GAILOR URGES CHURCH NOT TO CHANGE NAME

Is Not Propitious for Change

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) SEWANEE, Tenn., May 9 .- At the second session of the diocesan conventen of the Episcopal church, reports of committees and two matters of interest to the church at large came up. One of these was the statement from the pulpit by Bishop Gailer in his annual address to the convention that he had changed his views regarding the to be held this year. His reasons he gave as follows: First, that while he was not opposed to the change of names and while he agreed that the church had every right to both | the name Protestant and Catholic, he would vote against the change to be because he did not think it advisable or expedient to change at the present time. Second, that he did not think that the church was prepared for the change in more ways than one, and third, that he is afraid that it would create factions and divisions in the church itself should the name be changed at this

DAILY CAMPAIGN STORY $1,000 In Gold Is What This Young Man Wants.

"I am going to leave 746 prizes for the other contestants but I want that thousand dollars in gold," said a young man in Campaign headquarters yesterday. "I have set my heart on being a firstclass electrical engineer some day, as I believe that is the line for a young man, who wants to be somebody in his line to get into. I look forward to a great future for men in that business who will go into it with what your Campaign Editor calls the "right spirit" and that little 4-1-4 pounds of gold that you are offering as first prize will come in mighty handy to help me carry out my plans.

I have been following all the campaign stories closely and will certainly exercise all my rights to extra answers this time. I did not do it last year and lost out entirely, but this year I will get your Answer Book and am studying out the pictures very closely and hope to carry off the first prize. I find the plan suggested in one of the stories, of setting the hard ones to one side and going after them a second or third time, if necessary, to be a good one. I don't consider the pictures so very hard either, only, of course, most of them call for a good many answers to be sure you have the right title among them. But your rule allowing ten answers to each picture helps out wonderfully and I can see no good reason why I cannot be in the winning. I will certainly submit the full result of my skill and not about one-fifth of it, as I did last year, by eliminating so many of my possible answers. . I was afraid of that tie for a prize, but no fear of a tie for me this year and will submit all likely answers to each picture up to the limit al-

"Your Answer Book will be ready May 15th? All right, you can count on me getting one sure. The first thirty-five pictures free with the Answer Book? But I will have them, as I get The Journal every day, Yes, I can give that thirty-five to a friend who is not taking The Journal. I had not thought of that. Thank you for the suggestion as I know a young man who is as bright as a new dollar and will appreciate

WORK STOPPED ON NEW PEACHTREE BUILDING

Mrs. Mary W. Potts and the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company were enjoined from doing further construction work on the concrete building at the corner of Linden and Peachtree streets, Thursday, when the Mackle-Crawford Construction company filed a petition against them, claiming that $4,483 is due the company under its contract.

The Mackie-Crawford company claim they did certain work for which the above amount is due at the instruction of A. N. Canton, the supervising architect, and Mrs. Potts, agent. The petitioners further set forth that if work is continued on the building it will conceal what they have done and for which $4,483 remainder has been refusd pay-

After closing their contract, the petition declares that it was not long before Mrs. Potts had transferred the property on which the building is being erected to the Penn Mutual Life Insurance company, to secure a lean of $100,000.

Jacobs' Pharmacy

Evolution of the Retail Druggist

IN ATLANTA, in 1884, a man faced one of the strongest wars of incredulity and antagonism that ever opposed commercial progress.

When Dr. Joseph Jacobs established a cut-rate drug store in Atlanta, immediately the war cry sounded from competitive retailers, jobbers and manufacturers. The opposition formed combinations to crush Jacobs' Pharmacy. Whence this suicidal price notion? Profits were large for the retail drug business, but the volume was small. The charge was made that no honest drug store could cut prices. The public was skeptical, as at that time they had confidence in the men leading the fight against cut prices. Why, for many, many years all druggists had charged the same full prices, yet none made any business progress. And for this reason the idea of reduced profits seemed to them to mean business suicide.

But 29 years have elapsed. We are proud of our own growth; but we are more gratified that through our persistent effort and aggressive innovations, one after another, the retail drug business of today is on an equal footing with any other commercial enterprise, the druggist is recognized as a progressive business man, and Atlanta enjoys not only Jacobs' Pharmacy but many excellent drug stores which rank with the best of any city.

There is not a finer stock of medicinal and toilet goods in America than at Jacobs' Pharmacy. And as established in 1884, reasonable prices prevail.

Our Chemists ranks among the most expert, and our Laboratory is one of the best equipped in America; it manufactures nearly 300 toilet and medicinal preparations. We offer patrons the benefit of our experience as manufacturers, as well as a stock of toilet goods unsurpassed, anywhere.

S. S. Makes Your Blood Corpuscies Unite for Mutual Protection.

Half the people you meet complain of weary muscles, stagnant brain, jangled nerves, and a wonderful desire to lay down and just quit. Most of these people have been using nervines that spasmodically flare up the nerves only to die down again, as die they must. Avoid nerve stimulants. Bear in mind that this worn out feeling is due to poor blood, to bacteria in the water you drink; to the multiplying of destructive germs in the blood faster than they can be overcome by the white corpuscles; and to what is known as auto-toxemia, that condition where the venous or impure blood accumulates faster than it can be replaced by the red arterial blood. The medicinal value of the components of S. S. S. is relatively just as vital and essential to well-balanced health as those of the grains, meats, fats and sugars of our food.

HERE IS TESTIMONY OF WITNESSES GIVEN AT THE FINAL SESSION OF CORONER'S JURY IN PHAGAN CASE

Full Story of Hearing Thursday Afternoon When Frank, Newt Lee, Detectives Black and Scott and Several Character Witnesses Were Placed on the Stand

The verdict of the coroner's jury that Mary Phagan came to her death by strangulation and its recommendation that both Mr. Frank and Lee be held for investigation by the grand jury was rendered at 6:30 o'clock Thursday afternoon and marked the conclusion of one of the most remarkable inquests ever held in this state.

Deputy Plennie Minor carried the news of the coroner's jury verdict to Mr. Frank and to the negro. Mr. Frank was in the hallway of the Tower, reading an afternoon paper, when the deputy approached him and told him that the jury had ordered him and the negro held for an investigation by the grand jury.

'Well, it's no more than I expected at this time," Mr. Frank told the deputy. Beyond this he made no comment, Newt Lee, says Mr. Minor, was visibly affected. He seemed very much depressed and hung his head in a dejected manner.

The jury was empanneled by Coroner Paul Donehood on Monday, April 28, and has held four long and tedious sessions for the taking of testimony in addition to meeting to inspect the body and the scene of the crime. Twice the body of Mary Phagan was exhumed at the order of the coroner, in order that physicians might search more thoroughly for clues

The reports of the physicians, who made these examinations, have never been made public, even the evidence of the county physician, Dr. J. W. Hurt, having been given the jury behind closed doors. It is said that even to the jury the physician did not go thoroughly into his investigation. The verdict of the jury was rendered after only twenty minutes of deliberation.

Superintendent Frank and the negro, Lee, were both searchingly examined for the second time by the coroner at Thursday afternoon's session inquest, but neither added materially to former statements. Lee was principally qustioned about the interview, which Mr. Frank had with him in a cell at police headquarters.

EVIDENCE ALL CIRCUMSTANTIAL.

Harry Scott, the Pinkerton operative on the case, gave interesting testimony of his position in the probe of Mary Phagan's death. Mr. Scott refused to commit himself, when asked if he had definite information as to who killed Mary Phagan. "I am working on a chain of circumstances-that is all," ne said.

City Detective John Black in answering the same question said that he had no "positive" information as to the murderer. A number of character witnesses were introduced towards the close of the inquest Civil Service, Real and Sham.

During the latter days of the Taft administration, thousands of fourth-class postmasters, Republican appointees, were placed in the civil service. This action was based upon the avowed purpose of taking these offices out of politics, but its real effect was to keep them in politics and to assure their occupants an unlimited tenure without regard to their

Postmaster General Burleson intends to require such postmasters to stand an examination along with candidates for prospective appointments. If they measure up to the tests of the service, then they be worthy of then position; if not, the public interests demand that they be supplanted by others who are competent.

In explaining this policy, the Postmaster General pertinently declares that "the mere placing of a great horde of persons in the classified service is not in informity with the spirit of the civil service, since there were no tests to determine the merits of the applicants." The new order retains all fourth-class postmasterships in the classified service, but it provides for competitive examinations so that the effi clency of applicants may be tested.

Such a plan is in keeping with the inner purpose as well as the letter of the civil service. The order issued during the Taft administration was, on the contrary, purely political and covered approximately in nety-five cent of the positions under federal patronage. The fact that a candidate for a fourth-lass postmastership is a Democrat is not alone sufficient to justify his appointment; nor is the fact that a Republican chances to hold such a office sufficient with in itself to justify his retention under a make-be lieve civil service order. Efficiency should be the prime test in all instances and no incompetent person should be permitted to hinder and burden the service.

What New York can't understand is why the rest of the country dares to be prosperous.

The small boy doesn't care to put back the hands of time when he is so close to the summer vacation

And a woman would rather have a man stare at her than have him act as if though she wasn't worth staring at.

A Century of Peace.

The approaching centennial of peace between the United States and Great Britain brings cause for equal satisfaction to both branches of the great English-speaking people. The fact that these two nations have passed a hundred years in friendly trade and brotherly intercourse is as memorable as any war that either of them ever waged or won.

It has not been a matter of mere chance that these harmonious delationships have remained so long unbroken. There have been divers issues, some of them very grave and delicate, between our Government and England. There have been disputes over national boundaries, over matters of commerce and industry over Central American policies and time and again there have arisen occasions which n earlier times or between other peoples might have led to open conflict.

But everyone, of these differences has been areerred to arbitration and in each instance the issue has been amicably settled to the satisfaction of both countries. Indeed, the ease and certainty with which England and the United States have adjusted all their mutual difficulties during the past century are luminous proof of the efficacy of arbitration as opposed to war. ALIMA AN TO SURE LIVE IS

It is a remarkable fact that the people of the United States and those of British America take scarcely a thought of the house, between them. Along this vast front, stretching the entire contisept's length, there is unbroken concord; and, as one observer declares, "No fort frowns, no navies confront each other on the Lakes, where an example of disarmament by agreement has long been set for all

This century of Anglo-American peace is one of the cheering and distinctive chapters of all history; it should and doubtiess will be worthily celebrated on both sides of the Atlantic.

Home Rule for Towns and Cities.

The present day tendency to allow towns and cities as large a measure of home rule as is consistent with the interests of the State as a whole is reflected in a bill now before the Florida legislature. The proposed law would permit the people of any municipality to amend their charter or change their system of government by a direct vote at the polls, without first appealing to the State legislature. This plan is, of course, hedged about with due restrictions. No community would be suffered to establish a plan of government that would be in conflict with the rights or the laws of the commonwealth; but where the matters involved are of purely local concern, each town would be allowed to settle its own problems and manage its own affairs.

The common sense and justice of this policy are manifest. In Georgia, as in other States, the Legislature must give a great deal of time each session to the enactment of local bills that are of no interest whatsoever to the State at large. The majority of the members know nothing and care nothing about such matters. They vote perfunctorily, if at all, and in nine cases out of ten accept the judgment of the representatives from the community in question. In these circumstances a great saving of time and energy could be effected by permitting the people of the particular town or city to make such charter changes

Furthermore, it is clear that when a majority of the citizens of any town or city wish to amend their charter is a manner that will not conflict with the State's laws or welfare, they should have the right to do so; they should not be required to go through a labyrinth of legislative red tape in order to make their will effective.

Such a plan was inaugurated a few seasons ago in New Jersey during the administration of Woodrow Wilson and largely at his instance. It has worked to the complete satisfaction of the municipalities and of the Legislature. It will ultimately be adopted in all States, for it is based upon the essentially American principle of local self government; it is based upon popular rights and common sense. Reports are that the Florida bill will pass. It is to be hoped that some such measure will be proposed and enacted by the General Assembly of Georgia.

It's human to attempt shifting the blame on "environment" or "heredity."

Just think of the pensions that will follow the world-wide wars and rumors of war.

Rev. Dr. George Smith.

There has passed in the death of Rev. Dr. George C. Smith, of Macon, a man whose rich and gracious spirit endeared him to three generations. He was a contemporary of statesmen and churchmen whose names have long been historic; he was a fellowworker with the upbuilders of the new South and from his delightful reminiscences the children of today have gathered fresh interest in the life of

Dr. Smith had rare gifts of observation and memory and a keen sense of human interests. His yesterdays never lost their liveliness or color; nor did the fact that he had dwelt in other times and among other people dull for a moment his hearty interest in the present and in the men and the events of his latter years. He was a genealogist, but to him genealogy was a human story, not a dusty record of names and dates. He wrote history as he would have written romance. He ministered to men, not as a theologian, but as a friend and brother.

Until the past few years Dr. Smith was a frequent contributor to The Journal, in which many of his engaging articles have appeared. His death is mourned by all who knew him personally; and by a still wider circle of readers his memory will long

THE INCOME TAX

II. THE PROPOSED LAW. BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The proposed income tax law as drawn mainly by Representative Cornell Hull, of Tennessee, and adopted by the ways and means committee as a part of the Underwood tariff bill, largely follows the English ideas of income taxation, although there are some features of the English law, such as the differentiation between earned and unearned incomes, that are omitted from the Underwood measure. The bill takes cognizance of the recent supreme court decision exempting from the corporation tax corporations which simply hold leases on property they have rented to other people or corporations. It also prevents corporations from counting as an operating expense the taxes they will have to pay on bonds which contain clauses exempting the holders of the bonds from taxes. These two items are important, more especially the latter, because if such a provision were not made Mr. Carnegie's bonds would escape taxation and thousands of other conpon clippers would be in the same boat. The supreme court decision that a railroad company merely owning a railroad property which it leases to others is not doing a cororate business has deprived the treasury of nearly $1,000,000 of corporate tax a year. Still another far-reaching provision in the bill provides that corporations holding stock in other corporations shall pay tax upon the dividends from those stocks in spite of the fact that the income of the corporation paying the dividend already has been taxed. This is intended to place a burden of double taxation upon big holding companies

The bill makes numerous changes from the income tax law of 1894. Under that law, for instance, personal property inherited was rated as income; but under the proposed law only the income from such property is taxed. Likewise profits upon real estate transactions are reckoned as they are, and not arbitrarily. If a man bought a farm ten years ago for $10,000 and sells it for $20,000, in fixing his profit the average of the ten years will be taken and his income tax upon the transaction will be reckoned upon $1,000...

The law exempts $4,000 from taxation in every inof his income that is in excess of the $4,000 exemption. This applies to everybouy except the foreigner who lives abroad and enjoys an income from American property; he must pay the tax upon every cent of his income. The committee calls the tax of 1 per cent the normal rate, and this applies to all incomes above $4,000. Upon all incomes exceeding $20,000 and not exceeding $50,000 it provides an "additional tax" of 1 per cent for that part of the income exceeding $20,-000; between $50,000 and $100,000 the "additional tax" becomes 2 per cent, and for all income in excess of $100,000 the "additional tax" is 3 per cent.

The definition of income is so comprehensive that one can scarcely imagine anything escaping under it. In computing net incomes deductions from gross income is made to include the necessary expenses of a business, but not personal, living or family expenses. Deduction for payable interest in allowed, as are deductions for taxes other than the national income taxes, for losses in the conduct of business, for depreciation, and for worthless debts.

President Wilson will get his salary exempted because the constitution forbids increasing or diminishing a president's salary during his term of office. The same is true of the existing judges of the United States courts and for the same reason, but other government officials are not exempted, altough the officihls and employes of state and local governments are exempt. In drafting the bill the principle of holding immune from taxation the instrumentacities of the state and local governments was recognized, including both officials and securities. . . .

The law connet be dodged by the head of the family giving portion of his income to his wife and each of his minor children, for it expressly provides that the income of husband, wife and minor children, living together, shall be reckoned as one income. A wife permanently living apart from her husband is entitled to a separate income.

of the bill becomes a law as drafted, the people subject to it will have to pay a tax upon their incomes for the calendar year of 1913. The question has been raised whether or not a tax that would be imposed upon income received prior to the enactment of the law might no be held unconstitutional as being retroactive, but the ways and means committee

Only those persons who enjoy a net income of $3,500 are required to make a return of their incomes to the collectors of the internal revenue. Those who are required to make these returns must give their gross incomes, their deductions and their net incomes, making itemized statements of each. Double taxation is avoided by a provision that dividends received from corporations and other artificial persons which have paid an income tax upon their net earnings are not to be included in returns of net incomes. It is provided further, however, that where a persons enjoys an income of less than $4,000, and part of it is made up of income from dividends or other profits subject to taxation at the source, he cannot claim exemption for this latter part of his income unless he shall, not less than thirty days before the return of his income is due, file with the person who would otherwise be required to withhold and pay the tax for him, an affidavit claiming the benefit of such exemption.

The bill provides that returns shall be made under oath or affirmation by the first of March, that assessments must be made and the taxpayers notified by the first of June of the amount of their assessments, and that collections shall be made beore the first of July. A penalty of 5 per cent and interest at 1 per cent a month is added for taxes not paid within ten days of the tax collector's demand therefor.

RULES FOR THE DINER OUT.

In these dark days when to live's so expensive, One is delighted to be asked to dine. A pachelor chap, with acquaintance extensive, Can save half his keep-to say nothing of wine.

Of course, he must pay, with his humor and japery, He is invited because he's a wag. He-also, of course-mustn't injure 'he napery, Pocket the silver, or gather a jag.

Taking a few cigars home is permissible; If the host's negligent, you may insist, Kiss all the children-they're nearly all kissable, But don't kiss the butler-he's sure to resist!

Do not agree with your hostess too speedily. Let her convince you-acknowledge it then; Nor should you keep your eye on the food greeday-If you behave they'll invite you again!

Worst of the thing is when there's other company;

For future favors then you must compete,

And if you're dull, and the other guests hump any, You may lose out on a good place to eat! Yet, on the whole, dining out is delightful:

You meet other people and husband your pelf And in time you are married-and then, as is rightful, You play the host to the bachelors yourself:

The real hell of men and women is dullness, dryness, humdrum.

The old painters put a line of light about the heads of saints. It was called a halo. It meant there was something in the nature of these superior souls that Moses' face shone when he came down from Sinai; Jesus' whole form shone on the Mount of Transfiguration, and there is a legend of an Irish saint who when praying in his lonely hut filled it so with light that luminous rays were seen issuing from the cracks of the wall. Buddhist lore is full of shining ones.

All this is an expression of the deep conviction of the race that the highest state of man is when he

For this cause also anything that takes one "out of himself" has always been regarded by primitive peoples as something supernatural. This is why the Greks worshiped Bacchus and imagined the toxic effect of wine to be divine. And to this day men go to the bottle to get that semblance of uplift, to produce that illumination of the senses. A slang phrase suggests the truth of the matter, when it is said of a drunken man that he is "all lit up."

So the savage tribes everywhere have looked on insane persons as God's own, as sacred.

There is a great truth behind all these gropings. It is that the spirit of man craves something that will

What we ask of the preacher and prophet is not instruction; we know a deal now more than we can practice; but to make our souls "burn within us by the What we ask of the novelist is not a clever plot nor perfect literature, but the torch, the electric shock. The soul that glows does not live; it vegetates, as a cabbage. It is an apple with no flavor, a dinner of chemical compounds without savor, a drab rose, an odorless lily, bread without butter, potatoes without salt, an unlit candle.

There has been much said of Love, but the real reason why we make so much of it is that it makes life shine. It puts a halo on a common face, it makes drudgery divine, it touches poverty with a fairy wand and makes it alive and rich.

In a word, love has that thing for which all human creation is hungry and thirsty-glory.

If I were 1 g od fairy I should ask no greater gift than to have some flower juice; as Puck had, to squeeze on mortal eyes, so that the common things on earth would gleam like things of heaven.

Captain Barnacle's Travelogues

BY JOHN H WISHAR

"There was only once that I came near settling on shore, and on that occasion I got trimmed by a land shark, although I made a small fortune out of it before I got through," said Captain Barnacle, as he thoughtfully watched a real estate agent embarking on the liner ready to sail for foreign ports. "This happened after I came home in the bark Sarah Reynolds and had something like $11,000 to my credit. I thought then that I'd like to buy a ranch and settle ashore. So I got in touch with one of those real estate men and he showed me pictures of a beautiful valley just off the ocean that would be ideal for farm-

"Well, without seeing it I gave him $6,000 for the place, and got the deed. Then I went out. Do you know what I found? Why, that pirate had sold me a salt water lake! Yes, it was filled by the tide twice a day. But I'm not the kind to cry over spilt milk. What I wanted was my money's worth out of that place, and then I decided I'd go back to sea and stay there. But how to get it was the problem. Finally I decided I'd start a salmon hatchery.

"You know salmon eggs come in rolls, about ten thousand or so in a batch. Well, I got about a million of these eggs and planted them in the lake, and then I dammed up the entrance. After that I started to build a small cannery with what money I had left. It took all winter to build the cannery, but by spring it was completed, and the lake was alive with salmon. They were the big steel-head variety, the finest kind, and I calculated that I would make a fortune.

"But what does this land shark do but file a suit against me for the fish? He claimed that he had sold me the land and neither the water on it nor the fish in the water and he not only asked for the fish, but he sued me for damages for taking his property. Well, sir, those fish by that time had kind of got to know me, so I goes out and buys a small sloop. Then I knocks away the dam and sailed out throwing halibut eggs, which those salmon like; after me. They all trailed along after my sloop in a line about a mile long. I sailed up the coast to the Westminster canneries and then I made a dicker, offering the entire school of fish, delivered intact, for $18,000, which the canneries paid, as there was enough salmon there to supply them for an entire season.

"I got my money, but I had to skip out to the Orient, as that real estate buccaneer got out a warrant for my arrest charging me with grand larceny for stealing his property. That was the last time I ever attempted to do any business ashore. In future I'll stickto the sea."

Saving and Investing

Dull, Gold Figures.

BY JOHN M. OSKISON

In Philadelphia certain men connected with the exploitation of a company which promised to make its stockholders rich by its operations in Mexico are on thial for conspiracy to defraud investors. The other day a certified public accountant was put on the stand to testify as to the income and expenditures of the company from the time of its formation on October 4, 1904, to January 1, 1912, when it was put out of business by the authorities. By comparison with the tinted promises made Corn, May 56%c; July 55%c; September 55%c. when the company was selling its stock Oats, May 35c; July 34%c; September 34%c. to the suckers, the accountant's figures were funereal.

This cold, accurate man testified that the company's recepits in that period, according to its books, were $5,610,231. Of this sum $5,451,347 was received from the sale of stock. The rest was made up of a loan from two of the promoters amounting to Receipts, 611,000, against 463,000 last year. $129,934, and profits from the sale of certain products of the Mexican plantation amounting to $26,500.

In that same period, the accountant found, dividends amounting to $1,483. 098 were paid to stockholders. Repeatedly in its literature the company said that its dividends, which averaged 8 per cent over most of the period under investigation, were being paid from profits-out of which, of course, dividends can only legitimately come. As a matter of record not one dollar in fifty of those paid in dividends could have come out of profits. This accountant found that two of the promoters received, for the develop-

NE day, when Mr. Jones returned with what his weekly toil had earned, he found his little wife in tears and mood not suited to her years. It seemed the cook had bade "adieu," likewise the washerwoman, too.

Gold Dust as Strike Breaker

At first within the House of Jones there followed sad despondent moans. No hopeful word could reconcile, no honied kiss inspire a smile. "I never knew before" said she, "how horrid household cares could be."

"Upon my word I'm up at six and working still as midnight ticks. I scrub and run and wash and shine to keep the little things in line. and yet around me here and there I see undone another share. I

Weight, Grade and Price in Plain Figures

Contented possession is brought about only when one knows the value of their purchase.

Positive faith in one's dealer, together, with the fact that each diamond is marked in plain figures, both as to quality and price, is the only absolute assurance.

We mark our Diamonds that way and to successfully compete and never waver from the original price it is apparent that our prices, quality for quality, must be as low as those to be found anywhere.

We buy our diamonds under very favorable auspices. Under these circumstances it is possible for us to cut out many of the smaller expenses, thereby reducing the cost to a minimum. So confident are we that like quality cannot be sold for less, we are glad to have our customers compare for themselves-we are willing to risk their opinion. If it is not possible for you to visit our establishment, furnish us with references and let us send you a selection pack-

THEM DODGERS. Shades of Keeler and Kelley and Sheckard, Jennings, Kennedy, Dahlen and Jones-Not to drag up an ancient record, Not to rattle long vanished bones-Shades of Casey and Dunn and Farrell, Looming up with the rap again-Hail to the clink in the Ebbetts' barrel-Brooklyn's back on the map again.

Shades of Anderson and McGuire. Daly, Hughes and the old time bunch-Ghosts have risen in balldom's Tyre. Here comes Nineveh with the bunch: Who was it spoke of the Phoenix ashes-Rising up in the gap again? Here they come with the hits and smashes-Brooklyn's back on the map again.

Chant ye Bugs to the Cubs and Giants. Slip the Phillies a ringing cheer; Howl your praise of the Pirates' science-On with the Mackian chanticleer, Then, torn loose from her ancient thraldom, Here, where the ghost flags flap again, One mad roar to the gods of balldom-BROOKLYN'S BACK ON THE MAP AGAIN.

Not since the days when Kennedy, Kitson, McGinnity and Hughes, backed up by Farrell and McGuire, pitched Brooklyn into a pennant has the Dodgers ensemble assumed such proportions.

On that 1900 club-Brooklyn's last flag winner-Jennings worked at first; Daly and Demontreville at second; Dahlen at short and Lave Cross at third. In the outfield Sheckard, Kelley, Keeler and Fielder Jones-punk outfield, yes?-complted the machine.

That was Brooklyn's last stab and many barren years have intervented since. But for the first time in a long stretch the renowned, redoubtedable and re-incarnated C. Hurrah Ebbets has at last started back in the direction of his own.

Not that Brooklyn is claiming any pennant. But the old town across the Bridge is at least back in the frolic again with the best ball club she has shown in a decade. No one is picking Brooklyn as a epot upon which to light and if Colonel Dahlen can only keep his material keyed to the proper notch the once lowly Dodgers will up there with the select set all the year.

He has the people now to make a fight of it. He has the pitching and the speed-a good infield and one of the best outfields in the game. If he can only induce his people to forget the habit of several seasons ast and kep moving he should finish in the first di-

No, we haven't forgotten that this is only May. The Dodgers lock like a regular ball club and the stuff is there to battle along with the winning field all the way provided the psychological upset doesn't arrive and disperse the talent

Stovall's case is one of which the ball Players' Union can have no hand. A manager guilty of his erformance is entitled the roughest penal the league president can bestow.

The last time Chance was in Detroit he was at the head of the 1908 Cubs. O tempora. O Mortuis "them was the good old days."

They say Joe Lake is a better golfer than Bender. Maybe. But any time they meet we'll take the Chief at a ball a hole, letting the chip shots fall where they may.

Not to forget that the Cardinals, picked to finish between seventh and eighth place, are another set of delegates who refuse to yield to the pre-season dope. Hasn't Mr. Huggins any respect for the expert opinions of March and early April?

Will some one lease answr this: When a ball layer refuses to accept offered terms he isn't allowed to play with his club unsigned by the rules of the league. Then what right has a league or a commission to fine him 50 cents for not reporting? On second thought we won't wait for the answer. There's only one reply-no right except the right of thirst which clamors to be quenched. There could be no greater joke upon justice, and the same is one of many other things which will soon get the magnates or the commission in a good bit worse than the ball players can ever with those wh; pay the tax

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

The History of Two Farms==One a Live Stock, and the Other a Cotton Farm

ECENTLY it has been my pleasure to visit two farms that were purchased about thirteen years ago by two different men, both costing practically the same amount of money and both of them being practically the same class of land at the time of purchase. A close observation of these two farms has thoroughly convinced me and will convince any one who can see these object lessons what will bring forth at the end of thirteen years to any man who will stick to either of the two objects that these men had in view.

For instance, one of the farms was started out as a cotton farm and it has been planted practically continually in cotton more or less for the past thirteen years. You, of course, can imagine what condition the land on this place is in today. It is now renting for $500 per year, including two mules, all of the farm implements, etc. There are four head of stock on this place. No corn and no ruffage and all of the feed and surplus for the operations and tenants being bought from merchants, and a great supply of fertilizer being bought this year and having been bought every year. Some seventy-five acres was in pasture and scarcely enough grass in the pasture to supply ten head of yearlings, they being in very poor condition. Naturally the poor animals that were preparing and planting the crop, having to be fed on bought feed, were not given a sufficient quantity; therefore, did not have the strength to do deep plowing and heavy work in preparing the land as it should be. They were being fed on what is called J. D. feed, which is composed of 60 per cent ground alfalfa, 20 per cent ground corn, 10 per cent oats, 5 per cent molasses and 5 per cent cotton seed meal, at a cost of $32 per ton.

About five acres of this land, the poorest land on the place, was planted in oats. It will scarcely produce the seed that were used in planting. Ten to fifteen acres of the next poorest land was planted in corn, and under the most favorable conditions it can not produce more than twenty-five bushels per acre with the best of fertilizer. The best of the place, about sixty acres, was being prepared and planted in cotton, and had been in cotton year after year continuously for many years, the land showing the want of vegetable matter and humus sufficient to make much more than one-third of a bale of cotton on one acre, at the best. One who has had any experience in farming can figure for themselves what can be expected at the end of the year under the most favorable circumstances and readily see what will be left for the four negroes who are making the crop and the land owner who is to share his part of the income.

The other farm, while located even a greater distance from market, and nearly three times as far from the city of Atlanta, was practically the same class of land, possibly not quite so good. I found on this place a large three-story barn, two large silos, one of them yet pretty well filled with enslage. There were eight to ten horses and mules on this place, every one fat and slick and competent to do a hard day's work; two magnificent colts, one of them ready for work, three years old and weighing between 1,100 and 1,200 pounds. I had an occasion to look in the troughs the next morning after the animals were out of the stables and in nearly every trough there was some corn left, also more or less ailfalfa hay that was

It was also my pleasure to see fifty-two head of milch cows fed in this barn, night and morning, and not more than $2 worth of cotton seed meal was used for the two feeds mixed with a bountiful supply of ensilage and alfalfa hay, which had been raised on the farm. From these fifty-two cows about 160 gallons of milk was carried from the barn to the dairy during the night and morning. This milk was converted into cream mostly and some fifty-odd dollars' worth of cream shipped to Atlanta on the early morning train. Every one of these fifty-two cows was raised on this place, with food that was raised on the place except the cotton seed meal. About thirty splendid yearling heifers that will be fresh this fall were in one large pasture, and about the same number of last fall heifer calves were in a nearby lot, being fed on the skim milk produced from the cream from the cows. Not one of these calves but what was in firstclass condition for strictly firstclass yeal and most of them as large as many eight to twelve-months-old calves that are ordinarily seen on the average farm. Near the barn could be seen thirty-two acres of alfalfa as fine as can he found anywhere in the United States, one field having just been cut the day before. In addition to this many acres of oats and wheat, showing the effects of cow manure, a large number of acres of corn having already been planted and many other acres being prepared for ensilage corn, which

Everything looked prosperous and flourishing around this farm. Eight men were employed, besides the owner of the place, who was "boss," and shows he knows his business. He is a city-raised man, but had gone to the country for his health. Today this farm ith its contents and the gradual accumulation during the thirteen years would easily sell for $50,000, and the man who bought it would certainly have a bargain, as I am confident the net income per year off of this place is not less than $8,000 to $10,000.

These two object lessons are ones that it is a pity but that many people could see, and they show conclusively what will come to a man, even in a small way, who will start out on his farm with a purpose of raising his own food supplies and live stock for his main dependence for cash, and the other man who will depend on cotton to buy his surplus and depned on cotton to bring him in his cash money. This is one of the great drawbacks of our southern states today and the sooner our people can see a difference there will be in years to come the better off will our country be. Hundreds of acres of land are poorer now than they were years ago and the younger generation that are coming up on the farms are leaving home simply because their forefathers have gotten practically all there was in the soil out and have left nothing for the younger generation to start out with. . There are a few, and they are very few, who are changing their methods, but the sooner it is done the better off will our country be. Live stock and food products will redeem the farms of Georgia and make them garden spots, and make wealth and happiness for every farmer who will stick to this. But, the continued cotton farming operations are sure to bring disaster and unhappiness to the people who continue to stlek to them.

Thees are two farms that I only wish thousands of people could have the opportunity of studying and they would be sufficient evidence to make any man on earth change and get on the right road to prosperity.

Yours very truly,

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

Fairburn, Ga. I very carefully cut out your directions for caring for young turkeys, but in some way they have been misplaced. Would you kindly send me these? I have twenty-five young turkeys, the oldest ten days old, and am at a loss to know how to feed, them now. So far have used the boiled custard, then the curd, boiled eggs and meal, also oatmeal, and they have done to perfection. Now I suppose they should have a change of food. Thanking you for the favor, I

MRS. W. T. R. ANSWER.

It would be impossible for me to find these instructions, as I do not keep copies of them.

You have brought your turkeys up night to this stage, and the feed should be changed now to cracked wheat, cracked rice with plenty green food, and they should be allowed to have their liberty, so that they can get bugs and worms. They will almost make a living for themselves now with one good feed per day of either whole or cracked wheat, with a little cracked rice added.

QUESTION.

Thomasville, Ga. I have five White Leghorn pullets and a cockerel, seven Buff Orpington pullets and a cock. They have a scale forming on their legs. I would thank you many times for a remedy for it. I want to put my Leghorns in the county fair this year, and want to have them in good shape. Please give me a very prompt answer.

MRS. A. N.

ANSWER.

A mixture of lard, sulphur and kerosene will correct the trouble referred to if applied about three times. Then take warm water and a nail brush, and the substance can be removed. It will take several weeks to complete this work.
