Pardon for McNaughton?

TWO COMMISSIONERS FAVOR FULL PARDON FOR DR. M'NAUGHTON

Report to Governor Slaton Recommending Physician's Full Pardon After Carefully Considering Application

THIRD COMMISSIONER FOR LIFE IMPRISONMENT

McNaughton's Fate Now Depends on Governor Slaton, Apparent That Either Pardon or Commutation Will Result

A full and complete pardon for Dr. W. J. McNaughton, the Swainsboro physician, who is now in the Chatham county jail under sentence of death on October 5 for the murder of Fred Flanders, of Emanuel county, has been recommended to Governor Slaton by the state prison commission.

Commissioner T. E. Patterson does not agree with the recommendations of the other two commissioners, Chairman R. E. Davidson and E. L. Rainey. He has sent along with the commission's recommendation to the governor his views on the case, in which he favors a commutation to life imprisonment for Dr. McNaughton.

Under the law a decision reached by two members of the commission forms its report and there is no such thing as a minority report. However, Judge Patterson desired that the governor be acquainted with his position on the case and for that reason he drafted a memorandum outlining his views.

The McNaughton case is one of the most famous in the history of the state. In the spring of 1910 Fred Flanders a well known farmer and business man of Covena, Emanuel county, died under suspicious circumstances. Dr. McNaughton, Flanders' family physician, Mrs. Mattie Flanders, the wife of the dead man, were indicted for murder, it being contended that because of their alleged illicit relations they had entered into a conspiracy to kill Flanders, and that Dr. McNaughton had administered arsenic in the form of prescriptions.

McNaughton was convicted of murder and sentenced to hang. He appealed to the supreme court which affirmed the verdict. Then he took an appeal to the United States supreme court with the same result. An extraordinary motion for a new trial was made and declined.

In the meantime the case against Mrs. Flanders was not pressed. Court after court was held and no effort was made to bring her to trial. Governor Brown, acting upon the recommendation of the prison commission, several times granted Dr. McNaughton an order that Mrs. Flanders might be put on trial before the prison commission took up Dr. McNaughton's petition for clemency. Last July the case against Mrs. Flanders was not pressed by the Emanuel county superior court, after which Dr. McNaughton applied for a pardon.

NO STATE EVIDENCE.

In recommending the pardon Commissioners Davidson and Rainey were impressed with the fact that at the trial of Dr. McNaughton the state did not offer any evidence to show that Dr. McNaughton had administered any medicine containing poison to the de-

THAW SEEMS CONTENTED TO WAIT PATIENTLY

Prospects Are He Will Remain in New Hampshire for Some Time

By Associated Press.

COLEBROOK, N. H., Sept. 11.—The case of Harry K. Thaw, prisoner today of Sheriff Drew, assumed the aspect of the familiar aspect of uncertainty and delay. Counsel working for and against the return to Matteawan agreed not to arraign him before a police magistrate until 4 p. m., and then to adjourn the case until tomorrow.

He is charged with conspiring with others to bring about his escape from Matteawan, and it is upon this charge that William Travers Jerome will seek his extradition. Failing in this, Jerome will contend that Thaw is insane and should be turned over to an attendant from Matteawan.

John Lanyon, private detective in New York, has been made a special attendant from Matteawan and he is waiting opportunity to get his hands on Thaw and start with him direct for the New York line.

Followed by silent crowds, Thaw went about the village today accompanied by Sheriff Drew, apparently contented and hopeful.

Local counsel who planned for his release on a writ of habeas corpus decided today that to liberate him with Lanyon and Jerome around would be dangerous.

Mr. Jerome reached town last night on a special train.

At first merely detained, Thaw subsequently was arrested on a complaint

CHARTER REGISTRATION BOOKS CLOSED SEPT. 9

Those Who Paid All 1912 Taxes and Registered Before That Date Can Vote

Inasmuch as there appears to be some confusion as to the registration for the city charter election, to be held on September 24, the fact sere herewith stated, in order that the voters' minds may be clear.

The legislature not only fixed a date for the charter to be voted on by the people—that is, September 24—but also it fixed the day when the registration should close, and provided that this should be fifteen days before the date of the election, which therefore made the registration close on September 9.

All voters who paid their state, county and city taxes for 1912, and who registered between October 1, 1912, and September 9, will be entitled to vote in the charter election.

The charter election, being specially ordered by the legislature, is therefore different from a primary, and negroes will have the right to vote as well as white voters, provided, of course, they are properly registered.

City Clerk Walter Taylor will have charge of the details of holding the election, and the expense will be paid out of the city treasury by special appropriation of the general council.

MAYOR WILLIAM J. GAYNOR, OF NEW YORK.

WM. J. GAYNOR DIES IN MID-OCEAN WHILE ON WAY TO EUROPE

News Received by Wireless by Bob Adamson, Former Atlantian, Who Is Mayor's Secretary, at His Brooklyn Home

DEATH CAME ON EVE OF MAYORALITY ELECTION

Adolph L. Kline Will Rule New York City Until Mayor's Successor Is Named—Old Wound Troubled Gaynor Recently

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Mayor Gaynor died on the steamer Baltic, in mid-ocean at 1 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, according to a wireless received here today from Rufus W. Gaynor, his son.

News of Mayor Gaynor's death was received here in a message sent by wireless and cabled to Robert Adamson, his secretary, by Rufus W. Gaynor, his son, who sailed with him.

The message read as follows:

"Father died Wednesday at 1 o'clock ship to heart failure. Notify mother."

Lacking details of the manner of the mayor's death his friends here believed that the heart attack spoken of in Rufus Gaynor's cablegram was brought on by a return of the coughing fits that had recurred at intervals since he was shot.

EXPECTED DEATH.

Although the mayor had no presentiment that his end would end fatally, he had at different times within the last year or two told his secretary that the violence of these attacks was a great strain on his heart, and he feared that at some time or other one of them might result seriously.

Just before he received notification of his resignation by the popular demonstration at the city hall, the mayor had been in bed off and on for about a week.

Mrs. Gaynor and one of her unmarried daughters are at their country place. The other two unmarried daughters are at a boarding school. The mayor's other son is at the mayor's Brooklyn home.

The mayor had two married daughters, Mrs. W. Seward Webb and Mrs. Harry K. Vinent.

At 11 a. m. Greenwich time, the wireless said the Baltic was 250 miles west of Queenstown. She was due at Queenstown about 2 a. m. Friday.

Mayor Gaynor sailed away from New York a fast failing man on the morning of September 4. An hour before he sailed but one man, his secretary, knew of his plans outside of members of his immediate family. The mayor's announced purpose was a brief vacation on the ocean. He felt that the touic of-

JURY SWORN AND TRIAL IS BEGUN AFTER HOT FIGHT

Attorneys for Accused Woman Made Plea After Plea for Postponement—Judge Hammond Overrules Each

MRS. GODBEE CALMLY PLEADS "NOT GUILTY"

Accused Woman Receives All Visitors Cheerfully and Appears Confident That She Will Be Acquitted

BY HAROLD W. ROSS.
Journal Staff Correspondent.

MILLEN, Ga., Sept. 11.—After the defense had fought strenuous but futile three hour and a half fight for postponement of the trial of Mrs. Edna Perkins Godbee, accused of the murder of her divorced husband, Judge Walter E. Godbee, and his bride, formerly Miss Florence Boyer, Thursday morning a jury was selected in the record time of one hour. When court adjourned at 12:30 o'clock Solicitor General Robert Lee Moore was ready to begin the presentation of evidence by which he expects to obtain a conviction.

In asking a delay Attorney T. F. Safold, chief counsel for Mrs. Godbee, contended he had not had sufficient time to assemble the evidence in favor of his client, nor to examine thoroughly into the merits of her case. He also said that Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick, chosen at the last moment to represent the accused woman, was unable to be present.

Later he attacked the legality of the grand jury which indicted the defendant and of Solicitor Moore, on the grounds that the act of the legislature passed a few weeks ago transferring Jenkins county from the Dublin judicial circuit to the Augusta circuit was in violation of the constitution.

His efforts to gain a delay were in vain, however. Judge H. C. Hammond overruled all motions and demurrers without even hearing arguments from the prosecution against it.

Mrs. Godbee was surrounded by her lawyers, relatives and friends, and with her young daughter constantly by her side, sat through the morning apparently imperturbed. The state, as was rumored, based the trial on the indictment charging the defendant with killing Mrs. Florence Godbee. No matter what is the outcome of this case, it is said, she must face a jury again for the slaying of her former husband.

A crowd which filled every available seat in the court room and overflowed into teh aisles heard the first half-day's session of the trial. Half a dozen automobiles and scores of buggies and wagons were parked in the vicinity of the court house.

THOSE WITH ACCUSED.

Mrs. Godbee came into court promptly at 8:30 o'clock in the custody of a deputy sheriff. Her face showed no emotion. She was dressed all in white. She took a seat among several women relatives who had preceded her to the scene. These were: Mrs. T. F. Sargerson, Mrs. W. L. Sargerson, sisters; Miss Annette Leonard, Mrs. F. M. Godbee and Mrs. W. K. Godbee, daughters-in-law; Miss Sarah Godbee, her daughter; two friends, Mrs. H. H. Perkins and Mrs. F. W. Perkins; her son, King Godbee, also were present.

W. B. Boyer, a brother of the slain Mrs. Godbee, occupied a seat just inside of the railing around the desks of the principals. As soon as court opened Attorney Safold announced that the counsel wanted time to confer with the defendant. This was granted by the judge.

The principals then resumed the wait for the arrival of the defense lawyers.

The court room was taxed to its capacity. A third of these present were women who evinced intense interest.

At 9:25 o'clock the three attorneys, accompanied by T. E. Sargeron and Charles G. Reynolds, two more lawyers, who, it was announced had been added to the defense, returned to the court room.

Judge Safold announced that he desired the case for a continuance and presented a motion, which evidently had been drawn during the consultation. He read it to the court.

SAYS DEFENSE WAS DELAYED.

It set forth that preparations for the funeral of Judge Godbee following the shooting and the sudden death of Mrs. Godbee's second victim had occupied the attention of her two sons and that they had been delayed in making preparation for her defense; that when they finally had found the time to plan for her representation that Judge Safold had been called in, and that he had done only little power to prepare an adequate defense for the defendant, but had not had a "sufficient or a reasonable time."

The motion contended that the circumstances upon which the defense planned to make its case were hard to assemble and that not enough time had been allowed for the woman's representatives to get in communication with important witnesses to her side. It declared that not until the present week had Mrs. Godbee's counsel become aware of the testimony of C. L. Schaff, who, it was stated, could testify that Judge Godbee had made a threat to kill his former wife, and that he has been restrained from carrying it out by Schaff.

It said that a subpena for a Mr. Dukes, who could testify that Mrs. Godbee's presence at the home without her daughter on the morning of the tragedy was purely an accident, remained unserved.

The motion also contained the infor-

Supreme Court Judge in Decision Strips Sulzer Of All Executive Powers

Supreme Court Justice Decides Governor Is Regularly Impeached and Is Divested of Powers Awaiting Trial

GOVERNOR SULZER CANNOT EVEN USE PARDON RIGHTS

Question Arose When Legality of Impeachment Was Brought Up in Connection With Habeas Corpus

By Associated Press.

KINGSTON, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Justice Hasbrouck of the state supreme court, today decided that Governor Sulzer was regularly impeached and while awaiting impeachment trial was divested of the right to exercise his executive functions, including the power to pardon.

The question of the legality of Sulzer's impeachment came before Justice Hasbrouck in connection with habeas corpus proceedings brought to compel the New York city authorities to honor Governor Sulzer's pardon of Joseph G. Robin, the banker convict. He decided that Robin's pardon was invalid, quashed the writ, and sent Robin back to prison.

Attorneys representing Sulzer and Robin had argued that the impeachment was illegal because voted by the assembly at a special session which was not called expressly to decide that question. The court refused to sustain this contention. The decision upheld the argument of the New York corporation counsel who maintained that the assembly when it impeached acted in a judicial and not a legislative capacity and was properly in session.

The assembly voted to impeach Governor Sulzer August 13. Although it was reported immediately that the governor would seek to overturn the assembly's action by recourse to the courts, Justice Hasbrouck's decision today was the first ruling made by any court on the legality of the impeachment.

Argument on the validity of the writ of habeas corpus was heard Monday. The points raised were Governor Sulzer impeached and, whether he was divested of his powers pending trial.

"The subject of impeachment," says Judge Hasbrouck, "like the power of a legislative body to punish for contempt, has a different character from a subject requiring the action of both branches of the legislature and the governor in order that laws may be enacted.

"The power conferred upon the assembly to impeach the governor is a judicial power. The power of im-

FIRST STEP MADE TO PLACE $1,000,000

Six Atlanta National Banks Tender Securities That Are Accepted by Committee

The first step locally toward the distribution of $1,000,000 of United States treasury funds among the national banks of Atlanta, "to facilitate the movement and marketing of the crops," was taken Thursday morning. The Atlanta securities committee, approved by Secretary of the Treasury W. G. McAdoo, met in the rooms of the Atlanta Clearing House association and accepted the securities tendered by the six Atlanta banks which are to participate in the distribution.

A second meeting of the committee was called for 4 o'clock Thursday afternoon. At that meeting the securities will be delivered formally to the Trust Company of Georgia, designated by Secretary McAdoo upon recommendation of the Clearing House association as Atlanta custodian; and the trust company in turn will forward them to the secretary at Washington. Upon his approval of them, the funds will be available and soon thereafter they will be ready for circulation from the local national banks.

Charles T. Ryan, member of the securities committee, stated Thursday morning that though the secretary's order concerning the deposit of government funds in national banks for the purpose already defined, stipulated that the funds would be deposited in two halves, 30 per cent in August and 50 per cent in September, the Atlanta securities committee believes it probable that the entire sum of $1,000,000 will be deposited here as soon as the secretary approves the securities, inasmuch as August has passed and September is nearly half gone.

The membership of the committee in Atlanta is limited to six, there being no subtreasury (which would add a seventh member) located here. One member is named by the secretary of the treasury. He is J. K. Orr, president of the J. K. Orr Shoe company. The five other members were named by the Atlanta Clearing House association from among its own enrollment, and were approved by the secretary of the treasury. They are:

Charles E. Currier, president of the Atlanta National bank; T. D. Meador, vice president of the Lowry National bank; Charles L. Ryan, cashier of the Fourth National bank; W. L. Peel, president of th eAmericain National bank; and Frank Hawkins, epresident of the Third National bank.

The five banks represented on the committee, and the Fulton National bank are the six which will participate in the distribution of the $1,000,000 allotment to Atlanta.

LARGEST THEFT IN SOUTHERN EXPRESS COMPANY'S HISTORY

Between New York and Savannah Steel Safe on Train Was Opened and $71,900 Intended for South Georgia Taken

ATLANTA DETECTIVE AT WORK ON MYSTERY

Officials of Company Refuse to Talk, but Savannah Banker Confirms News of Robbery in Which Bank Lost

(By Associated Press.)

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 11.—Probably the greatest robbery in the history of the Southern Express company came to light in Savannah yesterday morning when a sealed safe supposed to contain $71,900 in currency consigned to Savannah, Brunswick and Valdosta banks was opened here and found to be empty.

Of the stolen money $50,000 was consigned to the Savannah Bank and Trust company from the Chase National bank of New York. It is not known here to what banks in Valdosta and Brunswick the additional sum was consigned, as the Express company officials refuse to talk.

Mr. W. F. McCauley, the president of the Savannah Bank and Trust company, confirms the loss of the $50,000. It was shipped out of New York on Monday on train No. 48 of the Atlantic Coast Line railroad, and should have reached here yesterday morning at 3 o'clock. When the sealed steel trunk in which it was supposed to have been shipped was opened it was found that the money had disappeared.

"All that I know about it," said President McCauley, "is that the money was started to us from New York and that it never reached here."

The Southern Express company has hurried its best man to Savannah to undertake the recovery of the money or to locate the thieves. Mr. W. J. Houlday, general manager of the company, an da representative of Pinkerton Detective agency, of Atlanta, reached Savannah this morning and are now working on the case. The name of the messenger on the train has not been ascertained here at this time, because of the reticence of the Express company officials to permit any information to get out.

The seals on the outside of the steel trunk or safe, it is understood, did not show that they were tampered with, but the sealed envelopes in which the money was contained when it left New York were either all open or otherwise tampered with.

The shipment was sent out of New York by the Adams Express company and delivered to the Southern Express company at Washington, D. C.

Loss Falls on Express Company, Declares Banker

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Samuel C. Miller, president of the Chase National bank, said today his bank had shipped a large amount of currency to banks in Georgia by the Adams Express.

"If this money has been stolen," he said, "and is not recovered, the loss will fall not upon the bank, but upon the express company."

Mr. Miller said that the $50,000 pack-

Mrs. Pankhurst will arrive here about October 15.

Advance advices are to the effect that Mrs. Pankhurst will refrain from anything in the nature of advocacy of militant methods among suffragettes in this country, her whole purpose being confined to the history and future of the militancy of the cause in England.

The itinerary of Mrs. Pankhurst is announced as follows:

Jury Refuses to Horn in Between Traders of Nags

ROME, Ga., Sept. 11.—A jury in Floyd city court yesterday by returning a verdict of not guilty in the case of Dr. A. W. Wright vs. Arthur Williamon, refused to interfere in a horse trade, both of the parties to the litigation are prominent residents of Cave Springs, and the matter has been carried through the justice court and the superior court, and it is probable that it will be appealed to the supreme court before its final settlement. Dr. Wright traded an automobile to Mr. Williamon for a horse, and was dissatisfied with the result of the transaction.

DAY OF DISCOVERY AND EXPLORATION IS GONE

So Asserts Scientist, Declaring That Other Questions Will Occupy Future Geographer

BIRMINGHAM, England, Sept. 11.—The day of striking geographical explorations passed with the finding of the arctic's two poles and the geographer of the future will have as his field the vital questions of supplying and distributing food and clothes to the world is the opinion of H. N. Dickson, president of a section of the British Association for the Advancement of Science. Dr. Dickson so asserted in an address delivered today before the association.

Foremost of these questions, Dr. Dickson believes, will be that of growing wheat enough for the world's bread. A host of problems of the future are marshalled behind this, among them being the questions of obtaining sufficient energy sufficient to operate the needed increase in factories, the fuel question and the distribution of population. With in a century, he estimates, all resources of the world will be taxed to their full capacity.

RAILROAD ARBITRATORS MEET IN NEW YORK CITY

Will Have Public Hearings of Demands for New Working Arrangements

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The six arbitrators appointed under the amended Erdman act of congress invited to this city today representatives of the trainmen and conductors of eastern railroads as the first witnesses in the public hearings of demands for a new working agreement with the railroads, including general wage increases.

The hearings opening today will probably continue for several weeks. They all will be held in a large room in a Broadway hotel, wheer there is accommodation for an audience of several hundred persons, in addition to the arbitrators, the committees of both sides and the witnesses.

The six arbitrators are A. D. Smith, vice president of the New York Central railroad, and W. Atterbury, vice president of the Pennsylvania railroad, representing the railroad; Daniel Cease, editor of the Railway Trainman, and Lucius E. Sheppard, vice president of the Order of Railway Conductors, representing the trainmen and conductors, and Seth Low, president of the National Civic Federation, and J. H. Finley, president of the College of the City of New York, representing the public.

The award of the arbitrators under the law must be made within forty-five days after its first meeting and in case the board is not unanimous a majority of its members cannot render a binding award.

THE STITCHES OF ART.

A Variety of Them Employed to Produce Harmonious Effects.

While the names of the various stitches required in embroidery work may appear formidable to the beginner, she need have no misgivings as to her ability to soon learn and apply them to any of the 160 beautiful designs contained in the Imperial Pattern Outfit now being distributed by The Journal.

In this outfit are included instructions which are illustrated and enable the learner to easily master all the different kinds of stitches that are used, among which are the Outline, Chain, Seeding, Cat, Buttonhole, Couching, Satin, Eyelet Work, Wallachin, Embroidery, Cross, French Knots, Fagotting, Solid Kensington, and Roman Cut Work. Every woman who does home work can, after a little practice, manufacture her own embroidery, and at a cost that would represent but a mere fraction, of what she would be obliged to pay for the work in the usual way. In addition to this advantage, which means dollars and cents saved, she can apply her skill to the ornamentation of many articles of her own clothing that hitherto she has always worn but dig, acquisition of medium of decoration, mainly from the reason of the prohibitive prices invariably asked for high class needlework of any kind.

Just at the present time there is a rush for the Imperial Pattern Packets at The Journal, which are handed out for 65 cents and six coupons, and mailed for 7 cents extra, so the girl who intends to do embroidery should lose no time in getting this outfit, which, if bought in the regular way at 10 cents a pattern, would cost $16. Surely this latter value and the opportunity of obtaining it for a sum less than one-twentieth its amount should be sufficient to appeal to every lady who is at all interested in the pleasing results of the needle in skilful hands.

He will be succeeded in this chair by Mr. Percy Miller, who has been with the News for several years, coming from Chattanooga to Savannah. CHATHAM GRAND JURY PROBES MAGISTRATES

Justice Van Geisen's Affairs Have Been Special Object of Investigation

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 11.—The Chatham county grand jury seems to be having its hands full with investigations of magistrates' offices. It is reported that the committee on magistrates' which has been making a special inquiry into the affairs of Justice Frank H. Van Gieson has found such a condition to exist as to warrant the bringing of Judge Walter W. Sheppard, of the Atlantic circuit here to receive its report.

It is understood that the investigation of Judge Van Gaisen's office has disclosed the fact that several hundred warrants issued by him and for which fee for the warrant and bond were collected, have never been turned over to the solicitor general. This is an offense against the Georgia statutes.

The committee held a long meeting yesterday afternoon and went thoroughly into the situation. As a result of this meeting it is expected Judge Sheppard will be asked to come here, as Judge Walter G. Charlton is away on his vacation. Judge Lane, another justice of the peace, is also to be called before the grand jury to explain some affairs in connection with his office.

Two Women, Aged 75 and 22, Held For Manslaughter

(By Associated Press.)

CORRY, Pa., Sept. 11.—Mrs. Phoeba Wright, seventy-five years old, today faces a prison sentence that may cover the remainder of her life. Mrs. Wright and Miss Pearl Kelly, twenty-two years old, were accused of killing Frank Lynch last June and a jury last night returned a verdict convicting both of manslaughter. Lynch was found shot to death in the yard behind Mrs. Wright's house. The defense was that the shooting was accidental.

Frozen Eggs Are Endorsed By U. S.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Frozen fresh eggs have the indorsement of the United States bureau of chemistry, which today placed its seal of approval on them as an article of wholesome food. After a long series of experiments the government chemists found that eggs may be broken, canned, and then frozen without losing their flavor or deteriorating in any way. In thus preserving them against the day of scarcity, however, the chemists lay down two invincible rules:

"Beware of bad eggs!"

"Keep 'em frozen!"

These rules observed, the experts declare, there is no reason why frozen eggs should not become popular, especially with bakers and other extensive users of the product. The chemists dislike to dwell upon what might happen to a can of eggs that had become "unfrozen," however. They decline today to discuss the subject.

VALUABLE PAINTINGS IN PLUMBER'S HOUSE

Four Masterpieces o fHenry Bacon, Valued at $800, Discovered Among Truck

BERKELEY, Cal., Sept. 11.—Four valuable paintings of Henry Bacon, which were long thought lost have been brought to light in the residence of Gustav Thaler, a plumber here. Thaler, it developed, bought them several years ago from an auctioneer who refused to sell him a lot of household goods unless he "took along that truck," meaning the works of art. The plumber already has been offered $8,000 for the paintings, but is planning to send them to an exhibition of Bacon's works now being held in New York.

For a long time the paintings lay about Thaler's house, the plaything of his children, one of whom poked a finger through a little study entitled, "Walking." A friend told the plumber the pictures might be valuable and he took them to a gallery where they were identified.

MINOR OFFENDERS QUICK ON REJOINING THE ARMY

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—As a result of Secretary Garrison's decision to permit the re-establishment of minor offenders among enlisted men at the expiration of the terms they may be serving in army disciplinary barracks, applications for such re-enlistments are being received by the score at the war department. The concession is in line with the spirit of the new disciplinary system in the army.

When Secretary Garrison announced the policy to the 600 men at the disciplinary barracks at Fort Leavenworth, Kan., the men cheered with great enthusiasm. In the barracks the offenders are grouped according to the gravity of their offenses. An honor system also is maintained, so that in addition to the 600 in the barracks at Fort Leavenworth probably 200 more at paroled outside.

It is estimated that fully 80 per cent of the Fort Leavenworth men will reenlist, and like results are expected when enlisted men in the barracks at San Francisco and Governor's Island, N. Y.

Mr. Wright has been a citizen of Fulton county for fourteen years. If elected sheriff, he will carry to that office six years of valuable experience gained while serving as sheriff of Newton county, which is in the Stone Mountain circuit.

STATE INSPECTOR TO PROBE SAVANNAH MARKETS

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 11.—P. A. Methvin, state pure food inspector, is expected in Savannah early next week to make another tour of the markets and the butcher pens. He has been here once and made a pretty thorough inspection, but Louis Garfunkle, the local inspector, wants him to come again, because Mr. Garfunkle has been inspecting a little on his own account and finds things are not as they should be.

Mr. Garfunkle, in company with Alderman Daniel, who is a doctor as well as a lawyer, made a tour of the city markets Saturday night, and did not find things in as good shape as he hoped to find them. The alderman wanted the city to take a hand in cleaning things up but he did not find Mayor Davant as responsive as he might be. The matter will now go back to the state authorities for another investigation.

CHILDREN'S SOCIETY WORK IS PROGRESSING

ROME, Ga., Sept. 11.—Mrs. L. H. Becker, superintendent of the Georgia Children's Home society, who has been here in the interest of the society for several days, has gone to Dalton to organize the work of the organization in that city. Mrs. Becker states that the citizens of Rome have extended splendid support to the movement.

Stomach Trouble; Wholly Restored!

Mrs. Wilson Robison.

Mrs. Wilson Robison, 744 Nessle St., Toledo, Ohio, writes:

"I feel like a new person. I have no more heavy feelings, no more pain, don't belch up gas, can eat most anything without it hurting me. I want to be working all the time. I have gained twenty-four pounds.

"People that see me now and saw me two months ago seem astonished. I tell them Peruna did it. I will say it is the only remedy for spring and all other ailments."

No argument is needed for Peruna. Just get a bottle and try it. If you have catarrh of the stomach you have a serious trouble. If you want to find a remedy it would be very easy to make the experiment. Before you have taken Peruna a few days you will likely find yourself better, then you will need no testimonials on the part of other people, or arguments to convince you. Until you try Peruna, however, all the testimonials in the world and arguments, however logical, will not move you. Just one trial of Peruna will convince you.

Persons who object to liquid medicines can now obtain Peruna Tablets.

LONG TEXAS DROUTH BROKEN BY SHOWERS

For the First Time in Two Months Rain Falls Generally Over State

(By Associated Press.)

DALLAS, Tex., Sept. 11.—The first generally soaking rains in Texas in two months were reported today. There has not been one storm covering the 265,000 square miles of the state, but a series of heavy downpours here and there all over the state since Sunday.

With a few exceptions, farmers advise crop prospects, including cotton, improved, but at some points still stopped cotton picking.

Amarillo reported today that the entire panhandle, the stalled plains country south of that region, and western Oklahoma have been thoroughly soaked, and that excellent feed crops, the main reliance of those sections, are assured.

In southeast Texas, about Houston, nearly three inches of rain has fallen, filling streams which had recently dried up. These rains extended westward to San Angelo.

Central and north Texas points have sent in continual reports of rain for four days. About Fort Worth the precipitation today was the heaviest since February.

Other points reporting rain are Sherman, Marshall, Stamford and scores of places scattered in between these points which embrace the state's richest agricultural belt.

All Cops In Town On Strike Because Pay Wasn't Prompt

PINE BLUFF, Ark., Sept. 11—Pine Bluff's police force went "on strike" last night and while Chief of Police Stewart and his assistant patrolled the business section of the city, Mayor Bloo mtook charge of the police station.

Inability to cash warrants for their pay, designated as $75 a month for more than two-thirds of their face value, is given by the men as reason for refusing to continue their duties. Mayor Bloom is quoted as expressing himself in sympathy with the striking police. Unless volunteers come forward today the three officials will constitute the police force again tonight.

J. FARLEY, STRIKE BREAKER, IS DEAD

Man Who Made a Fortune Breaking Strikes Passes Away in Pittsburg Home

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—The death of James Farley, known through years of leadership as a strike-breaker in many cities of the United States and Canada, was reported early today from his home in Pittsburg.

Farley boasted, and was generally given credit of, starting the "industry of strikebreaking." From an altar boy at Malone, N. Y., where he was born thirty-nine years ago, he turned to a circus runaway, became manager of an up-state home and finally entered service of the Brooklyn Rapid Transit company as a coal passer, from which he emerged in 1895 as leader of the non-union forces which broke the great Brooklyn car strike.

His success in Brooklyn won him fame and to city after city where labor troubles arose he was called to do similar work until his business of strikebreaking and protecting lives and property developed into a systematic organization that for a time was the terror of strike agitators.

Farley's profit came by a premium of so much per head paid to him for the men whom he furnished and kept in service during strikes, and in a few years he grew rich at his newly created business. He was credited with making $300,000 during the Interborough Rapid Transit strike in this city and still larger sums in later years when he broke up strikes in Chicago, Cincinnati, San Francisco, Waterbury and many other places in this country and Canada.

Since his circus days Farley had been a horse fancier and during the latter part of his life he became the owner of a fine string of horses. He was such a thorough sportsman that during the last few weeks while knowing death from tuberculosis would overtake him this fall, he insisted upon being carried from one up-state track to another, where he had a seat beside the course on a cot and watched his favorite horses contend.

DEMOCRATIC LEADERS DISCUSS TARIFF BILL

Expect Bill to Be in Conference About Ten Days Longer, Talk With Mr. Wilson

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Representative Underwood and Senator Simmons conferred with President Wilson today over disputed points in the tariff bill to be discussed by the conference committees of both houses. The two Democratic leaders expect the tariff bill will be in conference about ten days.

"The president merely expressed his views to us on some of the points in the bill," said Mr. Underwood. It was said they went into detail on features of the income tax.

The president arranged to leave this afternoon for Cornish, N. H.

The tariff bill was sent by the house today to conference, the first meeting of which conferees took place late today. It was announced that the Democratic members of th oconference committee would meet alone, excluding the Republicans, until they had agreed upon all points in dispute between the senate and house. The Republican minority then will be called in.

JEROME SILVEY DIED ON WEDNESDAY NIGHT

Prominent Atlanta Merchant Passes Away After Long Illness

After a long illness, extending over a year, Jerome Silvey, one of the oldest and most prominent merchants of Atlanta, passed away Wednesday night at the family residence, 168 Forrest avenue. He was fifty-four years of age.

At the time of his death Mr. Silvey was president of the Silvey-Dougherty company, of 24 Central avenue, a business that he organized fifteen years ago. He had been continuously at its head ever since. The firm was recently changed from the Silvey-Smith company.

Mr. Silvey, although he is a native of Georgia, did not come to Atlanta to live until about thirty years ago, at which time he was associated with John Silvey & Co. Shortly after making this his home he married Miss Alice Greene, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. F. L. Greene, of this city.

Up to the time that Mr. Silvey organized and became the president of the company that bears his name, he remained with the John Silvey company. His sterling character and high business ability soon placed him in the front rank of men of affairs in Atlanta. His new venture was a success from the outset, and under his excellent leadership the business has grown to be one of the largest of its kind in Atlanta.

Mr. Silvey's activities were not confined entirely to the commercial world. For years he had been active in church circles, a zealous and untiring worker for the First Baptist church, of which he was a deacon. His loss will be keenly felt by all who knew him. He was a man to whom a friend once made was a friend always.

Mr. Silvey is survived by his wife, three daughters, Miss Elizabeth Silvey, Miss Irene Silvey, Mrs. V. B. Whatley; two sisters, Mrs. F. A. Bomar and Mrs. L. S. Beard.

The funeral will be held Friday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the late residence of the deceased. Rev. C. W. Daniel, pastor of the First Baptist church, will officiate. Interment will be in Oakland cemetery.

WOMAN GIVES HEIRLOOM TO HOSPITAL'S FUND

Liberal Donations Characterize Meeting to Raise Money for Wesley Hospital

Liberal subscriptions of money and in one instance the donation of heirlooms jewelry characterized the meeting of the woman's auxiliary of the Wesley Memorial hospital. This meeting, which was held Wednesday for the purpose of devising ways and means for raising funds for a new hospital building, resulted in subscriptions amounting to $1350.

While the subscriptions were being taken, one well known lady unfastened from her corsage a valuable miniature in a heavy gold frame. She gave it as her contribution, explaining that she was unable to give its equivalent in money, but that she desired to make some sacrifice for the most worthy cause. This miniature had been in her family for more than 100 years and was highly prized.

It was announced at the meeting that Asa G. Candler, of Atlanta, who has been a generous contributor to the hospital ever since its establishment, had agreed to give $2 to the building fund for every $1 raised by the woman's auxiliary provided it raises as much as $25,000.

This first meeting of the auxiliary was given over to the taking of subscriptions from the ladies themselves. They will hold another meeting at which plans for raising additional money will be decided.

Mrs. T. R. Kendall, of Gainesville, vice president of the organization, presided at the meeting and made an appealing and forceful adress. Mrs. H. N. Rambo is president of the auxiliary, which is a statewide organization. Officers of the ways and means committee, which will plan and conduct the new building fund, are Mrs. H. H. Tucker, chairman; Mrs. William M. Prescott, secretary, and Mrs. John A. Miller, treasurer.

At the meeting Wednesday attention was called to the fact that the Wesley Memorial hospital cares for more charity than paid patients and that five out of seven of its charity cases come from outside of Atlanta, and that patients are taken without regard to their religious denomination.

STATE OFFICERS VISIT CHIPPEWA TRIBE, I. O. R. M.

Chippewa tribe of Red Men, at its regular meeting Tuesday night, was honored by visits from the following state officers of the order:

O. F. Stroberg, of Dooly, great sachem; J. R. Miller, of Marietta, great senior sagamore; Walter C. Hendrix, of Atlanta, great junior sagamore; Sledge Collier, of Atlanta, chairman of the orphans' home board of the great council, and Jesse B. Lee, member of the finance committee of the great council.

The visitors witnessed the conferring of degrees on seven candidates, and made brief talks.

SAVANNAH MAN TIED TAFT FOR PRESIDENCY

Upon his return Wednesday from the annual meeting of the American Bar association at Montreal, Canada, Attorney John L. Tye, of Atlanta, declared that the meeting had been the most successful in the history of the association. He predicted that next year Peter W. Meldrim, of Savannah, would be chosen president of the association. Mr. Meldrim tied ex-President W. H. Taft on the first ballot, and according to Mr. Tye he would have won but for the fact that his opponent enjoyed the prestige of having been president of the United States.

MRS. GRACE M. KEEFER ASKS FOR $5,000 ALIMONY

Says Husband Won't Support Her and Children While He Has Good Income

Mrs. Grace M. Keefer, whose troubles with her husband, David H. Keefer, have been before the public a number of times, has filed suit in the superior court asking for temporary and permanent alimony. No action for divorce was begun.

The petition for alimony says her husband has abandoned her and that he refuses to contribute to the support of her children, Jack Macy and Elinor Macy, seventeen and sixteen years old respectively.

She says Keefer is a lawyer, capable of earning $5,000 a year and that he owns stock in the Georgia Railway and Electric company and other property.

The alimony hearing was set for September 29.

Smith, Hammond & Smith are Mrs. Keefer's attorneys.

ARRESTED AND BOUND OVER IN 31 MINUTES

Thirty-one minutes after the police received the complaint which led to his arrest, Ed Brown, who is not brown but black, had been bound over from the court of Recorder Broyles to the higher courts on a charge of burglary. Ed looked dazed when he found himself a state prisoner after such brief transition from the freedom of a bright fall morning.

At 9:59 o'clock Thursday morning the call officers were notified by Estella Purcell, colored, 196 Fraser street, that $2 had been stolen from her abode and that she suspected Ed Brown of the deed. Call Officers Campbell and Gillespie went out and arrested Brown, took him to court, and he was tried, the recorder finishing with him at 11:01, o'clock.

In court Ed admitted having purloined the $2, and explained it by saying that he went to the house to get a pet chicken of which he was particularly fond, and not finding it, got the $2 instead. The police say Ed is fond of all chickens. They declare that he has been in trouble before for chicken stealing.

WEE GIRL DECIDES HER OWN CUSTODY

Takes Witness Stand and Tells Why Neither Father Nor Mother Should Have Her

Nine-year-old Margaret Anderson, the daughter of Harry W. Anderson, Jr., amazed Judge Bell's court Thursday morning when she was put on the witness stand to tell about the troubles between her father and mother. Calm, dignified, absolutely unafraid, she made one of the best witnesses ever on the stand; and in the end it was her opinion in the matter which became the judge's decision.

The hearing was to determine who should have the custody of the little girl. A divorce suit between her parents is pending in the court, and application was made for alimony and a decision awarding the little girl to either father or mother.

When Margaret was put on the stand she said very quietly that she believed the best place for her was with her grandmother, Mrs. H. W. Anderson. She said that she liked her mother very well, but that she thought her mother had not treated her exactly right because she sometimes whipped her when she had done nothing at all.

She walked down from the witness stand very composedly, but when she was back in the clerk's private office her pretty blue eyes filled with tears and she did not come out again.

After hearing the evidence Judge Bell also arrived at the conclusion that the best place for the little girl was with her grandmother and gave her into the custody of Mrs. Anderson, Sr.

The father was ordered to pay $20 a month for the support of the little girl. The divorce hearing will come up later.

DESERTER MAY HAVE TO SERVE TERM IN PRISON

Technicality in Case of Albert W. Dill May Make Affair Take Any Turn

It may be that Albert W. Dill, who surrendered himself at police headquarters Thursday as a deserter from the army, will have to serve several years in a military prison for his affront to the colors. On the other hand, he may not be punished at all. A technicality is involved, and the matter depends upon whether or not he enlisted before September 10, 1908. The police are holding him, awaiting information from the military authorities on the point in doubt.

According to the story that Dill told Captain Poole, of the police, Wednesday afternoon, he is twenty-seven years old now. He enlisted, he said, some time during the fall of 1908, under the name of A. W. Day. He was sent to join a regiment at St. Joseph, Mo., but did not find the life to his taste and after about eleven days he deserted.

A reward of $50 was offered for his apprehension within two years after the expiration of the three-year period for which he enlisted, or, in other words, within five years from the date of his enlistment.

Dill told Captain Poole that he enlisted again, at Spartanburg, S. C., in 1911, under his right name, and was sent to Jefferson Barracks, Mo., to be sworn in as a soldier. On his way to that point, Dill now relates, he deserted again.

Dill told the police captain that his family wanted him to surrender and take his punishment for his misdeeds and in a way atone for them. That was why he walked into police headquarters with his story, he said. He was under the impression that he was wanted for the second desertion, and that the first was too old to be held against him now.

When the technicality appeared and the question became important as to the exact date of his first enlistment in the fall five years ago, for it was determined at once that Dill had not actually deserted in 1911, inasmuch as when he quit the train he had not yet been accepted finally as a soldier.

Thaw Trial Pictures To Be Shown At Grand All of Next Week

Jake Wells has secured motion pictures of Harry K. Thaw in his cell at Sherbrooke and a series of motion pictures of the famous trial of Thaw in Canada. These pictures were taken for the Keith and Orpheum circuits with the consent of Thaw and the trial officials in Canada, and will be shown simultaneously in all of the theaters of both twin circuits from Portland, Me., to Frisco.

Mr. Wells' promises to the Atlanta theatergoers that he would send to the Grand the very newest and the best motion pitcures possible to secure means that the Thaw pictures will be seen all of next week at the Grand from noon until 10:30 o'clock each night—10 cents admission—along with the popular kinemacolor and black and white first run features.

When Thaw escaped to Canada and after his confinement in the Matteawan asylum, he was induced to pose for motion pictures, to be exhibited all over the country. He consented at once, and the court officials in charge of the trial also gave consent to the use of the cameras in the court room.

The United Booking offices secured the films and Mr. Wells from Birmingham, where he was on a southern tour, got into long distance communication with the authorities and secured a set of the films for immediate use in Atlanta.

The picture will show Thaw in his cell at Sherbrooke. It also will show all of the trial, including all the prominent people from both the United States and Canada. In fact, the whole story of the trial, including the principal set forth in a dignified way.

ONLY 42 CHILDREN YET TO BE ASSIGNED PLACES

Superintendent of Schools Slaton Finds Room for Nearly 1,000 Overflow Pupils

Following a conference with the principals of the white grammar schools of Atlanta Wednesday afternoon, Superintendent of Schools William M. Slaton stated that arrangements had been made whereby the 1,000 overflow pupils would be cared for immediately.

Under his plan for the assignment of children among the various school grades it was found that but forty-two had been left out, and plans are now under way to place them within a few days.

The task of finding seats for those who were unable to get accommodations the first day was no easy one. The superintendent and principals made every effort to keep each child in his or her own school district rather than make them travel a long distance to class.

There is still some congestion in the English Avenue school, which will make it necessary either to put a few grades in the basement or rent an outside room in the immediate neighborhood. Which course will be taken has not yet been decided upon.

On Thursday afternoon the superintendent will hold a conference with the principals of the Edgewood, Inman Park and Highland Avenue schools with a view to a distribution of their overflow to the new Moreland Avenue school soon to be completed. The plan is to establish five grades here to relieve the three other schools mentioned.

SHOT BY POLICEMAN; NOW HE WANTS DAMAGE

W. C. Munday Will Get Damage, Too, for Bullet Intended for Dog

An entirely new phase of the activities of Police Chief Beavers' now famous "vice squad" developed Wednesday afternoon at a meeting of the claims committee of council, when W. C Munday, of 449 Glenn street, petitioned for damages on account of being shot by a policeman on the capitol grounds.

Mr Munday stated that some dogs were raising a disturbance around the capitol one night, and two policemen, whose names he did not know, went to "shoo" them away. He said one of the policemen shot at the dogs, and the bullet struck him instead, inflicting a painful but not serious flesh wound, which necessitated his going to the Grady hospital and losing considerable time from his business.

Councilman Jesse Wood, chairman of the claims committee, agreed with Mr. Munday that the city should reimburse him, at least to the extent of paying his hospital bill and a nominal sum for damages.

THEATRES

(Criticisms of initial performances at the local theaters are written by members of The Journal staff. All other matter appearing in this column is furnished by the theater management.)

FORSYTH—Vaudeville.
LYRIC—"The Call of the Heart."
GRAND—Kinemacolor.
BIJOU—"My Dixie Girl."

Friday night the Atlanta will get its real season opening when "The Merry Countess" is given. This is a $2 show, but is being offered at special prices on account of the opening. The company is up to a high standard and will be materially assisted by an orchestra of fifteen Friday night in order to get the full beauty of the Johann Strauss music. This music is the prettiest waltz music ever written and is sure to create a furore in Atlanta. The play has been praised in all the southern cities it has visited. Here are some of the criticisms:

Savannah Morning News: "Attractively costumed and staged and with a company containing both singers and dancers, 'The Merry Countess' pleased last night's audience. And by the same token Samuel E. Rork is still batting a thousand. Manager Rork has never brought a bad production to this city. 'The Merry Countess' is tuneful and with the clever people that are presenting the operetta it is certain of big success."

Charleston News and Courier: "The Merry Countess' measured up to the high expectations of the music lovers and will long be remembered as one of the most charming pieces of its kind seen here in many seasons. It is a regular 'Chocolate Soldier.'"

Others said the same. Seats are now on sale and no mistake will be made in seeing the production.

It is a positive fact that Frank Hale and Inez Patterson, the dancers who top the bill at the Forsyth this week, constitute the strongest drawing card offered by the theater in a great many weeks. While it is a fact that the bill this week is an exceptionally good entertainment, extraordinary even at the Forsyth, the champion tango and turkey trot dancers have surely proven to be a magnet that attracts people to the theater.

Lydia Barry has won a great personal hit. It was no easy task to follow the success of some of the features that have appeared at the Forsyth, but the very fact that Miss Barry is the "queen of comediennes" has won for her the position that that may have been occupied by another prior to her local introduction.

And a better novelty than the act offered by the pretty Doris Wilson and her charming sisters, Alma and Dot, has not been seen here. The Misses Wilson are entitled to some of the honors for what promises to be the banner week of the season.

The bill for next week will introduce some charming features, and now that the real season is on at the busy theater seats are in great demand for all future performances.

... play that touches the heart and stirs all the resentment that is in you, and makes you sympathize with the American girl who bartered soul and body for an English title, afterward to lead a most miserable life, and finally the great satisfaction that one feels when Lady Everlow finds rest and happiness with "Comrade Jim," are features that have made "The Call of the Heart," this week's attraction at the Lyric, one of the strongest offerings of many seasons at the popular playhouse. In offering this play to the ...theatergoers, Leta Vance has founded on a subject that has been for generations a vital issue to every American.

A splendid company is playing this week. John Nicholson and Ann Hamilton are receiving flattering plaudits from the Lyric audiences. There will be matinees on Thursday and Saturday.

"My Dixie Girl," a melodrama of the old school, with plenty of thrills and sensational incidents, is being received with genuine satisfaction by patrons of the Bijou this week.

The story of the Kentucky mountain feuds contains a plot that holds the attention of the audience from start to finish. Matinees will be given every afternoon at 2:30.

Miss Estha Williams, supported by Edwin Walter, in "A Man's Game," will be next week's attraction at the Lyric.

There have been few plays presented in recent years with as many tense dramatic situations, where plot and motive have been so cleverly and forcibly presented as in "A Man's Game."

Sir Owen Davis, the author, has created a character known as "Nance Mayo," which, it is said, is unique in stage characterization, and which requires an artist of finished ability to truly portray.

SACRED HEART SINGERS IN ANNUAL CONVENTION

Auditorium Will Be Scene of Old - Fashioned Singing Meet This Week

Old fashioned sacred harp singing will be heard in the Atlanta auditorium on Friday, Saturday and Sunday, when the United Sacred Harp Musical association convenes there for its yearly song meeting.

Each day the session will begin at 9 o'clock a. m. and will last practically without interruption through the afternoon, with evening meetings to follow on Friday and Saturday. The convention will end Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock.

J. S. James, of Atlanta, is president of the association. The other officers are C. J. Griggs, vice president, and Dr. S. W. Everett, secretary. The meetings in former years have been held in the Baptist Tabernacle, but the number of singers expected to attend compelled a move to the larger quarters this year.

DEATH'S HAND FALLS ON LIEUT. JOSEPH M. SHIELDS

Valiant Member of Atlanta Fire Department Died Wednesday Night

In the death Wednesday night of Lieutenant Joseph Matthew Shields, aged sixty-two years, of hose company No. 4, at his residence, 333 Luckie street, the Atlanta fire department lost its sixth oldest member.

In 1887 when Lieutenant Shields first came to Atlanta, the fire department boasted of but four companies. After three years as a fireman he was transferred to company No. 4, remaining there until his death.

The record of this valiant fire fighter was praised highly by officials of the department and the news of his death has cast a gloom over his comrades who have known him and served with him for so many years. Eight years ago during the Forsyth street viaduct fire, it was Lieutenant Shields who risked his life to save several of his men, and through his efforts on this and other occasions received the commendation of the board.

In 1901 he was severely injured when the truck he was driving collided with a street car. He was hurled to the hard pavement and dragged some distance. Injuries to his spine at that time are believed to have contributed to his death in the opinion of his comrades.

Lieutenant Shields is survived by his wife and four children.

Arrangements for the funeral will be announced later.

START NEXT MONDAY CLEANING OUT CREEK

Sewer Committee of Council Provides Money for Work to Go Ahead

Instead of waiting for the general council to formally appropriate the money to clean out the channel of Peachtree creek below the city's new sewage disposal plant, the sewer committee of council at a meeting Wednesday afternoon voted to take $500 from the continent fund of the construction department for this purpose, so that the work may be commenced without further delay, and Captain R. M. Clayton, the chief of construction, stated that he would put a force of hands in the creek next Monday morning.

It is estimated that the work will cost around $1,000. The county commissioners have agreed to appropriate $500, so that the city's part will be only half of the total cost.

The work is being done to prevent the creek, in times of heavy rain, from overflowing into the disposal plant.

PARK BOARD REJECTS BIDS, GETS NEW ONES

L. G. Green Insists That All Contractors Be Allowed a Chance

As the result of a strenuous protest by L. C. Green, member of the city park board from the Fourth ward, the board at a special meeting Wednesday afternoon rejected the four bids which had been submitted for the building of a new refreshment stand in Grant park, and advertised for new bids.

Mr. Green made the assertion that a certain contractor who is not a member of the Builders' exchange went to the office of Hentz & Reed, the architects, to get specifications so that he might bid, and was turned down.

"I want every contractor in Atlanta to be allowed to bid on this work," said he. "It doesn't make any difference whether he is a member of the Builders' exchange or not."

Of the four bids before the board, that of C. J. Berhardt, for $9,000, was the lowest, and the board was about to vote on a motion to accept this bid when Mr. Green objected.

The refreshment stand is to take the place of the one which burned several months ago.

NEW WAY OF GETTING POLICEMEN FOR PARKS

Just Catch a Couple Kissing, Says J. O. Cochran, and They'll Come

A sure way to induce the police to stop automobiles from mangling the grass in Grant park when they turn around, is to catch a couple kissing in the car, declared J. O. Cochran, president of the city park board, at a meeting of the improvement committee of the board Wednesday afternoon.

L. C. Green said he wouldn't care how many times they caught him kissing, if the girl were pretty. That is, provided he were a single man.

Charles I. Branan expressed the opinion that kissing in the parks is a matter calling for discretion on the part of the boy, the girl, and the policeman.

WOMEN'S FIRE BRIGADE PUTS OUT BIG BLAZE

LYNN, Mass., Sept. 11.—A woman's fire brigade put out a blaze in Lake Shore park yesterday and by prompt action prevented a possible conflagration at that resort. The brigade was organized some time ago as a fire protective body, with Mrs. Sarah Warring as chief. It has its own fire station and chemical apparatus. When flames were discovered yesterday on the roof of the home of Edward Lynch, the women responded promptly to the emergency and had the fire out before the regular department could get over the three miles of road. The damage to the house was slight.

Pardon for McNaughton

ceased, and also the further fact that reputable witnesses have appeared before the commission and sworn that Flanders was taking some kind of medicine six weeks before his death, which he declared would some day kill him.

Commissioners Davidson and Rainey take the position that Dr. McNaughton is innocent, or at least there is such a doubt and such a failure to exclude every reasonable hypothesis save that of his guilt as to make it their duty to recommend his pardon.

Following is their recommendation:

THE RECOMMENDATION.

"A careful examination of the evidence at the trial shows that the case as made, was a weak one. The motive given as a basis of the crime had surrounding it such facts as to make it unnatural, if not untrue. It is also noted that the prosecution refused to allow the defendant to have present at the chemical analysis of the stomach and organs of the deceased a known expert of ability that he might see no mistake made, and that the analysis was a correct one. The answers to questions propounded to Dr. J. H. Chandler, one of the physicians who assisted in exhuming the body of Flanders and taking therefrom the parts sent to the chemist, are also to be considered. These sworn answers indicate that the quantity of arsenic found was not sufficient to exclude every other reasonable hypothesis save that of the guilt of the accused. Dr. Chandler, after testifying for the prosecution, was not sworn at the trial.

"When the application for clemency was originally filed a year ago this commission, being always loathe to interfere with verdicts of juries and judgments of courts, and not being satisfied as to what should be done in this case, requested the governor to grant a reprieve, and give the state an opportunity to try Mrs. Flanders, the wife of the deceased man, who was jointly indicted with McNaughton for the murder of her husband, the indictment alleging a conspiracy between the two, the said conspiracy being based on their alleged intimacy and the fact that Flanders was preparing to move to another section of the state and thereby separate the defendant and the deceased's wife. The governor yielded to teh request and reprieved the defendant, stating in his order that no executive could intelligently pass upon this case until the one against the woman had been tried. It appears that court after court in Emanuel county, where the alleged crime was committed, passed and the case against the accused woman was not tried, the governor granting reprieve after reprieve in order that she might be tried and that the result might possibly assist him and this commission in arriving at the truth of the homicide.

MRS. FLANDERS' CASE NOL PROSSED.

"It appears, however, that in July last at a term of the superior court of Emanuel county, a motion was made by attorneys representing relatives of Flanders, and employed by them to prosecute both Dr. McNaughton and Mrs. Flanders, asking that the indictment against the latter be nol prossed, which the court allowed. By this order this commission was deprived of the benefit of the result of a jury trial of the case, and it was done by the prosecution on their own motion and must have been with full knowledge of what the governor's reprieves meant and what this commission desired when they requested the reprieve. So when the case was again presented to the commission a month ago they were met with a state of affairs in which the conspirator had been set free—the conspiracy thus done away with—and an effort being made to hang the other conspirator on a theory of conspiracy which in this act was virtually admitted not to exist.

"On the original trial of the case it was contended and charged that a conspiracy existed between Dr. McNaughton and Mrs. Flanders in order to further their alleged illicit relations, to kill Flanders, that Flanders had never been sick until he took medicine prescribed by McNaughton, and which was administered by Mrs. Flanders and taken by Flanders with the knowledge on the part of his wife that it contained arsenic designed to kill her husband. The prosecution, therefore, in asking the release of Mrs. Flanders, the alleged co-conspirator of McNaughton, show that they do not believe that a conspiracy existed, and, if not, then in this case there could have been no crime and McNaughton could not have been guilty. If McNaughton is guilty then Mrs. Flanders is guilty and the prosecution by its acts admits the innocence of one ; and this commission believes in the innocence of the other.

"The state, through its solicitor general, did not make a solicitation against the application for pardon, and the attorney representing the prosecution did not offer any additional reason outside of the verdict and judgment of the court as to why clemency should not be granted the petitioner. On the other hand, attorneys for McNaughton produced before the commission answers to hypothetical questions based upon the symptoms of the deceased as shown by at the trial. These sworn answers show that some of the cardinal symptoms of the deceased were not symptoms usually found in cases of arsenic poison, but were symptoms of a disease which Dr. McNaughton claimed caused the death of the deceased.

NO POISON EVIDENCE.

"Another fact important in a proper consideration of this case is that no evidence introduced at the trial shows that the defendant administered medicine containing poison to the deceased. To the contrary, it was conclusively proven in the hearing before this commission that Flanders had been sick for some time, had been taking medicine, and was heard to remark, 'This will some day kill me.' A letter was read before this commission from a former ordinary of Bulloch county in which he said that a few days before he heard a responsible citizen of that county say that while in Thomasville on business he heard a merchant of that city say the deceased (Flanders) was sick in Thomasville some time before he heard of his death, and that, to his knowledge, Flanders was taking medicine while there.

"The attorney for the applicant was given time to investigate this information, which was considered important for the reason that it corroborated one Seaborn Bell, a reputable citizen who had testified in an extraordinary motion for a new trial that the deceased on his way home from southwest Georgia, where he had been to buy timber, stopped at Bell's house for breakfast, and while there stated that he had been quite sick and was taking medicine which contained poison. Two affidavits from citizens of Thomasville—one a county official who was in the employ of the deceased several days, and the other a merchant of standing and unquestioned repute—were produced to the effect that the deceased (Flanders) was sick in Thomasville, complained of his stomach and vomited, and was taking medicine in liquid form, tablets and pills three or four times a day for at least a week or longer. A business partner of the deceased, who was with him in Thomasville, also gave an affidavit some time ago that the deceased was sick while there, had a prescription filled, and complained of being sick with the disease which the defendant contends caused Flanders' death.

"By force of reasoning if the deceased was sick and was taking medicine and that medicine contained poison and the poison proved by analysis was arsenic, then the poison in the medicine was arsenic. Therefore, especially from the facts recited above and for other reasons that could be drawn from the entire evidence in the case, this commission is convinced that the defendant is innocent, or at least there is such a doubt and such a failure to exclude every reasonable hypothesis save that of the guilt of the accused as to make it their duty to recommend his pardon."

PATTERSON'S POSITION.

Commissioner Patterson takes the position that it would be a mistake for the governor to wholly set aside the action of the courts in the McNaughton case, but inasmuch as the evidence is conflicting and the new evidence submitted to the commission justifies a commutation to life imprisonment. His memorandum follows:

"It is always a source of deep regret to me when I find that I cannot agree with the other commissioners, especially when they are on side of mercy, but inasmuch as the board is to act in an advisory way to the governor, I believe it is fair and just to him that he should be informed as to the opinion of or advice of each commissioner unless there is agreement among them. Feeling that I would be derelict in my duty to the governor, did I not give him the benefit of my opinion in an advisory way, of this case, I file this note with the recommendation of the commission.

"Dr. W. J. McNaughton was tried by a jury of the vicinage, their verdict was approved by the trial judge and affirmed by the supreme court. Afterwards on an extraordinary motion for new trial was made on the ground of newly discovered evidence before the judge of the circuit, a different judge from the trial judge, who refused same, thus approving the verdict and this action of the judge was affirmed by the supreme court. This should seem to settle the case, and in my opinion it would be a mistake of the executive to the exercise of his power of pardon to wholly set aside the action of the courts. Yet for reasons which I think are sound the sentence of Dr. McNaughton should be commuted to life imprisonment.

WHOLLY CIRCUMSTANTIAL.

"First—The evidence is wholly circumstantial, and the law in this crime of cases recognizes that more care should be taken to avoid mistakes and provides that although the jury should not recommend life imprisonment the trial judge may exercise his discretion and impose this punishment instead of the death penalty. This being true, and death or life imprisonment being the penalty for murder, it is doing no violence to the law or the orderly procedure of the courts to substitute the latter punishment for the former. In this case especially in this true, for though the supreme court held the verdict was sustained by the evidence, one of the justices who reviewed the case held in the dissenting opinion that the evidence was insufficient to support the verdict, and error in commuting the sentence to life imprisonment.

"Second—The new evidence produced for the first time before the commission on the hearing of this application for clemency, while it does not free Dr. McNaughton from the presumption of guilt arising from the verdict and repeated decisions of the courts in his case, does make such a case that authorizes a commutation of sentence, that hereafter if it does develop that he is innocent, he could be absolutely pardoned.

DEATH UNWARRANTED.

"Third—The action of the state's counsel in allowing the case against Mrs. Flandere to be nol prossed before trial on the motion of counsel employed by the Flanders family, makes the imposition of the death penalty on Dr. McNaughton seem to be unwarranted. In other words, had the jury trying Dr. McNaughton known that Mrs. Flanders, who was jointly indicted with him, would not be tried or punished in any way, they would in all probability have recommended life imprisonment.

"Fourth. The new evidence from Thomasville is merely cumulative of what was before the courts on the extraordinary motion for new trial. The evidence of the physicians as to the improbability of arsenic poison is contradicted or explained by Dr. Bachman, who swears there is no reasonable doubt that the death of Fred Flanders was caused by arsenic poison, and for these reasons, there are no grounds for absolute pardon, but they do authorize the executive to weigh carefully these facts and determine in the light of this, would a jury removed from the high feeling against the accused impose the death penalty, or in the exercise of caution would they not rather punish by life imprisonment. It must be remembered that public feeling ran very high against the accused before and at the trial, and but for this, it may be that he would have received a life sentence.

"For the above reasons I feel that Dr. McNaughton's sentence should be commuted. In doing this the law and orderly procedure of the courts is upheld, and at the same time the further opportunity is offered to pardon the applicant should it develop that he is innocent."

HIRE A HALL JUDGE TELLS FIVE POINTS FIGHTERS

"Five Points" is too public for affairs of this kind. Next time hire a hall and maybe you'll get a few receipts at the box office," said Recorder Broyles Thursday morning to Thomas E. Scott, a lawyer, and Carl H. Fischer, a real estate man, who were before him for fighting on the street Wednesday.

The recorder smiled as he offered the suggestion, and the two defendants grinned with him and accepted it. Then the recorder fined them $5 and costs apiece.

ALLEGED ASSAILANT IS HELD AT STATION

Turner Mitchell, a white man charged with attempted criminal assault on a young white girl near Lakewood on the Utoy road, was taken into custody by the county police Wednesday afternoon.

Policeman Jones, of the city force, arrested Mitchell on Edgewood avenue on the charge of loitering, and when the prisoner was taken to the station he was said to be the man wanted by the county officers, and was given into their charge.

He was taken out to the home of the girl, who identified him.

Diamond Prices Going Up

Three advances, aggregating 15 per cent, have occurred in the wholesale market during the past twelve months, which we have not followed.

It is almost certain the new Tariff Bill will be signed in the next ten days, and this will make another 10 per cent advance.

We just bought a big supply of diamonds from the cutters, anticipating the new Tariff advance. However, the prices we paid were quite a little more than our present stock cost.

It will be necessary for us to partly follow the market before November.

You can buy a diamond from us now at the old prices as published in our diamond booklet and catalogue and be certain of a definite advance before November.

Selections sent prepaid for examination to reliable people anywhere. Attractive monthly terms allowed.

Call or write for booklet, "Facts About Diamonds," and make your selection at the old prices.

Good Times

are at hand—there can be no question as to this. We will experience this Fall and Winter, especially in this locality and state, a leap forward in every direction of all business affairs. There are many, many reasons for our giving utterance to these views and prophecy. The price of cotton will bring huge returns to all the growers—the government report, just issued, shows the yields of the farms of this state are above the average, and better still, the future prospects figured for still greater enhancement. Merchants and business men feel tremendously encouraged—labor will be in great demand, and the purchasing power enormously added to. Bankers and others feel the long drawn out session of Congress is about at an end. Manufacturers know what basis they will be established on in bringing out the products of their factories.

The merest layman can read the signs of the times here in our city by the crowding of the hotels. Goods are being bought with great freedom. And right here is where we want to make the point of this editorial: That for a period it's going to be hard for merchants to get orders filled—consequently we want to advise all our friends and customers to buy now. We have worked hard to bring to our store, through our big force of buyers and through our New York office, complete stocks of all merchandise, so as to be ready efficiently to supply your needs, and early purchases should be in line. You must get the goods. Why not secure the cream of everything? Don't put off—make a complete memo at once of your needs for the Winter, and select with care and good judgment. The "Early Bird Story" just as good now as when first uttered.

Very elegant stocks will be found in our Cloak and Suit, Millinery, Underwear, Dress Goods and Silk Departments. Staple Dry Goods will be advanced in prices later, as the demand from all over the country congests things.

Our Furniture Salesrooms, comprising two immense floors, fairly groan with the newest and best for the homes. Our "Divided Payment Plan" in home needs will meet your convenience, and our Credit Office on second floor will afford you every point of satisfaction and assurance of pleasure in buying for the home what you want.

In fact, our whole store is putting both feet forward with great energy, and it's being made your store all the time, and "there is a reason" always why we call our store truly and truthfully The Best Store in Atlanta. You can help us make it even better, if such a thing is possible. We want to do our part. Tell us if you know of anything we ought to do to land higher. We will appreciate it.

Our Publicity Department, well equipped and daily in the newspapers telling you of "what is what."

Do you agree with us in this early buying suggestion? We feel we would not be doing our duty did we neglect to caution you on this point now. Get the best now and make your economies count. Atlanta to the front and our store always leading in every good thing pertaining to successful merchandising.

May we ask you to come and look through our big store, whether you are from the city or outside? Always welcome.

RENEWED BEAR PRESSURE CAUSED BREAK IN COTTON

Market in New York Closed 1 to 7 Points Down From the Previous Close

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—With rains better than one inch reported in the southwest heavy enough to suggest possible damage, there was a renewal of bull support at cotton's opening. First prices were 8 to 12 points higher, more on realizing the market reacted to about yesterday's closing, with the result nervous. Extremely heavy precipitation was reported at Galveston, and private wires claimed that open cotton was being beaten out, and that the moisture would be of little benefit to the uplands unless more of it should be followed by a favorable autumn and unusually late winter.

The market was more or less unsettled later in the morning and fluctuations were irregular. Offerings were readily taken on setbacks. Prices at noon were 5 to 10 points net higher.

Reports of a poor export demand in the south and claims that spot cotton might begin to move here from the eastern belt should the demand from spinners fail to improve seemed to inspire considerable selling during the early afternoon and prices eased off to a net loss of 7 to 10 points.

NEW ORLEANS COTTON.

(By Associated Press.)

NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11.—Cotton futures opened steady, unchanged to 3 points up compared with yesterday's close. Unless were better than due on Liverpool futures, but private cable messages from Manchester told of a dull opening trade there. More rain was reported in the western belt and widespread fears were voiced that with a late frost there was more hope for a top crop than many crop experts have been willing to admit. These telegrams and the forecast of unsettled and rainy weather for the western belt stimulated selling and replaced the initial advance with a decline. Some after the call prices were 2@5 5 points over yesterday's final figure. At this end of the first half hour of business they were 7 to 9 points under.

A leading crop authority issued a bullish summary or conditions in Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, covering the morning hours, in which he claimed that much of the damage in Texas was irreparable, that it would be impossible to secure buying and a partial recovery of the early decline after the middle of the morning offerings of ings increased again and the market sagged off slowly under the selling. At noon the tone was quiet but steady with prices 8 to 10 points under the close of yesterday.

Saving and Investing
"Speculative Financiering"
One trouble about corporations—one cause of the public's suspicion of them—was pointed out rather concretely by Congressman Murdock in a recent speech in the house of representatives.
He said that the high-salaried officials of public service corporations who indulge in stock speculation, operating on the side are responsible for much of the talmation, high charges and failure to render good service. Mr. Murdock appeared big enough to induce such men to attach to their unfortunate work of making the company's stock a proper servant of the public and a dividend payer to its investor in its stock.
It is easy to understand how this evil practice has grown up. Suppose Bill Jones put on a stage line between Podunk and Smithville, in a growing community. At a time Bill Jones drives the one stage, collects all the money, does the whole business. His chief interest in the line is giving a service satisfactory to the people of Podunk, Smithville and along the road between, so that he will make money carrying passengers and freight.
Then Bill grows so fast that Bill Jones must ask for money to buy another stage, to buy other horses, and hire another driver. On that borrowed money he has to pay interest. But his earnings are so much greater than this it is easy to do.
In a few years Bill Jones has stages running between half a dozen towns, all making money. Bill Jones goes over to Bill to form a company to take over the business, and he is made president. He no longer owns the horses and stables—a number of other people are shareholders in the business.
As president, Bill is paid a liberal salary, but he sees that it is a small return in comparison with what he would be making if he had retained full ownership.
So Bill Jones sits down to think out a plan to make more money out of the stage business. He begins to talk pessimistically of the future of the stage business, and certain stockholders, knowing that old Bill is close to the facts than they, offer to sell their shares. With an appearance of reluctance Bill Jones buys the shares.
When he has bought as many shares as he can get at a depressed price, old Bill Jones discovers that business is quickening up. The company enters more stages—why not sell some more stock?
A boom in stage company stock is started—and gradually Bill Jones unloads his. The new lines were not really needed, earnings fall off, wages of drivers and hostlers are cut, investors lose money.
Bill Jones has illustrated the evils of "speculative financiering."

INTERESTING NEWS AND GOSSIP OF THE MARKETS

COTTON GOSSIP

Times-Democrat says:

Wednesday's cotton market exhibited a good deal of nervousness. There was some covering of short contracts and a few spasmodic rallies based on the drouth-affected states of Texas, Oklahoma and Arkansas, and there was an important falling off in the market which insists that, because of the excellence of this year's top-crop, renewed growth and premature frosting will result. To an extent at least, even on those sections of the west where the drouth has been most acute, the copious night rains fell at intervals during the period of drouth, as was the case over a large area in Texas, a top crop is now not generally looked for, and the unusually favorable Sunday, Monday and Tuesday.

The attitude of course, creates contention, since the talent in the main has labored under the belief that the crop of the year to September 1 caused irreparable and very important damage in the west.

The trade situation also gives rise to considerable uneasiness. Not only has cotton ahead of actual requirement, and supply merchants are beginning to show considerable care over the line of business. Bears contend that since there is no scarcity of cotton, and since the unusually large product in record-breaking volume has passed from the mills to the consumer in such quantities during the past two years, spinners need not be alarmed by the prospective delivery of a few new material now that crop estimates are assuming more definite form as picking goes on.

New Orleans—With premium on strict low middling basis 12 cents, New York basis, up to 44 higher than here, a stock of good grade cotton will probably be drawn to New York.

The map shows cloudy with general rainfall in the southern half of Texas, and the entire western half of the belt; heavy rain in Alabama, local in the eastern portion of Mississippi and the Atlantics, with little precipitation elsewhere. Temperatures were normal and below western states, but temperatures below normal in the Atlantics and Mississippi valley. Indications are for clearing northern half and continued rain southern portion. General slowly weather southeastern quarter.—Kerbey.

The weekly comment of the New York cotton exchange left the differences between grades of cotton unchanged. Sales reported on delivery New York contract unchanged.

GRAIN GOSSIP

Chicago Inter Ocean says: Sentiment was more divided last night in wheat, but there were a great many who felt that it was the right side of the market, and a few bears who are outside of it will be wise to cover their contracts. Corn traders said last night that the crop would be larger than the government report was due mainly to the belief that the price discussion all bullishness, since they are in agreement report. The action of the market they said showed that the big holders have no fear of offerings. It was noticeable that many of the small local bulls who sold out because they are afraid that prices will go on and they buy December from those who are selling the current in onts is inclined to be a little bearish. Some of the trade are afraid that the report of the government report, the third largest on record, will be shown to be too small. Others have to be reduced materially before there is any big advance.

Bartlett, Frazier & Co. say: Wheat—Market opened fractionally higher, but rallied sharply on a very safe basis.

Corn—Market was firm and subject to periodical attacks by short sellers, but it seems to us only necessary to buy on declines of 1 cent.

Oats—We believe the long side the safest.

Provisions—Packers have been willing to sell a fair amount of new buying of deferred futures on setbacks.

The government report showing the number of hogs on farms materially less than last year, leads shows that the most making demand upon the short corn crop will be for hogs and not last year's. Cause for that purpose upon the largest corn crop on record. Hogs will have need not only be for corn grown, but the utilization of the big crop of soft corn. Stocks of hogs high prices meats and is therefore a decidedly bullish factor. Cash hogs closed at a new top record.

The cattle and sheep supply is practically as large as last week and the packers' buying power will sell at a price that is much above the parity of corn, hogs and cattle, and grass cattle will be converted into meat on the farms.

Corn marketing of early days as values have no feed at this time does not reduce the utilization demand and the big crop will mean that meal receipts are not being slaughtered. They think that by selling hogs on the Kansas City, Omaha market as feeders and northern Iowa and Minnesota markets taking them into their feed lots, where they will be fed corn and sold on the Chicago market. The real failure in Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri to produce corn supply this year, but the transfer of feeding purposes of their cattle to Iowa and Illinois from the Missouri River section of a bushel surplus corn case.

From these it is the ordinary eastern and southern commercial demand to be met this year.—Kinsley.

Grain belt forecast:

Kansas—Tonight, Missouri—Showers tonight; Friday fair and cooler.

Nebraska—Tonight, Iowa, Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas—Fair tonight and Friday; cooler tonight in east and south portions.

The map shows freezing weather in Montana and 2 degrees below zero tonight in Dakota and Minnesota. There is a lot of corn in both these states that has been damaged by frost.

NEW YORK COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Cotton closed considerable strength in the face of the general bearish sentiment here yesterday and the opening among the majority of operators. It is said the buying was based on continuing bullish crop and market opened steady, the buying coming from strong sources, though after call there was a big decline by the ring crowd and a few commission houses. This was soon checked by brokers closely identified with the large spot interests, whom it is understood are advising purchases on any reaction from present level. Liquidation and realizing by bearish element and believed by many that further advance would bring them generally into the market. The map and private reports showed heavy rains in the west than fell. In some portions it will be beneficial, but in other sections the opinion is expressed that excessive rains would do more harm than good. However, there are several influences hanging over the market just now, such as the situation at Washington and the fear of hedge selling which will naturally restrict those inclined to the bull side from taking any aggressive steps.—Anderson.

Purchasing Agent Forbes said that there was a fair amount of new buying of deferred futures on setbacks.

The government report showing the number of hogs on farms materially less than last year, leads shows that the most making demand upon the short corn crop will be for hogs and not last year's. Cause for that purpose upon the largest corn crop on record. Hogs will have need not only be for corn grown, but the utilization of the big crop of soft corn. Stocks of hogs high prices meats and is therefore a decidedly bullish factor. Cash hogs closed at a new top record.

The cattle and sheep supply is practically as large as last week and the packers' buying power will sell at a price that is much above the parity of corn, hogs and cattle, and grass cattle will be converted into meat on the farms.

Corn marketing of early days as values have no feed at this time does not reduce the utilization demand and the big crop will mean that meal receipts are not being slaughtered. They think that by selling hogs on the Kansas City, Omaha market as feeders and northern Iowa and Minnesota markets taking them into their feed lots, where they will be fed corn and sold on the Chicago market. The real failure in Kansas, Nebraska and Missouri to produce corn supply this year, but the transfer of feeding purposes of their cattle to Iowa and Illinois from the Missouri River section of a bushel surplus corn case.

From these it is the ordinary eastern and southern commercial demand to be met this year.—Kinsley.

Grain belt forecast:

Kansas—Tonight, Missouri—Showers tonight; Friday fair and cooler.

Nebraska—Tonight, Iowa, Dakota, Nebraska and Kansas—Fair tonight and Friday; cooler tonight in east and south portions.

The map shows freezing weather in Montana and 2 degrees below zero tonight in Dakota and Minnesota. There is a lot of corn in both these states that has been damaged by frost.

NEW YORK COTTON LETTER.

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Cotton closed considerable strength in the face of the general bearish sentiment here yesterday and the opening among the majority of operators. It is said the buying was based on continuing bullish crop and market opened steady, the buying coming from strong sources, though after call there was a big decline by the ring crowd and a few commission houses. This was soon checked by brokers closely identified with the large spot interests, whom it is understood are advising purchases on any reaction from present level. Liquidation and realizing by bearish element and believed by many that further advance would bring them generally into the market. The map and private reports showed heavy rains in the west than fell. In some portions it will be beneficial, but in other sections the opinion is expressed that excessive rains would do more harm than good. However, there are several influences hanging over the market just now, such as the situation at Washington and the fear of hedge selling which will naturally restrict those inclined to the bull side from taking any aggressive steps.—Anderson.

NEW YORK STOCK MARKET IRREGULAR ALL SESSION

Union Pacific, Mexican Petroleum and Smelters Off—Canadian Pacific, Sugar Up

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Demand for stocks was less keen at the opening today and while changes were generally unimportant, a definite tendency downward was noticeable among the leading speculative industries. Union Pacific, which rose bountifully yesterday, showed the effect of realizing sales and fell back a point. Steel, Reading, Southern Pacific and Amalgamated were fractionally lower.

Early selling was checked for a time when the demand for Reading, Steel and Sugar became vigorous. Union Pacific rallied, but the recovery brought out fresh realizing, which repressed the common and preferred to 1% below yesterday's close. Petroleum stocks were weak. Copper issues and railroad shares also turned heavy.

Demand for stocks was brought about but dull traders because of inclination to follow yesterday's comprehensive move did not persist and prices worked downward steadily up the rise, preferring to take profits.

Sugar rallied 2 points largely on the action of Union Pacific, heaviness of which was a severe handicap to almost all important speculative movements.

Although the trend was steadily lower, the volume of offerings contracted measurably as the day progressed and losses averaged fractional bounds to only a few cases. Specialties were irregular, but the former stocks suffered in common with the leaders.

GENERAL

Announcement that no action had been taken at the Union Pacific meeting regarding distribution of a cash bonus to stockholders, rumors of which Postum, sent Postum stock down sharply yesterday, was without effect on the price, which rose nearly half a point more before the meeting was adjourned and the market quieted.

Canadian Pacific opened narrowly all the week was suddenly bid up over 2 points. All other western stocks enjoyed renewed strength ostensibly on the weakness of wheat and corn. Business was more active at the end with a brisk absorption of Southern Pacific going on. Closed firm.

CALLAWAY AND JORDAN ON W. & A. BOARD

Governor Appoints Well Known Georgians From the State at Large to Serve

Hiller E. Callaway, of LaGrange, and Gurney Jordan, of Columbus, two of the ablest business men in Georgia, were Wednesday morning appointed by Governor Slaton as the state-at-large members of the special Western and Atlantic railroad commission.

This commission was created by the recent general assembly and is charged with a careful investigation of the affairs of the state road (Western and Atlantic), it will make recommendations to the next general assembly concerning the releasing of the lease, enhancing the length of lease, terms, etc., and will also make a thorough investigation and recommendation relative to the feasibility of extending the road to the sea.

The resolution providing for this very important commission was introduced by Representative Barry Wright, of Floyd; E. D. Cole, of Bartow; H. J. Fulbright, of Decatur; Asa G. Lynn, and A. B. Greene, of Houston. The three senators appointed by President J. Randolph Anderson are W. D. McNeill, of the Twenty-second district; Grady D. Perry, of the Twenty-eighth, and M. C. Tarver, of the Forty-second.

Governor Slaton's selection of Messrs. Callaway and Jordan to represent the state-at-large on the commission will doubtless meet with the thorough approval of Georgians generally. Both are acquainted with railroad affairs, and both are men with extensive business interests. Neither resides in a city which will be affected by the possible extension of the Western and Atlantic.

Governor Slaton announces that within the next few days he will issue a call for the commission to meet and organize.

ROMAN TRADE BRISK AND LIVELY THESE DAYS

Cotton Crop Is Reviving Both Wholesale and Retail Activities

ROME, Ga., Sept. 11.—The heavy cotton crop and the prices which the staple is bringing have caused a revival of trade in all branches. The impetus has been felt in both mercantile and manufacturing circles.

The Rome hosiery mills yesterday secured a permit for the erection of a two-story addition to their plant, which will cost $2,000 and will give employment to about forty additional operators and will increase the capacity of the mill. All of the local factories are running full time and some of them over time.

In retail circles the current week has seen the opening of several new stores, including a jewelry store, shoe store, dry goods establishment, a bakery and a steam laundry. The organization is now being perfected for a 50,000 wholesale dry goods house here.

PARENTS FEAR FOR SON, MISSING SINCE AUGUST

A search that has been going on since the middle of August for young Bernard Whatley, sixteen years old, has proven of no avail and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. J. Whatley, of Lakewood Heights, are fearful for his safety.

The boy left Atlanta on or about August 15, ostensibly to attend a picnic at Warm Springs, Ga., and has not been heard from since. No one has seen him since that day, so far as can be found and no word has come to the grief-stricken parents of their son's whereabouts. If they can find him the father is willing to immediately forward him money to come home.

FRANK'S LAWYERS ARE HUNTING FOR AFFIDAVITS

Solicitor Hugh Dorsey said Thursday that he was receiving letters from various towns in the state informing him that the attorneys of Leo M. Frank are canvassing the towns to secure affidavits showing that jurors who convicted Frank were biased.

Some of them say, stated the solicitor that they were approached for affidavits but that they declined to give them.

Captain Frank Meyers Is Fined for Smoking In Judge Ellis' Court

Judge W. D. Ellis Thursday in open court fined Captain Frank Meyers, a deputy, for smoking during the session of the court.

The caption, with joyful anticipation, had packed his good old pipe full of fine tobacco, and with a flourish, he struck a match and set fire to the weed.

He leaned back to enjoy to the fullest the first inhalation, but before the smoke was expelled the sharp voice of Judge Ellis rang out with the order that Captain Meyers should pay a fine of $2 for daring to smoke in Fulton's superior court.

The captain, crestfallen and meditating on the near necessity for giving up two perfectly good silver dollars, left meekly at the end of the recess.

Later Judge Ellis smilingly declared that he only wanted to teach the captain to respect the dignity of the court and that this time he was going to remit the fine with a warning.

PAY ASSESSMENT FEES FOR TWO COUNTIES

Friends of Claude Mason and Orville Hall "Make Them" Stand for Re-election

Friends of Claude C. Mason, city councilman from the Tenth ward, fearing that he might decline to stand for re-election, Thursday morning paid his assessment for the city primary, and went to him and presented a very urgent demand for him not to withdraw his name.

It was Mr. Mason's original intention not to stand for re-election, as he found that serving in council required more time than he felt he could spare from his business, and on top of this his family were more or less anxious for him to retire.

Mr. Mason's friends, however, were of a decidedly different mind, and they have at last pinned him down to a definite promise that he will be a candidate.

Somewhat the same time proceeding took place Thursday morning with reference to Councilman Orville Hall, of the Third ward, the hard-working and efficient chairman of the street committee of council.

Third ward citizens wanted Mr. Hall to stand for re-election, but he hadn't made up his mind, so they went and paid his assessment fee, and proceeded to inform him that he was now a full-fledged candidate.

HIGH COST OF LIVING TRACED BACK TO FARM

Farmers Are Paid Much Higher for Products Than of Old, Says Government

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—Back to the farm the department of agriculture has traced some of the responsibility for the present high cost of living. In a report issued today the department sets forth that the prices paid the farmers for their products were more, with few exceptions, on September 1 than they received last year at that time. Among the more important articles of food which showed high increases were: Potatoes, 10.3 cents a bushel; butter, 1.7 cents a pound; chickens, 1.1 cents a pound, and eggs, .94 cent a dozen. Oats increased 4.3 cents a bushel; barley, 1.7 cents, and cotton .05 cent a pound. The price of corn increased 2.2 cents a bushel; wheat, 8.7 cents; flax, 24.8 cents; rye, 7.8; buckwheat, 6.6, and hay 25 cent sa ton.

The farmer also received more for the meats he produced, except lamb, on August 15 this year, than he did at the same time last year. Hogs increased 68 cents per 100 pounds; beeves, 53 cents; veals, 91 cents, and sheep 6 cents. The price of lambs decreased 19 cents per 100 weight. Horses increased only 1.1 head, while milch cows increased $8.70 each.

CHAMBER ENDORSES PROPOSED AUTODROME

Committee Is Named to Cooperate With Others in Boosting Race Track

At the request of a committee composed of Major John S. Cohen, Frank Weldon and Wiley West, the directors of the Atlanta chamber of commerce Wednesday afternoon pledged their support to the success of the proposed autodrome, and President Wilmer L. Moore named a committe from the chamber to co-operate with those interested in the venture. The committee is composed of V. H. Kreigshaber, chairman; Mell R. Wilkinson and Ivan E. Allen.

The directors also indorsed the approaching automobile show and gave assurances that the chamber of commerce would stand squarely behind the movement and help make it the largest and most successful exhibition of its kind ever before held in the south.

It was decided also, by unanimous vote, to increase the number of the organization's directors from nine to fifteen in order that more of the interests in the city might be represented in their deliberations. Ex-presidents of the chamber will all be ex-officio members of the board of directors.

Fall Here to Stay Says Von Herrmann

While slightly warmer weather is the forecast for Thursday afternoon and Friday, Forecaster Von Herrmann says the indications point to no more of the heated spells or sweltering days.

According to reports received the local bureau is of the opinion that the fall is here to stay. Freezing temperatures have already been recorded in the northwest, one of the sure signs of cold weather.

AUTO MEN TRYING TO GET ROAD CONVENTION

Wylie West Will Be Delegate With Invitation for American Road Congress

A delegate representing the Atlanta Automobile and Accessory association will go to the third American Road congress, to be held in Detroit from September 29 to October 4, and, backed by such indorsement as can be enlisted among the automobile and accessory manufacturing firms of the United States through the Atlanta association, he will endeavor to secure for Atlanta the 1914 gathering of that national body.

This action was decided Wednesday night at the meeting of the automobile and accessory association upon the motion of Wylie E. West, manager of the Firestone Tire and Rubber company's Atlanta branch, and Mr. West himself will be the delegate. This move followed a suggestion from Fred Houser, secretary of the Atlanta automobile bureau, and is in line with the good roads sentiment which the association backs constantly whenever an opportunity offers.

The Detroit convention will be held under auspices of the American Highway association, the American Automobile association and the Michigan State Good Roads association. The Atlanta chamber of commerce and the Atlanta convention bureau are considering the advisability of sending their own delegates to the congress, and if they do the Atlanta contingent there will be considerable. It is said that 2,500 delegates are expected in Detroit.

At the Atlanta Automobile and Accessory association meeting Wednesday night the members pledged themselves to write at once to the manufactories which they represent and through them to enroll as much assistance as can be secured for Atlanta's fight to win the 1914 convention.

BISHOP CANDLER TO MAKE ADDRESS IN SAVANNAH

He Is Expected to Address Methodists on Their Duties to Their Church

(Special Dispatch to The Journal.)
SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 11.—The Methodists of Savannah have invited Bishop Warren Candler to come to Savannah for the purpose of delivering an address before all the members of that church, and the bishop has accepted. The invitation went through W. F. Smith, the presiding elder, and the date is to be arranged in a few days.

The bishop is wanted here to talk to the Methodists as to their duties to their church and to create a little rally in Methodism.

The Methodists have had a good year in Savannah, and when Bishop Candler presides over the South Georgia conference at Macon this winter he is going to hear good reports from this section.

JUDGE SPEER MAY NOT PRESIDE NEXT MONTH

Reported That Judge Pardee Will Name New Judge for Court Session

SAVANNAH, Ga., Sept. 11.—It is reported from an apparently reliable source that Judge Emory Speer will not hold the regular session of the United States court here next month, Judge Pardee, the senior justice of the circuit court of appeals, it is understood, will name a new judge for this service.

Judge Pardee is understood to have told some of the Georgia attorneys at the meeting of the American Bar association at Montreal last week that he intended to send a judge here to take the place of Judge Speer for this term of the court. Whether he is to have the new judge go over the entire district is not known.

Judge Speer usually comes to Savannah in October and remains through November.

Mrs. W. H. Felton To be Named Head Of New Girls Home

Mrs. W. H. Felton, of Cartersville, the well known newspaper writer and author, will probably be named by Governor Slaton as a member of the board of managers of the Wayward Girls' home, which is to be established as the result of an act passed by the legislature at its recent session.

The bill creating this institution,—which is to be statewide in scope—provided that the board of managers shall be composed of three men and two women, to be appointed by the governor from the state-at-large. Twenty thousand dollars was appropriated with which to erect the first buildings and maintain the home for one year.

Unless sufficient fund is donated for the institution in some other city the law provides that it shall be erected upon a portion of the state's property at Milledgeville. Mrs. Felton, it is understood, desires that the home not be established at Milledgeville, because of the fact that if this is done it will be associated in the public mind with the state prison, reformatory and asylum, which are located there.

It is reported Mrs. Felton has assured the governor that she will undertake to obtain the gift of a site in some other Georgia town or city.

Shriners' Goat to Go Home by Express

(By Associated Press.)
NEW ORLEANS, Sept. 11.—Unless there are evidences of ticks or infectious disease, troubles will come to an end today for the official goat that aided the St. Paul Shriners to initiate Tyros in the Panama canal zone, and which was refused admission by the health authorities when it returned here Tuesday night with lodge members on board the steamship Turrialba.

Dr. R. M. Tuck, local inspector of the federal bureau of animal industry, has received instructions from Dr. A. D. Melvin, director of the bureau at Washington, to confine his immediate official efforts to the goat and unless there appears good reason to do otherwise, to allow it to proceed on its journey. Local Shriners have arranged to send the goat home by express.

What a Child Needs Most

(Agnes Repplier in the Atlantic Monthly.)

It is not, after all, a smattering of chemistry or an acquaintance with the habits of bees which will carry our children through life, but a capacity for doing what they do not want to do. If it be a thing which needs to be done. They will have to do many things they do not want to do later on, if their lives are going to be worth the living, and the sooner they learn to stand to their guns the better for them, and for all those whose welfare will be in their hands.

LITTLE STORIES FOR BEDTIME

THORNTON W. BURGESS.

(Copyright 1913, by J. G. Lloyd.)

All alone, all, all alone!
Not a friendly face around;
Not one wee familiar sound!
It's enough to make one weep
And all over crawl and creep
To be all, all, all alone.

Little Pete found it so. He hadn't known what loneliness was before. Sometimes he had thought that he was lonely in the old briar-patch when he waked up from a nap to find himself alone. But then he knew that he wouldn't have to look very long to find his brother and sisters at play, with Peter Rabbit or little Mrs. Peter keeping watch. Now—well, now here he was out in the great shadowy Green Meadows all alone and without the least idea where his mother or brother or little sisters or even the dear old briar-patch itself were.

You see, he had followed a spot of white down to the Green Meadows, thinking it was his mother's tail twinkling in the dark. After a long, long chase, he had caught up with it only to find that it wasn't Mrs. Peter's tail at all, but a piece of paper which a wandering little Night Breeze was blowing about just for fun. And now Little Pete was lost—so very much lost that he hadn't the least idea in the world which way to turn.

When he had left the old briar-patch he had said to himself that if the white spot should prove not to be Mrs. Peter all he would have to do would be to turn around and run back to the old briar-patch, where he would be safe. But he had chased that piece of paper so far and in so many different directions that now he was all mixed up. There were dark patches and black shadows everywhere he looked, but which was the old briar-patch? Sometimes he thought one was, and then he was sure that another was, and finally he gave up guessing.

Of course, he cried when he found that he was lost. Even grown folks cry with fright sometimes, so what could you expect of a poor, lost, tired little bunny? After awhile the tears stopped and Little Pete felt better. You see, he felt rested in the first place, and in the second place he was such a happy-go-lucky little fellow that he never could feel very badly long at a time. And then, too, he had a stout heart. In this he was like his father, Peter Rabbit, who always believes that nothing is ever so bad that it cannot be worse. He looked up and a thousand friendly little stars twinkled down at him. He had seen some of them through the brambles of the old briar-patch, and now they seemed like old friends, as indeed they were. But what a lot of them! He had no idea the sky was so big, and he wondered what kept the twinkling little stars up there.

He Looked Up, and a Thousand Friendly Little Stars Twinkled Down at Him.

He was still terribly lonely and frightened, but way down deep, deep inside a little feeling of pleasant excitement began to stir and then to grow. He began to feel sure that somehow he would get safely home again. Then what a lot he would have to tell his little brother, Little Jed, and his sisters, Fuzzy and Wuzzy! How big and brave and smart they would think him! Pooh! What was there to be afraid of? He sat up very straight under the little bush where he had caught up with the piece of paper, and then, just as he was thinking how big and brave he must look, he heard two voices right behind him. They were the voices of Reddy Fox and Granny Fox.

Health Restored by Eckman's Alterative

If you are a sufferer from Glandular Tuberculosis, or know of anyone so afflicted, it might be well to investigate this case, where the writer declares after a year of suffering he found permanent relief and full recovery to health by using Eckman's Alterative, a medicine which has been effective in many cases of Tuberculosis:

257 Lanuston St., Phila., Pa.

"Gentlemen: In March, 1909, my doctor pronounced my case Tuberculosis in Glands and a number of operations in a hospital failed to benefit me. In the meantime, a friend of mine advised Eckman's Alterative. The wounds in my neck were still open and in a frightful condition when I started to take it. After using two bottles I found I was improving, having gained weight, could eat and was able to sleep. I continued using it until I was well, which was in November, 1910. Before I took the Alterative I had three hemorrhages; since then—almost two years—I have not had any. On November 11, 1910, I started to work, and since that time I have not lost one day's work through sickness. I highly recommend Eckman's Alterative to anyone who is suffering from Glang trouble."

(Affidavit) JOSEPH S. WHITE.

Eckman's Alterative has been proven by many years' test to be most efficacious in cases of severe Throat and Lung Affections, Bronchitis, Bronchial Asthma, Stubborn Colds and in rebuilding the system. Does not contain narcotics, cocaine or habit-forming drugs. For sale by Jacobs' Pharmacy and other leading druggists. Write the Eckman Laboratory, Philadelphia, Pa., for booklet telling of recoveries and additional evidence.—(Advt.)

Who Will Defy This Work?

If there were need of further evidence of the importance and the feasibility of abating the smoke nuisance, the example of the National Association of Stationary Engineers would abundantly suffice. This great organization, numbering more than twenty thousand members and comprising some three hundred affiliated societies in every part of the Union, is conducting an earnest campaign to eliminate unnecessary smoke. Its chief purpose, of course, is that of economy, for excessive smoke, as every competent engineer well knows, means a waste of fuel, a sacrifice of power and the loss of much money. The Association is convinced that these ills are preventable by proper methods and appliances and that if it arouse general recognition of this fact, it will render invaluable service to the country's industrial and business interests.

The movement thus inaugurated is especially significant in that it shows the faith of a large and representative body of practical engineers in the present day efforts to remedy the smoke evil. These men are not impulsive reformers. They know from intimate experience what can be done and what ought to be done in this important field of activity; and their moral sanction and support stands behind every intelligent effort the country over to end smoke troubles.

This interesting example is worthy the consideration of all Atlantians who as owners of stacks or furnaces are amenable to the city's anti-smoke ordinance. It is gratifying to note that the great majority of manufacturing plants, hotels and office buildings have responded to the suggestions of the smoke inspector and the smoke board and are honestly trying to obey the law; more than that, they are succeeding and are thereby helping themselves as well as the public. It seems, however, that a few other interests are now disposed to ignore the law and utterly disregard the community's welfare. They will do well to reflect that the anti-smoke campaign is no longer an experiment either in Atlanta or in the country at large, that it has the hearty indorsement of scientists and practical engineers, that it is a movement in behalf of human health and life as well as industrial economy and that whoever stubbornly opposes this cause for selfish ends will stand convicted as an enemy to progress and public welfare.

A Lesson In Railway Safety.

The safety of steel coaches for railway travel was strikingly demonstrated yesterday in the wreck of "the Pennsylvania Flyer" near New Madison, Ohio. While running at excessive speed, the train encountered a defective rail some fifty feet from a bridge. What followed is well described in the press report:

"The engine struck one side of the bridge, tore it from its foundation and fell to a creek beneath. Six steel coaches were flung to the other side of the track and turned completely over. Two rear coaches of steel remained upright on the track."

Of the scores of passengers, three were injured perhaps fatally and some thirty others suffered minor hurts. But the noteworthy fact is that the great majority of them escaped with their lives, if not unharmed, in a wreck which, had it befallen a train of wooden cars, would have proved unspeakably disastrous. In the recent New Haven collision, twenty-one persons were killed outright and more than fifty were seriously injured. The difference was due largely to the circumstance that the New Haven coaches were of wood.

This is but one among numerous examples showing the vital necessity of supplanting flimsy wooden cars with cars of steel. The larger and truly efficient railway systems of the United States have adopted this wise policy, realizing that it is to their own as well as the public's interest. Indeed, there are wholesome indications that railroads are fully waking to the supreme importance of safety in travel. The New Haven has been a notorious exception largely for the reason, it is believed, that it was a victim of unscrupulous adventures in finance. But its new administration promises sweeping reform and one of the first steps to that end will be the substitution of modern, adequate equipment, including cars of steel.

Our ex-presidents can now take a post-graduate course in the science of government.

Now Is the Time to Kill The Pernicious Cotton Tax

The Senate majority, while accepting the tariff amendment which places a prohibitive tax on cotton futures, was at least prudent enough to provide that this unjust and dangerous scheme should not become operative until September, 1914. That concession is distinctly reassuring, for it indicates that the Senate has felt the sobering influence of business opinion and furthermore it gives time for a deliberate weighing of the many ills which the imposition of such a tax would entail. It is unthinkable that right-minded, patriotic men will insist upon a measure which means hardship and disaster to every field of America's cotton interests, particularly to the cotton grower, when they duly realize its effects; and this they cannot fail to do when they have given the subject sufficient thought.

It is much to be regretted that the Democratic caucus of the Senate ever lent its approval to the cotton tax. Leading Southern Senators, notably Senators Bacon and Smith, of Georgia, Senator Overman, of North Carolina, Senator Smith, of South Carolina, Senator Fletcher, of Florida, and both Senators from Louisiana, offered earnest and logical protests against the so-called Clarke amendment. They showed its grave menace to the legitimate cotton interests of the entire country in especially to the farmers of the South. Unfortunately, however, their wise counsel did not prevail. Yet, the fact that majority deferred the operation of the tax for a year is evidence that caution and common sense are at length asserting themselves.

Emphatic opposition to the amendment has developed in the House; and if the House Democrats will urge their convictions in the forthcoming committee conference over the tariff bill the amendment can be defeated. It is vor important that this be done now rather than in the months to come. Fear of the proposed tax has already had a depressing effect on the price of cotton. There was a decline of nearly three dollars a bale when the action of the Senate caucus last Friday became known at the New York and New Orleans exchanges. The later announcement that the tax, if finally ratified, would be suspended a year proved stimulating but it is evident that so long as there is a serious probability of this amendment going into effect, cotton interests generally and the farmer especially will suffer. The sooner it is killed, the better for the South and for the country at large.

The tax on cotton sold for future delivery is utterly irrelevant to the purpose of the tariff bill and, indeed, is sharply at variance with the spirit of that great measure. Such a tax would invite and encourage the very sort of evil which tariff reform seeks to prevent. It would force out of the market a large number of small buyers, for the merchant with limited resources could not afford to take the risk of the continually fluctuating prices to which cotton more than any other commodity is subject, if he were deprived of the "hedge" protection by a heavy or prohibitive tax. The result would be the concentration of the power of purchasing cotton in the hands of a few large interests, so that the tyrannies of monopoly, which the tariff bill is designed to check, would be developed anew in their most damaging form.

It should be noted furthermore, that the Clarke amendment, while professing to prevent gambling in futures, is aimed solely at the cotton trade. It takes no account whatsoever of hedging in corn and wheat and other commodities. Why this flagrant discrimination against the South's chief agricultural product and chief item of commerce? Were the proposed amendment in any wise consistent, it would apply to all commodities in which contracts for future delivery are made. But it is palpably insincere; its avowed purpose of reform is clearly a sham; it has no excuse for existence.

Such a scheme cannot long withstand the public condemnation it has aroused. Sooner or later it must be abandoned because of its inherent folly and viciousness. The safest and fairest course the Democrats can pursue is to abandon it now. Let the Democrats of the House stand firmly against the proposed tax and those of the Senate will fall into line. This can be accomplished without difficulty or delay of the tariff bill; and it will save Southern interests from incalculable harm.

A fool may be as happy in his folly as a wise man is lonely in his wisdom.

Many a man has about as much use for his neighbors as he has for his wife's folks.

The bathtub has cut more of a figure in the onward march of civilization than the sword.

Railroads Are Getting Ready.

Omens of an unusually prosperous year continue to multiply.

The railroads of the Southeast are bending all their energies to prepare for the great volume of traffic they foresee. "Shops are being run at full capacity," says an announcement by the Southern, "to put every available car in repair and car-builders are being urged to turn out new equipment as rapidly as possible." The roads also earnestly ask the co-operation of shippers in efforts to expedite the handling of cars, for it is realized that the demands of the season now opening will tax to the utmost the resources of all transportation companies.

This is direct and tangible evidence of the good business ahead. The abundant crops of the South will start the streams of prosperity rolling, wide and deep; and every field of commerce and industry will feel the enriching flow.

As a rule it takes less time to refrain from telling a man just what you think of him than it does to recover from the effects thereof.

If men had to do the housework they would live in tents and use paper dishes.

THE ISLAND OF ENCHANTMENT

DOWN in the Atlantic ocean about a week by steamer from New York, says the Kansas City Star, there is one of the real garden spots of the world. There are no motor cars there with their accompanying cut-out fiends, no noisy street cars, no clattering horses—all is quiet and restful. Flowers and fruit grow in abundance and everywhere one sees the beautiful tropical vegetation. There are no extremes of heat and cold, the temperature varying from 63 to 75 degrees the year around. On the map this place is labeled Madeira, but to the visitors from the liners that call there the little island is a place of wonder and enchantment.

There is an attractive little story in connection with the discovery of Madeira. Robert Machim, a nobleman without means, and Anna d'Arfat, a woman of noble birth, and also very wealthy, were sweethearts. Anna's parents bitterly opposed the union, for they had arranged a match between Anna and a wealthy and handsome young nobleman she detested.

DRIVEN ON THE ISLAND.

Just before the wedding was to take place the two sweethearts, assisted by some friends, left Bristol, their home, in a small vessel, intending to flee to France. But instead of reaching the French coast they were tossed about by a violent storm and after fourteen days came in sight of a beautiful island. The little vessel was beached near where the village of Machico now is, and there Robert made his young bride as comfortable as possible. Before they could get all their belongings and stores to the shore the ship was wrenched from its anchorage and driven away in the storm, leaving several of the crew with the unfortunate sweethearts.

In this most rare climate, surrounded by vegetation of all kinds, the little company began what they believed would be a happy life. But slowly the girl's health failed, and at last she died. Robert was prostrated with grief and in a few days he also died, leaving a request that a church should be founded in this place. The few followers constructed a rude boat and put to sea, being driven by the wind to the Barbary coast, where they were taken prisoners by the Moors and sent to Morocco. They told of the beautiful island they had found, and a fellow slave, Juan Morales, a skillful Spanish seaman, being ransomed by his sovereign, started to Madrid to carry the good news. But he was captured off the coast of Spain by a Portuguese navigator and carried to Lisbon, where the story of the island was told to Prince Henry.

Immediately an expedition was fitted out and the navigator was placed at its head. He landed at Azaderis in 1419 and took the island in the name of Portugal. After performing sacred services at the graves of the sweethearts he returned and later was appointed governor of the island and advanced to the rank of nobility. Madeira has been called "The Pearl in the Portuguese Crown," but as Portugal has no crown now, it probably being in some Parisian pawnshop, the name no longer fits.

DIVED IN SPITE OF A SHARK.

As one approaches the little island he is at once struck by its beauty. The little pink and white and blue houses glisten in the morning sunlight, it seems like a toy city nestling at the foot of a mountain. The sides of the mountain are terraced, and vineyards grow on its steep sides. No sooner has the anchor been lowered then the ship is surrounded with small boys who implore the passengers to throw out coins for them to dive after. And dive for them they did in spite of the fact that the long fin of a shark could be seen extending out of the water as the great fish swam lazily about.

The passengers are taken ashore in small boats. From the landing stage one wanders up a cool, shady street lined with palm trees and shops. Now and then a large sled drawn by bullocks slides clumsily by, this being the only street car system in the island. There is a funicular railroad running to the top of the mountain, but the most enjoyable way to get there is to walk. The narrow winding streets are inclosed by the high walls of villa gardens and through the open gates one catches glimpses of sunny patios filled with flowers of all kinds. Above the walls can be seen the wide galleries of the houses where the owners sit and smile hospitably at you.

We started out to walk and at once a guide attached himself to us. He was a ragged, disreputable looking person who plodded along in a most dignified manner. It took us nearly half an hour to convince him that his services were not desired and that he was only wasting his time with us. We had to buy him a glass of that rare old Madeira wine before we could detach him. Ahead of us plodded an old white haired man, slowly pulling himself over the slippery stones with a long staff. We caught up with him and he began chatting with us in his musical Portuguese. It was only a half hour's walk to the top, he assured us, and for this information we bought him a glass of wine. That is the best way to get into the good graces of the island natives.

On the way up we met a number of the peasants, all of whom could speak a few words of English, but they were more delighted when we greeted them in Portuguese, and they chatted with us in their soft, rippling tongue. We were met at almost every turn in the road by ragged children carrying flowers which they thrust at us. And they followed us in swarms until we had given them a few hundred reis for their really beautiful bouquets. At one place we precipitated a fierce fight by giving the money to the wrong child, and in the excitement we escaped without having to buy more flowers.

A FINE VIEW FROM THE TOP.

From the top of the mountain the view is magnificent. The little town far below clings to the side of the mountain; and further out the great expanse of sea stretches out to the horizon. Up here is a hotel where one can get an excellent meal, either in the dining room or out on the terrace, and also excellent wine.

Returning to the town from the mountain top is the real sport, and one that has made Madeira as famous as its wine. Every visitor remembers a ride in a basket on greased runners which glides over the small, sharp stones in the street at great speed. Two men run along on each side of the basket and when the speed gets too great they hold back with ropes attached to the runners. These ropes are also used to guide the rather unwieldly vehicle around the corners. But for an extra tip the attendants will jump on the runners and let the basket go as fast as it will. We promised our men a few extra cents if they would pass every other basket on the way, and this they tried their best to do.

We careened around corners, charged through herds of goats, scattering the animals in every direction, flashed by children with flowers and narrowly shaved several of the slower baskets. Now and then stops would be made ostensibly to run a greased rag on the runners, but these stops were always in front of a wine shop and further progress was impossible until the sledmen had been refreshed at our expense. This little treat is compulsory. At every wineshop one is besieged by beggars. We met one picturesque old villain in a bright blue overcoat and wearing a straw hat, who took me into his confidence for some reason. He motioned to me mysteriously and when I had joined him he untied a soiled handkerchief in which he had a large number of coins of almost every kind. These he has managed to wheedle out of the generous tourists. After this he smiled winningly and asked me to add to his hoard. I did. What else could I do? He was a clever old reprobate.

When one has reached the bottom he is sorry the journey is over and if he had the time he would go back and come down again. The sleds are carried to the top on the backs of the men who pilot them down. And when one is once more aboard the liner and watches the pretty little island fade away, he signs in genuine regret, and vows that some day he will go back to Madeira and stay there for several months.

THE BABY BOND

By Dr. Frank Crane

(Copyright, 1913, by Frank Crane.)

A Baby Bond is a bond you can buy for $100; you can even buy one for $10 down and the rest on partial payments.

Baby Bonds are as essential to the financial world as real meat babies are to the family.

The money of the United States up till now has been in the hands of a small group of men supposed to be endowed with superior wisdom and divine sagacity. The people could not understand Finance, and would they kindly not ask questions, but deposit their savings in the bank and look pleasant? The government would also kindly mind its own business and not put the soiled hand of politics upon the Holy Ark of Finance.

Like all strange, mysterious and esoteric groups, from the Egyptian hierarchy down to the village Browning club, this, too, was found to be stuffed with sawdust.

There is nothing about High Finance that cannot be made plain if the game is square.

Darkness rather than light is loved by the same kind of people in the U. S. A. as it was in Galilee.

The people were to put their money in banks. The bankers were to invest this money in securities. The people were not competent to judge about securities. The result was that the able middlemen got the apple and the people got the core, if any.

Now comes a new order of things. They are breaking the securities up into small pieces, sizable for small buyers. Bonds used to mean $1,000, more usually $10,000; now they mean $100.

The workingman with $10 savings can buy his security direct.

To make this adventure safe there should be the most exacting government supervision. If government is good for anything it ought to be good for protecting the people against public frauds.

It is not sufficient to "punish" the rascal who advertises bad securities. He must be "prevented" from offering them.

Given reasonable protection by the government, the common people will hasten to buy state, industrial and other securities.

And the common people have more ready cash than the bankers and millionaires.

The small investor, says B. C. Forbes, "is destined to become the backbone of American finance. His is the custom most to be coveted. He will become a bulwark against destructive legislation and all forms of confiscation."

Says George W. Perkins:

"Practical public ownership, that's what I would term it. The movement has only begun. The time is coming when every man with even a few hundred dollars saved will put his surplus over the amount needed for an emergency into standard securities. To my mind, the steady increase in the number of stockholders in the corporations foreshadows genuine public ownership—not of the type in which the entire business and industrial system of the country is to be thrown into the political arena, to the tender mercies of the spoilsmen, but a practical method of distributing the natural prosperity.

"The solution of the problem is to have the whole nation interested in the success of the great, sound industrial and railroad enterprises."

Are we beginning to get a glimpse of what is meant by the Democracy of Wealth?

The Hartford Times: "The trend of modern securities is toward the issue of securities of smaller denominations than formerly."

Moody's Magazine: "The poor market for bonds during the past few years has forced corporations to issue and bond houses to sell high grade securities in size within the small saver's reach."

The Ohio State Journal: "An interesting feature of the awakening demand for investment securities is that $100 bonds are at a substantial premium over the $1,000 pieces."

Buy a Baby Bond and see how it feels to be a "bondholder." It will give you a thrill that are putting by a little of your savings each month!

The Happy-Go-Lucky Golfer

The Right Hon. David Lloyd George is not a golfer because he once blindly holed out in one on a course in southern France—every novice has done such a thing at some time or other—but as a natural philosopher who has dallied with the game Mr. Lloyd George qualifies to give advice about it. In distributing prizes after a tournament in Wales the other day he proclaimed the theory that the poor player got more out of golf than the good player, more exercise, more thrills and more gratification. As a poor player himself, Mr. Lloyd George's views are not to be whistled down the wind. His holing out in one was never repeated on any other course, and there is a suspicion that the polite Frenchman who found the economist's golf ball in the hole on the other side of an olive copse putted it in with his foot to furnish Mr. Lloyd George with a deathless reminiscence. That gentleman's theory of comparative values he thus explained at Chiocbiri:

"The better a man played the less he got out of it both as regards exercise and enjoyment, for the good player got worried over the slightest mistake, whereas the poor player made so many mistakes to worry over them and was bent upon getting all the enjoyment he could out of the game."

The Right Hon. Arthur James Balfour would say that nothing else could be expected from such a barbarian as the chancellor of the exchequer, who was born without the golfing temperament. But is he radically and absolutely wrong? Every good golfer will depose to days when he went out to the links prepared, both physically and mentally, to reduce his score and failed to do so inconsiderately, owing to lamentable mischances that were utterly unaccountable and mysterious. It seemed like implacable destiny and he was helpless, but the mascs rankled in his soul; it spoiled his temper, affected his appetite and drove sleep from his pillow. He counted that day lost, a black letter day, and thought of giving up golf as a game that had no compensations at all for him.

In every club there is a detached group of hurriedly poor players, who shout with vacuous glee when they go round in less than 110. As the British chancellor of the exchequer says, they make too many "mistakes" to worry about their play, but they do enjoy themselves hugely; and what with losing the ball in long grass, or lopping or slicing on most of the drives, or taking many strokes and improper strokes to escape from sand bunkers, they get infinitely more exercise for their legs and back muscles out of the game than any exclusive golfer does. Mr. Lloyd George consolidates himself that he is, and will ever be, in the happy go lucky, irresponsible, fondly foolish and disreputable class of players who always perform badly and are ever blissfully indifferent to Colonel Bogey's score.

It has escaped no casual observer that the painstaking, earnest golfer is an unhappy man. A stroke or two less than his deserts is a greater tragedy to him than the engulfing of thousands of Hindus in a flood or the destruction of cities by earthquake. Famine, war and pestilence are negligible if he is "off his game." The fellow has ceased to be human—a very mournful type indeed. How much more to be envied is the unskilled and irresponsible golfer, who laughs his way over the course, takes his mishaps philosophically as they come, never turns in a score for a cup, eats like a wayfarer, sleeps like an apple cheeked child and never has golf on his mind.—New York Sun.

"Wolff's is the voice of a challenging spirit wonderfully articulate," writes Leonard D. Abbott. "There is something in Wolff's voice that betrays his spiritual Kinship with such singers as Shelley, Whitman, William Morris, Byron, Oscar Wilde, Nietzsche and Swinburne." A reading of Mr. Wolff's verses leads us to the conclusion that, like those great bards, he begins his lines with capitals.

Mr. Abbott quotes a vulpine stanza:

I sing pot and kettle and curse,
Thus only can I give expression
To that which will not brook repression;
I am alive, I have a voice,
And so I sing and sigh and curse—
All life doth sin; and sigh and curse.

Does Mr. Wolff say "coise" or does he pronounce "voice" "vos," as they do in Brooklyn?

PERCY MARSHMALLOW.

BY JACK MANCHESTER.

Filled were those youthful days with the star-dust of the soda-water fountain. The consuming must-thirst of maturity had not engulfed me; Percy Marshmallow was urging me, but I had not succumbed. How well I remember the child songs of my compatriots! It seems that always I have been associated with soft drinking and the mention of it. Sarsaparillnots they used to call my native state. And those songs ringing out into the summer night:

Fifteen men on the dead man's chest,
Yo-ho-ho! and a bottle of unfermented grape-juice!

And, echoing down Grand Boulevard, our childish voices would ring with:

All my days I'll sing the praise
Of brown October chocolate sundaes.

Oh, drinking was pleasant then, and, after playing tennis in the park—for one glass of soda per set—we would repair to a fountain and have five or six glasses—pineapple, chocolate, strawberry—ay, even dark cane, which was a popular flavor in those days. Today they would call it I-should-worry, I have no doubt.

It was gambling, however, that made a hardened soft-drinkard of me. My allowance used to be a dollar a week. In summer, when we were all away at some Wisconsin resort, drinks were 10c. apiece and lemonade was the only tipple I enjoyed. Ten lemonades a week would be my maximum, assuming that I took no boat-rides and squandered no money on girls, who, from Monday to Friday, used to speak to us younger children. So my room-mate, Richard, and I decided to play pool against the older men, and to play for stakes. The first week we cleared $5.50 each; the second $18.50; and after that we always had it easily. That enabled us to buy all the lemonades we wanted, and even to ride to Kellogg's pharmacy, in Oconomowoc, and buy soda. They were great days, those, the first days of onyx fountains. I recall a poem I wrote in 1895:

My heart leaps up when I behold
A soft soda-water fountain;
So was it when my youth began,
So is it now I am a man,
So be it when I shall grow old
And rich and grand,
The Child is father of the Man:
And I could with my days to be Bound each to each by sodas two or three.

A bad poem, yes; but it shows how the carbonic acid had entered by soul.

What Women Dress For

A Kansas City judge, deciding that "there is nothing immoral in the slit skirt," says: "The women of today have only one idea in view—to dress in a manner that appeals to men;" and he adds, "Well, hasn't it always been so?"

The judge may be learned in the law but he knows little about feminine human nature. Woman's least consideration about her clothes is whether they will please a husband or brother or even a lover. Women dress primarily to excite the envy of their own sex. It is true that when Jezebel "painted her face and tired her head and looked out a window" it was to lure a man, and certain women have always at times dressed with tht object. But that is the ulterior motive. The direct purpose, the all-compelling actuate of women's clothes, is to spite other women. They treat as negligible man's opinion of what they wear, well knowing that in his crass ignorance of the dressmaker's art he often thinks women dressed at their best when they have "nothing on at all"—a mere duck skirt and a shirt waist.

If women dressed to please men, Collector Mitchel's inspectors would have much less to do.—New York World.

CHAMBER'S FIRST BULLETIN IS OUT

Industrial and Statistical Bureau of Chamber Gets Out Initial Booklet

Volume No. 1 of the Atlanta Industrial and Commercial Bulletin issued by the industrial and statistical bureau of the chamber of commerce has made its debut throughout the state and has been the topic of most favorable comment among the business, commercial and professional men of the city.

In its introductory paragraphs the bulletin outlines its purpose as that medium through which the activities of the bureau will be briefly made known. The bureau will devote its energies toward the development of industries already located in Atlanta and to securing more such interests.

A brief sketch of the new home of the chamber of commerce is given and the recent "blue sky" law passed at the last session of the legislature is printed in full. The bulletin carries also pictures of the city hall, Atlanta's sky line, Fulton county's new $1,000,000 court house and views of the Georgia School of Technology.

Taken all in all, the bulletin is a most creditable one and speaks volumes of praise for Mr. Leahy, secretary of the bureau, and those who assisted him in getting it up.

The introductory remarks of the little pamphlet follow in part:

"The bureau will devote its energies to the development of industries already located in Atlanta and to securing new and substantial industries to locate in Atlanta.

"To the assembling and publication of statistics regarding Atlanta's industrial and commercial growth.

"To furnish promptly and fully information regarding Atlanta's wonderful climate and natural advantages as a place of residence as well as commercial pursuits.

"To get a complete industrial survey of Atlanta and Fulton county, in order that manufacturing and other enterprises seeking locations may be given full information regarding sites, transportation facilities, freight rates, etc.

"Many and varied inquiries are now coming in to the bureau, all of which are receiving prompt, careful and thorough attention.

"Industrial bureaus operating in other cities, as adjuncts to chambers of commerce, boards of trade, commercial clubs, etc., have proven of inestimable value in promoting growth and progress of such cities.

"The location of new plants in Atlanta means among the many benefits to be derived:

"Increase in population.

"Increase in Atlanta's payroll.

"Increase in the output of manufactured products.

"Increase of Atlanta's trade, wholesale and retail.

"Increase in progress and prosperity.

"The Atlanta chamber of commerce enjoys a membership of 1,600 business men. It is proposed, through this publication, to acquaint them with the working methods used by the chamber and its industrial bureau, for it is due to the members of the organization that they should have this information.

"In the circular letter sent out to the membership on August 11, announcing the establishment of the industrial and statistical bureau, members were asked for suggestions that might be helpful in the successful operation of the bureau. The response to the industrial and statistical bureau is pleased to state that quite a large number of valuable suggestions have been received, all of which will have careful consideration with the progress of the work.

"Co-operation of the members is urged, as they can materially help this number of committee to fulfill its mission to make Atlanta the city of greater and wonderful opportunities and advantages, greater and better all the time."

ATLANTA DETECTIVES CATCH OFFENDER QUICK

Theft of Raincoats Reported and Robbers Nabbed Soon After Crime Committed

Half an hour after the manager of the Chapman-McNair company's department store at 135 Edgewood avenue telephoned to the police Thursday morning and reported a robbery of raincoats on Wednesday without a clew, he was astonished to receive a message from the city detectives to come to headquarters and identify the coats and see the men who got them. The police had the five coats waiting for him, and had two negroes, George Boyd and Will Davis, under arrest for the crime.

According to the manager, the loss of the coats was not discovered until Thursday morning, when a check of the goods in that department revealed a shortage of $25 worth of goods. No one in the store could help the police, even by a surmise as to how they had been taken.

It developed, however, that the police already had arrested one of the negroes and recovered four of the coats. George Boyd had been arrested on suspicion Thursday afternoon, after a pawnbroker telephoned to teh police that the negro was trying to pawn four coats and could not explain how they came into his possession. While the manager of the store was on his way to headquarters Thursday morning to identify those four coats, Will Davis was arrested with the fifth coat under similar circumstances.

Then it was that a clerk in the store remembered two negroes entering Wednesday afternoon. One of them appeared to be dull witted, and haggled with him over some small purchase, while the other wandered across the store. It is assumed the coats were taken then.

As Easy To Keep The Hair From Turning Gray As To Keep The Scalp Clean

AND there is no reason in the world why you should hesitate to restore to your hair its lost color and vitality, if it is fading and turning gray, any more than that you should foolishly refuse to use a remedy for dandruff or any other scalp trouble.

Sickness, nervousness, impoverished blood or deficient scalp nutrition may cause premature grayness; sometimes it is hereditted. Whatever the cause, gray hair adds from 10 to 20 years to the age, and a young woman, even at 30, with very gray hair is passed as old.

Robinsaire Hair Dye is a pure tonic restorative to bring back to faded or gray hair its own original color and lost beauty. It is not to bleach or change the original color, and should not be confused with such. It is prepared in our own laboratory from a formula we know to be beneficial, and we guarantee it to be non-injurious. It keeps the hair soft, lustrous and, in its beautiful, natural color, and as it does not stain the scalp cannot be detected. OFFICERS QUARREL OVER REWARD FOR DIAMONDS

MACON, Ga., Sept. 11.—W. W. Burney, marshal of Boston, Ga., and Detective C. L. Morris, of the local police department, are now in a dispute over a $100 reward recently paid the local detective for the recovery of diamond rings belonging to Mrs. Ike Bashinski, of Macon, valued at nearly $1,000.

The marshal at Boston discovered the rings in the possession of a negro wench an living at Boston, and upon examination he found inscriptions in the rings that proved them to be the property of Mrs. Bashinski. He promptly seized the jewelry without protest from the negress, and then communicated with Police Chief W. R. Chapman, of Macon. The police chief set the detective to work to recover the jewelry and last week he secured the rings, five in number, and gave them back to Mrs. Bashinski. She then rewarded him with a $100 check.

Marshal Adams that he is entitled to all the reward, but is willing to accept half of it if the Macon officer will share with him.

SUPREME COURT JUDGE IN DECISION STRIPS SULZER OF ALL EXECUTIVE POWER

peachment, therefore, cannot be participated in by the governor or senate, and, therefore, does not constitute a legislative subject."

Taking up the claim that even if properly impeached, disability does not fall upon the governor, Judge Hasbrouck discusses the contention that the law still presumes the innocence of the impeached.

"There is a wide difference between the state and the national constitutions on the result of the impeachment of the governor or president. The president, by impeachment, is not suspended in or ousted of his functions, and, therefore, the rule of the presumption of innocence remains undisturbed. Under our constitution, if our interpretation of it be correct, this fundamental rule in the criminal law is invalid."

The question, he points out, is section six of article four of the state constitution that in cases of the impeachment of the governor or his removal from office by death, inability," etc., the powers shall devolve upon the lieutenant governor, "until the disability shall cease."

Judge Hasbrouck says:

"The presumption of innocence may still be claimed by the accused, but he is quite as effectually shorn of his power by the provision, which needs no interpretation, and which is perfectly clear, as if a judgment of eviction had been passed against him, unless he is acquitted. For what is disability following impeachment under this section but suspension, and what is suspension but removal from office? It seems an unjustifiable and unreasonable provision. For delay in the prosecution to the end of the term, works the same result in the main that judgment of removal would, and delays in such proceedings have been known to be long. The impeachment proceedings against Warren Hastings lasted thirteen years.

"However full of or wanting in reason, the province of the court is only to say what the law is."

charging him with conspiracy in connection with his escape from the asylum, and it was upon this charge that he was to be arraigned today in police court.

New York was prepared to ask that he be remanded pending the receipt of a requisition warrant.

The Thaw lawyers yesterday took preliminary steps to swear out a writ of habeas corpus in the prisoner's behalf.

Jerome was indignant at the action of the Canadian authorities who put Thaw over the border yesterday.

"We had no inkling of it," said Jerome. "To say the least, it was a high-handed piece of work. It was neither fair to Thaw, a lunatic, nor to the state of New York. Moreover, it upsets the principles of justice based on the habeas corpus act, and I do not doubt that it will result in more or less of a scandal in Canada."

Deputy Attorney General Kennedy, of New York, was more emphatic.

"It was contemptible and cowardly," he said. "If those who put Thaw across the line thought that they were giving him an even break in setting him down with no American officers in sight, they failed to look at the other side of the case. Here was Thaw, a lunatic, turned loose with only the clothes on his back, short of funds, with no means of transportation save the automobile he commandeered from a newspaper man.

"Thaw is not a sane man. That has been proven time and time again. This made it more pitiable. It was a terrible thing."

Thaw retired before midnight, and far into the night the lights of the automobile of Deputy Sheriff Burley H. Kelsea, insisted that other guards, too, sit near the door. Two armed deputies dosed in rocking chairs outside the room, the door was left ajar and a light was kept burning in the hall all night.

Thaw was fearful of what he called strong-arm work. After his experience at Coaticook yesterday nothing would surprise him. Jerome's presence filled him with terror. The welcome taste of liberty yesterday, with its incident thrills and responsibilities, left him trusting entirely to counsel and making few suggestions.

Thaw himself does not know, except in one case, the identity of the three men who caused him to be set down over the line at Norton Mills. The man he does know is Agent Parkinson, chief of the dominion secret service, and it was at Parkinson's head Thaw hurled the heavy glass tumbler.

The hotel corridors were held the appearance of a convention time this forenoon. The Monadnock house lobby, headquarters for the pro-Thaw and anti-Thaw forces, were crowded.

Thaw's arraignment in court was delayed, then counsel agreed to a postponement until 4 o'clock this afternoon, when it was expected the case would go over until Friday.

Thaw, followed to a barber shop by the usual crowd, seemed in gay humor and talked laughingly of yesterday's experiences.

EIGHTEEN-YEAR-OLD BOY IS HANGED FOR MURDER

Killed His School Teacher Last February and Pays Death Penalty on Gibbet

FORT SMITH, Ark., Sept. 11.—Omer Davis, an eighteen-year-old country boy, was hanged at Fayetteville, Ark., today for the murder of Miss Nellie Moneyhun, twenty-six, his school teacher, near Springdale, February 2, last.

Davis assisted the sheriff in placing the noose around his neck, and before the black cap was adjusted said to the spectators of the execution: "I want all of you to meet me in heaven."

Against the wishes of her husband and many of her friends, Mrs. Davis, carrying an infant walked many miles through northwest Arkansas, getting signatures to a petition, asking the governor for commutation of Davis' sentence to life imprisonment. After getting a considerable number of names, Mrs. Davis lost the petition one night. It was stolen from her.

ILLINOIS CENTRAL'S REPORT SHOWS GAIN

Increase of Nearly 100 Per Cent Since 1902 in Net Income Is Shown

An increase of nearly 100 per cent over 1912 in net income is shown by the sixty-third annual report of the Illinois Central Railroad company for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1913. A copy of the report has been received by C. G. Haines, general agent of the road in Atlanta. The figures as to the income are shown as follows: For 1912, $2,466,418; for 1913, $4,873,113; increase, $3,108,685.

A summary of the report makes comment upon the fact that this increase was recorded notwithstanding the hardships caused by the Ohio floods, which stopped traffic for nine days and resulted in not only the loss of considerable revenue, but also a large expenditure later in restoring portions of the road destroyed by the flood.

The report shows further that $10,119,158 was expended for additions and betterments, $6,966,530 of that amount being for large locomotives, additional freight cars, and additional steel passenger cars.

Under the caption "physical changes," the report shows the principal betterments made in the property of the company. Among the most important of these are the starting of a new passenger station in Memphis; the elevation of tracks in Memphis; the installation of a new modern steel plant at Nonconnah, Tenn.; raising grades between Mounds and Cairo Junction, Ill., and the completion of the second main track between Ponchatoula and Orleans Junction, La. An interesting statement in the report is that the number of stockholders on June 30, 1913, was 10,545, as compared with 9,987 last year.

Mr. E. F. May Dead

What Anne Rittenhouse Says

PARIS, Sept. 11.—That new loose bodice is a most interesting development. It is in keeping with the large waist and the inflated line below the hips. It is rather a wise act on the part of the dressmakers to invent it for us. It is going against tradition, for in other times when one wore huge panniers or ruffles between the knees and waist, there was the tiny bodice atop. Today our shoulders and backs are as much draped as our hips.

The many ways by which the dressmakers accomplish this makes an interesting study. Worth has one way of doing it, Paquin another, Beer still another, and so it goes. Callot shows some narrow shouldered blouses, and Poiret shows one tight 1830 affair of black velvet, with a round decolletage edged with a three-inch ruffle of white tulle. The skirt that goes with this bodice is a narrow one of white satin with four or five ruffles of white tulle below the hips.

But a narrow shouldered bodice is the exception. The new kind admirably suits the American figure and might have been designed especially for our country. It gives the appearance of the figure beneath being athletic and supple and broad-shouldered.

In some of the bodices the sleeves are so large and so much a part of the movement of the fabric over the shoulders and back that to call them sleeves seems wrong. They are merely pieces of the cloth brought out over the arm and then fitted in to the wrist.

This is not a movement of slight importance; it is a vital one in modern clothes. It means that most of the shirtwaists that we have, or the blouses which are part of our frocks, may have to be altered, but the alteration should be done with a good spirit because these blouses are essentially good looking. They are admirably suited to the kind of life the American woman leads.

Never Were Bodices So Broad.

It always seems that there must be a good deal of collusion among the great dressmakers because there is such a uniformity at their semi-annual openings, and this is especially true this week, when each house presents the loose bodice, the huge, shapeless sleeve, the ballet skirt, and the coat of moderate length.

The difference between the houses lies more in the manipulation of drapery, the choice of colors, the use of fanciful trimming, and in the trains, some long and square, some only a pointed tail.

This is exceedingly helpful to the American woman who must wear the clothes, for she is not distressed in her choice of novelties, but it is not especially good for the dressmakers who are here in search of hundreds of differentiated gowns.

This is a large question and one which is too interesting and absorbing to go into here, with limited space, but the gist of the situation is that the American buyers try only for novelty, the magic word by which they hope to sell new gowns in America; and while the French women give them novelty because they demand it, at the same time it seems odd that so many great houses all present the same idea.

This is emphasized by the universality of the broad bodice. It is everywhere. It drops from the shoulder like a raglan coat; it is cut after the manner of a Russian cossack blouse; it is made in the shape of a Bulgarian waist; it has many seams or is almost seamless; it has stitching and shaped gussets and a huge waistline; but whatever its modifications, there it is on the Rue de la Paix, the Place Vendome, the Avenue de l'Opera, the Rue Taitbout and the Avenue d'Antin.

The Transparent Bodice.

The apology for a bodice which the dressmakers show in their evening gowns and also in the afternoon frock is quite transparent. Street suits for early autumn are made of velvet, velour de laine and other thick, soft fabrics; but blouses made for coat suits, frocks made for housewear, and all evening gowns are without lining. This is not strictly true, for many of them have a slight boned girdle of soft taffeta which holds up the material, but even this is not considered necessary.

Every evening gown shown this week is of tulle above the waist-line, used double or single and often brilliantly ornamented with colored crystals, but the first thought of every observer concerns the kind of corsets the manikin must wear.

There is evidently no restriction above the waist-line in any of the new gowns. There is no girdle or brassiere. Seemingly, the only opaque tine between the fabric and the skin above the waist is a band of flesh pink or old satin.

THE EVENING STORY

(Copyright, 1913, by W. Werner.)

Quits

Juliet Kimball left her friend, Minerva Crooker, at the Crooker gate and staggered on toward her own. She was laden with parcels and was so weary her very soul ached, yet she had only been to a bargain sale. However, it was the first bargain sale she had ever attended and she was going home in a state of dishevelment an exhilaration.

She was counting on at least an hour wi her treasures before Orin came home for his supper. But when she went 'round to the kitchen she found Orin smoking a stub of a very strong-smelling cigar.

"Well!" exclaimed Juliet. She felt as if somebody had poured cold water down her back. "Ain't you home kinda early, Orin?"

"Oh, I don't know," Orin replied coolly. He eyed her armful of parcels. "Where'd you get them. I know where you've been. You've been down to the People's store. I see it was blanketed with signs. If you've been such a fool as to go and spend my money on that stuff I shall be madder'n blazes."

"I didn't spend one cent of your money," retorted Juliet. "I used my egg money."

"What! All that.' Orin's face was one spasm of surprise and displeasure.

"I DIDN'T SPEND ONE CENT OF YOUR MONEY," RETORTED JULIET.

"Why, there must have been $3 any way. I've been keeping track of the egg money myself, lately."

"There was exactly $3 and I spent every cent of it," Juliet said defiantly.

"Great Scott!" Orin's voice mounted. "And you spent $3 on a bargain sale?"

"I did." But her voice trembled. Her voice indeed seemed to have caved in with the rest of her.

"Juliet Kimball," said Orin, "you're a fool. You ain't to be trusted with money. A woman of your age throwing away good coin on gew-gaws, trash that ain't worth house room. You've let yourself be led away by Dan Crooker's wife. That shows you ain't got any mind of your own. I don't know what you've bought and I don't care. Wicked waste makes woeful want,' and I hope you'll regret this day's doings. I'm a hard-working, sober, industrious man, Juliet, and I take care of my money, but I'll never get ahead as long as you do this way. I declare, I'm discouraged. If I'd gone and spent $3 on fol-de-rol you'd never have got over it. I'll tell you right now, Juliet, I don't like your conduct. I'm madder'n time about it."

He walked out and slammed the door in a way that threatened to bring the roof down about Juliet's ears. She went into her bed room and dumped her parcels down upon the white counterpane. Her eyes were full of tears, her throat full of sobs. She knelt down beside the bed, covered her face with her hands and cried like a child. All her joy in her innocent purchases had fled. The embroidery she had fought to get with the intention of making a needle case out of it, the lace she had planned to edge a pair of curtains with, the insertion that she had countless uses for, the odds and ends of material which had unfolded such irresistible possibilities, all had lost their charm. She felt as if she never cared to see them again.

Having cried herself out, Juliet rose, gathered up her parcels and dropped them into a bureau drawer, which she locked fast. As she was taking off her hat Orin's voice sounded harshly outside the door: "Well, am I going to have any supper tonight or not?"

Juliet, greatly flurried, tied on a clean apron and ran to minister to the creature needs of her lord and master.

After a silent meal Orin started downtown and left Juliet to cry into the dishwater. Minerva Crooker came over just as she finished.

"Got quieted down yet?" she inquired, genially. Then, with a look of astonishment, "Ain I live! You've been crying! You don't regret buying them things this afternoon, do you? Or has Orin"— She paused, warned by Juliet's flush, yet reading the symptoms aright. "Never mind. I guess I was too curious," she went on. "I didn't let Dan know a word about it. And, anyway, he isn't a bit snoopy. I spent $9.43, but I got the worth of my money. And I enjoyed it, too. There's just one thing, though. If I ever get my eye on that Crimmins woman again I'll fix her. She grabbed some stuff I wanted right out of my hand and stepped on my sore tore besides. Women act like a lot of rampagin' hyenas at a bargain sale—that is, women of her sort. I hope you and I have got more manners, Juliet."

"I guess I ought to," pretty numerous," Juliet sighed. "I had a gorgeous time, Minerva, but I'm done with bargain sales forever. And don't you ever try to coax me to go to one again."

Minerva laughed merrily. "Oh pshaw, Juliet! You'll go the very next time I ask you. Why, bargain sales are to a man what politics is to a man. And just let me tell you the men are ten times worse'n women when it comes to an auction. I've seen them bid off— That makes me think. Where do you suppose my man and yours was all the afternoon? Sitting on the fence over at Johnson's watching 'em auction off a parcel of mustangs. Johnson's just got a new carload of the critters and today he's been trying to sell 'em off to men that don't know any better than to buy 'em. When I got home I found Dan sitting on the back steps smoking, trying to cover up the horsey smell. Dan's no hand to smoke, so I inquired round and found what he'd been up to! Talk about our bargain sale! It can't hold a candle to a horse auction. I expect they've gone right back there.

THE BRONCHO BUSTER CAME TO THE RESCUE.

Dan sneaked away without half eating his supper. And it ain't lodge night."

"Orin went downtown," said Juliet.

"Maybe so. I ain't saying he didn't." Yet Minerva looked dubious. "Go bring what you bought, Juliet, and let's look it over. I've a notion that I got some insertion that's just a match for your embroidery."

Juliet got out her purchases, and under Minerva's rallying gayety her enthusiasm renewed itself to such an extent that she spent a happy hour revelling in her treasures.

"I don't think that 59 cents was too much to pay for that lace, do you, Minerva?" she pleaded.

"It wasn't no price at all," declared Minerva. Her expression changed suddenly. "For the love of goodness, what's going on out in the street? Do you hear the racket? I bet they're bringing one of them wild mustangs past here. Come on, Juliet, let's look."

There indeed was a great noise, and it sounded alarming. The occasion for such unprecedented commotion in that quiet locality was a wild mustang, and a very wild one, too. He snorted, and sunfished. He was of the pinto variety and naked, save for a strong rope tied securely about his lean neck. A man was at each end of the rope, tugging and straining with all his might. A broncho-buster rode behind urging on the pinto with the characteristic herder's cry: "Whoop-whoop-ha-ee!" A trail of fascinated boys brought up the rear.

Minerva grasped Juliet's arm. "My lord! Do you see who's got that critter. It's our men!"

"It can't be!" faltered Juliet.

At that instant the pinto took a fancy to climb one of the shade trees, and the broncho-buster came to the rescue promptly by lassoing him. This reduced him to harmlessness and gave the two men a breathing spell.

Minerva, dragging Juliet after her, marched into the midst of the fray.

"What you doing with that critter here, Dan Crooker?" she demanded.

Dan grinned. "That's Orin's bird," he said. "I'm just helping bring him home. Do you think $140 too much to pay for him?"

It was Juliet who spoke. Her eyes were like blue steel. "A hundred and forty cents would be too much to pay for him," she said. "And if it was my egg money I wouldn't give above fifty. Orin Kimball, you're the biggest fool I ever see. You ain't no more fit to handle money than an infant. You ought to have a guardian appointed to look after you. If it wasn't for one thing I'd raise the dickens about your fetching that critter home. But I think that by the time you get it tamed you'll have learned a thing or two about horse auctions you won't forget in a hurry."

She felt Minerva squeeze her arm, she felt Dan stare at her, she met Orin's eyes. Over his face had come a curious look, half sheepish, half sullen, yet wholly understanding. For the first time in her married life she had flung down the gage. And Orin dare not take it up.

THIS LADY OBEYED HUSBAND

In Matter Where Her Happiness Was at Stake, and Is Mighty Glad She Did

SHELDON, S. C.—In advices from this town. Mrs. J. E. Marvin writes as follows: "For more than three years, I suffered with womanly troubles, and none of the different treatments I underwent, seemed to do me any good.

I also had pains in my left side, so bad, at times, I could hardly get up.

My husband told me to buy some Cardui, the woman's tonic, and I did. I started taking it, and soon began to feel better. I took only a few bottles, and now I am perfectly well, and able to do anything.

Cardui has done me a world of good It certainly cured me of the trouble I had and I am getting along nicely.

I have recommended the remedy to other sufferers, and they have all been benefited by it.

I will always keep Cardui in my home for use in time of need."

Cardui is a purely vegetable remedy containing no harmful mineral products. Its ingredients act in a helping, building way, on the womanly constitution. It has been relieving womanly troubles for over half a century, during which time, it has proven of more than ordinary value as a tonic for weak women.

You can rely on Cardui. It will do for you, what it has done for thousands of others. It will help you. Begin to take Cardui today.

Titles for Poor Men

LONDON.—A story time ago there was a mine explosion near Glasgow. Twenty-six men were in the mine at the time and only three escaped. Those three would have also perished had not a fireman named Charles Riley run to way of them. He then groped into the workings to warn the others. He was not again seen alive.

Here is a story best told thus curtly. It shines rough in its own plain epic. Twice the passion to live must have sweated the sent of Charles Riley, once when he saw the first smoke, again when he had warned his scarce mates and could have escaped as they did. But he went on, into flames that "raged like a furnace," and when they found the shell of him one of the search party cried: "That man's wife ought to receive the Victoria Cross."

After Long Suffering

Women Are Constantly Being Restored to Health by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

"Worth mountains of gold," says one woman. Another says, "I would not give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for all the other medicines for women in the world" Still another writes, "I should like to have the merits of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound thrown on the sky with a searchlight so that all suffering women could read and be convinced that there is a remedy for their ills."

We could fill a newspaper ten times the size of this with such quotations taken from the letters we have received from grateful women whose health has been restored and suffering banished by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Why has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound accomplished such a universal success? Why has it lived and thrived and kept on doing its glorious work among the sick women of the world for more than 30 years?

Simply and surely because of its sterling worth. The reason no other medicine has ever approached its success is plainly and simply because there is no other medicine so good for women's ills.

Here are two letters that just came to the writer's desk—only two of thousands, but both tell a comforting story to every suffering woman who will read them—and be guided by them.

FROM MRS. D. H. BROWN.

Iola, Kansas.—"During the Change of Life I was sick for two years. Before I took your medicine I could not bear the weight of my clothes and was bloated very badly. I doctored with three doctors but they did me no good. They said nature must have its way. My sister advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I purchased a bottle. Before it was gone the bloating left me and I was not so sore. I continued taking it until I had taken 12 bottles. Now I am stronger than I have been for years and can do all my work, even the washing. Your medicine is worth its weight in gold. I cannot praise it enough. If more women would take your medicine there would be more healthy women. You may use this letter for the good of others."—Mrs. D. H. Brown, 809 North Walnut Street, Iola, Kan.

MRS. WILLIAMS SAYS:

Elkhart, Ind.—"I suffered for 14 years from organic inflammation, female weakness, pain and irregularities. The pains in my sides were increased by walking or standing on my feet and I had such awful bearing down feelings, was depressed in spirits and became thin and pale with dull, heavy eyes. I had six doctors from whom I received only temporary relief. I decided to give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial and also the Sanitive Wash. I have now used the remedies for four months and cannot express my thanks for what they have done for me.—Mrs. Sadie Williams, 455 James Street, Elkhart, Indiana.

Wallop Smith's Team Got Away in Big Benefit Game Before Big Crowd

Wallop Smith's team got away with the club headed by Bisland in the exhibition benefit game at Ponce de Leon on Wednesday. The count was 10 to 6 and consistent hitting by many of the old timers who were on Smith's team made the victory possible.

Joe Agler was the sensation of the day. He worked in the box for the Bisland club and besides pitching grand ball he got away with five hits in five times up, ran from the pitcher's box back to the plate to grab down four balls and often covered first base. He was just about most everywhere.

Ginger Winters rapped out a long home run but had to stop on second base for a rest and it took a long single and home run to finally get him over the pan.

Harry Chapman gave up his job as catcher to do the umpiring, but this he soon regretted. He was panned for fair, none of the decisions appearing to suit his fellow players. Fortunately it was all in fun or there would have been a few men chased.

The crowd which watched the game numbered something like 1,500 and the players realized $70 from the battle.

The work of the pitchers in the outcome was spectacular. Until seeing some of them chasing fly balls you would never know how hard it is to get out of the way of a ball coming almost directly at you.

SEMI-FINALS REACHED IN CHAMPIONSHIP

Tichenor Showing Good Golf, Perry Adair Playing in Champ Form

So close are the matches in the play for the club golf championship at East Lake that many of the matches are forced to go extra holes before being decided. And those which do not go the extra holes are rarely decided before the home green has been reached.

In the first flight matches three good matches were turned out on Wednesday when Tichenor, Rainwater and Blanton won over Corwin, Arnold and Block. Tichenor right now is playing the golf of his career and bids fair to make the whole outfit hustle just a bit to win the club championship. He has practiced overtime for this very tournament and his score is showing the result. The Block-Blanton match of Wednesday was also a good one.

In the third flight the match between Scott Hudson and H. M. Ashe went to the nineteenth hole, where Ashe won Ashe led to the eighteenth hole where Hudson halved the match and the nineteenth was necessary. The Trippe-Howell match also went to the nineteenth hole before Howell managed to get over the necessary win.

The players are fast approaching the finals, it being necessary that all matches up to the finals be reached by Friday night, thus giving over Saturday to the finals.

The scores:

FIRST FLIGHT.

(First Round.)

L. L. Graves defeated J. S. Derr, 5 up and 4 to play.

C. V. Rainwater defeated Leroy Arnold 2 up and 1 to play.

(Second Round.)

Perry Adair defeated S. C. Williams, 7 up and 6 to play.

G. N. Hamell defeated R. E. Trippe at the nineteenth hole.

Frank Adair defeated C. B. Mott, 6 up and 5 to play.

YOUNGSTERS SHOW WELL IN TOURNAMENT

Veterans Are Rapidly Eliminating Young Stars Though After Fight

Play in the Cotton States Tennis tourney reached the semi-finals in the men's Singles Wednesday. Some excellent tennis was witnessed in all the matches that were played off. A hard wind kept the scores of the stars down, but Grant with their smashes to a great extent.

The hardest fought match in the singles was the one between E. W. Mansfield and carl Ramspeck, which was won by the former in straight sets, 6-1, 8-6. This match developed the best this the two players contained, and as the scores indicate, was very close at all times. Ramspeck's smashes and Mansfield's place shots were sensational.

The match between D. H. Starr and Ed Carter, Jr., was another one that was interesting. Starr is a young player yet in the high school and made Carter go the limit to beat, although the scores were 6-0, 6-1 in favor of Carter, they do not indicate the class of tennis that was played. Nearly every game went to deuce and Starr's place shots were excellent. Starr contained one thing that every young tennis player would well copy, and that is confidence. He was not nervous at all, and appeared confident from the start. Starr won the High school's tennis tourney that was played off last spring, and it is a safe prediction that he will be one of the coming tennis stars of the near future.

Carleton Smith went forward two more matches toward the finals, when he defeated Tupper in the second round and Czintz in the third. Czintz is another coming star and his style of play is very interesting, especially his service. Czintz was the victor of the Tech High school tennis tournament, which was held last spring.

The match between B. M. Grant and Carl Ramspeck was another feature one of the afternoon. Both of the contestants are old hands at, the game and had to exert themselves to the limit to decide the winner, which went to B. M. Grant in three sets, 6-4, 8-10, 6-4.

One set was finished in the doubles match, between Mansfield and Smith and Grant and Carter, which went to the former team by the score of 8-6. The winner of this match will, in all probabilities, win the tournament in the doubles, and some good results will be witnessed tomorrow, when these two tie up.

Lee Allen Brooks will arrive in the city Friday night to defend his title, which he won last year. Bartlett, his partner in the doubles, will also accompany him, where they will meet the doubles winner of the present tourney.

Tennis fans will be accorded some good tennis tomorrow, as the semi-finals will be played off. Play starts promptly at 2 o'clock.

MEN'S SINGLES.

(Second Round.)

E. S. Mansfield defeated E. W. Ramspeck, 6-1, 8-6.

Vernon McMillan defeated R. B. Scott, 6-4, 6-1.

E. D. Czintz defeated Frank Owens, 6-2, 6-4.

Carleton Smith defeated M. O. Tupper, 6-1, 6-2.

(Third Round.)

E. V. Carter, Jr., defeated D. H. Starr, 6-0, 6-1.

B. M. Grant defeated C. M. Ramspeck, 6-4, 8-10, 6-4.

Carelton Smith defeated E. D. Czintz, 6-1, 6-2.

MEN'S DOUBLES.

(Second Round.)

Whiteside and Smith defeated Albert and Reynolds by default.

(Third Round.)

Rmaspeck and Ramspeck defeated Douglas and Smith, 6-4, 6-0.

CONSOLATION SINGLES.

(Second Round.)

J. K. Orr, Jr., defeated C. O. Rawson, 6-0, 6-0.

Riders Show Record Time

Motordrome Events Wednesday Night Proved to Be Very Speedy

This was a farewell performance for the motorists, as they will go to Chattanooga to open Prince's new drome there.

When the riders return from Chattanooga about Sunday week there will be some new faces. Men who have finished the season at Cleveland and Salt Lake City.

REAL FOOTBALL WEATHER HELPED JACKET PLAYERS

Wednesday afternoon was a busy one for the Yellowjacket football candidates. There was something doing every minute of the time and Coach Alexander is determined to turn the men over to Coach Heisman in the best of condition and to keep them that way all season long. Falling on the ball, running around the track and "setting up" exercises formed the main part of the afternoon's conditioning work. After this leap frog and going down the field under punts was also played. The men were allowed to tackle yesterday and there seems that there will be very little doubt as to the Yellowjackets having a defensive team as good as that of last year with about double the weight.

There were about forty men out and of this crew only one was a last year recruit and that was Means. He looks extra big this season and should be a tower of strength in the line and on the defensive as well. There were a great number of big men out and some of them were the new stars from Tennessee. Johnson and Cushman were there on the job and they have got the earmarks of big league players. Just where Coach Heisman will play these men has not yet been decided upon, but they have both played in the line and in the backfield. Another good man who got in town yesterday and will report for work today is Murphee, of the Louisville High school. He looks big and all reports say that he is one of the best line backers in the business.

Good men are coming in every day and there will be something doing every day at the new Grant field from now on. Work is the slogan of the entire squad, and Coach Alexander is putting the men through their paces in fine shape and the perspiration runs freely. The entire squad will be on the field Monday of next week and then a real line on just where the men will play can be gotten. There seems to be an extra supply of good backfield material this season and no end of fullbacks, and that is what Tech has been deficient in for the past few seasons. Patton is one of the best at this game and he will be back at work Friday. He has been working hard all the summer and is in pretty good condition. Loeb, the old varsity center, is also in good condition and will report ready for scrimmage on Monday.

It will be just about a week or so before there will be real hard scrimmage for everybody. The men are all in pretty fair condition and if the weather turns colder there will be some hard workouts every afternoon.

Yesterday there were quite a number of the alumni out on the field and they have expressed their intentions of coming out every day and helping out the game. Sinclair and Coleman, both old varsity men, were out and every day finds a new face out to see just what's going on. Walter Duhand, of the 1910 varsity, is considering returning and this will greatly aid the good prospects. There are plenty of good men at Tech this year and there is to be something doing every minute of the time from now on till the athletic season closes in June of next year.

Gilks to Lead Mobile Club

Rumored That Nap Scout Is to Succeed Mike Finn, Who Is to Go to Memphis

MOBILE, Ala., Sept. 11.—Scout Bobby Gilks, of the Cleveland American league club, has put in drafts for Catcher Schmidt and First Baseman Gene Paulet. Gilks is touted as the next manager of the Mobile club in the event that Finn keeps his word as to not coming back to Mobile.

It has been rumored for the past several days that Mike Finn would not return to Mobile to manage the club next year, and it has even been stated that Finn emphatically stated that he would not return. The rumor goes further and speaks of Finn as the pilot of the Memphis or Chattanooga club for next season. However, that be as it may, it is a well-known fact that these two clubs are desirous of securing a manager for the 1913 season and considering the fact that Finn made a pennant contender, with hardly no money to work on at all, it would seem a wise step for the moguls of one of those places to secure his services.

Bobby Gilks formerly managed the old Shreveport club in the Southern league, and was highly successful at that place. He developed Red Tom Fisher, one of the best hurlers that ever graced a Southern league mound. He also sent several other stars to the majors by his methods of developing.

For the past several years Mr. Gilks has been employed by the Cleveland club in the capacity of scout, and a good one he has made, too.

Cornell Grid Stars Are Now at Work

ITHACA, N. Y., Sept. 11.—Cornell's football eleven reported for the first practice of the season Wednesday. Head Coach Al Sharpe gave the men a preliminary lecture followed by an hour of outdoor practice.

Assistant Coaches Reed, Vanerman and Guetier, the latter a former Amherst star and a new addition to the red and white staff, arrived this morning.

Coach Sharpe already has laid down strict training rules. The candidates must be in bed by 10:30 o'clock at night and will not be allowed down town after 9 p. m.

The first game will be with Ursinus at Ithaca, Wednesday, September 24.

REULBACH-STACK TRADE GOOD THING FOR PLAYERS AND CLUBS INVOLVED

Once an important cog in the "Cub machine," in the days of Chance, Kling, Brown, Sheckard, Tinker and the others of that merry crew of pennant winners, Ed Reulbach is now with Brooklyn.

And Stack, who did not pitch well enough for Chicago or Philadelphia to keep, nor to impress upon Charley Ebbetts the fact that he was a star, is wearing a Chicago uniform.

Reulbach did not win for the Cubs this year; he felt that he could not give the club his best efforts and this feeling so affected him that he was valueless in the box. And yet he seemed to have the same old curves and speed.

The old trick of asking waivers upon a player bad, in the hope of bringing him to a realization of his failure, was resorted to in vain. Then Reulbach was traded for Stack, and right away both showed a reversal of form, and pitched splendid ball.

Stack broke in as a Cub with a two hit game which made Murphy grin and probably caused Ebbetts to gnash his teeth; it is easy to imagine the feelings of each. Reulbach came along with a three-hit victory for Brooklyn and the smile and frown changed habitation.

Two magnates feel satisfied, two managers realize their pitching departments are strengthened and two pitchers feel effective where they were useless, so everyone is happy.

The answer seems to be that a little change once in a while is a good thing for the best of men.

"Team Was Handled Roughly" ---Charley Frank

Declaring Pitchers Peddy and Wilson received the rawest deal from Umpires Nichetstein and Hart that he has ever witnessed in the history of the Southern league, his players cursed and abused at every turn in the hope that they would start a fight and be arrested, together with "old friends" calling to ascertain if he really meant to strip the Gulls out of the pennant, Manager Frank returned to the city on Monday to prepare reorganizing his Mobile team for 1914.

It is not the fault of my so-called 'ol' friends,' or members of the Mobile club that Finn did not win the pennant," said Frank. "Our players were cursed and abused at every turn, on and off the field. It was a difficult job to keep them from engaging in a fight, but they finally realized they would be jailed and only weaken the club. In my opinion, Finn figured he could slip by if two or three Pebs were in the jug, but would not 'fall' for the rough stuff."

"Umpires Hart and "Breitenstein," continued the Pel mogul, "treated Wilson and Peddy shamefully. Wilson had to groove every ball that Breitenstein called a strike. The umpiring was such that we claim credit for beating a half club and two of President Kavanaugh's 'guessers,' who were reputedly giving every close decision to Mobile, ea... because they were incompetent or afraid to rule impartially."

Several of his "old friends" called on the Pel mogul Sunday to ascertain if he really intended beating Mobile out of the pennant. "In some instance," continued Frank, "these people hinted at various things to which I replied: 'Gentlemen, this is going to be a ball game, and it is going to be settled on the field. I've groomed Pitcher Wilson for two weeks to beat your ball club, and there isn't any doubt in my mind that Atlanta is going to tie the flag. Wilson is fit and ready to pitch for a man's life; you're beat, so go long and console yourselves."—New Orleans Item.

Practical Hints on GOLF Just How To Drive

In a previous article we considered points of play on the green at match play as covered by rule 22. Today we will take up rule 13 of the special rules for stroke competitions. Match play is where the winning or losing of holes is involved, while stroke competitions are where the number of strokes for the complete round are the object.

Of course this explanation seemes mere child's play, but it is best, for there is much confusion of the application of these two different rules.

A few years ago in the open championship at Baltusrol played at stroke play a former open champion finding his ball buried in the ninth green rolled a long iron shot from the tee removed the ball from the mud, claiming that he had the right to a putt and not a niblick shot when once he had reached the green.

The executive committee of the U. S. G. A. was of course in session and charged him two strokes under section 6 of the ruling below:

RULE XIII.

"(1). When a competitor's ball lying within twenty yards of the hole is played and strikes or is stopped by the flag stick or the person standing at the hole, the penalty shall be two strokes.

"Neglect on the part of the person standing at the hole does not exempt the competitor from incurring the penalty. (Scotsign Rules of Golf Committee at St. Andrews.)

"(2). When both balls are on the putting-green, if a competitor's ball strikes the ball of the player with whom he is competing, the competitor shall incur a penalty of one stroke, and the ball which was struck shall be at once replaced; see Stroke Rule 19 (1).

"(3). The competitor whose ball is the farther from the hole may have the ball which is nearer to the hole lifted or placed at the option of its owner. If the latter refuse to comply with this rule when requested to do so, he shall be disqualified.

"(4) If the competitor whose ball is the nearer to the hole consider that his ball might be of assistance to the player with whom he is competing, he should lift it or play first.

"(5) If the competitor whose ball is the nearer to the hole lift his ball while the player's ball is in motion, he shall incur a penalty of one stroke.

"(6) If a competitor or his caddie pick up the ball from the putting green before it is holed out (except as provided for above), he shall, before he has struck off from the next tee, or in the case of the last hole on the ground, before he has left the putting green, be permitted to replace the ball under penalty of two strokes."

The rule clearly gives players certain rights as well as provides penalties. If a player does not understand his rights he may innocently bring a penalty on himself. For instance, if he does not avail himself of his rights under section 2 he may lose a stroke by having his ball hit the other, under section2.

STRAIGHT DRIVE.

Howell Started Finn Down Hill

CHATTANOOGA, Tenn., Sept. 11.—While Cracker fandom is busy raising a subscription for Chelly Frank, Finis Wilson and other members of the Pelican team's local fanatics are of the opinion that the grateful Georgians are overlooking the man that contributed more to their final glorious victory in annexing the 1912 gonfalon.

In the opinion of Ritherfeld and Mike Finn, too, if you will but ask him, the blow that really sent the Gulls down in sickening and crushing defeat was a smash against the center field fence in the ninth inning of the second game on Labor day when Howell cleaned the bases at the expense of "Pug" Cavet and gave the Lookouts a ninth-inning win by one run with two men down. This one blow, after the Gulls had packed their bats and considered the fray as won, gave the Lookouts three out of the four-game series and wrought a spiritual change in the Finnmen that was fearful to behold. The Gulls never recovered from the blow. Psychology plays a greater part in baseball than is generally supposed.

Unknown Winner

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—J. C. Wheatley, unattached, caused a surprise at Travers Island when he won the 440-yard national swimming championship, defeating Bob Goodwin and Gilbert Tomlinson, the Philadelphia boy wonder. Wheatley, who is practically unknown, won handily by five feet in 6 minutes 4 2-5 seconds. Tominson finished second and Robert Dippy, Philadelphia, third. Goodwin was fourth.

A BALLADE OF THE DAY.

There's a big advance in the rent on flats;
It costs us more to exist each day;
The price grows grouzer on clothes and hats,
Wherever we wander we've got to pay;
Everything's booming from pie to hay—
A general advance is the law of the game;
But slip it to me—on the level—say
Why do our salaries stay the same?

Only the rich can afford cravats—
(There was a time when we threw it away)
Such frivolities now as spats
Have long since faded from out the play;
Whether we go or whether we stay
They shore up the price until it seems a shame—
I dope it out 'till the dawn breaks gray.
Why do our salaries stay the same?

We buy our butter in little spats—
An ounce costs more than a pound last May;
They've doubled the price on meat and hat's
The order of things all along the way;
Nothing is cheaper—not even whey—
The way things cost is enough to undin—
With everything else up, tell me, pray,
Why do our salaries stay the same?

Ballades are cinches that rhyme with A—
(It took eight minutes to dope this frame)
When the boss had read it he'll likely say,
"That's why your salary stays the same."

The rumor is abroad again through the land that President T. J. Lynch is to be released from captivity and another installed in his place at the head of the National League.

Mr. Lynch probably considers the news too good to be true. If we were in his place we would hardly wait for any edict from the league, but seizing a swift automobile we'd make one final dash over the Canadian border line, hire all the lawyers in the world and make the hottest fight for freedom ever witnessed in the universe. We might finally be deported but there would be at least a few weeks of freedom and it would be worth the chance.

If we were ever offered the presidency of the N. L. we'd accept it upon condition that we would go heavily armed and would be at liberty to shoot any club owner or manager we cared to put out of the way. Under these conditions we'd like the job for nothing and hold it until our ammunition gave out. Then we'd resign.

Just as the Naps are in the act of making a rushing assault upon first place they find themselves stymied by a five-game series with Washington. Washington has put Cleveland out of more pennant races than any other two clubs behind and in the present instance Griff says he will use Johnson in two games at least and possibly more. If the Naps can handle this Senatorial bunker they may make quite a battle of it, but they should cease cheering until the stately shadow of the capitol is well to their rear.

.22 RIFLES
The Little Rifles—Big in Quality

YOU are going to buy a .22 calibre rifle, single shot or repeater—you'll find that many well known crack shots started with a Remington .22.

Their advice now would be "By all means, get a Remington" because they know that there is a tendency in some quarters to look upon these models as only "a small boy's rifle" and to cheapen them so that they can be sold at a price.

You have just as much right to expect full shooting value in your .22 calibre arm as in your $75 big game rifle.

You want the Remington single shot at from $3 to $6, .22, .25-10 or .32 calibre, made by the same people who make the famous Remington Autoloading Rifles.

Or, if you prefer the repeating rifle, the Remington slide action .22 repeater with its easy take-down and special safety features, shooting .22 short, .22 long or .22 long rifle cartridges, at $10 and up, is your arm.

Sold by live dealers of this community—the most popular small calibre rifles in America.

Yale Winner On the Links

For Ninth Consecutive Time Sons of Eli Take the Honors

PHILADELPHIA, Sept. 11.—Yale, for the ninth consecutive time, won the intercollegiate team golf championship by defeating Williams college by six matches to three in the final round on the Huntingdon Valley Country club. As Yale won all three foursomes this morning Williams had an uphill fight and it was necessary in order to gain the title for them to take five out of the six singles matches.

Wheeler registered one victory for the Blue by defeating Marshall 5 up and 4 to play, and Williams took the next three matches. When the Baxter-Dewindt match was all square at the eighteenth hole excitement ran high. The nineteenth was halved and on the twentieth the Yale man won.

In the other singles Hyde, of Williams, defeated Yale, 2 up and 1 to play; Gillett, of Williams, beat Pierce, Yale 5 up and 4 to play. Ainslee, Williams, beat Gardner, Yale, 4 and 2. Bishop made Yale's total six by winning from Gleason 1 up.

French Boat Wins

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The French motorboat Desperjons II won the first race of the International motorboat trophy series in Osborne bay. The winner finished the course of 32.4 miles in 47 minutes and 24 seconds.

The Maple Leaf IV, a British entry, was second and Addie Deep, America's championship motorboat, owned by Count Casimir S. Mankowski, of Lake George, finished third.

The Disturber III, the other American entry owned by Commodore James H. Fugh, of Chicago, retired from the race after making a second circuit of the course, owing to a slight fire.

JOURNAL WANT AD Horoscope

SEPTEMBER 12.

If you are born on this date, you have much to be thankful for. Mercury, the giver of life forces, is your governing planet, and "Virgo," representing the hidden fires of the earth, is your sign.

"Virgo" people or those born between August 23 and September 23 are the only people in the twelve signs of the Zodiac who are naturally exempt from all diseases.

However, they are always imagining they are ill and are apt to form a continual habit of experimenting with drugs and medicines.

What a "Virgo" person requires is plenty of work, plenty of outdoor air, a quiet, temperate life, free from passion.

Under these conditions such a person is practically immune and may control the forces of money, personal friends and a long life.

Agents will do well to answer The Journal Want Ads this week. Canvassers and solicitors will be well placed through a Want Ad. Office work advertised in The Journal Want Ads will bring good returns.

Some Want Ads are inserted free in The Journal. For charge ads, ask that they be sent for, or telephone them to Main 2000, or Atlanta 423.

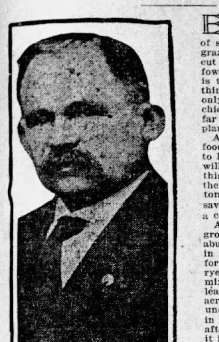
POULTRY, PIGEONS AND LIVE STOCK

What to Plant for Winter Grazing



EVERY one who has poultry, hogs and cattle should by all means plant a small patch of something green for them to graze on during the winter, or to cut and feed to both animals and fowls. The month of September is the proper time to plant something for this purpose, even if you only put in a small amount in the chicken yard or small field, it is far better to have a small place planted now than to wait later.

A bountiful supply of this green food is almost like medicine given to live stock and poultry, and they will thrive better when they have this variety than they would if they had to do without. It is astonishing how much feed it will save and how much good it will do a cow, horse, hog, or chickens.

Any vacant spot can be made to grow a large and useful crop of abundant green if properly planted in September and the best thing for this purpose is a mixture of rye, barley, winter turf, and oats mixed equal parts and planted at least four to six bushels to the acre, broadcast. Should be turned under with a turn plow or spaded in deep with a garden fork and after it has been turned or spaded it is a good idea to plant broadcast ten pounds of rape seed per acre on top of the plowed ground. This should be raked in with a garden rake or run a weeder or tooth harrow over it. It will smooth the land and cover the rape seed at the same time.

Rape seed should not be planted deep as they will not germinate. The rape will come ahead of the grain and it can be cut off or grazed as it will come along ahead of the grain. It will grow faster and this will give a variety of feed, and when rape is planted in this way much of it will stand during the cold winter months, but it will grow so fast it will give an abundance of green food during late October and November and December, and the other grain will get sufficient growth so that it can be pastured off when it is dry enough throughout the entire winter, and in the early spring it is surprising what tremendous amount of rich, green feed this will give you. There would be less sickness and much better results obtained, and animals and fowls of all kinds if every one would plant more winter grain for their fowls and animals.

Our seasons throughout the entire south are so suited to growing such crops during the winter, but we neglect this most important thing and fail to get the benefits from the abundant rains during the winter months that produce such enormous growth of all kinds of grain if planted during the winter. As this mixture is adapted to the coldest weather, it will grow throughout the entire winter. By planting in September it will get a good start and have splendid growth on it before very cold weather. This first growth should be grazed so that the animals can settle the ground and it will be less liable to be killed by the land spewing up during the winter months. Live stock grazing on it through December while it is dry will settle the ground, and it will really be better for it than not to graze it, as it stands the winter much better.

By all means plant some of this for your live stock and poultry and you will never regret it.

Yours very truly,

QUESTIONS ASKED AND ANSWERED.

QUESTION.

River View, Ala.

I notice in the droppings from my chickens some worms. I noticed one today about two inches long and have seen several smaller ones. Please tell me what damage they will do and also how to destroy them.

Please tell me what will cure sore mouth on dogs. Several have died around here. They slobber and act where they cannot eat.

B. B. McG.

ANSWER.

Very often chickens become wormy, and the best thing to use for this is copperas. Take one tablespoonful of copperas, beat it up fine, dissolve in one pint of warm water and mix it up with soft feed. Give this to about twenty-five chickens every other day; it is only needed two days. One teaspoonful of turpentine fed in soft feed to the same number of chickens will break up materially in relieving them of worms. The Conkey people make a preparation especially for this which can be had of any seed dealer or poultry supply house at 25 cents per box.

The trouble with your dog is what is known as black tongue. It is usually fatal and has killed a great many dogs all over the south this year. There are many remedies for this such as Glover's Black Tongue Remedy, which we had of Jacobs' Pharmacy, Atlanta, and if taken in time a great many cases can be cured.

WM. J. GAYNOR DIES IN MID-OCEAN WHILE ON WAY TO EUROPE

fect of the salt air would restore him in some measure to health.

The Baltic was due at Queenstown Friday. The mayor died as she was nearing the other side. The news of his death was sent by wireless to Crookhaven by Rufus W. Gaynor, from Crookhaven to New York by cable.

Mayor Gaynor left New York at a time when the city was seething in one of the strangest municipal political campaigns in its history. The day before his departure he was notified on the city hall steps by representatives of independent political organizations that they had chosen him as their standard bearer in the mayoralty campaign. A throng that crowded city hall park assembled to hear him accept. He had prepared a speech of acceptance, but was so weak that he was unable to deliver it, and his secretary read it for him, the mayor standing beside him.

Before the mayor sailed his secretary issued a statement denying reports of the mayor's serious illness.

HIS WOUND.

The recent attack of old throat trouble due to the wound inflicted by him o... august 9, 1910, by James J. Gallagher, just as he was about to leave this city for a brief vacation in Europe, had entirely disappeared, according to Mr. Adamson, and the mayor expected to return and enter the campaign with his old-time vigor. The mayor himself just before leaving spoke of his condition as follows:

"I have been nearly four years mayor and have not yet had a vacation. I suppose almost everybody will concede that I may have earned one now. I have been laid up a few days with one of the sharp attacks I occasionally have from my mishap of a few years ago, but I am now over it and hope I never shall have another."

He was expected to attack Tammany Hall sharply politically as soon as he returned to the city.

Before his departure he issued a characteristic statement levelled at Tammany Hall leaders and other political opponents in which he referred to them as "miserable scamps," and asserted that they were causing his "moral assassination."

BULLET IN THROAT.

The bullet that lodged in his throat three years ago had never been removed.

It was the mayor's plan to remain abroad less than a week. He expected to sail for New York from Liverpool on September 18 and to reach this city a week later.

Mayor Gaynor's sudden death completely overturns the municipal political situation. It removes from the field a candidate for mayor who was expected to run heavily into the vote of the fusion nominee, John Purroy Mitchel, and leaves only the tickets nominated by the Democratic and Socialists. The former is headed by Edward E. McCall, former chairman of the public service commission of this district.

The mayor renomination was brought about by no particular political faction or party, but represented only his personal popularity.

Politicians who discussed his death today expected that his followers would make no attempt to nominate a candidate in his place. No other place on the Gaynor ticket have yet been filled.

Mayor Gaynor was placed at the head of the Independent ticket after Tammany hall had refused him a renomination. He was to lead those who opposed the regular Democratic organization and yet were unwilling to join the Fusion of Republicans and Progressives.

His standard was the shovel, reminding voters of his effort to hasten the building of the new subways. The shovel or also said it was emblematic of his intention to "clean the grafters out."

KLINE FOR MAYOR.

The passing of Mayor Gaynor recalled the sudden death of Henry George, of single tax fame, and a third party candidate, almost on the eve of the New York mayoralty election sixteen years ago.

Secretary Adamson received the cablegram announcing the mayor's death while he was at his home in Brooklyn. Mr. Adamson went to Mr. Gaynor at the mayor's country home at St. James, and then endeavored to reach by telephone Adolph L. Kline, the acting mayor, who will be New York's chief executive until the inauguration of Mayor Gaynor's successor to be elected in November.

In this he was unsuccessful. Colonel Kline had left the home of his son-in-law after an early breakfast and at 10 o'clock had not heard of the mayor's death. At that hour the flags on the city hall were halfmasted by Mr. Adamson's orders.

ATTEMPT ON HIS LIFE.

Mayor Gaynor's death recalls the attempt on his life made by an assassin at Hoboken in August 1910. On this occasion the mayor had decided to take a brief vacation abroad under much the same circumstances as those under which he left a week ago. He was standing with friends and the center of a group of city officials at the time.

Into this friendly gathering James A. Gallagher, the would-be assassin, made his way unobserved. When close to the mayor he drew a revolver and fired a shot. The bullet penetrated Mr. Gaynor's throat. He suffered from this serious injury for many weeks, but finally recovered to a sufficient degree to enable him to resume his duties and was apparently none the worse for his experience until recently when the wound began to trouble him again.

Gallagher had been dismissed from the dock department of the city of New York under Mayor Gaynor's order and had repeatedly endeavored to induce the mayor to reinstate him. For his crime he was sentenced to twelve years' imprisonment. After little more than a year in prison he was transferred to the New Jersey state hospital for the insane at Trenton and died there last February.

HISTORY OF HIS LIFE.

William Jay Gaynor was born on a farm near Whitestown, N. Y., in 1851. He had to help the family in its struggle for existence, and in this fight he had to take time for his own education. He graduated from the Whitestown seminary, went to Boston to teach school, and afterwards studied law in the office of Ward Hunt, of Utica, who later became a justice of the supreme court of New York. In 1878, young Gaynor went to Brooklyn and became a newspaper reporter. Two years later he was admitted to the bar.

From that moment until his death, Gaynor had lived in the midst of continual political warfare. He started it with an attack upon the unlicensed saloons in Flatbush, a section of Brooklyn, and won.

Ten years later, he led a successful fight against the so-called McLaughlin ring, in Brooklyn. His battle against John "Mc" McKane, boss of Sheepshead Bay and Coney Island attracted nation wide attention. McKane died in Sing Sing.

Mr. Gaynor was elected a justice of supreme court of New York in 1893, on a nomination given him by Republicans and Independent Democrats, was re-elected in 1907, but resigned to accept the nomination of mayor of New York city, to which he was elected in November, 1909.

His term as mayor of New York bore the imprint of his personality in many striking innovations. As he expressed it, "I never quarreled with the organization leaders, because I was too busy. I simply went on and did my work from day to day, and I kept their hands out of the public treasury."

Mayor Gaynor was a writer of many letters and attracted national attention by these and his politics. Prior to the Democratic national convention at Baltimore in June, 1912, the mention of his name was frequent in connection with the Democratic nomination for president. He did not have the support from the Democratic delegation from this state, however, and was not an active candidate for the honor.

London Receives News Of Mayor Gaynor's Death

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The news of the death of William J. Gaynor, mayor of New York, on board the steamer Baltic, while at sea yesterday, was received at the White Star line offices here today in a brief wireless message from Captain Ranson, the commander of the vessel.

Commander Ranson added that the body was being brought to Liverpool.

Gaynor's Heart Enlisted In Reform, Says Bryan

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—"Mayor Gaynor was a strong man with a genius for public life," said Secretary Bryan today, on learning of the mayor's death. "He was strong not only in the sense that he showed ability in the discussion of public questions, but his sympathies were broad and his heart was enlisted in reform."

Gaynor Never Expected To Recover, Says Brother

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, Sept. 11.—"The mayor practically had abandoned hope of getting well; this was why he gave up the project of running for governor," said Thomas L. Gaynor, of Springfield, only brother of the late mayor, today.

"It was his opinion that his days were numbered, but recently he appeared better and decided to make the independent fight for mayor."

Murphy Deeply Regrets Death of Tammany Enemy

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Charles F. Murphy, command leader, whom Mayor Gaynor scathingly denounced as chief of the forces opposing him, had this to say upon learning of the mayor's death:

"I was very much shocked. I knew he went away a very sick man. I deeply regret his death."

JURY SWORN AND TRIAL IS BEGUN AFTER HOT FIGHT

mation that Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick had been retained by friends and relatives of Mrs. Godbee in Washington county. It was impossible for him to be present, it stated.

"On account of serious and varied criminal acts happening in this county during the last few days," concluded the motion, "a state of high public sentiment exists and the rumors if somebody was not convicted there was no telling what would become of the county, and that this defendant alleges that a trial at this time means that her right to a fair and impartial trial guaranteed under the constitution is virtually taken from her."

Attorney Saffold followed the reading of the motion by a few remarks, which contained the declaration:

"We contend that this woman has committed no crime—that she is morally justified in the eyes of God and man."

When the defense attorney completed the reading of the motion Judge Hammond asked the state if they desired to make any comment. Solicitor General Moore arose and moved simply that the motion be overruled. The judge did so also and ruled to that effect on the motion. He was in receipt of a telegram from Mr. Hardwick, stating that he could not be present, he said, but he did not consider that, combined with the other points made by the defense, sufficient to warrant delay.

ATTACKS INDICTMENT.

Frustrated in their attempt to gain a delay by these means the defense pursued other tactics. Judge Saffold announced that he wanted to prepare a demurrer to trial on indictment of the grand jury. With his associates he retired and a few minutes later reappeared. He had the demurrer in his hands and read it to the court. In it he attacked the legality of the grand jury which indicted Mrs. Godbee and the official right of Solicitor Moore to appear in the case.

The defense contended that the act of the legislature transferring Jenkins county from the middle judicial circuit to the Augusta circuit was illegal, in as much as it was in violation of a clause of the constitution, which was named.

The Lee Moore is not the legal solicitor of this circuit, and when he administered the names to the grand jury he did so illegally. The body, therefore, in a grand jury and incompetent to indict a person," read the demurrer.

DEMURRER OVERRULED.

This was overruled by the judge on application of the defense, and Attorney Saffold immediately announced that he desired to reserve the right to file a plea in abatement later in the case. Judge Hammond replied that this had to be filed then, if at all. On request of the defense he allowed them more time while they again left the court room.

At 10:45 o'clock Judge Saffold appeared with the plea, which, it embodied virtually the same contention as the demurrer, declaring that the body which indicted Mrs. Godbee was "no grand jury and could not legally arrogate people and bring them to trial."

Attorney Davis, associated in the prosecution, moved to strike the bill and was sustained by Judge Hammond.

The court then declared a ten-minute recess preparatory to beginning the selection of the jury. Apparently the defense has exhausted every means at hand to thwart the defense and win a delay.

The roll of the jury was called when court reconvened. Out of the 160 talesmen summoned to appear 105 answered their names.

Following this formality Judge Hammond said: "Let the prisoner enter her plea."

Mrs. Godbee started to arise from her chair, but court was interrupted by a bailiff who stated to the court that he wanted to recast the defense counsel. The table and chairs around which were clustered the half-dozen lawyers, Mrs. Godbee and her friends and relatives were moved to the opposite side of the enclosure surrounding the judge's rostrum. The defense and prosecution are now several yards removed from each other.

MRS. GODBEE ENTERS PLEA.

At 11 o'clock, at the request of the court, Mrs. Godbee arose to enter her plea. Subdued conversation which had been carried on in the court room ceased as the woman calmly took the floor.

Solicitor Moore stepped in front of the judge's desk. He read the indictment.

At the concluding words, "that this defendant did unlawfully, feloniously, illegally and maliciously aforethought shoot Mrs. Florence Godbee, inflicting a mortal wound from which she died later"... the auditors looked for some show of feeling on the part of the accused woman. But there was none. In a low tone she replied to Solicitor Moore's "What you plead, guilty or not guilty?" "Not guilty."

Judge Hammond then ordered the first panel of jurymen to take their places in the box.

JURY SELECTED.

The selection of the jury, which followed Mrs. Godbee's plea, proceeded more expeditiously than had been proved by any one connected with the case. In hardly more than an hour after the first talesman was questioned by the solicitor general the twelve men who will decide the fate of the alleged murderess were in the box and sworn.

Ninty-six of the 120 veniremen present, however, had been examined and it appeared for a time as if a delay might be necessary for the summoning of more veniremen. Rising from their seats in the back of the room the prospective jurors answered the qualifying queries.

Many were excused because they had previously formed opinions.

Few were debarred because of scruples against capital punishment. No questions were asked regarding the state of the talesman's mind regarding a woman tried for murder.

At 12:15 o'clock the following were in the box:

James Daniel, married, farmer; S. W. Palmer, widower, merchant; I. S. Lane, single, farmer; S. A. Poyttress, married, farmer; Hoyt D. Brinson, single, farmer; Walter Brannan, married, farmer; Dave Sharps, married, farmer; R. H. Darlington, married, farmer; George W. Johnson, single, farmer; C. A. Pendleton, married, clerk; G. W. Kent, single, farmer, and R. R. Durden, barber.

The selection of the jury was completed after both sides had exhausted their peremptory challenges.

JURORS ARE WARNED.

When the roll of the jury had been called by the clerk, Judge Hammond cautioned the members against talking or communicating with any one on the other side.

"You will be isolated from the world," he said, and remarked with "If anybody attempts to communicate with you by note, word or gesture, it will be your duty to tell the court, for such a person will be in grave contempt."

Following the court's admonition, the jury was taken from the room to a hotel for luncheon.

Judge Hammond then instructed the court to call twelve of the disqualified jurors before him. There he instructed them to be in court next Saturday morning. This is taken to mean that Judge Hammond expects the Godbee case to be completed before then.

At 12:30 o'clock court adjourned until 3 o'clock. Solicitor Moore will then begin the state's case. He could not announce before noon recess who his first witness would be.

Imperturbed by thought of the ordeal which is to come, Mrs. Godbee received visitors in her cell in the county jail early Thursday morning. She smiled and chatted, apparently as carefree as before the double tragedy.

When her daughter, Miss Sarah Godbee, and the second woman in the two sisters called shortly before 7 o'clock they were greeted with a handclasp and she told them not to fear. She expected an acquittal, she said. The party of women left the prison shortly before 8 o'clock and went in an automobile to the court house.

Feeling is tense in Milan. The trial is the one topic of conversation and the influx of lawyers, relatives and scores of curious lens a holiday aspect to the little town. It is with difficulty that the hotels are accommodating the crowds. All the principals in the case are quartered at the Estelle hotel.

The safe containing the $71,200 in two packages was delivered by the Adams Express company to the Southern Express company in Jersey City, according to W. W. Pendleton, general agent of the Adams company. The transfer was made last Monday night. Mr. Pendleton said, and at that time the safe and its contents were intact. The package containing $71,900, he added, was composed of a number of consignments to separate banks in Georgia.

One of the envelopes in the smaller package contained money from the Coal and Iron National bank, of New York, to a consignee in Albany, Ga.

Practically All Buildings Razed Preparatory for Erection of Mrs. E. C. Smith's $60,000 Building on Peachtree Street Near Linden – Building for Eight Months and August in Southern Cities Compared

PRACTICALLY all the buildings have been razed preparatory to the erection for Mrs. E. C. Smith of a building on Peachtree street just south of Linden and adjoining the former Oglesby home. Turman, Black and Calhoun, who will erect this building, will make a detailed announcement in a few days. It will cost about $60,000, and will be one of the most important structures on the street.

The Potts building, diagonally across the street at the corner of Linden, is practically completed. Its cost is about $50,000, and it occupies a frontage of 100 feet on Peachtree street.

Speaking of building, the comparison of figures in the south that follows is an interesting one. Dallas, Tex., showed a large gain. Most other southern points, however, show a decrease. While Atlanta shows a decrease, its aggregate value is ahead of both New Orleans and Birmingham.

The gain in Texas is due to the large cotton crop last year and the high prices. In 1914 Atlanta will show a gain due in large measure to the big cotton yield in 1913.

Speaking of cotton, an agent who has just returned from the farm sections says he was surprised by the enormous top crop he saw. The stalks, he said, are loaded with large bolls from top to bottom. The staple grade of open cotton is unusually fine, due to the fine weather conditions. The best posted cotton men estimate a yield for Georgia of 2,250,000 bales.

Building Comparison.

The American Contractor's resume of building in large cities for eight months this year compared with the same period last year and August compared with previous August gives following figures for southern cities:

WM. J. GAYNOR DIES IN MID-OCEAN WHILE ON WAY TO EUROPE

fect of the salt air would restore him in some measure to health.

The Baltic was due at Queenstown Friday. The mayor died as she was nearing the other side. The news of his death was sent by wireless to Crookhaven by Rufus W. Gaynor, from Crookhaven to New York by cable.

Mayor Gaynor left New York at a time when the city was seething in one of the strangest municipal political campaigns in its history. The day before his departure he was notified on the city hall steps by representatives of independent political organizations that they had chosen him as their standard bearer in the mayoralty campaign. A throng that crowded city hall park assembled to hear him accept. He had prepared a speech of acceptance, but was so weak that he was unable to deliver it, and his secretary read it for him, the mayor standing beside him.

Before the mayor sailed his secretary issued a statement denying reports of the mayor's serious illness.

HIS WOUND.

The recent attack of old throat trouble due to the wound inflicted by him o... august 9, 1910, by James J. Gallagher, just as he was about to leave this city for a brief vacation in Europe, had entirely disappeared, according to Mr. Adamson, and the mayor expected to return and enter the campaign with his old-time vigor. The mayor himself just before leaving spoke of his condition as follows:

"I have been nearly four years mayor and have not yet had a vacation. I suppose almost everybody will concede that I may have earned one now. I have been laid up a few days with one of the sharp attacks I occasionally have from my mishap of a few years ago, but I am now over it and hope I never shall have another."

He was expected to attack Tammany Hall sharply politically as soon as he returned to the city.

Before his departure he issued a characteristic statement levelled at Tammany Hall leaders and other political opponents in which he referred to them as "miserable scamps," and asserted that they were causing his "moral assassination."

BULLET IN THROAT.

The bullet that lodged in his throat three years ago had never been removed.

It was the mayor's plan to remain abroad less than a week. He expected to sail for New York from Liverpool on September 18 and to reach this city a week later.

Mayor Gaynor's sudden death completely overturns the municipal political situation. It removes from the field a candidate for mayor who was expected to run heavily into the vote of the fusion nominee, John Purroy Mitchel, and leaves only the tickets nominated by the Democratic and Socialists. The former is headed by Edward E. McCall, former chairman of the public service commission of this district.

The mayor renomination was brought about by no particular political faction or party, but represented only his personal popularity.

Politicians who discussed his death today expected that his followers would make no attempt to nominate a candidate in his place. No other place on the Gaynor ticket have yet been filled.

Mayor Gaynor was placed at the head of the Independent ticket after Tammany hall had refused him a renomination. He was to lead those who opposed the regular Democratic organization and yet were unwilling to join the Fusion of Republicans and Progressives.

His standard was the shovel, reminding voters of his effort to hasten the building of the new subways. The shovel or also said it was emblematic of his intention to "clean the grafters out."

KLINE FOR MAYOR.

The passing of Mayor Gaynor recalled the sudden death of Henry George, of single tax fame, and a third party candidate, almost on the eve of the New York mayoralty election sixteen years ago.

Secretary Adamson received the cablegram announcing the mayor's death while he was at his home in Brooklyn. Mr. Adamson went to Mr. Gaynor at the mayor's country home at St. James, and then endeavored to reach by telephone Adolph L. Kline, the acting mayor, who will be New York's chief executive until the inauguration of Mayor Gaynor's successor to be elected in November.

In this he was unsuccessful. Colonel Kline had left the home of his son-in-law after an early breakfast and at 10 o'clock had not heard of the mayor's death. At that hour the flags on the city hall were halfmasted by Mr. Adamson's orders.

ATTEMPT ON HIS LIFE.

Mayor Gaynor's death recalls the attempt on his life made by an assassin at Hoboken in August 1910. On this occasion the mayor had decided to take a brief vacation abroad under much the same circumstances as those under which he left a week ago. He was standing with friends and the center of a group of city officials at the time.

Into this friendly gathering James A. Gallagher, the would-be assassin, made his way unobserved. When close to the mayor he drew a revolver and fired a shot. The bullet penetrated Mr. Gaynor's throat. He suffered from this serious injury for many weeks, but finally recovered to a sufficient degree to enable him to resume his duties and was apparently none the worse for his experience until recently when the wound began to trouble him again.

Gallagher had been dismissed from the dock department of the city of New York under Mayor Gaynor's order and had repeatedly endeavored to induce the mayor to reinstate him. For his crime he was sentenced to twelve years' imprisonment. After little more than a year in prison he was transferred to the New Jersey state hospital for the insane at Trenton and died there last February.

HISTORY OF HIS LIFE.

William Jay Gaynor was born on a farm near Whitestown, N. Y., in 1851. He had to help the family in its struggle for existence, and in this fight he had to take time for his own education. He graduated from the Whitestown seminary, went to Boston to teach school, and afterwards studied law in the office of Ward Hunt, of Utica, who later became a justice of the supreme court of New York. In 1878, young Gaynor went to Brooklyn and became a newspaper reporter. Two years later he was admitted to the bar.

From that moment until his death, Gaynor had lived in the midst of continual political warfare. He started it with an attack upon the unlicensed saloons in Flatbush, a section of Brooklyn, and won.

Ten years later, he led a successful fight against the so-called McLaughlin ring, in Brooklyn. His battle against John "Mc" McKane, boss of Sheepshead Bay and Coney Island attracted nation wide attention. McKane died in Sing Sing.

Mr. Gaynor was elected a justice of supreme court of New York in 1893, on a nomination given him by Republicans and Independent Democrats, was re-elected in 1907, but resigned to accept the nomination of mayor of New York city, to which he was elected in November, 1909.

His term as mayor of New York bore the imprint of his personality in many striking innovations. As he expressed it, "I never quarreled with the organization leaders, because I was too busy. I simply went on and did my work from day to day, and I kept their hands out of the public treasury."

Mayor Gaynor was a writer of many letters and attracted national attention by these and his politics. Prior to the Democratic national convention at Baltimore in June, 1912, the mention of his name was frequent in connection with the Democratic nomination for president. He did not have the support from the Democratic delegation from this state, however, and was not an active candidate for the honor.

London Receives News Of Mayor Gaynor's Death

(By Associated Press.)

LONDON, Sept. 11.—The news of the death of William J. Gaynor, mayor of New York, on board the steamer Baltic, while at sea yesterday, was received at the White Star line offices here today in a brief wireless message from Captain Ranson, the commander of the vessel.

Commander Ranson added that the body was being brought to Liverpool.

Gaynor's Heart Enlisted In Reform, Says Bryan

(By Associated Press.)

WASHINGTON, Sept. 11.—"Mayor Gaynor was a strong man with a genius for public life," said Secretary Bryan today, on learning of the mayor's death. "He was strong not only in the sense that he showed ability in the discussion of public questions, but his sympathies were broad and his heart was enlisted in reform."

Gaynor Never Expected To Recover, Says Brother

SPRINGFIELD, Ohio, Sept. 11.—"The mayor practically had abandoned hope of getting well; this was why he gave up the project of running for governor," said Thomas L. Gaynor, of Springfield, only brother of the late mayor, today.

"It was his opinion that his days were numbered, but recently he appeared better and decided to make the independent fight for mayor."

Murphy Deeply Regrets Death of Tammany Enemy

(By Associated Press.)

NEW YORK, Sept. 11.—Charles F. Murphy, command leader, whom Mayor Gaynor scathingly denounced as chief of the forces opposing him, had this to say upon learning of the mayor's death:

"I was very much shocked. I knew he went away a very sick man. I deeply regret his death."

JURY SWORN AND TRIAL IS BEGUN AFTER HOT FIGHT

mation that Congressman Thomas W. Hardwick had been retained by friends and relatives of Mrs. Godbee in Washington county. It was impossible for him to be present, it stated.

"On account of serious and varied criminal acts happening in this county during the last few days," concluded the motion, "a state of high public sentiment exists and the rumors if somebody was not convicted there was no telling what would become of the county, and that this defendant alleges that a trial at this time means that her right to a fair and impartial trial guaranteed under the constitution is virtually taken from her."

Attorney Saffold followed the reading of the motion by a few remarks, which contained the declaration:

"We contend that this woman has committed no crime—that she is morally justified in the eyes of God and man."

When the defense attorney completed the reading of the motion Judge Hammond asked the state if they desired to make any comment. Solicitor General Moore arose and moved simply that the motion be overruled. The judge did so also and ruled to that effect on the motion. He was in receipt of a telegram from Mr. Hardwick, stating that he could not be present, he said, but he did not consider that, combined with the other points made by the defense, sufficient to warrant delay.

ATTACKS INDICTMENT.

Frustrated in their attempt to gain a delay by these means the defense pursued other tactics. Judge Saffold announced that he wanted to prepare a demurrer to trial on indictment of the grand jury. With his associates he retired and a few minutes later reappeared. He had the demurrer in his hands and read it to the court. In it he attacked the legality of the grand jury which indicted Mrs. Godbee and the official right of Solicitor Moore to appear in the case.

The defense contended that the act of the legislature transferring Jenkins county from the middle judicial circuit to the Augusta circuit was illegal, in as much as it was in violation of a clause of the constitution, which was named.

The Lee Moore is not the legal solicitor of this circuit, and when he administered the names to the grand jury he did so illegally. The body, therefore, in a grand jury and incompetent to indict a person," read the demurrer.

DEMURRER OVERRULED.

This was overruled by the judge on application of the defense, and Attorney Saffold immediately announced that he desired to reserve the right to file a plea in abatement later in the case. Judge Hammond replied that this had to be filed then, if at all. On request of the defense he allowed them more time while they again left the court room.

At 10:45 o'clock Judge Saffold appeared with the plea, which, it embodied virtually the same contention as the demurrer, declaring that the body which indicted Mrs. Godbee was "no grand jury and could not legally arrogate people and bring them to trial."

Attorney Davis, associated in the prosecution, moved to strike the bill and was sustained by Judge Hammond.

The court then declared a ten-minute recess preparatory to beginning the selection of the jury. Apparently the defense has exhausted every means at hand to thwart the defense and win a delay.

The roll of the jury was called when court reconvened. Out of the 160 talesmen summoned to appear 105 answered their names.

Following this formality Judge Hammond said: "Let the prisoner enter her plea."

Mrs. Godbee started to arise from her chair, but court was interrupted by a bailiff who stated to the court that he wanted to recast the defense counsel. The table and chairs around which were clustered the half-dozen lawyers, Mrs. Godbee and her friends and relatives were moved to the opposite side of the enclosure surrounding the judge's rostrum. The defense and prosecution are now several yards removed from each other.

MRS. GODBEE ENTERS PLEA.

At 11 o'clock, at the request of the court, Mrs. Godbee arose to enter her plea. Subdued conversation which had been carried on in the court room ceased as the woman calmly took the floor.

Solicitor Moore stepped in front of the judge's desk. He read the indictment.

At the concluding words, "that this defendant did unlawfully, feloniously, illegally and maliciously aforethought shoot Mrs. Florence Godbee, inflicting a mortal wound from which she died later"... the auditors looked for some show of feeling on the part of the accused woman. But there was none. In a low tone she replied to Solicitor Moore's "What you plead, guilty or not guilty?" "Not guilty."

Judge Hammond then ordered the first panel of jurymen to take their places in the box.

JURY SELECTED.

The selection of the jury, which followed Mrs. Godbee's plea, proceeded more expeditiously than had been proved by any one connected with the case. In hardly more than an hour after the first talesman was questioned by the solicitor general the twelve men who will decide the fate of the alleged murderess were in the box and sworn.

Ninty-six of the 120 veniremen present, however, had been examined and it appeared for a time as if a delay might be necessary for the summoning of more veniremen. Rising from their seats in the back of the room the prospective jurors answered the qualifying queries.

Many were excused because they had previously formed opinions.

Few were debarred because of scruples against capital punishment. No questions were asked regarding the state of the talesman's mind regarding a woman tried for murder.

At 12:15 o'clock the following were in the box:

James Daniel, married, farmer; S. W. Palmer, widower, merchant; I. S. Lane, single, farmer; S. A. Poyttress, married, farmer; Hoyt D. Brinson, single, farmer; Walter Brannan, married, farmer; Dave Sharps, married, farmer; R. H. Darlington, married, farmer; George W. Johnson, single, farmer; C. A. Pendleton, married, clerk; G. W. Kent, single, farmer, and R. R. Durden, barber.

The selection of the jury was completed after both sides had exhausted their peremptory challenges.

JURORS ARE WARNED.

When the roll of the jury had been called by the clerk, Judge Hammond cautioned the members against talking or communicating with any one on the other side.

"You will be isolated from the world," he said, and remarked with "If anybody attempts to communicate with you by note, word or gesture, it will be your duty to tell the court, for such a person will be in grave contempt."

Following the court's admonition, the jury was taken from the room to a hotel for luncheon.

Judge Hammond then instructed the court to call twelve of the disqualified jurors before him. There he instructed them to be in court next Saturday morning. This is taken to mean that Judge Hammond expects the Godbee case to be completed before then.

At 12:30 o'clock court adjourned until 3 o'clock. Solicitor Moore will then begin the state's case. He could not announce before noon recess who his first witness would be.

Imperturbed by thought of the ordeal which is to come, Mrs. Godbee received visitors in her cell in the county jail early Thursday morning. She smiled and chatted, apparently as carefree as before the double tragedy.

When her daughter, Miss Sarah Godbee, and the second woman in the two sisters called shortly before 7 o'clock they were greeted with a handclasp and she told them not to fear. She expected an acquittal, she said. The party of women left the prison shortly before 8 o'clock and went in an automobile to the court house.

Feeling is tense in Milan. The trial is the one topic of conversation and the influx of lawyers, relatives and scores of curious lens a holiday aspect to the little town. It is with difficulty that the hotels are accommodating the crowds. All the principals in the case are quartered at the Estelle hotel.

Practically All Buildings Razed Preparatory for Erection of Mrs. E. C. Smith's $60,000 Building on Peachtree Street Near Linden – Building for Eight Months and August in Southern Cities Compared

PRACTICALLY all the buildings have been razed preparatory to the erection for Mrs. E. C. Smith of a building on Peachtree street just south of Linden and adjoining the former Oglesby home. Turman, Black and Calhoun, who will erect this building, will make a detailed announcement in a few days. It will cost about $60,000, and will be one of the most important structures on the street.

The Potts building, diagonally across the street at the corner of Linden, is practically completed. Its cost is about $50,000, and it occupies a frontage of 100 feet on Peachtree street.

Speaking of building, the comparison of figures in the south that follows is an interesting one. Dallas, Tex., showed a large gain. Most other southern points, however, show a decrease. While Atlanta shows a decrease, its aggregate value is ahead of both New Orleans and Birmingham.

The gain in Texas is due to the large cotton crop last year and the high prices. In 1914 Atlanta will show a gain due in large measure to the big cotton yield in 1913.

Speaking of cotton, an agent who has just returned from the farm sections says he was surprised by the enormous top crop he saw. The stalks, he said, are loaded with large bolls from top to bottom. The staple grade of open cotton is unusually fine, due to the fine weather conditions. The best posted cotton men estimate a yield for Georgia of 2,250,000 bales.

Building Comparison.

The American Contractor's resume of building in large cities for eight months this year compared with the same period last year and August compared with previous August gives following figures for southern cities:
