GENERAL RUSS TELLS MEXICANS THEY MUST RESPECT BORDER LINE

No Threats Made, but Shelling of Warring Factions From Positions Will Follow If Order Is Disobeyed

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Brigadier General Hiles, commanding the troops at the Mexican border, reported to the war department today he conferred at San Antonio with General Hamilton, military secretary of General Maytorena, the Villa commander. Hiles was told that the Maytorena troops in shaping their operations against the Carranza forces so as to avoid danger of life and property on the American side of the line.

The war department has not made public details of General Hiles' report. General Hamilton but it disclosed the conference was harmonious, and that General Hiles did not make threats as to what he would do if his warnings were unheeded.

It was expected the orders of provisional President Gutierrez to Maytorena to reorganize his forces if necessary to stop the fire into Arizona, will bear fruit before all the American troops in the latter country are ordered to move into their positions. In official papers no predictions are made as to the course the United States will pursue, but it is generally understood that after Brigadier General Scott arrives at San Antonio and conducts his negotiations with both sides of the Mexican border, further firing into American territory can have but one result. Legal authorities here say if the United States were to shell the Mexicans out of their positions such an act would be repelling an invasion and not an attack upon Mexico.

Only one of these three steamers has as yet been identified. This is the steamer Albatross. Twelve of her crew were saved, but seven lost their lives. The casualties on the other ships have not yet been determined, but it is reported that the crew and passengers of the passenger vessel were seen taking to their boats.

Here's Berlin's Claims of Successes in West

(By Associated Press.)
BERLIN, Dec. 17.—(By Wireless to London).—Army headquarters today issued the following statement:
"Yesterday the French continued their attacks at Nieuport without success. Attacks were attempted at Zillebeke and La Bassée, but were repulsed with heavy losses to the enemy."
"The intention of the French to throw a bridge over the Aisne at Soissons was prevented by our artillery."
"French earthworks to the east of Rheims were destroyed."
"There is no news on the east and east Prussian frontiers. The Russian offensive against Riga and Posen has already broken down. In the whole of Poland the enemy was forced to retreat after fierce and stubborn fighting, and is being pursued everywhere."
"During the fighting in northern Poland yesterday and the previous day the cavalry of the West Prussian Hussar regiments gained a victory. The victory cannot yet be estimated."

COTTON SHIPMENTS ARE UP TO U. S., SAY GERMANS

Mills Anxious for Staple and Have Money to Pay for It

(By Associated Press.)
WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Williamson, president of the American Cotton Shippers' Association, said today that cotton shipments to the United States are up to the point where the mills are anxious for the staple and have money to pay for it. He said that the mills are anxious for the staple and have money to pay for it. He said that the mills are anxious for the staple and have money to pay for it.

New Orleans Reports Shipments of Cotton
NEW ORLEANS, Dec. 17.—The export movement of cotton today was the largest of any day since the beginning of the season and the beginning of the European war. Total clearances from the United States ports for foreign ports amounted to 107,331 bales. The increase in shipments will make this week the record week for the season thus far, with 221,491 bales cleared already, to which must be added the foreign clearances of tomorrow.

PLAN TO SYSTEMATIZE CHARITY OF CHURCHES
For the purpose of systematizing the charity of the churches of the city, a committee composed of G. H. Buford, W. C. Shaffer, H. H. Harris, Russell E. Smith and B. P. Robertson, pastors of various churches, met today at the city hall in co-operation with the Associated Charities in handling relief work in Atlanta.

A salaried worker will be employed to keep in touch with the churches and with the charities. Through this method, the needy cases are centralized upon and "gratiers" are disposed of, according to Dr. Buford.

A rat in the wall is a first-class burglar alarm.
In the war zone they continue to shell the woods and the towns, too.

Nobody disputes the Kaiser's bravery, but then you can't blame him for being afraid of those German doctors.

The Immigration Test.

Suggestions that the President will veto the pending immigration measure, if it passes with its present literary test unchanged, are not surprising; for, that provision of the bill is so contrary to good sense and American principles that the utmost effort should be made to keep it out of the nation's law. It is deeply undesirable that this country be protected against undesirable foreigners who seek entry at our ports, but in serving this wholesome purpose there is no need to go to extremes of folly and injustice.

The so-called literary test in the bill now before the Senate is not a test of character or intelligence or thrift. It is not a test of any of the qualities which an immigrant seeking residence and occupation in the United States ought to possess. It would not protect us against the criminal nor against the mental and moral defective. It would not keep out the anarchist, but it would exclude many a strong-bodied, law-abiding, honest man who could be of value in developing the country's resources and in adding to its wealth.

A literary test is essential, of course, to one who is seeking naturalization, but the particular test embodied in the present bill cannot be applied, in reason or fairness, to one who seeks merely the chance to live and work in this republic. Ability to read or write a few lines of English is no evidence that the newcomer is desirable; and inability to do so is no evidence that he is undesirable. Had this test been required in the early days of the United States, many an ancestor of our Virginians and Massachusetts families, men who amassed substantial fortunes and left honored memories, would have failed to pass it.

That there is need of careful and, in some respects, even drastic restrictions upon immigration, is undeniable. This country must not be used as a disposal plant for the Old World's human waste and refuse; nor must the rights and opportunities of native Americans be jeopardized by aliens of low standards of living. It is important that the Government take timely precaution against these evils, for when the European war is over there will be a tremendous drift of motley population toward our shores, and the task of filtering out the undesirable will be especially urgent. The means to this end, however, should be intelligent and in keeping with the nation's ideals. The tests to be applied should be tests of character and capacity, not of a scant acquaintance with the parts of speech.

America's interest in the Kaiser's illness continues to be as great as its interest in the war itself.

Servia's complete victory is reported as being due to the fact that part of the Austrian army resigned.

One out of every 499 people in the United States is insane, but we bet the proportion just now in Europe is two to one.

Black Clouds in Austria.

Hard upon the news of the Austrian army's defeat in Servia, come fresh rumors of social unrest and menaced revolution in the Dual Monarchy. Angry crowds warning upon the war office in Vienna, Bohemian demonstrations against the Government at Prague, and rioting in the streets of Budapest are reported from credible sources. Is the long-predicted break in Francis Joseph's unwieldy realm at hand?
The fortunes of the war thus far have been regretfully against the Austrian government. Except for occasional and minor successes, the old emperor's armies have fared miserably both in Servia and along the Russian front. What was expected to be a swift, triumphant campaign against a dwarfish kingdom has become a losing war of defense.

The population of Austria-Hungary is a motley mixture of races and nationalities. A large percentage of the people are of Slavic origin and sympathetic. The crowds of Bohemians at Prague shout that "they did not wish to see their sons killed for Germany or anti-Slav interests." The sentiment behind this outbreak has long been smoldering. There will be no occasion for wonder, should it burst into revolution.

The old-fashioned naval engagements seem to be in style once more.

How different the Canadians are from the Mexicans. Not once have they fired across the border at the Germans in our midst.

If you would prefer to work for $15 a week rather than $15, you surely are superstitious.

The British news censor will take a holiday on Christmas day when, it is announced, no news will come through. As war news comes mostly by freight, a day or so off the job can't make much difference.

The Government Must Get the Ships.

The fact that a hundred trade ships have taken American registry, since the new navigation law became effective, is gratifying; but in no wise does it dispose of the merchant marine problem or lessen the need of prompt action by the Government. Those vessels, aggregating a tonnage of some three hundred and sixty thousand, are barely a nucleus of what soon will be required to carry the over-sea commerce of the United States and to develop our waiting opportunities in distant markets. If we are to profit by the rare advantages now offered us in Latin America and in other regions, we must have regular and adequate facilities of transport; and since it is evident beyond the power of individual enterprise to meet this great need, the Government should take the initiative, procure and operate ships on its own account and, having fulfilled its mission, withdraw in due time.

It should be remembered that at the outbreak of the European war approximately ninety percent of America's ocean commerce was carried in foreign bottoms.
The United States had no merchant marine worthy the name. Long years of government discrimination in favor of special interests, the same sort of discrimination as that embodied in the old tariff system, had so handicapped and discouraged the development of a native merchant fleet that our flag virtually had vanished from the trade lanes of the sea. And so, the hour of supreme need and opportunity found us wholly unprepared.

The new shipping act, passed by Congress shortly after the war in Europe began, is admirable as far as it goes. It removes many unfair and outworn restrictions, and in the course of time, perhaps, would lead to the upbuilding of a merchant marine suited to the nation's needs. The hundred vessels which thus far have taken American registry to secure the protection of the flag are foreign-built ships owned by citizens of this country. Not until the present navigation law was enacted could such ships be admitted to American registry. Under the old requirements, only vessels of American construction as well as American ownership could fly the United States flag; and there were other restrictions equally drastic, if not more so. It is fortunate that a more liberal plan of registry has been inaugurated, but this plan with all its encouraging features cannot undo in a few months or a few years the discouragements and mistakes of long decades.

Hence the need of prompt action by the Government to meet urgent necessities. Our trade demands are such that we cannot wait to evolve a merchant marine; we must create a merchant marine as speedily as possible. That is a task which private capital will not and cannot undertake. The cost is too great and the profits at the outset too uncertain to warrant any one man or group of interests in making the venture. The problem is a national problem, involving the country's common business welfare; wherefore it should be solved by national plans and resources. And that is the only way in which it can be solved.

A bill to this end, providing that the Government acquire and operate merchant ships, is now before Congress. Opponents of the measure are of two classes, those who are allied with the particular interests that fight every liberal plan to build up an American merchant marine, the same interests that fought the new shipping act, and those who are distressed over theories of government ownership. The former can only be dismissed as incorrigible; but the latter, many of them, are deeply sincere. They should reflect, however, that it is not a theory but a condition which now confronts us, and their wariness of dangers remotely possible should not deter them in a matter of practical and sorely needed service. By some means, the United States must have a merchant marine, and the only fair and feasible means yet suggested is immediate action by the Government.

It will take more than a war to crowd baseball out of the news, even at this unreasonable time.

We confess to a feeling of admiration for the old-time battleship and fighting above the water level.
These submarine attacks have the effect of censoring the romance of sea fighting.

Virtually every development which might affect of the iron and steel trade after the New Year.

Sunk ships will be replaced, munitions of war now exhausted must be renewed and railroad equipment already worn out cannot much longer do the work required. The world has been wearing and destroying steel and iron at a far more rapid pace than it could possibly replace after the New Year.
The world will start very soon. It has already been

OUR MEAT SUPPLY

—THE
BY FREDERICK J. HASKIN.

The discovery that the meat supply of the United States is rapidly dwindling, and the rise in prices of meat, have caused as great a stir and excited as much comment in the press as though such a state of affairs were quite unheard of and unusual. The matter of fact, the present experience of the American people has been that every country in the world with a large population, China, Russia, Germany, in fact nearly all of the countries of Europe—found out long ago that neither by domestic production nor by importation could the people be adequately supplied with meat at a reasonable price. And all of them have partially solved the question in the quickest and easiest way, by turning to the sea, for the nitrogenous food that the land was no longer able to produce in sufficient quantity.

There is a double country in the substitution of fish for meat in the national bill of fare. Not only is the nitrogenous element in the diet thus supplied most cheaply and from a literally inexhaustible source, but every pound of fish eaten in place of meat means just that much more land which may be devoted to the raising of vegetable food.

This solution of the meat problem seems to have been the least to be considered by the United States.
Great plans are under way to increase the national supply of beef, mutton and pork, but little has been done to increase the supply of fish. The government and the consumption of fish. And, in truth, there is little that can be done except to educate the people as to the food value of fish, and to encourage the fishermen and the best methods of preparing them for the table.

Of the numerous valuable varieties of fish obtainable in this country, only a few are eaten at all, and those instead of being the pigs de resistance upon the table, almost invariably are served as a soup or entrée, and appear in deference to the European customs which we imitate than because we really appreciate their food value. And yet, fish contains fully the much needed meat, and the supply is abundant.
In the fish of our rich diet supplies a large amount in other forms. Roast beef contains about 13.7 per cent of protein, while cod steaks contain about 13.1 per cent; 10 lb of beef is 15.3 per cent protein, and black bacon 20 per cent; ribs of beef are about 17 per cent protein and blue fish 19 per cent.

No country in the world is richer in fisheries than this. Our long coast, our inland waters, the Gulf of Mexico, and our great inland rivers are capable of supplying our entire territory with an adequate food supply. All the fish we need are in Alaska, alone, the fisheries are capable of enormous development. It is true that the haddock and salmon which are the most popular fish in our diet are not abundantly distributed, and in some sections have entirely disappeared by reason of the obstruction and poisoning of the rivers. But the fish we do not eat are inconceivable by comparison with the inexhaustible supply that remains in the sea.

The fact that Americans do not effect the great national economy which a proper utilization of our fishery resources would make possible can be ascribed to many causes. One of the most important is the fact that the fisherman and the consumer do not value the fish as they should. The fisherman, for example, Americans abroad praise the English whittier, the fillet of sole served in Paris, the smoked salmon sandwiches so universally eaten in Germany. Yet the sand dabs of the coast of southern California is just as good as the European fish, and the whitefish of the Great Lakes, and the mackerel and bluefish of the Atlantic coast are fully as good as the most popular fish in Europe. The smoked salmon of Germany is very likely from our own Pacific fisheries. In the five years between 1909 and 1913 we exported to Germany 1,000,000 pounds of fresh and cured salmon to Germany. The splendid "steel head" salmon of our Pacific fisheries are frozen and sent to Germany to be eaten fresh, because there is no home market where they can be sold at a reasonable price.

Many varieties of fish eagerly sought in Europe are not eaten at all in this country except by our foreign-born population. A soup considered a delicacy in Naples is made from fish which we do not eat. One of our waters, a creature similar to the octopus, and used in this country chiefly for bait. The "rale au beurre" of Paris is made from a fish which we do not eat, or, at least, which is abundant along the American coast, but not salable in the markets. Many an American fish will pay a stiff price for fish if they will only smack his lips over it, but if he saw one of the fish from which it is made in the market he would not know what it was.

The American housewife not only does not know how to prepare the different varieties of fish, but she does not know what to eat. She is entirely ignorant of the sauces and salads that should accompany them, but she does know that the fish she has bought is not good. A fraction of the varieties upon the market. In cities where the hunting coast there is a steady demand for halibut, cod, bluefish, weakfish and panfish, but very few housewives know how to cook them. In New York, for example, the fish market is a vast one. Yet flounder, haddock, hake, herring, mackerel, pollock, sea bass, smelt, whiting, clams and blue trout are obtainable in the market more abundantly than in any other city in the world. A study of these fishes and how to prepare them would enable the average American housewife to economize on her meat bill and to eat more effectively than by trying to cook neck cuts of beef and mutton.

A typical neglected fish of our coasts is the dog-fish, so-called because he does not in any way resemble a dog. The German people, however, value him on the American market, the dogfish spends his days preying upon the much prized lobster. Between the dogfish and the lobster of the "la Nouvelle," the lobster is now in danger of extinction, and the dogfish seems to be luring the people to eat dogfish. He is very palatable, having delicate flesh that cuts into steaks like that of cod.

The catch of fish in the United States is by no means small, but it could be greatly increased and a much larger percentage of it should be eaten at home.
The last figures available are for 1908, and during the year the fisheries of this country produced 1,000,000 pounds of fish. The value of the catch was $15,875,415.
This is just a little less than the amount caught in the fisheries of the United Kingdom.

A splendid example of how a country may encourage both the production and the consumption of fish is afforded by Germany. The German people have expended great sums for the construction of fish harbors, and for the improvement of the fishing industry.
To encourage herring production, the bounty was paid for the construction and equipment of each sailing vessel used for that purpose, and all fishing vessels were exempted from the payment of port dues. As a result of these measures, the numbers of sailing vessels in that country engaged in fishing increased between 1898 and 1908 from 158 to 159.

To facilitate the distribution of her increased catch, Germany has made special rates for the shipment of fish inland, sending them by express freight at a special rate, which is a deduction of about 100 per cent. The fastest trains are used for the shipment of fish, so that they may reach their destination in good condition.

Germany has also recognized the necessity, which is most apparent in this country, for educating the people regarding the different kinds of fish, their food value, and the best methods of preparing them. The German government has issued inland people the book which the different kinds of fish looked like, and how they should be prepared. The German people, however, were as ignorant about fish as the bulk of the American people, but the moving pictures immediately caught the public fancy, and a great interest in the subject developed, resulting in an era of unusual prosperity for the fishing industry. Indeed, so great has the demand become in Germany, that great quantities are annually imported.

CALLING NAMES

—BY DR. FRANK CRANE.
(Copyright, 1914, by Frank Crane.)

There is a certain class of arguers who when they wish to crush their opponents resort to calling names.
The epithet is like the aerial bomb dropped on a non-combatant town. It is a malicious attempt to hurt without gaining any substantial advantage.

Mr. Roosevelt calls the word "pacifist" at all who oppose his bellicose foreign policy; if a stronger term is needed he calls them "non-pacifists."

Mr. Gardner in Congress speaks at "Sunday-school" policies.

A certain group of vicious newspapers give expression to the owner's animosity by characterizing all efforts for peace, except his own, which are both unpopular and insecure, as "biffes."

But that party in the United States who are opposed to the policy of military preparedness are not chicken-hearted cowards, military idealists nor doddering old women.

We—and I am proud to speak as one of them—are merely plain, common-sense folk, who refuse to be blinded by custom or to be stampeded by appeals to fear or to hate.

The policy of military preparedness seems to force us to do it is not new. It has been tried pretty constantly since the year 5000 years.

It amazed eventually Egypt, Greece, Rome, Spain, and France as world empires.

It is now bearing its logical fruit in Europe, ruining commerce, agriculture, manufacture, and all right human enterprise in a tornado of folly.

And yet, the same people who are so ready to adopt the precise policy that is devastating Europe, are not a dreamer, but rather show the hardest kind of hardness of heart.

We do not want to "change human nature," we want to substitute intelligence for idocy in the men who are now bearing the burden of the world.

We do not believe justice is the product of un-powder; liberty is not the quotient of a preponderant army, and honor is not to be determined by duels, instead of by the sword.

All we want is law in place of anarchy. And when each nation settles its own disputes with others by force of arms, that is no more than less than international anarchy.

Gentlemen come asking for millions to increase our armies and build great fleets, and the masses of the people are already being poured down a rat hole.

There is but one way out of war and war preparedness, and that is the federation of the world.

Why not go about it that way? To say we must wait until all nations are ready is silly. There must be a beginning, and that is no more than less than international anarchy.

We are the only nation that can begin.
The great big American idea is federation. Why not advance that, instead of calling names?

New York Evening Post: Mr. Wilson declares that he has tried to find out what the mass of the plain people are really thinking and feeling and hoping. There can be no doubt that he has come nearer doing it than have the clamorous for war and for military preparations for war. "I am not," he says, "a pacifist. But we are not to conjure up vague, airy, nebulous theories of aggression we are to put far from us. Conquest of lands is as much ruled out as conquest of our own people. We are to have the old ideal of doing good to

BARTLETT INDORSED FOR NEW FEDERAL JUDGESHIP

Johnson, Bell, Howard and Vinson Want Macon Congressman Named

BY RALPH SMITH.

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—Four members of the Georgia delegation to the Senate, Mr. Johnson, Mr. Bell, Mr. Howard and Mr. Vinson, were the first to endorse Judge Bartlett for the judgeship of the Southern district of Georgia, to be created by a bill pending in the Senate. They told Mr. Wilson that a majority of the members from Georgia would be in favor of Judge Bartlett.

It is understood that Congressman Lee, Hoggan and Wynn join in the endorsement.

President Wilson declared that he was in favor of Judge Bartlett. He was expected to be a lawyer and the proper time would take up consideration of the appointment.

Judge Bartlett is representing the Macon district in the Sixth district. He will retire voluntarily on March 1, and his colleagues, with whom he has served as long, would like to see him succeed to the federal bench. He is respected and friendly of all the members of the delegation.

The Macon congressman was unaware that the members of the delegation had voted for the creation of the judgeship. Congressman Bartlett would be eligible for the position, but the appointment was delayed after his retirement from Congress.

Word has yet been received by the Senate committee from Judge Bartlett. It is possible that nothing will come from him by next Monday. In any event it is likely that an effort will be made to call the judgeship committee to order.

Further postponement of the bill, only one protest has been received from the bar of Georgia, against the creation of the new judgeship. This was from the Senate committee, which has Lincoln Johnson, a negro lawyer of Atlanta, who contends that the bill is unconstitutional.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE ANXIOUS TO AID WOMEN
Committee Will Discuss Employment Bureau With Atlanta Club Women

A committee from the Atlanta Women's club conferred with Mayor Woodard and with President Williamson and other officials of the chamber of commerce Thursday evening over the establishment of an employment bureau for women, and the possibility of creating work for women now idle.

The committee, Mrs. William L. Perry, Mrs. C. J. Hagan and Mrs. Frank Kelly, was informed by the mayor that plans for a municipal committee to take up the matter until the first of next year to establish the employment of a women's employment bureau. The chamber of commerce officials were then invited to meet during the afternoon with the object of taking immediate steps to open a bureau.

EAST POINT CAR JUMPS TRACKS; NOBODY HURT
A southbound East Point car jumped the tracks at the Thelma station Thursday evening about 10:20 o'clock and blocked street car traffic on that line for one hour and ten minutes. The accident was caused, according to the Georgia Railway and Power company, by a broken axle on the car. Thirteen persons were on the car, but none was injured.

The front truck of the car went to the right of the tracks, the rear truck jumping on the rails. The rear end of the car projected over the tracks of the northbound cars, delaying traffic on that line.

Sir, If You Would Give Genuine Pleasure Give Her Genuine Furs

Of course, any fur is genuine fur—but too often it is not the genuine kind it is supposed to be.

But there is an insurance against deception, wilful or otherwise, in furs.

Know Your Store.

Know it not only as a fair-dealing store, but also as a store with ability to get right qualities.

We know furs.

The display we have arranged for the Christmas season is one of exceedingly fine values because we exercised this knowledge in selecting them.

So, when we speak of Mink, Lynx, Black Fox, Red Fox in sets of smart styles with prices beginning at $25 and extending through $35, $37.50, $45, $50, $75, $85 and upwards, and of separate muffs and neckpieces at $10 to $75 you may depend upon them as values.

Graceful, Luxurious Fur Coats

The display is in its Christmas richness. Beautiful too. Manufacturing furriers have succeeded in making coats more graceful and easier to wear than ever.

These are in Seal and Sable Squirrel. Plain or with collars and cuffs of a contrasting fur, lined with richest brocaded and plain satins.

Priced at $75, $85, $110, $125 to $200

New Coats Have Arrived and Are Priced

Are priced at less than their real worth. Our buyer struck New York at the psychological moment—for values, for styles. So, tomorrow you will find—

Corduroy and Seal Plush Coats in new and attractive styles.

Those of corduroy in plain colors, in stripes, in flecked effects, in black, navy, brown and gray.

Those of seal plush (it has every appearance of fur) in black.

At $19.50, $23.75, $25 and $29.75

Set-in sleeves, plain and fur-trimmed collars and cuffs, belted styles, flaring skirt styles, often effected by the front belt.

Children's House Robes

Eiderdown, Flannelette and Blanket Robes, in sizes from one to eighteen years.

Priced from 75c to $3.75.

So many and so varied in style and trimming and colors it will not be hard to find the right one.

Delicate shades in smaller sizes—then come the grays and navy, Copenhagen.

Children's and misses' furs—sets and separate pieces, priced from $1.25 to $50. Surely, with such a variety, it will be little trouble to find a gift.

Girls' Serge and Velvet Dresses

(In the Junior Department—Third Floor)

Are reduced a third or more.

A little dress that will make a big, heaping Christmas present.

$7.50 Dresses $5.00 $10.00 Dresses $6.50 $15.00 Dresses $10.00 $17.50 Dresses $11.50

All sizes among these, although there may not be every size in every style. Fact is, that is why we have reduced 'em.

The styles! Novel, smart affairs, new this season, some of them belted, some of them plain, all attractive. For school and dress wear.

Children's Sweaters

and knit goods, always favored for Christmas gifts—and this year more so than ever, because they are prettier.

All in boxes.

Sweaters $1.00 to $5.00; Tights 25c to $1.50; Hoods 50c to $1.25; Leggings 50c to $1.25.

Play suits for children—for the boys cowboy, Indian, policeman and soldier suits; for the girls cowgirl suits; priced from $1.25 to $2.50.

Gift Furniture

One of the most attractive sections of the store. The most giftable gifts for the home, with the added charm that things are inexpensive.

A Solid Mahogany Rocker $7.50

A small rocker, saddle seat, and mahogany. A value that stands out as remarkable.

Fumed Oak Flower Box $7.00

It stands 31 inches high, 32 inches long; is 13 inches wide; galvanized lining.

We Sold More Talking Machines yesterday than in any one day in the life of this Talking Machine Department.

Some Chose Victors, Some Chose Columbias, Some Chose Sonoras

All of which points the lesson that it is wise to go to the store that offers you choice of the three standard makes, where you may select the one you like best.

LOCKER CLUB MEMBERSHIP UP TO CHURCH MEMBERS

Their Own Conscience Must Decide Issue, Say Baptist Deacons

Whether members of the First Baptist church who are members of the locker club shall resign from their club or stay in them is to be decided by their own consciences and not by the church. The church is not opposed to clubs, nor is it opposed to the locker club, but it is opposed to the locker club which is not a church club. It is opposed to the locker club which is not a church club. It is opposed to the locker club which is not a church club.

At an open meeting of the members of the First Baptist church, held Monday night last, the deacons of the church were asked to advise the members of the locker club as to whether they should remain in the club or resign. The deacons advised the members of the locker club to remain in the club if they so desired, but to do so at their own risk.

That those of the deacons who held membership in the club will use every legitimate effort to secure the elimination of any unlawful features that may be found in the club is the opinion of the deacons. The deacons are not opposed to the locker club, but they are opposed to the locker club which is not a church club.

That in the opinion of the deacons, the locker club is not a church club, and that the locker club is not a church club, is the opinion of the deacons. The deacons are not opposed to the locker club, but they are opposed to the locker club which is not a church club.

That in the opinion of the deacons, the locker club is not a church club, and that the locker club is not a church club, is the opinion of the deacons. The deacons are not opposed to the locker club, but they are opposed to the locker club which is not a church club.

MRS. BRECKINRIDGE OUTLINES SUFFRAGE IN INTERVIEW

Debbie Ormond Thomas.
"What southern men need to know," said Mrs. Debra Breckinridge with a charming smile in a brief interview shortly after she stepped off the train Wednesday afternoon, "is the fact that suffrage is not in the air, or even in the way-it's here! Like the shot that was heard around the world, the movement once launched has gathered force until now the impetus is so great that there is no stopping it. In a short time the realization will be driven home that suffrage has not only arrived—but arrived too soon for some of us who are not prepared and abreast with the times!"

Somewhere in the tiny interview a question was pronounced the noted suffrage leader—or question which whether suffrage—or not, has been for some time agitating the heart of woman, and many a pretty brow has wrinkled and eyes trying to fathom out the answer.

In short, Mrs. Breckinridge was asked if it was possible to ascertain what average man really thought of the suffrage question? "Certainly," laughed Mrs. Breckinridge, "and in the opinion of the men I have met, they are not only men, but they are men of the future. I have lectured on many platforms, and in each state one-third to one-half my audience has been composed of men. Of course, some of them may have accompanied their wives or sisters or sweethearts, but some of them may have come alone, and some of them may have come with the fact that they were there. I found the masculine part of my audience deeply attentive to the arguments for suffrage and in many cases the informal discussions from the platform following the meetings have been continued by men and women joining in the argument. As a rule, the older men, men who have borne the burden and heat of the day are in thorough sympathy with the cause and lend their best efforts toward its advancement, realizing the benefit that will accrue. The foolish and idle talk about women stepping out of their sphere is usually advanced by the very young men who have not had time or opportunity to investigate the question."

Mrs. Breckinridge, who is vice president of the American National Suffrage association, came direct to Atlanta from Savannah and Columbia, and was full of enthusiasm over the progress of suffrage in these cities.

Lecture in Chamber of Commerce Hall.
A large and representative audience assembled Wednesday evening to hear Mrs. Breckinridge speak on "Woman Suffrage." The speaker was introduced by Mrs. Emily McDougall. The address was a brilliant and comprehensive one, and the lecturer reviewed the subject from every angle. Interesting statistics were given to show the increased efficiency in the states which recognize suffrage and the point was strongly brought out that in no case where a right has been given women, did it not result in the good of the race. "It is not feminine perversity or original sin," she said, "that is the cause of the trouble. It is because we have awakened to the fact that things vitally concerning the state are not conducted as we would wish them."

The thing that has brought women to the side of suffrage is the fact that they can no longer perform their traditional functions in society, even without the ballot.

Toward the end of the lecture the speaker's voice softened as she spoke of the coming "woman's hour," the hour that will lengthen into the golden dawn when through the efforts of women the suffering and sorrow of the world will be materially lessened, a forecasting of the vision which lies deep in the soul of every woman of a time to come when little children will not work in glass factories at night, and tender baby hands will not be tolling in the mills.

Colledge, Miss Katherine Dickey, Miss Catherine Critchton, Miss Margaret Vaughn, Miss Marie Stoddard, Miss Doreen Haverly, Miss Catherine Haverly, Miss Phyllis Wilkins, Miss Grace Goldsmith, Miss Frances Ellis, Miss Alice Haverly, Miss Mildred Kern, Miss Frances Kern, Miss Charlotte Meador, Miss Sarah Schenck, Miss Gorda Horton, Miss Mary Woolbridge, Miss Lura Bell, Miss Jennie Robinson, Miss Margaret Moran, Miss Evelyn Jarman, Miss Anne Grant, Miss Douglass, Miss Margaret Porter, Miss Marie Barnes, Miss Abby Longmire, Miss Ruth Jolly, Miss Catherine Wilcox, Miss Mary Elinore Haverly, Miss Grace Powell, Miss Mattie Schaeffer.

RUSSIANS FLANKED ON BOTH SIDES AND CRUSHED BY KAISER

German soldiers witnessed at the war front. Crippling of telephone and telegraph wires by the bombardment yesterday at Scarborough and Hartlepool, the British gunners, together with military precautions thrown about these towns made it impossible even today, more than twenty-four hours after the raid to obtain more than an approximate estimate of the civilian dead and wounded.

According to an official statement given out today, a total of fifty-five persons met their death in the Hartlepool while 118 were wounded. Both official and unofficial estimates place the civilian casualties at two dead and two wounded of the Hartlepool casualties even of the dead were soldiers, while of the wounded fourteen men belonged to the military. The maximum of wounded is close to 100 persons. This does not include the slightly wounded civilians who languished their wounds and left town.

Brilliant with wrath and resentment at the attack on unfortified towns, England is said as never before since war was declared.

Another raid is confidently expected and the entire machinery of home defense has been put into motion. On the east and southeast coast emergency committees are at work, while in London plans to organize a national guard of men too old for military service are underway.

Although in the British mind a raid on London seems remote, yesterday's episode drove home the realities of war as nothing else could. Arrangements have been made at Deal and Dover to expedite the removal of the civilian population in case of an attack.

Those measures are primarily to forestall any panic or traffic congestion which might impede military movements.

BERLIN HEARS NEWS. Through the wireless telegraph Berlin promptly heard of the outcome for the raid and this morning a wireless message from the German capital, printed in repeated editions of the six printed British newspapers yesterday. Nothing has been said from German official sources.

Thirty hours out of port on such a venture in mine laden waters is a feat English sailors do not believe, and it will be essayed again, and if necessary again until the call in port once too often. It is presumed that behind them the German cruisers steamed mines, a fleet of trawlers is now out engaged in the nearshore task of sweeping.

The German attack yesterday had resumed much of their normal appearance today, except in the bereaved homes and in the hospitals.

Belief is general that the Germans had the able assistance of spies. The remarkable secrecy with which the raid was executed is shown by the fact that not a single incoming vessel at any east coast port saw the German ships prior to their sudden appearance.

The nearest parallel to yesterday's visit is found in the activities of the American Revolutionary war. Here John Paul Jones, terror of English ships, menaced English commerce in 1779.

A majority of the victims at Hartlepool were women and children. Fifteen school boys were killed by a single shell, only one boy in a group escaping.

German Newspapers Make Comment on Big Raid

BERLIN, Dec. 17.—(Via Amsterdam and London.)—Concerning the shelling of Scarborough and Hartlepool, the Berliner Tagblatt says: "Again our naval forces, facing the danger of scattered mines in the North sea, shelled English fortified places."

The Deutsche Tageszeitung expresses satisfaction with the attack, especially immediately after the naval battle off the Falkland Islands.

The Berlin Neuesten Nachrichten says: "This time it is not a daring cruiser attack with the transitory throwing of a bomb, but a regular bombardment of fortified places, which is a new voucher for the gallantry of the navy."

The Boersen Zeitung says the bombardment is possibly the herald of greater events, and adds:

"The heroic spirit which animates our navy and navy allies has once more been splendidly proven in the attack on the English east coast which our beloved English country cannot have believed possible in view of the vigilance of their navy and the precautions afforded by extensive mine fields. The plucky German seamen fear neither mine nor super-dreadnaught. The iron greetings thrown by our naval places on English coast are possibly an indication that greater events are imminent."

Infant in Mother's Arms Killed by German Shell

SCARBOROUGH, via London, Dec. 17.—The Queen of English waterways places had recovered today from its unexpected bombardment, but for feelings was one of bitter anger at the town's helplessness when under the guns of the German squadron.

The first warning sound of distant firing while the town's attention was centered on the military authorities, came at 5:30 in the morning.

At 8 o'clock three German war craft which the majority of witnesses agree were one battle cruiser and two lighter cruisers, loomed out of a heavy fog along the coast.

They were unable to train their guns on the wireless station on the heights. However, the big resort hotels on the esplanade and the old town offered tempting targets, and a rain of shrapnel and high explosive shells began to fall on that section, damaging the hotels and destroying homes and shops in the poorer districts. A woman in one of those shops was literally blown to pieces.

LIT HOSPITAL. One of the light cruisers seemed to be doing most of the firing. First she let go with her stern guns, then, maneuvering further out, directed her broadsides to the most conspicuous buildings on the high ground. Three shells found a target in the Scarborough hospital. The wall of the old castle which looks formidable but which has been unoccupied for hundreds of years, was breached by an eight-inch shell.

The gunners now got the correct elevation of the wireless station, but failed to injure it.

Some of the houses in the class of residences then began to suffer, one of the first being the home of Russell Rea, member of parliament for the district. His wife and that of his wife were saved by the fact that they had gone down

For an early breakfast and were in the kitchen, the only part of the house untouched, the remainder being a total wreck.

At the same time a small house occupied by a soldier, his wife and their child and nephew was struck by an explosive shell. The entire family was killed.

With the streets cleared of people, the German gunners then directed their attention to the railroad station. A whole row of houses, including a church in a nearby street, were wrecked, but without loss of life, as the occupants had sought safe refuges. The second part of the bombardment was more violent than the first, but did less damage.

At the expiration of the second period—after the town had been under bombardment thirty minutes—the warships drew off in a northerly direction and wharves the people of the Scarborough again heard the booming of the dreadnaughts at 9 o'clock the town of Whitby, up the coast, was the victim.

MANY WOMEN WOUNDED. During the early stage of the bombardment the screaming shells caused pandemonium. Later the people quieted.

When the ships drew off the search for killed and wounded began. Among the wounded were many women and children, an infant of four months having had its skull fractured by shrapnel fired from the arms of the mother who escaped unscathed. A surgeon at the hospital also had a marvelous escape when the casing of an eight-inch shell burrowed into the ground at his feet.

The military authorities directed the removal of the wounded from the town.

The pathetic helplessness of the refugees brought home the reality of war to this part of England. Many poor people whose homes were destroyed sought refuge in nearby towns.

By midnight the town bore an outward appearance of calm, but anxious groups lingered about the streets. Many persons were unresponsive in their expressions of resentment because the town was helping to retaliate on the raiders.

Seven Soldiers Killed in Hartlepool Trenches

HARTLEPOOL, via London, Dec. 17.—The first men of Hartlepool's new army to come under fire were local militia, who were sent out to man the defense trenches on the sea front when the German raiders appeared. They were shelled by the enemy, who had the range of the defense works correctly discovered, which suggests information by spies.

The militia stood their bugles bravely, especially, when it is considered that they were powerless to make a reply, as the firing had to be left to the heavy guns.

The officer in command had a narrow escape when a shell struck the earth mound, burying him and three men in the trenches. Fortunately all four were unhurt.

The casualties in the trenches were seven killed and fourteen wounded, most of these in a single company.

The Hupmobile

Car of the American Family

Closed Car Comfort At Open Car Cost

The only reason why every motor car owner doesn't have a Hupmobile is because for winter weather this luxury involves an investment in another car.

With the coming of the Hupmobile sedan and coupe tops, every Hup owner, at least, can have all the comfort and snugness to all the luxury of a permanent limousine at a very small outlay, says John M. Smith, the Hupmobile dealer here.

These demountable tops are a real development in the industry.

Not only do they give the Hup owner the use of practically two cars, but they are designed and built in perfect harmony with the beauty of the Hupmobile design.

They are firmly attached to the body of the car; the doors are of regular Hupmobile dimensions; the windows are of heavy coach glass, non-rattling; the interior finish is calculated to satisfy the most discriminating; and they are thoroughly weatherproof.

Literally, these tops give you real closed car comfort at open car cost, and for that reason are well worthy of your inspection.
