LEO FRANK'S APPEAL AWAYS DECISIONS JUDGE W. T. NEWMAN

Necessity for Stating That Probable Cause for Appeal Exists Causes Court to Defer Action

HABEAS CORPUS WRIT DENIED ON SATURDAY

If Appeal to Supreme Court Is Certified, Case May Reach Decision in the Next Thirty Days

Whether Leo M. Frank lets be permitted to appeal to the United States supreme court from Judge W. T. Newman's decision denying his petition for a writ of habeas corpus will be definitely determined by Judge Newman Monday morning at 10 o'clock.

After Judge Newman went into his chambers Saturday afternoon, following his denial in open court of the petition and his announcement that he was disposed to certify an appeal, Attorney Henry C. Peeples, of Frank's counsel, called his attention to a law enacted by Congress in 1903 which requires that when a federal judge allows an appeal in habeas corpus proceedings he must issue a certificate stating that in his opinion there exists "probable cause for appeal."

This request for a certificate of probable cause for an appeal has changed the aspect of the case and while the court is still disposed to allow the appeal, it will not determine until Monday whether it will certify to the United States supreme court.

Judge Newman discussed the matter at some length with Frank's attorneys and informed them that he had changed his mind. He said he would issue a certificate stating that in his opinion there exists "probable cause for appeal."

LAW COVERS THIS POINT

The following clause in the act relating to this point was sent out from Washington Saturday night by the Associated Press:

"A federal law enacted in 1903 requires that a federal judge who allows an appeal in habeas corpus proceedings issue a certificate stating that in his opinion there exists 'probable cause for appeal.'"

"The law reads"

"From the final decision by a court of the United States on a proceeding in habeas corpus, the court may, if it deems it proper, certify to the United States supreme court all cases in which the court shall be allowed to review the decision of the court below. The court shall be allowed to review the decision of the court below in all cases in which the court shall be allowed to review the decision of the court below."

"An appeal in habeas corpus, properly made, would not ordinarily come up for consideration by the supreme court, but in cases where the court below has made an error of law, the supreme court may review the decision of the court below."

MAY WIN FIRST POINT

It is believed that Newman will allow the appeal this will be the first point in the case which Newman has won. Newman has won the case on the merits of the appeal, but he has lost the case on the point of law.

REPORTED CAPTURES ARE ESTIMATED SAYS CHIEF BEAVERS

Two Alleged Victims of Highwaymen Simply "Framed Up" Story, According to Police Department Head

CONFIDENT OTHER CASES WOULD NOT STAND PROBE

Chief Says One Man Confessed He Was Not Robbed, and Another "Robbery" Was Proven Fake

The discovery Saturday night that two holdups reported during the past week were nothing more or less than pure fiction, the chief of police Beavers declares that in his opinion a large number of the robberies and crimes described by citizens recently are of the same caliber.

"It would be a waste of time to investigate all of these cases, thoroughly," said the chief. "I think we would find that crimes are not as prevalent in the city of Atlanta as it is in the imagination of some of her people."

The chief based his assertion on the alleged confession of William West, a real estate man, who was charged with the charges of forgery and passing worthless checks. "That his story of being robbed at the point of a gun on the Ford place last Saturday night was untrue," he said, "in order to get a job."

However, a report by the chief of police Beavers, according to the chief, is the story of a man, a soldier from Fort McPherson, who was charged with the charges of robbery and passing worthless checks. "That his story of being robbed on Forsyth street between Alabama and Hunter, of $15 in cash and a diamond ring worth $15, a diamond ring worth $24, another ring worth $45 and a watch."

The chief said that the man, a soldier from Fort McPherson, who was charged with the charges of robbery and passing worthless checks. ## MAN WHO SANG HIMSELF IN JAIL SINGS SELF OUT

But the Caruso of the Rock
Pile Will Sing No More,
He Says

Freedom, bought by a song, has still the singer's voice; pardon, purchased at the price of melody, has still the voice of reformation; conversation a Caruso has been completely cured by the very reward it captured.

In other words, Thomas Wadsworth Horton, P. V. V., has quit.

He was judged for singing, he was sent for singing, and now he will sing no more, he says, save for one person in the world—Judge George E. Johnson, who got him out of jail.

The story of Mr. Horton's incarceration in two-part time, the first part being the story of his incarceration, and the second part being the story of his release.

He was sentenced by Judge Johnson, December 1, to serve 21 days. But he later learned that his sentence was only for 10 days, and he was released on Thursday morning.

Another case occupied the court, however, and the notice was not given Judge Newman. As a result, the latter state that the plant will not stop the case until formal notice has been given.

The destructor company has made the new move in view of the fact that the plant in which it asked for a test of the plant during last week, and that the city increase the price it pays the plant for burning garbage from 25 cents to 42 cents per day.

While the company has received no formal answer, the sanitary committee, to which the council referred the company's communication, met on Friday and drafted a report to council denying the company's request.

A special Christmas service will be held at the Central Congregational church, corner Ellis street and Carnegie square, this morning at 11 o'clock. The Sunday school will meet with the church at this time, and a special feature will be the offering of white gifts, which will be distributed to the children. Everyone is invited to attend this service.

It is reported that the judge, with Mayor Woodworth and other influential persons in releasing the Virginia Warburton will be held guests at a special party bouffe at which Mr. Wharton will first for the last time into song.

OLSON CO.'S SALE MEETING POPULAR APPROVAL

The sale that is now being conducted at the Olson Company, whose main store is located at the corner of Pryor and Pryor streets, is meeting with popular approval. In fact, the $100,000 stock of goods meets the needs and the wants of the people of Atlanta in such a magnificent manner that men and women who go to Olson's are glad to get all that they want to buy in the clothing line for Christmas.

The big stock of Olson's was only slightly damaged by the fire, and the goods are of the highest quality. The prices have been reduced to such an extent that it seems like the goods are almost being given away. There is nothing, however, that was really badly damaged, only the small of smoke attached to some of the clothes, and that is easily gotten rid of, but Olson decided that his customers should have the insurance added to the price of the goods, and consequently he placed everything in the store in the big fire sale.

MR. JOE OLSON'S WAY OF DOING BUSINESS.

Mr. Joe Olson, the head of the big Olson Company, does business in a straightforward manner, and he does not get from the shoulder. There's nothing but and nothing to be read between the lines in his advertising. He is very plain in his advertising.

He plainly states that the goods are very slightly damaged by smoke, but for that reason you are going to be given the benefit of it. And then he proceeds to cut prices "way below all former levels."

Make your money go as far as it possibly will go, by going to Olson's for the things you are going to buy for Christmas. The main will reopen tomorrow morning with renewed vigor, so, as Mr. Olson would say, "Go to it—(Adv.)"

DID ATLANTA MAGICIAN ROB CINCINNATI BANKS?

In the belief that Edward Marshall, alias Rhymata, the magician, who was captured for two during daylight robberies in Atlanta last summer and recently released from the convict camp at which he was sentenced, is the perpetrator of the automobile bandit who was captured in Cincinnati last Thursday created a sensation, Atlanta Detective Channing and Sturdivant went out that the Cincinnati bandit went about his work in the same manner which characterized Rhymata when he later robbed the Jefferson Hotel on Forsyth street and a negro man on Auburn avenue.

It is entirely possible, declares the Rhymata, that Rhymata and the Cincinnati bandit are one and the same, as Rhymata has been a fugitive for over a year and might have gone to the Ohio city.

NEGRO ROUND OVER UNDER BOND FOR BURGLARY

Harmon Butler, a negro, was bound yesterday by Recorder Johnson under $2,000 bond for burglary. He was arrested a night or two ago by Detectives Webb and Harper on suspicion of being the burglar.

Jewelry was found in the negro's home, some of which was identified by W. A. Callaway, of 135 Myrtle street, and Mrs. John Dole, of 612 North Boulevard.

MAN CARRIES SMALL Cannon Loaded With Dum-Dum Bullets

The first dum-dum bullets have found their way to Atlanta. They were brought here by Judge DeVoe, a distinguished attorney, who says he comes from the Adirondacks, and who was arrested Saturday morning on a charge of carrying a hip-pocket.

Officer Hagler made the arrest, charging DeVoe with drunk and disorderly conduct. The revolver found on his person contained several dum-dum bullets, which the police declare are new. DeVoe said he got them from a man in the Adirondacks.

DESTRUCTOR CO. WOULD SHUT DOWN CREMATORY

Plans to File Formal Notice
With United States Court

Attorneys Evans & Spence, who represent the Destructor company, appeared in the United States district court Saturday with a motion to file a supplemental bill in the crematory case and also with a formal notification that it plans to shut down the crematory.

Another case occupied the court, however, and the notice was not given Judge Newman. As a result, the latter state that the plant will not stop the case until formal notice has been given.

NEGRO DRIVER SLUGGED And Robbed by Two Youthful Highwaymen

Held up and slugged by a pair of bandits, Ben Long, a negro driver for the Echols grocery store at 4 Cleburne avenue, jumped from his delivery wagon, when freed by the thieves, and ran for the nearest house, leaving his horse to wander aimlessly about a ranch for the wagon, but was finally persuaded to go back to the store.

Long declared that two negroes, one armed with a "billy," and the other with a revolver, jumped into his wagon and slugged him and then rifled his pockets of $20. The negro bears a bad grudge on his forehead and his story is fully credited by his employer.

MISERIES OF LIVING IN TRENCHES VIVIDLY DEPICTED BY SOLDIER

Hardships of Cold and Damp
Dreaded More Than Actual Fighting, Says Britisher on Belgian Frontier

LONDON, Dec. 18.—(Correspondence of The Associated Press.)—Miseries of life in the trenches are vividly pictured in a story written by an English soldier on the Belgian frontier. He enlisted as a private but later was raised to an officer. Thus he has had an opportunity to see the war from different angles. His story follows:

It isn't the danger that affects one in the trenches, but the hardships of cold and damp. Bullets from snipers—the Germans have lots of these out all night and day—whizz about your ears continually, and occasionally shrapnel makes one tuck one's head down, but one gets so used to the firing that—although it may sound incredible—it soon becomes far less noticeable than city traffic, for instance.

At night sometimes an outburst of artillery or a wild rattle of the musketry at an imaginary night attack wakes one stiff, sore, frozen and full of strong language from fitful dreams, which mainly concern themselves with steak puddings and huge fires at home. One is really horrible. One's own eyes cease shivering. At night the soles of one's boots freeze and one is awakened by icy feet and forced to get up and stamp till the blood consents to circulate once more. Daylight brings some respite but the whole time one is forced to muffle to the eyes, and such gloves, comforters, cardigans and bedsocks cannot be too numerous. I can scarcely button my coat over my numerous baiter and still I perish.

MIN LOOK LIKE MINERS.

Washing and shaving are practically impossible. Officers and men leave the trenches like miners coming up from a pit, but somehow that does not worry us. The idea of washing in such cold is too awful, for it is impossible to restore the circulation by exercise in a narrow crowded trench and in the dugouts there is just room to lie down. They are now beginning to serve out coal and coke—just in time. There would have been wholesale frostbite otherwise.

The water in the machine guns freezes and they have to be nursed back to action in front of fire. Bittes get frostbitten and sometimes are ruptured by the sudden shock consequent of being fired. This is rather welcome, however, for the wood from a desecrated rifle turns beautifully.

The water bottles freeze, too, and have to be thawed out. Water is a nuisance. It has to be fetched by night by fatigue parties from farms and villages in the rear, a process which takes sometimes two or three hours.

It is extraordinary how ingenious the men are in solving things for their comfort. They put little fireplaces in the side of a trench, line them with tin from ammunition boxes, and top them neatly with chimney made of tulle-her line. They build elaborate rifle racks and make themselves snug burrows to sleep in, roofing them with material from nearly ruined farm houses, piled over with earth.

The food is plentiful and good. The real need is for milk and fruit. Plenty of tobacco and cigarettes are to be had. There is a dearth of things to read, and it is considered rank treason to light a fire with a piece of newspaper. The trenches stretch in a practically unbroken line from the sea to the east frontier, but in groups of isolated rifle pits, but in what are really series of small towns linked together by narrow communicating trenches, each battalion occupying its own little town, which may be anything from half a mile to two miles long, and a hundred yards or so deep.

From behind the firing trenches there is a wide labyrinth of interesting communicating trenches, support trenches, dug-outs for staff and officers, kitchens, and so forth, though of course some are more elaborate than others.

RELIEVING WORK TEDIOUS.

It takes about an hour and a half to go from one end of our present battalion position to the other. Last week the trouble was mud, wet, viscous mud, four or five inches deep, that squelched round one's boots, and got plastered over everything up to one's hat. My boots would come off. This week the frost has laid the mud and the cold is our enemy.

We spend a few days in the trenches and then a few days in reserve in the villages in the rear. The relieving, of course, has to be done at night. It is an arduous job. You march along as noiselessly as possible to within half a mile of the rear, where you are met by a guide and taken in single file through an interminable winding communication trench, full of roots and mud, never more than three feet wide at the top and about eighteen inches at the bottom. Then at a sort of firebreak circle in the rear of the fighting line, the command branch to their various posts and are supported in until each man of the relieving force stands behind another of mud to be relieved. The waiting is a tedious business. It seldom takes less than three to five hours to effect the complete change. Everything is dead still except for an occasional bang-bang as show the sentries are awake. No one pays the slightest attention to them. The men exchange pleasantries in hoarse whispers and the officers exchange news and explain the special points of the position. Finally, when the last man has been placed, the order to change places is passed down. The new men step up onto the little firing platforms and the relieved men step down into the trench and file out silently into the night. Then all through the night half the men and officers are on guard, while half rest. By day there are only sentries here and there along the line.

A pathetic sight in the rear of all the trenches is the occasional plain wooden cross marking the grave of some victim of sniping or shrapnel bullet. Many are ornamented with a regimental badge on a single inscription laboriously stenciled in pencil; others are quite plain.

I lagged my feet the other yesterday in a curiously primitive feeling of being it is to shoot one. He had the audacity to stand up working in a trench only 250 yards away, so that I could see him from the waist up. I spent this morning laughing away at an old working party, but could not see what result.

GERMAN TROOPS ARE PELTED BY SHOWER OF DEADLY ARROWS

Aviators of the Allies Fly Over Battlefields and Release Hail of Steel Darts on Their Foes Below

(By Associated Press.)
LONDON, Dec. 19.—The arrows, which aviators of the allies are using over the battlefields are in two parts, a head and a short-barbed shaft. The head measures about 2 1/4 inches, and the total length of the arrow is 4 1/2 inches. The head is made of a fine point and the shaft is made of a right angle, the whole being formed of two flat sides of the four flanges thus produced being set into the steel head. The diameter of the head is about 5/16 of an inch tapering to a fine point and the whole weight is about twenty-one grams.

A German doctor gave the following description of the use and effect of the steel arrows at a meeting of the Staff College Medical society:
"The casualties of German soldiers were resting when two aeroplanes circled overhead at a height of about 1,200 feet. Suddenly one of the soldiers felt a sharp stinging pain in his right arm and thought one of his fellow soldiers had inadvertently picked it; but the pain was soon dispelled when he heard cries of pain all about him. The soldier then became restless and two were found wounded. Looking at his foot the soldier found an iron arrow had penetrated it. He immediately picked it out. About fifteen others had been hit, and the source of the arrows being discovered the men took cover under wagons. It was subsequently estimated that about fifty arrows had been dropped and every third man had taken effect. The importance of these weapons, particularly when dropped on resting soldiers, is therefore caused mainly by the fact that about half the casualties consisted of the wounded. The lower limbs shows how vulnerable the resting soldier is to arrows from above. Suddenly the arrows scatter about randomly, for in one case four companies were simultaneously hit.
One case was mentioned of an arrow passing through the scalp without injuring the skull, but another caused death by entering the left temple and reaching the brain by the right."

ROCKEFELLER TAKES FIGHT INTO THE COURTS

Asks Injunction to Stop Collection on Estate in Cuyahoga County, Ohio

CLEVELAND, Dec. 19.—John D. Rockefeller, through counsel, today filed in federal court a petition for an injunction to restrain County Treasurer O'Brien from collecting taxes on $11,647,817 assessment on Rockefeller's holdings by the Cuyahoga county tax commission. Mr. Rockefeller declares he maintains a residence there and performs all the functions of a citizen of that state. Mr. Rockefeller says he is a resident of New York state, that he maintains a residence there and performs all the functions of a citizen of that state. Mr. Rockefeller says he is a resident of New York state, that he maintains a residence there and performs all the functions of a citizen of that state.

The petition describes the Cleveland Forest Hill estate of Mr. Rockefeller as a place where he maintains a summer home and which he occasionally visits. The petition alleges that December 18, 1914, Mr. Rockefeller tendered to Treasurer O'Brien $25,644, his legal tax, and that it was refused. This amount all Mr. Rockefeller owes Cuyahoga county in taxes, the petition states. Taxes on his personal holdings are paid regularly in New York, according to the petition.
The tax on more than $11,000,000 Mr. Rockefeller is asked to pay in Ohio was assessed on his Standard Oil and other holdings.
Tax officials contend that under the Ohio law by remaining here the greater part of a year Mr. Rockefeller became liable for taxation purposes.

The affirmative was upheld by Cadet Lieutenant Stockbridge, of Atlanta, and Cadet Harper, of Barnesville, representing the Philomathean. Indications point to a record attendance and a good spring term in every department of this well-known college.

OBJECTIONS TO BENNETT LIKELY TO BE DROPPED

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 19.—It is probable that the protesting citizen who was coming to Washington to oppose the appointment of W. H. Bennett as postmaster at that place will abandon their trip.
Mr. Bennett's name was sent to the senate on yesterday and today Senator Hawley, of New York, stated that unless they had charges to file against the fitness of character of Mr. Bennett it would be useless for them to come to Washington. Mr. Bennett's nomination will be confirmed next week probably.

EXPLAINS DEFEAT OF GERMANS AT TSING-TAU

General Says Lack of Modern Equipment Was to Blame

TOKIO, Dec. 19.—(Correspondence of the Associated Press.)—Lack of modern equipment, caused the defeat at Tsingtau, according to the German general, General von Falkenberg, who was captured by the Japanese. General von Falkenberg, who was captured by the Japanese, declared that the Japanese had a total of only about 3,500 men and shot of the guns in the Tsingtau fortress were of an old type.
"All our supply of explosives," he had been exhausted when the Japanese began the final attack," he said, "so we could offer no resistance and all forts fell easy victims. With our force we could not oppose the Japanese, who had between 40,000 and 50,000 picked troops, equipped by 1,400 British troops, with over 150 powerful guns.
"A large number of our combatants were wounded in the previous fighting and we called out all German residents in Tsingtau. We had one fourteen-year-old boy and three fifteen-year-old boys. They were employed in the automobile transportation work."

About 300 Germans were killed and 500 wounded, according to the general. Statements of burning shells caused most of the injuries. The general paid a tribute to the bravery and marksmanship of the Japanese. When the Japanese artillery bombardment was at its height, he declared, between 800 and 900 shells hit each fort daily.

As the bombardment of the artillery progressed, the general said, the guns from the Austrian cruiser Kaiserin Elisabeth, the German gunboat Jaguar and the destroyer, S-30, were landed and all subsequent fighting took place on land. There is believed to be little possibility of any vessels sunk in Kaiserin Elisabeth and ten vessels in Kaiserin Elisabeth and several destroyers, ever being raised.

The German officers kept their swords at the express command of the Japanese emperor. The prisoners are distributed in different parts of Japan.

PRINCETON MAY HAVE MILITARY INSTRUCTION

Many Students' Are Heavily in Favor of Adding New Feature

PRINCETON, N. J., Dec. 19.—(Princeton University may have a course of military instruction during the second term, if plans now under way take definite shape. "The movement started with a student petition to the faculty requesting that such a department be made. A committee of the faculty announced that if a sufficient number of students was behind the movement it would report favorably. Nearly five hundred students have signed the paper and it looks now as if the course would be begun in February.

If the plan runs through, the government will send an army officer here and supply rifles and ammunition. Students will buy their own uniforms. Membership in the student company will be voluntary, and will not entail compulsion in time of war. Outdoor work will be held in the spring when extended maneuvers and actual warlike conditions will be reproduced.

PURPOSES OF ATLANTA
PEACE SOCIETY EXPLAINEDPresident Roy Dorsey Sets Forth Aims of Movement to End War

BY ROY DORSEY.

(President of the Atlanta Peace Society.)

The point of view of the organizers of the Atlanta Peace society should be given to the public before a general canvass is made for membership, and in telling in our cause and feeling that there is a tremendous interest in the peace movement, we ask serious consideration at the hands of the Atlanta public. When the suggestion that Atlanta have a peace society was made in the spring of 1914 the general public was enthusiastic about the movement, and of such a society, today, the very mention of peace, our minds instantly turn to thoughts of the awful carnage abroad and men would think that Atlanta should better their efforts to bring about peace.

It is understood that the peace movement is for permanent and universal peace. When we realize fully the purpose and interest of the movement, we are not only interested in the peace of our community but we feel that Atlanta is in a position to contribute to the peace of the world as any other municipality and its citizens will not be slow to take the lead in this section in this worthy enterprise as they have in many another, and in fact, in every movement, and in every cause.

From our experience we of the south have lately learned that by reason of racial dependence no two or more of our states could ever be united in a single front without millions of people living in central countries being sorely affected. Such a condition affects not only the economic life of every nation, but it also affects the moral life of every nation. As we have seen, the pocket nerve of the smallest producer of cotton is touched. We have an immediate interest in peace.

PEACE FOR PERMANENT PEACE.

At the conclusion of the present hostilities abroad it is generally hoped that the treaties of peace will carry with them provision for early negotiations between all the nations, and looking to the conclusion of permanent peace pacts and solemn agreements limiting armaments. It may even fall to the lot of our government to entertain the peace proposals when the time for peace shall come. In the event the treaty of peace ending the present war is signed at Washington the effect on the representation of the United States will be a unified public demand on the part of all the people of the United States for the treaty of peace to contain provisions for permanent and world-wide peace. It is the duty of every citizen in organizing public opinion here. What a splendid opportunity there is in this possibility!

But, first, let it be known that the organization of a peace society in Atlanta at this time is not to be considered as a mere organization of the peace war abroad and this society will not urge a premature or unadvised peace committee. Except that it will not violate the ideals of our society, we have no commitment to any other than to say that such a war committee to contemplate the blessings of peace and therefore makes this a propitious hour for organization for constructive work to the end that we may have ultimate and universal peace.

The American Peace society was organized in 1913 and at that time was an amalgamation of many societies of like object scattered over the country. Since the formal organization of the American Peace society there have sprung into existence almost numberless smaller societies organized with the same object in view, and differing only as to territory covered. From this method of growth has developed an organization of associated peace societies, all affiliated with the American Peace society as the parent society.

OFFICERS OF SOCIETY. The American Peace society maintains permanent offices at the headquarters of the society in Washington, D. C., and from these offices literature and campaign matter is distributed. Washington and properly so, is the center for the peace movement in the United States. The president of the American Peace society is Senator Theodore E. Burton and the three vice presidents are William Jennings Bryan, Andrew Carnegie and William Howard Taft. Needless to say the organization of this great society is complete and its officers and agents are very active.

The plan of organization contemplates that each state, at least, have one society which is designated in the constitution of the American Peace society as a "constituent branch." We are proud to state that Georgia has not been slow to embrace its opportunity and has formed a state society known as the Georgia Peace society of which Dr. Harry C. White, of Athens, is its honored president. In the further contemplation that other and smaller societies shall be organized in municipalities or counties and these are called "section societies." The Atlanta Peace society is a "section society" of the American Peace society. Thus the plan is apparent for federation down to the smallest possible unit, whereby the greatest number of people may be reached and the most effective work can be done.

The purpose of the movement is to effect and insure ultimately world-wide peace and the primary object of organization into societies is to educate the public to an appreciation of what can be done to insure universal peace by organization and popular demand for our government to use its most diligent efforts for the consummation of this object. Contrary to the supposition of some, these various peace societies are organized for a like and a definite object and right speedily is this object being attained. Considerable lowering articles from the constitution of the American Peace society and the Atlanta Peace society respectively: Article II. "The purpose of the American Peace society is to promote permanent international peace, to educate and organize public opinion in opposition to war as a means of settling international differences, and to promote in every proper way the general use of arbitration, judicial methods, and other peace-

V. P. HANSON IS SEEKING
HEIRS OF ALBERT HARRIS

V. P. Hanson, of Elgin, Arizona, has written Postmaster Jones for information about the heirs of Albert E. Harris, who was recently accidentally killed in Elgin. The writer thinks that Harris' family once lived near Atlanta. The dead man left home when a small boy and never returned. He had a homestead in Arizona, and his picture is now being contested.

An advertisement to this effect is now running, and Mr. Hanson thinks the heirs should know this.

Full means of avoiding and adjusting such differences.

Article III. "The object of the Atlanta Peace society shall be to remove the avoidable causes of international controversy, to promote justice and good will between nations and to educate public sentiment in favor of adopting arbitration or other pacific methods of settling international disputes, as a substitute for war."

The peace movement is proceeding with the hope that each county will organize its peace societies and that the societies of every county will be affiliated with the peace society of the state and the societies of the states will be affiliated with the American Peace society, which will have been educated by the peace societies of all other civilized nations until all the peoples of the world will have been educated to the point of view of the pacifists. As such a time the people of all the states and of like mind, and wars shall be no more.

The hope of the Atlanta Peace society is to fulfill this mission in this great movement, yet in activity there is poverty and other means of settling international differences, and we would like to have you come in and make a minute inspection of our Xmas goods. JUDGE SPEER BELIEVED TO
for Jurist to Give Views on New Judgship

BY MAURICE SMITH.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 18.—Senator Culberson, of Texas, chairman, today received a telegram from T. S. Hawes, of Baltimore, requesting that the senate judiciary committee give Judge Speer until next month in which to submit his views on the South Georgia judgeship bill pending before the committee.

The telegram was dated Valdosta, where Judge Speer has been holding court all week, and it is presumed that Mr. Hawes sent the message at the request of the jurist. It is believed, also, that the request for time means that Judge Speer is desirous of preparing a defense of himself in reply to the scathing criticisms of the house judiciary committee which investigated the affairs of his court.

Notwithstanding the desire of Judge Speer for more time in which to submit observations on the creation of an additional judgeship in his district, an effort will be made Monday by Senator Hollis Smith to bring the bill out of the committee with a favorable report. Both he and his colleague, Senator Haden, are anxious that the measure shall pass the senate at as early a date as possible.

Republicans, members of the judiciary committee, have given verbal assurances that it is neither their desire nor purpose to make a partisan question of the South Georgia judgeship, but it begins to seem as if a studied effort is under way to block the legislation.

Judge Speer's request for more time in which to submit comments on the new judgeship bill of course aroused the Republicans on the committee. Several for opposing Senator Smith's effort to have the measure reported Monday. And if the bill should be reported favorably Monday or at some subsequent date it would be as difficult for the senate to pass it by a filibuster, so crowded and congested is the senate calendar at this short session.

Jewelry Makes the most Appropriate Christmas Gifts

Christmas time is the time of giving gifts to one's family and naturally to those things that will be most appropriate, most appreciated by those to whom we give, and most useful.

From time immemorial jewelry has been the most appropriate and usually the most appreciated gift. Our family and friends naturally expect gifts of jewelry—they have learned through long years of giving gifts at Christmas time, to think of jewelry as being the one most appropriate gift.

We have never before carried such an elaborate display of Christmas gift gold and diamond jewelry as we have for your inspection this year. And in addition to our own stock, we have a traveling salesman with us who has nearly $75,000 worth of valuable jewelry which we are placing in our Christmas offerings.

Remember that we divide the payments for you.

NATE AND COUNTY TAXES
NOT SUBJECT TO WAR TAX

Decision Comes From U. S. Internal Revenue Commissioner

At least the question of whether state and county bonds are subject to the federal stamp tax has been definitely and officially settled. They are NOT.

W. H. Osborn, Washington commissioner of internal revenue, wired Governor Clayton yesterday that bonds given by a state or county officer to the state or county are not subject to the tax.

The treasury department originally ruled that since bonds were taxable, Congressmen W. Schley Howard wired that the bonds were not taxable. Collector A. O. Blalock, having in mind the original ruling, wired Mr. Osborn for a confirmation of the latest ruling that the bonds were not taxable. Mr. Osborn wired back that bonds made to the state were not taxable. He didn't say anything about the county.

The suspense was beginning to be terminated last yesterday afternoon another wire from Mr. Osborn to the governor this time, settled the matter.

Discussing the football stars of the season just passed, Outing has issued a list of honor, on which are prominent players from all sections of the country. In announcing this list, the statement is made that each man selected has been recommended by at least two coaches, and that each player has received the unanimous vote of every expert in the particular section in which they played. This plan is a fair proportion to the selection of an all-star team, and should be of interest to football fans throughout the country.

Gentlemen:
I am just in receipt of your favor of November Twenty-fifth and the reason why I have not already written you is from the fact that I have been very busy since my return.

I had a very successful and pleasant trip in the McFarlan Six all the way from Atlanta to Miami. We made what we think a World's record in driving from Atlanta to Miami without shifting gears, except in crossing dangerous railroad crossings and making regular stops. The motor did not miss a lick from Atlanta to Miami.

I am wholly pleased with the trip just made with this car and I do not believe there is a car on the market with a better motor or one that rides any easier than the McFarlan.

Hoping and believing that you will make a big success with the McFarlan Six and with kind personal regards, I am,

Yours very truly,

T. P. A.'s Issue Challenge To U. C. T.'s to Debate On Momentous Question

"Wind" and "Speed" Will Feature Great Oratorical Contest If Challenge Is Accepted - Wisdom of Two Noted Sages Will Be Compared

There will be a battle royal, an oratorical contest of unusual interest, if the challenge of the T. P. A. of Atlanta to the U. C. T.'s to debate is accepted. The challenge has been issued on behalf of the T. P. A. by E. A. Broyles and Barlow Florence. They ask that the U. C. T. select two champions to meet them to debate the following question: "Which possesses the greater amount of wisdom, the man who said, 'Never mind the weather so the wind don't blow,' or the composer of that good old song, 'It ain't no disgrace to run when you is a-leered'?"

The challenge of Messrs. Broyles and Florence is issued to the U. C. T. through the Firing Line, and they are expected to reply as soon as possible. The weather or not the challenge will be accepted by them; and if it is, the matter will be championed as early as possible. When this is done, the time, place and other details of the combat will be arranged.

Messrs. Broyles and Florence are both noted for their oratorical ability, and their power of impassioned oratory and shrewd argumentative power.

The issue of the U. C. T.'s undoubtedly poses oratorical gladiators as able, as powerful as any in the city.

When the contest is held, it is expected that each of the opposing sides will have found someone worthy of their steel.

The contest will undoubtedly attract wide attention, not only among the traveling fraternity but among the people of Atlanta generally, for as can be seen from the statement of the question to be debated it is one of some moment and importance.

Reason for Cattle Raising Is Shown In Orr Statistics

A lesson for more cattle raising in Georgia and the south was presented in the statistics compiled by the J. K. Orr Shoe company and presented on a placard in the Orr exhibit at the recent Rotary show. These statistics showed that the Orr company uses annually two hundred bales of cotton for linings, trimmings and canvas shoes, whereas they use annually one and three-quarter million square feet of leather for uppers and tops, which requires 217,000 cattle to produce. The company annually requires the skins from 22,000 sheep. Their consumption of 240,000 pounds of sole leather requires 52,000 cattle to produce. The lesson to be drawn from the statistics is that Georgia and the south should also produce the cattle, in addition to the cotton required for the manufacture of Georgia and Atlanta-made shoes.

ORR ADDRESSES ATHENS CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

J. K. Orr, head of the J. K. Orr shoe company, was a visitor at Athens, Ga., last Tuesday night, when he delivered the speech of the evening at a meeting of the Athens chamber of commerce. Mr. Orr spoke on business conditions past, present and future. In his talk he emphasized the value of the "buy at home" policy, and the fact that Georgia had now a great opportunity to enter upon diversified farming and especially upon cattle raising. The Athens chamber of commerce declared that Mr. Orr's speech was "deliberate, cool, businesslike, and yet possessing the sunshine of hope for the golden glow of real sliding faith."

COTTON MEN DISCUSS DAMAGE FROM WEATHER

Say Much Loss Will Result Unless Cotton's Protected From Elements

With the coming of the real winter with its cold winds and snow, the question of the protection of the cotton crop from the elements has become a matter of great importance to the cotton growers. The president of a system of nine cotton mills stated recently that cotton raised to the elements for thirty days becomes damaged at least 2 cents a pound. He further stated that his company would not buy any damaged cotton at all. Those who are familiar with the situation state that there will be very little market this year for damaged cotton. It is known that large quantities of cotton being kept over from last year and inadequately protected from the weather will produce a larger quantity of damaged cotton than has heretofore been known. There is a comparatively limited use for damaged cotton, and it is for rope and dyed goods and certain very cheap materials, but the quantity of damaged cotton is very large and there will be great loss this year unless the cotton is everywhere put into warehouses or kept securely protected from the weather.

News Notes of U. C. Council 505

BY W. G. MOORE.

Our membership joins with their friends in sympathizing with Brother Hopkins in the death of his sister. Junior Councilor W. H. Arnold is in the city spending the week end with his family. He reports his holiday trade. He travels for J. W. King & Co. and says that Georgia will be sweet this Christmas for he has done a big candy business.

R. L. Wallace, our secretary and a firing line veteran, states that everybody is getting more optimistic, so far as he is able to observe.

Brother T. B. Lewis reports his Christmas trade. "A smoky Christmas is a most pleasant one," says Brother Lewis, and a large majority of people agree with him.

Councilor George A. Gershon was very cordially received at our last meeting. Every one expects the pleasure of his frequent visits to the council chamber from now on.

George Byrd says he has not felt at home since the show. He thinks he is out for the stage, but we think the stage was made for him, and the same may be said for Brother C. E. Byrd.

Little daughter, will spend the Christmas holidays at Carrollton and Villa Rica, Ga. Allen and Cliff Edwards, of this firm, together with their families, will take Christmas dinner with their parents near Marietta. W. T. Culpepper and W. W. Culpepper will spend Christmas with their parents at Homerville, Ga. W. T. Culpepper declares he will devote the time he is away to hunting bees in the Okefenokee swamp, which is near Homerville.

Alfred P. Rayson, assistant manager for Frank Rayson, left Saturday for a Christmas vacation which he will spend in Florida.

E. S. Broad, of the E. L. Adams company, with his wife will spend Christmas with relatives at Knoxville, Tenn.

W. O. Stamps, of Fain & Stamps, was out on a special trip for three days last week. The weather was fine, but the roads were bad. Mr. Stamps on one of these days made a trip of thirty miles through the country in an automobile.

W. H. Arnold, popular traveler of F. W. King & Co., returned from the road Saturday after a most successful run on orders for holiday goods. The firm has commended him for his good work.

"Putting a Halo Around the Derby"

Up in Boston the other night the Pilgrim Publicity Association was having a pow-wow.

The Pilgrims are the Big Noise in that part of the publicity map.

They were making speeches.

The speeches were featuring the "Made-in-U. S. A." movement.

They talked up and down and back and forth for a while, and all the speech-makers had a good word to say for the Home Manufacture idea.

One of them hit the nail on the head—just like this:

"In the next few years the buying capacity of the American man will be greater than that of any other citizen of any other nation. We are not exhausted. We need to develop what we have.

"The word 'imported' is a fetish, and we buy all that bears that label—even to husbands—blindly and servilely. Why put a halo around an English derby, when you can get a better one here?"

And echo answers mournfully, "Why?"

What is the glamour that surrounds the foreign label?

Why will good, home-grown Americans be so stupid as to fancy that a label carrying an address in Piccadilly, Leicester Square, Unter der Linden, Bond Street, Rue de la Paix, the Nevsky Prospect—or any other district, give superiority to their purchases?

There was a time when—maybe—The U. S. A. was not in the class with its overseas competitors.

But that time has faded away—into the limbo of the Days That Have Vanished.

NOT NOW.

The same reasoning, exactly, applies to our own local industries.

Why will good Atlanta merchants and Georgia merchants scoot away off to the North and the East for merchandise that we produce here at their doors?

It is good merchandise. It pleases discriminating dealers far away from here.

We sell to distant places. Truth is, some of our stuff goes to Supply Houses that re-sell it to the very folks who give it the go-by here at home.

Why not deal direct with your local neighbor?

The old cry that foreign (or far-away-from-home) goods are superior has been drowned out by the steady uplift of quality in Home-Manufactured Goods.

We are ready to stack up with ANYBODY on the quality of our product.

We want our Home Folks to use our goods.

We want to know where's the logic in putting a halo around the imported stuff when the output of our factories is just as good and, in many cases, really better?

See here, Merchants, be sensible. Be logical.

Make up your mind to try out the Home Manufacturer in the new year. It will pay you.

Woman Here Who Dared Perils in South China

Miss Anna Charles
Made a Journey No
Other Woman Has Ever Attempted

I PRAYED God to lead me to the proper place. I prayed, and I prayed, and I prayed, before me rose a low-walled gate, and within I found mud floors and no windows.

For miles, no man or woman of white skin lived. This frail little missionary from the quiet town of Lancaster in Pennsylvania was alone in the Chinese village. Her escort of three soldiers had turned back to Kueilin, and no new troops had been furnished for the journey to Liuchoo.

"I was never so afraid, never," she said, "and for a moment smiled over her terror."

But though she smiled, this adventure in Southern China, three years ago, seemed near at hand, as Miss Anna Charles, a missionary of the Christian Alliance, told of it last week at the home of Miss Elizabeth Lewis, 531 South Pryor street.

How the Trip to Liuchoo Was Made

Both she and Miss Lewis for six years did missionary work in China, and are now now for a year's rest; and Miss Charles is staying here for several weeks before going on to Lancaster.

"Yes," they both agreed, "that trip was the most venturesome thing we heard of in our mission experience."

In fact, it was the only time a woman alone has made the journey from Kueilin to Liuchoo.

"I did have a Chinese woman with me," explained Miss Charles. "But before that no white woman had ever attempted the trip with such slight protection."

They heard that the missionary at Liuchoo, a rather formidable woman, had been left alone by the death of her fellow-worker. Someone had to go to her, and the lot fell to her. There were no white men to accompany me, so I started with no white companion—no one but the Chinese woman and three Chinese soldiers.

There are no railroads in that country, except from Canton to Hong Kong; and the journey is four days. Never before or since has a woman attempted it as I did.

"One day we traveled by chair; that is,

Kaiser Gives Iron Cross to South Carolina Farmer

Count Thyme Wendel,
Who Lives Near Columbia, Rewarded
for His Heroism

GOD bless our good women for their love and care of us here. But, pray constantly this murderous war may come to an end. It is too awful!"

A German count who owns a farm in South Carolina, and who was honored recently by the Iron Cross for a mad ride through a fortified city occupied by the enemy, in which his whole scouting party, except himself and one man were killed, has written in this broken, emotional way to his wife, who is now in Hanover, Germany.

She, in turn, has forwarded parts of his letters to Commissioner of Agriculture E. J. Watson, of South Carolina, who is a close friend of the German soldier.

The count's name is Thyme Wendel, and for years he has lived on a farm near Columbia, S. C. But at the outbreak of the war, he enlisted at once as a second lieutenant; and, since then, has taken part in the fiercest fighting in Belgium and in France.

"For the last three weeks our soldiers have been living like moles in the earth, digging their way 'little by little, closer to the enemy," his wife quotes him. "In a letter to Commissioner Watson, 'War is awful. All the horrors history tells of it are nothing compared to what we see here in actual reality. For three weeks it has been impossible to bury the dead, either our own or the enemy's and the air has become foul with those unburied corpses, and many poor wounded who lie among the dead must die a lingering death. To attempt to rescue them is fruitless, only instant death to the ones who try."

Receives Iron Cross for Bravery in War

Then, his wife tells how this South Carolina farmer—farmer, even though he is a German count—led a squad of King's lancers into the hostile city of Sedan to learn the enemy's position, and how they were riddled by the enemy's bullets and only the count and one lancer escaped. How they returned, their clothing ripped by the enemy's fire in their possession, news that was invaluable to the commanding general; and how, for his daring, he received the Iron Cross, which is Germany's badge of courage.

Following is the remarkable letter written from Hanover, Germany, by Count Wendel to the South Carolina commissioner, in which she quotes from her husband.

"The sadness and misery of the war," she writes, "only increase every day, for daily arrive hundreds of poor wounded. They are received by the Red Cross men and women nurses."

"We have plenty of places, plenty of good doctors and surgeons and nurses, and the wounded are tenderly and skillfully cared for. Hundreds have loved ones in the field give their time to nursing, wearing the Sister's uniform. Everywhere is free help, free giving and free doing. All live in the one desire to help the 'holy cause' of the Fatherland."

"After my husband had crossed the frontier into France I did not get any news from him for three weeks. It was a terrible ordeal of suspense. I did not know whether he was killed, wounded, made prisoner, or what. I wrote to the minister of war at Berlin (as there comes the first news of the fallen or wounded officers) asking for news of my husband. They replied that they had received no information that he had fallen, but that for military reasons letters were not allowed to pass in or out of France, and so for a time the mail was held back. At last came the long-looked-for and prayed-for letter from my dear boy himself, short but with greetings and assurance that he was well, with no wounds whatever, although he had been in some fierce fights. But how good it was to receive those few hurried pencil scribbled words from his own hand. Soon after this came the news of his wonderful patrol ride, which he made on the second of September into Sedan. All the newspapers were full of it. It was so

His Clothes Pierced By Many Bullets

The Knight's Ulmen Regt. (King's Cavalry lancers) to which he belongs, was advancing on towards Sedan, and as this city was a strong fortress, according to war tactics, they must, if possible find out before hand the strength and position of the enemy on whom they were advancing. And this is the mission my husband dared, with a small squad of soldiers, as made this dangerous lone ride, and on reaching the fortress, with a wild "Hurrah!" he dashed into the city, and out through its cross-cross streets, followed by his lancer soldiers. Their sudden appearance spread fear and terror among the enemy's ranks. They cried out: "The German lancers—we are lost." At last in an avenue they encountered a superior force of the enemy who at once opened fire. The count escaped, but with only one man. All his other brave soldiers fell. Yet, my husband did not get even a scratch. He wrote me that it took him many hours to realize and believe that he was bodily, really, quite whole. His hat, coat, saddle bag, all were pierced with bullets.

"Anyway, he brought the necessary news safely back to his commanding general, and on that evening they took Sedan. I have received many flattering congratulations"

Marietta Woman on Boat Sunk By Germans

Mrs. Rambo Tells of Experience While Returning From Rio Janeiro

Boat on Which She Was Passenger Was Sunk By the Karlsruhe

AT first there was intense fear; then, panic gave way to quiet confidence, with our baggage all behind us, we embarked in an open boat and set out for shore. In a little bit there was a puff, a whir, explosion, and the boat in which we had cleared for New York was settling beneath the waves.

At this point, Mrs. Preston Rambo, who lives in Marietta, shivers the least bit, and presses her lips tightly as though she hears again that dull explosion.

The steamer on which she was sailing was a British passenger boat—one of a large number that fell in the wake of the swift-steaming, ominous German cruiser, Karlsruhe.

Strange, but few knew this Georgia woman was a passenger aboard one of the British ships sunk by the Karlsruhe.

From the first the captain had poor-patched thought of danger. They put out from the port of Rio de Janeiro for New York, and he kept telling them a British cruiser would offer protection (if they had reached the safety zone).

"Never mind," he said. "All will be well."

And, indeed, the trip along the South American coast—one Mrs. Rambo has made before—was attended by placid weather and every prospect of a calm, undisturbed voyage.

Then, almost as though it had dropped out of the clouds, a black speck slipped over the horizon. It bulked large, and across their bow steamed the Karlsruhe.

They had been within three miles of the coast, neutrality laws would have saved them. But the captain dared not change his course. A more in that direction, and an iron shell would have followed them.

The German captain came aboard, said he must sink the ship, and that the passengers must prepare to go ashore. Food supplies were placed in a small boat, and passengers and crew embarked. All baggage was left behind. They pushed off, drew nearer to shore, then, from behind, a dull boom, and downward went the British steamer, a mass of splintered wood and twisted iron.

The sheep farms of Tierra del Fuego are much like those of Australia. They are fenced with wire, and the sheep are kept in large paddocks, some of which are as big as an ordinary American township. The average flock contains about two thousand head, and each dog has its own shepherd, aided by dogs. The dogs are Scotch collies, so intelligent that they seem almost human. They will pick any sheep out of the flock and chase it to the master, who directs them by a motion of his hand which way to go. If he waves to the front, they know they are to go there. If he holds his hand to the rear, they know they are to hold up of his hand in the air brings them to a standstill.

Reporter Who Hanged a Man for the Sake of an Atlanta Paper

Little Old Lady Who Scooped New York on the "Crown Princess Cecile" Story—How the "World" Learned Of America's Great Naval Battle

Atlanta newspaper men had an impromptu meeting the other day, and if it came the stories that are printed here—reminiscences of the reporter who hanged a man for the sake of an Atlanta paper, now commissioner of the District of Columbia, but an old newspaper man in spite of that. Some of the stories are his contributions.

BACK in the nineties there was an Atlanta newspaper reporter sent to cover a murder trial and subsequent hanging over in North Carolina. In those days there was no telephone or telegraph service worthy of the name in the south, and the only communication between this little town and Atlanta was the mails. The reporter had to send all his stuff in this way.

He thought about it a while, but could figure no way out except to write an imaginative story of the murderer's last moments on the scaffold and his drop into eternity several hours before the event actually occurred. Well, he did it. Two hours before the hanging, the trials were carrying Atlanta a vivid description of the tragedy.

And not until then did the reporter discover there was a hitch. The sheriff and all his deputies backed out at the last moment, and he was used to hang the man. Not one of them would agree to pull the drop that would kill.

Worried is a parolous word to describe the reporter's condition, of mind. Here nothing in the world could stop the story that would be spread on the front page Thursday morning, and all indications pointed to an indefinite postponement of the hanging.

The reporter went to sheriff. He pleaded with him to hang the man. To no avail. "I won't do it, my deputies won't," said the sheriff, so there you are.

"Well, if a deputy is all you need, swear me in," said the reporter. "I'll do anything to make my story good, even hang a man."

And he did.

New York World's Scoop

Speaking of hangings, did you hear the story of how the New York World got its scoop on the Crown Princess Cecile story?

The Crown Princess Cecile, you know, was a big liner that left New York shortly after the war started, with a cargo of gold. Everybody thought it was off for Europe; all the papers said so, but a few days later the Crown Princess steamed secretly into Bar Harbor.

And the New York World was the only paper to get the story of the return of the Crown Princess. A woman got it.

She was an old lady, and she had stayed on at her Bar Harbor cottage long after the summer season was over, and most of the colony had gone.

One morning a few days after the war had started, she was sitting on the porch of the Crown Princess, she woke up very early and looked out of her window toward the sea. Bulking in through the fog on the horizon was a big steamer.

The old lady got a pair of field-glasses and turned them toward the ship. From her window, she could not see the name on the bows, but she had once crossed the ocean on the Crown Princess Cecile, and she thought she recognized the lines of the vessel.

She put down her field-glasses, went to the telephone and called up the city editor of the New York World. The paper scooped all the others in New York city.

And the old lady with the cottage at Bar Harbor was Mrs. Joseph Pulitzer, wife of the owner of the World.

If the General Were Correspondent

That reminds one of the World's scoop on the destruction of Admiral Cervera's fleet in Santiago bay '98.

News in Washington that hot summer Sunday of July 3 was duller than that had ever been before. The general was in the city, and the White House and were told that there was absolutely nothing doing. No news from the war at all. While they were in the ante-room, a general high in the confidence of the president came in.

He was asked if there was any news. He shook his head. The group began to break up, the correspondents to stroll off in different directions to a cool spot to pass the time.

General, don't you know any news at all?" said the World man. "I never saw things so dull. What can I send 'em today? They want war news. But I haven't any. Just suppose for a minute you were Washington correspondent for the World, and you would send your paper?"

The general stopped in the middle of a stride, and looked earnestly at the correspondent. They were alone.

"If I were correspondent for the New York World today," began the general very deliberately. "If I were correspondent for the New York World, I would send my paper a dispatch to the effect that the Spanish fleet had been totally destroyed by the American fleet as it was coming out of Santiago bay."

The correspondent gasped. "What do you mean, general?" he whispered hoarsely.

The general repeated his words very deliberately. "If I were correspondent for the New York World today," he said, "I would send my paper a dispatch to the effect that the Spanish fleet had been totally destroyed by the American fleet as it was coming out of Santiago bay."

They eyed each other man to man. Then the general turned on his heel, and the correspondent for the New York World broke his time minutes for the nearest telephone office. He knew a tip when he saw it.

An hour later, the New York World's extra proclaiming the news of the war's greatest victory, had round New York to fever pitch, the news was being flashed from coast to coast, and seventy-nine other correspondents in Washington were besieging official sources for confirmation of the news.

The World was telegraphing its correspondent every three minutes for more details. And the correspondent couldn't get them. Furthermore, he could get no more official confirmation of his scoop than the others. Yet he knew by all the gods above that his story was true. Finally, he rushed from office to office. Everywhere he was met with bland ignorance. He could find the general nowhere. He was fairly wild with the feeling that his story was absolutely correct, but could not be confirmed. Finally, the World fired him in a two-letter telegram.

Later that night, when the correspondent had died down and every correspondent, every newspaper, was convinced of the error of the report, President McKinley summoned every correspondent to the White House.

An official bulletin confirmed the story. It was explained that it was meant to keep the news back as a Fourth of July present to the people of the United States.

And the correspondent for the New York World got his job back.

Managing Editor's Escape

There was once a managing editor of a paper in a Kentucky town, who had the luckiest escape I ever heard of.

One day two lumber dealers, whom we will call Jones and Smith, called at his office with the district attorney.

"We understand that you have the facts in this lumber scandal, and are going to print them," began the district attorney.

"I have no story whatever of any lumber scandal," replied the managing editor. As a matter of fact, it was the first he had heard about it.

The district attorney smiled. "You needn't plead ignorance," he said. "We know you have the facts, and are ready to print them. We know that you know that Jones here has been embezzling his partner out of lumber, and that Smith yesterday began proceedings against him. We know that you know it and want to print it."

"I have never heard of such a story," said the managing editor.

The district attorney smiled again. "As you please," he said. "But we know you have the facts, and are ready to print them. We know that you know that Jones here has been embezzling his partner out of lumber, and that Smith yesterday began proceedings against him. We know that you know it and want to print it."

"I have never heard of such a story," said the managing editor.

Darktown May Soon Be Motoring to Police Station; 38 Caliber Beans Are Fattening the Desk Sergeant

WHEN the old horse-drawn Black Maria was kicked into the ash heap to make way for automobile patrols, everybody in Darktown tried to see who could get arrested first, just for the ride. Now it's going to be even worse. The department has asked for run-arounds for its call officers, and if the request is allowed, there will be a riot up at Devil's Dip and down in Fire Hollow to see who shall motor first to police station.

Our means of transportation for popular police court characters is rapidly undergoing an evolution. First we discarded the old-fashioned Black Maria as crude and unbefitting; then, we took to automobile patrols; and now we want little runabouts in which call officers shall motor to the scenes of disturbances and bring back the offenders.

Before the winter is done, we may have limousines so that one may be sure of not suffering from the cold in making the trip to police station. The department says call officers ought to have automobiles because they are forced to make arrests nearly every time they answer a call.

They now use motorcycles and have no way of bringing prisoners back to police station, and waste much time waiting for the patrol.

Further, light runabouts would cost little, and the up-keep would be negligible.

That a sick man could eat a dishful of 38s, and turn at once into a Sampson.

Thieves Who Steal Cool

When things are missing, the police write of the loss in a gray-backed, rather closely-ruled book at police station. They make many entries in a day's time. Clothing, money, cheap jewelry stolen. But that is merely a record of everyday theft. Now, a new sort of thievery is being recorded. People are stealing cool. They steal little more than hand-fans—just enough to light a fire—enough to make a blaze over which they hover and warm their hands. We've seldom had this sort of thing before. Fuel of course is stolen in winter. But not just as it is now. Not a few lamps or a few hand-fans at a time. Before this people have stolen fuel just as they would anything else. Now, they are taking little bits at a time because they are cold.

But in a dishful of 38s lies health and strength. Of course the desk sergeant and the reporters become dinner companions of the prisoners and you can see them burgoon and fower under the influence of stockade beans. They have a saying at police station to keep warm. To avoid freezing they asked to be allowed to sleep in the row of cells that are known as the sleepers' ward. One or two were negroes, the rest were white men.

Whiskey at Headquarters

Police station, if it had the mind, is all equipped for a locker club. About 3,000 gallons of whiskey are stored there. Some of it was taken in raids on blind tigers, some from the vest pockets and the hip pockets of "drunks."

In the vault back of the desk sergeant's office are stored many other things. Among the trash are two cracker-boxes full of knives—old broken, dull blades that were taken from prisoners and never called for. But they are being kept, because a man grows particularly attached to a knife, especially a worthless one.

Now and then a half-embarassed fellow will walk in, hesitate a minute, and then speak confidentially to the sergeant.

He had left a knife there a year ago. No good. But then he'd got attached to it. When he "got out" he was too worried to think of it. I'd carry a gun."

Recorder's Black List

Recorder Johnson is making out a black list. When he took office he wiped Darktown's slate clean. As far as I'm concerned, he said, all of you are as innocent as the new born. But, as offenders came before him, he chalked black marks against their names, and now, as they reappear, he increases their sentence. Again Darktown's slate is being well marked.

Daughter of the Germans

If she were young again, Mrs. Mary Behnfeld, matron at police station, would be bidden Atlanta good-by and setting out for Europe. She is German, was born in Heidelberg, and no one in Atlanta has her enthusiasm for the Fatherland.

"If I had the youth," she said last week, "I would leave for Germany tomorrow, and I'd enlist there in the Red Cross, or if they'd let me, I'd carry a gun."

Three Sick Friends

"There must be an epidemic of some sort about," said the June bride.

"Why, I hadn't heard of it," replied the neighbor.

"Oh, yes, there is. My George had to sit up with sick friends three nights last week."

If He'd Been There

A little girl about six years old was visiting friends, and during the course of the conversation one of the company said:

"I hear you have a new little sister."

"Yes," answered the little girl, "just two weeks old."

"Did you want it to be a little girl?" asked the friend.

"I wanted it to be a boy," she replied, "but it came while I was at school."

Christmas Gift

Michigan has an anti-profanity law which makes it a misdemeanor to swear in the presence of a woman. It does not, however, forbid a man to swear at their presence.

For the Time Being

Ardent Admirer—Dearest, I have brought you an angry Christmas present. I ask you to take me for the present.

Chicago Widow—Well, if it is to be only temporary, you are mine.

Quite Likely

The Christmas goose was inclined to be facetious as it gorged the food so generously given. "I presume," it remarked, "that during the battle for the Yuletide dinner they will attack both my right and left wings."

Making Sure

Mrs. Olden—I buy my husband a box of cigars every Christmas.

Mrs. Newed—But I thought you objected to his smoking at home.

Mrs. Olden—So I do—and he never does.

A New Definition

Teacher—What is the difference between militarism and militancy?

Pupil—Militarism is the feminine for militarism!

Looking

Friend—What are you doing for a job?

Another—Looking for one.

Brief Declarations

"All the world loves a lover"—or so it seems, anyway, to the girl who is engaged to him.

anything. By 10:15 he was perspiring slightly. At 10:30 he sent out and bought a revolver which he placed in his desk. At 10:45 he was in a nervous chill. By 10:50 he shook like an aspen leaf. At 11 o'clock, he wailed with his heart in his mouth.

When, at 11:05, Jones had not appeared he began to breathe easier. At 11:10 and still no Jones, he leaned back in relief. At 11:15, he was smiling. At 11:20, one of his reporters rushed in.

"Here's a good story," he yelled. "Jones of Smith and Jones, has just been killed. He was shot in Smith's office, two blocks from here, about five minutes ago. Smith shot him. This threatening note explains it."

"Here is a denial of the story which appeared in yesterday's paper. You must sign it. If you do not sign it, you may expect to take the consequences. I will call at 10:45 for your answer."

For the bunch if they didn't vomit by daybreak.

The smiling sun next day didn't smile at a train anywhere near Waycross. The marshal says when he mentioned work, twelve of them fainted.

A report reaching here is that thirty-nine hoboes were taken out of one car at Jacksonville last week.

Some of these tourists are men of education and seem to come from good families. The wanderlust simply has got a grip on them and won't let go. The local Salvation Army has been overtaxed with requests for sleeping quarters for the homeless and the jobless.

Waycross, Ga., Dec. 19.—Hoboes are pouring into this Georgia and Florida. Trains passing here have anywhere from fifteen to forty such tourists. Recently, fifteen were found on one train near Thomaston, and twenty-one were booted off at the same place the next morning.

A camp of forty-five men, not a one of whom had ever done a lick of work, was found near Waycross, and the whole army of them was put to rout. But the marshal, instead of using any howitzers, just dropped a hint where the whole camp could bear, that he was going to find jobs
