BELIEVE SOME OF ENTOMBED MINERS ARE STILL LIVING

Rescue Party Reports They Heard Sounds of Digging Beyond Barrier of Debris Choking Entrance to Mine

GOV. HATFIELD LEADS PARTY OF SEARCHERS

Entire Mountainside Stirred by Hope That Buried Men Are Alive Following Explosion of Yesterday

(By Associated Press.)

SCALES, W. Va., April 29.—Hope that some of the 178 miners imprisoned in mine No. 5 of the New River Collieries company, wrecked by mine No. 6 by an explosion yesterday, might still be alive stirred the throng on the mountainside in early before noon. A rescue party, driven out of No. 6, reported they had heard sounds as of digging beyond the barriers of debris choking the connecting entry. A party of fresh miners was hurried into the entry and attacked the fallen mass of rock with renewed vigor.

Earlier in the day Governor Hatfield and chief inspector Earl Henry headed a party of mining engineers and superintendents in an effort to enter No. 5. They were compelled to give up the attempt because of obstructions.

The crew from rescue car No. 7, of the bureau of mines, has been steadily at work since its arrival, and many experienced miners from the surrounding country have been organized by the government engineers so that the work of clearing away to the buried men may proceed with the least possible interruption.

ELEVEN KNOWN DEAD.

One hundred and seventy-eight men entombed must still be living, seven known dead and sixty-one rescued—this was the result of the explosion which wrecked mine No. 5 and damaged mine No. 6 of the New River Collieries company here late yesterday. Governor H. D. Hatfield of West Virginia, is in charge of the relief work, while Earl Henry, chief of the state department of mines, and R. C. Bayles, general manager of the Gilbertie company, are leading the rescue crews.

The entrances to the mines are far apart, but the workings join underground. When the dust exploded in mine No. 5 the fumes entered No. 6 shaft and there the eleven known dead were killed.

Prompt measures taken by Superintendent Thomas Donaldson resulted in the rescue of sixty-one from No. 6 shaft. Many of those rescued are burned severely and temporary hospitals here and at Beckley are crowded.

When it was found shaft No. 6 was burning the entrance was closed and the entrance to No. 6 workings were bratticed. The task of finding the bodies in No. 5 shaft must wait until the flames have been extinguished. It is believed, however, none of the men in No. 5 escaped alive, as the explosion was followed quickly by outbursts of flame.

Most of the miners are American born, although there are quite a number of foreign-born workers. Of the bodies recovered eight were white Americans, one negro, and two foreign-born.

The explosion was terrific. A rumbling noise was heard through the town and as residents rushed to the entrances of the houses, timbers, pieces of coal and other debris shot from the mouth of No. 5 shaft.

Many of those rescued said they were overcome by the gas fumes before they knew what had happened. The first man to leave the mine shafts climbed to the surface of No. 6 hand-over-hand on a rope.

RESCUE CAR ARRIVES.

A United States government rescue car reached the mines from Bluefield, W. Va., and another will arrive here from Pittsburg, Pa., at noon.

The New River Collieries company is connected with the Guggenheim interests.

The rescue parties worked through the night and the combined efforts were directed to mine No. 5, where the men are entombed. Notwithstanding the fearful haste of the rescuers, they made little progress from shaft 6 into shaft 5 because of the intense heat and gases.

Many women were induced to seek their homes and there was little excitement at the mines. Although the rescuers were making slow progress and had expressed little hope of getting to the entombed men, 6 miles away, they had the work well in hand. They installed new fans, making the task of going into mine No. 5 less difficult.

The present mine disaster in the first of considerable extent in West Virginia in several years. It is probably is second only in fatalities to the Monongah explosion in December, 1907, when 361 miners lost their lives.

While the loss of life here will be very great there is a relief for families of victims that was not in force at the time of former disasters. The new workmen's compensation act provides $25 a month for widows, and each of the surviving children, not to exceed three, is entitled to $5 a month.

POSTPONE CONTROVERSY OVER TOBACCO GIFTS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The controversy before congress regarding the proposed prohibitive tax to stop the practice of issuing gift coupons with cigarettes, cigars and tobacco, along with gifts and other attachments, it was announced today, has been postponed by the house ways and means committee until next December.

Man Ends His Life Rather Than Serve As Murder Juror

Prominent Memphis Real Estate Dealer Uses Pistol When Refused Discharge

(By Associated Press.)

MEMPHIS, Tenn., April 29.—Because, it is believed, he had been refused a discharge from a jury selected to try a murder case, John B. Rhodes, a well known real estate man of this city, committed suicide here today by shooting himself through the head with a pistol.

The jurymen were at a local hotel preparing for breakfast when the shooting occurred.

No other reason has been assigned for the act.

Margarete Ober, a New Find of Metropolitan Co. Created Octavian Role

Mme. Margarete Ober, the new contralto who sings Wednesday night in "Der Rosenkavalier" and who was heard in "Trovatore" Tuesday afternoon, is one of the new "finds" of the Metropolitan company. She has been in opera but five years and until coming to America several months ago was singing in the Royal opera at Berlin. She created the role of Octavian in "Der Rosenkavalier" there and has sung the part nine times in New York. She has sung several Wagnerian contralto roles and that of Amneris in "Aida" since coming to America, but her Atlanta debut was her first American rendition of Azucena.

In private life Mme. Ober is Mme. Arndt, and her husband, who is with her, was her teacher of music. He is an accomplished musician, and Mme. Ober says she owes a great deal of her success to his teaching.

5,882 People Paid To See Manon; 4,299 Saw "Il Trovatore"

Exact figures on grand opera attendance given out by C. B. Bidwell, treasurer of the Atlanta Music Festival association, show that 5,882 people paid to see "Manon" Monday night and 4,299 to see "Il Trovatore" Tuesday afternoon.

Monday night's crowd is one of the largest that ever attended grand opera in Atlanta. One night during the first season here there were over 6,000 people in the auditorium, and the same is true of one performance last year.

AUGUSTA EAGER TO GET STATE MANEUVER CAMP

Editor Calls on Governor and Adjutant Offering Site for Location

Augusta wants the maneuver camp of the ninth military district—the camp which was lost to South Carolina because of Governor Cole Blease's hostile attitude—and Augusta has gone after it with a determination which its citizens believe will be successful.

Thomas W. Loyless, editor of the Augusta Chronicle, came to Atlanta yesterday to confer with Governor Slaton and Adjutant General J. Van Holt Nash in an effort to get them to indorse Augusta's claims. He brought with him a number of photographs of the site offered by Augusta.

"We have an idea site for this maneuver camp," declared Mr. Loyless. "There is a tract due west of Summerville, Augusta's choicest residence section, which affords an excellent location for the camp and maneuver operations. It comprises 80 acres.

"Augusta occupies a central location in the ninth military district, which is composed of the states of North and South Carolina, Georgia and Florida. On account of this central location the distance to be traveled by the troops of the four states would be reduced to a minimum."

Both Governor Slaton and Adjutant General Nash have invited the war department to bring the maneuver camp to Georgia, but neither has recommended any particular city as the location for the camp.

Upon Adjutant General Nash's recommendation Macon has been selected as the mobilization camp of the state in case a war with Mexico develops. Augustans take the position that Macon having been awarded the mobilization camp that Augusta should get the maneuver camp.

ATLANTA MAN SAID TO BE EXECUTED IS SAFE

W. B. Wofford Cables Brother Here That He Is Safe in Vera Cruz

Direct word was received Wednesday that W. B. Wofford was safe in Vera Cruz, confirming the press dispatch received earlier in the morning by The Journal.

Mr. Wofford himself cabled to his brother, George W. Wofford, of Birmingham, Ala., "Safe in Vera Cruz, under protection U. S. army."

Mr. George Wofford, of Birmingham, transmitted the information immediately by long-distance telephone to the four sisters of Mr. Wofford, visiting at 165 West Baker street, Atlanta.

"Naturally we are relieved very profoundly," said Miss Mary Wofford to a Journal representative. "Our friends have been solicitous and comforting, but the great load has weighed on our minds until now."

The Mexican has been superintendent of the Mexican Rubber company at Oaxaca for the past several years. He was captured recently by the federal soldiers of Huerta and was thrown into jail at Cordoba, being one of the number who have existed in misery in that prison for the last several days. It was rumored Tuesday afternoon that he and six others had been executed, but his safe arrival in Vera Cruz was reported Wednesday morning.

MARGARETE OBER TO SING TONIGHT IN "ROSE BEARER"

Frieda Hempel, Otto Goritz, Anna Case and Other Stars Will Also Be Heard in New Strauss Opera

"IL TROVATORE" TUESDAY BEST EVER HEARD HERE

Ober, Gadski, Amato and Others Scored Artistic and Popular Triumph With Great Matinee Audience

By Dudley Glass

With the echoes of Margarete Ober's clear contralto ringing in their ears and the memory of Frieda Hempel's silvery soprano lingering since last season, Atlanta opera lovers today are thinking of tonight and "Der Rosenkavalier." It is expected that an audience fully as large as that which mazed the opening will greet the first Richard Strauss work to be presented in Atlanta and give a welcome to several favorite singers.

All Atlanta is talking of Mme. Ober, who made her debut here Tuesday afternoon, singing the great role of Azucena in "Trovatore." Mme. Ober has been in America but a few weeks, having come to sing Octavian in "Der Rosenkavalier" in New York after great success in the part in Berlin. She sang the gypsy role for the first time in America at the Atlanta matinee, and members of the Metropolitan company thronged the entrances and hovered in the wings to hear her in the part. They are one in declaring her a contralto of the first rank.

Mme. Ober was heard by Atlanta Tuesday, but it can hardly be said that she was seen, for the gray wig and the brown stain of the gypsy role effectually disguised the woman beneath them. But tonight she will be herself, her face untouched save for a bit of powder and perhaps a beauty patch. It is a peculiar role, that of Octavian, for she must play a man who for a time is disguised as a woman. First she is seen as a knickerbockered courtier, then she slips quickly into the garb of a lady's maid, then back to knickerbockers again, then once more into the woman's garments. Members of the company say her singing in the Strauss opera will be a revelation even to those who heard her Azucena.

FRIEDA HEMPEL TO SING AGAIN.

The new opera will be marked, too, by the appearance of Frieda Hempel, the German coloratura soprano whose work in "Traviata" last season created such a furore. Mme. Hempel arrived Tuesday from New Mork, refreshed by a rest after her Metropolitan season and declaring herself happy in the thought of singing to enthusiastic southern folk again.

"You will hear a new Hempel this season," she told the New York music critics a short time ago when she arrived from Berlin. "I was not at my best last year."

And the critics said afterward that she was right. Mme. Hempel's voice, as Atlantians remember, is singularly full and musical, and she excels in those runs and trills which mark such roles as Violetta, Lucia and the role of the Princess, which she is to sing in "Der Rosenkavalier." It is a part which ranks side by side with the contralto, for the Strauss work is written not for a star, but for a whole company.

Otto Goritz, the fine baritone who sang "The Fiddler" in "Koenigskinder" with Geraldine Farrar several years ago, is the Baron Ochs in the Strauss opera. It is a swaggering comedy role, marked by unusual demands one's ability to act, and high praise has been given Mr. Goritz in the part. The work will introduce also Italo Picchi, a new tenor, who is also to sing Turiddu in "Cavalleria" Saturday night. Among the many principals who make this the formidable cast are

Chief Beavers Receives Telegram From Dead Man's Brother to Look for Him

The man found supposedly murdered in Piedmont park late Tuesday afternoon has been identified in a telegram sent to Chief Beavers.

He is said to be Paul Godbey, of Greensboro, N. C. The telegram was from Earle Godbey, his brother, in Greensboro.

Chief Beavers, when asked about the death of the man, set aside all suicide theories advanced by the police.

"It looks to me as if somebody killed him," said the chief.

The telegram from Greensboro reads:

"Paul Godbey; dark hair, gray eyes, short moustache, medium height, slouch hat, dark clothing. Known to be in Atlanta. Able to be about, but not able to take care of himself. I am his brother and am anxious to take charge of him. Please wire any information. Get his mail at General Delivery.

EARLE GODBEY.

Greensboro, N. C."

From the telegram it is not shown whether Earle Godbey knew of the death of his brother or whether he telegraphed the police as a precautionary measure to get them to look out for his brother, who was "not able to take care of himself."

The police take the message to mean, however, that Earle Godbey knows of the death of his brother and is coming to take charge of the body. Chief Beavers wired a reply at once.

The description fits that of the dead man exactly, except for the moustache, which he could easily have shaven off.

Following the testimony of several witnesses, one of whom was John Smith, the negro who found the body, and T. O. Baker, who had seen the man prior to his death, the inquest was Wednesday afternoon continued by Coroner Paul Donehoo until 4 p. m. Thursday.

Owing to the fact that no pistol was

FRANK HEARING WILL BE RESUMED FRIDAY

Solicitor Ready to Combat Defense Evidence—Burns Raps the Police

The hearing of an extraordinary motion for a new trial for Leo M. Frank will be resumed before Judge Ben H. Hill, of the criminal division of the superior court, Friday.

Solicitor General Dorsey has practically completed the work of securing evidence to combat the defense's amendments and will be ready for the hearing. The defense may further amend its motion by bringing in the various notes written to Annie Maud Carter by Jim Conley. This, however, will not result in a further delay.

Detective William J. Burns, who is still working on the case, is indignant at the intimation in published reports that the solicitor general and the city detectives are investigating his work in Chicago on the case with the view of showing a frame-up.

"I am always willing for the light to be turned on," says the detective, "and I dare and defy them to find where he has been any frame-up or dirty work on my part. I want them to investigate just as much as they please.

TOOK ONE AFFIDAVIT.

"There was only one thing done by myself in Chicago in connection with this case and that was the taking of an affidavit from Aaron Allen, a negro stool pigeon, who was employed by the detectives to stay in the cell and pump Newt Lee, the negro night watchman, while he was under arrest. The negro Allen made the affidavit freely and voluntarily. In fact, he came to my office in Chicago.

"The detectives are seeking by innuendo to make people believe they have discovered a negro nest in Chicago. For that reason I turn on the light."

Mr. Burns paid his respects to the police when he was asked if he was ready to make public his report.

"We would be pretty fools," he said,

Nation's Refusal to Align Against This Government Is Pleasing to Wilson

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 19.—The Japanese government, it has developed, was asked and declined to act for the Huerta administration through its diplomatic representatives in Washington and its consul in the United States prior to Mexico's application to Spain to perform this mission, which was accepted.

While the Japanese embassy declines to confirm the report, it is known to be well-founded and to have given great satisfaction to President Wilson's administration as a significant expression of Japan's friendliness toward this country.

The purpose of Japan's action is understood to have been desired to preserve the strictest neutrality between the United States and Mexico.

Among those informed of General Huerta's first choice of Japan to represent Mexico in the United States, the move was construed as an attempt on his part to align one of the great world powers with his administration and thus accomplish a master stroke in diplomacy.

ENVOYS SEEK TRUCE PENDING MOVE FOR ESTABLISHING PEACE

Wilson Willing, Provided It Is Stipulated There Shall Be No Demonstrations Meantime Against Americans

HUERTA IS NOTIFIED BUT HAS NOT REPLIED

Officials Generally Believe Dictator Will Accept Armistice Proposal—Diplomats to Hurry Negotiations

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 29.—An armistice in the difficulties between the United States and Mexico has been asked of this government and General Huerta by the South American envoys who have undertaken to avert war through mediation.

Ambassador DaGama, of Brazil, today notified Secretary Bryan this had been determined on as the next step in the negotiations and that General Huerta also had been notified.

The proposal for an armistice was communicated to President Wilson from the state department by telephone. Though no announcement has been made, it was authoritatively learned this government would accept the conditions provided assurances are given that in addition to a halt in military operations, there would be no civil uprisings against American citizens or other "untoward" incidents which might prevent peace.

NO TIME TO BE LOST.

After an hour's conference today the mediation envoys, Mr. DaGama, of Brazil, Mr. Naon, of Argentine, and Mr. Suarez, Chile, determined that their negotiations necessarily must proceed without waste of time and Ambassador DaGama went to the state department to acquaint Secretary Bryan of the course thus far taken in the peace plans. The Brazilian minister in Mexico City also was notified and he communicated the information to General Huerta.

The communication addressed to both governments by the mediation envoys formally requests each government to declare an armistice. It was pointed out by officials here that in all probability the United States would accept the proposal, notwithstanding the fact that this government has not recognized that a state of war in Mexico exists insofar as the operations of the United States are concerned.

NO BARRIERS IN WAY.

Despite this fact it was believed the Washington government would not put any barrier in the path of the progress of mediation, particularly at such an early stage of the negotiations. Officials here also believed General Huerta would accept the first proposal.

The proposal for an armistice, it also was learned, does not include any reference to the constitutionalists in Mexico, the United States and Huerta merely being called on to make active preparations pending further mediation proposals. Consideration of the constitutionalists' position, it was stated, probably would be involved in the next step to be taken after an armistice has been agreed to by the principals to the present difficulties.

Under the armistice, in accordance with the proposal pending, neither the Huerta government nor the United States would pause in preparations for war. Each, for purposes of the test, would proceed, but the armistice would prohibit actual hostilities in the field and the suspension of military movement by either side.

ONLY ESTABLISHES TRUCE.

In Mexico, people would be permitted to go where they pleased unmolested; it simply would establish a truce. Attention was called here to the statement issued by President Wilson in accepting the good offices of the South American governments in which he expressed the hope that no untoward occurrence should develop pending negotiations that might upset hopes for peace. YOUNG SORORITY WOMEN WILL PHONE THE VOTERS

Atlanta Pan-Hellenic Will Keep After Them to Vote for Grady Bonds

Forgetfulness will not be any excuse for those who neglect the bond box at the election on May 5. Some time Tuesday morning, a fair, strange voice will float in over the telephone of every voter in Atlanta who has a telephone. The fair, strange voice will say something to this effect:

"Hello, Mr. Smith. Have you voted for the Grady bonds? No? Well, it isn't too late yet."

Arrangements have been made at bond headquarters in the chamber of commerce building for the installation of twenty telephones on the day of the election. It is expected that members of the Pan-Hellenic, an organization of young sorority women, will be at one end of those telephones. At the other will be the voters.

The Pan-Hellenic volunteered its services to the workers for a greater Grady last Monday, following a special meeting at which there was read the report of five young women who had inspected the hospital. They described conditions there as unbearable.

A canvass of the business and professional men of the city has revealed almost total unanimity of opinion in favor of the bond issue. Some of the expressions secured follow:

W. J. Blalock, president Fulton National bank: "There can be no question of the necessity for a new and larger city hospital. The present one is not in keeping with the growth of the city. It is astonishing that Atlanta, which is so far ahead of other cities of its size in many respects, should be so far behind all of them in this important detail."

F. S. Arkwright, president of the Georgia Railway and Power company: "Grady hospital needs enlargement and improvement, and needs it badly. The city is now without any adequate means for taking care of its sick and injured. The present hospital is thoroughly behind the times. I shall certainly cast my vote in favor of the bond issue."

W. L. Peel, president of the American National bank: "I have been over the old hospital, and I know it to be wholly inadequate to the demands which are made upon it every day. In my mind, one of its worst features is the absence of any proper provision for persons suffering from contagious diseases. I have heard that a few people complain that $750,000 is too large a bond issue. My personal opinion is that $750,000 is a small sum, compared with the amount of work to be done, and the benefits to be gained. Atlanta must have a new hospital—and it might as well have a good one."

WHAT ABOUT THOSE BONDS FOR GRADY?

About five years ago the city bought a second-hand steam laundry outfit and installed it at Grady. Because it was second-hand, it was cheap. Before then every bit of Grady's laundering had been done away from the hospital at so much per piece.

Now they launder about 4,000 pieces a day, nearly a million and a half pieces a year, with that second-hand outfit. It is a money saver for us taxpayers.

Some 400 meals are cooked three times a day on the old stove in Grady's kitchen. That stove would be just about big enough for a good-sized boarding house. Everything in the kitchen is inadequate and worn out—just like all the rest of the institution.

Grady buys all its ice now. It hasn't any refrigeration plant. It hasn't any room for stores. Its supplies follow almost a hand to mouth process.

Have you ever seen this part of Grady hospital? It's away at the back. You can find it, if you don't get lost in a labyrinth of passages and tunnels.

Last night a mattress caught on fire in one of the wards. What a holocaust there would be if a spark ever got started well in that mass of old buildings!

In this bond issue we'll be face to face with next Tuesday, there is one item as follows:

"For laundry, kitchen, refrigeration plant, boiler equipment; for a decent morgue; for orderlies' quarters—$50,000."

Is that needed?

It is! There's no place about the whole outfit, from front to back, where things are in worse plight than they are around the kitchen and the laundry and the rest of that collection. Money is needed to make room for the sick folks. It is needed to furnish proper equipment for them. It is needed just as badly to provide an adequate kitchen for their food.

Grady hospital must be built anew.

It can't even last, as it is; much less can it continue to perform what is demanded of it.

There's no way to get the hospital we must have, except through the bond issue. Let the next generation help us pay for it. If we build enough room for pay patients, the revenue from them will provide nearly all that's needed each year to meet the bonds.

That bond issue is imperative, Atlanta!

Stand up to your duty!

Vote "aye" next Tuesday.

EXTRA CAR SERVICE FOR THE SHRINERS

Forrest Adair Asks Company to Make Extraordinary Effort to Handle Crowds

To guard against the street car service of Atlanta being overwhelmed by the crowds during Shriners' week, Potentate Forrest Adair has notified the trolley company what the demands probably will be and has suggested extraordinary provisions to meet them.

All-night cars on May 12, 13 and 14 are included among the suggestions by Mr. Adair, in a letter to W. H. Glenn, vice president of the Georgia Railway and Power company he recommends not only that, for handling the multitudes, but also the extension of the day schedules until at least 9 o'clock each night.

"I feel ample assurance that the trolley company will provide all necessary transportation," said Mr. Adair Wednesday. "It is in business to haul passengers. The more it hauls, the more money it makes. The Shrine convention will hold opportunities too big to be overlooked."

Mr. Adair's letter continues as follows:

"On Tuesday, May 12, there will be a parade forming on Peachtree street at the Georgian Terrace about 8:15 o'clock in the morning. And a night parade will leave the same place about 7:30 p. m. These necessarily will disrupt the street car service. They will ve the longest and most attractive parades ever seen in any city of the United States. I am enclosing herewith a blue print showing the line of march down Peachtree and Whitehall to Mitchell, to Broad, to Marietta, to Spring, to Walton, to Forsyth, to Carnegie way. Mr. Burton Smith will be the grand marshal of these parades.

"On Wednesday morning, May 13, we will have at Piedmont park the brigade reviews and exhibition drills of the Arab patrols. About eighty patrols and over fifty bands will participate in these. In other places these drills have attracted from 15,000 to 30,000 spectators. I think it will be absolutely necessary that morning for a regular exposition service of street cars to be given from the center of the city to Piedmont park. The drills will begin promptly at 9 o'clock a. m., and will last until about 2 p. m. Major J. O. Seamans, Atlanta National bank building, will have charge of them.

"On Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings, May 11, 12 and 13, there will be balls given in the auditorium, and on each evening we expect the crowd to equal grand opera crowds. Dancing will continue until probably 2 o'clock in the morning."

STORE MANAGER KILLED BY ROBBERS AT ARAGON

J. D. Freeman Shot to Death When He Attempts to Guard Property

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)

ROCKMART, Ga., April 29.—J. D. Freeman, a prominent citizen of Aragon, was killed last night at the Aragon mills store. The store had been entered for several nights previous and looted, and Mr. Freeman, one of the managers was sleeping in the store thinking he would apprehend the robbers. During the night the robbers entered and he attempted to drive them out. The robbers turned on him and shot him five times through the body.

The shots were heard by the night watchman and he awakened the manager and he with several others entered the store, but they found Mr. Freeman already dead.

The sheriff and bloodhounds have been on the trail all the morning, and the hounds have gon three times to the house of a prominent family of the mills, which seems to be a great surprise to the community. No arrest has yet been made.

It is positively GORGEOUS. Nothing like it has ever before been attempted, and you will never again see such a congregation of high-grade Furniture in such a tremendous variety. Don't miss this re-opening. It is something that will delight the heart of every true housewife, and live in their memories for years to come. Come, and bring your friends.

We have four mezzanine floors and an entire floor of the adjoining building, which we have connected with our main store by a wide arch door on our third floor. The arrangement of the store is completely changed and wonderfully beautified, and every available inch of space is devoted to the display of brand-new goods.

Quality First

This has always been our slogan. It is our "hobby." We delight in selecting the choice styles from the best lines, and are proud to be able to conscientiously tell our patrons that when they buy here they are buying the very best furniture that is made—not the best made to sell at our low prices, but the very best furniture in the WORLD, with absolutely NO exception.

During our re-opening week we will give one of these magnificent Table Lamps FREE with every $35 purchase.

Choice Selections

Yes, we have chosen the most exclusive designs in every line. And whether you want a Dining Room, Bedroom, Parlor, Library or Living Room Suit, or just ONE piece to fill in a vacant space, you can come here with the positive assurance that your choice, whatever it might be, will grace the most elaborate apartment and compare in taste with the most expensive pieces in the room.

Lowest Prices

No other house buys goods any cheaper than we do, and few are satisfied with the small margin of profit at which we sell. But we have built up our splendid business by giving our patrons the best values to be had, and will continue this policy throughout all our dealings.

Terms Can Be Arranged

You will certainly see many pieces which will excite your admiration and envy. If you see anything you would like sent home, and haven't the money to pay for it right then, simply ask the salesman to charge it. We will be glad to arrange terms.

Thin People Can Increase Weight

Thin men and women who would like to increase their weight with 10 or 15 pounds of healthy "meaty fleece" fat should try eating a little Sargol with their meals for a week and note results. Here is a good test for you: First weigh yourself and measure yourself. Then take Sargol—one tablet with every meal—for two weeks. Then weigh and measure again. It isn't a question of how you look or feel or what your friends say about it—it's the scales and the tape measure will tell their own story, and most any thin man or woman can easily add from five to eight pounds in the first fourteen days by following this simple direction. And best of all, the new flesh stays put.

Sargol does not of itself make fat, but mixing with your food, it turns the fats sugars and starches of what you have eaten, into rich, ripe fat producing nourishment for the tissues and blood—prepares it in an easily assimilated form which the blood can readily accept. All this nourishment now passes from your body as it quickly and makes the fat producing cells of the very same meals you are eating day after day, pounds and pounds of healthy flesh between your skin and bones. Sargol is safe, pleasant, efficient and inexpensive. Jacobs' Pharmacy and other leading druggists in Atlanta and vicinity sell it in large boxes—forty tablets to a package—on a guarantee of weight increase or money back.—(Advt.)

TO HOLD MASS MEETING IN INTEREST OF HOSPITAL

Big Crowd Expected to Hear Talk on Grady Bond Issues in Fourth Ward

A Fourth ward mass meeting in the interest of the Grady hospital bond issue will be held Saturday evening in the auditorium of the North Avenue school. This mass meeting was decided upon at a luncheon Tuesday afternoon at the Hotel Ansley, which was attended by thirty leading fourth ward citizens.

W. S. Elkin presided at the luncheon and on motion he appointed the following committee to make the arrangements for the mass meeting: E. H. Cone, R. C. Bosche, George H. Faust, Colonel E. E. Pomeroy and W. B. Ballard.

It was also determined to request the ministers of the Fourth ward to speak a few words in behalf of the Grady bond issue to their Sunday morning congregations. A committee to call upon the ministers was appointed as follows: C. T. Nunnally, W. S. Featherstone, J. C. Logan and J. E. Haley.

There are 1,536 registered voters in the Fourth ward and if that ward is to go for the bond issue two-thirds of these voters—1,024—must vote for it.

Interesting addresses on the necessity for the bond issue and what it is proposed to accomplish for Atlanta and its citizens were made by L. D. Hicks, secretary of the Fourth Ward Grady committee; Ivan E. Allen, vice chairman of the general committee, and several other prominent citizens.

T. D. MURPHY TO RETURN TO NEWSPAPER FIELD

Postmaster Thomas D. Murphy, of Augusta, will go back into newspaper business when his term as postmaster expires in July. Mr. Murphy is one of the best known and best beloved newspaper men in Georgia.

The column which he conducted on the editorial page of the Augusta Chronicle prior to his appointment as postmaster was especially bright and interesting. It was headed "Talking It Over," and was devoted to daily happenings of a more or less personal nature as viewed by Mr. Murphy who signed himself "T. D. M."

Mr. Murphy is to go back on the editorial staff of the Chronicle, probably as managing editor. Mr. Murphy is not a politician and behind his appointment to the postmastership at Augusta lies an interesting little story.

President Taft was spending his first winter at Augusta when he became acquainted with Mr. Murphy whose genial and companionable ways he very much admired. President Taft extended a special invitation to Mr. Murphy to accompany him on his visit to Panama and upon their return to the states he offered Mr. Murphy the postmastership notwithstanding Mr. Murphy was a staunch Democrat.

Mr. Murphy made a good postmaster just as he had already made a No. 1 newspaper man. Sheriff John W. Clark, of Richmond county, will succeed Mr. Murphy as postmaster.

JUDGE J. R. POTTLE IN ATLANTA FOR DAY

Judge J. R. Pottle, former member of the state court of appeals, now a member of the law firm of Pottle & Hofmayer, of Albany, was in Atlanta on business Tuesday and while here he called at the capitol to shake hands with old friends.

According to Judge Pottle the people of southwest Georgia are as yet evidencing but little interest in politics. He had observed, he said, that a majority of the people of his section favor Senator Hoke Smith's re-election and it was his opinion that Governor Slaton had the odds on the short-term senatorial race.

"As far as the governorship is concerned," said Judge Pottle, "the situation is so much up in the air that the people have not yet settled down to a consideration of it."

MATTRESS TAKES FIRE IN GRADY HOSPITAL

To extinguish a mattress which caught fire in one of the rear rooms at the Grady hospital Tuesday night, the entire fire department answered a general alarm which was sent in.

The blaze was soon out, and no damage was done.

8,500 Yds. Calais Val Laces. Worth 35c to 75c yd., at

The most notable lace event we have announced this season 19c

35c new Calais val laces at 19c seems too good to be true; 50c laces at 19c reads like exaggeration; 75c laces at 19c appears incredible. Yet, every word is true—we would be wofully short-sighted to advertise something to bring you in merely to disappoint you.

But you will not be disappointed—you have but to see the laces in the window, to handle them at the counter, to scrutinize the designs and meshes to become as wildly enthusiastic as the buyer, the writer and all who have touched these laces.

Of all the Valenciennes lace family, moreover, the Calais vals are prettiest. It is noteworthy that every yard in this sale is a Calais Val. The laces are in matched sets of edges and insertions from 3 to 6 inches wide. Beautiful designs; copies of real lace patterns in the real lace tints. Glorious possibilities for trimming all sorts of summer garments. Not a yard worth under 35c; a number of yards worth 75c; the average is easily 50c. Buy as many yards as you want at 19c.

Shown tomorrow for the first time when the sale opens at 9 A. M.

(Main Floor, Right)

TIME has wrought many changes since Mr. William Rich, in 1865, brought a wooden house from Stone Mountain and set it up where the L. & N. viaduct now crosses Peachtree. This house stored the only business of its kind then on Peachtree. Two years later Mr. Morris Rich —present head and real founder of this business—moved here from Albany, Ga. Though the business was little, behind it were big ideals. The ideals then were the same as now—quality, service and satisfaction with each purchase. On this basis the business grew until today it occupies its unrivalled position among the other good stores of Atlanta.

But how time flies! Of the pioneer dry goods men of that date —1867—Mr. Morris Rich alone retains an active interest in business —the business he founded 47 years ago.

Stars Aren't Everything in Il Trovatore; Ask Tech Boys Who Suped About the Chorus

TECH BOYS WHO "SUPED" IN IL TROVATORE.

Experience of Forty Who Tried it in "Il Trovatore" is Related by One of Them, Control of Knees Most Difficult Task

BY A SUPE.

It's no cinch—"suping" in grand opera.

Forty Tech boys who tried it Tuesday afternoon are still wondering whether "Il Trovatore" was the name of the guy who led the Soldiers' Chorus or the man who told 'em to "hustle up with them spears, dammit."

You see, a supe sees about as much of the opera as the man in the box office—that is, of the opera the audience sees.

He does see, though, as the forty Tech boys saw, what is far more interesting—grand opera in the pot before it's dished up, scene-shifters transforming a cloister to a gypsy camp, the golden tenor borrowing a match from the chorus man, Leonora putting a last dab of powder on her face, the Count di Luna and Manrico swapping lies with the prompter, Azucena sweeping from a stage aria to "This is the Life," as she trips into the wings.

SUPE HAS STAGE FRIGHT.

We were there, so we know. The only trouble is that a supe is scared, from the moment he comes on the stage until he leaves, weak in the knees with the fear that his best girl out there in front is going to spot that knock-kneed guy with a spear in the last line as her only only.

Ask Hubby Trawick, ask Fred Cluis, Jim Moore, any of those fellows who suped in "Il Trovatore," if they weren't dead certain all their friends in front were staring holes through them in that second act.

They really couldn't tell who you were, of course. But somebody told somebody else that Watt Troy suped in "Trovatore." So when she met Watt Wednesday morning, she declared he "looked too cute for anything in the opera yesterday."

And the poor boy will be dead certain forever that she recognized him.

The supes in "Il Trovatore" were picked men—the most shapely in Tech, for they had to appear in doublet and hose that exhibited the form in queenly manner.

When you supe, you are herded into a so-called dressing room where you are given something that looks like a coffee pot and a pair of long wools and a chest protector.

"HUSTLE" IS THE WORD.

"Git these on an' hustle!" is your only instruction.

After Mellichamp had found out that there was nothing in the can and that he was expected to wear it on his head, and after Reg Plest had put on his armor wrong side out and had to change it, and Fred Wolf had finally managed to get the No. 9 hose on his No. 12 limbs—supers all were shifted to one side while the orchestra tuned up for the first act.

You saw "Il Trovatore," so you know what it was all about. I would call your attention to just one thing—the valiant manner in which Manrico's braves defeated the henchmen of the count in that convent scene.

That was the only place in which the supes really got an opportunity to shine and then somebody hooked down the curtain just as Alexander got excited and started to crack Trilby Woolfolk on the head.

The rest of the time the Tech supes just stood around and looked mostly. O, yes, that Metropolitan chorus is there—even if they do talk mixed Guinea. That's why Big Aleck says he's going into grand opera when he quits Tech.

KIDNEY OR BLADDER WEAK?

Just Mix Juniper and Buchu. Old Folks' Recipe

The symptoms of diseased kidneys and bladder: Scalding, dribbling, straining or too frequent passage of urine; forehead and the back-of-the-head aches; stitches and pains in the back; growing muscle weakness; spots before the eyes; yellow skin; sluggish bowels; swollen eyelids or ankles; leg cramps; unnatural short breath; sleeplessness and despondency. Diabetes, Bright's Disease. The moment you have any of the above symptoms or a dull backache and rheumatic twinges, get from any reliable druggist a bottle of Stuart's Buchu and Juniper. Take a tablespoonful after meals. Drink plenty of fresh water and abstain from eating too much sugar, sweets or highly seasoned foods. Your kidneys and bladder will then act fine and natural. H. E. GLASS, SHARPSBURG, KILLS SELF IN ATLANTA

Left Note Saying He Went to Join His Wife, Who Also Suicided

After carefully arranging his effects and leaving a note asking his friends to forgive him for the act, H. E. Glass, a prominent business man of Sharpsburg, Ga., sent a bullet crashing through his brain in his room in a downtown hotel Tuesday afternoon between 1 and 2 o'clock. He was discovered afew minutes later by a maid, who, upon failing to get an answer to her knock, opened the door. There she found the man lying across the bed in a pool of blood. He was dressed only in his underclothes.

A careful search of the room revealed a note concealed in the man's undershirt sleeve. It follows in part:

"God save mercy on my soul. I am going to join my dear wife in heaven. I cannot forbear this any longer. I hope my friends will forgive me for doing this. Give my love to my friends."

Another letter found offered a solution for his self-destruction. It was undated, but signed by his wife and written on the stationery of a hotel at Moultrie, Ga. The contents made it plain that some time in the past she had taken her life. It told of her love and asked forgiveness.

The body is at Greenberg & Bond's chapel, pending the arrival of relatives from Sharpsburg, who have been notified of the tragedy.

Mr. Glass had been at the hotel since April 23.

Choir Rehearsal

There will be the regular choir rehearsal at the Central Baptist church Thursday night at 8 p. m. instead of Friday evening, on account of the lecture Friday evening by Hon. Joseph G. Camp on "The Daughters of Eve." All those who will join the choir are requested to be present.

PREFERS STUDY OF BUGS TO THE LIVES OF MINERS

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 29.—Hearings before the house mines committee on the bill introduced by Representative Taylor, of Colorado, which would authorize the bureau of mines to create more experiment stations were continued today. In advocating the measure, William Greene, secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers of America, told the committee the government appropriates more money for the study of bugs than for the conservation of the lives of miners.

Tull C. Waters Tells Why Some of His Colleagues Are Fighting His Re-election

TO THE VOTERS OF FULTON COUNTY:

In 1913 a ring of three men gained control of the county commission.

They have since administered the affairs of the county by private caucuses.

This ring has paid to the Barber Asphalt Company from Fulton's treasury $5 per ton more for that company's material, Trinidad Asphalt, than the market price.

The combination has repeatedly favored the same company at the expense of the taxpayers of the county.

This "little combination in restraint of a business administration" has neglected main thoroughfares in order that roads might be built and improved for the benefit of real estate developments in which only a few are interested.

This ring, in its haste and anxiety to serve private interests, has on more than one occasion violated the state law, requiring the advertisement of new roads, before the money of the taxpayers is spent upon them.

I have consistently fought this combination.

It has out-voted me, but I have blocked several of its hurtful measures, and have to some extent been able to prevent wasting of your tax money.

I have forced the Barber Asphalt Company to refund $2,800 wrongfully paid to it, by the triumvirate, from the treasury of Fulton county.

Two of the members of the combination, Mr. S. B. Turman and Mr. W. T. Winn, have two more years to serve special interests as members of the board of county commissioners.

They and Mr. Shelby Smith, the third member of the triumvirate, whose term expires, are all vigorously opposing my re-election as a member of the board.

The answer to the question "Why?" is obvious.

Every voter in the county can assist in breaking up this combination, which has made the public board meetings a farce, by casting a ballot on May 5th for

The Masked Ball

By. Nana Tucker

Thur. Afternoon April 30

THE production of Verdi's "Un Ballo in Maschera" (A Masked Ball) at the Metropolitan this winter, where it had never been given, scored new laurels for an old favorite.

Many years ago it was very popular with Americans. Perhaps the fact that it claims to take place on American soil has to do with this—though this same thing should make against it with some of the more critical. The transporting of an old-world romance to a setting in a new country, and without changing the character of the romance cannot be done without losing the glitter.

An Italian count under startlighted Italian skies, seeking the affections of a sorceress, is better art to American imagination than a colonial governor going at the same hour to find a negro fortune teller, yet with all the character, the accompaniment, the denouement of the old-world romance! From the American standpoint it cannot be done.

AN OPERA WITH AN INTERESTING HISTORY.

But what was Verdi to do? "Gustave III"—that was what the opera was first called—was denied a performance by the authorities in Naples where it was to be brought out, while the rehearsals were going on an attempt was made on the life of Napoleon III, and as the opera contained a conspiracy scene it was at once ordered suppressed.

The people, however, refused to have their beloved Verdi thus treated, the crowds in the streets shouting "Viva Verdi!", and demanding the opera.

A sort of compromise was finally effected by the agreement to change the scene so that it be laid in Boston, Mass., and the opera called "The Masked Ball"—though at that time masked balls were not known in the colonies—a discrepancy of no more account than was the choice of the Puritan town where such scenes as that enacted in the ball room in the governor's house were as far removed as Italy itself.

"Un Ballo in Maschera," then, had its first production in Rome the following year, 1858. It was Verdi's last work for the Italian stage, and indicated a return, following the departure after Wagnerian influence, to the vigor and originality of melody that marked others of his works.

ACT ONE OPENS IN HOUSE OF GOVERNOR.

The first of the three acts opens in a hall in the house of the governor, Riccardo (tenor), where gentlemen, officers and conspirators await his coming. As he appears a double chorus is sung contrasting the attitude of friends and enemies.

A list of invitation for the ball he is about to give is submitted him, and at sight of the name of Amelia he breaks into the romanza, "I shall again behold."

Oscar's beautiful rondo, "Lift up thine earthly gaze," leads up to an effective quintet and chorus.

Amelia (soprano), the wife of Renato (baritone), the secretary and devoted adherent of the governor, has also determined on going this same night to the fortune teller. Aware of his love for her, and returning it unwillingly, she seeks the witch, if haply she may obtain some potion which will overcome and dispel her passion—a passion for which she feels the more poignant grief that it is a wrong against so good a man as Renato.

Ricardo and his company arrive first at the cave, and disguised as a sailor he sings the barcarolle, "Declare if thy waves;" and offering his palm to the seer is told that he will soon die by a hand now friendly.

Pretending disdain, he asks: "Say who will be the assassin?" And at the answer, "He who first shall press your hand today," he offers his hand to each in turn and is refused.

Renato, knowing nothing of what has gone, entering here, Ricardo runs to him and shakes hands with him, his most faithful friend. Assured now of the fallacy of the witch's prediction, he sings, "Can I permit suspicion within my bosom dwelling?"

But the interview had been broken by the entrance of a messenger requesting immediate and secret audience for a lady. Ricardo, recognizing the servant of Amelia, had concealed himself and overheard, as laying forth her unhappy story she spoke plainly of her love for himself, and enraptured at her confession had resolved to follow when obeying the witch's command she should go in search of a certain plant.

GILBERT IN THE LONELY FIELD.

A lonely field wherein stands a gibbet is the opening scene of the second act. Here the trembling Amelia has come to find the magic herb. Affrighted and terror-struck she sings in broken measure a long dramatic aria in which Heaven is implored for aid.

Riccardo appearing, his impassioned love breaks down her struggling resolution, and the duet follows, "Oh, what delightful ecstacies!"

A figure approaching is recognized as that of Renato—he has come in search of his friend to warn him of the nearness of those who seek his life. Ready to faint, Amelia is supported by Riccardo, who draws her white veil over her face.

Receiving the hurried warning from Renato, and besought by Amelia to fly and leave her, before he turns to go he charges Renato—confides to his care the lady, whom he is to escort safe and close-veiled to the gates of the town without the bestowal of look or word.

Set on by the conspirators who mistake the secretary for the governor, the two recall a rough treatment, and in the confusion Amelia drops her veil.

RENATO AND AMELIA IN PASSIONATE LOVE SCENE.

The curtain rises in the third act on a room in Renato's house, where he is engaged with Amelia in a passionate scene, he declaring that she shall die for her perfidy, and she protesting her innocence. A slow movement in minor key—"I die, but first in mercy" (Amelia), is followed by Renato's, "O delights lost forever!" It is said that for originality and true artistic power this aria is worthy of being classed as an inspiration.

The next scene introduces the conspirators, two negroes—"Sam" and "Tom" (bassos), in the Americanized version. (The jarring note is felt here even more strongly than in the case of the negro fortune teller, but it will be remembered that little was known in Italy at that time of life in the colonies.)

Apprising the conspirators of his knowledge of their designs on the governor's life, Renato proposes to join them; and after they are convinced of the sincerity of his purpose, lots are cast, whose hand shall do the fatal deed, and the fate falls to the secretary.

Amelia, surprising the three, comprehends the scene. At this moment the the governor's page, Oscar, enters with an invitation to a masked ball, and the conspirators instinctively agree this shall be the place where the deed shall be done. As they settle on their dominoes the scene closes.

The curtain rises again on the governor in soliloquy. Oscar entering with a letter from an unknown lady he reads a warning that his life will be attempted at the ball, refusing to credit it, he is yet heavily depressed, but soothes himself with thoughts of a sight of Amelia.

OPERA CLOSES WITH VIVID BALL SCENE.

The ballroom scene is one of magnificent brilliancy, with military band, and a stringed quartet stationed behind the scenes for the dance music, and also for the accompaniment of the tragedy, the dark of which is heightened by the entrancing aria, "You'd Pain Be Hearing," of Oscar, while it strikes through like a thread of light.

As Renato discovers Riccardo with Amelia, who is warning him of his danger, maddened by the sight of the two together he throws himself between them, and stabs his friend of friends. And as the governor falls dying, thus is fulfilled the prophecy of the witch.

Too late Riccardo learns that the papers had been signed which were to transport himself and Amelia back to the homeland, where temptation could no longer assail. Receiving his last words and forgiveness, with the horrified company he beholds death set forth across the dark river with the spirit of him he had loved. And amid the lamentations of all, the curtain descends on the last scene.

Powerful Remedy to Cure Rheumatism

Gets Into the Small Spaces in Joints, Muscles and Tissues—Drives the Poisons Out—Completely.

S. S. S. Is a Perfect Wizard to Cure Rheumatism.

Great progress has been made in overcoming all forms of blood sickness by the famous blood purifier, S. S. S. And rheumatism has been dethroned as never before. But people are restless. They look for "new discoveries." And out of the dim, musty past there will, now and then offer the same old Cloven Foot, the same old Prince of Darkness to stampede all the progress accomplished by a safe and rational medical effort.

Thus, S. S. S., considered the best and most effective remedy known for rheumatism, must undo the destructive work that is always going on. A century ago mercury was the guiding star in all blood troubles, still later the iodides and potash stacked the boards and now the impish arsenic misrules the misguided sufferer.

Now to what extent the present generation owes its rheumatism to the mercurial treatment of former days is an outstanding controversy.

We judge from an extensive correspondence during the past forty years, that a host of people trace their rheumatism to a past generation, to their fathers and grandfathers. It "runs in the family." And it is safe to predict that the oncoming generation will likewise suffer so long as the use of mineral drugs is continued. Such drugs have been the "easiest way" a coat of veneer to hide the certain destructive tendencies going on within. This fact has been revealed times without number. Recoveries by the use of S. S. S. point to where innumerable cases of rheumatism were traced to deposits in the joints by mineral drugs. Severe nervous disorders were overcome by S. S. S. after great damage had been wrought by the rocks and metals reduced to drugs. Stomach disorders of the most serious nature, clogged kidneys, hardened liver, catarrhal troubles, chronic bronchitis, asthma, and many direct and reflex diseases have all been the result of harmful drugs. It is therefore, wise to consider the purely vegetable nature of S. S. S. Its long history of successes, its almost universal sale and the fact that in every community throughout the United States are people who have cured the worst forms of rheumatism, catarrh, carbuncles, blood risings and all other forms of sickness and disease arising both from impurities in the blood and from the drastic drugs that were used in the mistaken idea they represented real medical treatment.

Get a bottle of S. S. S. from any drug store and note the quick change. The stomach recovers, the liver starts into action, the kidneys are free, the wheeze of bronchitis is gone, many forms of neuralgia disappear, locomotor ataxia, neurritis, anemia and other damaging evidences of drug tendencies are driven out and from head to foot the pains, aches and distresses are gone.

Be careful to accept no substitute for S. S. S. Many pleasant tasting remedies are loaded with poisonous drugs. Beware of the sting.

For a special book on rheumatism explaining the remarkable action of S. S. S. write to the Swift Specific Co., 602 Swift Bldg., Atlanta, Ga. Get a bottle of S. S. S. today.

THEATERS

(Criticisms of initial performances at the local theaters are written by members of The Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater managers.)

The entertainment that the Forsyth theater offers this week is a corking good vaudeville offering. The seven acts are headed by Valerie Bergere and her splendid company in her latest success, "A Bowery Camille." Another topline act is John F. Conroy and his medley, demonstrating dives, etc., in a huge tank, surrounded by the handsomest stage setting of any act of this sort now inthe country. Mason and Murray have a clever act of songs, conversation and dance and pretty costuming. Captain Anson, the greatest baseball player in his time, delivers an entertaining monologue, and this man of seventy years finishes with a clog to the intense enjoyment of every audience. Next week another of Lasky's biggest successes will headline, Lasky's "Trained Nurses."

Large and enthusiastic audiences have greeted the excellent bill of Junior Keith vaudeville at the Grand the past two days and with the last three performances to be given today for this self-same bill, it is expected a new record for attendance and receipts will be established for the new policy that is less than two weeks old here. The show that has registered such a big hit comprises: Golden and Hughes, old-time minstrel boys that are right up to date with a laughing and singing number that delights all parts of the house; the Castillians, with living poses of the world's masterpieces; Three Raimos, with a novelty that is immensely funny; Hodge and Lowell, in a laughing hit termed "Cupid's Mistake"; Austin and Blake, pretty and clever girl dancers; and the interesting motion picture feature in four parts, "The Dead Man Who Kills."

"The Woman Who Dared," a melodrama with its scenes laid in Russia, is proving popular with Bijou audiences. As presented this week by Eddie Black and his players, the bill has proved exceptionally entertaining. It is a genuine thriller. Mr. Black plays the part of a breezy American art student and he is responsible for a vast amount of real humor. There is just enough comedy in the play to offset the tragic element. Every member of the company is cast for an excellent role. Edwin Vail, Miss Marie Claire, Frank Dare, Miss Anna Brandt, Walter Van Dyke, Miss Alice Delane, Newton Rose and R. H. Turner all appear to splendid advantage. At the hands of Mr. Black and his capable players "The Woman Who Dared," is given a production complete to the smallest detail.

The Lucille LaVerne company has a wonderful combination at the Lyric this week. First, there is the company itself, by far the best ever seen in Atlanta. Then comes the play, "Ann Boyd," a big, stirring, human drama that strikes straight home and is withal a superlative entertainment. Miss LaVerne dramatized it from the book by Will N. Harben, the Georgia writer of Georgia novels. In the play this remarkable story takes new life and new color. Miss LaVerne's interpretation of the title role, in which she starred at Black's theater and en tour, is one of the most finished and thoroughly enjoyable characterizations ever witnessed.

found near the body despite the discovery by Dr. J. W. Hurt, county physician that the bullet found in the man's head was the same caliber as pistol cartridges found in his pockets, the coroner desired a more thorough probe into that phase of the mystery. He directed a further search for the missing weapon and in the hopes of some light being shed, thought it best to postpone the final investigation for a day.

Since the receipt of the telegram mentioned, Dr. Hurt expressed the belief that the man came to his death through his own hand, owing probably to ill health and despondency. Coroner Donehoo, on the other hand, wants to account for the missing weapon, which fact lends color to the theory of murder or manslaughter.

Baker, who is a foreman for the Dysard Construction company and in charge of the work on the Butler street sewer at Piedmont park, testified that he had seen the dead man on several occasions and that he, at all times, appeared absorbed only in himself and paid no attention to him when he passed. On one occasion, he said, the man had a medicine bottle and spoon in his hand, was coatless and nearly always carried a newspaper. He saw him the last time, he testified, at about 10 o'clock of the day he was found dead by John Smith, one of his workmen.

Americans Reported Slain Arrive at Vera Cruz Today

by Huerta's Soldiers Have Reached Vera Cruz With Other Refugees

VERA CRUZ, April 29.—The 113 prisoners, some of whom were reported to be executed by Huerta's soldiers, all arrived safely in Vera Cruz last night. They had been held in the jail at Cordoba by order of the dictator.

Among the party is said to be W. B. Wofford, of Atlanta.

From Mexico City comes the report that one American was killed in front of the Hotel Isabel by a mob a few days ago. His name is not known here.

F. W. Lehmer, a ranch manager from Tuxtepec, whose home is in Omaha and who was on his way to Vera Cruz for a visit, not knowing of the developments here, was picked up at Tierra Blanca by federal soldiers. He, with ten others, was placed in a train and taken to Cordoba.

While being taken through the streets of Cordoba a squad of young volunteers swept down upon them and tried to run them down.

"I was hit on the head with a flagstaff and a man walking beside me was struck on the head with a rock. His scalp was badly cut," Lehmer said.

Commander Tweedie, of the British cruiser Essex, who went to Mexico City several days ago to intercede for foreigners held in the capital, returned here late yesterday and reported that his mission had been successful.

The train on which Commander Tweedie returned to Vera Cruz stopped at Soledad and picked up one hundred American refugees who came from Tierra Blanca, Cordoba and Orizaba.

Commander Tweedie found it difficult to convince General Huerta it was advisable to release Americans and Sir Lionel Carden, the British minister, was called into the conference. Carden also visited Foreign Minister Portillo y Rojas.

NO ESCORTS OR TRAINS.

General Huerta declared there was no reason for placing an escort on the refugee trains and anyway he did not care to assume responsibility of the safety of passengers.

ECZEMA ITCHED FOR 20 YEARS--RESINOL CURED
All Over Face, Arms and Hands. Would Walk the Floor All Night.

Dec. 8, 1913: "I had eczema for 20 years. It started on me when I was but 13 years old and am now 34, and have suffered all these years. It started with small pimples all over my face, arms and hands. My hands would swell up so that I could not shut them, and I was almost blind. It would itch, then burn, and I had to keep the affected parts wrapped up so that I would not scratch them. I couldn't sleep at all—just walked the floor a whole night.

"I have tried many different remedies, and spent a large sum of money, but had no relief. Resinol Soap and Resinol Ointment were recommended to me. They gave me great relief after the third application, and after using four jars of Resinol Ointment and three cakes of Resinol Soap, I am completely cured." (Signed) Mrs. H. E. HUNDREDS GATHER AT MARY PHAGAN'S GRAVE

A touching tribute was paid to the memory of little Mary Phagan on Memorial day when over 300 citizens of Atlanta and Marietta gathered at the grave in Marietta cemetery and held exercises in commemoration of her death—one year ago Sunday.

At the invitation of V. O. Rankin and friends, a party of 100, including Mrs. J. W. Coleman, mother of the dead girl, and other members of the family, went to Marietta at noon Monday on a specially chartered car.

At Marietta they were met by a large delegation and escorted to the cemetery. Here Mary Phagan's grave was banked high with beautiful floral offerings, hymns were sung and devotional services, led by Rev. Olin King, were held.

Hot Water Doesn't Freeze

"Now, my little boys," asks a school teacher, "can any of you name a liquid that doesn't freeze?"

There was a moment's silence, and then a voice answered:

"Please, teacher, hot water!"

MRS. C. R. APPLEGATE
Tells Mothers What To Do For Delicate Children.

"My little boy has been rather delicate for a long time. He was always very pale and his appetite was poor. Several people recommended 'Vinol.' I gave it to him and he took it willingly, as the taste is delicious. In a short time I noticed a great improvement in his appetite. He soon had more color in his cheeks. He is now well like other children and romps about every afternoon after school. I am so happy with what Vinol did for my little boy, that I want every mother to know about it."—Mrs. C. R. Applegate, Dayton, Ohio.

This delicious cod liver and iron preparation without oil is a wonderful body builder and strength creator for both young and old. We promise to give back your money in every such case where Vinol does not benefit. This shows our faith in Vinol. Elkin Drug Co., Atlanta.

Another Local Lady Wonderfully Benefited

It certainly must be a pleasant surprise for a person to find a relief from long years of suffering, especially when they have tried almost every treatment on the market. Quaker Herb Extract and Oil of Balm are surprising these sufferers every day. There has been thousands of bottles of the Quaker Herb Extract sold in this city, and the sale is increasing every day. What is the cause of this wonderful demand? Here is a report that will explain, and others that you read about every day.

Miss Florence Harris, who lives with her mother and father at 148 Lindsay street, has taken two and one-half bottles of the Quaker Herb Extract, and this has caused her to expel a Female Tumor, or growth, which she says positively weighed in the neighborhood of 8 pounds. She said she tried every doctor of any repute, and with the advice from each one that an operation would be necessary. She also states, after this thing was removed she had to go to her family physician and have several applications made to overcome the irritation caused by this trouble.

She could do no walking of any kind and could remain up for just a few hours at the time. Suffered from shortness of breath. She was very weak for some time after this thing was expelled. Now, as I have just stated, there is no doubt but something was expelled, and no doubt she is sincere in her statement. She is very enthusiastic over the results obtained.

If you suffer as did this woman, or with rheumatism, catarrh, liver, kidney, blood troubles, call today at Courtney & Munn's Drug Store, 28 Marietta street, and obtain Quaker Herb Extract, 6 bottles for $5.00, 3 for $2.50, or $1.00 per bottle. Oil of Balm, 25c, or 5 for $1.00. We prepay express charges on all orders of $3.00 or over.—(Advt.)

FIFTH READY TO INVADE MEXICO IF CALLED ON

Officers and Men Making Every Preparation to Bring Regiment to Standard

While the peacemakers continue their conferences at Washington and the warlingoes remain themselves black in the face, while the army and navy of Uncle Sam go on with their plans and the Huertistas are busy putting up their fortifications on the road to Mexico City—while these things are happening, Atlanta's own soldiers of the Fifth infantry are getting ready for whatever may come. They are recruiting companies to full strength, electing officers to fill vacancies, enlisting cooks and teamsters, and practicing how to shoot straight.

Several days ago the word was passed down the line, "Get ready."

Since then the Fifth has been busy.

Now comes another word down the line from Colonel Orville H. Hall, commanding the regiment. It is addressed to the company commanders. It is a formal communication, of which the following is a part:

"Arrangements have been made for one or more medical officers to be at the armory every night during the week of April 27 to examine men. The surgeon has instructions to use strict care in passing men, and two were rejected last night.

TO FILL UP RANKS.

"You will take all necessary measures to fill your ranks at the earliest practicable date to the minimum of fifty-eight men. You should use care and select, if posible, two experienced cooks, one wagoner and one practical artificer. Preference should be given to unmarried young men between eighteen and thirty years of age and those having occupation in Atlanta.

"Encourage your men, especially the new ones, to fire on the range. 'Sniping' appears to be a ruling passion with the Mexicans. The man who can shoot straight is best calculated to feel the least uncomfortable when facing such a situation.'

Every day the men of the Fifth are qualifying to take care of those "snipers." The range at Fort McPherson is like a miniature Vera Cruz.

Company I will go to the range Saturday as an organization and get busy in earnest. Other companies are expected to follow suit.

As to the commissioned personnel, that is being completed rapidly, so if the Fifth does go to war the president will not find it necessary to send strangers to officer the regiment. Four lieutenants have been commissioned recently. Two other aspirants for commission are taking examinations now. On Monday night Companies A, L and M will elect second lieutenants. That same night the second battalion will elect its major.

COLONEL HALL TALKS.

The following other extracts from Colonel Hall's communication to the company commanders helps to explain the situation:

"The adjutant, Captain Mills, notified you by phone last Saturday to begin vigorously recruiting your companies to the minimum authorized strength or fifty-eight men.

"An order was also issued hurrying up an election for major, and the reasons therefor given. Officers in whose company there existed vacancies have already been advised to fill same without delay. The reasons for these various moves could not be entered into in detail by the commanding officer, for obvious reasons.

"However, the following communication from the adjutant general of Georgia, received this morning, gives you further information and light on the subject and is somewhat suggestive, coming from this source:

"'1. In view of the unsettled condition now existing in the Mexican situation, of which you are fully aware, it is recommended that all vacancies in the commissioned personnel of your regiment be filled at the earliest practicable date and that all companies be recruited to the minimum authorized strength.

"'2. This is only a precautionary measure, as no definite information has been received by this office. If a call did come, however, every organization in the state should be in proper condition to respond at once.'"

Turman and Winn Reply to Tull C. Waters' Misstatements

TO THE CITIZENS OF FULTON COUNTY:

In Tuesday morning's paper Mr. Tull C. Waters makes an effort to involve the undersigned in a controversy with him with the view, in our opinion, to distract the attention of the public from his own record.

Mr. Waters is running for re-election, asking an indorsement, and it seems to us that HE SHOULD RUN ON HIS OWN RECORD, rather than that of other members of the Board.

Mr. Waters is peeved because some members of the Board have taken a progressive stand in matters vitally affecting the taxpayers, while he has opposed every change made in the interest of the public welfare.

The $2,800 he claims to have saved the County was on material purchased by his Committee in 1912, being Barber Asphalt, ordered, according to the records, November 4, 1912, and received by the County, billed as Trinidad Asphalt, December 1, 1912, and used on Marietta street.

This same committee, composed of T. C. Waters, Chairman, Clifford L. Anderson and Shelby Smith, gave an order on November 4, 1912, for 981 tons of Asphalt at a cost of $21,197, after the paving season was over, and when they knew that not a pound of it would be used, and the personnel of the Board would change in less than two months.

This material was the same as that laid by a contractor for the City on North Boulevard, and which was condemned by the CITY and torn out. It was purchased without specifications or analysis, to be used on Georgia avenue, but later, when found to be unfit for use as a mixed process, it became necessary for the County to buy other material in its stead. As a matter of fact, the County still has a large part of it on hand to this day, although Mr. Waters has paid for it since he has become chairman of the board.

The Committee of 1913, which Mr. Waters criticises, accomplished the largest year's work in the history of the County, including Georgia avenue, Jonesboro road, Marietta street, Peachtree road, Moreland avenue, Jefferson street, Chestnut street, Campbellton road, Butler and McDaniel street trunk sewers and a number of other jobs. A complete list of all the 1913 work was published in full in all the daily papers, and can be obtained now in pamphlet form by any citizen who desires same at the office of the Commissioners.

The statement by Mr. Waters that we have transacted the County business in private caucus is absolutely untrue.

Mr. Waters admitted in his speech at College Park that "He had been a failure." We do not believe the public will allow him to lay his failure at our door. Stand up to the rack, Mr. Waters, "fodder or no fodder." When the proper time comes we will give a proper account of our official acts.

In the meantime don't try to becloud the real issue. You ask for an indorsement. The public is familiar with your recent attitude. When the January Grand Jury, composed of 23 leading citizens, the State Prison Commission and a majority of our Board was trying to correct a rotten condition of affairs we were confronted by the strenuous opposition of Commissioner Anderson, and YOU supported him to the best of your ability, as you generally do. This is one instance of your efforts to "Block hurtful measures."

The people won, and we are more than willing for the people to say who has been looking after their interests.

Very respectfully,
S. B. TURMAN,
W. T. WINN.

ATLANTA NEW YORK PARIS

We Have Just Unpacked 30

Smart Tailored Dresses $20 Values to Sell at... $11.75

A $20.00 light, all silk foulard dress at $11.75.

Such, in brief, is the fine news of a most extraordinary purchase we have just made.

The woman who is inclined to study out things will not be long in appreciating the opportunity.

She will note the quality of the foulard, its soft all silk quality, she will reckon its cost by the yard---she will find $11.75 is reached before the making of the dress is considered.

And then the style---of the very moment---with a little white chiffon vestee, with a double flat Swiss collar embroidered, and edged in shade of the dress. The skirt is in the bouffant effect with a double ruffle placed rather low over the hips. The new silhouette! Choose from navy, Copenhagen, green and brown, with little Dresden florals in red and blue. Charming!

The Word COMPLETE Tells the Story of This Wonderful

Display of New Cotton Dresses

In our advertisements we strive to place before you the news of the store just as it is—so when it comes to telling you of the new cotton dresses now assembled we must say that the display is complete, as complete as the choice styles of New York's smartest makers could make it.

We say this that you may know where first to turn for the choosing of summer frocks.

The cotton dresses this season are exceedingly attractive, more so than in any season we recall. It is a matter of both the fabrics that are used and the novel ways in which they are designed.

Crepe weaves seem infinite in variety; flaky crepes, rough thread crepes, crepe voiles, corded crepes, embroidered crepes. Usually they are white, with perhaps a touch of color in the embroidery or in a crushed girdle.

But we have no thought of attempting to picture the wealth of individual styles you will find—only to say that the daintiest effects are worked out with sheer Swisses and nets combined with the crepes in bodices, collars, sleeves and ruffles.

Prices begin at $12.50 and go gradually to $42.50.

Misses' Skirts $5 to $6.50 Values $3.75

Woolen skirts of small checks and large plaids, spring shades, fashioned in the tiered and ruffle styles that are most wanted. Ideal for wear with middies and the like.

They should not remain long when the prices show them to be such unusual values.

Misses' Coats, $11.50 to $12.50 Values.... $7.50

They are the loose fitting and very smart Balmacaans that young folks like so well. For that trip this summer, for automobiling we know nothing more satisfactory—the new and light colored mixture weaves, all wool.

Boys' White and Colored Wash Suits $1.00

Compare them with the average $1.00 suit! Russian and blouse suits, low neck, short sleeves; high neck, long sleeves.

All the signs of spring have at last been verified.

If it were not for the United States and Villa, Huerta could probably worry along for two or three years longer.

The opera stars probably agree that there is only one thing greater than American hospitality, and this is southern hospitality.

The Moral Value of Playgrounds.

That is the sentiment expressed a few days ago at a meeting of the City Club of Philadelphia, when the importance of municipal recreation was being discussed. One of the speakers, an official of the park department, related an incident that bears out the truth of the epigram. He observed a group of boys playing on the turf that had just been put down by the gardeners engaged in improving a square. When he reproved them, one of the boys replied: "I guess you are right, Mister. There's not room enough in this square for us and the grass, too. But where can we play"

That was the protest and plea of thousands of children not in Philadelphia alone, but in Atlanta and in every other city that is growing rapidly and developing new needs. Play is as essential to youth as food is to toiling men—essential to the health of mind and soul as well as body. Dirt has been called matter out of place. Badness among children is largely impulse and energy misdirected. A vast deal of juvenile crime, if the term "crime" may be used in this connection, is traceable to a lack of adequate playground and recreation facilities.

It is the children who play in the streets that cause most trouble to parents and to the community. But few children play in the streets from choice. Most of them who play there do so simply because the city has failed to provide for their needs. Statistics gathered in many cities show that in neighborhoods where playgrounds are established there is a minimum of juvenile offenses, but that in crowded districts where playgrounds are not conducted there are all sorts of mischief and misdemeanors. And the records show furthermore that accidents and injuries to children are fewest where playgrounds are provided.

This is a matter that no city which has due regard for its present and future interests can afford to neglect. Every dollar Atlanta spends upon its park and playground system is repaid a thousand times over in health and sound morals, and in the fostering of all those qualities that make for good citizenship.

Would that mediation could be injected into the Georgia political situation.

With his war preparations, Uncle Sam intends to show General Huerta the wisdom of mediation.

Atlanta continues to make a good baseball showing, just as if she had never secured one of those regional banks.

Aviators At Vera Cruz.

One of the aviators accompanying our naval forces at Vera Cruz has done distinctive service in locating the whereabouts of the Mexican troops under General Maas. With scant difficulty or danger and with no delay, a short, swift flight of the aeroplanes accomplished all that would have required many hours and much risk, perhaps, from a detachment of cavalry. Should fighting continue, it will be very interesting to observe the uses of air craft in clearing the way for military operations. The New York World comments that it is "the eyes of land and sea forces that the aeroplane should serve. Air scouts inflict no more serious damage upon the enemy than to discover his exact location and supply an estimate of his strength. If they can do that efficiently in time of emergency, they will be worth their weight in gold."

That aeroplanes are of peculiar value in this connection can no longer be doubted. They were employed with practical effect by the Italians in their Tripolitan campaigns and by the Greeks in their war with Turkey. During the siege of Adrianople in the Balkan war a Russian birdman flew over the city, dropping printed demands for surrender, and later, flying machines sent forth by the Bulgars dropped fire bombs on the enemy's forts. It is for scouting purposes, however, that the aeroplane is now most valuable, though it may develop into an instrument of offensive warfare.

Germany has spent some twenty-eight and a half million on its aeronautic corps, France twenty-three and a quarter millions, Russia twelve and a half millions, Italy eight and a half millions, Austria, five millions, England three and a half millions and Japan a million and a half—a record which attests the seriousness with which those Governments regard the aeroplane as an adjunct to military and naval forces. The United States has devoted little more than half a million dollars to this purpose, but it is probable that we shall be more wisely generous in the future.

A Week of Wonders.

Atlanta finds itself today in the midst of its most delightful and most wonderful week of Metropolitan grand opera. As brilliant as past seasons have been, the one now in progress will undoubtedly eclipse them all. The audiences that crowded the Auditorium Monday evening and Tuesday afternoon were a tribute to the spirit of this community and of all the South as well as to the genius of the Metropolitan artists.

In no other city, not even in New York, do such audiences gather to hear opera. More than six thousand people attended the opening performance and as many, if not more, were present Tuesday afternoon. As the week advances this record will doubtless be broken, for, public enthusiasm is growing by what it feeds upon.

Not only the size, but chiefly the character of the audiences is remarkable. They are made up primarily of music-lovers, persons of discernment and ardent appreciation, many of whom have come hundreds of miles from other States and other parts of the Union to enjoy the rare opportunity which Atlanta's week of Metropolitan opera presents.

As for the performances themselves, all words of praise must fall back futile and abashed; their perfection, their enchantment must be felt to be appreciated. Suffice it to say that the week's program is in its entirety the most satisfying that has yet been offered.

As a ruler, President Wilson has had some fine practice in versatility.

Colonel Roosevelt has found a new tribe of savages, which is interesting but will hardly help the colonel's cause at home.

Parcel Post Marketing.

Much interest has been aroused by the experiment which the postal authorities are conducting in ten cities of the United States with a view toward making the parcel post a practical medium of marketing. It is believed that if country producers and urban consumers can thus be brought into closer trade relationships, the cost of living will be appreciably reduced and the production of fresh food supplies notably encouraged. There are hundreds of people in rural districts who have eggs, butter and vegetables which they would sell at reasonable prices, if they could reach the centers of demand, and there are thousands of city people who would buy these products if they could get in touch with those who have them. The parcel post offers an excellent opportunity for bringing these classes together to their mutual profit. Its rates are low, its service is prompt and efficient, and it is available to almost every farmside in the country.

Before trade of this character can develop, however, it is necessary that the consumer shall know what the producer has to sell and that the producer shall know what the consumer wants to buy, and also that there be an understanding as to prices. Hence the postoffices in ten cities have undertaken to secure lists of such food commodities as are offered for sale in the adjacent territory and to encourage in every proper way the growth of parcel-post trade between pantry and farm. Atlanta is one of the cities where the experiment is being conducted and where it should prove distinctly successful and valuable.

It is not to be expected that the end in view will be attained in a few weeks or a few months, for, there are many difficulties to be dealt with, and the development of new channels of trade requires time. In this connection, the Baltimore Sun offers practical advice when it says:

> What is necessary is a careful study on the part of consignor and shipper of the system which they are undertaking to use—the exact prices of articles wanted; the cost of shipment in the particular zone to which they belong; the precise time required to deliver the goods; the trains or boats by which they should be sent, and the kind of packing necessary to insure their delivery in good condition. Moreover, if the city man is to get the very best results, he must be ready to contract to buy so much produce of certain kinds each week, and the country producer must be ready to contract to supply so much each week. Every housewife knows how many potatoes, how much butter and how many eggs she requires on an average for her family by the week, and she could contract as easily for a regular service as for an intermittent one. It would not pay either seller or buyer to deal merely at intervals.

The problem of the high cost of living is largely a problem of the high cost of marketing. It has been estimated, indeed, that the production of food costs less than its distribution. To the extent that it reduce the cost of marketing farm products, the parcel post will exert a far-reaching and helpful influence in economic affairs.

There is still hope that it will not be necessary for Colonel Roosevelt to go to the front.

What if General Huerta doesn't mediate properly? We still have soldiers ready for him at Vera Cruz.

Editorials in Brief

Naming the child is a more serious business in France than in England. No child in France can be given a name which does not occur in the official calendar of saints. As this comprises thirteen thousand names the range of choice is fairly wide, but the restriction makes it impossible to bestow family names, like Smythe Robin, etc., as English and Americans are increasingly fond of doing. French parents, however, may select any name, male or female, irrespective of the sex of the child, and there are hundreds of Frenchmen who bear the name of Mary.—London Chronicle.

Some Striking Whys and Wherefores Of the Hospital Bond Issue

To any tax payer who had a moment's doubt as to how he ought to vote in the hospital bond election the following statement is commended. It is by a physician who knows the needs of the hospital, the needs of the community, and who is loyal to the highest interests of Atlanta and her people.

I would like to ask a few questions concerning Grady hospital bonds, and answer some.

We hear a great deal about tax payers opposing the measure because it will increase their taxes. What percentage of increase will fall upon each individual tax payer from a $750,000 bond issue? Won't it be an infinitesimal amount, and isn't every tax payer willing to give that much toward the indigent sick of the city?

Some of these same tax payers oppose pay wards because they will compete with the private sanatoriums of the city. The revenue from the pay wards indirectly will again lower the tax rate. Pay wards at the Grady hospital will not affect the income of the private institutions. Every sanatorium and hospital in Atlanta is practically full all the time, and the city must provide more room for the sick people who are attracted here by our advantages as a medical center. Every reputable physician will be invited to place his patients in the new hospital.

There is much talk about the movement being for the good of the medical college. Grant that this is true, and it is admitted that the college will derive benefit from a greater Grady, isn't it true that the city was doing something for the college? For sixty years the medical college has been giving the poor of Atlanta free medical and surgical attention, thousands of patients receiving the best treatment every year. This was being done thirty-five years before Grady hospital was even thought of. It has been shown that the medical students spend nearly half a million dollars in Atlanta annually.

There is another way in which the college helps the city, which has not been before mentioned. The young doctors who leave here every commencement bring hundreds of patients to Atlanta every year, and practically all these patients are carried to private sanatoriums, not to the Grady hospital. If the medical college is closed, most of the private sanatoriums would have to close. No city can exist as a medical center without an educational institution.

Another argument in favor of pay wards is the fact that it then becomes no stigma, however unfair, upon an unfortunate person to be a patient there. Were only charity patients admitted, anyone known to have been sick at Grady hospital would be known to have been on the charity of the city.

Less than a dozen doctors connected with the Atlanta Medical college receive compensation for their work, and these are men who give their whole time to teaching and do no practice. The remaining sixty doctors give their time and labor without monetary recompense, but get their pay in prestige and experience.

Some objectors ask why we can't get along with less money. The county is just finishing a magnificent court house, which could not possibly be too fine for Atlanta. Couldn't we have got along with a cheaper one? Didn't the building of this structure benefit people who do nothing for our city? I understand that the contract for furnishing, involving many thousand dollars, was let to a Cincinnati firm. Why wasn't this money spent in Atlanta?

One of the unfairest statements is that the employes of corporations are cared for at Grady at the city's expense. This is untrue, as Superintendent Summerall's books will show. The statement that one of the most prosperous private sanatoriums will close if the new Grady is built, and the railroad patients of this institution be placed in the Grady at the city's expense, is absolutely false and preposterous.

Where has the "Atlanta Spirit" flown in this campaign? In yesterday's issue of the United States census for 1914 estimates Birmingham's population as only 13,000 less than Atlanta's. Ten years ago Atlanta contained twice as many people as Birmingham. Doesn't this mean that we must look to our laurels as the boasted metropolis of the southeast? For many years we have set the pace for progress in this part of the country. Shall we now fall behind in the opportunity to become in fact as well as in name the greatest medical center between Baltimore and New Orleans?

The Courtship of the Birds

A few days' pleasant sunshine, after nearly a month of storm and rain, wonderfully revived the spirits of everything in the zoological gardens, the birds especially. Many birds, indeed, are already in the midst of their courtship, and with them, as with all their kind, the tender passion, if brief in duration, is very strenuous while it lasts.

It is a fine sight in the early morning, when comparative quiet reigns through the shrubberies, to see the Imperyan pheasant rustling the splendid jewelry of his plumage in the sunlight, till every bronze-green and blue eye-spot in his tail seems prismatic as the enamored owner turns ...re and there to show his beauty to the sober little hen in the background. In another paddock the peacock, that miracle of loveliness to whom familiarity alone prevents us rendering proper homage, has just remembered that he has a train as good as the impeyan's.

That wonderful confection of his tier above tier of gleaming orbs, framed for contrast in seawed green and fringed above with rustling brown and gold, glitters in the sunlight as the possessor struts here and there with splendid ostentation before the demure object of his affection. These are two of the birds whose lovemaking depends upon a display with which humanity can fully sympathize. There are others whose courtship appears absolutely ridiculous and insane, feathered buffoonery meant only to disgust any hen bird of ordinary intelligence.

The ruffs are examples of this latter class. Every male of the species is differently plumaged, and wears an immense frill, in the midst of which is his head and long projecting beak. Thus garbed, when the spring sunshine is in his blood, he tears frantically round the margins of his pond, halting now and then, when no enemy is in sight, in an attitude of heroic defiance. Should a rival be actually encountered, he stands beak to beak with him for an indefinite period, only to ignore the combat after all, and go plunging and dancing round the pool again in an ecstasy of hare-brained foolishness.—London Globe.

THE SEARCHLIGHT

Smallest Dinosaur in the World.

The smallest dinosaurs thus far discovered is now being put together in the National museum, Washington, D. C. It will measure six feet long and three feet high, and the head is only seventy-two inches long. It is but one-fortieth the size of most of the specimens of this strange reptile that have been discovered and preserved by man. Some have skulls that measure from six to nine feet, and are immense in bodily length and height.

The diminutive specimen was unearthed last year on the Blackfeet reservation, in northern Montana, by Charles W. Gilmore, who was exploring for the United States geological survey. He also found the partial skeletons of five other dinosaurs, and the whole forms a very valuable addition to the National museum's exhibit of this sort.

Another interesting feature, and one of the highest scientific importance, is that the skeleton was found with the foot and tail articulated, making it the first complete and connected skeleton ever uncovered, notwithstanding the fact that scientists have been making a diligent search for dinosaurs for forty years, when the first one was discovered.

This dinosaur has three horns, two above the eyes and one on the end of the nose. The horn on the nose is different from all others found, in that it is a nasal outgrowth, whereas heretofore every one found by scientists has been an independent growth. It has jaws like a turtle, there being a sharp curved beak, but no front teeth. It has fine cutting teeth in the back of the jaw, showing that it subsisted upon herbs.

From Vera Cruz to Mexico City

There are two main-traveled ways into Mexico. The first lies across the stormy waters of the Mexican gulf to the yellow strand of Vera Cruz, beyond which the "star mountain" of the Aztecs, Citlaltepl (Orizaba, 18,250 feet high) rears its gleaming snow cap in midheavens above the clouds. It was here that Cortes landed four centuries ago, and it is the route followed by European travelers today. Here stands Ulua, the promontory fortress where more than one of Mexico's short-lived rulers languished and died of yellow fever, and which was the last stronghold of Spain. Beyond it arise the white buildings and towers of Vera Cruz, a dream city, as beheld from the gulf, of interest and beauty, and to the west are the broad coastal deserts. Piled up to the horizon are the wooded slopes and canyons of the great Sierra Madre, topped by the gleaming Orizabe, towering upward in solitary majesty. We stand upon a torrid strand, yet gaze upon an icy mountain.

One of the most remarkable railways in the world ascends this steep zone, and serpentines among sheer descents to gain the summit of abrupt escarpments, from which—a remarkable feature of the eastern slope of Mexico—the traveler looks down into another country and climate, upon those tropical valleys which he has left below. This is the Mexican Vera Cruz railway. Rising from the tierra calientes, or hot lands, a tropical region of dense vegetation, of jungle and lagoon, where there are the shores, woods and groves teeming with animal and vegetable life, the road enters the tierras templadas zone, the tierra templada, extending upward toward the great plateau. The limit of this climatic zone is at an elevation of 6,000 feet above sea level. Rising rapidly thence up to and over the escarpments of the Sierra Madre and the high plains, we enter upon the tierra fria, or cold lands, ranging from 6,000 to 8,000 feet above sea level. Above this rise the high summits of the Mexican Cordilleras, with their culminating peaks, some few of which penetrate the atmosphere above the limit of perpetual snow.

The earliest railway of Mexico, that from Vera Cruz to the City of Mexico, traverses the country in the most difficult direction, transversely, rising from tidewater and the Atlantic littoral, and ascending the steep escarpments of the Eastern Sierra Madre to fall down into the lake valley of Mexico, bringing outside civilization to that isolated interior world.

But Mexico's singular topographical position has not secured her from invasion. Three times the city on the lakes has fallen to foreign invaders—the Spaniards of the conquest, the French of Napoleon, and the Americans of the United States. Indeed, the flat and arid tableland stretching away to the north was formerly a most natural defense than the Cordilleran heights which front the Atlantic seas, and the axiom of Lerdo is well brought to ming in considering the geographical environment, "Between weakness and strength, the desert!"—From "Mexico," by Reginald Enock.

Quips and Quiddities

With a great sense of awe and importance the young couple stood in front of the parson, the new baby comfortably slumbering in its mother's arms.

Evidently with an idea of improving the occasion, the new curate drew fit to launch into a gentle homily on the child's future upbringing.

"Who knows?" he finished up. "This child may one day become a clergyman like myself, or a brave soldier, or daring sea captain. It is even possible that he may one day become an illustrious statesman."

The little mother's eyes had gradually grown rounder and rounder.

"What name did you say?" said the parson.

In a timid whisper came the apologetic reply:

UNEMPLOYMENT

V.—PRIVATE AGENCIES.

BY FREDERIC J. HASKIN.

Distribution of things is one of the most important problems in cost and efficiency across the full of American progress. In degrees of varying intensity, it is the vital question before the peoples of all nations today. It not only applies to the commodities of industry, but to land, labor and capital, the three partners concerned in the production of these commodities. There are many students and practical investigators who maintain that an efficient system for the distribution of labor would accomplish more toward the relief of unemployment than the adoption of all the other cures which have been suggested.

• • •

The adjustment of the labor market at present is left, in large part, to happy chance. It is one of the strikingly inefficient phases of business life. The employer and the "man out of work," are separated, the latter, loss much valuable time in hunting for another through uncharted city seas, and there is the greatest element of opportunity that the wrong employer and the wrong employe will come together at last. In many of the occupations the archaic method of business and practice in the sale of labor. The laborer peddles his services from door to door until a buyer at length is found.

• • •

Something, however, toward the more efficient operation of the labor market has been accomplished through the development of private agencies. Trade unions, in the more completely organized trades, make the placing of their unemployed one of their systematic tasks. In such occupations as the building trades, pattern makers, printers and pressmen, and a few others as highly organized, in which there is practically no non-unionism, the union itself forms the ordinary means of communication between employer and employe. Upon notification that a certain number of men are wanted by any employer, the business agent or walking delegate of such organizations in turn notifies the unemployed members of the union in order of priority.

• • •

On the other hand, among trade unions as a whole methods of finding work for unemployed members are haphazard in the extreme. Some of these organizations keep an out-of-work list, or book, and refer men on this list to any job which may happen to be reported at their offices. These men may be selected in the order in which their names appear on the list, or they may be chosen at random, or, possibly, the fitness for the position offered may be the determining factor. In other cases, information of possible sources of employment is posted upon a blackboard at the union headquarters, where all who see it may take advantage. As a general rule, the trade union has insufficient means at its command to deal with the unemployment of its members in their immediate locality, while it seldom has the machinery for close co-operation with neighboring communities.

• • •

The daily newspaper, with its intimate entrance into the home, shop and office, has come to play a part of increasing importance in the distribution of labor. Its normal usefulness, however, according to a number of careful analyses recently made of the "want ad" columns of big city dailies, is confined to certain special classes of labor. Thus, the "want ad" section serves as an important labor exchange for clerks, store employes, salesmen, shop assistants and domestics. It rarely touches the fields of the industrial workers. Of course, as a last resort, the columns of the newspapers are available aids in their search for work to people in all occupations.

• • •

Nevertheless, the usefulness of the "want advertisement" is confined by the narrow boundaries of its community with which the paper serves. It is not a medium for the interadjustment of the labor markets of neighboring communities. Often, too, casual examination of the "want ads" will show that many which are nominally for help are "fake" or misleading. Many are intentionally vague and many overdrawn. Newspaper advertising cannot solve the problem of labor distribution, although it will always remain a large and an effective factor in the adjustment of the local labor markets.

• • •

The commercial employment agency has made more pretentious claim for recognition as being the modern solution of the problem of labor distribution than all other private agencies, and there is much to be said for the usefulness of the better class of these businesses well organized and trusted in their communities and with a network of connections in other cities and towns. These better class agencies, however, form a respectable minority among a great majority of employment offices practicing all manner of abuses upon the needy worker.

• • •

These commercial agencies are found in every city of any size in the United States. In the larger cities they flourish by the score. Most of these agencies specialize upon the work of supplying one class of labor. There are stenographers' exchanges, employment bureaus for waiters, hotel clerks, farm hands and domestics. The mistress of a large household obtains her kitchen maids from one agency, her cook at another, her chambermaids at a third, as a fourth her laundress, her own maid at still another, while the other help of her establishment come from some half-dozen further special offices.

• • •

The work done by these commercial agencies is such as to enable them to practice every manner of fraud and deception. In many cases their patrons first seek a position as a last resort, and in the end. They are often of low average mentality, and, therefore, easily hoodwinked. The ignorant, dull worker who comes to them in distress, with but a few dollars left with which to tide over starvation, falls an easy prey. Stories of swindles perpetrated by these agencies and of the bitter sufferings which their deceptions have caused, come from every section of the country.

• • •

The employment agency fraud and abuse is a thing of innumerable shapes and sizes. Registration fees are often charged and then no effort made to find work for the client. Exorbitant fees are often measured to the degree of the applicant's necessity. The applicant is often sent where no work exists. In some cases there is collusion between the agent and the employer, the applicant is given a day's work and then discharged to make way for another dupe, with the agent and the employer divide the fee. More often this fraud is worked wholesale from the agent and a number of "fake" employers, who fatten by bleeding the blood-poor dry. Again, the applicant is sent to some distant place, where there is no work, or, at least, no work of the kind promised, the intention against the return of the shorn sheep on account of the expense involved. The business agents also frequently increase their profits by inducing some one to quit their employment for the purpose of securing new "jobs." This dodge is practiced particularly upon girls, and brings in rich returns of extra fees. Where the need is urgent enough to give the employment agent the advantage over the supplicant for work-seeker, fees, cents and extra fees are often successfully extorted.

• • •

These do not end the list of iniquitous practices which have placed them to the credit of the worst class of commercial employment bureaus. They have been charged with being recruiting stations for white slaves," feeding upon the sale and destruction of victims who have come with their last money to purchase aid. In some cases such collusion between the commercial agency and keepers of immoral houses has been uncovered. Along the same lines they have been accused of conniving at persons for gambling and catering to the demands of several other of the evil markets. Sometimes these offices are conducted in connection with restaurants or some other business, and the attendant evil results are easily to be understood.

• • •

The widespread notice which the abuses of the commercial agency succeeded in attracting to them caused most of the states to enact laws for their proper regulation. It is generally provided in such laws that license shall be taken out, bond given, and it is required that registers be kept and that the attention of the office shall not be in a place where liquor is dispensed.

"DER ROSENKAVALIER," NEW STRAUSS OPERA, IS NEXT

Atlanta Is Looking Forward to "The Rose Bearer" in Which Frieda Hempel, Margarete Ober and Otto Goritz Will Have Principal Roles—Music Is Said to Be Sparkling and the Comedy Delightful

MR. HERTZ TO CONDUCT THE GERMAN WORK.

Alfred Hertz, the great conductor of German works, will direct the orchestra. He is enthusiastic over the Strauss opera and is confident that Atlanta will find in it many beauties.

Mr. Hertz, it is said, is to a large degree responsible for the success of "The Rose Bearer" in America. The original score was unusually long, the libretto full of dull passages and the whole work rather unwieldly; but Mr. Hertz skillfully cut it here and there, joined the prts into a perfect whole and gave it such an artistic production—that New York, which first received the opera with doubt, flocked to succeeding performances and pronounced it good.

"The Rose Bearer," to give the opera its English title, is called by its composer a "comedy for music" and in its action is an opera comique, though some of its music is said to be among the greatest ever written by the whimsical composer of "Salome" and "Elektra." There are more than 100 separate themes, including several typical Viennese waltz motifs and any number of fine arias, duet and trios. The stage settings are new and elaborate, and the work is presented with the lavishness which marks all of the Metropolitan productions.

THE GREATEST "TROVATORE" OF ALL.

Tuesday afternoon's "Trovatore" will linger long in the memory of the big audience which heard it. The familiar Verdi opera has never before been offered Atlanta with such a cast as Gadski, Amato, Martin and Ober. The five thousand auditors were weary with applauding when the final curtain dropped.

Pasquale Amato, the baritone who has become such an Atlanta favorite, fairly eclipsed himself in the role of the count. When he had finished the wonderful "Tempest of My Heart" in the second act the audience rose to its feet and cheered him again and again, and the smiling baritone was called before the curtain for seven or eight responses. For a time it appeared that Conductor Hageman would be forced to rap for a repetition of the aria. But finally Amato disappeared behind the crimson hangings and declined to come out again, and the lights went on.

Mme. Gadski was heard for the first time as Leonora, and those who had identified her with such roles as Elizabeth and the stately heroines of The Ring were surprised at the flexibility of her voice and the versatility of her style. She was not as passionate a Leonora as some of the Latins we have heard nor did she avail herself of the vocal fireworks in which many sopranos revel in this role, but her singing was marked with dignity and precision and none of the beauty of the part suffered in her hands. Praise for Gadski, however, seems superfluous, for music lovers have long been accustomed to taking her powers for granted. She is one of the truly great artists of the musical world.

Riccardo Martin, who has been heard twice before as Manrico, seemed to sing the part more beautifully than ever before. His voice is peculiarly adapted to the sweet, plaintive strains of "Trovatore," and it blended as perfectly with the contralto of Ober in the dungeon scene as in the tender love passages with Leonora. The famous "Miserere" near the close was sung amid a stillness which showed that the audience, even though physically tired from a long afternoon in an uncomfortably warm building, was determined not to miss a note of this noted duet. They were not disappointed.

"Trovatore" contains so much that is noteworthy, so many famous jewels of music, that extended comment is impossible. But the work of the chorus, first in the gypsy camp and afterward in the camp of di Luna's troops, was marked with such vigor and harmony that it is worthy of especial mention.

Advanced students of music are saying that the "Trovatore" is cheap and hackneyed and out-of-date. Perhaps this is true. But Verdi put enough sheer beauty and melody into "Trovatore" to make success for half a dozen operas, and the modern composer who gives the world another as melodious will find fame and fortune for a lifetime and beyond.

HALF HOLIDAY GENERALLY FAVORED BY MERCHANTS

According to the report of a special committee from the Retail Grocers' association, which has been interviewing down town merchants on the question of having a half holiday each Wednesday, the merchants seem to be generally in favor o felosing at 1 o'clock on that day.

Wednesday has been chosen as the day for the weekly half holiday because many think it more desirable than Saturday. By giving the half holiday in themiddle of the week there is an agreeable break in the work and employes have time for shopping Saturday.

If Wednesday is finally chosen the plan will go into effect June 10.

FIGURES SHOW VALUE OF ATLANTA REAL ESTATE

Interesting figures recently compiled for 1914 in the tax assessor's office show just how much real estate is worth in each ward of the city. The real estate valuation by wards was given into Mayor Woodward's hands Wednesday morning, and it will be of interest to others.

It is as follows: First ward, $17,810,-250; second ward, $15,604,475; third ward, $6,946,910; fourth ward, $9,559,-125; fifth ward, $3,186,303; sixth ward, $47,579,299; seventh ward, $4,548,615; eighth ward, $12,906,250; ninth ward (DeKalb), $3,279,200; ninth ward (Fulton), $4,918,800; tenth ward, $2,002,350. The total, which has been published before is $150,336,575.

WHEN SKIN BREAKS OUT OR ITCHES APPLY SULPHUR

SAYS AN OUNCE OF BOLD-SULPHUR CREAM WILL DRY ANY ECZEMA ERUPTION RIGHT UP

Sulphur, says a renowned dermatologist, just common bold-sulphur made into a thick cream will soothe and heal the skin when irritated and broken out with Eczema or any form of eruption. The moment it is applied all itching ceases and after two or three applications the Eczema disappears, leaving the skin clear and smooth.

He tells Eczema sufferers to get from any good pharmacy an ounce of bold-sulphur cream and apply it to the irritated parts the same as you would any cold cream. For many years common bold-sulphur has occupied a secure position in the practice of dermatology and cutaneous affections by reason of its parasite-destroying property. It is not only parasiticidal, but also antipruritic, antiseptic and remarkably healing in all irritable and inflammatory conditions of the skin. While not always effecting a permanent cure it never fails to instantly subdue the angry itching and irritation and heal the Eczema right up and it is often years later before any eruption again appears on the skin.

May Apple Root

Oldest Known Medicine Mentioned in Genesis and Songs of Solomon

"Mandrake" is the Biblical name of what we call May Apple. Of the May Apple, Encyclopedia Britannica defining the word Podophyllin, says: "Mandrake or May Apple Root, a popular remedy much used by those averse to calomel or other mercurial preparations, hence has been called 'Vegetable Calomel.'"

Our grandsires used May Apple Root, tea or powder, as a Liver Regulator. It has survived by virtue of its merit as a starter of Bile. Our forefathers said: "It makes the Liver act"—which is true in the sense that it releases the Bile from the Liver.

Bile is the one natural germicide that overcomes germ growth in the intestines. A free normal flow of Bile is essential to immunity from germ infection and intestinal disorders.

For years chemists have labored to overcome the only objection ever raised to Podophyllin—the griping—and at last have succeeded and offer to the world a new formula, called "PoDoLax"—"PoDo" from Podophyllin and "Lax," meaning laxative or gentle action as contrasted with its former cathartic or purging effect.

PoDoLax is good to taste and is taken by children from a spoon or glass without the usual resistance. Best results are had by a single dose when a bad taste, or bad breath, or coated tongue are first noticed. Ask for PoDoLax and be sure to get PoDoLax.

MINE STRIKE 'MOURNERS' LOCKED UP IN NEW YORK

Upton Sinclair and Women Make Demonstration at Rockefeller's Office

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, April 29.—Upton Sinclair, his wife and three women, were arrested today after a demonstration at the offices of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in the Standard Oil building. They had come to protest against the Colorado strike.

A woman, who said she was a Socialist, invaded the outer offices of John D. Rockefeller, Jr., in the Standard Oil building today and sought to interview him with reference to the coal miners' strike in Colorado.

Mr. Rockefeller's secretary told her he was busy.

The woman carried an American flag and described herself as Mrs. Nelle N. Silverman. She was joined on the sidewalk by Upton Sinclair, who wore a bit of crepe on his arm in pursuance of a plan announced at a Socialist mass meeting last night, where it was agreed that "mourners" would gather in front of the Standard Oil building as a protest against the sacrifice of lives in Colorado.

Mrs. Silverman sought to place this message before the Younger Rockefeller: "I am an American citizen, standing at your door, waiting for just a word with you. Will you grant me this request? My question will be brief and to the point."

The prisoners were taken to police station, where Mrs. Sinclair was released. The other women, who were placed in cells pending their arraignment in court, said they were Mrs. Elizabeth Freeman, an English suffragette, who has once been in jail with Mrs. Emeline Pankhurst; Mrs. Margaret Remington Charter and Mrs. Donie Lietner. All had been arrested on the sidewalk in front of 26 Broadway.

"I wasn't doing a thing but walking up and down in the street with a piece of crepe on my arm," said Sinclair. "A policeman stopped me and said that if I did not stop walking I would have to go along with him. I told the policeman I did not see any reason why I should stop walking and he promptly placed me and my associates under arrest."

PENSACOLA IS AFTER CONCENTRATION CAMP

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 29.—A delegation of citizens from Pensacola, Fla., headed by Mayor Greenhut and Senator Bryan, urged state, war and navy department heads today to consider the advantages of Pensacola as a concentration camp in the event of hostilities in Mexico. They pointed out that Pensacola has a strategic location on the Mexican gulf coast, affords an elevated camp site and has an abundant supply of pure water.

REP. ADAMSON'S BILL GETS FAVORABLE REPORT

Georgia Congressman Overhauls Navigable Rivers Law

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, April 29.—The house interstate commerce committee, it was announced today, has decided to make a favorable report on a bill introduced by Representative Adamson, of Georgia, amending the act regulating the construction of dams across navigable waters. The measure now gives authority to the secretary of war to accommodate communities and derive some revenue for the government from projects constructed wholly at the expense of the government by leasing on satisfactory terms, with proper safeguards, the surplus water not needed for navigation at such projects.

There is also included a provision permitting the use of public lands for dam projects on terms to be prescribed by the secretary of war where the proposed structure is to be in a navigable stream.

Watch Carefully the Child's Diet

Start Them Off Right With a Good Laxative and Then Watch Their Food

RALPH M. PATTEN

Mothers are often unconsciously very careless about the diet of their children, forcing all to eat the same food. The fact is that all foods do not agree alike with different persons. Here's a word what seems to constipate the child or to give it indigestion, and urge it to take more of what is quickly digested.

If the child shows a tendency to constipation it should immediately be given a mild laxative to help the bowels. By this is not meant a physic or purgative, for these should never be given to children, nor anything like salts, pills, etc. What the child requires is simply a small dose of the gentlest of medicines, such as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which, in the opinion of thousands of watchful mothers, is the ideal remedy for any child showing a tendency to constipation. So the things can happen to a constipated child that care is necessary. Colds, pins, headaches, sleeplessness, and many other annoyances that children should not have can usually be traced to constipation.

Many of America's foremost families are never without Syrup Pepsin, because one can never tell when some member of the family may need it, and all can use it. Thousands endorse it, among them Mrs. M. E. Patten, Valley Junction, Iowa, who is never without it in the house. Mrs. Patten says that Syrup Pepsin has done wonders for her boy Ralph, who was constipated from birth but is now doing fine. Naturally she is enthusiastic about it and wants other mothers to use it. Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin is sold by druggists at fifty cents and one dollar a bottle, the latter size being bought by those who already know its value, and it contains proportionately more.

Every one likes Syrup Pepsin as it is very pleasant to the taste. It is also mild and non-griping and free from injurious ingredients.

Families wishing to try a free sample bottle can obtain it postpaid by addressing Dr. W. B. Caldwell, 419 Washington St., Monticello, Ill. A postal card with your name and address on it will do.

Campbell's Tomato Soup

"Prepared as a cream-of-tomato it is specially delicious. A sprinkling of croutons or grated cheese gives variety to its tempting flavor. LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

BY THORNTON W. BURGESS.

Bee, Bee, Bumble Bee
Wouldn't tell a thing on me!

So said Peter Rabbit to himself as he sadly took his way back to the dear Old Briar Patch. Peter was tired, for he had had a long hunt to find Bumble. His nose was sore, for Bumble had thrust a sharp little lance into it to teach Peter not to poke his wobbly, inquisitive little nose into places where he had no business to be. But Peter wouldn't have minded these things if he had found out what he wanted to know. But he didn't find out a thing and so he was anything but his usual happy self as he plodded wearily along. He was hot, tired, disappointed, and cross, and when you feel like that all at the same time you feel pretty much out of sorts, you know.

And it was all because Peter wanted so much to find out where the store house of Bumble's cousin, Mistress Busy Bee, was so that he could tell Buster Bear, who is very fond of honey, and so make Buster his friend. He knew that it was in a hollow tree, probably high up, somewhere in the Forest, but however was he, who couldn't climb trees and couldn't fly, going to find it? Then Jimmy Skunk had suggested that if he wanted to find out, which he didn't, he would ask some one who knew to tell him. Right away Peter had thought of Bumble's cousin. Of course Bumble would know, being own cousin to Busy Bee. So Peter had run all over the Green Meadows trying to find Bumble. Bee, only to get stung on the nose and find that Bumble couldn't if he would and wouldn't if he could tell where Busy Bee's storehouse was.

Now Peter and Bumble are old friends and neighbors and it surprised Peter to have Bumble refuse his request. But when Bumble, who is very short-tempered and much given to rumbling and grumbling, not only refused, but took Peter to task and gave him a regular scolding for trying to find that storehouse Peter hadn't been able to find a word to say.

"You ought to be ashamed of yourself, Peter Rabbit. Yes, sir, you ought to be ashamed of yourself to ask an old friend like me to make trouble for one of his own relatives." Bumble had said. "It would be bad enough for you to try to make trouble yourself, and I wouldn't have believed it of you before this. But to try to get me to tell you where my cousin's storehouse is so that that great robber Buster Bear can steal all she has worked so hard to make and save is—is—why, it's—it's just awful! Buz-z-z, buz-z-z. I never heard of such a thing! How would you like to have your cousin, Jumper the Hare, go tell Reddy Fox of a hiding place where he would be sure to catch you? You'd think it perfectly dreadful, wouldn't you? Well, what you have asked me to do is just as bad. Yes, sir, it's every bit as bad." You see Bumble had guessed right away why Peter wanted to find that store house.

Now Peter had not once thought of it in that way. It was a new idea to him. He thought it all over after he got back to the dear Old Briar Patch as nursed his sore nose. Little by little he began to see that Bumble was right. "Why," said he to himself, "I didn't think of it in that way. Of course I wouldn't want Bumble to do anything to hurt one of his own relatives. Of course not. I didn't once think that finding that storehouse and telling Buster was going to hurt any one. But, of course, if he stole the honey why—why—well, I wouldn't like it if it were my honey. I wonder if Busy Bee does work as hard after all. Bumble doesn't. He just makes a great fuss over doing nothing. I—I certainly would like to make Buster Bear my friend, but I don't want to make trouble, not real trouble, for anybody else."

FORMAL OPENING OF DRUID HILLS GOLF CLUB

An event of Wednesday afternoon in which most cordial interest centered was the formal opening of the Druid Hills Golf club.

The picturesque and beautiful club house was thronged with exquisitely gowned women, among whom were a number of the charming and attractive visitors who are attending the opera, and who are being delightfully entertained as the guests of friends.

An orchestra stationed in the ball room and concealed behind a dense grouping of palms, rendered a beautiful musical program which contributed largely to the pleasure of the afternoon, and a band stationed on the terrace greeted the arrival of the guests with inspiring music.

The grounds surrounding the club and the excellent golf links were inspected with interest by parties of club members and their friends. The calling hours were from 4 to 6, and the reception proved one of the most delightful events in a week which has been marked by the brilliance of the entertainments given.

TEACH CHILDREN TO KEEP OFF R. R. TRACKS

Secretary Walter G. Cooper, of the Atlanta chamber of commerce, is in receipt of a letter from C. H. Findley, chief claim agent of the Central of Georgia railway, commending the organization for its campaign to minimize the number of deaths in Georgia resulting from trespassing on railroad property.

In his communication, Mr. Findley points out that statistics show that in 1912 10,444 people were killed by American railroads, 5,449 of whom were trespassers. He stresses the importance of teaching children to keep away from the tracks, and declares that a liberal education in this direction will go far towards minimizing the loss of life.

DOES ALL OF HER OWN WORK

And is Glad to Do So, as She Was Denied this Privilege For Two Years

Richmond, Ky.—Mrs. N. V. Willis, of this place, says: "I suffered for over three years with womanly trouble, and tried many different treatments, but none of them seemed to do me any good. I had almost given up to die, when a friend of mine berged me to try Cardui, the woman's tonic. I got a bottle, and began to feel a great deal better after the first few doses. I then got four bottles, and after taking these I was cured.

I don't know what a female pain is now, do all of my work, eat anything I want, and feel like a 16 year old girl.

I never expect to be without Cardui in my house as long as I live, as I firmly believe it saved my life, and I will praise it to all of my suffering lady friends."

Cardui is a purely vegetable remedy, containing no harmful mineral products. Its ingredients act in a helping, building way, on the womanly constitution. It has been relieving womanly troubles for over half a century, during which time it has proven of more than ordinary value as a tonic for weak women.

You can rely on Cardui. It will do for you what it has done for thousands of others. Begin taking it today. (Advt.)

Jess Willard Knocked Boer Rodel Out in the Sixth Round

THE SPORTLIGHT
BY GRANTLAND RICE

GLOF SLOGAN.

What is the golfer's favorite phrase,
Heard most oft on the ancient green?
What is the slogan that rules his days
Where brassies flicker and balls careen?

Bend an ear for a cinch reply.
Muttered in tones that drip with pain.
From trap to trap with a curse and sign—
"Say, gimme a niblick."

As soon as the various ball clubs wander out of the rain and ice belt we hope to get a better line on how the different contenders or entries look—or should be expected to act later on.

In the meanwhile we have decided to spend next April reconnoitering among the Eskimos, where it is a bit warmer and not quite so damp.

DONE ON THIS MEXICAN MELEE.

This Mexican argument reminds somewhat of an incident we lamped on the subway a short while ago.

A citizen was sitting quietly reading a newspaper. A drunk entered the car and sat at his side. The drunk started proceedings by being offensive on general principles—odor, unkemptness, etc. He then offered a surly remark. The citizen looked up, but observing the character of his annoyer took no notice of it. On the next move the drunk knocked the paper from the citizen's hand. The citizen, frowning slightly, picked up his paper and went on reading. It was quite evident that he desired no mixup with such an opponent.

Then the drunk knocked his hat off. At which point the aforesaid citizen rose, lifted the drunk by a frayed collar and swung heavily on his jawbone. The drunk landed about fifteen feet away. He arose practically sober. Also with a massive lump on his right jaw. And the citizen continued his reading in peace, while at the next station a guard rang for the ambulance.

"We had no business getting in this war with Mexico," announce a large number of folks. The citizen in the above instance had no business getting in an argument with the drunk, but he couldn't help it and his only mistake was not in swinging sooner.

HANK'S AIM.

It has been ten years since the Chicago Cubs finished lower than third place, and in eight of those ten years they finished no worse than second. This is the target which Hank O'Day has to shoot at, and unless his aim has improved wonderfully we have a bunch that the bull's eye will remain practically unscathed.

Hank has a busy young summer ahead nesting in any part or portion of the first division.

IS ENGLAND COMING BACK?

By taking home the chief relay trophy from Philadelphia, England has made one step back at least among the sportive elect.

She lost the first engagement with Covey pitted against young Gould, but even up under Arnold Jackson's invasion, and is now neck and neck with our Uncle Samuel in the 1914 debate.

AND OTHERS—

"England has her nerve," chants one exchange, "in claiming an international victory with Taber, an American, running on her relay four."

And the same paper, elsewhere, had praise, great praise, for the victories established by Mike Dorizas, the well-known American from Sparta, Greece. And for other such famous Americans entered as Goelitz, Paravinci, Vizzione, Lochoussel, Sculz and Fleitz.

To say nothing of Michigan's all-American entry composed of Jansen, Geist, Murphy and Haff.

The same paper will probably "point with pride" at an early date to "that wonderful American long-distance runner, Hannes Kolehmanien."

COMPLEX IS CORRECT.

1914 is developing rapidly into one of sportland's most complex and most bizarre years. Neither the Browns nor the Cardinals are near last place—the Dodgers are sparring around the front and England has an international percentage of .500.

The Phillies are not going to miss Tom Seaton any more than Detroit would miss Ty Cobb. Not a bit.

Why not play an international threesome against England in the championship at Sandwich? Let Ouimet drive, Evans play the iron and Travers use the putter.

Will B. L. T. kindly reserve us a date at Skokie from July 12 to 15 for an official test as to the comparative value of looking at the ball and looking at the cup? If so, we'll make it thirty-six holes for that occasion and leave the Giant-Club arrangement flat.

Willard Puts K. O. on Rodel

Big Jess Landed on Boer for Count in Sixth Round—Latter Was Helpless

Jess Willard, the Kansas Giant, found it comparatively easy to dispose of George Boer Rodel in their scheduled ten-round battle at the Orpheum theater Tuesday night. Rodel was sent down for the count in the sixth frame.

From the beginning of the fray it was apparent that nothing short of simon pure luck would enable Rodel to trim the big westerner. To begin with, Willard had at least forty pounds on the Boer in weight, and furthermore he had a sufficient advantage in reach to hold the Australian battler out at arm-length, and whale him at will, without the possibility of Rodel's evening matters up, owing to the fact that he could not reach Big Jess.

Willard left the same impression with Tuesday night's audience that has marked his appearance in other rings. He is a great big husky giant, who appears sluggish and lazy. There is no denying the fact that he is a modern Hercules for strength, and also he can hit. That is he has a kick that will topple even the best of them, if he can only land it. However, on the form shown Tuesday night, he would have difficulty in getting to any boxer who had anything like an even break on reach, and who knows something of the game.

Rodel was game, and he kept plugging all the time, until Willard caught him a clip on the chin the sixth round. He managed to work inside of Willard's long arms on several occasions, and labbed the big moose on the nose, bringing blood early in the melee. However, he never landed one punch that worried his huge opponent during the entire time that they were milling.

In the preliminaries Kid Underwood beat Stump Goodwin in eight rounds, while Billy Hopper, a negro scrapper, made Kid Davis, another dinge, quit in the second round.

Guide Puts One Over on Schaefer

BY FULLERTON.

Germany Schaefer hired a guide in Cairo, and demanded to be shown the spot where Moses was found in the bulrushes. The guide led him to the banks of the Nile and pointed out the spot even gathering some of the rushes for Schaefer to send home. An hour or two later Schaef grabbed another guide and after a tive the guide offered, for an additional fee, to show him the spot where Moses was found in the rushes. He led Schaef a mile or two in the other direction and pointed out another spot.

"Nothing doing," yelled Schaef. "That's eight places I've been shown where Moses was found."

"True," assented the guide. "The river was in flood, and Moses landed in many places."

Smith Retains Bowling Title

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 29.—James Smith, of Brooklyn, retained the national all-round bowling title at the close Tuesday night of the eighth annual meeting of the National Bowling association. Smith rolled an aggregate of 1,917 for the nine games. Chris Thiele, of Cleveland, his nearest competitor, rolled 1,884.

Harry Krause, of Washington, won the 1914 national individual championship with 678 for the three games. Joseph West, of Buffalo, finished second with 676.

Derrick, an outfielder was pitched by the Maryland Agricultural college yesterday and he had an easy time defeating the Georgia squad. Suppose he had been a regular pitcher.

Marion Team Won From Southern Institute

MARION, Ala., April 29.—Marion Institute swamped the Southern university Tuesday afternoon in the second game of the series, the visitors not scoring until the last inning, when Hicks eased up with the game. His pitching was the feature.

Tulane Team to Play in Cuba

NEW ORLEANS, April 29.—The Tulane football team is preparing for an invasion of Cuba during its 1914 campaign, according to announcement of Manager Larkin. Such a plan as the management is already working upon, if it materializes, will add radically to the attractiveness of the "local color" program mapped out for next season, and bring Tulane in closer touch with the students of an island that she already extensively draws from, who go to make up the personnel of several of Tulane's banner athletic teams, and who formed the chief bulwark on the football team four years ago, when Monterro, Reynaldos, Kevlin & Co. played star ball.

Manager Larkin plans to take the football team to Cuba during the Christmas holidays. The grilling collegiate season will then be on the wane, and the members of the team in fairly good shape. Any way, it will be to their interest if they go, said students on the campus Thursday, to keep in better condition than ever before, because the experience that visiting football and baseball teams, profesional and amateur, have had with the Cubans attest their skill and prowess in glowing terms.

It is planned that Tulane play two games while in Cuba, according to Larkin, because there will be more opportunity for the Olive and Blue to meet the best talent, and also add to the gate receipts, than if one game were played. Certain it is that Larkin plans to stage one game in Havana at least, while the staging of the other depends upon the inducements offered with an eye to the time limit, and as a last resort, will also take place at Havana.

BALL LEAGUE IN EUROPE.

LONDON, April 29.—The International Baseball league, composed mainly of players from Yale, Harvard, Princeton, Columbia and other American universities, has been formed in London, with teams representing London, Paris, Nice anda Monte Carlo. A schedule of games will be arranged soon.

Georgia Takes Game From Va.

LEXINGTON, Va., April 29.—The University of Georgia baseball team defeated the Virginia Military Institute here Tuesday, 4 to 2, in the first game of a series of two.

It was a case of too much McWhorter. The Georgia star clinched the game by his team when he drove out a home run in the first inning with Clements on first base.

With Clements on second in the first round McWhorter singled and Clements again counted. The two teams play here again today. No battery has been announced, but Georgia will likely send her best hurler to the mound in an effort to make a clean sweep of the series.

Freddie Welsh Gets Decision

British Champion Awarded Verdict Over Leach Cross After Twenty Rounds of Tame Fighting

LOS ANGELES, Cal., April 29.—Freddie Welsh, British lightweight champion, was awarded the decision over Leach Cross, of New York, in a twenty-round boxing contest at Vernon last Tuesday night.

With the exception of the final round the fight was a tame affair. More than half of the time the men were on their feet was spent in clinching.

Neither man fought in championship form much to the displeasure of the spectators. In the eighteenth round the crowd seemed with cries of "fake" and "let 'em fight." The referee continued to hold to pull the men apart.

Both seemed worried from the start and Welsh early revealed an inclination to clinch.

Both attempted ineffectual infighting and neither landed more than one or two telling blows. In the latter half of the twentieth round Welsh forced the fighting amid considerable applause. Welsh finished much stronger than his opponent.

COLLEGE GAMES

Marist Wins Close Game From Donald Fraser

Marist college yesterday afternoon defeated Donald Fraser in a very closely fought game by the score of 6 to 5. Not until the eighth inning Pollock, for Donald Fraser, had held Marist collegians safely, and only allowed them one tally, while his team mates behind him were scoring five runs.

However, in the eighth inning, Marist found a new hold on life and tied the score by making four runs. Then on a couple of hits they made the game in the ninth inning.

This is the second time that these two schools have fought a game which each of them won by a one-point margin. The other game that they played featured thirteen innings before Marist could push across the winning tally.

The pitching of Brock and Pollock was excellent throughout, the game depending into a pitcher's battle from the start.

Score:

	R.	H.	E.
Marist College	0	0	1
Batteries: Pollock and Malloy; Brock and Lidd.

Esoteric Team Wins Game

The Esoteric club put another feather in its cap and succeeded in holding down first place in the Morning Commercial league by defeating the George Muse team by the score of 4 to 0, in a game filled with "pep" from beginning to end.

The all-round good fielding of the Esoterics featured the game. Dempsey starred by driving in one run with a three-bagger to right field and scoring later.

Batteries: Esoteric, Clayton and Starr; George Muse, Sain and Gibson.

Bloomer Girls Play Here Again

Confident of their ability to trim the Capitol Federals again, the Star Bloomer Girls' team has arranged for another game to be played with this club Saturday afternoon at Ponce de Leon park. Federals are composed of the best amateur and semi-professional players in the city, and they do not take very kindly to the defeat handed them by the female ball tossers. In fact, a challenge for another game was issued promptly after the first game was finished, and as soon as practicable could be closed for the date again for Saturday afternoon. Manager Crackers will be away on a road trip at the time, and the Federals promise that they and their opponents will have full sway.

Newnan Club Beat Picked Columbus Nine

NEWNAN, Ga., April 29.—The Newnan Georgia-Alabama league team defeated a strong Columbus team Tuesday afternoon 4 to 0. This is the second time the locals have won from the Columbus team, defeating them Monday afternoon 10 to 1. The features of the game were the heavy batting of the local club and steady pitching of Bailey. Gently, Jordan and Hawkins played for the Columbus team. The game was made up of Georgia State league and South Atlantic players, but they were easy prey for the local pitchers. Manager War Sanders seems well pleased with the men he has now, and has no doubt but he will be the first of winning the opening series from Rome. Last year Newnan led the league in attendance, both for opening and season, and the local fans are hoping in every way to have 3,000 fans for the opener next Monday.

CAP ANSON DAY AT PONCE DE LEON THIS AFTERNOON

The Crackers and Turtles get together this afternoon for the third battle of their present series, and the contest will be called at 3:30 o'clock. This will be "Cap Anson day," in honor of Captain Adrian C. Anson, who is playing this week at the Forsyth theater, and the grand old man of the game will be on hand to take part in the proceedings.

If by any chance there be those who do not know who Cap Anson is, it may be stated that Cap was first baseman and manager of the Chicago Colts, in what the old fans call the "good old days." Cap was some first baseman, but it was his hitting that made the bugs rear up and tear their hair. He could maul that old ball, and it mattered little who was serving them up. As evidence of the fact that he could slam the pill, take a peek at the records of doings on the diamond for the past thirty years, and you will find that Anson stung the sphere for an average better than .300 for twenty years.

This afternoon he will mix it with the boys at Ponce de Leon. He may be called on to pass one or two over the plate, and then again he may lay hold of a good sound stick, and lean into a hook or shoot covered up by some of the hurlers present at today's festivities. If he catches it right—well, good-by ball.

J. Pluvius Beats Tech Jackets Out of Game

STARKVILLE, Miss., April 29.—The Tech Yellowjackets were leading 1 to 0 over the A. & M. college here Tuesday afternoon when the game had to be called because of rain. The Jackets tried to play five innings in order to be credited with a game, but a heavy downpour in the fourth made it impossible.

Palmetto Won

ALONG THE WAY

By Innis Brown

It is a rather funny proposition, friend fan, the many queer turns that a baseball game may take, and incidentally all roads lead to victory for the Crackers, at least when they play Sir Miguel Finn's Turtles. Now take, for instance, the games of Monday and Tuesday. If you hold in mind a sprinkling of the details concerning the happenings of Monday's battle, you doubtless recall that the song for our folk was exceedingly heavy in the first few rounds. So heavy in fact that the gallant charges of B. Smith and company were repulsed at every point until the fifth inning.

Then consider what happened in Tuesday's melee. Why the Crackers scored what would probably be a sufficiently fat average of runs to win the pennant in this league, were they to put such a number across in every game from now on, in the very first spasm. Five runs were wheeled over the plate, before two Memphis hurlers and eight other hirelings of the house of Finn could register the conventional three put-outs. If the seven or eight thousand bugs who journeyed out Monday were kept on the anxious seat for more than half the battle, for fear that the Crackers were not going to come at all, they were relieved from any anxiety early Tuesday. Incidentally the Crackers kept the lead all the way, and wound up the contest with a margin of four runs in an 11 to 7 score.

Jap Ertel was the helmsman that piloted the Cracker bark through the conquest, and if ever an easy task befell any skipper, Jap was that guy. True enough pestiferous winds overtook him in the first dash, when a base on balls two hits and a sacrifice netted the Turtles a couple of runs. But little need be worry for Jap, when the Crackers come back in their half of the same inning with a quintet, and follow on their next opportunity with two more. It was pretty soft for Jap from then on.

On the other hand a Mr. Johnson kicked away an opportunity to perpetuate himself in the memory of Memphis fans by the same token that helped Jap to further glory among local bugs. With the margin of two points that his mates had accumulated for him, Johnson stood by and saw the locals smash their way past his guard, and the best support that his mates could offer for three runs, and still none were out. About this time, Johnson caught strains of that ancient ballad entitled, "Over the Hills and Far Away," and he realized that the air was emanating from a position on the visitors' bench occupied by Manager M. Finn. He vacated and sent by the name of Smith assumed the burden. In view of the fact that Johnson allowed two hits, hit a few batters, walked a man, resulting in three runs before any were retired, Smith may be considered as having scored a real victory by holding our boys to nine runs during the remainder of the game.

Incidentally, the Crackers took occasion to fatten their batting averages liberally. No less than fifteen safe raps were levied off of Johnson and Smith. Every man on the team hit except Frank Browning, who again played center, and Jap Ertel. George Kircher and Red Lynch led the assault with three apiece, while all the others, except Ham Reynolds, registered two each. Ham was content with a single safe to his credit. The Memphii also boosted their batting figure healthily. Mullen, Duggan and Soliel were the chief maulers, each landing a trio of safeties.

Manager Finn juggled his line up considerably, but the changes failed to produce desired results. Dolly Stark was moved over to short, while Seneff was brought in to third and Shanley sent to center, both of these were charged with bobbles during the melee. Seneff contributing two. Five errors in all were chalked up against the visitors, Duggan dropping Ham Reynolds' fly for the fifth.

Charleston Won Double Bill From Augusta

AUGUSTA, Ga., April 29.—Charleston took both ends of a double-header from the locals by consistent playing. The first contest was a swatfest by both sides, with some farcical fielding in addition. The second game, seven innings by mutual consent, was a pitchers' battle, but an Augusta man reached first until the sixth inning, and the Charleston pitcher allowed but one hit and one base on balls.

Questions and Answers

QUESTION.
Marietta, Ga.

I would be thankful to have you give me the following desired information through The Journal:

My alfalfa from this side is ten inches high. Will it injure this for me to cut it at that age? It was sown in October (1st). I have been cutting for chickens. Have been told that it would bleed to death, that we should kill it out, and so on, if cut so young.

After cutting, would chicken droppings be a complete fertilizer to spread over it? Should some lime be mixed with it? If so, how much? Should any other fertilizer be used?

I would be wise to sow some seed over the thin places after scratching with a rake?

What is the best grass seed to sow over the thin places in lawn?

Thanking you in advance, I am,
R. B. C.

ANSWER.

It is not a good idea to cut alfalfa, especially young alfalfa that is planting until it begins to stool and make its second growth. The second growth is not as large or as high before the top is taken off. If you have secured a good stand you should by all means let the plant a little longer and preserve this good stand which can be done by not cutting it too soon for the second cutting. Many splendid stands of alfalfa are killed by people being overanxious to use the vast amount of food it produces and will cut it before it is ripe or starts the second growth. It is nature for it to make a new growth every six weeks, and it is too much of a waste to take the top crop off until it is ripe and ready to be harvested. The tap roots will bleed to death and it will have nothing to support it if you cut it off or the top growth off before it gets a new growth, as it has nothing to draw air and support the roots. An alfalfa plant is just like a tree. By all means take care of it and do not cut until the proper time.

By using Tennessee Phosphate rock or Planter Paris mixed with the chicken manure it will keep it dry and enable it to retain all of its ammonia. It should then be mixed with two-thirds its bulk of woods earth or leaf mold and then scattered broadcast over your alfalfa, or any other crop that you wish to fertilize with it. There is no better fertilizer used for top dressing alfalfa than chicken manure mixed in this way. Alfalfa needs plenty of lime and lime and will use an immense quantity of it. The weak spots should be reseeded and raked in with a rake.

There is no better grass that can be planted than blue grass at this season of the year in a lawn. White clover should be mixed with the blue grass. This is good and helps to catch up the weak spots on the lawn. It protects the blue grass during the hot summer and it adds much to the following fall in good shape.
