MAN TRIES TO BREAK IN PRISON AND CAN'T

Smashes R. O. Window and Leaves Card, but Sheriff
Says Nix

Warden William H. Meyer, of the federal prison, and the spirit of O. Henry should mutually rejoice over J. H. Pendley, of Louisville. For Pendley is reported in real life O. Henry's story of the man who couldn't get arrested, and he has again asserted his love for the federal prison as an ideal abiding place. Pendley, it is said, served two years in the federal prison, and now is wild to get back again to that house of steel and stone. But like O. Henry's tramps, he long arm of the law deliberately refuses to grasp him.

Saturday night Pendley was arrested by a deputy marshal in Decatur, charged with loading aboard the railroad station. The marshal carried him to the Decatur jail.

Sheriff J. A. McCurdy, of Dekalb county, turned Pendley out of the jail, telling him to beat it. Sheriff McCurdy said the jail was full to overflowing Saturday night, and there was no room for a new prisoner.

With visions of a more hospitable prison before his eyes, a warm prison, where food and good work were supplied one, a prison which had held him safe from the world for two short years, Pendley set about getting back into Warden Meyer's clasp.

He went to the postoffice in Decatur, here, in defiance of the federal laws, he broke a window. Inside of the window he placed his whole library—a pocket dictionary—with his name and address written on the fly leaf. Then he conspicuously loafed again in the warm waiting room of the station, and told some of his fellow hangers-on about his deed.

Sheriff McCurdy, through one of his deputies, was soon informed of the disruption with Pendley's name found in the postoffice, but took no steps to apprehend him.

"I knew what he was up to," said Sheriff McCurdy. "I knew his record. He was out two years ago for breaking into a postoffice, cut a hole in an empty mail sack, put his name and address in a piece of paper in the sack, and was arrested when he came back. He was never turned over to the federal authorities, and sent up for two years. He has, since getting out, told people how easy it was to get back into the federal officers' hands. He has sworn out a warrant for him, I don't think it's up to me, under the circumstances, to arrest him again on the same federal law."

Monday night Pendley, having come to Atlanta, and finding the money too low for comfort on the streets, walked up to Patrolman Clark on Peachtree street. He asked the patrolman to arrest him. Clark carried him down to the police station, where Pendley eagerly told the officers of how he broke into the Decatur postoffice.

He earnestly telephoned Sheriff McCurdy at Decatur, while Pendley's eyes shone with happiness. At last he was going back to his dear federal prison! But it was not to be. Sheriff McCurdy told the Atlanta police the facts in Pendley's case, and said he would not come to get him unless the federal authorities or some one else swore out a warrant.

So Pendley sadly stayed for one short night in the Atlanta barracks as a sleeper, leaving early in the morning with the other one-night transients.

In O. Henry's story, the tramp, after selling by every means to procure New York policeman into arresting him, is inspired by music from "the little church around the corner," to take a new lease on life and become a real man again. Just then a hand grips him on the shoulder, and a blue coat is slipped in for loading around the church. If Pendley's unfinished story finally ends like this, O. Henry should indeed sit up in his grave.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery has been so successful in the treatment of indigestion, that thousands of former sufferers are their good health of today is the result of its use. It is the only medicine that cures the stomach and builds up the system. It is the only medicine that cures the stomach and builds up the system. ANOTHER FAKE HOLDUP UNCOVERED BY POLICE

Clyde Sparks Admits Two Reports He Made Were Not True

Another fake hold-up came to light Tuesday morning when Clyde Sparks, of 211 Dawson street, admitted to Recorder Johnson that two reports made by him to the police some days ago were fiction.

One of these reports was that he had been held up on Washington street and robbed of $1, the other, which followed close behind the first, was that he had been held up on Washington street and robbed of $70. Sparks gave no reason for making the reports.

His arraignment before the recorder was in connection with his arrest on suspicion. The recorder placed him in probation.

Chief Beavers says a good many of the hold ups reported to the police will not bear investigation.

FORMER SENATOR WEST DIES AT VALDOSTA HOME

United States Senator Bacon's Successor Found Dead in Bed

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.) VALDOSTA, Ga., Dec. 22.—William Stanley West, who succeeded Senator A. O. Bacon in the United States senate under appointment of Governor Slaton, was found dead in his bed this morning at 6 o'clock. He had been dead probably two hours, when he was discovered without a struggle and was not known to his wife and little son, who occupied the same room, until they got up.

Colonel West went to his farm twelve miles below the city yesterday and became ill there. He returned to the city about dark. A physician was summoned and an examination showed that his blood pressure was very high. The doctor gave him a prescription and when he retired last night he was feeling very well.

Mr. West had been getting up early in the morning and going to his farm, but owing to his indisposition last night, Mrs. West did not disturb him this morning. She got out of the room as quietly as possible, but later went to the room and found him lifeless.

Mr. West was one of the most prominent men in Georgia and Florida. He owned large lumber and land interests in Florida and had been identified with the industry of that state for twenty years or more. He was reared in Georgia, received his education at Mercer university, working his way through college when he was nearly thirty years old. He taught school in different sections of south Georgia and was teaching in Echols county when he was married to Miss Lee Cranford, one of his former pupils.

His wife with one son, William West, Jr., a lad of twelve years, survive him. Colonel West was apparently in the best of health and spirits yesterday.

His home here was one of the handsomest in Georgia. Colonel West was noted for his philanthropic enterprises. He educated a number of boys and girls and was liberal in church matters.

The funeral arrangements have not been perfected yet.

Gov. Slaton's Tribute
To Former Senator
West's death Governor Slaton paid the following tribute to his memory:
"I have known Senator W. S. West intimately since 1896, when I served with him in the house of representatives. He was subsequently president of the senate while I was speaker of the house, and it was my privilege to appoint him United States senator, upon the death of Hon. A. O. Bacon."

HOBSON AMENDMENT WILL BE DEFEATED, IS GENERAL BELIEF

dollars' worth of property and the income of taxes through the elimination of sums now paid as internal revenue. He told the southern Democrats that if they supported the Hobson resolution they would turn over to the federal government the rights of the people of the various states to control their own personal and social habits."

Representative Kelley, Progressive, supported the rule and the resolution.

OPPOSER AMENDMENT
Representative Pen, of North Carolina, said:

"Believing that this is a matter which should be left entirely to the states I shall vote against this rule."

Representative Pen added: "I believe we are lighting the fires of a controversy which will burn in this country for a generation. In my judgment there is not a man now in this hall who will be alive when the last battle rattle of this amendment."

Pen said he favored prohibition, but believed "the state is the largest efficient unit in the enforcement of a prohibition law."

Representative Kent, of California, urged that the states were competent to deal with the question without federal assistance.

Representative Coady, of Maryland, opposed the proposal because of loss of revenue.

NOTICE, DECLARES HOBSON.
Representative Hobson began debate on his resolution. He declared a state has a right to be "an interstate nuisance" and that there never had been a serious conflict between federal and state laws for protection of the people's morals.

He portrayed devastating effects of liquor, a habit-forming drug whose shackled victims," he said, "today number 1,000,000 people."

"It shortens life and blights the offspring," he continued, "and brings hundreds of thousands of people to drunkards' graves each year. It blights the lives of people before they are born."

Representative Hobson spoke only ten minutes, then began to hear him, time to members who spoke in support of his resolution.

UNDERWOOD RAPS GEORGIA.
Mr. Underwood declared prohibition would cost the American people $225,000,000 in lost revenue. He said that of the $734,672,000 of ordinary receipts of the government the last fiscal year, $245,400,000, or 33 per cent was from internal revenue and customs taxes from malt and vinous liquor. State taxes, he said, produced $21,900,000, county taxes $6,000,000 more and revenue in incorporated places of $2,000,000.

He declared that in Georgia, with its state-wide prohibition, there was as much liquor consumed as in Alabama.

"Boot-legging, they say, is the greatest evil of the liquor traffic," he said, "in prohibition Georgia there were 800 cases of boot-legging last year in non-prohibition Alabama only 100 cases. Prohibition does not prohibit."

GEORGIA ENFORCED LAW.
Representative Adamson said it might be there were more convictions in Georgia than in Alabama, and, if so, it was because Georgia voted for prohibition and enforced the law. He said that as "between the bar rooms and denizens and prohibition and salvation, I stand with the drys and not with the wets."

He proposed an amendment designed to conserve state regulation of the use of liquor.

A Christmas Legend

When borne upon the silent night—
Long centuries ago,
There came the ring of bride bells,
And voices hushed and low,
She hastened to her door to see
What prince or potentate
Upon the road to Bethlehem
Was journeying so late.

"O whither dost thou go with gifts,
In pomp so great?" she cried.
"We follow yonder shining star,"
A bearded king replied.
"It leads us to the babe, new born,
And in a manger laid."
Who escapes to save the wicked world,
Prey join our cavalcade."

"First I must sweep the ashes up,
And put the bread to rise,
Then I will follow, too," she said,
The star had disappeared.
But when the pots and pans were scoured
And hearth and table cleared,
Behold! the east was dark again,
The star had disappeared.

When loud and sweet the Christmas bells
Chime out from tower and town,
Still seeking for the infant Christ,
She wanders up and down,
Her arms are full of cakes and toys,
Her weary feet are sore,
The snow is on her old gray head,
She knocks at every door.

When fair and frosty falls the eve
Of His nativity,
She fills the children's stockings up
And decks the Christmas tree,
No little one is overlooked,
From vale to mountain high,
Last one might be the Holy Child,
And she might pass Him by.

Chick Evans to Pay Visit Here

Charles Evans, known throughout the length and breadth of the land, in golf circles as "Chick," is expected to arrive in Atlanta either this afternoon or tomorrow for a visit of several days.

While in the city, Evans will be a guest of his good friend, George Adair, Evans is one of the toughest amateur golfers of America, in spite of the fact that he has yet to come through in a tournament and on the national amateur title.

"Chick" has been a visitor to Atlanta on several former occasions, and has a large number of friends here. During his stay here he will doubtless put in most of his time golfing, if the weather permits. It was hoped that Warren Wood, former member of the championship, would accompany him on this visit, but it is hardly probable that he will come.

Peace may be on earth at this stage, but there are twelve European nations and twenty-four club owners who can't get it today with a Lick telescope. They are beginning to declaim in the words of the startled farmer who looked upon his first griffin.

A WEST POINT POINTER. A number of all-American players were easily filled this season. There was little doubt as to the best halfbacks, the best ends and the best guard and tackle. But a number of earnest folks are in extreme doubt as to the best quarter back. Walter Camp picks Ghee of Dartmouth, with Barrett second and Wilson third. Yet says if he had his pick of one man it would be Pritchard, of West Point.

"Pritchard," says the Wolverine, "was not only a fine quarter back in all physical capacities, but he was the wisest one of the lot at handling a team. Studying the generalship of the year from charts of each game, I should say that Pritchard, with Logan second, Pritchard was a first-class football player and a fine general. In my opinion, he was the most valuable quarter back in America. He knows more football than a great many coaches—more than any player I know of in the game. He knows exactly the power his own team has and just where it should be applied. He kept his eyes open and his head up. I doubt if he had an equal."

TIP TO YALE. Yale men who are dissatisfied with Hinkley's showing should ponder this a trifle. Suppose Percy Haughton had been judged by his first four years at Harvard? During that time his team scored one field goal, one Yale and lost the only game played with Princeton. Yet Harvard those years had good material. It took Haughton four years to get his system played where he wanted it and it isn't probable that Hinkley or any other man can do in one year or two years what it required Haughton four years to accomplish.

Princeton must also look to the same slow start. With her old obsolete system changed it will be some time before the new system can be put into effect, as nothing could have been quite as ineffective as the old manner of meeting the situation.

YES—AND NO. "Do ball clubs make a manager," inquires J. H. L., "or do managers make a ball club?"

Take your own pick. Stallings lifted the Braves from last to first place in two years. On the other hand, Stallings, Chance and Griffith with a pennant with the Yankees. There are times when a manager makes a ball club and there are other times when a ball club makes a manager. But as an average proposition it takes both a good ball club and a good manager linked together to attain the top. For the winner there is generally credit enough to go around.

The Feds now are being labeled with a number of smoking monkeys but the old appellation "joke" has been withdrawn by unanimous consent.

Several weeks ago we quit smoking for a spell. Yet, after a three weeks' trial, we went out one day and missed an easy fifteen putt. So we're thinking of resuming again in order to steady our rickety nerves.

A new owner and a new manager might help, but the Yanks, more than anything else, need a new percentage. We should say, offhand, that they have been weaker here than in any other department.

The latest reports on the contract to land Walter Johnson between the Washington club and the Federal League, which is being handled by the administration has carried over to a later date. This report is, however, subject to revision, just as soon as the Feds regain their wind.

After the last punch landed by Clark Griffith, it is entirely possible that the deal which will be made under the results are submitted to a contest committee in the nature of a civil court.

But regardless of the final outcome, this language about his publicity, not to say notoriety, has even evoked a discussion as to whether the western Krupp has lost any of its effectiveness.

There are those who believe that the Peleus-Krump is losing some of his power. Many believe that the old soap-bone has lost some of its snap and zip that once kept American batters quaking just where the elusive sphere was, where it landed, and what route it traveled in getting there, when the big fellow let it loose, speeding on its way to the padded mitt held up by Eddie Ahlstrom.

It is a notable fact, however, that Clark Griffith is not one of those who believe in the value of publicity. Even after it was announced that Walter had done a brodie to the outlaws, and the latter claimed that they had him all sewed up with an iron-bound contract, Griffith said that none need make the mistake of believing that his star hurler was slipping. Whether Griffith still had visions of vanishing his hurler back, wherefore he should forbear to berate his agent, or whether he was trying to be different from the rest by declining to add Big Walter to the down-and-out club, is a matter of guess.

However, there are a few facts which warrant the theory that the Old Fox was dealing from the top right, when he voiced the sentiment that Walter still carries enough to put him out in the lead of other hurlers as far as home runs to John. Opinions may vary but his said agent doesn't see even though they appear to play a few practical jokes now and then.

Relying on said figures, it can be shown that the first fifteen of Kansas is still quite some pitcher, as pitchers go nowadays. During the past season, according to Ben Johnson's figures, Walter worked in 51 games. He faced 122 batters and allowed 247 hits. He issued 74 free tickets to first over the four-ball rule, and whiffed 225 of the opposition. Every game that he pitched he allowed the opposition 3.71 earned runs per game.

Chick Evans to Pay Visit Here

Charles Evans, known throughout the length and breadth of the land, in golf circles as "Chick," is expected to arrive in Atlanta either this afternoon or tomorrow for a visit of several days.

While in the city, Evans will be a guest of his good friend, George Adair, Evans is one of the toughest amateur golfers of America, in spite of the fact that he has yet to come through in a tournament and on the national amateur title.

"Chick" has been a visitor to Atlanta on several former occasions, and has a large number of friends here. During his stay here he will doubtless put in most of his time golfing, if the weather permits. It was hoped that Warren Wood, former member of the championship, would accompany him on this visit, but it is hardly probable that he will come.

Peace may be on earth at this stage, but there are twelve European nations and twenty-four club owners who can't get it today with a Lick telescope. They are beginning to declaim in the words of the startled farmer who looked upon his first griffin.

A WEST POINT POINTER. A number of all-American players were easily filled this season. There was little doubt as to the best halfbacks, the best ends and the best guard and tackle. But a number of earnest folks are in extreme doubt as to the best quarter back. Walter Camp picks Ghee of Dartmouth, with Barrett second and Wilson third. Yet says if he had his pick of one man it would be Pritchard, of West Point.

"Pritchard," says the Wolverine, "was not only a fine quarter back in all physical capacities, but he was the wisest one of the lot at handling a team. Studying the generalship of the year from charts of each game, I should say that Pritchard, with Logan second, Pritchard was a first-class football player and a fine general. In my opinion, he was the most valuable quarter back in America. He knows more football than a great many coaches—more than any player I know of in the game. He knows exactly the power his own team has and just where it should be applied. He kept his eyes open and his head up. I doubt if he had an equal."

TIP TO YALE. Yale men who are dissatisfied with Hinkley's showing should ponder this a trifle. Suppose Percy Haughton had been judged by his first four years at Harvard? During that time his team scored one field goal, one Yale and lost the only game played with Princeton. Yet Harvard those years had good material. It took Haughton four years to get his system played where he wanted it and it isn't probable that Hinkley or any other man can do in one year or two years what it required Haughton four years to accomplish.

Princeton must also look to the same slow start. With her old obsolete system changed it will be some time before the new system can be put into effect, as nothing could have been quite as ineffective as the old manner of meeting the situation.

Former Indian Grid Star Here

The one man to whose absence the Cardinals' failure to live up to their standard of former days during the football season just passed is a visitor in Atlanta today. He is Joe Guyon, younger brother of Charlie Walcho (Guyon being the "Chief" family name) Joe Guyon played with the team during the seasons of 1913 and 1914. He was a linebacker his first year, but played the second season as a halfback. He was heralded as the logical successor to Jim Thorpe, and was living up to it of reputation in great shape, until he decided not to return to school.

Guyon lives in Minnesota, and when the time came to report at Carleton he fell he was missing. An investigation revealed the fact that he had entered a military school in Wisconsin. The trustees of Coach Warner and The Brother Charlie failed to change his mind, and he stuck with the western cadets.
