STARS SHINE IN MASSENET'S "TROVATORE"

IN "TROVATORE" TODAY!

BRILLIANT OPENING
PROMISES GREATEST
SEASON ON RECORDSix Thousand Persons Crowd
Auditorium to Hear Caruso's
Glorious Tenor and Matchless Notes of Farrar

By Dudley Glass

SIX THOUSAND opera lovers today are describing to less fortunate friends the opening night of "Attila," the fifth grand opera season and giving hints to give the absentees some idea of how Caruso and Farrar sang some of the scenes in Massenet's "Attila," Atlanta woke this morning from the first night of her annual musical season, tired and happy and ready to begin again this afternoon. If the week holds the promise given by its audience opening such an opera season will be presented as it has never been before.

Perhaps never was more thoroughly enjoyed audience than that which filled every seat in the vast auditorium and hung on every note from the stars who appeared for the first time here. To most of the audience "Attila" was new, but its music proved to be simply sweet, so brimming with love and action that our untired technical training nor close study of libretto interfered and enjoyed. "Attila" long a favorite work among the French, came to take its place among the favorites of the Atlanta repertoire of the Metropolitan company.

GLORIOUS AT THE

There was Caruso's glorious tenor hard to greater advantage than in the and courtesy of the Greek. Atlanta's second fill the auditorium with its glorious notes of "Attila," heard its seductive notes in "Puccini." The day has become familiar with its tremendous volume, its splendid power. But never before has Caruso sang with such soft tenderness, such delicacy of feeling, such perfect command of each phrase as in his scenes with Attila. From the first liquid notes in his entrance, "If I But Knew Your Name," bleeding quickly with Miss Farrar's reply, "I Am Called Manon," through the beautiful dream song and the great conclusion in the monologue scene, he was as perfect as only Manon can be.

Gladys Farrar, beautiful as ever, he was the silver bell which all Atlanta loves, proved not only her artistry but her American pluck. She had sung splendidly through the first and second acts, had held her admirers enthralled in her girlish aria, "O Dear, My Love," had burst into birdlike notes in the joyous duet with Caruso, "My Love Will Fly," and touched all hearts with the pathos of Manon's farewell to the little home. Then she sang the monologue scene, a duet as emotional as great in its dramatic demands, as even the scenes she has sung famous to "Attila." She had sung in prayer scenes with the convent theme behind the scenes changing a whole auditorium organ, and had ended the appeal to her lover to return to his priestly robes and return to his arms.

FARRAR OVERCOME

IN GREAT SCENE.

In the great scene of the opera, of Farrar threw herself into it with the fear of a Bernhardt. Des Grieux, in fighting the battle between heart and mind and Manon was at his feet, feeling, breathing, clasping her hands and pouring out her whole being in the agony of pleading. At last Des Grieux, a love triumphed over his duty, and he tore at his black robe while Manon burst into the joy to see "I Love Thee."

There was a tremendous burst of applause as the curtains fell, then be-

PASQUALE AMATO AS THE COURT.

A recent photograph of the favor to baritone as he appeared Tuesday afternoon in "Trova-tore." The role of the Count di Luna gave him several magnificent numbers.

When the velvet hangings those at the left of the house saw Miss Farrar reel and fall, and a half-dressed singer leap to save her. She was fainting, and for a moment the audience sat in dread lest the favorite could not complete her act, but in a short while the crimson curtains parted again and Caruso stepped out, supporting Miss Farrar tenderly and patting her hand in encouragement. She took three curtain calls, though each time she leaned heavily upon a fellow-singer. In the next act she appeared again, as lovely as ever and with spirit apparently unimpaired. Miss Farrar has been far from well this year and has been guarding her strength carefully. It was her cause of this that her physicians forbade her attempting the role of Carmen this season, and the proposed revival of the noted opera was abandoned by the company.

LOVE'S OVERSHADOW

ALL OPERA BOLES.

There are many fine roles in "Attila" but the two lovers overshadow them to a greater degree than in most operas. Dink Gilly, as Lescart, the passionate guardian, cousin of Manon, was given but two or three opportunities for individual work, but his ringing baritone did full justice to these. Leon Rothler, the basso who sang and acted so splendidly in "The Tale of Hoffman," was the elder Des Grieux, and was superb in his brief monologue scene and in the magnificent trio in the gambling house. De Sagrola's fine bass was as perfect as always in the role of de Bragelonne, and Albert Raiser, the tenor to whom fell so many fine comedy parts, was a thoroughly artistic Guitot. Lenora, Starch and Roelma van Dyke as the two actresses, were bewitching, and in their few opportunities sang delightfully.

There are so many appealing duets, trios and concerted numbers in "Attila" that to recount them would be tedious. The work of the chorus in the first act and again in the gambling scene was a tribute to their director, and the orchestra, Tockant conducted and praised would be superfluous.

INCIDENTAL SCORE

ESPECIALLY BEAUTIFUL.

The orchestral score of "Attila" is particularly beautiful in many scenes and especially so in the sombre final act, where the recurrent death motif is singularly like that in Puccini's "Boheme." Indeed the roles of Manon and Manon are very similar and their musical treatment in several scenes are much alike.

The settings were worthy of a "first night" work. The scene at the old inn, the lonely road to Haver at sunset and more than all the magnificent gambling house setting were as elaborate as only the Metropolitan provides.

The first scene of the third act of the original score, too fine for production, was omitted. It caused the loss of some bright chorus numbers, a bit of comedy, and especially the aria "I Will be the Voice of Youth," by Manon, one of the most lovely bits in the work. But the opera, which began shortly after 8 o'clock, continued until nearly midnight, and it would have been impracticable to have extended its length.

OPERA AUDIENCE

NEVER MORE BRILLIANT.

There have been but few larger audiences in the history of the opera house, and the opera was never one more brilliant. The boxes, as usual, were a circle of beautiful women, jewels and orchids. The fashions of the scene seem to lend themselves to ornate display, and the opera glasses were as busy between the acts as when Manon was the center of all eyes.

Attila seems to have learned better to appreciate opera for opera's sake than formerly, for there was far less conversation while the curtain was up, and not so frequently was a fine bit of the orchestral score drowned by ill-timed, if enthusiastic, applause at the end of some splendid bit of singing.

Most of the audience arrived early, and half an hour before curtains fell automobiles were parked from the auditorium nearby to Five Points, not but a few hundred feet, were shut out by the inflexible rules when the curtain rose on the first act.

OPERA IS HERE, BUT DON'T FORGET HOSPITAL BONDS

Now there can be no question that Atlanta takes the lead in grand opera. Now, if you would kindly divert your attention—

This, however, is not grand opera. This is the Grady hospital. The campaign for a greater Grady enters to-day upon its last week. Next Tuesday, the bond issue will go to the voters. The workers at bond headquarters, in the chamber of commerce building, hope in the meantime, to divert the attention of Atlanta to the fact that the city needs a new hospital. The competition is heavy, but the workers have a good cause.

Kathlamon has strong at headquarters today over a feature of the situation which has been becoming more and more apparent every day. This is the inequality of opinion among the nearly all the men in the city who come under the general description of the publically important. In most campaigns, it will be found that even when the situation is encouraging, the important business and professional element is divided. This, of course, does not apply to campaigns like that for the regional bank, in which the city gets everything for nothing, but campaigns where the taxpayer's money, or, as in the present case, the city's—must be used.

The campaign for a greater Grady seems to be an exception to this rule. A unanimity of opinion among the city's business and professional men is becoming more evident every day. In interviews with such men result invariably in an enthusiastic endorsement of the issue.

Seller General Hugh M. Dorey is an example. Mr. Dorey has been a pretty busy man in the last few weeks, but he has had time to notice that a campaign for a greater Grady is in progress. At one time Mr. Dorey was a trustee of the hospital, so he didn't need to read up on the matter before giving his endorsement to the effort (or its enlargement).

"When I was trustee of the hospital," said Mr. Dorey today, "I was constantly reminded of the fact that the demands made upon it, I believed then, and I believe now, that Grady hospital should be enlarged and improved. There is nothing modern about it with the exception of the new building erected in 1910. It is entirely perfect for Atlanta's present needs, and for the needs of the future. It will be little better than a cage for the Atlanta needs a greater Grady, and she should have it. It is entirely out of the league with the city's progress and civic pride to attempt to get along with a makeshift like that which holds the place of a city hospital today."

Stephen Arnold is another man whose time has been fairly occupied of late with other matters. Mr. Arnold is like many others, though—the inadequacy of Grady has been known to him for a long time, and he considers its immediate enlargement and improvement a necessity.

"A hospital," said Mr. Arnold, "is one of the most important institutions which the city possesses. It is the guardian of that intangible municipal property—the public health. For a city to try to get along with a makeshift like a hospital, is to put public health in imminent danger."

Grady hospital has been inadequate in Atlanta's needs for a long time. The population of this city is increasing every day, and it is absolutely certain that Grady will be more inadequate tomorrow than it is this afternoon. And I understand it, they are turning people away from the hospital now. Improvements and enlargement must be made soon, and the sooner, the better. I personally am going to cast my vote for the bond issue. The ward organization of the general campaign committee, of which I am a vice chairman, is now perfecting a special meeting of the committee from the Ninth ward, which will be held this afternoon in Grady bond headquarters."

PRIZES FOR SHRINERS' ELECTRICAL DISPLAYS

Committee Appointed by Yaarab Temple to Choose Winners

The committee, which is to award the prizes offered by Yaarab temple for the best electrical display in Atlanta, announced its members during Shrine week. The committee is composed of: Foreman Adair as follows: T. B. Palmer, chairman; Hal Hents and Walter T. Brown.

Announcement of the prize offer was made some time ago by Yaarab temple. A total of $100 will be distributed—$25 for the best display, $150 for the best, and $100 for the third. Occupants of great owners of property in the retail districts will compete for them.

Practically all of the big contractors for electrical and other decoration in the Shriners' honor have been signed. Most of the main part of the work has been started. The city is going to be decorated to the degree that has ever before, said one of the contractors (Tuesday). "I have been investigating, and I find that the whole city has taken hold of this proposition with wonderful general interest. It is going to decorate, and some of the best will be very attractive. Few people realize how magnificent the general effect will be."

WHAT ABOUT THOSE BONDS FOR GRADY?

Today it's grand opera, tomorrow something else. The Shriners are coming. Atlanta is busy constantly with one event or another. It's ours, for service night and day, week after week, month after month, from year's end to year's end.

It's ours, for service night and day, week after week, month after month, from year's end to year's end. We've been ignoring it too long. The city has been growing, but Grady hasn't grown. Except the " annex" that we put up at 2 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. There's the same old man that was given to us by philanthropists twenty-three years ago. The time has come to build it anew.

We've got to remember that bond issue. One week from today we will be declaring our vote on it. Two men among every three who are registered in Atlanta must vote "yes" for it, or it fails. Stay away and don't vote at all, and you have voted "no" just as effectively as if you had cast your ballot against it in the box.

We are face to face with a big question, Atlanta. It is not "Shall we surpass other cities?" Instead, it is "Shall we try to match other cities? Shall we remedy something discreditable?"

That's what we must answer next Tuesday. Are you satisfied with an old tumble-down hospital that is totally inadequate to the demands on it? Are you content that your city shall be judged by it? Is it worthy of Atlanta?

There is no opposition to the bond issue. Three-quarters of a million dollars is the sum needed to build a hospital such as Atlanta ought to have. Where is the man who says "Grady is good enough as it is?" Where is he who says "We don't need to do that much money?"

Indifference alone will make our answer negative next Tuesday. Are you indifferent, Mr. Voter?

BRITISH GO FORTY MILES TO RESCUE 8 AMERICANS

Detachment of Marines Off English Ship Expected Back Tonight

(By Associated Press.) WASHINGTON, April 28.—(Hour.) Admiral Mayo reported today that Admiral Craddock, of the British cruiser Heracles, had dispatched Major Clark and a detachment of British marines, forty miles inland from Tampico to rescue eight Americans at Orange Hill and was expected back tonight. The Heracles sent thirteen refugees aboard the Des Moines today. Admiral Badger reported that it would be inadvisable to send an American ship to the Yucatan district, "as it might start anti-American demonstrations."

In regard to the reports from Tampico that American citizens there were in danger because of the departure of the American battleships from the river, Secretary of the Navy Charles D. Smith today said that this action had been taken after Admiral Craddock had informed Admiral Mayo that he would undertake to rescue Americans from Tampico aboard the Heracles and transfer them to the Des Moines upon the American vessels taking a position at sea. This arrangement it was thought, Mr. Daniels said, would make anti-American demonstrations in Tampico less likely.

"I will go in and bring the refugees that the British admiral was reported to have said to Admiral Mayo."

With the Shriners Come to Town

IN making plans in advance to provide adequate and efficient telephone service during Shrine week we find that many business concerns do not appreciate the magnitude of this gathering. Neither do they seem to realize how severely every public and private utility service will be taxed.

We are urging business institutions, such as hotels, cafes, newspapers, taxicab companies, baggage companies and railroad offices to arrange NOW for additional trunk lines or stations.

We are endeavoring to increase the number of public pay stations and to place pay stations at all central and convenient points. In order to do this we must have the co-operation of the business community. If our representative calls upon you for pay station space, we hope you will give him a hearing and favorable consideration.

Most business concerns will need additional service during Shrine week. Consider your needs now and communicate with the manager so that the equipment may be installed in ample time.

We shall largely increase our operating force and shall spare no pains or expense to render a service of which you will be proud and which will please the visitors.

May we have your co-operation?

Beautiful Music and Handsomely Gowned Women Mark Opening of Opera Season

WHEN the famous crimson and gold curtain of the Metropolitan was drawn Monday evening the assembled galaxy of the world's greatest singers of the world viewed the largest and most representative audiences ever assembled in the mammoth auditorium.

Visitors from all over the south were in attendance, and every seat in the great building was occupied.

The floor of the house and the boxes presented a brilliant appearance with an array of lovely women gowned in silks and satins of every hue. The glittering jewels worn and the exquisite flowers carried by debutantes and matrons transformed the building into the semblance of an immense flower garden.

Great applause greeted the initial appearance of the Metropolitan company. The singers were great social favorites, and are always delightfully entertained during their stay in the city.

The singers responded graciously to enthusiastic and repeated curtain calls and evinced pleasure and satisfaction in the ovation received.

After the opera the clubs and hotels were the scenes of many delightful supper parties, at several of which the great stars were honor guests.

Among the handsomely gowned women seen Monday evening at the opera were:

Mrs. John Marshall Stanton, who was gowned in blue brocade satin, the corsage veiled with rare lace, and she wore pink orchids.

Mrs. Dorothy Hebert, of New Orleans, was lovely in a gown of white tulle veiled with lilac, and she carried an armful of American Beauty roses.

OUR ASTROLOGER

The stars incline, but do not compel!

WEDNESDAY, APRIL 23, 1914.

During today's configuration the planetary influences are light. The astrologer announces that good and ill balance, but the counsel caution if one would travel.

Uranus is in a place held to be unlucky for journeys. The adverse aspect of this planet is believed to increase danger of accident, especially during transportation on cars. Explosions and perils due to electrical appliances are believed to be common while this planet is in position.

Although Venus and Mars are both well aspected, the sway of Uranus should be sufficient cause for caution in all acts which involve future conditions of life. While the rules encourage romance, danger of attraction to vulgar, peculiar, persons is to be recognized.

There is a favorable sign for jewelers, capitalists and dealers in the world of art.

Upholders, weavers and dyers should benefit by the rule of the planets today. Linen drapers, silk mercantiles, women tailors and milliners also should be lucky while the figure planet is in position.

Flowermen and hunters are subject to lucky augurs, as are soldiers and woodsmen.

It should be an auspicious time for hiring men-servants and for directing gardening operations. The planting of vegetables is supposed to be particularly fortunate today.

First of May, a London seer predicts a surprise is prognosticated for royalty in Great Britain. This will not be pleasant, but it will bring about a change in public opinion.

Aerial navigation is subject to a leading of the stars, which presages great advance before next autumn. The death of an American aviator of wealth again is foretold.

Persons whose birthdate it is have an augury of great good fortune for the coming year, but they should not travel much or make any changes in their mode of living. The year will take its course in romance.

Children born on this day have kind stars to guide them. Their magnetic center is the sun. In the zodiacal sign of Taurus, and Venus is their principal ruling planet. They should have industry and perseverance. With abundant love, a characteristic they are like to be able to command, they will be successful through executive ability.

Murder Rumor Draws Crowd of 500 to Watch Search for the "Body"

Special Dispatch to The Journal.—BALTIMORE, Ga., April 23.—The rumor that a man had been killed and his body tossed into the mammoth concrete reservoir of the waterworks system, on top of Mt. Rachel, sent fully 500 people to the mountain yesterday afternoon. The crowd grew bigger when workmen were seen drawing off the water. They were, however, merely engaged in cleaning it out.

The one who perpetrated the "gruesome" deed had the satisfaction of seeing fully a half thousand people "bitten" by the rumor.

Children born on this day have kind stars to guide them. Their magnetic center is the sun. In the zodiacal sign of Taurus, and Venus is their principal ruling planet. They should have industry and perseverance. With abundant love, a characteristic they are like to be able to command, they will be successful through executive ability.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THOMPSON W. HARRISON.

If you look for Bumble Bee you never have seen him. Or, like Peter Rabbit, you may have caught your search to ruin.

It seemed to Peter Rabbit that never had he known Bumble Bee to keep out of sight so long when there were plenty of bright flowers. In fact, it seemed to Peter as he thought it out that Bumble always had been one of those people who are forever poking their noses into places where they are not wanted. Now when he was wanted he couldn't be found. Peter had run his legs almost off among the brightest flowers on the Green Meadows without seeing Bumble or even hearing his everlasting hum though two or three times Bumble had just left a group of flowers when Peter thought, "I shall find him now."

He went to get his breath, and by and along came the Merry Little Breeze of Old Mother West Wind. They were dancing and skipping in the happy way which is always there when the sun is out. Peter rushed over to him and rumbled his hair and pulled his whiskers.

"What's the matter with our happy-go-lucky, Peter?" they cried.

"Nothing, very much, only I want to see Bumble Bee and catch him," replied Peter, smiling in spite of himself.

"Can't and Bumble?" cried the Merry Little Breeze. "Where have you looked for him, Peter?"

"I've looked among all the brightest flowers on the Green Meadows," replied Peter, "and although I haven't seen him, many of them he hasn't stayed long enough for me to catch up with him."

The Merry Little Breeze laughed. "Oh, Peter Rabbit!" they cried, "haven't you been neighbor to Bumble Bee long enough to know that you should look for him among the sweetest flowers? He loves to visit the brightest flowers, but it is the sweetest flowers he loves most and with whom he stays the longest. If you would catch up with him go hunt for the sweetest flower, Peter."

So once more Peter started on to hunt for Bumble Bee, and this time instead of going by his eyes as before he went by his nose. For he knew he was looking for the sweetest instead of the brightest flowers, but just as before he had to keep his eyes wide open he changed his mind and made sure that Reddy Fox and Old Man Coyote were nowhere about and that Redtail Hawk was not in sight. It was very exciting, but after a little it grew tiresome and Peter was almost tempted to give up hunting for Bumble Bee. But he didn't. At last as he drew near a little group of flowers he heard something that made him sit up and listen. It was a humming sound. Peter kicked up his heels for joy, for he knew that only one could hum like that and that one was Bumble Bee. Well-meaning he scampered right in among the flowers. Bumble wasn't to be seen. Peter knew that he was deep in the heart of one of the flowers and eagerly he began to look into them and I am afraid he was a little rough with them. Yea, sir, he found him, and then he wanted he hadn't.

You see Bumble is very quick tempered, and when Peter suddenly thrust his wobbly little nose into the flower where Bumble was hard at work extracting honey, Bumble felt that no one had any business there and promptly thrust a little lace into Peter's nose. My how Peter winced and danced!

"Baa-ee! Serve you right for poking your nose in where it doesn't belong," grumbled Bumble as he prepared to fly away.

SAW MEN COMING FROM HOUSE WHERE FIVE DIED

(By Associated Press.)

MOUNT UNION, Pa., April 22.—The authorities of Huntington county today began a search for two unidentified men seen coming from the home of Peter Varner, in which Mrs. Mildred Varner and her four children were burned to death last night. From the condition of the bodies it could not be learned whether the victims had been killed before the house was fired.

Varner thinks the men entered the house to obtain $250 he had there.

WEDDINGS

Locke-Wilson

Miss Avic Locke and Mr. L. A. Wilson, were united in marriage Friday morning at 11:30 o'clock at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Thompson. She was used in the home decorations, a lovely gown with purple blossoms, forming a delicate tracery for the sleeve to the back parlor, where fruit punch was served.

After a short wedding trip Mr. and Mrs. Wilson will be at home in Lancaster.

Chauffeur Held

William Armstrong, a chauffeur, arrested Monday morning by Patrolman Wilkerson for running over a negro named Homer Harris, Sunday afternoon, is being held at the barracks for trial Tuesday morning before Recorder Broyles.

Armstrong says he is a private in the Seventeenth infantry, and runs the machine at the barracks. Armstrong's bond was placed at $10, which he could not raise.

Elison-Thomson

LANCASTER, S. C.—The wedding of Miss Corinne Thomson and Mr. Alfred Gaillard Elison was a beautiful event of Thursday evening, April 23, taking place at the First Baptist church.

Rev. J. M. Thayer performed the ceremony. The front of the church, covered completely in white, was a bower of spring like beauty. Dainty flowers mounted on pedestals formed the background and in front of the pulpit, an arbor of white trellis work, a graceful vine of white wisteria climbed most naturally. Its dainty blossoms interspersed among the opening leaves of green. Just back of the arbor, also on each side and in the choir aisle, jars of Easter lilies were used, with here and there a spray of the beautiful white wisteria. At the top of the white draped wainscoting at the side of the church, was a border of ivy leaves. The first white light gleaming faintly through shaded globes, throwing a mellow glow over the whole church.

The wedding party and out-of-town guests were entertained at a delightfully informal reception at the handsome home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Thompson. She was used in the home decorations, a lovely gown with purple blossoms, forming a delicate tracery for the sleeve to the back parlor, where fruit punch was served.

STATE EXAMINER TAKES CHARGE OF ATHENS BANK

Officials of Citizens' Bank and Trust Co. Say Depositors Will Be Paid

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ATHENS, Ga., April 25.—The Citizens' Bank and Trust company is in the hands of the state examiner with a shortage said to be over twenty-seven thousand dollars. W. H. Eshen is the president and R. W. Woods the cashier of the bank.

The directors made the decision last night, when all the bank officers were present, that it was for the best interest of creditors and depositors that its affairs be placed in the hands of state examiners. The president says he did not know of shortage while the cashier says it was in existence when he took the position as cashier. How long this shortage has been in existence and how it occurred the bank examiner will try and determine.

The depositors will be paid in full, officials say. The institution may or may not be operated again.

Quality FOWNE'S GLOVES

Mother's Friend Before Baby Arrives

During several weeks of expectancy there is a splendid external contraband.

"Friend" in which thousands of women have the most unbounded confidence. They have used it and know of its wonderful influence in the abdominal muscles and how they are strengthened that are so much talked about. This safe external application is gently used over the skin to render it amenable to the natural stretching which it undergoes. The myriad of nerve centers and great physical relief is thus relieved of unnecessary pain-producing causes and great physical relief is the result as expressed by a host of happy mothers.

It is a subject that all women should be familiar with as "Mother's Friend" has been in use many years, and is recommended by grandmothers and is recommended by grandmothers to rest upon this splendid remedy.

You can obtain "Mother's Friend" at almost any drug store. Get a bottle to-day and then write for our little book free. Price 25c per bottle.
