes, no bread—though unbuttered toast is harmless—few sweets, no fats and no water at meals—that is a diet that it is not a hardship to endure. And then always stand after meals. That is not a fad—it is a fact in the thinning process. I am not recommending anything that I have not tried out myself, and I am glad to help any girl who is determined not to be a victim of the 'white woman's burden'—fat."

The great brown eyes looked at me earnestly, the merry mouth was ready to tremble into its infectious little crooked smile—one of the gayest, most heart-reaching smiles imaginable—and suddenly one of dainty Isabell D'Armond's greatest beauty secrets revealed itself to me; it is this—her unselfish interest in all that goes on around her—her genuine admiration of other women, her sweet, sane oneness with all of life.

Up-to-Date Jokes

A certain witty judge was trying a case recently where a dealer sued a steamship company for the loss of some pigs in a fire on board a cross channel boat. It came out in evidence that the steamer had a large deckload, and here the damage was greatest.

The judge thus began his charge to the jury:

"Gentlemen, to put those pigs on deck was a rash act, but to fry them was a rasher."

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DON'T compare the criticisms of your parents with the compliments paid you by a young man to the detriment of the former. The criticisms are at least based on sincerity.

Don't regard every compliment paid you as a reason why you should have your photograph taken. Frequent visits to a photographer are signs of a vain mind.

Don't seek information from a dream book. No one expects much from the girl who seeks information from a dream book instead of from an encyclopedia.

Don't get the prevalent notion that the young man who spends a month's salary in giving you a good time thinks more of you than the man who refuses to spend a week's. The latter loves more sanely.

Don't overlook the importance of a love affair with your father. That is the best investment in the love of man that any girl can make.

Don't forget that mother is a human being, and sometimes gets tired.

Don't feel the third time a young man has called on you that it is time for you to take possession and demand that he account for the evenings he spent somewhere else.

Don't accept attentions from the wrong kind of a man, excusing yourself because they mean nothing and are trivial. Remember that the girl who walks only as far as the corner with the wrong kind of man will meet every one she knows on the way.

Don't resent the desire of your parents to know something of the young man who calls on you. They fall in their duty to you if they lack this desire, or fail to act upon it.

Don't give your heart to a man who refers to his parents as "the old lady" and "the old man."

Don't ever outgrow the habit of your childhood of telling your mother when you get home all that happened at the party. It is more important that you tell her what happens now you are grown than that you told her when you were little.

Don't forget, if you have a little, that you have more than your parents had in their youth, and that they have struggled every day since you came into the world with that unselfish ambition in view.

Quite So.

"What became of that little kitten you had?" inquired the visitor of the small boy of the house.

"Why, haven't you heard?"

"No; was it drowned?"

"No."

"Lost?"

"No."

"Poisoned?"

"No."

"Did you give it away?"

"No."

"Then whatever did become of it?"

"It growed up into a cat."

But, with a movement of great swiftness Garson got in front of her, and barred her going. For a few seconds the two stared at each other searchingly as if learning new and strange things, each of the other. In the girl's expression was an outraged wonder and a great terror. In the man's was a half-shamed pride, as if he exulted in the strength with which he had been able to maintain his will against her supreme effort to overthrow it.

"You can't go," Garson said sharply. "You might be caught."

"And if I were," Mary demanded in a flash of indignation, "do you think I'd tell?"

There came an abrupt change in the hard face of the man. Into the piercing eyes flamed a softer fire of tenderness. The firm mouth grew strangely gentle as he replied, and his voice was overtoned with faith.

"Of course not, Mary," he said. "I know you. You would go up for life first."

Then again his expression became resolute, and he spoke imperiously.

"Just the same, you can't take any chances. We'll all get away in a minute, and you'll come with us." He turned to the men and spoke with swift authority.

"Come," he said to Dacey, "you get to the light switch there by the hall door. If you hear me snap my fingers turn 'em off. Understand?"

Went to His Station.

With instant obedience the man addressed went to his station by the hall door, and stood ready to control the electric current.

The distracted girl essayed one last plea. The momentary softening of Garson had given her new courage.

"Joe, don't do this."

"You can't stop it now, Mary," came the brisk retort. "Too late. You're only wasting time, making it dangerous for all of us."

Again he gave his attention to carrying on the robbery.

"Red," he ordered, "you go to that door." He pointed to the one that gave on the passageway against which he had set the chair tilted. As the man obeyed Garson gave further instructions.

"If any one comes in that way get him quick. You understand? Don't let him cry out."

Chicago Red grinned with cheerful acceptance of the issue in such an encounter. He held up his huge hand widely open.

"Not a chance," he declared, proudly, "with that over his mug." To avoid possible interruption of his movements in an emergency he removed the chair Garson had placed and set it to one side, out of the way.

"Now, let's get to work," Garson continued eagerly.

Mary spoke with the bitterness of defeat.

"Listen, Joe! If you do this I'm through with you. I quit."

Garson was undismayed by the threat.

"If this goes through," he countered, "we'll all quit. That's why I'm doing it. I'm sick of the game."

He turned to the work in hand with increased energy.

"Come, you, Griggs and Red, and push that desk down a bit so that I can stand on it." The two men bent to the task heedless of Mary's frantic protest.

"No! no! no! no! no! Joe!"

Red, however, suddenly straightened from the desk and stood motionless, listening. He made a slight hissing noise that arrested the attention of the others and held them in moveless silence.

"I hear something," he whispered. He went to the keyhole of the door leading into the passage. Then he whispered again, "And it's coming this way."

At the words Garson snapped his fingers. The room was plunged in darkness.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Noiseless Death.

There was absolute silence in the library after the turning of the switch that brought the pall of darkness. Long seconds passed, then a little noise—the knob of the passage door turning. As the door swung open there came a gasping breath from Mary, for she saw framed in the faint light that came from the single burner in the corridor the slender form of her husband, Dick Glider. In the next instant he had stepped within the room and pulled to the door behind him. And in that same instant Chicago Red had pounced on his victim, the huge hand clapped tight over the young man's mouth. Even as his powerful arm held the newcomer in an inescapable embrace there came a sound of scuffling feet and that was all. Finally the big man's voice came triumphantly.

"I've got him."

"It's Dick!" The cry came as a wail of despair from the girl.

THE TRIPLE TIE

A Story for Baseball Fans That Will Interest Every Lover of the National Game

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"I've simply got to," replied Farrell. "Chance got a telegram from Long Tom Morrissey saying that Kelly had Cobb and Speaker and all the others beaten to death. I rushed a man down there to buy him, but you see he's up against it. Chance says we've got to have him, so I'm going down to get him; that's all. Say," he exclaimed suddenly, "What's the matter with your going down there with me? You could help a lot."

"Maybe I'd better go with you. The American League must have that fellow," replied Johnson, after a thoughtful pause. "What time can we get a train?"

Johnson and Farrell boarded the Seaboard Fast Mail that pulled out of the Pennsylvania Terminal at half after midnight and the first persons they bumped into were President James R. McAleer and Vice President John I. Taylor, of the Boston American League club, owners of the Red Sox, champions of the world. Taylor broke into a hearty laugh.

"Lemme see your ticket," he said to Farrell and Johnson.

"Lemme see yours," replied Farrell.

They produced long strips of green paper for mutual inspection, and there was another hearty laugh all around.

"Atlanta, eh? I thought so," said Taylor. "You must mean business, Frank, to take Ban along with you."

"Oh, I don't know, John. I see you're going along with Mac to make sure of this fellow, Gordon Kelly," retorted the New Yorker.

"I received a telegram a yard long from Patsy Donovan this noon," said McAleer, "and I decided that if we wanted this fellow we better take the bull by the horns, so I phoned John and asked him to go to Atlanta with me, and here we are. Say, there's going to be some fun down there, by the looks of things."

Whole City Excited.

When the party reached Atlanta they found the city in the greatest state of excitement over the impending baseball deal which involved Gordon Kelly. The newspapers were full of news concerning the arrival of the magnates. There were long interviews with the big club owners from the North. The magnates would say little in regard to Kelly, beyond the statement that they had heard he was a fine ball player, and they would not acknowledge they were in Atlanta for the purpose of buying his release from the Atlanta club. They were willing to talk on general baseball topics, however. The gathering of the magnates took on the aspect of a great political convention and the newspapers handled it that way. Columns and columns of space were devoted to it.

By noon that day fifteen out of the sixteen big league clubs were represented in the persons of their presidents and Atlanta became, politically, the baseball center of the world.

As yet no definite move had been made by any of the club owners to bring the Gordon Kelly matter to a show down with the officials of the Atlanta club. The affair had assumed such an importance that each visiting magnate hesitated about making the first approach. President Johnson, of the American League, of whom no more clever baseball diplomat exists, sized the situation correctly before he had been in Atlanta three hours. He thought it all out in his room in his hotel and then brought his fist down on the table with a bang.

"The American League positively must land Gordon Kelly," he said aloud, although no one was with him in his room. "It's got to be done and I'm going to do it."

CHAPTER XVI.

AUGUST HERRMANN, President of the Cincinnati National League Baseball Club, and chairman of the National Commission, the "Supreme Court of Baseball," was the first of the magnates to make a determined effort to buy the release of Gordon Kelly from the Atlanta Club. He sought and obtained a personal conference with President Callaway of the Atlanta Club and got right down to business without wasting words. He explained that in his capacity as President of the Cincinnati Club he had come to Atlanta to make an offer for Kelly's services, that he understood that previous offers had been of a more or less vague sort, and wound up by making a flat proposition to buy Kelly's release for $15,000 cash.

"But, Mr. Herrmann," expostulated Callaway, "the Atlanta Club does not want to dispose of Gordon Kelly. We all appreciate the significance of all you owners of the big clubs coming to Atlanta at this time, but we really don't care to talk business."

To this Herrmann replied:

"Speaking now as chairman of the National Commission, I would say that one of the fundamental rules of the commission is that a ball player must be allowed to improve his condition when ever the opportunity presents itself. The Southern League is hampered by a salary limit, while there is no limit to the salary a major league club may pay a player. There is nothing in the laws of the State or nation that can compel you to dispose of Kelly's services, but the Atlanta Club, which could not exist as a financial proposition except for organized baseball, owes it to baseball that this player's services should be disposed of to some major league club. The Cincinnati Club may not be the successful bidder, but the facts remain the same."

"This puts the Atlanta Club in a very embarrassing position, Mr. Herrmann," returned Callaway, "and without accepting or rejecting your offer I must call a meeting of our directors and take a vote on the matter."

Before the directors could get together, however, several other magnates called on the Atlanta Club's President, or had him on the telephone, the result being that within half an hour an offer of $25,000 cash was made by one of them.

The directors of the club were in session a full hour, after which President Callaway announced that the Atlanta Club, while disposed to reject all offers, felt the necessity, aside from all financial considerations, of living up to the obligations of organized baseball and that, such being the case, they would sell Gordon Kelly's release to the best advantage of the stockholders of the club.

There was general rejoicing among the magnates over this declaration and corresponding gloom among the "fans" of Atlanta, who were promptly informed of the decision through "extras" issued by the afternoon newspapers. The moguls were about to gird on their armor to renew the battle for Gordon Kelly, when Callaway suggested that all business be put aside for the moment in order that all hands might attend the game at Ponce DeLeon Park and see the player who had set the baseball world on fire.

It had been raining most of the night before and part of the morning. The afternoon was dark and murky and the conditions were very unfavorable for a ball game. What with the dreary, dun-colored clouds trailing their dim regiments overhead, the drearier rain soaking the field into a swamp and the ghoulish-looking players ranting around in the mud like a squad of Kiralfy's high kickers, the spectacle was anything but edifying to the assembled crowd. But any sort of a day was good enough to see Gordon Kelly play and there was a surprisingly large crowd on hand when the game began.

The game itself was not calculated to promulgate heart disease. Gordon Kelly had no opportunity to distinguish himself in the field. One very easy fly ball was all that came in his direction. At bat, however, he knocked out two singles and a three-bagger, but attempted no base stealing, as the condition of the diamond made it dangerous.

That evening the visiting magnates were dined at the gorgeous Capital City Club by the directors of the Atlanta Baseball Club. After the solids were disposed of Herrmann, of Cincinnati, arose and after apologizing for intruding business on pleasure, remarked that he, for one, must hurry back to his home on an urgent matter and suggested that the matter of Gordon Kelly be settled then and for all.

At that President Johnson of the American League called his club owners to a corner of the room and addressed a few earnest remarks to them. It quickly developed that the price already offered for Gordon Kelly was as high as most of them cared to go. It was something unprecedented in the history of baseball that a player who had been in the game only a few days should command such a figure, and many of the club Presidents were already alarmed at the turn affairs had taken.

$250 in Prizes for Best Solution of "The Triple Tie"

YOU read the first fourteen installments of the great baseball mystery story of "The Triple Tie" and now you have a fair idea of the simplicity of the offer The Georgian makes—how you may win $100 by working out the solution of the mystery as nearly as its author, A. H. C. Mitchell, has done as you can.

Mr. Mitchell has written the last chapter, but his copy is sealed up in a vault at the American National Bank. When all but this final chapter has been printed, The Georgian readers will be asked to submit to three competent judges, none of them connected with this newspaper, their version of what the grand denouement should be.

To the person who most closely approximates Mr. Mitchell's final chapter $100 will be awarded. Other prizes, making the total prize list $250, also will be distributed.

Here is the list of the awards:

No. 1	$100
No. 2	$50
No. 3	$25
No. 4	$15
Nos. 5 to 16, each	5

Read the fifteenth installment of the great mystery story and you will not need to be urged to read the succeeding chapters. The story will grip you. As you read, try to follow the author's channel of thought and when the time comes for you to sit down and write that final chapter, be ready to win one of the big cash prizes in The Georgian's great offer.

QUAKER HERB EXTRACT DOES THE WORK

Mrs. R. T. Bartlett, of Lakewood Heights, Was Immediately Relieved of Acute Indigestion

My kind friends, there is a cure for indigestion or sour bloating stomach, not something that you have to take after or before you eat as long as you live, but a remedy that cleanses and heals that mucous lining, puts the stomach and bowels in good, healthy condition, builds up the entire system so you don't have to keep suffering with that misery. Quaker Herb Extract is a complete cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness or any form of stomach trouble, it will cure catarrh in any form, rheumatism, liver, kidney or bladder troubles.

Here is a report of a lady, Mrs. R. T. Bartlett, who resides at Lakewood Heights, Route No. 2, Box 144, was troubled with Acute Indigestion: "No matter what I ate seemed gas would form from it, causing me much misery. This gas would cause my stomach to bloat, my heart to palpitate, my breath to get short and would give me dizzy spells. It seemed my food would not digest properly, causing me distress. I used doctors' treatments and different kinds of medicines, but nothing helped me. I seemed to be getting worse, and, as I realized something had to be done, I concluded to try once more, and therefore, I called at Coursey & Munn's Drug Store for a treatment of Quaker, which was six bottles. I simply can not tell how quickly this great remedy helped me. People will not believe it if I tell them, but it is so. I eat heartily without any stomach distress following. I simply beg and hope that any and all persons who might be suffering like I did, to at least try the wonderful Quaker Herb Extract." $1.00 per bottle, three for $2.50, or six for $5.00. Oil of Balm, 25c, or five for $1.00. Call to-day at Coursey & Munn's Drug Store, 29 Marietta Street, and obtain these wonderful Quaker Herb Remedies. We prepay express charges on all orders of $3.00 or over.

GROCERS' DAY CROWD TO GIVE RECORD A TILT

By Percy H. Whiting.

IF the weather at game time this afternoon is sufficiently salubrious (Noah Webster please write) we are likely to give Birmingham something more to think about in the matter of attendance. It wouldn't be surprising if the mid-week record got a jar.

For there will certainly be some few enthusiasts at Ponce DeLeon ball park.

This is Grocers' and Butchers' Day.

The grocers, butchers and a lot of wholesalers will close this afternoon for the first time and are going to celebrate in various ways, but chiefly by going to the ball park.

The local team has gone to considerable expense in getting the Montgomery club here and expects a big crowd for the occasion.

* * *

RIGHT now, while the local crowds are standing up close around the high water mark and the league is more prosperous than ever before in its career it might be well to propound the question:

"Are Southern League clubs being run on a business basis and if they aren't what's going to become of them?"

Carleton Molesworth sounded a note of warning the other day in the following statement:

The managers in this league are spending too much money for the receipts they get. The attendance does not justify the disbursements now being made. Three cities in the league are drawing well and they are Mobile, Atlanta and Birmingham. Others are hardly paying the guarantee except on holidays.

The next big change in the league is bound to be a curtailment of expenses and it may come quicker than we expect. I have no kick to offer in Birmingham because the people there certainly support a ball club superbly. Whether you are winning or losing, they attend the game. It's a big place and we have a great population to draw from.

OF course here in Atlanta we haven't sprung any worry-wrinkles nor will we for the next 50 years. The local club is well backed. And Atlanta is a real baseball town.

That is more than can be said of some of the other cities in the league, including at least one—Memphis—which has size enough to turn out any old crowd.

* * *

YEAR in and year out the average Southern League clubs spend too much for their teams. Year in and year out the Southern League loses money—that is, the total of profits of all clubs is less than the total of losses.

Either the league cities have got to grow mighty fast to catch up with the salary limit or else the league will come a cropper some day.

In the meantime, I guess we should not lose sleep over it.

WITH new pitchers coming Cracker prospects are looking up again. Not in years, if ever, has a Southern club bought as many and as high-priced pitchers and secured such a weak staff. Look at the slather of them that Bill Smith had at the first of the year and how well they were recommended. And look at what's left now and what they have been doing.

It would be extremely helpful if this guy Counzelman turned out to be a bear. The other man Pittsburg sent down here, under optional agreement—Bisland—turned out to be a corker. Maybe Counzelman will do equally well.

While the Crackers were disappointed not to get the unrestricted ownership of Counzelman's services it is an encouraging sign that Barney Dreyfuss would not sell him outright. It was apparent that he expected the man to make a real pitcher some day. Otherwise he would have preferred money to his services.

* * *

MAYBE the blight of punk pitchers inflicted on Atlanta by the fates was a blessing in disguise and designed to keep up the interest in baseball.

Even without pitchers Bill Smith has been able to keep his club right up in the race. The Crackers are in such a position that with a little hurling help they can set sail for the Gulls, with every chance in the world of overtaking them.

I'm looking for a close finish this year.

The Crackers are going to get their stride after a bit and start winning. Their slump has to end after a bit. They are in a good position to make the race. Give them the pitchers and watch them fly!

HAL CHASE MAY NOT REPORT TO WHITE SOX

NEW YORK, June 4.—Hal Chase, traded by the Yankees to the White Sox, refused to report to his new club yesterday. When seen in the grandstand at the Yankees-Naps game and asked why he wasn't in Chicago with the White Sox, chase intimated that it was nobody's business but his own. He would make no answer to the question as to whether he would refuse to report to-day.

Coach Heisman on Amateurism

College Players and Summer Ball

By J. W. Heisman.

THIS is the time of the year when the college player gets out a copy of the rules of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, and reviews them all carefully. Either he does this with the idea of refreshing his mind regarding the things he must not do if he wishes to be eligible for college playing again next spring, or to see if he cannot work out a way to go and play where and how he pleases, this summer, and yet not violate the letter of the laws.

For years the college players all over the country have been straining at the leash and trying to get away from the hard and fast rules that all colleges now lay down regarding summer baseball by their students; but thus far there has been no lengthening of the chain anywhere. In fact at every meeting of the S. I. A. A. some new law is passed which only shortens the restraining rope still more.

IT is a well understood rule all over the country that one who takes money for participation in any athletic event whatsoever above his necessary expenses thereby professionalizes himself, for which reason he is debarred from further athletic association with amateurs. In England they go very much further still. There only "gentlemen" can be amateurs; and a gentleman, in this sense, is defined to be one who has never worked for a living—that is, one who has never earned money by work, no matter what kind of work. This strikes us as the height of absurdity, and it is safe to say that such a definition of the amateur will never take foothold in America.

But while young Americans in this day and time understand full well that it is against the rules of amateur sport to accept money for work of this kind, there are many each year who do accept it, and who still expect to engage or continue in amateur sports, and in college sports as well. Sometimes they just baldly lie about it when it comes to filling out blanks regarding these points.

But generally, they salve and save their consciences by making a sale of an old pair of suspenders, or a cigar, or a pocket knife to some officer of the summer team with which they are playing for the trifling sum of $50 or $100, as the case may require. Or they will sit in a little poker game for ten minutes and have such a run of luck (?) as will net them, say $50.15 or $100.30. Or the stipulated remuneration is sent by the manager of the club to the boy's brother, father or friend, and so neither he nor any other official of the summer team has given him a cent; it is the relative or friend who has given it to him.

THEN there is another rule that gives the boys even more trouble. This provides that after a boy has once entered college he shall not thereafter during the summer vacation play upon or with any but his "home" team; and his home team is defined to be one that is in, or belongs to, the county in which that boy has legal residence, and has had that legal residence for at least one year before the playing of said summer ball (not one year before playing college ball with his college team the spring following his playing with the summer team).

Well, some of the boys happen to live in towns or counties where they don't have a team of any kind. That's a tough proposition, and formerly it was covered by the vice president giving a boy permission under such conditions to play with some other nearby team. But of late years the tendency has more and more been for the vice president to refuse such permits, and that leaves such boys high and dry.

But in any case most every boy gets a chance, yes, several chances, to play with some team outside his own county during the summer, and generally he wants to take the chance.

Why? Because often enough there's money in it. But whether there is or not, show me the baseball boy who won't miss even his meals to get into a game of ball most anywhere, whether in the Amazonian jungles or on Spitzbergen. Then when he comes back to college and wants to play the following spring he has either to fib about it or automatically rule himself out of college ball for that spring by declining to answer every question and to sign his blank.

Some boys go off to play with a team not from their home county and change their true names for that game. But this has also now been covered by express and adverse legislation. Sometimes they strike a compact with players from other colleges whom they find with their own or the opposition team, and all agree to "keep mum" about it; and sometimes these packs are kept, while again they are not.

Of course before a boy goes to college at all he can play with any team he pleases, whether it comes from or belongs in his home county or not. This is a point not always understood by the prep players, and for their benefit I state it.

ANOTHER rule is that one must never have played even for so much as a single inning with a team that is a member of an organized professional league; and this applies to the boy who has not yet gone to college as well as to the one who has already been to college a session or two. Nor does it make any difference that he was "only trying out" with the professionals and failed to make good, or that he received no money whatever for such playing. Any PROFESSIONAL LEAGUE playing knocks him out for all time and without further ado.

But it is all right to play against a professional team or professional players on the same team with the amateur, so long as it is not a professional league. But competing against a professional in other sports, like foot racing, would knocw the amateur out.

THE foregoing is merely an outline of the college rules written for the information and benefit of those who do not happen to be familiar with them.

In a future article I will have more to say regarding the ethical side of these rules, and what changes, if any, might with profit be made.

RINGSIDE NOTES

Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, who battles Jim Savage at the Auditoriums Armory here on June 13, is the most sought after heavyweight in the game to-day. New York wants Flynn to meet Gunboat Smith; Boston is after the Pueblo heavyweight; 'tis said, to take on Frank Moran, while Mackey would match Flynn against either Willard or Smith.

* * *

Although Flynn has been before the public for many years he is still one of the greatest drawing cards among the boxers of to-day. His style of fighting closely resembles that of Battling Nelson. He is always on top of his opponent and gives the fans some real milling.

* * *

When Battling Nelson coined the term "cheese champion" and hung it on Willie Ritchie, he said a mouthful and one that is enduring. In fact, quite a lot of our present champions are falling all over themselves in their effort to grab a similar title.

* * *

Emil Thiry, manager of Packey McFarland, has accepted the management of Ernie Zanders, the Chicago welterweight. Already Emil is busy trying to close a match with Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul sensation.

* * *

Young Shrugrue and Sam Robideau will don the gloves for a scheduled 10-round battle in Madison Square Garden, New York, Thursday night. Both boys are lightweights.

* * *

Leach Cross' last fight before he meets Bud Anderson at Vernon, Cal., on July 4, will most likely be with Harry Trendall, the crack lightweight of St. Louis.

Leach made such a good showing in his bout with Trendall at the St. Louis A. C. a few weeks ago that the officials of the club have wired an offer to Sam Wallach to let Leach fight Trendall a return battle of eight rounds on June 11.

* * *

Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion, will take on Frankie Burns at New York Thursday night. It was this same Frankie who gave Johnny the battle of his life a few years ago at New Orleans.

* * *

After the Burns set-to Coulon may close for a bout with Kid Williams. Baltimore has offered $2,000 for the go and New Orleans and Los Angeles raised it to $5,000.

* * *

Boston fight fans declare Mike Gibbons the cleverest boxer that has ever appeared in their city. Jimmy Perry probably agrees with the "Beantown" boxing followers.

* * *

The matter of two pounds in weight is all that is keeping Jack Britton and Charlie White from meeting in a 10-round engagement at Kenosha, Wis. White is holding out for 135 pounds at 6 o'clock, while Britton wants to come in at 135 pounds at the same time.

ONE SOUTHPAW ALL LOOKOUTS NEED, SAYS KID

CHATTANOOGA, June 4.—"Give me three good left handers," said Kid Elberfeld as soon as he had analyzed the permanent lineups of his leading rivals, "and I'll capture the rag." The Kid said this two months ago, and he says it now.

To be more exact Elberfeld needs at present but one southpaw to have his wish fulfilled. He has already Summers and Coveleskie. If Kroh, who has just been secured from the Turtles, lives up to expectations, the Kid will have no alibi if he fails to annex the 1913 gonfalon, for the three southpaws asked will be at his disposal.

THE acquisition of Kroh did not occasion any great amount of surprise locally as both Andrews and Elberfeld had had their eyes on the Turtle hurler since first he was seen in action. The Kid believes that he is a corking good man. Coveleskie and Summers can't be surpassed, and if the latest addition does 75 per cent as well as his brother portsiders the Kid will be eminently satisfied.

The sensational winning streaks of Coveleskie who has won 10 and lost 3 and Summers, who has won 7 and lost 2 seem to substantiate absolutely the assertion of Elberfeld that the Southern this year is a southpaw's league.

Rube Bush Wins Low Score Prize

Atlantans Star in Golf Tourney

By W. R. Tichenor.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., June 4.—The twelfth annual tournament of the Southern Golf Association began here yesterday with an entry of 180 players. Early in the day Louis Jacoby, of Dallas, Texas, turned in a card of 76. Later this was tied by Nelson Whitney, a former champion, whose qualifying round was the first he had ever played over the course. For almost all day it looked as if Whitney and Jacoby would have to play off the tie for the low qualifying score prize, but in the afternoon, when nearly all of the cards were in, R. G. Bush, of New Orleans, finished his round with a 75, which was the lowest score in the tournament.

R. R. Brooke had a fine chance to beat Bush's score when he got "out" in 36, but he went bad on the last four holes coming home, taking three punts to each of the greens and finished with 77.

Audubon Team Wins.

In the team match the Audubon Club, of New Orleans, was again the winner, with a total of 310; the Dallas Country Club was second with 317; Atlanta was third with 328.

Seven Atlanta players qualified in the championship division. Of this number W. R. Tichenor led with 80 and W. H. Rowan was second with 81. The other scores made by Atlantans were: G. W. Adair, 83; Dowdell Brown, 84; R. G. Blanton, 84; C. E. Cowan, 85; H. Block, 86.

The Atlanta players who qualified in the second division were W. Griffith, 89; C. V. Rainwater, 89; D. E. Root, 88; R. P. Jones, 91; W. P. Hazelwood, 91. Captain E. T. Winston, T. B. Paine, Ormond Smith, C. E. Rose and Dr. Joe Eby failed to qualify.

The going in the tournament is faster than it has ever been in any former Southern championship. A difference of only sixteen strokes was shown between the first and the ninety-sixth man.

It took as good as an 87 to get into the championship division, which will contain 64 players this year. It required 91 to get into the second division, which is composed of 32 players.

Savage Knocks Out Allen in 2 Rounds

NEW YORK, June 4.—Jim Savage, the New Jersey heavyweight, who is to fight Jim Flynn at Atlanta on June 13, stopped Whitey Allen, of this city, in the second round of a bout here last night.

Savage put up a great fight and handed his opponent a severe lacing. His cleverness completely dazzled Allen, who was unable to lay a glove on him.

Savage also showed that he possesses a wallop. He used a right-hand uppercut with telling effect and displayed good use of his left hand when it came to jabbing.

After the bout Savage stated that he expected to defeat Flynn when the two came togeher. He is already in good shape.

JOE CONZELMAN REPORTS.

Pitcher Joe Conzelman, farmed in Atlanta by the Pittsburg team, has reported and will be worked within the next few days.

Conzelman was formerly with the Brown University team and pitched wonderful ball with that club. Fred Clarke, of the Pirates, believes he will be a wonder and has kept a string tied to him.

Pitcher-President Hands Himself Own Release

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., June 4.—To hand your own release to yourself is an unusual occurrence. Yet this is what took place here when Pitcher William E. Essick was released by the Grand Rapids Central League club. He was the only member of the pitching staff not yet in condition, and as it was necessary to reduce the number of players to conform with the league limit, Essick was the victim.

The release was drawn up by President William E. Essick, of the Grand Rapids club, with all the customary details. President Essick then placed himself before a mirror and made a speech in which he expressed his regret that the league rules made it necessary for him to release his favorite pitcher.

The document was tendered by the president's right hand and accepted by his left. Thus President Essick released himself as a pitcher of the team of which he is president and majority stockholder.

Essick is a warm weather pitcher and says he probably will sign himself again in midseason.

THE
Ice-Kist Crankless Freezer

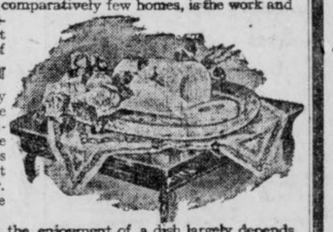

Just pack it —that's all! The freezer will do the rest. No crank to turn — no hard work —no dasher to clean — no glass to break — no hoops to fall off.

Be Wise! Make Your Own Ice Cream

Of course, you know that home-made ice creams, sherbets or ices are superior from every viewpoint. They are always sweet, pure and wholesome; there is a flavor and genuine goodness about them that is not found in the general run of factory products. Besides that, when you make your own preparations you know that the ingredients are always pure, and that the can is clean and sanitary. The main reason why ice cream is made in but comparatively few homes, is the work and bother connected with the old-fashioned crank freezer. That is one reason why the arrival of

will be hailed with delight by every one who is fond of ice creams, etc., because it eliminates the tedious turning of the crank entirely, and produces creams, sherbets and ices that will make your mouth water. That is one reason, but there are many others.

DON'T YOU KNOW that the enjoyment of a dish largely depends upon the manner in which it is served? Could you imagine a daintier and more appetizing manner of serving ice creams than provided for by the "Ice-Kist?"

Write us to-day for our beautifully illustrated booklet, telling all about the freezer; it is ABSOLUTELY FREE—and receive our free trial offer.

PROGRAM OUT FOR RACES AT BOARD TRACK

THE program is out at last for the first motorcycle racing meet over the Atlanta Motordrome. It contains nine races, split up into three events. The first will be the Atlanta Sweepstakes, with three heats and a final. The next will be the Motordrome Purse, with three heats and a final. The last number will be a "triangular" match race, which will be framed up later. It is probable that the Atlanta lad, "Smiling Harry" Glenn, will be one of the riders in this event.

The races will be called Friday night at 8:30. The doors will be opened at 7, and the riders will be on the track warming up a half hour or so later.

The races will all be run at short intervals and the program will go through with no lagging.

Tickets for the meet are on sale at Shepherd's Segar Shop, Edgewood Avenue and Pryor Street. Each is provided with a rain check and they will be handled just as baseball rain checks are. If any meet is "rained out" the rain checks will be good for admission at any subsequent meet this year.

Here Is the Program.

The program follows:

First event, Atlanta Sweepstakes, one-mile heats, first man in each heat and second man in fastest heat to qualify for finals.

Race 1—First heat, No. 1, Marty Graves, of Los Angeles; No. 2, Harry Swartz, of Denver; No. 3, Willie Shields, of Brooklyn.

Race 2—Second heat, No. 4, George Lockner, of Syracuse; No. 5, "Tex" Richards, of Dallas; No. 6, Freddie Luther, of Fort Worth.

Race 3—Third heat, No. 7, Georges Renel, of Paris; No. 8, Jock McNeil, of Edinborough; No. 9, Henry Lewis, of Springfield, Mass.

Race 4—Final heat in Atlanta Sweepstakes, five miles. First prize, $40; second prize, $30; third prize, $20.

Second event, Motordrome purse, two-mile heats, first man in each heat and second man in fastest heat to qualify.

Race 5—First heat, "Tex" Richards, Willie Shields, Georges Renel.

Race 6—Second heat, Marty Graves, Henry Lewis, George Lockner.

Race 7—Third heat, Jock McNeil, Harry Swartz, Fred Luther.

Race 8—Final heat in Motordrome purse, three miles. First prize, $35; second prize, $20; third prize, $10.

Race 9—Special three-cornered match race, the riders to be announced Friday night. First prize, $25; second prize, $30; third prize, $15.

Rain Spoils Sport.

The newspaper men's meet, set for Tuesday afternoon, was pretty well smashed up by the rain. A good crowd of Fourth Estaters was present, but scattering showers in the afternoon made any fancy riding impossible. The track was very slippery and at high speed the machines skidded frightfully.

"Tex" Richards and Harry Glenn furnished most of the excitement. The former star rode several miles through the misting rain at express train speed and came back on two wheels, which was more than was expected by those who watched him ride.

Seats went on sale Tuesday at Tumlin's cigar stands, as well as at Shepherd's Segar Shop. The advance demand is heavy.

TIGERS PAY $4,000 FOR PITCHER AND INFIELDER

OTTUMWA, IOWA, June 4.—Detroit has purchased Pitcher Grimes and First Baseman Burns for $4,000, subject to immediate delivery. The deal was made by Manager E. F. Egan, who secured Grimes from Austin, Minn. Burns recently was purchased for $300 from Burlington. Grimes has won eleven straight victories and has not been scored on for thirty consecutive innings. Burns is hitting close to .500.

BALL PLAYER DYING.

RICHMOND, VA., June 4.—Selden N. Mitchell, one of nine brothers who comprised a baseball team in Southside Virginia some years ago, is dying with peritonitis in this city.

YALE ELECTS TRACK CAPTAIN.

NEW HAVEN, CONN., June 4.—George Estabrook Brown, of Philadelphia, a junior in the Sheffield Scientific School, at Yale, last night was elected captain of the Yale track team for next year.

CHANCE AFTER SHORTSTOP.

LOS ANGELES, CAL., June 4.—Manager Frank Chance, of the New York Americans, has offered $5,000 for the immediate release of Frank Host, shortstop of the Venice team, of the Pacific Coast League, according to an announcement made here to-day.

3 Champs Unpopular With Fans

Coulon, Kilbane, Ritchie Disliked

By Left Hook.

NEVER since there were boxers have there been three finer little fellows in the ring than Johnny Coulon, Johnny Kilbane and Willie Ritchie.

Never since there were boxers have there been three more unpopular champions than Johnny Coulon, Johnny Kilbane and Willie Ritchie.

The only thing that could happen to them now to compiete the picture would be for them to turn baseball umpires.

The case of Johnny Coulon is a special one, different from the other two. A sick boy, he refuses either to defend the title or to give it up. Every challenge brings from him a wail that his tum tum hurts him and he is going on a long hunting trip.

This has gradually turned a popular little fighter into a very unpopular one. Coulon is disliked because he has practically tied up the entire bantamweight division and blighted the hopes of every boy in it.

Sport World Resentful.

The sporting world seems to feel a just resentment against Coulon for having dived down a hole and dragged the hole in after him.

It is not easy to say just why Kilbane and Ritchie are unpopular. The attitude of the sporting public toward Kilbane is this—they know he got the worst of the decision with Dundee and they are glad he did.

The same would have been true of Ritchie.

The cause of the public grouch against these two fine little fellows seems to be that Ritchie and Kilbane are both "in" the boxing world, but not "off" boxing.

They are too obviously there for money to suit the tastes of the sporting fans. In a rather cool and indifferent way, Kilbane makes this plain. His attitude toward the sporting public strikes one as being somewhat like contempt. He cares nothing for fighting and very little for fight fans.

Is Timid About Capital.

He feels about as much of the hot glow of battle as a turtle. It is believed that Kilbane has courage of the very highest type. In a scrap out at a picnic, merely for the fun of the thing, Kilbane could probably fight like a fiend. But, in the ring, he can't get over the idea that he has placed $50,000 worth of capital in a perilous position. Kilbane is timid only because capital is timid, and Johnny is a capitalist.

Although it may sound paradoxical, Kilbane is one of the most brilliant boxers that ever lived; and he never should have gone into the ring. It is a life he does not belong in. He doesn't know how to act there. He isn't in sympathy with boxing and boxers. He hasn't made a great deal of money; but he is a smart boy and he will be able to invest what he has in some business where he will probably shine.

It is not likely he will be in the ring very long. His passing into business life will end one of the most peculiar careers in boxing annals—a boxing genius who didn't like to box.

Ritchie Reverse of Idol.

Ritchie is the reverse English of a boxing idol because the boxing public resents his luck. Every man who has worked hard all his life and has saved by self-denial has a secret and savage hatred for every one who has made an easy killing.

Billy Nolan added to this feeling by giving the impression that he didn't consider Willie any world beater, but thought it safer to swoop up all the money they possibly could in the stage business before giving any one a chance at the title.

Ritchie is very likely to live down his unpopularity. He will leave the stage very soon and Nolan says he will fight anybody who can show the coin. He is likely to put up a fight that will surprise everybody.

Fight fans seem to forget the pluck and courage with which he faced Ad Wolgast, and the fortitude with which he took one of the most savage beatings imaginable until the lucky blow at the end.

BASEBALL

The Giants' victory yesterday and the Dodgers defeat broke the tie for second place and sent the Giants into the runner-up position, just 97 points back of the Phillies.

DENT OR PRICE SLATED TO GO AGAINST BILLS

By Joe Agler.

BILL SMITH is figuring on working Dent or Price against the Billikens in to-day's festivities. Chapman will do the receiving. The rest of the line-up will be as usual.

We got in from Nashville in good order this morning.

Our game Tuesday came about as easily as the one of the day before. It took longer, but there was never any more doubt about the one than the other.

"King" Brady twirled his usual game against the Vols—and that means victory about every time. He seems to have something on them.

The Crackers hit the ball, ran bases well and took advantage of the Vols' errors. The score was 8 to 3.

We put another awful dent in Beck's record. They say he is going to the big league with an awful flourish before long, but if he pitched against us every day I'm not so sure about it.

When they stuck in Fleharty he held us, but by that time it didn't make any difference.

The Crackers sure played jam-up ball yesterday. Every man fielded his position in great style and we looked like a real ball club.

I believe we should win today's ball game. I think Dent will be the man worked, and I think he will fool the Bills. If we hit the way we are capable of there will be nothing to it.

GILLESPIE BEANED; IS IN SERIOUS CONDITION

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 4.—Jimmy Gillespie, third baseman of the local club, was struck on the head by Pitcher Hardgrove, of the Birmingham club, yesterday and to-day is in the hospital in an extremely critical condition. His skull is badly fractured and recovery is doubtful. Gillespie played last year with the Providence club, in the International League.

BROWNS PURCHASE INFIELDER.

SAN DIEGO, CAL., June 4.—Charles Flanagan, shortstop of the San Diego team of the Southern California League, has been sold to the St. Louis Americans. Flanagan will report July 1. The consideration is said to have been $3,500.

PHILLIES AND REDS IN TRADE.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—Manager Dooin, of the Philadelphia National ball team, announced before leaving with his team for Pittsburg that he had secured Beals Becker from the Cincinnati club in exchange for Dodge, a utility infielder.

FOOD FOR SPORT FANS

By GEORGE E. PHAIR.

AUTO POLO.

Auto polo is a cross between two of our most popular institutions—namely, sport and manslaughter.

Its chief object, aside from abusing an innocent ball, is to contribute to the support of deserving morticians and funeral directors.

Its press agent tells us that it "combines all the risks of a bullfight, a football game and a ride in an airship." We fail to see its connection with bullfighting except that the press agent is an adept at throwing the bull. He might have added, however, that it combines all the inspiring features of mayhem and assault with intent to kill.

One of the beauties of auto polo is the training it affords a motorist. An expert auto polo'ist can hit a pedestrian at a distance of twenty yards without even taking aim and may always be depended upon to hit .300 on a crowded thoroughfare.

The headquarters of the Auto Polo Association of America is at Floral Park, Long Island, making it easy to obtain flowers for the remains of the losers.

As an athletic exercise auto polo is indorsed by all physicians, especially by those who need the practice.

The origin of auto polo is enshrouded in mystery. As a result its inventor has escaped without his just deserts.

It may be true, as Tim Murnane says, that education does not help a ball player, but it often prevents him from injuring himself with his table knife.

Jules Goux, the gent who won the race at Indianapolis, was kissed by his mechanic. But such is the penalty of success.

Critics on the coast inform us that Jess Willard is a promising heavyweight, but up to date he has been committing breach of promise.

Among other things, Connie Mack is sustained and soothed by the knowledge that he never will be prosecuted for unnecessary noise.

Mr. Cobb avers that he never hears the shouts of the populace, but it will be hard to convince the innocent bystander whom he clouted on the features.

Possibly Mr. Cobb does not hear the hoi polloi, but if he fails to hear the stentorian strains of the popcorn merchants he is deaf and dumb.

NO PLACE FOR AN UMP.

An umpire entered Heaven's gate,
but turned around and fled.
"Why beat it thusly from our midst?"
the good St. Peter said.
"I walked right in," the ump replied;
"I walked right in, and then—
I saw John Evers standing there, and
walked right out again."

The savant, or whatever it was, who averred that two heads are better than one, never tried to manage a ball team on that system.

Leland Stanford having whipped the Jap ball team twice in the same place, Mr. Bryan will now come across with an apology.

One is not surprised to hear that the French Government contemplates a Secretary of Athletics, although most politicians are Spanish athletes.

Punishing a ticket scalper by putting his name in the paper is much like sentencing an actor to a column on the first page.

Davy Jones says he will quit baseball rather than play in Toledo, leading one to suspect that somewhere in the dim past he has visited Toledo.

Still, how could Wisconsin expect to win a ball game with a pitcher who labors under the name of Isabella?

Mike Donlin finished among the also rans at Coeur d'Alene, demonstrating that there is something in a name.

The Navy crew having beaten Columbia by a nose, we may expect to see a steed win the Derby by a stroke.

While some may consider polo a parlor game, we fail to see anything particularly effeminate in acting as a doormat for an able-bodied horse.

TOUX TROUX.

There was a young driver named Goux,
Who turned on the power and floux.
His machine, the Peugeot,
Showed them all how to geot,
And he shattered a record or twoux.

JOE RIVERS AND RITCHIE FAIL TO AGREE ON WEIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4.—Billy Nolan and Joe Levy could not agree on the weight question to-day and the Willie Ritchie-Joe Rivers match may not take place on July 4.

Nolan insisted on the weight being at 134 at 9 o'clock in the morning and that the fight take place at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Levy is willing to accept 134 pounds ringside, but would not agree to the weight and time named by Nolan.

The matter has been laid over until Thursday, when another discussion will be started.

ROBIDEAU READY FOR GO WITH SHUGRUE THURSDAY

NEW YORK, June 4.—Sam Robideau, the lightweight boxer who is trying to fight his way to the world's title, has arrived from Philadelphia in fine condition for the ten-round battle with "Young Joe" Shugrue, of Jersey City, in Madison Square Garden to-morrow night.

Gus Platts will face Dave Kurtz in the semi-final.

HARVARD SHOWS PROFIT OF $27,928 IN ATHLETICS

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., June 4.—Harvard athletics showed a profit of $27,928 for the year ended July 31, 1912, as against a loss of $10,822 for the previous year, according to the report of Graduate Manager W. D. Puttey.

The total receipts from athletic contests amounted to $157,359, and the expenses fere $125,431. The previous year the receipts were $112,097.

GIBBONS DEFEATS WHITE IN TWELVE-ROUND BOUT

BOSTON, June 4.—Mike Gibbons, St. Paul welterweight, put a temporary stop to the title aspirations of Joe White, of Boston, in a twelve-round bout here last night. Gibbons had a big shade in the majority of rounds.

BALL PLAYERS "FRAT" SUES BOSTON AMERICANS

NEW YORK, June 4.—The baseball players' union, known as "The Fraternity," which was organized to protect the interests of the players, yesterday filed a suit against the Boston American League baseball team in the Supreme Court of this city to collect $1,480 damages for Kurt M. Hageman, known as "Casey."

The complainant says he suffered the damages by reason of the club not permitting him to discharge his duties under a contract he signed after June 23, 1912. He was also refused his release when he demanded it. This is one of the first suits brought by the union.

Hageman was a pitcher taken by the Red Sox from Denver in the fall of 1911. He was let out early in 1912 and claims that the Red Sox violated his contract.

PLAY TENNIS

This is one of the best out-door sports. It is not necessary that you have a private court on which to play. The Park Board has amply provided courts to accommodate all who can play. There are seven new ones in Piedmont; five in Grant; one in Mims and one in Howell Park—and all belong to the people—all that is necessary for you to do is get there first. We sell the celebrated Wright and Ditson Tennis Goods.

MAYOR ASSERTS SIGNAL SUIT IS NEEDLESS

Declares He Can Block Payment for Alarm System Without an Injunction.

"I've got the upper hand and can protect the city's rights without any injunction," said Mayor James G. Woodward this morning regarding the application of W. W. Lowe for an order stopping the payment of money on the contract between the city of Atlanta and the Okonite Company.

W. W. Lowe filed application in the Superior Court yesterday. His petition will be heard June 14. Lowe alleges that a contract entered into October 21, 1912, for the installation of Gamewell signal stations, laying of cable and rehabilitation of the exchange, was illegal because the purchase price was to be paid during a period of years.

The allegations in most respects are similar to those set out in the recent crematory suit. The contract price for the signal system was $106,317.73.

"We Have Upper Hand."

"If they had asked me anything about it I would have advised them not to bring this injunction suit," said the Mayor. "The crematory suit settled the question. We have the upper hand. We want to do what is right and correct all wrongs. I could take care of the city's interests right in my office here."

Mayor Woodward said the contract called for the installation of about 50 signal boxes at $125 each, but that he had ascertained the patent had run out and these boxes were selling for $50 less.

"If that's the case," he said, "we won't pay but $75 apiece—just what they are selling for everywhere else. "I didn't like the contract or the way it was written," the Mayor continued. "The Okonite people laid cables and the Gamewell people put in signal boxes, but which of them got the contract the other was certain to get its particular kind of work out of the job. It was a lump sum bid, as I understand.

Called for Lump Sum.

"The bid should have specified so many feet of cable, so much; overhauling the old exchange, so much; so many new boxes at so much apiece, so much; and so many feet of wire at so much per foot, so much.

"But it didn't do that. It merely called for payment of a lump sum. Now, I want to know what the work is worth. I have the upper hand. The crematory suit settled that question, and I can take care of this without any injunction."

Actual work on the contract is nearly finished. Payment was contemplate through several years, on the "honor" plan, which the Supreme Court recently said was illegal.

'Fewer Clothes to Improve Morals'

ST. LOUIS, June 4.—Men were far more beautiful than women until fine feathers and fine clothes became a commercial factor in life, according to the belief of Mrs. Lillian Stuart, who testified before the Missouri Senate wage investigating committee.

"Clothes are responsible for the shallow life of to-day," she said. "People soon will wear fewer clothes, however, and they then will improve morally and physically."

A., B. & A. Injures 1 In 2 Train Wrecks

Two small wrecks were reported Wednesday morning by officials of the Atlanta, Birmingham and Atlantic Railroad.

Near Giersfield, Ga., 226 miles from Atlanta, a negro fireman, Henry Wright, was slightly injured when train No. 93 struck a fallen tree and was derailed. The train was delayed several hours.

At Wadley, Ga., passenger train No. 23 ran into the rear end of freight train No. 95.

No one was injured.

YOUTHS IN COUNTRY TOWNS WORKING HARD TO LAND SHETLANDS

I nominate, as a candidate in The Hearst's Sunday American and Atlanta Georgian Pony Outfit Contest:

Name .....

Address .....

Nominated by .....

Address .....

GOOD FOR 1,000 VOTES.

Only One Nomination Blank Can be Voted for Any Contestant.

Not only is a little candidate in Jefferson, Ga., working hard for one of the pony outfits The Georgian and American are offering, but also he is planning far into the future.

He writes:

"I am working as hard as I can. If you will help me get the pony and cart, I will sell papers for you as long as the pony lasts, and will give you all the money I make a week and will get some customers in the country and will bring it to them."

Evidently he wants a pony.

The Georgian and American can not give him help, though, any more than is given other contestants. The contest is strictly impartial.

There is a hustler in Cartersville. He writes in for six books. "Sure, for I am doing big business and need them badly."

Vote totals are growing all along the line. No boy or girl will have a pony in a "walkaway."

TABERNACLE CALL WINS M'CONNELL

New Pastor Once Was Member of the Detective Force of the City of Atlanta.

The Rev. Lincoln McConnell, noted lecturer and revivalist, who recently was called to the pastorate of the Tabernacle Baptist Church, has accepted. A. C. Boatman, a prominent member of the Tabernacle congregation, received the following telegram from Dr. McConnell Wednesday morning:

A. C. Boatman, Atlanta, Ga.

I have arranged Lyceum contract to suit, and am pleased to say I can accept the Tabernacle pastorate. I can not reach Atlanta till September 1, but will arrange to take charge at that time.

LINCOLN McCONNELL.

Dr. McConnell is 46 years old and a native of Tennessee. Before his conversion he was a member of the Atlanta detective force for a number of years. Becoming converted, he decided to enter the ministry, and was instrumental in organizing the Wesley Memorial Church here.

He was pastor of that church for about three years, and then left Atlanta to enter the evangelistic field.

After leaving here he joined the Baptist Church at Kansas City, Mo., and has been an active worker for that denomination since. At present Dr. McConnell is conducting a successful revival at Cape Girardeau, Mo.

Prefers Stenography To Capital Society

ST. LOUIS, June 4.—Miss Agnes H. Wilson, daughter of William B. Wilson, Secretary of Labor, declared in an interview here that she would rather be back at work as a stenographer than be doing Washington society.

Miss Wilson thinks servants have the best time and chances among working women.

EX-CONVICT SUES WARDEN OF CAMP

John Birt Asks $10,000 for Alleged Cruel Flogging—State Inquiry Probable.

Suit for $10,000 damages has been filed against Oscar F. Jones, Warden of the Bellwood convict camp, by John Birt, who says he was cruelly beaten on July 2, the day he was sent as a prisoner to the camp, with the result that he spent several weeks in the convict hospital.

In his petition, filed by Attorney C. G. Battle, Birt charges he was given 72 lashes and kicked and beaten. He lost 40 pounds in weight, he alleges, and his earning capacity was decreased three-fourths. He affirms he was told his punishment was inflicted because he cursed on the way to the camp.

Attorney Battle said the circumstances of Birt's treatment were so flagrantly inhuman that the Prison Commission began an investigation, which will be taken up again July 1. Birt was sick and unable to work at the time, Battle says, and was chained and maltreated by another convict camp official, against whom an additional damage suit will be brought.

Jim's Lodge Woes Something Fierce

Alderman and Mayor Pro Tem James E. Warren has gained a unique law client in the person of Jim Washington, an ante-bellum darky who came to him the other day with a tale of woe.

For a long time Jim had been paying his Darktown lodge a sum of money each month as a sort of "death benefit." When a member of his family died the lodge brethren told him he or she would be buried by the lodge. Jim's mother died and Jim and his sister set the date of the funeral. When the time came they learned that the obsequies had been held the day before.

Then Jim got a notice that charges had been preferred against him in the lodge for failure to attend. That was the last straw. He sought out Lawyer Warren and told his tale.

TRAFFIC BAR TO VIADUCT CLOSING

Committee Meets Railway Men Thursday to Work Out Plans for Forsyth St. Project.

The committee in charge of plans for closing the Forsyth Street viaduct underpass expects to meet at 10 o'clock Thursday morning with W. A. Winburn, president of the Central of Georgia Railway, and Major J. L. McCollum, of the Western and Atlantic. The meeting was scheduled for Tuesday, but the railroad officials were detained in other cities.

Chief among the obstacles the committee seeks to surmount is the problem of caring for traffic in case the underpass is closed. Three plans have been proposed. One is to induce the Central of Georgia to give a right-of-way along the tracks to the Alabama Street depot. It is understood, though, that the railroad plans eventually to extend the depot to Forsyth Street, which would make this plan impossible.

Another plan is to induce the Western and Atlantic to provide a right-of-way along its tracks from Forsyth Street to South Pryor Street. The committee anticipates trouble with this plan also, in that it would involve the surrender of trackage facilities by wholesale houses. The third plan is to build an incline from the Forsyth Street viaduct.

If the committee arrives at a decision, its recommendations then must be approved by the Governor and the State Railroad Commission. Should the desired approval be forthcoming the committee then will be confronted with still another problem—that of getting the money.

"And that," said Councilman Ashley Wednesday, "is quite a problem all by itself, considering Atlanta's present financial straits."

The committee comprises James R. Gray, Clark Howell, Robert F. Maddox, W. F. Winecoff and Councilmen Mason, Ragsdale, Everett and Thomson.

SHORT COVERING SENDS COTTON UP

Spot Houses Buy, Helping the Advance—Weather and Crop News Very Bearish.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Influenced by firm cables the cotton market opened quiet to-day with first prices net unchanged to 2 points lower than last night's closing quotations. The poor response to firm cables was explained by the continued decline in the stock market.

Weather conditions overnight were favorable, showing further rains in the eastern belt. During the forenoon the market was under heavy buying, which was credited chiefly to shorts covering and brokers identified with the spot interests. Spot houses were said to have sold July on the opening. There was a demand for near crops and a rally followed. July and August advanced 10 points over the initial level. New crop positions were under active demand and followed the advance moderately.

The interest seemed to center in the summer option, but there was a good demand for new crops around 11 cents. Habersham King's report on conditions was very bearish and had a depressing effect. Prices, however, held rather steady and only declined a few points from the high point. Outside speculation continues so small that it is hard to bring about any material change in prices. The feeling, however, continues extremely bearish and the local traders are inclined to sell on all favorable news.

During the late forenoon and afternoon session the market continued on the upward trend. The ring crowd seemed to have gone short during the early trading. The early decline was quickly retrieved. The trade purchased July, which started a renewal of short covering, resulting in prices rallying back to the early best.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET.

LIVERPOOL, June 4.—This market was due to open 3½ to 4 points lower, but opened quiet at 4 to 5 points decline. At 12:15 p. m. the market was steady, 2 to 3 points lower. Later the market declined ½ point from 12:15 p. m.

Spot cotton quiet at 6 points decline; middling 6.02d; sales 10,000 bales, including 9,400 American bales; imports 7,000, of which all were American.

At the close the market was steady with prices showing a net decline of 2 to 2½ points from the closing quotations of Tuesday.

HAYWARD & CLARK'S DAILY COTTON LETTER

NEW ORLEANS, June 4.—Liverpool spot continues large; sales 10,000 bales during the past two days, but spot quotations show no corresponding strength and suggest a willingness to liquidate stock holdings. Futures readily follow any easiness on our side. Letters from Liverpool all report consumers as buying futures freely around 6 pence, showing the education to fixed price ideas.

Weather conditions continue very favorable. Fair weather prevails in the south central States. Mostly cloudy elsewhere. A little cooler in the northern part of the belt. Light rains in northwest Texas and southwest Texas. Light to moderate scattered showers in Arkansas, Tennessee, the Atlantics and parts of Alabama.

Our market opened about 10 points lower, but steadied on the resistance shown by New York. The intention of professionals to make the usual summer operations against technical conditions is responsible for the present support and steadiness. Some reverse, even if immaterial in the end but sufficient to serve as the basis of a short scare, is expected by present bull operators to come along and cause an upturn, and their buying is on this ground. Meanwhile, the general economic outlook as reflected by the continued decline in the stock markets is becoming less encouraging, and uncertainty, together with the proposed or supposed radical change coming from a new administration, is telling in its paralyzing effect.

ENORMOUS SALES PUT STOCKS DOWN

Every Issue on List Liquidated Mercilessly—No Principal Cause for Decline.

By C. W. STORM.

NEW YORK, June 4.—Heavy selling of active issues by the speculative element featured the opening of the stock market to-day. Many selling orders were cabled from London and Paris. Some of the Paris selling, it was reported, resulted from the St. Louis and San Francisco smash, a Frisco bond issue having been placed in France just before the road went into a receivership.

Union Pacific was one of the weakest, declining 1¾ to 143¾.

United States Steel common was supplied in bulk, selling down to 56 for a loss of 1¼. Reading lost 1¾ in the first half hour, going to 156⅛.

Great Northern preferred went to 122⅛ for a loss of 1⅜.

Among the other declines were Amalgamated Copper 1¼, American Smelting 1, American Telegraph and Telephone ¾, Southern Pacific ⅜, Pennsylvania ⅜, Missouri Pacific ¼, Erie 1, Canadian Pacific ½. Pennsylvania sold around 107½ and Canadian Pacific around 216½.

The curb was weak.

Americans in London were hammered.

MILLER-CARTER COTTON LETTER.

MEMPHIS, June 4.—It appears that sufficient shorts covering developed on early decline to check it, since which time trading has been limited and fluctuations narrow. Foreign advices indicate a disposition on the part of European spinners to buy moderately at present prices, but American trade is quite bearish on good crop accounts and prospects give legislation. We anticipate that foreign demand will subside if crop does well for a while longer, leaving prices at mercy of bearish domestic speculators, among whom are numbered those of the South.

Hester's Monthly Cotton Statement

Secretary Hester's New Orleans Cotton Exchange statement of the movement of cotton issued Friday covers the monthly movement to the close of May.

Compared with last year, it shows a decrease for the month in round figures of 41,000 bales, compared with year before last an increase of 46,000 bales and with 1910 a decrease of 21,000.

The total for May was 323,267, against 363,995 last year, 277,240 year before last and 434,971 same time in 1910.

The movement from September inclusive shows receipts at all United States ports 9,560,612, against 11,769,374 last year, 8,443,621 year before last and 7,044,891 same time in 1910; overland across the Mississippi, Ohio and Potomac Rivers to Northern mills and Canada 933,365, 1,207,470 last year, 889,343 year before last and 753,199 same time in 1910; Southern mills' takings, exclusive of quantity consumed at Southern outposts 2,532,000, against 2,301,000 last year, 2,040,000 year before last and 1,978,000 same time in 1910; and interior stocks in excess of those held at the commencement of the season 216,992, against 129,236 last year, 120,236 year before last and 162,204 same time in 1910.

These make the total movement of the cotton crop brought into sight during the nine months ending close of May, 13,242,969, against 15,402,080 last year, 11,509,100 year before last and 9,938,294 same time in 1910.

Northern spinners took during May, 85,718 bales, against 181,608 last year and 88,417 year before last, increasing the total for the nine months to 2,240,681, against 2,607,605 last year and 2,004,498 the year before. This makes their average weekly takings for the season 57,453, against 66,618 last year and 51,591 the year before.

Foreign exports for the nine months of the season have been 8,097,687 bales, showing a decrease under last season of 1,984,659 and an increase over the same period year before last of 918,648.

Stocks at the seaboard and the twenty-nine leading Southern interior markets at the close of May 664,661, against 654,113 the same date last year, and 494,071 the year before.

Including port and interior stocks left over from the previous season and the number of bales of the current crop brought into sight during the nine months, the supply has been 13,607,682, against 15,689,054 last year and 11,157,- the year before.

Up to the close of May 94.44 per cent of the cotton crop had been marketed and nine months in 1911, the percentage of the crop brought into sight was 94.96 per cent and for the same time in 1910 the percentage marketed was 93.67.

The amount of the crou brought into sight for the nine months from September to May, inclusive, is 2,159,111 behind last year, 1,734,000 ahead of the year before last and 3,305,000 ahead of 1910.

BULLISH WHEAT TRADERS SAY BIG SHORT INTEREST EXISTS

CHICAGO, June 4.—The Inter Ocean says: "Those who are bullish on wheat said last night that they believed the market was sold out and that a good short interest existed, which should it become alarmed over the Northwestern crop prospects and start to cover, prices will go higher.

"Corn prices yesterday were the highest of the season. Bulls are talking 60 cents and most of the local trade are long.

"The theory of the bulls is that unless a good supply is accumulated this month to carry the trade into September prices are to go higher.

"The most important point noticeable in the market in the last few days has been the limited selling pressure, making it easy for the bulls to advance prices."

OPINIONS ON GRAIN.

CHICAGO, June 4.—Bartlett, Frazier & Co.:

Wheat—The course of prices to-day depends largely on the attitude of the shorts, some of which covered on yesterday's late rally. There is no pressure on the market except from this class of sellers.

Corn—There was considerable covering yesterday by shorts and should the country start to sell again in any volume prices may ease off some. The supply and demand situation controls the market now.

Oats—We continue to feel friendly to oats for the long pull.

Provisions—We are inclined to look for a higher market to-day.

Wheat—No. 2 red ....100 @107
Corn—No. 2 .... 58¾
Oats—No. 2 40

CHICAGO, June 4.—July wheat was up as much as 1 cent on high cables with sales at 91¼c. September gained about ¼c. Northwestern receipts were larger than a year ago and there was a decrease in the stocks at Minneapolis. Additional rains were reported in Kansas as well as in scattered sections of Missouri.

Corn was firm early, but it followed wheat in its changes. There was a good investment demand for this grain. Heavy shipments are again reported. Liverpool was firm.

Oats were firm with corn.

Provisions sold fractionally lower, with the exception of lard, which was a shade higher.

Vacation Peace

DURING THE SUMMER YOU will spend considerable money seeking mental and physical rest; but you cannot enjoy perfect peace of mind if you carry your troubles about with you for the sake of a few dollars.

Don't carry your silver, jewelry and valuable papers wherever you go, or leave them at home unprotected, when, for a few dollars, you could put them in one of our Safe Deposit Boxes, where they will be proof against fire and burglary. Do this, and you can start your vacation trip with a light heart.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

Picking of Ducks Reduces Egg Product

Excitement and Strain Upon System in Producing New Feathers Too Great.

We are so often asked the questions as to picking Runner ducks, feeding, etc., that we wish to express our views upon the subject for the benefit of our readers in general.

The picking of a large, heavily feathered duck like the Pekin or Aylesbury, is a matter of some profit, we presume, for they are not of an excitable or nervous temperament like the Runner.

We believe that the Runner should not be picked at all. There is no question but what the excitement of picking, together with the strain upon the system in producing a new coat of feathers, would greatly reduce the egg product for a considerable period. And you know it would take but a few eggs to amount to more than the amount of feathers secured from the duck at a picking, so we say, Don't.

The feed for laying ducks should be of a good mash, composed as follows: Equal parts of corn meal, wheat bran and middlings, to which add about one-fourth part of good, freshly made beef scraps. At times when other green stuff is scarce, about an equal part of alfalfa or clover meal should be added. This mash should be made up soft—in fact, if it is almost sloppy, all the better. This should be fed every morning and about three nights out of the week, the rest of the time feed cracked corn, wheat, rye, kaffir corn—in fact, any of the good, wholesome grains—for the desired changes they make.

Give Ginger.

Where a flock is being pushed for eggs alone and not to be used as breeders, a little ginger may be given advantageously twice a week, at the rate of a teaspoonful to a flock of 20 to 25.

This is mentioned for the benefit of those who are keeping a lot of Runners for market eggs, expecting to market the ducks also later on.

Young ducks should be started much as chickens are by feeding small mixed chicken feed dry and then a feed of dry bread soaked in milk or cracker crumbs moistened with milk. Rolled oats makes a good addition to the rations, just fed dry. As the ducklings grow older they can gradually be switched to the food used for the grown ducks, bearing in mind at all times that they need a good lot of green stuff in some shape and a lot of grit. It is a good plan to mix the grit right in with their mash, in the shape of sand for the right little ones and coarser grit as they get older. For the first two weeks they must be supplied with a water fountain of some kind, so arranged that they can not get themselves wet. Young and growing ducks should have all the food they will clean up at a time and never allowed to go to bed hungry, it you want good and rapid growth.

Questions and Answers.

Judge Marshall: I would like to know the trouble with some of our chickens.

They appear well and hearty, but stagger and fall over, and will sometimes live for months and eat hearty all the time. If we scare one of them suddenly as they start to run off they will fall and roll over. We have a fine flock of Rhode Island Reds and have lost six or seven in this way. They don't seem to lose much in weight until they get to falling about and until they can't well eat. The comb and gills stay red and indicate good health.

The first sign is they will reel or stagger if frightened and gradually grow worse until they just fall over and reel every time they get up. Two or three were this way for five or six months and seemed hungry all the time. Let me know the trouble and the remedy. P. M.
Townville, S. C.

Answer: It looks to us a good deal like general debility or tuberculosis. We can not tell which, just from the description you have given. Then that other everlasting enemy to the chicken raiser, the mite. The tubercular condition is being found in a good many cases during the past twenty years, and seems to be on the increase, for that reason if you have an idea that that is the trouble you better kill and burn right away and get them out of the company of other good fowls. The general debility phase is a result of carelessness and in-breeding. I say both, because it is usually the result of both. Poultry raisers who have not made a study of the best phases and methods commonly breed from anything that looks like the variety they are raising, often letting color run away with everything else, breeding to specimens that are too small or not developed in breast and body as they should be, or have had some very debilitating disease like roup or canker, and then getting apparently over it, but are very much weakened from its ill effects. This course of breeding through carelessness or lack of knowledge of the matter will, in the course of a few years, produce a strain of fowls that are utterly lacking in stamina or vitality and there will be some of the flock that will go just as you have described—tumbling over from sheer weakness.

Such weaklings are just fit subjects for the tubercular germs to thrive and develop in, so that it is a combination of ailments. However, you had best look well to the mite problem, the least yet often the most disastrous in its results. If your chickens have them get after them and do not let up until you have really conquered the situation.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

$100,000 Wednesday In Real Estate Buys

Peachtree, Luckie, Piedmont, Washington, Buckhead and Railroad Transfers Wake Market.

The local real estate market woke up with a start Wednesday with announcements of more than $100,000 in sales of all kinds, from a semi-central lot sale at $22,000 to a residence lot sale at $175. The Fulton County Daily Report was full of transactions and the real estate men declare that property is now moving more steadily than at any time during the past month.

The George P. Moore Real Estate Agency has announced the following, totaling $88,500, all of which are now on sale:

The southwest corner of Cone and Luckie Streets, part of the Dr. John D. Turner home place, to James E. Hickey for $22,000, or at the rate of $1,100 a front foot. This lot is 20 by 60 feet.

For George P. Moore to a client, Mr. Moore's two-story, nine-room residence at 855 Peachtree Street, between Tenth and Eleventh, for $17,500, or at the rate of $388 a front foot. The lot is 45 by 190 feet.

For John G. Burckhardt to D. H. Lopez the Burckhardt home at the northwest corner of Washington and Glenn Streets for $20,000. Mr. Lopez will subdivide this property, putting a handsome apartment house on the corner and erecting four homes on the Glenn Street side. The frontage on Washington is 121 feet, on Glenn, 409, and there is also a frontage of 123 on Crew Street.

For W. D. Newsom and F. B. Herin, to a client, twelve negro houses fronting 576 feet on the Southern Railway, 470 feet on Hollins Street and cornering on Wells Street, for $15,000.

For Mrs. Lena Swift Hunley to Mrs. Lee Lewman, a 43-by-50-foot lot west of and adjoining the Belle Isle Garage, on the south side of East Third Street, and in the Georgian Terrace block, for $7,000, or at the rate of $163 a front foot, and for Mrs. Huntley to B. Frank and John G. Bell the lot to the west of this, 22 by 50, 75 feet from Peachtree, $3,500. These two lots are in the George Adair subdivision.

Louis M. Johnson, of the Moore agency, sold two lots on Peachtree Road, just north of Roswell Road, to R. G. Brightwell for $3,150. These are in the Huntley subdivision and are 48 feet front each.

Mr. Moore has made two smaller sales: A 25-by-100-foot lot in the Continental Land Company's subdivision on South Avenue to George C. Winters for $175 and to William Beckman a lot in the same subdivision for the same price.

Piedmont and Other Sales.

Robert E. Riley has bought another high-class residence lot and is expected to build a fine home on it. Mrs. Mary Raoul, Gaston C. Raoul and Thomas K. Glenn, executors for the late Captain W. G. Raoul, have conveyed a lot on the west side of Piedmont Avenue, 115 feet north of Fourteenth Street for $10,300. The lot is 70 by 251 feet.

Mr. Riley has built and sold a number of homes. Among them was the stucco house at the northwest corner of West Peachtree Street and West Peachtree Place, where the Connerat Apartments now stand, and the last was on East Fifteenth Street, which Mr. Riley sold a few weeks ago.

Bonds have gone to record in the sale some time ago of Buckhead lots in the Huntley subdivision, through the George P. Moore Agency, and also in several other sales. William J. Davis and James B. Daniel, for instance, have sold for $5,500 to H. Milton Smith a 45 by 240-foot lot on Rice Street, near Angier Avenue, and Mr. Smith has transferred it to Rose G. Smith for a consideration which is withheld.

Small Sales Total $6,500.

The Charles P. Glover Realty Company reports the following small sales in the Brookhaven section:

To Alice A. Gillespie, lot on the east side of Fernwood Drive, 100 by 270, $1,000; to Arthur Kent, north side Fernwood Circle, 100 by 325, $900; to same, south side Fernwood Circle, 100 by 285, $1,000; to J. Douglas Eubanks, east side of Sylvan Drive, 50 by 240, $500; to same, adjoining lot, $500; to Willie Thornburg, north side of Stewart Drive, 50 by 250, $500; to Catherine Ross Wright, north side of Stewart Drive, 50 by 250, $500; to Lillian Hix, same location and size, $500.

Also a 200 by 266-foot lot on the west side of Ashburton Avenue, East Lake, to Mrs. Virginia Howard Logan, for $600.

Night Work on Hurt Building.

So anxious are the contractors that the Hurt Building be completed in schedule time—by October 1—that they have ordered a large part of the work to be done at night. To passersby the sight of bright lights burning off the ends of steel girders and welding the various metal parts has been a revelation. Demands for space in the Hurt Building have continued to come in, and Mr. Hurt expects to rent every office before the formal opening of the structure.

Enthuiasm Over Decatur.

Real estate prospects were generous in their praise Wednesday of the things which they saw on a tour of inspection in Decatur Tuesday. The occasion being "home-coming day," hundreds were in attendance. Realty men used the day to show property, and they report a great deal of enthusiasm over the evidences of progress found by the visitors. A land boom is on at Decatur and announcement of some interesting sales is expected soon.

SIX UP-TO-DATE HOMES

And 19 Ready-to-Build-On Lots

SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1913

At 3 P. M., on the Premises

THESE are 5 and 6-room houses, with every city convenience and connection, including furnace in several of the houses, but no gas as yet. These houses were built of the best material, under the personal direction of Colonel I. N. Ragsdale, who could not be induced to build a shoddy house.

These houses are real city homes, located in the social center of the Tenth Ward, and only a step from the best car service in Atlanta.

We urge you to go out and inspect this property. Each house will be plainly placarded, showing cash payment and monthly payments; also the amount of the loan to be assumed.

THESE HOUSES ARE NOW RENTED, and bring in from $18.50 to $30.00 per month. Think of what a help that will be to you, in meeting your payments, should you not be ready to occupy the house.

The houses and lots front on the following streets:

Arlington Avenue, Princess Avenue and LaRosa Terrace.

Arlington Avenue runs off Lee Street, right at Colonel Ragsdale's handsome home. Princess Avenue runs off of Avon (Oakland) Avenue, between the Baptist Church and Captain E. P. Ryan's fine home, giving the property two approaches, each of which is a prominent street.

THIS SECTION HAS NO OBJECTIONABLE FEATURE

It is logically the place for the people to live who are engaged in business, or who are employed among the many industrial and manufacturing and railroad enterprises around the Terminal Station, Whitehall Street, Mitchell Street, and the Central and West Point Railroads, and the adjacent territory. The car service and the way the streets run prove these statements to be true. Think about it, and you'll see it as we do.

THE LOTS ARE READY TO BUILD ON

These are the lots to buy, either for home sites or for speculation, because they are ready to build on. In addition to this, every lot is a beauty, with nice young oak shade trees scattered over them. Also, because their location is excellent. They are only a short distance from the business center of Oakland City. Only two blocks from the City School, and near the churches; and the farthest lot is only two blocks from the car line; and, best of all, they are socially in the swim, and

ALL CITY IMPROVEMENTS DOWN AND PAID FOR.

THE TERMS ON THE HOUSES

will range from $150 to $250 cash, and the payments will range from $22.50 per month to $32.50 per month, with 6 per cent simple interest. Small loan on five of the houses, to be assumed by the purchaser.

THE TERMS ON THE LOTS

are right. Every lot will be sold on terms of $50 cash, and the balance $15 per month, with only 6 per cent simple interest on the deferred payments.

HOW TO GET THERE—Take cars at the corner of Forsyth and Alabama Streets, marked "East Point," "Hapeville" or "College Park." Get off at the corner of Avon (Oakland Avenue). You will then be only a step from this property.

COME AND BE SURE TO BUY—You will never regret it if you do, and you will be sorry if you don't. Get plans from

BEST APARTMENT SITE IN THE CITY.

AT THE corner of two main thoroughfares, with two car lines, park frontage, and several other attractive features, we have a lot 50x150 feet. This is absolutely the best location on the North Side for an apartment site. $200 per front foot on easy terms. Let us tell you more about this. Also two smaller lots for $6,000 and $5,000 each. Both good for smaller apartments,

ANSLEY PARK, 8-ROOM HOME—$6,500.

FACING the proposed Golf Links, near the Piedmont Avenue car line, we have this 2-story brand new house of 8 rooms; lot is 60x240, or larger if desired. All conveniences and attractive, $6,500, on easy terms to you.

FIVE-ROOM COTTAGE, $2,500—NEAR GRANT PARK.

HERE is a nice little home of 5 large rooms and bath, gas, water and sewer, and in good neighborhood, within 3 blocks of the park. We can make you terms of about $250 cash, assume small loan and the balance, say $25 per month. You will like this on investigation and the terms are BETTER THAN RENT.

We Get Ideals Easily from Pictures

So Please Look at the Picture on This Page of the Cheapest Working Animal in the World. It May Help You to Think.

Copyright, 1913.

What was the first animal tamed, conquered and made into a slave by man? Men had to work a long time, probably, before they got into their heads the idea of slavery for others—an idea that has meant so much to the comfort of a few and the misery of the rest for centuries.

As a guess, we should say that the first tamed animal was some kind of a deer or female buffalo. Some savage woman found it wounded, perhaps broken-legged in a pit, the young one standing near it. The young one was killed and eaten. The mother was hobbled and kept alive as long as possible for her milk, given to the wild woman's children. And when the milk gave out the mother probably was eaten by the wild woman and her children.

After that experiment that same wild woman, or some other, decided that the captured animal could be kept permanently, made gentle and used to carry a load. The women, of course, carried all the loads at first, as they do now among the red Indians. Probably the first domestic scene was a woman milking by force and violence some half-wild animal in order to get milk for her young ones.

The first animal tamed by man was probably a wolf, the father of our present tribe of dogs, the tame wolf being used by the man to help him hunt animals or hunt other men.

However, speculation about the first animal tamed is not the purpose of this particular article.

We want to call your attention to the most valuable animal that men use in their slavery, AND THE CHEAPEST ANIMAL.

That animal is a woman, working in the factory or a sweatshop.

Since the days when the first buffalo or wolf or elephant was tamed, there has been nothing as cheap as the woman worker, nothing so easily obtainable, so easily kept in slavery, so easily replaced when worked to death.

You can see in the picture on this page some of man's accomplishments. He teaches elephants to lift logs. He uses little donkeys, powerful horses, oxen with big horns, but he uses, above all THE POVERTY-STRICKEN WOMAN AND HER CHILDREN AS SOON AS THEY ARE OLD ENOUGH TO WORK.

Isn't that a proud achievement of civilization, to find the cheapest of all animal labor and the cheapest of all working animals IN THE FEMALE HUMAN BEING?

The wise and great Moses, when he was teaching the Jews to keep house without an ice-box and laying down laws that make of the Jewish people the healthiest in the world to-day, that wise Moses issued this order, on the authority of the Almighty:

"Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mother's milk."—Exodus 34:26.

Why Moses gave the order we don't know. Possibly because he thought it was bad enough to kill the mother and eat it, but a little too bad and too heartless to take the mother's milk and boil her own child in that milk. Or probably Moses issued the order because of his general opinion that meat and milk should not be used at the same meal.

What would Moses think, if he came along now and found a miserable, half-starved, under-paid woman, working in a factory and found her own "kid," the child of her body, tied to some machine in the factory with her, or sitting at her feet in a sweatshop working before it was six years of age?

Would not the old Lawgiver say, "I thought it was bad enough in my day to boil a kid in the milk of its own mother.

"But to take a child and work it to death in the same factory that worked its mother to death is going a little farther along the road of deviltry than I ever imagined human beings could go."

Yet that is what we do.

Our system of industry takes these "cheapest of working animals," the women, and takes their cheap children, and boils them all down into profits in the same factory—and that is "civilization."

You are tired, readers, of hearing about low pay for women and girls—tired, perhaps, even of the suggestion that laws should be passed compelling employers to pay to the cheapest working animal at least enough to keep clothes on her back and food in her stomach.

What follows, however, you will read with interest. It is a brilliant Frenchman's description of woman as she lived ages ago. He calls it, "The First Tears."

It is, perhaps, as good a description as has been written of the appearance of the first woman, in the days when she drank from the horn of a bison, and kept her rainwater in the skull of an elephant. It is the woman of the days before men had learned to conquer fire. It is worth reading:

"On the crest of the cliff the branches of a thicket parted and an arm, a shoulder, then the entire form of a living being, veiled with tawny hair, appeared, came forth, and stood like a hunted animal, glancing to right and left—a primitive woman, with arched shelving brows, broad flanks, short solid legs, splayfeet and thick fat hands.

"A mass of falling hair, starting from the crown of her long skull, framed her face with a somber red-brown aureole. A short, loose neck rose from her full shoulders, strong teeth glittered in her red jaws, and a double furrow ran from jaw to brow to divide the formless nose from the cheek bones.

"As the creature breathed her mobile nostrils drew back to take the revelations of the wind. Sheltered by the low retreating forehead, two jutting arcades fell to form caverns for the restless eyes. At times the wrinkled eyelids straightened, the eyes widened, and an expression of appealing softness appeared, then vanished to give place to the look of a worried beast.

"The time was the dawn of humanity, when Man was an animal in full but shape before the rigors of the season forced Earth's population to hide from the cold in caves. The skeletons of giant saurians were petrifying in the upper strata of the crust, and mammals were moving in to the valleys to take their places. Great pachyderms and long-haired ruminants waded in the mire of the valleys, and beasts of prey dogged their steps. Among the animals rare beings foreshadowing Man crept naked, timid, feeling their way, hiding from the beasts of prey.

"In the low light of the primeval springtime, in silence broken only by the tramp of padded hoofs and by the lap of water against the mire, a man searching for berries saw a woman running to escape him, ran after her, caught her and carried her away.

"The man vanished, and for the first time in her hunted life the woman felt the loneliness of the solitude that had been her best condition, and a pang like the yearning of hunger awoke in her.

"She wandered along the hedges, through the wet fields, under the dark sky, searching for the one who had mastered her; and when after long quest, she saw him, she ran to him with inarticulate cries. He gave no answering sign; but, when he sat down to eat his fistful of acorns, she sat down beside him, and when he lay down to sleep she, too, lay down. So the law of life gave the woman to the man.

"At first he tolerated her; then, when she served him and was useful to him, he made her his habit. Her relative weakness gave her quick premonitions of their need of food. His indifference to her and her dependence upon him gave him superiority. His silent acceptance of her presence aroused in her dull brain a feeling akin to tenderness, and in that feeling, humble and submissive, she withdrew when he had beaten her."

That description was written by Edmond Haraucourt.

It goes on to say that the primitive man called the woman "Hock." And the woman called him "Daah," a name which the French gentleman thinks was "an appeal soft as a caress." This primitive married couple had two other words, one for hunger, "Mah," and another for danger, "Heugh." Whatever else they had to say they told in gestures.

Primitive times were they not—those days of three or four hundred thousand years ago?

But how much worse was that primitive woman, short-legged and ugly and beaten by the brute that she liked, than the woman of to-day?

The woman of to-day is better made, she has a forehead where the other had none. She has feelings of which the other never dreamed.

Is she any better off—SHE, THE CHEAPEST WORKING MACHINE THAT MAN EMPLOYS; SHE, THE LOWEST-PRICED ANIMAL, THE CHIEF BEAST OF BURDEN OF THE WORLD, CHEATED OF HER RIGHTS FROM BEGINNING TO END, CHEATED AS WAS THIS WOMAN OF NEARLY HALF A MILLION YEARS AGO?

The so-called educated and superior classes have the impertinence to laugh at the women who at last have had the courage and the intelligence to make a stand for their rights, to demand a share in the making of laws that will protect them against the brutality that has lasted a half-million years.

The Cheapest Working Animal

She is cheaper by the day, the hour or the whole lifetime than any of the different beasts that labor for men. (SEE EDITORIAL.)

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Writes on This World

It Is Getting Better All the Time, She Declares, So Do Not Worry and Fret, but Improve Yourself and Push Ahead.

Written For The Atlanta Georgian

By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

THERE are hundreds of otherwise sensible and good men and women in the land today who are wasting precious vital force, and losing great opportunities for achievement, in a useless and foolish worry and despondency over the industrial situation of the country.

Food is high; rents are high; fuel is high, and the trusts and monopolies are carrying things from bad to worse.

YET ALL THE TIME THE WORLD IS IMPROVING. And all the time we are going toward a better era.

Work for Improvement.

Great men and great women are thinking and working to bring about an improved system of life and labor; and more work is being done for the uplifting and enlightenment of the race than ever before since the earth came out of chaos.

So do not dwell too much on the troubled social conditions of the day and grow bitter and pessimistic over them.

The situation is one which calls for all your optimism and cheerfulness.

The world has been wagging on for millions of years, and will continue to wag, and humanity has been slowly improving and will continue to improve slowly for many millions of years.

The first important thing for you to do is to improve yourself, and that you can not do if you grow bitter and despondent and harp continually upon the evil of the world.

If you allow your mind to dwell upon the scarcity of fuel and its high price, you will not increase the supply of fuel or lower the price, and you will exhaust your own vital forces, which might, properly conserved, fire you with ambition enough to go forth and invent some new fuel.

Help by Example.

Try in the moments of greatest gloom to realize that out of such strife and chaos as exist just now new conditions are formulated and in time are materialized. Be ready to meet these new conditions and be worthy of them.

It is useless to ask for a better social system unless the people who form it are better.

A government is made by the people. If it is faulty, it is because the people are faulty.

If it is to be bettered, the people must become better.

Begin with yourself. Keep wholesome, and hopeful, and reasonable, and industrious, and economical.

Help others to do so—not entirely by advice, but by example.

Try to save a little of what you earn to meet the emergency that may come. You think you can not, but if you once realize how little you really need to sustain life and keep well and strong you will find you can economize.

Half the food we now consume is more than enough! And the things which cost more are almost invariably the things we need least.

Consume fresh air, breathe deep and develop your muscles with outdoor exercises or room calisthenics. Look on the philosophical side of life and think cheerfully. Believe progress is back of all this chaos, just as you know the torn-up conditions of the city streets indicate future comfort and convenience for the people.

Everything will settle down by and by. Be ready to settle down with it, a healthy, hopeful, useful citizen.

It's Not a Theory.

Do not allow yourself to go to pieces with old conditions.

If you want to know some very interesting things which are being done for humanity get some leaflets and pamphlets describing the Single Tax propaganda.

There is something in the movement and the work being done for the whole world of thinking people.

The soul of Henry George is marching on, after his body is mouldering in the grave.

It will convince you that Single Tax is not a theory, but a great and wonderful Fact—and that in its principles lies the lifting of the race from slavery to independence.

.:. Saving Humanity's "Seed Corn" .:.

By REV. T. B. GREGORY.

THE foundation of the first real reform school, at Mettray, France, seventy-four years ago, marks the beginning of one of the most vitally important institutions that are at work among us at this time for the uplift of the race.

The honor of starting this most effective propaganda for the salvation of the young, who may well be called the "seed-corn" of humanity, belongs to M. de Metz, at one time a great lawyer in Paris.

Dangers to Youth.

In the Gay City Metz witnessed the temptations and dangers to which young boys and girls were exposed; he saw them falling by multitudes into the way of evil; and, what was more to the point, he observed that even the worst of the delinquents never quite succeeded in totally demoralizing themselves, and that most of them were redeemable if approached in the right spirit and assisted by the proper environment.

Set Himself the Task.

With this conviction deep set in his mind the ex-councillor set himself to the task of putting his faith to the test of actual experiment. Putting his hands into his own pockets, and into the pockets of as many of his friends as would allow it, he soon had a considerable amount of cash, and upon ground given by the Vicomte de Courcelles the Reform School was built and put into operation.

The results more than justified the good man's dream; and when, some years later, M. de Metz lay upon his deathbed, he was comforted with the happy consciousness that he had wrought nobly and permanently for the Humanity he loved so well.

The Mettray School set the world a-thinking, and it was not long before other countries were establishing similar institutions. Great Britain, Germany, Austria, Italy, the United States fell into line, and the idea of saving the boys and girls from becoming hardened criminals became almost a passion.

To-day—less than a century after the foundation of the school at Mettray—the institutions for the moral uplift of juvenile delinquents are to be numbered by the thousands. They have ramified not only throughout Christendom, but are to be found in the so-called "Pagan" lands of the earth, where Christianity, as an organization, is but little known.

Wherever humanity is found there in the midst of it is the spirit of the Paris lawyer—which is, of course, but a reflection of the spirit of the Great Brother of us all—working to save the youth of the race, to redeem fallen boys and girls from the grip of the destroyer and to restore them to the ways of decency and peace.

If all the youth who have been reached and lifted up to a sense of self-respect and happiness by these reform schools could be got together what a procession they would make!

Needs No Monument.

The temptation is strong to ask the question: Has M. de Metz a monument? But how foolish, after all, the question would be. He needs no monument. This same mighty army of redeemed youth is his monument and he requires no other.

"I Wonder How Much for a Hat?"

"$2,500 per annum for clothes is sufficient."—NEWS ITEM.

TWENTY-FIVE HUNDRED a year for clothes!
Gee, Bill, just think of that—
Twenty-five hundred for nothing but clothes!
I wonder how much for a hat?

Why, Daddy works like a slave,
An' he can't get no such clothes, he can't.
An' those 'at he does get are all worn out,
An' come as a gift from my aunt.

Twenty-five hundred! Whew, what a pile!
An' figurin' on ten bones a suit—
Why, two hundred and fifty new suits each year—
Gosh, that gink must be a beaut'!

Dad brings in six hundred a year,
An' on that we live an' pay rent.
Why can't my daddy have plenty of dough?
Ain't he as good as that gent?

2 CENTS PAY NO MORE

GIRL STICKS TO STORY AIDING FRANK

Her Narrative Believed to Bear Out Alibi Claim Defense Will Try to Prove.

Developments in the Phagan case Wednesday indicated that the detectives are bending all their energies to break down the strong alibis which have been established by the testimony of various persons who saw Leo Frank on the day the girl was murdered.

Minola McKnight, the colored cook at the Frank home, furnished the most notable example. She was free again Wednesday, but only after she had been put through the severest sort of a grilling and her attorney had threatened habeas corpus proceedings if she was not released. It was learned Wednesday that in the main she stuck to her story favorable to Frank.

The cook is one of the five witnesses upon whom the defense has relied to prove that Frank returned home for luncheon at 1:20 o'clock the Saturday afternoon of the murder and that he therefore could not have been in the office dictating the notes at the time James Conley, the negro sweeper, set in his affidavit.

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Selig and Mrs. Frank will be three of the other witnesses called by the defense to prove the time Frank arrived home from the factory on the fatal day. An acquaintance will tell of seeing Frank on the street car that day, and another will relate riding back to town with Frank.

Sticks to Story.

While it is understood that the negro woman, in spite of the rapid fire of questions of which she was made the target for more than two hours, maintained substantially the same story that she told when arrested on "suspicion," the detectives appear to attach great importance to her affidavit. In the hope of breaking her down, Ernest H. Pickett, of 295 Rawson Street, and Roy L. Craven, 11 Campbell Street, both employees at the Beck & Gregg hardware store, were sent into the room with her to fire questions at her.

Albert McKnight, husband of Minola, also works for the eBck & Gregg concern, and is said to have told Pickett and Craven that his wife had confided to him that Frank did not arrive home at the time he testified before the Coroner's jury. The two men informed the officers of McKnight's statement, and as a result the woman was arrested. She was taken first before Solicitor Dorsey, where she hysterically denied that she ever had made such remarks to her husband. She declared that she had had a "fuss" with her husband, and that he was taking this means to get her into trouble.

Alibi Big Obstacle.

The story she told before the two Beck & Gregg men is understood to be practically the same, but the woman evidently varied sufficiently from her original story to lead the detectives to regard her testimony as valuable and significant. It was taken down in the form of a statement and later was signed and sworn to.

Unless the State is able to break down the alibis furnished by Frank in the manner attempted on the McKnight woman, the factory superintendent's movements will be accounted for practically every moment on the day of the tragedy.

Mary Phagan entered the factory at about 12:05 in the afternoon. It is to be presumed that it was about 12:10 by the time she had received her pay envelope and had made the inquiries about the metal. Five minutes later Lemmie Quinn came in the building. He went to the second floor, walked into the office and talked to Frank. This circumstance, the defense will be able to maintain, precludes the possibility that Frank could have committed the crime up to this time. Mary Phagan was not in the office at the time and the natural

"O. K.'d by T. R." Is Liquor Ad Caption

SPRINGFIELD, MASS., June 4.—"O. K.'d by T. R." is the flaring announcement of a local liquor firm in to-day's Springfield papers in offering to the public "milk punch, rare old Madeira wines and mint juleps." The slogan is in type an inch high and extends across five columns.

Under the heading "Milk Punch" the advertisement says:

"T. R. is probably like the rural dominie who was given his first punch by his city host.

"'My dear sir,' he said, 'you ought to thank God every day of your life for having a cow that will give such milk.'"

10,215,000 Microbes Found in One Mud Pie

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LYONS, FRANCE, June 4.—A noted basteriologist of this city astonished his little son, whom a few days ago he found making mud pies. Curiosity led the father to take a pie home for examination.

He found 10,25,000 dangerous microbes in the few cubic inches of earth, classified as follows:

Diphtheria, 1,800,000; measles, 32,450,000; smallpox, 900,000; tetanus, 3,000,000; dysentery, 900,000; pneumonia, 575,000; tuberculosis, 620,000.

Germany and Prussia Floating New Loans

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

BERLIN, June 4.—Announcement that the Imperial and Prussian Governments are floating two more large public loans caused dismay in financial circles. The empire is borrowing $12,500,000 and Prussia $42,750,000 with interest at 4 per cent.

The loans redeemable in 1935 will both be issued June 12. The money is wanted for the extension of state railroads, particularly military strategic lines.

Money Magnates to Reveal Wage Scales

CHICAGO, June 4.—The powers of finance in Chicago, including a number of bankers, to-day were subpenaed to appear before the Illinois Senate White Slave Committee and tell about the wages of men employed in their institutions. The financiers will appear Friday.

The committee is investigating statements that many men in Chicago don't earn enough to support a family.

Judge Finds "Most Dangerous Woman"

NEW YORK, June 4.—A big crowd of curious persons flocked to Judge Swann's room in criminal court to see Miss Geraldine Wingate, called by Judge Swann "The Most Dangerous Woman in New York," who it is charged used wayward girls to trap wealthy men for her own profit.

A subpena had been issued for Miss Wingate to come into court and explain why she caused the arrest of Joseph Rahoon May 7.

Financial Morals of U. S. Scored in Paris

Special Cable to The American.

PARIS, June 4.—The bitterness against American securities is far from abating. The Journal des Debats, after reviewing the series of disappointments Paris investors have suffered, says:

"American financial morals make operations in securities depending upon New York particularly dangerous. American bankers have the idea, accepted as perfectly legitimate there, that ability only counts in business."

Baby Girl Becomes Masonic Order Ward

BUFFALO, June 4.—With ceremonies used in this country for the first time since 1771, Ruth Katharine Daggett, baby daughter of Byron B. Daggett, was baptized at the Scottish Rite Cathedral here.

The ceremony made the baby a ward of the Lodge of Perfection and entitled her to the guardianship and protection of the Masonic fraternity in every part of the world.

WOMEN ARE CALLED TO TELL OF VICE

Grand Jury to Hear Testimony of Proprietors of Houses Named by Colonel Felder.

A score of women have been summoned to testify before the Grand Jury in the sensational vice probe just begun.

Carl Hutcheson's list of 30 places given to the Grand Jury in its opening session was used as a witness list for the session of that body Wednesday.

A great many of the women whose names appeared as conducting the "houses in our midst, or hotel proprietors whom the young attorney alleged were paying for police protection, were served with subpenas as soon as Foreman L. H. Beck could arrange with the Solicitor's office for the service.

The list still is in the hands of the foreman. On it also are the names of persons whom it is alleged will make affidavits, or testify, that the allegations of the attorney are true. These, it is understood, may be summoned during the day.

Promises Thorough Probe.

Foreman Beck, who is conducting the probe independently of the State's prosecuting attorney, intimated before going into the executive session Wednesday morning that the probe would be one of the most extensive a Fulton grand jury ever has conducted.

He said the true conditions would be found out and the public acquainted with them at the proper time. He would not say whether the probe had progressed sufficiently to warrant returning indictments, but made it pretty plain that the jury would conclude its work when it completed the investigation and that the indictments, if any, would be brought at the request of the Solicitor, who would be made acquainted with the conditions.

"More than likely," he said, "we will embody the result of our investigation in the presentment and return it to Judge W. D. Ellis, who charged us so specifically to investigate vice conditions. Then if the people, or the officers, want to carry the matter further, it can take the customary course through the police or State officers."

Not Taking Up Bribery Row.

The names of witnesses handed the foreman by Chief of Detectives Newport Lanford have not been summoned. They are said to know of the dictograph evidence and the alleged bribery attempt on the part of Colonel Felder. Mr. Beck made it plain that this matter would have to be presented by the Solicitor and that the Grand Jury was only investigating the vice conditions.

G. C. Febuary, secretary to the chief of detectives, appeared with other witnesses Wednesday morning who were not given an opportunity to testify Tuesday.

Mr. Febuary, it is understood, will not be asked to tell anything of the bribery charge, but only that part of the controversy in which he was quoted as saying he had seen a "protection list" in the hands of the police officials.

Colonel Thomas B. Felder was one of the first witnesses to arrive. He brought with him again the large batch of papers that he said contained facts that would stand "Atlanta on its head."

Felder Has More Names.

It was understood that Colonel Felder had a "vice list" that would also be given the jury. He said it contained several of the names that were in the list furnished by Carl Hutcheson and a great many more.

Chief Lanford, Chief Beavers, Detective Black and Febuary were among the first arrivals Wednesday. Chief Beavers was anxious to go before the jury and tell what he knew of the vice conditions.

"Conditions are better in Atlanta to-day than they have ever been," he said, "and I am quite sure the Grand Jury will find it out. But if I am mistaken about it, I want to put my men to work. I am quite sure, however, it will be found the condition has been exaggerated. Of course nothing will come of the charges of corruption in my department."

Shirley Kellogg a Bride in London

Special Cable to The Atlanta Georgian.

LONDON, June 4.—Miss Shirley Kellogg, an Americus chorus girl, who at one time was reported engaged to "Diamond Jim" Brady, of New York, was quietly married to-day to Albert Pierrade Courville.

Miss Kellogg is a member of the chorus of a musical review at the Hippodrome, and her place may be taken by Evelyn Thaw, wife of Harry K. Thaw, who has been engaged to sing and dance there.

$40,000,000 Urged For Alaskan Roads

WASHINGTON, June 4.—A combination of the Jones and Chamberlain bill providing for a bond issue of $40,000,000 for the construction by the Government of railroads in Alaska, will be urged at the present session of Congress, according to a statement made to-day by Senator Pitman, chairman of the Senate Committee on Territories.

The new measure was framed by a sub-committee composed of Senators Pitman, Chamberlain and Jones.

New Throat Disease Has Europe Puzzled

Special Cable to The American.

LONDON, June 4.—Physicians in many parts of England and France are puzzled by the spread of a mysterious throat complaint, the chief symptom of which is a filmy exudation from the tonsils or at the back of the throat. It has caused several deaths.

The complications include erysipelas, high temperature and weakness of the heart action. Some physicians are inclined to believe that it is a non-typical form of scarlet fever or measles.

Wins His Degree in College Though Blind

NEW YORK, June 4.—Among the 2,000 or more students who receive degrees from Columbia University to-day, is Carlton S. Glover, who gets the degree of Bachelor of Arts, though he is totally blind.

He is a native of Kentucky.

Teaching is the career Glover has selected. He was assisted in preparing his lessons by readers provided by the State, which allows $300 to each blind student taking a course in a college.

Heiress Will Choose Parent She Wants

NEW YORK, June 4.—Eleven-year-old Muriel Bishop, whose mother, Mrs. Abigail Hancock Bishop, got a divorce from her millionaire banker husband, James Cunningham Bishop, last week on grounds of infidelity, today will go into court and tell Justice Goff whether she would like to live with her mother or her father.

She was sent to Virginia so she would not see reports of the divorce trial testimony.

King George and Queen Mary Ask Society Favorite to Remain in London.

LONDON, June 4.—Mrs. George Keppel, who was practically banished from London after the death of King Edward, it was learned to-day, has again been declared the most popular woman in London society. During a restaurant dinner "paper games," which are now the rage in London, were started. In one of the games the question was asked:

"Who is the most popular woman in London?"

When the answers were opened and counted 19 out of the 22 guests had written the name of Mrs. George Keppel.

It is said to be the wish of King George and Queen Mary that Mr. and Mrs. Keppel, who had planned to spend the summer on the Continent, remain in London.

E. O. PAINTER'S FAMILY DENY SUICIDE; AGENTS ARE AWAITING INQUEST

No Move Yet Made by Insurance Companies to Contest Payment of More Than Million Dollars on the Death of Jacksonville Fertilizer Man.

By COLE E. MORGAN.

JACKSONVILLE, FLA., June 4.—Edward Okle Painter's family and intimate friends positively state their belief that his death in the St. Johns River on May 22 was accidental and not premeditated or due to mental abberation as is talked in Jacksonville.

They declare his business was in excellent condition, his home life ideal, and that he had no cause to seek self-destruction.

The insistence of insurance salesmen to write policies, because he was considered an excellent risk, and because a spirited competition among insurance rivals had ensued this spring, are the explanations offered for his taking out a million dollars of new insurance since February 1.

Miss Okle Painter, the dead man's only daughter and his namesake, has for several years occupied a position in his office, and has been one of the directing spirits in the E. O. Painter Fertilizer Company. She is authority for the statement, speaking for the family, that he had no reason to want to die. She is typically a business woman.

She discusses the affair calmly and deliberately, with little of the emotion typical of her sex.

State Senator J. B. Conrad, of Glenwood, a wealthy banker, has been named acting president of the fertilizer company, but has not taken charge, being engaged in the legislative session at Tallahassee. In the meantime D. A. Morrison, Jr., secretary, is directing the company's affairs, advising with Miss Painter upon matters concerning the family's interest.

A secret meeting of the stockholders was held yesterday afternoon. It is said a 15 per cent dividend planned at this time was not declared because of Painter's death.

Painter a Self-made Man

Painter was a self-made man, starting in business with a very limited education. As his daughter grew up he gave her a splendid education and depended on her where he was deficient. Painter was a real leader in Florida and Jacksonville. His word was accepted without question. As an evidence of his popularity he was elected one of the Jacksonville port commissioners in a recent election, receiving the third highest vote among fifteen candidates. This was his first political contest. He headed the Board of Trade's foreign committee. Last December he represented Jacksonville at the Panama Trade Conference held in Atlanta. He was active in charity enterprises, his favorite being the Children's Home Society.

It is said that one condition he exacted of the insurance agent who wrote his recent policies was that a percentage of the premiums go this society, of which he was secretary.

The Painter case has brought to light a peculiar phase of Florida law. There is practically no penalty prescribed for the mutilation of a dead body before it is in the custody of the Coroner. The only punishment pose is a misdemeanor for interfering with an officer in the discharge of his duties. Consequently those who performed or instigated the hasty autopsy on Painter's body before the Coroner's Jury had seen it, were to all intents within the law, and no legal question as to their action is anticipated.

No Word From Baltimore

Thus far Coroner C. D. Abbott has heard nothing of the results of the analysis ordered in Baltimore. He has directed that the report be sent to him through the Barnet National Bank, while Dr. P. C. Perry, representing the family, has contended that he is the proper one to receive it. He is now in Baltimore.

Coroner Abbott's authority in this case has been questioned because the body was recovered on the South Jacksonville side of the river and another coroner has jurisdiction there.

But it was landed on the Jacksonville side, and for that reason Coroner Abbott was notified. The Coroner's Jury that viewed the remains of the body only after the autopsy was performed has had but one meeting since the day of death, and is awaiting the report from Baltimore.

The investigation here is at a standstill. The insurance companies are now doing practically nothing pending the inquest verdict. No adjuster here professes to know what his company's plans to do and the mystery is as unsolved to-day as it was a week or more ago.

KING AND QUEEN IN THRONGS AT THE DERBY

Record Crowd Swarms to Epsom Downs for Greatest British Turf Event.

EPSOM, ENGLAND, June 4.—Craganour, owned by C. Bowers Ismay and ridden by Johnny Reiff, an American jockey, won the derby on Epsom Downs to-day.

EPSOM, ENGLAND, June 4.—A record crowd swarmed Epsom Downs to-day for the running of the Derby, the crowning classic of the British turf. Among them were many American tourists who had hoped that they might vent their patriotism in betting upon a horse owned by a citizen of the United States. In this, however, they were disappointed, for the only American-owned horse, Richard Croker's Knights Key, was scratched.

The weather is brilliant and the track hard and fast. The three favorites, in order named, were C. Bower Ismay's Craganour, D. R. Browning's Shogun and W. Raphael's Louvois.

King George, who entered four horses in the blue ribbon event, and Queen Mary traveled from London, accompanied by a number of members of the Court of St. James. The presence of royalty at the race track is always a lure, but this time it seemed to redouble its qualities of attraction.

Daring Split Gowns Worn.

Daring French styles of dresses, which have become common at Longchamps and other French race courses, were seen, although it was noticed that the Queen's frock was simple almost to the point of being old-fashioned. Some of the women of the swagger set, however, wore split skirts that nearly revealed the wearers' knees.

Although there were no American horses running this absence was partly countered by the fact that four American jockeys rode in the race. They were Danny Maher, J. Reiff, M. Henry and W. O'Neill.

Out of the original 345 starters only sixteen were left after the final scratching was done. These horses, however, represent the cream of English turfdom. They have been trained from colthood for the speed trial of to-day.

Extraordinary precautions have been taken to guard the Derby candidates on account of threats made by militant suffragettes to poison blooded horses. Special guards have been employed for weeks to guard the stables.

Million Bet on Craganour.

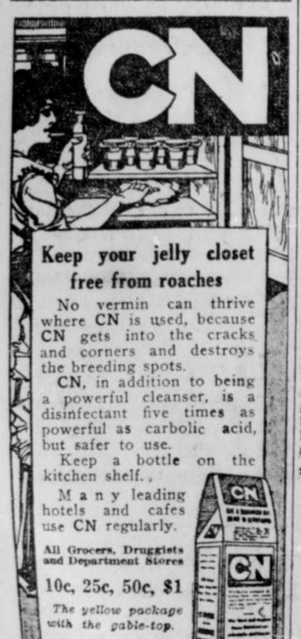

A fortune estimated close to $1,000,000 was wagered on Craganour, the mount of Johnny Reiff, one of the American jockeys. Thousands, however, bet on Lord Rosebery's Pride merely because Danny Maher was riding this horses.

The overnight betting was: Craganour, 5 to 2; Shogun, 9 to 2; Louvois, 7 to 1; Nimbus, 9 to 1; Day Comet, 100 to 7; Prue and Great Sport, 100 to 6 against.. Odds on the others ranged into very "long figures."

August Belmont had entered Vulcan VI, but did not arrive from France in time to take part. H. P. Whitney, Herman Duryea and other American turfmen had entered horses, but all scratched them for one reason or another. The Derby is worth approximately $50,000 to the winner. The distance is about a mile and a half. W. Raphael's Tagalis won the event last June.

COOK STICKS TO STORY HELPING FRANK'S CASE

Negress Released After Being Catechized Two Days by the Police and Prosecutor.

presumption would be that he had left and had gone downstairs.

Quinn left about 12:20. Half an hour later Frank was on the fourth floor talking to Harry Denham and Arthur White. This half hour is the only time of length that is unaccounted for in the movements of Frank during the time it is the theory that Mary Phagan was killed. And if Frank committed the deed at this time it would have been necessary for him to have her in hiding meantime.

After letting Mrs. White out of the building at a few minutes of 1 o'clock, Frank's testimony is that he left the building himself at 1 o'clock, locking the door behind him. At 1:20 he was at home, according to the testimony of witnesses.

Mystery in Staple.

The theory of the defense, as outlined previously, is that Conley, lying in wait on the first floor, saw Mary Phagan coming down the stairs alone and attacked her. He is believed by those interested in the defense of Frank to have dropped the body of the stunned girl down the elevator shaft to the basement, where he completed his crime.

By the time he had disposed of the body and came back upstairs Frank had gone and locked the door, the contention will be. The negro was locked in the building with his crime if this theory is correct. His natural course would have been to run down into the basement again, pull the staple from the rear door and make his escape.

No plausible explanation has been offered for the removal of the staple from the basement floor in any of the affidavits of the negro. By his own story, he and Frank returned to the second floor, wrote the notes and departed, Frank going out, so far as he knew, by the front door. There was no reason for him to go out any other way, if the negro's story is true.

Accepting the affidavits of Conley, the detectives were at loss for a time to explain the pulling of the staple. Then came the affidavit of the woman, Mrs. Mima Fomby, and the theory soon was evolved that Frank had pulled the staple later in the day so that he might remove the dead body from the building, place it in a cab and take it to the house of Mrs. Fomby, so that suspicion might be directed away from him.

Counsel Obtained.

The theory of the police is made to appear improbable by the fact that such an action, if Frank was guilty of the crime, would only have served to direct suspicion more certainly at him. The theory presumes that Frank first virtually took Conley into his confidence by getting Conley's aid in disposing of the body when there was no reason he could not have done it alone. Then it presumes that Frank proposed to run the risk of discovery by Newt Lee, who would have been aware, at least, of the damaging circumstances that Frank was in the factory after 6:30 o'clock in the evening at the time Frank swore he was home. On top of all this Frank would have had to taken a cab driver into his confidence, then Mrs. Fomby and any others who happened to be at her house, where they could observe the bringing of the dead body.

Both Conley and Minola McKnight, the servant girl, have obtained counsel. William M. Smith is acting in behalf of Conley, and George Gordon has been selected to represent the negroes.

10,000 MARCH IN HALF-HOLIDAY PARADE

Bands, Vehicles of Trade and Happy Clerks Will Join 'Emancipation' Pageant.

With a parade that fairly teems with possibilities of unique features, the retail grocers of Atlanta will celebrate the opening of the annual Wednesday half-holiday season Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. For two hours downtown streets of the city will belong to the 10,000 grocers, clerks, butchers and retailers who will take part in the festivities, and the pageant promises to be one of the most interesting parades Atlanta folk have witnessed in years.

One of the unique features which puts the stamp of individuality on the parade is the fact that the grocers are going to get along without the rattle and bang of military accoutrements in their march through the streets of the city. The military atmosphere will be furnished by a detail of mounted policemen, and they will lead the parade.

The atmosphere of the middle and rear end of the parade will be strictly commercial. Where bright swords once swung so grandly and gold braid waved so proudly in the breezes will be the butcher's cleaver and the breadknife, the white cap and apron of the grocer and his clerk.

Heavy Artillery of Trade.

Miles of gaily decorated automobiles, delivery wagons and milk and ice wagons will make up a portion of the parade, and those who desire the rumbling of artillery carriages will have to be satisfied with the rattle of the milk cans and the jangling of the ice hooks.

Those who enjoy a parade where the paraders are cutting up antics and making fun will find something to watch in this parade of the joyful clerks. The grins on the faces of these emancipated persons as they go about their work this morning tell the tale. They plan to combine all their year's store of fun and foolishness into one grand joy fest. Outlandish costumes, painful to the eye of the tailor and with a laugh in each crooked fold and uneven stitch, will be as plentiful as flowers in the springtime. There will be clowns, wild men, bronco busters from the Far West, and then there will be just plain men out to have a good time and to give someone else a good time watching them.

And there is mystery to be found in the parade. Some of the big moguls of the Atlanta grocery trade who will march in the parade are keeping their costumes a secret, even from their most intimate friends, and they swear by the cleaver and the half-bushel measure that they are going to start something when they march down the street. Among the "mysteries" who will be on hand are Aides Cowan and Mosley, with their assistants, Messrs. Mildred Phelps, K. J. A. Word, H. A. Bishop and H. R. Buchanan. Some more of the prominent figures in the parade will be Harry L. Schlesinger and D. N. McCullough.

Weird Dances Are Expected.

Then there will be bands. The best Atlanta affords will march with the clerks, blaring everything from the Whitehall Wabble and the Peachtree Prance to grand opera and Dixie. And the clerks say they will dance everything the band plays, so Atlantans will probably see some weird things during the parade.

The parade will form around the Capitol and march down Washington Street to East Fair, down East Fair to Brotherton, down Brotherton to Whitehall, down Whitehall to Peachtree, up Peachtree to North Avenue, down North Avenue to West Peachtree, up West Peachtree to Peachtree and down Peachtree to Five Points.

The parade will be led by a squad of police, followed by the grand marshals, Harry L. Schlesinger and D. N. McCullough. Then will come the Fifth Regiment band, riding in an automobile truck. Then will come Aides Cowan and Mosley, escorting the wagons and automobiles of the grocers' holiday committee.

Then some of the wagons of the retail grocers will swing into the line and rattle and bump over the pavement until they have caught up with the leading division of the parade. Then the Marist College band, in an auto truck, will come, followed by some more retail grocery wagons under the direction of H. Weinberg and his aides.

Wagons to Bring Up Rear.

After that the packing house wagons will come sweeping to the front from their rendezvous on Mitchell Street, and headed by Chief Aide J. M. Burton and his assistants, will swing into line. Preceding the packing house wagons will be the Greater Atlanta Boys' Club band.

Then the commission merchants' and jobbers' wagons, the automobiles and the decorated trucks will have their inning. They will form on East Fair Street and swing into line behin the packing house wagon, headed by Chief Aid J. F. McNair and his assistants. Then will come Weidemeyer's Band, leading the wagons of the bakers and the cracker manufacturers, who will be headed by Chief Marshall J. J. Merritt and his assistants.

The final division consists of the ice wagons and ice manufacturers' wagons and will roll out of Central Avenue to join the parade. They will be taken care of by Chief Marshals C. M. McCoy and R. H. Comer, with ten assistants. A band will precede them. Then will come the balance of the parade, the retail wagons of all trades, from the haberdasher to the ice cream cone.

The aides will meet the grand marshals at the corner of Washington and Mitchell Streets at 1:30 to receive final instructions. All wagons will be in line by 1:30 o'clock.

Milton H. Smith Here for Famous Rate Battle

Shuns Reporters, but Photographer 'Gets Him'

Milton H. Smith, the veteran president of the L. and N. Railroad, who is in Atlanta.

This is the first picture of the noted railway head published in many years.

Veteran Head of L. & N. Bitterly Opposes State Interference in Railroad Affairs.

Milton H. Smith, the veteran president of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, is in Atlanta taking a leading part in the Alabama 2½-cent passenger rate fight in the Federal Court here.

While Mr. Smith is known to be bitterly opposed to State interference with the operation of railroads, he refused to make comment upon his own case.

Also, he showed his usual very decided antipathy for newspaper reporters and photographers. A picture was snapped of him in the lobby of the Piedmont Hotel. It is the first one published in many years.

"It generally costs money to get in the newspapers just what I want to say," said Mr. Smith, declining to be interviewed.

"Once in a while I send a statement to a paper, which, as a rule, is the answer to statements made by a public official. But mine generally come back with a nice little letter saying they will be glad to publish it at regular advertising rates. I can't see the fairness in it, but suppose it is because the other fellow happens to be a public official."

Mr. Smith merely smiled about the probable outcome of the injunction suit; he thought the country was in good condition; he smiled over what he thought of State Legislatures and Railroad Commissions generally; he smiled over the question of his opinion of Atlanta.

No more interesting figure in railroad circles can be found than Milton H. Smith. As head of the Louisville and Nashville Railroad he has developed it into one of the strongest systems in the United States.

OLD GUARD BACK FROM PEACE TOUR

Declare Last "Invasion" of North Most Successful in History of Organization.

Early trains from Savannah brought in the members of the Old Guard battalion, returning from their peace mission to Eastern cities.

The Old Guards' last entertainment of the tour was accorded them in Savannah by the Georgia Huzzars. The company, upon its arrival from the North by steamship Tuesday, was met by the Huzzars in full dress uniform and escorted to the DeSoto Hotel. During the afternoon they were driven about the city and county in automobiles.

A reception was tendered them in the evening at the Huzzars' Club, when the Oold Guard was received oy the Mayor and Aldermen, the Chamber of Commerce, the Board of Trade, the Cotton Exchange, the First Regiment, the Savannah Volunteer Guards and the Chatham Artillery and a number of prominent citizens.

Members interviewed Wednesday morning upon their arrival in Atlanta declared the trip had been the most successful in the history of the organization.

SAVANNAH.—Judge Henry McAlpin has set June 24 the time for the election of a Representative to the Legislature to succeed Colonel Pleasant A. Stovall, recently resigned. There will be at least two candidates in the race—J. J. Bouhan and Herman Shuptrine.

THE PLAYS THIS WEEK

Keith Vaudeville at Forsyth.

It is mighty near a case of picking your own hit at the Forsyth this week. Of course Lillian Shaw is the headliner. And she makes good in that position. Jack Hazard was an unknown until Monday afternoon. He stated at the beginning that he was going to tell some stories. The audience was a bit restless, but pretty soon Hazard had the attention of everybody and when he bowed off after twenty minutes of talking he carried with him the biggest hit that has been registered by any monologist in the history of Atlanta.

Seldom's Models score a great big hit with their "Poems in Marble." There are two fine looking men and a beautiful woman in this act. They are made up in white and pose in living reproductions of statues. The Three Alex who close the show present the most sensational act that has been seen on a local stage, and Wright and Dietrich score well in a singing and talking oddity that is very pleasing.

Tabloid Comedy at Bijou.

"The College Girls" at the Bijou promise to break the tabloid musical comedy record for attendance at the family theater. The show is a combination of pretty girls, good music and funny fellows.

The Bijou has come right to the front with its new policy and the house is being crowded at all performances.

EX-CONVICT SUES WARDEN OF CAMP

John Birt Asks $10,000 for Alleged Cruel Flogging—State Inquiry Probable.

Suit for $10,000 damages has been filed against Oscar F. Jones, Warden of the Bellwood convict camp, by John Birt, who says he was cruelly beaten on July 2, the day he was sent as a prisoner to the camp, with the result that he spent several weeks in the convict hospital.

In his petition, filed by Attorney C. G. Battle, Birt charges he was given 72 lashes and kicked and beaten. He lost 40 pounds in weight, he alleges, and his earning capacity was decreased three-fourths. He affirms he was told his punishment was inflicted because he cursed on the way to the camp.

Attorney Battle said the circumstances of Birt's treatment were so flagrantly inhuman that the Prison Commission began an investigation, which will be taken up again July 1. Birt was sick and unable to work at the time, Battle says, and was chained and maltreated by another convict camp official, against whom an additional damage suit will be brought.

Wife and I Are Friends of INSTANT POSTUM

"There's a Reason"

"I used to drink coffee—was nervous and irritable. Wife said so.

"So when the new food-drink, Instant Postum, came along she said to herself: 'Here's where I break Jack of the coffee habit.'

"Instant Postum is good stuff. I sleep better, smile more, and miss my indigestion."

A level teaspoonful of Instant Postum in an ordinary cup of hot water dissolves instantly and makes it right for most persons.

A big cup requires more and some people who like strong things put in a heaping spoonful and temper it with a large supply of cream.

Experiment until you know the amount that pleases your palate and have it served that way in the future.

Postum comes in two forms.

Regular Postum (must be boiled).

Instant Postum doesn't require boiling, but is prepared instantly by stirring a level teaspoonful in a cup of hot water.

MRS. GRACE AND OLDHAM SHOCK COATESVILLE

Asked to Leave the Swan Hotel When It Is Found They Are Not Married.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—Mrs. Daisy Opie Grace, who was acquitted in Atlanta of attempting to kill her husband, furnished the gossips two spicy morsels by announcing, first, that she was not the wife of Charles H. Oldham, and, second, that they expected to marry as soon as she gets her divorce.

Mrs. Grace made the announcements immediately following receipt of a request from David Martin that she vacate her apartments in the Swan Hotel, at Coatesville, of which Martin is proprietor. Oldham some time ago told acquaintances that Mrs. Grace had become his wife, and society matrons at Coatesville, believing that they were occupying the same apartments, were shocked beyond expression yesterday when they heard the ceremony was still in contemplation.

Mrs. Grace expressed amusement at the whole affair. She said she and Mr. Oldham went to Coatesville that she might avoid publicity attendant upon her divorce decree, which she expects any day, but that they occupied separate apartments. When the divorce is granted, she said, she and Mr. Oldham intend to marry.

"This is just a prying woman's work," said Mrs. Grace. "I am being watched by detectives, I know, and I was foolish to take on so many friends. Mr. Oldham and I are occupying separate apartments. I thought it was funny when he told some of his friends I was his wife. We will be married as soon as I get my divorce, which I am expecting any day now."

Just because the unfounded scandal talk was hurting Mr. Oldham's business, Mrs. Grace said, they intended to leave and go in different directions—she to the mountains and he somewhere else. Then when her divorce is granted they will be married, surely, and the gossips will have nothing to talk about.

DECATUR HAS ITS RECORD 'BIG DAY'

Home-Coming Celebration Draws Hundreds to See Cornerstone Laying and Ceremonies.

Decatur Wednesday is recovering from the biggest celebration in its history. Tuesday was "Homecoming Day" and the anniversary of the birth of Jefferson Davis. Both were observed with ceremonies. The city presented a gala attire and one round of entertainment followed another.

Many civic and patriotic organizations took part in a parade which followed the crowning feature of the day, the laying of the cornerstone of a new $25,000 school building. George W. Napier, past grand master of the Georgia Masons, presided. Orators were J. Howell Green, John A. Montgomery and Hooper Alexander.

Children of the Decatur public schools and Boy Scouts took an active part in the celebration. The Confederate monument on the South Court Square was the rallying place for the Pythagoras Masons and the Board of Trade.

Dr. A. M. Soule, of the State Agricultural College, opened the day's program at 10 o'clock, when he addressed a large crowd at the courthouse.

A patriotic address by C. M. Chandler on the life and work of Jefferson Davis struck a responsive chord.

Representative-elect R. M. Smith urged the Fifth District Agricultural School for DeKalb County.

A smoker at the courthouse at 6:30 o'clock gave Atlantans an opportunity to speak. Wilmer L. Moore, C. J. Haden, Walter G. Cooper, Forrest Adair, Alonzo M. Field, R. F. Gilliam, R. W. Parker and Mayor John A. Montgomery were the speakers.

Georgians Feast on 500-Pound Turtle

CHARLESTON, S. C., June 4.—A sea turtle weighing nearly 500 pounds and measuring 5 feet 6 inches from tip to tip was caught off the Isle of Palms by fishermen.

The huge creature ended its career in the Isle of Palms soup kettle, feeding many Georgians who came over for the feast. It was the largest turtle ever captured here.

House Will Mark Time Until June 23

WASHINGTON, June 4.—An agreement has been reached between the House leaders to transact no partisan business until June 23.

Meanwhile the House will take recesses for three days at a time and the currency committee will work on a currency bill.

Her Doctor Recommended NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

While there are no thrills in the narration of Mrs. P. T. Nichols, 623 Broad Street, Beloit, Wis., her story is nevertheless one of amazing interest. "Stricken with neuralgia and erysipetas, I lost all my hair. My doctor recommended Newbro's Herpicide. I used six or eight bottles and now have a fine head of slightly curly brown hair. Not a gray hair in my head. This is the more remarkable as I am middle-aged."

While the results which follow the use of Newbro's Herpicide are always more or less astonishing, they are always natural. Herpicide destroys the dandruff, stimulates the flow of blood to the hair follicles and keeps the scalp perfectly healthy. It makes possible a natural and luxuriant growth of hair, except in cases of chronic baldness.

While remedies said to be "every bit as good" as Newbro's Herpicide are frequently offered, one should insist upon having "the original germ destroyer," Herpicide. This is genuine. It stops itching of the scalp almost instantly.

Newbro's Herpicide in 50c and $1 sizes is sold by all dealers, who guarantee it to do all that is claimed. If you are not satisfied your money will be refunded.

Applications may be obtained at good barber shops. Send 10c in postage for sample to The Herpicide Co., Dept. R., Detroit, Mich.

ATLANTA INVITES BAPTISTS OF U. S.

Memphis, Too, After Next Year's Session of Sunday School Congress—Meeting in Oklahoma.

MUSKOGEE, OKLA., June 4.—The eighth annual session of the Sunday School Congress of the National Baptist Convention opened here to-day. Delegates came from every part of the United States.

Notable among those to arrive in Muskogee was the train bearing the officials of the Sunday School Congress with the Tennessee, Georgia, South Carolina, Virginia, New York, Florida and Mississippi delegations. It was known as the "Official Sunday School Congress Train."

Arrayed in Congress caps, a chorus consisting of 252 voices sang "Hail the Baptist Congress" as the train pulled in.

The first subject under discussion was "Interdenominational Sunday School, Organizations, National and International, Their Theoretical and Practical Value." There were a half-dozen papers read taking up this in detail. The next subject was "Why Should the Pastor and Church Urge the Organization of Teacher-Training Classes?"

Officers have labored to make the Congress the most brilliant Sunday school gathering in the history of the interdenomination.

It is not known just how many cities are clamoring for the next session, but it was learned from Henry A. Boyd, secretary, that invitations had been received from St. Louis, Atlanta, New York City, Atlantic City and Memphis.

YOUTHS IN COUNTRY TOWNS WORKING HARD TO LAND SHETLANDS

I nominate, as a candidate in The Hearst's Sunday American and Atlanta Georgian Pony Outfit Contest:

Name .....

Address .....

Nominated by .....

Address .....

GOOD FOR 1,000 VOTES.

Only One Nomination Blank Can be Voted for Any Contestant.

Not only is a little candidate in Jefferson, Ga., working hard for one of the pony outfits The Georgian and American are offering, but also he is planning far into the future.

He writes:

"I am working as hard as I can. If you will help me get the pony and cart, I will sell papers for you as long as the pony lasts, and will give you all the money I make a week and will get some customers in the country and will bring it to them."

Evidently he wants a pony.

The Georgian and American can not give him help, though, any more than is given other contestants. The contest is strictly impartial.

There is a hustler in Cartersville. He writes in for six books. "Sure, for I am doing big business and need them badly."

Vote totals are growing all along the line. No boy or girl will have a pony in a "walkaway."

BILL FRAMED TO HALT CRUELTY TO ANIMALS

Measure, Modeled After Successful Law, Gives Society Officers Power to Arrest.

By JAMES B. NEVIN.

After weeks of revision and study, a bill for the prevention of cruelty to animals in Georgia has been framed by a well known member of the incoming Legislature, and will be introduced in the House soon after the General Assembly meets this month.

W. B. Barton, G. Noble Jones and Thomas Lynch, of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals in Georgia, compose the committee having the bill in hand for the Society. They will see that it is given attention in the early part of the coming session. No great opposition is anticipated.

Mr. Barton says that the new bill covers the field thoroughly and leaves no loophole through which possible offenders may escape. It is modeled after similar laws now in operation in New York and Virginia, and gives agents of the society full authority to make arrests, which Georgia's present law relating to this subject does not do. The S. P. C. A. in Georgia has been handicapped in its work thus far because of this omission in the present law.

"There is plenty of work for the society to do," said President Barton, discussing the matter in Atlanta today, "but the present law on the subject is very meager. The reasons why the societies of other states are so successful is that they have the proper laws back of them. Under the bill which we have framed, our agents will be authorized to make arrests and wear the uniform and badge of the society.

"I have no doubt that the law will be enacted this year. There was no objection to the bill we had before the legislature last year, which was very similar to this one. It was favorably reported by the judiciary committee of both houses, but it was so near the end of the session that the bill was lost in the rush of business, and did not come up for a vote. The bill has already been passed upon and interpreted by the courts of the State and we are not looking for any opposition from that source, or any other."

What promises to constitute the most fruitful branch of the S. P. C. A.'s Georgia work are the four bands of mercy recently organized by President Barton, among the school children of the State. These children are taught humane treatment of all dumb beasts, and are entering enthusiastically into the work. The bands now number 150 members, and are under the supervision of Mrs. Josephine Freeland, of Savannah.

Representative Frank Rhodes, of Clark County, near neighbor to all the territory concerned, is enthusiastically in favor of creating the proposed new county of Barrow, and speaks interestingly of the necessity thereof.

"Winder, which is one of the very best cities in all Georgia," said Mr. Rhodes, discussing the proposition today, "is now most unfortunately situated.

"Three counties corner in the town, and yet it is twenty good miles and more from the county seat of any one of the three. A big rock in the middle of the main street of Winder shows where the three counties—Gwinnett, Jackson and Walton—come together.

It frequently happens, as an example to the disadvantages Winder labors under, that an administrator having property to dispose of and handle in Winder, has to take out papers of administration in three counties in order to be able to meet the requirements of the law.

"The people of Winder are a unit practically for the new county, and there is little real opposition to the project anywhere. I know the conditions in Winder, and the surrounding territory, and I know the people need relief from a situation that is almost unendurable. I have talked with a number of members of the incoming house, moreover, and I believe the new county will be created.

"I am not a crank on the subject of new counties, but I expect to give my hearty support to Barrow, for I know it is a most deserving proposition. Indeed, I believe the Legislature would be doing a positive wrong not to create it.

"Territorially, and according to population and necessity, Barrow county has every claim to favorable legislative consideration."

Anticipating the coming of the Legislature within three weeks, Colonel Pierce Latimer, Keeper of Buildings and Grounds, is busy as he can be nowadays renovating and cleaning up the State Capitol.

During legislative recesses, the chambers of the two houses are visited only by occasional sightseers, and are about as lonesome as any place around the Capitol, if not more so. Consequently, it generally takes quite a good deal of brushing, sweeping, painting and fixing around in one way and another to get things in shape for the fifty days each year when the chambers serve a real purpose to the State.

When the gavels fall on the 25th day of this month, however, Mr. Latimer will have the houses fixed up after the fashion of Spotless Town, all right.

Governor-elect John M. Slaton is hard at work on his inaugural address and first message to the General Assembly.

Mr. Slaton is not giving out any idea of what subjects he will treat of in either utterance, however, and contents himself with informing inquirers that they will enjoy his messages more if they will await their official delivery.

The Governor-elect keeps regular hours at his offices in the Grant Building in Atlanta, and such time as he devotes to state documents is snatched from the time he spends at home.

After his inauguration, of course, the Governor-elect will abandon his law practice.

RESTORATION OF MEAT SUPPLY UP TO DIXIE

Cattle Tick Must Be Exterminated First, However, Says Department of Agriculture.

BY HUGH S. MILLER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 4.—It is to the South that the nation must look for restoration of its meat supply, according to the department of agriculture.

"The South has great possibilities for the future as a cattle raising country, "says a bulletin issued by the department.

"Development of the cattle raising industry in the South, however, must await the extermination of the cattle tick. Fortunately this is being rapidly accomplished by the joint efforts of the Government and the States. The time has come when we must conserve our meat supply and take steps to increase it, and at the present remunerative prices for food animals it is probable that this will be gradually accomplished.

"The shortage in the supply of meat producing animals in the United States is steadily becoming more pronounced, and it is evident that the country is facing an era of short production of meat. In the last six years there has been a decline of over thirty per cent. in the number of beef cattle in the country, while the population and the consequent demand for meat has increased.

"The beef cattle in the country on Jan. 1, 1907, numbered 51,566,000; at the beginning of the present year the number was only 36,030,000. High prices were paid last year. For instance native steers brought $7.95 in Chicago, as against $6.50 the year before. We no longer have cattle for export and for the first time in our history the United States imported more in 1912 than it exported."

*Indicates increase. ....

By B. C. FORBES.

Only $123,140,00 of new securities were issued by American corporations during May. This is $81,577,000 short of the total for May, 1912.

Since January 1 the total output of bonds, notes and stocks by railroads, traction, industrial, mining and miscellaneous companies has been $766,913,000, a decrease of $465,357,000 as compared with the figure for the first five months of 1912.

Not one dollar's worth of railroad stock was floated during the whole of last month, a fact heavy with significance.

Five Months' Record.

The year's record of new issues, and comparisons with last year, reads as follows:

	Output.	Decrease.
January	$198,105,000	$142,895,000
February	132,362,000	185,470,000
March	148,829,000	.1,621,000
April	164,477,000	53,788,000
May	123,140,000	81,577,000
	$776,913,000	$465,357,000

Financing is being postponed wherever possible. An unusually large proportion of the 1913 output has been for refunding operations or to pay off maturing obligations. The net addition to railroad and industrial capital outstanding has been much less than the total flotations of $766,913,000 would suggest.

And let me here state very emphatically that the St. Louis & San Francisco Railroad receivership will render the raising of new capital doubly difficult, for security holders have had their faith gravely shaken. The European Market has been shocked by the extraordinary episode and threatens to boycott American issues unless foreign investors receive the fullest redress.

During May two-thirds of the country's new capital issues took the form of short date noes. This is a most unhealthy sign.

The railroads could find a market for less than $14,000,000 bonds, as contrasted with more than $55,000,000 in the corresponding month of last year. Notes were resorted to with such freedom that their total flotations reached $58,600,000.

Industrial corporations put out eight times as many notes and bonds and $20,000,000 more than a year ago.

The world's money markets are still uncomfortable at bottom. Superficial ease here and abroad may mislead those who are not familiar with what is going on under the surface.

Thos who try to raise capital—as distinct from temporary loans amply secured by Stock Exchange collateral—find how hard it is to obtain even moderate sums.

Dawn Still Delayed.

I have been calling attention for nine months to the basic monetary conditions throughout the world and urging extreme prudence in running into debt and in assuming avoidable obligations. Unfortunately, daylight cannot yet be descried.

It is to be hoped very fervently that Congress will take up currency legislation in earnest and provide, with all possible speed consistent with conservatism, the machinery for avoiding monetary stringency.

Meanwhile, a further decline in new capital issues and quieter trade should afford some relief preparatory to the fall demands for crop moving.

Before then, however, there may be a mild flurry abroad and at home before the enormous July 1 requirements can be financed.

NOW WE'LL HAVE A WHISTLE WHERE WE USED TO HAVE CROW

Assistant Secretary of Agriculture Dr. B. V. Calloway will shortly make experiments to try to put the "soft pedal" on the crowing of roosters. It is said it can be done by a simple operation of removing one of the fowl's vocal chords.—News Item.

Oh, I'm the guy that put the "sell in seizer.
And I put the "whiz" in whisky, too.
But when I took the "lick" from liquor
Everybody said that I was through.

But next I put the "sin" in Cincinnati;
("Oh, yes, I'm quite a booster)
And now that I'm a wee bit batty,
I'll take the crow from out the rooster.

HY'S HUMOR (?)

LITTLE STORIES of the TOWN

But This Cat Didn't Have Nine Lives.

The tragic death of a cat has caused some very hard feelings in a prominent neighborhood of Atlanta. Also it has brought out in harsh contrast man's innate antipathy and woman's deep love for the little animals of the velvet paws. And while the cat has failed to reveal the proverbial nine lives, the incident of his death has immortalized him in the annals of gossip.

His history began at the recent pure food show when he won the blue ribbon. He was a blooded Persian and the property of one of Atlanta's most popular young women. His prize greatly endeared him to his mistress but when she sent a collect telegram to her father in New York telling him of the wonderful event the father winced and said, "Scat."

Innocent of his cunning neighbor, a blue jay built a nest in a tree in an adjoining back yard. The spoiled feline thought the birds his just prey, and they would have been except for the noise. Those birds fought a battle royal to protect their home early each day. And the fight grew more and more intolerable to the sleeping neighbors of the owners of the cat.

When sticks, old shoes and garden hose failed to dislodge the proud Persian from the tree of the bird nest one of the neighbors applied a parlor rifle.

He thought he had killed just an ordinary old alley Tom. But when he returned at lunch and found the beautiful young girl weeping over the dead body in the alley he knew that trouble was ahead. All that saved the situation was the father of the pet lover. He laughed in his sleeve that the purring beast was gone.

The names? Well, the neighborhood feeling is too acute. Gossip will have to give you that.

They All Asked Pay For Pulling Him Out.

A young Atlantan, whom his friends all envy because he owns an automobile, declares he should be pitied.

A few nights ago he went calling in Inman Park. Some boys found his car in the street and when the young man started to leave he was horrified to find his seat filled with horizontal pins.

On his way to town he rolled into one of the "rare" mud holes in Atlanta's streets and found himself securely stuck. He called a half-dozen loafing negroes to his rescue and when they had pulled him out he very nonchalantly requested them to call at his office next morning and he would pay them.

Congratulating himself that his experiences of the night before were things of the dead past he threw his feet over his desk next morning and lighted a cigar. A gentle knock at the door did not disturb him but when he looked around he threw up his hands.

The six big negroes had just filed in.

FACE POWDER IS TABOO AT FETE BY ROYALTY

American Women to Take Prominent Part in Gorgeous Costume Ball in London.

LONDON, June 4.—Exclamations of dismay were heard in society circles here to-day when it became known that it will be considered incorrect for ladies attending the great historical costume ball, "A Fete at Versailles," to wear face powder. Inasmuch as representatives of most of the royal courts of Europe are to be present, and the event to be held at Albert Hall to-morrow is under the direct patronage of Queen Mary and the Queen Mother, society was forced to smile away its annoyance and comply.

The reason for taboo is that the use of powder as part of a lady's toilette did not come into fashion until after the periods of Louis XIV and the costume ball is supposed to be a reception by that monarch at Versailles. The fete is conducted in aid of the Soldiers' and Sailors' Society, and will be one of the most gorgeous balls ever given in London.

Lady Paget a Leader.

Lady Paget, an American, will have charge of the arrangements for the French Court, which is to receive all of the visiting royalty. Count Saumarakoff Elston will portray Louis XIV. Marie Therese, his Queen, who was the daughter of Philip IV of Spain, will be represented by the Countess of Dudley. Prince Paul of Servia will take the part of the Dauphine of France. Albert Paget will be the officer of the guard in close attendance upon Louis XIV.

Among the women in the Court of France will be Ladies Crewe, Desborough, Islington, Helen Vincent, Diana Manners, Castlereagh and Ingestre, the Baroness E. De Rothschild, Mrs. Cecil Bingham and Mrs. W. B. Leeds, the last two Americans. Sir Herbert Beerbohm Tree, famous English actor, will represent one of the cardinals.

Other American Women.

Other American women who will appear in costume are the Duchess of Marlborough, Lady Newborough, Mrs. Schwab and Mrs. James McDonald.

The costumes for the French Court will be most elaborate. Masculine attire reached the highwater mark of magnificence during 1680. The men in the Court will wear embroidered brocades, silks and satins, and in the seams of their coats will be sewn pearls and other jewels, all surmounted by enormous periwigs.

Output of Pig Iron Sets a New Record

NEW YORK, June 4.—A new high record in pig iron output was registered in May—close to 6,500 tons a day. Merchant furnaces' production probably averaged 28,000 tons a day. This indicates that the country is now producing pig metal at the rate of $34,000,000 tons a year.

Steel ingot output, too, next to the October, 1912, production, was the largest in the history of the industry. The United States Steel Corporation alone produced approximately 1,600,000 tons.

"Gary Dinner" Held To Help Stem Panic

NEW YORK, June 4.—An explanation of the reasons for the famous "Gary dinner" during the 1907 panic was given by Judge Elbert H. Gary when he resumed testimony in the Government's dissolution suit.

Gary testified it was realized the price of steel was a barometer of business conditions. To prevent any demoralization of steel prices and forestall any further panic, Gary said, the dinners were given, after which steel manufacturers were exhorted to hold up the price of steel.

Mrs. Eliza Boyd, aged 73 years, died at her home, 33 Inman Avenue, Tuesday night. She is survived by her husband, B. C. Boyd; a son, John Reynolds, and a daughter, Mrs. J. C. DeFoore, of Augusta, Ga. The body will be sent to Augusta for burial.

Mother's Advice To Her Daughter

A Real Live Doll to Fondle Is Woman's Greatest Happiness.

One of the most important matters about which women concern themselves is their future status as a grandmother. And she is wisdom itself who knows of or learns of that famous remedy, Mother's Friend. This is an external application for the abdominal muscles and breasts. It certainly has a wonderful influence, allays all fear, banishes all pain, is a most grateful encouragement to the young, expectant mother, and permits her to go through the period happy in mind, free in body and thus destined to anticipate woman's greatest happiness as nature intended she should.

The action of Mother's Friend makes the muscles free, pliant and responsive to expansion. Thus all strain and tension upon the nerves and ligaments is avoided, and, in place of a period of discomfort and consequent dread, it is a season of calm repose and joyful expectation.

There is no nausea, no morning sickness, no nervous twitching, none of that constant strain known to so many women, hence Mother's Friend is really one of the greatest blessings that could be devised.

This splendid and certain remedy can be had of any druggist at $1.00 a bottle, and is sure to prove of inestimable value, not only unto the mother, but upon the health and future of the child. Write to Bradfield Regulator Co., 132 Lamar Bldg., Atlanta, Ga., for their book to expectant mothers.

THE TRIPLE TIE

A Story for Baseball Fans That Will Interest Every Lover of the National Game

$250 in Prizes for Best Solution of "The Triple Tie"

YOU read the first thirteen installments of the great baseball mystery story of "The Triple Tie" and now you have a fair idea of the simplicity of the offer The Georgian makes—how you may win $100 by working out the solution of the mystery as nearly as its author, A. H. C. Mitchell, has done as you can.

Mr. Mitchell has written the last chapter, but his copy is sealed up in a vault at the American National Bank. When all but this final chapter has been printed, The Georgian readers will be asked to submit to three competent judges, none of them connected with this newspaper, their version of what the grand denouement should be.

To the person who most closely approximates Mr. Mitchell's final chapter $100 will be awarded. Other prizes, making the total prize list $250, also will be distributed.

Here is the list of the awards:

No. 1	$100
No. 2	$50
No. 3	$25
No. 4	$15
Nos. 5 to 16, each	5

Read fourteenth installment of the great mystery story and you will not need to be urged to read the succeeding chapters. The story will grip you. As you read, try to follow the author's channel of thought and when the time comes for you to sit down and write that final chapter, be ready to win one of the big cash prizes in The Georgian's great offer.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"What's the use?" declared Bill Smith. "We've got a pretty good ball club here in Atlanta and stand a good chance of winning the Southern League pennant. This kid will win a lot of ball games for us, and I'm going to hang on to him."

Thus, it seemed, Gordon Kelly was bound to be a fixture in Atlanta, but soon after Smith delivered his ultimatum things happened that altered the aspect of the situation, and there came a complete change in the life of the young man who had created such a profound sensation in the baseball world, all ending in a climax that had no parallel in the history of the national game.

Still in Ignorance.

It is not the purpose of this narrative to chronicle in detail every baseball move of Gordon Kelly in the days that followed his sensational debut. He continued his phenomenal work in the exhibition games and the interest in him increased by heaps and bounds. An enterprising cigar manufacturer put a brand of cigars on the market named after him. He could have been elected Mayor of the city if there had been an election and he had consented to run for the office. A community will stop at nothing in connection with a baseball idol.

Nor is it the intention to chronicle here all that took place between Gordon Kelly and Mildred Deery. That young woman remained in blissful ignorance of the young man's occupation. He could not summon up enough courage to tell her. Mildred was at that particular age in a young woman's career when she had no inclination to read the newspapers. The news of the day for her consisted of the social activities of her friends. Baseball was about the last thing in the world that she and her friends would care to talk about. As far as her father was concerned, his newspaper reading was confined almost wholly to the financial pages, with just enough general news to keep him informed on the topics of the day. He passed over the sporting pages of the newspapers without even glancing at them. He was so engrossed in his business affairs that he had no time for play. And so it was that no member of the Deery family knew of Gordon Kelly's connection with baseball.

But the family were soon to know and the knowledge of it, or rather the circumstance connected with it, came as a distinct shock to at least one member of the household.

CHAPTER XV.

WHO will ever forget the baseball excitement, strife and tumult that seethed and eddied and whirled around the person of Gordon Kelly in the ten days following the opening of the Southern League championship baseball season on April 10? Never was anything like it before and perhaps never again will similar scenes be enacted. Atlanta became for the moment the center of the baseball map, the fountain head of the baseball universe.

Three days after the pennant race began half a score and more of big league scouts—the finetooth combs of baseball—started for Atlanta by the fastest trains. These men were employed by the clubs of New York, Boston, Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis, Cleveland, Cincinnati, Pittsburg, and so on, to rake the country from end to end in search of baseball talent to strengthen the clubs of their employers, for a big league club must never stand still; it must be constantly looking for new material to take the places of the men who have outlived their usefulness. Baseball goes at top speed all the time. There must be no laggards. Those whose baseball lamps have burned out must step aside and make way for new and fresh-filled baseball lamps.

The reason for the sudden appearance in Atlanta of these baseball scouts was because Gordon Kelly had "broken up" the first championship games of ball with his bat—won them, in other words, with his piece of ash—as well as saved a game by one of the most sensational catches ever seen on a ball field. Everything that had been said and printed about him was true. He was a phenomenal ball player. There was not the slightest question about it. The magnate who had pooh-poohed his ability suddenly woke up to the fact that down in Atlanta was a baseball marvel who must be secured by his club at any cost. He was only one of a dozen other big league club owners who came to the same opinion at the same time. Hence the hurrying of their scouts to Atlanta to make terms for this world-beater.

Too Big for Scouts.

The usual mode of procedure for a baseball scout is to approach a town in gumshoes. He endeavors to conceal his presence, and, figuratively putting on false whiskers, he sits in the grandstand and leisurely sizes up the man he wants. If such a one as this came into Atlanta at the time of which we write, he was quickly smoked out. It was no time for mysterious baseball diplomacy. It was a case of acting quickly or lose out to a rival club.

But the scouts found out immediately that the matter was altogether too big for them to handle. They reached the limit they felt empowered to offer for Gordon Kelly almost in their first breath. Bill Smith laughed raucously at them singly, in pairs, and en masse.

"Why, you pikers," he said with a snort, "Gaffney and Stallings, of the poor old tail-end Boston Nationals, offered more than you fellows want to cough up for the kid three weeks ago."

"Name your price, then," shouted the scouts in chorus.

Bill Smith waved his hand airily. "The kid is not for sale," he said.

As though working in unison (which they were not), the scouts rushed to the nearest telegraph office and wired long dispatches to their bosses, the club owners, detailing the facts in the case and imploring them, if they wanted this man, Gordon Kelly, they must come to Atlanta by first train and do their own bidding. Then they all went out to the ball park in a body and with their own eyes saw Gordon Kelly do this remarkable thing:

With the score a tie at 3—3 in the last half of the tenth, and both pitchers working like demons, Kelly went to bat with two out. He laid down a bunt and beat it out, stole second on first ball pitched, stole third on the second ball pitched and stole home, winning the game, on the third ball pitched.

It is impossible to describe the scenes of wild excitement that followed this daring piece of base-running. Crowds surged on the grounds and made a rush for Kelly to shake his hand, slap him on the back or carry him off the field on their shoulders, if possible, but the young man quickly arose from his successful slide to the plate and ran to the clubhouse, where he was safe from the noisy demonstration.

The scouts remained in the grandstand watching the familiar scenes that followed the winning of a close game by the home team. Patsy Donovan, the Red Sox scout, declared himself right then and there.

"That kid is in a class by himself," he said. "No man ever lived that is as fast on the bases as that kid is."

"You're right, Patsy," spoke up Billy Murray, the Pittsburg club's gumshoe man. "Ty Cobb will have to play second fiddle to that boy when he gets in the big leagues. I wish Pittsburg had him. I think I'll send another telegram."

But there was no need of further telegrams. The magnates were already on their way to Atlanta. All afternoon dispatches had been dribbling in to President Callaway and Bill Smith from the big moguls. They all read pretty much the same. One will do to quote. It said:

"Am on my way to Atlanta. Don't do anything on Gordon Kelly matter until you see me."

Club Presidents Come.

Next day the advance guard of the major league club presidents arrived in town. Next morning eight more had registered at the hotels and more were known to be on the way. When they left their home cities each magnate was under the impression that he was the only major league club president that was going to Atlanta for the particular purpose of securing the services of the phenomenal Gordon Kelly for his own club, but it so happened that four of them made the trip on the same train. They had expressed the utmost surprise at meeting each other and there was considerable dissembling for a brief period, but the truth quickly came out and they laughed heartily, although secretly chagrined at the turn of affairs.

"This reminds me of the old days of the National League, Barney," observed President Ebbets, of the Brooklyn club. "Remember how we used to gumshoe around when we held our meetings in order to throw the reporters off our trail?"

"I should say I did, Charlie," replied Barney Dreyfuss, of Pittsburg, "but I will say we were never able to fool the reporters. They always had all the news, though I never could understand where they got it."

"What's your dope on this fellow Gordon Kelly, Barney? You always know all about these young players."

"There isn't any dope on him," said Dreyfuss. "All I know is what my scouts say about him. I think they have all gone crazy. I'll tell you the truth, Charlie, I won't offer a cent for him until I've seen him play."

"That's my idea, too," returned Ebbets, "I think we are all on a wild goose chase, "but now that I'm started I'm going to see this thing through."

Most Extraordinary.

President Hemphill, of the New York Giants, and President Miner, of the Washington club, were the other two baseball magnates in the party. Hemphill spoke up:

"McGraw tells me that from private sources of information he is convinced that this Kelly is an exceptional player. A lot of stuff has been printed about him in the newspapers."

"I should say there has," exclaimed Dreyfuss. They were in the observation car. Dreyfuss reached behind him and touched a button and when the porter appeared he said:

"Get my grip in lower 7."

The Pittsburg club's president was known to be a great collector of newspaper clippings relating to ball players. He opened his valise and displayed to the eyes of his astonished companions a bundle of folded clippings the size of three bricks. They all related to Gordon Kelly.

"Mind you," he said, "this fellow never was heard of before March 1, a little over six weeks ago. It is the most extraordinary thing that has ever happened in baseball in all the years I have been connected with the game. Another extraordinary thing, and don't you forget it, is the fact that we four club presidents are on our way to Atlanta, each with the purpose of buying the release of this one ball player. I have known of one club owner going out of town to sign a ball player, but never before in the history of the game have four of them taken a trip to land the same man.

Little else was talked of but Gordon Kelly for the remainder of the trip.

In New York on business connected with the American League, B. B. Johnson, president of that organization and known as the "Czar of Baseball," was seated in the office of President Frank Farrell of the New York American League club, when the latter opened and read a telegram. He passed the dispatch to Johnson and told a clerk to look up trains for Atlanta. The telegram was from the New York club's chief scout.

"Yes, this Gordon Kelly must be a wonder," said Johnson, handing back the message. "Comiskey was telling me just before I left Chicago that he had heard about him and was going to send a man down there to get him. Evidently the scouts have all failed. Are you going to Atlanta?"

Garrett P. Serviss Writes on Secrets of the Sphinx; the Tunnels of Death

By GARRETT P. SERVISS.

THE secret of the Sphinx, the oldest puzzle in the world, is once more the subject of investigation. Not long ago it was reported that a little temple, dedicated to the sun, and supposed to be about eight thousand years old, had been found concealed in the huge head of the crouching stone figure which for uncounted centuries has defied the abrading sandstorms of Egypt; but this is now denied.

It is not the first time that similar reports of strange discoveries in the body of the Sphinx have been spread abroad, but invariably the expected revelation of a secret which was kept even from the ears of the inquisitive "Father of History," Herodotus, is disappointed, and the Sphinx remains as enigmatical as ever.

The work that is now actually being done by explorers consists of excavations by Professor Reisner, representing Harvard University, among the mortuary temples associated with what is usually called the Third Pyramid, or the Pyramid of Mycerinos, of other excavations by Dr. Borchardt, the German archaeologist, in the rear of the Sphinx, where a number of underground passages have been discovered. Both of these explorations indicate some connection between the Sphinx and the Pramid of Mycerinos.

A Curious Extract.

But the Sphinx was also connected with the great Pyramid, or Pyramid of Cheops, by similar concealed ways. Long ago it became known that a system of labyrinthine passages existed between the Sphinx and the Great Pyramid. This is shown by a curious extract from an old manuscript, quoted by Mr. E. L. Wilson 25 years ago:

"In the tomb behind the Sphinx, from the mouth of a mummy pit 80 feet deep, the echoes, prolonged, of a gun fired in the heart of the pyramid were heard, while the gun fired at the base of the pyramid was hardly audible. This fact proves a hidden labyrinth beneath the tableland."

This recalls the legend of Queen Nitocris, "the beautiful one with the rosy cheeks," who, according to the stories that Herodotus heard, avenged the murder of her husband, the king, by inviting all who had been implicated in the assassination to a banquet, held in a great underground hall, which she had constructed. At the height of the revelry she had the gates of passages connecting with the Nile thrown open, and all her guests were drowned. Herodotus also says that she enlarged the Pyramid of Mycerines. The Arabs yet to-day have a legend that the spirit of Nitocris haunts this pyramid in the form of a beautiful woman who lures men away into the desert, where they go mad and perish.

Is Undermined.

At any rate, the rock tableland on which the pyramids stand is undermined with many chambers and connecting passages, some of which are now being uncovered. Professor Reisner's work is concerned specially with a vast burial ground, lying west of the Great Pyramid, where, it is believed, members of the Egyptian nobility were interred during the period of the kings called "the pyramid builders." One of the accompanying photographs shows a gigantic stone sarcophagus being raised from an excavation in this ground.

But what was the part that the Sphinx played in the stupendous assemblage of structures collected together on this rocky platform? That question remains unanswered. Why did the great conqueror Cambyses, nearly 2,500 years ago, mutilate the face of the Sphinx? Did its countenance express its purpose, and did he wish to destroy its supposed influence? The Arab name for the Sphinx is "The Father of Horror." Is that a mere play of Oriental imagination, or does it commemorate some all but forgotten tradition?

The excavations of the next few years may yet give us light on the age-old questions that this gigantic figure, cut out of the solid rock, suggests to every thoughtful onlooker.

Here is shown the removal of a huge stone sarcophagus from one of the subterranean tunnels recently discovered, and below is an illustration of how Queen Nictocris trapped her enemies in one of the underground passages by inviting them there to a banquet, during which she had gates connecting the tunnels to the Nile thrown open, drowning the feasters.

"Why, this is Mary calling," he muttered.

"Mary!" Briggs cried. His usual vacuity of expression was cast off like a mask and alarm twisted his features. Then, in the next instant, a crafty triumph gleamed from his eyes.

"Yes; she's on," Garson interrupted a moment later as the tapping ceased for a little. He translated in a loud whisper as the irregular ticking noise sounded again:

"I shall be there at the house almost at once. I am sending this message from the drug store around the corner. Have someone open the door for me immediately.

"She's coming over," Griggs cried incredulously.

"No, I'll stop her," Garson declared firmly.

"Right! Stop her," Chicago Red vouchsafed.

But, when, after tapping a few words, the forger paused for the reply, no sound came.

"She don't answer," he exclaimed, greatly disconcerted. He tried again, still without result. At that, he hung up the receiver with a groan. "She's gone—"

"On her way already," Griggs suggested, and there was none to doubt it was so.

"What's she coming here for?" Garson exclaimed harshly. "This ain't no place for her! Why, if anything should go wrong now—"

He Drew Out a Small Torch.

But Griggs interrupted him with his usual breezy cheerfulness of manner.

"Oh, nothing can go wrong now, old top. I'll let her in." He drew a small torch from the skirt-pocket of his coat and crossed to the hall door, as Garson nodded assent.

"God! Why did she have to come?" Garson muttered, filled with forebodings. "If anything should go wrong now!"

He turned back toward the door just as it opened, and Mary darted into the room, with Griggs following.

"What do you want here?" he demanded, with peremptory savageness in his voice, which was a tone he had never hitherto used in addressing her.

Mary went swiftly to face Garson where he stood by the desk, while Griggs joined the other two men, who stood shuffling about uneasily by the fireplace, at a loss over this intrusion on their scheme. Mary moved with a lissome grace like that of some wild creature, but as she halted opposite the man who had given her back the life she would have thrown away, there was only tender pleading in her voice, though her words were an arraignment.

"Joe, you lied to me."

"That can be settled later," the man snapped. His jaw was thrust forward obstinately, and his clear eyes sparkled defiantly.

"You are fools, all of you!" Mary cried. Her eyes darkened and distended with fear. They darted from Garson to the other three men, and back again in rebuke. "Yes, fools!" This is burglary. I can't protect you if you are caught. How can I? Oh, come!" She held out her hands pleadingly toward Garson, and her voice dropped to beseeching. "Joe, Joe, you must get away from this house at once, all of you. Joe, make them go."

"We Are Here Now."

"It's too late," was the stern answer. There was no least relaxation in the stubborn lines of his face. "We're here now, and we'll stay till the business is done."

Mary went a step forward. The cloak she was wearing was thrown back by her gesture of appeal so that those watching saw the snowy slope of the shoulders and the quick rise and fall of the gently curving bosom. The beautiful face within the framing scarf was colorless with a great fear, save only the crimson lips, of which the bow was bent tremulously as she spoke her prayer.

"Joe, for my sake!"

But the man was inexorable. He had set himself to this thing, and even the urging of the one person in the world for whom he most cared was powerless against his resolve.

"I can't quit now until we've got what we came here after," he declared roughly.

Of a sudden, the girl made shift to employ another sort of supplication.

"But there are reasons," she said, faltering. A certain embarrassment swept her, and the ivory of her cheeks bloomed rosily. "I—I can't have you rob this house, this particular house of all the world." Her eyes leaped from the still obdurate face of the forger to the group of three back of him. Her voice was shaken with a great dread as she called out to them.

"Boys, let's get away! Please, oh, please! Joe, for God's sake!" Her tone was a sob.

Her anguish of fear did not swerve Garson from his purpose.

"I'm going to see this through," he said, doggedly.

"But, Joe——"

"It's settled, I tell you."

In the man's emphasis the girl realized at last the inefficacy of her efforts to combat his will. She seemed to droop visibly before their eyes. Her head sank on her breast. Her voice was husky as she tried to speak.

"Then——" She broke off with a gesture of despair, and turned away toward the door by which she had entered.

.:. Why Not Say So? .:.

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

IT is evident from the novels of the eighteenth century that, in their day, when a man was courting a girl, she when a man wascourting a girl, she was supposed to be a shy, timid and retiring maiden, shrinking from him, dreading his approach and evading his presence whenever it was possible for her to do so. After marriage she became a clinging vine, and the man a sturdy oak.

It is not necessary at this stage of the world's history to call attention to the fact that few wives are now of the helpless variety, and that the sturdy-oak-and-vine fiction is quite out of fashion. Even without Bernard Shaw's satires we could not fail to note that modern girls are not the shrinking white rabbits of the periods of Clarissa Harlowe and Pamela.

What Must He Think?

Yet even now, in this day when woman looks man squarely in the eyes and meets him on a common ground, there is among some wives a strange idea that they increase their worth in the estimation of their husbands if they are chary of their caresses and niggardly in their expressions of affection.

"One should not let a husband be too sure of one," asserted a matron. "I would never think of offering to kiss James unless he first kissed me, nor would I say to him outright, 'I love you,' unless he asked me if I still loved him. It is to keep a man in some doubt as to his wife's real sentiment toward him."

Yet she had been married for five years! I could not help wondering what a man must think of the woman who would live with him as his wife for a half-decade and of whom he could not yet say assuredly: "She loves me!" Must he not consider her either very shallow in heart or very coarse in nature? If one were not sure that one loved a man, and were not willing to have him equally sure that one did, one would hardly wish to marry him.

If, after marriage, an awful awakening comes, and a woman finds that she does not care for her husband or that he is not the man she believed him to be, then, as the die is cast, she must stand by her agreement—unless the man's character be so evil as to justify her in leaving him. Such a union means misery, and it takes all of a decent woman's courage and ingenuity to keep the world from guessing how wretched she is.

It's a Poor Rule.

But if a woman is married to a good, kind, considerate husband, and loves him as she should love him to become his wife, why not tell him that she does? Would she not want him to tell her of his affection—and is it not a poor rule that does not work both ways in this day when Pamela and Clarissa Harlowe are fashionable no longer?

I once heard an able sermon on the two words: "Say so!" The preacher claimed that if there is a worthy sentiment—such as gratitude, friendship, appreciation, love—which we feel toward a fellow-being, it is our duty to "say so." Many of us mention the uncomfortable or disagreeable sentiments that come into our hearts and minds—then why not mention the pleasant ones to those who have a right to know them?

This principle holds good in all human intercourse. The mother who reproves a child for wrongdoing should surely sometimes notice his efforts toward improvement; the employer who condemns a lack of interest on the part of his employee should not feel that he must repress the word of appreciation for faithful duty. I do not say that one need go out of one's way and praise at all times; but when the feeling of gratitude or of appreciation is so strong that the expression of it leaps to the lips, why not let it pass those lips? And if in other relationships besides marriage this scheme holds good, surely between husband and wife it should not be ignored.

Some of us remember some verses written years ago that told of the hard-working and conscientious wife of a farmer who never thought it worth while to mention to his life partner that he appreciated her nor that he felt any affection for her. But when the poor woman, worn out and old from years of unremitting toil, lay dying, the husband crept to the side of her bed and whispered in her ear, "I love you." At the strange words the heavy lids lifted and an expression of astonishment leaped into the sunken eyes. Then the stiffening lips moved. "Why didn't you tell me so before?" they whispered.

Why, indeed? Marriage takes all the love that one can muster coupled with strong philosophy and common sense to make it a success. If the love is there, for pity's sake why not say so? Why should any woman hesitate to tell the man who has chosen her and whom she has chosen out of all the world that she does love him? Why should she hesitate to attest by word and deed that he is dear to her?

The man who does not like to be petted and made much of by one he loves is a rare specimen. Said one husband in speaking of his wife:

"When, as I sit reading, she passes her hand over my hair, or when she, of her own accord, lifts her face to me for a kiss, it means more to me than if she were to allow me to talk out my devotion to her for hours at a time."

Why Not Say So!

Of course it does. In this rushing age of ours we make too little of the love-truths we might speak. The words are lies and travesties of the spirit is not back of them; but, if it is—say so!

If I would utter a word of warning to any young wife it would be to urge her not to be forever wondering is she is as much in love as she once was, if she loves her husband as much as he loves her, if he and she are growing closer together or drifting apart. Self-analysis in marriage is fatal.

One of Locke's heroines gives to an unhappy woman a bit of advice that it would be well for all wives to remember:

"Love your husband, dear; it is the only thing I can say to help you. Then all the troubles will go. To love a man vehemently, they say, it is woman's greatest curse. It isn't; it is the greatest blessing of God on her."

No Second Chance.

There was a slightly angry gleam in Dr. Pope's eye as he walked into the lecture room, where about forty young women were assembled, undergoing a course of instruction for nursing.

At great length the learned doctor had expounded the imaginary illness of an imaginary patient, when he suddenly paused to ask a few questions of his listeners.

"Now, Miss Denny, in such a case as I have mentioned, how much morphine," he inquired, "should be administered to the sufferer?"

"Eight grains," responded the girl.

The doctor, beyond raising one eyebrow, made no comment, and continued asking other members of the class questions.

But suddenly a horrible realization flashed upon the girl.

"Doctor," she said, "I wish to correct the answer I made a moment ago. I should have said that one-eighth of a grain instead of eight grains."

"Too late!" sternly remarked the doctor. "The man's dead!"

A Fine Home.

The Sternbecks live in a very fine hoam. It is a lot bigger than our flat, but it isent so nice looking, thare is too much furniture in it & gold fraims, etc. I toald Ma that & she sed I shud be vary careful what I sed. Missus Sternbeck was a deer littel lady, like Ma sed, but Mister Sternbeck was fat & common. He started rite in telling how much wine he had in his wine cellar. I marked down all the amounts in a littel book & wen he saw me doing it he asked me why I was marking down the prices he menshuned. I toald him that wen he got all thru I was going to add the figgers up & find out how much munny it wud cost me to keep house wen I got to be a self made man. Then everybody laffed excep him.

I cud see that Pa had an awful grouch on, beekaus he grinned all the time the way he grins at me wen he stands neer the door with a slipper & says "Bobbie, see here a minnit." But the rest of the peepul thot he seemd to be having a good time.

We had a very fine dinner & after the dinner Missus Sternbeck & Ma started to look at sum fashun magazeens & us men went into the smoking room.

Here are some very expensive cigars, sed Mister Sternbeck. Thay cost me one thousand dollars a thousand. I am glad yure littel son doesnt smoak, he sed. It wud seem a shaim to waste a dollar cigar on him. Try one of these, he sed to Pa. Stick one in yure pocket for later in the eevning, he sed. Or if you wud prefer cigarettes, I have sum choice Turkish cigarettes. They cost me one hundred dollars a hundred boxes, he sed.

Wile I was putting down the amounts in my littel book Pa & Mistern Sternbeck started to play a gaim of bilyards & smoak. This is a fine tabel, sed Mister Sternbeck. It cost me one thousand dollars & Willie Hoope played on it onst & sed it was one of the best tabels on wich he had ever played. Isent that a fine cue you are using? he asked Pa. It is, sed Pa. I cud see that Pa was gitting colder & colder all the time to thaw out, but after awile he did, you get

Try sum of this Rhine wine, sed Mister Sternbeck. It is very rare. It cost me twenty dollars a quart. Smack yure lips over a glass of it, he sed. Pa drank sum & he did smack his lips. Have another, sed Mister Sternbeck. Expense is nothing to me when I entertain.

Pa Starts In.

So Pa had a other drink & a other, & then he sed How noabel is welth. How I admire a man wich can, by the sheer force of his geenyus, carve a career to Welth & Prosperity. Long may you live & wax wealthier, good friend Sternbeck, sed Pa. If thare is ever anything I can do for you, call me up or wire me & I will be glad to fly to yure aid. Doant hesitate to call on me, Pa sed. I wud do anything for you.

Then thay had two more glasses of wine & Pa sed Well, well, I can't seem to maik a singel shot, but I am proud to be beat by a scholar & a gentelman like you. Hevings bless you & all yure honestly ac-quired welth, sed Pa. I wish you was worth abilyun, sed Pa. I wish you the saim, sed Mister Sternbeck.

On the way hoam Pa kep telling Ma what a noble man Mister Sternbeck was. Thare is one man in a milyun, sed Pa.

I guess munny talks, all rite, & rhine wine, too.

A Difference.

"Say," remarked Harry, "how d'ye teach a gurl t' swim?"

"O-oh, that's easy!" replied his chum. "You take her vurry gently down t' the water; an' you put an arm aroun' her waist; an' you whisper: 'De-ar, don't be fri——'"

"Come off yer perch! It's my sister!"

"Oh, yer sister! Shove 'er in!"

Beauty Secrets of Beautiful Women

How to Have and Keep a Clear Complexion, Told by Isabell D'Armond

By LILIAN LAUFERTY.

HAVE you begun to wonder what has become of the girl who is petite and dainty and sweet, who is not an undulating giantess of snaky figure, but who represents lovely girlhood of the kind that has charmed the world for ages?

Be of good cheer. "Girl—real girl" exists in spite of all the cut-off-the-same pattern evidence to the contrary. She exists, for I have seen and talked to her. Isabell D'Armond—one of B. F. Keith's charming Lights o' Vaudeville, and who is well known in Atlanta, having appeared on several occasion at the Forsyth—is petite and dainty and sweet, and very, very clever—clever enough to understand her type and not depart therefrom, and sweet enough to flit through your brain to the tune of the dear old refrain:

"Dainty little dimpled darling,
Fairer than the new-blown rose,
Pure and modest as the buds of spring-time,
Sweetest flower that blows;
Laughter like the softest music,
Roguish, smiling eyes of blue—
Ah, to know you is to love you, sweet-heart,
Dainty little ingenue."

All of which applies to dainty Miss D'Armond except that her eyes are softly brown with the pure blue-whites that betoken clean, sane, good health.

A Clear Skin.

Even under the make-up, Miss D'Armond's skin showed clear and blemishless; her facial contours were firm and rounded, with no sagging lines at chin or throat or eyes. No athlete in the prime of condition ever had firmer flesh and more satiny skin. And this is not the result of chance, for Miss D'Armond knows just how to achieve these results.

"I do not believe in soap or even water for the face," said she. "Water makes wrinkles, especially when its use is followed by that of a linen or damask towel. I use a bath towel to dry my face when I wash it once a week. Are you shocked at that? Please don't be, for I am sure I keep my face clean! Cold cream and plenty of it—that is my means for cleansing and keeping the flesh firm; and then I always rub up—up under the chin, up from the sagging wrinkles that like to cut a path from nostril to lip corners, and up under the eyes with light strokes. Cold cream packed firmly under the eyes at night keeps away the tiny network of wrinkles that it is so hard to avoid. And tiny strips of court-plaster at the outer corners of the eyes and across the furrows that come between the eyes smooth them out.

"And now, listen to the party I have with myself once a week: On Sundays, generally, I wash my face, and it is quite a process, for only on one day of the week do I use water on my face. First a good washing with warm water and castile soap, then a thorough steaming, followed by a witch hazel rub, next a dash or two of cold water, and finally my old friend, cold cream, again."

With Miss D'Armond's firm, satiny skin and clear facial contours to recommend her treatment, I add my indorsement for her theory; and if the girl whose face is too fat, or whose skin shows a tendency to sag or wrinkle, will try it, surely she will bless pretty Isabell D'Armond, as double chins and sallow skin vanish and clear skin and firm flesh take their place.

Our Girls Prettiest.

"You go abroad so much," said I, "with a London season only a few weeks ahead, tell me just how you think our girls compare with those of other countries, won't you?"

"Oh, American girls are the prettiest of all," said this dainty American with the glowing enthusiasm she brings to whatever demands her attention. "American girls are well groomed, well bred and have a fine outdoor swing when they walk—that is, if they walk naturally and not just a la mode. But fat does threaten us—sweets and comfort and petting and pampering do that. I am very careful about not getting fat—and I take simple precautions besides plenty of exercise in the walking line.

"Let me tell you about my anti-fat methods—a glass of hot water the first thing on getting up in the morning and then a simple breakfast beginning with acid fruit. Plenty of hot water and acid fruit keep the system clean and sweet. No potatoes, no bread—though unbuttered toast is harmless—few sweets, no fats and no water at meals—that is a diet that it is not a hardship to endure. And then always stand after meals. That is not a fad—it is a fact in the thinning process. I am not recommending anything that I have not tried out myself, and I am glad to help any girl who is determined not to be a victim of the 'white woman's burden'—fat."

The great brown eyes looked at me earnestly, the merry mouth was ready to tremble into its infectious little crooked smile—one of the gayest, most heart-reaching smiles imaginable—and suddenly one of dainty Isabell D'Armond's greatest beauty secrets revealed itself to me; it is this—her unselfish interest in all that goes on around her—her genuine admiration of other women, her sweet, saneoneness with all of life.

Up-to-Date Jokes

A certain witty judge was trying a case recently where a dealer sued a steamship company for the loss of some pigs in a fire on board a cross channel boat. It came out in evidence that the steamer had a large deckload, and here the damage was greatest.

The judge thus began his charge to the jury:

"Gentlemen, to put those pigs on deck was a rash act, but to fry them was a rasher."

.:. Some Don'ts for Girls .:.

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX.

DON'T compare the criticisms of your parents with the compliments paid you by a young man to the detriment of the former. The criticisms are at least based on sincerity.

Don't regard every compliment paid you as a reason why you should have your photograph taken. Frequent visits to a photographer are signs of a vain mind.

Don't seek information from a dream book. No one expects much from the girl who seeks information from a dream book instead of from an encyclopedia.

Don't get the prevalent notion that the young man who spends a month's salary in giving you a good time thinks more of you than the man who refuses to spend a week's. The latter loves more sanely.

Don't overlook the importance of a love affair with your father. That is the best investment in the love of man that any girl can make.

Don't forget that mother is a human being, and sometimes gets tired.

Don't feel the third time a young man has called on you that it is time for you to take possession and demand that he account for the evenings he spent somewhere else.

Don't accept attentions from the wrong kind of a man, excusing yourself because they mean nothing and are trivial. Remember that the girl who walks only as far as the corner with the wrong kind of man will meet every one she knows on the way.

Don't resent the desire of your parents to know something of the young man who calls on you. They fall in their duty to you if they lack this desire, or fail to act upon it.

Don't give your heart to a man who refers to his parents as "the old lady" and "the old man."

Don't ever outgrow the habit of your childhood of telling your mother when you get home all that happened at the party. It is more important that you tell her what happens now you are grown than that you told her when you were little.

Don't forget, if you have a little, that you have more than your parents had in their youth, and that they have struggled every day since you came into the world with that unselfish ambition in view.

Quite So.

"What became of that little kitten you had?" inquired the visitor of the small boy of the house.

"Why, haven't you heard?"

"No; was it drowned?"

"No."

"Lost?"

"No."

"Poisoned?"

"No."

"Did you give it away?"

"No."

"Then whatever did become of it?"

"It growed up into a cat."

But, with a movement of great swiftness Garson got in front of her, and barred her going. For a few seconds the two stared at each other searchingly as if learning new and strange things, each of the other. In the girl's expression was an outraged wonder and a great terror. In the man's was a half-shamed pride, as if he exulted in the strength with which he had been able to maintain his will against her supreme effort to overthrow it.

"You can't go," Garson said sharply. "You might be caught."

"And if I were," Mary demanded in a flash of indignation, "do you think I'd tell?"

There came an abrupt change in the hard face of the man. Into the piercing eyes flamed a softer fire of tenderness. The firm mouth grew strangely gentle as he replied, and his voice was overtoned with faith.

"Of course not, Mary," he said. "I know you. You would go up for life first."

Then again his expression became resolute, and he spoke imperiously.

"Just the same, you can't take any chances. We'll all get away in a minute, and you'll come with us." He turned to the men and spoke with swift authority.

"Come," he said to Dacey, "you get to the light switch there by the hall door. If you hear me snap my fingers turn 'em off. Understand?"

Went to His Station.

With instant obedience the man addressed went to his station by the hall door, and stood ready to control the electric current.

The distracted girl essayed one last plea. The momentary softening of Garson had given her new courage.

"Joe, don't do this."

"You can't stop it now, Mary," came the brisk retort. "Too late. You're only wasting time, making it dangerous for all of us."

Again he gave his attention to carrying on the robbery.

"Red," he ordered, "you go to that door." He pointed to the one that gave on the passageway against which he had set the chair tilted. As the man obeyed Garson gave further instructions.

"If any one comes in that way get him quick. You understand? Don't let him cry out."

Chicago Red grinned with cheerful acceptance of the issue in such an encounter. He held up his huge hand widely open.

"Not a chance," he declared, proudly, "with that over his mug." To avoid possible interruption of his movements in an emergency he removed the chair Garson had placed and set it to one side, out of the way.

"Now, let's get to work," Garson continued eagerly.

Mary spoke with the bitterness of defeat.

"Listen, Joe! If you do this I'm through with you. I quit."

Garson was undismayed by the threat.

"If this goes through," he countered, "we'll all quit. That's why I'm doing it. I'm sick of the game."

He turned to the work in hand with increased energy.

"Come, you, Griggs and Red, and push that desk down a bit so that I can stand on it." The two men bent to the task heedless of Mary's frantic protest.

"No! no! no! no! no! Joe!"

Red, however, suddenly straightened from the desk and stood motionless, listening. He made a slight hissing noise that arrested the attention of the others and held them in moveless silence.

"I hear something," he whispered. He went to the keyhole of the door leading into the passage. Then he whispered again, "And it's coming this way."

At the words Garson snapped his fingers. The room was plunged in darkness.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Noiseless Death.

There was absolute silence in the library after the turning of the switch that brought the pall of darkness. Long seconds passed, then a little noise—the knob of the passage door turning. As the door swung open there came a gasping breath from Mary, for she saw framed in the faint light that came from the single burner in the corridor the slender form of her husband, Dick Gilder. In the next instant he had stepped within the room and pulled to the door behind him. And in that same instant Chicago Red had pounced on his victim, the huge hand clapped tight over the young man's mouth. Even as his powerful arm held the newcomer in an inescapable embrace there came a sound of scuffling feet and that was all. Finally the big man's voice came triumphantly.

"I've got him."

"It's Dick!" The cry came as a wail of despair from the girl.

THE TRIPLE TIE

A Story for Baseball Fans That Will Interest Every Lover of the National Game

By A. H. C. MITCHELL.

TO-DAY'S INSTALLMENT.

"I've simply got to," replied Farrell. "Chance got a telegram from Long Tom Morrissey saying that Kelly had Cobb and Speaker and all the others beaten to death. I rushed a man down there to buy him, but you see he's up against it. Chance says we've got to have him, so I'm going down to get him; that's all. Say," he exclaimed suddenly, "What's the matter with your going down there with me? You could help a lot."

"Maybe I'd better go with you. The American League must have that fellow," replied Johnson, after a thoughtful pause. "What time can we get a train?"

Johnson and Farrell boarded the Seaboard Fast Mail that pulled out of the Pennsylvania Terminal at half after midnight and the first persons they bumped into were President James R. McAleer and Vice President John I. Taylor, of the Boston American League club, owners of the Red Sox, champions of the world. Taylor broke into a hearty laugh.

"Lemme see your ticket," he said to Farrell and Johnson.

"Lemme see yours," replied Farrell.

They produced long strips of green paper for mutual inspection, and there was another hearty laugh all around.

"Atlanta, eh? I thought so," said Taylor. "You must mean business, Frank, to take Ban along with you."

"Oh, I don't know, John, I see you're going along with Mac to make sure of this fellow, Gordon Kelly," retorted the New Yorker.

"I received a telegram a yard long from Patsy Donovan this noon," said McAleer, "and I decided that if we wanted this fellow we better take the bull by the horns, so I phoned John and asked him to go to Atlanta with me, and here we are. Say, there's going to be some fun down there, by the looks of things."

Whole City Excited.

When the party reached Atlanta they found the city in the greatest state of excitement over the impending baseball deal which involved Gordon Kelly. The newspapers were full of news concerning the arrival of the magnates. There were long interviews with the big club owners from the North. The magnates would say little in regard to Kelly, beyond the statement that they had heard he was a fine ball player, and they would not acknowledge they were in Atlanta for the purpose of buying his release from the Atlanta club. They were willing to talk on general baseball topics, however. The gathering of the magnates took on the aspect of a great political convention and the newspapers handled it that way. Columns and columns of space were devoted to it.

By noon that day fifteen out of the sixteen big league clubs were represented in the persons of their presidents and Atlanta became, politically, the baseball center of the world.

As yet no definite move had been made by any of the club owners to bring the Gordon Kelly matter to a show down with the officials of the Atlanta club. The affair had assumed such an importance that each visiting magnate hesitated about making the first approach. President Johnson, of the American League, of whom no more clever baseball diplomat exists, sized the situation correctly before he had been in Atlanta three hours. He thought it all out in his room in his hotel and then brought his fist down on the table with a bang.

"The American League positively must land Gordon Kelly," he said aloud, although no one was with him in his room. "It's got to be done and I'm going to do it."

CHAPTER XVI.

AUGUST HERRMANN, President of the Cincinnati National League Baseball Club, and chairman of the National Commission, the "Supreme Court of Baseball," was the first of the magnates to make a determined effort to buy the release of Gordon Kelly from the Atlanta Club. He sought and obtained a personal conference with President Callaway of the Atlanta Club and got right down to business without wasting words. He explained that in his capacity as President of the Cincinnati Club he had come to Atlanta to make an offer for Kelly's services, that he understood that previous offers had been of a more or less vague sort, and wound up by making a flat proposition to buy Kelly's release for $15,000 cash.

"But, Mr. Herrmann," expostulated Callaway, "the Atlanta Club does not want to dispose of Gordon Kelly. We all appreciate the significance of all you owners of the big clubs coming to Atlanta at this time, but we really don't care to talk business."

To this Herrmann replied:

"Speaking now as chairman of the National Commission, I would say that one of the fundamental rules of the commission is that a ball player must be allowed to improve his condition when ever the opportunity presents itself. The Southern League is hampered by a salary limit, while there is no limit to the salary a major league club may pay a player. There is nothing in the laws of the State or nation that can compel you to dispose of Kelly's services, but the Atlanta Club, which could not exist as a financial proposition except for organized baseball, owes it to baseball that this player's services should be disposed of to some major league club. The Cincinnati Club may not be the successful bidder, but the facts remain the same."

"This puts the Atlanta Club in a very embarrassing position. Mr. Herrmann," returned Callaway, "and without accepting or rejecting your offer I must call a meeting of our directors and take a vote on the matter."

Before the directors could get together, however, several other magnates called on the Atlanta Club's President, or had him on the telephone, the result being that within half an hour an offer of $25,000 cash was made by one of them.

The directors of the club were in session a full hour, after which President Callaway announced that the Atlanta Club, while disposed to reject all offers, felt the necessity, aside from all financial considerations, of living up to the obligations of organized baseball and that, such being the case, they would sell Gordon Kelly's release to the best advantage of the stockholders of the club.

There was general rejoicing among the magnates over this declaration and corresponding gloom among the "fans" of Atlanta, who were promptly informed of the decision through "extras" issued by the afternoon newspapers. The moguls were about to gird on their armor to renew the battle for Gordon Kelly, when Callaway suggested that all business be put aside for the moment in order that all hands might attend the game at Ponce DeLeon Park and see the player who had set the baseball world on fire.

It had been raining most of the night before and part of the morning. The afternoon was dark and murky and the conditions were very unfavorable for a ball game. What with the dreary, dun-colored clouds trailing their dim regiments overhead, the drearier rain soaking the field into a swamp and the ghoulish-looking players ranting around in the mud like a squad of Kiralfy's high kickers, the spectacle was anything but edifying to the assembled crowd. But any sort of a day was good enough to see Gordon Kelly play and there was a surprisingly large crowd on hand when the game began.

The game itself was not calculated to promulgate heart disease. Gordon Kelly had no opportunity to distinguish himself in the field. One very easy fly ball was all that came in his direction. At bat, however, he knocked out two singles and a three-bagger, but attempted no base stealing, as the condition of the diamond made it dangerous.

That evening the visiting magnates were dined at the gorgeous Capital City Club by the directors of the Atlanta Baseball Club. After the solids were disposed of Herrmann, of Cincinnati, arose and after apologizing for intruding business on pleasure, remarked that he, for one, must hurry back to his home on an urgent matter and suggested that the matter of Gordon Kelly be settled then and for all.

At that President Johnson of the American League called his club owners to a corner of the room and addressed a few earnest remarks to them. It quickly developed that the price already offered for Gordon Kelly was as high as most of them cared to go. It was something unprecedented in the history of baseball that a player who had been in the game only a few days should command such a figure, and many of the club Presidents were already alarmed at the turn affairs had taken.

$250 in Prizes for Best Solution of "The Triple Tie"

YOU read the first fourteen installments of the great baseball mystery story of "The Triple Tie" and now you have a fair idea of the simplicity of the offer The Georgian makes—how you may win $100 by working out the solution of the mystery as nearly as its author, A. H. C. Mitchell, has done as you can.

Mr. Mitchell has written the last chapter, but his copy is sealed up in a vault at the American National Bank. When all but this final chapter has been printed, The Georgian readers will be asked to submit to three competent judges, none of them connected with this newspaper, their version of what the grand denouement should be.

To the person who most closely approximates Mr. Mitchell's final chapter $100 will be awarded. Other prizes, making the total prize list $250, also will be distributed.

Here is the list of the awards:

No. 1	$100
No. 2	$50
No. 3	$25
No. 4	$15
Nos. 5 to 16, each	5

Read the fifteenth installment of the great mystery story and you will not need to be urged to read the succeeding chapters. The story will grip you. As you read, try to follow the author's channel of thought and when the time comes for you to sit down and write that final chapter, be ready to win one of the big cash prizes in The Georgian's great offer.

QUAKER HERB EXTRACT DOES THE WORK

Mrs. R. T. Bartlett, of Lakewood Heights, Was Immediately Relieved of Acute Indigestion

My kind friends, there is a cure for indigestion or sour bloating stomach, not something that you have to take after or before you eat as long as you live, but a remedy that cleanses and heals that mucous lining, puts the stomach and bowels in good, healthy condition, builds up the entire system so you don't have to keep suffering with that misery. Quaker Herb Extract is a complete cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, biliousness or any form of stomach trouble, it will cure catarrh in any form, rheumatism, liver, kidney or bladder troubles.

Here is a report of a lady, Mrs. R. T. Bartlett, who resides at Lakewood Heights, Route No. 2, Box 144, was troubled with Acute Indigestion: "No matter what I ate seemed gas would form from it, causing me much misery. This gas would cause my stomach to bloat, my heart to palpitate, my breath to get short and would give me dizzy spells. It seemed my food would not digest properly, causing me distress. I used doctors' treatments and different kinds of medicines, but nothing helped me. I seemed to be getting worse, and, as I realized something had to be done, I concluded to try once more, and therefore, I called at Coursey & Munn's Drug Store for a treatment of Quaker, which was six bottles. I simply can not tell how quickly this great remedy helped me. People will not believe it if I tell them, but it is so. I eat heartily without any stomach distress following. I simply beg and hope that any and all persons who might be suffering like I did, to at least try the wonderful Quaker Herb Extract." $1.00 per bottle, three for $2.50, or six for $5.00. Oil of Balm, 25c, or five for $1.00. Call to-day at Coursey & Munn's Drug Store, 29 Marietta Street, and obtain these wonderful Quaker Herb Remedies. We prepay express charges on all orders of $3.00 or over.

GROCERS' DAY CROWD TO GIVE RECORD A TILT

By Percy H. Whiting.

IF the weather at game time this afternoon is sufficiently salubrious (Noah Webster please write) we are likely to give Birmingham something more to think about in the matter of attendance. It wouldn't be surprising if the mid-week record got a jar.

For there will certainly be some few enthusiasts at Ponce DeLeon ball park.

This is Grocers' and Butchers' Day.

The grocers, butchers and a lot of wholesalers will close this afternoon for the first time and are going to celebrate in various ways, but chiefly by going to the ball park.

The local team has gone to considerable expense in getting the Montgomery club here and expects a big crowd for the occasion.

* * *

RIGHT now, while the local crowds are standing up close around the high water mark and the league is more prosperous than ever before in its career it might be well to propound the question:

"Are Southern League clubs being run on a business basis and if they aren't what's going to become of them?"

Carleton Molesworth sounded a note of warning the other day in the following statement:

The managers in this league are spending too much money for the receipts they get. The attendance does not justify the disbursements now being made. Three cities in the league are drawing well and they are Mobile, Atlanta and Birmingham. Others are hardly paying the guarantee except on holidays.

The next big change in the league is bound to be a curtailment of expenses and it may come quicker than we expect. I have no kick to offer in Birmingham because the people there certainly support a ball club superbly. Whether you are winning or losing, they attend the game. It's a big place and we have a great population to draw from.

OF course here in Atlanta we haven't sprung any worry-wrinkles nor will we for the next 50 years. The local club is well backed. And Atlanta is a real baseball town.

That is more than can be said of some of the other cities in the league, including at least one—Memphis—which has size enough to turn out any old crowd.

* * *

YEAR in and year out the average Southern League clubs spend too much for their teams. Year in and year out the Southern League loses money—that is, the total of profits of all clubs is less than the total of losses.

Either the league cities have got to grow mighty fast to catch up with the salary limit or else the league will come a cropper some day.

In the meantime, I guess we should not lose sleep over it.

WITH new pitchers coming Cracker prospects are looking up again. Not in years, if ever, has a Southern club bought as many and as high-priced pitchers and secured such a weak staff. Look at the slather of them that Bill Smith had at the first of the year and how well they were recommended. And look at what's left now and what they have been doing.

It would be extremely helpful if this guy Counzelman turned out to be a bear. The other man Pittsburg sent down here, under optional agreement—Bisland—turned out to be a corker. Maybe Counzelman will do equally well.

While the Crackers were disappointed not to get the unrestricted ownership of Counzelman's services it is an encouraging sign that Barney Dreyfuss would not sell him outright. It was apparent that he expected the man to make a real pitcher some day. Otherwise he would have preferred money to his services.

* * *

MAYBE the blight of punk pitchers inflicted on Atlanta by the fates was a blessing in disguise and designed to keep up the interest in baseball.

Even without pitchers Bill Smith has been able to keep his club right up in the race. The Crackers are in such a position that with a little hurling help they can set sail for the Gulf, with every chance in the world of overtaking them.

I'm looking for a close finish this year.

The Crackers are going to get their stride after a bit and start winning. Their slump has to end after a bit. They are in a good position to make the race. Give them the pitchers and watch them fly!

HAL CHASE MAY NOT REPORT TO WHITE SOX

NEW YORK, June 4.—Hal Chase, traded by the Yankees to the White Sox, refused to report to his new club yesterday. When seen in the grandstand at the Yankees-Naps game and asked why he wasn't in Chicago with the White Sox, chase intimated that it was nobody's business but his own. He would make no answer to the question as to whether he would refuse to report to-day.

Coach Heisman on Amateurism

College Players and Summer Ball

By J. W. Heisman.

THIS is the time of the year when the college player gets out a copy of the rules of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association, and reviews them all carefully. Either he does this with the idea of refreshing his mind regarding the things he must not do if he wishes to be eligible for college playing again next spring, or to see if he cannot work out a way to go and play where and how he pleases, this summer, and yet not violate the letter of the laws.

For years the college players all over the country have been straining at the leash and trying to get away from the hard and fast rules that all colleges now lay down regarding summer baseball by their students; but thus far there has been no lengthening of the chain anywhere. In fact at every meeting of the S. I. A. A. some new law is passed which only shortens the restraining rope still more.

IT is a well understood rule all over the country that one who takes money for participation in any athletic event whatsoever above his necessary expenses thereby professionalizes himself, for which reason he is debarred from further athletic association with amateurs. In England they go very much further still. There only "gentlemen" can be amateurs; and a gentleman, in this sense, is defined to be one who has never worked for a living—that is, one who has never earned money by work, no matter what kind of work. This strikes us as the height of absurdity, and it is safe to say that such a definition of the amateur will never take foothold in America.

But while young Americans in this day and time understand full well that it is against the rules of amateur sport to accept money for work of this kind, there are many each year who do accept it, and who still expect to engage or continue in amateur sports, and in college sports as well. Sometimes they just baldly lie about it when it comes to filling out blanks regarding these points.

But generally, they salve and save their consciences by making a sale of an old pair of suspenders, or a cigar, or a pocket knife to some officer of the summer team with which they are playing for the trifling sum of $50 or $100, as the case may require. Or they will sit in a little poker game for ten minutes and have such a run of luck (?) as will net them, say $50.15 or $100.30. Or the stipulated remuneration is sent by the manager of the club to the boy's brother, father or friend, and so neither he nor any other official of the summer team has given him a cent; it is the relative or friend who has given it to him.

THEN there is another rule that gives the boys even more trouble. This provides that after a boy has once entered college he shall not thereafter during the summer vacation play upon or with any but his "home" team; and his home team is defined to be one that is in, or belongs to, the county in which that boy has legal residence, and has had that legal residence for at least one year before the playing of said summer ball (not one year before playing college ball with his college team the spring following his playing with the summer team).

Well, some of the boys happen to live in towns or counties where they don't have a team of any kind. That's a tough proposition, and formerly it was covered by the vice president giving a boy permission under such conditions to play with some other nearby team. But of late years the tendency has more and more been for the vice president to refuse such permits, and that leaves such boys high and dry.

But in any case most every boy gets a chance, yes, several chances, to play with some team outside his own county during the summer, and generally he wants to take the chance.

Why? Because often enough there's money in it. But whether there is or not, show me the baseball boy who won't miss even his meals to get into a game of ball most anywhere whether in the Amazonian jungles or on Spitzbergen. Then when he comes back to college and wants to play the following spring he has either to fib about it or automatically rule himself out of college ball for that spring by declining to answer every question and to sign his blank.

Some boys go off to play with a team not from their home county and change their true names for that game. But this has also now been covered by express and adverse legislation. Sometimes they strike a compact with players from other colleges whom they find with their own or the opposition team, and all agree to "keep mum" about it; and sometimes these packs are kept, while again they are not.

Of course before a boy goes to college at all he can play with any team he pleases, whether it comes from or belongs in his home county or not. This is a point not always understood by the prep players, and for their benefit I state it.

ANOTHER rule is that one must never have played even for so much as a single inning with a team that is a member of an organized professional league; and this applies to the boy who has not yet gone to college as well as to the one who has already been to college a session or two. Nor does it make any difference that he was "only trying out" with the professionals and failed to make good, or that he received no money whatever for such playing. Any PROFESSIONAL LEAGUE playing knocks him out for all time and without further ado.

But it is all right to play against a professional team or professional players on the same team with the amateur, so long as it is not a professional league. But competing against a professional in other sports, like foot racing, would knock the amateur out.

THE foregoing is merely an outline of the college rules written for the information and benefit of those who do not happen to be familiar with them.

In a future article I will have more to say regarding the ethical side of these rules, and what changes, if any, might with profit be made.

RINGSIDE NOTES

Jim Flynn, the Pueblo fireman, who battles Jim Savage at the Auditorium-Armory here on June 13, is the most sought after lightweight in the game to-day. New York wants Flynn to meet Gunboat Smith; Boston is after the Pueblo heavyweight to take on Frank Moran, while McCarey would match Flynn against either Willard or Smith.

* * *

Although Flynn has been before the public for many years he is still one of the greatest drawing cards among the boxers of to-day. His style of fighting closely resembles that of Battling Nelson. He is always on top of his opponent and gives the fans some real milling.

* * *

When Battling Nelson coined the term "cheese champion" and hung it on Willie Ritchie, he said a mouthful and one that is enduring. In fact, quite a lot of our present champions are falling all over themselves in their effort to grab a similar title.

* * *

Emil Thiry, manager of Packey McFarland, has accepted the management of Ernie Zanders, the Chicago welterweight. Already Emil is busy trying to close a match with Mike Gibbons, the St. Paul sensation.

* * *

Young Shrugrue and Sam Robideau will don the gloves for a scheduled 10-round battle in Madison Square Garden, New York, Thursday night. Both boys are lightweights.

* * *

Leach Cross' last fight before he meets Bud Anderson at Vernon, Cal., on July 4, will most likely be with Harry Trendall, the crack lightweight of St. Louis.

* * *

Leach made such a good showing in his bout with Trendall at the St. Louis A. C. a few weeks ago that the officials of the club have wired an offer to Sam Wallach to let Leach fight Trendall a return battle of eight rounds on June 11.

* * *

Johnny Coulon, bantamweight champion, will take on Frankie Burns at New York Thursday night. It was this same Frankie who gave Johnny the battle of his life a few years ago at New Orleans.

* * *

After the Burns set-to Coulon may close for a bout with Kid Williams. Baltimore has offered $3,000 for the go and New Orleans and Los Angeles raised it to $5,000.

* * *

Boston fight fans declare Mike Gibbons the cleverest boxer that has ever appeared in their city. Jimmy Perry probably agrees with the "Beantown" boxing followers.

* * *

The matter of two pounds in weight is all that is keeping Jack Britton and Charlie White from meeting in a 10-round engagement at Kenosha, Wis. White is holding out for 133 pounds at 6 o'clock, while Britton wants to come in at 135 pounds at the same time.

ONE SOUTHPAW ALL LOOKOUTS NEED, SAYS KID

CHATTANOOGA, June 4.—"Give me three good left handers," said Kid Elberfeld as soon as he had analyzed the permanent lineups of his leading rivals, "and I'll capture the rag." The Kid said this two months ago, and he says it now.

To be more exact Elberfeld needs at present but one southpaw to have his wish fulfilled. He has already Summers and Coveleskie. If Kroh, who has just been secured from the Turtles, lives up to expectations, the Kid will have no alibi if he fails to annex the 1913 gonfalon, for the three southpaws asked will be at his disposal.

THE acquisition of Kroh did not occasion any great amount of surprise locally as both Andrews and Elberfeld had had their eyes on the Turtle hurler since first he was seen in action. The Kid believes that he is a corking good man. Coveleskie and Summers can't be surpassed, and if the latest addition does 75 per cent as well as his brother portsiders the Kid will be eminently satisfied.

The sensational winning streaks of Coveleskie who has won 10 and lost 3 and Summers, who has won 7 and lost 2 seem to substantiate absolutely the assertion of Elberfeld that the Southern this year is a southpaw's league.

Rube Bush Wins Low Score Prize

Atlantans Star in Golf Tourney

By W. R. Tichenor.

MONTGOMERY, ALA., June 4.—The twelfth annual tournament of the Southern Golf Association began here yesterday with an entry of 180 players. Early in the day Louis Jacoby, of Dallas, Texas, turned in a card of 76. Later this was tied by Nelson Whitney, a former champion, whose qualifying round was the first he had ever played over the course. For almost all day it looked as if Whitney and Jacoby would have to play off the tie for the low qualifying score prize, but in the afternoon, when nearly all of the cards were in, R. G. Bush, of New Orleans, finished his round with a 75, which was the lowest score in the tournament.

R. R. Brooke had a fine chance to beat Bush's score when he got "out" in 36, but he went bad on the last four holes coming home, taking three punts to each of the greens and finished with 77.

Audubon Team Wins.

In the team match the Audubon Club, of New Orleans, was again the winner, with a total of 310; the Dallas Country Club was second with 317; Atlanta was third with 328.

Seven Atlanta players qualified in the championship division. Of this number W. R. Tichenor led with 80 and W. H. Rowan was second with 81. The other scores made by Atlantans were: G. W. Adair, 83; Dowdell Brown, 84; R. G. Blanton, 84; C. E. Cowan, 85; H. Block, 86.

The Atlanta players who qualified in the second division were W. Griffith, 89; C. V. Rainwater, 89; D. E. Root, 88; R. P. Jones, 91; W. P. Hazelwood, 91. Captain E. T. Winston, T. B. Paine, Ormond Smith, C. E. Rose and Dr. Joe Eby failed to qualify.

The going in the tournament is faster than it has ever been in any former Southern championship. A difference of only sixteen strokes was shown between the first and the ninety-sixth man.

It took as good as an 87 to get into the championship division, which will contain 64 players this year. It required 91 to get into the second division, which is composed of 32 players.

The surprise of the tournament was the failure of Whitney Bouden, J. W. S. Rhea and Albert Mallory to get into the championship flight.

How Atlantans Are Matched.

In the first round of the match play which began this morning the Atlanta players were matched as follows: H. B. Lock vs. R. G. Bush, Dowdell Brown v. R. H. Baugh, G. W. Adair vs. Gunter Watkins, W. R. Tichenor vs. S. J. Jernigan, W. H Rowan vs. O. H. R. Nicholson, C. E. Corwin vs. J. B. Bush, R. G. Blanton vs. J. B. Cobb. In the second division the Atlanta men are paired as follows: W. Griffith vs. G. B. Edgar, W. P. Hazlewood vs. A. J. Mapes, D. E. Root vs. W. A. Gunter, R. P. Jones vs. Whitney Bouden, C. V. Rainwater vs. R. P. Hagan.

The course is in fine condition, but is lightning fast.

It is regretted that F. G. Byrd and W. P. Stewart, former champions, are missing their first Southern championship.

In a practice round yesterday afternoon Louis Jacoby broke the record of the course when he made a 68.

Savage Knocks Out Allen in 2 Rounds

NEW YORK, June 4.—Jim Savage, the New Jersey heavyweight, who is to fight Jim Flynn at Atlanta on June 13, stopped Whitey Allen, of this city, in the second round of a bout here last night.

Savage put up a great fight and handed his opponent a severe lacing. His cleverness completely dazzled Allen, who was unable to lay a glove on him.

Savage also showed that he possesses a wallop. He used a right-hand uppercut with telling effect and displayed good use of his left hand when it came to jabbing.

After the bout Savage stated that he expected to defeat Flynn when the two came together. He is already in good shape.

JOE CONZELMAN REPORTS.

Pitcher Joe Conzelman, farmed in Atlanta by the Pittsburg team, has reported and will be worked within the next few days.

Conzelman was formerly with the Brown University team and pitched wonderful ball with that club. Fred Clarke, of the Pirates, believes he will be a wonder and has kept a string tied to him.

Pitcher-President Hands Himself Own Release

GRAND RAPIDS, MICH., June 4.—To hand your own release to yourself is an unusual occurrence. Yet this is what took place here when Pitcher William E. Essick was released by the Grand Rapids Central League club. He was the only member of the pitching staff not yet in condition, and as it was necessary to reduce the number of players to conform with the league limit, Essick was the victim.

The release was drawn up by President William E. Essick, of the Grand Rapids club, with all the customary details. Presiden: Essick then placed himself before a mirror and made a speech in which he expressed his regret that the league rules made it necessary for him to release his favorite pitcher.

The document was tendered by the president's right hand and accepted by his left. Thus President Essick released himself as a pitcher of the team of which he is president and majority stockholder.

Essick is a warm weather pitcher and says he probably will sign himself again in midseason.

THE
Ice-Kist Crankless Freezer

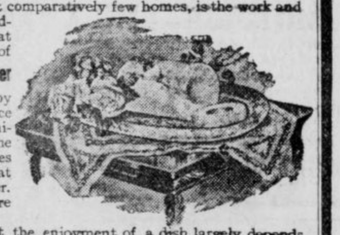

Just pack it—that's all! The freezer will do the rest. No crank to turn—no hard work—no dasher to clean—no glass to break—no hoops to fall off.

Be Wise! Make Your Own Ice Cream

Of course, you know that home-made ice creams, sherbets or ices are superior from every viewpoint. They are always sweet, pure and wholesome; there is a flavor and genuine goodness about them that is not found in the general run of factory products. Besides that, when you make your own preparations you know that the ingredients are always pure, and that the can is clean and sanitary. The main reason why ice cream is made in but comparatively few homes, is the work and bother connected with the old-fashioned crank freezer. That is one reason why the arrival of

will be hailed with delight by every one who is fond of ice creams, etc., because it eliminates the tedious turning of the crank entirely, and produces creams, sherbets and ices that will make your mouth water. That is one reason, but there are many others.

DON'T YOU KNOW that the enjoyment of a dish largely depends upon the manner in which it is served? Could you imagine a daintier and more appetizing manner of serving ice creams than provided for by the "Ice-Kist?"

PROGRAM OUT FOR RACES AT BOARD TRACK

THE program is out at last for the first motorcycle racing meet over the Atlanta Motordrome. It contains nine races, split up into three events. The first will be the Atlanta Sweepstakes, with three heats and a final. The next will be the Motordrome Purse, with three heats and a final. The last number will be a "triangular" match race, which will be framed up later. It is probable that the Atlanta lad, "Smiling Harry" Glenn, will be one of the riders in this event.

The races will be called Friday night at 8:30. The doors will be opened at 7, and the riders will be on the track warming up a half hour or so later.

The races will all be run at short intervals and the program will go through with no lagging.

Tickets for the meet are on sale at Shepherd's Segar Shop, Edgewood Avenue and Pryor Street. Each is provided with a rain check and they will be handled just as baseball rain checks are. If any meet is "rained out" the rain checks will be good for admission at any subsequent meet this year.

Here Is the Program.

The program follows:

First event, Atlanta Sweepstakes, one-mile heats, first man in each heat and second man in fastest heat to qualify for finals.

Race 1—First heat, No. 1, Marty Graves, of Los Angeles; No. 2, Harry Swartz, of Denver; No. 3, Willie Shields, of Brooklyn.

Race 2—Second heat, No. 4, George Lockner, of Syracuse; No. 5, "Tex" Richards, of Dallas; No. 6, Freddie Luther, of Fort Worth.

Race 3—Third heat, No. 7, Georges Renel, of Paris; No. 8, Jock McNeil, of Edinborough; No. 9, Henry Lewis, of Springfield, Mass.

Race 4—Final heat in Atlanta Sweepstakes, five miles. First prize, $40; second prize, $30; third prize, $20.

Second event, Motordrome purse, two-mile heats, first man in each heat and second man in fastest heat to qualify.

Race 5—First heat, "Tex" Richards, Willie Shields, Georges Renel.

Race 6—Second heat, Marty Graves, Henry Lewis, George Lockner.

Race 7—Third heat, Jock McNeil, Harry Swartz, Fred Luther.

Race 8—Final heat in Motordrome purse, three miles. First prize, $35; second prize, $20; third prize, $10.

Race 9—Special three-cornered match race, the riders to be announced Friday night. First prize, $25; second prize, $20; third prize, $15.

Rain Spoils Sport.

The newspaper men's meet, set for Tuesday afternoon, was pretty well smashed up by the rain. A good crowd of Fourth Estaters was present, but scattering showers in the afternoon made any fancy riding impossible. The track was very slippery and at high speed the machines skidded frightfully.

"Tex" Richards and Harry Glenn furnished most of the excitement. The former star rode several miles through the misting rain at express train speed and came back on two wheels, which was more than was expected by those who watched him ride.

Seats went on sale Tuesday at Tumlin's cigar stands, as well as at Shepherd's Segar Shop. The advance demand is heavy.

TIGERS PAY $4,000 FOR PITCHER AND INFIELDER

OTTUMWA, IOWA, June 4.—Detroit has purchased Pitcher Grimes and First Baseman Burns for $4,000, subject to immediate delivery. The deal was made by Manager E. F. Egan, who secured Grimes from Austin, Minn. Burns recently was purchased for $300 from Burlington. Grimes has won eleven straight victories and has not been scored on for thirty consecutive innings. Burns is hitting close to .500.

BALL PLAYER DYING.

RICHMOND, VA., June 4.—Selden N. Mitchell, one of nine brothers who comprised a baseball team in Southside Virginia some years ago, is dying with peritonitis in this city.

3 Champs Unpopular With Fans

Coulon, Kilbane, Ritchie Disliked

By Left Hook.

NEVER since there were boxers have there been three finer little fellows in the ring than Johnny Coulon, Johnny Kilbane and Willie Ritchie.

Never since there were boxers have there been three more unpopular champions than Johnny Coulon, Johnny Kilbane and Willie Ritchie.

The only thing that could happen to them now to complete the picture would be for them to turn baseball umpires.

The case of Johnny Coulon is a special one, different from the other two. A sick boy, he refuses either to defend the title or to give it up. Every challenge brings from him a wail that his tum tum hurts him and he is going on a long hunting trip.

This has gradually turned a popular little fighter into a very unpopular one. Coulon is disliked because he has practically tied up the entire bantamweight division and blighted the hopes of every boy in it.

Sport World Resentful.

The sporting world seems to feel a just resentment against Coulon for having dived down a hole and dragged the hole in after him.

It is not easy to say just why Kilbane and Ritchie are unpopular. The attitude of the sporting public toward Kilbane is this—they know he got the worst of the decision with Dundee and they are glad he did.

The same would have been true of Ritchie.

The cause of the public grouch against these two fine little fellows seems to be that Ritchie and Kilbane are both "in" the boxing world, but not "of" boxing.

They are too obviously there for money to suit the tastes of the sporting fans. In a rather cool and indifferent way, Kilbane makes this plain. His attitude toward the sporting public strikes one as being somewhat like contempt. He cares nothing for fighting and very little for fight fans.

Is Timid About Capital.

He feels about as much of the hot glow of battle as a turtle. It is believed that Kilbane has courage of the very highest type. In a scrap out at a picnic, merely for the fun of the thing, Kilbane could probably fight like a fiend. But, in the ring, he can't get over the idea that he has placed $50,000 worth of capital in a perilous position. Kilbane is timid only because capital is timid, and Johnny is a capitalist.

Although it may sound paradoxical, Kilbane is one of the most brilliant boxers that ever lived; and he never should have gone into the ring. It is a life he does not belong in. He doesn't know how to act there. He isn't in sympathy with boxing and boxers. He hasn't made a great deal of money; but he is a smart boy and he will be able to invest what he has in some business where he will probably shine.

It is not likely he will be in the ring very long. His passing into business life will end one of the most peculiar careers in boxing annals—a boxing genius who didn't like to box.

Ritchie Reverse of Idol.

Ritchie is the reverse English of a boxing idol because the boxing public resents his luck. Every man who has worked hard all his life and has saved by self-denial has a secret and savage hatred for every one who has made an easy killing.

Billy Nolan added to this feeling by giving the impression that he didn't consider Willie any world beater, but thought it safer to swoop up all the money they possibly could in the stage business before giving any one a chance at the title.

Ritchie is very likely to live down his unpopularity. He will leave the stage very soon and Nolan says he will fight anybody who can show the coin. He is likely to put up a fight that will surprise everybody.

Fight fans seem to forget the pluck and courage with which he faced Ad Wolgast, and the fortitude with which he took one of the most savage beatings imaginable until the lucky blow at the end.

Diamond News and Gossip

Eddie Collins, of the Athletics, got a triple and a homer out of four times at bat yesterday.

* * *

Five errors made by the Tigers enabled the Athletics to score a 7 to 3 victory.

* * *

Ty Cobb made one hit yesterday out of three times up. Joe Jackson, his batting rival, did ditto.

Leon Ames, traded by the Giants to the Reds about two weeks ago, pitched a three-hit shut-out victory yesterday against the Dodgers.

The Giants' victory yesterday and the Dodgers' defeat broke the tie for second place and sent the Giants into the runner-up position, just 97 points back of the Phillies.

The Yankees to date have established a record that is without equal and one which will no doubt stand for all time. They have failed to win a game on their home grounds. They have lost fifteen straight at home since the season opened.

Sweeney's failure to play for a runner at home in the seventh inning of the Yankees-Naps game turned the tide of battle and enabled the Clevelanders to romp home an easy winner.

Eddie Ainsmith, Washington catcher, has drawn an indefinite suspension for heaving a handful of sand at an umpire on Monday.

DENT OR PRICE SLATED TO GO AGAINST BILLS

BILL SMITH is figuring on working Dent or Price against the Billikens in to-day's festivities. Chapman will do the receiving. The rest of the line-up will be as usual.

We got in from Nashville in good order this morning.

Our game Tuesday came about as easily as the one of the day before. It took longer, but there was never any more doubt about the one than the other.

"King" Brady twirled his usual game against the Vols—and that means victory about every time. He seems to have something on them.

The Crackers hit the ball, ran bases well and took advantage of the Vols' errors. The score was 8 to 3.

We put another awful dent in Beck's record. They say he is going to the big league with an awful flourish before long, but if he pitched against us every day I'm not so sure about it.

When they stuck in Fleharty he held us, but by that time it didn't make any difference.

The Crackers sure played jam-up ball yesterday. Every man fielded his position in great style and we looked like a real ball club.

I believe we should win today's ball game. I think Dent will be the man worked, and I think he will fool the Bills. If we hit the way we are capable of there will be nothing to it.

GILLESPIE BEANED; IS IN SERIOUS CONDITION

CHATTANOOGA, TENN., June 4.—Jimmy Gillespie, third baseman of the local club, was struck on the head by Pitcher Hardgrove, of the Birmingham club, yesterday and to-day is in the hospital in an extremely critical condition. His skull is badly fractured and recovery is doubtful. Gillespie played last year with the Providence club, in the International League.

BROWNS PURCHASE INFIELDER.

SAN DIEGO, CAL., June 4.—Charles Flanagan, shortstop of the San Diego team of the Southern California League, has been sold to the St. Louis Americans. Flanagan will report July 1. The consideration is said to have been $3,500.

PHILLIES AND REDS IN TRADE.

PHILADELPHIA, June 4.—Manager Dooin, of the Philadelphia National ball team, announced before leaving with his team for Pittsburg that he had secured Beals Becker from the Cincinnati club in exchange for Dodge, a utility infielder.

FOOD FOR SPORT FANS

AUTO POLO.

Auto polo is a cross between two of our most popular institutions—namely, sport and manslaughter.

Its chief object, aside from abusing an innocent ball, is to contribute to the support of deserving morticians and funeral directors.

Its press agent tells us that it "combines all the risks of a bullfight, a football game and a ride in an airship." We fail to see its connection with bullfighting except that the press agent is an adept at throwing the bull. He might have added, however, that it combines all the inspiring features of mayhem and assault with intent to kill.

One of the beauties of auto polo is the training it affords a motorist. An expert auto poloist can hit a pedestrian at a distance of twenty yards without even taking aim and may always be depended upon to hit .300 on a crowded thoroughfare.

The headquarters of the Auto Polo Association of America is at Floral Park, Long Island, making it easy to obtain flowers for the remains of the losers.

As an athletic exercise auto polo is indorsed by all physicians, especially by those who need the practice.

The origin of auto polo is enshrouded in mystery. As a result its inventor has escaped without his pusts deserts.

It may be true, as Tim Murnane says, that education does not help a ball player, but it often prevents him from injuring himself with his table knife.

Jules Goux, the gent who won the race at Indianapolis, was kissed by his mechanic. But such is the penalty of success.

Critics on the coast inform us that Jess Willard is a promising heavyweight, but up to date he has been committing breach of promise.

Among other things, Connie Mack is sustained and soothed by the knowledge that he never will be prosecuted for unnecessary noise.

Mr. Cobb avers that he never hears the shouts of the populace, but it will be hard to convince the innocent bystander whom he clouted on the features.

Possibly Mr. Cobb does not hear the hoi polloi, but if he fails to hear the stentorian strains of the popcorn merchants he is deaf and dumb.

NO PLACE FOR AN UMP.

An umpire entered Heaven's gate,
but turned around and fled.
"Why beat it thusly from our midst?"
the good St. Peter said.
"I walked right in," the ump replied;
"I walked right in, and then—
I saw John Evers standing there, and
walked right out again."

The savant, or whatever it was, who averred that two heads are better than one, never tried to manage a ball team on that system.

Leland Stanford having whipped the Jap ball team twice in the same place, Mr. Bryan will now come across with an apology.

One is not surprised to hear that the French Government contemplates a Secretary of Athletics, although most politicians are Spanish athletes.

Punishing a ticket scalper by putting his name in the paper is much like sentencing an actor to a column on the first page.

Davy Jones says he will quit baseball rather than play in Toledo, leading one to suspect that somewhere in the dim past he has visited Toledo.

Still, how could Wisconsin expect to win a ball game with a pitcher who labors under the name of Isabella?

Mike Donlin finished among the also rans at Coeur d'Alene, demonstrating that there is something in a name.

The Navy crew having beaten Columbia by a nose, we may expect to see a steed win the Derby by a stroke.

While some may consider polo a parlor game, we fail to see anything particularly effeminate in acting as a doormat for an able-bodied horse.

TOUX TROUX.

There was a young driver named Goux
Who turned on the power and floux.
His machine, the Peugeot,
Showed them all how to geot,
And he shattered a record or twoux.

JOE RIVERS AND RITCHIE FAIL TO AGREE ON WEIGHT

SAN FRANCISCO, June 4.—Billy Nolan and Joe Levy could not agree on the weight question to-day and the Willie Ritchie-Joe Rivers match may not take place on July 4.

Nolan insisted on the weight being at 134 at 9 o'clock in the morning and that the fight take place at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Levy is willing to accept 134 pounds ringside, but would not agree to the weight and time named by Nolan.

The matter has been laid over until Thursday, when another discussion will be started.

ROBIDEAU READY FOR GO WITH SHUGRUE THURSDAY

NEW YORK, June 4.—Sam Robideau, the lightweight boxer who is trying to fight his way to the world's title, has arrived from Philadelphia in fine condition for the ten-round battle with "Young Joe" Shugrue, of Jersey City, in Madison Square Garden to-morrow night.

Gus Platts will face Dave Kurtz in the semi-final.

HARVARD SHOWS PROFIT OF $27,928 IN ATHLETICS

CAMBRIDGE, MASS., June 4.—Harvard athletics showed a profit of $27,928 for the year ended July 31, 1912, as against a loss of $10,822 for the previous year, according to the report of Graduate Manager W. D. Puttey.

The total receipts from athletic contests amounted to $157,359, and the expenses fere $125,421. The previous year the receipts were $112,097.

GIBBONS DEFEATS WHITE IN TWELVE-ROUND BOUT

BOSTON, June 4.—Mike Gibbons, St. Paul welterweight, put a temporary stop to the title aspirations of Joe White, of Boston, in a twelve-round bout here last night. Gibbons had a big shade in the majority of rounds.

BALL PLAYERS "FRAT" SUES BOSTON AMERICANS

NEW YORK, June 4.—The baseball players' union, known as "The Fraternity," which was organized to protect the interests of the players, yesterday filed a suit against the Boston American League baseball team in the Supreme Court of this city to collect $1,480 damages for Kurt M. Hageman, known as "Casey."

The complainant says he suffered the damages by reason of the club not permitting him to discharge his duties under a contract he signed after June 23, 1912. He was also refused his release when he demanded it. This is one of the first suits brought by the union.

Hageman was a pitcher taken by the Red Sox from Denver in the fall of 1911. He was let out early in 1912 and claims that the Red Sox violated his contract.

PLAY TENNIS

This is one of the best out-door sports. It is not necessary that you have a private court on which to play. The Park Board has amply provided courts to accommodate all who can play. There are seven new ones in Piedmont; five in Grant; one in Mims and one in Howell Park—and all belong to the people—all that is necessary for you to do is get there first. We sell the celebrated Wright and Ditson Tennis Goods.

POULTRY, PET AND LIVE STOCK

Items of Interest To the Poultryman

Little Things in the Poultry Business That Mean Success or Failure.

EDITED BY JUDGE F. J. MARSHALL

The comb is the fowl's barometer of health. A bright red comb means health and vigor, while a dark or purple comb means congestion of some kind, and as the disease goes on, the comb turns sickly pale to almost white. So let your endeavors be to maintain red combs on all your chickens.

You may not think it pays to go to any trouble to prepare your poultry for market, just so you get it there before it is spoiled. No greater mistaken idea was ever entertained. If you take extra care and pains in the preparation you will soon be able to command the extra price such merit demands, which will well repay for all the extra trouble. On the other hand, carelessness in preparation simply puts your product into the hands of the huckster at his prices. Which class do you care to be found in?

The question is often asked, Which color of eggs will command the best prices in the average city market, white or brown? Ordinarily there is but little difference. Where extreme care in handling is given the white ones look mighty nice, but they show soil much quicker than the brown ones, so that with ordinary care the brown ones would look the best. Where one is willing to take the extra care to keep them in condition and place them on the market to private customers the white ones will bring a little better price.

The hen enjoys her bath just as much as a man does, and better than some men do, but it is not the water bath we have reference to, but the much-talked-of dust bath. It is so essential to the health of the hen. No wise poultryman will neglect to provide the spacious, liberally supplied dust box.

It should be the poultryman's aim to get all the early hatched pullets and the hens through moult to laying before bad weather sets in, when it is but little trouble to keep them in condition for laying all winter, when eggs are high, but if you do not get them started before the cold weather comes on, the task is not an easy one. See that they moult promptly by right feeding.

The roosts of your poultry house should be all upon a level and not running higher and higher, as was the custom in olden times, for every chicken in the house will very naturally decide to roost on the top roost, where there will be weeping and wailing and—— Put them all on a level and not very high from the floor, except for the lightweight breeds, and they will soon learn that they can roost just as well at a moderate height as they can in the top of the house. The roosts should all be movable, so they can be taken out and cleaned when necessary.

Of all the feeds and kinds of feed, look out for musty feed and cut it out at all times. It is the poorest kind of economy to try to work it in, perhaps because you can buy it at a low price. It will prove disastrous in the end.

Poultry Shows.

There is no one thing that is of as much advantage to the poultry industry of this country as the local poultry show. Those who do not stop to consider these little things in regard to the poultry business have no idea of the influence that is exerted upon the community by the holding of a good poultry show in the country town. The whole community becomes enthused and wakes up to the fact that there is really such a thing as a good stock of poultry, and by talking with the exhibitors they find that such stock will lay more eggs and give a great deal more meat for the food consumed than will the high-flying scrub stock of the farm.

They get it all down the line. They become enthused so that there is really something doing on the old farm. Things are stirred over, and it is not long until some of the old stock is marketed and new stock takes its place. For these reasons we like to see the local poultry show flourish. It is a working factor for better poultry, which means more and better eggs for the consumer at a reduced price.

We want to get in touch with all these associations that are getting things in shape for a fall show. Write us, giving the date and the particulars about it. We shall be glad to publish all such, which will help you to get it before the public, letting them know what you intend to do. Write us.

REAL ESTATE AND CONSTRUCTION NEWS

Court House Sales Draw Large Throng

Barbecue Committee Meets—Petition for Automobile Line—One-story Houses Building.

A representative crowd of citizens gathered at the court house Tuesday morning to witness the various legal sales. Among those present were Forrest Adair, Forrest Adair, Jr., John Y. Smith, Gid Hanna, C. P. Goree, Steve R. Johnston, J. N. Landers, M. M. Anderson, J. B. Chamlee, Lamar Hill, H. W. Dews, Courtland S. Winn, George B. Powell, George H. Bonnell, W. S. Thomson, Ulysses Lewis, John D. Baddage, Charles H. Black, Sam Green, T. J. Lockhart, Alex W. Smith, Jr., Nathan Coplan, Phil Cleveland, of Griffin; Charles H. Cox, Morris Macks, J. A. Branch, William J. Davis and W. W. Warren.

Forrest Adair sold for the estate of Mrs. Ermie Pope, 14 and 18 Ponders Avenue, 75 by 100 feet, with two houses renting for a total of $57 a month, to Jake H. Hirsch for $4,100. Mr. Adair also sold a 43 by 209-foot lot on Capitol Avenue, between Glenn Street and Georgia Avenue, to W. J. Davis for $2,225; three small lots on Elizabeth Street to Mr. Davis for $750, and three on Wilson Street to C. P. Goree for $475. A lot on Richmond Street was withdrawn.

W. S. Thomson sold 89 Copenhill Avenue, 75 by 200 feet, to H. W. Dillin, for $3,050. This contains a three-room house.

Steve R. Johnston sold for the estate of Daniel A. Green to C. A. Upchurch, for $975, a Woodward Avenue lot; to R. G. Seagraves, for $810, a lot on Gordon Street; to William Nichols and R. H. Gower, for $670, two lots on Joe Johnson Avenue, and to George B. Powell, for $300, two lots on Florida Avenue. Sheriff Mangum's sales interrupted the sale of ten additional lots of this estate.

Barbecue Committee Meeting.

The barbecue committee of the Atlanta Real Estate Board met Tuesday afternoon in the offices of Charles P. Glover, president of the board, for the purpose of discussing some features of the barbecue which the real estate men will give June 14 at Cold Springs. The various members of the committee have been given tickets to sell for the occasion, and they report a great many sales.

To Start Transit Line.

The South Side Transit Company is the name of a new automobile concern which will soon start operations on the Brown Mill Road. People living along this thoroughfare have long felt the need of conveyances leading to the car lines, and a number of them have decided to petition the Superior Court for a charter to do business. The petitioners are T. C. Waters, M. O. Jackson, Leonard W. and W. R. Brown, C. H. Conoley, Harvey Hatcher and W. E. Taliaferro. Mr. Brown and Mr. Hatcher filed the petition as attorneys.

This line will be similar to the 'bus lines operating at Buckhead to surrounding points, like Roswell and Powers Ferry.

Many One-Story Houses.

Seven one-story houses featured the building permits in Inspector Hays' office Tuesday morning at the city hall. The taller structures took a rest for the day. Outside of residences, there was application for a furnace by A. W. Farlinger at 34 Arizona Avenue.

Lots and Cottage Sold.

Mrs. H. J. Klink, of Olean, N. Y., has sold to a client of the A. J. & H. F. West Real Estate Agency a new five-room house and a 100 by 190-foot lot on the east side of Lena Street, near the Ashby Street School, for $1,600.

W. N. Bullock and others have bought from W. J. Dowling, of New York, through the West Agency, eight vacant lots on Dahlgren Street, Decatur, for $1,500. The latter property is on the Decatur car line.

Plan to Push Regrading.

There was a unanimous expression among certain property owners Tuesday over the eleventh-hour decision of Council to appropriate all the available city funds for the purchase of the crematory, to the present exclusion of Peachtree and Whitehall regrading and other important works. It was "Curses!" There was seemingly nothing in the way of these improvements until the decision of the State Supreme Court in the crematory matter upset all calculations.

People who have worked a year or more to have Whitehall regraded, and citizens who realize the necessity of widening Peachtree from Carnegie Way to Harris Street, however, are not discouraged. They are holding conferences Tuesday to devise a way of proceeding in spite of the interruption. Charles H. Black, speaking for the Whitehall property owners, declared that the matter of Whitehall regrading would not be dropped, but that some provision would be made. Peachtree owners and people interested in other regrading projects are just as determined.

Since only $30,000 has been asked for the Whitehall work and $5,000 for the Peachtree work, it is believed that leading citizens will guarantee enough of the amounts to go ahead until a permanent arrangement as to funds can be made.

North Avenue Home Sold.

Mrs. J. K. Barcroft has bought from Mrs. Lillian D. Skinner through Harris G. White a residence property on North Avenue, Highland Avenue and Williams Mill Road for $12,500. The lot is 273 feet on Williams Mill Road, 111 feet on Highland Avenue and 240 feet on North Avenue.

To Widen Ivy Street.

A number of Ivy Street property owners assured Joel Hurt Tuesday that they would give enough land to insure the conversion of Ivy Street into a 65-foot thoroughfare, before regrading is completed. Mr. Hurt made this proposition to the owners in a letter, and he is gratified over the responses.

The idea is to make a retail street out of Ivy and to keep it free of garages and other wholesale establishments. This sentiment must be created at once if the idea is to be carried out, since several wholesalers have had their eyes on locations.

Mr. Hurt wants to relieve Peachtree congestion as much as possible, and in this connection it will be recalled that there will be a movement to keep heavy vehicles on Ivy Street rather than on Peachtree, and to dispense with car tracks. The street car company expects to run a double track on Ivy Street between Auburn Avenue and Edgewood Avenue, however.

At the proper time real estate men expect to introduce an ordinance in Council prohibiting the use of Peachtree from Ivy Street southward for heavy vehicles like wagons and trucks. This is the kind of traffic, they contend, that cuts up paving and causes congestion.

FOR SALE AT AUCTION!

SIX UP-TO-DATE HOMES And 19 Ready-to-Build-On Lots

SATURDAY, JUNE 7, 1913

At 3 P. M., on the Premises

THESE are 5 and 6-room houses, with every city convenience and connection, including furnace in several of the houses, but no gas as yet. These houses were built of the best material, under the personal direction of Colonel I. N. Ragsdale, who could not be induced to build a shoddy house.

These houses are real city homes, located in the social center of the Tenth Ward, and only a step from the best car service in Atlanta.

We urge you to go out and inspect this property. Each house will be plainly placarded, showing cash payment and monthly payments; also the amount of the loan to be assumed.

THESE HOUSES ARE NOW RENTED, and bring in from $18.50 to $30.00 per month. Think of what a help that will be to you, in meeting your payments, should you not be ready to occupy the house.

The houses and lots front on the following streets:

Arlington Avenue, Princess Avenue and LaRosa Terrace.

Arlington Avenue runs off Lee Street, right at Colonel Ragsdale's handsome home. Princess Avenue runs off of Avon (Oakland) Avenue, between the Baptist Church and Captain E. P. Ryan's fine home, giving the property two approaches, each of which is a prominent street.

THIS SECTION HAS NO OBJECTIONABLE FEATURE

It is logically the place for the people to live who are engaged in business, or who are employed among the many industrial and manufacturing and railroad enterprises around the Terminal Station, Whitehall Street, Mitchell Street, and the Central and West Point Railroads, and the adjacent territory. The car service and the way the streets run prove these statements to be true. Think about it, and you'll see it as we do.

THE LOTS ARE READY TO BUILD ON

These are the lots to buy, either for home sites or for speculation, because they are ready to build on. In addition to this, every lot is a beauty, with nice young oak shade trees scattered over them. Also, because their location is excellent. They are only a short distance from the business center of Oakland City. Only two blocks from the City School, and near the churches; and the farthest lot is only two blocks from the car line; and, best of all, they are socially in the swim, and

ALL CITY IMPROVEMENTS DOWN AND PAID FOR.

THE TERMS ON THE HOUSES

will range from $100 to $250 cash, and the payments will range from $22.50 per month to $32.50 per month, with 6 per cent simple interest. Small loan on five of the houses, to be assumed by the purchaser.

THE TERMS ON THE LOTS

are right. Every lot will be sold on terms of $50 cash, and the balance $15 per month, with only 6 per cent simple interest on the deferred payments.

HOW TO GET THERE—Take cars at the corner of Forsyth and Alabama Streets, marked "East Point," "Hapeville" or "College Park." Get off at the corner of Avon (Oakland Avenue). You will then be only a step from this property.

COME AND BE SURE TO BUY—You will never regret it if you do, and you will be sorry if you don't. Get plans from

We Get Ideals Easily from Pictures

So Please Look at the Picture on This Page of the Cheapest Working Animal in the World. It May Help You to Think.

Copyright, 1913.

What was the first animal tamed, conquered and made into a slave by man? Men had to work a long time, probably, before they got into their heads the idea of slavery for others—an idea that has meant so much to the comfort of a few and the misery of the rest for centuries.

As a guess, we should say that the first tamed animal was some kind of a deer or female buffalo. Some savage woman found it wounded, perhaps broken-legged in a pit, the young one standing near it. The young one was killed and eaten. The mother was hobbled and kept alive as long as possible for her milk, given to the wild woman's children. And when the milk gave out the mother probably was eaten by the wild woman and her children.

After that experiment that same wild woman, or some other, decided that the captured animal could be kept permanently, made gentle and used to carry a load. The women, of course, carried all the loads at first, as they do now among the red Indians. Probably the first domestic scene was a woman milking by force and violence some half-wild animal in order to get milk for her young ones.

The first animal tamed by man was probably a wolf, the father of our present tribe of dogs, the tame wolf being used by the man to help him hunt animals or hunt other men.

However, speculation about the first animal tamed is not the purpose of this particular article.

We want to call your attention to the most valuable animal that men use in their slavery, AND THE CHEAPEST ANIMAL.

That animal is a woman, working in the factory or a sweatshop.

Since the days when the first buffalo or wolf or elephant was tamed, there has been nothing as cheap as the woman worker, nothing so easily obtainable, so easily kept in slavery, so easily replaced when worked to death.

You can see in the picture on this page some of man's accomplishments. He teaches elephants to lift logs. He uses little donkeys, powerful horses, oxen with big horns, but he uses, above all THE POVERTY-STRICKEN WOMAN AND HER CHILDREN AS SOON AS THEY ARE OLD ENOUGH TO WORK.

Isn't that a proud achievement of civilization, to find the cheapest of all animal labor and the cheapest of all working animals IN THE FEMALE HUMAN BEING?

The wise and great Moses, when he was teaching the Jews to keep house without an ice-box and laying down laws that make of the Jewish people the healthiest in the world to-day, that wise Moses issued this order, on the authority of the Almighty:

"Thou shalt not seethe a kid in his mother's milk."—Exodus 34:26.

Why Moses gave the order we don't know. Possibly because he thought it was bad enough to kill the mother and eat it, but a little too bad and too heartless to take the mother's milk and boil her own child in that milk. Or probably Moses issued the order because of his general opinion that meat and milk should not be used at the same meal.

What would Moses think, if he came along now and found a miserable, half-starved, under-paid woman, working in a factory and found her own "kid," the child of her body, tied to some machine in the factory with her, or sitting at her feet in a sweatshop working before it was six years of age?

Would not the old Lawgiver say, "I thought it was bad enough in my day to boil a kid in the milk of its own mother.

"But to take a child and work it to death in the same factory that worked its mother to death is going a little farther along the road of deviltry than I ever imagined human beings could go."

Yet that is what we do.

Our system of industry takes these "cheapest of working animals," the women, and takes their cheap children, and boils them all down into profits in the same factory—and that is "civilization."

You are tired, readers, of hearing about low pay for women and girls—tired, perhaps, even of the suggestion that laws should be passed compelling employers to pay to the cheapest working animal at least enough to keep clothes on her back and food in her stomach.

What follows, however, you will read with interest. It is a brilliant Frenchman's description of woman as she lived ages ago. He calls it, "The First Tears."

It is, perhaps, as good a description as has been written of the appearance of the first woman, in the days when she drank from the horn of a bison, and kept her rainwater in the skull of an elephant. It is the woman of the days before men had learned to conquer fire. It is worth reading:

"On the crest of the cliff the branches of a thicket parted and an arm, a shoulder, then the entire form of a living being, veiled with tawny hair, appeared, came forth, and stood like a hunted animal, glancing to right and left—a primitive woman, with arched shelving brows, broad flanks, short solid legs, splayfeet and thick fat hands.

"A mass of falling hair, starting from the crown of her long skull, framed her face with a somber red-brown aureole. A short, loose neck rose from her full shoulders, strong teeth glittered in her red jaws, and a double furrow ran from jaw to brow to divide the formless nose from the cheek bones.

"As the creature breathed her mobile nostrils drew back to take the revelations of the wind. Sheltered by the low retreating forehead, two jutting arcades fell to form caverns for the restless eyes. At times the wrinkled eyelids straightened, the eyes widened, and an expression of appealing softness appeared, then vanished to give place to the look of a worried beast.

"The time was the dawn of humanity, when Man was an animal in all but shape before the rigors of the season forced Earth's population to hide from the cold in caves. The skeletons of giant saurians were petrifying in the upper strata of the crust, and mammals were moving in to the valleys to take their places. Great pachyderms and long-haired ruminants waded in the mire of the valleys, and beasts of prey dogged their steps. Among the animals rare beings foreshadowing Man crept naked, timid, feeling their way, hiding from the beasts of prey.

"In the low light of the primeval springtime, in silence broken only by the tramp of padded hoofs and by the lap of water against the mire, a man searching for berries saw a woman running to escape him, ran after her, caught her and carried her away.

"The man vanished, and for the first time in her hunted life the woman felt the loneliness of the solitude that had been her best condition, and a pang like the yearning of hunger awoke in her.

"She wandered along the hedges, through the wet fields, under the dark sky, searching for the one who had mastered her; and when after long quest, she saw him, she ran to him with inarticulate cries. He gave no answering sign; but, when he sat down to eat his fistful of acorns, she sat down beside him, and when he lay down to sleep she, too, lay down. So the law of life gave the woman to the man.

"At first he tolerated her; then, when she served him and was useful to him, he made her his habit. Her relative weakness gave her quick premonitions of their need of food. His indifference to her and her dependence upon him gave him superiority. His silent acceptance of her presence aroused in her dull brain a feeling akin to tenderness, and in that feeling, humble and submissive, she withdrew when he had beaten her."

That description was written by Edmond Haraucourt.

It goes on to say that the primitive man called the woman "Hock." And the woman called him "Daah," a name which the French gentleman thinks was "an appeal soft as a caress." This primitive married couple had two other words, one for hunger, "Mah," and another for danger, "Heugh." Whatever else they had to say they told in gestures.

Primitive times were they not—those days of three or four hundred thousand years ago?

But how much worse was that primitive woman, short-legged and ugly and beaten by the brute that she liked, than the woman of to-day?

The woman of to-day is better made, she has a forehead where the other had none. She has feelings of which the other never dreamed.

Is she any better off—SHE, THE CHEAPEST WORKING MACHINE THAT MAN EMPLOYS; SHE, THE LOWEST-PRICED ANIMAL, THE CHIEF BEAST OF BURDEN OF THE WORLD, CHEATED OF HER RIGHTS FROM BEGINNING TO END, CHEATED AS WAS THIS WOMAN OF NEARLY HALF A MILLION YEARS AGO?

The so-called educated and superior classes have the impertinence to laugh at the women who at last have had the courage and the intelligence to make a stand for their rights, to demand a share in the making of laws that will protect them against the brutality that has lasted a half-million years.

The Cheapest Working Animal

She is cheaper by the day, the hour or the whole lifetime than any of the different beasts that labor for men. (SEE EDITORIAL.)

Ella Wheeler Wilcox Writes on This World

It Is Getting Better All the Time, She Declares, So Do Not Worry and Fret, but Improve Yourself and Push Ahead.

Written For The Atlanta Georgian
By Ella Wheeler Wilcox

Copyright, 1913, by Star Company.

THERE are hundreds of otherwise sensible and good men and women in the land today who are wasting precious vital force, and losing great opportunities for achievement, in a useless and foolish worry and despondency over the industrial situation of the country.

Food is high; rents are high; fuel is high, and the trusts and monopolies are carrying things from bad to worse.

YET ALL THE TIME THE WORLD IS IMPROVING. And all the time we are going toward a better era.

Work for Improvement.

Great men and great women are thinking and working to bring about an improved system of life and labor; and more work is being done for the uplifting and enlightenment of the race than ever before since the earth came out of chaos.

So do not dwell too much on the troubled social conditions of the day and grow bitter and pessimistic over them.

The situation is one which calls for all your optimism and cheerfulness.

The world has been wagging on for millions of years, and will continue to wag, and humanity has been slowly improving and will continue to improve slowly for many millions of years.

The first important thing for you to do is to improve yourself, and that you can not do if you grow bitter and despondent and harp continually upon the evil of the world.

If you allow your mind to dwell upon the scarcity of fuel and its high price, you will not increase the supply of fuel or lower the price, and you will exhaust your own vital forces, which might, properly conserved, fire you with ambition enough to go forth and invent some new fuel.

Help by Example.

Try in the moments of greatest gloom to realize that out of such strife and chaos as exist just now new conditions are formulated and in time are materialized. Be ready to meet these new conditions and be worthy of them.

It is useless to ask for a better social system unless the people who form it are better.

A government is made by the people. If it is faulty, it is because the people are faulty.

If it is to be bettered, the people must become better.

Begin with yourself. Keep wholesome, and hopeful, and reasonable, and industrious, and economical.

Help others to do so—not entirely by advice, but by example.

Try to save a little of what you earn to meet the emergency that may come. You think you can not, but if you once realize how little you really need to sustain life and keep well and strong you will find you can economize.

Half the food we now consume is more than enough! And the things which cost more are almost invariably the things we need least.

Consume fresh air, breathe deep and develop your muscles with outdoor exercises or room calisthenics. Look on the philosophical side of life and think cheerfully. Believe progress is back of all this chaos, just as you know the torn-up conditions of the city streets indicate future comfort and convenience for the people.

Everything will settle down by and by. Be ready to settle down with it, a healthy, hopeful, useful citizen.

It's Not a Theory.

Do not allow yourself to go to pieces with old conditions.

If you want to know some very interesting things which are being done for humanity get some leaflets and pamphlets describing the Single Tax propaganda.

There is something in the movement and the work being done for the whole world of thinking people.

The soul of Henry George is marching on, after his body is mouldering in the grave.

It will convince you that Single Tax is not a theory, but a great and wonderful Fact—and that in its principles lies the lifting of the race from slavery to independence.

.:. Saving Humanity's "Seed Corn" .:.

By REV. T. B. GREGORY.

THE foundation of the first real reform school, at Mettray, France, seventy-four years ago, marks the beginning of one of the most vitally important institutions that are at work among us at this time for the uplift of the race.

The honor of starting this most effective propaganda for the salvation of the young, who may well be called the "seed-corn" of humanity, belongs to M. de Metz, at one time a great lawyer in Paris.

Dangers to Youth.

In the Gay City Metz witnessed the temptations and dangers to which young boys and girls were exposed; he saw them falling by multitudes into the way of evil; and, what was more to the point, he observed that even the worst of the delinquents never quite succeeded in totally demoralizing themselves, and that most of them were redeemable if approached in the right spirit and assisted by the proper environment.

Set Himself the Task.

With this conviction deep set in his mind the ex-councillor set himself to the task of putting his faith to the test of actual experiment. Putting his hands into his own pockets, and into the pockets of as many of his friends as would allow it, he soon had a considerable amount of cash, and upon ground given by the Vicomte de Courcelles the Reform School was built and put into operation.

The results more than justified the good man's dream; and when, some years later, M. de Metz lay upon his deathbed, he was comforted with the happy consciousness that he had wrought nobly and permanently for the Humanity he loved so well.

The Mettray School set the world a-thinking, and it was not long before other countries were establishing similar institutions. Great Britain, Germany, Austria, Italy, the United States fell into line, and the idea of saving the boys and girls from becoming hardened criminals became almost a passion.

To-day—less than a century after the foundation of the school at Mettray—the institutions for the moral uplift of juvenile delinquents are to be numbered by the thousands. They have ramified not only throughout Christendom, but are to be found in the so-called "Pagan" lands of the earth, where Christianity, as an organization, is but little known.

Wherever humanity is found there in the midst of it is the spirit of the Paris lawyer—which is, of course, but a reflection of the spirit of the Great Brother of us all—working to save the youth of the race, to redeem fallen boys and girls from the grip of the destroyer and to restore them to the ways of decency and peace.

If all the youth who have been reached and lifted up to a sense of self-respect and happiness by these reform schools could be got together what a procession they would make!

Needs No Monument.

The temptation is strong to ask the question: Has M. de Metz a monument? But how foolish, after all, the question would be. He needs no monument. This same mighty army of redeemed youth is his monument and he requires no other.

"I Wonder How Much for a Hat?"

By George Keller

"$2,500 per annum for clothes is sufficient."—NEWS ITEM.

TWENTY-FIVE HUNDRED a year for clothes!
Gee, Bill, just think of that—
Twenty-five hundred for nothing but clothes!
I wonder how much for a hat?

Why, Daddy works like a slave,
An' he can't get no such clothes, he can't.
An' those 'at he does get are all worn out,
An' come as a gift from my aunt.

Twenty-five hundred! Whew, what a pile!
An' figurin' on ten bones a suit—
Why, two hundred and fifty new suits each year—
Gosh, that gink must be a beaut'!

Dad brings in six hundred a year,
An' on that we live an' pay rent.
Why can't my daddy have plenty of dough?
Ain't he as good as that gent?

Twenty-five hundred a year for clothes!
Gee, Bill, just think of that!
Twenty-five hundred for nothing but clothes!
I wonder how much for a hat?
