Dr. Brown was calm, cold and con servative in his delivery. His attitude was dignified and defiant. He remarked, in the course of his reply to Dr. F. C. The applause which greeted every

CAN FRANK INTRODUCE WITNESSES IN DEFENSE?

This Question Is Being Considered by Solicitor-Another Report That Mary Phagan Was Seen Saturday P. M.

The Fulton county grand jury will commence its investigation of the murder of Mary Phagan on Friday, not Thursday morning, according to an announcement from the solicitor general's Unless there is an important development before that time, and none is considerel likely, the names of only two suspects, Leo M. While it has never been the custom of Solicitor Hugh M. Dorsey to allow defendants and witnesses for the defendant before a grand jury hearing, it is said to be probable that an effort will be made to introduce witnesses in behalf of Mr. Frank.

Solicitor Dorsey would not be quoted on the matter, but he is said to be looking up the law on the subject in order that he may be ready to combat any effort of Mr. Frank's counsel or friends to introduce testimony favorable to Only a short time ago members of a grand jury called Dr. W. H. Gillem,

U. S. AWAITS JAPAN'S MOVE ON LAND LAW

Japanese Have America's Answer to Protest and Rejoinder Is Expected

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, May 20 .- With the answer of the United States to its protest in hand, it now devolves upon the Japanese foreign office to take the next step in the negotiations over the California land act.

It is expected that the forthcoming rejoinder to Secretary Bryan will be strongly argumentative and calculated to result in the conduct of the future negotiations on a strictly legal basis. As it is understood that the state department is looing to the Japanese government or some Japanese citizen to test the new law by recourse to the United States court it may be significant of the drawing of another issue that the Japanese are believed to be reluctant to begin such a move-

In his protest of May 9 to the state department, the Japanese ambassador is understood to have made it perfectly clear that Japan, finding it impossible to deal directly with the state of California was relying entirely upon the federal government to insure what he believes to be fair treatment for its subjects.

Probably that contention will be extended to cover the legal test of the California land law, though the ordinary procedure in such cases would be to allow a Japanese subject, threatened with escheatment of his lands, to begin action by application for an

Meanwhile it is expected that several days will elapse before the Japan rejoinder is received, in view of the fact that ten days were taken for the prepaartion and delivery of the American reply to the original protest.

Secretary Bryan late yesterday afternoon handed Ambassador Chinda the reply of the United States government to the Japanese protest against the California alien land legislation. The ambassador immediately cabled it to Tokio. No intimation as to the nature of the reply was given out. Upon learning, through press dispatches, that Governor Johnson had signed the Webb land act, Secretary Bryan telephoned Viscount Chinda and invited him to come to the state department to receive the reply which he had been anxiously awaiting since the presentation of his own note.

When the answer had been delivered the secretary and the ambassador conferred earnestly for an hour regarding the general aspect of the problem. Of course opinions expressed were tentative, as for his part the ambassador felt that he must be guided entirely by the directions of the foreign office at Tokio, and he could only surmise what might be the attitude of the officials at home.

Meanwhile it was understood that both the Japanese protest and the state department's answer would be withheld from publication for the present at least on the ground that it would be injudicious to submit the delicate questions at issue to heated discussion in the newspapers and at possible mass meetings. The negotiations between the two governments are expected to proceed in regular fashion, without further reference to what takes place

Viscount Chinda dispatched the state department's reply to his government, and it is assumed that several days may elapse before the next step is

In view of the understanding between the two governments regarding withholding of the correspondence from publicity none of the officials at the White House, the state department or the Japanese embassy cared to indicate the nature of the Japanese objections or of Secretary Bryan's reply.

CUT ALONG THIS LINE.

One of our lady contestants called at Campaign Headquarters a day or two ago and asked the above question, saying that she had received two letters from a con-cern in Tennesee, offering to sell her solutions to The Journal prize pictures, basing their claim on experience in former contests. As The Journal has not selected all of the prize pictures yet, nor has the order for all of them been given to the artist, you can see that their offer to you is misleading. No one except the three Journal employes charged with the responsible duty of selecting titles in this Campaign knows these times, and each of them knows only the ones that he selects and none of them knows all the titles

No outside party can possibly have any information on titles to base their claim on selling "so-called" correct solutions, as they have no vetter way of selecting titles than any of our contestants have. With the aid of the official catalogue and the good brain God gave you, you are as well equipped to select answers to our prize pictures as any so-called "guessing expert" or "specialist." Use your own brain and exercise your right to extra answers and let the "expert" make a living at some one else's expense and not at your

DR. MONFORT'S SPEECH.

The liveliest feature of the discussion Monday afternoon was the speech of Dr. Monfort in support of his minori ty report, of which he was the only

He emphasized the following points: That the original constitution of the seminary required every director and member of the faculty to tak a vow to maintain the Westminster confession

That the informal statement of faith by the present directors and faculty, as tendered to the assembly's committee, requires an answer from the assembly which answer should be a reaffirmation of strictly orthodox Presbyterian doc-

That the assembly should direct committee to insist upon a definite answer from the directors and faculty whether they believe this doctrine, and to urge the directors to reincorporate in the seminary's constitution the abovementioned original clause.

Finally, that the assembly should to the ministry any candidate who fails SAMUEL RAE WAS GUEST to declare his agreement with all the essential and necessary articles of the Westminster confession.

HE DRAWS THE ISSUE. "The time has come," declared Dr. Monfort in summing up his arguments, "for this assembly ot draw the line. The issue is clearcut and unmistakable. It is an issue between the true faith on the one hand, and on the other hand a Hindu philosophy masquerading in the guise of Christianity.'

After all three reports were submitted. Dr. Monfort speaking last, the asmatter presented by Dr. Francis Brown, president of the seminary.

It was evident that Dr. Brown felt keenly the attack of Dr. Monfort, but he held himself in restraint and spoke with a calm and quiet dignity.

"Union Theological seminary Christian institution founded and now being conducted for training ministers practical purpose. If the statement by

The assembly should be willing to assume. Dr. Brown said, that the directors and faculty of the seminary are men of average intelligence, clear moral purpose and sensitiveness.

The assembly should remember that the seminary is not before it in the role right to be, "although some of the speeches you have heard would indicate that we are," he added.

As to the informal statement of faith by the directors to the committee, Dr Brown said it was intended as a basis on which the directors and teachers of all varying doctrines could agree, and

"We have Baptists, Methodists and men of several other denominations in claim to be distinctively Presbyterian The informal statement was meant to eyangelical and Christian. The directors were not asked for a distinctively Pres byterian deliverance on their theological views, and probably would not have given one if they had been, for the reasons

The Referendum Needed On California's Law.

It was only to be expected that California's governor would sign the anti-alien land bill. Having encouraged this mischievous measure on its passage through the Legislature, it was but natural that he should play his political game to a finish regardless of the nation's interests and the wise counsel of President Wilson. The bill is now a law and will become operative in ninety days. An issue that might have been adjusted quietly and satisfactorily to every one concerned has grown difficult and acute. The task of diplomacy has been entangled whereas, with a little patience and restraint, it might have been simple and easy.

There is one encouraging circumstance, however, and that is the movement now afoot in California to submit this unfortunate law to a referendum. The fact that this proposal comes from those who object to the new measure on the ground that it is not drastic enough to meet their views is incidental. Anything that will afford further time and opportunity for diplomatic negotiations is to be welcomed; and there is reason to believe that many thoughtful Californians object to the law on logical and patriotic grounds and, "if given a chance, will vote it

Certain it is that those who are interested in the success of the Panama exposition and who realize the blighting effect which such a piece of legislation will have on that great enterprise and on their State's future development will oppose it at the polls, if they are enabled to do so. There was a vigorous business protest against the bill when it was in the hands of the Legislature and in the event of a referendum that protest might become effective.

It is difficult for the country at large to understand how any representative number of Californians could consent to a measure that would involve their nation in far-reaching problems and provoke issues much graver than that of the ownership of a little land by a comparative handfull of Japanese. It is due the country and is due California herself that this question be submitted to a referendum vote. If the majority of Californians condemn the law as it now stands, then the atmosphere will be cleared; if they approve it, then we shall at least know the full scope and complexity of the matter to be mhandled.

Some people seem to make a specialty of getting into trouble and backing out.

The Staggering Cost of Poor Roads.

There is but one fact more remarkable than the economy of good roads; and that is the extravagance of bad roads.

For every benefit which a well built and well kept highway affords, one that is inadequate or run-down presents a score of detriments and losses.

If it costs a community a thousand dollars to construct or repair a particular road, it will cost five or ten thousand and leave the needed work undone.

If it be true that a good road enhances land values, stimulates commerce, increases the farmer's profits, builds up the merchant's trade, fosters the interests of the school and broadens the spirit of neighborliness, it is equally true, and perhaps even more so, that a bad road will lower land values, sluggardize commerce, cut down the farmer's profits, discourage the merchant's trade, reduce the attendance of the school and isolate and estrange the families so unfortunate as to live along its borders.

The Louisville Courier-Journal emphasizes this idea by an interview from a Kentuckian who has learned from personal experience the cost of poor roads in an age when traffic is so much heavier and more frequent than ever before. He is quoted as saying:

"Some fifteen years ago my boys and I made and hauled railroad ties nine miles to Beattyville and sold them for 25 cents and made a better profit than could be made on them if hauled four and one-half miles to Heidelberg and sold for 52 cents, the prevailing price in that market today. "Why do I say this? Because I could, fifteen years ago, leave home in the morning with fifteen ties on a wagon and with a two-mule team haul them to Beattyville and dispose of them and return home the same day. Today it would be next to impossible to take half that number with a similar team to Heidelberg and return before nightfall; and, even then, the team would be worn out and the wagon damaged 100 to 1,000 per cent more now than they were on the trip to Beattyville as cited. So, considering the losses sustained because of the dilapidated condition of the roads, as compared with those of the haul of fifteen years ago, the burden of indirect taxation in order to get my stuff to market now is indeed great."

This is but one of a thousand similar experiences which should admonish every State and every county and every citizen of the tremendous and far-reaching expense which they must bear, if they permit bad roads to continue.

The average cost of hauling by wagon in the United States is twenty-five cents per ton per mile. . In France, Germany and England, it is ten cents per ton per mile. The cost of wagon transportation in this country is eight hundred million dollars a year. It is conservatively reckoned that good roads throughout the nation would reduce the cost to four hundred millions. An authority on this subject has said that with the aid of good roads would have put into their pockets and saved the following sums on the three staple crops: on wheat, ten million, two hundred and fifty-six thousand and fifty-eight dollars; on cotton, five million, seventy-six thousand, one hundred and eighty-three dollars; and on corn, twelve million, seven hundred and nine thousand, two hundred and seventy-eight dollars.

Surely, it behooves every interest, whether it be that of agriculture, industry or commerce, whether it be urban or rural to consider the appalling cost and burden which bad roads entail and to join in the campaign to end this needless waste.

The New Division of Markets.

The appointment of Mr. Charles J. Brand as chief of the division of markets in the Department of Agriculture marks the inauguration of an enterprise that means much to the consumers and manufacturers as well as the farmers of the country. It has long been apparent to every student of economic affairs that the present method, or rather lack of method, in marketing crops is impossible for a vast deal of unnecessary waste and loss and that if the producer and the consumer could be brought into more direct correspondence, there would be an appreciable gain in profits for the farmer and an appreciable reduction in the cost of living.

It is the purpose of the newly created division of markets to establish through well considered and practical means this needed intimacy and contact, The farmers will be kept informed concerning the movement and the current prices of products, and the methods by which their crops can be handled most advantageously and at the least expense. Such service will tend to prevent congestion in some quarters and scarcity in others. It will lead to a more equal and economic distribution of food products and will thereby benefit the public as a whole.

Secretary Houston, of the Department of Agriculture, outlined the purpose of the new undertaking in an interesting interview with The Journal's Washington correspondent in which he said, in part

"There has been an insistent and growing demand that the government take steps to help in the establishment of economic systems of distribution and marketing of farm products: Congress at the last regular session, made an appropriation of $50,000 to begin the work. We recognized that the business of farming is an important part of the market business structure of the country. Somewhat better prices for the producer and lower costs or better products for the consumer and manufacturer are the aim of the works. It is a difficult one, but much good is expected. Saving in selling and handling expense and reduction of loss through waste and improper business organization will be important features of the department ac-

It is gratifying to Georgians to know that the fifty thousand-dollar appropriation granted by Congress for this constructive work was secured through the initiative of Senator Hoke Smith. The enterprise thus begun will doubtless be extended and perfected and will yield larger and larger benefits to the public in general and to agricultural interests in particular.

THE INCOME TAX

- XIII .- The Situation in Germany. BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

The income tax laws of the German empire, which are not national but rather state laws, are built up on an entirely different theory of collection than those of England and some other countries. In England the very thought of inquisitorial methods is repugnant, and the government tries to collect the taxes with as little resort to these methods as is possible; therefore, wherever it is possible the tax is collected before the income reaches the taxpayer. In Germany the states fee that they have a right to know the affairs of every subject and consequently make no ef fort to avoid the inquisitoria' process of assessment.

The several German states each has its own laws, but they mainly follow the Prussian law both as to the amount of the tax and as to the method of it:

collection. In each tax district there is an assessment commission made up of a majority elected by the voters of the district and a minority appointed by the government. But this minority includes a chairman, and his duties and powers are such that the elected members are often somewhat more ornamental than powerful in the work of the commission. This body receives the returns from the taxpayers, and has the power to call them or any one else before it to testify as to the income of a taxpayer. It may ask for books and papers, vouchers and other data, and it is empowered to fix its own assessments where it thinks proper. This has resulted in a bureaucracy so powerful that most commentators agree that no other country would tolerate it. But in Germany, where every child is born in a uniform and well disciplined, the people are meek in the presence of officialdom, and tolerate a degree of espionage that would not be borne in England or the United States.

. . . The present Prussian law, together with those of other states which modelled after it, dates from 1891. In that year the entire tax system of Prussia was overhauled, and not only was an income tax law enacted, but a law passed creating a supplementary property tax, which results in income derived from property paying a higher rate than income derived from labor. There was great and widespread objection to some of its features when it came to be administered, and this resulted in a revision in 1906. One of the amendments of this revision provides that co-operative buying and selling associations are to be taxed; they were exempted under the law of 1891. Another amendment provided more minute directions for determining the net, or taxable income, and permits the taxpayer to deduct from his gross income as a part of his reasonable expenses, his other taxes, his contributions to compulsory labor insurance funds, the insurance premiums he pays for his children, and sinking funds for the wiping out of mortgages.

Still another amendment abolished the distinction between fixed and uncertain incomes, and substituted a rule whereby the year just closing is considered the period for determining the amount of income wherever complete records are not kept. Where careful bookkeeping is practiced the average for three years is taken, and the losses of one year may be deducted from the profits of another year.

Under the unamended law a householder's income was calculated as including the earnings of those dependent upon him, but as amended only the earnings of the wife may be included with that of her husband. Under the former practice, where a man had five minor children and they worked for a living, their income had to be reckoned as a part of the father's income; so that they were taxed, whereas, a son who had attained his majority might escape taxation.

The revised law goes still further in its effort to aid families having children and other dependents. It gives an abatement of 50 marks for each such dependent, and the taxpayer is given a still further reduction where there are three children in the family, and this is doubled where there are five children.

This provision with reference to children and dependents was still further liberalized in 1909, so that the abatements grow even more rapidly as the size of the family grows. At this later revision the rates of the income tax were increased for a period of three years, according to the authorities, although there is reason to believe that the increases will be permanent. The increase of the rates for individuals ranged from & to 25 per cent; for limited liability companies from 7 1-2 to 45 per cent, and for stock companies from 10 to 50 per cent.

Under the law of 1891 employers were not required to give a list of their employes and the salaries paid them; the amended law of 1906 requires that these lists shall be furnished. Under the old law when a man failed to give in his returns he lost the right to appeal when the assessors fixed them for him; under the new law he is fined 5 per cent on his tax for such failure. The far-reaching power of the chairmen of the local assessing commissions, by which they could put the taxpayer through a rigid inquisition, was curtailed, although any person having an income of less than 3,000 marks was thenceforth denied the right of appealing from the findings of an assessment commission.

Incomes under 900 marks ($225) are exempt from taxation under the German laws. From that point up the rate of taxation gradually increases from a merely nominal rate until, at the 100,000 mark point the rate becomes normal, which is, except for the threeyear period referred to above, 4 per coet. As the law now stands each taxpayer is required to make a return showing the amount of his income and the items which constitute it. This provision does not affect those who have an income of less than 3,000 marks. For that class of incomes a preliminary valuation is made up, usually presided over by the mayor of the village. This commission looks over the community and if it has reason to think that any one claims immunity from reporting his income when he is not entitled to that immunity, has name is certified to the regular commissions, and his financial status investi-

RED

BY DR. PRANE CRAME. (Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

Through the green earth runs a red stream. It is the blood of men.

When this stream enters upon a wild continent, forests become houses, rivers bear cities, as pearls upon their silver thread, deserts are watered and become fruitful, mountains are tunneled, the earth is corded with wires whereon thoughts run, and all things are mastered by the red line.

Green is a mighty color, the hue of the field and forest; and yellow is imperial, the tint of the sun and of gold; and blue is vast and infinite, the tone of the sea and of the sky above it; but red is lord of them all, for it is the cast of what is mightier than all-life.

ked is the color of Force. Hence, it is the fighting color. It is not without reason that the British soldier wears a red coat and the French soldier red trousers, that the Turk puts on a red fez and the anarchist waves a red flag. Red means life at its fiercest

Red is the sign of authority; it is the color of the cardinal's nat.

It is the signal of individuality and rebellion. For long it was the custom upon the stage to dress every adventuress, every woman of the half world, in clothes of this shade.

Curiously enough, red is also the sign of innocence in mediaeval symbolism. In the paintings in the Boston public library, by Abbey, of scenes in the life of Sir Galahad, the hero is clothed in red. While white expresses the innocence of ignorance, of virgins and celibates, red is the expression of the innocence of the wise and tried, of the warrior for truth, and of all who battle blamelessly in this naughty world.

The Jews were forbidden by the laws of Moses to consume the blood of animals; it was to be poured out upon the ground, as sacred unto the Lord, "for the blood is the life."

So should the great eyes of some mighty spirit look down upon this earth and take cognizance thereof of all its doings and creations, the object that would interest him most would be the red stream of life, coming down the cascades of the centuries, flowing everywhere upon land and sea, and manifesting itself always in power and lordship.

Captain Barnacle's Log. BY JOHN H. WISHAR

"I once carried a sick passenger on board my ship. and as a result I was able to put $6,587 in the bank at the end of the voyage, and all clear profit, too," declared Captain Barnacle, reminiscently. "But this strike of luck was due chiefly to the skill of the ship's doctor. He was a great man.

"This happened when I took command of the fourmasted full rigged ship Glacier, the largest vessel I ever had. carried a load of mining supplies from Liverpool to Cape Town, South Africa, and were to return to New York in ballast. At the last minute before sailing from Cape Town I arranged to take as passenger a man who had been working in the gold mines for ten years, and who was supposed to be dying. He had been ordered to go home, and if possible spend a long time at sea. Of course I got a good sum for passage money.

"This passenger was a nice chap; the only thing about him was his great weight. Although he was a small man, he weighed nearly 200 pounds. I couldn't understand this. I turned him over to the ship's doctor, and then we got under way. After we'd been at sea for a week the doctor came to me. 'Say,' he says, I want to give this patient some chemical baths and I want to use your stateroom.'

"Well! shiver my timbers; but I thought the man mad! 'What's that?' I yelled. But then he explained and I consented. I watched the case with much interest. The doctor gave the patient his chemical bath in a tub rigged in my cabin and the patient felt fine as soon as he came out of it. Then the doctor sent him on deck and came back to where I was guarding the tub.

"He drained off the chemicals, and what do you think we found? Why, gold! Yes, sir, there was a thin layer of the finest kind of gold over the bottom of the tub. Here was a walking gold mine right or board my ship. Then I asked the doctor for an explanation fuller than the one he'd given me. It was

"This passenger had been working in the mines for years. It seems that before he went to South Africa he'd worked for several years in a quicksilver mine in Peru. While in this quicksilver mine his system had become impregnated with the mercury. You know mercury attracts and absorbs gold. When he went to the gold mine his system, filled as it was with mercury, absorbed the minute particles of gold that float about in the crushing plant. He noticed that he was growing heavier, but didn't know the reason. It took my ship's doctor to discover what the real trouble

"Well, every day for two months he got his chemical bath. These chemicals drew the gold out of him, and each tay there was a layer of fine yellow dust in the tub. He got healthier every day until by the time we reached New York he was fully recovered. and we each had a nice little bank account. After that I always carried a doctor with me when I went to sea."

In the June American Magazine James Montgomers Flagg, one of the very best known of American illustrators, contributes a series of drawings expressing the idea "Love Me-Love My Dog." The drawings are supposed to have been made by Charles Dana Gibson Orson Lowell, Harrison Fisher, May Wilson, A. Speaking of the Number of Wash Dresses Young Women Need At This Season

Doubtless much could be said by mothers, and doubtless more will be said as the days grow warmer.

But here is the interesting part—all these much needed wash dresses may be bought tomorrow at very, very great reductions. They go into a sale tomorrow in the Junior Department!

Prices point to worth-while savings, and to the certain fact that tomorrow will be the day to secure all the wash dresses this summer is going to call for. Here is the proof:

$2.25 Junior $1.19 Wash Dresses

In sizes fifteen, seventeen and nineteen years. They are of ginghams, percales, bright, summery patterns and colorings and styles-low neck and short sleeves-trimmed becomingly with braids, bands and pipings of self and contrasting colors. No question about you and daughter liking them! None will be exchanged. None sent C. O. D.

$3.50 Junior $1.95 Wash Dresses

In sizes fifteen, seventeen and nineteen years. Percales and ginghams of fine weave-many of them import ed-and of choicest patterns. And please note how verg carefully these dresses are made. Every stitch, every seam is right. Choose from high neck and long sleevs styles and low neck and short sleeve styles in two-piece and one-piece dresses.

$7.50 Junior Outing $ 2.75 Balkan Blouses

Half price for the smartest little outing coats the season has brought out for the Junior Miss! We call them outing coats but the way the young folks are wearing them with white dresses these cool mornings and evenings would seem to discredit this as their first use.

Red flannel-made with just that fullness through the waist that is most attractive. Sizes fifteen and seventeen years.

With the Help of Mrs. Marvin Now With Us Demonstrating La Vida Corsets

you may do much right now that will tend toward personal comfort this summer.

Warm weather and an ill-fitting corset! Banish the thought, banish the possibility!

Besides it is altogether unnecessary.

We have a new summer weight La Vida-true to the approved fashioned lines-in a model that is right for you and right for the light filmy dresses that it must support and hold in graceful lines. And right now (to the end of this week) Mrs. Marvin, a skilled and experienced corset woman, is here to fit you.

It is a splendid time to attend to summer corsets!

Saving and Investing A "LAND SHARK'S" VICTIM SPEAKS.

BY JOHN M. OSKISON

For years a certain class of real estate specialists has been selling lots on Long Island to investors all over the country. Buyers have been made to believe that they were getting property which, if held for a few years. must inevitably increase greatly in

One of the victims, who lives near enough to the lots he bought to find out the facts, has lately given to the public an account of his operation. His is a common enough experience to be passed on as a warning against taking | 86 | 62 | 4 | .30 the word of the real estate speculator who talks big.

"In 1903," said this man, "I purchased on the easy payment plan four ments of the wonderful future, great improvements, cheap fare to come, opportunities in a town of 6,000 (which, by the way, has not over 4,000 today), and so on. "I was told that a street car line was to be built past my door. With these promises in mind, I agreed to pay $425

for four lots, with interest on the deferred payments at the rate of 6 per cent. To date, I have paid out $700; and now, after holding the lots for ten years, I can't sell them for $200." This victim went on to tell of the sharp practices of the promoters. "When I bought the lots," he said, "there were four maple shade trees, twenty-five feet apart, in front of them. Since then these trees have been removed and have probably been placed in some other development to catch another victim. The streets, which were then plowed up and which were to be improved right away, are pulled up, and lots are hard to locate.

I know from personal observation that this man's story can be duplicated in literally thousands of instances on Long Island. And Long Island is only

Where the Children Come In

There seems to be as much style in children's clothes now as there is in grown-ups. And the children know it, too.

The other day a little girl came home from school and astonished her mother by saying:

"I don't want to wear this dress any more. I want a Russian blouse like all the other girls have."

Now this mother knew that there were such things as "Russian blouse dresses," but that children were wearing them had escaped her notice. Being a wise woman she hastily sought counsel with the advertisements of THE JOURNAL, and there she discovered just what "all the girls were wearing," and where she could buy most advantageously for her little daughter.

Many a mother has found that in order to know what to get for her children she must keep herself imformed of changes of style through reading the advertisements of the stores in THE JOURNAL. They tell her not only what the other children have, but where each article may be bought.

The two are the logical contenders matched with McCarty to determine finally who shall have the crown. Probably by reason of his introduction to the prize ring on the Pacific coast, and also because of achievements in the east, the "Gunner" for the past several days has been the favorite in the betting and fight critics say he will go into the ring tonight with odds on him ruling up to 10 to 7 or better. Willard's big advantage is said to be his weight and size. He will have fifty pounds over the "Gunner."

Season's Best Shown Monday By Two Teams

Paul Musser and Rube Kissin-ger Both Hurled Grand Ball, Not an Eror Made - Two Homers Featured

The Atlanta players backed up Paul Musser in jam up style and coupled with this man's good pitching Atlanta won over Memphis in the first of three game series. The count was a to 2 and it was just about the closes; ball game played on the local lot this

The best bet of the game was Musbit wild but Monday all this was lacking. He walked three batters and hit one but they were far apart and did not amount to any real damage, The Turtles got to him for just five hits and while they threatened to score on several occasions only twice was the runner able to touch the run

The game was filled with many features. There were a couple of home runs, several sensational stops and good twirling by both Rube Kissinger

Of all the good plays of the day it remained for Whitey Alperman to get away with the star performance in the eigth round. Ward hit a hot line drive directly over Whitey and by an almost superhuman effort the Atlanta captain managed to go in the air and spear it with his gloved hand

Catcher Pat Graham was somewhat about during the afternoon. While his throwing to bags in the early part of the game was a bit erratic he winged several runners at opportune moments. He also fielded slow hit balls directly in front of the plate in the best of fashion. And his catch of Abstein's foul in the second innning was nerv mighty useful ball player. In the third he raced over back of his bag and fielded Whitey's hard drive so cleanly that Bailey was forced at second. It looked for a second as ! Whitey had a safety.

Rudy Baerwald continues to be grand ball player. In the fourth he swiped both second and third and the way he fielded was up to his old time

Paul Musser took the entire Mem phis infield by surprise in the third when with a runner on first and one down he placed a neat bunt down the third base line and reached first. It was so unexpected that the ball was not fielded until the hurler had crossed W. L. Pct. | first base.

> out the runner at first. His stop of Ward's hard hit ball in the fourth checked a batting rally and got the runner at the plate.

Rube Kissinger certainly pitched masterly game. He fanned five, walked Baxley Takes Two From Jesup Team.

BAXLEY, Ga., May 20.-Baxley defeated Jesup in two games of ball here Tuesday and Wednesday of last week. The first game resulted in a victory for Baxley in a score of 10 to 4; and the game of Wednesday also resulted in another victory for Baxley. the score being 9 to 4. The only features of the games were the heavy hitting of the entire Baxley team, Dickinson and Tuten leading with the stick, both getting long drives in each game for two and three bases. The Baxley aggregation is going strong at this time, having lost only one series thus far, and that to Eastman, but they expect to meet Eastman the latter part of this month on the home grounds, where they seldom meet deefat. MY TEAM AND I. ' (As Stevenson Led By Stallings.)

O it's I that am the leader of a tidy little team, Of a team that keeps 'em guessing more and more; And my men they keep a winning all around and all about; And when they're a little older, they will find the secret out Now to boost my team above the higher four

For I mean to grow as mighty as McGraw and McAleer;

All the big guys I intend to eat alive; And with luck beside to help us, its a rising we shall go, It's a-rising in the standing, here the pennant breezes blow, While the fans fill stands as honey bees the hive.

O, it's sure you'll see us rising o'er the Giants, Dahls and Cubs; And we'll have the Phillies shedding briny tears,

For astride the first division I will land my foretime dubs, And we'll make the well known N. L. flag again the famous Hub's-As it was in '12, remembered yesteryears. Nelrose Highlands, Mass. -L. H. A.

There is still no purple fire burnt around Stallings' return to the Main Caravanserie, but after all, what one manager of the 16 would you say had done the most effective work with least to work with up to date?

JOHNSON'S SALARY. When Walter Johnson stalks into Griff's office next winter to discuss 1914 wages he will have quite a little argument for his side of the case in the way of deadly parallel-The deadly parallel being a series of Washington box scores upon the days he worked and the days he didn't.

THE SCATTERED LEGION. The Lost Tribe of Israel, wherever it may be, has little or nothing upon the Cub machine of the good old days of 1907 and 1908. Within the space of two weeks we saw this strange procession pass-first, Frank L. Chance, leading the New York Yankees; then Joe Tinker, Miner Brown and Johnny Kling in the scarlet service of Cincinnati-then Evers and Schulte and Reulbach and one or two more with the Cubs; then came Pittsburg and in the Pirate roundup stood Artie Hofman; the Pirates passed and the St. Louis Cardinals registered in town with the monicker James T. Sheckard engraven. Chance-Tinker-Kling-Brown-Sheckard-scattered among four ball clubs in different leagues-and three years ago they were upon the old machine making its last stand for a world's championship. We say making its "last stand" for the reason that there will never be another "old machine" of the Cub type. There may be a greater onebut never one more picturesque-with a greater or a more varied tinting

POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

Some Breeders Who Have Made Poultry Raising Profitable

GREAT many people have an idea that the keeping of poultry is not profitable, and many people who undertake it make a failure the same as they would in many other lines. There is one thing about poultry different from most any other line. Many people who have failed at everything else have an idea they can buy up a lot of chickens, treat them any old way, and they will coin the money for them, but they never were so badly mistaken as success would not apply to anything on earth treated in this way. There is no line of work that requires so much experience, skill, careful management, care and attention and some capital as well to make money out of as the poultry industry. But, thousands of people do not see it this way. On the other hand there are many people who have made handsome incomes from their poultry and many who can directly trace their success in life and their fortunes to the keeping of poultry. Usually the people who make the larger per cent of profit out of poultry raising are ladies, and there are reasons for this. The first one is, as a rule, they are kind hearted, sympathetic and patient, and it requires these three things to succeed with poultry. Anyone who has raised a family of children and will apply the same care and attention and methods to their poultry cannot help but succeed and make money out of their work. While there are hundreds of successful poultrymen in the more thickly settled sections throughout the east and west, there are still quite a number in the south who have been unusually successful. Possibly one man who has made more money out of poultry than any other man in the southern states is Col. F. E. Grist, of Fort Gaines, Ga. His annual income from his Pit Games for many years past has amounted to from $10,000 to $20,000 per year. He began this work thirty-odd years ago, and now in his old age has plenty to live on and a nice business that omes regularly and will support him and his family just so long as he

Mrs. P. T. Callaway, of Washington, Ga., has in a small way kept poultry for something like thirty years. I remember quite well when I was a boy sixteen years old selling Mrs. Callaway a sitting of Brown Leghorn eggs which she carried to Brooksville, Fla., and got a nice start from this sitting of eggs. She has kept poultry more or less from that time until this, and today on a four-acre lot in the suburbs of Washington, Ga., she possibly has the best flock of Rhode Island Reds in the United States. I am confident her income from this one variety of chickens will net her each year from $2,000 to $5,000 the balance of her life just so long as she keeps them up to the high standard that she now has bred them to. Aside from the pleasure and profit they have brought to her they have restored her health as she was practically an invalid or in bad health several years ago. Th actual work that is absolutely essential in the care and management of poultry has restored her health as well as Mr. Callaway's, and they are both now enjoying life to the fullest extent. It is a real pleasure to visit this place and see what chickens can do for any one who will make a business of it the same as they would any other business

Mrs. B. H. Middlebrooks, at Yatesville, Ga., who breeds Barred Plymouth Rocks, White Leghorns and Indian Runner Ducks is another lady who started in a small way and has been unusually successful. She gives her fowls the best of care and attention. Every little detail is carefully looked after and they certainly have rewarded her for the work she has bestowed upon them. Furthermore, her children are learning how to care for and manage her business. It is keeping them at home and they are learning a permanent trade that will last through life and make them independent and a good living just so long as they live. This success has independent and a good living been brought about by good judgnot hard work.

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

Heretofore I have had only a fore housing it. Will you kindly give me some direction in the matter, such as your experience has

A. O. M. The best way to cure alfalfa hay I o'clock, and the hay should be raked in a windrow. It can remain there if necessary until after should be made of white cloth about 44 inches square, and by tie-the hay from dew and rain. Alfalfa hay will usually cure out when it will be ready by stack or put in the barn, but it should not be piled in large piles until it has gone through a thorough sweat. It is not best to bale it under two or three weeks. If so, you are likely to have more or less mould in the center of the bale. It is better to haul it from the field at the end of five to ten days and pile in one large stack or in the barn and let it go through, practically speaking, a second sweat, the leaves and will also protect floor to the barn, as there will then be no danger whatever in heating. Usually the first cutting of alfalfa is full of sap and rather hard to cure. The other cuttings are not so hard to cure.

It will pay any one to prepare a place to store or cure alfalfa just as well as it does to grow it, and this should not be overlooked. You, as well as many others, have found out absolutely sure and certain that alfalfa will grow bountifully all over the south where conditions are made right. It is sure to make this a rich and prosperous state, and do so quickly. The ball has started to rolling, and we will soon have an abundance of alfalfa hay all over Georgia. This method of cutting you will find easy, especially if you let it get thoroughly ripe before cutting, which every one should do.

QUESTION. St. Augustine, Fla. I have a few cockerels, two to hens, that I wish to fatten. What would be the best thing to feed them on to fatten them the quickest? Let me hear from you soon, C. D. S.

ANSWER. The best way to fatten either young or old fowls is to give them a limited range in a small yard where they can get enough exerpetite, and they should be fed cornmeal dough just what they will eat up clean twice a day, also whole corn and wheat once a day, and, with plenty fresh water and with plenty grain food, they will fatten very rapidly if not overfed. They should only have at each meal what they will eat up with a relish, and take away from them anything that is left over.

TRIAL FOR CONTEMPT

Is Called at Macon to Hear Charge Made by Judge Speer

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) MACON, Ga., May 20 .- The case of Colonel W. A. Huff, charged with contempt, following a letter written to United States Judge Emory Speer, was called in the federal court Tuesday morning at ten o'clock. Judge W. I. Grubb, of Birmingham, is presiding. District Attorney Oliver D. Street, will prosecute the case. Two of Colonel Huff's sons, Walter and Edison, have come from other states to be present at the hearing.

The defendant will not have any witnesses, but Judge Speer has summoned a number in his behalf. Mr. E. Y. Mal-Louis, where he was attending the Baptist convention. Attorney General T. S. Felder, wil represent Colonel Huff. There is tremendous interest in this case in other parts of the state as well as in Macon and it is believed that there will be a considerable out-of-town audience upon the trial. As the federal courtroom only accommodates several hundred persons, hundreds are turned away. Last year, at the arraignment proceedings the doors were closed after the courtroom was filled.

As Judge Speer's testimony and cross examination will take up considerable time, and there are other witnesses to be heard and cross-examined, in addition to the arguments as to the law in the case it is believed that the hearing will last all of two days. Whether Judge Grubb will hold afternoon ses- GEORGIA, Fulton County-To the Superior sions is not known. He did so when holding court here last year. The array of counsel for the government and for Judge Speer indicates that the case will be vigorously prosecuted. L. C. Greer, H. Cronheim, C. A. Stokes, W. F. District Attorney Street will be assisted Griffin, C. R. Beacham and G. W. Ackerman, by Assistant District Attorney A. H. LIQUOR MADE HIM "BAD;"

When John Couch, of 175 Mayson and Turner avenue, became over-exuberant as a result of what is thought to have been too much blind tiger whisky at White City Monday evening it took two policemen to persuade him that he was not a "white hope" in training. The bluecoats had to use force to drive their arguments home.

As it was, Couch created a general disturbance of such large dimensions that City Recorder N. R. Broyles thought a fine of $100 and costs justifiable when the offender was brought custody. Three pint bottles-almost one for each pocket-were taken from him and exhibited as evidence in court.

Arrangements are now being made postage for letters after July 1, 1914, for a big Sewanee banquet to be given was proposed in a resolution today by
